Boysen's pick for top job is no rookie

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The man recommended by state Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen to be Floyd County's next superintendent of schools has extensive experience in various areas of education.

Steven Towler, whose contract with the Hardin County Board of Education expires June 30, was superintendent of that district for the past 10 years and said he wants to "make a big impact somewhere, wherever I land."

Towler, 47, made those comments in a farewell reception held June 1 in Hardin County.

In an article published in the News-Enterprise in Elizabethtown, Hardin County deputy superintendent Ray Story said Towler will be remembered for the improvements in school facilities and a policy regulating high school attendance.

The Floyd County Board of Education planned to interview Towler Thursday night at 6 p.m.

Commissioner Boysen rejected the board's choice for superintendent, William Zitterkopf of Nebraska, saying Zitterkopf lacked the "depth, breadth and length of experience" needed to take over the Floyd County school system.

Department of Education spokesman Jim Parks said Thursday that Boysen was not dictating to the board to hire Towler, but only that the board should interview him as a candidate. Parks said if the board was not satisfied with Towler they should renew the search.

In his resume, Towler boasts of working with the Kentucky State Department of Education for the past 16 years and the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA) for the last 18 years. Towler said he worked as a consultant and a member of advisory committees for KSBA and that he co-authored three editions of the "Kentucky Manual for School Board Members."

He also notes that he has taught various courses at several Kentucky Colleges and the University of Virginia. He also worked with the School Facilities Construction Commission to develop criteria for the administration of the department.

The News-Enterprise also reported that Towler had applied last year to be Commissioner Boysen's chief of staff.

Parks said that position was not advertised and Boysen did not take applications for the post. Parks said it was department policy not to comment on job applicants.

Towler announced in January that he was resigning from the Hardin

Jury awards damages in suit over Wheelwright fire

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

A Floyd County woman was awarded a sizable settlement in Floyd District Court Wednesday in a three year old lawsuit against the city of Wheelwright's utilities commission.

Brenda Taylor of Wheelwright filed suit against Wheelwright Utilities and Nickell Brothers Dozer and Construction following the fiery destruction of her home at Otter Creek at Left Beaver on November 17, 1989.

John Mann, attorney for Taylor, said that during the course of some construction work that Wheelwright Utilities had contracted Nickell Brothers to perform, a gas main was ruptured, leaving over 300 homes in the Wheelwright area without gas.

Utilities employees and Nickell Brothers representatives relit all the pilot lights in the homes. Taylor charged that they did not replace the metal safety door on her water heater and that her home caught fire as a result.

The jury deliberated for over 45 minutes before returning to the courtroom to award Taylor $41,300. Of that money, $20,000 was awarded for the fair market value of the house, $18,000 for content and $3,300 for loss of use.

Wheelwright Utility Commission manager Audrey Yates said that although she felt that utility commission employees were in no way responsible for Taylor's loss, there were no hard feelings.

"When you go to trial and our justice system says she is due x amount of dollars, then she is due that amount," Yates said. "I believe that Brenda was awarded (the settlement) not on the basis of merit, but because the people had a great deal of sympathy for her. I know I did.... We will not appeal the verdict. If our insurance company wants to appeal, that's up to them."

The jury ruled that the Wheelwright Utility Commission must pay 80 percent of the settlement, and Nickell Brothers Dozer and Construction must pay 20 percent.

The ink is expected to be black when all the figures are in at the close of the 1991-92 school year for the Floyd County School System.

Finance officer Tommy Thompson told the board Tuesday night that the district should finish the year with approximately $150,000 if "there are no emergencies out there that we don't know about."

That amount could be boosted to just over $300,000 because of a $175,000 reimbursement from East Kentucky Utilities for erroneous natural gas billings for Allen and Duff Grade Schools.

Utility company president David Allen said in a letter to the board that the billing error was due to "meter index readings" and that $66,904.53 would be reimbursed for Allen and $108,629.40 at Duff.

Although the reimbursement will brighten the school district's financial picture, interim superintendent

CSX strike derails coal

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Although Floyd County's coal industry may not be seriously hampered by local CSX Transportation machinists' decision to join their union brethren in the nationwide railworker's strike on Wednesday, industry experts say that the already depressed coal market may suffer in Pike and Martin counties.

Richard Watts, director for the Martin district of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, said on Thursday that the bulk of Floyd County's coal companies transported their product by truck to coal barges in Ashland and Catlettsburg.

However, Kevin Myers, a spokesman for the Coal Operators and Associates, Inc. in Pikeville, said Thursday that the rail worker's strike could have serious repercussions for Eastern Kentucky.

"According to figures from the Governor's Office for Coal and Energy Policy," Myers said, "in 1990, Eastern Kentucky shipped more than 103 million tons of coal by rail. Forty-three million tons of that were produced in the Big Sandy counties, which include Pike, Martin and Floyd counties."

Myers said that many area coal companies had already sent employees on miner's vacation, which normally begins the first week in July.

Pikeville-based Costain Coal Inc., which also operates several Floyd County mines, began sending workers home Wednesday.

"We're hoping that the strike will be over before the end of miner's vacation," Myers said, "if necessary through congressional intervention, which we've heard may take place in the next couple of days.... If it lasts more than a couple of weeks there could be further layoffs."

Myers said that more than just the coal industry could suffer. Several businesses that depend on local coal companies could also be forced to lay off employees.

"For every one person working in an underground or surface coal mine, seven other jobs are created, such as roof bolt or sheet metal manufacturers," Myers said.

Myers said that the strike could potentially cost the coal industry, and in turn Eastern Kentucky, billions of dollars in revenue.

"If this thing lasts any length of time at all, it will cost us big time," he said.

Tackett is demoted by Smith

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Adams Middle School principal Thomas Tackett has apparently been demoted and reassigned as a home-bound teacher for the 1992-93 school year.

Tackett was convicted of abuse of a teacher in Floyd County District Court last year. Middle school teacher Gwen Hammonds brought charges against Tackett accusing him of verbally abusing during an incident at the school last May. Tackett was fined $500.

Tackett filed an appeal in the case but it was denied.

Tackett was reassigned by superintendent Eldon Smith and the Floyd County Board of Education was notified of the move at Tuesday's board meeting.

Superintendent Smith said Thursday that Tackett's conviction did not play a part in the reassignment.

"The conviction was not involved in the decision to make the reassignment," Smith said. "(The reason) was the overall situation at the school that needed to be changed."

The reassignment is effective June 30.

Year expected to end 'in the black'

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The ink is expected to be black when all the figures are in at the close of the 1991-92 school year for the Floyd County School System.

Finance officer Tommy Thompson told the board Tuesday night that the district should finish the year with approximately $150,000 if "there are no emergencies out there that we don't know about."

That amount could be boosted to

Although the reimbursement will brighten the school district's financial picture, interim superintendent

Eldon Smith was quick to point out that the bottom line figure is below the three percent contingency of the system's $30 million budget. Smith added that the district would have finished the school year in better condition if a repayment to the government for the 1984 flood had not have been made.

"If we had not had the payment to the federal government, we would've been in good shape," Smith said. "They haven't sent back that money and I assume we are not going to get that money back." Former superintendent Ron Hager authorized the $345,000 payment in April, just days before he was suspended from his post by the state board of education.

In other business at Tuesday's meeting, assistant superintendent Gary Frazier told the board that sites in the county are currently being reviewed for the location of an alternative school.

Troubles are over but costs continue to grow

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The trials and tribulations faced by the Floyd County Landfill are at an end, solid waste program director Dave Cooley said Thursday.

In compliance with the agreed order issued by the state Cabinet for Natural Resources Division of Solid Waste Management, Floyd County officials have already overseen construction on the landfill site that would bring it up to code in accordance with new tougher federal restrictions. This will allow the landfill to remain open until July, 1995.

Cooley said that the road to the site has already been resurfaced and new methane monitors have been ordered, that will hopefully be installed within the next five to six days.

Cooley also said that new ground-well monitors have been installed in the Phase I area of the site, which will be closed by next Tuesday in favor of a nearby temporary storage site. When Phase I is closed, it will be covered with dirt and re-seeded.

Under the amended agreed order, Floyd County Solid Waste Management will be allowed to store waste at the temporary site for 15 days, thus allowing enough time to complete construction on the Phase II site.

"I don't even want to think about how much all of this is going to cost the county," Cooley said.

Workers are currently installing a 20 mil plastic liner at the site at a cost of approximately $6,000. The site will also be covered daily with a material called fabrisoil, which will cost $2,275. In addition, all the new and existing groundwell monitors must be tested at least once each quarter at a cost of $3,500. Scale platforms, which are scheduled to be installed by Saturday, may cost up to

Weighing in

Officials at the Floyd County landfill have begun installing weigh scales at the Phase II area of the site in order to comply with new, tougher federal regulations and an agreed order with the state Cabinet for Natural Resources. Facility manager Dave Cooley said Thursday that construction on the scales should be completed by Saturday and that closure of the Phase I area should be completed by Tuesday. Utility joins protest of deregulation

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Prestonsburg Utilities recently joined other municipal gas utility agencies nationwide in an American Public Gas Association protest of a new mandate issued by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The mandate, Order Number 636 in a policy issued by the energy commission in April, calls for further deregulation of the natural gas production industry.

Spokespersons for the American Public Gas Association say that this de-regulation will allow natural gas prices to skyrocket, and will seriously curtail consumer availability of the product.

The association declared in a recent press release that "The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission is placing residential and other high priority end use consumers at risk unnecessarily. The plain fact is that the commission is dismantling a statu-

Bid rigging charges alleged in civil suit

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The administrators of the estate of a former Floyd County bus driver have filed a civil lawsuit against former superintendent Ron Hager, former board member James D. Adams and the Floyd County Board of Education alleging bid rigging in connection with a bus contract.

Inez and Grover Lewis filed the lawsuit in Floyd Circuit Court Monday on behalf of the estate of Rudolph Lewis. Lewis, who died in January, had filed a federal lawsuit against the defendants in 1989 claiming that he was not given a contract bus route because he did not support the candidate Hager and Adams supported in the 1988 school board election. The case was dismissed by a federal judge in U.S. District Court in Pikeville on May 10.

The suit filed Monday alleges that Margaret Steffey was awarded the bus contract and that the board later increased her compensation to $86 per day. Lewis had bid $75 per run and Steffey $67.90 and $68.78.

The lawsuit said that the action was being filed in circuit court because the federal courts declined to accept jurisdiction in the case.

The suit seeks compensatory and punitive damages and compensation for pain and suffering by Rudolph Lewis for the actions of the defendants.

County system in part because the board of education reduced his four-year contract to two years. In a News-Enterprise report in January, Towler declined to elaborate on his reasons for leaving.

Hardin County board chairman James Mayer told the News-Enterprise that no superintendent could remain in a system "in which he is not supported."

The Floyd County board was not expected to make a decision on hiring Towler at Thursday's meeting.

Towler was also a superintendent of schools for the Ashland Independent School District and the Jenkins Independent School District.

Other accomplishments listed on Towler's resume include:

- was a recipient of the F.L. Dur-pre Award for Creative Educational Administration in 1991 presented by KSBK;

- was named Superintendent of the Year in 1991 by the Kentucky Association for Pupil Transportation;

- was named Superintendent of the Year in 1989 by the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers;

- was successful in organizing and passing an increase in tax levies in three different school districts;

- was an organizer of the Council for Better Education, the organization that filed the litigation representing 66 school districts that resulted in the passage of the Kentucky Education Reform Act; and

- currently serves on the Kentucky Education Commissioner's Superintendent's Advisory Group.

tory and regulatory program intended to make natural gas a safe, reliable and affordable fuel for high priority residential and commercial consumers."

There are approximately 1,000 publicly-owned gas systems in thirty-four states, located primarily in small to medium-sized communities, which serve over four million Americans.

Under the commission's new regulations, all public utilities must now set their rates using a "Straight Fixed-Variable" method, through which all of a pipeline's fixed costs, including profit, will be collected up front every month from consumers. According to gas association spokesmen, this will cause residential and small business consumers served by local distribution companies to pay billions of dollars more per year for natural gas.

$50,000. Cooley lamented the fact that Phase I had to closed at such a cost to the county.

"There is enough space (at the Phase I) site to continue dumping for years," Cooley said. "Unfortunately, according to the Proctor scale, which measures permeability, that liner only has ten to the negative six permeability and the new regulations call for ten to the negative seven."

Cooley said that County Attorney Jim Hammond was currently working with surrounding counties on the interlocal agreement called for in the agreed order.

The Floyd County landfill will continue accepting waste from Pike County due to the delay in opening of Pike County's landfill.

Board

Frazier said that although negotiations are still ongoing with the David School to take Floyd County students, the district will need to have its own alternative school.

Options being discussed for the school include finding an existing facility that the board could lease or "asking someone to building a facility and then lease it back to the board," Frazier said. He added that the facility should be in central location in the county and close to an existing school to cut transportation and lunchroom costs.

Frazier said he would have a proposal to submit to the board at the July meeting.

Other actions by the board included beginning all day kindergarten for the 1992-93 school year. Frazier said all day classes were necessary to fully implement the ungraded primary program in grades first through third.

Frazier said the program would require additional staff and mobile classrooms at three schools in the county.

The board voted unanimously for the all day classes.

Also discussed Tuesday was the deficit at Martin Elementary. Superintendent Smith recommended the board attempt to resolve the situation.

Site based parent representative Terry Ratliff told the board that the school council did not feel comfortable starting out the school year in a deficit situation and asked that the "slate be wiped clean" as it had been at other schools with year-end deficits.

Frazier asked finance officer Thompson to review past precedents established by the board concerning school deficits and report his findings at the next meeting.

The board voted last year to erase the deficit at Martin, which totaled over $20,000. Former principal William Hughes was directed to submit a plan to the board outlining how the school would repay that amount. Hughes apparently did not submit that plan and the deficit was not erased.

In other business:

- the board hired architect Randy Burchett to do an annual inspection of all the schools in the district;

- the board received and awarded bids for supplies for the 1992-93 school year; and

- the board set salary schedules and accepted extended employment schedules for the next school year.

Mullins and Johnson Central win PCC problem solving meet

"Every person who has lived has shaken a certain number of hands. Explain why the number of persons who have shaken an odd number of hands is even."

Can you answer that question? Students from five area schools competed in problem solving skills recently at PCC when the First Annual Prestonsburg Community College Math Problem Solving Competition was held on May 2, 1992 in the Magoffin Learning Resource Center. Allen Central, Johns Creek, Johnson Central, Magoffin County, and Mullins sent teams to participate in the four hour exam.

All problems were written and the math faculty from PCC's Physical Sciences Division served as graders.

The students were competing for $1,000 scholarships to be given to the first and second place finishers and a trophy to be given to the top scoring team in the competition.

The top finisher was Willard Adkins of Mullins High School. He is the son of Kathy and Perry Adkins of Pikeville.

Second place went to Greg Slone, also of Mullins. Greg is the son of Brenda and Tunis Slone of Harold.

The top scoring team was Johnson Central High School. Sponsored by Betty Crum, the winning team consisted of Sheila Crum, Jason Kretzer, Bruce Conley, and Brad Blair.

PCC math professor Paul Hess was the coordinator of this event.

SCHOOL-BASED DECISION MAKING
by Thomas C. Boysen
Kentucky Commissioner of Education

Quietly but persistently, a revolution is sweeping through Kentucky education, one school at a time. Now 3,000 strong, the brigade will swell to more than 8,000 by 1996. By then, it will directly influence the spending of roughly $2 billion a year and manage a workforce of 50,000.

These "revolutionaries" are the teachers, parents and principals who serve on school-based decision making councils at more than 400 of Kentucky's 1,400 schools.

Created through the Kentucky Education Reform Act two years ago, these councils are beginning to make key decisions that will reshape Kentucky schools.

They are choosing principals, allocating staff positions, setting discipline policy, revising curricula and buying books and equipment—decisions traditionally made by school boards or state and local administrators.

The idea behind the councils is simple and very American, a distillation of grass-roots democracy and self-determination. It's the idea that parents and teachers—the people closest to children and with the most to gain from their success—will make decisions to maximize that success.

Shifting responsibility for the school's performance to parents and teachers is invigorating teachers and uniting parents and professionals in a common cause, the success of children.

The number of councils has grown from a handful two years ago to more than 400 today, and the department of education is conducting a recruitment drive to increase the number of councils to 750 by July 1993.

To support the growing number of councils the department is increasing the school-based decision making support staff from 5-13. All eight newcomers will work from regional service centers.

The department also is working with seven school districts—(Ashland, Corbin, Franklin County, Monticello, Oldham County, Wayne County and Williamsburg)—on a pilot project for school-based budgeting. This year, school councils in those districts will direct the spending of about 50 percent of the districts' total budgets. In 1993-94 school-based budgeting will be required for all districts.

At that point, school councils will be directing the resources with the most powerful influence on learning: budget, staff time and curriculum.

As this shift of responsibility evolves, local school boards will assume new, more powerful roles. Freed for making detailed operational decisions, boards will concentrate their energies on broad policy matters such as long range planning, generating revenues, allocating resources, holding schools accountable for results and improving the coordination of education with health and social services.

As councils assume more responsibility for operations, the state's 884 board members will feel less need to defend the status quo and will be more inclined to demand improved results from schools.

The department has two objectives in the revolution: (1) to promote the rapid formation of school councils, and (2) to foster an orderly shift of responsibility from boards to councils. Operationally, the department nourishes councils as they grow quickly from wobbly foals to muscular racers. At the same time, we challenge boards to command the future of their schools.

As the revolution spreads through our schools, the victors are Kentucky's children.

Editorial :

Proceed with caution

by Scott Perry

This is not a panic situation.

Since the Floyd County board's choice for superintendent has been rejected by Frankfort and an alternate proposed by Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen, the search process seems to have followed a long and winding road back to square one.

While we have all sorts of questions about how we arrived at this point, we'll save them for another day in deference to our most pressing concern...

Was this trip really necessary?

If the state was going to have the final say in who was or wasn't appropriate for the superintendent's job in Floyd County, it would seem logical that they would have become involved in the search process well before a final choice was made by the local board.

More than 100 candidates applied for the job, after all, and the process of weeding them down to one finalist covered several weeks.

It seems reasonable to us that we could have avoided this last-minute rush to make room for the state's designated-hitter, if the state had provided a little more input when the line-up was being prepared.

Oh well, you know what they say about hindsight.

Looking ahead is a bit more difficult. That's why we suggest that the board proceed with caution and touch all the bases before settling on who will finally cross home plate as the next superintendent.

That decision is too important to make in a hurry and simply because the state says their man can hit the long ball.

Besides, the state's management of this game so far doesn't instill a whole lot of confidence in their game plan.

Report to Kentucky

By Sen. Wendell Ford

HELPING KENTUCKY TO STOP DUMPING AND START
RE-USING OIL

It is an intolerable fact that 10 million barrels of lubricating oil are carelessly dumped into the soil and water of our state and nation every year.

This equals 35 Exxon Valdez oil spills, repeated on an annual basis.

A lot of us recall the scope of the clean-up operation following that single oil-tanker accident in 1989. Some might also remember that oil companies tried to raise prices based on the loss of oil from the Exxon Valdez.

Even with these and other points of references, we can only guess at the long-term impact of this nation's wasteful habits with regard to used oil.

We already know that used oil is the largest single polluter of our water resources. This is a particularly serious problem in Kentucky, where the vast majority of people depend on groundwater for home use.

We also know that our country cannot afford to lose the equivalent of 400 million gallons of crude oil a year when we are spending approximately $50 billion a year for imported oil.

This damage must be stopped on both the economic and environmental fronts—and that is why I have introduced the Used Oil Energy Production Act to encourage the re-use of oil.

My bill gives crucial support to Kentuckians and others now engaged in voluntary efforts to collect used oil to be recycled for heating fuel and other purposes.

Working with businesses and local governments, the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources has already established used-oil collection centers at cooperating service stations and other sites in more than 50 counties.

Lexington and Fayette County, also making good use of industry support, are now collecting 16,000 gallons of used oil a year from do-it-yourself motor-oil changers and others at more than 30 sites in that urban area.

The leaders of these and other highly promising efforts are asking for federal cooperation. One of their greatest concerns is that their voluntary efforts will be undercut by the classification of used oil as a hazardous waste.

My bill eliminates this needless threat. It also requires lubricating oil importers and manufacturers to re-use a minimum amount of oil each year. And it provides for a system of tradable credits to make it easier to meet this requirement.

Other legislation efforts to promote the re-use of oil have become bogged down in jurisdictional disputes in the Congress.

But it is time for the federal government to become an honest partner with the state, local and industry leaders now doing everything in their power to deal with this critical issue.

As a member of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, I intend to do everything I can to help our state become a national role model in the re-use of oil. I urge all concerned Kentuckians to support my efforts to gain passage of the Used Oil Energy Production Act with a minimum of delay.

State marks Bicentennial with Kentucky Encyclopedia

Kentuckians have given the world bourbon whiskey and pari-mutuel betting; Kentuckians pioneered in steamboating and steelmaking; and a Kentuckian invented the traffic light. Now, in honor of its 200th birthday, Kentucky is giving itself a gift Kentuckians can treasure for generations to come.

"The Kentucky Encyclopedia" is a gift Kentuckians have prepared and given to themselves," says John E. Kleber, editor in chief of the 1,080-page volume published by the University Press of Kentucky to mark the state's bicentennial. "It should provide the citizens of the Commonwealth a sense of who they are, where they are and from where they came."

"The Kentucky Encyclopedia" is the first comprehensive reference work to cover the Commonwealth from A to Z. Its official unveiling at Kentucky's statehood day celebration on June 1 marked the culmination of six years of planning, research and writing aimed at providing a reference work to help Kentuckians know and understand the state's history, tradition and contribution to American culture.

The encyclopedia was presented to Gov. Brereton Jones in a ceremony at 1:30 p.m. in Frankfort's Dudgeon Civic Center. A project of the Kentucky Bicentennial Commission, the book will be available in local bookstores beginning June 1 and will sell for $35.

"The Kentucky Encyclopedia is the essence of the state's bicentennial celebration of Kentucky's past, its culture and its traditions. The book shows that 200 years of history have brought us to a point where Kentucky is a diverse and wonderful place to live," says Sen. David K. Karem, chairperson of the Kentucky Bicentennial Commission.

AAA study compares injuries for belted, unbelted car accident victims

A new AAA study takes the question of seat belt effectiveness outside the laboratory and uses real-world data from a hospital to compare injuries among belted and unbelted accident victims. The results strongly support seat belt use, and suggest improvements in seat belt design should be directed toward decreasing spinal injuries.

Seat belts reduce the severity of all injuries, but some types of injuries occur as often in belted as unbelted victims. Researchers found 17.9 percent of those wearing seat belts suffered spinal injuries, compared to 16.7 percent of those not belted. Belted victims were likely to suffer the following: cervical spine strains; lumbar spine injuries; sternal injuries; ankle injuries; and hand, finger and knee cap fractures. At the same time, researchers caution, these injuries were less serious for belted than unbelted passengers. The study also showed that head, facial and external injuries were more severe and more frequent in cases where the person was not wearing a seat belt.

The study, titled "Injury Patterns of Seat Belted Patients Admitted to a Trauma Center", looked at the nature of injuries for car accident victims admitted to York Hospital, located in York, Pennsylvania, from 1987 to 1990. Only those admitted into the hospital's trauma center with moderate to serious injuries were considered.

"Most research data used to design seat belts is developed using human-like dummies in laboratory tests. The data provided by the York Hospital Trauma Registry can be used by medical and automotive design specialists as they search for ways to improve car passenger safety," said Lilla S. Mason, Executive Secretary for the Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation.

"The Kentucky Encyclopedia's 2,000-plus entries are the work of more than 500 writers, whose subjects reflects all regions of the Commonwealth and span the time from prehistoric settlement to today's headlines.

All counties, county seats, and communities with populations of more than 2,500 are included, and biographical sketches portray all of Kentucky's governors and U.S. senators, as well as noted congressmen and state and local politicians.

Kentucky's impact on the national scene is registered in the lives of such figures as Carry Nation, Henry Clay, Louis Brandeis and Alben Barkley.

The Commonwealth's most notable achievers range from writers Harriette Arnow and Jesse Stuart, reformers Laura Clay and Mary Brickinridge, civil rights leaders Whitney Young Jr. and Georgia Powers, to sports figures Muhammad Ali and Adolph Rupp and entertainers Loretta Lynn, Merle Travis and the Everly Brothers.

The task of pulling all the material together has been the work of four of the state's most respected historians. Kleber, a Louisville native and professor of history at Morehead State University, has served as editor in chief of the project since 1987. Associate editors are Kentucky's historian laureate Thomas D. Clark, retired Western Kentucky University professor Lowell H. Harrison, and state historian James C. Klotter, director of the Kentucky Historical Society.

"The Kentucky Encyclopedia" received support from the Mary and Barry Bingham Sr. Fund, the James Graham Brown Foundation, the Kentucky Bicentennial Commission, the Knight-Ridder Foundation, the Louisville Courier-Journal, W.T. Young, the James N. Gray Construction Company, Inc., IBM/Lexmark Corporation, George Street Boone and Joy Bale Boone, the University of Kentucky, and Morehead State University.

Copies of "The Kentucky Encyclopedia" will be available in local bookstores beginning June 1. Send mail orders to The University Press of Kentucky, 663 S. Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40508-4008. To order by phone or for more information, please contact Dana Cox at the University Press of Kentucky at 606-257-2817.

Christian drama group to perform in area churches

A drama team from the Free Will Baptist Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee, will present Christian drama next week in Floyd County churches.

Tuesday evening at 7, the college students will perform at the Martin Free Will Baptist Church where the Rev. Bobby Baldrige serves as pastor.

Wednesday, July 1, at 7 p.m. the program will be presented at Highland Avenue Free Will Baptist Church, Prestonsburg. The Rev. Clifford Austin is pastor of the church.

Then, on Thursday evening, July 2, the group will present their program at 7 at the Auxier Free Will Baptist Church. Rev. Bobby Joe Spencer is pastor of the Auxier church.

The Evangels drama team is comprised of five students from the college who are spending the summer touring churches with their program. The program consists of a series of short plays which will touch on themes of evangelism, family conflicts and the need for revitalizing the church.

The Evangels are currently on a 6-week tour of the eastern United States.

This special service is open to the public, and no admission will be charged.

Extended unemployment benefit program winding down

Eligible Kentuckians wishing to take advantage of the federal government's Extended Unemployment Compensation (EUC) program that began last November must do so within the next few weeks.

The U.S. Department of Labor has notified the state Department for Employment Services that the EUC program is being phased down in accordance with congressional mandates that the extension be limited to a budget of $2.7 billion.

Employment Services Commissioner Margaret Whittet said applications will still be processed through the week of July 4.

"After July 2, however, no new or reopened claims for assistance under this program may be accepted," Whittet said. Kentucky state offices will be closed Friday, July 3, in observance of the Fourth of July holiday.

Since Congress authorized the program last November, 36,191 Kentuckians have received more than $41.8 million in EUC benefits, said Whittet.

Additionally, effective this week, new or reopened EUC claims will be eligible for a maximum of 13 weeks of benefits, minus any weeks of extended benefits already paid.

Previously, eligible applicants could have received as many as 26 weeks of benefits as long as there was no break in the claim cycle due to employment or other reasons.

Individuals already drawing EUC benefits will still receive the full amount of benefits as long as they remain eligible.

Three bills currently before Congress could further extend the program. However, when such measures may be acted upon and what the eligibility criteria and number of weeks of benefits would be remain unknown at this time.

The first non-Native American known to have seen what are now the states of Arizona and New Mexico was a Black explorer named Estevanico.

Floyd students compete in VICA competition

They will be coming from far-away places like Puerto Rico and Hawaii, from neighboring states such as Ohio and Indiana, and from Kentucky, including three from Floyd County.

They will be applying what they have learned and testing their skills. They are the nation's best high school and post secondary vocational-technical students — the cream of the crop — and they will be attending the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) National Leadership Conference (NLC) and U.S. Skill Olympics (USSO).

John Click of Prestonsburg, Shawn McKenzie of Bypro, and Sidney Meade of Harold were in Louisville June 22-25 at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center to participate in the VICA competition.

Click competed in the Collision Repair Technology category; McKenzie and Meade participated in the Chapter Business category. More than 3,500 vocational-technical students competed for gold medals in 46 skill categories and 10 leadership areas. All earned the opportunity to participate by winning similar regional and statewide contests.

Participants in the NLC competed as teams and individually in such leadership categories as extemporaneous and prepared public speaking, business procedures, displays/bulletins, job interviewing and job skills. The U.S. Skill Olympics tests occupational skills. Participants must work to industry standards, using the most current technology and equipment, and are judged by representatives of industry.

Participants competed for gold, silver and bronze medals in addition to prizes which included scholarships, all expense-paid educational trips, and tools.

Fascination

Students from Prestonsburg Elementary were fascinated by experiments at PCC's Big Sandy Natural Science Center.

Prestonsburg Elementary visits PCC science center

"How many germs do you have in your hair?" "What does a heartbeat really sound like?" These are questions which students in Mrs. Damron's combined class of first and second grader high achievers and Mrs. Hall's first grade class at Prestonsburg Elementary were asked at PCC's Big Sandy Natural Science Center.

On May 28 the teachers brought their classes to PCC's campus and the students got their curiosity piqued through hands-on experiments set up and demonstrated by PCC science faculty members. They had cultures done of the germs on various body parts, they watched dramatic color changes in chemical compounds at one station and investigated the spectrum of light through fascinating machines at another. They even got to see a hologram at another station, further illustrating the properties of light.

Mountain Magic Awards' Celebration honors high school writers

by Thelma Spears
Coordinator

The Mountain Magic Awards' Celebration was held in the Stumbo/Wilkinson Convention Center in Prestonsburg on Thursday, June 11, at 7 p.m.

The purpose of the program was to honor and award the students whose writings were published in Mountain Magic, the first and only literary magazine which is the joint effort of students from the five high schools, and to honor the Mountain Magic Committee of Teachers who sponsor the project. The teachers received certificates and gifts and the students received certificates and monetary gifts — all provided by the Floyd County Board of Education.

The program began when Thelma Spears gave the welcome and was joined by the audience in standing to "My Old Kentucky Home," sung by MaShawna Aiken, Floyd County Music Festival Queen from Prestonsburg High School.

Then, John K. Pitts, director of instruction, spoke about the Mountain Magic Magazine Project and his own experiences as an educator. Following, Eldon J. Smith, interim superintendent, praised the students and their teachers for their quality work, adding the comments:

"The writing program in the Floyd County Schools is of the highest level. I'm impressed with what I've seen."

After Smith's remarks, Chris Lafferty and Gary Arnold, from Betsy Layne High School, entertained the audience with musical selections.

Teachers who were honored were the following: Patricia Watson, Allen Central; Bonnie Hall, Betsy Layne; Willie Elliott, McDowell; Jerry Lafferty and John Patton, Prestonsburg; and Shirlene Hamilton, Wheelwright.

Mr. John Patton, Director of Instruction entering retirement, was also honored and presented a gift by Thelma Spears, Writing Coordinator for the Floyd County Schools.

Then, too, Mrs. Spears was paid a surprise tribute by Patricia Watson and was presented a gift and a dozen red roses from the Mt. Magic Committee in their appreciation for her dedication to the writing program.

Betsy Layne High School was honored for Best Over-All section. Students who authored the winning writings and were honored included Anthony Little, Wheelwright; Mary Meadows, Prestonsburg; Adam Recktenwald, Prestonsburg; Mendy Rice, Allen Central; and Clinton Thomas, Prestonsburg.

School winners who were honored were the following:

- Allen Central High School: Jessie Weyer, Melanie Stokely, Jason Reichenbach, Cathy Allen, Jeri Williams and Chuck Compton.

- Betsy Layne High School: Tonya Pugh, Chris Lafferty, Becky Rogers, Steve Clark, and Jena Hall.

- Prestonsburg High School: Mary Meadows, John Recktenwald, Clinton Thomas, Chris McKinney, and Jody Wallen.

- Wheelwright High School: Sheldon Compton, Anthony Little, Kevin Slone, Amy Newsome, Crystal Jones, and Krystal Isaac.

ACCORDING TO CASE....

The Floyd County Babe Ruth has been offered the chance to host both the 14 and 15-year old district all-star games this season. But Case is hesitant about taking on the task due the Stumbo Park ball field having no lights.

"I just hate to take a chance of hosting the tournaments and not having lights to play under," said Case upon learning of the invitation. It is a requirement that the tournament be held on lighted fields. The Allen Park has lights but it has a short somewhere in the lighting system and new wiring may be required to replace the old.

According to park director Mike Auxier, park personnel have been trying to find the problem.

"Evidently the problem is under the ground," he said. "We took two screwdrivers out and put them ten-inches in the ground and we were getting a reading of 60 volts then," he said. "The power company checked the fence where the problem was first discovered and they said we were getting about 184 volts off the fence in centerfield."

Auxier explained that the problem was discovered when one of the players in the Floyd County Babe Ruth League got next to the fence and felt the effect of the shortage.

"He told his parents about it and they called the power company," explained Auxier. "The power company came out, checked it out and advised us to shut the power off the lights. One of the golfers went to get rid of some garbage and he got close to the fence also. He happened to be from the power company."

A search for the problem went on for three to four days before two companies were called in to give an estimate of redoing the wiring. According to Auxier, Larry Kidd, park maintenance, said that the job would be expensive and a time for repairs has not been set.

The lighting problem does not affect the Little League field, Auxier said.

The Babe Ruth League has had sole use of the ball park since the high school season was completed. Games were scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. each day but no game has ever started earlier than 5:30 or 5:45 p.m. Darkness forced the postponement of the Wayland-Lackey-Garrett/Betsy Layne game Tuesday evening. The game was to be completed Wednesday evening.

Floyd County may lose the two tournaments if the lighting situation is not corrected before the July 14 tournament date. The league may also be forced to cancel its planned league tournament according to Case.

JUST AS EVERYONE SUSPECTED....

The NBA draft, Wednesday night, went according to all expectations. Shaquille O'Neal and Alonzo Mourning went one and two with Laettner a surprise third over Ohio State's Jim Jackson.

After the top four, there is just not that much talent for the pro teams. The Boston Celtics surprised me by passing over some good talent and selecting Georgia Tech's Jon Barry. Not that Barry is not pro material, but I feel there were others they could have taken like Byron Houston of Oklahoma State (Chicago), Lee Mayberry and Oliver Miller

Central Finance takes two from John's 9-8, 14-9

Central Finance softball team kept their undefeated record clean this past Sunday when they swept John's in a doubleheader of softball at the Minnie Park. Finance won the first game 9-8 and then posted a second game win of 14-9.

John's took a 5-0 lead with five runs in the first inning of game one. Terry Isaac got the rally started with a one-out base hit. Ebo singled behind him and both runners scored on an error off the bat of Darrin Lawson and an RBI single by Jerry Potter.

Central Finance collected a base hit in the bottom of the inning from Gene Tackett but Tackett was stranded on the bag as Bill Hammond grounded to second.

John's made it a 6-1 game on an error and three base hits. Lawson and Tackett had hits in the inning with Lawson picking up two runs batted in.

Two more runs scored for John's in the top of the fourth. Bobby Whitaker was safe at first on an error at first base with two out. Isaac singled and Whittaker scored when Ebo was safe on the second error of the inning.

Central Finance made it an 8-2 game with a run in the fourth. Robert Little reached on an error and, with one out, Allen was safe on a third error at first base. Little scored on Bear Johnson's base hit.

Central pushed across two more runs in the bottom of the fifth after John's missed a chance to score in the top of the inning. Lonnie Johnson was safe on a one-out error at shortstop. He scored on a triple by Gene Tackett. Tackett scored to make it a 8-4 game when Hammonds grounded out.

Central Finance pulled to within one run of John's with three big runs in the bottom of the sixth inning. Larry Johnson and Allen collected back-to-back singles and Johnson scored on Bear Johnson's double with Allen moving to third. Allen trotted home on D.C. Carr's sacrifice fly to centerfield. Bear Johnson scored on Goins' fly ball to center.

Trailing 8-7 entering the bottom of the seventh, an error at third base put Lonnie Johnson representing the tying run. Gene Tackett singled, moving Johnson to third base. Johnson scored the tying run on Little's base hit. Tackett scored the winning run on Larry Johnson's single.

In game two, Tackett and Hammonds each tripled home runs to lead Central Finance to a 14-9 win for their sixth win of the season against no losses.

Central Finance scored six times in the sixth inning to take a 14-4 lead and then held off a John's rally when they scored five times in the bottom of the sixth.

Hammonds tripled home a run in the first inning when Central took a 2-0 lead. Little's base scored Tackett. Central plated two more runs in the second inning base hits by Lonnie Johnson and Tackett. Chris Caldwell had a base hit in the inning also.

Three runs in the third made it a 7-0 game when Central scored two unearned runs. Little and Larry Johnson singled to start the inning. Bear Johnson's ground ball to short was misplayed and two runs scored. Johnson scored on Goins' base hit.

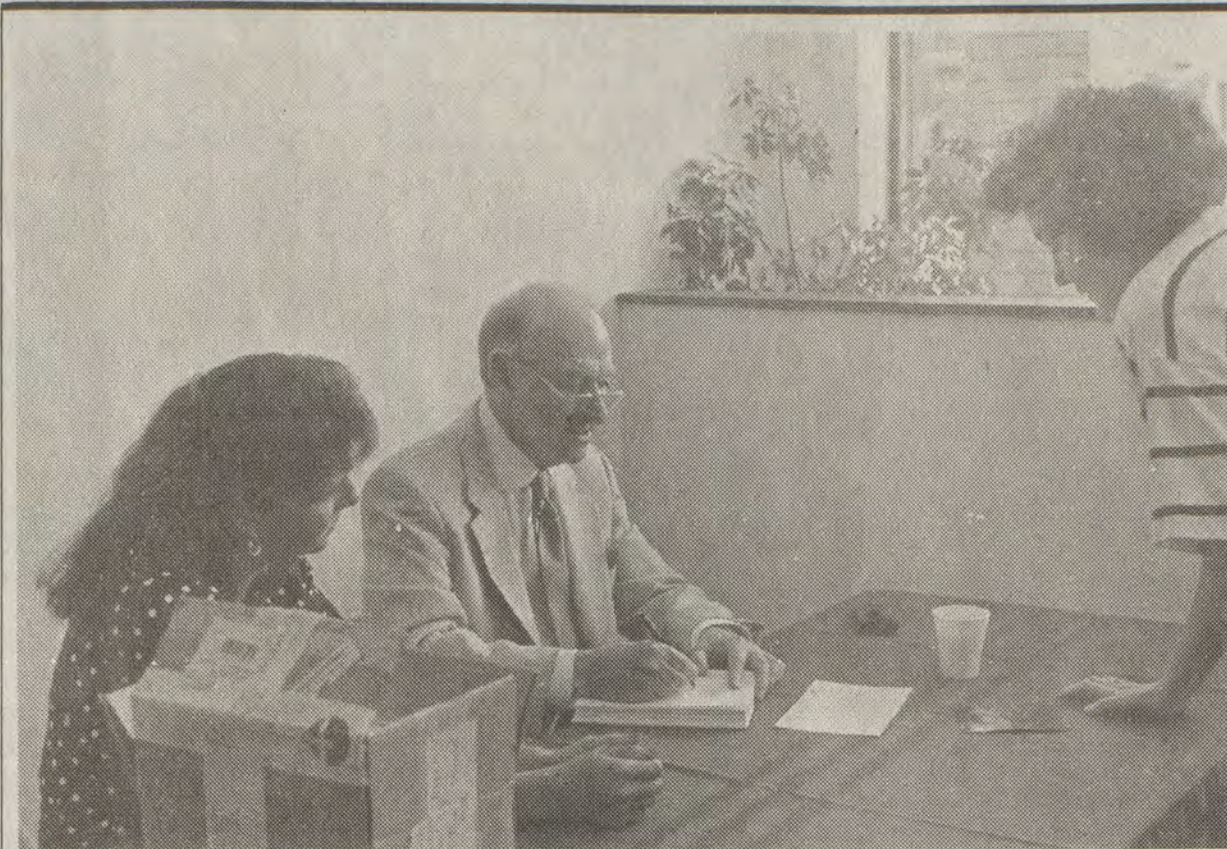

Tackett tripled home two runs in the top of the sixth as Central scored six times.

The former Voice of the Wildcats, Cawood Ledford, autographed a copy of his new book for Sandy Rice at the Readmore Book Store in the Glynn View Plaza this past Wednesday afternoon. WLG Yankees scored 11 in fifth for a 18-9 win over Betsy Layne

In a battle of two power teams in the Floyd County Babe Ruth League, the Wayland-Lackey-Garrett Yankees posted an 18-9 win over the Betsy Layne Twins that ended up in a battle of words, also.

The game started on Tuesday night but the game had to be called as darkness set in. The lights at the Stumbo Field has been pulled because of a short in the wiring system that was charging the centerfield fence with 180 volts of electricity.

The game between the Yankees and Twins was called in the bottom of the fifth inning with the Yankees holding an 18-9 lead. It was scheduled to be completed on Wednesday night immediately after the completion of a scheduled game between the Twins and Garrett Rangers.

Following the game, Twins' coach James Skeens informed Don Handsford, Yankees' coach, that he did not want to put his team back on the field in the inclement weather.

Words followed between the two coaches as the game was awarded to the Yankees.

"My kids wanted to play the game," said Handsford. "We came there and were on the field ready to play when he approached me stating that he did not want to put his team back on the field."

Donnie Combs picked up the win in the 4 1/2 inning game. Combs had some relief help from Mike Baldrige, who worked two innings before Combs re-entered the game. Combs fanned four batters but issued six walks. Greg Hunter suffered the loss for the Twins.

WLG scored 11 runs in the top of the fifth to erase a 9-7 deficit and assumed an 18-9 advantage. Rocky Newsome, who came in for Hunter, walked the first three batters in the fifth to load the bases. Baldrige singled a home run and Kevin Allen drew a bases-loaded walk that forced Donovan Hall with the tying run. Todd Bingham then cleared the bases with a long triple to right centerfield. Bingham scored on a two-base hit by Josh Handsford.

John Moore, whose bat had been hot of late, doubled home Handsford and Moore came around to score on Combs' RBI single. The rally continued when, with two out, Baldrige got his second hit of the inning — a double — driving in two runners.

WLG took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Kevin Allen scored on a base hit by Bingham. Three straight singles by the Twins tied the game at 1-1 after the first inning. Newsome singled with one out and Toby Newsome followed with a base hit. Newsome scored on a run scoring single by Greg Hunter. The Twins left the bases loaded as Willie Meade grounded out third to first.

The Yankees took a 7-5 lead with four runs in the fourth inning on a two-run single off the bat of Moore. Newsome had walked the first four batters of the inning forcing in one run. Handsford drew a bases-loaded walk with two out scoring Tim Belamy before Moore's single.

Betsy Layne responded with four runs in their half of the fourth inning to go on top 9-7. Brad Kimbler had a two single in the fourth for the Twins and two errors by the Yankees led to two more runs.

Betsy Layne came to the plate in the bottom of the fifth inning when Hunter led off reaching second on a two-base error in right field. At that point the game was called because of darkness and was rescheduled.

Bingham had four RBIs for the Yankees with Moore collecting three on two hits. Toby Newsome and Marcus Hamilton each collected two hits. Combs had a second inning triple for the Yankees that scored a run and Bingham tripled in the fifth. Handsford, Moore and Baldrige doubled in the 11 run fifth for WLG.

Drift Astors edge McDowell Sox; secure 1st place

He's not very big. In fact, he is probably the smallest of them all. But when on the baseball diamond, no one plays as big as Billy Hall.

Hall singled in the bottom of the sixth inning against the McDowell Sox, stole second, third and then stole home for the winning run that gave the Drift Astros a 11-10 win over the McDowell Sox.

Hall not only stole home, but the game and division championship of the Beaver Creek South in the Beaver Creek Little League.

Josh Hall was the winning pitcher for the Astros and was brilliant in the early going before the roof seemed to cave in. Kenny Newsome suffered the loss for the Sox. Hall struck out 11 batters while walking six. Newsome went the distance for the Sox with six strike outs.

After giving up a lead-off single to Jonathan Lawson, Hall struck out the next eight batters he faced as he was untouchable. He retired nine batters in a row before yielding a lead-off single to Darren Newsome in the Sox fourth inning.

Drift built a 7-0 lead until the fourth when McDowell scored a single run. Darren Newsome singled and scored on Jon Lawson's double. Lawson was thrown out at the plate and Hall got the next two batters on strikes to end the fourth.

Drift pushed across three runs in their half of the fourth on a lead walk to Joe Tackett, who stole second and third. Tackett scored on Billy Hall's base hit. Hall stole second for the Astros and came in to dent the plate on John Cole's RBI double. Cole scored on Byron Hall's double. The three runs extended the Astro lead to 10-1.

McDowell finally solved the problem they were having against Hall and plated six runs in the top of the fifth inning for a 10-7 game. Two walks to start the inning and Josh Ward's base hit scored two runs for a 10-3 game. After Brandon Elswick walked, Darren Newsome drove home two more runs with a long triple. Lawson followed Newsome with another three-bagger to make it a 10-6 game. Lawson stole home and it was a one run affair at 10-7.

Drift failed to score in the bottom of the fifth inning and the Sox struck for three runs in the top of the sixth to tie the game at 10-10.

Three consecutive walks by Hall loaded the bases with Sox runners. Hall then walked Elswick to score Caudill. Newsome tied the game with a two-run double.

"Josh had it going," said Astro coach Clinis Hall of his pitcher's performance in the early going. "But everything went wrong from the fifth on. I believe he just got tired and he was somewhat aggravated with the way his team was playing behind him.

"Kenny (Newsome) pitched well for them," continued Hall. "The Sox played a good game against us. They didn't quit and came back to tie the game. Billy (Hall) took the game on his shoulders. He is just a small player but he played big."

The win gave the Astros (10-7) a lock on first place that will determine their standing in the upcoming tournament.

(Arkansas). But it is all in what you need and I suppose the Celtics' brass figured they needed a good guard.

Now, how much will it cost the clubs that had the privilege of selecting first. O'Neal, Mourning, Christian Lactner and Jim Jackson will certainly not come cheap. But the sad part of it all is the way some of the top veterans are going to view the multi-bucks that the rookies will sign for. Some are talking anywhere from $8 to $10 million a season next year. Wow!

The Charlotte Hornets seems on the way to building a team that will escape the cellar next season. With Mourning joining first year sensation Larry Johnson and Kendal Gill, the Hornets will definitely be one of the teams of the future in the NBA.

AAU BASKETBALL...

Betsy Layne fell twice in their first two games of the AAU Junior Olympics Wednesday morning and afternoon. The Bobcats fell to Union County 75-74 and then dropped a 61-60 game to Louisville Sayre in the afternoon.

Sheldon Clark defeated Bell County 86-65 in the first round and then posted a 80-64 win over Fleming-Neon.

Shelby Valley, who many predict will be the top team in the 15th Region this year, fell to Corbin 97-74 and then dropped a two-point game to Lexington Christian, 57-55.

The AAU Junior Olympics are for boys 17 and under.

RICE IMPRESSED WITH AKERS...

In talking with Tim Rice, junior varsity coach at Betsy Layne High School, he was telling me how Jason Akers has improved.

"He can take two steps and dunk the ball with both hands," said Rice. "He is going to be good player for us this year."

Akers came on strong toward the end of last season and was one of the reasons the young Betsy Layne club captured the district tournament.

CAWOOD WAS IN TOWN...

Several people caught the legendary Cawood Ledford at the Readmore Book Store this past Wednesday afternoon. The former Voice of the Wildcats was in town to autograph his new book "Hello Everyone, This Is Cawood Ledford."

I told Cawood that I hated to see him leave from behind the microphone and he said "there have been too many birthdays." Enough said, I suppose.

NEW SUITS FOR THE REDS...

The Cincinnati Reds are following the leading of other Major League teams and returning to those days of yesteryear when they suited up in the pin-stripes. The change could come for the Reds as early as next year. The pin-stripes are from the '50s and early '60s but I doubt if they will play any better wearing the pin-stripes.

BRAVES COMING TO TOWN....

Since the Atlanta Braves, coming off three consecutive shutouts, one over the Reds and two over the Giants, will be motoring into Rhineland, it seems the Reds would have one thing on their mind and that is revenge.

The Reds certainly could use a sweep of the three game set. If the Reds sweep the Braves they will have four games up. If they win two, it's a two game lead; if they lose two, they will be tied for the lead and if they dropped all three, they are two games out. No split in this series.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports. Don't forget to register for the Bluegrass State Games coming up the latter part of July. Let us know if you are going to participate.

Tackett's 2 HRs ignite Astros over Wayland

The Drift Astros used home run power to subdue the Wayland Dodgers in Little League action last Saturday. The Astros clubbed three home runs en route to a 18-10 win over the Dodgers.

Joe Tackett had two round trippers with Clayton Williams hitting the other. Tackett first blast came in the third inning and he homered again in the fourth. Williams connected on his in the fourth.

The winning pitcher for the Astros was Todd Walters, who went all the way for the win. Walters had seven strike outs but struggled with control, walking 12. John Hall suffered the loss for the Sox.

Drift scored five runs in the fourth inning to open the game up. John Hall and Clabe Hall drew back-to-back walks. John Hall stole second and third before he and Clabe Hall scored on Walters' two-run single. Williams then hit his two-run home run and Tackett followed with his second of the game.

Tackett homered in the third when two runs scored for the Astros. John Cole had a one out walk before Tackett hit his two-run shot.

Williams tripled home two runs in the fifth inning that gave the Astros an 18-10 lead. Byron Hall and John Hall walked and scored ahead of Williams.

Wayland took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a triple by Eric Combs, who later stole home. Drift plated five runs for a 5-1 lead in the bottom of the inning. John Hall had an RBI single and Josh Hall doubled in two runs. Byron Hall walked, stole second and third before stealing home.

Wayland made it a 5-3 game with a two run second. Mike Short, Ousley, Jones all walked, loading the bases with Short and Ousley scoring on a base hit by Justin Paige.

Drift really opened things up with a four-run second and a 9-3 lead. Walks to John Mullins and Billy Hall set up John Hall's two-run double. Clabe Hall singled home John Hall and Clabe Hall scored on Walters' ground out.

Wayland made the game a little more respectable with four in the top of the fourth. The big hit of the inning was a bases-loaded triple by Short.

Ousley had a single to start the inning. Short scored on a wild pitch. Paige had two runs batted in with a single in the fifth inning when the Dodgers scored three times.

Drift collected nine hits in the game while Wayland had six.

In a game played earlier, the Astros defeated the Drift Yankees 12-11 with Walters picking up the win. Zach Layne was the losing pitcher for the Yankees. Clayton Williams had a home run for the Astros and Byron Hall tripled. John Hall had two doubles.

Race thrown into "tizzy" as Garrett Pirates win over Cubs

Who's first? Who will hold the top spot in the Beaver Creek Little League North Division? That is still to be determined and it may take a called coaches meeting to make the decision.

The controversy started when the Garrett Pirates defeated the Garrett Cubs 11-1 Tuesday evening at Garrett. The Pirates' defeat of the Cubs caused a three-way tie for first place in the division race between the Cubs, Pirates and Martin Cardinals with only two losses each.

The Pirates want league president Jimmy Goins to declare Martin as the division champions and the Pirates second place winners because of their win over the Cubs, even though all three teams have lost the same amount of games.

At stake is the number of players that the first, second and third place teams can put on the upcoming all-star team. The first and second place team gets four players on the elite squad, while the third place team gets only two.

Donnie Combs, coach of the Cubs, wants either a playoff game to decide the issue or for the league to declare all three teams as co-champions.

The game was a close one until the top of the fifth inning when the Pirates exploded for five runs against Cub starter Mike Combs to take a 7-1 lead.

A lead-off walk, base hits by Ryan Manns and King filled the bases for the Pirates against Combs. Gary Hunter then laced a base hit that scored Moore and Manns. Wesley Hunt kept the inning going when he worked Combs for a walk. Rodney Bentley then drilled a two-run double making it a 7-1 game.

Four runs scored for the Pirates in the sixth inning on a one-out walk to Moore. Combs then hit Manns with a pitch, putting runners at first and second. Moore scored on Hunter's one-out single. Manns and Hunter came around to score on Ryan Owens' two-run single to make it 11-1.

The Pirates took a 2-0 lead with two in the top of the first inning. Ryan Manns drew a one-out walk, and King singled behind him. Manns was nailed at third base on a steal attempt. Ryan Owens hit a gapper into left center-field scoring King, and Owens scored

The Cubs plated a single run in the bottom of the inning for a 2-1 score. Combs got a one-out base hit, stole second and third before scoring on a single by Jackie Owens.

Duff Orioles give Pirates scare

"We scared them to death," said Duff Orioles' coach Dennis Henson as his team, which is new in the Beaver Creek Little League this year, had the league leaders in trouble going into the bottom of the fifth inning. "We should have beaten them but we made too many mistakes in the sixth."

The Orioles were looking to play the spoilers' role as the Pirates were battling the Garrett Cubs and Martin Cardinals for the top spot in the league. All three teams were tied for first place.

Duff held a 7-3 lead entering the bottom of the sixth when Garrett scored five times for the 8-7 win. Trailing 7-5, Garrett loaded the bases against starter Timbo Hagans. Henson then brought on Shawn Henson to face the Pirates. He gave up a base hit to Gary Hunter that scored the tying run to make it a 7-7 game.

Brandon Murrill and Rodney Bentley drew lead-off walks from Hagans and both runners scored on a double by Mike Morgan to make it 7-5. With one out, Hagans walked Tim Moore and Ryan Manns to load the bases. Morgan was called out trying to come home on a passed ball for the second out in the inning. Nick King's base hit scored Moore and Hunter then tied the game with a RBI single. Henson proceeded to walk Ryan Owens to reload the bases and the winning run trotted home on a walk to Leslie Howard that forced home King.

Garrett led 1-0 after the first inning on a one-out walk to King, who stole second. King scored on Owens' long double to left centerfield. The Pirates left runners on first and third in the second inning when Moore fanned to end the inning.

Owens collected his second two-bagger of the game in the third inning to drive in Hunter who had singled, stole second and third to give Garrett a 2-0 lead.

Four runs crossed the plate for the Orioles in the top of the fourth as they took a 4-2 advantage. Tiffany Vance led off by walking and Hagans singled. Chris Ratliff drew a one-out walk to load the bases for the Orioles. King, who relieved Murrill, walked Henson forcing in Vance. Three more walks accounted for three runs to give Duff the lead.

Hagans' base hit with the bases loaded scored two runs for the Orioles in the fifth innig when Duff took their 7-3 lead. Two more came home on Henson two-run double.

Ryan Manns picked up the win for the Pirates in relief of King. Manns had two strike outs and he walked four. Henson suffered the loss for the Orioles giving up the tying and winning run in the sixth inning.

The Orioles will play the Martin Blue Jays at Martin today at noon to determine last place in the league. At stake are two all-star positions.

HEALTH ALERT

Minimizing The Pain Of Allergy Season

One in every six Americans is a victim of allergy or asthma, and spring isn't just another season for them. For those 22 million Americans with hay fever, or the 32 million with chronic sinusitis, it can be the start of long months when a kind of air pollution can affect their health, curtail their daily activity or drive them indoors.

The pollution is pollen, particularly from early spring trees, late spring grass, and summer and fall weeds. Unfortunately, when sufferers go inside, they may wind up breathing even more polluted air—contaminated with such powerful allergy triggers as dust mites, animal dander, mold and fungi, as well as pollen. For allergy victims, simply getting a good night's sleep can hinge on how clean the air is in their homes.

Cleaner indoor air can mean allergy relief

Recently, a study found high-efficiency electronic air cleaners such as those from Honeywell, can provide relief to people who are allergic to many indoor air pollutants.

A survey in the July 1991 medical journal Immunology & Allergy Practice found more than 80 percent of respondents felt healthier and more comfortable.

•81.5 percent said an electronic air cleaner provided allergy symptom relief

•Most people who felt relief with an air cleaner noticed benefits in days or weeks

•85 percent reported more comfortable sleep

•28 percent said they had more energy

•28 percent reported feeling more physically active

•23 percent said they missed fewer days of work or school due to allergies

•Among respondents previously taking allergy medication, nearly 70 percent said they needed less medication with an air cleaner in their home

•76 percent said the air cleaner helped relieve nasal/sinus congestion

•50 percent reported relief from watery/itchy eyes

•40 percent reported relief from a runny nose

•Ninety percent of all respondents would recommend an electronic air cleaner to people with allergies they knew.

The National Institutes of Health has called allergic diseases one of the nation's major health problems. Americans miss millions of days of school and work and spend an estimated $4 billion to $5 billion each year because of allergy and asthma.

Allergic reactions can be as mild as a runny nose, watery eyes and sneezing, or as potentially life threatening as asthma.

For more information on relief from allergy symptoms, call Honeywell Inc., 1-800-345-6770, ext. 7171.

CONSIDER THE SOURCE

For as long as I can remember, whenever somebody said or did something to me, my parents always told me to "consider the source."

That ideology worked for many years until I became a parent and realized that often times "considering the source" meant that by overlooking someone's ignorance, your child would have to suffer.

As the daughter of a politician, my sisters and I endured things many other people would never allow their children to ever have to do. For example, when a person stole my sister's diamond ring and we knew the person had taken it, we simply let her have the ring because it wasn't worth making anybody mad. Other times, my sister and I accepted dates with people because my Dad didn't want us to hurt their feelings.

There are many more instances I could cite, but what it comes down to is that we always "considered the source" because my parents believed that by remaining meek, in the end, good would prevail.

Well folks, up until a few days ago, I'd considered the source for so long I believed that if the meek inherited the earth, Australia would be mine; but, certain circumstances have altered my opinion.

If I never utter another word, I want people to know that—where my child is concerned—I will never make him consider the source again if it means having to compromise his principles or himself.

For several years, I have stood back and watched while grown men belittled and ridiculed some children for things they had no control over; adult males who by all accounts should have been required to be registered in order to procreate or neutered so that future generations would not be subjected to their offspring.

If you detected a note of cynicism, then what I'm trying to say is "there are no more Mister Nice Guy's around here."

My parents made the mistake of telling my sisters and me that as human beings we had a responsibility to others. If we could help anybody else at any time, it would be remiss of us if we didn't. So, I passed the little tidbit of information on to my son and guess what happened?

The saddest thing I have ever witnessed is that my son—who would give you the shirt off his back and shoes off his feet, and has—has had to learn the worst things about life during the best part of his life.

You know the things I'm talking about. The things that some children never have to learn if their parents play life by someone else's rules whether they're right or not. All the things that we tell our son are wrong, yet he sees others doing them and getting by with it.

I wanted my son to be a man before he knew that "adults" would

Local craft groups to participate in Berea festival

Two Floyd County craft enterprises will participate in the 11th Annual Berea Craft Festival, July 10-12 in Berea.

Blue River Weaving, owned and operated by Susan Sanders, and David Appalachian Crafts, Julie Johnson, marketing director, will display crafts at the internationally acclaimed craft festival. Both organizations are members of the Mountain Heritage Arts, based in Floyd County.

Approximately 120 craftpersons from 20 states will exhibit and demonstrate their craft at Indian Fort Theatre, a wooded arena and outdoor amphitheater nestled at the foot of the Pinnacles, mountains which were once a natural Indian fortification.

Quilters, carvers, basket makers, jewelers, weavers, and woodworkers are among those artists who will travel from all across the nation to Berea for the 11th year of this major craft showcase, which has been hailed as a major center of American crafts.

Newcomers to the craft show this year include Cleater Meaders Jr., of Hoschter, Georgia. The Meaders family has been making pottery for five generations and is known nationally as one of the few true folk potters in existence.

Also demonstrating for the first time will be Daniel Kopkas of Brooks, West Virginia, who will demonstrate marbeling, a craft that dates back to the Orient in the 12th Century; and, Dorothy Hackley of Stanford, Kentucky, who will demonstrate quilting on old-fashioned quilt frames.

Other newcomers include clay sculptors, basket makers, blacksmiths, glass sculptors, and doll-makers. Altogether there will be over 25 new exhibitors at the Berea Festival.

Entertaining the thousands of visitors who are expected to attend this festival will be strolling musical groups, dancers and jugglers. Headlining the musical groups will be "Mandala," a contemporary folk group which will return for their 11th appearance. The Berea Craft Festival is the only event at which the original "Mandala," featuring Mitchell Barrett and Martin Swinger, can be seen.

Returning also will be Bereans Jim Gage and Al White, whose repertoire includes contemporary and traditional folk blues; and; Early Light Music of Asheville, North Carolina, whose lively renaissance and baroque music has delighted audiences at Berea for the last four years.

New on the Berea scene this July will be Tom Sparrow, a juggler called "The Space Painter," who will entertain on Friday and Saturday. The world renown Berea College Country Dancers will perform lively English, Danish and Appalachian folk dances on Saturday and Sunday.

Whatever one's interest—whether it be music, food, flowers, quilts, toys, games, books, jewelry, ceramics, woodwork, brooms, hand carvings, glass, musical instruments, rugs, baskets, etchings, trunks, handmade wearable, or just a good time, it can be found at the festival.

Festival hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday thru Sunday, July 10-12, at Indian Fort Outdoor Theatre on the edge of Berea College Forest, two miles East of Berea. Parking is free and plentiful, and admission is $3.50 with special rates for groups and senior citizens. Children under age 12, free. For further information, contact Berea Tourism, (606) 986-2540 or 2550.

Well, not really. Maybe slightly annoyed. I like to be dramatic.

"Who could possibly annoy such a kind, patient, noble soul as our friend Gopher, uh, Godfrey, uh, Geoff?" you may ask yourself.

Now I'm not talking about your average everyday wind-breaking, gum-popping, intensely personal question-asking rude person. That type of behavior can generally be chalked up either to ignorance or drunkenness, which seems to affect approximately 95 percent of the world's population. You know who you are.

No, I'm talking about really, really, really, really rude, obnoxious selfish people. The kind that you just want to slap upside the head with that narrow flexible end of a fishing rod so that it not only stings like a hive-full of hornets, but also leaves a big red mark that lasts for days so that everybody knows who they are when they come walking down the street.

Now, I've been told that the press is one of the most powerful weapons in the world for effecting change. I've also been told that I have approximately six loyal readers. So I'm counting on you six and whoever else may accidentally read this column to pass this out to anybody you think needs to see it.

This is my own personal contribution towards making the community a better place to live.

In the interests of pacing and continuity (and the fact that it was the first example that I thought of), let's start with the small stuff.

Have you ever been entering a crowded store or restaurant and held the door open for a veritable herd of your fellow patrons, only to have each and every one of them pass by you with nary a "thank you" or even a friendly smile in the bunch?

Those are the people you're supposed to carry the fishing rod for.

When people do that to me, I always say "you're welcome" anyway, only really, really loud, so that everyone else in the place stares at 'em. Sometimes I'll even add something special like "You're welcome, buttface," or "Thank you so very much for treating me like a lawn jockey."

Another of my personal favorites is that sweet soul who sits at a table adjoining mine in a crowded restaurant and talks loudly about his or her recent surgery for which he or she was awake during the entire process and proceeds to explain it step by step in graphic detail, including such things as gushing blood and popping bones.

Generally, they also have a two year-old at the table with them that thinks french fries are actually table to table missiles and screams so loud your ears bleed. (Two words: baby sitter. And for only a couple of bucks, I'll sit on your baby personally).

And as long as we're on the subject of bleeding ears, how about the people who play offensive music (and by offensive I generally mean either rap or anything by Barry Manilow or Air Supply) so loudly on their car stereos that when they pass your house, the vibration shakes expensive, breakable items off your mantle.

Usually, this is done by carloads of teenage males who don't have dates in the strange, primitive mating ritual called "cruising" in which they pass carloads of teenage females who don't have dates either and attempt to impress them by being the last guy to jump out of the moving car screaming and holding his ears.

This practice, also known as drive-by dating, threatens to unravel the tattered fabric of civilization as we know it.

However, I've found that if you follow them, they invariably stop at a foodmart for Mountain Dew and cigarettes and leave the car unattended with the motor running and the stereo still blasting at at least a 9 on the Richter scale.

At this point, you have three possible courses of action. You can reach in their car and (a) turn the radio off; (b) put it in gear so that it runs out into the road in front of a fully loaded eighteen-wheeler; or (c) pour a large diet soda in each of the speakers, causing them to short out in a huge shower of sparks, never to operate again. I usually choose (c), as it is a permanent solution but nobody really gets hurt. Not that I mind hurting anybody that deserves it, but there are laws.

Another example of rude behavior that particularly gets under my skin like a bad tattoo is when someone gets behind me in a theatre and puts their feet on the back of my seat, fidgeting and shifting around constantly in an effort to either spill my drink, break my ribs or paralyze my kidneys. And to that guy that was behind me the other night: I know who you are, and if you're behind me next Friday night, I will personally rip your lungs out through your nose.

ATTENTION WAL-MART SHOPPERS:

Putting your cart in a vacant parking spot after having deposited your goodies in your car does not constitute putting that cart away. What it does is either take up badly needed parking space or make an incredibly effective battering ram and as I drive an American-made automobile that is made entirely of fiberglass and silly putty and is therefore subject to shatter into a trillion pieces when a fly hits the windshield, I'm extremely sensitive to such things.

Also, don't ever, under any circumstances, throw your chewing gum on the ground after you've finished with it. You should swallow it like the rest of us. Just be sure to eat plenty of fiber.

And for God's sake, use deodorant. It just takes seconds a day. If you don't like those little white stripes the roll-on kind leaves on your clothing, use the spray. I don't think the ozone is going anywhere for awhile anyway, judging by the frost on my windshield this morning.

And you people that only let the phone ring three times before you hang up: stop it. Sometimes it may take me up to four rings to get to the phone, particularly if I have to get out of the shower or climb a flight of stairs first. Then I have to frantically call every single person I've ever known, met, or even bumped into on the street to see if they are the ones that have RUINED MY DAY.

EDELL HEALTH NOTES

TEACHING RESTLESS CHILDREN TO BEHAVE... I've said before that drug treatment should be a last resort for hyperactive children. Ritalin, one of the most widely prescribed of hyperactivity drugs, causes weight loss, irritability and other side effects. But are there practical alternatives?

An encouraging study from the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto tested a psychological treatment called cognitive behavior therapy on 25 7- to 13-year-olds. The boys, whose symptoms included disruptive behavior and difficulty concentrating, were given a series of individual therapy sessions plus at-home sessions with their families. Half of them received supportive counseling and additional instructions on problem-solving, like how to get along with siblings, finish homework and get to school on time. The other children were given supportive counseling, but received no other instruction.

The parents of the boys who received problem-solving instruction reported the biggest improvement in their children's behavior. In addition, psychological tests showed an improvement in the boys' self-esteem. This is the first carefully controlled study I know of that tested a drugless treatment for hyperactivity. We need more research like it.

A HISTORY OF MALE BREAST CANCER... Most men are dangerously unaware that they, too, can develop breast cancer. Though the risk is substantially smaller—slightly more than one in 1,000 men develop the disease compared with one in nine women—proportionally more men die from it. The mistake they make is in failing to consult a doctor until the cancer is too far gone. This new study shows that men, like women, are more prone to breast cancer if they have a family history of it.

Researchers at the University of Washington School of Public Health and Community Medicine compared 227 male breast cancer patients with 300 men who didn't have the disease. The study found that if a man had a female relative with breast cancer, he was twice as likely to develop the disease. Having a male relative with breast cancer increased his risk four times. The closer the relative by blood, the greater the risk.

This is important information, but perhaps even more valuable is that this study exists in the first place, and is helping alert the public to the fact breast cancer is about men, too.

SNEAK ATTACK OF HERPES... Eighteen women in Edinburgh, Scotland, recently came down with genital herpes even though their partners were using condoms. Where did the virus come from? The mystery was solved by researchers at the University of Edinburgh when they figured out that the women's partners had passed on the infection from cold sores on their mouths during oral sex.

If you occasionally get cold sores—and most people do, sooner or later—take heed. The virus causing the cold sores is a form of the one that leads to genital herpes, and can be transmitted from your mouth to your sexual partner's genitals even when no sores or blisters are present.

It may not be realistic to avoid oral sex altogether, or to protect others using latex mouth guards. But at the very least, you should be aware of your ability to pass on the virus, and inform any sexual partners of that fact.

Nothing is more characteristic of a man than the manner in which he behaves toward fools.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

JUDGES FROM HELL

—The Iowa Employment Appeal Board ruled in April that a former security guard was qualified for unemployment benefits even though he was fired. Mr. Kay Stone, 55, was a night guard at a convenience store until a fight broke out one night, whereupon he ran and hid in a walk-in cooler. Ruled the board, "Incompetence in a position is not (a disqualifier)."

—In January, Judge Neil Denison gave an 18-month suspended sentence to Bisla Rajinder Singh in Erith, England, after he had been convicted of strangling his wife to death. The judge explained that Singh had been "nagged" too much by his wife and had stayed with her only to protect the children.

—In November, a circuit court judge in Selma, Ala.—rejecting decisions by the city and state employment compensation boards—awarded $2,000 in back pay to former sewer worker William Perry. Perry had been fired because his waist had grown to 40 inches, preventing him from fitting through the 23-inch manhole, rendering him useless at his trade. The judge said that wasn't a good enough reason to fire him.

THE LITIGIOUS SOCIETY

Rochelle Rutherford filed a lawsuit recently against the local school district, near Minneapolis, because her son, 9, lately prefers to wear girls' clothes. The boy at one time had been forced to use the girls' restroom at school because of a shortage of facilities and had been required to wear girls' clothing during recreation activities because of a shortage of boys' clothing.

—The American Civil Liberties Union filed a lawsuit in Little Rock, Ark., in May over the state's refusal to permit the Ku Klux Klan into the adopt-a-highway program, in which civic organizations sponsor one mile of the state's highways.

—Four New York City police officers, defendants in a $5 million police brutality lawsuit that claims they beat up a 12-year-old epileptic boy, filed a $1 million countersuit in December, claiming it was actually the boy who brutalized them, leaving them "sick, sore, lame and disabled."

—Linda and Frederick Hinrichs filed a lawsuit recently in Golden, Colo., for humiliation they suffered when a clerk at Gateway Mazda in Aurora, Colo., put a derogatory name on their ownership records that were later used for Mazda mailings. So far, the couple has received two mailings from Mazda Motor Co. addressed to "Buttface Hinrichs."

—In March, a judge dismissed James Blakely's lawsuit against the Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press. Blakely had sued for $9 million, claiming that the newspaper's horoscope columns caused him "an enormous amount of problems."

—Madiha el-Sayed went to court in Cairo, Egypt, in May to prove that she is still alive. The government says that, according to a ferryboat manifest, she drowned in December when the boat, but, since the disaster, she has not been able to reclaim her job, claim government food subsidies, or take care of her children's affairs.

LEAST COMPETENT PERSON

A 16-year-old boy, already under court supervision, was arrested again in Elizabeth, New Jersey, in March as he attempted to make his required restitution payments (usually $5 to $25 a week) for damage he had done with a stolen car last year. This time, he offered his probation officer $16 — $6 cash and a $10 vial of cocaine.

THE WEIRDO-AMERICAN COMMUNITY

A 40-year-old man, unidentified in news stories, was arrested in San Antonio in April after he caused a commotion at a Bank One office. According to a bank spokesperson, when the man informed that his loan application was not approved, the man stripped off his clothes and quacked like a duck. When police arrived, the man answered question by quacking and then caused $1,000 damage to a squad car by kicking it.

Also, if you happen to call me and it's a wrong number, at least have the common courtesy to say something before you hang up. I'll have your number traced and call you at all hours of the night and breathe heavy.

All I'm saying is that it doesn't take anymore effort to be polite than it does to be rude. Let's all pitch in and help George Bush deliver at least one campaign promise and make this a kinder gentler nation.

I'd better go now because I think I've covered everything that's bugged

TELL ME WHY

HOW ARE PENCILS MADE?

As you might know already, a "lead" pencil doesn't contain lead. It contains a mineral substance called graphite. Graphite, like lead, leaves a mark when drawn across paper. Because of this it is called "black lead," and that's where we get the name "lead pencil."

In manufacturing pencils, dried ground graphite is mixed with clay and water. The more clay, the harder the pencil will be; the more graphite, the softer the pencil.

After the mixture reaches a doughy consistency, it passes through a forming press and comes out as a thin, sleek rope. This is straightened out, cut into lengths, dried, and put in high ovens to bake.

Meanwhile, the pencil case has been prepared. The wood, either red cedar or pine, is shaped in halves and grooved to hold the lead. After the finished leads are inserted in the grooves, the halves of the pencil are glued together. A saw cuts the slats into individual pencils, and a shaping machine gives the surface a smooth finish.

Hundreds of different kinds of pencils are made, each for a special use. You can buy black lead pencils in many degrees of hardness and intensity, or get them in more than 70 different colors.

There are pencils that write on glass, cloth, cellophane, plastics and movie film. There are even pencils, used by engineers and in outdoor construction work, that leave a mark that won't fade after years of exposure to any weather!

purposefully hurt a child to get back at a parent. I wanted my son to be more emotionally mature before an "adult" made an example of him. I wanted my son to be nice and speak to everybody before he came to the realization that others would not always be nice or speak to him. I never wanted my son to learn that sometimes, no matter how hard you try or how good you are, ability and talent are useless. But this was not to be.

Those of you who know me personally are aware of the adversities my son has endured and fared well. I prayed that I would be about to shelter him, at least until he understood how some men never grow up, or at least until I could explain what I "consider the source" means, but I wasn't afforded that opportunity.

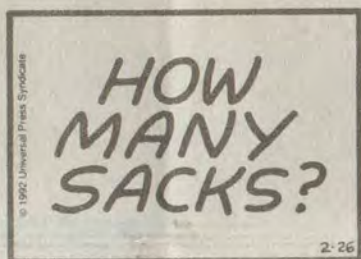

The only good thing my son has learned from his experiences of this past week is that he can look back and say he knows what he did and what he earned. He isn't beholding to anyone else. He didn't ask any favors, and he didn't receive any.

As a child, whenever I was hurt, my Granny Wheeler used to say that the Devil didn't call on his dues every Saturday night, but he would. All I can say is that when the Devil shows up for his dues, I hope the first pitchfork thrown.

Answers: 1. Morning glory. 2. Freeze the water. 3. Today.

THE PUZZLE BOX

A farmer came to town to see his produce, including a certain number of sacks of potatoes. He sold half the sacks plus half a sack. This left him with one sack. How many sacks of potatoes did he come with?

Answer: 3 sacks.

"That was the worst dinner I ever had to say grace over."

THERE'S NOTHING MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD, EXCEPT MAYBE, A PEN.

Thirty years ago, we put pen to paper and wrote this slogan: "Fight cancer with a checkup and a check." In that time alone, survival rates for most major cancers have gone from one in three to one in two. Today, the fight continues, and while we're making progress, more needs to be done. Much of this progress we owe to research. Since 1950, the American Cancer Society has invested $1.3 billion in research, results-driven research that includes the lifesaving work of 25 Nobel Prize winners.

Research isn't the only thing we do. Our prevention and early detection activities helped 55 million people last year understand we can beat cancer. The cost of these programs is staggering. We need you to prove once again that it is better to give than to receive and we need it in writing. Please put your pen to paper, send a donation to your local American Cancer Society. We'll put it to good use saving lives.

GRANDPARENTING

GRANDFATHER'S COOKING WAS EARLY INSPIRATION

The Grand Remark of the Week: "I have been blessed as a grandfather a dozen or so times over. I have heard a number of laughable remarks from my grandkids, and shall never forget this one.

"In one of my grandson's Sunday school classes, the teacher asked a 4- or 5-year-old, 'You always ask the blessing before you eat, don't you?'"

"After a moment's thought, the reply was, 'No, I don't have to because my mother is a good cook!'"

"I thought it was priceless!"—Russell R. Ratliff, Weaverville, California.

There are a number of "good cooks" in California today. One of the best is Michael James of Salinas, who was taught the basics by his mother and grandfather and has just written a delightful book, "Slow Food: Flavors and Memories of America's Hometowns."

James, 42, started baking "flaky" apple pies at 8 in his mother's kitchen in Los Gatos, Calif. He was also inspired by his grandfather from Greece, who had a small coffee shop nearby with five booths and a handful of counter seats.

At 21 he hastened to France, the "motherland" of good cooking, as he admits, to study under three legendary master chefs: Jean Troisgros, Michel Guerard and the late Simone Beck ("Simca"), an early partner of America's own Julia Child.

Although he has no children, James has passed on many of his secrets to his three young nephews.

"At the age of 3 or 4," he told us last week, "a child can learn about tastes and what smells good, and can start scrambling eggs and making toast, with supervision. A little later a child might learn how to bake an apple, by cutting out the core and inserting maple syrup and a little butter, and baking 25 to 30 minutes at 400 degrees." (Use green apples, he suggests, to give a nice tart flavor.)

If your child or grandchild shows real talent, and wants to pursue a career in food, James strongly recommends working as an apprentice with a master chef—especially if the mother or grandparent is not a "good cook."

"The French start out in a professional kitchen as a 'commis' or potato peeler at 13 or 14," he says. For Americans, he suggests summer jobs, finishing high school and then landing a steady job in a good restaurant, chopping and peeling to learn those basics.

Also, he urges youngsters to "read a lot." For example, he started out by studying the Fannie Farmer cookbook.

BIG CHOCOLATE COOKIES

(makes 12 to 15 cookies)
5 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
2 cups unbleached all-purpose flour

1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 cup sugar
1 stick unsalted butter
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup buttermilk
Chocolate frosting (recipe follows)

Preheat the oven to 400 degrees. Stir together the dry ingredients. Cut in the butter until pea-sized granules form. Stir in the milk and buttermilk as quickly as possible.

Chill the dough for 1 hour, then roll out 1/2-inch thick on a well-floured board, flouring the dough as you work, and cutting out rounds about 4 inches in diameter. Reassemble the scrapes of dough, and roll and cut out cookies again. Any final scraps can be squished together and baked along with the cookies (or eat them raw).

Bake the cookies on a lightly greased sheet for 10 to 12 minutes. They should be springy and mostly dry when pierced with a broom straw or small knife. Remove to a rack; frost when cool.

NOTE: This recipe makes a soft and slightly sticky dough. If you find it tricky to handle, simply scoop 1/4-cup amounts of dough onto the baking sheet and flatten them gently with floured fingers.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

2 tablespoons unsalted butter
3 ounces unsweetened chocolate
3 tablespoons hot water or milk
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 cups (about) sifted powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Melt the butter and chocolate together. Stir in the hot water or milk, salt, powdered sugar vanilla (adjust the amount of powdered sugar to achieve the desired consistency). Cool, then spread over the chocolate cookies.

Dear Abby

Man Hopes His Teen Angel Is Still Waiting in the Wings

DEAR ABBY: Twenty years ago, when I was a senior in high school, I dated a sweet, bright, and very pretty girl I'll call "Lisa." I was crazy about her, but I am ashamed to say that I hurt her deeply when I dropped her, because I was ready for a sexual relationship and she wasn't. I ended up dating several girls I couldn't take home to Momma, and Lisa started dating a real "straight arrow."

I lost track of Lisa when she went off to college and became engaged to the straight arrow. I married someone else and later divorced (no children), but I've never been able to forget Lisa.

With our 20th high school reunion approaching, I've been in touch with some old friends from high school and learned that Lisa never married the straight arrow—in fact, she never married at all. However, she had a son a few years ago and gave him the same first name as mine. While it may have been a coincidence, it is not a very common name. Now I'm wondering if maybe she hasn't been able to forget me either, but I haven't the faintest idea of how to approach her.

I live 2,000 miles from my hometown, and don't know if there is another man in Lisa's life. I would go to the reunion if I knew she'd be there and was not involved. But how do I find out? I don't want to contact old friends for fear of making a fool of myself.

Any ideas, Abby?

REMEMBERING LISA

DEAR REMEMBERING: Don't worry about making a fool of yourself. Use whatever means you have to track down Lisa. One telephone call to her will tell you all you need to know.

However, don't get your hopes up. Even if Lisa goes to the reunion solo, she may not be the girl you remember from your high school days. And you may not be the boy she remembers. But it's worth a gamble. Win or lose, it could be an exciting adventure.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem concerning my wedding, which will take place in August in a banquet hall of a church. Bill (not his real name) and I have been dating long enough to know that we are right for each other. This is a first marriage for both of us.

My problem is that Bill doesn't want to wear a necktie. I have no problem with this because I know Bill hates neckties. However, my mother is upset; she says she will be embarrassed in front of her friends if Bill doesn't wear a tie.

Abby, you have always given great advice in the past. Bill says I should ask you, and he will do whatever you say. So what do you say?

BILL'S "TWEETIE PIE" (HIS NAME FOR ME)

DEAR TWEETIE PIE: Where is it written that the bride-groom must wear a tie? Couples have been married parachuting from airplanes, suspended from hot air balloons, and even under water. If bill is mature enough for marriage, then he—not your mother—is responsible for what he wears. The big day belongs to you and Bill. Please yourselves and don't worry about your mother.

The original name of the cartoon strip "Peanuts" was to be "L'I' Folks."

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Anchor in on the moment and make the most of the opportunities that present themselves all week long. Exercise more discretion with what you say this weekend, when you are in an unusually "chatty" mood. You love hanging out and catching up on all the news right now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You start the week on a low note, but you feel better and better as the week goes on. Listen to your instincts, because you are on target, as you will discover as the week progresses. You treat and delight another all weekend long. Allow yourself to let go.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Go with the winds of fate all week long, though you may want to focus on where you're going and what's going on. Approach a situation with new insight. Refuse to back down this weekend. You are the prime player—the one whom everyone wants to be with. Be that party animal!

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Look at what's really going on. Take responsibility on the work front. Another respects your candidness. Connections you make right now head you down the victory path. You have much to gloat about, but rather, choose to escape with a loved one all weekend long.

LEO (July 23-August 22) Check things out. Clarity and succinctness are your strong suit this week. You are about to jump into a new phase—hesitate little and, simply, go for it. Count on a major celebration this up and coming weekend. Invite all your friends, all your neighbors, and let it all hang out.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) Negotiate partnership deals of all types this week—you can get the terms you want. With one person, however, you may have to go far and wide to reach an agreement. Adventure is the hallmark of the week, though you may "choose" to keep that staid image during the weekend.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) Right now, know that you're not in the dominate position—though you can change this. Listen to your sixth sense with regard to a money matter. Close encounters of the nice variety are slated all week long and weekend, too. Be ready to take off at the drop of a hat!

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) Refuse to be taken for a ride by a domineering partner, rather let it be known who's in control here. Worry less about ruffled feathers, because you play kiss and make up all weekend long. Renegotiate your position. It is one of those hot and heavy few days.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) Come from a "centered" place this week when dealing with loved ones and work. How you structure your week is really up to you. (Go for a bohemian schedule!) By the way, try to be more nurturing with a special loved one. You get unusual returns as a result.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Your style of handling matters come out very clearly this week. Initiate (and if you can, finalize) important talks early on, because by the end of the week, you will want to let go and play more. Creativity, ingenuity (and playfulness) are all hallmarks of the weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 21-February 18) Chat up a storm. Talk about basics and where you're heading. Trust and know that this week turns out just wonderfully for you. You are looking at a romantic, wild or fun weekend. By the way, why not try mixing them all up together? Meanwhile, let others do the chasing.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) Creativity is high this week. Use this endless source to straighten our finances (or better yet) to enhance them. Security needs to be made a major issue during this period of fast expansion and growth. Make weekend plans to chill out and relax with a favorite person.
