Public hearing on school report slated by state for October at Jenny Wiley State Park :

Local input to be sought to put plan in action

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

On October 6, Floyd Countians will get to the chance to offer their input on a short-term plan to improve the county school system to the state's chief school officer at a public hearing at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen will address issues in the school board's plan, to be developed by September 30, at the October hearing and will listen to community input and reaction to that plan.

State Department of Education staff will conduct the public hearing which will also address issues raised in a scathing report on the Floyd County system, released last month.

When the report was released, Boysen called Floyd County a "catastrophe in leadership" and demanded the local board develop a short-term plan by September 30 and a three-year plan by November 15 to implement state recommendations to correct deficiencies in school system.

Superintendent Steve Towler's comments on that report after it was released disturbed not only the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education, but local teachers and education activists.

State school board chairman Joe Kelly sent Towler and board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell a letter September 2 which said the state board was "dismayed" by Towler's comments and demanded "high expectations and results" from local officials.

Towler said the report was not an indictment of the system and that reports that schools were smelly and filthy were an exaggeration.

Local teachers and a citizen's education group spoke out about Towler's comments at Tuesday's school board meeting.

Teacher Patricia Murphy read a harsh statement at the meeting which said local leaders have ignored for years the problems cited in the report.

"When we, as teachers, tried to tell you about some of the things that needed to be changed, we were called confrontational," Murphy said. "When we told you things were going to have to change, we were called radicals. When we did something drastic to show how serious we thought our problems were, we were called militants.

"We had the curriculum audit, again a scathing report, that was met with rationalization, excuses and non-acceptance," Murphy continued. "This report, despite your public reaction to it, Dr. Towler, outlines serious problems in the areas of instructional leadership and management. We are in desperate need of training on how to implement KERA. We need to get this training and if the central office cannot provide it, it will have to come from an outside source. Floyd County does not need a face lift, we need internal changes. We do not want it to just look good, we want it to be good."

Job request may have violated school law

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Routine personnel matters turned out to be not so routine when Floyd County school board member Tommy Boyd apparently violated state law at Tuesday's board meeting by practically demanding that an individual be given a job in the school system.

Boyd asked assistant superintendent Pete Grigsby, who was informing the board on hirings for family resource centers, why Kim Hall had not been employed at one of the district's centers.

"I'm deeply disappointed," Boyd said in response to the hirings. "If a kid in Floyd County deserves a job, it's Kim Hall. I want this kid to have a job and if she don't get a job, I'll raise Cain till she gets one."

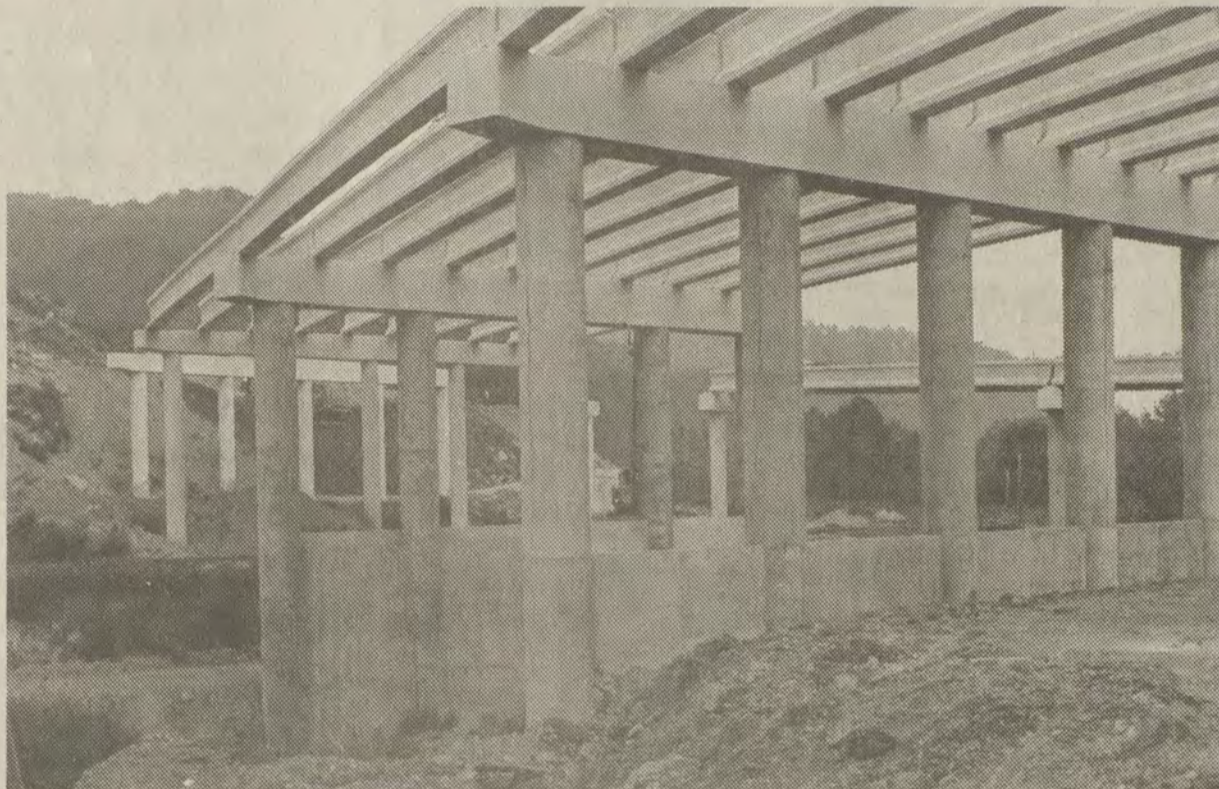

Under Kentucky's Education Reform Act, a board member "will not in any way influence the hiring or appointment of district employees, except the hiring of the superintendent of schools or school board attorney."

There was no response to Boyd's statements by other board members, superintendent Steve Towler or board attorney Cliff Latta.

Grigsby responded to Boyd that he knew Boyd had directed him to "do everything in my power" to find a position for Hall.

In other action Tuesday, the board listened to concerns expressed by Bob Isaac, representing the Maytown

Racing commission may reconsider harness issue

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Not only was the Kentucky Racing Commission's denial of live racing dates to an Eastern Kentucky track not fair, according to at least one source, Governor Brereton Jones' non-intervention in the matter may seriously damage his credibility.

Ched Jennings, attorney of record for Eastern Kentucky Racing, Incorporated, said Wednesday that the racing commission "nitpicked" over inconsequential details of the blueprints for his client's proposed Kentucky Downs harness track.

Jennings added that Dueling Grounds, a Northern Kentucky thoroughbred racing track which is 95 percent owned by foreign interests, presented much less detailed plans than did Eastern Kentucky Racing but was awarded 1993 racing dates anyway.

Jennings also supplied evidence that he had been in constant contact with the racing commission since

Towler reports after meeting with Boysen :

High school put on hold

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Plans for the construction of a new Prestonsburg High School have been put on hold until a new facility survey can be conducted in Floyd County to determine the building needs of the district.

School board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell, vice chairman Tommy Boyd and superintendent Steve Towler met Wednesday in Frankfort with state Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen to discuss among other things Prestonsburg and Left Beaver High School construction projects.

"I would say it's in limbo," Towler said Thursday. "I told the commissioner that, at the Tuesday meeting, my recommendation was to follow the recommendation of the report and cease all activities regarding Prestonsburg, to just kind of put those in a hold pattern until the facility team, the local planning committee, and the school board both had an opportunity to speak to Prestonsburg."

Questions to Boysen pertaining to a Department of Education recommendation to further investigate the Prestonsburg and Left Beaver projects were deferred to Sandy Gubsner, who headed the recent investigation into the Floyd County system.

"My understanding from him (Boysen) that there were no further plans to look at (investigate) the Prestonsburg site," Towler said. "He didn't definitely say that, that's what I understood."

Towler said that he understood that there "may be some additional looking at" the Left Beaver project, but his main objective is to get the school finished and opened.

If a new Prestonsburg High School is moved down the priority list on a new facility survey, the board can elect to keep the Middle Creek site or sell the property, Towler said.

The board voted at Tuesday's meeting to wait until the meeting with Boysen before taking any action on the Prestonsburg project.

Other school construction projects in Floyd County continue to receive unfavorable reports, the latest being a problem with site preparation for the 21-room addition at Betsy Layne Elementary and a contractor's failure to place top soil at Allen Elementary.

Project architect Paul Hoffman told the board at Tuesday's meeting that soft areas of soil were found on the site which created an "unacceptable condition" to place fill material.

The project's geotechnical engineers, Bowser-Morner, recommended the area be undercut and replaced with an engineered fill with

Search for new central office on back burner

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A plan to relocate the Floyd County school system's central offices was called "premature and inappropriate" by a local citizen's education group at Tuesday's school board meeting.

Dolores Smith, speaking for the Floyd County Education Forum, explained to board members the group's position on the issue.

"We consider any further action of the moving of the central office space as premature and inappropriate at this time," Smith read from a prepared statement. "This needs to be dealt with as part of the overall (school) facilities plan."

Although the board did not respond to the Smith's statements, discussions on the proposed move were held later in the meeting.

Superintendent Steve Towler suggested to the board that "we not rush" into moving the facilities, but said finding office space continues to be a priority. The superintendent said the project should move forward at the "appropriate speed."

Prestonsburg High School and Adams Middle School students will join students around the nation for See You At the Flag Pole, a school-based grassroots youth movement to bring prayer back to America's children.

The See You At The Flag Pole campaign began in 1990 in Texas and the idea quickly spread to over 45,000 students at over 1,200 schools nationwide.

Kentucky students will participate in the campaign next Wednesday, September 16, at 7 a.m. The Kentucky wing of the movement was organized by Kentucky Youth Alive, a student-based Christian club that seeks to provide a positive peer influence on local school campuses.

The campaign met with controversy earlier this year when two Metropolis, Illinois high school students were arrested after the school principal asked local police to stop the prayer meeting.

When Carol's brother Carl ran into some legal troubles in Whitesburg a few years ago, the Erwins moved there to help care for his children. Carol ran a pool hall at Neon for awhile, but says that Neon's city hall ran her out of business. A few weeks later, Carol said, the mayor's brother opened a pool hall that's been in business ever since.

Frank looked for steady work, but at the age of 41 and with no high school diploma, he said employment is scarce.

He started performing odd jobs, doing yard work, landscaping, washing cars, just about anything, he said, to make ends meet. Since Carol suffers from rheumatoid arthritis which is sometimes so crippling she is confined to a wheelchair, her sons D.J. and Frank often help out.

Their main concern, Carol said, is the children. Clint wants to join the Cub Scouts and Dusty and Frank want to play football, but uniforms cost money the Erwins just don't have right now. And although Christmas seems a long way away for most people, it's all too soon for people without steady employment.

For now, the Erwins are once again migrant workers, moving from town to town, looking for a job.

"We're not beggars... we're not out here asking for food or handouts or anything like that," Carol said. "We just want to work. I don't think there's anything wrong with that."

For handmade leather crafts or yard or landscaping work, Frank Erwin can be reached in Whitesburg at 633-8982.

new soil to correct the problem.

Preliminary tests conducted prior to site excavation indicated that the site may not be suitable for building, superintendent Steve Towler said Thursday. Towler said it was decided to go ahead with the project because the site was owned by the board and it was located near the existing gym and grade school.

"There was uncertainty about whether that site would be acceptable," Towler said. "There's ongoing monitoring of that soil there. The state and architect Hoffman both felt that before that 21-room addition at Betsy Layne is in fact bid, that we all ought to be convinced that the soil conditions are going to be acceptable. There's always been some doubt about it being an acceptable site for the building. We're just trusting the report of the architect, who is in fact working with the soil experts, that, in fact, the soil can be made acceptable and compactable."

Hoffman recommended that a change order be authorized for the additional expense of the undercutting and backfilling the site. It was estimated that it would take approximately 10 days to make the changes.

Board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell asked if the material removed from the Betsy Layne site could be placed on the Allen school ground as top soil. Campbell said he talked with engineer Alan Little of Bowser-Morner and Little said the fill material would make "dandy" top soil.

Floyd superintendent Steve Towler said Thursday that the site contractor for the Allen school, David May, has "not been willing" to complete his contract by placing top soil on the site.

Towler explained that May claims he moved "quite a bit" more dirt to the front of the school than was required in the contract. He added that a percentage of May's contract is being retained and the cost to move the dirt would only involve the hauling fee. Towler said the board could go to court to recover the additional cost.

"I don't whether we're going to go to court on it or what," Towler said. "We're trying to work out some sort of compromise. We're just kind of at a stalemate and have been for a long time."

The superintendent said it was the "thinking" to use the soil that has to be removed at Betsy Layne on the Allen site.

A sticking point on the issue, Hoffman said, was trying to negotiate a price from the contractor, Ooten Coal Company of Pikeville, to remove the fill material and backfill the site. The contractor could not "agree with the dollar amount" proposed for the additional work, Hoffman said.

Hoffman said he would find out the additional cost for transporting the soil to Allen.

An area of concern raised pertaining to the Left Beaver High School site was Hoffman's recommendation that a geotechnical engineer investigate the site for school's physical education facility.

Due to irregular rock formations on the site, Hoffman asked for the probe "just for security to know what's there" because it could affect the structural design.

Hoffman added that some limited design changes of the high school building would be needed because of inconsistencies in the construction documents and that the remaining bid packages needed to put out for bids.

Other school construction updates included a report from Adams Middle School architect Randy Burchett who told the board that a settling problem discovered at the school two years ago continues to be monitored.

The problem was discovered when cracks began appearing in the walls and floors on the sixth grade wing on the northeast corner of the building.

Burchett said visual monitoring of the building indicates the settling has stopped and that a subsurface investigation recommends that when the situation has "settled out" an evaluation of the building be conducted.

Engineering reports from Bowser-Morner cited two possible causes for the problem: the site was not properly compacted; and that footing excavations were left exposed for a period of time, allowing water to collect in them, saturate the foundation and soften it.

April of this year and asked in writing that the commission specify what details his client needed to add to their blueprints.

According to correspondence dated April 17, commission chairman Wayne G. Lyster III, told Jennings "I cannot really remember any specific piece of information we wanted... Certainly, if we need something, we will ask." That request never came, Jennings said.

"If they're trying to paint a picture that we didn't do our job," Jennings said, "that's wrong. (This project) was brought to a point that required only one ingredient... their approval.... I think this commission has seen too many versions of Field of Dreams. In the real world you just can't build a race track without live dates."

"What (the commissioners) are saying," Jennings said, "is that they're treating (foreigners) better than the people of Eastern Kentucky."

Jennings further charged that Jones' ability to bring about health care and ethics reform would be in serious doubt if he failed to demonstrate leadership in the thoroughbred industry, of which he is a long-standing member.

Jennings said that Lyster's public statement last Friday that the commission might reconsider its actions was encouraging, and added that he and his client had already taken steps to request a rehearing.

"We call upon either the commission or the governor to demonstrate leadership (in this matter)," Jennings said. "If they cannot, perhaps it should go to a special session of the legislature (to be resolved)."

Three local residents are members of the 1992-93 Eastern Kentucky University Show Choir.

Sabrina West of Harold, a junior communication disorders major; Tim Lester of Allen, a sophomore music education major; and Beth Hall of Prestonsburg, a senior performing arts major, successfully auditioned for the 18-member group, which combines music and dancing in its performances.

Even before graduation, many EKU Show Choir members have landed summer jobs at theme parks such as Kings Island and Opryland.

The choir, which meets two nights a week, will give two public performances this school year: November 21 and April 24. Both concerts begin at 7:30 p.m. in Brock Auditorium.

It will also perform at a convocation at Belfrey High School and at the Kentucky Music Educators Association conference.

Office

Towler added that his statement in last week's Floyd County Times that the offices "would most likely" remain in the Prestonsburg had been "miscommunicated."

"I meant that the offices will most likely stay here (in Prestonsburg) until we find space somewhere else," Towler said. He added that approximately 30,000 square feet of space is being sought, not 3,000.

Board members received an outline for the proposed usage of the square footage space which included the names of nine committee members named to study the relocation to either Allen, Martin or elsewhere in Prestonsburg.

Community committee members are Dolores Smith, representing Allen; Martin Mayor Raymond Griffith; and Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta and H.D. "Buddy" Fitzpatrick.

Central office committee members are superintendent Towler; assistant superintendents Tommy Thompson, Gary Frazier and Pete Grigsby Jr; and Frankie Francis, director of buildings and grounds.

The eight-member study team will report their findings to the board of education for consideration.

The proposed office layout of a new facility is:

- board of education meeting room with a 100-150 seating capacity and superintendent's office and secretary- 2,000 square feet;

- reception, applications and waiting area- 1,000 square feet;

- employee eating area, vending and restrooms- 1,500 square feet;

- loading dock, shipping and receiving- 1,500 square feet;

- total instruction area- 11,900 square feet;

- total financial area- 5,980 square feet; and

- special programs total- 6,325 square feet.

In a sheet of general notes given to board members with proposed outline, it was said, "based on the current list of needs that exist at the school level and the financial restraints on the total district budget, it is the feeling of many people that construction of a new facility would not be feasible at this time and also that no existing space owned by the district is appropriate for the central office function."

The board took no formal action on the proposal, but authorized Towler to continue with the study.

have done nothing sooner to correct them," Smith said. "We respectfully disagree with Superintendent Towler's assessment that this is not an indictment of the system. These same facts have been brought to this board and its predecessors time and again.

"We pledge our support to the superintendent and the board in carrying out the mandates of the report, but we expect leadership that will not flinch in (the) face of political or social pressure to leave things the way they are," Smith continued. "We have waited long enough, and demand you to act on behalf of the entire system and its children."

Although there was no immediate response to Murphy's and Smith's comments, Towler said later in the meeting that he was sorry his comments has been misconstrued that he did not take the report seriously.

Towler also asked the board for permission to hire a three-member team to assist the board in developing the short-term plan to submit to the state.

Board member Tommy Boyd answered in favor of the move saying, "he's (Towler) the one on the hot seat."

Board member Eddie Billips countered that it was not only Towler on the hot seat but the entire board as well. He asked Towler for a weekly update on the development of the plan.

A special meeting is expected to be called later this month for the board to approve the short-term plan.

They lose, you pay

by Scott Perry

The state Department of Education's report from an investigation into the Floyd County School System contends that school construction projects here are characterized by "questionable practices that promote outcomes that are often problem-ridden, unnecessarily costly and produce undesirable products."

Those are some pretty strong words.

On Tuesday, a Floyd County jury underscored the investigation's findings by awarding a contractor $167,000 for work he had performed on the Left Beaver High project... payments which had been withheld by the board on grounds the contractor had allegedly not lived up to his contract requirements.

The board was wrong in that assessment, the jury said, so they must pay.

They'll be settling the score with your tax dollars.

Meanwhile, the meter continues to tick on Left Beaver and on other unfinished construction projects with little regard for or from the people who are underwriting the costs.

So what if the projects are problem-ridden, unnecessarily costly and produce undesirable results?

The state is paying for all this, right?

Yes, they sure are...with your checkbook.

How much more can you afford?

Once more, with feeling

Since last we met, the state Racing Commission has hinted that it may be willing to reconsider its decision to shaft harness racing and Eastern Kentucky.

There's no guarantee that the commission will change its mind about killing a proposed Prestonsburg track, but the opportunity for a rehearing provides a glimmer of hope.

We'd like to do a bit more than hope, though, we'd like to have a chance to make a go of it.

That certainly isn't too much to ask. After all, long shots have stood in the winner's circle before.

Editor:

Last week my husband Ernest and I had the privilege of going with our granddaughter Cynthia Elizabeth and her mother to visit Duff Grade School where Cindy will be attending this year.

This was our first time to see the new consolidated grade school and we were very impressed, it is such a nice school.

We were met by the principal Ralph O'Quinn and he gave us a tour of the school. He took great pains to explain everything to Cindy and the many advantages she will have at this school. I feel in the very near future we will have this kind of school for all our children.

A CALL TO ACTION

by David N. Adamson
National Write Your Congressman, Inc.

Someone has asked, "Are we going to run the Government or let the Government run us?" That is the question. No business man would hire a man to run his business for two years without his supervision and then after the two year period check into his business to see how it has been run. Yet, isn't that what we are doing with our Members of Congress? We elect them to office and send them to Washington to run our Government for us and pay very little attention to what they do. Two years later we are trying to find out how they handled our business. We listen to them talk and decide to vote for them or against them by what they say.

Some Members of Congress have a reputation of talking one way and voting another. Then too, some of them will occasionally vote the way their party wants them to vote instead of the will of the people. When that happens, it is because we are not watching them. It doesn't take much time to keep tabs on them but it is so important.

Wouldn't you agree that it is high time for a "Call to Action?"

Plight of workers

It has been an astonishing week. As most newspaper readers and TV watchers know, it is part of our national ritual that as a part of the observance of Labor Day, there is an outpouring of news items and interviews proclaiming the glories of America's work force — our laborers, we have been told for years, work hard, earn high wages, and produce and share in a bounty of good things that is the envy of the world.

This week, there has been the traditional focus on Labor Day. But this week, story after story from points across the nation has detailed a very different circumstance. This year, we hear of millions of workers who have lost their jobs; millions of others who are only working a day or two a week; still other millions who have had to accept lower pay, as wages often have fallen from $12 to $16 per hour to $5, $6 or $7 per hour, often with increased safety hazards, and fewer benefits. Millions of workers who only a few years ago were assured appropriate medical care for their family now have health insurance at all.

None of this is new to Eastern Kentucky residents. We have been living for many years with an actual unemployment rate of 50 percent or more, no matter what the official figures say. The reality is clearly to be seen in the faces of countless Eastern Kentuckians.

Historically, Eastern Kentuckians have been quick to spot areas of prosperity anywhere in the nation and have left their mountain homes by the tens of thousands to accept jobs elsewhere. Today, the nation's busted economy makes it difficult, to say the least, for any Eastern Kentuckians who try to relocate outside the area.

The nation, it seems, has caught up with Eastern Kentucky and the misery that accompanies poverty is becoming a nation-wide experience.

Sure makes you wonder. Is George Bush proud of what he has done to America? — The Mountain Eagle, Whitesburg

Blow the whistle? Ha!

Nothing is certain yet by any means, but the Kentucky Racing Commission may be edging away from its summary execution of harness racing in the state.

Commission Chairman Wayne Lyster says he is willing to meet to reconsider last week's decisions denying racing dates to Riverside Downs in Henderson and a planned harness track in Prestonsburg. That's good news, for a couple of reasons.

The most obvious one is that the commission's decision, if left intact, will destroy the harness circuit in Kentucky. That's obviously unacceptable in a state that prides itself on being a center of the horse industry.

There's another reason for the commission to reconsider its decision, too. So long as last week's decision stands, it will be a long long time before anyone dares to blow the whistle on crooks in Frankfort.

To understand why, look at the case of M.L. Vaughan, who owns Riverside Downs. When a state lawmaker solicited a bribe in 1990 in exchange for helping Riverside gain intertrack betting rights, Vaughan went to the FBI. The result was the sting operation that already has resulted in nine indictments and seven guilty pleas.

Did Vaughan win the praises of a grateful state for exposing this cesspool? Did he earn respect across the commonwealth for his courage and integrity?

Nope. He got a regulatory two-by-four in the teeth. The thoroughbred-dominated racing commission denied Riverside any racing dates for 1993, effectively putting Vaughan out of business.

Unless the commission changes its mind about Riverside, the lesson of this episode will be clear to anyone who might be tempted to call the police when a crooked politician asks for a bribe: In Kentucky, those who insist on honesty in public life take their livelihoods in their own hands. That's no message for the members of the commission to send their fellow Kentuckians. — Lexington Herald-Leader

by Dewey Stokes
National President
Fraternal Order of Police

Later this month, the Justice Department will release homicide figures for 1991. It will undoubtedly come as little surprise to any of us to learn that, once again, the U.S. has set a deadly new murder record. In fact, preliminary figures released in April showed that homicide is projected to be up a whopping 7% for 1991, and violent crime up 5%.

As the president of the nation's largest rank-and-file law enforcement organization, the Fraternal Order of Police, dealing with the certainty that violence continues to escalate out of control—especially gun violence—is deeply frustrating. But what is even more frustrating is that during the last 12 months—during which we saw more than 23,000 Americans lose their lives in handgun fire, Congress had the chance to pass life-saving legislation—and did nothing.

The Brady Bill, requiring a national waiting period and background check on handgun purchases, cleared the U.S. House of Representatives on May 8, 1991. The Senate passed the measure the following month, as part of a comprehensive anti-crime package, which the House then adopted in November. But this crucial gun control measure has remained hostage to the Crime bill which is grid-locked by partisan politics in the Senate.

America's law enforcement community has never claimed that the Brady Bill is the total antidote to our epidemic of gun violence. We desperately need more jails; money to hire more police; and tough, mandatory sentences. But we also need a mechanism to provide enforcement of our federal law which says that fugitives, felons, and drug abusers cannot purchase handguns. All of these components are part of the solution.

Every major law enforcement organization in the country has endorsed the Brady Bill, because police know it will stop the cash-and-carry sale of handguns that fuel the illegal black market of handguns creating so much of the random gun violence which we as a nation are now experiencing. Members of my organization, the Fraternal Order of Police, overwhelmingly passed a resolution to support this public safety bill. We no longer need to debate the merits of the Brady Bill. It has the support not only of law enforcement, but of 95% of the American public, according to a Gallup Poll. What we need are leaders with enough backbone to put public safety ahead of politics and enact this vital bill into law.

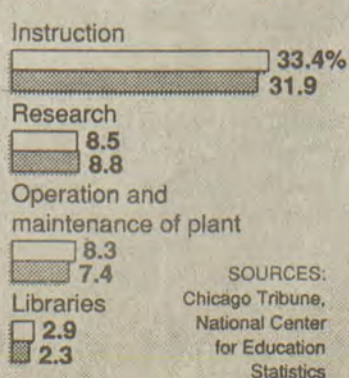

The U.S. Senate has had nearly nine months to send the Brady Bill to the President. During that time, we lost another 18,000 American men, women and children to handgun violence. We can't wait for one more life to be lost. The time has come to demand that the Brady Bill be called up for a vote on its own and passed immediately.

Our lawmakers need to heed the advice of law enforcement officers on this issue. More and more is being asked of my brothers and sisters in blue, yet we are being given less and less with which to do it. Citizens want to see more law enforcement officers on the streets; politicians under pressure to combat crime turn to us, while our budgets are stretched to the limit.

America's police are ready and able to fight this epidemic of gun violence and crime. All we ask is that we have the tools to do our job. The Brady Bill is an essential tool in that battle. The nation's law enforcement community knows that unless we enact this public safety measure immediately, we will set another shameful record of deaths next year, and the next.

Regional News Briefs

Two killed in separate accidents

Two people were killed in separate automobile accidents last week in Johnson County. Kelly Ray Blair, 22, of Lowmansville, died early Saturday morning after he was thrown from his car at Lowmansville. Blair was traveling north on U.S. 23 when he lost control of his vehicle, which struck a guardrail, crossed the other side of the road and hit an embankment.

A Magoffin County man was killed and three people were injured Thursday night in a two-vehicle accident at Hager Hill.

State police said Timothy Adams, 22, of Salyersville, was northbound on U.S. 23 near Combs Field when his 1984 Chevrolet truck apparently crossed the center line into the southbound lane, striking head-on a car driven by Lisa Jarrell, 30, of Hager Hill.

Adams was pronounced dead at Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson following the 9:38 p.m. accident.

Jarrell was transported to Cabell-Huntington Hospital. A passenger in her car, Amy Vaughan, 56, of Auxier, was taken to Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center in Paintsville and then to a Huntington hospital. — The Paintsville Herald

Housing complex for the elderly approved

A package approved last week will see the beginning of a new community development in Martin County.

Dick McDowell, of the Farmers Home Administration in Paintsville, announced last Wednesday that a $2 million housing project package for the elderly in Martin County has been approved for a grant from FmHA.

The complex, to be located behind the NAPA store on Route 40, at Stepp Bottom, will consist of 64 units. — The Martin County Citizen

Fire damages room; no one injured

A fire reported about 4:20 p.m. damaged one room of the second floor of Harry Puckett's building behind the courthouse in Salyersville, Magoffin County Tuesday.

No one was injured. An official said the fire apparently started as a grease fire in the kitchen. The fire was contained to that room, but smoke damaged the entire second floor. — Lexington Herald-Leader

New muscular dystrophy treatment?

Researchers have been experimenting with a treatment for Duchenne muscular dystrophy that involves injections of healthy muscle cells.

The treatment

1 Small piece of muscle is removed from healthy donor, usually a relative, age 12-21.

2 Billions of immature muscle cells, called myoblasts, are grown in the laboratory from the donor's tissue.

3 The myoblasts are injected into patient's major muscles.

4 Donor cells fuse with patient's defective cells to repair genetic defect; the cells fuse with each other to form normal muscle tissue.

Genetic factors

Muscular dystrophy patients' muscle cells lack the gene that produces dystrophin, a protein necessary for maintaining normal cell structure.

The disease

Muscular dystrophy is an inherited disorder marked by progressive degeneration of muscles. The Duchenne type is characterized by:

- Slow development: Young child is slow to learn how to sit up and walk.
- Difficulty walking: Affected children waddle and have trouble climbing stairs, but diagnosis is rare before age 3.
- Bulky muscles: Apparently large muscle is caused by fat replacing muscle tissue.
- Decline and death: By age 12, few victims can walk. Death usually occurs during teens or 20s from heart failure or chest infection.

Babbage announces training seminar for election officials

Officials responsible for conducting elections in Floyd County will attend a special training program in Louisville on September 28 and 29 regarding current election laws and their enforcement, according to Secretary of State Bob Babbage.

"The meeting will provide training necessary to conduct the November 3 general election," Babbage said. "The training is provided for all county clerks, sheriffs, county attorneys, Commonwealth attorneys and certain members of the Kentucky State Police," Babbage said.

State law also directs the county board of elections to provide special training to all election officers and alternates regarding their duties and the penalties for failure to perform those duties.

Any person failing to attend a training session without being excused shall be prohibited from serving as an election officer for five years.

Laws pertaining to absentee ballots, write-in campaigns, and filing fees for candidates were among the many changes made by the 1992 General Assembly.

Babbage said that voter registration has increased by more than 60 percent during the first seven months of this year as compared to the same period in 1988.

Babbage will be joined by state and local officials with their staffs, legislators and staff of the Legislative Research Committee to update election officials in current election laws.

Babbage said that new voter registration has increased by more than 50 percent during the first eight months of this year as compared to the same period in 1988.

Voter registration during July was more than double the number registered during July 1988.

Babbage said programs sponsored by Democracy Incorporated of Kentucky in conjunction with the state board of elections and the secretary of state's office to make voter registration more convenient have contributed to the higher than average increase in registration.

The response to the MCI Communications sponsored toll-free voter registration request line directly contributed to an average of 200 new registrants a day.

By calling 1-800-92K-VOTE citizens can initiate the registration process any time of the day, any day of the week.

The toll-free line will be in operation through September 21. For the period between September 21 and October 5, citizens may still register at their county clerk's office.

Anosike presents paper

Nnamdi Anosike, assistant professor of socioeconomic at Prestonsburg Community College, presented a paper at the Annual Meeting of the American Rural Sociological Association held at Penn State University August 16-19. In his paper, agricultural development experiences of four selected Sub-Saharan African countries were evaluated with respect to their usefulness in the post colonial period. Contrary to criticisms by scholars of the political economy perspective, historical indices of agricultural production show that agricultural productivity growth occurred mainly during periods of technocratic "export-led" strategies. Although growth occurred in each of the countries studied, development, and improvement in the standards of living of the people, did not.

McAninch becomes UK fellow

Prestonsburg Community College professor Robert D. McAninch has recently become a University of Kentucky Fellow. To gain membership in the UK Fellows program, a person generally donates $10,000 or agrees to pay the university that amount over a specified number of years. Also, individuals may set up deferred gift accounts payable through bequests, or life insurances. Gifts may be designated for particular parts of the University, such as Prestonsburg Community College, or they may be undesignated. Mr. McAninch, who serves as Chairman of the Floyd County Solid Waste Commission, has been an employee of the college since 1970. Over the years he has made donations to many important projects at PCC, including the new Henry A. Campbell Science Center. Recently, he has become involved in the college Health Education/Fitness Program and has designated a donation to that effort. University of Kentucky Fellows receive many benefits from the program such as an invitation to President Wethington's annual black tie dinner/dance, a UK Fellows plaque, and complimentary membership in the UK Faculty Club.

Blood Center adopts new recommendations on gloves

Blood donors may notice something different about their phlebotomist the next time they give blood. Effective October 1, 1992, all Central Kentucky Blood Center phlebotomists will wear gloves for each phlebotomy.

Federal OSHA guidelines exempt volunteer blood center phlebotomists from wearing gloves except under very specific conditions, which CKBC observe. In accordance with these guidelines CKBC required that gloves be used by employees in training and those with open cuts on their hands and made them available for employees who wished to use them. However, after learning that Kentucky OSHA is removing this exemption, CKBC will require all phlebotomists to wear gloves. It must be noted that infection of a donor by a blood center phlebotomist or vice versa has never been reported.

Come to the Central Kentucky Blood Center and see the change. For more information call 886-1557.

PTA. Isaac told the board that falling glass from two vacant buildings on the school campus presented a safety hazard for the children and that there is no fire escape in the upstairs section of the school building.

"If there was a fire, the children would be trapped," Isaac said. "We are not asking for major renovations."

Isaac also asked that a canopy be installed to protect students who have to walk outside to the lunchroom in severe weather and asked that the two vacant buildings be removed.

There was no response to Isaac's requests.

Four students were recognized and awarded plaques for their school attendance records, which included one student who had not missed a day of school in 12 years.

Norsa Lynn Jarrell and her parents, Cecil and Naomi Jarrell, were recognized for her 12 years of perfect attendance at Prestonsburg High School.

Other students and parents recognized were: Eddie Scarberry, and his parents Emanuel and Barbara Scarberry, for four years perfect attendance at Allen Central High School; Crystal Dawn Hamilton, daughter of Kenneth and Kristi Hamilton, for eight years perfect attendance at Betsy Layne Elementary; and Jennifer Slone, daughter of Joe Ed and Edna Slone for four years perfect attendance at Prestonsburg High School.

The board accepted $270,384 from the Kentucky School Facilities Construction Commission in technology funds. The offer of assistance must be matched equally by the board in order to receive those funds.

Other action taken Tuesday:

- the board approved an agreement with bus drivers that includes a pay raise and a rotating schedule for awarding field trips to drivers;
- Towler reported that the district's enrollment has just dropped by 95 students from last year instead of the 220 previously reported;
- the board accepted a bid to install fencing, heard a report by maintenance workers on repairs made to buildings over the summer;
- approved a $92,000 change order by Warco Manufacturing for trench rock removal at the Left Beaver High School project; and
- approved a BG 4 for $140,000 to Martin Engineering for the Left Beaver project.

ABCs OF EDUCATION

by Jennifer Little

This column is dedicated to helping parents overcome their hesitancy to become involved in their children's education. It will give parents hints of how they can help their children at home on homework or on tasks which children normally achieve on their own. Some children need a little extra help to learn what their friends have learned automatically.

The information in this column will not take the place of school or teachers. Children still need to go to school, work on academics and learn how to get along with others and follow rules. This column will help parents learn what they can do at home, in the ordinary interactions with their children, to help the child learn at school. This means that parents will have to learn how to help their children.

There are many aspects to the educational process. There is proper school behavior, such as being nice to others, getting along without fighting or arguing, following the teacher's directions, and being quiet enough to hear what is being said to the class or to individuals. These are many of the same skills as parents expect at home.

Parents want their children to get along with each other. They give them directions on what chores to do or how to accomplish a particular job around the house. They expect their children to listen to them when they talk to the children.

Some children do these things automatically. Parents may not be aware of how their child learns certain school-related tasks, such as addition, reading or spelling. There are many developmental "milestones" which children grow into that parents can use as guidelines on what their children are ready to do. For example, you would not expect your four year-old to write an essay on the Declaration of Independence. This may seem silly, but many parents, unknowingly, expect their children to do what the child is not developmentally ready to do.

This column will focus on these topics and others related to them. As you, the reader, express your interest in particular aspects of the educational process, other topics will be included. To begin with, the next column will outline how you, the parent, are responsible for the major part of your child's education. You are the child's first and most important teacher. You are the most important person in your child's life. It is time that everyone recognizes this fact openly and discuss educational processes and tasks with you.

You are the home teacher. The teacher at school is only there for 170 days and works with your child less than 8 hours a day. You are the teacher who guarantees the continuity in your child's educational program. We, the teachers of the school system, cannot do it without you. We need your help and will welcome any involvement you wish to have in the formal educational process.

There are many teachers who would welcome you in their classrooms to observe or assist as much as you would like. There are many teachers who would feel threatened by you as the observer because, in the past, parents have not worked together with the teachers. That is changing under K.E.R.A. It is now mandated that parents have the right and responsibility to become involved in their child's education. This is the purpose of this column - to help you become involved in ways in which both you and the school personnel feel comfortable. More information will be in the next column. Thank you for helping us help your children.

Jennifer Little teaches at Betsy Layne High School.

Second chance

Craig McGlone has returned to college to pursue studies in history. He resides with his sister, Stacey Ousley, at Martin.

Skipping school is fun?

by Craig McGlone
Alice Lloyd student

As a student have you ever wanted to "lay" out of school for a while or even quit to find a job? Allow me to share first-hand my experience after quitting Alice Lloyd College in Eastern Kentucky after just three semesters of attendance.

Graduation was great. It was good to be out of high school, on my own and finally making my own decisions. My first decision was whether to attend college or not. Without knowing what I wanted for the rest of my life, I did what everyone seemed to be doing and that was to go on in school. Attending Alice Lloyd College was the natural choice, not because of the good academic programs they offered, but because it was inexpensive. What they offered didn't matter to me because I wasn't even sure what I wanted.

During my first year in college I had good intentions. I was going to get straight A's. Going to bed early every night, rising early every morning, and studying on a regular schedule was what I intended to do. This changed after just a few short weeks in the dorm. Soon, I was staying up every night and even missing whole days of classes. This resulted in an extremely low grade point average. However, becoming a night owl wasn't the only reason my grades sank. I had no direction or goals in my life. As a result I changed my major four or five times, never sticking with any one thing.

With my first year behind me I realized that college was not all fun and games, but reality still hadn't hit me. I hadn't realized that work was a necessary and valuable part of life. All I wanted to do was to find an easy job and relax all summer, and that is exactly what I did.

In the fall Alice Lloyd became my home again, but the bad habits of my previous year greeted me as heartily as my old friends did. As a result, the outcome of my attempts were the same. I had awful grades, bad classroom experiences, and near the end of my third semester I just couldn't stand the prospects of two and one half more years of college.

The week before finals I decided to quit college and go to work. I thought to myself, "It's not necessary to go to school for years just to get a job. I can go to work now and begin making decent money right away!"

Jobs in North Carolina seemed more abundant than I had anticipated. My hopes became dashed however as I kept running into two requirements for the jobs I wanted. "DEGREE REQUIRED" and "SEND RESUME" were prerequisites for all the positions that I had hoped for. The concern kept going through my mind, "What chance do I have of landing the job I want without having either of these requirements?" "NONE," I thought.

Finally, I got a job working in a production factory. For seven months, usually six days a week, I worked in a general labor department where we made fuel tanks for tractor-trailers, buses, and the Army. For months I lifted these tanks to clean out the welding spatter from them. I would then plug the holes so they could be water tested for welding leaks.

After six weeks, I realized that college WAS for me. I reasoned, "It would surely be better to work with my mind rather than my body." I stayed with the job throughout the second semester and the summer. Now, I realize that working in that factory has been the best decision I have made about my future.

So here I am in college, but this time I realize what's at stake. I returned to Alice Lloyd again because of the excellent history program they offer. My long range plans include law school and eventually politics. I am grateful to Alice Lloyd for welcoming me again and offering me a second chance. Seven months of hard labor made me realize the importance of a good education while disciplining me at the same time.

My advice, for someone unsure which career path to take, is to sit out a year and get a job. You will gain the understanding that unless you earn your college degree you may be unsatisfied with your decision.

4-H NEWS

by Chuck Stamper

Well, it seems that summer break has ended and the school year has begun. This means that it is time again to begin the 4-H Clubs in the schools for 1992-93. I really look forward to working in all Floyd County Schools this year. I will be visiting the principals and teachers in September to arrange club meetings and will begin working in the clubs in October.

I feel very lucky to have the opportunity to work in the schools for most of my club meetings, because in Kentucky 4-H Programs are recognized as school activities. In 1960 statutes were passed allowing 4-H Programs to be considered as attendance: KRS 159.035 says all pupils in the schools of the state who are enrolled in a properly organized 4-H Club shall be considered present at school for all purposes when participating in regularly scheduled 4-H Club educational activities, provided, the student is accompanied by or under the supervision of a County Extension Agent or the designated club leader for the 4-H Club educational activity participated in.

4-H is an educational program open to everyone in Floyd County of any age regardless of race, color, national origin, sex, religion and handicap. If you are not an active member of a 4-H Club and would like to be, please contact our office in the Courthouse Annex Building, Suite 106 or call 886-2668 between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

What's going on in PCC's Big Sandy Natural Science Center?

Toward the end of each semester, Dr. Shiber sets up the PCC zoology lab with a comprehensive display of specimens representing the major animal groups/phyla for his Animal Biology students to review. Such was the case on Monday, August 3rd, but Dr. Shiber also invited his other biology students to take part in the review. Since it is summer, some of those students who have children or grandchildren home from school brought them along to the morning-long session. "By all means bring them! They can learn along with you at their own level and pace!" said Dr. Shiber.

All students attending the display were given an "optional extra-credit" exercise in which they had to identify animals from each phylum and write down their most distinguishing features, as well as their physiological similarities and differences. Around mid-morning, the students had a brief interlude from their work as about thirty children between the ages of six and twelve, from PCC's summer "Kid's College", clambered into the lab with their three supervisors, eager to have a look at everything, especially the taxidermed animals. They also enjoyed looking at specimens of head and body lice, ticks, mites, fleas, tapeworms, and other familiar pests under the microscope. It was a lively, full period or so in which the children and the adults seemed to enjoy themselves immensely. In fact, most of the children stated in a questionnaire that they had learned something new and would like to come back again. After the Kid's College left, more responsible academia returned to the lab and the college students resumed and completed their review during the remainder of the morning.

Such displays take hours to set up. So, in order to make maximal use of his efforts, Dr. Shiber availed the lab display in the afternoon to two troops of brownies from Prestonsburg, accompanied by their troop leaders, Kathy Adams and Brenda Coleman, and several parents. The brownies were impressed by the variety of animals, most of which they had never seen before. On hand with Dr. Shiber to assist the children and answer questions were Sheila Kennard, an animal biology student, and Ella Goble, a student from last spring's animal biology class.

Before their departure, each child received a fossil replica, a pencil, some candy, and some reading material to keep them actively involved: three popular articles about the natural history of certain intertidal animals, two of which can be observed on our east coast beaches; a list of Kentucky's endangered species; and a phylogenetic tree showing the relationship of modern day reptiles and birds to the early reptiles (i.e., dinosaurs). When asked what they liked most in the display, each child had a different answer: "The starfish!", "The piglets!", "The octopus!", "The coyote!"...Evidently, there was something for everyone in the lab that day!

Dr. Shiber, who introduced the concept of "hands-on" zoological demonstrations for students at PCC and the local community nearly a year ago, has found that being given the "real thing" or tangible item, to observe and/or handle does wonders for a person's learning experience.

"It gives a person volumes of information—information which stays with him or her for a long time," says Dr. Shiber. "And this is true at every level of education. In our college, where the budget for zoological needs is minimal and materials for in-lab dissections often are not readily available, a display such as this is particularly useful to the students. Also, many students become further involved by providing specimens and collections of specimens for the displays."

Indeed, many new contributions could be seen in the zoology lab this time: a shell collection, donated by Veronica Koontz, some local birds, crayfish/crawdads, and other preserved specimens contributed by a number of students. Just for this demonstration, Bonnie Reynolds donated a large snapping turtle which had been eating her tomato plants along with a good-sized catfish. There were also some newly-taxidermed animals: a woodchuck/ground hog, a skunk, a few owls and hawks, and even a small collection of arthropods (beetles) of medicinal or, as claimed, of aphrodisiac importance. Contributions to the zoology lab from students and the local community are always welcomed.

TALK TO US

WHAT THREATENS FAMILY VALUES?

FROM PAT AND DAVID: Murphy Brown and Vice President Quayle are back at it again, and "the family values thing" is playing on political stages across our country.

But nobody knows what it's like to be inside a family any better than you. So we're asking you to tell us what you see as the biggest threat to family life and values today.

We've given you some choices; you can also add your own. As always, we'll print the results in a few weeks. Because President Bush and Gov. Clinton have said they're concerned about family values, we'll also send them the results. Please put "No. 1" before the item you think is the biggest cause of problems for the family. Use check marks to indicate other causes.

I think family life is most threatened by:

- Not enough time to be together as a family
- One or both parents out of work
- Too much drinking
- Drug use
- Parents who don't know or don't care what their kids are doing
- Parents who want to be their kids' friends instead of acting as parents
- Other kids' parents who don't care
- Parents who aren't good role models
- Schools failing to reinforce family values
- Peer groups controlling what kids do
- Gang activities
- Not enough money in the family
- Parents who are always fighting
- Father who doesn't live at home
- Mother who doesn't live at home
- Families that don't go to church, synagogue or other place of worship
- Too much sex, drugs and violence in TV shows, videos, movies

- Racism that creates unequal opportunities
- Parents who don't teach morals to kids

VOTE '92: In talking to students across the country this summer, we learned that a lot of 18-year-olds aren't registered to vote — and don't know where to vote.

Your student government could help. Check and see if there's still time for students to register in your state for the November election and if it's possible to offer voter registration at your school. Even if only a few students are 18 this fall, those votes count.

TO 'BETTER SAFE THAN SORRY': We'll give readers a chance to answer you next week. Until then, at least, abstain.

Returning Mountain Christian Academy students find improvements at school

The 1992-93 school year is off to a great start at the Mountain Christian Academy. Many students noticed improvements to the grounds and facility as they were welcomed into the new school year; halls and classrooms freshly painted, middle school classroom construction completed, and a kitchen for the School Lunch Program underway.

At the opening assembly, the students were introduced to Hal Rogers, our Congressman. He explained to the students how he represents the local community in Washington, D.C., as an elected official. He spoke briefly about the functions of government and its relevance to our community's voice and representation at the national level.

Also present at the assembly was Father Beiting, MCA's founder, who challenged the students to participate in cooperative leadership that will enable the soon-to-be adults of the community to build a hope-filled vision for their future in Floyd County.

Sister Monica, the Dean, affirmed and emphasized the importance of recognizing the best efforts of students in their behavior and academic growth through the Star Student Award.

Appalred staff hold reunion

Over 100 Appalred staff, former staff, board members and former board members met for a series of events over the weekend of August 29.

The weekend reunion began with a meeting of the Appalred Board of Directors at the program's office on Front Street at 11:00 a.m. on Saturday. The Board consists of nine attorneys designated by Bar Associations in eastern and south central Kentucky; Public Advocate Allison Connolly and University of Kentucky Law School Associate Todd Eberle. Additionally there are six client board members representing low income groups in the service area. The chairperson is Somerset attorney Jane Adams Stephens.

Appalred currently has 11 offices, 10 field offices in its service area and a research and support office in Lexington, which also houses the program's Mine Safety Project. The staff consists of 24 attorneys, 15 paralegals and 24 members of the support staff. The program's administrative office is in Prestonsburg and the program director is John Rosenberg.

Reunion attendees enjoyed a picnic and an afternoon outing at Clark School and a dinner-dance at the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center. Court of Appeals Judge Janet Stumbo, former Appalred board chair, made brief remarks as well as Stephens and Rosenberg. Former staff members came from Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina.

On Sunday John and Jean Rosenberg hosted an open-house at their home.

Another reunion is planned in five years.

Nominations sought for Hall of Fame

What do Rosemary Clooney, Marilyn Mims, Lionel Hampton, Tom T. Hall and Billy Ray Cyrus have in common?

They're among the nearly hundred names on the master list of possible nominees for the Museum of Kentucky Music and Hall of Fame.

The first induction ceremony for the Kentucky Music Hall of Fame is tentatively set for May 1993, and we need to complete the master list of all Kentuckians who have made a substantial contribution in the field of music," said Ann Lair Henderson, President of the Museum's Board of Directors.

A daughter of John Lair, founder of Renfro Valley, Henderson said, "Kentucky needs a place to honor her musical sons and daughters." And, "we don't want to leave anyone out," she added.

Legislators representing each of Kentucky's 120 counties in the commonwealth have been asked by the museum board to establish a network of friends of the museum. Until now there has never been a complete listing of Kentucky musicians—country, classics, pop, blues and jazz—living and deceased. Henderson asks that local citizens, newspapers and library staffs submit the names of those from their county who should be included—composers, collectors or performers.

Nominations may be also made by writing to: Museum of Kentucky Music and Hall of Fame, P.O. Box 53, Renfro Valley, Kentucky 40473.

Card Of Thanks

I, the wife of John Paul Foley, who expired on 8/22/92 take this opportunity to give "Special Thanks" to all of ours, John's, and my friends and family who gave me so much strength and support during a major time of loss in my life. Your presence there and knowing that your thoughts were with me if you weren't, means more to me than words can ever say.

Thanks for all of the beautiful flowers, food and help that was contributed in any kind of way. Also to Hall Funeral Home, city police, EMT's and medical personnel that tried so hard to pull him through.

Special thanks from my heart goes to the pallbearers because I know this was extremely hard on all of you. John's friends were a major part of his life and he treasured each one in a very special way. Some of you were as fortunate as I—to have known him as well as he knew himself. He was good about covering up his feelings, worries and fears, but some of us knew when he needed a friend to talk to, just to help him through it at that particular time. Maybe now his body, soul and mind can rest in peace.

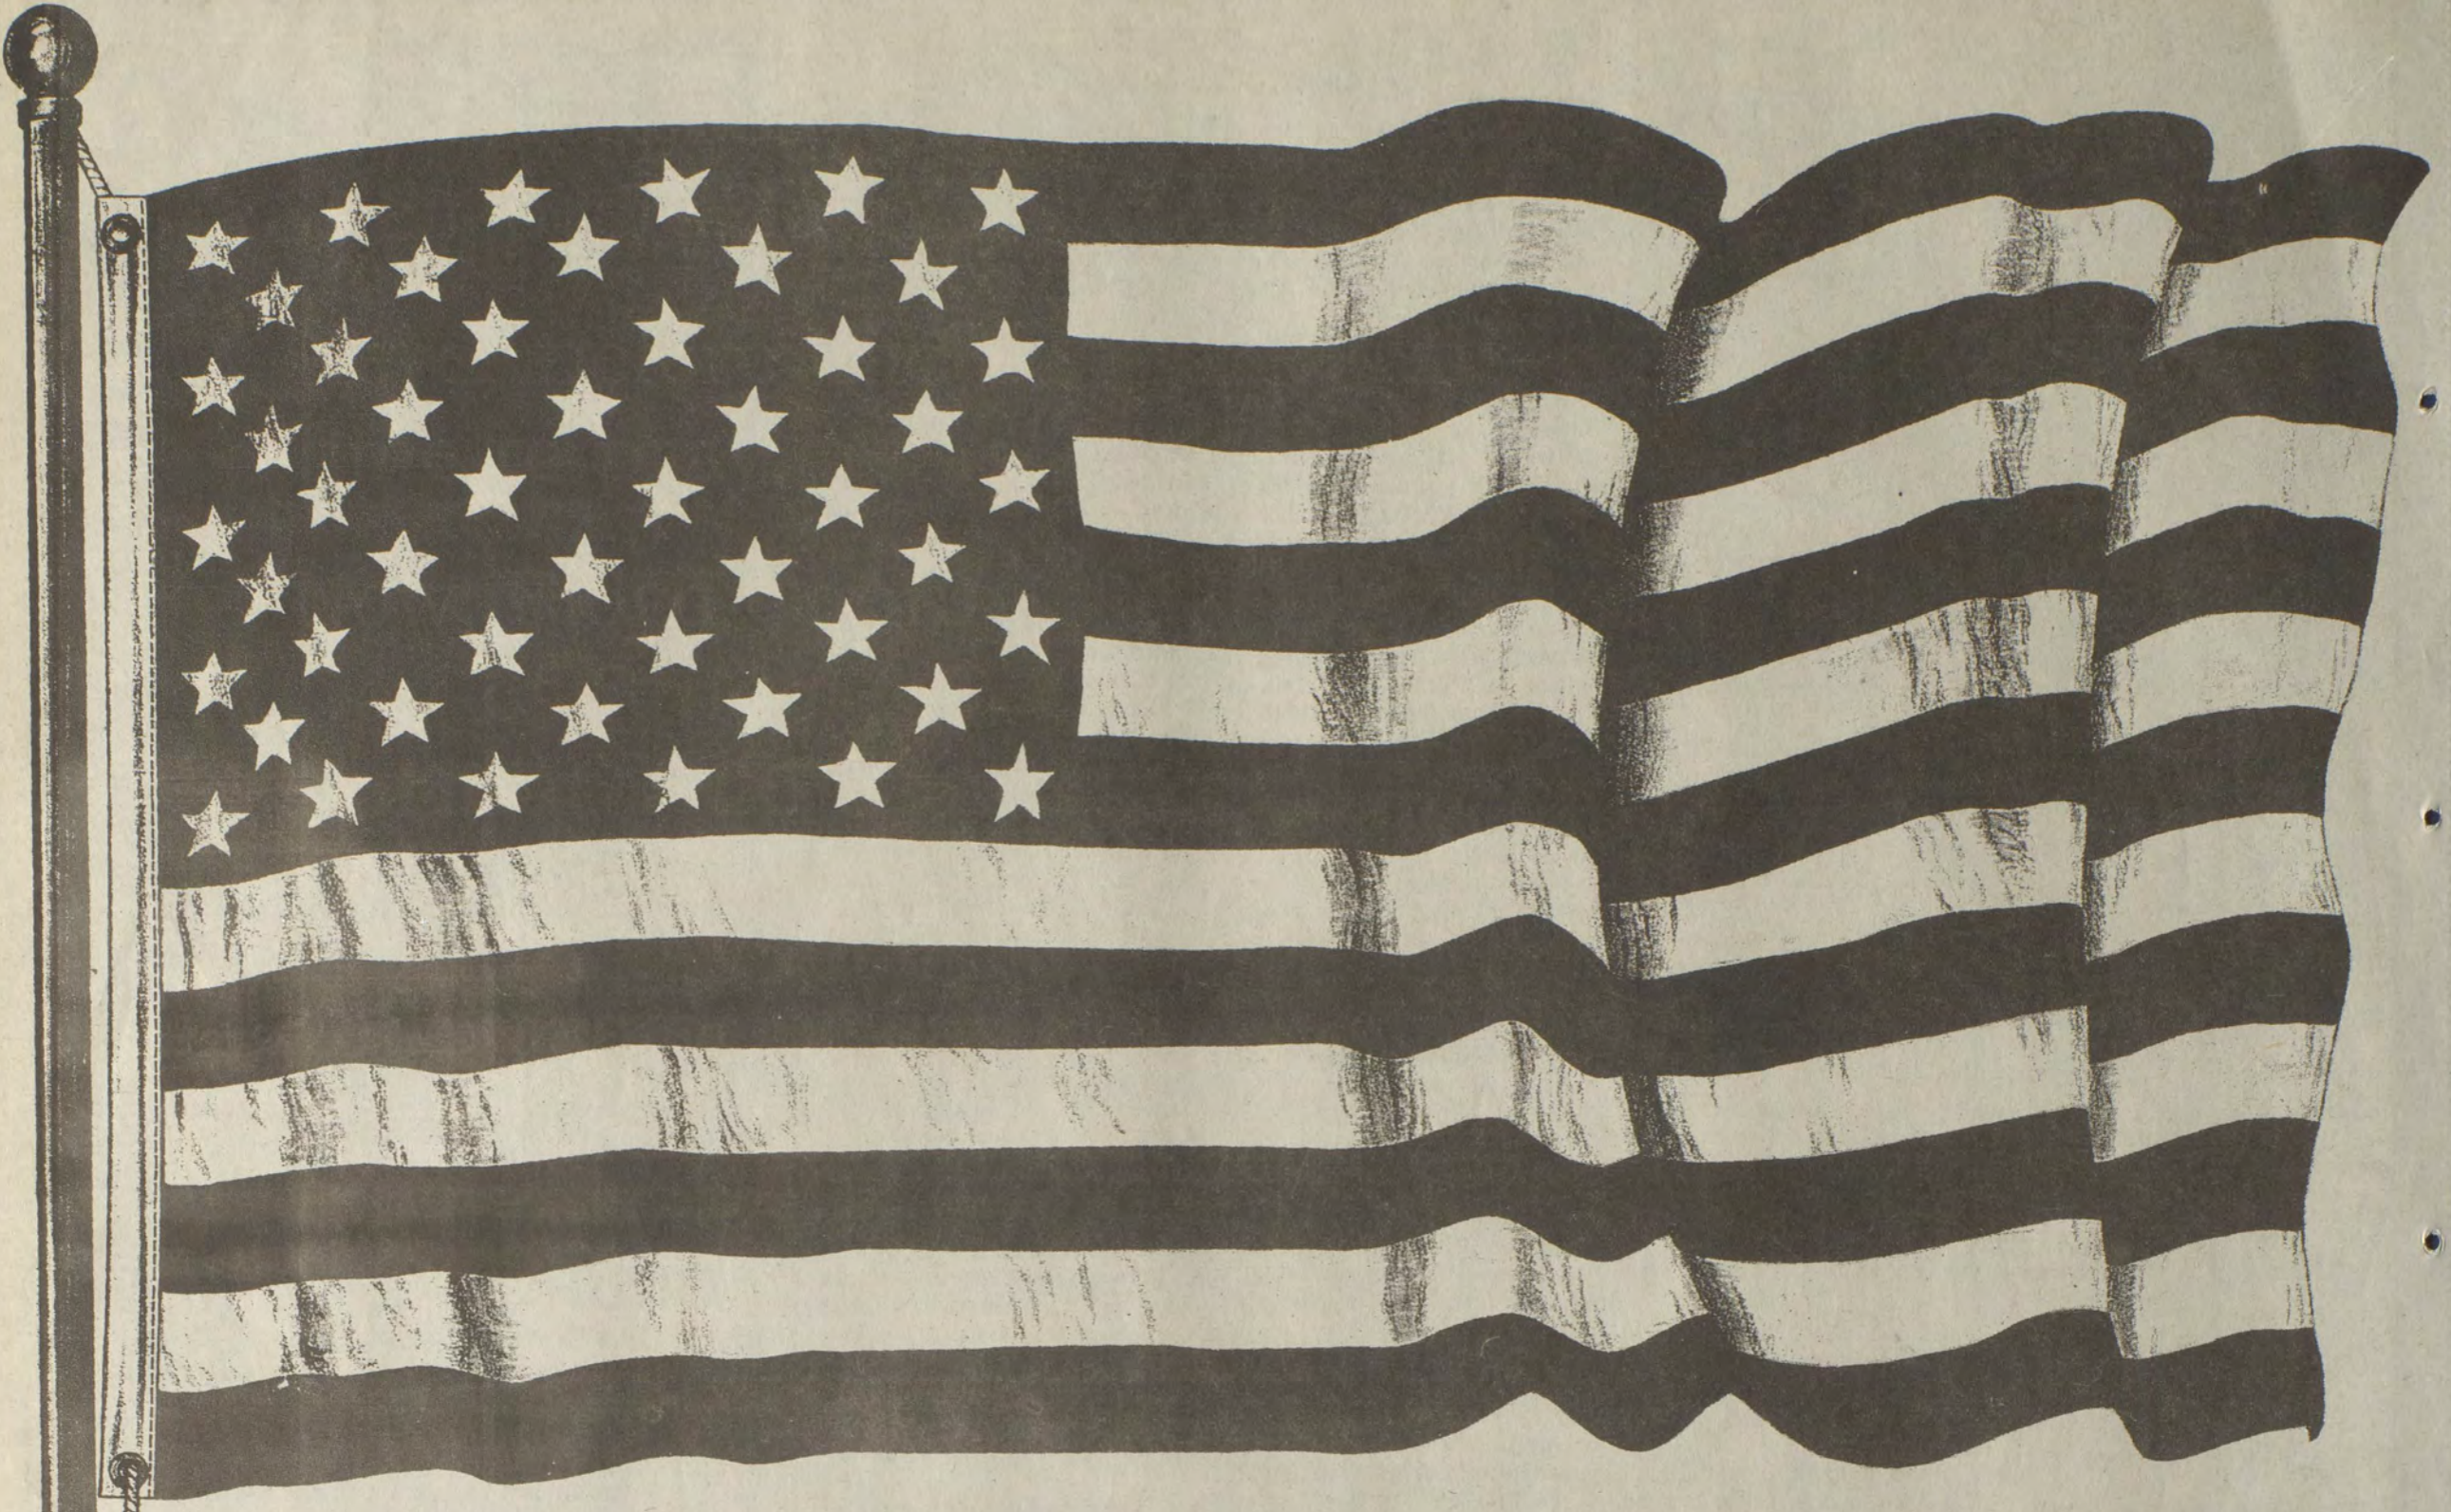

I'll never forget all of the kind and special words spoken to me during this time because he had also spoken a lot of them to me during a phone conversation only a few hours before his accident. I'll always thank God for giving us that chance to talk—one last time. His last words to me will never be forgotten and will be treasured—along with the memories we had—in my heart—forever. Some lost a good friend. Some of us lost a best friend, but words and prayers can't bring him back; so may his memory be remembered in your hearts as beautiful as they will be remembered in ours.

His loving wife and stepchildren
MRS. JOYCE FOLEY,

ALL MY CHILDREN: Dimitri was stunned by Angelique's betrayal when she testified for Edmund. Erica told Dimitri that although they loved each other, their affair was over. The judge allowed Alf's body to be exhumed, but not Hugo's. Haunting memories of Flora impelled Edmund to appeal the decision. Despite Taylor's warnings not to tell Lucas about her part in An Li's pregnancy scam, Terrence slipped and told all. Livia faced up to her feelings about Lucas and decided she didn't love him, and wouldn't marry him. Later, she surprised Tom when she turned up in San Francisco. Wait To See: Angelique is surprised at Dimitri's next move.

ANOTHER WORLD: Lorna defended Kevin against Jake's suspicions. Kelsey was puzzled by a nurse's comment that she should have been awarded the Mentor job. Vicky was crushed by Ryan's insistence that he needed to find himself without her. Jenna and Lorna argued as they helped Felicia pack up Lucas' things. Grant told a tipsy Vicky he loved her. Paulina found tapes of Jamie and Kelsey labeled as Jake's personal property. Frankie offered to help Kelsey research sexual discrimination for an article. Wait To See: Kelsey makes a disconcerting discovery.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Hutch told Tess he'll share the responsibility of her pregnancy. Margo assured Tom she'll soon be prepared to resume marital relations. Her composure was shaken when she learned the police had targeted one of her rapists. Courtney assured Andy she loved him for trying to protect her from Evan's betrayal. Holden told his therapist that if he did, indeed, have a family, they weren't close to him, because they hadn't tried hard enough to find him. Frannie became increasingly suspicious of Darryl. Wait To See: A new shocker waits for Frannie.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Jack arranged for $20,000 from Sally's account to be delivered to him by courier, and then came up with an idea on how to get the rest of the money. Later, Jack called Stephanie and Sally (who didn't answer the phone) to say goodbye, and set off for Las Vegas to try to turn the $20,000 into the $100,000 Ganz demanded. Sheila's elation at seeing Brooke and Eric, Jr. board the plane for Paris was short-lived, when she realized Brooke hadn't gone after all. Macy promised Darla she had a few tricks of her own to counter Karen's aggressiveness with Thorne. Wait To See: Sheila proves, once again, that she doesn't like to have her plans thwarted!

I'LL DO IT TOMORROW
Extensive research has uncovered startling evidence which concludes that procrastinators are not necessarily lazy as they were once thought to be. In fact, procrastinators may be overachievers who simply put things off for fear of failure.
The study also proved that procrastinators sometimes delay duties because if they complete a job well, they will be called upon to repeat the process over and over again.
Sounds logical to me.
Several years ago I prepared an exceptionally delicious meal and I've never quite lived back up to it. The preparation time for this particular gourmet experience was approximately two days in duration. I marinated, kneaded, sifted, grated, blended, pureed and stir fried until my arms ached. My husband still refers to this period as the CDs (Cooking Days). Though I keep promising to repeat this culinary repast, something always gets in the way.
"What's for supper tonight?"
"Chicken Divan, broccoli with cheese sauce and pea pods with mushrooms," I say forcefully.
"Oh, Lordy. Lean Cuisine's again."

"That's cruel," I say spitefully. "But it's true, isn't it?"
It's tough to repeat greatness. Yet, if I had never let him know that I could actually cook, I wouldn't be in this predicament now. So, I keep putting it off.
Housework goes the same way. Day after day, women make the same beds, with the same bedspreads, in a room with the same draperies, in the same house. Okay, at least I have a house, but ennui slowly creeps up and grabs you by the neck and says, "Don't do this. You can do this tomorrow. It'll still be here tomorrow. In all probability, this house will be here after you're gone."
So I ask you, why not put it off?
My husband thinks it's because I don't like housework, but that's not true. Next to walking on hot coals and biting off live chicken heads, house cleaning is my most enjoyable pastime. Why would any woman want to put off cleaning out the inside of a commode? Why would any good woman want to put off cleaning the vegetable bin in the refrigerator (the one with the fuzz growing on it). Think about it. What is that old saying? "Cleanliness is not only next to Godliness, it's next to impossible."
If I did the housework to perfection everyday, I would be expected to keep it up even when I didn't feel like it. That's putting a lot of pressure on yourself: It's much easier to say, I'll clean the windows tomorrow, if something I don't want to do more keeps me from it.
For instance, I put off writing this article until the night before the deadline. If I did it sooner, I would go back and change it over and over again. The good thing about this is I would

Truth, Justice and the American Way

by Geoff Belcher, staff writer

There's no question that there are two Kentuckys...

Wallace Wilkinson, 48 Hours "Muddy Gut Holler" interview

A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!

Shakespeare, Richard III, V, 4

Ladies and gentlemen of the congregation, I am here today to talk to you about SCANDAL! INJUSTICE! BLATANT abuse of AUTHORITY! Yessir, MAN'S INHUMANITY to MAN!

I have spoken to you before, and as sure as we all forget where we parked our cars at the Wal-Mart store, I will again, about the abject PREJUDICE and DISCRIMINATION we as Eastern Kentuckians face EVERY DAY OF OUR LIVES.

Now I'm not just talking about the prejudice and discrimination posed by visitors to our fair state who call us "hicks" and "hillbillies" and think we don't wear shoes.

They just don't know any better because they don't have the same knowledge and wisdom the good Lord gave us (but don't feel too sorry for 'em—if ignorance is bliss, they must be the happiest sons-of-a-gun to ever walk the planet).

No brothers and sisters, I'm talking about our very own kinfolk, our brethren in the Northern end of the state who, obviously through some form of demonic possession, think Kentucky begins at Frankfort and ends at Winchester and everything below that is a big ball of mud where they get the coal mines and we get the shaft.

Yes brethren, our "esteemed" state leaders have once again SINNED against YOU at the peril of their immortal souls, and hopefully at the peril of their air-conditioned, oak-paneled, velvet-carpeted offices so they can no longer slip on their little rubber gloves and tell Eastern Kentucky to bend over.
Say Amen, brother.

For those of you in the congregation who don't know what I'm talking about (and to be honest, I'm usually not real sure myself), the Kentucky Racing Commission has denied live racing rights to Kentucky Downs, a harness track which could potentially bring millions of dollars and hundreds of jobs to Eastern Kentucky.

But, brothers and sisters, do the good government minions in the northern part of the state want us "hillbillies" to have anything but dirt roads and stripped-off, burnt-out mountainsides? Do they want to be fair and allow us a piece of the horse action just like they take more than their fair share of the coal action?

Critics of the racing commission, which is made up of eight members of the Old Thoroughbred Racing Commission and only three members of the old Harness Racing Commission, say it is trying to kill the harness racing industry in the state and make Kentucky Downs an off-track betting parlor which would channel more money to, you guessed it, the thoroughbred industry.

It just ain't right. Eastern Kentuckians should be allowed to hitch their critters to little buggies and run 'em in circles just like everybody else.

To be fair, the racing commission also denied racing rights to Riverside Downs, a non-Eastern Kentucky track, but M.L. Vaughan, who owns the track, gave information on corruption in the thoroughbred industry which led to the indictments of nine Frankfort lawmakers.

The commissioners have since said they might reconsider their hasty decision, but let me just tell you brothers and sisters, it's too little, too late. They've done made me so mad I could go bear huntin' with a switch. Governor Brereton "Captain Ethics" Jones, who is a also a major leader in the thoroughbred industry, refused to intervene, saying he "trusted" the racing commissioners. Looks like ol' Brer' Jones found himself another tar baby to get tangled up in.

Now brothers and sisters, bein' a charitable man, I'll give the good governor the benefit of the doubt. Brother Jones has been ailin' somethin' fierce since that terrible, terrible accident, and just hasn't been himself lately (although I'm of the opinion that if God had intended man to fly, He would have given us propellers).

Besides, ever since the accident, he's done his dumdest to push through a reform package that will benefit even Eastern Kentucky's health care system.

Now let's all bow our heads and pray that Brother Jones gets in a situation where he might have to depend on an ethics system.

Say hallelujah, sisters. In the meantime friends, let me preach you a sermon of a different color.

I say we have to stand up and do a little something for ourselves. I say we stop putting up with them Kentucky Yankees telling us what we can and cannot have.

Hallelujah. Yes brothers and sisters, I'm preaching not segregation, but secession.

Let us join together with our mountain brethren to form a Mountain State, for surely, we have much more in common with the people of western Virginia and southern West Virginia than ever we had with Northern Kentucky.

For you see, I have a dream. A dream of a new land.

A land where all the mountain people can stand together and love one another.

A land where little Kentucky boys and little Virginia girls can hold hands and join in a common prayer.

A land known as Appalachia, where there might not be enough flat land to have a decent race track without blowin' a mountain to Kingdom have less mistakes. The bad thing is, I'd change it too many times, I'd never be satisfied. So procrastination works for me in this instance—I hope.

My husband never puts anything off. He does exactly what he's supposed to do, exactly when he's supposed to do it. He prides himself on his discipline. If it works for him, that's all well and good. And I could accept it if he'd just keep it to himself.

"Sara, I did everything I intended to do today. Boy, I can sure sleep good tonight."

"That's wonderful, Honey, except for one thing, I didn't do all I could do today so your sheets aren't washed, and I didn't make the bed."

"You mean I have to put clean linens on the bed?"

"Only if you need them to sleep."

"But you've been saying you're going to change the linens for two days."

"I was, but something always kept coming up. Geraldo came on then Jean called and then I needed to go walking. I almost got indigestion, but I'll have the bed made by tomorrow."

Thank goodness procrastinator's honors have been savaged.

"I just hate the rainy season!"

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You do the rounds this week. You are THE socialite of the week, but you do need to handle some personal matters, too. Don't worry, you're in prime shape by the weekend and on a dynamite roll.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are a major force at work (or wherever you choose) this week. Your ability to organize and get what you want comes out. Expect to feel good and be ready to start the weekend early, since much falls into place easily this week.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Touch base with a loved one early in the week, before life gets too complicated. You're needed on the scene for a 'must' appearance. Lighten up about what's going on. You use the weekend perfectly, working out all the stress as you party away.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Close encounters and daydreaming are your bag this week. Both are strong indicators that life is working out well for you. Worry less about the downs, and really get into the ups right now. Unfortunately, you must be available and ready this weekend.

LEO (July 23-August 22) Others crowd around you and you feel as if you can't do what you want. Go with the flow, because there's an interesting turn of events. You could be either seeing dollar signs or hearing bells, depending on your focus.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) Your mind may be on work right now, but not for long. Distraction hits big time, and you find you have a hard time settling in. Others seek you out ... as well as an old heart throb. Use your imagination. We will, when we can't find you this weekend.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) You're in and out of different frames of mind all week long. First the flirt hits, then you become the serious workaholic, only to suddenly decide you need to make an emotional commitment. Do be aware that others may fly off the handle.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) You come from a 'centered' place. You know what it is you want, crave and desire, and you aim carefully. You are very likely to have it fall in your lap ... in a very strange way. You roll into the weekend slightly crazed and thrown off.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) Talking a good game is nice, but acting on it might be much nicer. A friend tells you this in no uncertain terms. You get your just rewards this weekend, when you really do act on your thoughts, if not on your words.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Watch all the complaining about money—we all feel like we need to watch our budget. Ease up some. You may decide to do some intense reevaluating, before jumping to conclusions next time. Spend this weekend inside, thinking, talking, or whatever.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) You're full of trouble this week. You could care less about reality, your budget, the boss' budget—you are into life and living. There could be a rough bump before the weekend, then you're off and running.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) Count your blessings and consider the consequences very carefully before you take any action. The full moon throws you into the very center of the action, where everyone needs and wants you. Be careful of what you promise, because it could prove costly.

Mason was comforted by Julia who assured him his troublesome sperm test didn't diminish his appeal. Sophia met Andie on the plane and offered her a job. Two Amish people helped Sawyer and Aurora get onto a feed truck bound for Boston. Wait To See: Cruz faces Connor's accusations.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Victor apologized to Ashley for hurting her, and admitted he should never have left Nikki. While waiting to tell Jack she planned to divorce him, Nikki learned he'd been in an accident. At the hospital, she also learned the results of her physical: She's pregnant. After Lauren discussed remarrying Paul, he asked if she was prompted by love for him, or to gain Scotty's custody. Without the tape, Calvin and Randall couldn't accept Cricket and Danny's accusations about Michael. Nathan felt he was getting closer to finding Dru. Wait To See: Michael has a plan to "insure" himself against Cricket.

Come but I'll betcha all the coal money would stay where it should be.

A land where men and women can stand as straight and tall as the majestic pines and the winding roads will make all foreigners (such as Northern Kentuckians) throw up all over their brand new Toyotas.

A land where there's nary a blade of blue grass in sight and the only Yankee you'll see will be losing to the Cincinnati Reds on WYMT or WPRG.

Or better yet, let's make our own baseball team. We could call 'em the Appalachian Tobacco Spitters or the Hillbilly Homerunners, and the Kentucky Opry would sing the National Anthem before every game.

On the other hand, it could take five or six years to get 'em a home stadium.

Now, being as how my presidential campaign has so far drawn only a small handful of loyal supporters (who shall remain nameless to protect their safety) and my campaign headquarters is currently stationed in a goat barn and I hate to keep on disturbing the goats, I will graciously run for governor of this new state of Appalachia.

But only if the people want me, you understand.

Until then, brothers and sisters, let's just pray that our brethren in Frankfort get the message and start treating us as equals rather than as orphans, as thoroughbreds rather than as broken down nags.

Say Amen and Hallelujah.

Dear Abby

Girl's drinking history proves that any teen can be a drunk

DEAR ABBY: I am a teen-age girl who is an alcoholic, now faithfully attending AA meetings, and I'm here to tell a lot of teen-agers that it can happen to them.

I kept telling myself it could never happen to me. I only drank on weekends—but the weekends turned into weekdays. I drank by myself and with friends. More than once I showed up drunk, or hung over, at school, and I never thought I had a problem! I mean, I was only 15 at the time.

But my drinking got worse, my grades and school attendance went down, and I missed 53 days in one class. My parents yelled only about the grades and never even knew about the drinking. There are still people today who don't believe I could ever have had a drinking problem because I come from a very good home, my parents don't drink, and I look like the "little good girl who would never do anything wrong."

Well, I'm now 17. I'm happy to say I haven't touched a drink in seven months and I never want to drink again! I'm having way too much fun now, and I'm also trying to keep those younger than I am from making the same mistake I made two years ago. I now go from school to school talking about my problem, hoping that someone will listen, and at the same time giving myself more confidence knowing I no longer need a drink.

One thing I would like to end with: "An alcoholic is not a bad person, he or she is sick and needs help!" So please, if you know people who have drinking problems—help them to get help. You will be saving lives.

A TEEN WHO DOESN'T NEED A DRINK FOR A GOOD TIME IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR MILWAUKEE TEEN: You are to be commended for your courage and intelligence in facing up to your alcohol problem before it does more harm to you—or to others. You are an important example to the many other young people already in trouble with their drinking. Anyone who thinks he or she is "too young" to be an alcoholic doesn't know the facts. But they can learn the latest statistics by calling 1-800-729-6686 for the free government publication, "Too Many Young People Drink Too Much." And the same number can provide local help for alcohol—and drug—problems for people of all ages.

Good luck in your clean and sober life!

DEAR ABBY: I was going out with this guy a few months ago. I just saw him again recently, and he said he couldn't get over how good I looked.

He gave me his new telephone number. I called him a couple of times and we talked, and he seemed interested in seeing me.

I just now called him again and his phone has been disconnected!

I don't know how to get in touch with him. I know his address, but he also knows mine. I like him a lot and think of him constantly. What should I do?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: You should do nothing, and consider yourself lucky. If he calls you—or shows up at your house with a reasonable explanation—listen; but don't pin your hopes on a guy who had his phone disconnected and didn't bother to let you know.

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for the mother who wanted to conserve water by reusing the bath water. But if it's such a great idea, I think Mother should volunteer to take the last bath.

Among the pricing abuses that came to light as a result of the July settlement of a lawsuit against American Medical International hospitals in Florida were: $54.30 for a sponge and $7.80 for an antiseptic swab. —The Equitable life insurance company recently printed 2.5 million copies of a 349-page document intended to help its policyholders decide whether to hold a public sale of Equitable stock. Stacked on top of each other, the documents would be nearly 20 miles high, beating by about 200 feet AT&T's 1983 printing order explaining its divestiture to its shareholders.

—Local Detroit legislator Gil DeNello proposed a ban recently of the Super Soaker water gun but refused to back down on his opposition to control of real guns. Asked by the Detroit News to explain the apparent contradiction, DeNello said, "Real guns are intended to kill. (The Super Soaker) is intended as a toy."

—On July 1, the city of East St. Louis, Ill., began municipal garbage pickup for the first time since 1985, when the city ran out of money for it. Mayor Gordon Bush estimated that in the ensuing seven years about one-third of residents arranged private pickup, but that two-thirds dumped their garbage illegally.

Back by popular demand: The Kentucky Opry

They'll remind you of the New Christie Minstrels and Up With People. They're a little bit country, a little bit rock 'n roll, talented musicians, pretty girls and a whole lot of fun. They are Prestonsburg's own Kentucky Opry, featuring some of Eastern Kentucky's finest young professional singers, musicians and dancers.

Kentucky Opry, consisting of nine musicians and four singers, gave its first public performance in Prestonsburg in 1990, and has been growing, following each performance. Last summer, they performed every Monday night at the Jenny Wiley State Park and will be part of the park schedule again this year.

Career highlights for Kentucky Opry include performing for Governor Brereton Jones' inaugural celebration, opening for Travis Tritt at Paintsville's Apple Festival and a benefit performance for the American Heart Association in Ashland. They recently opened for Billy Ray Cyrus in Ashland to a crowd of 50,000 people.

Don't let the name "opry" fool you into thinking it is just country. Kentucky Opry presents a variety of music including everything from Big Band to Broadway and patriotic songs in addition to today's country sounds. Mix in a little dancing and comedy (including a hilarious Elvis impersonator) and you have a show that compares favorably to anything found in the more well-known venues of Opryland and Myrtle Beach.

A lot has happened in five years since a retired school teacher single-handedly went out to create a top-notch performing arts program in a rural community in Eastern Kentucky. In Billie Jean Osborne's words, "It is a dream that has been falling into place one day at a time."

The Kentucky Opry will appear in concert on Monday, September 28, as part of the Pikeville Concert Association's Concert season.

—An eight-woman, four-man jury in Columbia, S.C., found a husband not guilty in April of raping his wife, despite a videotape that showed her tied up with her eyes and mouth taped while he assaulted her. The husband had argued that the scenes, and the wife's screams, were part of consensual, rough sex games between the two. (The judge had barred testimony from the man's first wife that he had tied her up and raped her, too.)

THINGS YOU THOUGHT DIDN'T HAPPEN

—U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists announced in June that pumping cottage cheese whey onto sloping fields could cut soil erosion 65 percent to 75 percent. The scientists identified whey's milky stickiness as the characteristic that made it effective, and they noted that other whey attributes replenish nutrients in the soil.

—Nearly 5,000 British prostitutes have supported a new voluntary organization, OffPro, to impose a code of ethics and to self-regulate the brothel industry. The organization's telephone message urges customers to write "if you have been ripped off, infected by disease, or received poor standards of service." It adds, "If your complaint is upheld, OffPro will compensate you with either a cash refund or an alternative service from one of our recommended prostitutes."

—The Los Angeles Times reported in October that Pete's Out in the Cold Bar, and several others in New Orleans, still require blacks to enter through a side door and to dine in quarters separate from whites. Said one elderly white patron, "It's the custom. It ain't right, and it's illegal as hell, but that's just how it is." According to a University of New Orleans professor, the black customers are "not the kind of people who would" subject themselves to the process of complaining.

—In August, Thomas Bus Service of Burlington, Wis., agreed to pay $1.9 million in damages to Cynthia Ellwood, who was left with severe brain damage after a collision. The collision occurred when Ellwood's husband (with Cynthia in the passenger seat) drove through a stop sign at 50 mph and ran into the bus. The company settled because liability law in Wisconsin would have made it liable for all of Ellwood's expenses even if the husband were 99 percent responsible.

THE WEIRDO-AMERICAN COMMUNITY

Relatives of Dargan Suther, who died in 1990, are fighting over an estate worth more than $600,000 in Birmingham, Ala. Before his death at age 73, Suther had taken to living in a tent in his yard because his house was so filled with possessions that it was impossible to walk through it. Most of the possessions were decades-old newspapers and items acquired, said authorities, only because he thought the price was right.

LEAST COMPETENT PEOPLE

Prosecutors in Chicago decided in July to put a certain bank employee on the stand to identify an accused bank robber, despite the fact that, in a lineup, she had picked out the FBI agent standing next to the accused.

This time, when the employee took the stand and was asked to point out the alleged perpetrator, she looked right past him and picked out Chicago Tribune reporter Matt O'Connor, covering the trial from the first row. (The defendant was convicted, based on the testimony of other witnesses.)

THE DIMINISHING VALUE OF LIFE

In August, sheriff's detectives in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., accused Orrette Moore, 39, of killing two men and wounding two others in a restaurant because he had just lost $5 in a card game.

GRANDPARENTING

MAN MAKES EARLY ANNOUNCEMENT: I'M NO BABY SITTER

Q: How can I avoid having grandchildren left on my doorstep on weekends? I love children, but puppies are easier. They take only a few weeks to house-train.

After finally achieving freedom by having all my three children past college age, I would like to enjoy that freedom now. I must admit that this is all premature as I am not yet even a grandfather, but I'm thinking ahead.

My bookstore business is doing well, and I'm now married to a wonderful, delightful woman who has chosen not to have children. We want to enjoy ourselves. Baby-sitting is not in our master plan. What do you suggest? —Gary Chassman, Burlington, Vt.

A: You are in a definite minority. Most grandparents relish the chance to baby-sit occasionally for their grandchildren, especially their first.

We think you might change your mind once your first grandchild comes along. He or she might look just like you! or at least you might think so. There are definite postnatal ego trips that attack most grandparents.

If you continue to hold out and insist on avoiding weekend duty, we suggest you politely inform the parents, and lay down your ground rules. You have every right to do so. However, you might want to compromise and baby-sit briefly in midweek.

Nevertheless, we still think that babies are much cuter than puppies!

Q: Is there still a French Foreign Legion? I am ready to throw in the towels and the diapers, and sign up! Are women allowed now, under modern rules?

My daughter and her husband have just moved back to town with their three wonderful children, ages 2 to 10, and this summer I found myself baby-sitting almost every day while the parents worked. I love them all, but I am now almost 60, and exhausted.

Seriously, do you have any bright, sensible suggestions? —Grandma, Santa Ana, Calif.

A: There is still a very active French Foreign Legion, or Legion Etrangere, based now in the south of France. According to French officials, it is "going strong," and has recently received many recruits from Eastern Europe. Unfortunately Gary Cooper is no longer enlisted. Women are still not allowed, and you can't be more than 40 years old.

So, we strongly urge you to make other arrangements, such as a licensed, friendly day-care center. Offer your own services only one day a week and in emergencies. Also, one or two of the children must soon be back in school.

We think that grandparents should be called upon, but not stepped upon. We're sure you can work out a happy solution for all. Good luck!

Dee and Tom, married more than 40 years, have five grandchildren and hope to have many more. They welcome questions, suggestions and Grand Remarks of the Week. Send to Box 34, Butler, Md. 21023. Because of the volume, personal replies are usually not possible.

Prestonsburg faces Whitesburg tonight in district

In talking with Whitesburg coach Doug Chandler, the future of Yellowjacket football is very bright at the Whitesburg school. While the Yellowjackets are very young this year, Chandler views the future years as being very bright, especially with the group of young players he has this year.

"We're a very young football team," he said Wednesday from Whitesburg. "We have two starters back on the offensive line and we return three starters back on the defensive line."

Chandler's squad this year is dominated by young football players who are very talented and that is why Chandler is very optimistic of the next three years.

"This is probably the best group of freshmen and sophomores that we have ever had here at Whitesburg," explained Chandler. "This year is a learning process for us. We haven't really played that bad in our first two games. We led Sheldon Clark up to the end of the third quarter and against Clay County last Friday we just destroyed."

Whitesburg dresses 46 young players who are freshmen and sophomores. Eight juniors and eight seniors fill out the youthful team.

"Although we may be young, we have played well at times," continued Chandler. "It is what you expect of a young team. They make their mistakes."

The fullback and tailback positions will be filled by two very promising sophomores in Dwight Harvey and Jamie Hatton. Harvey will run at the fullback spot while the tailback position will be filled by Hatton.

Coach Chandler said that two seniors — Jeff Hale and Shane Campbell — will also see some time at each spot.

"Both are seniors and will play a lot for us," explained the Yellowjackets coach. "Neither player has a lot of speed and they also play both sides of the line."

Dependable Jason Rose will return at the quarterback slot for Coach Chandler's Yellowjackets. Rose threw for over 1600 yards last year and led a late fourth quarter rally that defeated the Blackcats at Whitesburg last year. Tommy Neece returns at center for the Yellowjackets as the only experienced offensive lineman.

J.J. Buttrely will play at the defensive tackle spot as the only experienced defensive lineman.

Former athletes return to Martin for festivities

For all former Martin High School alumni, there just seems to be something magical about just driving past the old high school or just walking the hallways once again and letting the memories of the great basketball tradition flood your mind.

This past Saturday, the town of Martin rolled out the red carpet for former Martin alumni and the town was all decorated in the traditional purple and gold with all the town's store windows displaying mementos from the past such as year books, cheerleading sweaters, old basketball jerseys, diplomas, shakers, and many, many other items from the past.

It was as though the past became the present as stories were relived over and over again by many that donned the Purple and Gold uniform.

"The thing I remember most about the 1951 team," remembered Arthur Smith Jr., "was that we were small but quick. We had to be quick to face some of the bigger teams."

Smith remembered the ability of the team to score and running the fast break.

Attending the homecoming events was Buford Allen, a 1959 graduate, who now resides in Michigan where his son has excelled in baseball and basketball. Allen not only played for the Purple Flash in basketball, but he also wore the baseball uniform. Allen is noted for his wicked curve ball.

Robert Taylor, former basketball player from 1947-1951 era, was the special speaker at the Martin Homecoming that saw a large gathering.

Taylor spoke of his memories of growing up in Martin and those of Martin High School. The former basketball player related how they were his "memories, so they have to be true."

"The things that I remembered as a young lad growing up in the '40's and early '50's are good memories," said Taylor. "One of the highlights of the day was being at the train depot to see the old steam locomotive train belching puffs of steam high into the air, arriving at noon, unloading its passengers, the mail and newspapers."

Taylor recalled playing on Martin's first district championship team and some of the players that made up that team in 1949.

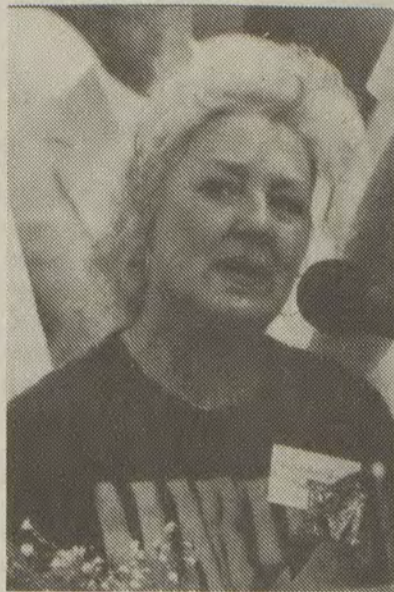

"There were the Lafferty brothers, Elmer, Charles, Doug and Donnie," recalled Taylor. "Gordon (Squirt) McCarty, my brother Bill Taylor, Bert Campbell, Bob Webb, Pete Grigsby Jr. and myself."

Martin won 30 and lost 7 that year. Taylor spoke of those who were influential in his life while at Martin High School. Former principal James W. Salisbury, Sherrill Frazier, Ora Mae Allen and Sonia Belle Greer.

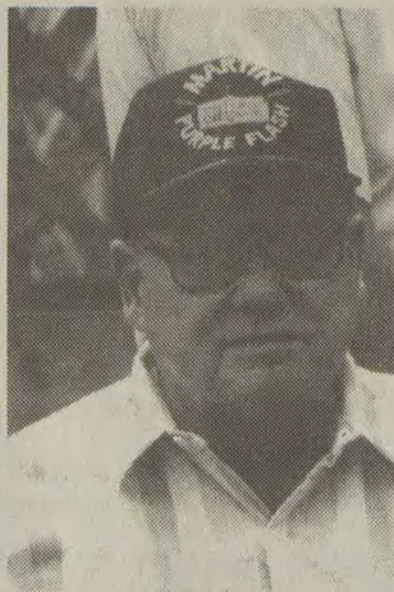

While speaking of his indebtedness to the Martin teachers, Taylor referred to one that was special.

"However, there was one special teacher who, maybe unbeknownst to him, had a great influence on my life," stated Taylor. "He is coach Denzil Halbert affectionately called 'Hoss.' During those years he gained

Prestonsburg golfers place second in three meets

It is the fall of the year and many fans are thinking football, but it is also the season for high school golf. The sport used to be played in the spring until the KHSAA moved it to a fall.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats golf squad has gotten in three matches in the past week and placed second in all three.

The most recent was Wednesday afternoon at the Jenny Wiley Golf Course where Prestonsburg, Betsy Layne and Paintsville played the links with Paintsville shooting a 144 to take first place. The Blackcats placed second with a 152 and Betsy Layne finished third with a 170.

Paintsville's Scott Hale was one over par with a 35 to lead the Tigers. Matt Ratliff and Robert Porter had a two-over par 36.

Prestonsburg's Mike Goble led the Cats with a two-over par 36. Mike Marcum birdied on the number two hole and finished four over with a 38. John Cornette shot a five-over 39. Brett James, one of the Blackcats' top golfers, had an off day with a three-over par 39.

Toby Newsome, who has shown vast improvement in his game, led the Bobcats with a five-over 39. Richard Lyons and Jamie Hylton shot a 43 each and Dave Kibler came up with a 45.

In Tuesday's match, Prestonsburg hosted the Hazard Bulldogs and Rowan County at the Jenny Wiley course. Rowan County posted a two-stroke 158 to 160 win over the Black-cats with Hazard placing third with a 183.

Mike Marcum had a par 34 to lead the Blackcats. He had birdies on the fifth and eighth holes. Marcum bogeyed on the first and third hole but picked it up on the fifth and eighth holes.

James finished three over with a 37. James had a hard time with the number one hole going two over par. Matt Crum shot a nine-over 43 and Brandon "Ace" Kinzer finished with a 46.

Scott Blair led Rowan County with a par 34 matching Marcum. Mickey Hardin fired a 38 and Matt Combs was seven-over at 41. Steve Trivette rounded out the foursome with a 45.

John Trumbo's 36 led the Bulldogs while John Trumbo was a two-over 36. Major Gabbard shot a 39 and Chris Rose finished at 43.

Prestonsburg played their first match last Thursday in hosting the Golden Eagles of Johnson Central. The Blackcats were four strokes off in finishing second to the Eagles at 151-155.

Freshman Brett James had a par 34 after getting a birdie on the last

Allen Central travels to Pikeville tonight

The Pikeville Panthers are coming off a 14-1 1991 record and a second place finish in last year's single A state tournament as they play host to the Allen Central Rebels tonight in high school football action.

The Rebels will be looking for win number one and a chance to snap a 12 game losing streak against the Panthers.

While Pikeville has posted some impressive numbers over the past five years, all that matters now is this year's numbers. A football team cannot rest on past laurels but must play each game as they come along.

Claiming three consecutive championships, plus last year's runners-up spot, the Panthers will be looking for win number three in the early season.

Pikeville lost 19 seniors from last year's state team and only two starters line, but a line that has had some experience. Dave Gilliam has been the leading ground gainer for Allen Central followed by power runner Kevin Patton.

Sophomore Brad Blackburn will call the signals tonight for the Rebels at Pikeville.

One thing that Blackburn hasn't had the luxury of in the past is pass protection. His coach, Dewey Jamerson, said that is where the line has let down.

"You need time to throw the football," said the Allen Central coach. "We need to put together four good quarters to help build our morale."

The Rebels have lost two lopsided games.

Question is, who will score first as Morgan Co. invades Betsy Layne?

Perhaps the best football game in the area this Friday night will not be Whitesburg at Prestonsburg, Wheelwright at Phelps, Paul Dunbar at Shelby Valley or even M.C. Napier at Sheldon Clark.

The best game could very well be between the Morgan County Pirates and the Betsy Layne Bobcats. What makes this game so special? Neither team has won a game but neither team has scored a point thus far this season.

"I'm excited about our coming to Betsy Layne Friday night," said

Morgan County head coach Bruce Herdman. "It will be an interesting game for both teams. We're a young team and I understand they are a young team also."

Herdman's Pirates will be fielding one of the youngest team they have put together in some time. Morgan County has only four returning seniors—if they can get one medically cleared to play—and two of those have never played the game before.

"We're extremely young," said the Pirates coach, "very young this year."

Filling positions has been the problem for Coach Herdman and he still hasn't settled on who will quarterback the club this Friday night against Betsy Layne.

"We went different quarterbacks in the first two games we played," explained the Morgan County coach. "If Raymond Wright is healthy we could possibly go with him. If not then we will start Bobby Smith who started against Shelby Valley last Friday."

Ron Hundley will be at the fullback slot for the Pirates, a position that is new to the running back.

"We really have had a hard time getting any offense going in the first two games," stated Herdman. "We get excited just when we pickup a first down and that doesn't usually come until the fourth quarter."

Jody Castley will run at the tailback position for Morgan County. While the offense has struggled for Morgan County, the defense had shown some improvement in the week from the opening game against Bath County which they lost 28-0. The Pirates lost to Shelby Valley 21-0 this past Friday night.

"We are more please with our defense than what our offense has done," said Herdman. "Of course, I realize that it easier for the defense to improve that the offense and although we have given up 28 and 21 points we're not to unhappy about that."

Herdman said that he did not know what to expect from Betsy Layne because he hasn't had a chance to scout them as of yet.

"They play on the same night that we do, and I can't, and we have no one to scout for us, so we really don't know a whole lot about them."

But Herdman said that it was going my respect and admiration as a teacher and coach."

It was the influence of Coach Halbert, Taylor stated, that made him decide that he wanted "to be like Coach Halbert" and enter the education field and work with young people.

"Thank you Coach Halbert for being a positive role model for me and the countless other students you have influenced."

Delores Dingus spearheaded the homecoming events and received a surprise she wasn't aware of. Dingus said that she had always wanted to be homecoming queen while at Martin but never accomplished the feat in her high school days. So the committee surprised the hard working chairman by declaring her Martin Homecoming Queen 1992.

It was a tearful Dingus that walked to the platform to receive her purple roses and was crowned queen by another former Martin Homecoming Queen, Freda Collins.

"I didn't know what was happening," said Dingus. "Crush (her husband) was pulling me out of the hamburger wagon and I asked him what was going on."

Coach Halbert made the announcement of Dingus' coronation. Dingus remarked that all the hard work done to organize the homecoming was "for all of you." She also spoke of the torch having to be passed on to someone else in the future and that whoever it falls to will keep the torch burning.

"Delores has single-handedly kept Martin High School together," said Walter Clyde Dingus, who handled the P.A. work.

Several former Martin students were recognized for their contribution to different fields in life.

Honored were: Jimmy Martin Hammonds, politics; John D. Caudill, law; Donald Frazier, medicine; Dr. Jack Hale, education; Pete Grigsby Jr., education; Doug Smith, music; William "Buddy" Braddock, military; and Clyde and Tina Allen, business.

The next Martin Homecoming has been scheduled for Labor Day, 1995.

to be a good Friday for someone because someone was going to win and to win you have to score.

"In our secondary we have two freshman and a sophomore back there," said Herdman, "and that's not a good sign when you look up there and see that. We don't want to play the younger players but it's about like Betsy Layne, we have to. We haven't got a choice."

Betsy Layne coach John Derossett brings basically the same type of team into tonight's game. The Bobcats may have somewhat more experience than the Pirates do.

It will be an experienced backfield for Betsy Layne but a young line and running room for the backfield has been hard to come by early in the season.

Doug Hammond and Clyde Bush will carry the ball for the Bobcats and this game will come down to which line can open the holes. Look for quarterback Bryan Combs to throw more in this one.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. It should be a good one despite the past two games.

Wheelwright goes for win number three tonight at Phelps

"You gotta believe you can win" is the motto the Wheelwright Trojans have been playing on this football season and that faith has given them one of the best starts any Wheelwright team has enjoyed in recent years.

Wheelwright (2-0) will see how far that faith will carry them tonight when they visit the Phelps Hornets (1-1), Danny Kidd and company.

A Trojan victory tonight would give Wheelwright a good jump in the district rankings and a good shot at a playoff berth at the end of the regular season.

Coach Donnie Daniels will be looking to the "power team" of Arnold Adams, Muntu Oden and Cruise Caudill to carry the offensive load. The threesome, along with veteran quarterback Steven Shelton provide a solid punch for the Trojans.

Adams was a one man gang in the Johns Creek game when he scored three touchdowns rushing for 118 yards. Oden, if healthy, will give the Trojan backfield some very good speed and Caudill is a good third-down runner.

Phelps will look one way and that will be to Kidd. Kidd seems to do it all for the Hornets. He punts, kicks-off, returns the football and even carries for yardage.

Catching the football for Phelps will be Steve Smith (5-10, 160, senior) who had a touchdown reception last Friday against Betsy Layne. Also flagging down passes will be Fom McCoy (6-2, 205, junior) who had a good pair of hands.

A good one will be on both sides of the line in Billy Smith (6-2, 245). Smith plays the center spot on offense.

Phelps will return an experienced team with 18 seniors returning from last years team. The Hornets will be a quick team in coming off the ball and they have good speed.

Bo Wohlford plays the fullback position and likes to go up the middle. Phelps has another good end in Donald Ferrell (5-11, 173, sophomore).

Phelps dropped their opening game 30-6 against a loaded Matewan, W. Va team. The Hornets defeated Betsy Layne 30-0 last Friday.

The Bobcats are the only common foe the two teams have played with. Wheelwright defeating the Bobcats at home 14-0.

The strong point on this Wheelwright team has been defense. In both games the defense effort of the Trojans has been super. The Trojans won a thriller over a good Johns Creek team in double overtime this past Friday night.

On defense for the Trojans will be Merlin Isaac, Derrick Little, Steven Bates and John Caudill who stood out for the Trojans last Friday. Patrick Tackett is expected to see a lot of time for Wheelwright after a great outing last Friday.

This will be the second of four consecutive road games for the Trojans. The game will be aired on WPRG-TV, Channel 5 immediately following the game and then will be replayed Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m.

year," noted Chandler. "We have set some goals this year and that is to make the playoffs. We just hope to get better as the season goes on and we feel that we get better."

Chandler said that his team's defense has been good at times but that the Yellowjackets are just not ready to play Clay County and Prestonsburg.

"We threw for 173 yards against Clay County last week but we fumbled the football seven times losing four of them," said the Whitesburg mentor. "We just keep giving games away."

"Prestonsburg has a great, great football team," said Chandler. "I saw them play against Johnson Central and that (Seth) Hyden kid can run the football. Prestonsburg has experience, depth, size and speed. Their backfield is very strong and (Aaron) Tucker at quarterback is one of the best in Eastern Kentucky. He is a four-year starter and Prestonsburg's team seems to have good chemistry. Prestonsburg is a well-coached team and the kind of team that we can't afford to make mistakes against."

"Our problem is that we don't have enough seniors. But we will get better and I feel that we have a good chance of making the playoffs."

Chandler said that with such a young ballclub, it is a disadvantage playing teams like Clay County and Prestonsburg early in the season. But that is how the scheduling went.

Whitesburg hopes to move Sheldon Clark in Clay County's place next year and play in a bowl game.

Prestonsburg comes into tonight's game with Whitesburg winners of their first two games over Johnson Central and Middlesboro, both road wins. The Yellowjackets will help the Blackcats open their home season tonight in a district match up.

This will be the only home game for the Blackcats in the first half of the season. In the second half, Prestonsburg will play three at home.

It will be trio of Dwayne Garza, Seth Hyden and Jody Comette that Whitesburg's line will have to try and contain. Tucker gives the Black-

GUEST RADIO PERSONALITIES

Week one saw some upsets and surprises. Our publisher, Scott Perry, doesn't like the bottom row and vows to do better this week. Johnny says that he feels at home at the bottom. Look for Prestonsburg to win number three. Kentucky will fall hard at Florida and in the pro ranks the Cleveland Browns and Cincinnati Bengals will find winning difficult. WKKZ sports director Jeff Meek leads our guest personalities with a 10-2 mark.

Track and field facility good investment in kids' futures

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

There are basketball, baseball and football scholarships as well as academic. But there are also what is known as track and field scholarships.

If you have followed the track and field program at Allen Central during the past three years, you know about the talent that is there and also about the young and upcoming performers who will back in the years to come.

The Floyd County Board of Education, sometime back, ordered Randall Burchett Architects to do a study of the possibility of building a track and field facility at the site of Allen Central High School. The site would be used by all county schools that fielded a track and field team.

Burchett returned a preliminary cost estimate to the board of education at their meeting this past Tuesday night.

The cost breakdown was for installing a 400-meter running track, as well as preparation for moving the baseball field behind the high school. For a six lane, 400-meter track, the cost estimate figured out at $96,020. That included 29,610 square feet of asphalt; site preparation, lay-cold surface, relocate lighting and fence relocation.

Currently, the baseball field is part of the football facility but would be moved to a hollow behind the high school at a cost of $86,000 which would include site preparation, lighting, fencing and grass. There also would be an expense of preparing the football field at a cost of $6,000.

The cost of installing the six-lane track, relocating the baseball field and work on the football field totals $188,020.

Several concerned parents in the area have voiced their vote for such a facility that would benefit all the kids in the county. Local track and field meets could be held between schools as well as hosting several area meets, invitational meets not forgetting hosting a regional and sectional meet.

Betsy Layne High School is heading toward a full program next year. Word is that Prestonsburg High School is thinking of getting its program revived this coming spring. The best investment that our school board members could do is install this facility.

The school board at their meeting Tuesday night voted to investigate the proposal further, as well as look at other alternatives. Board member Orville Duff stated that the board "needs to take a closer look at the proposal and study it more."

A piece of ground that is adjacent to the football field (an old service station) could be purchased and that would allow room for an eight-lane track.

We applaud the effort of the local school board and their concern in trying to see that a track and field facility will be built. Every board member should give it their 100 percent support and not let it just become a passing item that is soon forgotten. Concerned parents, coaches and fans alike should make sure that it isn't forgotten.

Track and field is a fast growing sport here in our area and Floyd County needs to catch up with the rest of the surrounding counties and see that our kids are not deprived of this athletic complex.

Back in 1989 Mary Wallen called me shortly after I became sports editor here at the Times and her one concern was that Floyd County get a track and field facility. Well, maybe Mary that dream you have had for these past four years may become a reality.

The Latest In Lipstick

Lipstick manufacturers are giving women something to smile about these days.

Finally: A lipstick with a built-in foundation. No wonder it stays on so long!

Research indicates 90 percent of women have always wanted a long-wearing lipstick that stays color-true. However, traditional long-wearing lipsticks contain stain that may cause the shade to change with wear and may leave lips feeling dry.

Fortunately, a breakthrough, patent-pending formula has enabled one leading cosmetics company, Princess Marcella Borghese, to develop a lipstick which has revolutionary wear. Its special features include a built-in foundation; spa conditioning care from special moisturizers that protect lips and heal dryness; and brilliant color-true shades that provide fresh, continuous coverage for hours.

Called Superiore/State of the Art Lipstick, it comes in 20 luxurious shades from warm browns, precious pinks, intense fuschias and sun-drenched corals to the truest reds. It's beautifully packaged in the company's signature swirl case—this time a stately silver, banded in gold.

Priced at $20, it's at the Borghese counter at fine department and specialty stores.
