Two others suspended over sex abuse issue :

Wheelwright principal is fired

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County principal who was accused but never tried on two counts of first degree sexual abuse has been fired. Two other school employees have been temporarily suspended in relation to the same issue.

Wheelwright High School principal Lewis "Spike" Berkheimer, who was at the center of controversy last year, was terminated July 9 by interim superintendent Eldon Smith on the recommendation of Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen.

Wheelwright guidance counselor Rodney McKinney received a five-day suspension for allegedly having "knowledge of an incident affecting a minor" and having "knowledge of the duty...to immediately report the incident."

Wheelwright teacher Norma Fairchild was given a three-day suspension for allegedly failing to immediately report the same incident knowing she was obligated to do so. The two allegations against McKinney and Fairchild could constitute Class B misdemeanors and if charged and convicted they could face a $250 fine or 90 days in jail, or both.

Smith cited two reasons for Berkheimer's dismissal, including allegations that "he knowingly submitted a false employment application" and had allegedly "engaged in inappropriate sexual contact with a minor at Wheelwright High School."

Smith contended that those actions "constitute immoral character or conduct unbecoming a teacher."

Kentucky Department of Education spokesman Jim Parks said Tuesday that the results of an investigation by the state's Office of Education Accountability prompted Commissioner Boysen to submit written charges against Berkheimer to Smith.

The charge that Berkheimer had submitted a false application apparently stemmed from Berkheimer's omission on his employment application of a 1976 conviction in Ohio on charges of contributing to the unruliness of a child.

The second charge stems from charges filed in Floyd County which accused Berkheimer of improper sexual contact with a student in November 1991 and again in January 1992.

The Floyd County charges were dismissed by District Judge Danny Caudill, who ruled in a preliminary hearing that there was not enough

An overwhelming majority of respondents to an informal Floyd County Times poll have expressed dissatisfaction with the Floyd County Board of Education's selection of Dr. Steven Towler as the system's new superintendent. The non-scientific poll presented four options in relation to the controversial superintendency issue and resulted in 398 responses.

Here are the results of the poll:

• Ten percent or a total of 40 of the respondents expressed support for the school board's decision to employ Dr. Towler.

• Forty-eight percent, or a total of 191 respondents, favored keeping the system's interim superintendent and asking the superintendent search committee to make new recommendations.

• Thirty-seven percent, or 147 respondents, favored beginning the superintendent search process over, from the beginning.

• Five percent, or 20 respondents, offered other ideas.

In the category of other ideas, a variety of suggestions were offered, including the names of other recommended candidates; a state takeover of the system; a replacement of the county board; and making the office of county superintendent an elected position.

One anonymous respondent provided a blunt proposal, suggesting the board of education "should get their heads out of their butts and (Education Commissioner Thomas) Boysen should butt out."

The Floyd County Board of Education was expected to finalize Tuesday a contract for Dr. Towler to direct the system for the next four years.

City and county propose joint effort :

Another expansion eyed

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The Prestonsburg City Council observed the first reading of two proposed city ordinances at its marathon session Monday evening. One of those ordinances, if passed, will allow the annexation of unincorporated territory that includes the site that is currently being considered for use as the new home of the Kentucky Opry.

City ordinance #12-92 declares the city council's intention to expand the city limits to incorporate property beginning at the present city limit at Glyn View Plaza, located north of and adjacent to Kentucky Route 114, approximately one-half mile west of its intersection with U.S. 23 at Middle Creek.

Included in that territory is property which the Floyd County Development Authority last week offered to buy from Lowe's Investment Corporation for use as the Kentucky Opry site and for possible commercial and industrial development.

The other proposed ordinance read for the first time at Monday's city council meeting, ordinance #13-92, pertains to an interlocal cooperation agreement between the city of Prestonsburg and Floyd County.

This agreement states that Prestonsburg and Floyd County will occasionally work together to propose, acquire, construct and equip certain public projects. If both the city council and Floyd Fiscal Court approve the agreement, they will jointly form the non-profit Prestonsburg-Floyd County Public Properties Corporation.

They will also create a separate administrative entity known as the Eastern Kentucky Convention Com-

Former PHS principal sues over public reprimand

The retired principal of Prestonsburg High School has filed suit against the Floyd County Board of Education and former superintendent Ron Hager claiming disciplinary action taken against him was discussed in a public meeting.

Robert May filed a lawsuit in Floyd County Circuit Court Tuesday and his attorney, Keith Bartley, said he will file a concurrent action in U.S. District Court claiming action taken by the board at a special meeting on August 8, 1991, damaged May's professional reputation.

The suit alleges that the board called the special meeting to "discuss disciplinary type action" to be taken against May and that that discussion was held in open session before the general public. The suit claims that May's "statutory rights" to a closed hearing were violated.

Landfill protesters criticize proposal

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Over 100 concerned citizens and county officials attended last Thursday's meeting of the Ivel and Big Sandy Citizens Against Pollution, protesting the proposed placement of a residual landfill at Ivel.

The Ivel and Big Sandy Citizens Against Pollution committee has expressed concern that the landfill, which has been proposed by Pikeville-based Costain Coal Incorporated, will present a potential hazard to Floyd County, the community of Ivel and the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District.

The proposed facility will contain fly and bottom coal ash generated from the combustion of coal from the coal-fired utility operated by A E S Cedar Bay, Inc., a Jacksonville, Florida-based power company.

Malcom Layne, the president of the Ivel and Big Sandy Citizens, enlisted the aid of Pikeville attorney Michael DeBourbon and Pikeville physician Dr. James L. Black, who were instrumental in stopping the construction of a soil incinerator in Pike County.

Black discussed the potential health hazards presented by fly ash and bottom ash, and distributed literature published by the Environmental Research Foundation that detailed the hazards presented by fly

Victim's account varies :

Rape trial ends with hung jury

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Almost three hours of deliberations by a Floyd County jury Monday ended in a stalemate when jurors were evenly split on a verdict in a first degree rape case.

Floyd County Circuit Court Judge Harold Stumbo declared a mistrial in the case of the commonwealth versus Israel Tim Boyd. Boyd, who is from Coldwater at Betsy Layne, was indicted last year for first degree rape for allegedly raping a 14-year-old girl in March 1991.

The day-long trial got off to a rocky start for the commonwealth when the alleged victim, now 15, admitted she had lied about events which resulted in the indictment.

Boyd's attorney, Keith Bartley, pointed out contradictions in the girl's statements to the examining physician, her mother, the state police detective and statements made from the witness stand.

"Why did you lie?" Bartley asked. "Because I don't remember everything that happened," the girl replied.

Testimony revealed that the girl was spending the weekend with a girlfriend when the alleged rape occurred on Friday, March 22, 1991, and that the girl did not report the incident to her mother until March 24.

The girl testified that Boyd had pulled her into a bedroom and forcibly removed her clothing and raped her. She testified that she screamed for her friend and was calling for help during the alleged rape.

The girl's friend testified that the alleged victim followed Boyd to the bathroom in the trailer and she did not hear her screaming or calling for help. She added that the two were gone for approximately 15 minutes.

A key element in the case was the suppression of physical and medical evidence because the prosecution could not prove the chain of custody.

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton tried to introduce into evidence a pair of blue jeans and panties worn by the alleged victim and medical reports.

Judge Stumbo ruled that the evidence could not be submitted because the commonwealth could not prove the clothing had not been tampered with prior to it being taken into custody by the state police detective.

Patton filed a motion Tuesday to have the case retried.

Allen precinct goes "dry"

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Fewer than half of the 579 registered voters in Allen-Dwale's #44 voting precinct turned out for Saturday's local option election, outlawing the continued sale of alcoholic beverages in the precinct by a vote of 174-68.

The precinct has been wet since the June, 1982 election which legalized the sale of beer, wine and liquor in Floyd County.

Reverend Kenneth Lemaster, the pastor of the Allen United Methodist Church, said in an earlier interview that a group of Allen citizens had petitioned for the election after a local businessman's unsuccessful bid to operate a nightclub at New Allen. Lemaster said that the group was advised to prevent such businesses from operating in the area in the future was to call for an election to have alcohol sales banned in the precinct.

The petition, signed by more than 100 of the precinct's registered voters, was delivered February 21 to Floyd County Clerk Carla "Robinson" Boyd.

Businesses in the #44 voting precinct that currently sell alcoholic beverages will have 90 days following the certification of the election to sell their remaining stock.

Boyd said Monday that citizens representing the John Ant #22 voting precinct at McDowell, which is currently wet, have also presented her with a petition requesting a local option election. The petition was filed June 27, and contained 137 certified signatures although only 58 signatures were required to qualify for the special election.

That election will be held August 8. For further details, please contact Carla Boyd at 886-3816.

Boysen admits error but declines to act

Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen told a small delegation from Floyd County Friday that he had made a mistake in recommending a particular candidate for the district's superintendent but added that he would not ask his choice to withdraw from consideration.

Boysen's admission was discussed by the Pritchard Committee for Academic Excellence which recommended during a weekend meeting that the public be more involved in those decisions.

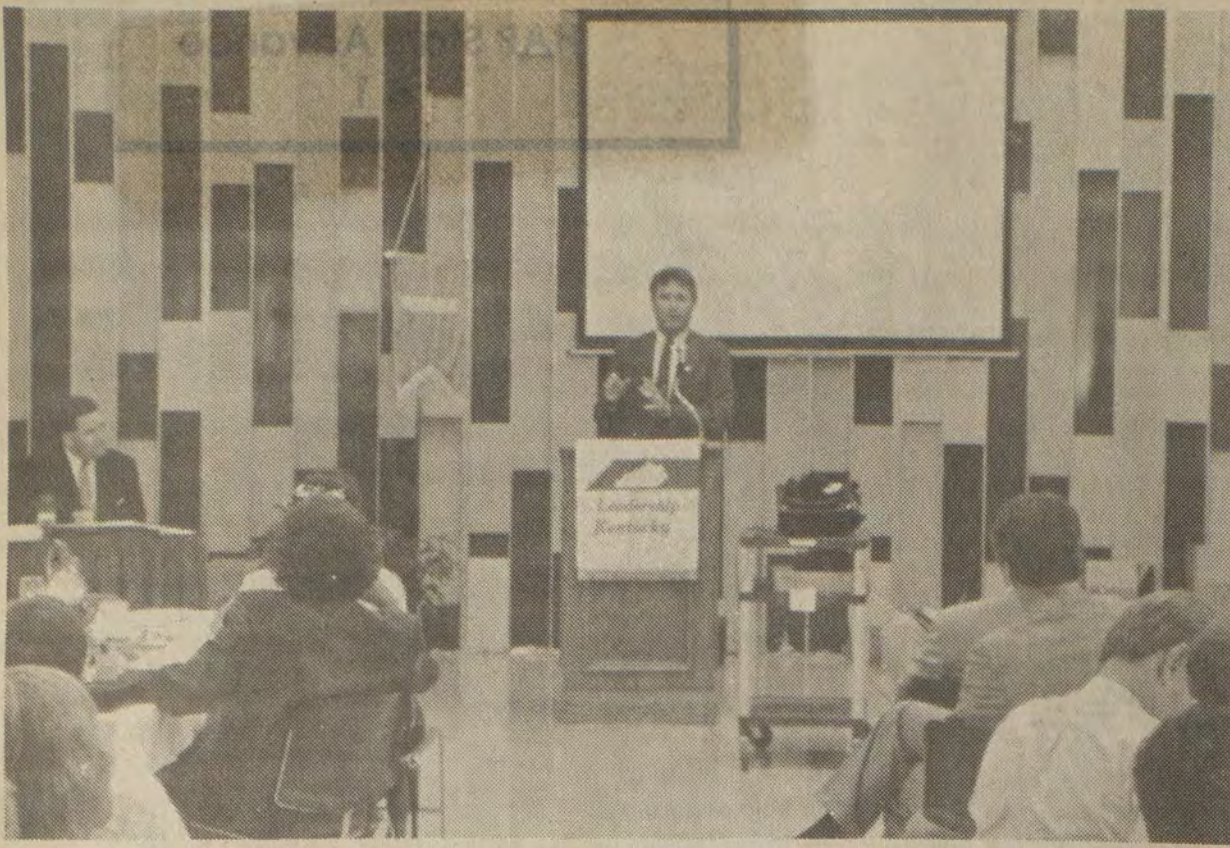

The committee passed a resolution that said, "We condemn any effort to circumvent or sabotage broad and open community involvement in all phases of the Kentucky Education Reform Act and its amendments."

Commissioner Boysen's recommendation to the Floyd County Board of Education to consider former Hardin County superintendent Steven Towler has set off a wave of controversy across the state. Floyd board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell gave Boysen veto power over the board's choice for a new superintendent.

Boysen vetoed the board's candidate, Nebraska educator William Zitterkopf and instead recommended Towler.

State school board member Tom Gish met with Boysen last week and told him that Floyd County wanted "somebody totally from the outside."

mission, which will oversee the Public Properties Corporation. The Convention Commission will consist of a five-member board of commissioners, two of whom will be appointed by the County Judge/Executive, two appointed by the Mayor and one appointed jointly by both officials.

Among other issues discussed:
 • The council reaffirmed its earlier endorsement of placing the new Prestonsburg High School at the old drive-in site, rather than at the proposed site at Middle Creek
 • The Prestonsburg Junior Varsity Cheerleaders will conduct a fundraising roadblock at the intersection of North Lake Drive and U.S. 23 on August 1.

The Military Order of Purple Hearts will also conduct a roadblock at that intersection on August 8.

• The council approved an amended ordinance on an emergency basis to make Mary Jane Lane at Trimble Branch a one-way street, westbound, with speed humps.

• The council voted to retain the accounting firm of Jones & Pack as city auditors for the coming fiscal year.

• City attorney Larry Brown asked the council to ratify a proposed settlement in a suit with the Hatton-Allen Insurance Agency.

• The council voted to join Floyd County, the Kentucky Power Company, Mountain Enterprises and Bocook Engineering in financing the river walk at Prestonsburg Community College.

• The council discussed the standard operating procedures of the Prestonsburg Fire Department in open burning, concerning the demolition of the old Pelphrey building.

• The Prestonsburg Volunteer Fire Department asked that the council provide insurance on all volunteer firemen. Under the current policy, volunteer firefighters are only insured while fighting fires and during active training procedures.

• The Prestonsburg City Police Department has received a grant from the Justice Cabinet to aid in the fight against drunk driving.

• The city council entered two closed executive sessions during the course of the meeting, the first to discuss pending litigation and property acquisitions and the second to discuss auxiliary police vacancies.

• The city has extended once-a-week garbage pick-up for residential customers indefinitely. Those persons who formerly had garbage pick-up on Monday and Thursday will now have it on Thursday only, and those who had it on Tuesday and Friday will now have it on Tuesday only.

• The city still has a limited number of Herbie-Curbie roll-out containers available if any customers wish to subscribe to this service. Please call the City Clerk's office for information at 886-2335.

• Free trash pick-up will no longer be provided. The rate for having trash picked up may be obtained from the City Administrator.

The city council meets on the second Monday of each month during the summer and will resume its normal meeting schedule in September. The public is invited to attend.

Head injury support group to meet

According to the National Head Injury Foundation more than 2 million Americans sustain traumatic brain injuries each year. Of these 500,000 are serious enough to require hospitalization. Every 5 minutes one person will die as a result of a head injury and another will become permanently disabled. A survivor of a severe head injury typically faces 5 to 10 years of rehabilitation at an estimated cost of $4 million.

Young males between the ages of 15 and 24 have the highest rate of injury. Motor vehicle accidents account for one-half of all traumatic brain injuries with falls causing 21%, assaults and violence 12%, and sports/recreation 10%. Head injury is the leading cause of disability in children and young adults.

These statistics are frightening; however, many people are uninformed regarding the seriousness of this problem. Many head injuries could be prevented through education of the public, but funds for head injury programs are severely limited. "The Traumatic Brain Injury Act of 1992" addresses the lack of services for people with head injuries and authorizes funding for prevention programs and research.

If you are interested in learning more about head injuries and would like to support the "Traumatic Brain Injury Act of 1992", please attend the July 18th meeting of the East Kentucky Head Injury Support Group. The group will meet at 10:30 a.m. at the Floyd County Library in Prestonsburg.

The case was also presented to a Floyd County Grand Jury but no indictment was returned.

The charges against Berkheimer and his subsequent suspension sparked widespread dissension and a student walkout at the school last spring. Berkheimer has 10 days to answer the charges levied by Smith and to request a hearing to contest his dismissal.

Berkheimer's attorney, John David Caudill, offered no comment on his client's dismissal but said, "I'm not going to violate the law even though some others have."

Caudill said he would comment on the issue after Tuesday night's regular board of education meeting.

Boysen

...who could bring us a fresh vision." Gish described a July 7 public meeting between Towler and about 50 Floyd County citizens as a "wake for the death of school reform in Eastern Kentucky."

House Education Committee Chairman Roger Noe said Boysen was "way out of line in trying to impose his views" in Floyd County and called Towler "one of the leaders of the old-boy society."

The Pritchard Committee was careful not to criticize Boysen for his actions relating to Floyd County's search for a new superintendent, but said that citizens expect a "new and more substantial voice in making decisions about local schools" in return for their support.

The Floyd County Education Association has asked Penney Sanders, director of the state's Office of Education Accountability, to investigate Boysen for his role in Floyd County's search process. Sanders has made no comment on that request.

The board was expected to finalize a four-year contract with Towler at Tuesday's meeting at Betsy Layne High School.

Fired teacher files suit

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Prestonsburg High School teacher who was not rehired for the 1992-93 school year filed a lawsuit Tuesday against the Floyd County Board of Education and interim superintendent Eldon Smith.

Patricia Elliott, a biology teacher, claims in the suit that she was rehired April 7 for the coming school year, but received a letter dated April 27 from Smith saying her contract was not being renewed. A July 7 letter from Smith said Elliott was not being rehired as a result of a reduction in force of 21 non-tenured first-year teachers.

The suit claims that the July 7 letter fails to give a reason for the staff reduction and that the April 27 letter terminating her contract violates state law and board policy.

Elliott's lawsuit asserts that she has suffered embarrassment, humiliation, damage to her professional reputation and was denied due process of law. Elliott is seeking reinstatement as a biology teacher at Prestonsburg High School and monetary compensation.

and bottom ash created by the incineration of trash.

Primary among those hazards are the presence of heavy metals such as arsenic and lead in the ash.

Black said that health officials had found in recent years that many cases of lead poisoning affecting children were caused not by peeling paint but by similar landfills contaminating water supplies.

Layne appealed to the emotions of the assembled group, saying that his main concern was the welfare of his friends and family. He added that Eastern Kentucky should not be the dumping ground for the rest of the nation.

"If (the ash) isn't good enough for the state of Florida," Layne reiterated, "it isn't good enough for the community of Ivel, Floyd County or Eastern Kentucky."

DeBourbon said that A E S Cedar Bay had required Costain to accept the waste in its exclusive contract in order to avoid legal and financial complications with Florida officials and suggested that similar concerns might lessen Costain's desire to construct the landfill.

"A E S Cedar Bay is trying to pass the buck so it won't hurt their pocket book..." DeBourbon said. "I'm willing to bet that Costain does not have the capital with which it can afford the multitude of lawsuits to come from future generations."

Several Floyd County officials spoke out about the landfill, including school board member Tommy Boyd; Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond; Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and Magistrate Gerald DeRossett.

"I don't know much about ash, but Dr. Black scares the hell out of me," Boyd said.

DeBourbon urged those attending the meeting to express their fears to local officials, and said that he would consider representing the group legally if they did not gain satisfaction through the usual channels.

Layne stressed to Costain engineers Mike Francisco and Tom Mattox that he had no desire to harm Costain's business or the coal industry in Eastern Kentucky, but said that he felt the landfill should be placed elsewhere.

Francisco said that the landfill did not present any danger to the environment and that Costain had thoroughly researched the project and permitted it to the full letter of the law.

Francisco added that coal ash does not contain the same concentrations of harmful chemicals which are found in conventional incinerated solid waste.

An official from the Solid Waste Division of Waste Management in Frankfort said Monday that fly and bottom ash from coal incineration are considered neither toxic nor hazardous.

Francisco and Mattox have said in a series of interviews that Costain has stipulated in its contract with A E S Cedar Bay that it will not accept any waste that is deemed hazardous.

Francisco said that fly ash is used in Florida in much the same way as limestone is used in Kentucky, such as in concrete and asphalt and as cover for gardens.

Mattox said that fly ash is currently being used as construction material in several states and foreign countries, and added that it is even being considered for use as a liner in solid waste landfills to protect the environment. He compared its usage to the practice of using ash from coal burnt in the home as fertilizer for gardens.

Mattox said that Costain had purchased the property from County Judge/Executive John M. Stumbo, school board chairman "Shag" Campbell and Cecil Burke Hall nearly two year ago after being granted an easement on the property by the Floyd Fiscal Court. Mattox added that Costain officials had met with residents of the Stratton Branch area of Ivel at that time to discuss the project.

The Ivel and Big Sandy Citizens Against Pollution will meet Thursday evening at the Floyd County Circuit Courtroom at 7 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

For Your Eyes Only

by Marcus S. Minix, FNAO

PREVENTING CHILDREN'S EYE INJURIES

By taking time to inspect and remove the hazards to potential eye injury in your home, car, and play areas, most all children's potential eye injuries may be prevented.

Nearly half of all eye injuries that occur each year happen at home. In the kitchen look for silverware, pens, pencils, and scissors that might be in the reach of children. Don't expose children to cleaning products and detergents. Install locks on cabinets and drawers.

In the bathroom keep cosmetics and brushes out of reach. In the garage secure paints, pesticides, fertilizers, and adhesives by proper storage.

Before mowing the lawn, remove objects in the grass that could become missiles. In the bedroom don't allow jumping on the beds.

Stairway falls may be prevented by placing gates at the top and bottom. Add handrails and adequate lighting. Place padding on the sharp corners of end tables in all rooms.

Although you should read the warning labels and instructions on all toys, consider your own child's ability to use those toys. Avoid those toys which have sharp points. According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, hospital emergency rooms treat over 290,000 product-related eye injuries each year.

Don't buy BB guns or toys that shoot objects into the air. Don't allow children to play with fireworks.

Don't leave sharp objects loose in the car which could fly into the air during quick stops or turns. Use seat belts to prevent injury.

If you observe that your child has a red eye, cuts around the eyes, eyes that do not move properly, unusually large pupil size, or complains of pain, seek immediate medical attention.

Have your child's eyes examined regularly and correct all hazards that could occur at home or in the car.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

You know you've been to one too many class reunions when they give a door prize to the person with the grayest hair.

No, we didn't win.

We have realized, at the expense of great pain and suffering, that having fun ain't all it's cracked up to be, particularly when the fun lasts until 5:30 a.m. Sunday morning but the pain and suffering is just getting started.

Thankfully, another five years will pass before our next reunion. That's just enough time to recover from the last one.

Uh-oh, feel a poem coming on....

Happy anniversary
Celeste Preston Perry.
I'm glad it was me
You decided to marry.

Together we've traveled,
for a score-minus-three.
And we've added some branches
to our family tree.

It's been seventeen years since you said "I do."
And if they asked me today,
I'd still answer "me too!"

The state law which provides for a greater return of coal severance taxes to coal counties took effect Tuesday and the good news is that not a dime of the extra revenue can be used to pad county payrolls.

That's a dramatic difference from the past when revenue measures like the gasoline tax increase helped officials fill their pockets every time you filled your tank.

Additional coal severance revenues will be earmarked primarily for use on projects that will create jobs.

County officials shouldn't feel left out, though.

Another law which took effect Tuesday allows fiscal court magistrates and commissioners to perform wedding ceremonies—for which they may charge a fee.

Couple of interesting headlines Monday in the state dailies in reference to a Pritchard Committee for Academic Excellence sampling of the views of 70 Kentuckians on school reform:

"Public not loyal to school reforms, committee says," proclaimed the Lexington Herald-Leader.

"Discussions uncover growing support for state school reforms," advised the Louisville Courier-Journal.

A tad contradictory, wouldn't you say?

Perhaps, but the most interesting thing about the newspapers' headline analysis of the situation concerning school reform is that both headlines are probably accurate.

Another poll, conducted by a group called Kentucky Charities for Constitutional Amendment, suggests that Kentuckians are more likely to legalize charitable bingo this fall than they are to support gubernatorial succession or reduce the number of statewide elections.

Those issues are the subjects of proposed constitutional amendments that state voters will be asked to ratify or reject in November.

Isn't it interesting to see where our priorities lie?

Letters

Editor:

This is in reply to Mr. John D. Sammons letter in the Times last week.

Mr. Sammons stated in his letter about putting the Prestonsburg High School up on Middle Creek near his property and to name it, "North Floyd County High School" or whatever, but remove the name of "Prestonsburg."

Every time I get the paper, I have to read where Mr. Sammons is running his mouth again and criticizing something about Prestonsburg.

I wonder if it's Mr. Sammons property location, maybe influencing and making his statements self-serving and/or freeloading.

The city would have to install other water lines and a big new sewer line so that the property owners could have water and sewer hook-ups without having to pay any construction costs or without paying any city taxes.

Our city of Prestonsburg already supplies over one-half of Floyd County with water—and that's alright—but, we do not have to take your crap (sewage or criticism) unless you pay city taxes like everyone else that gets city services in the city limits.

Now, Mr. Sammons, since we suspect that your real reasons of complaint are tainted—why don't you take your suggestions and criticisms of the Prestonsburg High School and "stick it where the sun don't shine"—and I will volunteer my time and other Prestonsburg High School graduates also, to help you get the job done.

Editor:

When you make a mistake, it takes courage to admit that you're wrong. Commissioner Thomas Boyesen has said that he was wrong in recommending a candidate for the position of superintendent of Floyd County school system. He should be given some credit for that, but a man has to do more than just admit his mistake. We try to teach our children that if they make a mess, they have a responsibility to clean it up. Commissioner Boyesen should have made a real effort to correct his mistake. Instead, he left the people of Floyd County to deal with it.

Our local board of education also took the easy way out by simply going along with the commissioner's recommendation. They didn't pay enough attention to the real concerns that some people in Floyd County had about the way in which this superintendent was being selected. It is going to leave a bitter taste. A decision has been made hurriedly that we will have to live with for the next four years. We had a right to expect more of the local board and the commissioner.

McConnell's Comments

by Sen. Mitch McConnell

"MOTOR-VOTER" IS A LEMON

"Motor-voter" is yet another feel-good facade of reform designed to score political points at the expense of this nation. A serious effort to reduce the deficit and tackle other pressing problems requires courage, unlike an unfunded "motor-voter" mandate put forth in the name of democracy.

The "motor-voter" bill is advanced on the unsupported premise that voter registration is too difficult in some states and consequently, voter turnout has declined over the last three decades.

There are five points conveniently ignored or glossed over by proponents of this legislation: (1) voter turnout is not the most pressing issue facing our nation; (2) voter registration is not that difficult at present; (3) voter turnout has steadily declined, even though voter registration procedures have been liberalized over the last three decades; (4) "motor-voter" would foster election fraud; and (5) states simply cannot afford it.

People are not deterred from voting because registration is too difficult. They do not vote because they do not perceive voting as having an immediately discernible impact on their lives, and the candidates and issues on the ballot often do not provide a compelling reason to vote. These factors are not addressed by the "motor-voter" bill.

"Motor-voter" might register more people. However, it does not follow that those registered would actually drive to the polls on election day. The Congressional Research Service, the General Accounting Office, and the bipartisan Committee for the Study of the American Electorate have studied this issue at length and have looked at states already operating "motor-voter" systems. These objective observers concluded that "motor-voter" does not increase turnout. In fact, they observed that the only sure means of increasing turnout are penalties and fines, elements found in high-turnout European and Latin American countries often cited by "motor-voter" proponents.

"Motor-voter" also carries a couple of exorbitant price tags. First is the inestimable cost of opening the electoral process up to increased vote fraud. The integrity of the electoral process in a democracy is priceless and would be seriously compromised by this bill. Minors, illegal aliens and felons would be registered automatically when they apply for drivers licenses unless they check "no". Registration by mail facilitates fraud. Registration at welfare agencies could lead to intimidation — overt, implicit, or incidental.

The most dangerous provision of the "motor-voter" bill is its "escape hatch": those states who cannot afford to implement a "motor-voter" system are allowed to opt out by adopting election-day registration. As the Justice Department testified, this is an engraved invitation for election fraud, a problem which already exists in parts of Kentucky.

Further, the people who shout loudest about the critical nature of this bill are the same people who have neglected to include a provision to pay for it. That would necessitate a tough decision: raise taxes, cut programs, or both. None is an appealing prospect. In Kentucky, the millions it would take to establish a "motor-voter" system could be better spent on improving health care, education and child nutrition. "Motor-voter" is another unfunded federal mandate dumped on the states — symptomatic of a spineless Congress.

The states, unlike Congress, are required by law to balance their budgets. That is a discipline Congress cannot fathom. The bad news is that the cost of this feel-good "motor-voter" bill will be paid for by you, the taxpayer. The good news is that President Bush has vetoed the "motor-voter" bill. I, for one, will vote to sustain that crucial veto.

Other Voices

By Dr. Adron Doran
President Emeritus
Morehead State University

I have been closely associated with many of the efforts to develop and conserve human and natural resources in Eastern Kentucky for the past forty years. My prime interest has been related to programs and activities to enhance the economic, social and educational growth of the Appalachian region of the Commonwealth.

I spent 23 years as President of Morehead State University during which time we dedicated the resources of the university to improving living and working conditions in the region. I served as a member of the Eastern Kentucky Development Commission, which was appointed by acting Governor Harry Lee Waterfield and continued under the administration of Bert T. Combs. It became the pattern for the federal Appalachian Regional Commission created by President John F. Kennedy. During the life of the EKDC we developed specific plans to improve education, construct access roads and control floods. Through these experiences I had first hand knowledge of the importance of mining coal as the life blood of the economy.

I observed the efforts of B.F. Reed, Harry Laviers, Sr., and other coal operators to improve the health and welfare of Kentucky coal miners and their families. Many of our people have been placed in a disadvantaged competitive position with business and industrial enterprises in other sections. And we register strong opposition to any form of state or federal legislation which would place our capital investors and working men and women at a distinct disadvantage in the coal mining industry.

Personally, I am greatly disturbed about the effects which the legislation proposed by Senator Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia will have on the coal industry in Kentucky if enacted into law. Senator Rockefeller proposes that a federal production tax be placed upon non-union mines to pay health and welfare programs for which large union companies have contracted with the United Mine Workers of America. No objection can be raised against the agreement between the union companies and their employees to provide retiree health care. However, a valid objection can be raised against the proposal to levy a tax on the non-union companies to pay for the programs the large union companies provide to their employees. Those companies who signed the contract with the UMWA should not be allowed to use the government of the United States to bail them out of an expensive agreement. Those who hired the fiddler should pay for the dance.

It is abundantly clear that the union-free mine operators in Eastern Kentucky should not be taxed to pay for a program that places them in a competitive disadvantage in the marketplace. The non-signatories to the contract are providing health care programs which are beneficial and acceptable to their employees. Many of these mines are operating on a small profit margin under the most favorable circumstances. To place a federal production tax upon these union-free Kentucky operators would drive many of them out of business.

Beware of this Trojan horse!

It seems to me that the Rockefeller bill is an effort to "soak the poorer to provide relief for the richer." According to an old adage, the Rockefeller proposal would "rob Peter to pay Paul." This legislation represents a very unfair burden to be placed upon the union-free mine operators of Kentucky.

The citizens of Kentucky must become aware of and be aroused by Rockefeller's effort to totally wreck Kentucky's coal economy. Contacts should be made with our representatives and senators in Congress to register opposition to such unfair provisions of federal legislation as that proposed by Senator John D. Rockefeller IV.

All of our Congressmen should be encouraged to adopt the position of Congressman Hal Rogers, who says, "It would place the burden of shoring up health benefits of UMWA retirees almost entirely upon Kentucky coal operators and miners."

The solution to the problem is for the large union companies, many of whom made tremendous profits last year, to pay the retirees as they initially agreed to do. And secondly, the UMWA 1950 Pension Fund is over-funded and additional dollars could be shifted from it to the health-care fund.

Report to Kentucky

by Sen. Wendell Ford

"Motor-Voter" Veto Was No Way To Celebrate Independence Day

It was hard for me to believe that the President vetoed S. 250, the National Voter Register Act, on the eve of our recent Independence Day celebration.

I sponsored this bill to expand our democratic process by making it easier for all Americans to register and vote — the very foundation of our freedom and independence.

Under this legislation, commonly known as the "motor-voter" bill, you can register to vote when applying for or renewing a driver's license as well as by mail application or through various agencies in the states.

It's a simple procedure. If you don't want to register, you simply check the appropriate box.

Why do we need S. 250?

It is definitely not because Americans are too contented with our current political system to bother to go to the polls, as some have ridiculously suggested.

It is because too many citizens feel alienated from a system they see as frustrating, inflexible and unresponsive to their needs. And because arcane and unnecessary registration procedures keep far too many citizens from the voting booth.

Only 36 percent of eligible voters took part in the last congressional election. Four out of five newly eligible high school students are not exercising the right to vote.

We need S. 250 because only 60 percent of voting-age Americans are registered to vote — but 85 to 90 percent of registered voters do vote in presidential elections.

What is this veto saying to the people? I believe it is saying: "Let's maintain the status quo. It is all right to be afraid of the electorate and to hide from the will of the people by refusing to open up the system and implement change."

We know that this is the wrong answer. We also know that the critics claims about cost and fraud do not hold up when you look at the way we have structured this bill.

Cost? About six cents per voter in the District of Columbia. The Congressional Budget Office has found that we can actually save $7-10 million per year in administrative costs by having year-round registration.

Fraud? Our bill makes voter fraud a federal crime with stringent criminal penalties. Twenty eight states along with the District already have this type of registration, and no instances of fraud have been reported.

S. 250 is a pro-democracy bill with strong support from the League of Women Voters and many other groups and individuals of all ages. I am pleased that youth groups, such as Rock the Vote, are getting involved in the effort to encourage young people to fully participate in our great democracy.

We know that we can register 90 percent of eligible voters with a "motor-voter" system. Our bill can help all Americans to have a say in the way this country is governed. I will keep fighting to see that our goal of bringing government closer to the people will be a reality on our next Independence Day.

Kentucky program aimed at treating kids who sexually assault other kids

The ranks of juvenile sex offenders are growing, but so are the numbers of professionals trained to treat them, thanks to a program developed by the Kentucky Department for Social Services and the University of Louisville.

"Early help for youths to control their own actions and curb violent tendencies before they become adults is what sex offender treatment is all about," said Social Services Commissioner Peggy Wallace. "While it fills a critical need in Kentucky, our program is also gaining national attention."

That's because little training is available anywhere else for treating juvenile sexual offenders and troubled youths with sexual abuse in their backgrounds, according to Michele Foley, training branch manager in the agency's Division of Children's Residential Services.

A number of states are observing and planning to replicate Kentucky's Juvenile Sexual Offender Counselor Certification Program, developed by Foley's unit in cooperation with U of L's Family Therapy Program.

Seventy-five counselors from the state's juvenile treatment facilities are in various stages of the program that blends three weeks of academic training with six months of supervised counseling practice.

"Treatment is based on the strategy proven useful in drug abuse, alcoholism and other behavioral diseases," Foley said, "that is, that behavior is learned and repeated, but it can be unlearned and wrong acts halted if the person learns techniques to control his or her actions."

In small groups and with structured exercises, the youths learn about empathy for victims, human sexuality, healthy expression of anger, and appropriate assertiveness.

In individual counseling, they work on "relapse prevention"—learning what their own cycle of impulses and offenses is, what things trigger them to act, and how they can detour themselves around their triggers and deal with frustrations in safe ways.

Among the 90 youth aged 12 through 18 in sexual offender treatment at the state's children's treatment facilities last year were a number who were there for other problems, not committed as sexual offenders.

"Our staff members now aware of the links between sexual offenders and other hostile behavior find that the teenagers are disclosing their own past sexual offenses," Foley said. "If they can then block their own path toward rape and other violent acts, that's prevention—and it's our business."

Awareness is a key "product," Foley said. "I am getting many calls from social workers around the state asking how they can learn more to help families they are working with—families, for instance, in which children who themselves may be victims of emotional or physical trauma are acting out their anger by molesting others."

"Just becoming aware of the signs of questions to ask to discover violent tendencies signaling harm to others lets social workers help families make behavior changes that are dramatically important to society," Foley said.

Commissioner Wallace said, "Many family services workers have felt that, with a few families, they as counselors have been 'missing a piece,' unable to find the right clue to problems affecting family members. Techniques from this training can be applied in a number of situations."

"Now we want to make this special training widely available to those in counseling, law enforcement and the courts—and to promote treatment in the communities, especially for very young offenders and for follow-up help after youth leave our treatment centers."

Target Green Diversion Program recognized

by National Environmental Organization
Target Green has been selected to receive a Certificate of Environmental Achievement from Renew America, a national environmental organization based in Washington, D.C., it was announced June 24. Target Green was chosen by leaders of the nation's environmental community for its success in protecting the environment, while serving as a model which can be replicated around the country. Target Green, a tree planting program utilized by the statewide Court Designated Worker (CDW) program, is a diversion option for juvenile offenders.

The program provides an alternative to formal court proceedings for first and second time public offenders who are eligible for community service hours. Target Green's objectives include accountability, education, and deterrence. Seedlings are purchased twice a year from the Kentucky Division of Forestry and are planted on non-profit agency soils throughout the state. To date, over 150,000 seedlings have been planted since the program was initiated in 1988. Target Green will be listed in Renew America's 1992 Environmental Success Index, the most comprehensive guide to the nation's environmental programs. Updated annually with over 1600 entries, the Index serves as a unique directory to our country's environmental solutions. Based in Washington, D.C., Renew America is a nonprofit organization committed to restoring our nation's communities through environmental action. Renew America's aim is to recognize and promote successful projects around the country that conserve, nurture and improve the environment.

Anything Goes sets sail at Jenny Wiley Theatre

Come on a cruise ship with us at Jenny Wiley Theatre this summer as we launch our latest musical offering, Cole Porter's Anything Goes.

It's a night of memorable songs, tap-dancing beauties, and intrigue. This classic Broadway show helped launch the career of Ethel Merman, who became synonymous with the title song.

Director David Weiss, recently retired Theatre Department Chairman at the University of Virginia, says Anything Goes is "one of America's great classic musicals."

"It is the most revived show of the 30s," said Weiss. "The reason for this, and the reason I like the show so well, is the music. It's one of Cole Porter's best scores and so many of the songs are recorded over and over again."

The original Broadway offering of this show was back in 1935 with Merman and Victor Moore. Broadway revivals of note include the 1962 version which starred Hal Linden (of Barney Miller fame) and the 1987 version with Patti LuPone (LuPone is most recognized as the mother on the ABC family drama Life Goes On).

"It's the most traditional of all the shows here this season," said Weiss. "It's certainly one that will appeal to senior citizens who will remember the original production and it's certainly music that anyone will enjoy. It has more recognizable numbers than any of the other shows we're doing."

Some of the songs you'll remember include the title song, I Get A Kick Out Of You and You're The Top.

Starring in our production is Darren Bagert, of New Orleans, as Billy (the Linden role); Lisa Dames, a graduate of Northern Kentucky University, as Reno Sweeney (the Merman and LuPone role); Jennifer Lampert, of New Jersey, as Hope; and Michael Fisher, of Ironton, Ohio, as Moonface.

Anything Goes, according to Weiss, features "strong voices and great tap dancing."

"Dee Anne (Bryll, one of two choreographers at JWT this summer) has done a remarkable job with choreographing the show," said Weiss. "We were also very fortunate to employ some very strong tap dancers. Also, the sets and costumes are simply beautiful."

"Everyone will have a good time," said Weiss. "I can't imagine anyone not enjoying the satire and music and the fun of this show."

Anything Goes runs through August, but many shows are already sold out. For ticket information, phone (606) 886-9274.

Dr. G. Anthony Peffer

PCC professor has article in history journal

Dr. G. Anthony Peffer, assistant professor of history at Prestonsburg Community College, had an article published in the Spring 1992 edition of The Journal of American Ethnic History.

The article, entitled "From Under the Sojourner's Shadow: A Historical Study of Chinese Female Immigration to America, 1852-1882", examines the perspectives from which historians have studied Chinese female immigration, focusing on the years before the Chinese Exclusion Act was passed in 1882. It analyzes the last 100 years of scholarship related to this immigration period.

Today, scholars are beginning to reject traditional perspectives, which regarded the small percentage of females in the Chinese American population as the result of cultural restrictions. Instead, newer studies are focusing on the role of misapplied United States law in creating this gender imbalance.

This is a tribute of love and remembrance to our Mother who will be 100 years old on July 17, 1992. Mother passed away May 9th, 1987. Mother, I hold a life of memories in my heart that no one could ever take away. Mother, you suffered so long in this world, but where you are now I know you are not suffering anymore. I hope all of the children will be with you and Dad some day in that beautiful home on high. Just keep watching and waiting for us with that beautiful smile, and your arms opened wide, then we will never part again, sadly missed but not forgotten.

From company town to our town—

Giving Wheelwright back to the people

by Cathy Mattingly
Kentucky Housing Corporation

What do you do when a whole town needs to be revitalized and rehabilitated? Well, if you're Kentucky Housing Corporation, you might just buy the place. That's what KHC did with Wheelwright, Kentucky in 1979. In fact, the entire town of Wheelwright had already been sold three times when KHC bought it.

Wheelwright, a small community near the southern tip of Floyd County about 12 miles from the Virginia state line, was founded and built by the Elkhorn Coal Corporation in 1916. In 1917 the town was chartered and officially recognized as a sixth class city. Little of importance took place in Wheelwright until 1930, when Elkhorn sold the entire town of over 1,500 acres to the Inland Steel Company.

Inland Steel constructed a model coal town. They installed water, sewer, natural gas and telephone systems and paved streets for the population of 3,600. They built and staffed a small hospital to serve the community. They constructed a community building with a post office, barbershop, restaurant, soda fountain and dance floor. They built a club house, churches, public library, modern schools, a playground, a laundry, theaters, bowling alleys, a swimming pool and a nine-hole golf course. They also built modern, comfortable homes, all with indoor plumbing, for their workers.

In 1966, exactly 50 years after its founding, the entire town, with a population of 2,000, was sold to Island Creek Coal Company. Then, just eight months later, Island Creek sold Wheelwright to Mountain Investment Corp., a Florida based realty company, for $1.3 million.

According to a November 12, 1966 article in the Courier-Journal announcing the sale, "Wheelwright contrast[ed] sharply with many older mining towns. Its appearance is one of cleanliness. It has no slum areas and no signs of deterioration." The community's recreational facilities, including the golf course, also helped set Wheelwright apart from other mining towns. When Mountain Investment bought Wheelwright, all of the residents were renters, but Mountain Investment sold about 150 homes to individual families. They maintained ownership of another 300 houses or sites, the business district and the utility systems.

Over the next 13 years, housing and utility systems deteriorated significantly in Wheelwright. Many people had left the town, abandoning homes and businesses. Many of the original structures were gone. Not one business remained.

In late 1978 a concerned group of Wheelwright citizens sought help to save their demoralized community. Ella Jane Hall, later to become chairman of Wheelwright's board of trustees, met in Frankfort with Dicky Allen, a field representative for Governor Julian Carroll; Linda Boone, director of rural housing at KHC; Anna Jean Tackett, then director of Floyd County Urban Renewal and now a KHC field representative; Roger Rechtenwald from the Big Sandy Area Development District; and Lynn Luallen, executive director of KHC.

Initially, Wheelwright only wanted a grant to repair the water system. "Then somebody said, 'Let's give the community back to the people.'" Luallen remembers. He then met with Governor Julian Carroll to enlist his support of the purchase of Wheelwright. He also asked Robert Adams, then KHC's director of finance and now deputy executive director, and Jim McCoy, a KHC rural specialist, to research the project.

According to Adams, the financing was arranged in short order. KHC arranged to borrow the money to purchase Wheelwright for three years from Citizens Fidelity Bank in Louisville and The Bank Josephine in Prestonsburg, using the properties as collateral. The loan was to be repaid through the sale of homes to individual citizens, sale of commercial property to businesses willing to locate in Wheelwright and three Community Development Block Grants. As part of the transaction, KHC planned to sell the utility systems to the city for $1 and the churches to their respective congregations for $1. At this point, KHC was ready to go before its board of directors.

When staff proposed buying the town of Wheelwright from Mountain Investment for $1.275 million, KHC's board of directors investigated. They learned of the town's stable history and potential for rehabilitation (Inland had built well). As Luallen remembers, the board was engaged in reasonable debate and discussion about Wheelwright when Governor Carroll walked in and said, "I hope you're talking about Wheelwright, because I'd really like to help those people." Shortly thereafter, the board voted to go forward with the purchase of Wheelwright.

One of KHC's first moves was to give Bob Murphy, a new KHC field representative, an office in Wheelwright to oversee the revitalization. Murphy soon learned that the whole town was infested with "varmints" and had all of Wheelwright, even those properties that KHC did not own, exterminated.

Tackett also maintained an office in Wheelwright. Floyd County bought many houses from KHC and began rehabilitating them with a $3 million HUD grant. Another $200,000 grant from the Department of Labor allowed the county to hire 30 men to carry out the repairs. More local workers were hired to haul the debris out of town. Once Urban Renewal had rebuilt the houses, they sold them to the people who had previously rented them. "We looked at what the people could afford," Tackett said. "We would sell a house that appraised for $40,000 to the family living in it for $6,000 if that's all they could afford." KHC provided the permanent financing.

If a home was already owned by the people living in it, Urban Renewal would provide money for repairs. "But the lower end of town wasn't included in the HUD grant," Tackett remembers, "so KHC stepped in to help." Luallen notes, "We gave them the paint and brushes and they did the work." "And just about all of them took us up on our offer," Murphy added. According to Tackett, one five-year-old boy summed up the change in the community when he told his mother, "This town sounds different." "Of course he was talking about all the hammering," Tackett recalls.

Most of the millions of dollars that flowed into Wheelwright went into repairing the utility systems. "Nothing would have gotten done without Roger Rechtenwald," said Tackett. With help from the Farmers Home Administration, Rechtenwald was able to get the utility systems back in working order and even establish a utility board.

During the four years of rehabilitation that followed, Wheelwright began to grow again. A new grocery store was built; before, residents of Wheelwright had to drive eight miles to a grocery. A branch bank was established and numerous small businesses were created. Ray Payne of Louisville helped build a senior citizens center. One of the most important additions to Wheelwright was a medical clinic, staffed with numerous doctors and nurses. Wheelwright grew socially too, as Floyd County Urban Renewal hired African-Americans to fill office jobs for the first time in the town's history.

The result of all these efforts was a town people could be proud of again, and a celebration was scheduled. "The new senior citizens center was all decorated and it looked like everybody in town had brought food," remembers Murphy. And nearly everyone involved in the transaction was there to celebrate, including Governor Carroll, representatives from Senator Wendell Ford's and Congressman Carl D. Perkins' offices, Attorney General Robert Stephens, state Representative Jitter Allen and state Senator Lowell Hughes. Altogether, Luallen estimates that 300-400 people watched in fog and drizzle as Governor Carroll officially gave the town of Wheelwright to its trustees. After 62 years of being owned and taken care of by someone else, Wheelwright citizens were given their independence.

Looking back, Luallen describes the purchase of Wheelwright as "totally unique." "With the help of countless individuals, we had played a significant role in saving this community," says Luallen. "But we couldn't have done much of anything without people like Governor Carroll, the ADDs, Anna Jean Tackett, Roger Rechtenwald, Linda Boone and everybody at KHC, the Wheelwright trustees, banks, the Revenue Cabinet, the IRS and some incredible community support—senior citizens, high school students, just everybody." "You'd have to have seen it before to know just how much we were able to do in Wheelwright," Tackett notes. "Together, we really made a difference."

HAP Little League wins; Prestonsburg falls

Case leads HAP to win over Paintsville

Every game there has been a different hero for Harold-Allen-Prater Little League All-Star team. This time it was Chad Case, shortstop for the HAP squad.

Hitting ninth in the batting order doesn't seem to bother Case. In fact, it seems to suit him just fine as he collected three hits and was on base all four times to help his team to a stunning 11-2 win over a very talented Paintsville All-Star team. Case drove in three runs in the game with two scoring on a sixth inning double. He also reached base on an error in the second frame.

The two teams faced each other in the winners' bracket of the double elimination tournament being played at Archer Park Monday evening. It was a rematch from last year when HAP won the tournament over Paintsville.

Wesley Samons picked up three runs batted in with two hits that included a fifth inning RBI double.

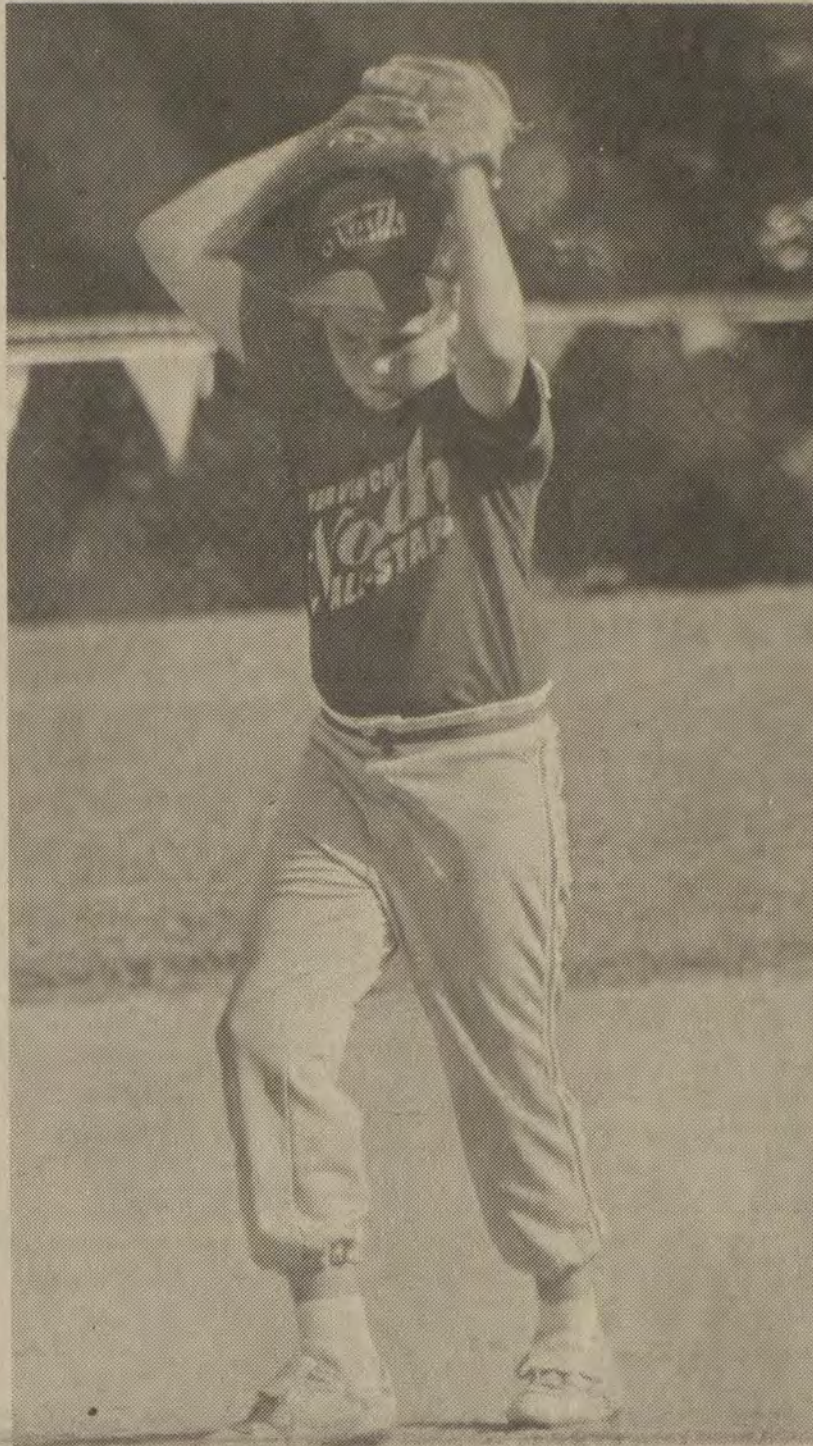

It was all Craig Johnson on the mound for the local all-star team. Johnson, who was suffering from a case of poison oak, made Paintsville scratch — scratch for hits that is. Johnson scattered seven hits in the game in giving up only two runs. He was in control, walking no one and striking out five. There was some doubt whether the hard throwing righthander could even pitch at all.

HAP pounded two Paintsville righthanders in collecting 16 hits. Todd Tackett, who is one of the area's top players, started for Paintsville but developed a problem with his elbow and removed himself from the mound. Before starting the third inning, Tackett motioned for his coach and Jason Conley was brought on to pitch.

Tying run left stranded as P'burg falls 3-2

The Beaver Creek North All-Stars strategy was to take the bat out of Gavin Hale's hand and the move worked as the hard hitting third baseman was intentionally passed three times, once to load the bases.

The North squad of coach Joe Owens posted a 3-2 victory over the Prestonsburg All-Stars and advanced in the District 7, Area 1 play.

Gary Hunter picked up the win for the North team, going the distance. Hunter struck out six batters while walking two. He allowed two runs on six hits.

Adam Hall, who didn't pitch that badly, was the losing pitcher despite leaving in the fourth inning. Hall allowed all three runs but surrendered only three hits. In fact, North only had three hits in the contest. Hall had five strike outs and he walked three.

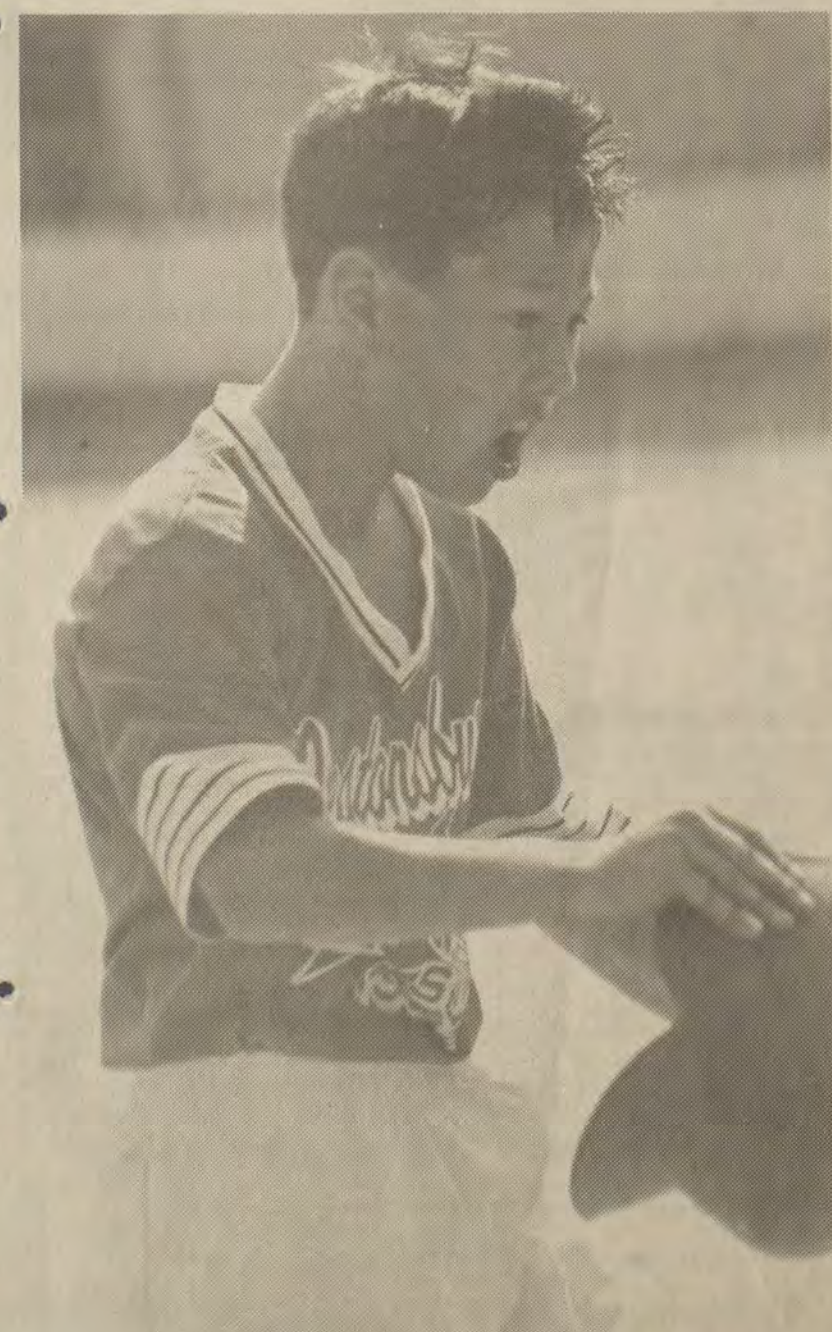

Hale was intentionally walked in the first inning when he came to bat with Grant Castle, who had singled leading off the game, on first base. Brian Fitzpatrick had popped to the pitcher and Andy Jarvis fanned. After walking Hale, Hunter got Russ Music on strikes to end the inning.

North took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning on a walk to Mike Pack leading off the bottom of the first. Pack scored on Tim Yates' one out base hit after the ball was booted in right field.

Prestonsburg went out in order in the second with Beaver North threatening in the inning. Back to back walks to Mike Combs and Ryan Manns with one out put runners at first and second. Pack hit the ball up the middle to center but Combs was forced at third base, giving Pack a fielder's choice instead of a hit.

Jarvis, Kelly power P'burg past Martin County 12-6

ERIC KELLY OF THE Prestonsburg All-Stars showed his displeasure after being called out at second base in tournament play at Archer Park Monday night. Kelly has been one of the consistent hitters in the all-star tournament. (photo by Ed Taylor)

The Prestonsburg Little League All-Stars scored six times in the bottom of the fourth inning to snap a 6-6 tie and went on to eliminate Martin County, 12-6, from the District 7, Area 2 All-Star tournament at Archer Park this past Saturday evening.

Andy Jarvis and Eric Kelly came up with the key hits in the six-run fifth. Kelly tripled with two men on base driving in Gordon Bradley and Ryan Hardee, who had walked with two out.

Russell Music opened the inning with a walk but was caught trying to steal third base. Neil Hamilton struck out when Bradley and Hardee walked and Kelly tripled. Castle was safe on an error from the catcher and Brian Fitzpatrick drew a two-out walk to load the bases. Jarvis then ripped a double, clearing the bases and giving Prestonsburg the lead for good at 12-6.

Prestonsburg led 5-0 after the first two innings, scoring two in the first and three in the second. Castle singled to start the game and Fitzpatrick walked. Jarvis bounced to the pitcher who forced Castle at third. Gavin Hale then lined a two-run double scoring Fitzpatrick and Jarvis.

In the second, Prestonsburg batted around, scoring three times. An error, a walk to Hardee put runners on first and second. Kelly grounded to short to force Hardee with Bradley moving to third. Castle collected his second hit of the game and drove in Bradley. A walk to Fitzpatrick loaded the bases and Hale walked with two out, forcing home Kelly. Castle later scored the third run for a 5-0 lead.

Martin County got on the scoreboard in the third inning when they closed the margin to two runs with three in the inning. A lead off base hit by Joshua Preece and a walk to Ronnie Sweeney set the stage for Eric Evans one out, two-run triple. Evans scored

Samons two-hits Beaver Creek North in 9-0 shutout

When you face one of the best, you have to go with your best and that is what Beaver Creek North coach Joe Owens did against defending Area 2, District 7 champion Harold-Allen-Prater (HAP) in the Little League tournament being held at Archer Park here in Prestonsburg.

Owens put his ace righthander Gary Hunter on the mound to face one of the better hitting teams in the tourney. Hunter, normally a strike out pitcher, had problems in recording the "K's" against HAP and lost a 9-0 decision.

Wesley Samons, a lefthander, tossed a two-hitter and John Ortega surprised a lot of the fans by clubbing a long two-run home run over the left field fence.

Samons worked the full six innings for HAP and picked up 11 strikeouts while walking but two batters. Mike Pack had a third inning single off Samons while the other hit went to Tim Yates, leading off the six.

Ortega, lead-off batter for HAP, demonstrated some unusual power when he jumped on a Hunter fastball and rocketed over the leftfield fence. The ball seemed to just jump off the bat of Ortega and got out of the ballpark quickly. Ortega collected two hits in the game and had two RBIs.

Russell Hall continues to play a good tournament with two hits. Bradley Reynolds managed two base hits and picked up two runs batted in.

HAP added to an already impressive 4-0 lead with five runs in the fifth inning against Hunter. Ortega got the rally underway with a one-out infield single and moved to second on a wild pitch. He scored when Chad Case lined a base hit to left field. North's catcher, Tim Yates, tried to pick Case off first with a snap throw but the throw was errant and Case moved all the way to third base. on Bobby Fields' sacrifice fly to centerfield.

Bradley scored the sixth run for Prestonsburg in the third inning when he and Hardee drew back to back walks. Kelly reached on an error to load the bases and Fitzpatrick picked up the RBI when he walked with one out, forcing in Bradley.

Martin County tied the game at 6-6 with three runs off of Hamilton, who relieved Nathan Fannin in the fourth. Eugene Fletcher singled starting the rally. He was soon erased when Neal Sammons bounced to second for the force out. Curtis Mills singled to centerfield and the ball was misplayed, allowing Sammons to score from first. Joshua Preece walked and scored on a first baseman's error to tie the game.

Hamilton got the win in relief. In two innings of work, Hamilton struck out four and walked three. He gave up three runs on three hits. Fannin went the first three and retired the first six he faced before Preece's third inning base hit. Fannin fanned one and walked one. He yielded three runs on two hits.

Sweeney was the losing pitcher, working the first inning and a third. He gave way to Neal Sammons in the second when Prestonsburg rally for three runs. Fletcher followed Sammons to the mound in the fourth inning when Prestonsburg scored six runs.

Personal watercraft no longer prohibited from locking though at Corps Locks and Dams

The Ohio River Division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers recently announced that lockage of personal watercraft, such as wave runners and jet skis, of the "sit down" variety through Corps locks will be permitted. This new policy removes the prohibition on lockage of all such watercraft which has been in effect since their increase in popularity in the early 1980's.

Personal watercraft is a generic name for the multitude of powered watercraft which can be divided into two major categories: (a) those you sit on and ride, and, (b) those that require the vessel to be moving for the operator to be out of the water, also known as the "stand up" variety.

Because of safety considerations, the "stand up" personal watercraft will not be accepted for lockage unless the craft is tied off to, and locks through with, an approved vessel. Operators of "stand up" personal watercraft will not be allowed in the water of either the lock chamber or its approaches.

The Ohio River Division is responsible for navigation, one of the Corps' major missions, on the 981-mile Ohio River and its seven tributaries. Some 60 locks and dams are located on the eight rivers to insure a nine-foot channel for year-round navigation. The above policy applies to all Corps locks located throughout the Ohio River Basin.

scored on Craig Johnson's fielder's choice that forced Samons, who had walked, at second base. Hall got his second hit of the game and scored behind Johnson when Derek Stanley tripled to right centerfield. Reynolds scored Stanley with a single. Eleven batters went to the plate for HAP in the fifth.

Four runs scored in the second for Harold-Allen-Prater. Hall led off the inning with a triple and on Stanley's one out single. Two wild pitches later, Stanley was standing on third base and trotted home on Tommy Taulbee's run producing single. It was then that Ortega hammered his round tripper scoring Taulbee ahead of him.

Beaver Creek North put runners on base in each of the first two innings but it came after two were out. Tim Yates walked in the first but was left stranded when Kaleb Yates bounced back to the mound. In the second, Brad Dasner reached on an error at second base but could get no further than first base as Johnny Case rolled to the mound.

Pack singled, leading off the third, and he made it to second when Mike Combs hit a come backer to Samons on the mound. Samons went to second with the throw but all hands were safe. Samons then got Hunter and Tim Yates on strikes and Kaleb Yates grounded to second to end the threat.

Tim Yates led off the sixth with a base hit but Samons closed out the game by striking out the next three hitters.

Hunter was the losing pitcher in going the distance for North. He struck out six while walking but one. He allowed nine runs on eight hits.

North left six runners on base and HAP stranded three. North committed two errors to HAP's one.

Tackett allowed four runs on three hits. He struck out two and walked two before leaving the game. Conley was tagged for eight runs on 11 hits, striking out three and walking none in the four innings he worked.

HAP had Tackett on the ropes in the first inning but managed to let him wriggle off as they stranded two base runners in scoring position. Johnson and Russell Hall collected back-to-back singles but were unable to score as HAP left the bases loaded when Brad Reynolds deep drive was hauled in by Eric Vukmanic in centerfield.

Paintsville had the help of a double play to get the first two outs. John Ortega walked and Wesley Samons lined hard to second baseman Bo Bocook who doubled Ortega off of first.

HAP returned the favor in the bottom of the first when B.J. Daniels got a one out single but was doubled off first when Tackett's scorcher was caught by Case at short and Daniels doubled up at first to end the inning.

Harold-Allen-Prater took a 3-0 lead in the second on a walk to Matt Kidd leading off and a one out error at third base on Craig Lyons. Kidd scored when John Ortega continued to wow the fans with an unusual display of power. Ortega lined a Tackett fastball off the fence in left centerfield for two RBIs. Samons lifted a fly ball to centerfield that Case tagged up and scored on. Ortega scored the third run on Johnson's RBI single.

Paintsville got one run back when Conley led off the third with a drive over the leftfield fence.

HAP put a runner on base in their half of the third inning but a super catch by Tackett at shortstop saved a sure run and ended the inning. Derek Stanley lined a single to the outfield and moved to third on two wild pitches. Reynolds and Kidd fanned when Ronnie Kidd roped a hard hit ball that Tackett dived off to his right and back handed for the third out.

As it always seems to be, the one in the field who makes the great plays leads off the next frame. Tackett did just that and deposited a Johnson fastball well over the fence in left centerfield to make it a 3-2 ball game after four innings.

HAP went to work in the remaining three innings and found Conley's pitching to their liking. Case singled, Ortega was safe on an unusual error by Tackett and Case scored on Samons' RBI single. Johnson collected his third hit of the game and picked up his second RBI with a double to right center scoring Ortega to give HAP a 5-2 lead.

Two more runs crossed home plate in the fifth for HAP. Ronnie Kidd doubled with one out and scored on Case's second hit. Case moved to second on the throw to home, and trotted home on Samons' RBI double.

In the Paintsville half of the fifth, the home team went out in order despite getting a base hit from Seth Lauffer who entered the game for Vukmanic. Lauffer was cut down at second base by catcher Brad Reynolds in a steal attempt.

HAP really opened up a lead with a four-run sixth. Russell Hall fanned looking at at curve ball from Conley to start the inning. Then six consecutive hits accounted for four runs. Stanley started the hit parade with an infield single and Reynolds doubled. Tom Taulbee, who entered the game in the fourth for Matt Kidd, singled up the middle scoring Stanley. Ronnie Kidd blooped a single to left and Case followed with his third straight hit scoring Reynolds and Taulbee. Kidd scored on a wild pitch to give HAP a 11-2 lead.

Paintsville put a runner on on a one out single by Tackett but he was left stranded.

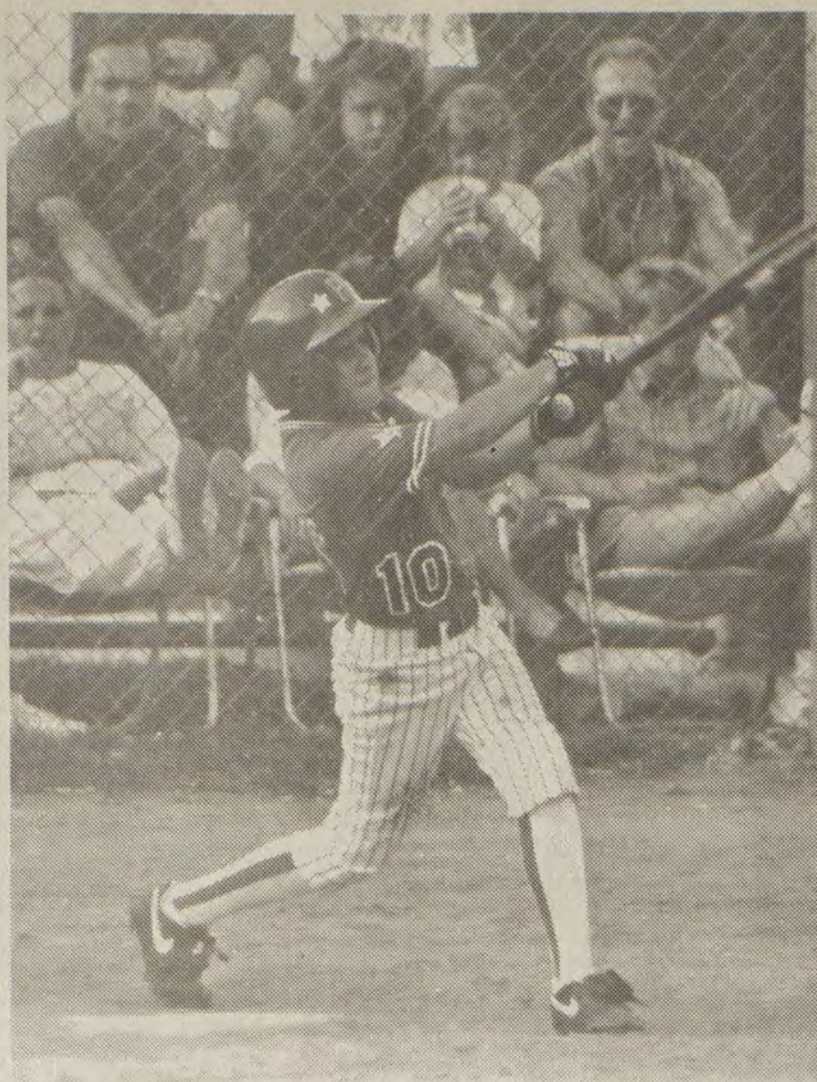

HAP left eight runners on base and played errorless baseball. Paintsville stranded three base runners and had two errors.

Harold-Allen-Prater will play the winner of the Paintsville/Beaver Creek North game tonight at 6 p.m. for the championship. If HAP should lose, a second game will be played Thursday at 6 p.m. The winner of the Area 2, District 7 playoffs will face the winner of the Area 1, District 7 (Pikeville) tournament for the right to advance on to state play in Catletsburg next week.

Case's two-run single gives North 5-4 win over Magoffin

The Magoffin County All-Stars and Beaver Creek North All-Stars hooked up in a good old-fashioned hardball game this past Saturday afternoon as both teams were trying to stay alive in the District 7, Area 2 Little League All-Star tournament at Archer Park.

Magoffin County saw their hopes of a title go out the window in the bottom of the sixth inning when Johnny Case delivered a base hit that scored Mike Combs with the winning run in a come-from-behind 5-4 win.

Kaleb Yates picked up the win for the North team in relief of starter B.J. Caudill, who went the first four innings. Yates worked the fifth and sixth and was destined to be the losing pitcher until his team rallied in the bottom of the inning. Yates allowed two runs on four hits while striking out four and walking no one. Caudill gave up two runs on three hits. He had six strike outs and he didn't walk a batter.

Trailing 4-3 entering the bottom of the fifth inning, Ryan Owens singled leading off. Ryan Manns went to run for Owens to get more speed on the base paths. Brad Dasner, who has had a good tournament, fanned for the first out. John Marshall, hitting for Combs, singled, driving in Manns with the run that tied the score at 4-4. Combs reentered the game running for Marshall and he scored the winning run on Case's base hit. Case entered the game in the third inning for Shawn Henson who got the start.

North held a 3-2 lead going into the top of the sixth inning and with Yates on the mound. Kendall Slusher led off with a double and Wesley Hall parked a Yates' fast ball over the fence for a two-run home run and a 4-3 Magoffin County lead.

Magoffin scored first in the first inning for a 1-0 game. Mike Pennix scored on Shane Wireman's RBI double.

Beaver Creek took a 2-1 lead in the third after threatening but failing to score in the first. Mike Pack singled to start the two-run rally. Hunter popped to the pitcher and Tim Yates struck out. Slusher, who started on the mound for Magoffin County, hit Kaleb Yates with a pitch and Owens singled behind him to drive in Pack to tie the game at 1-1. Kaleb Yates scored the go-ahead run on a wild pitch.

It was a 3-2 game after North batted in the fourth. Combs walked and stole second. He scored on Henson's ground out to short. A bad throw from first to third to get Combs was errant and Combs scored.

North left the bases loaded in the first inning when Dasner bounced back to the mound for the third out. Hunter had walked and Kaleb Yates was safe on an error at shortstop. Owens then walked to fill the bases.

Slusher worked the full six innings for Magoffin County in absorbing the loss. He allowed five runs on five hits while striking out nine and walking three.

Owens was a perfect two-for-two in the game. Combs scored two runs.

Prestonsburg

Johnny Case ground out to third to end the inning.

Prestonsburg tied the game in the third inning. Eric Kelly singled to lead off the inning and Castle followed with a grounder into left field, but again the throw from left to second forced Kelly and Castle was credited with a fielder's choice. Castle came in to score on Music's RBI single.

North reclaimed the lead in the third when two runs crossed the plate. Tim Yates singled and Kaleb Yates was safe on an error at shortstop by Fitzpatrick. Ryan Owen bounced a grounder to short and Fitzpatrick tagged second to force Kaleb Yates with Tim Yates moving to third. Hunter was safe on Fitzpatrick's second error of the inning, scoring Yates. Owens later scored on a wild pitch for a 3-1 game.

Prestonsburg stayed close with a run in the bottom of the fifth inning. With two out, North issued the third intentional walk to Hale. The move backfired as Music lined a base hit scoring Hale from second base. Music was then caught off of base and tagged out trying to return to first.

Neil Hamilton, who relieved Hall, got North out in the bottom of the fifth without any trouble. In the Prestonsburg sixth, a walk to Hamilton put the tying run on base. Nathan Fannin came on to run for Hamilton and moved all the way to third on a wild pitch. Kelly grounded to short only to see the ball elude the shortstop and Fannin moved up to third with the tying run and Grant Castle at the plate. Castle, a good contact hitter, grounded to third for the final out.

Prestonsburg left six base runners on base while committing only two errors. North stranded seven base runners and they only had one error.

GRANT CASTLE of Prestonsburg fielded a grounder and tossed to first base against Paintsville last Friday evening at Archer Park. Prestonsburg lost for the first time in the all-star tournament as they fell to Paintsville 13-0. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Meek handcuffs Prestonsburg on two hits in 13-0 whitewash

The hits were very few and far between for the Prestonsburg Little League All-Stars as they fell hard to a very good Paintsville team 13-0 Friday evening at Archer Park.

Lucas Meek was a tough one on the mound for Paintsville as he fanned nine batters and issued only two walks in picking up the win.

Russell Music led a trio of hurlers to the mound for Prestonsburg. Music worked the first two innings before giving way to Ryan Hardee. Music allowed seven runs on eight hits, struck out one and walked two. Hardee worked the third and fourth inning without a strike out while walking one. He allowed four runs on three hits. Neil Hamilton followed Hardee in pitching the fifth inning. Hamilton was tagged for two runs on two hits. He walked one and struck out one.

Meek retired the first six batters he faced but only after some controversy. With two out in the Prestonsburg second, Nathan Fannin ripped a double to right centerfield in what looked like a sure two bagger. However, on an appeal play called for by Paintsville, first base umpire Jerome Greathouse ruled that Fannin missed second base and was called out taking away the base hit and keeping Meek's no-hitter going.

Meek's streak of outs ended when he walked Gordon Bradley and Hardee leading off the Prestonsburg third. But Eric Kelly grounded hard to shortstop Todd Tackett who stepped on second to get Hardee and fired to first to double up Kelly. Grant Castle ended the inning by bunting down the third base line only to be thrown out.

Paintsville took a 5-0 lead in the first inning. The first five batters reached base and all five scored.

Eric Vukmanic doubled to start the five-run rally. B.J. Daniel lined a solid hit to left field and Music hit Tackett with a pitch to load the bases. The loaded bases didn't remain loaded long as Danny Scott ripped a long double to the fence to clear the bags and score all three runners. Mike Bowlin kept things going with a triple that took a high bounce over the head of shortstop Brian Fitzpatrick and rolled to the fence. He scored the fifth run on a grounder to third by Craig Lyons.

It was 7-0 after Paintsville batted in the second. A lead-off single by Vukmanic, his second of the game, and a walk to Daniels set up the two run inning. Tackett roped a double scoring Vukmanic and Daniels was tagged out at the plate by Bradley. Tackett came home on a base hit by Lyons.

Paintsville went out in order in the third despite putting a runner on base when Meek was hit-by-a-pitch. He was erased on a double play off a ball lined hard back to Music, who tossed to first to get Meek.

Paintsville roared in front 11-0 with four runs in the fourth inning as Prestonsburg was stunned by what was taking place. An error and two infield hits loaded the bases for the Paintsville All-Stars. Daniel scored when Bowlin's grounder to third was misplayed by Gavin Hale. Lyons singled home his third RBI with a base hit and David Castle, hitting for Conley, singled home Scott. Bowlin scored when Josh Greiner grounded out to short.

Prestonsburg got their first hit when Music led off the inning with a solid single. He moved to second on a wild pitch. With two out, Hardee lined a base hit to center and Music headed for the plate. Centerfielder Eric Vukmanic made a perfect throw to the plate to nail the sliding Music as the shutout was kept intact.

Hamilton came on to pitch the fifth inning for Prestonsburg and Paintsville scored their final two runs on RBI singles by Lyons, his fourth, and Greiner.

Paintsville left six runners stranded on base and played errorless baseball. Prestonsburg stranded three and committed three errors.

Paintsville will be waiting in the wings of the winner's bracket to see who they will face in the championship round tonight.

Canadian Football league returns to SportsChannel

High-powered Canadian Football League action is back on SportsChannel. The CFL schedule has 19 regular season games plus the playoffs and the 80th Grey Cup Championship on November 29 from the Skydome in Toronto. The season kicks off with Calgary at Saskatchewan on Wednesday July 8 at 11:30 p.m.

The CFL features U.S. college stars Raghbi (Rocket) Ismail and Doug Flutie. Ismail, the former Notre Dame standout, posted 1,300 receiving yards on 64 catches for the defending Grey Cup Champion Toronto Argonauts last year. Flutie, star quarterback for Boston College and a former NFL player, was named the CFL's Most Outstanding Player last season after posting record breaking numbers for passing attempts (730), completions (466) and yards (6,619) for the B.C. Lions.

"The CFL returns to SportsChannel stronger and more exciting than ever," said Michael T. Lehr, Director of Programming and Network Operations. "Doug Flutie and Rocket Ismail headline a brand of football that is fast moving and high scoring." "We are excited to be carrying the CFL all season long."

The Toronto Argonauts look to be the team to beat this season. Last year, Toronto posted a 13-5 regular season, a 42-3 rout over Winnipeg in the Divisional Finals and a 36-21 victory over Calgary to win the coveted Grey Cup.

Fourteen of the 19 games will be produced by TSN with the remaining five produced by CBC. TSN's announcing crew has play-by-play announcer John Wells, color analyst Lief Petersen and host Gord Miller. TSN's telecasts will be produced by Keith Pelley. The CBC announcing crew has play-by-play announcer Don Wittman, color analyst Joe Galat and host Scott Oake. CBC's executive producer is Lee Herberman.

SportsChannel Ohio is managed by Rainbow Programming Holdings, Inc. and is part of the SportsChannel Regional Network, which has additional regional sports services in New York, Chicago, Florida, Los Angeles, New England, San Francisco, Cincinnati and Philadelphia. The SportsChannel Network is also affiliated with SportsChannel America.

World Championship rodeo comes to Pikeville

The first World Championship Rodeo will perform in Pikeville, Ky. at the "Horse Arena Level" of the Bob Amos Park on Friday, July 17th and 18th at 7:30 p.m. and on July 19th at 2:30 p.m. Tickets for the event may be purchased at the Citizen's Bank, First National Bank of Pikeville, Pikeville National Bank or the Chamber of Commerce. Cost is $8.00 for adults and $4.00 for children age 14 and under.

Rodeo contest events will include calf roping, steer wrestling, bull riding, saddle bronc riding, bareback riding and barrel racing. Between competitions the crowd will be entertained by rodeo clowns and can visit the souvenir and refreshment booths nearby.

All of the above listed competitions are sanctioned by the International Professional Rodeo Association, Pauls Valley, Oklahoma. The IPRA began in 1955 and today with three decades of experience boasts more than four hundred sanctioned rodeos and fifty-five stock contractors. Individual members of the IPRA have also made rodeo history. Included are Dan Dailey who has won more world championships than any other professional cowboy, Deborah Akin who became the first black cowgirl to qualify for a major finals rodeo and rodeo's youngest ever cowgirl Metha Brorsen.

The rodeo is sponsored by the Pike County Fair Board and co-chaired by Ron Damron, Dean of Students at Pikeville College and Gerri Kinder, director of External Affairs at Pikeville College.

"This is really a great show," says Damron, "they performed two weeks ago in Beattyville and had 2,000 people the first night, the second night they had 5,000. We are advising people to come early as we are expecting a large crowd."

Parking is available on the arena level of the Bob Amos Park and along the park road itself. For more information, call (606) 432-5504.

Error prone BC South falls hard to Martin Co.

Some baseball teams need all the help they can muster in winning ball games and the Beaver Creek South team lent a helping hand to the Martin County All-Stars as they committed 12 errors en route to a 17-9 loss in the Area 2, District 7 All-Star tournament at Archer Park Friday evening.

The loss by the South team eliminated them from the tournament. South won one game, a 4-1 win over Wheelwright.

Eric Evans picked up the win for Martin County, working the first three innings. Evans only had one strike out and he issued one walk. He allowed three runs on three hits. Bobby Fields relieved Evans in the third inning when he ran into some trouble. Fields entered the game with no one out and the bases loaded. Fields allowed six runs on eight hits in striking out three and walking four.

Daniel Lafferty, who pitched so well in relief against Beaver Creek North, did not fair as well as he suffered a setback. Lafferty was relieved by Clabe Hall in the third inning after going the first two. Lafferty gave up seven runs on seven hits. He had only one strike out and he walked one. Hall gave up 10 runs on 10 hits in his four inning stint. Hall struck out five and walked six.

Martin County scored six times in the second inning to take a 7-2 lead. A walk and an error opened the door for Martin County as Fields drove in a run with a bases-loaded single. Eugene Fletcher had two RBIs with a double and two runs scored on Ronnie Sweeney's base hit. Ten batters went to the plate for Martin County in the inning.

Beaver Creek South fell behind 1-0 in the top of the first inning when Fletcher scored the first run of the game on a base hit by Curtis Mills. Lafferty had gotten Evans on strikes and Fields on a pop fly. But Lafferty then plunked Fletcher with a pitch and Weslie Preece singled.

South came back with two runs in their half of the first on a lead-off single by Lafferty and a one-out error at first base for Martin County. Lafferty scored on Clabe Hall's fielder's choice.

South went out in order in the second and Martin County pushed across four more runs in the third. Adam Muncy reached on an error at second base and Michael Marcum singled down the right field line. Lafferty walked Evans to load the bases and a run scored. Fields was safe on an error at first base when Gordon Maynard dropped the throw. Preece singled with one out and he moved on to third when the ball was kicked around in the outfield. Preece tried to score on a passed ball but was tagged out at the plate by Lafferty.

South plated their third run in the third inning on a one out single to centerfield by Nick Rackey. Clabe Hall singled up the middle with Rackey moving to third base. He came home on Todd Walters' grounder back to the pitcher, who was confused on the play.

Muncy reached first on an error at second base leading off the Martin County fourth. Muncy's grounder went through the legs of the second baseman who did not have his glove down on the ground. Muncy scored on a base hit by Fields.

Five runs crossed the plate in the bottom of the fourth for South as they tried to mount a comeback. Back-to-back walks to Billy Hall, who came in for John Stumbo, and Landon Frazier. Joey Tackett batted for Chad Tuttle and beat out a slow roller for an infield hit and loaded the bases. Lafferty ripped a base hit to short left that scored Hall. Clayton Williams walked to force in Frazier. Brian Akers fanned and Clabe Hall bounced back to the mound with the throw going to first instead of home and Lafferty scored. Gordon Maynard then roped a base hit to right center to score Williams and Hall.

Lafferty had three hits in the game and he scored three runs with one RBI. Maynard finished with two hits and two runs batted in. Preece picked up three hits, scored three runs and had two RBIs for Martin County.

Staying Fit

by Don Fields

Weightlifting for beginners

So you've decided to get in shape. Great! What is your next step going to be? Before you go out and spend a lot of money on home exercise equipment or a health club membership you must first decide what kind of results you are looking for.

Assuming you want to lose fat, increase muscle tone and improve your cardiovascular capacity, you have decided to combine weightlifting and aerobics in order to accomplish your overall fitness goals.

Let's talk about aerobics first. The basis of aerobics is to increase the oxygenation process of your heart and lungs. The ability of your heart to carry blood to your lungs and the lungs ability to oxygenate the blood before it's return to the heart for distribution to the rest of your body, can only be increased through sustained aerobic activity. This type of activity is also essential for fat conversion into energy and subsequent fat loss.

Aerobics is simply any activity that increases your ability to use oxygen and burn fat. There are many activities that can be aerobic. Walking, jogging, bicycling, rowing, circuit weightlifting, and of course the various forms of aerobic dance classes that are popular, just to name a few. A good routine would be to perform some form of aerobics for at least 30 minutes two or three times per week. Rotating between your favorite types of aerobics is also beneficial, if only to keep from getting bored.

Weightlifting can be either aerobic or anaerobic in nature. If you like doing any of the aerobic activities described above then you would choose the classic form of lifting weights to increase your muscle tone and strength.

The purpose of weightlifting or "body building" as I prefer to call it, is to increase the contractile strength of individual muscle fibers through the principle of overload and recuperation. In other words, placing stress on your muscles by lifting a heavy load causes muscle damage and if allowed to recuperate, the muscle will repair the damage plus build a little extra size and strength in case it happens again. A continuation of this process is referred to as muscle conditioning. Bodybuilding can be used to build and strengthen any particular group of muscles or all of them. You can literally build your body, the way you want it, if you know how.

Most fledgling bodybuilders are in a hurry for that new look. They think that by doing more exercises and as many sets as possible they will get results quicker. As a bodybuilder and trainer for ten years, I have seen hundreds of beginners quit after only a few weeks because didn't get results fast enough. In every case the cause was the same—too much too soon. Good advice usually falls on deaf ears. Of the few that chose to go slow and learn the basics, I have seen champion powerlifters, bodybuilders and others reach and exceed their goals in record time.

A good basic bodybuilding routine is all that is needed in order to get fantastic results in a short period of time. Whether you are a true beginner or have been lifting weights for some time, you can benefit from the routine that I will outline.

Let's divide your body into six major categories or muscle groups: abdominal, chest, back, shoulders, arms and legs. There are hundreds of different exercises designed to work these different muscles from many different angles. Which ones do you choose? Which ones are best? Before I answer there are two things you must accept as true:

Fact 1 — You cannot reduce fat in a given area by working the muscles that lie underneath or approximate to. There is no such thing as spot reduction.

Fact 2 — You cannot change the shape of or totally isolate any particular muscle. Your muscles shape, regardless of its increase in size, is determined by genetics. As far as isolation is concerned, the fact that different muscle groups work together makes it impossible to isolate one completely.

Knowing this, it makes perfect sense, that in order to work the largest number of muscles, with the highest intensity, in the shortest period of time, you must concentrate on basic compound exercises. Sound complicated? All I just said is that the best routine is the most basic routine. Don't waste time doing meaningless exercises that are supposed to isolate a certain muscle or give it a certain shape.

Let me give you an example of a basic compound movement weightlifting routine using free weights.

For your stomach or abdominal, you should do crunches. Barbell bench press is all you need. Your chest and shoulders respond best to overhead presses behind the neck. For arms you need, barbell curls for biceps and overhead extensions for your triceps. Your forearms should not need direct exercise, as they get plenty of work just gripping the bar. Your back is a complicated muscle and requires at least two different exercises such as chin ups and bent over barbell rowing. Nothing can benefit your legs more than barbell squats below parallel (hip joint slightly lower than knee joint). And finally, you need standing toe presses for your calves.

Of course I did not elaborate on proper form and execution of each exercise as I assume you will seek assistance from a qualified person before beginning this or any other weightlifting routine. I have only described a very basic and tremendously effective routine consisting of nine compound movements. A beginner should follow this routine for at least six months, gradually increasing the amount of weight used and the intensity of effort. Start out with one set of 12 to 15 repetitions with an easy weight and increase over a period of weeks to three or four sets of 20 to 25 reps. At this point you may be ready to add considerable weight and decrease the number of reps. It all depends on your goals at the time.

Not only is this routine effective for beginners, but intermediates as well. The only difference being the number of sets, reps and weight used. Intensity is the difference between a beginner and someone more advanced.

In other words, the best workout involves using the least number of exercises to stimulate the largest amount of muscle by lifting the greatest amount of weight in the shortest period of time. Simple but effective. By doing fewer exercises there is also less chance of doing something wrong and wasting time. Master the basics and you will be ahead of the rest!

People, Places and Things

by Beth Jones

"ONLY IN MY MIND"

I really don't have any particular subject in mind to write about, so I imagine I'll just write aimlessly 'bout things.

Have ya seen that commercial where Michael Jordan is seen drinking a product and a little song in the background says: "I wanna be like Mike." Then, at the end of the ad, the screen goes black. In white are these few words, "Be like Mike. Drink Gatorade." Don't you think that's shameless advertising? All the little kids in the nation will be saying, "Mommy, I wanna be like Mike. Please buy me Gatorade. Please, Mommy, please." Yeah, it's shameless all right, but it sure is brilliant, too. I love it.

I really like to watch American Gladiators. They're just awesome. It's kinda like wrestlers and bodybuilders in contests against little people. Actually, it's about the only show I watch on the weekends. The gladiators are pretty cool.

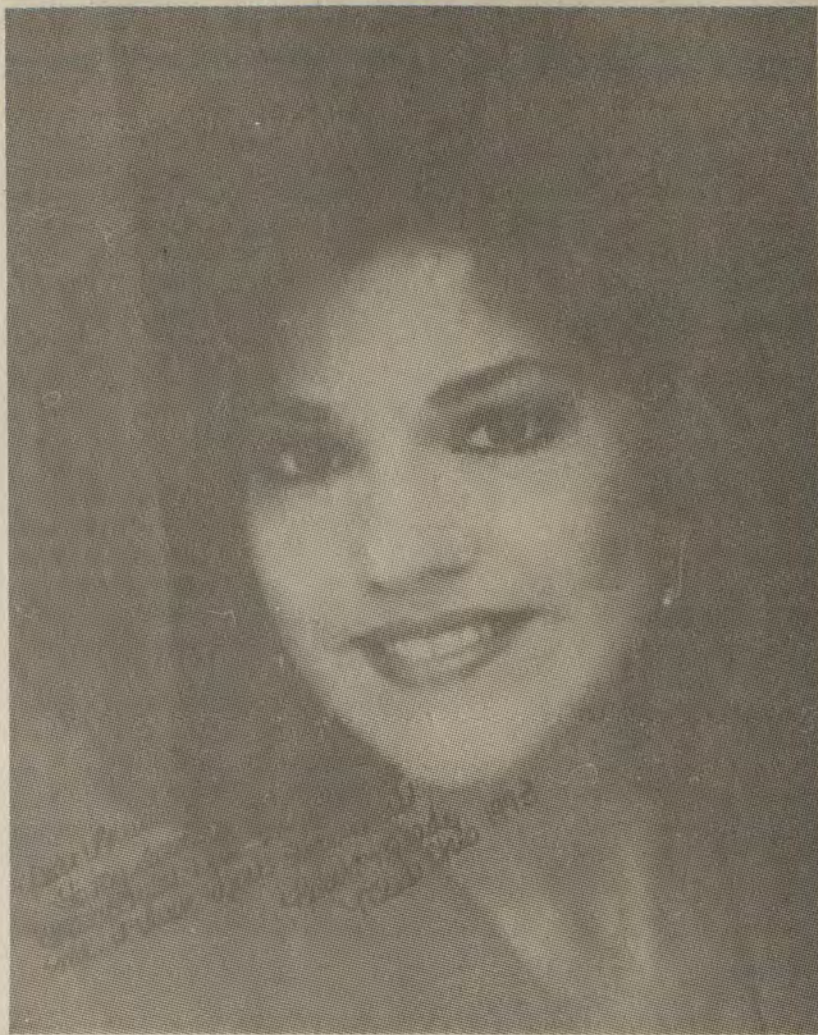

How 'bout the Dream Team? I don't think anybody can touch them in the Olympics. Magic, Bird, and Jordan all on the same team. I love it. I don't think there'll ever be a squad as good as this Olympic team.

Boy, my mind is just wandering around. Don't some people look absolutely idiotic in sunglasses? I especially hate those big owl-eye glasses. They went out twenty years ago with Jackie O. I hope I don't look like a tourist in my shades.

An amusing thing occurred at the Billy Ray Cyrus concert I attended. Some way or another, these four women fell off their chairs and the paramedics thought they had broken their necks. The reason they fell is because they were trying to do the Achy Breaky dance on lawn chairs. That was pretty stupid in my opinion, but that is not the amusing part. I was standing nearby when the medics were taking this one lady out. She was a pretty fair-sized gal and was wearing a Billy Ray Cyrus shirt. Anyway, they had her head immobilized in a huge metal contraption and she was strapped to a stretcher. There were five or six guys carrying her out. When they carried her past the stage, she managed to lift an arm to wave at Billy Ray. I know that is sad, but in a way, it is funny. I must say, she was a true fan. I hope her neck wasn't broken.

Well, I guess that's a whole lotta nuttin'. Hope there was a little something for everyone, though.

Later.

Future Miss America?

Miss Robin Michele Meade, daughter of former Floyd County residents Linro and Sharon Shepherd Meade, will compete in the Miss America Pageant this fall.

Miss America contestant has ties to Floyd County

The daughter of a former Floyd County couple has earned the right to vie for the title of Miss America 1993.

Robin Meade, 23, of Mansfield, Ohio, was recently named Miss Ohio 1993, competing against 38 other contestants.

Her father, Linro Meade, is a former resident of Little Mud in Floyd County. Her mother, Sharon Shepherd Meade, is a former resident of the Middle Creek area. She is the granddaughter of Robert and Myrtle Ellen Meade of Clarksfield, Ohio.

Miss Meade vied for the title of Miss Ohio in three separate attempts. In past years, she placed among the top ten contestants, and was well pleased to come out a winner in this one.

"I feel just great," she told reporter Lori Farmer in the Mansfield News Journal. "It's been a nice week all along. Even if I hadn't won, I still would have enjoyed it.

"I think I was more ready for this (competition) than I have been in the past. This time I was just Robin Michele Meade, and it worked."

Meade will travel south this fall to compete in the Miss America pageant. She is excited about the prospect of becoming Miss America. At a recent reunion held in Ohio, she told her uncle, Ransom Meade of Betsy Layne, who is a member of the Betsy Layne Senior Citizens, that when he watches the beauty pageant on his television to "yell real loud so I can hear you."

Migration patterns of the elderly in Appalachia

Some people think of them as the latest economic "growth industry." Others call them the "grey peril." The group attracting such diverse labels is the elderly, specifically those choosing to relocate after retirement.

"These migrants often bring with them substantial monetary assets, and as a group may provide a boon to the local economy," says University of Kentucky gerontologist Graham D. Rowles of the Sanders-Brown Center on Aging, who, with John F. Watkins of the Department of Geography recently completed an extensive study of elderly migration patterns throughout the Appalachian region. "Yet some planners and policy makers," Rowles says, "fear that retiree migrants will drive up housing prices and, as the migrants become more frail, place increased demands on local health care and social services." This attitude Rowles and Watkins term a "grey peril mentality."

The emergence of several areas in Appalachia as retirement destinations and the growing importance of native elderly Appalachians returning home led the Appalachian Regional Commission in 1989 to ask Rowles, Watkins and several of their colleagues to make an in-depth study of elderly migration patterns. The primary concern of the commission was to be able to evaluate the merits of migration and its effects on economic development in the region. For the purposes of this study, the elderly were classified into two groups: the "young-old" (persons between 65 and 74) and the "old-old" (persons 75 and older).

One of several components of this project included in-depth research at three separate locations in Appalachia—Hendersonville, North Carolina, Hazard, Kentucky and Somerset, Kentucky. "This work involved two field visits to each location, each visit lasting several days," Rowles says. "We interviewed public officials, community leaders, elderly migrants, and did some filming of the local environments." The objective was to develop a detailed profile of each location in order to understand its history, current economic circumstances and future potential as a magnet for elderly migration.

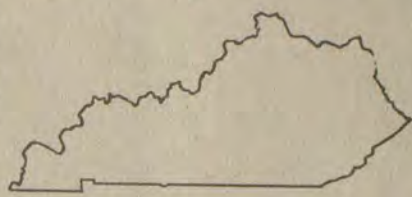

In investigating the movement of the elderly into and out of Hazard and surrounding Perry County, the researchers found a consistent pattern of "outmigration" among this group over several decades. From 1965-1970 the county recorded a net loss of 84 migrants 65 and older. This number increased to a net loss of 171 older persons between 1975 and 1980. Estimates for 1980-1985 indicate a net loss of 118 elderly persons.

Rowles and Watkins suggest that in more recent years, however, Hazard's circumstances appear to have improved as a result of an enrichment of the community's health care and educational resources. Sarah Hughes, director of the Hazard-based Southeast Area Health Education Center, agrees that there has been a recent trend toward return migration.

"We've seen some older people come back to Hazard mainly because of the family structure that's already in place. People from this area have a very strong network of family ties. We also have medical facilities that are very extensive, and a community college that has several programs aimed exclusively at senior citizens."

"Our data show that although the net migration pattern has been one of outmigration, 121 persons 65 and older did return to Hazard and Perry County between 1975 and 1980," Rowles says. "Of these more than half (67 people) were over 75 years old, suggesting that return migration may be occurring."

A second Kentucky community visited by the researchers was Somerset, located next to Lake Cumberland in the south central region of the state. Although Somerset's population has remained relatively stable (1970 population 10,436; 1990 population 10,733), the surrounding Pulaski County experienced a 40 percent population growth between 1970 and 1990. Summer vacationers are attracted primarily from the North, especially from bordering states Indiana and Ohio. Some of these visitors eventually decide to retire to the area.

Smith Van Hook, mayor of Somerset, says that "on a given weekend 250,000 people visit our lake, so we introduce them to the area and a lot of them like what they see. Some return to this area to live after they retire."

Van Hook adds that many retirees recognize that aside from being located next to a lake, Somerset is one of the five least expensive cities in the U.S. to live because of low utility rates.

Rowles and Watkins confirmed the growing status of Somerset and Pulaski County as an elderly migration destination. "Between 1965 and 1970, the county experienced elderly outmigration with a net loss of 40 migrants 65 years of age and older. Between 1975 and 1980 the county recorded a net gain of 85 elderly migrants. Estimates for 1980-1985 indicate a net gain of 148 elderly migrants."

The researchers trace a number of implications from the study. Communities should be realistic, they say, about prospects for attracting elderly migrants. Only a limited number of Appalachian communities are likely to be able to compete for retirees seeking to relocate.

Rowles and Watkins also stress a need to overcome negative images of Appalachia held by many potential migrants and suggest that communities should recognize the importance of promoting seasonal migration and tourism as a prelude to elderly migration.

In addition, Rowles and Watkins suggest that communities should seriously consider the implications of elderly migration-based economic development for other sectors of the local economy and the effects of such migration on other age groups in the community.

What's the deal with taking out the garbage?

A few weeks ago, I joined a mother's group, which, in general, is approximately 10-12 mothers getting a few minutes away from the grind. Sixty minutes to be exact.

We had a really good time discussing our children, showing off pictures and simply getting acquainted.

The one topic, besides our children, a few of us seem to have in common was the garbage and "who" takes it out.

If there's a column I don't want the spouse to read, it's this one, I don't mind telling you.

You see, the spouse and I on a general basis have no arguments. Things go swimmingly until the feared "G" word comes up.

The kitchen can be lined with Glad bags from one end to the other and he'd (I do believe) hurdle over them to get out the door.

Sunday nights are the usual arguing nights.

"Spouse, don't forget to take out the garbage?"

"Hmmm blah," he'll say.

Come Monday morning, I awake to the sound of the Floyd County Solid Waste truck.

I spring to my feet, head to the kitchen and yep—run smack dab into twelve bags of garbage.

As he lies sawing logs, I do the usual and grab the bags and head out the door, hair standing up like Woodstock's, one eye open, and calling him names we most certainly can't print.

I'm sure our neighbors have heard them and say Yep, ol' Ronnie's forgot the garbage again.

But, it really felt good hearing the spouse is not the only husband who has this "G" word syndrome.

Sometimes though, I admit, if he didn't have it, I'd have to find something else to use in defense.

Example: It's Monday morning 7 a.m. "Spouse," he yelps, "where's my socks? Do I have any clean socks? Spouse did you wash my socks?"

Reply: "I'll wash your socks when you take out the garbage!"

Talk about your smelly subjects (not true, an example only).

But you get the picture.

I have considered asking my dad to build me one of those conveyor belts that go from my kitchen to the garbage bin in the yard. Surely then, it wouldn't be such a hassle.

Who knows, go figure. Till next week.

Stuff about presidents

Well, who's it gonna be? Bush? Clinton? Perot? None of the above?

If all three candidates can be believed, no matter who wins, we can't lose. Then again, if each one is telling the truth about the other two, no matter who loses, we can't win.

I guess about the only thing we can really predict for certain is that no one can really predict for certain...except that it's bound to get interesting before it's over. Of course, that's how it should be, because U.S. Presidents themselves have a history of being interesting characters. This, too, is good because—if for no other reason—they've provided thousands of questions for trivia buffs.

Even I've been motivated to do a little research. For example, which U.S. President is responsible for a popular toy?

Wrong! It's not the Reagan doll that you wind-up and it goes back to sleep. It's really Theodore Roosevelt and the Teddy Bear.

The story goes that Roosevelt, on a hunting trip in Mississippi in 1912, refused to shoot a bear cub. Newspapers picked up the story, and an enterprising store keeper made—and sold—toy bears, calling them "Teddy's Bears."

How about this one? What did the S stand for in Harry S. Truman? My eighth grade teacher (obviously a Republican) said it stood for Simple.

Really, though, it didn't stand for anything. Little Harry's parents wisely used the S because both of Harry's grandfathers' names started with an S and each would have been offended if they'd named him after the other. Come to think of it, that is simple.

Bet you didn't know that Abraham Lincoln was shot dead by an Indian in Kentucky.

Honest!

Of course, this Abe Lincoln was the grandfather of Honest Abe, who was shot dead by an actor, not an Indian.

Something else I discovered through arduous hours of research was that before JFK, there had been only one other Catholic to ever be nominated for president, and he was beaten...by a Quaker. Al Smith was a Catholic. Herbert Hoover was the Quaker. 1928 was the year.

Can you imagine Bush or Clinton or Perot residing in The Gray House? Except for an act of war, that might have been possible. The White House was once gray, the color of the Virginia sandstone from which it was originally built. However, during the War of 1812, British troops roused James Madison and Dolley and burned it. When it was rebuilt, it was painted white... to cover the smoke stains.

And speaking of acts of war, did you know that Andrew Jackson's defeat of the British at the famous Battle of New Orleans, wasn't an act of war? The war had been over for two weeks, but somebody had forgotten to tell Andy. See why we need CNN?

So who knows? Maybe in a hundred years, or so, someone will ask, "Who was the president elected back in 1992 who had to be elected by the House of Representatives because no candidate received enough votes in the regular election?"

Now, wouldn't that be interesting?

THE DISEASE OF THE CENTURY: No, it's not AIDS. It's Alzheimer's. The condition currently affects one person in 10 of those over age 65. This means approximately four million Americans have Alzheimer's now, and, by the year 2050, it's estimated that the toll will reach 14 million Americans.

It's important to realize that one shouldn't accept Alzheimer's as a natural or inevitable conditioning. It's not a normal factor of growing older. Instead, it's a clinically recognized disease state involving loss of nerve cells (neurons) in the brain.

Some symptoms to watch for include gradual loss of memory and intellectual ability which are severe enough to interfere with daily living, impaired judgment and disorientation in time or place, getting lost in familiar surroundings, forgetting how to go to a familiar destination, wandering, forgetting names of familiar people and/or appointments, inability to handle money or keep a checkbook, inability to read or write, continually asking the day, the time, and when something will take place. Sometimes patients experience delusions or hallucinations or become verbally or physically violent.

Symptoms may be mistaken for some 50 other disorders, and the symptoms may vary from person to person. That's why it's essential that any person displaying unusual or unexplained behavior be taken to a doctor for evaluation. As this column has noted before, some conditions are treatable and reversible. (So far, Alzheimer's is not.) The sooner a condition is diagnosed, the sooner a potentially reversible illness can be corrected.

Families of Alzheimer's patients have very special needs and there are organizations set up to provide information and, in many cases, assistance. For more information, contact Children of Aging Parents, Wodburn Office Campus, Suite 302A, 1609 Wodburn Road, Levittown, Pa. 19057. Phone 1-215-945-6900.

PCC students attend convention in Arizona

More than 2,000 students attended the 40th Annual Convention of the National Student Nurses Association held April 22-26 in Phoenix, Arizona. Representatives from Prestonsburg Community College included nursing students, Terry Whitten and Heather Sturgill, and Lynn Weddle, faculty advisor of the PCC Chapter of the Kentucky Association of Nursing Students.

Keynoting this year's event was Gloria Smith, Ph.D., FAAN, coordinator of Health Programs and program director for the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Michigan. Smith's address focused on the "browning" of America, a trend that shows minorities becoming the majority. Smith praised the many accomplishments of NSNA's Breakthrough to Nursing Program and the association's commitment to nursing education for men and ethnic minorities. Heather Sturgill of PCC is the Kentucky Breakthrough Director.

A gala awards banquet was held during the convention. Sponsored by the US Army Recruiting Command, the Army Nurse Corps, in cooperation with the NSNA Foundation, the banquet honored a number of students with more than $100,000 in scholarships. Several other awards were presented during the ceremony, including Prestonsburg Community College's award for Outstanding New Chapter.

The National Students Nurses' Association has approximately 30,000 members.

Farm & Family

It's freezer fill-up time

by Bertha Slone

For winter, nothing beats fresh cabbage, onions, carrots and potatoes for your soup. There are other vegetables available for your family, too, in the winter months, thanks to your freezer.

Another added bonus is that when vegetables are in season, prices are lower and vegetables are fresh. When preserving food in freezer, a few helpful hints might make the job easier. Here's a few shortcuts.

Wash vegetables with warm water thoroughly. Cut up for soup or stir fry. Put in containers or freezer bags. (Be sure to get good, heavy freezer bags.) Heavy plastic containers are ideal for freezing foods.

To freeze green beans or corn, parboil before placing in bags. Remember, if these vegetables come from your state (Kentucky), okay, but be careful about vegetables that are shipped in here. They are sprayed with chemicals.

For other vegetables, boil water first and then add vegetables to this to cook. In the winter time, frozen vegetables will be delicious.

Tomatoes
All sizes of tomatoes can be used. Wash good. Pour boiling water over them. Let stand about five minutes or less. Peel by using your colander to lift out of boiling water.

Place in plastic container or heavy freezer bags. Let cool before placing in the freezer.

This will be nice for that winter-time pot of soup to add flavor and color.

Meat
To preserve meat (chicken breast, etc.) safely in your freezer, take your wrapped meat from store, put large, heavy brown grocery bag in freezer where you are putting away your meat. Put meat in another grocery bag and turn down top. After you put meat in bag, set something in freezer on bag to hold fold down.

I've been using this trick since 1990. I've kept it for two years in brown paper grocery bags and no freezer burns. Brown paper grocery bags is the secret.

Prestonsburg F.F.A. attends convention

Recently members of the Prestonsburg Future Farmers of America attended the Kentucky State F.F.A. Convention held in Louisville at the Galt House. Regional winners competed for state titles and delegates met to decide future changes in F.F.A. Johnathon Slone, a senior Prestonsburg Chapter member, also received the Kentucky State F.F.A. degree — a title bestowed on only three percent of Kentucky's members. Pictured from left are Brian Horn, John Music, Johnathon Slone, and Ron Hampton, teacher/advisor.

County Harvest

One of the most beautiful flowers around is the daylily. It also just happens to be one of the easiest flowers to grow. The daylily isn't too fussy about the soil it's placed in, except soil that's consistently soggy or swampy. It even grows well in sandy, heavy clay, alkaline or acid soils — add extra organic matter such as Milorganite (usually available at Wal-Mart) to help it along in these soil types.

Daylilies also thrive in sunlight, but can tolerate about a half a day in the shade. A little shade in the evening will prevent their vibrant colors from fading.

Though they're tough flowers and virtually self-sufficient, daylilies need a little extra attention. They can't be planted and ignored. Daylilies can be planted any time from spring through fall, but should not be planted any later than a month before the first hard freeze is expected. However, if frosts set in sooner than expected, cover the planted daylilies with 4 to 6 inches of light mulch to prevent heaving by the frost.

When planting daylilies, allow the soil to cover the top of the roots by about a half inch. Space the young plants about 12 to 24 inches apart. Then, after about a month, place fertilizer around the plants.

Keep the plants well-watered because you'll get more blooms on the plant.

Currently, there are over 32,000 varieties of daylilies. Though the roadways and mountainsides are filled with the orange-colored tawny daylily, the species is not native to America. The original species can still be found from the Ukraine to Japan and from the tropics to Siberia.

It is surprising that these flowers spread throughout the country because the flowers are sterile, spreading by root runners alone.

Daylilies can be divided at any time of the year, but make sure it's at least a month before the first hard freeze. Dig up the plant and separate the individual fans. Newly divided plants will often bloom within a few months of planting.

For more information about daylilies, or to join the American Hemerocallis (daylilies) Society, write: Elly Launius, executive secretary, American Hemerocallis Society, 1454 Rebel Drive, Jackson, MS 39211.

Burley sales unchanged, despite major concerns

by Randy Greene

Newly appointed members of the Burley Tobacco Advisory Committee voted July 7, for American burley growers to continue a 15-day pre-Christmas auction schedule, pending final approval by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

But opponents of the 15-day plan that has been in effect for 11 consecutive sales seasons said it is no longer fair to all growers, and they tried without success to introduce 19-day or 23-day alternatives.

By law, the Secretary of Agriculture is responsible for decisions on the sale and marketing of burley.

However, in 1990, Ag Secretary Edward Madigan appointed the first 39-member BTAC to advise him on such policy issues.

Then on June 24 of this year, Madigan announced new appointments to the BTAC. These two-year terms, ending April 19, 1994, took effect at the July 7 meeting in Lexington.

In other business, the BTAC: *postponed until its next meeting consideration of opening dates for the 1992-93 burley auction warehouse sales;

*gave its approval for the Agricultural Marketing Service to solve "sand trap" problems on the Paducah, Ky., Mayfield, Ky., and Clarksville, Tennessee, burley markets; and *agreed to conduct its next meeting October 2 in Lexington.

Summer picnics sizzle

Picnics have been around for as long as anyone can remember. A "picnic" originally meant a meal with each guest contributing a different course. By the late eighteenth century, picnics moved outdoors and featured both cold and hot dishes. In the nineteenth century, picnics became a playground for respectable Victorian ladies and gentlemen to mingle with one another.

Today, picnics are an opportunity for friends and family to gather and enjoy good food and good company with plenty of time for fun and relaxation. Whether it's on the sun deck of a high-rise building, in the middle of your living room or in a beautiful green meadow, a picnic is what you make it. And, with endless options for the places to have a picnic — especially beautiful Jenny Wiley State Park — and the food that is served, today's picnics inspire creativity and imagination.

Summertime offers the perfect opportunity for picnicking. Poor planning, though, or carelessness can increase the risk of food-borne illness. Hot temperatures and sun can increase the risk for food to spoil.

"At home" picnics allow the luxury of a nearby refrigerator. Store burgers, chicken, hot dogs and cheese in a cool space until you are ready to put them on the grill. Set up the buffet table in a shaded area. And do not serve salads, slaws, condiments or other perishables until you're ready to eat.

"Away from home" picnics require more planning. Keep the following tips in mind when transporting perishable foods:

- Store foods in a cooler or ice chest. You can make your own ice pack by freezing water in a used milk container.

- Store milk or ice cream drinks in a wide-mouth thermos. To keep drinks cool without diluting them, freeze milk to use in place of ice cubes.

- Use common sense when you park your picnic basket. Don't leave the food in the sun, but find a shady spot under a tree or a shelter.

- Make enough food to meet your needs and no more. After food has been outside refrigeration for several hours, it is not advisable to pack up the remainder for leftovers.

- Pack frozen foods, such as ice cream pies, in dry ice

LAYERED CHICKEN TACO SALAD

SUMMIT LEMON SQUARES

A great favorite of Dr. John Nowell of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, the squares are delicious with a morning coffee or as part of a dinner dessert.

- 1 cup margarine, softened
- 2 cups all-purpose flour

- 2 cups sugar
- 6 tablespoons strained lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
- 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- Powdered sugar

In mixing bowl beat eggs lightly with a fork. Add remaining ingredients except powdered sugar. Mix well and pour on top of baked pastry. Bake in a preheated 325° oven for 40 minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Cool and cut into squares. Yield: 4 dozen squares.

BEEF 'N CORN KABOBS

1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/4 cup red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon chopped fresh or 1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper (cayenne)
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 1/2 pounds beef boneless top round steak, cut into 1-inch cubes 4 small ears corn, husks removed
2 bell peppers, cut into 1 1/2-inch pieces

Mix oil, vinegar, thyme, red pepper and garlic in medium glass or plastic bowl. Add beef; stir to coat with marinade. Cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours, stirring occasionally.

Cut each ear of corn into 3 pieces. Remove beef from marinade; reserve marinade. Thread beef alternately with corn and bell peppers about 1/4 inch apart on six 11-inch metal skewers. Brush generously with marinade. Cover and grill 4 to 5 inches from medium coals 15 to 20 minutes for medium doneness, turning the kabobs frequently and brushing with marinade.

6 servings. This recipe is from Betty Crocker's Great Grilling supermarket magazine.

3 tomatoes, cut in wedges
1/2 cup butter, melted (add garlic if desired)

Combine crushed potato chips with ground chuck, eggs, cheese, parsley, salt and pepper. Mix lightly but thoroughly. Shape mixture into 30 balls about 1 inch in diameter. Business

On The House

Managing Your Biggest Investment

REAL ESTATE REMAINS A STRONG INVESTMENT

by Dorothy Harris
Opportunities to make big, quick profits in residential real estate tend to come and go in cycles. When a local market is hot, families may find it possible to buy a house at an attractive price, fix it up, and watch its value rise in just a few years.

When the same local market is at the low end of the appreciation cycle, reaping a profit on the family home can take a good deal more time but the reward can be just as satisfying if price and location are carefully considered.

Even in uncertain economic times like these, history shows that real estate is one of the soundest investments a family can make. During the Great Depression of the 1930s when the stock market plummeted as much as 89 percent, housing prices dropped only 39 percent. According to most of the research on housing trends, prices continually stay at the same level as, and most often appreciate faster than, the rate of inflation. Housing prices actually rose an average of 10 percent during the recessions of the mid-1970s and early 1980s.

Statisticians report that the rate of home appreciation since 1990 has been around five percent nationally, with inflation hovering around four percent. Homeowners, obviously, are still staying ahead in the real estate game on average.

And, with mortgage interest rates the lowest they've been in two decades, real estate today is a more attractive investment than it's been in years.

First-time buyers are the big winners in this environment. Drawing up a budget can help you and your family decide on what you can afford. Once you've determined a price and picked your desired community, shop around to find the best house you can buy for your money. This strategy can help you realize greater appreciation two or three years down the road.

This is also a good time to purchase a second or vacation home. A bargain cabin in the woods today might bring an excellent return when housing prices move upward. Affordable second-home prices also allow you to purchase a vacation home that can serve as a stepping-stone to a larger retreat in the future.

But appreciation isn't the only advantage to buying a home. The federal government thinks home ownership is so important to the future of our country that it allows mortgage interest to remain the last substantial tax shelter for families. Owners can also take deductions on their property taxes. And, the profit on the sale of your home remains tax free as long as you buy a house for a greater or equal price.

Also, those 55 and over qualify for a one-time tax break on up to $125,000 of profit earned from the sale of their homes.

So before you decide that this is not a good time to invest in residential property, re-examine the financial benefits of owning your own home and put them to work for you.

Average 1989 weekly earnings of full-time health care workers in private hospitals ranged from $743 for pharmacists to $281 for nursing assistants, according to the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics. Average weekly earnings for full-time registered nurses were $554; for medical technologists, $517. EKG technicians had average weekly earnings of $337.

Hoskins named to "300" Club

Members of the Kentucky Bankers Association's Young Bankers Division (YBD), including a Floyd County woman, were recognized for their contributions to the Personal Economics Program (PEP). The awards ceremony was held on June 27 during the 1992 YBD Annual Meeting at the Marriott Griffin Resort in Lexington.

Debbie Hoskins, First Commonwealth Bank of Prestonsburg, was named to the "300" Club Membership. The club recognizes those bankers who have made 300 or more contacts during the year.

PEP is a national volunteer educational program. Through Kentucky's adoption of PEP, bankers from all regions of the state visit area schools, civic groups and work groups with teachers to educate people about banking services and personal financial management skills. It is administered through the association by nine state-wide group coordinators.
