Over response to report :

Towler irks state board

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

State school board members reacted harshly Wednesday to comments made last week by Floyd County School Superintendent Steve Towler regarding a state investigation into the school system.

State Board Chairman Joe Kelly sent a letter Wednesday to Towler and board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell which said, "the State Board is dismayed by the public response of Dr. Towler to the Department of Education's investigation report."

Towler said Wednesday that he had talked with Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen about the letter. Towler said he was "sorry" that "some people had construed his comments" as downplaying the severity of the report.

"By no means was I doing that," Towler said. "In any report by a group of people you can take issue with the findings and recommendations. That report was made by a group of outsiders who came in here for a week."

"I offered to be at the state board meeting today (Wednesday) to say to them that I accept the report," Towler added.

The report was highly critical of the school system and it told board members to develop a short-term plan for implementing the recommendations by September 30.

Department of Education spokesman Steve Swift said Wednesday that the state will share the cost with the Floyd board to hire a facilitator to assist Towler in developing a short-term plan. The state will offer "$10,000 to $15,000" toward the cost, Swift said.

Towler said he will seek out "someone familiar with the education enterprise" to work with him to develop the short-term plan. He said that person or persons would not be from Floyd County and that he would look either "in Kentucky or outside Kentucky" for an individual or a company to provide that service.

Chairman Campbell declined to comment on the state board's criticism of Towler, but said the board had no choice but to follow the state's recommendations.

Towler was hired as superintendent of the Floyd County system after Commissioner Boysen vetoed the board's choice, Nebraska educator William Zitterkopf. Boysen recommended that the board hire Towler as their next superintendent. Boysen was criticized locally and statewide for the role he played in the selection of a new superintendent for the Floyd County system. A five-member search committee did not select Towler as a finalist for the position.

At the state board meeting in Danville Tuesday, board member Tom Gish told board members that Towler's comments "raised serious questions" about his intentions in Floyd County, Swift said Wednesday.

Gish, along with State Representative Roger Noe, criticized Boysen for his role in Floyd County's superintendent search. Gish sat in on a public meeting in Floyd County between Towler and local citizens in July, before Towler was hired.

"What I really was attending was a wake for the death of school reform in Eastern Kentucky," Gish said after that meeting.

Gish's remarks were in reference to Towler's touting of his experience with Eastern Kentucky teachers and school boards.

Representative Noe called Towler

Sites being reviewed for school offices

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Despite widespread accounts that the Floyd County Board of Education will move its central offices out of Prestonsburg, superintendent Steve Towler said Wednesday that "most likely" won't happen.

Towler was directed by the board in August to study relocating the central offices.

Office space in Prestonsburg, Allen and Martin is being considered, Towler said, but "most likely" it will remain in Prestonsburg. There are no plans to renovate the current office or build on the existing site on Arnold Avenue.

Candidates trade jabs in 5th district campaign

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Not to be outdone by presidential candidates George Bush and Bill Clinton, 5th District Congressional candidates John Doug Hays and Hal Rogers have begun taking public potshots at each other.

Last week, incumbent Rogers' reelection headquarters issued a press release accusing Hays of ethical misconduct and violation of the state constitution.

Those charges stem from Hays' service as a special justice on the Kentucky Supreme Court in an August, 1991 legal case that was not officially settled until June of this year, well after Hays had announced his candidacy for congress.

A counter-release issued Tuesday by Hays' campaign camp denounced those charges as being "ludicrous, untrue and utterly ridiculous," and said that Hays' involvement as a special justice was entirely legal and ethical.

Hays then went on to denounce Rogers' record of, among other things, voting 14 times on bank reform measures in the United States House of Representatives while also serving on the board of directors of a bank.

"(Rogers) has voted time and again on laws which could affect his private business interests," Hays said, "and now he has the nerve to accuse me of wrongdoing for serving my state.... It seems my opponent is taking advice from the same attack dogs who are running the Bush-Quayle campaign."

Neither Hays nor Rogers could be reached for comment Thursday.

Hays, a former state senator, will challenge Rogers, currently serving his sixth term as the 5th Congressional District Representative, in the November election.

On site visit

Trial gets underway in Left Beaver School dispute

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County Jury picked to hear a civil case concerning the controversial Left Beaver High School construction project listened to opening arguments Thursday on the school ground.

Jurors were taken to the school site at Hi Hat to get a better understanding of the lawsuit filed by Triple B Corporation against the Floyd County Board of Education and B & J Construction.

Circuit Court Judge Harold Stumbo also told jurors that, if necessary, court would be held on Saturday and Labor Day in order to finish the case before Tuesday.

Triple B was awarded the site preparation contract on the school site in August 1988.

Triple B's president, Gary Branham, is claiming the board owes his company over $300,000 and that B & J Construction owes over $4,000.

Phil Damron, Branham's attorney, said in his opening remarks that the school board gave Triple B "erroneous and inaccurate" engineering plans; that the board failed to provide proper fill sites to dispose of excess material taken off the mountain top site; and that B & J Construction was not a legitimate company and was paid for work performed by Triple B.

Damron called the school site a "mess and disgrace to Floyd County."

Damron said that Triple B had to have new engineering plans drawn before they could begin work because the original plans left out areas of the access road, ditches and guardrails.

The board's attorney, F.C. Bryan, argued that Triple B had not lived up to their contract and failed to correct 15 items on the construction manager's punch list. Bryan said that the fill sites were adequate and that there were enough engineers on the project to "float a battleship."

Gary Ousley of Alchemy Engineering designed the fill sites to hold 500,000 cubic yards of excess material, Bryan said. He added that there was a disclaimer on the fill site plans that said the amount was only an estimate.

Bryan conceded that the state Division of Water had altered the size of the fill sites up to 75 feet in some areas.

Bryan argued that Triple B did not install proper drainage pipes in the football field area.

Dan Rowland, representing B & J

Construction, said company president Tom Ed Music was brought into the suit as a result of an argument and that Music had performed all the duties of his contract.

Triple B had to locate alternate fill sites at their own expense and is being asked to pay $62,000 to Ousley Concrete for digging footers for the building, Damron said.

"By our bid, we would charge $1.80 a cubic yard for dirt removal and $2 a yard for rock removal," Damron said. "The board paid Ousley Concrete $122 a cubic yard for dirt removal and $260 a yard for rock. It took less than $4,000 to dig those footers. Ousley hired Jeff Wright to dig those footers for $3,800. It was $5,000 maximum cost and that leaves $57,000 in profit (for Ousley) that

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Although the Kentucky Education Reform Act may be bringing enlightenment to the Floyd County school system, Adam's Middle School students have been temporarily left in the dark.

Frankie Francis, athletic director and Director of Buildings and Grounds for the Floyd County Board of Education, said Thursday that a computer module in the main circuit of the school's power system was defective, thus causing power to randomly shut down.

As a result, all classes at the school on Thursday and Friday were canceled.

Francis said that the school board is doing all that could possibly be done and hoped to have the problem solved by today, Friday, so that students may return to class as soon as possible. Unfortunately, Francis said, the replacement computer module must be sent from the manufacturer, the Connecticut General Electric plant. Francis said the computer module should arrive by Friday.

Racing verdict stirs ire

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The Kentucky Racing Commissions' decision to deny live racing dates to Eastern Kentucky Racing, Incorporated has produced a negative backlash that may cost Floyd County millions of dollars in potential revenue and result in criminal charges being brought against the commission's board members.

The new Kentucky Racing Commission, consisting of eight former Thoroughbred Racing Commission members and three former Harness Racing Commission members, has been accused of trying to destroy the harness racing industry in Kentucky.

Adding weight to those accusations is the commission's refusal to allow Eastern Kentucky Racing president Clyde Woods live racing rights at his proposed Kentucky Downs facility. The commission cited as the basis for the refusal that blueprints for the track's bathrooms and horse stalls were not detailed enough. The commission also denied live racing

State Police prepare for Labor Day

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

As Kentuckians gear up to celebrate this year's Labor Day Weekend, the Kentucky State Police are gearing up to protect the celebrants.

According to figures compiled by the KSP, during last year's Labor Day weekend, eight people were killed and 418 people were injured on Kentucky's roadways. Of the eight fatal accidents, five were drug or alcohol-related.

Seven of the persons killed were not wearing safety belts and two were thrown from their vehicles.

Kentucky's highway fatality toll for 1992 as of August 28 was 483. The fatality toll on August 28 last year was 562.

Kentucky State Police Commissioner Billy Wellman announced on Wednesday that in order to combat highway accidents on Labor Day weekend this year, the Kentucky State Police force has temporarily suspended its 10 percent fuel reduction

David residents urged to boil drinking water

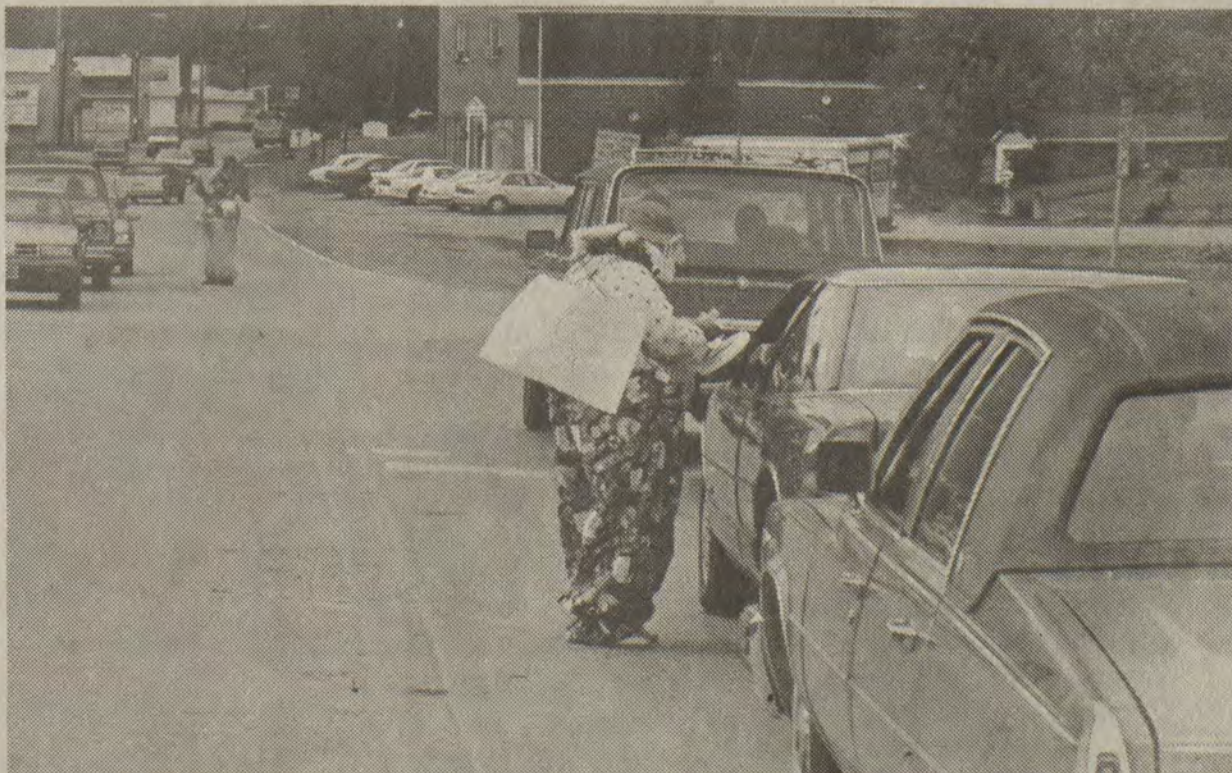

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

As a precautionary measure, all David residents have been asked to boil all water to be used for drinking or cooking until further notice.

Jackie Howard, superintendent for the district, said on Thursday that water was lost out of some of the lines Monday and as a result, the system lost water pressure. The back-up system was activated, Howard said, but when the main lines were put back into operation, settlements and deposits from the emptied tank shook loose and entered the water supply.

Howard stressed that the boil water advisory was merely a safety precaution and in no way meant that David's water supply was unsafe to drink.

Howard said that he had sent samples of the water to the state Division of Water for testing to determine whether or not the supply is contaminated. He added that he should know by today, Friday, whether or not the boil water advisory may be lifted.

they're charging to us."

Damron said "there is no such corporate animal" as B & J Construction and that the company owned no equipment to spread gravels at the site and failed to provide security on the site, two provisions of the general work contract awarded to B & J.

"B & J was paid $4,310.18 to spread gravel and the company owns no equipment," Damron said. "He (Music) contracts to do things that he cannot do. The gravel was dumped in the middle of the road and either we spread it or shut down. We did the work, we deserve the money."

Damron also said that over $1,000 worth of Triple B's equipment was stolen because there was no security at the site.

"The Floyd County Board of Education wants us to take care of their buddies," Damron said. "That's what happens when you're in their group. We're not part of the group and that's why they're jumping on us. They quit paying us, so we quit work."

When court resumed after the onsite visit, Branham took the stand and testified for about two hours.

Branham is also seeking a $37,000 reimbursement for additional fuel and explosive costs because of the increase in the cost from the time the project was awarded, in August 1988, until the contract was signed on January 6, 1990.

Branham testified that he was told by the project construction manager, Sam Martin, and then superintendent Ron Hager that he would be compensated for additional expenses.

Branham also said that his company lost two weeks work because steel roof joists had been placed in the area where his company was working. He testified that when he complained about the material being in the way, he began having problems with the construction manager.

Court was recessed at 5 p.m. Thursday and Branham is scheduled to undergo cross-examination by Bryan at 11 a.m. Friday (today).

Enrollment underway for KET GED on TV program

Adults interested in obtaining their GEDs through KET's GED ON TV study-at-home program should call KET at (800) 538-4433. A new session begins Tuesday, October 13.

The KET GED ON TV program is convenient for any adult without a high school diploma who, because of lack of transportation, lack of child care, conflicting work schedules, or other difficulties, needs to prepare for the GED exam at home.

KET began the program in 1975 to give Kentucky adults another chance to improve their education. Since that time, thousands of Kentucky adults have obtained their GED diplomas after preparing with the KET GED ON TV program.

Each student enrolled in the program receives three workbooks which follow the KET/GED Series broadcast on KET, a practice test which simulates the actual GED test, and a certificate which pays the GED testing fee. Throughout each GED ON TV study session, students may call tutors at a toll-free telephone number for help with particular problems.

The KET/GED Series, which is used nationwide, includes lessons for each area of the GED exam—math, writing, reading, science, and social studies. The series also includes programs which give test-taking tips and strategies.

For more information about KET's GED ON TV program, please call (800) 538-4433.

rights to Riverside Downs, an established track at Henderson.

Ched Jennings, attorney of record for Eastern Kentucky Racing, said on Thursday that he had been contacted by Governor Brereton Jones' office to set up a meeting between the governor, the commission, Woods and other leaders in the harness racing industry to resolve the issue. Jennings said that he expected that meeting to take place on Thursday, but was not sure if all the concerned parties would be able to arrange it.

Jennings added that he anticipated the meeting with the governor would end with the racing commissioners finding "a lot of egg on their faces."

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond said Thursday that it was clear the racing commissioners' decision was directly related to their own financial interests in the thoroughbred industry.

Hammond said that the commissioners' refusal constituted a direct violation of their respective oaths of office and Governor Jones' espoused philosophy about conflict of interest. He added that criminal charges could possibly be brought against the commissioners.

"This decision shows... that people in Central Kentucky consider Eastern Kentucky another Kentucky," Hammond said. "It was snobbish... they even questioned whether or not we had running water down here."

"It's just another example of the arrogance of the so-called 'blue-blood' aristocracy (in Central Kentucky)," Hammond continued. "They have raped this region of revenues for years and now they want us to have these off track betting parlors and funnel 20 percent of the gross into their back pockets."

Hammond said the decision had potentially cost Floyd County thousands of new jobs and several million dollars worth of projected revenues.

"This is the darkest day (Eastern Kentucky) has seen since the late 1950s," Hammond said. He added that the interlocal partnership agreement between Floyd County and the city of Prestonsburg would probably fall by the wayside in the wake of the commission's decision, although plans for the official home of the Kentucky Opry would not be affected.

On Thursday, state Representative Greg Stumbo was quoted in the Lexington Herald-Leader as saying that Governor Jones "should demand the resignations of those commissioners that voted to kill harness racing in the state. They violated their mandate, violated their oath of office."

Racing commissioners could not be reached for comment Thursday.

Woods refrained from further comment, pending the outcome of his meeting with the governor and harness racing leaders.

Hammond, however, remains optimistic.

"If I know the governor, the kind of man he is..." Hammond said, "I'm certain he will see that this situation is reconsidered... that he will take remedial steps immediately to address this issue."

TO ALL PARENTS WHO HAVE CHILDREN PRESENTLY ATTENDING THE PRESTONSBURG HIGH SCHOOL, OR WILL HAVE IN THE FUTURE.

Parents, this is your wake-up call. The time has come for each of us to ask ourselves two very important questions. One: Do I seriously want a better education for my child? Two: Will a new high school provide a better opportunity for this education?

We're sure the answer to both questions is yes, if you're really interested in your child's education.

For those parents who are fortunate enough to have their children attending the new Adams Middle School, going from the Middle School to the existing high school facility is a big set-back in your child's educational surroundings. For those parents who have children in our older grade school facilities, having an opportunity to attend a new modern high school will be their last chance to prepare for the skills that today's college students must exhibit.

Think about it, parents, would you trade your modern dependable automobile to that old clunker you had twenty years ago that wouldn't get you out of the driveway, or trade your computer to that old 'stand on the key' typewriter you had years ago?

Parents this COULD BE your FINAL and last wake-up call. Your new high school could very well be pulled off the priority list for new buildings to be built in the Floyd County School System. The decision could be made at next Tuesday's board meeting, September 8, at 6:00 p.m., at the New Allen Elementary School. Please come to the meeting—call a friend to come with you and show your support for a new school. Our children deserve the opportunity and we as parents must take action.

"one of the leaders of the old-boy society."

Kelly's letter also reminded Floyd County school officials what the state board expects from them.

"The State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education stresses to you the extremely high expectations and requirements imposed upon the Floyd County Board of Education, the superintendent and the entire school district as a result of the Department of Education's investigation report," the letter said. "All recommendations state in the report must be successfully implemented."

Kelly also pointed out that school officials can be removed from office for nonfeasance.

"The standards for removal of school officials set out in KRS 156.132, including nonfeasance, are applicable to the actions and nonactions of the board of education members and the superintendent," Kelly said. "The performance of the local board and superintendent will be assessed under those standards."

A report was released last week outlining the findings of the department of education which said the Floyd County system was in "deep trouble." Commissioner Boysen called the district a "catastrophe in leadership."

Towler said his comments concerning the absence of "anything illegal or even unethical" stemmed from the fact that "nobody has been indicted and no arrests have been made."

"No one was cited (in the report) as blatantly violating the law," Towler said. "There were no blatant violations of the law."

As for the recommendations in the report to conduct "legal" investigations into the Left Beaver and Prestonsburg high school construction projects, Towler said the report didn't specify who should conduct those investigations.

"It (the report) suggested there be an investigation, but someone has to do the investigation," Towler said. "It didn't say who should do these investigations."

"I see my role as taking this report and turning this system in the right direction as quickly as possible," Towler added.

A facilitator is expected to be hired by next week to begin developing the short-term plan, Towler said.

Approximately 3,000 square feet is needed for the facility and space to park 75-100 vehicles, Towler said. The existing building has 12,000 to 13,000 square feet.

No decision is expected on the move for several weeks or months and a committee has been formed to study the issue.

"We are just beginning the process to study the situation," Towler said. "We'll go where we get the best arrangement. We don't want anything plush or luxurious."

Committee members include Towler; Frankie Francis, director of buildings and grounds for the school system; Martin Mayor Raymond Griffith; Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta; Prestonsburg businessman H.D. "Buddy" Fitzpatrick; and DeLores Smith of Allen. Towler said the group has met once.

Options for the board include leasing a facility, buying a facility, or entering into a lease/purchase agreement, Towler said. No price range has been discussed.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Editorials :

Stay home, send money

by Scott Perry

"Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to be free."

On second thought, keep your masses huddled and just send money.

With their Bluegrass bluenoses aimed skyward, Kentucky's new and improved racing commission soundly snubbed their country cousins Tuesday, sending a proposed Prestonsburg harness track into oblivion.

Some speculate the decision to disallow racing here was a means to facilitate development of off-track betting centers, with proceeds from wagers going largely to established tracks like Keeneland and Churchill Downs.

A convenient way, no doubt, to spend your money in Lexington or Louisville without imposing your low-class presence on the brand-name elite.

Contrarily, the development of a race track here would have furthered our efforts to build our own economic base, to satisfy our yearning to be free of the yoke of dependency.

That's a bit uppity, says the state racing commission. Up yours, say we.

Dear Guv :

What gives?

Here we are, trying to pull ourselves out of this economic hole and everytime we get to the top, somebody kicks us back in again.

We had to beg the federal government to finish building the final link of Route 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

We had to beg for years to get a fair share of the tax dollars our coal resources provide the state.

When school reform was found to be necessary, we got to pick up a hefty chunk of the tab but we still have little hope that our children will find anyplace to work once they graduate.

Do smart kids get to move to the head of the welfare line?

Just thought you'd like to know how we're doin' down here.

See you at the ~~races~~.

Editor:

You and your product (an in-word like, you know) are appreciated far and wide. I, for one, (more far than wide) like Scott Perry's zingy writings; and getting Friday's paper on Tuesday, record time for USPS; and reports such as the Jenny Wiley "Opera" (I want the cassettes); and your typesetter's sense of humor or of the fittingness of language.

That last item refers to the published change of my word "formenting" to "fermenting." I suppose we are referring to sewage plant problems, aren't we?

Regards to elected school board members. What are the requirements as to education, business know-how, or experience?

It is our opinion that elected members should be versed in a substantial amount of business management, financing and be able to read and understand plans and specifications of prepared buildings, and building plots void of politics and political input.

If wrong, I stand to be corrected.

Who poisoned the potatoes?

The Detroit News

A federal appeals court recently ordered the Environmental Protection Agency to abide by a 1958 law forbidding the sale of food products containing even trace amounts of potentially toxic chemicals. The decision was an admirable blow for strict construction of the law. Here's hoping it will also end up as a blow to a crazy law.

The 1958 Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act contained a section, known as the Delaney Clause, which declares that any food additives shown to cause cancer in humans or laboratory animals should be banned. Under this clause, such substances as saccharin and red dye No. 2 have been outlawed over the years. But the appellate court in San Francisco, by a vote of 3-0, greatly expanded the number of proscribed substances by declaring that Congress meant to include pesticide residues in its definition of "food additives."

As a matter of law, the court appears to be right: Congress' intention clearly was to rid food of any foreign substances posing a risk of cancer. But whether the Delaney Clause itself makes any sense is another question.

In 1958, it was widely assumed that 30 percent or more of all cancers were triggered by "carcinogenic" agents in the environment, mainly man-made chemicals. Nowadays it's understood that the vast majority of cancers are caused by genetic, dietary and lifestyle factors. Epidemiologists put environmental causes at about 1 percent to 2 percent of all cancers.

At the same time, however, scientific ability to measure chemical residues has improved enormously. We can now find trace amounts as low as a few parts-per-billion in food products—levels so low that they could scarcely have been imagined in 1958, much less thought to pose a serious danger to humans.

And indeed they don't pose a serious danger: A team at Stanford's Food Research Institute has shown that when actual exposure is considered, not a single fungicide was found to raise the cancer risk above one in a million. That's 35 times greater than the risk of getting killed by a bolt of lightning.

Moreover, attempts to rid farming of all pesticides, as many of the ecomanics would like to do, carries risks of its own. After the Environmental Protection Agency banned the fumigant ethyl dibromide (EDB), for example, natural aflatoxins were found to be soaring. Aflatoxin is judged to be 1,000 times as carcinogenic as EDB.

By volume, 99.9 percent of all "pesticides" in our diet come from similar "natural" sources. Potato skins are good for you because they contain lots of vitamins, just like Mom always said. But they also contain lots of natural pesticides that ward off bugs, molds and other predators.

If the Delaney Clause were applied to nature, we'd all starve. Yet Congress and the environmental bureaucracy persist in the notion that the Nanny State can eliminate all risk from life. Perhaps the appeals court decision will force them to face the folly of that attitude. But don't count on it.

Death of an industry

Will Jones allow greed to kill harness racing? Is this why Gov. Brereton Jones pushed so hard to get new racing legislation through the General Assembly this year?

The combined Kentucky Racing Commission — created by that legislation, appointed by thoroughbred breeder Jones and thoroughly dominated by thoroughbred interest — made clear Tuesday that its ultimate goal is nothing less than the end of harness racing in this state.

The motive is a classic one: greed. The commission is willing to destroy standardbred racing in greedy pursuit of more tracks, more off-track betting and more dollars (some coming from taxpayers) for the thoroughbred industry.

How shameless is this greed? Well, an established harness track and a proposed harness track were denied racing dates for 1993, while new thoroughbred meets were established at two other tracks. The thoroughbred requests breezed through; the harness tracks were subjected to nitpicking examination of their finances.

The commission denied a Prestonsburg group's request to operate a harness track. Cut through all the excuses for the decision, and the reason is clear: A harness track in Prestonsburg would keep off-track betting parlors from operating a significant portion of Eastern Kentucky...

The governor should ask the commission to reconsider its decisions. If the commission won't, he should ask its members to resign.

If the governor does anything else, he will be endorsing a raw abuse of power from which he and his industry stand to benefit. And that would tell Kentuckians everything they need to know about Jones' real agenda for racing in Kentucky. — Lexington Herald-Leader

JOB TRANSFERS CREATE FAMILIAL TURMOIL

by Kenneth Eskey
Scripps Howard News Service

Corporations are discovering something they should have known long before this: that transferring key employees from city to city, from plant to plant, has a down side that causes turmoil and stress in a great many American families.

Most workers still accept these promotions or sideways locomotions, even if they're not crazy about the idea. What else can they do? Either they play the corporate chess game, or they end up at a desk with a magnificent view of the hall closet. Nobody ever climbed the corporate ladder by saying no to the boss.

But grumbles are being heard among the troops, and some of the loudest grumbles are coming from two-worker families. The dialogue goes something like this:

"Bob, I've got good news for you. We want you to be sales manager in Des Moines. It's a great opportunity. We'd like you to wind up your work here and move to Iowa by Oct. 1."

"Thanks, J.R. I appreciate your confidence in me. But we like it here. We just bought a new house, our kids are in school and my wife has a chance to make partner at the law firm. She's not going to be happy about moving again."

The same would be true of a woman worker asked to move to a new city, forcing her husband to find another job. It's one thing to be a good soldier when one job is at stake. It's not so easy to move when two-worker families are involved.

Thirty-six percent of workers who say they're reluctant to move point to their mate's job as a reason, up from 28 percent a year ago, according to a survey of 384 companies by the business-backed Employee Relocation Council in Washington, D.C.

The council calls this career conflict a "growing concern," even though difficulties in selling and buying homes are cited more often by workers who balk at new assignments.

"More than half of male transferees relocated in 1991 had wives with careers of their own, female transferees were typically single, with only one-third reporting a working spouse," says the council's latest relocation report.

There is some evidence that transferees are slowing down, partly to save money during a soft economy. The average cost of transferring an employee who owns a home was $46,667 in 1991. That could include everything from shipping costs to the subsidies and services some companies offer to prevent losses on home sales.

"In general, most employees will accept a transfer, even if they have reservations about the move," says the relocation report. "The typical transferee continues to be a 37-year-old married male with dependent children."

Working for a major corporation with high pay and good benefits carries an implied understanding that moving around might be part of the deal. Companies tend to groom managers by exposing them to a variety of operations and situations. That's particularly true of firms with overseas affiliates, which helps to explain why international relocations are trending up instead of down.

But if companies are as serious about "family values" as the two presidential candidates seem to be, it doesn't make sense to uproot managers every five years just to satisfy some corporate game plan.

The proportion of transferred workers who are married and have children at home declined from 64 percent to 56 percent between 1990 and 1991. Most of the families that stayed where they are probably prefer it that way.

Perry County affected by Floyd landfill closing

Perry County may contract with a northern Kentucky company to operate a landfill in the county. Perry County judge-executive Sherman Nease received support this week from Kentucky River ADD in his efforts to get Addington Resources to reopen and run Perry County's landfill.

"We definitely need another landfill somewhere, with Judge Stumbo's shutdown in Floyd County now and it's costing Perry County roughly $1,000 a day for tipping fees to go to another landfill after we go 95 miles one way," Nease said. — Mountain Eagle, Whitesburg

Pike County expected to get go-ahead for new high school site

The Pike County school board is expected to get a green light today to spend $4.27 million to buy and develop a site for a new high school.

The expenditure requires state school board approval because the site costs exceed 10 percent of the construction budget.

A committee of the state board approved the expenditure yesterday and the full board will act on it today.

The new 1,300-student Cumberland Valley High School would replace Feds Creek, Elkhorn City and Millard high schools and is expected to cost $9.6 million to build. Plans also call for eventually building a middle school at the 88-acre site. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Johnson County trash pickup takes a hike

The new rate schedule, which went into effect Thursday, eliminates free service and offers only two rates to county households: $11.50 and $9. To qualify for the $9 rate, residents must be eligible under welfare and Homestead Exemption guidelines. All others will pay the top rate. — Paintsville Herald

A gathering of MSU presidents — past and present

Three of Morehead State University's former presidents were on hand as well as the current president, Dr. Ronald G. Eaglin, for the traditional opening of school convocation for faculty and staff. Taking time prior to the session to share their historical perspectives with Dr. Eaglin, at left, were Dr. Morris Norfleet (1977-84), Dr. A.D. Albright (1986-87) and Dr. Adron Doran (1954-1977). Invited back, but unable to return at this time, also were Dr. C. Nelson Grote (1987-92) and Dr. Herb F. Reinhard (1984-86). During his address to the faculty and staff, Dr. Eaglin stressed that he won't tolerate self-destructive students or unprepared professors. He also pledged to provide the resources faculty members need to do their job.

Extended unemployment benefits approved by Bush

About 30,000 Kentuckians who have or will exhaust their jobless benefits may be eligible for an additional 20 weeks of payments under the recently signed Emergency Unemployment Compensation Act of 1991.

The act, signed by President George Bush July 3, is the third unemployment benefits extension since November 1991.

Margaret Whittet, commissioner of the Kentucky Department for Employment Services, said to qualify for the extension individuals would have had to become unemployed after July 4, 1992, and have exhausted their regular benefits or currently qualify for a new benefit claim or have a remaining balance on a previous emergency unemployment compensation claim.

The new extension also gives claimants the option of receiving either regular unemployment insurance benefits or emergency unemployment compensation. Whittet said the amount of the weekly benefit may be different for the regular payment than the emergency compensation, so people can choose the most beneficial claim.

"This extension is somewhat different from the two previous ones," Whittet said. "For example, most people who qualified for previous extensions will not be eligible for this extension because it is directed at the newly unemployed."

"People who are eligible for the extension will receive letters from the Department for Employment Services explaining their benefits. But if someone thinks he is qualified he should contact his local employment services office."

Kentuckians filing initial unemployment claims from June 14, 1992, through July 4, 1992, may receive 20 weeks of benefits instead of the 13 weeks under the February 1992 extension.

"For someone who is unable to find employment, this extra 20 weeks will give them an opportunity to continue searching for a job through our employment service, while some steady income is coming in," Whittet said.

Whittet estimated that the total extra benefits to Kentuckians as a result of the third extension could reach $83 million.

For the first two extensions (November 1991 and February 1992) there have been 38,592 initial claims filed and $118.1 million in additional benefits paid through the end of June 1992.

The new extension does not give previous filers an additional 20 weeks. New claims can be filed through March 6, 1993, with no benefits being paid after June 19, 1993.

Kentucky Fried Chicken: a success in any language

Harland Sanders, founder of the world's largest international restaurant system, sold insurance and Michelin tires, worked for the railroad, ran a ferry on the Ohio River, and operated a service station before starting the business which made him famous—Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Sanders was born in Henryville, Indiana in 1890, and acquired his cooking skills fixing meals for his family while his widowed mother worked. Years later, he applied these skills while operating a Shell station on U.S. Highway 25 in Corbin, Kentucky; hungry travelers came to count on Sanders' home-cooked meals.

Demand led him to relocate and expand in 1931, adding a dining area and later, a motel. His success prompted the governor to name him a Kentucky Colonel in 1935. Sanders focused on the restaurant business after a fire destroyed the motel in 1939, and in 1940, Colonel Sanders was using new pressure cooking technology—requiring less time—to fry his chicken. The fast food revolution began.

By 1952, word of the Colonel's technique had spread. He and his wife, Claudia, loaded their car with seasonings and a pressure cooker, and set out in search of franchisees. They sold the cafe in 1956, and by 1964, Kentucky Fried Chicken had more than 600 outlets. Today, there are 755 Kentucky Fried Chicken stores in the U.S., and 3,000 units in the company's international division.

Original Recipe Kentucky Fried Chicken, made with the secret blend of 11 herbs and spices perfected in the early 1930's, remains the company's flagship product. Although Colonel Sanders died in 1980, his image as a southern gentleman with mustache, goatee, suit, and cane, is still one of the most recognizable likenesses in advertising.

In 1988, restoration of the Sanders Cafe in Corbin began, and the restaurant reopened in 1990 with a museum of KFC artifacts and a state-of-the-art kitchen annexed to the original structure.

Fun in the sun

Children of PCC faculty and staff had their own recreational activities supervised by Kathy Stewart of the PCC Business Department during a college cookout at PCC.

PCC celebrates a new beginning

On August 24, Prestonsburg Community College faculty and staff took a day off from registration and preparation for classes to concentrate on physical, mental, and emotional well-being, to be able to serve as positive role models for students and community members.

The morning consisted of a healthy breakfast of bran and raisin muffins, bagels and fruit juice, followed by a welcoming address by President Deborah L. Floyd.

The keynote address was given by Dr. Rodney Handshoe, a PCC graduate who is now a cardiologist at Highlands Regional Medical Center. His presentation dealt with risk factors involved in heart disease and what could be done to prevent it. His emphasis was upon the life style and nutrition factors which can be changed.

Following Dr. Handshoe's presentation, PCC faculty and staff participated in a workshop entitled "Interpersonal/Career Stress" given by faculty members Lynn Weddle and Etta Cantrell.

In the afternoon, six break-out sessions offered a choice of "Low Back Pain During Exercise," "Nutrition: Fat Content Calculations, Disease Prevention," "Participation in the PCC Wellness Program," "Cancer Detection in Men and Women," "Make-Up and Color Consultation," and "Smoking Cessation."

The program concluded with a presentation by Dr. Floyd entitled

"Six Dimensions of Wellness: An Employee Benefit."

Following the day of meetings, faculty and staff members enjoyed an all-college cookout organized by the social committee headed by Thomas Orf of the social sciences division. Picnic tables, volleyball, and croquet courts were set up and the fun began.

Nursing scholarships awarded

Four area nursing students have been awarded scholarships through the Kentucky Board of Nursing (KBN), Nursing Incentive Scholarship Fund (NISF).

Recipients of the scholarships are Helen Vickers, Alicia Spradlin and Stacey Calhoun, all of Prestonsburg; and Greta Blair, Paintsville. Because these four are sponsored by Highlands Regional Medical Center, they will become full-time nurses at Highlands once they have completed their degrees.

The Nursing Incentive Scholarship Fund was created by the 1990 Kentucky General Assembly to provide financial assistance for residents enrolling in pre-licensure registered nurse and licensed practical nurse education programs. HRMC has been a sponsoring facility (i.e., matching the amount of the scholarship awards) since the program began.

An applicant for the scholarship fund must be a Kentucky resident, be admitted to a school in Kentucky with an approved program of nursing, and have obtained sponsorship from a Kentucky health facility. The sponsoring facility will match the scholarship awarded to the applicant. In exchange, the applicant will work one year at the sponsoring facility for each academic year funded.

Preference for awards will be given to low-income, unemployed Kentucky residents; LPNs who wish to attend registered nursing programs; and to applicants who have agreed to work in a sponsoring hospital, skilled nursing or intermediate care facility, or primary care center in a rural area of the state.

Scholarship recipients who maintain at least a 2.0 grade point average may be eligible to receive continued awards as needed to complete the program of nursing.

For more information about the scholarship, contact Highlands' Nursing Department, 886-8511, extension 282.

Year-round schooling gets a new examination

The idea of year-round education, which has waxed and waned for many years, has been re-examined by the Southern Growth Policies Board. Such plans were tried by various systems a generation or two ago, but generally failed.

However, the board suggested that it may be time to try again. With many more women now in the workforce, there was said to be more need for supervised care on a year-round basis. The fact that school facilities sit idle so much was deplored. There's also increasing concern over the shortness of the U.S. school year, compared to those in nations that have higher educational achievement than the U.S.

However, it was acknowledged that the few U.S. school systems that now operate all year are in classes about the same number of days as students that follow the traditional calendar.

Teachers go back to school

Kathleen Carroll
Contributing Writer

School started Monday, August 31, but students got a day off on Tuesday. "Usually the teacher's planning day is held right before the first day of classes," explained Janice Allen, Adams Middle School principal. "This year, it just didn't work out that way."

So, while students at Adams Middle School took a day off, their teachers went back to school. More exactly, teachers reported to their classrooms for an in-service day of preparing class plans and materials.

Adams Middle School faculty met in various committees, reviewed student portfolios and participated in a workshop to develop skills in helping handicapped students.

The student portfolios are a part of the new Kentucky Educational Assessment. Portfolios are Schoolwork representation of each student's progress which is compiled throughout the year. These portfolios will be considered, along with test results and other performance events, to determine the school's current threshold of development. The school will then identify areas where potential exists and areas where improvement is needed. Plans will be constructed toward accomplishing these goals.

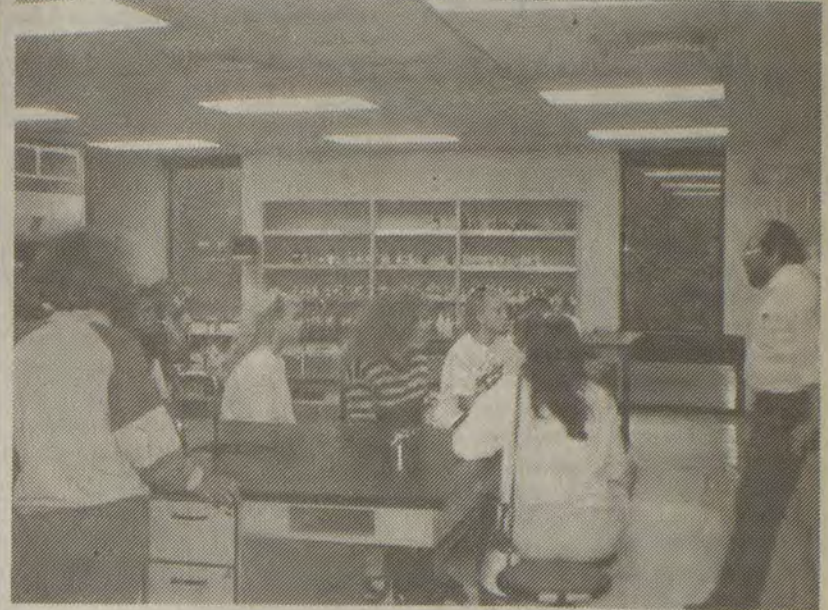

The faculty of Adams Middle School have a challenging year ahead. Adams Middle School is a pilot school for a program in Career Choices.

According to school counselor

Jane Meek, the ten-week program will consist of sessions focusing on career clusters, interest inventories, and self-assessments. Each program will feature guest speakers representing various careers.

"We hope this will help students identify their marketable skills and develop realistic career expectations," said Meek. The program is expected to assist students prepare throughout their high school curriculum.

Another program will focus on the problems of dating in the 90's. The program will be coordinated for Adams Middle School by Debbie Stumbo and Jane Bond, health educator for the Floyd County Health Department. The peer-taught course will consist of five 5-hour sessions and will focus on sexual abstinence.

Labwork

Dr. Roger Goodwill describes the learning experience available at PCC's Campbell Science Center.

Adams Middle School visits PCC

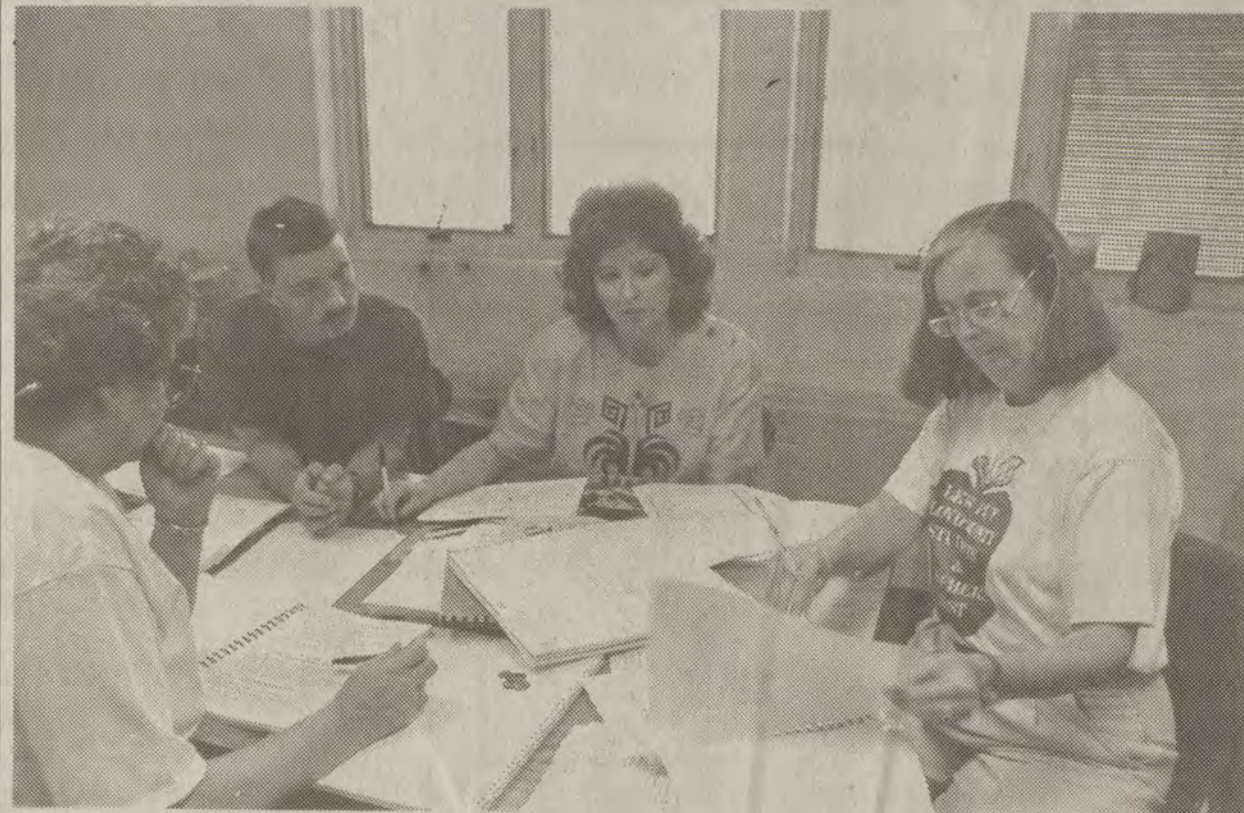

Do students from this area have to travel to Lexington to amplify their science experiences? No, Prestonsburg Community College is providing a means to stimulate scientific curiosity close at hand, and many local schools are taking advantage of this opportunity. On July 31, the Adams Middle School visited the Big Sandy Natural Science Center located on the Prestonsburg Community College campus.

These students visited all the specialized labs in the Campbell Science Center. They studied the anatomical models and checked their respirations and pulse rates on the machines in the anatomy/physiology lab. In the microbiology lab they took samples and grew cultures of the bacteria on their hair and skin.

In the zoology lab they examined the living and taxidermed animal exhibits. They petted the stuffed coyote from Martin County, the locally collected wildcat or lynx, the many owl specimens, the red and gray squirrels, the mink and the skunk. They also got to visit the live snakes and play with the shy hermit crab.

PCC faculty, such as Dr. Roger Goodwill, the head of the Big Sandy Natural History Science Center Development Committee, set up exhibits, hand-on experiments, and intriguing equipment designed to pique an interest in science.

If your school would like a similar tour, please contact Dr. Roger Goodwill at Prestonsburg Community College, 886-3863.

Planning day

Teachers at Adams Middle School met Tuesday for planning day. Usually, teacher's planning day is held before the first day of classes, but this year, said Adams Middle School Principal Janice Allen, it just didn't work out. (photo by Kathleen Carroll)

Duff Elementary summer school

James A. Duff Elementary concluded a very successful summer school program on August 14th with the presentation of participation certificates and a watermelon feast for all.

The program was one of the largest in Floyd County with five teachers—Beverly Scott (Grades K-1), Billie O'Quinn (Grades 2-3), Shellah Ratliff (Grades 3-4), Connie Scott (Grades 5-6), and Thomas Price (Grades 7-8). Average daily attendance was 44, with fifteen tutors employed.

Several methods of instruction were implemented in the different classrooms. All students were tested initially to determine individual needs and goals for each student.

In Beverly Scott's class, learning centers were developed with the assistance of tutors, Amanda Wallen, Jane Gray, and Delia Conley. Students were Kendrick Thornsbury, Tyler Smith, Amber Scott, Tiffany Turner, Joshua Scott, Danyail Hicks, Seth Slone, Lisa Caudill, Jocelyn Isaac, Heather Wireman, and Megan Moore.

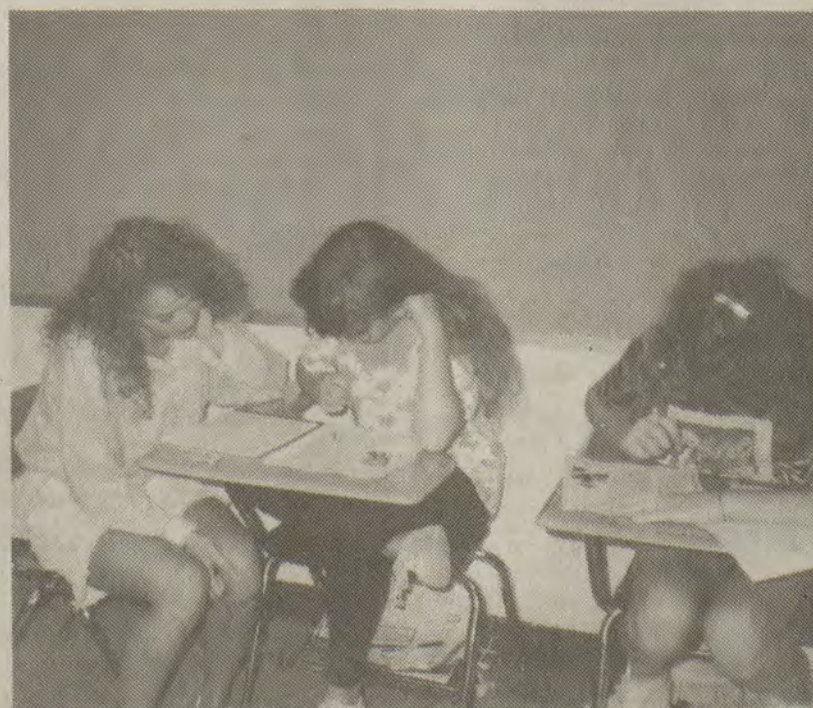

Billie O'Quinn's classroom enjoyed a thematic unit on "Dinosaurs" with an emphasis on skills in reading, writing, and mathematics. Tutors were Todd Bingham, Jessica Slone, Denise Hughes, and Sabrina Teel. The students enrolled were Kevin O'Quinn, Kyle O'Quinn, Lauren Robinson, Stephen Waddles, Eric Wallen, Victoria Wells, Cody Collins, Elizabeth Thornsbury, Jon Dooley, Heather Handshoe, Leann Ratliff, Robert Fitzpatrick, Jamie Gunnell, and Tabitha Hughes.

The newspaper was the base of the unit on "Summer Olympics" in Shellah Ratliff's classroom, utilizing articles from the Lexington Herald Leader and the Floyd County Times. Students read, wrote about, and computed facts and statistics from both newspapers. Tutors assisting were Tonya Lawson, Andrea Martin, and Shawn Tussey. Students were Willis Chaffins, Rodney Scott, Matthew Clark, Manis Jones, Tomma Martin, Heath Scott, Elisha Thornsbury, Melissa Howard, Peggy Risner, Matthew Ousley. Individual learning stations and computers were utilized in Connie Scott's classroom to meet the individual needs of the students in reading and math. Tutors were Jamie Kave ton, Brandon Murphy, Tommy Thornsbury, Kristy Teel, Carla Conley, Nathan Risner, Dwayne Foster, Michael Morgan, Shawn Henson and Brandi Howard.

"Club Think" was the product of a co-operative learning activity in Thomas Price's classroom. Students centered their learning around an Egyptian theme with an emphasis on reading, creative writing, and math. Each student also made a plaster mask and silk-screened matching T-shirts with the "Club Think" logo. Tutors were Kelli Fitzpatrick and Leah Martin. Students were Joe Clark, Rebecca Clark, Ross Goble, Anita Lazar, Heather Lyons, Shauna Moore, David Poff, Misty Scott, and Kevin Slone.

Each student's progress was monitored, tested, and recorded in student portfolios. Plans are being made for a bigger and better summer school program for next year according to principal, Ralph O'Quinn.

The class will feature instruction in the Lindy (Jitterbug) and Western Swing to the "fast moving tunes" of Ricky Skaggs, Patty Loveless, Sawyer Brown, Marty Stewart, The Kentucky Headhunters, and many others.

Swing Dancing will be taught by Dr. Paul Thompson, PCC chemistry professor, an experienced swing dancing instructor.

The class is free and everyone, ages thirteen and older, is welcome to attend. Swing will begin Thursday, September 10, from 7:30-9:30 p.m., in the Johnson Building, Room 102. Good "sliding, slippery" shoes should be worn for good swing dancing.

Diversity of college

What did these non-traditional students do before enrolling at Clear Creek? Everything! Past employment includes maintenance, homemaker, bank teller, insurance agent, computer drafting, US Army, X-ray technician, US Air Force, construction, secretary, manufacturing, childcare, sound technician, UPS management, preschool teacher, and security. Three of the students left a pastorate to secure additional training.

Student orientation held at Clear Creek

President Bill D. Whittaker recently announced new student orientation at Clear Creek Baptist Bible College, Pineville. It was a week of testing and introduction to campus life. Forty new students have been admitted for the main campus, and extension centers at Manchester and Somerset will add others. Director of Admissions Jayson Barnett expects another enrollment increase.

The 40 new students reflect the diversity of the college. Thirty-one are married and among them they have 50 children. Clear Creek maintains the training of non-traditional students. Average age of this new class is 29 with the oldest student age 45. Six, of the group, are in their forties; ten are in their thirties. Taking honors as youngest in the class is Scott Lenox, 19, who looks forward to a ministry with youth and music. His father returned to Clear Creek to complete the fourth year. Five wives will attend classes with their husbands.

The new class comes to us from 12 states with KY sending the most: KY (14), OH (10), TN (5), MI (2), IN (2); and one from each of these states: FL, IL, MO, NC, TX, VA, WV.

Educational background reflects the trend of recent years. Seventeen have previous college experience, and the others are high school graduates.

Arnold Turner Jr., Prestonsburg, is a member of the board of trustees for Clear Creek Baptist Bible College at Pineville.

Mountain festival showcases craftsmanship of folk artists

Traditional Appalachian arts and crafts — Dolls, dulcimers, and folk art — can all be found at the Highlands Folk Festival Arts and Crafts Fair which gets underway September 11 in the Jenny Wiley Theatre's parking lot at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Demonstrations of handwork by craftsmen showcasing their wares can also be seen at the fair. Spectators can watch as a broom maker from Harrodsburg weaves broom straws into brooms just in time for fall cleaning.

Area craftsmen who will exhibit include Larry Blackburn of Banner, who makes knives, dulcimers and wooden crafts. Paul Arthur Castle of Staffordsville will return with one of the fair's most popular items, folk toy creations. Castle began his venture with the folk festival when he was a teen. He's now in college and bringing his father along to lend a hand.

David Appalachian Crafts will also display crafts from the many area artisans who sell through their shop.

Workshops are also planned for the three-day event, including a Writer's Workshop with noted area authors scheduled to serve as instructors.

The atmosphere at the fair is family-oriented, said Dorothy Harris of East Point. Harris has assisted with organizing the craft fair for the past 15 years.

Most of the craftsmen return each year, said Harris. Some of them keep returning, she said, because they "say it is so beautiful here."

Harris has mailed more than 200 invitations to craftsmen to participate in the craft fair, and she expects a variety of crafts will be available for sale, including grapevine crafts, ceramics, jewelry, quilted stuffed animals, leather goods, baskets, quilts, and holiday sweatshirts.

Only folk-styled crafts, handmade items, will be sold at the fair, which concludes Sunday, September 13, Harris said. She stressed that the craft fair is not a flea market. A small fee is charged to those who want to set up booths, but no fee is charged for admittance, and browsers are welcome to come by and chat with craftsmen.

The craft fair will open at 11 a.m. on Friday, September 11 and at 9 a.m. September 12 and 13.

Telethon aids hurricane victims

by Beth Jones

The Floyd County Chapter of the American Red Cross held a telethon to help victims of Hurricane Andrew. The show was shown live on WPRG-TV. A grand total of $16,709 was raised during the five-hour telethon, but donations and goods are still pouring in.

Members of the Prestonsburg Community College Nursing Association and Kelli Hall of Buckhorn Coal manned the telephones. Robert Barker and Lisa Elkins of the nursing association kept a tally of the contributions.

Anyone who made a pledge should either send it to the American Red Cross, P.O. Box 111, Martin, Kentucky 41649, or drop it off at WPRG, Martin City Hall, Layne Brothers Ford, or any Happy Mart location. All donations need to be in by Thursday, September 10.

The Red Cross sincerely appreciates the help of Tel-Com who allowed the Red Cross to use their studios free of charge. They thank Paul Gearheart, Dr. Don and Juanita "The Diamond Lady" Bevins for all their help. They also appreciate Malcolm Layne, Greg from Coleman Oil, Chuck Hall, Troy from Troy's Cabinets, Pastor Dan Frederick and all the others who sat in at the telethon.

So far, the people of Eastern Kentucky have donated more money to the Hurricane Andrew victims than any other group from Kentucky.

In other news, Hardee's of Prestonsburg is collecting money for the victims each day. They match the donations dollar for dollar.

On Saturday, the 5th, the employees of Hardees will have a car wash to raise money for the victims. In all, they will match funds up to $50,000 for the relief project.

Doctors Ray and Virginia DeGuzman are leaving Friday to go to Florida. They will donate their time for one week to treat those injured in the hurricane.

Hale retires after 20 years service

The U.S. Air Force has announced the retirement of Lt. Col. James J. Hale after 20 years service.

Prior to retiring, the colonel was an assistant chief inspector general. He is the son of Winifred O. Hale of Blue River. His wife, Sandra, is the daughter of Isabelle Stephens of Prestonsburg.

In 1966, he graduated from Prestonsburg High School, and received a master's degree in 1976 from the University of Northern Colorado, Greeley.

HOME-GROWN FRIENDS ARE THE BEST

For the past several weeks, good friends and neighbors have supplied my family with delicious home-grown tomatoes that would make the Green Giant greener with envy.

During this time there has been no hamburger nor piece of bacon fried at our house that hasn't come face to face with a juicy, red slice of tomato slapped between two fresh pieces of bread.

Though it's been wonderful, it is coming to an end.

Last weekend I had lunch with one of our biggest tomato suppliers who was about at the end of her rope.

"Do you still have tomatoes?" I asked Vivian.

She stared blankly at me for a few seconds before she burst out laughing and snickered, "Sara, right now I'm looking for a good recipe for tomato cake. Chick and I have canned close to a million gallons of tomato products."

"Oh, you're exaggerating," I replied.

"Okay. You add it up yourself," she said, bluntly. "What comes after 999,999? That's approximately how many canning jars we bought - give or take a few. We now own controlling interest in the Ball Company."

"What have you canned?" I asked with interest.

"Well, let's see. We've canned tomatoes, green beans, corn, peaches and cabbage."

"Does Chick help?"

"Sure, when I make him," she laughed. "No, he likes his garden, but he doesn't like the canning part."

When I started thinking about Vivian's last comment, it made me wonder about how differently men and women see things. Men like to cook on a grill, but not in a kitchen on a stove. Men also like to garden, but they don't like to can or preserve what they grow. Isn't that ironic?

"Do you need some more tomatoes?" Vivian asked.

"I'd sure like to have some, but I suppose they're all about gone aren't they?"

"Not unless they're being air-lifted to Somalia as we speak," she laughed. "Chick planted 86 plants! If we don't have an early frost, we're thinking about getting a booth and selling fried tomato pies on Apple Day."

"Don't you want to can the rest of them?"

"To be perfectly honest," Vivian said as seriously as she could, "I've eaten so many tomatoes there's probably enough acid in my body to jumpstart a Boeing 747."

"Well, I'll take some," I said. "When can we expect you to bring them over to us?"

"Oh, I don't know. Maybe you can expect me to bring them over about the same time I cut them up and eat them for you," Vivian said, sarcastically.

It was hard to understand why Vivian got so defensive. After all, the way I understood it, I was doing her a favor by taking thousands of tomatoes off her hands. She was the one

Billy Ray ("Achy Breaky Heart") Cyrus to appear at Russell County Fairgrounds

Country and pop music's hottest act, Billy Ray Cyrus, will present his "Achy Breaky Heart Tour" concert on Sunday, October 25, at 4 p.m., at the Russell County Fairgrounds in Castlewood, Virginia.

The June issue of People's Magazine describes Billy Ray as a "Rockabilly Hunk" who is giving music fans (especially womenfolk) a mighty big case of "achy breaky heart." They go on to say that Cyrus' album debut of Some Gave All is one of the fastest selling albums of all times and has rocketed to No. 1 on Billboard's country and pop charts.

Cyrus is a quiet, almost tentative Southern Gentleman who "sir's" and "ma'am's" you off-stage but becomes an uninhibited, hip-throbbing dynamo on stage. It's enough to make you look twice—that is, if you can take your eyes off this well-muscled hunk in the first place.

How did a preacher's grandson from Flatwoods, Kentucky, learn to sing with such a vengeance? Although he swears he got his start singing "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" with his father's gospel group, it wasn't until he turned twenty that an "inner voice" told him to get a guitar and begin singing. Sound strange? It did to Billy Ray, too—he'd planned on becoming a professional baseball player. That is, until he gave in, got the guitar and the very next day formed his first band, Sly Dog. Then he set a goal; in ten months, his band would be playing full-time. "I'd write my goals down," he remembers, "and visualize them. This was my first experiment to see if I could make that goal happen."

Cyrus' Some Gave All was co-produced by veterans Joe Scaife and Jim Cotton whose latest credits include K.T. Oslin, the Oak Ridge Boys and Alabama. "Billy Ray is a very unique, spiritual individual," says Scaife. "His album reflects his emotions." Cyrus convinced his producers to use his band, rather than studio musicians, on the album, a move

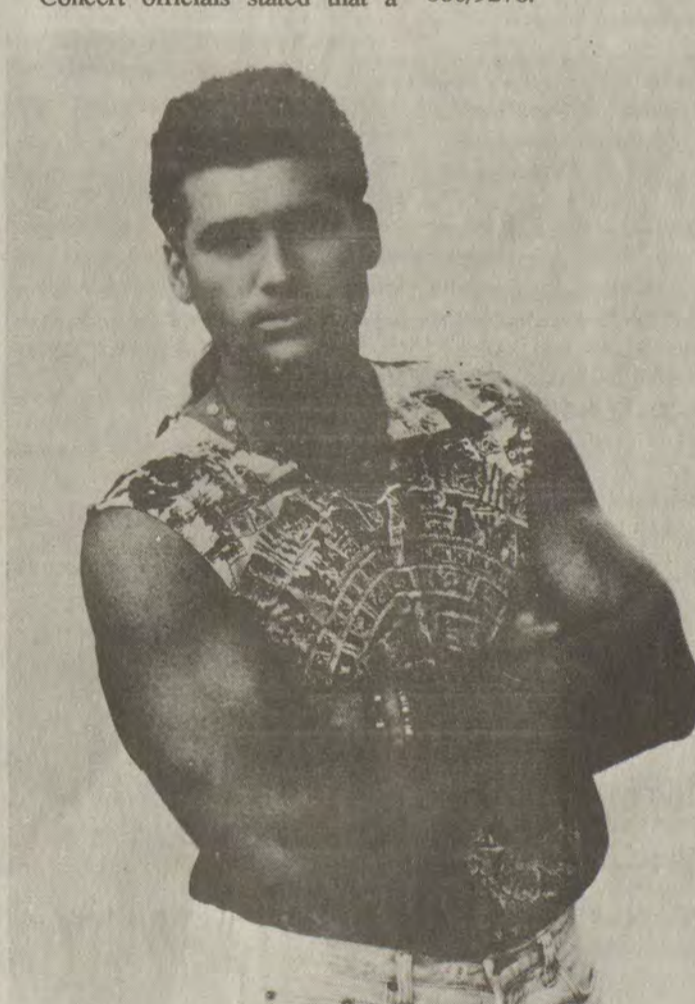

Scaife believes is a vital element of Billy Ray's feeling and sound.

Cyrus also penned six of the album's ten tunes. That's why he packs such a wallop in his performance—he sings from his gut. When he sings hard country, his voice softens and curls around the notes; when he rocks out, it's with an edge. He's not masquerading at either; he's living both with an intensity that drives his audiences wild.

Concert officials stated that a limited number of tickets will be available at the following ticket outlets at $20 each: People's Bank (in Lebanon, Honaker, Castlewood, Cleveland, Gate City, Dungannon); First Bank & Trust Co. (in Abingdon, Bristol, Lebanon); Disk-Jockey (in Richlands); Morgan McClure Chevrolet (in Castlewood); Radio Shack (in Clintwood); Prime Time Video (Vansant, Abingdon, Marion).

Finally. The time of year that I love above all others.

The time of year that parents long for, children dread and people like me cherish with perverted, maniacal glee.

Yes, folks, you can once again go to the Strand through the week without having some prepubescent, pimple-faced, gum-popping, popcorn-throwing hoodlum kicking the back of your seat.

You can once again drive through the middle of town on a Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or yes, even Thursday evening without having to dodge carloads of tail-gating, traffic-weaving, hormone-laden teeny-boppers playing rap music so loud your windshield shatters and your fillings fall out. And do you know why?

THE KIDS ARE BACK IN SCHOOL!!!!

Serves 'em right for not having jobs.

I'd almost feel sorry for the teachers, but hey, they made their choice. Personally, I'd rather wrestle giant crocodiles or let live tarantulas nest in my hair for a living.

Now, even though it is my favorite time of year, I will admit that there are some drawbacks to the back-to-school season.

First of all, there's the "Really Big, Super Huge, Savings Like You've Never Seen Before In Your Life" back-to-school sales everywhere you go, where you invariably get stuck in line for hours behind Mommy and little Justin, Tiffany and three year-old "Bubbie," the screamer in the family, as Mommy buys every notebook, pencil, crayon, Kleenex, lunchbox and bubblegum card the kids'll need for the next nine months.

But that doesn't really affect me much these days. My philosophy is that if I can't buy it at Happy Mart or I can't con and/or guilt my wife into picking it up, I don't need it.

Of course there's also the school traffic, which pretty much rivals novacaine-less root canals and sliding down a sandpaper covered banister naked in the fun department. Still, as long as the little demons are penned up in their tiny educational cells all day, I'll put up with just about anything.

Now, just because I get a sick kick out of the kids' misfortune, don't think I don't sympathize with them. I do. Really. I mean, I spent about six years in high school alone and let me just tell ya, school is no picnic.

Just a few of my school days blues included:

1) Principals gargling some unintelligible message across the loud-speaker, making you just know that your name was just called and buddy, you were in big trouble.

2) Rednecks provoking you into a fight by, oh, say... making fun of your name or something like that and then you're the one that gets sent to the office.

3) Teachers who thought theirs was the only class you were taking, so you had plenty enough time to do 48 pages of homework and a 5 million word essay in one night.

4) "Popular" people who were just s-o-o-o much better than you because their daddy bought them a brand new fire engine red super hot sports car when you were lucky to borrow your dad's John Deere for a spin around the block.

5) People who convinced you that you needed to take Calculus XIXV, Supercallifragelistic Trigonometry and Ancient Greek just to get into college.

6) College.

Yes, college. Yet another six years down the drain for a so-called "Bachelor's Degree," which means in order to actually get one, you have to have no social life whatsoever.

That's why it took six years.

See, believe it or not, there are actually people at college who call themselves your "friends" and make it their main goal in life to make sure that you fail miserably at every subject you study.

These mean, evil, vicious people will actually force you to skip classes and/or studying in the most sneaky, underhanded ways imaginable, such as saying things like: "Hey, Rambo's on HBO again," or "Wanna another beer?"

And then there are the professors who, even though they're about as interesting to listen to as your average house plant, actually expect you to stay awake in class.

I know what you're thinking. I couldn't believe it either.

As if that wasn't bad enough, in order to actually graduate, you're expected to take incredibly silly classes with names like "The Complete History of Really Depressing East Bavarian Poetry, Part III," or the even sillier "Math."

Then when you finally get the degree, for some reason the finest scientific minds in the world have yet to adequately explain, your parents actually expect you to work for a living.

Like they have something better to do in life than support your bad habits.

So then you spend the next six years of your life driving around in a car made out of Leggo's and looking for a job where you don't have to wear a paper hat and say "You want fries with that?" 800 times a day.

WEEK TWO...

Has some good matchups for high school football this week. Prestonsburg faces a rebuilding Middlesboro team that coach Gary Barnett says is not ready to play a team like the Blackcats. But the Yellowjackets have a strong tradition and will be ready for the event.

Wheelwright, and some folks don't want to give them the credit they are due, is a good football team and will face a good Johns Creek team tonight. Coach Donnie Daniels' ball may not have earned any respect in Floyd County but he has in the Johns Creek area. Coach Lamb views the Trojans as a quick team with a lot of speed.

Johnson Central will entertain the Bulldogs of Lawrence County in a good matchup. The Golden Eagles will try and rebound from last week's loss to Prestonsburg.

I understand that Brad Tiller has had a change of heart and is now thinking about playing for the Sheldon Clark Cardinals. Tiller, an excellent baseball prospect, at first decided to sit out the football season and concentrate all his energy to baseball where he has an excellent future. But, evidently he has had second thoughts.

Ray Collins, who transferred from Paintsville, has had problems getting eligible to play for the Cardinals. But sources say there is hope that things can be worked out to get him qualified to play.

Dale McKinney and myself come from the old days of hollering for the Cleveland Browns. Said McKinney, "Ed, it is going to be a tough fall for us both with the Reds out of it and the Browns having nothing. All we have to look forward to are the Kentucky Wildcats this winter."

I certainly look forward to the Cats. It should be another banner year for UK but I hate the thought of Jamal Mashburn turning pro after this season. However, he may surprise a lot of folks and stick around for four years. Some of the new recruits should add to Rick Pitino's game plan and contribute this season. Rodney Dent will have to get back into shape before he will be a factor in the game plan. But he will be a force to reckon with come late January and February.

Well, it is seven in a row for the sinking Cincinnati Reds and it looks as if it could go to as many as 11 with the New York Mets coming to Riverfront this weekend. Reds fan will have nothing to cheer about when the playoff rolls around. Are you listening — a third place finish is in the works for the Reds.

Three weeks ago when I was taking in four games at Riverfront the fans numbered over 30,000. Now, if you have noticed, the attendance dropped to below 15,000. I'm not the only one who has given up on the Reds. Some changes are definitely in order and it should begin with Marge Shott (keep Shottize II, around he's alright). Marge doesn't know baseball, Lou doesn't know how to manage. So they both should go! Now that school is underway in the county, we wonder what the grade school football teams will do. There can be no hollering about not having a chance to have a team. No more blaming the school board. They have created a season for you and it will be the principal's responsibility to make sure the season gets underway.

For those of you are planning on playing a schedule, send me a copy of your games to the Times and we will try and cover as many as we can. We're looking forward to it.

High school golf is now a fall sport and some of the teams are getting ready to play. Prestonsburg, McDowell and Betsy Layne will field a team. Schedules are needed for those matches also.

A belated Happy Birthday to WQHY's own Jim Ed Allen who

Bobcats, Phelps have new coaches in tonight's match up

The Betsy Layne Bobcats would just as soon forget the 14-0 loss they suffered at the hands of county rival Wheelwright last week and concentrate on the Phelps Hornets tonight. Betsy Layne coach John Derossett believes that his team has a shot at winning their first game of the season against the Hornets.

Bill McKinney is the new head coach at Phelps where he spent the past six seasons as an assistant much like Derossett at Belfry and Prestonsburg. Both coaches will be looking for win number one for the new season after dropping their opener last week.

The Hornets will boast 18 seniors this year on a team that will have a lot of depth. Returning to quarterback the ballclub will be Danny Kidd (5-9, 151, senior). Kidd will also be expected to show some leadership ability against the younger Betsy Layne defensive line.

Kidd is quick and possesses good speed which makes him an added runner to the Hornets' backfield.

It was the penalties that hurt the young and inexperienced Bobcats.

The Hornets will take to the air more this year counting on the throwing arm of Kidd. One of the targets for Kidd will be Steve Smith (5-6, 160, senior). Fon McCoy (6-2, 205, junior) will be at the other end spot and has a good set of catching hands.

Running out of the backfield for the Hornets will be Bo Wolford (6-1, 195, senior) who Coach McKinney is expecting to do a lot of good things this year. Wolford had had some physical problems this year but expected to be the main ball carrier for Phelps.

The Hornets are expected to mix up the defense a lot this season something that McKinney likes to do.

Betsy Layne will field one of the youngest teams in the area and will look to senior quarterback Bryan Combs for the leadership. Combs had a dismal game in passing against Wheelwright as the Trojan defense kept Combs honest. Combs had eight completions for just 28-yards through the air. Combs' offensive line was a problem also as they allowed their quarterback to be sacked four times for a loss of 34-yards.

Betsy Layne will have to cut down on penalties as the Bobcats were assessed 100-yards on 12 flags last Friday. Off sides and illegal motion were the biggest problem for the Bobcat offense.

The duo of Doug Hammond and Clyde Bush will have to grind out more yardage on the ground this time as the Hornets' defense will be equally just about spit to the Tennessee border. The Blackcats will be playing their second road game of the very young football season this Friday night as they take on the Yellowjackets who handed Letton's chargers a 30-0 whitewash at home last season.

Containing P'burg's Garza and Tucker priority one for Middlesboro's defense

This will be a different Prestonsburg team that will definitely be facing a different Middlesboro squad that graduated 14 players last year and most of them front line play-

"We lost a good player in Ron," said Middlesboro coach Gary Barnett. "But we have Shane Jackson back this year to sort of fill in for Ron. Shane had a good game for us against Pineville last Friday night."

Jackson had a 47-yard touchdown run against Pineville this past Friday evening as the Yellowjackets posted an offensive 38-26 win.

"That's what it was," said Barnett, "an offensive game."

Middlesboro will return only six players with any varsity experience but Barnett feels that his team is going to be okay this season once the defense finds itself.

"Defensively, we haven't learned to line up right yet," said the Yellowjacket mentor. "We will just have to line up straight on defense against Prestonsburg."

Barnett, who attended last Saturday's Big Sandy Bowl to scout the Blackcats, sung the praises of fullback Dwayne Garza and quarterback Aaron Tucker.

"The Garza kid is one of the hardest runners I have seen in a while," defense will have to contain is Eric Weatherspoon (5-9, 168, soph) who rushed for 147-yards against Pineville last weekend. Weatherspoon was first team All-District as well as All-Conference last year for the Yellowjackets. He will get the call out of the backfield and team with Jackson in leading Middlesboro's running game.

Matt Helms (6-0, 215, senior) will be the third man behind the quarterback. Helms had a 40-yard TD run last Friday night, also. The quarterback spot could be the question mark for the Yellowjackets as first year signal caller Travis Robbins (5-9, 160, senior) had never taken a snap from center until this season.

"We're still gray on his performance against Pineville Friday night," said Barnett. "We hope that Prestonsburg will be easy on us when they come down here. They are considered one of the top teams in their region and a very good football team."

Class A to split between Lexington, Richmond in sites

Officials with the Kentucky All "A" Basketball Tournament and Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler this past Tuesday announced plans for the 1993 tournament.

The boys and girls high school tournament will be held February 3-7 at Lexington's Rupp Arena and McBrayer Arena on the Eastern Kentucky University campus in Richmond.

More than 250 boys' and girls' teams from 135 schools with enrollments of 424 students or less in grades 10-12 will participate.

At a news conference held Tuesday morning at the Government Center here, Tournament Director Stan Steidel announced three major changes in this year's program:

• Eight additional girls' teams will come to the state finals making a total of 16 girls' and 16 boys' teams who will play in the five-day state finals tournament.

• A statewide academic competition awarding a minimum of $5,000 in scholarships will replace a previous grants program. A team of students from each all "A" school will compete in quick recall competitions at four sectional sites. Students from the top eight schools will come to ECU for the final rounds. The winning school and the runner-up will each receive a minimum of $1,000 to be used for student scholarships at any Kentucky college or university. The other six schools will receive a minimum of $500 each. Money for the scholarships will come from the All "A" operating budget.

Wheelwright Trojans travel to Johns Creek in the midst of Lamb's Bearcats Winning at Johns Creek is not always an easy task for any football team. But the Wheelwright Trojans will be heading to Pike County to face the Bearcats in an important district matchup.

Wheelwright coach Donnie Daniels hopes that his Trojan team can come up with a playoff berth this year and feels that his Trojan team is one of the top four teams in the district that includes the Bearcats, Pikeville, Elkhorn City, Phelps, Fleming-Neon and Allen Central.

The road to a play-off spot begins tonight for Wheelwright that suits up one of the strongest teams in the past years.

The Trojans are coming off a 14-0 shutout of the Betsy Layne Bobcats but it wasn't anything that Coach Daniels says is worth writing home about. While applauding his team's defensive efforts, he thought his offense quit after the first quarter.

"We won a game with a subpar effort," he said after the Betsy Layne game. "It wasn't very pretty win for us."

While Wheelwright's offense struggled, the defense was up to par as expected. "It was our defense that shined in the Betsy Layne game," said assistant coach Robert Jackson.

The Bearcats lost a very talented quarterback in Chris Gannon, who graduated last year but will be replaced with junior Hamilton Harris. Harris does not have the accurate throwing arm that Gannon possessed but is very accurate on the short tosses. Against Cumberland last Friday night the junior was on target with 10 completions on 28 attempts for 160-yards passing.

"The way we played last week against Cumberland and the way we have looked in practice it hard to figure this football team out," said Coach Lamb. "Defensively we are an inexperienced ball team although we did return our entire secondary and line backers. We lost Clayton Slone who split time between the offense and defense and also we lost Mark Richardson who was strictly a defensive player."

Lamb said that he does have some players coming back this season that die "play a bit" last year.

"Against Cumberland we just did not play football," said the Bearcats coach. "We were very passive in our game and did not play the hard nose game we are capable of playing."

While the Bearcats may not throw the football much, they will have the talent to grind it out on the ground.

Jason K. Taylor will be one of the halfbacks along with Kevin Pugh in the backfield for Johns Creek. Add Shawn Thacker to the fullback spot and you have a very formidable threesome. Thacker was Mr. Do-It-All against Cumberland and could give Wheelwright's defense some problem. Thacker was tough on both sides of the line especially on defense. He had 22 solo tackles and four sacks. Six of the 10 tackles behind the line of scrimmage went for losses. Thacker also pulled in four passes for 48-yards on offense and carried the football twice for 6-yards.

Bearcats secondary.

"Wheelwright is a good ballclub with good speed," said Lamb "They have very good speed and knowing Donnie Daniels like I do, he likes those quick linemen. We'll need to work on our quickness and we will have to play real hard to win."

"We're a big team (220 on both lines) but they are quick and we'll have to make some adjustments for the difference," continued Lamb.

Coach Lamb said that he was disappointed with his teams running game against Cumberland last Friday especially after the good showing in preseason.

"We only had 12 rushing plays and only gained 33-yards on the ground," the Bearcat mentor explained. "Mike Runyon had three receptions for 75-yards but the ground game just wasn't there for us."

Game time for this one will be 8 p.m. and could be a good one to take in.

Johns Creek isn't expected to throw the football as much this year ... but that doesn't mean they won't.

lems. Thacker was tough on both sides of the line especially on defense. He had 22 solo tackles and four sacks. Six of the 10 tackles behind the line of scrimmage went for losses. Thacker also pulled in four passes for 48-yards on offense and carried the football twice for 6-yards.

Johns Creek isn't expected to throw the football as much this year as stated before, but that doesn't mean they won't. Coach Lamb said that Hamilton will probably throw the football around 15 to 20 times a game compare to almost double that last year. But the effectiveness of the Bearcats running game will determine how often Hamilton passes.

The Trojans roared to a 14-0 lead on their first two possession of the game against Betsy Layne but after that the offense seemed content with the 14-0 lead and just seemed to lay down. Coach Daniels cited the fact that his team had not developed a "killer instinct" yet.

Muntu Oden, who suffered an ankle injury in the game against the Bobcats, will be at one halfback spot with Arnold Adams running at the other side. Cruise Caudill will be at the fullback spot with Steven Shelton calling the signals at quarterback.

Adams was just two yards shy of 100-yards rushing against Betsy Layne. The halfback got off to a slow start but came on strong in the second half. Oden carried the ball just three times before he had to leave the game but did pick up 20-yards and a touchdown. Oden is quick and possesses excellent speed.

Shelton will find a favorite in end Charles Johnson who caught a 20-yard pass for a touchdown last Friday night. Shelton and Johnson gives Wheelwright a long distance connection that will be needed against the

Fleming-Neon's Hall pursuing win 200 as Allen Central arrives tonight

The "grand daddy" of area high school football coaches has to be Fleming-Neon's Jack "Sidesaddle" Hall. Hall will be entering his 32nd year in coaching and will be going after his 200th win of his lustrous career. Hall gained the nickname "Sidesaddle" because of the side-saddle offense he runs on his football teams. Hall enters the season with 195 wins and 118 losses (he lost to Hazard last Friday night).

Gone from the Pirates' offensive attack are Kevin and Josh Fleming, two of the area's top running backs last year. Also absent this year from the defensive line for Hall will be Curtis Gregg.

Neon will return some experienced players at the end positions in the person of Michael Quillen (6-2, 215, senior) who has caught the eye of several major college scouts. Also at the wide out slot will be Randy Phipps also a senior.

Senior's Shannon Strange (5-11, 225) and David Jones (6-0, 242) will lead a big defensive line for Hall's club and the experience they will need. Chris Banks (6-1, 195) and senior Lincoln Bentley (5-11, 236) will be at the guard slots. Tim Breeding (5-11, 182) will be at the center position in the sidesaddle offense. John Henry Hall (6-0, 205) will run the show at the quarterback spot. Hall is versatile in that he can not only throw the football but run it as well.

In the backfield for Neon will be Jeremy Gross (5-11, 165). A sophomore and senior will have to step in and try and fill the shoes of the Fleming boys at the tailback positions. Scott Caudill (5-10, 170, soph) will be one filler along with senior Chris White (5-11, 185).

Allen Central had a hard time against the Elkhorn City Cougars last Friday but had some good ball movement in the fourth quarter when they scored twice.

The offensive line for the Rebels is inexperienced and that has created a problem for the backfield in running the ball. Brad Blackburn, a bright spot in the loss to the Cougars, leads the pack at the quarterback spot. Blackburn, just a sophomore, is a gutsy player who has good speed and can run the football. His throwing arm is not as strong as a coach would like in a QB, but he has good accuracy with the short pass.

Dan Stumbo, along with Jason Clark, will be at the end positions for Central with Kevin Patton at the full-back spot. Jason Clark and David Gilliam will run at the halfback position. Clark will flip-flop from the end to the backfield.

Gilliam rushed for 76-yards against Elkhorn City last Friday night play a strong game in the secondary to guard against the pass.

This will be a district game for both ballclubs and Hall knows that to stay in the thick of the district no one is to be taken lightly. Allen Central could use this game as a learning experience against a much more experienced ballclub.

Bobcats

tough as Wheelwright's. Hammond averaged just over 2-yards per carry last week carrying 11 times for 24-yards. But everybody who knows Hammond also knows that he capable of better figures than that. Bush had three carries for 34-yards in playing the backfield for the first time this year.

One of the things that bothered Coach Derossett last Friday was the team's ability to get inside their opponent's 20-yard line but not being able to push the ball inside the goal line. There again, it was the penalties that hurt the young and inexperienced Bobcats.

More protection will need to be afforded Combs in that he has a strong throwing arm but needs the time to pick up his receivers. Brandon Combs will lead both lines for the Bobcats.

GUEST RADIO PERSONALITIES

Football 1992 is upon us and we have enlarged our prognosticators this year with several new faces joining us on the roll. Middlesboro gets the nod over Prestonsburg in high school football while Kentucky is expected to win their opener. Louisville will have a rough time at Ohio State and the Cincinnati Bengals will not make it an 1-0 start as they will lose to Seattle at home.

Ky. Class "A" (Continued from B 3)

This year a Fellowship of Christian Athletes Rally—which is free and open to the public—will be held February 7 at McBrayer Arena. Former major league pitcher Dave Dravecky will be the guest speaker. Dravecky pitched for the San Francisco Giants until he had to have his arm amputated because of cancer.

"We are very excited about all these additions to our program," said Steidel. "The All "A" Classic has always strongly supported academics as part of its program and the addition of the academic competition is another step in this direction.

"We also are very happy to be able to open up the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Rally to the public and bring in someone like Dave Dravecky who will have a good message for kids and persons of all ages. These elements, with the addition of the eight girls' teams coming to the finals, are certain to make this the best tournament ever."

Now in its fourth year, the tournament began about 14 years ago in Northern Kentucky as a showcase for basketball talent from the smaller schools. Nine boys' teams participated in the tournament.

With the help of sponsors, the tournament has taken off and is quickly becoming a Kentucky high school tradition.

Tournament sponsors are Ashland Oil; Liberty National Bank; the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government; the City of Richmond and EKV.

"The city of Lexington is proud to host one of the opening rounds of the tournament at Rupp Arena and to organize and help put on this worthwhile event," said Baesler. "We hope to continue to support this tournament which is good for Lexington and Richmond, the schools, the kids, and basketball fans throughout the state."

Richmond Mayor Ann L. Durham said, "We welcome the opportunity to showcase our community for people from all over the state of Kentucky. Last year it was gratifying to see the winner of the Kentucky State High School Tournament come from the "A" division. Richmond is delighted to have been chosen as one of the sites for the 1991 tournament."

Lexington Catholic won the 1992 boys' tournament beating Hancock County. In the girls' tournament, Cumberland High School beat Lexington Catholic.

Attendance at the tournament averaged 4,200 per game with a total attendance of 42,414.

This year three new schools have been added, Owensboro Catholic; Ninth & O in Louisville; and Villa Madonna, Covington, which added a boys' team.

The draw for the final brackets will be held in December. The sectional academic matches will begin January 16 with the girls' regional play beginning the week of January 18. The boys' regional tournaments begin the week of January 25.

Both girls' and boys' team cheer-leading competition will be held during the state finals. Boys' and girls' All Tournament teams and MVPs will also be named.

and that is not a concern to us. We have good speed in the backfield and that does not concern us. But what does concern us is our defense.

"We need to get after people. We tried a whole new defense package against Pineville," continued Barnett, "and we will see this Friday how much difference a week makes. We just wasn't satisfied with the way we played against Pineville."

Barnett said that contending with Prestonsburg's size will be a problem for his ballclub also. "We just need to keep focus on what is going on when we play," explained the Yellowjacket coach.

Prestonsburg will also be looking for an improvement in their defensive line as they travel this Friday night. The Blackcats' line allowed Johnson Central to put 19 points on the scoreboard but did come up with a couple of defensive stands.

Garza and Seth Hyden will run with Jody Cornette in the backfield behind Tucker at quarterback. Bill Bottoms, Brad Wells, Kyle Fitzpatrick will be leading the lines for the Blackcats.

Game time is 8 p.m. and the game can be heard over radio stations WXXZ or WQHY.

Co-ed softball league organizing in Martin County

Interested in co-ed softball? Well, you can be one of the teams that can take part in a new co-ed softball league that is being organized in Inez now. The games will be played at Warfield Park and entry fee into the league is $150 which will cover all expenses except softballs.

WATERFOWL HUNTERS ALLOWED TWO CANADAS IN DAILY BAG

Limiting waterfowl hunters to two Canada geese in the daily bag applies statewide under 1992-93 Kentucky waterfowl hunting season regulations adopted by the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission at its August 18 meeting.

The daily bag limit for geese is seven birds and may include no more than two white-fronted geese. The possession limit is double the daily bag. Last year goose hunters in the western zone were allowed three Canadas in the daily bag. The change was necessary to conform with federal guidelines and the reduction in Kentucky's harvest quota of Canada geese.

The Western Goose Zone opens Nov. 26, followed by the December 13 opening of the Eastern Goose Zone. Goose hunting in both zones runs through January 31, 1993.

The boundary between the goose zones begins at the Kentucky-Tennessee border at Fulton, Ky., extends north along the Purchase Parkway to I-24, east along I-24 to US 641, north along US 641 to US 60, northeast along US 60 to the Henderson Co. line, then along the Henderson Co. line to the Indiana border. All of Henderson Co. and the Henderson-Union reporting area are included in the western zone. Fulton County continues its experimental goose hunting season through Feb. 12, 1993.

Duck hunters statewide may pursue their sport during the four-day Thanksgiving holiday, Nov. 26-29, 1992. Duck hunting resumes Dec. 16 in the Western Duck Zone and continues through Jan. 10, 1993. The Eastern Duck Zone reopens Dec. 23 and runs through Jan 17, 1993.

The daily bag limit is three ducks which may include no more than two mallards (no more than one female mallard), one black duck, two wood ducks, one redhead and one pintail of either sex. Canvasbacks may not be taken. In addition to the daily duck bag, 15 coots and five mergansers (only one may be a hooded merganser) may be taken per day. The possession limit is double the daily bag. All species that may be hunted during the waterfowl season may be taken by falconry from Nov. 3, 1992 through Jan. 31, 1993. The daily bag limit is three birds, singly or combined; the possession limit is six.

The boundary separating the duck zones begins at the Kentucky-Tennessee border on I-65, runs north to Green River Parkway at Bowling Green, northwest along the parkway to Owensboro, southwest along Bypass US 60, then north on US 231 to the Indiana border.

Shooting (and falconry) hours during the entire waterfowl season are one-half hour before sunrise until sunset. Steel shot is required for all waterfowl hunting.

Waterfowl hunters who want to hunt on Ballard and Henderson/Sloughs wildlife management areas (WMAs) must apply on standardized forms by September 30, 1992. Application forms are available from both Ballard and Sloughs WMAs, most hunting license outlets, state conservation officers and from the wildlife division office at #1 Game Farm Rd., Frankfort, KY 40601.

In adopting season framework for 1993 turkey hunting, the commission approved separate permits for spring and fall turkey hunting and youth quota turkey hunts on Ballard and Grayson Lake WMAs. The youth hunts are scheduled the weekend before the 14-day spring turkey hunting season opens the traditional third Wednesday in April (April 21).

In other commission action, the North, South and Middle forks of the Kentucky River opens to tickling and noodling beginning with the 1993 season.
