Big money is little factor in Democratic primary for Congress :

Ned wins Floyd, Hays wins district

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Two candidates who had proclaimed themselves the leaders of an eight-candidate field for the Democratic nomination for the 5th District Congressional seat appeared destined to be also-rans Tuesday as Pikeville attorney John Doug Hays mounted an impressive win.

The Associated Press declared Hays the winner of the 22-county race at 7:45 Tuesday evening with 66 percent of the district vote counted. Hays appeared to be well ahead of challengers Carol Brown Hubbard and Prestonsburg attorney Bobby Rowe, the top two money raisers in the campaign who spent most of the final days before the election attacking one another in campaign ads.

The money issue obviously had little effect on the race, particularly in Floyd County where under-financed attorney Ned Pillersdorf, also of Prestonsburg, edged Hays and relegated Rowe and Hubbard to third and fourth place finishes, respectively.

Pillersdorf appeared to be battling Rowe and Hubbard for second place in district wide tallies as late returns were counted Tuesday.

In Floyd County, Pillersdorf topped the 5th District balloting with 3,818 votes to Hays' 3,059. Rowe placed third with a 2,828 vote count and Hubbard was well back with 636 votes. Jerry Cecil placed fifth in the eight-candidate race in Floyd County with 252 votes.

In an interesting twist to the Hubbard story, where husband Carroll and wife Carol were attempting to become the first husband and wife team in Congress, late results indicated both were in trouble. While wife Carol lost the 5th District nomination, husband Carroll, the incum-ment 1st District Congressman, also appeared headed toward defeat.

In the presidential primary Tuesday, George Bush was an easy winner on the GOP side while Bill Clinton topped the Democrats. The most interesting angle on the presidential race was an indication that 54 percent of the state's voters Tuesday preferred to remain "uncommitted."

In judicial race :

Caudill, Allen to square off

Caudill

by Geoff Belcher

Voters stayed away from the polls in droves in Tuesday's primary election, as only 12,472 of Floyd County's 28,505 registered voters cast their ballots.

Non-partisan candidate Danny Caudill, who Governor Brereton Jones appointed in February to complete Harold Stumbo's unexpired term as District Judge, was the stand-out winner in the 31st Judicial District race with 5,778 votes.

Caudill will face former Commonwealth Attorney James R. Allen, who received 3,917 votes, in November's general election.

Former Assistant Floyd County Attorney Dan Rowland, who received 1,956 votes, was shut out of November's race.

Incumbent State Senator Benny Ray Bailey defeated his opponent V.G. Combs in the Democratic Primary. Bailey received 5,878 votes to Combs' 1,881.

In the race for State Representative for the 92nd Representative District, Democrat Russell Bentley defeated opponents Dale Hamilton and Pearl Strong. Bentley garnered 1,079 votes, Hamilton 690 and Strong 104.

Although voters in only 8 of Floyd County's 47 voting precincts were eligible to vote in the 92nd Representative District, voting totals for that race far exceeded those in the race for United States Senator, in which all 47 precincts were eligible to vote.

Almost two thousand Floyd Countians cast their ballots for State Representative in the 92nd District, while only 393 voted for a Republican candidate for United States Senator. The inequality in election totals is due in no small part to the relatively small percentage of Republicans in Floyd County.

David L. Williams trounced the competition in that race, earning 223 votes, while opponent Phillip Thompson earned 117 and Denny Ormerod earned 53 votes.

Williams will challenge Democrat Wendell Ford in the general election. Ford is the Majority Whip for the United States Senate.

The general election will be held on November 3.

Absentee ballots

Floyd County Clerk Carla Boyd and election officials count absentee ballots for Tuesday's primary election. There were 168 absentee ballots submitted out of the 172 requested.

At local town forum :

Health care issues talked

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

According to studies conducted by Kentucky's Commission on Health Care, thousands of sick or injured Kentuckians are unable to get the medical attention they need, either because adequate health care is too expensive, or because it is simply unavailable.

Governor Brereton Jones spoke by videotape to over a hundred physicians, health department officials, attorneys and private citizens who convened at Jenny Wiley State Park last Thursday evening to discuss ways to improve Kentucky's ailing health care system.

The event was sponsored by the Governor's Task Force On Health Care Access and Affordability, which is conducting a series of similar town forums across the state.

"We are beginning a process that will put Kentucky in the national spotlight," Jones said in his pre-recorded message. "We are all consumers of the health care system, and an improved system will benefit all Kentuckians." Jones added that healthier children learn more, healthier workers work harder, and healthier senior citizens need less medical care, thus reducing the burden on government-sponsored programs such as medicare and Medicaid.

Information gathered at the forums is to be recorded and given to the Commission on Health Care, which will draft legislation based on suggestions from the community, to be submitted to a special session of the Kentucky General Assembly.

Through the use of instructional videotapes and a structured question and answer session, the task force received numerous suggestions on such problems as making necessary health care available to all parts of the state, controlling health care costs, and promoting healthy lifestyles for all Kentuckians.

Murphy will direct new state development office

Eastern Kentucky's economic development office in Prestonsburg will be headed by Robert L. Murphy of Menifee County, who was named to fill that post by Governor Brereton Jones last week.

Murphy, a former deputy director for the Kentucky Housing Authority, began his duties on Monday and is currently looking for office space in Prestonsburg.

Murphy served with the housing corporation for six years, beginning as a field director and later as deputy director for field services. He most recently worked as a liquidator with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. He has also worked with the Gateway Area Development District.

Governor Jones and Lieutenant Governor Paul Patton announced earlier this year that satellite economic development offices would be located in the eastern and western parts of the state.

The official announcement of Murphy's hiring and the location of the Western Kentucky office is not expected to be made until July.

Fire kills elderly Floyd man

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Adam Patton, 72, of Dody Creek near McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, was killed Monday evening when the home he was living in burned to the ground.

Patton, an invalid, was living in the home of his sister, Jo Ann Patton, who was visiting neighbors at the time of the fire.

Eleven members of the Left Beaver Rescue Squad and Fire Department fought the fire from 7:30 p.m. until approximately 12:30 a.m.

Floyd County coroner Roger Nelson pronounced Patton dead on the scene, but it is not yet clear whether Patton died of smoke inhalation or was burned to death.

Derrick Thacker, chief of the fire department, said that a neighbor had spotted the fire and kicked the door down in an attempt to rescue Patton, but was blown back by heat and flame.

Thacker said that the house, an old single story frame construction, was completely destroyed.

Preliminary investigations show that the fire was caused by faulty wiring in a space heater, Thacker said.

The Kentucky State Police and state fire marshal are currently investigating the fire, but no foul play is suspected.

Jobless rate falls in Big Sandy area

In the Big Sandy region, the unemployment rate declined from a revised 11.5 percent in February to a preliminary 9.9 percent in March. Local rates ranged from 8.5 percent in Johnson County to 15.8 percent in Magoffin County, as two counties in the ADD registered double-digit rates. Floyd County's rate for the period was 9.2 percent.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 42.1 percent had worked in mining, 17.4 percent in construction, 15.7 percent in trade, 10.9 percent in transportation, communication and utilities, and 6.8 percent in services.

Mountain Comp agrees to investigate allegations

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center's board of directors will investigate allegations made against its executive director Thursday of disregarding board member candidates for Martin County.

John Burgess, a MCCC case-worker in Martin County, accused director Steve Schenck of ignoring applications from Martin County citizens who are seeking a seat on the board. Burgess also called for the board to ask for Schenck's resignation for violating the board's mission statement.

There are two seats on the board for Martin County, one is vacant and the other is held by Norma Ward.

Board members could not recall Ward ever being at a meeting. Schenck said Tuesday that Ward was appointed to the board in "probably January or February" of 1991. She applied for the seat in December 1990. The board later voted to ask Ward to resign her position since she had not attended a meeting.

Burgess claimed that Sister Mary Hall of Martin County had applied for a seat on the board in December 1991 and had never been contacted about the position.

Board chairman Phillip Damron, of Prestonsburg, and board member Roland Case, of Pikeville, told Burgess it had been difficult to find Martin County residents who are willing to serve on the board. Case offered to resign his position on the board to someone from Martin County.

Burgess also asked for a clarification from the board on its dual relationship policy between patients and MCCC workers. He claimed his wife, Bonnie, a therapist, had been told she violated the policy because she had a cup of coffee with one of her patients.

Damron explained that the policy's intent was to keep relationships between patients and employees on a professional level. Damron also said he felt the issue shouldn't have been

Primary among citizen complaints was the prohibitive cost of medical insurance co-payments and deductibles.

A wheelchair-bound man who attended the forum was particularly eloquent in his assessment of the problem: "As a person with a disability, I cannot get insurance. I cannot afford Medicare or Medicaid because of expensive co-payments and deductibles—I have seen friends of mine die because they too were unable to afford medical care and were therefore unable to get the attention they needed. Because I cannot get insured, companies where I could otherwise be employed are reluctant to hire me. Because of Kentucky's inadequate health care system, handicapped persons are forced out of the labor market."

Eula Hall, the founder and director of the Mud Creek Clinic, which administers primary medical care to those unable to otherwise afford it, said that she also felt Kentucky's health care system discriminated against the poor and unemployed.

"These people have no money," Hall said. "We're only equipped for primary care—we do everything we can for them, but when we've done all we can, where do they go? They go home to die.... It's time our state does all it can to take care of our people."

Gan Maddiwar, M.D., of Banner, said that he felt it was the responsibility of all physicians to help the poor.

"I myself fight to reduce the constantly rising cost of medical care by helping out at the Mud Creek Clinic," Maddiwar said. "I often treat people whether they can afford it or not."

One possible method of reducing medical costs discussed was improving preventive and early treatment programs. This would supposedly reduce costs because the earlier a disease is found and treated, the less likely that costly, prolonged treatment would be needed.

Jennifer Martin, school nurse for the Floyd County Board of Education, strongly supported such action.

"I'm a strong advocate that every 5th grade student should have a physical and second Measles, Mumps, Rubella vaccination before they are allowed to enroll for school," Martin said. "This could be done by the school nurse at a cost of $3 for the physical and $1 for the MMR vaccination. We did this in Floyd County last year with the cooperation of the health department... We found the children had a lot of health problems, but we found out about them early and got them taken care of."

Another possible method of lowering medical costs was suggested by Katie Isaacs, an Advanced Registered Nurse Practitioner at Hyden, Kentucky's Frontier Nursing Services. Isaac explained that an ARNP was a Registered Nurse with specialized training, who worked closely with a physician, but was qualified to examine and treat patients in the doctor's absence. Isaac said that ARNPs are paid less than $15,000 per year, and that a higher ratio of ARNPs to physicians would be more cost-efficient.

Dr. R. Sundaram, who practices in Prestonsburg and Martin, said that "Access to health care should be on a uniform basis.... Catastrophic illness is the number one cause of bankruptcy in the nation. We need to examine what barriers to health care should be removed."

Sundaram later added that he felt the government should form a single national health plan, and offer financial incentives to employers to enroll workers in some sort of insurance program.

Other speakers advocated a national health care pool that all citizens paid into based on personal income, so that the underprivileged would have the same access to health care enjoyed by the wealthy.

Other problems and solutions discussed were:

- Making mental health treatment more accessible. Pikeville native Elaine Scott, mother of a son suffering from mental illness, said that basic mental health services must be included in any insurance plan.

"Mental health should be treated the same as any physical illness," Scott said. "With deductible and co-payment, Medicare and Medicaid only pay 40 percent of mental health costs.

This puts a tremendous burden on the families and guardians of the mentally ill.

- Making health care technology equally accessible statewide. According to a videotape which the task force showed the audience, over 40 of Kentucky's 120 counties have a drastic shortage of surgeons and equipment.

- The expansion of hospice programs, which care for terminally ill patients in their homes, rather than using expensive hospital care.

The task force will hold another series of town forums in October, so that the community can review the legislation proposed by the Commission on Health Care before it is submitted to the General Assembly in November.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Just days after the L.A. riots, newspapers across this state and country attempted to explain why they happened.

Some devoted as much as a page of editorial space to columnists who told us that much of America's troubles could be traced back to fatherless families.

When Vice President Dan Quayle made a similar suggestion in reference to a popular television program's story line, those same editorialists took after Quayle like hounds on a rabbit.

What exactly did Quayle say that created so much furor among the pundits?

He said, in a single sentence that was part of a six-page speech, that the TV character Murphy Brown was "mocking the importance of fathers by bearing a child alone and calling it just another lifestyle choice."

Since uttering that comment, the Vice President has been bashed, trashed and accused of everything from deriding single mothers to having said that Murphy Brown was responsible for the L.A. riots.

What Quayle really said was that more times than not single-motherhood is not a "lifestyle choice" and that a television show which depicts it as such is a mockery of the truth.

Perhaps Quayle's critics are so used to his inanities that they are unable to recognize those few occasions when he makes sense.

Dozens of U.S. companies are moving their operations to Mexico, where the price of a day's labor is equal to about an hour's-worth in the States.

Thousands of Americans have lost their jobs as a result.

Companies say they must take advantage of the lower production costs in order to remain competitive in a global market where, as a matter of information, Americans still represent the largest group of consumers.

Let's see how this adds up... Americans are being put out of work so companies can save money producing products to sell to Americans who have no jobs and no money to buy the cheaper products.

Makes perfect sense.

A Harlan circuit judge has ruled unconstitutional a part of the state's education reform law which allows the state board of education the right to remove local board members from office.

While we haven't read the ruling, we do find it interesting given the fact that the state board of education has had the power to remove local officials for some time, long before the Kentucky Education Reform Act was adopted.

There are removal cases, in fact, dating back to the early part of this century.

Local school boards weren't created by the Constitution, they were created by the legislature and the legislature, we assume, has the authority to direct how those boards are regulated.

So, local board members who think the recent decision will protect them from ouster may be a little premature in their celebrations.

By the time you read this the election will be over, the votes counted, the winners will be crowing and the losers will be crying.

It's a safe bet that fewer than 30 percent of all registered voters bothered to go to the polls despite recurring claims of voter dissatisfaction with elected officials.

If voters are displeased with the way their government is run, it doesn't show up in the returns, no matter who has won or lost.

When fewer than a third of the people eligible to vote decide who will run our government, it's hard to put much stock in the argument that people are fed up.

Support Hayes

How many parents would attempt to take on the responsibility that Debra Hayes has since becoming our parent representative in the Superintendent Screening Committee?

There are always some people that sit back and won't volunteer to do anything, but they "love" to criticize those that will. It seems as if this happens a lot. No one else wants the job, but they enjoy talking bad about how that person does his/her job.

Debbie has taken on a lot of "headaches," I'm sure, with the position that she holds, and I think that we should support her and give her a lot of encouragement because I feel that she is doing an excellent job. This job has taken up hours of her free time that most of us aren't willing to give up.

I'm sure that the entire committee has done as good as anyone here in Floyd County or anywhere else could have done and they need for the citizens of Floyd County to stand behind them, not against them!

I'm proud that we have professional people like Debra that can and will do a great job for our children. After all, who will get the benefits?

One can attend baseball and softball games and use the field free of charge. If one wants to play golf with the cart, the fee is twenty dollars.

Among us is an ill person, whom I feel needs help. One Thursday morning while we were taking out the garbage for pick-up, we noticed a blue, 5 gallon bucket in our yard. We closely studied the bucket and the contents. To our surprise, in the bucket was raw hamburger and anti-freeze. This is not the answer to our (your) animal problem.

I think this is disgusting! The person that would do something as cruel as this needs help. To think that someone invaded our property throughout the night to do this is scary. I feel like I have been robbed. If this incident injures and/or kills one of my animals, I am as good as a victim or robbery, robbed from the life of my animals.

For the person/persons who did this, I want you to know what you have done. You have killed an innocent dog. Friday evening I learned that an old neighborhood pet died Friday morning possibly from anti-freeze poisoning. Felix was a familiar face to us all from the Auxier Water Company. I have lived in this neighborhood for approximately four years, and to my knowledge, this dog has never bothered, damaged, or ruined anyone's property. This dog died innocently because he was a victim of a sick person's problem.

If you have a problem in your area with dogs, cats, etc., try to locate the owners of the animals and discuss your problem with them first. If this does not help, please contact your local shelter or Humane Society. Do not handle this problem in inhumane ways.

Anyone having information regarding this incident, or any other incidents, please contact one of the below numbers so that the person/persons responsible can be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The law is cruelty to animals, 2nd degree maximum, $200 fine.

After reading the article in last week's paper focusing on the Prestonsburg City Police Department, I have only a few things that I would like to say.

I live in downtown Prestonsburg, very close to the Municipal Parking Lot. I am the one who has to listen to the tires squealing and put up with the music shaking my windows all night long. I have many, many, times had to call the police to come and calm the kids down. Also, on many occasions, I have picked up empty beer and liquor bottles out of my yard, which could only have come from them. I have also been walking to the Sundry Store with my small child and nearly been run over by a car coming out of the lot sideways!! If you think that the Municipal Parking lot is such a wonderful place for your kids to "hang out," I suggest you come and spend a Friday or Saturday night at my house.

The city and state spends a lot of money training the police officers in this town and it is a shame they get treated like they do. The only problem we have is that the kids in this town are not taught to respect the law enforcement.

Every year lives are lost in home fires. Most of these fires could have been prevented. Here in Cambridge, Ohio, a home fire cost the lives of three small children. They were asleep on the second floor when the fire broke out. Both parents dashed next door to use the telephone. By the time they got back, the upstairs was in flames. Three little children were burned alive as they slept. The parents were badly burned as they tried to save them.

Another home fire was started by a line of wet clothing, hanging above a kitchen range to dry. The line broke, a fire was started, and a home was burned down.

A woman was lost in another fire. I expect more fires as summer comes, here.

Fires probably are not new to people in Kentucky, either.

Prevent fires from ever happening to your family! Most fires could have been prevented. Fire drills could save lives. Know what to do if a fire strikes. First, get the family members out. Check to see if everyone is outside. Don't smoke in bed. Don't pitch lit cigarette butts in the waste baskets! Try not to smoke in the home. Don't let the baby play with matches.

Have large house numbers on the side of each house. It's nice to have that glow in the dark. Have a phone on every floor. Teach every child how to use the phone to get help in an emergency. Have several ways to get out of a burning house. Be sure you know how to get the fire department. Talk slow enough to be understood. Tell them where you live, and how to get to you. Don't go back in to save furniture at a risk to human life. Furniture can be replaced. The lives of loved ones can't! Be careful! The life you save could be your own or a loved one. And prevent forest fires! There might be more at stake than Smokey Bear!

Editor:

For over a decade now the people of the 95th Legislative District have honored me by allowing me to serve as their State Representative in Frankfort, Kentucky. During that time, I have had an "open door" policy to not only the people of my District, but to all Floyd Countians, Eastern Kentuckians, and in fact, any Kentuckian who has a problem that I might be of some assistance to. I am sure that you can appreciate the fact that the constraints of time may often limit the type of response which we can provide, however, my staff and I have made a very conscientious effort to address our fellow citizens needs through my elected office over these many years.

It is from that perspective that I would respond to the letter which appeared in last week's edition of your newspaper from Libby Martin, AKA Elizabeth R. Martin, AKA Mrs. Otto Martin. Attached hereto are copies of three letters from my office to Mrs. Martin. The first bearing date of September 23, 1986; the second bearing date of May 27, 1987; and the third bearing date of January 7, 1988.

I have known about her problem as you can see, since 1986. My staff in Frankfort has been monitoring the Public Service Commission's handling of this matter since it involves a small telephone company, the Thacker-Grigsby Exchange, to which she is a customer. We are told, repeatedly, that there is no legislative solution to this problem, and in fact, on July 12, 1991, South Central Bell made a proposal before the Public Service Commission for an area calling service (ACS) to begin in April of 1992 to make available new local service options to its customers who wanted expanded community of interest calling areas at a rate structured where they could call anywhere within their community of interest without paying high long distance rates. The plan is optional, and if Mrs. Martin were a customer of South Central Bell's, her problem would be solved. The Public Service Commission tells us that it is hopeful that the implementation of the ACS will spread and an agreement can be worked out between independent telephone companies such as the one that serves Mrs. Martin and South Central Bell, which serves the rest of the county, in the very near future, hopefully within the next twelve to eighteen months.

It should also be noted that in its decision concerning South Central Bell the Public Service Commission required South Central Bell to file the necessary information in order for the Commission to extend these offerings to areas served by independent telephone companies.

Mrs. Martin was well aware of all of this, and she apparently is simply one of those people who cannot understand or do not want to understand when things are explained to them, time and time again.

I might add that she is not a constituent of mine, nor does she live within my District, however, as I pointed out above and as I believe that the attached Exhibits in the form of our letters show, we have not ignored her problems, to the contrary, we have kept abreast of them and worked with the Public Service Commission in an attempt to alleviate that concern.

I was also amused by her comment about the legislation which provided that utility companies could, in fact, pass along the cost of emissions control equipment without a formal rate structured hearing. Congress has imposed upon the nation the Federal Clean Air Act which requires all utilities to meet certain emission standards by the year 2001. The Legislation encourages and provides an incentive for Kentucky-based utilities to continue to burn Kentucky-produced coal rather than go to the cheap coal now flooding the markets from the western states. The utilities are offered this incentive which will allow them to purchase the necessary scrubbers to meet the emissions standards. And so, yes, Mrs. Martin, I am guilty of voting for legislation that encourages Kentucky corporations to burn Kentucky coal produced by Kentucky miners living right here in our area.

In conclusion, I might add that my staff and I look forward to continuing our "open door" policy of hospitality and service to all of our fellow Floyd Countians and Kentuckians; to date, our office has welcomed and assisted with the arrangement for over 1,500 school children who are visiting the State's Capitol in Frankfort from throughout Eastern Kentucky. I chose to write this response because I would not want anyone in the future to believe that my office would not be receptive as we have been in the past to helping solve whatever problem or concern it is in Frankfort that we can. I pledge to continue working to improve the quality of life for the people of the 95th District and those in Eastern Kentucky, and I look forward to being able to serve in that capacity. However, I must point out that it may require an exception to our "open door" policy with regards to Mrs. Martin and people like her who do not appreciate the efforts that were made on their behalf.

Thank you for allowing me the courtesy of a response.

SHAME to the organization or persons responsible for the appalling "fishing pond" at the Festival of F.A.C.E.S. Trout were starved so that they could be easily caught by children and put into plastic bags to either be tortured or to die slowly and painfully. It is highly unlikely that any of these poor creatures appeared on the family dinner table as part of the natural food chain. By no definition would this qualify as "Sport".

What values are we teaching our children? Recent events in our nation have dramatically showcased man's inhumanity to his fellow man. How can we expect the next generation to have respect for one another when they have been taught that it is acceptable to behave so irresponsibly and inhumanely toward the helpless and innocent creatures of God with whom we share the Earth?

The anger and violence of the Los Angeles riots should not have been a surprise. It was the predictable expression of deep-seated frustration felt by people living for years in poverty, powerlessness and hopelessness.

And to Los Angeles-based World Vision, a Christian international aid organization supported by more than 700,000 donors from every corner of the United States, the frustration and the anger were painfully familiar. We have seen them again and again in over forty years of working alongside the poor, the hungry and the disenfranchised of the world. For years, our international relief and development specialists have realized that the condition of third world poor — children in particular — is indistinguishable from the condition of an increasing number of poor in America.

A decade ago, in recognition of needs here at home, World Vision decided to draw on our overseas experience to minister to the poor in our own back yard. The result was the forging of a partnership with churches inside and outside the inner city to not only meet immediate needs but also lay the foundation for long term constructive change. It was that existing network of partner churches and their tireless volunteers that enabled World Vision to begin mobilizing emergency resources within the first hours of the L.A. rioting.

But providing emergency relief and digging out from the rubble are only the first steps. In the months and years ahead we expect that it will be this grass roots partnership that will provide the leadership, resources, and energy needed to confront the long-term challenges of meeting such bedrock human needs as housing, education and job opportunity.

If we expect to meet these challenges, if we hope to transform ashes into assets, this partnership clearly must grow. So we invite all of our brothers and sisters across the United States to work together with us to meet the needs of our neighbors in crisis.

For information about joining with World Vision in this effort, please call 1-800-423-4200, or write World Vision, P.O. Box 1131, Pasadena, CA 91131.

RE: FLOYD COUNTY FISCAL COURT RESOLUTION AND COMMUNICATIONS WITH THE FLOYD COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION

Editor:
I want to take this opportunity to communicate to you the exact letter and resolution that I sent on behalf of the Floyd County Fiscal Court to all board members of the Floyd County Board of Education. Please find a copy of the May 18, 1992, letter in its entirety to Edward Billips, Floyd County Board of Education Member, with the attached Floyd County Fiscal Court Resolution which is incorporated and made a part hereby as if copied verbatim and marked "Exhibit A" for identification purposes.

The policy behind the letter and the resolution was not necessarily the endorsement of any editorial because your editorial pertained to the screening committee's activities and not to the ultimate selection by the school board. The policy of any organization should be to promote from within where there is qualified people. Any knowledgeable person, academician or professional consultant who teaches or advises in the art of administration would readily advocate to promoting from within qualified people into administrative positions, simply because it assures the success of the organization.

In the delivery of governmental services which the superintendent is charged, most knowledgeable people would readily agree that persons from the area who are qualified, regardless if they're still in the area or have had to leave the area, should be given the first consideration in filling administrative positions. These people, male and female, are available. This not only develops the morale of the people/citizens of the area and the employees of the organization, but assures that someone who has a deep inner obligation to see that the organization is successful in reaching its defined goals and objectives will manage the system.

Alice Lloyd College pays for the post graduate professional education of its students advocating this concept with the idea that the students have a moral obligation to return to this area and provide the professional skills that are not only necessary but are vital in leadership for success. These people will stay for the long haul even when the social, political and economic factors are at their greatest burden because they have the roots and family connections, "Alice Lloyd's moral obligation", which will carry them through. Berea College ascribes to the same philosophy.

I hope that you will print this letter in its entirety including the letter that was sent to each of the board members and the Court Resolution so that the public will be better informed of the intent of the Floyd County Fiscal Court in this matter.

Thank you for the coverage that the Floyd County Times has provided in this matter and other matters that affect the day to day lives of the people in Floyd County.

Editor:
IN RE: EMPLOYMENT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF FLOYD COUNTY SCHOOLS

Dear Mr. Billips:

The Floyd Fiscal Court passed a resolution at its regular monthly meeting requesting that the Board of Education consider the appointment of Gary Frazier or any other qualified Floyd County as superintendent in filling the existing vacancy. A type written copy of the resolution is attached hereto and made a part hereby as if copied verbatim and marked as "Exhibit I" for identification purposes.

This resolution is not to be construed as an attempt by the Floyd County Fiscal Court and/or by myself to dictate to you whom to employ in filling the vacancy of Floyd County Superintendent. The Floyd County Fiscal Court, as I do, feels that the success of any organization in meeting its goal should have the best personnel that it can afford to employ in administering the day to day activities of the organization. We all share a common goal for the Floyd County Schools, which is to provide the most efficient and effective school system that renders the highest quality of excellence in educational opportunity for our children and our citizens.

Rather than reforming rejects from other organizations, opportunities should be given to the most qualified person, male or female, who has the most invested in the organization. In this instant matter when someone who is educationally, intellectually, professionally and emotionally qualified and who possesses the necessary integrity is available from the community that the Board of Education serves, that person should be given the opportunity to lead so that the obtaining of the organization's goal can be manifested. He or she is more probable to accomplish the task or provide the necessary leadership for success.

Please take this resolution within the spirit that it was made. We know your job is difficult enough, and we are not trying to add to that difficulty.

On behalf of the Floyd Fiscal Court, thank you in advance for your consideration in this matter.

Jimmy Martin Hammond
Floyd County Attorney

Six are sentenced for operating illegal strip mines in Knox County

Karen Caldwell, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, announced the sentencing on Friday, May 22, 1992 of six persons pursuant to their convictions for multiple offenses arising from the operation of twenty-six illegal strip mines in Knox County, Kentucky between 1985 and 1988. The defendants were sentenced in United States District Court in Lexington by United States District Judge Karl S. Forster.

According to Assistant United States Attorney, H. Davis Sledd, the sentences were as follows:

Orville Hubbard, 43, was sentenced to 5 years for his conviction of the crime of mail fraud, and was sentenced to 27 months for his conviction of the crime of bankruptcy fraud.

Jerry Lee Mills, 42, was sentenced to 5 years for his conviction of the crime of mail fraud, and was sentenced to 18 months for his conviction of the crime of bankruptcy fraud. In addition, Mills was convicted of two misdemeanor violations of the federal laws governing surface coal mines, and was sentenced to 12 months on each count. The sentences will run concurrently, and will be followed by a two year term of supervised release.

Ronnie Hubbard, 29, Orville

Hubbard's nephew, was convicted of three misdemeanor violations of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act and the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act, and was sentenced to 7 months on each count, the sentences to run concurrently.

Tom Hubbard, 36, and Patricia Hubbard, 32, Orville Hubbard's brother and sister, were each convicted of three misdemeanor violations of the federal mining laws, and were each sentenced to two years probation as a condition of which each will serve a term of one month home detention.

Carl Mills, 40, was convicted of three misdemeanor violations of the federal mining laws, and was sentenced to two years probation on each count.

discussed since his wife had no formal grievance filed on the issue.

Several board members also told Burgess they resented "a media ambush." Damron said no members of the media had been present at a MCCC meeting in six years and was surprised to see three members at Thursday's meeting.

Martin County resident Betty Preece told the board that she and others were concerned that Martin Countians were being "short changed" in reference to services provided in other counties.

Preece said that clients in Martin County had to ride a bus for several hours a day in order to work at the center's greenhouse project at Auxier in Floyd County.

Preece also expressed concern about the lack of action by MCCC after a community meeting in 1989 in Martin County where citizens and community leaders were willing to pass a local tax in order to raise revenue to provide more services to the county's mentally handicapped residents.

"We were told that when a report was given to the board by Mr. Burgess about the project, he was told to shut up about it," Preece said.

Board members said they were unaware of the meeting, but promised to investigate the issue.

Another Martin County resident, George Maynard, told the board he has been unable to receive treatment and presented the board with a list of seven complaints against Schenck.

Maynard claimed that he had not been allowed access to his records; that he had been refused care; that he had been asked to transfer to another center out of the county; that his patient confidence had been broken; that his records had been missing for two weeks; and that he had been kept waiting for about 45 minutes at his last appointment.

Maynard said he had received a response from Schenck but it did not satisfy his complaints.

Chairman Damron said the issue would be forwarded to the board's executive committee for investigation.

In other action Thursday, the board reviewed it's 1992-93 budget and heard a report from Carol Sauers, the board's state liaison, about legislation passed in the 1992 session of the General Assembly that would affect mental health services.

The MCCC board meets the third Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at their offices in Prestonsburg. The meetings are open to the public.

Abraham Lincoln Assassination: a nation weeping

Festival

F.A.C.E.S.
FAMILY, ARTS, CULTURE, EDUCATION, SPRING

by Sherry L. Prater
Junior
Prestonsburg High School

Editor's Note: The following essay was a first place winner in the Festival of F.A.C.E.S. Annual History Essay Community Contest. Prater is the 16-year-old daughter of Gene and Fay Prater of Middlecreek.

Within the past few years, presidential assassinations have been the hot topic of conversation among average citizens thanks to a group of movies dealing with the subject. Movies based on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy have caused a resurgence of speculation on all presidential assassinations. It is a foregone conclusion that the assassination of a president has a terrible effect on the history of a nation, however, some cause more of a problem than others. The presidential assassination that seems to have caused the greatest uproar was the murder of President Abraham Lincoln. The deadly encounter between President Lincoln and his murderer, John Wilkes Booth, caused a rift between the North and South that still has not completely healed.

President Abraham Lincoln was the nation's leader throughout the War between the States. This war was the greatest challenge that the United States of America has ever faced in its short history. President Lincoln knew that if the nation was to survive, the South would have to be brought back into it. To accomplish this task, Lincoln would have to battle radicals that wished to punish the South for their secession. More than once, he conceded that it would be a hard won peace and harder to continue the peace after the war.

Lincoln started early in the war to promote a reconstruction plan that he thought would be fair for the South. On December 8, 1863, Lincoln issued a proclamation for reconstruction. On the above mentioned date, President Lincoln issued the Proclamation of Amnesty and Reconstruction by the President of the United States. Part of this proclamation read, "I, Abraham Lincoln, president of the United States, do proclaim, declare and make known to all persons who have, directly or by implication, participated in the existing rebellion, except as hereinafter excepted, that a full pardon is hereby granted to them and each of them, with restoration of all rights of property." Along with this proclamation was an oath requirement and a provision that made the act changeable as the war continued.

It is evident from this beginning act, that Lincoln was advocating a humane treatment for the Southern rebels. However, it was not to be as easy as he had envisioned. With his death at the hand of a Southern sympathizer, Lincoln's plans were drastically changed. It is important that the assassination of the President and the conspiracy surrounding the murder be investigated first to show how this fateful encounter caused the nation to continue to weep.

Almost from the beginning of the war, the Confederate government had issued orders for the capture of President Lincoln. However, by April 5, 1865, Lincoln received word that Confederate agents had left Richmond with the distinct order to seriously wound or kill him. Lincoln reportedly answered, "I cannot bring myself to believe that any human being lives who would do me harm."

History would prove President Lincoln wrong. John Wilkes Booth had a deep seated anger against the President. This anger grew unchecked when Booth learned of Lee's surrender and the capture of Richmond. Booth along with two other conspirators, George Atzerodt and Lewis Powell, decided that the time was right and they set their plan into action. Booth was to kill Lincoln; Atzerodt was to kill Vice-president Johnson; and Powell was to kill Secretary of State Seward. Booth was the only conspirator to succeed in his assignment.

The other two conspirators failed to complete their work.

After Booth fatally completed his assignment to kill the president. He jumped to the stage of Ford's Theater, breaking his leg in the process. Then he yelled, "Sic semper tyrannis" This Latin phrase, the state motto of Virginia, has variously been translated as "Ever thus to tyrants!" and as "The South is avenged." This parting phrase was the first clue that the man who murdered the President was of Southern sympathies. According to official reports, Booth was tracked down and died, either by his own hand or by that of a soldier.

The brief encounter between President Abraham Lincoln and John Wilkes Booth was to cause the South to endure through endless years of hard Reconstruction. The tough years of reconstruction was undoubtedly caused in part by the fact that Booth was a Southerner that had killed the President. The hatred for the South started immediately after the assassination. Upon hearing the news, Gideon Wells, Secretary of the Navy exclaimed, "Damn the Rebels, this is their work."

The trial for the conspirators was held quickly and they were hanged. The trial was conducted under the guidance of Army General Joseph Holt. The prosecuting Special Judge Advocate was John A. Bingham. In see what was needed after the Civil War. The clash of different political views and different moral sentiments after the war caused the Reconstruction of the South to go wrong. Another basic issue during the Reconstruction Era that caused a number of problems was the question of eliminating slavery in the South. President Lincoln had issued the Emancipation Proclamation to free all slaves. However, when the war was over and Lincoln dead, the burden fell to President Johnson. This burden seemed too hard to carry as Johnson refused to accept the equal rights provision of the Civil Rights Act. He also refused to accept the provisions of the Fourteenth Amendment. Historians Lavanda and John H. Cox wrote that President Johnson won the support of the Southern whites by his refusals to completely integrate the races. However, he lost the political backing and support of the people of the North. This was a devastating blow to his career, as the North was the political powerhouse that would decide if he was to be reelected as president. The historians quote Senator Fessenden as writing, "The truth is, Mr. Johnson has continued to excite so much distrust that the public mind is, easily played upon by those who are seeking only the accomplishment of their own purposes."

Many of the hostilities against the South were aired in the Report of the Joint Committee on Reconstruction, June 8, 1866. One part of this report listed that the South was responsible for the deaths of 250,000 loyal soldiers of the Union and for not less than an increase of $3,500,000,000 added to the national burden. These two numbers along with the death of Lincoln by a Southerner caused an uproar in Congress and the rest of the nation. President Johnson tried to follow Lincoln's plans at first, but was quickly caught up in the moment and allowed Congress to enact harsher reconstruction acts. Soon, the entire South was under the control of the military. The same military that had just invaded and conquered them.

It is obvious to see that the goal of the radical members of Congress was to punish the South for its attempt to leave the Union. It was these gentlemen that were able to half talk President Johnson into and half coerce him into working with reconstruction acts that caused the South to suffer more than was necessary. The South soon became a playground for politics, that scholars agree would not of happened if Lincoln had lived to support his ideas.

Most historians agree that if Lincoln had lived, he would have been more able to control the direction of the reconstruction. He was a strong President that through his official powers and his charismatic power would have been able to quiet the fears of the Northern political machine. Instead, his death at the hands of a Southerner, was a catalyst that caused more fear and rebellion.

Historian James F. Rhodes wrote the following paragraph that shows the feelings of many scholars as it relates to the differences of roads taken during reconstruction.

"Most revolutions go too far and so did ours, but it undoubtedly would not have done so had not Lincoln been killed. Three men are responsible for the Congressional policy of reconstruction: Andrew Johnson by his obstinacy and bad behavior; Thaddeus Stevens by his vindictiveness and parliamentary tyranny; Charles Sumner by his pertinacity in a misguided humanitarianism. Emerson's words tell the story, "They mix the fire of the moral sentiment with personal and party heats, with measureless exaggerations and the blindness that prefers some darling measure to justice and truth."

This paragraph is one of the most poignant and descriptive of the attitudes about the problems caused by the death of President Lincoln. Rhodes and other scholars show that the men that took power after the assassination were not able to clearly be seen that this change in politics and life was a direct consequence of an encounter between two men. One man being John Wilkes Booth, a distraught Southern sympathizer that blamed one man for the defeat of the South and its way of life. And the other man being President Abraham Lincoln, the President of the United States, who refused to let the Union be pulled apart.

This short, but productive encounter between two men plunged the entire nation into years of bad feelings and corruption. The feelings of betrayal still can be seen in many parts of the South today. Numerous Southerners still talk of how they are second class citizens stemming from the treatment of their forefathers during the Reconstruction Era. Old Wounds heal slowly in the fertile lands of the South.

From the writings of many historical scholars, it can be derived that the death of President Abraham Lincoln and the taking of the office by President Johnson was one of the largest changes in politics in the history of the United States. It can also

One drink may be all it takes, says state director of MADD

Since the announcement of the opening of the state office of MADD in January 1990, MADD has received hundreds of contacts from citizens from across the Commonwealth who are seriously concerned over the problem of drunk driving and who are turning to MADD for information and assistance.

The strength of the organization is in its grass-roots volunteer commitment to learn as much as possible about not only alcohol and the effects it has upon those who drink and drive, but also about the approaches to take to get drunk drivers off the roads and to keep them off the roads, said Paula B. Freeman, state executive director of MADD.

How serious is today's problem? According to statistics collected by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) drunk driving remains one of the country's leading public health threats. Drunk driving is a violent and senseless crime that leaves in its wake much heartache and destruction, said Freeman. "It is the most frequently committed violent crime in the country today."

Statistics from 1988 reflect that during that year, arrests for DUI totalled approximately three times the total of all other violent crimes combined.

Every 23 minutes, somewhere in the United States at least one person dies in an alcohol-related crash. Within a 24 hour period, the lives of approximately eight persons age 15 through 19 will suddenly and unexpectedly be snuffed out because of the choice of an individual to drink and then drive, Freeman said.

Approximately two out of every five individuals will be involved in an alcohol-related crash at some time during their lives, she explained.

Drunk drivers don't always end up killing. Every year, nearly 540,000 people are injured in alcohol-related crashes.

"When we look at the consequences of the drunk driving crash, we aren't just looking at deaths and broken limbs; we are also looking at permanent brain damage, spinal injuries, loss of arms and legs, and recurring nightmares, as well as many other long-term emotional injuries, not to mention grief inflicted upon those who have lost loved ones," she said. "Many of those injuries inflicted by the drunk driver are invisible wounds that last a lifetime."

There are also financial issues involved. Estimates of the economic costs of drunk driving range from $11 billion (NHTSA 1985) to $24 billion (FBI, 1989) each year.

Statistics on alcoholism reveal that over 18 million adults are either alcoholic or have a serious substance abuse problem. At least 4.6 million adolescents annually become addicted. Three out of every ten teenagers have alcohol problems and nine out of ten teenage crashes involve alcohol.

"It is often amazing for those of us who work with MADD to hear some of the comments from individuals when someone has been arrested for drunk driving. Comments are particularly sympathetic when no one was injured or killed and the offender is viewed as a 'normal and law-abiding citizen' or a 'respectable member of the community,'" she commented.

"Frequently, the opinions expressed range from 'This man is such a nice guy ... he has never been in trouble before ... he really should get another chance ...' to 'This was her first offense. Everyone is entitled to make one mistake,'" lamented Freeman.

"My first inclination when I hear comments such as these is to invite those who have made such comments to go with me to visit a six-year-old boy lying in a hospital room with a leg amputated because his father had a 'couple of beers' before picking him up at the day care center," she said.

"Or, I would invite the individual to visit a local funeral home to provide comfort and support for two young parents whose only child had been killed by a well-respected businessman who refused to let any of his associates drive him home after having a couple of drinks at an office party."

In 1989, there were 1.7 million arrests for drunk driving in the United States. For every arrest, it is estimated that at least 1,000 trips by drunk drivers have gone undetected. Only 1 in 500 to 1 in 2,000 drivers with a blood alcohol content (BAC) over .10 percent are arrested in any given 24 hour period.

Most alcohol-related fatal crashes involve drinking drivers who do not have a prior DUI conviction on their record, said Freeman.

The American Medical Association warns that impairment actually begins with the first drink. Even at BACs as low as .02 percent, alcohol affects driving and crash likelihood, Freeman said.

Frazier named to faculty of Institute for Teachers

THE PUBLIC'S LINK TO CANCER INFORMATION

Cancer Answers

The Cancer Information Service is part of the Kentucky Cancer Program and is supported by the National Cancer Institute.

Q: I had a hysterectomy several years ago. Do I still need to have a Pap test?

A: The need for a Pap test following a hysterectomy depends on the reasons for the surgery and the type of procedure done. Regular Pap tests are needed if your hysterectomy was a treatment for cancer, or if you had a partial hysterectomy and your cervix was not removed. If your uterus and cervix were both removed (a total hysterectomy), you need to have regular pelvic exams. Your doctor or nurse may recommend a Pap test every 3 to 5 years.

Q: Do some kinds of cancer run in families? My brother and his son both have colon cancer.

A: Some families do have a greater risk for certain cancers.

Colon and breast cancers are the most common types. Most hereditary cancers also must be triggered by something in a person's environment or lifestyle, such as the use of tobacco, radiation, air pollution, viruses or diet.

Since several members of your family have colon cancer, you may have a greater risk for getting this disease. But you can help yourself by doing these things:

- * Tell your doctor about the colon cancer in your family. Your doctor can check your colon and remove any growths (called polyps) in the colon. These polyps can become cancerous if they are not removed.

- * Eat foods that are high in fiber and low in fat. Foods such as fruits, vegetables, whole grain breads and cereals help protect the body from colon cancer and other cancers. For information about how to improve your diet, call 1-800-4-CANCER.

Q: I have been smoking for over 20 years. I have tried to quit "cold turkey", but I never last for more than a few days. Is there anything else I can try?

A: Most people are able to quit "cold turkey" after several tries. Since that hasn't worked, try setting a "quit date" for the near future. After you choose the day, start cutting down on the number of cigarettes you smoke each day up to the day you will quit. This will help your body get used to not getting nicotine from cigarettes. Nicotine is an addictive drug found in tobacco that makes you want cigarettes. On the day that you quit, get rid of all your cigarettes and wet them down so that you won't be tempted to get them out of the trash. Start saving the money you spend on cigarettes each day to buy something for yourself. Stay busy on the day you quit. Spend time in places where smoking isn't allowed. Keep things like gum, hard candy, and toothpicks with you to use in place of cigarettes. If you get the urge to smoke, do something else, drink water, take deep breaths, or talk to someone who wants to help you quit. Reward yourself for getting through the day without smoking.

If you do smoke while trying to quit, don't think that you can't do it — keep trying. Quitting isn't easy and some people are more addicted and need extra help. Talk to your doctor. He or she may decide to prescribe nicotine gum or a nicotine patch to help you. It can help relieve withdrawal symptoms while you stop smoking. More than 3 million Americans quit every year — you can be one of them! If you would like more information on quitting smoking, call 1-800-4-CANCER.

Q: One of my worst fears about breast cancer is the thought of losing my breast. I heard there is breast-saving surgery now. Is it safe?

A: Breast-saving surgery, called lumpectomy, is the removal of a breast lump and the tissue around it. Lumpectomy allows a woman to keep her breast. Studies show women who have lumpectomy followed by six weeks of radiation live as long as women who have their entire breast removed by mastectomy.

Not all women with breast cancer can have a lumpectomy. The type of surgery a woman has depends on the size of the lump, where it is, plus other reasons. A woman who has breast cancer needs to talk to her doctor about what treatment might be best for her. Kentucky law says she must be given a copy of "Choices: Treatment for Breast Cancer" by her doctor before treatment begins. If you would like more information about lumpectomy or other breast cancer treatments, please call 1-800-4-CANCER.

Q: Could a diet that's good for my heart also help prevent cancer?

A: A diet that is low in saturated fat and cholesterol and includes plenty of high fiber foods is good for your heart and can help prevent cancer. This diet should include at least 5 servings of fruits and vegetables a day. Fruits and vegetables contain no cholesterol (animal fat). Most are low in fat and sodium and many are good sources of fiber and vitamins. Apples, cantaloupe, broccoli, carrots, greens, lettuce, okra, potatoes, spinach, squash, tomatoes and zucchini are good choices because they are high in fiber and vitamins A and C. When you go out to eat, choose low-fat, high fiber items on the menu. These would be your best choices. When cooking at home, avoid frying foods — baking, steaming, broiling and microwaving are much healthier ways to prepare foods. If you would like more information on food choices, please call 1-800-4-CANCER.

Q: I'm afraid I'll gain weight if I quit smoking. Isn't being overweight just as bad for you as smoking?

A: Not every person who stops smoking gains weight. The average for those who do is 5 to 10 pounds. The risks to health from smoking are far greater than the risk from a small weight gain.

Exercise is a good way to cope with cigarette cravings—and to avoid weight gain. It also helps to eat low calorie snacks such as carrot sticks and fruits, and to drink 6 to 8 glasses of water a day.

Don't diet while you stop smoking—there will be time after you are a nonsmoker. Focus first on ending your addiction to cigarettes.

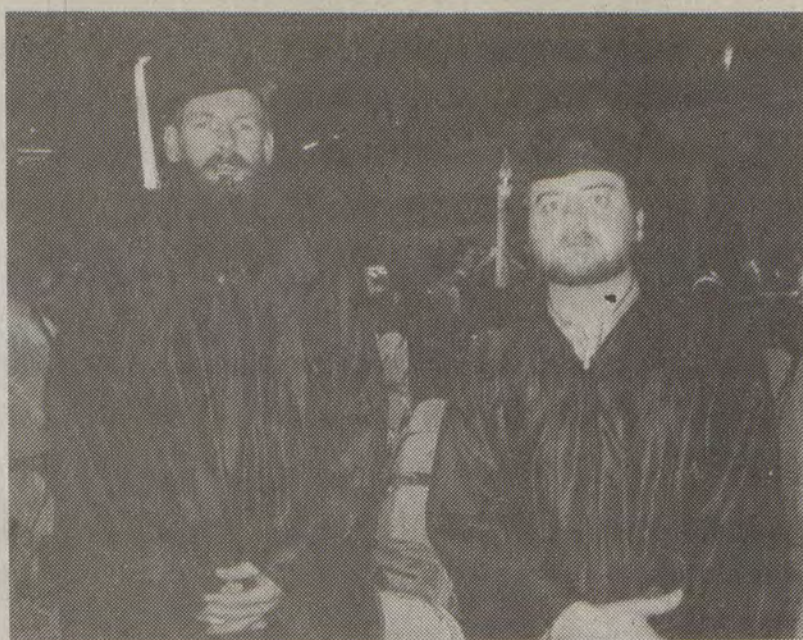

Remember, a small increase in weight may not hurt your appearance, but smoking does. It causes yellowed teeth, bad breath, stale clothing odors, and, possibly, wrinkled skin.

If you would like more information on quitting smoking, please call 1-800-4-CANCER.

SECTIONAL AT CLAY COUNTY WAS OUTSTANDING

There were some exciting events at the recent sectional track and field meet in Clay County this past Saturday. The weather was great (92 degrees) and a large crowd was on hand.

Teams from Wheelwright and Allen Central made the trip to Manchester for the meet and some of the athletes will travel to Lexington for the state meet this Saturday.

The events got started around 10:30 a.m. and lasted all day. As the weather heated up, so did the competition. The run of Jenny Wiley for Allen Central in the women's 400-meter run was an exciting finish. Layne Bailey had a strong finish for first place in the men's 400-meter run.

We had three coaches, Dewey Jamerson, Forrest Hughes and Keith Smallwood, down at the meet helping out. I appreciate the time and effort these three men have put into this year's season. It certainly has been entertaining and very enjoyable.

Jamerson got me on the track and field kick two years ago when I covered my first meet at Pikeville. I have enjoyed it ever since. I even watch it on television now! If you ever take one in and see the crowd yelling for a particular runner and the excitement at the finish line, you will be taken in also.

Wiley's mom told me that it was worse than basketball as her daughter pulled out a big victory for her school. Krystal Floyd's mom told me that she gets nervous before each event. But they all love it and love to see their sons and daughters do well.

I enjoy the hurdles and all the field events as my favorites. But when Jessica Wade runs the 3200 meters (two-mile) I have to sit down and watch — it tires me out. She makes it look so effortless and that is because she stays in shape. Jenny Wiley is one of the most improved runners in the events. I saw her at the start of the season and she has certainly improved and become one of the area's top female runners. Floyd likewise has made tremendous strides in sprinting.

I really felt for Steven Jackson in the men's 200-meter run. He wanted to place in the top two so badly so he could move on to state competition in Lexington this weekend. You see, even our student athletes can get some recognition in track and field also. Not just in the other sports.

What was the talk at the meets among the parents and coaches there? We need a track and field facility in Floyd County. I have been saying that all the time. We do! A county this size needs and deserves the facility. A meeting is being planned by concerned parents about trying to get the board and county to provide on. And I said to them "go to it!" If anyone is going to get anything done in this county, it will have to be the parents. They need to let their voices be heard.

The property being donated to the county up Right Beaver for more ball parks is great. I applaud that move. The county can get grants to build the much-needed extra ball parks and why not just go ahead with plans to build a track and field facility, also. A perfect site for a running track and field event, I am being told, is behind the Allen Central High School which would be a perfect location for one.

"I wouldn't care where they put one," said Donnie Daniels, track and field coach at Wheelwright, "as long as we got one. We could have our meets there and a place to practice when our kids go to regional, sectional and state meets. Right now, if someone on my team wants to practice, I have to take them all the way to Jenkins."

McDowell Daredevils upend Maytown in title Alumni Game

Pete Grigsby III, weather man for a Bowling Green television station, left the weather maps long enough to return to Floyd County and lead the McDowell Daredevil alumni to a 76-56 win over the alumni of Maytown in the championship game of the annual Alumni Games.

The game took place at a cool Adams Middle School gym where the air conditioners were working overtime to keep the facility cool for the many fans who came out for the games.

Grigsby tossed in 16 points, including a three-pointer, to lead the former Daredevils in scoring against coach Gene Frasure's Wildcats. David "Firebird" Turner showed that age hasn't slowed him down as he burned the nets for 14 points and even drilled two three-pointers in the performance. It was supposed that Turner was going to hold a news conference and announce his retirement after the game but the 14 points may have inspired him to go on one more year. No announcement came from the former McDowell player/coach.

Brad Hall added 10 points in the McDowell win and Brad Hall scored nine. Big Steve Newsome used his height and muscled his way in for nine points and Neil Turner, in an off night, scored eight. Brian Hall scored five with Harold Tackett netting four. Four points were scored by a trio of former McDowell players with Harold Tackett, John Pack and Brian Turner scoring four each. Gary Pack hit for two points.

Coach Pete Grigsby Jr, in an interview, credited his 1-3-1 halfcourt trapping zone as making the difference in the game.

"It definitely was our team defense that won it for us," said the former McDowell mentor. "The team played well and it was a good game. Both teams put forth a good effort and made an interesting game of it."

Former Maytown standout Randy Click led Maytown with 13 points. Adkins added eight and Frasure scored seven. Keith Hicks tossed in six points as did Jake Halbert. Daryl Prater also had six with Jim Stewart scoring three. Tom Stewart had five points and Coach Frasure scored two.

Todd Duff and Brent Allen wore the pin stripes in calling the game. WPRG-TV was on hand to put the game on the tube for all the fans.

In the first game of the night, Wayland failed to show up and Martin won by forfeit. Being one not to waste time, coach Denzil "Hoss" Halbert put his squad through a workout anyway. He divided his team in two squads and played a scrimmage game.

Wheelwright had to come from behind to defeat a determined and over-the-hill Garrett team 78-74. The win prompted Wheelwright coach Frankie Francis to yell for bigger oxygen tanks next year.

Prestonsburg defeated the former Bobcats of Betsy Layne 80-70 in a surprise game.

While the crowd was not all that big for the earlier games, Maytown brought the largest crowd for the championship game as most fans watched the two play for the title.

Plans may include Allen Central High School Alumni in next year's games as a replacement for Wayland. Nothing has been finalized.

Reed's 3-run blast gives Lady Blackcats championship

For the first time in high school softball, the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats of Coach Bridget Clay captured the 52nd District Girl's Softball Tournament with a 6-4, come-from-behind win over talented Sheldon Clark.

Needless to say it was a happy den of Lady Blackcats as the celebration was strong after the win.

"They were a happy group of girls," said Clay after the win. "They were screaming, yelling and hugging one another. It just made our season for us. We lost three games and all three were to Sheldon Clark but when we beat them in the finals was an exciting happy time for us."

The two teams met for the third time this season with Sheldon Clark winning the first two regular season games.

Freshman Jamie Clay and junior Amy Reed guided the Lady Blackcats on offense. Clay had seven hits in eight plate appearances for Prestonsburg which included a home run in the championship game.

"What can you say about Amy (Reed)," commented Clay. "There are players that are known as clutch hitters and that is the kind of player that Amy is — a clutch player."

"Jamie played tremendously for us all through the tournament," Clay said of her shortstop. "Many times it was her that got us started on offense and she did not make an error in the whole tournament — and that is difficult for a young player (freshman)."

The Lady Cardinals held a 4-3 lead with Prestonsburg coming to bat in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Kristi Little got the Prestonsburg seventh under way with an infield base hit. Clay collected a one-out base hit when she singled to right field putting runners on first and second. Reed then drilled her three-run home run, giving Prestonsburg a 6-4 win — their first district softball title.

Sheldon Clark jumped out to a 2-0 lead with two runs in the top of the first inning. Karen Stacy drilled a base hit followed by a walk to Jackie Harless. With two runners on base, Jennie Kirk reached on an error with Stacy scoring on the mistake. After a fielder's choice off the bat of Damron, Ann Bowen picked up an RBI with a base hit to score Kirk.

Prestonsburg struck for a run in the bottom of the inning for a 2-1 score. Clay led off the inning with a home run. Reed singled behind Clay's round tripper. Carolyn Reffitt flied out and Stephanie Music collected a one-out base hit putting two runners on base. However, Kirk got Melissa Bailey and Stone Onkst on fly balls to end the threat.

After both teams failed to score in the third inning after putting runners around on the error to make it a 3-2 Sheldon Clark lead. Bowen kept the inning alive with a walk and Jennie Jarrell followed with a single to put runners at first and second and no one out. Bailey walked Goble to load the bases but enticed Mandy Horn to ground into a forced out. Bowen ran home and scored the second run of the inning for a 4-2 game.

A super catch by freshman catcher Jamie Ratcliff on a pop fly near the fence helped the Lady Blackcats to escape the inning without any further damage.

"I feel like that was the key out of the whole game for us," explained Clay. "We were down 4-2 and Missy (Bailey) was struggling. Sheldon Clark had the bases loaded on us and no outs. Jamie just went back and reached over and caught the ball on a super play."

The Lady Cardinals went out in order in the fifth inning. Prestonsburg cut into the two-run deficit with a run in the bottom of the fifth to make it a 4-3 game. Clay led off the inning with the second hit of the game and moved to second on a throwing error. Reffitt's one-out base hit scored Clay with the run. Music drove to centerfield was hauled in and Reffitt was doubled off the bag to end the inning.

"That was my fault," said Clay. "I thought there were two outs and I sent Carolyn on the fly ball."

Clay, Reffitt and Reed each had three hits in the game. Music was two for three for Prestonsburg. The Lady

Collin's 4 RBIs lead Bobcats to 8-6 win over Wheelwright

Both pitchers struggled throughout the game but the Betsy Layne Bobcats came out on the long end of the stick as they captured the 58th District High School Baseball Tournament last Thursday evening at Stumbo Park.

Chuck Lafferty went the distance for Betsy Layne and Barry Collins drove in four runs to lead the Bobcats to an 8-6 win in the championship game.

Collins drove in two runs in the four-run second for Betsy Layne and had runs batted in in the third and fifth inning.

Lafferty went the full seven innings allowing six runs on six hits. He fanned five while walking seven. Lafferty suffered a case of wildness but managed to stay in the game.

Kevin Johnson took the loss for the Trojans. Johnson worked six innings in giving up eight runs on 10 hits. Johnson had two strike outs and he issued seven base on balls.

Collins, perhaps the best number nine hitter in Floyd County high school baseball, drove in the go-ahead run for Betsy Layne in the fifth inning when he lifted a fly ball to centerfield to score Shawn Newsome who had led off with a walk. Newsome moved to third on a base hit by Shannon Newsome.

In the sixth inning, Lafferty drove Bud Kidd with an insurance run to make it an 8-6 game. Kidd led off the inning with a double and scored when Lafferty singled up the middle against Johnson.

The championship victory broke a jinx the Bobcats had experienced the past two years when they were either eliminated in the first or second round. Coach Junior Newsome's ballclub collected 10 hits in the game while committing only two errors. Betsy Layne stranded eight men on the base paths.

After going out in order in the first inning, Wheelwright looked as if they were going to pull off another surprise and upset the highly favored Bobcats. The Trojans pushed across five runs in the top of the second frame to take a 5-0 lead before a large crowd at Stumbo Park.

Chad Allen, the first batter up in the second inning, walked but was forced at second base on a grounder by designated hitter Jody Johnson. Charles Johnson grounded too short for the second out but Lafferty began to struggle as he loaded the bases on back-to-back walks to Matt Johnson and Steven Shelton. Jody Johnson scored after Lafferty issued his third consecutive walk to Kevin Johnson. Lafferty then hit lead-off batter Layne Bailey in the side forcing home Matt Johnson. Shortstop Jimmy Helton lined a rope hit to left field that sent Shelton and Kevin Johnson home for a 4-0 game. Bailey scored on Mickey Johnson's single off Lafferty. Allen, who led off the inning, hit a fly ball to centerfield for the third out.

Lafferty struggled in the second and so did Kevin Johnson. Johnson just about duplicated the feat of Lafferty as Betsy Layne scored four times to make it a 5-4 game. Wildness on the part of Johnson and some timely hitting helped the Bobcats to stay in the game. Lafferty led off the inning with a walk and was erased on Shawn Newsome's ground ball. Shannon Newsome singled and both runners moved up on an error on the base hit by Newsome. Todd Akers hit a dribbler in the infield that was fielded by Helton at shortstop. Helton elected to go to second for the force but threw the ball into rightfield for an error. The error allowed Shawn Newsome to score. Collins then doubled to right center for two more runs as Shannon Newsome and Akers scored. Collins scored on a walk to Derrick Newsome and a two-out error at third base off Kidd's bat.

Lafferty retired Wheelwright in order in the top of the third inning on three ground balls to Chris Potter at shortstop. Betsy Layne then tied the game at 5-5 on a base hit by Shawn Newsome leading off, a walk to Akers and a one-out base hit by Collins his third RBI.

Wheelwright, looking like a different team than in the regular season, tied the game with a run in the top of the fifth inning. Mickey Johnson walked and Lafferty issued a one-out walk to Jody Johnson with both runners moving up on a wild pitch. Charles' long drive to centerfield scored Mickey Johnson with the tying run.

Lafferty did not allow a hit over the last two innings as Wheelwright showed some impatience at the plate, and he allowed only one base runner — Bailey — due to a throwing error

Huffing and puffing!

Wheelwright High School may be a small school but the Left Beaver school has talented athletes and two of them will advance to the Kentucky state track and field meet this Saturday at Shively Field on the campus of the University of Kentucky.

Layne Bailey took first place in the men's 400-meter race with a time of 52:23. Bailey was trailing in third place behind Allen Central's Chris Yates and Oneida Baptist's Theodoros Tesfaye. Bailey, on the last turn toward the finish line, kicked in and passed two runners sprinting his way to a first place finish.

"I didn't think I could do it," said Bailey. "I thought that I wouldn't be able to get around them."

Bailey's time in the 400 meter was a personal record. His time for the 400-meter run in the regional was 54:66 two seconds slower than Bath County's Chris Couch.

Bailey placed seventh overall in the men's long jump with a personal high leap of 19-feet, 2 1/4-inches. Mike Newsome placed fourth in the event with a jump of 19-feet, 7-inches.

"I was real pleased with the way things turned out at the sectionals," said Trojan track and field coach Donnie Daniels. "I told Keith (Smallwood) to get us state qualifiers at the sectionals and he did. He got us two."

Steven Jackson just missed being a third state finalist with a third place finish in the men's 200-meter run. The 200-meter run was one of the closest of the day. All runners were close all the way. Jackson placed third with a time of 23:66 which also was a personal best for him. Jackson seemed to be disappointed in not making the top two and Coach Smallwood asked to see a replay of the finish that was taped. After viewing the tape, Smallwood seemed to be satisfied with the judges' decision.

"We've looked at the tape here at home," said Daniels. "It looked real close."

Jackson placed fourth in the men's 100-meter run with a time of 11:27 — a personal best. The top six finishers in each event were presented with medals.

Muntu Oden will represent the Wheelwright High School track team in the state finals. Oden placed first in the 110 hurdles nosing out Allen Central's Shane Stumbo. Oden had a winning time of 16:06.

"I was tired after the run," said Oden. "It tired me out for the 300 hurdles."

Oden placed seventh in the men's 300 hurdles with a 45:66. The fleet-footed Oden has been going to Jenkins to work out for the state competition.

Scotty Caudill represented the Wheelwright team in the always hard triple jump. Caudill had a personal best with a jump of 37-feet, 9 1/4-inches. Greg Johnson tied for sixth place in the high jump with a leap of 5-feet, 10-inches, a personal best.

"After starting our program here at Wheelwright, we just went to a couple of meets like maybe going to the EKMC meet at Jenkins," explained Daniels about his program. "We just started building on that this year and the kids have worked real hard for us. And I think we have done very well considering the size of our school and having no track facility."

"Our kids here overachieved this year," Daniels stated. "We finished third in the regional and placed seventh in the sectional. This year we participated in 10 meets and went to the regional and now we want to build off that for next year."

Smallwood has been a help to the Wheelwright coach and it hasn't gone unrecognized.

"Keith has done a great job for us," said Daniels. "Not only in track and field but in football, also. He works hard with the kids on days that I can't be there. He pushes the kids to do better and he makes them work hard. Keith has just been a big, big help to us here at Wheelwright. He has taken the kids to a couple of meets that I could not make and he has been able to give the kids an opportunity to achieve something."

Girl's competition in the Wheelwright program next year is being taken under consideration if a female instructor can be found.

"We have talked about involving the girls next year," said Daniels. "I think it would be good to have the girls compete. It would give them something to do in the spring and I would rather have something for them to do at spring time."

Daniels had praise for his principal Lewis Burkeheimer for his support of the track and field program. "He has been very supportive of us," said Daniels.

Daniels said the Wheelwright track and field program took an upswing at the last EKMC meet.

"The kids found they could compete with anybody and it has made them better athletes."

Wheelwright hasn't had a state contender since 1978 when Vic Rhea competed in the shot put in Louisville.

"We have never had a state champion from Floyd County in any events on the state level," said Daniels, "but now we have two going that will have a chance."

Oden will run the 110 hurdles in a 11:15 a.m. start on Saturday morning and Bailey will run the men's 400 meters at 2:15 p.m.

travel all the way to Pikeville's Bob Amos Park. Allen Central has been running strip mine roads and has encountered such perils as copperheads.

"We don't need our kids running on the roadway with the chance of being injured," said Forrest Hughes, a coach at Allen Central. "But it is the only way they can get any practice time in."

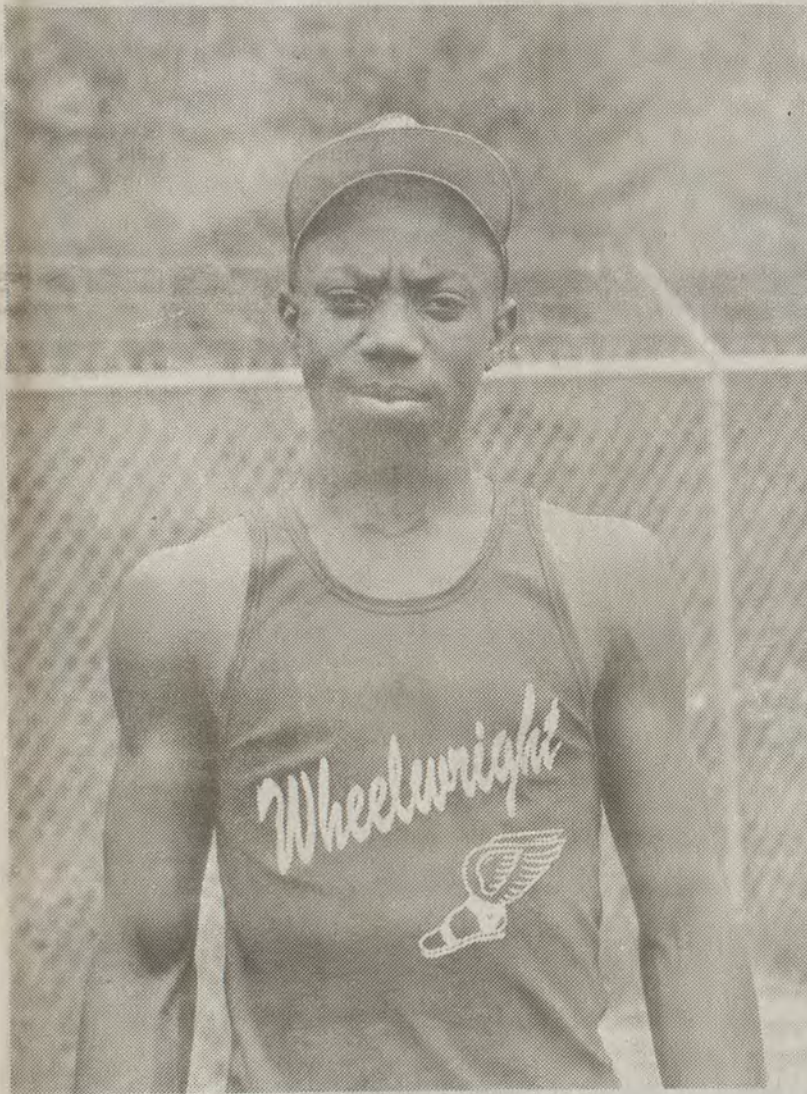

One day, maybe, Floyd County will be like the surrounding counties and have a track and field facility. To all our politicians, we could certainly use your help in this matter. Let's bring our county facilities in line with what the other counties that surround us have — a track and field facility.

Registration opens for Bluegrass Games

Governor Brereton C. Jones formally opened registration and kicked off activities for the eighth annual Bluegrass State Games on May 20.

Thousands of Kentucky amateur athletes will arrive in Lexington July 24, 25 and 26 to compete in 22 sports and try to win gold, silver and bronze medals. Last year more than 17,538 athletes from 107 counties participated in the games.

"Whether you are one of the competitors or one of the many volunteers who work tirelessly to bring this event together, or sponsors who make it possible, the BGSJ makes us better individuals, better friends and better Kentuckians," Governor Jones said.

"I am delighted to be a part of the states' largest amateur athletic event which brings together young and old alike and participants of all levels of ability in the best spirit of sports."

This year's sports are archery, chess, wrestling, golf, three-on-three basketball, bowling, canoeing/kayaking, croquet, cycling, diving, equestrian, fencing, gymnastics, horse-shoes, shooting, soccer, softball, swimming, table tennis, tennis, track and field and volleyball.

As one of 41 state games nationwide, the Bluegrass State Games is already ranked in the tops as far as participation.

Participants come from all walks of life and have ranged from age 3 to 89.

Athletes compete based on gender and skill level. Disabled athletes can compete with the disabled or non-disabled persons.

Over 40 sites will be used for the various Bluegrass State Games competitions and more than 700 volunteers will provide staff support in competitions and at opening ceremonies.

The colorful opening ceremonies will be held at 8 p.m. July 24 at the University of Kentucky's Commonwealth Stadium in Lexington. There will be the annual parade of athletes, fireworks and entertainment. A family picnic at 2 p.m. will precede the official opening ceremonies and lighting of the Bluegrass State Games torch.

The torch will be lit in Frankfort earlier that day at the old Capitol during a seniors Pacesetter non-competitive walking event and festival. A team of runners will then carry the torch to Lexington for opening ceremonies.

The event is organized by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government with volunteers chairing the various sports.

Entry booklets can be picked up at any SuperAmerica store or Valvoline Instant Oil Change. Interested persons can call 1-800-722-BGSG and an entry booklet will be mailed.

Deadlines for entering most sports is July 10 but soccer, softball, diving, equestrian, shooting, tennis and volleyball have earlier deadlines.

Two events will actually be held before the weekend of the games. Diving will be held July 18 and 19 at Lancaster Aquatic Center on the U.K. campus in Lexington. Some categories of shooting will be held July 12 in Owensboro.

"Since its inception, the Games' sponsors, Valvoline, Inc. and Coca Cola Company, have been committed to making the games a first class event," said Shirley Watts, executive director for the games. "They have provided funding and guidance which have ensured that the games have maintained a high standard in its various competitions."

Carl Frey, chairman of the board of directors of Bluegrass State Games and vice president-external affairs for Valvoline, Inc., said, "We are very proud to be involved in the Bluegrass State Games because of its fundamental philosophy of quality competition, fun and fellowship."

"News about the Bluegrass State Games is getting around and the news is good. This will be the biggest and best Bluegrass State Games ever."

Ken Sumner, branch manager, Lexington Coca Cola Bottling Co. and Bluegrass State Games board member, said, "The tradition that has been established is one of allowing us as individuals to be the very best we can be, to enjoy the challenge of competition, of being where the action is, to experience the thrill of victory, of being a winner. Whether in a group competition or as individuals, the spirit of being a winner is prevalent throughout the games."

"It is in this spirit that Bluegrass Coca-Cola proudly joins the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government, and Valvoline, Inc. in sponsoring and saluting the participants of the Bluegrass State Games."

Garrett Yankees win two over weekend 21-0, 14-4

The Garrett Yankees have their 1992 Babe Ruth baseball season off to a good start as they won their first two games in a big way.

The Yankees posted a 21-0 mercy rule win over the McDowell Sox in game one and then defeated the Sox in game two 14-4.

Mike Baldrige picked up the win for the Yankees in game one in going five innings. Baldrige allowed only two hits in striking out seven and walking two.

Scott Hall suffered the loss for McDowell as he was hit hard by the Garrett team. Hall allowed 21 runs on 16 hits and he had only the one strike out. Hall walked three batters.

Garrett laced out six triples in the game and got three back-to-back in the third inning when Baldrige, Josh Hansford and Donovan Hall collected three-baggers. Baldrige went three-for-four in the game with a single and a double to go with his triple. Baldrige collected two RBIs.

Hansford had two hits and drove in three runs with two triples. Hall doubled along with his triple and had two RBIs. Kevin Allen had a good outing with two hits that included a double and triple. Allen also collected two runs batted in.

In the second game played Monday, Garrett mercied the Sox again 14-4 in a game that featured several passed balls. The Yankees scored eight times in the first and pushed across five more in the third inning.

Brad Allen picked up the win for Garrett in scattering six hits. Allen fanned five and issued only one walk.

Chris Moore really didn't pitch that bad in absorbing the loss. Moore had four strike outs but walked eight.

Tim Bellamy had the big bat for the Yankees with two hits and four RBIs. Each team committed three errors in the game.

from third baseman Shannon Newsome. Laferty retired the side in order in the seventh inning.

Wheelwright committed just two errors in the game and left five runners on base.

"The two errors beat us," said a disappointed Jimmy Helton. "And I was the one that got it started." Helton was referring to his throw to second in the second inning.

Both teams advanced on to regional play at Pikeville this week. Betsy Layne played Phelps Tuesday night and Wheelwright is scheduled to face Belfry in the first game tonight at 5:30 p.m. In case of rain the tournament will be moved up a day.

Laferty, Shannon Newsome and Collins each had two hits in the game for Betsy Layne.

Prestonsburg Cubs slip past Brewers 7-5

The Prestonsburg Cubs Senior League team scored two runs in the sixth inning and one in the seventh to post a 7-5 win over the Prestonsburg Brewers.

Jason Hackworth and Jerry Laferty picked up three RBIs each to lead the Cubs at the plate. Hackworth had two hits in collecting his three runs batted in.

Jason Burke picked up the win for the Cubs working the last three innings. Burke came on in relief of Laferty who started the game. Burke had five strikeouts in the three innings. He had one base on balls. Laferty went the first three innings with three strike outs and two walks. Burke came on with his ballclub trailing 5-4.

Bennett Allen got the loss for the Brewers. Ricky Lemaster came on to pitch the seventh inning.

The Cubs pushed across their two runs in the sixth inning to take a 6-5 lead when Jason Pack walked and moved to third on Aaron Bond's base hit. After Kelly and Shepherd went out, Hackworth singled scoring Pack and Bond.

The final Cub run came in the seventh inning on three consecutive walks to Burke, James Jarrell and Mike Roberts to load the bases. Laferty hit a bouncer that scored Burke from third base.

Coach Cecil Lester's ballclub took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a walk to Burke and Laferty's two-out base hit. The Brewers came back with two in the bottom of the first for a 2-1 advantage. Allen reached on an error at shortstop. David Turner walked and Lemaster hit a two-out, two-run double, scoring Allen and Turner.

The Cubs tied the game with a run in the top of the second on a base hit by Bond, a walk to Hall and Hackworth's base hit. Another run crossed for the Cubs in the top of the third. Jarrell led off with a base hit and Roberts walked. One run scored on Laferty's base hit and Roberts scored on Bond's one out single.

In the bottom of the third, the Brewers came back with a run on a one-out walk to Turner and William Marsillett's triple. The Brewers tied the game at 4-4 in the fourth inning on Wesley McGuire's one-out double. McGuire scored on a wild pitch. Zeth Shepherd had a hit in the inning. It was 5-4 after fifth inning in favor of the Brewers. With one out, Marsillett walked, stole second and third. He scored on Robbie Risner's base hit.

The Cubs then scored twice in the sixth to take the lead for good.

The Cubs improved to 4-1 on the season and the Brewers fell to 1-3.

Mud Creek Cubs remain undefeated

The Allen Astros Little League team has lost three times this year and all three defeats have come at the hand of the Mud Creek Cubs. The Cubs posted a 10-2 win over Allen last week to run their record to 9-0 on the season. Allen fell to 6-3 for the year.

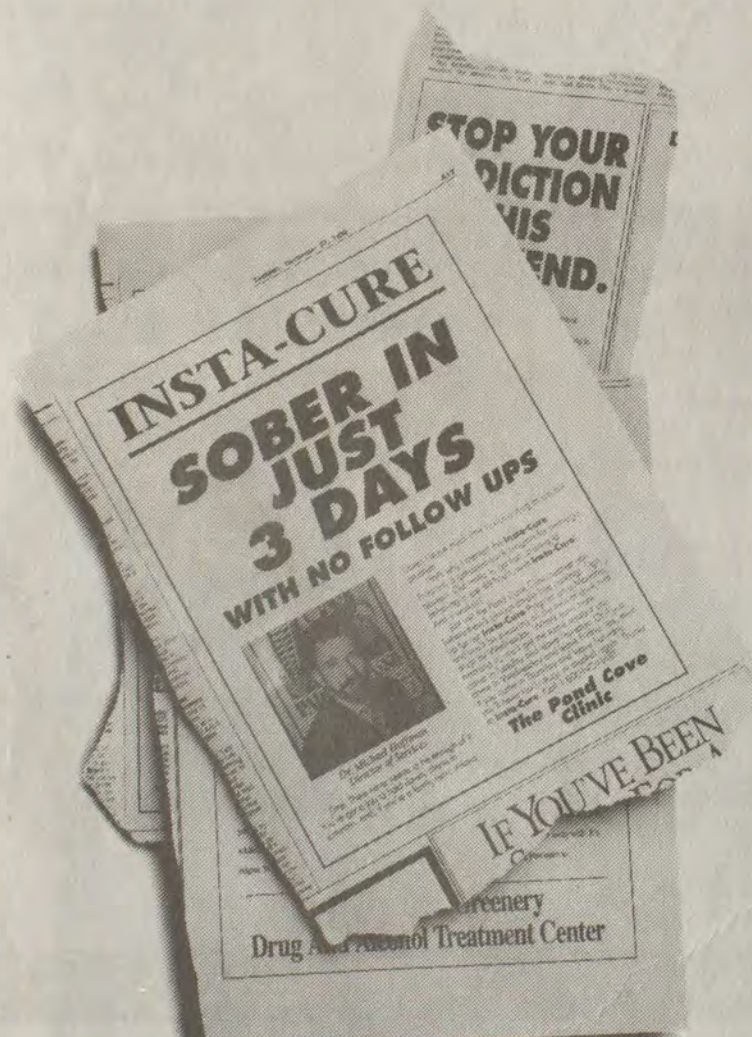

The Cubs used home run power and got a solid pitching performance from Craig Johnson to secure the win. Johnson went the distance in striking out 12 batters. He gave up two walks and scattered four hits. Johnson also clubbed a solo home run in the first inning and teammate Derrick Stanley homered for the Cubs in the fourth, also a solo shot.

Wesley Samons suffered the loss for Allen despite striking out 13 batters. But the lefthander yielded 12 hits to the Cubs. Samons walked on batter.

Russell Hall and Stanley collected three hits each for the Cubs. Johnson and Brad Reynolds had two hits each.

Nathan Leslie doubled in the fourth inning and scored Ronnie Kidd for the Cubs. Russell Hall had a triple among his three hits.

Turner fans nine, drives in three as the Brewers roll past Tigers

David Turner took the mound for the Prestonsburg Brewers and scattered three hits, drove in three runs with two hits to lead the Prestonsburg Brewers past the Prestonsburg Tigers 13-3 in senior league play at Archer Park.

The Brewers scored four times in the second to snapp a 1-1 tie and then added five in the third and four in the fourth for the mercy win. The Tigers were a run short of a full seven inning game when they could only push across one run in the bottom of the fifth inning.

Turner picked up the win for the Brewers in going the five innings. He fanned nine and walked two.

Harris was the losing pitcher with four strike outs and seven bases on balls.

The Brewers took a 1-0 lead after Marsillett doubled, stole third and scored on a wild pitch. The Tigers plated a run to tie the game in the bottom of the inning when Harris walked and came all the way around to score on errors.

Four runs crossed home plate for the Brewers in their half of the second inning after Taylor singled and scored when Harris walked the next five batters scoring three runs. One run scored on a wild pitch.

In the top of the third, Chris Cornette singled and was moved to second on a sacrifice bunt where he scored on a base hit by Ruff. Ruff stole second and came around to score on an error. Turner had a base hit scoring two runs. Marsillett doubled home Turner for the fifth run of the inning.

The Tigers scored in the bottom of the inning on a walk to Newsome, an error and a fielder's choice to make it a 10-2 game.

It was a 13-2 game as the Brewers scored three more runs in the fourth inning. Cornett doubled and Shepherd was safe on an error when Allen tripled both runners home. Turner singled home Allen.

The Tigers scored their final run in the fifth inning on a Harris base hit and he came in to score on a sacrifice fly after stealing second and third.

Marsillett had two doubles in the game with two runs batted in. Cornette collected two hits with a single and double. Allen had a fourth inning double.

Hale's slam slams door on Giants

It was all Gavin Hale during the Prestonsburg Braves 16-1 win over the Prestonsburg Giants. The hard hitting catcher drove in five first inning runs with a double and a grand slam home run as the Braves scored 10 times in the first inning at Archer Park.

The game ended in a mercy affair after four innings. A new rule passed down from Little League headquarters stated that once a team trailed by 10 runs the game was called before the fifth inning.

The victory ran the Braves record to 5-1 on the season, good for a second place tie with the Prestonsburg A's.

Hale gave Giants pitcher Eddy Gardner a rather rude welcome when he sent Gardner's first pitch the fence. The Giants outfield had problems in handling the ball and Hale circled the bases for a 1-0 score. Eight more Brave batters followed in the first inning bringing Hale to bat for the second time in the inning. With the bases loaded with Braves, Hale blasted a Gardner pitch over the centerfield light post for a grand slam home run collecting five RBIs in the first inning.

The blast was too much for Gardner as he was relieved by Ryhan Hardy after retiring just one batter while allowing 10 runs on five hits and walking four. Gardner also hit one batter.

Hardy stopped the Braves attack in the first but the Braves went on the war path again in the second inning by scoring five times on three walks and a triple by Jeremy Watkins. J.B. Hall had a double in the inning and Dustin Robinson tripled.

The Braves scored their final run in the third inning on fielder's choice play by Jeremy Watkins and Hale's run-scoring double.

Mike Hall, who had not given up a run this season after pitching nine innings, did not pitch well for the Braves allowing six walks while hitting two Giant players. Hall gave up a run in the third inning to break his scoreless streak. The run scored on a walk, Mark Solsbee's base hit and a double by Ed Prater.

Hall was the winning pitcher with seven strike outs and six walks. Gardner suffered the loss with no strike outs and four walks. Handy worked three innings striking out five and walking nine.

Hale had two doubles to go along with his home run. He finished with six runs batted in. Robinson also had six RBIs with a triple and two singles. Hall singled and doubled for two runs batted in.

"A COPPERTONE TAN"

Don't you just hate all those suntan, beer, and softdrink commercials that feature models with deep, dark tans wearing teeny, tiny bikinis? I do. But it's not for the reasons you may think. I really don't envy the figures of the models, I can do without being in a tropic location with gorgeous guys, and I don't really need a Ferrari. I really admire the models' tans. This is due to the fact that it is very hard for me to develop normal coloring, much less a full-fledged tan.

I have been to the tanning bed around 10 times this spring. While I have come a long way from the snow-white complexion I started with, I now look the way most people do before they ever step into a tanning bed or out in the sun. It is very frustrating to pay good money to bake one's self in order to achieve an artificial suntan, and not even be able to do that well.

I've had a couple of good tans. Unfortunately, I developed them in years when I spent time at a beach. I think last year, when I went to Daytona Beach on Spring Break, I developed the best "bronzing" I'd ever had. I guess spending two weeks in the Florida sunshine can work miracles even for the palest person in the world (me). It wasn't even hard work. Boy, I really need to get to the beach.

Now back to the present condition of my tanning. I look so pale, evidently, that some people feel the need to ask me if I'm anemic. Isn't it grand that people are worried about my well-being? I get really depressed when that happens. I try so hard.

I know that overexposure to the sun is bad. I'd imagine the bulk of the American population knows it, too. I really can't figure out why we are so stupid that we risk our lives to be "bronze gods and goddesses." I guess it is vanity, pure and simple. It's a sad thought, but I am one of the majority (even though it doesn't appear that way).

I guess I'll keep trying to get some sort of tan. It may not be much, but I've got to develop a little coloring or people might start calling me Snow White. I could try some of that self-tanning creme. Just my luck; it would probably turn me four shades of orange. That's all I need.

Well, enough of foolish talk. I've got more important things to discuss. Have you gotten a copy of the new Billy Ray Cyrus album? I think it will be a big hit. I bought it on Tuesday of last week and I know the words to most of the songs already. "Wher'm I Gonna Live?" is my favorite cut. It's a song about a guy whose woman has packed up all his clothes and put him out of the house. It's amusing, to say the least.

Don't you just hate it that all the television shows are reruns? There is nothing on worth squat in the summer. I guess we'll have the Olympics, though. Knowing my luck, the only thing that will be on when I'm home will be archery or something. I love to watch diving and gymnastics. I think the United States will get more medals than in the Winter Games. I can't wait to see the men's basketball games. Won't that be fun? I wonder if Jamaica has a team. They couldn't possibly be as good as their bobsled team. They were highlighted on the bloopers videotapes, anyway.

'Til next week, happy tanning.

THE WINNER'S CIRCLE

There seems to be an epidemic of baseball fever going around. From big league teams in the running for a chance to get into the World Series, all the way down to the pee-wee teams, the symptoms are there for us to see.

Shawn Wallen of Stanville is 6 years old and he participates in the training league sponsored by a group of men in the Harold-Allen-Prater area. The children's ages range from 5 through 9.

Shawn's team is the Tigers, coached by Lance Blackburn, and he takes the whole thing seriously, from his uniform to the practice sessions and then on to the real games.

His father, Ronnie, also takes it seriously. He works at Martin County Coal Company and couldn't be home in time to go with Shawn and the family to the game last Wednesday.

But he drove directly to Conn Field and managed to get there during the first inning.

The Tigers won their game with Shawn getting a hit and scoring a run. It was pretty exciting for him—and even more so for his father who hugged and congratulated him.

As the family headed home in their station wagon, they were playing the game over, especially the hit and the run. They'd had some losing times and so it was good to have a great game to celebrate.

They were almost home when Ronnie glanced at his wife and said, "Susan, I drove my truck to the ball park!" They had to turn around and go retrieve the abandoned vehicle.

Coach Blackburn might consider contracting a designated driver for fathers such as Ronnie Wallen. After all, if Shawn ever hits a home run, he might not be able to drive home at all.

CAUSE OR CURE

I pick on Dean Conn a lot, partly because he has six grandsons who live and breathe baseball at this time of year. The oldest, Chris Potter, is 16 and a sophomore in high school, and the youngest is 6 and in first grade. They all play baseball.

Like some other grandparents, Dean drives them to and from a lot of their activities. He was taking second grader Kyle Potter to school one morning and mentioned that a cousin, Chase Gibson, had an earache and wasn't able to go to school.

"It's probably because the coach yelled at him," reasoned Kyle.

"You mean the coach yelled at him?"

"Yes, and mine did, too. We weren't either one hitting very well, and it's your fault, you know. We tried to get you to practice with us, but you wouldn't leave the television."

I suppose, when they do well, Dean gets all the credit.

OVERHEARD

Paul Pruitt of Pikeville was having a discussion with Dean about their respective high school teams. They both have grandsons who play baseball, Paul's with the Pikeville Panthers and Dean's with the Betsy Layne Bobcats.

They both mentioned some of the trials involved in supporting the games. Then Paul said, "We're thinking of changing the name of our team to the Pikeville 'Possums.'"

"Why would you do that?"

"Because," he explained, "when they're at home they play dead, and they get killed on the road."

Volunteer is friend to Day Care residents

by Sandy Williamson
Big Sandy ADD

If you asked most people in South-eastern Kentucky what they felt was our area's greatest natural resource they probably would say coal. But if you ask the people at the Prestonsburg Agape Adult Day Care they would definitely say Orville Ousley. A retired coal miner, Orville has literally dedicated his life to helping senior citizens who suffer from Alzheimer's and other forms of dementia.

Since its opening in April of 1991, Orville has been a regular feature at the Day Care or as Orville would say "as regular as a goose goin' bare-foot." On the average, he devotes at least 80 hours per month volunteering.

What really makes Orville unique is his giving spirit. As Dana Caudill, the Day Care director, puts it, if he sees something that needs done, he does it. Everything from doing dishes to walking with the "wanderers" to taking the male clients to the bathroom. He feels these people, though limited due to their condition, are just like family. His philosophy is to "spend the rest of my life helping people."

When I first met Orville, his easy smile and calm nature made it evident that he just has a way with the people at the Day Care. He proceeded to tell me a story about a client who he loves being with. They do dishes and swap stories. When I asked Ms. Caudill about this, she told me that although this woman suffers from Alzheimer's, and has totally lost concept of time, Orville has made the biggest difference in her recovery. To illustrate this, as the time grew close for Orville to arrive one day, she looked at her watch and said, "I don't think Orville's comin' today." As Ms. Caudill puts it, this is just one of many examples of how much the clients seem to trust him and how much he cares for them.

When I asked Orville what made him feel confident enough to be able to help these people even though he only has limited education, he answered that there were three main reasons. The first was due to the wholehearted support of the paid staff. "I like all of them and I think they like me. We're like family."

The second was the extensive training he received. This training called Alzheimer's 101 consists of 16 hours of intense education on how to deal with the particular concerns of Alzheimer's patients. Finally, he said that the encouragement of his family, especially his wife, has made all of this possible. Without their understanding, it would be impossible. In fact, you might say it's a family affair. The last Friday of every month, Orville and his wife, Alvie, prepare a home-cooked meal of chicken and dumplings with all the trimmings for the entire staff and clientele. It's one of the highlights of the month at the center.

In conclusion, the next time someone asks you what difference can one person make or what good comes from volunteering, just remember Orville Ousley in the small town of Prestonsburg, Kentucky. As Ms. Caudill put it, "I don't know what we'd do without him." People like Orville are the backbone of programs like the Agape Adult Day Care. We only wish we had more volunteers like him.

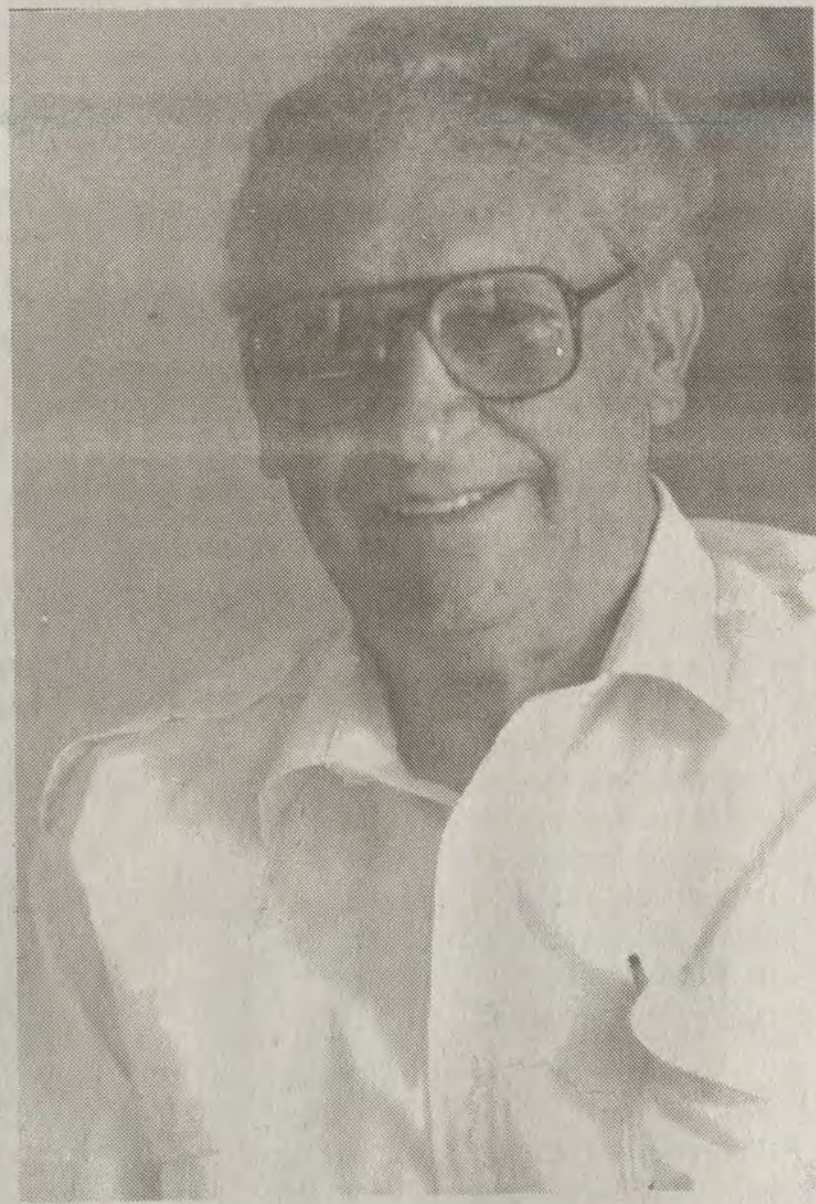

If you would be interested in volunteering at the Agape Adult Day Care or in any of our other programs working with Senior Citizens, please contact Big Sandy Area Development District at 886-2375 and ask for Sandy Williamson. Or, if you know of anyone who could use the services available at the Agape Adult Day Care, please contact Dana Caudill at 886-0265.

DAD AND MOM TOOK POT LUCK

When I was a kid back in the 1940's standing in the schoolhouse bottom watching the steam-powered C & O shifter pulling gons of coal from the Northeast East Coal Company's number three mine, it was not uncommon for one of the boys standing around to remark that one day he wanted to be an engineer. Quite obviously, he simply meant that some day he wanted to drive a train.

Later, "wanting to be an engineer" could mean something else entirely. It could have referred to the myriad of occupations requiring various and sundry college diplomas and the learning of calculus, trigonometry and the use of the slide rule.

These jobs (as well as train driving) have always been considered very important to the development of our society as we now enjoy it.

However, as we approach the 21st century, these folks and the jobs they do may soon seem much less important—even trivial—because we're hearing more and more about yet another kind of engineer, the genetic engineer, who could hold the destiny of mankind in his very hands. Or even worse, in his very test tube.

If I'm really understanding what I'm reading, genetic engineering will soon make it possible for us to order customized kids in much the same way we would a customized car.

"I want this car," you tell the salesman, "except I want it navy blue with baby blue interior, power windows, remote-control electric mirrors and a rear window defroster."

"No problem," he says. "We'll order it for you."

Now, imagine this scene: A young lady walks up to a genetic engineer and says, "I want to give birth to a blond, blue-eyed male who will be exactly 6 feet tall at maturity, who will wear a size 10 shoe, never have bad teeth, bad breath nor bad eyes, and who will have the intelligence to become a brain surgeon."

"You want that with freckles in the summertime?" he asks.

"Oh...that would be cute," the young lady answers.

"You got it," he promises as he begins programming his computer.

Far fetched? Maybe. The scientific community says maybe not. It is, according to them, all in the genes and involves something called deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA).

DNA has been identified as that chain of molecules within us all upon which genetic codes—that which determines our eye color, skin tones, big noses, and so on—are written and causes us to turn out the way we do. Now, though genetic engineering, our DNA can be chemically altered so that we'll eventually be able to have babies turn out how we want them instead of having to take pot luck—like our parents did.

Obviously, all this will be mind-boggling to the average citizen, and as an old boy from Muddy Branch, someone is going to have to talk awfully slow and for a very long time in order to explain all this to me.

Perhaps I'll keep reading about all this stuff, and who knows—maybe it'll all come to pass and even I'll understand it.

In the meantime, though, as we face ourselves in the mirror each morning, those of us who lack perfection in one aspect of our being or another, will just have to realize that DNA or no DNA, at least for today, nobody's perfect.

OUT OF THE MOUTH OF MY BABE

A few weeks ago my youngest daughter Tiffany was writing a story in her class.

She was about to tell of a trip she'd recently taken.

"Ms. Barnette," she said, "how do you spell Zyland?"

"Zyland, Tiffany, I don't believe I know that word," Ms. Barnette told her.

"Ms. Barnette," said Tiffany, "sure you do—Kings Zyland."

SPELLING TEST

During a recent spelling test my same daughter was offered a bonus word.

The class was spelling contraction words.

Ms. Barnette gave the words "will not." She said to spell the contraction for will not for two extra points.

Tiffany spelled it "WILLN'T."

She not only looks like her father but she spells like him too.

Although, if any of you were to try and prove this by Scott Perry, it wouldn't work.

He'd swear she got her spelling after her mother. Especially after he edits this column each week.

Till next week, hope your Memorial Day was a good one!

Festival Band

The Festival Band and their guests entertained visitors at the Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts Center during the Festival of F.A.C.E.S.

Entertainment and workshops at Mountain Heritage Arts

Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts celebrated the Festival of F.A.C.E.S. with a day of activity and entertainment on Saturday, May 16.

Visitors of the recently opened crafts center had the opportunity to meet some of the artists involved in the organization and to see some of the work as it was being produced. Demonstrators included Doug Johnson, grapevine weaving; Duna Combs, wood cut printing; Anita Hayden, basket weaving; Jodi Blackburn, wood burning; Susan Sanders, loom fiber weaving; Brenda Lee

Crouch, portrait illustration.

The Festival Band and guests entertained visitors of the center most of the afternoon with traditional bluegrass tunes.

A drawing was held at 5 p.m. for the first of many items to be raffled by the organization. Tyann Ramey of Wayland won the hand quilted wall hanging by David Appalachian Crafts; Dolores Smith of Allen won the handwoven rug by Blue River Handweaving; Blake Burchett of Prestonsburg won the hand pulled wood cut print by Andrea Combs.

Family vacation costs $210 daily

A family of four vacationing by car this summer should budget an average $183 for daily food and lodging plus $27 for each 300 miles of driving, AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky reports.

This total represents less than a $1 per day increase over last year's $209 suggested average budget.

AAA recommends a family of two adults and two children plan to spend $87 a day for lodging, $96 a day for meals (not including tips and cocktails) and $9 for each 100 miles of driving.

To save on vacation costs, AAA offers some suggestions:

-Consult with a travel agent. They can show you how to save money by traveling off-season or going to unique vacation spots that are far from major tourist areas. They can also advise you on package tours and special deals not available to independent travelers.

-Don't wait until the last minute to make reservations. By booking early, you can be more selective about accommodations and prices.

-Try camping for an inexpensive and pleasant travel experience.

-Meal costs can be reduced by having the main meal at midday to take advantage of lower lunch prices. In addition, pack a cooler in the car for snacks, drinks and picnics and take advantage of "early bird" dinner specials.

AAA's driving budget assumes the family car will average 21 miles per gallon. The budget includes allowances for tire wear, oil and maintenance.

In addition to lodging, food and driving costs, families should budget for amusements, admission fees, road and bridge tolls, shopping, parking and tips

CNN to feature Kentucky

As the Bluegrass State continues its 200th birthday celebration in 1992, CNN Travel Guide is planning several features on Kentucky focusing on Statehood Day festivities June 1.

A three-person crew will arrive in Lexington on Sunday, May 31, and will spend four days in central Kentucky. The show will highlight events in Frankfort surrounding the Bicentennial as well as the Kentucky Horse Park, Keeneland, the Red River Gorge area and Berea.

The Kentucky Department of Travel Development has been working with producers of the show since early April, helping them choose locations and providing background information about the state and its 200th birthday celebration.

"Kentucky is an area we really have not explored on our show and the Bicentennial gives us the reason to do so," says CNN Travel Guide producer Rathy Kuczka. "We're featuring Berea because we want our viewers to experience the story of the people and their crafts," she explains. "We want them to be a part of what the local people experience every day."

Kuczka says the show is featuring the Gorge area because of its history and preservation efforts. "This is a time when everyone is concerned with the environment and we want to show that the tourism industry is concerned for the environment as well."

Acting Tourism Secretary Brenda Frank says this is a great opportunity to help spread the word about the Bicentennial and the state. "This year is an exciting and historically important time for all Kentuckians and by featuring the diversity of the state, it really allows people across the country to discover what we have to offer."

The first story is scheduled to air sometime in June. CNN Travel Guide is on Sundays at 1 p.m. and 8:30 a.m.

THE SECRET TO GREAT OUTDOOR GRILLING

Summertime is best spent outdoors. It's a time when everything comes back to life including our zeal for delicious outdoor entertaining.

The best way to achieve the flavor of the great outdoors in our foods is to cook our meals on the backyard grill. However, simply grilling a chicken breast or steak over the coals isn't enough anymore. There are basting and grilling sauces that are so easy to create; they make all the difference in the world.

Baste Your Meats and Vegetables

The key to effortless basting is to begin with a flavorful base. Miracle Whip or Miracle Whip Light Dressing has everything you need for a great primary basting ingredient. Just add a few more ingredients such as herbs and spices and then brush or spoon the mixture right onto your items while grilling to allow the basting flavors to sizzle into your food.

Basting While You Grill Prevents Drying-out

Another important benefit to basting with Miracle Whip salad dressing is that it adds moisture to foods that can dry-out from the grilling process. Vegetables and lean meats such as chicken, fish and certain cuts of pork and beef need something to protect them against the drying effects of the hot grill.

Try the following quick and easy recipes for Herbed Chicken and Skewered Grilled Potatoes to see how delicious grilling with Miracle Whip salad dressing can be. Get cooking with Miracle Whip, it's not just for sandwiches anymore.

HERBED CHICKEN

Prep time: 15 minutes
Cooking time: 20 minutes
3/4 cup Miracle Whip or Miracle Whip Light Dressing
1/4 cup chicken broth
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 tablespoons finely chopped green onions
2 teaspoons dried basil leaves, crushed
1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves, crushed
6 boneless skinless chicken breast

An Apple A Day...

An apple a day will keep the doctor away. Vitamin C prevents colds. Food myths like these have long been part of American folklore, says Mary Helen Gunkler, registered dietitian and staff nutritionist for Total cereal. As scientific research continues, such myths are being replaced by facts. Here are some examples:

- Myth: High-carbohydrate foods make people fat.
- Fact: Carbohydrates have just four calories per gram versus nine calories per gram for fat. So, foods high in complex carbohydrates, such as pasta, bread, cereal and rice, are often recommended as substitutes for foods high in fat. However, do remember that too many calories from any kind of food can result in weight gain.
- Myth: People over 65 years of age need vitamin supplements.
- Fact: Most healthy people can get all the nutrients they need from a diet that includes a variety of foods from all of the food groups. However, some seniors may benefit from certain supplements, such as calcium and vitamin D, to help maintain strong bones. A health professional should be consulted before taking any nutrient supplements.
- Myth: A "No Cholesterol" claim means the food will not raise blood cholesterol.
- Fact: Read the label carefully. The food may contain saturated fat, which may have a greater influence than dietary cholesterol on the amount of cholesterol in the blood.
- Myth: Sugar makes children hyperactive.
- Fact: Research in the mid-1970s suggested a tie between sugar intake and hyperactivity in children. Scientific studies since that time have not been able to demonstrate any conclusive evidence to link sugar and hyperactivity.
- As for apples and vitamin C, both are valuable in the diet but have not been proven to have curative powers, concludes Gunkler.

SPICY MOROCCAN MARINADE

1/2 cup plain yogurt
1/3 cup lime juice
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons honey
1 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1/2 teaspoon ground turmeric

SOUTHWESTERN GRILLED CHICKEN

1 (8 ounce) carton plain yogurt
1/4 cup green onions, minced
2 cans (4 ounces each) sliced mild green chilies, drained
1 teaspoon ground cumin (the chili spice)
1 teaspoon salt
1 pound chicken breast halves, boned and skinned
1 each red, green and yellow bell peppers, cut into sixths
1 tablespoon mayonnaise

Yield: 4 servings
Prep time: 15 minutes
Marinating: 30 minutes
Grilling: 10 minutes

In a medium bowl, combine yogurt, green onions, green chilies, cumin and salt; remove and refrigerate 2/3 cup yogurt mixture for salsa. With fork tines, pierce chicken liberally on both sides; add to bowl with remaining yogurt mixture, turning to coat both sides. Marinate in the refrigerator for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, prepare coals for grill-ing. To cook over coals: Place chicken and peppers on a rack 3 to 4 inches away from medium-hot coals. Grill, turning once, until chicken is cooked through and peppers are crisp-tender, about 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, prepare salsa by stirring mayonnaise into reserved yogurt/chilies mixture. Place in a small serving bowl.

To serve, slice each chicken breast into 1/2-inch thick pieces. Arrange chicken and peppers on serving plates. Serve with salsa to spoon over a chilled bean-and-corn salad in lettuce cups. (Cut corn from cooked cobs or use frozen corn, thawed. Blend corn with red beans, drained. To make this even more Southwestern in flavor, add diced jalapeno and garnish with fresh cilantro.)

Food safety is important

The safety of the food supply is one of the important issues on the minds of consumers. Irradiated foods, bovine somatotropin in the production of milk, organic foods and poultry processing are just a few of the issues that have been topics of media attention.

The University of Kentucky College of Agriculture will host an exposition of experts discussing these issues.

The program begins at 10 a.m. May 29, at the Holiday Inn South, Lexington, (located at Interstate 75 at the Athens-Boonesboro exit) and continues through lunch. It will close at about 3 p.m.

The format includes speakers (Elizabeth Andress, Food Safety Program Leader of U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Christine Chaisson, from the Technical Assessment Systems, Inc., Washington, D.C.) as well as round table discussions with experts on various topics.

Do not use rear-facing infant seat with air bags, AAA warns

While using a seatbelt with air bags can be top-of-the-line protection for adults, it can be a deadly combination for infants in rear-facing child safety seats, according to the Blue Grass Auto Club Foundation for Safety.

Air bags are designed to protect people sitting upright and facing the front of the car. When an infant in a rear-facing safety seat is placed in front of an air bag during a car crash, the child's head is exposed to the full force of the air bag as it activates.

"Air bags are a step forward in protection for children and adults sitting upright. However, they are just not compatible with rear-facing child safety seats," said Lilla S. Mason, Executive Secretary for the Blue Grass Auto Club Foundation for Safety. The back seat is still the best place for an infant's rear-facing child safety seat. If it is absolutely necessary to place a child in front of an air bag position, move the passenger seat back as much as possible.

For more information on air bags or on child safety seats, contact the Foundation by calling 1(800)432-0996 (in Lexington, call 233-1111).

WAYLAND SENIOR CITIZENS

The Board of Directors of the Wayland Area Senior Citizens met Tuesday, May 19, at 4 p.m. at the center with Chairperson Elmer Morrison presiding. Roll call indicated four absent: Hobert Bates, Ena Mills, Dewey Hall, and Lula Ratliff.

Fund raising activities were discussed, and it was decided to have some musical entertainment in front of the center on clear evenings with items to sell.

Reports were presented by Acting Center Director Linda Webb on the sick, home visits, telephone calls, etc. She also passed around the daily guest list for the center, which indicated the attendance has almost doubled lately. She then reported on recent contributions.

Morrison gave a report on his trip to Frankfort to attend a meeting of the Legislative Research Committee, on which he serves in the tax area. He announced the Kentucky Health Care Reform meeting for our area May 21 at 7 p.m. at Jenny Wiley. He also passed out sheets that may be filled out and returned to the Revenue Cabinet by those who have paid intangible property taxes from 1987 through 1991 in hopes of possible refunds. This is in conjunction with recent legislation.

Doug Lawson of Big Sandy Area Development District gave the center's figures for April on congregate and home delivered meals and also on transportation.

Those present were Morrison, Shirley Martin, Odis Perry, Mattie

Gibson, Ernestine Hall, Jerry Fultz, Libby Martin, and Lawson. Linda Webb was present for the open meeting.

Following the open meeting the board went into executive session. The next meeting will be June 19 at the center at 4 p.m.

IS IT ALZHEIMER'S? Some symptoms that have been noted in people with Alzheimer's disease may closely resemble those seen in other conditions. One example is dementia, which is loss of intellectual function. It's not always easy for doctors to determine if the dementia in a patient is caused by Alzheimer's or some other illness. However, there is a process of elimination that doctors can use to determine if the symptoms being exhibited are caused by Alzheimer's or other conditions.

Dr. Robert Friedland, clinical director of the University Hospital in Cleveland, believes that an early diagnosis is important for at least two reasons:

If the dementia is not caused by Alzheimer's, then there's a chance that the condition that is responsible for the patient's behavior is treatable, and catching it early provides the person with the chance for having his/her physical problem reversed, perhaps even cured, or, at least, controlled. Some conditions other than Alzheimer's in which dementia is present include Parkinson's disease, Huntington's chorea, AIDS, epilepsy, multiple strokes, depression, vitamin B12 and folate deficiencies, medication interactions, thyroid problems, certain infections, blood chemistry imbalances, and tumors.

If the cause is Alzheimer's, early diagnosis gives someone a chance to make important personal decisions before the disease becomes more advanced. For more information, call the Alzheimer's Association Information and Referral Service Line, 1-800-272-3900.

MORE TELE-PHONIES: The Federal Trade Commission charged some Daytona Beach,

Florida, companies with deceptive marketing of travel packages to consumers — many of whom were seniors — via a telephone network set-up. Postcards were sent saying they'd won vacations in Florida or the Bahamas. But to take the trip, they had to buy a $400 travel package and meet other conditions not disclosed by telephone salespersons they contacted about the trip, and had to give their credit card numbers on the assurance they would be used only to verify credit standings. In reality, their accounts were billed for the costs of the travel package. For a copy of the complaint, call the F.T.C.'s public reference branch in Washington, D.C., 1-202-326-2222.

ON A NICER NOTE: The film, "World Song," is one of the attractions at the AmeriFlora exposition in Columbus, Ohio. The movie is a veritable journey of life around the world, showing how, despite cultural differences, we share the important things of living: friendship, parenthood, work, etc.

Insurance Education Week

Governor Brereton C. Jones proclaimed the first week of June as "Insurance Education Week."

The Kentucky Department of Insurance will sponsor a series of workshops enabling agents licensed in Kentucky to complete the statutory mandate of 24 hours of credit to maintain their license. If that mandate is not met by June 30, the Department of Insurance will cancel the license of the agent on July 1.

The workshops will be held in Frankfort at the Holiday Inn Capital Plaza from 8 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m., June 2-4. "As many as 24 hours, or as few as four hours can be completed at the workshops with qualified instructors offering classes in a variety of both life and health, as well as property and casualty subject matters," said Commissioner Ronnie C. Moore.

For more information, call the Division of Agent Licensing, Continuing Education Unit at 502/564-6144.

For now, there's still three tax rates

Q: Are there still only three tax rates in 1992? Are capital gains taxed the same?—P.L., Andover, Mass.

A: Subject to what the U.S. Congress and the president decide, there are presently only three tax rates for 1992: 15 percent, 28 percent and 31 percent. The same as for 1991. The maximum tax rate on net capital gains is still 28 percent.

Q: Either the Social Security number on my card is in error or my employer is using the wrong number. The IRS says that they're both wrong and is holding up my tax refund. Now what?—B.T., Springfield, Mass.

A: If both the name and Social Security number on your tax form do not agree with your Social Security card, your refund may be delayed and you may not receive credit for your Social Security earnings.

If the name or number on your Social Security card is incorrect, ei-reimbursement of membership in an association that gives cooperative or so-called "free-choice" medical service, or group hospitalization and clinical care.

Q: What is a marital deduction? Is this limited to $600,000? — L.W., Atlanta

A: The marital deduction is a deduction allowed for computing a deceased person's federal estate tax; it permits a deceased person's property to pass to his or her surviving spouse free of estate taxes. There is no limit on the amount of property that may qualify for the marital deduction.

By leaving all your assets directly to your surviving spouse, you avoid estate taxes entirely at the time of your death.

However, for individuals with taxable estates valued at more than $600,000, transferring the entire estate directly to a surviving spouse may not be the best means of obtaining an overall family estate tax savings. While the unlimited marital deduction would eliminate the estate tax for the deceased spouse's property, an excessive estate tax might be imposed on the surviving spouse's estate when that spouse dies. Careful estate planning is very important.

Q: My former husband gives me additional money to provide for his former home and general expenses. Now he wants to deduct them as alimony and for me to include them as income. I say it's wrong and not fair. He says that if I want to keep receiving this additional money, I have to go along with him. What's right? — M.M. North Conway, N.H.

A: Betwixt-and-between. Payments not required by a divorce or separation instrument are not considered alimony for tax purposes. For instance, if one spouse gives the other an amount of money beyond the stipulated amount in the divorce decree, it is not alimony. Therefore, this is not deductible by the payer or includable as income by the recipient. That's the law. Your former husband's rule has no substance other than the fact that he has the strings to the money bag.

Q: Are the monthly payments we make to our HMO insurance deductible? Are our $5 co-payments deductible?—S.M., Manchester, N.H.

A: Sure, but only if you can itemize on Schedule A and beat the 7.5 percent medical floor limitations. Medical expense includes insurance premiums you pay for the payment or
