Airport pact is studied

Meeting for the first time in nearly five years, the Paintsville-Prestonsburg Industrial Authority went behind closed doors Monday to review a proposal to end a legal debate over the fate of Combs Airport.

The development authority, formed in 1987 by the city councils in Paintsville and Prestonsburg, has been directed by those city governments to perform a "best-use" study on the airport site to determine if the airport should remain open or be converted for industrial development.

The issues involving the future of Combs Airport have been mired in a legal dispute between a pilot's association and the mayors of Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Monday's meeting of the joint industrial board brought those parties together behind closed doors in an apparent effort to resolve legal issues. No official action was taken after the hour-long executive session.

The only formal decision reached by the industrial board Monday was the election of Burl Wells Spurlock as chairman. The board also issued an informal request that the Big Sandy Area Development District provide additional technical assistance in the preparation of a best-use study on the airport site. The Big Sandy ADD presented a preliminary study on the airport to a joint session of Paintsville and Prestonsburg city councils in March.

The industrial authority will meet again on Monday, July 6, at 7 p.m. at May Lodge. Members present for Monday's session included Spurlock, Dennis Dorton, Ted Nairn and Scott Perry.

Dumping days could be numbered

The Floyd County landfill at Garth will close July 1 if local officials are unable to persuade state officials to waive tougher regulations. The state has ordered all landfills in the state to close at the end of June if they are not meeting transition standards under the 1990 regulations. The closure would affect four adjoining counties. Closure appears imminent :

Landfill woes are piling up

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County officials are scrambling for a way around tighter state landfill regulations to prevent the Floyd County landfill from closing on July 1.

Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and judge-executives from surrounding counties went to Hazard Tuesday to plead their case before the Cabinet for Natural Resources Commissioner Phillip Shepherd.

State officials with the Division of Waste Management have denied the county's permit to continue operating the facility until 1995 because no proof exists that a 12-inch thick clay liner is under the layers of trash.

All landfills in the state that fail to meet transition standards under new regulations passed by the legislature in 1990 have been ordered closed as of July 1 by the Natural Resources Cabinet.

Floyd County's landfill fails to meet several of those standards and it appears that the facility will have to close. The county has been issued citations for deficiencies at the site since June 1990.

Floyd County will not be the only area affected since Pike, Knott, Morgan, Martin and Johnson counties transport solid waste to the county's landfill.

"At this point it's not too optimistic," Dave Cooley, solid waste director said Tuesday. "They are asking us to correct the problems by July 1 and that's an unattainable accomplishment."

Floyd County's options appear to be limited, and costly.

Cooley said it would cost approximately $390,000 to construct a "temporary" four-acre site. The site would require installing a clay liner, a leachate collection system and ground water monitoring devices. A leachate system is drainage pipes used to divert water run-off from the landfill into a specific area.

In addition to preparing a temporary site, work would also have to begin on a "full-blown" contained landfill, Cooley said. A temporary facility would take about three months to complete, Cooley said. He added it would cost $75,000 to close the landfill.

Cooley said another alternative to the dilemma would be to turn the site into a transfer station at a cost of approximately $250,000.

City helps cut cost of insurance

The cost of flood insurance will decline for Prestonsburg property owners in October, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has advised.

In a letter dated May 27, Federal Insurance Administration administrator C. M. Schauerer advised Mayor Ann Latta that city property owners could expect a five percent reduction on the cost of flood insurance policies in place on or after October 1, 1992.

The reduction is a result of a voluntary appraisal of "community flood loss reduction initiatives" implemented by the city.

Those initiatives led to a Class 9 rating for the city.

Schauerer commended the city for meeting the requirements for a Class 9 rating, noting the insurance rate savings was "a tangible result of the voluntary activities your community has implemented."

Mayor Latta credited city fire marshal Larry Adams with the outcome of the flood loss assessment, noting that Adams had spearheaded the community review.

Latta said another review, scheduled for July, could produce even further reductions in flood insurance costs.

Boat swamped at Dewey :

Rescue a double "miracle"

by Janice Shepherd
Staff Writer

A family reunion Sunday almost ended in tragedy, when a 14-foot boat was swamped and its five occupants, including a two-year-old child, suddenly found themselves in the waters of Dewey Lake.

Charles Webb, who was making his third trip across the lake around 6 p.m. to ferry family members to shore after a picnic, brought the boat he was steering to a standstill near the old Terry Boat Dock to allow a houseboat to pass. The nose of his boat dipped and it was swamped by waves created by the houseboat.

"Waves came back at me and right into the boat," said Webb. "At the snap of your fingers, it (the boat) was gone."

Webb's granddaughter was the only occupant of the boat wearing a life vest. Webb was the only occupant of the boat who could not swim, but somehow he remained afloat.

"It was a miracle from God," said

Wayland seeks support for sewer system plan

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The town of Wayland and its surrounding area may have a new solid waste system soon, if the mayor and city council members' efforts are rewarded with public support.

At Monday's Wayland City Council meeting, newly-elected Mayor Gene Mullins and councilmen Curtis Tufts, Tommy Robinson and Larry Puckett agreed to circulate a petition for Wayland residents to sign, requesting that the Big Sandy Area Development District donate $7,000 to help the city finance a new sewage system.

"A lot of people have their sewage lines going directly into the creek," Mullins said, "and it's washing down on us. That isn't good for the environment and it isn't good for the people of Wayland."

The council must persuade 51 percent of the area's residents to sign the petition before the Big Sandy ADD may consider the request.

The council also appointed Wayland resident Tom Murphy to fill the city council position Mullins vacated when he was elected mayor. Although Murphy was absent from the meeting due to a family illness, he is expected to accept the appointment.

Among other items the council considered:

- The purchase of two car-mounted police strobe light/siren boxes.

Wheelwright policeman Charles Harmon accepted $100 for the lights on behalf of the city of Wheelwright. The lights will be installed on the city of Wayland's police vehicles.

- The council will conduct a special meeting on Monday, June 15, to discuss the adoption of a new budget plan. The meeting is open to the public.

The next regularly scheduled Wayland City Council meeting will be conducted July 6. All residents are urged to attend.

Floyd property values reassessed :

Round one almost complete

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd Countians will see the results of a state Revenue Cabinet property reassessment on their 1993 tax bills.

State Revenue Cabinet workers should finish the first leg of an extensive reassessment of property values in Floyd County this month. A "double checking" of the new assessments should be complete by January, Lovell Hall, Floyd County Property Valuation Administrator said Tuesday.

"This process started over a year ago, in February," Hall said. "They've been out in the county working toward Prestonsburg. They've been measuring houses and commercial buildings, determining what type of heating is used (in the homes) and the number of bathrooms. Things that would give an indication of a fair value of the property."

Extensive property reassessments have been underway in 25 counties as a result of legislation passed by the General Assembly in 1990 to financially support the Kentucky Education Reform Act that was also passed that year.

Hall added that some type of re-evaluation of property has taken place in all the state's 120 counties, but that 25 Eastern Kentucky counties were targeted for a more in-depth evaluation.

Lt. Governor Patton will keynote Chamber event

The banquet begins with a reception at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner, an awards presentation, Patton's address and the installation of Chamber officers for the 1992-93 year.

Entertainment will be provided by the Junior Kentucky Opry and Jenny Wiley Theatre. An arts and crafts exhibit will be presented by Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts.

Martin man is killed in single-vehicle mishap

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

William Everette Wohlford, 19, of Martin, was killed Saturday when the car he was driving skidded out of control and crashed into a cliff on Route 550 near Hueysville. The accident occurred at approximately 4 a.m.

Members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad and the Kentucky State Police responded to the accident.

Harry Adams, captain of the rescue squad, said that an unnamed passenger received only minor injuries.

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson declared Wohlford dead on the scene.

Wohlford was the son of John and Rosaleen Wohlford. He was a former honor student at Allen Central High School, where he graduated in the top 10 in his class in 1991. He had recently completed his freshman year at Morehead State University.

Wohlford was buried Monday afternoon in the Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

It's all in the family

"No matter what, we will still have door-to-door garbage pickup," Cooley said.

Annette Hayden, with the Division of Waste Management, said Tuesday that the county has two permitted sites at the Garth location, but that in order to use the other site the clay liner, leachate system and water monitoring devices would have to be installed to accommodate the whole area.

"It isn't exactly a temporary landfill," Hayden said. "They would still have to do all of those things to be in compliance."

Hayden said "a lot" is involved in closing a facility, but that only two requirements were needed to technically close the landfill.

"The county would have to not accept any more solid waste after June 30 and submit an approvable closure plan to the cabinet," Hayden said. "That would satisfy the technical requirements."

It was not clear Tuesday what the ramifications would be if the landfill is closed.

"If we have to shut down, we could haul our garbage to Pike County," Cooley said. "Pike County is supposed to open their new landfill by July 1, but it won't be finished by then. If Pike County's isn't open, we're hurting. "Until it is opened, the closest place to us is Ashland. It's not even been discussed if they'll take it," Cooley added.

When asked if transporting waste out of the county would increase the $8 a month customer charge, Cooley replied, "make your own decision."

The revenue lost to the county from the five adjoining counties that use the landfill would be approximately $50,000 a month, Cooley said. He could not breakdown the revenue generated by Floyd County customers.

Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo was surprised that the state said the facility would have to close.

"We met with those people (waste management officials) in February and they were asking us to take garbage from Perry, Leicher and Breathitt counties and we told them it was more than we can handle. There weren't any problems then. The only way to prove we have the clay liner is with Superman's vision."

Stumbo said Monday that he was seeking help on the issue from Governor Brereton Jones.

On-going violations cited at the landfill since June 1990 other than the clay liner depth, include:

- failure to keep records of random inspections and suspicious loads;
- failure to keep environmental monitoring records;
- failure to maintain access and perimeter roads at the site;
- failure to install methane gas alarms in the on-site buildings;
- failure to have scales on the site;
- leachate outbreaks observed;
- failure to maintain run-off ditches;
- failure to prevent ponding of water on the fill site;
- failure to adequately compact waste;
- failure to apply temporary erosion controls; and
- failure to have a certified operator at the landfill at the time of inspection.

Hayden said Tuesday that none of the deficiencies have been corrected.

Johnson joins team to work in Venezuela

Eric Johnson, a junior at Allen Central High School, has been accepted to go to Merida Venezuela through a mission outreach program.

AIM (Ambassadors In Mission) is a short term youth missions outreach of the Assemblies of God. Every year teams of young people are sent into various parts of the world to work together with the missionaries and national churches.

As part of the team of 18 other young people from Kentucky, Johnson will be involved in drama, music and personal evangelism, as well as begin part of the crusade that will be ministering each evening.

After graduating next year, Johnson hopes to be part of an outreach to Spain. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Johnson of Martin.

Webb, who estimated his weight at 245 pounds. "Nobody else could do it (keep him afloat)."

Family members on shore saw the boat go down and requested help from a man who was backing his boat into the water. That's where the second miracle happened, Webb said.

The man, whose name is not known by the Webb family, immediately unhitched his boat and shifted it into reverse, knowing that the reverse gear had not worked in a long time. But the boat went into reverse and the man went to the rescue.

After he brought the Webb family to shore, the man tried to reverse the engine to return his boat to the ramp, but the engine would not go into reverse again.

The lake is about 35 feet deep where the boat went down, said Brian Sexton, co-captain of the Floyd County Rescue Squad which was called to the scene to see if the boat posed a hazard to passing boats.

Webb, whose son Eddie Webb owns the sunken boat, said he hopes it will be removed from the lake bed because his two-year-old granddaughter wants to go back to the lake and ride the boat again.

Cablevision donates to school

Cablevision general manager Dan Perry presents Assistant Superintendent of Floyd County schools Gary Frazier with a donation that will be applied to a new word processing lab at Prestonsburg High School. (photo by Geoff Belcher)

Schools to receive new computers

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Cablevision of Prestonsburg has donated $2,276.52 toward the construction of a word processing lab at Prestonsburg High School.

Assistant Superintendent Gary Frazier accepted the donation on behalf of the board of education at a small ceremony at the Inacom Computer Center in downtown Prestonsburg late Tuesday morning.

Cablevision appropriated the funds for the project through a promotional program entitled "Cable + You = Money For Our Schools," in which new cable subscribers wrote their checks for the first month's service fee directly to the school board.

Frazier thanked Cablevision general manager Dan Perry for the donation, and said that the new word processing lab at Prestonsburg was only the beginning of a county-wide $2.4 million project.

"We hope to have computer systems similar to this one and the one at the Adams Middle School library in every school in the county within the next year," Frazier said.

"We'd especially like to thank all the cable subscribers that participated in the program," Frazier added. "This wouldn't have been possible without their help."

Persons wishing to donate funds toward the school board's computer expansion program may call 886-2354 for further information.

The cooks from Melvin Grade School want everyone to know that our tests for hepatitis were negative. We were asked to take these tests because a few people who picketed our school felt that the hepatitis was coming from our kitchen.

We want the people who picketed our school, the rest of the parents, Dr. Hall, Jennifer Martin, the Health Department, and the Food Service Department to know that we did not have to be told to wash our hands before we handle or prepare food. We do that automatically.

And as for taking extra precautions, there are certain things concerning cleanliness that are done every day, not just when there's a threat of a disease.

We are very upset over the way we have been treated during this time. We felt we were singled out because they wanted to blame the school and couldn't find anyone else to pick on.

We want to thank Mr. Bentley and all the other people at school and elsewhere for standing behind us.

Time and time again, I read in the Floyd County Times about the school administration—of how it ought to be a native or this guy and or that person. But nobody every says anything about what's best for the future of the children. Isn't that what it's supposed to be about?

All things being equal, an outsider or stranger would probably do a better job.

Who doesn't anybody ever talk about qualifications? Experience—what college did the person attend and what kind of degrees did they receive? And, what's his experience?

Who gives a darn who he is or who he is kin to or whose friend he is? Can he run the system and make it work?

Until you do this, I think you are wasting your money in having a school system. I'd like to believe the children from the hills where I came from are receiving a fair chance at what should be available to everybody. That's why they call us "Hillbillies" when we do leave the hills and seek employment elsewhere. No education.

There is nothing wrong in being from the hills if we get our fair share of everything, especially education.

Special interest is the ruination of everything it touches. Let's get rid of it and educate our children like the rest of the country is doing. If you don't love your children enough to want to have a good education, you shouldn't be allowed to have children.

On a recent visit to Prestonsburg to visit relatives, I was privileged to attend the Festival of F.A.C.E.S. concert of the Kentucky Opry. What an enjoyable evening of first class entertainment that was! Being an ardent music fan of gospel and country music, I was delighted at the quality of the performances of these talented people from Eastern Kentucky.

I have attended similar shows in Pigeon Forge, Tennessee, but The Kentucky Opry is in my opinion the best!

I want to urge the people of Floyd County to support this wonderful talent that you have there. If you have already seen the show, you know what I'm talking about. But, if you haven't you don't know what you're missing.

Keith Caudill and the Kentucky Opry Troupe is to be commended for putting on this wonderful program! It's one of the things that makes me proud to say—"I'm from Floyd County, Kentucky."

We had a great turnout for our first meeting and look to having a better turnout this Thursday night, June 4, at 7 p.m., at the Allen Central lunchroom. I would like to invite all of the surrounding parents, concerned citizens and especially track coaches in the area to come out in support for us to get this track and field in Floyd County for our present and future athletes of Floyd County.

I would like to take this time to address two important veteran events.

First, I recently had the pleasure to lead a large group from Kentucky to Washington, DC for the Rolling Thunder Rally for Prisoners-of-War and Missing-in-Action (POW/MIAs). Most were riding motorcycles, but we had several cars, trucks and RVs. The people were from all walks of life and were veterans and non-veterans alike. Each individual just wanted to have our POW/MIAs returned and all the files declassified regarding our soldiers from WW II, Korea, and Vietnam. We also do not want relations with Vietnam to be normalized until our POW/MIAs are accounted for. We had 40,000-60,000 motorcycles in the rally on Sunday (Memorial Day Weekend). All the people I met were very professional and sincere. I thank all of you who came out to support us and those that went with us to DC. If there were more Americans like you, our POW/MIAs would never have been abandoned.

Secondly, anyone who would like to know about the Vet Centers and proposed changes, Agent Orange, POW/MIAs, Post Traumatic Stress Disorder, and bills before Congress that could effect the medical benefits of all Veterans should attend a meeting at Masterson's Food and Drink at 1830 S. Third Ave. in Louisville, on June 20, at noon. The speakers will be Tom Burch, chairman of the National Vietnam Veterans Coalition and David Kaufman, Special Projects Director of the Coalition. The Coalition represents about 350,000 members. Everyone is welcome to attend. You must make reservations through Ann Marken at 2008 E. Elm, New Albany, IN 47150 or (812) 944-1642. Please call Ann to make you reservation by June 15.

We cannot expect our government officials to do what is right. We must be educated so we can persuade our elected officials to make the right decisions regarding our veterans. You must become involved or you can only blame yourself if the wrong decisions are made by our lawmakers.

This isn't New York, but there are some striking similarities.

Let's take the issue of garbage disposal, for instance.

If the Floyd County landfill closes, a lot of Eastern Kentucky counties are going to be all trashed up with no place to go...just like New York, New York.

What then?

We've made a lot of noise lately about importing trash from other areas and protested the construction of landfills, which was all well and good as long as we were able to take care of our own garbage.

What do we do now that our ability to take care of our own is threatened?

This looks like a job for Concerned Citizens.

Are there any available?

Quote of the week:

Texas billionaire and probable presidential candidate H. Ross Perot, in response to accusations that he was trying to "buy" the presidency, admitted that those accusations were, in fact, quite true.

Perot said he was going to buy (the presidency) and give it to the American people because "they can't afford to buy it themselves."

While the front pages last week were dominated by idiotic coverage of the Dan Quayle/Murphy Brown fiasco, one of the most consequential stories we've seen in a while was buried among the less "newsworthy" items on the national scene.

It appears from that story that the world of science has struck upon a treatment for certain types of cancer that has "cured" laboratory animals afflicted with the disease.

The treatment involves a chemical discovery which, when triggered, attacks and destroys cancer cells.

While the treatment may be one of the most significant discoveries in recent times, it should not be confused with "news" which, as defined by national media, must include a heavy dose of absurdity.

Now that the Cold War is over we can devote this country's attentions to the real threat to our nation's security.

Kids with guns.

In Los Angeles, statistics suggest that 47 percent of the inner city teens belong to street gangs.

In New York, statistics suggest that up to 65 percent of inner city teens routinely carry firearms.

New York and L.A. are far away. It's difficult for us to identify with their problems.

One of the beauties of being a part of small town America is being insulated from the diseases that plague urban life.

But that insulation is not immunity. Eventually the disease will spread—as have AIDS and drug abuse—to even the smallest hamlet.

That makes their problems our problems and good targets for investing some of those "peace dividends" we've been hearing about.

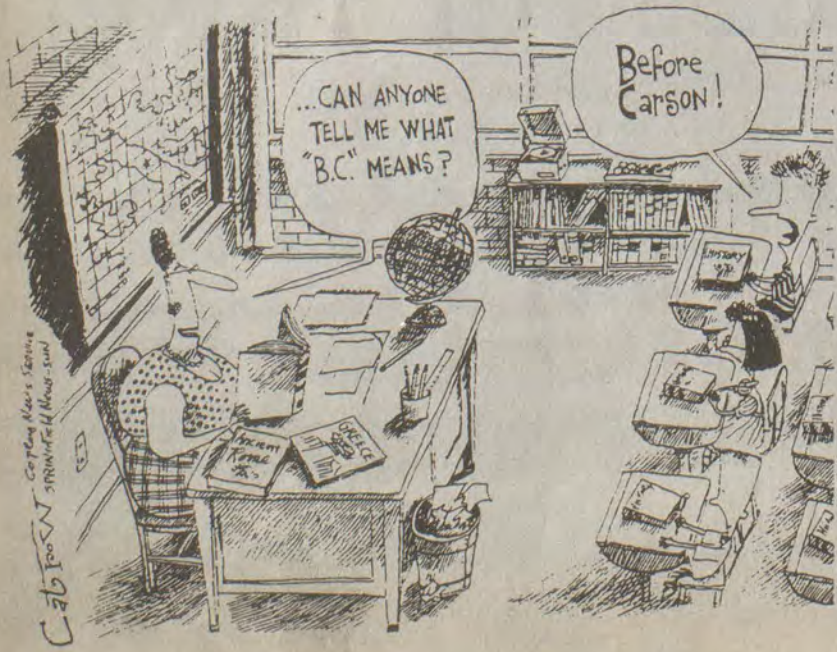

We don't have to worry so much about the Russians killing us anymore, but we ought to be mighty worried about why our children are killing each other.

Say, what happened to that hole in the ozone and its pal, global warming?

Better yet, what happened to Mr. Sun?

Here it is June already and the weather's still stuck on April. Enough of this dreary, overcast drizzly gloom.

It's June. It's supposed to be miserably hot and humid.

Three injured

Billy Stapleton, 38, of Emma was hospitalized Monday after the pickup truck he was driving collided with a coal truck on Ivy Road. Stapleton's passenger, Terry Triplett, and coal truck driver Jeffery Howard were also treated at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Kentucky State trooper David Watkins and sheriff's deputies Linzie Hunt, Daniel Hutchinson, Ed Rickman and Johnny Layne responded to the scene. Stapleton was removed from the truck by the Floyd County Emergency Rescue Squad. (photo by Susan Allen)

Local students named to spring President's List

Melanie Ann Adams of Allen, who is majoring in psychology, and Sharon Kay Fugate of Winchester, formerly of Floyd County, who is majoring in occupational therapy, was among the 397 students at Eastern Kentucky University to be named to the President's List for the spring semester study.

The honor was established by the University to recognize outstanding academic achievement. It is bestowed upon full-time undergraduate students who attain a perfect 4.0 grade point average for a semester.

"All of us at EKU are committed to academic excellence," said President Hanly Funderburk, "so it is very fitting that we should lift up for special attention those students who have excelled to the point of perfection during a semester's work."

Eastern Kentucky University is a comprehensive university serving more than 16,500 students on its 350-acre Richmond campus, throughout its 22-county extended service region, and beyond.

Homes damaged at Maytown by two fires

Arson investigators are looking into the cause of an early morning fire near Maytown Friday.

An empty home, owned by Larry Hicks, near the mouth of Dock Allen Branch was destroyed by fire around 1:45 a.m. Friday. The house was fully engulfed in flames when Maytown firefighters arrived.

A nearby home was also damaged by the blaze and firefighters concentrated their efforts on protecting the home and keeping it from spreading.

Fifteen firefighters battled the blaze for 2 1/2 hours.

In a separate fire, Maytown firefighters doused a fire in the mobile home of Larry Green of Hippo after a clothes dryer ignited.

A vent line from the dryer had clogged with lint, blowing the heat back into the dryer, said Keith Hayes, a firefighter. The clothes inside the dryer caught fire, and the mobile home filled with smoke.

Mrs. Green called the fire department. Firefighters arrived on the scene within minutes and extinguished the fire.

John 'Pete' Conley, Lexington musician, dies at 57

By Jennifer Hewlett
Herald-Leader staff writer

John E. "Pete" Conley, a popular local musician and president of the Lexington Musicians Association died of cancer Sunday at Central Baptist Hospital. He was 57.

He was the son of the late James Elzie and Gigi Rice Conley. Mr. Conley's regular job was teaching band, music and music composition at Lexington's Dunbar High School, Beaumont Middle School and James Lane Allen Elementary School, but his musical career also included performances at events ranging from political rallies for presidential candidates to the local Fourth of July festival.

He headed the Pete Conley Orchestra and the Pete Conley Dixieland Band. He was primarily a trumpeter, but could play many instruments.

Mr. Conley also wrote and arranged several pieces, including Three Early Sacred Pieces for Brass Quartet, Suite for Orchestra, and Prelude and Tripartite.

Mr. Conley, who lived at 2131 Jasmine Drive, became interested in music while growing up in his native Prestonsburg. He received bachelor's and master's degrees in music composition from the University of Kentucky and had studied at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. He performed with the Air Force Band while stationed in Alaska during the 1950s.

For several years he was director of Lexington's Oleika Shrine Temple band and was first trumpet in the band at his death.

"I admired him very much," said John Bryden, who plays flute with the Oleika band. Mr. Conley, he said, was a "fine all-around musician" who surprised him with things he had learned about music.

"He was great at telling jokes, the way he told them. I could tell the same joke and it wouldn't go over."

Former presidents Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford and politician John Connally of Texas were among the notables for whom Mr. Conley had performed.

Mr. Conley was a member of the American Federation of Musicians and the Robert M. Sirkle Masonic Lodge. He also was an avid golfer.

Surviving are his wife, Peggy Wells Conley; two daughters, Gegie Lynn Harbison of Lexington and Karen Elizabeth Widson of Philadelphia; two brothers, Rev. Thomas Dewey Conley of Prestonsburg and Grady Edward Conley of Fayetteville, North Carolina; two sisters, Doris McNinch of Omaha, Nebraska, and Edith Tyra of Thousand Oaks, California; and six grandchildren.

Services will be at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at W.R. Milward Mortuary—Southland. There will be no visitation.

Contributions are suggested to the American Cancer Society.

Appalachian storyteller entertains PCC class

When Carol Parsons thought about her assignment for Prof. Honshell's Appalachian Studies class, she wondered what she could do as a project which would demonstrate some aspect of Appalachia. Then she remembered her favorite Appalachian storyteller, Mrs. Georgia Muncy, and invited her to perform for the class.

Mrs. Muncy, a retired librarian from Pikeville, has been entertaining audiences in the Big Sandy for decades with her Appalachian interactive style of storytelling.

She dramatized every action, built the suspense of humor and then personally involved the audience in the story. At one point, the suspense was so great and the drama so convincing that the members of the class physically jumped in their seats.

Using the folklore of the area, Mrs. Muncy entertained the group while at the same time revealing much of the strength and "wileyness" of the mountain people.

When Mrs. Honshell asked a final exam question regarding Mrs. Muncy's presentation, most of the class remembered the smallest details of the stories. With community involvement such as that demonstrated by Mrs. Muncy, PCC can help to preserve and honor our mountain heritage while preparing students for the future.

Disability Fair

Disability counselor Lee Beard, who is a Special Needs Counselor at PCC, organized the first Disability Awareness Fair.

PCC holds Disability Awareness Fair

As D. Lee Beard, Special Needs Counselor at Prestonsburg Community College, puts it, "Awareness is the first step towards change." With that thought in mind, he organized PCC's first Disability Awareness Fair, held recently at the college.

Using a fair format, the presenters set up displays in Johnson 102 designed to show those with and without special needs what is available to assist those with disabilities. Fairgoers were able to play with a computer which talked to them, see a screen designed to enlarge print for the visually impaired and experience the advantages and disadvantages of life in a wheelchair. Other demonstrations, video presentations and demonstrations were also available. Presenters included the Carl D. Perkins Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center in Thelma, the Kentucky Assistive Technology Service Network, the Kentucky Department for the Blind, the Kentucky Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, and Prestonsburg Community College.

Near the end of the day, the Kentucky Mental Health Players gave an interactive theater presentation which made the audience aware of their own attitudes toward the disabled.

Since Prestonsburg Community College serves a large number of people with disabilities, this fair was a wonderful way to make students, faculty, and others aware of attitudes toward the disabled and technological advantages available to assist them.

Search for Kentucky's oldest veteran to end

Nominations and supporting documentation for "Kentucky's Oldest Vet" must be received in Frankfort by the Kentucky Division of Veterans Affairs by close of business June 30. About 25 applications have been submitted since March 1.

Application forms are still available by contacting your local County Veterans Assistance Officer or by writing the Military Records and Research Branch at 1121 Louisville Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601-6169.

"Kentucky has over 1,100 veterans of World War I still living," said Adjutant General Robert DeZarn. "While the average age is 90, many are still active in the community or veterans organization. We will take time to carefully screen the nominations we have on hand after the deadline and will announce a presentation date sometime later this year," concluded DeZarn.

For more information about the necessary documentation to submit a nomination or to request an application, contact the Military Records and Research Branch at (502) 564-4883.

A little help from friends

Just before Morehead State University's 1992 Spring Commencement got under way, Yvette L. DePoy of Allen, right, helped classmate Kandra Lynn Johnson of Catlettsburg with her mortar board. The two young women earned B.B.A. degrees. More than 700 degrees were conferred by MSU President C. Nelson Grote on graduate and undergraduate candidates during the event which drew more than 6,000 to the Academic-Athletic Complex. Dr. Grote, who was the commencement speaker, also received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters. (MSU photo by Eric Shindelbower)

The Fourth of July is just around the corner and this year's celebration will be bigger and better than ever because this year Pikeville is celebrating 200 Years of Kentucky Fourths.

The city of Pikeville, The Pikeville Main Street Program, East Kentucky Radio Network, Telephone Pioneers of America and several very dedicated individuals are planning a day full of fun Bicentennial Fourth activities. The planning committee members want this Fourth of July to be bigger than ever with as many participants as possible.

A simple telephone call can get you signed up to participate in the parade, flea market, food booths, games, or the Pull It, Push It, Ride It contest.

Groups who are interested in participating through a food booth space need to contact Sharon Clark at 432-1077 or Myra Chico at 432-9174. The food booth space is free, but a donation to the City Park Revitalization Fund of 30 percent of the net profits is a must.

Crafts or flea market items can be sold during the day's activities. The cost for a flea market table is $25. The Fourth planning committee will provide an eight foot long table and two chairs per table for the fee. The flea market tables could be used for face painting, craft items, or any type of speciality item. Anyone who would like to buy a table at the celebration should call Sharon Clark at 432-1077 or Myra Chico at 432-9174.

The Pull It, Push It, Ride It Contest participants should call Myra Chico at 432-9174. The vehicles should be decorated to represent the theme of "Celebrating 200 Years of Kentucky's Fourths."

Game booth space is also available. Groups or individuals who would like to participate by having a booth like ring toss or duck pond can call Sharon Clark at 432-1077 or Myra Chico at 432-9174.

Be one of the first to call to make arrangements to participate in this special celebration of Kentucky's Bicentennial!

SHOULD BASEBALL, WORLD REVOLVE AROUND REDS DIBBLE?

When will professional athletes get off their ego-centric ways? Why does Cincinnati Reds reliever Rob Dibble think that the baseball world — or the world in fact — should revolve around him?

Most, and I say most, professional athletes are self-centered people. All they care about are themselves. Michael Jordan, Rob Dibble and countless others are on some large ego trip.

Jordan, two weeks ago, stated that he no longer wanted to project the "Mr. Nice Guy" image that the sports world and fans had painted of the Chicago Bulls All-Star performer. He also stated that it was hard for him to hold up these expectations and he was ready to change all that. And he further stated that this was the year that he learned to "hate" the opposite race.

Jordan no doubt is one of the greatest basketball players to ever play the game. He certainly can back all that up with his stats. But being in the limelight as he has been over the years certainly can take away from his private life and perhaps all of us can see why he would tire of such attention. Sure, it would be all right for a few years, but then even good things can become bothersome.

But it is hard to understand a person like Rob Dibble. Dibble is certainly no Jordan of baseball. Nor is he likely to ever reach that plateau. Dibble is a crybaby who wants the baseball world to see him. Take notice of him. Show him some respect. Dibble wants the Cincinnati Reds and the rest of the world to revolve around him.

Like Jordan, Dibble is very good in his sport. He is a millionaire and works every-so-often and very short hours. Dibble is now complaining, like two years ago when the Reds won the World Series, that he is not being used as he demands. There goes that ego problem. In 1990 he was jealous of Randy Myers as the closer. Now it is Norm Charlton. If you remember, Dibble opened the season on the disabled list and Charlton was designated the closer for the Reds until the right-handed Dibble returned to the team. Charlton in the early going picked up some saves and was looking good. Now Dibble thinks that he should be the lone closer and has renewed threats that the Reds trade him.

I have never liked Dibble as a baseball player, although I think he is a tremendous reliever. I think with the proper attitude he could be a big help for some ballclub coming out of the bullpen. I for one would love to see the Reds deal the disgruntled Dibble to the Cleveland Indians or some team that has no chance of making a run for the title.

His latest antics have caught the wrath of his manager Lou Piniella, who says that Dibble's crybaby tactics have come at the wrong time when the Reds were on a six game winning streak. Piniella has been trying to stress a team concept this year that makes the Reds a serious contender and an outburst such as Dibble's could cause some problems in the clubhouse. Trade him!

RAIN, RAIN AND MORE RAIN

The 1992 Kentucky High School track and field meet went on as scheduled in Lexington with Allen Central and Wheelwright two of the teams that took part.

I was surprised at the large crowd that filled the Shively Field stands despite the rains. Toward noon the area look like "tent city" as the tents and tarps were laid out for the long day.

The folks at the KHSAA did a great job of running the meet. The

Patton, Burke to suit for Kentucky Junior All-Stars

This Friday night basketball fans from around the area will get a chance at a sneak preview of both the Kentucky Junior All-Star teams. The two teams will begin their summer schedule at Paintsville High School where they will play two exhibition games.

Locally, Allen Central's Phillip Patton will play on the sophomore-to-be-junior squad and Chris Burke will play on the junior-to-be-senior team. Burke last year was part of the junior all-star group that played out on the west coast. The all-star squads are under the direction of Eddie Ford.

The Sophomore West team will face the Sophomore East squad in a 6:30 p.m. game and at 8:30 p.m. the Junior West team will go against the Junior East team.

The Sophomore East team will feature players such as Central's Patton, Elkhorn City's Todd Conley, Johnson Central's Shane Ratliff, Steve Kreutzer of Pikeville, Cameron Mills of Paul Lawrence Dunbar, Vince Bingham of Nicholasville, Mike Jones of Hazard, Covington Catholic's Andy Listerman, Chris Kerns of Estill County and Wayne White of Lawrenceburg.

The Sophomore West squad will feature Elton Scott of Marion High School, Jeremy Newcom of Ohio County, Shawn Butler of Henderson County, Kyle Chapman of Henderson County, Fontrae Martin of West Hopkins, Lance Parr of Daviess County, Jeff Rogers of Eastern High School, Lorenzo Conner of Nelson County, Tim Flynn of University Heights, Greg Buckner of University Heights and Patrick Saulsbery of Muhlenberg North.

Headlining the Juniors East team will be Paul Dunbar High School standout Darnell Burton. Burton is on the University of Kentucky's shopping list. Burton will be joined by Prestonsburg's Chris Burke and Sheldon Clark's Shawn Hale.

Others on the east team include: Jason Greene, West Carter; Eddie Hale, East Carter; Jackson Julson, East Carter; Ryan Strong, Franklin County; Larry Gritton, Oneida Baptist; Drew Powers, Dixie Heights; Robby Padgett, St. Henry's; Steve Trivette, Rowan County and Alvin Sims of Paris.

For the Junior West team, Kevin

Willard, son of Ralph Willard, head coach at Western Kentucky University (former assistant to Rick Pitino) will lead the west squad. Others include Eric Kinslow of Eastern High School, Brandon Shoulders of Webster County, P.J. Warlick of Fulton County, Mike Scrogam of Nelson County, Rick Szczapinski of North Bullitt, Brady Button of Barren County, Anthony Epps of Marion County, Darron Boatwright of Marshall County and John Griffith, Lone Oak High School.

After the Paintsville game, the two teams will motor to Pikeville where they will spend the night and play at Pikeville High School on Saturday night at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.

The group will continue their tour on Friday, June 12, at Barren County High School.

From June 28 until July 2 the two teams will take part in the "Hoop Stars" basketball camp. On Saturday, July 11, the teams will report to the Kentucky State Fairgrounds and play in the Kentucky Prep Festival. The festival will continue through Sunday.

On Wednesday, July 15, they will meet to fly to Las Vegas and journey on to Los Angeles by vans for tournament play. The Los Angeles tournament finals will be held on Saturday, July 18.

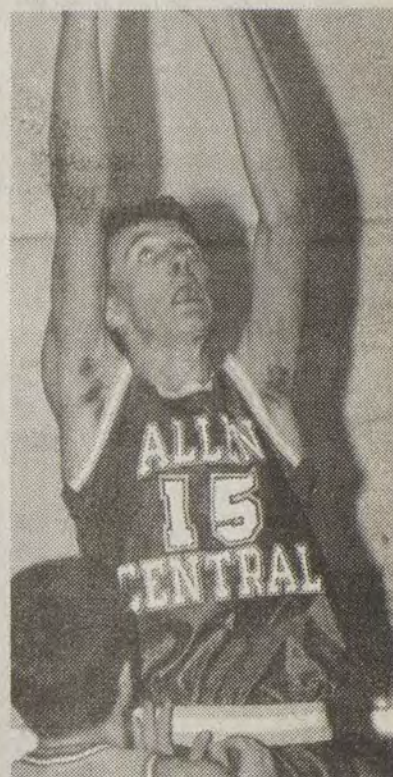

Patton averaged 19 ppg for the Rebels early in the season but saw it dropped to around 10 ppg late in the season. Patton averaged seven rebounds a game. He is coached by Johnny Martin.

Burke averaged 16 ppg for the Blackcats and pulled down nine rebounds per game. Burke is coached by Gordon Parido.

15th Region...

"Field of Dream" ends for Betsy Layne with 5-3 loss to Pikeville in finals

Just before the Betsy Layne Bobcats took the field in the championship game of the 15th Region high school baseball tournament, Bobcat coach Junior Newsome reminded his team that "this is what we have worked hard for all year."

It was a dream of the Bobcats to advance on to sectional play in Corbin this Friday and, hopefully, a trip to Lexington in the Kentucky state tournament. Only Pikeville stood in the way. But the Panthers put an end to the dream with a 5-3 win over Newsome's Bobcats in the midst of some costly errors.

Tension was high for both teams as they nervously walked about waiting the start of the championship game. Fans filled the stands behind home plate as many flooded over into the first base stands. Even some fans mounted the centerfield stands to view the game.

It would be the ace of both pitching staffs in this game as it should be — Todd Akers on the mound for the Bobcats and J.P. Blair taking the hill for the Panthers. Both are hard throwers who like to mix their pitches.

Both hurlers retired the side in the first inning and both got the opposition in order.

Akers got Matt Adkins on a routine ground ball to shortstop Chris Potter for the first out, opening the second for the Panthers. But Bobby Casto and Justin Harris collected back-to-back one out singles. Harris' single was booted around for an error in leftfield allowing Casto to move to third base and Harris to second.

Akers got Mickey Lawson to ground hard to second baseman Chuck Laferty, who looked Casto back to third and retired Lawson for the second out. However, light hitting Ryan Johnson dribbled the ball in the infield that Laferty had to come in on but Johnson legged the grounder out for an infield hit scoring both Casto and Harris. Designated hitter Danny Estep, hitting .159, bounced a one hopper to Potter at short but Potter's throw to Barry Clark at first base was high, pulling Clark off the bag and Johnson scored the third run of the inning to give the Panthers a 3-0 lead.

The Bobcats bats were lifeless against Blair and the players in the dugout equally lifeless. The bench seemed to be out of it as Betsy Layne fell behind.

Akers pitched a third inning jam of his own making when he issued back-to-back one out walks to Nathan Elswick and Blair. Akers got Matt Adkins to pop out to Clark at first base — a play that Clark went into short right field to make and over the shoulder catch. Casto ended the inning on a bounce to third.

Betsy Layne's threat in the bottom of the third died out as the first two batters reached. Shannon Newsome managed an infield hit and Barry Collins hit a liner to center for a single. Blair got Derrick Newsome on strikes and Potter's grounder to short forced Collins at second. Kidd ended the inning by fouling out to the catcher against the screen.

Pikeville stirred up the dust again in their half of the fourth. Back-to-back singles by Lawson and Johnson, with one out, put pressure on the Bobcats' defense but Akers fanned Estep and Bobcats' catcher Bud Kidd cut down Lawson in attempting to steal second.

Pikeville made it a 4-0 game with a run in the top of the fifth. The run scored on an unusual move by the Betsy Layne coaching staff. With

Wade places fourth, Bailey sixth in KHSAA state meet

The University of Kentucky's Shively Sports Center track was the site of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association's state track and field meets this past Saturday.

The events got underway at 8:30 a.m. under some threatening, cloudy skies. Before the 10 a.m. events took place, the rain began falling and umbrellas went up all over the complex.

The back side of the stands looked like tent city as teams from all over the state pitched their tents for the long stay that ran throughout the day.

The first three hours of the track and field meet consisted of six 3200-meter relays and all of that was followed by six 3200-meter runs.

In the state 1A 3200-meter run, Allen Central's Jessica Wade placed fourth in the state with a run of 12:55.72 but the Central female runner had to compete under some physical problems.

"I've been in bed sick," said the Allen Central runner. "During the race I was so congested I couldn't breathe. I went to bed last night before 8:30 p.m. (Friday)."

"I think, too, that it was a matter of nerves with some of it in the way they ran," said Allen Central coach Dewey

Jamerson. "They didn't run as well as we had expected them to, but I told them that they were winners by just being there in the state meet. But we brought home five medals from the meet."

Wade began the race running last but the hard work over the winter and spring months paid off for her as she caught and passed the other three runners in front. The last runner that Wade caught and passed was Somerset's Misty Wesley. Wade closed the gap between her and third place finisher Belinda Byron of Trigg County, but was unable to catch up in finishing fourth.

Wade, under rainy skies, stood at the award box in the infield of the track to receive her fourth place medal.

Wheelwright's Layne Bailey placed sixth in the men's 400-meter run with a time of 53:03. Bailey had been a bright spot for the Wheelwright track and field team and ran a good race until the last leg of the 400-meter race. Bailey also, like Wade, received a medal for his sixth place finish. Bailey is a senior at Wheelwright.

The Allen Central women's 3200-meter relay team came in sixth in the state. The team consisted of Wade, Jenny Wiley, Kristal Floyd and Lisa Albaugh. The foursome posted a time of 11:13.50 in the 3200-meter relay.

"They all four were there all to pieces before the race," said Jamerson of his regional and sectional champions. "They each one ran about 10 seconds off what they are capable of doing. If they go in there and run like they have been, they will come home higher than a sixth place finish. But I can understand how they felt because I have been there myself."

In the men's 300 hurdles, Shane Stumbo of Allen Central led the field for much of the race but faltered in the first turn and he placed seventh in the state for his efforts with a time of 43:32.

"Shane stutter-stepped at the last hurdle and I knew we had lost a medal when he did that. He had sixth place won but lost at the last Hurdle. Forrest (Hughes) had him about even on the third hurdle and fell to sixth on the fourth. But the way Shane felt about it was that he was happy just to be there. He knows that he will be back next year and what it is going to Clears the hurdle!

One of the most exciting events in track and field is the 300 hurdles. Here Allen Central's Shane Stumbo clears a hurdle as he ran in the event at Shively Field in Lexington. Stumbo placed seventh in the event.

events went on as scheduled and there were no delays. Some tremendous athletes from around the state were in the meet and the competition was excellent.

Our kids here in Floyd County exemplified athletic competitors and I personally was proud of every one of them. I think they represented us just as we would have wanted them to.

Most of those who went to the state from Allen Central and Wheelwright will return to their respective schools next year but look for them to make a return visit to UK and an even better finish than this year.

I'm going to harp on this one more time. There is no other school in Class 1A, 2A that we could not compete with in the state of Kentucky if we had our own track and field facilities for the kids to work out and compete on. What these kids have accomplished this year by just running strip mine roads and along four lanes is amazing. Wheelwright coaches Donnie Daniels and Keith Smallwood, as well as Allen Central coaches Dewey Jamerson and Forrest Hughes, have done an outstanding job with their programs.

I also understand that the Allen Central track team just about didn't get to make the trip to Shively Field this past Saturday because there was no bus or driver available to them. But I understand with the help of Assistant Superintendent Gary Frazier a way was found for the team to get to go.

If the Allen Central track team had not been able to go because of the lack of a way there, that would have been a horrible injustice on the part of our school system in Floyd County. These kids have worked so hard all year long for this one moment of state competition. I know that there was no basketball or football team involved with it. I know that. But had it been a basketball or football team I bet there would have been no problem of finding a bus or a driver.

Track and field is just as important to these kids as basketball and football are to those who compete in the two sports. There needs to be some advance planning because it was known for two weeks that the Central team was going. So how did they get to the meet? Private cars!

WHILE ON THE SUBJECT...

There are petitions going around Floyd County for concerned parents and fans to sign to get a track and field facility in Floyd County. So, if you see one of these petitions, please take time to sign them and let's do what we can to get what we need.

Floyd County is the only area county that does not have a facility for track and field. Let's all get behind this and push for it.

BASEBALL SECTIONALS MOVED

The high school baseball sectional has been moved from Knott County Central to Corbin. Central was not able to get their light situation straightened out and the sectional will be moved to Corbin which has installed a new field.

The winner of the 15th Region baseball tournament (Betsy Layne and Pikeville in finals) will face a good Buckhorn team on Friday afternoon at 4:30 p.m.

LADY BLACKCATS HAD GOOD SEASON...

For a second year program, the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats had a very good year. Although they fell to Boyd County in the regional semifinals, coach Bridget Clay did an outstanding job with the team that finished with a 14-4 record.

Also, the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats, a first year program, were impressive with the young squad they put together. Look for some good things from them next season. Karen Trivette put the team together this year.

The Allen Central Lady Rebels will also return a very competitive team next season under coach Bonita Compton.

McDowell always has a competitive program. The Lady Daredevils were strong again this year with a junior oriented team. They also will be back for coach Melinda Hopkins.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

State meet

take to win. "Shane was tore up," said Jamerson. "He didn't run until 2:30 p.m. and he started warming up at 11 a.m."

Wheelwright's Muntu Oden ran the men's 110 hurdles and Oden clipped the first hurdle that caused him some problems. Oden placed eighth in the state in the event.

Allen Central's junior runner Jenny Wiley took part in the women's 400-meter run and placed eighth at 5:05.86.

"On the way back to the tent area Jenny grabbed her leg and said that it just tightened up on her. It was evident that she was struggling in the race. If she runs what she did a week ago she finishes fifth."

Allen Central's 1600 women's relay placed eighth in the state meet. However, it should be noted that this was a very young relay team competing against runners who been there the past three years. Lisa Albaugh and Dreama Isaac are eighth graders at Maytown. Nikki Queen is an eighth grader at Maytown and Kristal Floyd is a freshman.

"This is just like a junior high relay team," said Jamerson. But the four runners have four years ahead of them and two have five. Jamerson said that now that some of his runners have been there that he expects their work ethics to get better in preparation for next year's meet. "We're going to get faster," he stated.

Only one participant on the women's squad leaves after this year and that is Lanessa Collins who took part in the women's shot put and discus. All the others will return giving the Allen Central program a strong start next year.

It was the first time an Allen Central women's team has brought home the medals.

Many of those in attendance at the meet had their eyes trained on Bardstown's Eugene Grundy to see if he could become the first Kentucky high schooler to clear the seven-foot leap in high jump. Grundy accomplished the feat in the regional meet at Fort Knox two weeks ago. Well, Grundy did not reach the seven-foot mark but he did take first place in the men's high jump with a leap of 6-foot, 8-inches.

Dayton was the top girl's team with a total of 63 points replacing last year's winner, Todd County Central. Fort Knox placed second with 54 points. Allen Central was 27th with five points.

For the men, Bellevue defended its last year's title by repeating with 70 points. Fort Knox was second with 66 points. Wheelwright scored on point on the strength of Bailey's sixth place finish.

Jamerson said that part of his squad will be competing in the upcoming Junior Olympics on June 27 in Frankfort. Several plan to run in the Blue Grass Games in July.

runners on first and third with two out and Casto at the plate, Blair took off for second base and Betsy Layne called for a pitch out. The ball arrived ahead of the runner but Blair was called safe when umpire Andrew Joyce ruled that Potter's tag was high. On the play Jason McCoy scored the fourth run. Casto struck out to end the inning.

The Bobcats got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the fifth as Blair seemed to tire. Shannon Newsome reached on an error at third base leading off. Derrick Newsome collected a one-out base hit sending Newsome to third. Derrick Newsome then stole second. Potter hit a rope to centerfield scoring both Shannon and Derrick Newsome for a 4-2 game. Kidd worked Blair for a full count but took a cut at a ball over his head striking out. Barry Hall, who returned as the designated hitter to the Bobcats' lineup, popped to short to end the threat.

Pikeville's final run came in the seventh on an unearned run. McCoy's grounder to third got past Shannon Newsome and the official scorer ruled it a two-base error allowing McCoy to make it to second base. Elswick then hit a one hopper to second that got past Laferty for an error scoring McCoy. Akers retired the next three batters.

Betsy Layne put on a late inning rally that fell short. Shannon Newsome doubled to lead off the inning and he scored when Collins' ground ball went through the legs of Elswick at shortstop and rolled into centerfield. But Blair bowed his neck and got the next three hitters as Betsy Layne's season came to an end.

Blair, in picking up the win, went the distance for the Panthers striking out seven and issuing two walks. He allowed three runs in scattering five hits. Akers suffered the setback and he also went the distance. Akers had four strike outs, a low for him, and he walked three. He allowed five runs, only one was earned, and seven hits.

The Bobcats finish their season with a very good 25-9 record. Pikeville goes on to face Buchhorn in the sectional tournament in Corbin this Friday evening.

Power swing!

Barry Clark, Betsy Layne, took a full swing on this pitch from Pikeville pitcher J.P. Blair in the finals of the 15th Region baseball tournament at Pikeville Monday night. The Bobcats ended their season with a 5-3 loss to Pikeville. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Clark hurls Betsy Layne past Eagles, 9-4 in 10 innings to advance to finals

The rains of the past few days certainly played havoc on the 15th Region boys high school baseball tournament last week as the games were forced to be moved up one day at a time.

The Betsy Layne Bobcats scored five runs in the top of the 10th inning to hand the Johnson Central Golden Eagles a 9-4 loss and to eliminate the Eagles from tournament competition.

Barry Clark picked up the win for the Bobcats working the first nine innings for the victory and Bud Kidd drilled a first inning home to stake the Bobcats to an early lead. However, Clark was not as sharp as he has been in the past but that didn't concern his coach Junior Newsome.

"Barry didn't look as sharp as he has in the past," the Betsy Layne coach stated. "I think it can be contributed to the weather conditions and the mound being muddy."

Clark left the mound after the first nine innings — the maximum allowed in one game — and was relieved by lefthander Todd Akers, who worked the 10th inning. Clark got the win because he was the pitcher of record entering the inning. Clark fanned seven batters and was in control of his pitches by just issuing three walks. The hard throwing righthander has kept the Eagle batters off stride by mixing his pitches well and setting them up with the fastball. Clark continued to be consistent from the mound despite the weather conditions and soaked field.

The game was played Sunday evening at Pikeville's W.C. Hamby Field.

The 58th District champions had scored five times after they batted in the top of the 10th inning. All the scoring came with one out in the inning that saw Betsy Layne collect five consecutive singles off loser Tim Delong. Delong came on in relief of Scotty Caudill, who worked the seventh inning in relief of starter J.R. Melvin.

After Clark popped to third for the first out leading off the tenth inning for Betsy Layne, Chuck Laferty drew a walk from Delong. Then the hit parade started for the Bobcats. Shawn Newsome singled and Shannon Newsome followed with a base hit that scored Jamie Hunt who was pinch running for Laferty. The two Newsomes galloped home on a base hit by Akers that got away from the Eagles' centerfielder for an error, allowing Akers to move to second. Barry Collins singled for the fourth consecutive hit in the inning. Shawn Rose, pinch runner for Akers, scored the fourth run of the inning on Derrick Newsome's grounder to first base. Chris Potter made it a 9-4 game with a base, bringing in Collins.

Akers retired the first two batters in the bottom of the tenth but hit Chad Webb and walked Caudill before getting Mark Shortridge on a grounder to third base to end the game.

"We gave them two runs," explained Coach Newsome about the two errors that led to runs late in the game. "We had three costly errors."

One of the errors in question came in the bottom of the seventh inning with Betsy Layne leading 3-2 when Larry Stambaugh grounded routinely to shortstop leading off the seventh for Johnson Central, but the ball was booted. Stambaugh then came around to score the tying run on a one-out double by Delong.

In the top of the eighth inning, Betsy Layne took a 4-3 lead on a one-out walk to Laferty with Hunt pinch running. Hunt stole second and later came in to score the go ahead run on a wild pitch.

But the Bobcats just could not stand prosperity and allowed Johnson Central to tie the game at 4-4 on a lead-off error when Paul Price grounded to shortstop. Caudill's one-out single moved Price to third where he scored on Shortridge's sacrifice fly to right field.

Betsy Layne led 1-0 on Kidd's first inning home run but Johnson Central tied the game in the bottom of the second on a one-out walk to Chris Bowlen and Chad Webb's two-out double.

Johnson Central took their first lead with a run in the bottom of the fifth on a two-out single by Stambaugh. Stambaugh stole second and moved to third on a wild pitch before scoring the go-ahead run on designated hitter Brent Adams' base hit.

Betsy Layne led 3-2 with two runs in the top of the seventh. Laferty led off with a base hit, went to second on a wild pitch and moved to third on a passed ball. With one out, Shannon Newsome took a swing at a third strike but the ball got away from the catcher, Ray Collins, and Laferty moved to third on the mistake. Todd Akers grounded to short but the ball was misplayed by Caudill and Laferty scored. Newsome scored on Barry Collins' run producing single.

Melvin, who started for Johnson Central, worked the first 6 2/3 innings with Caudill pitching the final out in the seventh. Delong worked the final three for Johnson Central's two strike outs and he walked four. Delong allowed five runs (all in the tenth) on five hits.

Akers hurled the final inning for Betsy Layne picking up a save.

Shannon Newsome and Collins had two hits each for Betsy Layne and Akers drove in two runs.

Betsy Layne improved to 25-8 on the season.

WQHY-FM to carry Summer Olympic Games

NBC Radio Sports, a division of Westwood One, announced recently that radio station WQHY-FM in Prestonsburg is the official radio station of the 1992 Summer Olympic Games for the Prestonsburg area.

NBC Radio is the official radio network of the XXVth Olympiad, taking place July 25 through August 9 in Barcelona, Spain. WQHY-FM will be the only station in the area allowed to broadcast play-by-play and in-depth coverage from the various Olympic venues.

WQHY-FM will carry NBC Radio Sports' exclusive daily coverage of the games, which will originate live from the various Olympic venues, including track and field, swimming, gymnastics, boxing, basketball and baseball.

NBC Radio Sports will also broadcast live from the opening and closing ceremonies and report from medal ceremonies. Additionally, the network will have exclusive live interviews with the athletes before and after they compete, plus Olympic profiles and features, produced specifically for radio listeners.

NBC Radio has assembled a team of expert sports reporters and commentators who will provide up-to-the-minute coverage of all the action as it happens. Because of the time difference between the United States and Europe, NBC Radio Sports' exclusive Olympic coverage will scoop network television — bringing listeners not just the results, but the competition itself hours before the nightly television broadcast.

Free fishing weekend June 6-7

In an effort to promote tourism and the sport fishing industry in Kentucky, the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) Commission has approved a free fishing weekend June 6-7, 1992.

During those days, persons may fish in Kentucky waters without purchasing a license. However, all fishing regulations remain in effect including size and creel limits.

"This is an excellent chance for people to rediscover the enjoyment fishing provides, what Kentucky has to offer anglers, and to encourage nonresidents to visit the commonwealth's waters," said Don R. McCormick, KDFWR commissioner.

"The quality of fishing in Kentucky is a strong drawing card for the tourism industry, and one side benefit of promoting fishing is introducing visitors to all the opportunities associated with our lakes and rivers," McCormick added.

Free fishing weekend is the culmination of National Fishing Week, which is being observed nationwide June 1-7. Activities to highlight the sport of fishing throughout the country include kids' fishing derbies and numerous other aquatic education events.

The camp schedule for the month of June is: grades 1-8, boys, June 8 through 12; grades 4-12, boys, June 15 through 19; grades 4-12, girls, June 22 through 26; grades 4-12 boys, June 29 through July 3.

Parents call meeting to discuss track and field facility

A group of concerned parents gathered at the Allen Central High School last Thursday to discuss the possibility of Floyd County getting a track and field facility to allow local high schools and other organizations to have a place to practice and perform without having to go out of the county all the time.

County officials also attended the meeting vowing their support in obtaining such a facility.

Two sites have been located should plans be adopted to build one. The first choice of the group was directly behind the Allen Central High School and the second site is located up Right Beaver where a tract of land was donated for a baseball complex.

"Coal Mac has offered to help in the construction of the site," said Allen Central coach Dewey Jamerson. "But first we have to have the site surveyed and see if the facility will actually fit on the site."

Jerry Howard was to survey the site and get back with the group at their next scheduled meeting tomorrow night (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at Allen Central.

A good crowd turned out for the first meeting and more is expected this Thursday evening.

Jamerson stated that some water lines would have to be moved but Ernie Moore, water commissioner of the Beaver-Elkhorn Water Works who attended the meeting, stated that they could move the lines if needed.

The group has petitions circulating for people to sign supporting the facility.

According to Forrest Hughes, assistant track and field coach at Allen Central, no one from the board of education attended the meeting.

All interested parents in Floyd County are invited to attend the 7 p.m. meeting at Allen Central tomorrow night.

Combs hurls one-hitter as Yankees hand Twins 8-1 loss

Donnie Combs handcuffed the Betsy Layne Twins on a one-hit pitching performance as he led his team to an 8-1 decision over a shorthanded Betsy Layne team. Combs struck out 11 batters in the route-going outing. He issued four walks. The only hit off Combs came in the first inning when Brent Akers batted the ball with two out.

Rocky Newsome was the first of a trio of pitchers who went to the mound for the Twins. Newsome was followed by Brandon Castle and Akers. Newsome worked the first two innings before giving way to Castle. Newsome had three strike outs and he walked five. Castle went four innings before Akers came on in the seventh. Castle gave up one hit and fanned two batters. Akers allowed two hits and also had two strike outs.

Combs also starred at the plate for the Yankees along with Josh Hansford. Combs and Hansford had two hits in three plate appearances. Each picked up three RBIs. Todd Bingham and Kevin Allen doubled in the third inning when the Yankees scored six times.

In the Yankees third, Bingham got things started with his double to left field. Allen walked. Bingham stole third and scored on a line drive hit to right field by Hansford. Donovan Hall reached on an error at first base which allowed Allen and Hansford to score for the Yankees for the third run of the inning.

After Combs walked, John Moore reached on an error at third base with Hall scoring. After Tim Bellamy struck out, Ethan O' Quinn was safe on a fielder's choice scoring Combs. Kevin Allen struck out to end the inning.

The Yankees took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning when Kevin Allen reached on an error at short-stop. Todd Bingham sacrificed Allen to second base. With two out, Hansford collected his second RBI with a base hit that scored Allen with the first run.

In the bottom of the sixth, the Yankees made it an 8-0 game on a walk to Hansford who stole second. Hall went out on a fly ball to center. Combs base hit scored Hansford. Moore had a base hit in the inning and a stolen base, but Deaton and Baldrige fanned to end the inning.

Betsy Layne scored their lone run in the seventh inning on a walk to Rocky Newsome. Newsome stole second and third. Akers reached on Moore's error at second base with Newsome scoring to avoid the shut out.

The Twins put a runner on base in the fourth inning when Newsome walked but he was nailed at second base by catcher Todd Bingham. Akers ground to second and Castle struck out to end the inning. In the third inning for the Twins, Pugh walked but on a line drive hit to Hall at first base, Pugh was doubled off. J.P. Skeens bounced to the pitcher for the third out.

Combs retired the side in the second, fifth and sixth innings.

The Yankees, by virtue of the win, remain undefeated at 3-0 and first place in the Floyd County Babe Ruth League.

Betsy Layne had two errors in the game and Wayland-Lackey-Garrett committed one miscue.

The Yankees will face the Martin Expos tomorrow at Stumbo Park at 5:30 p.m. The Twins plays Garrett Friday at 5:30 p.m.

Last Saturday, May 16, the seniors of the 1992 Kentucky Wildcat Basketball team were in Pikeville to play an exhibition game. This is a team everyone holds dear because of the strength of character and determination they have exhibited throughout their college playing careers. They have overcome obstacles with a grace and dignity which is rare in any area and is especially notable in athletics.

Once again the team members demonstrated why they are considered "special." Not surprisingly, they won their games in eastern Kentucky, but they also proved themselves to be champions when they stopped by

Wild animals don't make good pets

Even though the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources pounds out this message year after year, wild critters, especially appealing newborns such as June fawns, continue to be "rescued" or simply taken as pets. (A motionless fawn with no adult deer in sight may appear to be orphaned or abandoned and, therefore, in danger of starvation or predator attacks, when in actuality, the doe is grazing or resting not far away and will return to care for her fawn.)

Removing a wild creature from its native habitat (without legitimate cause) almost always guarantees a shortened life for the animal. Without specialized care, most wildlife cannot survive in captivity. No matter how well-intentioned the motives for taking an animal from the wild, it may die as a result of the "owner's" ignorance or neglect. Some animals, however, do survive and therein lies another sad tale.

Animals coveted for their cuteness soon lose their baby appeal as they grow larger, become more demanding of human attention once lavished on them, gain sexual maturity and become too much trouble for the "owner" to handle. (Adult buck deer, even though accustomed to humans, can be quite dangerous to them during mating season when the instinct to fight runs high.)

This is when "orphans" truly are abandoned. They're simply turned loose to fend for themselves even though they've been conditioned to rely on humans for food and companionship. Released "pet" deer are notable examples of how this scenario plays itself out, usually with tragic results. Accustomed to humans, their various activities and motorized equipment, pet deer have no fear of the potentially destructive forces in their "safe" non-native environment. Many of these animals die or suffer severe injuries and can also cause serious property damage when coming in contact with man's machinery or structures.

If you're walking through a wooded area or near brushy undergrowth during the month of June and happen upon a motionless reddish coat dotted with white spots, quietly continue on your way. Even a curious touch of your hand will leave human scent that may cause the doe to reject this babe in the woods.

Final reminders: It's illegal to capture wildlife by any method during a closed season, and a permit is required to hold almost all wildlife species in captivity.

Pikeville Methodist Hospital Neonatal Intensive Care Unit to visit the tiny patients.

Pikeville Methodist Special Care Nursery is a Level II unit which cares for premature and high risk infants from the Big Sandy area. All of the babies are involved in a struggle, some for their very lives. As they were held by Richie Farmer, Deron Feldhaus, John Pelphrey, and Sean Wood, the contrast between the young men, at their absolute physical peak, and the little ones, fighting for a chance just to start out even, was truly astounding.

After the Neonatal Unit nursing staff explained the types of neonatal problems the babies encounter, each of the players held one of the premature infants. Paintsville native John Pelphrey held tiny Benjamin Fannin, also from Paintsville. Benjamin, who weighed only 1 lb. 14 oz. at birth, now weighs 3 lbs. 9 oz. Pelphrey said of the experience, "This is incredible."

It was obvious from the looks in the eyes of the young men that they could understand something of the tenacity required of the tiny bodies to become "winners." It was also obvious that if they could have willed some of their own resolve to help them along, they would have in a heartbeat. Their respect for the babies and the battles they were waging was apparent.

It was a special day for the special babies in the NICU at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. The nursing staff and the families of the special babies expressed a sincere thanks to the players for taking time from their demanding schedule to visit the babies. These four players are indeed very special to Kentucky and will be remembered for many years to come.

National Wild Turkey Federation

Private industrial forest companies are cutting new paths in the development of management strategies to benefit the wild turkey on over 11 million acres the companies manage. Working with the National Wild Turkey Federation, the companies are giving wildlife important consideration in their timber management programs, according to Dr. James Earl Kenamer, NWTf director of research and management.

Within the last two months the NWTf has signed cooperative agreements with five of the major forest industry companies—International Paper, Westvaco, Willamette Industries, Packaging Corporation of America, and Temple Inland. Other companies are expected to make similar commitments.

"Partnerships are the way of the future in wildlife management in America," stated Dean Stewart, wildlife manager with Packaging Corporation of America.

Joe McGlincy, International Paper Co. section leader for wildlife and environment, added, "We're proud to implement this program, and we want to do it right."

"While these partnership agreements cover broad objectives such as the development of research, management, and educational projects on private timberlands," explained Dr.

Kenamer, "they also encourage the companies to use reasonable efforts to utilize specific practices for wildlife on their lands. For example, the forest industries have agreed to use practices that will enhance habitat diversity through the use of different size and shape timber stands that will fit together with the surrounding stands."

Some of the other areas addressed in the agreements include protection of streamside management zones, prescribed burning, mast production, wildlife openings, and road usage.

Ron Brenneman, NWTf assistant director of research and management, added, "Other points include assistance in the protection of turkey populations from illegal or over harvest allowing public access for hunters where huntable populations exist and state law permits, working with NWTF chapters on projects beneficial to the wild turkey and other wildlife, and minimizing nonessential motorized vehicle traffic along roads."

"The NWTf and these representatives of major forest industry have taken a major step to work for optimum management practices in the forests that provide valuable timber products as well as the proper maintenance for multiple-use management of wildlife. Good stewardship of the lands entrusted to us, regardless of present ownership, is imperative," concluded Dr. Kenamer.

WINDY WEATHER FISHING CALLS FOR CRANKBAITS

It may come as a surprise to many anglers, but wind can be one of a bass fisherman's best friends.

That's the opinion of top-ranked tournament professional Denny Brauer, who has used the wind to his advantage for at least one major tournament victory and numerous other high place finishes.

"Whenever I'm faced with windy conditions, I head for a wind-blown point or shoreline and start fishing a crankbait," explains the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler. "If you can control your boat under the conditions, you have an excellent chance to catch a big stringer."

Many believe wind causes baitfish to be blown against the shoreline, and the bass simply follow and begin feeding, but this is not completely accurate. "What happens," explains Brauer, "is that the wind blows the warmer surface waters toward the shoreline. This allows the cooler deeper water to rise, and it brings plankton with it."

"The plankton then gets blown to the shore, and it attracts the baitfish, which in turn bring in bass."

"Anyway you want to explain it," the Evinrude pro continues, "it can be a good situation for a bass fisherman, and it usually improves as the wind continues to blow."

Islands are also good places to fish in the wind, Brauer notes, because they offer not only shorelines but also protected eddy areas behind them where bass may concentrate. At other times, shallow underwater points around the island may become windy day hotspots.

"One of the problems in fishing in the wind, of course, is lure control," Brauer continues. "You have to use something you can cast into the wind and retrieve through rough water. Crankbaits and occasionally spinnerbaits are my two top choices for these conditions."

The crankbait is particularly effective because it not only looks like a baitfish, it dives below the turbulent surface and can be retrieved very easily.

"I like to fish spinnerbaits in the wind if I happen to find surface vegetation," explains Brauer. "Vegetation will attract and hold baitfish because it not only collects the plankton, it also offers some protection to the baitfish."

"When you're fishing surface vegetation in wind, you should concentrate along the outside, wind-blown edge, and make your casts parallel to that edge. This is where the majority of baitfish — and bass — will be."

The easiest method of boat control, says Brauer, is a controlled drift with the wind that pushes the boat along the edge of the fishing zone. At the end of a drift, the outboard can be used to take the boat back to begin another drift.

"When you are fishing windy shorelines and points, you can fish them over and over and continue to catch bass," he explains. "A lot of fish will be drawn to some areas, and if you can find these places, you can really have a good time."

An extension handle is available from OMC System Matched Parts and Accessories that fits all late model Johnson and Evinrude tiller control electric positioning motors. It's made of aluminum with a nylon sleeve that locks over the tiller handle, and it adds 18 inches of reach to the handle.

BASS FISHING HAS CHANGED SINCE THIS PRO BEGAN

In the late 1960s, Randy Dearman earned his living as an oil field construction engineer, but he earned his reputation as a bass fisherman.

One day he was talked into guiding two anglers on a fishing trip in East Texas, and the next day the two clients persuaded him to take them out again. One was a doctor, who even wrote Dearman a medical excuse for missing work.

"That was the end of my oil field job and the beginning of my fishing career," laughs Dearman, now a veteran tournament pro and member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff. "It's been a hectic career, too, but I wouldn't change it."

Although Dearman wouldn't change his career, he has seen the sport change greatly during his two decades as a guide and tournament professional.

The biggest change is the knowledge today's young anglers have about bass fishing," he says. "They know nearly as much now when they begin tournament fishing as I do."

"There has been a tremendous quest for knowledge over the years, and this knowledge has been made readily available in magazine articles, books, and television programs. That wasn't the case when I started my fishing career."

In the early days, says the Johnson pro, those anglers who were dedicated enough to stay on the water for untold hours learned by their experiences. Their knowledge was not widely disseminated to other tournament competitors, either.

"Although we were close friends, we were also loners," says Dearman, "and there weren't very many of us. Back in the early 1970s, there were probably only about 10 fishermen truly capable of winning any tournament. Today, anyone in the 300-man fields we have is capable of winning."

"It took us 20 years to learn some of the things today's fishermen can learn in a matter of hours."

Dearman has also noticed a tremendous change in the quality and variety of tackle available to today's angler.

"I'd say bass fishing has progressed more in the past 20 years than in all its previous history," he says. "I have a lot of lures, rods and reels I fished with in my early tournaments, but I haven't used them in years because today's equipment is so much better."

In the Driver's Seat
with Emerson Fittipaldi

The Feeling of Controlled Speed

Driving an Indy car on the speedway offers one of the most incredible sensations of sustained speed that exists on the planet. But when that feeling of pure velocity is coupled with a sense of perfection and control, the experience is boosted into the realm of the magical.

In a race, there is no backing off. I am going into turns at speeds of 230 mph, and I must take the car constantly to the limit. When I am fully into the turn, the car should be within a foot of the wall, and I should be in full control.

At top speed in an Indy car, one second elapsed equals the distance of one football field traveled. So the driver's eyes must be always on the track as he is anticipating what may happen two or three football fields ahead.

Because my eyes are so often focused outside the car, I must rely on my other senses to provide me with information about how the car is performing. The car must become an extension of myself so that I can feel through the tires just as I would through my feet.

I like to say that there are three channels on which my mind always is working as I drive. The first is visual, as I look ahead at the track. The second is my other senses, reacting to what the car is doing. And the third is strategic, as I am always trying to keep in mind things like when I have to make a pit stop and how far ahead or behind I might be. I always must have a sense of how much fuel I am carrying and what minor adjustments have to be made in the pit. For instance, the aerodynamic wing on the car may have to be retuned for track conditions. Also, I try to time the pit stop so that less than one of my 40 gallons of fuel remains when I pull in.

Of course, I am aided in this by sophisticated computer instrumentation that feeds me information on the dashboard. In addition, there are visual alarms that go off to signal problems with the water temperature and oil pressure. In particular, I scan the rev count and the boost pressure to make sure I am getting all I can out of the car. Readouts of lap time and average speed also help me gauge how hard I am pushing the car.

It is this sense of always working on the limits that determines the difference between a good driver and a champion. As in any sport, the athlete who maintains a consistent competitive edge is the one who will be the leader. When you are leading, you feel like the race will never end. And when you are behind, it always seems like it is ending too soon. ■

Emerson Fittipaldi, former two-time Formula One World Champion, is the 1989 PPG Indy Car World Series Champion and 1989 Indianapolis 500 winner. He drives for Marlboro Racing Team Penske.

Hunter drives in five to lead Twins to 14-3 win over Martin

The newly-formed Betsy Layne Twins Babe Ruth team got their season off to a rolling start with a 14-3 win over the Martin Expos at the Stumbo Park in Allen.

Rocky Newsome picked up the win for the Twins by going the distance in the 10-run mercy rule game. Newsome allowed just three runs while he fanned five Expos batters. Newsome walked three batters in scattering seven hits. Brandon Castle hurled the fifth for the Twins getting the Expos in order.

Greg Hunter had three hits in four plate appearances for the winning Twins and he collected five RBIs in the game. Hunter had two doubles in the contest.

"I was pleased with the effort of this team tonight," said Twins manager James Skeens, who is assisted by Verl and Donald Ray Newsome. "But we have had only one short practice because of the weather and all we still have room for improvement."

The Twins exploded for six runs in their half of the fifth inning when they sent 10 batters to the plate and collected four hits in the inning. Toby Newsome, who had two hits for the Twins, doubled to left to lead off the inning. Castle reached on a throwing error by the Martin shortstop with Newsome scoring on the errant play. Castle came around to score on Doug Keathley's base hit past first base.

Brad Kimbler drew a walk to put runners on first and second against Toby Robinson. Robinson almost got out of the fifth inning jam when he fanned one batter and inticed another to pop up. But Robinson loaded the bases when he walked Derrick Newsome. Hunter then came up and cleared the bases with his second double of the game. Hunter scored on a throwing error. Shana Clark walked and a base hit by Brian Pugh ended the game with the Twins winning 14-3.

J.P. Skeens walked to lead off the first for the Twins. Skeens stole second and scored on Hunter's two-out double.

Martin tied the game at 1-1 with three base hits and Doug Hamilton scoring the tying run on a base hit by Jeremy Hall. Jeremy Rodgers also had a base hit in the inning.

Three runs crossed home plate for the Twins in the bottom of the second for a 4-1 lead. Toby Newsome singled to lead off the inning with Robinson walking Brent Akers and Marcus Hamilton to load the bases. All three runners scored on passed balls and wild pitches.

The game stayed close when the Expos scored two run in the top of the third for a 4-3 game. Walks to John Scarberry and Mike Stephens to start the inning for the Expos opened the inning for the Expos as Steve Johnson singled and Robinson followed with a two-run base hit to keep the Expos close. In the inning, Hunter, from the catcher's position, nailed Scarberry leading off second for the first out.

The Twins scored an unearned run in the bottom of the third for a 5-3 score.

Akers tripled in the fourth for the twins when they scored three more runs for an 8-3 game. Akers scored on a passed ball. Hamilton reached on a pitcher's error as Mark Tackett walked. Both runners scored on passed balls and wild pitches.

"In all my years of coaching," said Skeens, "I've never had or seen a team so talented from the top of the lineup to the bottom including the substitutes. We can go three to four deep at each position with unlimited pitching. It's a real pleasure to manage such a group of kids."

Try this spinner bait for bass that don't want to bite

When professional bass tournament angler Larry Nixon encounters inactive fish that don't want to bite, he uses a lure that usually changes their minds.

It's a spinnerbait, but, as you'd expect, not your normal spinnerbait. "It's a 3/16-ounce tandem willowleaf model," explains Nixon, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff and winner of more than $1 million in tournament prize money. "I like it because it stays down better than other spinnerbaits with Colorado blades."

"When bass are inactive, I can fish this spinnerbait slow and deep, right along the bottom or actually bumping cover with it."

Nixon's spinnerbait incorporates a size 3 willowleaf blade on the inside and a size 4 willowleaf on the outside. Both blades are gold while skirt color ranges from white to chartreuse, depending on water clarity.

"When bass are really inactive, I use this spinnerbait because I think it appeals to several senses of the fish," says Nixon. "The lure has a lot of vibration, and it's easy to see with the gold blades."

"Bass may hit it out of reflex when they hear it, or they may strike after they see it and study it for awhile."

Either way, the lure has long been a favorite of Nixon's. The Evinrude pro won last year's B.A.S.S. Megabucks* tournament with it, worth $89,000 in prizes, and has used it numerous other contests, as well.

"When bass are inactive, you have to present a lure much slower to them," Nixon explains. "Jigs and plastic worms are often effective, but they're extremely slow to use. I like to cover as much water as I can because I believe I'll show the lure to more fish, and the spinnerbait lets me do that."

"Even though you still have to fish it slowly, you can cover a lot of water using it. I cast, let the lure sink to the bottom, then raise my rod tip slightly and just start reeling."

"The spinnerbait stays just above the bottom, and sometimes even hits the bottom."

When he can, Nixon tries to guide the spinnerbait into specific targets, too, such as logs, stumps or brush-piles.

"Anytime you're fishing for non-aggressive bass, you'll increase your chances for a strike when you bring your lure right through any available cover," he explains, "because inactive bass are often holding tight in that cover and refusing to chase lures very far."

The average depth of the Pacific ocean is 12,925 feet.

"A 'POSSUM IS A TERRIBLE THING TO WASTE"

You know, opossums really must be the dumbest animals in the world.

I guess that's a bad thing to say, but both experiences I've had with them have led me to that conclusion.

About a year ago, I was driving home. It was a rainy spring night. I was rounding a small curve when I spotted a 'possum attempting to cross the highway. I swerved left; the 'possum ran left. I swerved to the right; it did the same. I put on my brakes and the back end of my car almost slid off the road.

Finally, my car screeched to a halt and the dumb, ole opossum made it safely across the highway. At that moment, I decided I'd never again risk my life to save an animal.

A couple of weeks ago, I was in the middle of a huge curve when I saw another 'possum crossing the road. The animal looked at my car, its eyes gleaming in the night light. Of course, it ran smack into my wheels and crashed with a disgusting thud. I felt really bad about it, but boy, aren't 'possums dumb.

All this talk reminds me of a joke I heard once. I know you'll all appreciate it, so here it is.

Q: Why did the chicken cross the road?

A: To show the 'possum it could be done. Isn't it a classic? I think so.

You know, I think the highway department should have a "Scoop Up the Road Kill" service. I think it's really disgusting to see 5-10 dead animals every time you drive ten miles from your house. I especially hate it when people keep running over and over a dead animal. It keeps getting flatter and flatter until it looks like a cheap toupee and flies away in the breeze. That is gross.

Maybe we could round up the road kill each day and make dog food or fertilizer or something out of it. It could be a new industry and we'd be the pioneers in it. And my picture could be plastered on every can.

Yeah, that's the ticket. Before anybody gets any ideas, I was just kidding. Later.

Thinking positive

I did a feature story on Terry Dotson recently but he is such an interesting person that, if you wrote about him every week, there is enough material to last for months.

His obvious enjoyment of his work and regard for his team members make it easy to understand why he is president of Worldwide Equipment.

He likes quotations, especially those that express well some basic and positive truth, such as, "People who do the best jobs are people who love what they do."

He relates to motivational speaker Bob Moawad who says, "The problem with some people is that they don't aim too high and miss, they aim too low and hit."

A story that reveals his thinking rather well concerns an agent for a West Virginia television station who wanted to sell him some advertising. Terry said, "I'll sponsor your evening news if you'll agree to follow my ad with some bit of good news."

After some days, the agent got back to him. "We're sorry," he said, "but good news just doesn't sell."

That's the kind of attitude Terry Dotson would like to change.

Someone to sing

If there's anything more exciting for school age children than the first day of school, it must be the last day when classes are being dismissed for summer vacation. Just thinking of all that free time makes some of them feel as if they could float right out the door.

Frances Day of Whitesburg teaches a third grade class and that role has taken her through the emotional stages with many students. As one school year was ending, the children became so excited that she found it difficult to keep control.

"Hooray! It's over!" one little boy called out.

"Oh, no," the teacher reminded him, "it's not over till the fat lady sings."

The children weren't accustomed to the cliches adults sometimes use, and certainly this teacher was slim and trim.

"We don't have a fat lady," said a cute little girl.

But another child piped up with a bright idea. "Go get the principal!"

Conflict

Frances and her husband, Randall, have two sons and a dear little granddaughter named Randi.

Randi has always enjoyed visiting with these special relatives and sharing her thoughts that can be very candid. She was about four years old and sitting on the front steps with her grandmother one evening. They were making small talk when they saw some people walking by.

"Those people are awfully ugly," said the child.

"Oh no, Randi," Frances reminded her, "you shouldn't say people are ugly. You should try to say something nice about everybody."

"But Grandmommy," she objected as she pointed to her head, "my brain up here tells me that's what I should do, but I just can't get it to come out of my mouth."

Floyd Rescue Squad to hold radio auction

The Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad's 26th Radio Auction gets underway today, June 3, on WDOC.

Racing fans, collectors take note — this year's lineup of merchandise offers the side panels of Winston Cup cars. Bobby Watson has donated quarter panels from the cars of two Winston Cup winners, Ernie Ervin and Brett Bodine.

Ernie Ervin's Kodak car was wrecked in Dover Delaware in 1991, and the side panel displays the date of the wreck. The squad has two door skins from the Brett Bodine Buick.

Another item that will interest collectors is the lifesize cardboard display of Nascar race car driver Rusty Wallace.

Other items at the radio auction include a sofa from Heilig-Meyers, pet food from D & E Market, floral arrangements from Prestonsburg Floral and Gifts, portable marine fuel tank from Wright's Lumber, a black and white television set from Mike's B & W.

Drawings will also be held for Sear's prizes: a Craftsman 7 1/4 inch circular saw, a Craftsman Router and a Craftsman in-line rechargeable screwdriver kit.

For every $10 collected by the squad, a ticket will be given to the purchaser. The ticket will be placed in a box, and a drawing will be held around 9 p.m. Saturday.

The squad was formed 34 years ago when Floyd Countians gathered together to assist with the tragic school bus accident near Prestonsburg. The squad is manned by 25 volunteers, eight of whom are EMT's.

Squad members are trained in lost person rescue, auto extraction, river rescue and recovery.

"This is no glory work," said Harry Adams, captain of the unit. When Beaver Creek floods, the squad goes into action, evacuating homeowners.

When McDowell high and grade schools flooded, the squad was called to the scene. They also evacuated people from their flooded homes at Garrett.

They're called out at any time of night and they stay on the scene into the morning hours; then, despite their fatigue, go on to their regular jobs.

When a fisherman on Dewey Lake snagged hair in his fishhook, the rescue squad spent the night dragging the lake until they discovered their quarry — a wig.

Often, though, the operation involves a fatality. This week, the rescue squad was called to Salt Lick where they spent hours cutting a vehicle to remove a youth.

There are good times, though, and Adams said when the squad helps to save lives, "it feels like you've won a ballgame."

Most often, their efforts go unappreciated. "Unless someone is immediately involved in your family, you don't think about it," he said.

The auction, which will be aired on WDOC from 3 until 9 p.m. June 3, 4, and 5, and from noon until 9 p.m. on June 6, is the squad's main fundraising event and proceeds from it will be applied to keep the rescue unit operational. The squad receives no funding from state or local agencies, though it received a grant two years ago to purchase a truck.

The years have been lean, and Adams said he would like to see the return of the years when a pack of Twinkies was auctioned for $1,000 or when Charles West, Sap Parker, Ronald and Frank Adams combined funds to purchase a T-shirt for $1,200.

To bid on an item, call 886-0084, or to send a donation to the unit, write the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad at P.O. Box 681, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

SUMMER VACATIONS: THEN AND NOW

School's out and a couple dozen of my students, along with eight or ten of my teacher friends, left this week for a two-week tour of Europe.

While chatting with students between classes last week, I casually asked one of my sophomores, "So, what are you doing to do this summer?"

Matter of factly, she answered, "I'll be going to Egypt."

Wow! Have summer vacations from school changed or what?

All this traveling that everybody is doing makes me want to jump in the old car and go to...to the Huntington Mall or somewhere.

I think it's great that kids today have such opportunities. The things they'll see and do could possibly be of much more value than what they'd learn in four years of high school. It's all got me to thinking, though, about just how much things have changed since I was in school. Of course, the world has done a lot of shrinking since then. Still, I can't help but be a little amazed at how much.

I mean, when I'd return to classes in the fall and the teacher would assign the usual ice-breaker theme — you know the one I mean. The one entitled "What I Did on My Summer Vacation" — no one then would ever have begun, "This summer I visited the Arch of Triumph in Paris. I also visited the Louvre, then King Louie XIV's palace in Versailles." Or, "This summer my family and I went to Egypt and visited the great pyramids of Gazi."

More likely than not, if there were any traveling mentioned at all, the paper we'd have written would have started with something like, "This summer my family and I went to White House to visit my grandparents. We later went on down to Hammond to visit my aunt." Or maybe, "This summer my little brother and I went with a neighbor to Camden Park. A good time was had by all."

Of course, summers have changed in other ways, too. Like now, the three-month summer vacation from school is about two months shorter than the three-month summer vacation from school used to be. From the time we'd tear out the door and down the steps of the H.S. Howes Community School, yelling, "School's out!

School's out! Teacher's wore her bloomers out!" until the time we'd meekly file up the same steps and through the same door to meet our new teacher, seemed like an eternity.

The first day of school, as I recall, was usually filled with anxiety, too, because the rumor-mill had been at work and everyone was certain that the new, long-dreaded electric paddle had indeed been installed in the principal's office.

Anyway, when I was in school, the only people I knew who ever went to France or Germany or someplace like that, were those older boys who joined the service. Now, thought, today's youngsters tour the globe, getting hands-on experience with those far away places with those strange sounding names. Summer days when I was a kid, simply consisted of those things one would have expected from a 1940's Eastern Kentucky coal camp: loafing, an occasional chore, loafing and more loafing. Of course, things didn't get too monotonous because on weekends, especially on Saturdays, we'd go into town and see a movie. Or two. Or three.

Those days of summer vacation that I spent splashing around in the Number One Pond in the head of Well Holler, are being spent these days by kids hopping the Atlantic in a jumbo jet.

I wish I could have done that.

Part I

Small Wonders

A couple of weekends ago, Wheelwright Alumni gathered at the Jacobson Park in Lexington. If I'm not mistaken, I believe this was the fourth year for the gathering and my second year to attend. I hear more and more attend each year.

by Kim Frasure

The food was absolutely fantastic and seeing everyone was fabulous.

I ran into a friend of my mother's, Linda Ferrai, who has a daughter just a year or two younger than I am.

Angel, Linda's daughter, married a classmate of mine, Kenny Hall, and the two of them have three gorgeous boys.

Cory, their youngest, and some may say their most rambunctious gets into quite a few scrapes at times.

Angel recently joined the church and Linda told me at the reunion she had to share a recent experience for Kim's Korner.

One day a little girl who attends school with Cory came up to Linda and asked, "Did Angel get saved?"

"Yes, honey, she sure did," Linda told her.

The little girl replied, "I thought so, I've noticed a difference in Cory at school."

"Good," Linda told her. "That's really good. Angel's prayed the devil out of him."

"But, would you tell Angel something for me?" the little girl asked.

"Sure. What is it?" Linda asked.

"Tell her she didn't get it all, she needs to pray some more."

What can I say, these small wonders have a way, don't they?

Part II

To visit or not?

Remember the days when friends and neighbors called and visited during an unpleasant time?

Where have they gone? No matter how old one is, five or fifty, friends, neighbors, and most of all relatives are so very important.

After experiencing a major surgery, a lengthy hospital stay, and finally getting home, one anticipates seeing and hearing from loved ones.

These days it just doesn't happen. Folks ask about the person and are genuinely concerned, but paying them a visit and calling them on the phone — people don't do much of anymore. Why?

Maybe because they sit back and think one needs rest to recuperate or they probably been bombarded with calls and visitors already.

I've been guilty of feeling that way myself, only later to find a heck of a lot more were thinking the same thought, and our dear friend ended up with no calls and no visitors, feeling no one cared.

Feeling loved and cared about can help toward recovery, while depression can make recovery take a heck of a lot longer.

I can remember living at Price and experiencing a neighbor's death. My mother and I made sandwiches, piled high, took cans of coffee and just simply held a hand and offered a shoulder to lean on. You just don't see much of that anymore. It's sad, too!

How can we expect to teach our children kindness and respect for others if we don't set the example?

I don't want the kindness my mother showed our neighbors and their kindness to us to end.

People don't communicate like they use to. Fear has taken over. Trust is thrown out the window and keeping to yourself seems to be the way to go.

We are afraid to let our children ride a bike in our own neighborhoods. We keep them as close as possible to their own backyards and forget learning who your neighbors are — for what you don't know won't hurt you. In other words, "Don't Speak to Strangers."

We sit and watch the hideous acts people do to one another on the evening news and still we only "talk" of alternatives to the solutions.

We don't act.

If we could only treat others as we would like to be treated ourselves, then maybe, just maybe, we could see a difference.

Till next week.

PERSONAL SOCIAL SECURITY FILES STOLEN: If you believe that what you've told the Social Security Administration over the years—either on applications for benefits, or through hospital and medical reports—is for their eyes only, get set for a jolt. According to the May AARP Bulletin, networks of so-called "information thieves" have been breaking into Social Security's computer system and stolen confidential personal records of benefi-aries and sold them. So far, some 20 people in 12 states, including several current or former employees of the Social Security Administration have been indicted by federal grand juries. The charge is trafficking in Social Security information.

The information on these records includes lifetime earnings, employment, current benefits, direct deposit instructions, and bank account numbers.

The market for these data are lawyers looking for information about litigants, insurance companies looking for information on people who file claims, and employers doing background checks on prospective employees. There have even been incidents involving drug dealers who were checking to see if their customers might be undercover narcotics agents.

Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan (D-N.Y.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee's subcommittee on Social Security, said the case "may well involve the most serious threat to individual privacy in modern times." He's introduced legislation to toughen penalties for illegally divulging SSA information. In the House, Rep. Bob Wise (D.W.Va.) has proposed a special federal watchdog agency to protect against misuse of computer data banks.

A question for our readers who are lawyers: Since telephone lines have to be used to get this information (via modems), why can't culprits charged with stealing SSA data also not be charged with misuse of interstate telecommunications? Please advise. Write me c/o King Features Weekly Service, 235 East 45th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

HOW TO GET INTO THE ZOO'S WHO. Many zoos around the country are looking for seniors who can volunteer to act as guides for children and adults. Some may be asked to talk about wildlife conservation, or teach youngsters about how the animals live in their natural surroundings.

Call your local zoo to find out if they have such a program in operation. If not, discuss with them the possibility of starting one, perhaps with you and several of your friends as founding members. In New York, to learn more about the Bronx Zoo's "Friend of the Zoo" program, contact the New York Zoological Society at (212) 220-5141.

Coming Soon—

Opening Night at Jenny Wiley Theatre

Evenings filled with suspense, fantasy, song, and wonder await you this summer as Jenny Wiley Theatre celebrates Kentucky's Bicentennial with five wonderful shows.

This season, the theatre's 28th, begins Friday, June 19, with a dream. The dream of a small girl who simply wants to find her way home. The show is John Kane's stage production of the family classic, The Wizard of Oz.

You'll see Dorothy, Toto, and all their friends as they travel down the Yellow Brick Road living, learning, laughing, and singing. The group's adventures will touch your heart while the songs will bring back memories of yesteryear.

Unlike Dorothy, the show's leading lady, Misty Daniels, will be right at home. Daniels, a Pikeville native, returns to Jenny Wiley Theatre for her 10th season and her first starring role.

Joining Daniels for the Opening Night Celebration will be Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Paul E. Patton, fellow University of Kentucky student, John Pelphrey. Pelphrey, a Paintsville native and recently graduated senior on the UK Wildcat Basketball Team, will be on-hand for the celebration which begins at 6:30 p.m. in the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center (located directly in front of the theatre).

During the Celebration, there will be an exhibit of local arts and crafts by Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts of Prestonsburg, a catered reception, and door prizes including a drawing for a trip to Cancun, Mexico, for two which includes airfare and hotel.

The cost for the Celebration and the show is just $35 per person for adults; $30 for senior citizens (55+); and $25 for students (17 and under).

So come join Daniels, Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Paul Patton, Pelphrey, and Dorothy, as they make their way home. It all takes place Friday, June 19, beginning at 6:30 p.m. For ticket information and reservations, phone (606) 886-9274. Reservations are filling up quickly.

Remember, there's no place like home or Jenny Wiley Theatre!

2 tsp. Kahlua
Mousse filling:
1 pkg. unflavored gelatin
1/3 cup cold strong coffee
1 1/4 cup butter
12 oz. semisweet chocolate chips
3/4 cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
5 egg yolks
1 cup heavy cream, whipped stiff

Bar association honors Davidson

Prestonsburg attorney Marshall Davidson was honored as a senior counselor this week by the Kentucky Bar Association at its annual meeting in Lexington. Senior counselors are those attorneys who have practiced law for 50 years or reached the age of 75. Forty-eight KBA members who have achieved that distinction in 1992 were presented a certificate at a private reception in their honor and were later recognized at a luncheon where they were the subject of a video tribute.

CHOOSE APPLE, PEAR VARIETIES TO REDUCE POTENTIAL RESISTANCE TO STREPTOMYCIN

Since the only chemical labeled to control fire blight during the growing season is only moderately effective, it makes good sense to plant apple and pear trees that are not very susceptible to the bacterial disease, according to a University of Kentucky plant pathologist.

Fire blight infections will damage apple and pear trees, fruits and, in severe cases, even kill the trees, said John Hartman, Extension specialist with the UK College of Agriculture. "There are sound reasons to plant the less susceptible apple and pear cultivars," Hartman said. "One is that streptomycin is the only reasonably effective chemical cleared for fire blight control in the growing season. Fire blight bacteria are resistant to this antibiotic in some areas. Since there are no back-up chemicals, control will be difficult if resistance occurs in Kentucky."

Home gardeners and commercial growers should favor apple and pear varieties that range from moderately resistant to moderately susceptible to fire blight, Hartman said. Moderately resistant varieties need fire blight control only under high disease pressure; sometimes not at all. Moderately susceptible varieties usually need control measures when the disease is present.

Kentucky growers should by all means avoid apple and pear varieties that are highly susceptible to fire blight.

"Use moderately susceptible varieties only if they produce the types of fruit you want to market, or if you believe the disease is under control," he said. "An orchard that had fire blight in the past is at a greater risk for the disease than one where the disease has not occurred."

"Although fire blight can be highly destructive," Hartman added, "it can be controlled even on moderately susceptible cultivars if growers pay attention to the timing and application of streptomycin. You increase the risk of resistance by spraying too many times. Where resistance has occurred, the grower invariably sprayed five or more times in the season."

"Streptomycin does not kill bacteria; it only keeps them from increasing. The maximum benefit of streptomycin is between 20 and 80 percent bloom; it is almost totally ineffective when applied during non-bloom periods."

He gave the following guidelines for avoiding streptomycin resistance:

- * Start streptomycin applications when 20 percent of flowers are open.
- * Spray streptomycin about four days apart. However, do not apply it more than four times during bloom.
- * If rain is predicted it is preferable to spray the day before it rains. Otherwise, especially if weather has been warm, spray the same day it rains, even after the shower.
- * The last application should be made when 80 percent of flowers have reached petal fall.
- * Do not use streptomycin for shoot blight control.
- * Do not apply high volume sprays of other chemicals during bloom. These sprays have the effect of a brief rain shower and enhance fire blight infection.

For a list of moderately resistant or moderately susceptible apple and pear varieties and apple rootstocks, contact your county Extension office.

ILLEGIBLE FORM MAKES REFUNDING IMPOSSIBLE

Dear June — I have enclosed a mail-in form for a Tide refund offer, which promises up to $2.99. It appeared as part of a supermarket advertisement in a local newspaper.

The form simply cannot be read. The type is so small that the black ink just makes a blur of the instructions. A magnifying glass would not help.

I can't even read the address to send for the refund. I am missing out on the savings, and so are a lot of other people. Is this a way for the manufacturer to take advantage of the consumer? Why do they do this? — Elizabeth Rudolph, Campbell, Ohio

Dear Elizabeth—I can understand your frustration. You can't send for an offer if you can't read the form.

In this case, the supermarket reprinted the manufacturer's refund offer in its own advertisement. And the supermarket did a very sloppy job. It was the supermarket's—not the newspaper or manufacturer's—responsibility to make sure the ad was printed clearly.

Supermarkets that reprint manufacturers' offers must take special care with them. The store must check the requirements to ensure that the correct size is being stocked. The expiration date must be carefully checked. (I have seen supermarkets reprint mail-in certificates that had already expired!) Most important, if the store is reducing the size of the mail-in form, which is often the case, the supermarket must make sure the form is still legible.

Call your store manager and describe the problem. Suggest that she call the chain's advertising department and obtain the information you need to send for the offer. A good store manager will help you.

Register tapes often present another problem with legibility. With a very light tape it's hard to check the prices to make sure they are correct.

Also, a hard-to-read tape that is used for a manufacturer's mail-in offer may cause the request to be rejected.

When consumers run into this problem, they should report it to the store manager or customer-service representative. Most likely, the ink supply in the register was low. That is easy enough to fix!

This week's Smart Shopper is Sharon Krogh of Norfolk, Va.: "My local Revco store had Liquid Fab with softener on sale at $2.49 for the 32-ounce size. On the outside of the container, the store had placed a 50-percent-off sticker. I had three $1 Fab coupons, good on any size. That gave me three 32-ounce sizes for 25 cents each. That's what I call a bargain!"

Here's a refund form to write for: a $3 refund. L'OREAL Premiere Perm $3 Cash Refund Offer, P.O. Box 14575, Baltimore, MD 21268. This offer expires July 31, 1992, but send a self-addressed stamped envelope by June 15, 1992. While waiting for the form, save the entire front panel from your L'Oreal Premiere Perm carton, along with the original cashregister receipt with the purchase price circled. The receipt must show the store name and the purchase date.

some offers are not available in all areas of the country.

Today's refund offers have a value of $10.90.

Free entry to park

Kentucky Horse Park will host a "County Day" celebration for the residents of Floyd County on Sunday, August 16. Visitors with a valid driver's license from Floyd, Pike, Letcher, and Martin counties will receive free admission to the park along with their family members.

Lee Cholak, the park's executive director, said the program was designed to make more Kentuckians aware of the Horse Park's attractions. "We want Kentuckians to know that the Kentucky Horse Park belongs to all the people of the Commonwealth," he said.

The free admission includes the park's movie presentations, the International Museum of the Horse, the horse drawn tour, the Parade of Breeds, the walking farm tour and the Hall of Champions—current home to a number of winning horses.

For more information about the park's "County Day" celebration, call (606)233-4303 or write to 4089 Iron Works Pike, Lexington, Ky 40511.

Just before Morehead State University's 1992 Spring Commencement got under way, Sherry Branham of Wheelwright, left, helped classmate Stephanie Caudill Boggs of Jeff with her robe. The two young women earned A.B. degrees. More than 700 degrees were conferred by MSU President C. Nelson Grote on graduate and undergraduate candidates during the event which drew more than 6,000 to the Academic-Athletic Complex. Dr. Grote, who was the commencement speaker, also received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters. (MSU photo by Eric Shindelbower)

Inside information makes stock purchases illegal

DEAR BRUCE: I work for a major pharmaceutical company. Because of the nature of my position (I am a scientist), I have a pretty good idea when we are coming out with a product that will have a positive effect upon our stock.

I have been an academic all my life and devoted my career to pure science. The world of finance is foreign to me. Most of my money has been saved in very conservative investments, such as CDs. My colleagues in other industries have told me I am out of my mind. They say that if a new product is about to be introduced, and I know the product is a good one (and frequently I do), I ought to jump in and buy as much stock as I can. Then, take the profit after the jump that is sure to come when the announcement hits the press.

One of my former professors, with whom I discussed the matter, said that my plan was absolutely illegal—that it was using inside information. Is it illegal to use information that you learn through the ordinary job activity to your own benefit?

I am not stealing this information. It's given to me. As a matter of fact, I have been instrumental in the research that has resulted in products that have made the company and stockholders very wealthy.

Reader.
DEAR READER: I'll answer your question with questions: Is a bullfrog

SMART MONEY

waterproof? Does a bear wear a fur coat? Of course, using inside information is absolutely illegal. And at the very least, you could wind up with heavy-duty penalties, and quite possibly, in jail.

You say that this information comes to you through the normal operation of your position. Well, that's true for many in the corporate world. If they were to use this information, it would obviously not be to the benefit of those people who were not privy to this inside stuff.

In short, anything that you learned through your position that will affect the stock cannot be used by you to purchase stock. And this goes for members of your family and friends as well.

DEAR BRUCE: I am refinancing my home like everybody else. What really ticked me off is they not only came out and took pictures of the outside of my house, but when my wife was asked to let them in, they brought in their Polaroid and took pictures of the inside. Do they have a right to do this?—A.M., Tecumseh, Mich.

DEAR A.M.: Why not? The bank is loaning money to you using the house as collateral, and they want to see that not only the outside, but the inside is well-maintained.

Furthermore, banks and lenders of all kinds, are being much more conservative because so many of them got stuck with over-valued properties that depreciated. Having pictures of the interior in their file, supports their position of loaning money to you in the event of an audit by the federal authorities or some other agencies.

I wouldn't let something like this bother me in the least. If it makes you feel any better at all—recently my home was refinanced and the appraiser did exactly the same thing—pictures front and back and inside.

Paraphrasing, I would tell you that I was very pleased when I read the report saying it is clear this owner takes pride in his property.

Prestonsburg Cablevision adds new HBO channels

Prestonsburg Cablevision recently announced that as of June 1st, they will be adding two new channels of HBO—HB02 and HB03. These two new channels will give HBO subscribers the ability to choose from three HBO selections at any given time of the day.

HB02 and HB03 will be programmed independently to maximize cable subscriber viewing choices. The primary HBO channel, for example, might air a film drama aimed at an older audience, HB02 might offer an original concert, and HB03, an action-adventure movie. This approach means that in prime time, for example, the number of different HBO programs available to choose from in a given month is 70 percent greater than HBO delivered over a single channel.

"We are committed to doing all we can to keep increasing the value of a cable television," announced Dan Perry, general manager of Prestonsburg Cablevision. "That's why we're further expanding our programming choices by offering three channels of HBO programming. With the addition of this new expanded service, there will be no additional cost to our HBO customers," Perry added. "When you subscribe to HBO, you automatically receive HB02 and HB03, free!"

"Preliminary research collected from other cable systems offering HB02 and HB03 indicates a high level of customer satisfaction. It's a great way to insure that HBO customers get more access to our high quality programming," said Betsy Bruce, HBO's vice president of Field Marketing. "We're very pleased that Prestonsburg Cablevision is making this a reality for their customers."

Prestonsburg Cablevision services over 3,000 customers with the best value in quality family entertainment. To order cable TV service, call 886-2291.

Kentucky's jobless rate falls to lowest point in nearly a year

Kentucky's unemployment rate took a dramatic drop from a revised 8.2 percent in February to a preliminary March rate of 7 percent—the lowest monthly rate since last May's 6.9 percent.

March was the second straight month Kentucky's rate has fallen, and was below March 1991's 7.5 percent, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Nationally, the rate decreased from 8.1 percent in February to 7.7 percent in March. Comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

"For the first time since July 1990, our state rate is below the national rate and that's a positive mark," said Ed Blackwell, the state chief labor market analyst.

"A combination of an 8,700 rise in employment and a 22,700 decrease in unemployment from February to March caused the jobless rate to drop," said Blackwell. The later figure includes people who entered the labor market in February, but didn't find jobs, and dropped out until a more opportune time.

"Compared to last March, employment has grown 25,200 and the labor force has added 17,500," he said. "In March, manufacturing was the only sector to decline and that was just by 200. However, manufacturing has actually increased by 4,100 since last March. All of those indicators point to a positive movement in our economy."

Trade and services topped the chart, as the two sectors gained 2,400 each in March. Most of trade's upturn took place in apparel and accessory stores, automotive dealers, building materials and garden supply stores, department stores and restaurants, Blackwell said.

Construction added 1,600 jobs in heavy construction, home building and special trades during March. Compared to last March, the sector has jumped by 4,100 jobs.

"Jobs influenced by warm weather such as recreation, gardening and building are coming to life and that has helped several sectors," he said.

Transportation, communications and utilities rose 500 in trucking and warehousing and transportation by air. It was up 3,100 over last March.

An increase of 300 occurred in finance, insurance and real estate, while government remained stable with 100 new jobs.

Agriculture fell 600 as tobacco sales closed at the end of the season.

Manufacturing dropped 200 because of the seasonal decline in tobacco stemming and redrying, he said.

The category that includes self-employed people, domestic employees and people working in family business added 2,100 jobs.

The Cabinet for Human Resources monthly labor trend estimate of Kentuckians working showed 1,670,300 people with jobs in March, up 8,700 from February's 1,661,600, and 25,200 more than March 1991's 1,645,100.

The estimate of unemployed Kentuckians was 125,700 in March, down 22,700 from February's 148,400, and 7,700 less than March 1991's 133,400.

Kentucky's civilian labor force estimate for March was 1,796,000, a 1 of 14,000 from February's 1,810,000, but 17,500 more than the March 1991 figure of 1,778,500. The civilian labor force includes non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who actively are seeking work. It does not include the unemployed who have not looked for a job in four weeks.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure employment trends rather than to actually count people working.

Check Your Home

by Ray F. Cawood

Q: I'm building a new deck. What should I look for before and after it is built?

A: To protect the wood, paint/waterproof the bottom as well as the top.

Don't use bench-rail combinations. Risky. Separate them.

Make sure there is a gap of an inch or two between the deck and house so debris won't build up, hold moisture and spread rot to the house.

Make sure the railing is high enough to be safe—42 inches.

See that the railing has screening to keep children or wee partygoers from falling off. Test: A ball larger than 6 inches diameter shouldn't pass through.

Now and then check the supporting brace or the connection between house and deck.

Check to see that the railing posts aren't wobbly. Age and water can loosen them. Be alert to floor sag.

All OK? Then check out Kentucky's summer. Pass the lemonade.
