Track project racing against the clock

Above is Prestonsburg architect Randall Burchett's rendering of the proposed Kentucky Downs Harness Race Track/Fairgrounds and Convention Center. The proposed facility, to be built at new Route 3, will boast a five-eighths mile harness racing track; half-mile dirt track for automobile and motorcycle racing; 2,500 seat grandstand; 21,600 square feet convention center; 1,000 space parking lot; and will also be used for outdoor concerts, trade shows, rodeos and conventions. The facility has an estimated cost of around $5.9 million, including property purchase.

Commission approves live racing by one vote

by Geoff Belcher

The last obstacle has been hurdled, the last steple has been chased and the dark horse has won—Floyd County will soon have its own live harness racing track.

"Score one for David," Floyd County Development Authority Director Darrell Gilliam said Thursday afternoon, referring to Eastern Kentucky Racing Incorporated and the Prestonsburg/Floyd County Properties Corporation's triumph over gigantic odds to bring live horse racing to Eastern Kentucky for the first time in the state's 200-year history.

The Kentucky Racing Commission on Wednesday voted by a narrow 6-5 margin to allow live harness racing to Eastern Kentucky Racing's proposed Kentucky Downs.

Racing commissioners were deadlocked on the decision, Eastern Kentucky Racing director Ched Jennings said Wednesday afternoon, until dates committee chairman Wayne Lyster, III cast the tie-breaking vote in favor of the proposed track.

If construction of the Kentucky Downs Harness Track/Fairgrounds and Convention Center proceeds according to schedule, Jennings said, live racing will begin at the site from July 2, 1993 until mid-September.

Still, Jennings said, this is not the time for celebration. First of all, the properties corporation must conclude its feasibility study and begin site preparation and construction on the site as quickly as possible in order to have it completed by July 2. Hopefully, Gilliam said, construction will begin by the end of December.

Gilliam said Thursday that once completed, the facility, designed by Prestonsburg architect Randall Burchett, will contain a five-eighths mile harness track, encompassing over 25 acres; a 2,500 seat grandstand; a 21,600 square feet convention center; 13 barns with more than 260 stalls for the horses; separate office buildings for racing judges, stewards and veterinarians; and a parking lot with around 1,000 spaces.

In addition, Gilliam said, there will be a half-mile dirt track constructed within the dirt track to be used for automobile and motorcycle races and the facility will conduct

Blames crimes on drug addiction :

Bank Jo Bandit pleads guilty to W.Va. heists

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The man who allegedly robbed the North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg branch of the Bank Josephine twice earlier this year pleaded guilty to three other charges in West Virginia on Wednesday, signalling the beginning of the end of a saga that appears to be half soap opera and half shoot-'em-up.

Jeffrey Mullins, formerly of Hi Hat, pleaded guilty Tuesday in West Virginia federal court to the June 9 robbery of the Huntington Federal Savings and Loan and the July 20 robbery of the One Valley Bank in Ceredo, West Virginia, Assistant United States Attorney Sharon Frasure said Thursday.

On Wednesday, Mullins was convicted of one count of armed robbery, one count of unarmed robbery and one count of carrying and using a firearm in a crime of violence, Frasure said. Mullins faces a maximum penalty of 45 years in a federal penitentiary for the two robberies and a mandatory 5-year sentence for the third charge of using a firearm in a violent crime. Sentencing for those crimes will be December 28.

Mullins was apprehended July 25 at a motel in Pliny, West Virginia by officers of the Ceredo Police Department and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation acting on information obtained by the Prestonsburg Police Department and the Boyd County Sheriff's Department.

According to testimony at his suppression hearing on Tuesday, Mullins was captured with a sizeable amount of cocaine. In his testimony, Mullins blamed his crimes on his drug addiction. Also revealed at that hearing was the allegation that Mullins stabbed one of his arresting officers with a syringe he had earlier used to inject narcotics. The officer was concerned because Mullins claimed

State faults short-term plan, revisions submitted by Towler

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County school officials have made revisions to a number of items addressed in the district's short-term plan for improvement in response to a review of that plan by the state Department of Education.

The state found the majority of the recommendations in the short-term plan acceptable, but noted their objections in several areas which included the reorganization of the central office.

A letter to board members from Sandy Gubser, director of the Division of Management Assistance, said that significant change in the short-term plan is necessary to comply with the department's recommendations to improve the Floyd County school system. Gubser asked that the local board incorporate the noted changes into the short-term plan and resubmit the plan by October 27.

The revised plan was submitted by Superintendent Steve Towler on October 27.

Inadequacies in the board's short-term plan noted by the state include (local response to those inadequacies follow in italics):

• The district action plan for recommendations two and eleven, which calls for a very limited review (not reorganization) of three top administrators in the school system, is inadequate

Trick or Treat is Saturday

Trick or Treat has been set for Saturday, October 31 from 5-8 p.m. in Floyd County and from 6-8 p.m. in the City of Prestonsburg.

It was incorrectly reported in Wednesday's paper that Trick or Treat would be Friday in the City of Prestonsburg.

One of four chosen this week :

Floyd battlefield is national site

The property of a Floyd County family is among four historic sites in Kentucky, Alabama, and South Carolina designated this week as national historic landmarks.

The property, which has been owned by the Fitzpatrick family for more than two centuries, is the site of the Civil War Battle of Middle Creek which was fought on January 10, 1862.

Although not a major engagement from the perspective of the bloody encounters that came later in the Civil War, the Battle of Middle Creek helped secure a vital portion of Kentucky to the Union and was the first in a rising tide of Union victories early that year that buoyed flagging Northern spirits.

It also helped establish the national reputation of the Union commander, James A. Garfield, who was later to serve as president.

Frank Fitzpatrick, representing the interest of the Fitzpatrick family, has been working with officials in the National Park Service for several months, submitting documentation of the battle's importance. The property now falls under the guidance of the National Park Service. When the Fitzpatrick family officially accepts the designation, they must agree to observe simple preservation precepts with respect to the property and receive technical advice and assistance from preservation experts, if needed.

The Middle Creek site was listed as a National Historic Place earlier this year.

Martin students set two firsts in mock presidential election

Martin Elementary students set two important precedents Thursday morning by being the youngest ever voters to cast their ballots in Floyd County and by being the first Floyd County voters to cast their ballots on new electronic voting machines that are already in use in many other counties in the state.

Joe Bolton, of Kentuckiana Election Systems, brought the computerized voting machine to the school to teach the students how it works and to get them interested in the democratic process.

More than 140 Martin students from grades 3-5 participated in the election, rendering Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton the winner. Clinton received 73 votes; Bush, 48; Perot, 21; and one student was undecided.

Changes in the 90's Proposed Appointed State Officers Amendment

By appointment only

Three new state constitutional amendments will appear on the ballot for the November 3 general election.

Kentucky's Legislative Research Commission has compiled information on these amendments, which appear in their entirety in the Floyd County Times.

The following is an explanation and summary of proposed constitutional amendment #3.

The following question will appear on the ballot November 3, 1992:

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT #3

Are you in favor of (1) beginning in 1995, having the Commissioner of Agriculture, State Treasurer, and

Secretary of State appointed by the Governor instead of elected, and allowing them to be appointed for successive terms; (2) permitting the General Assembly to require the Senate's consent to the selection of inferior state officers and members of boards and commissions; and (3) beginning in 1995, eliminating the Railroad Commission and the offices of Register of Land Office and Superintendent of Public Instruction as elective offices?

Health care reform means new delivery systems to expand access to care

More than any other point, the fact that as many as one-third of Kentucky's communities don't have enough primary care physicians, clearly demonstrates why changes in the delivery of medical services are part of Kentucky's current health care reform plans.

Increasing the number of medical professionals, especially primary care providers, in underserved areas and regionalizing the overall health care delivery system are significant sections of a plan submitted last month by Gov. Brereton C. Jones to a panel of legislators and state officials.

That panel, the Commission on Health Care Reform, is refining the proposals in anticipation of a special session of the General Assembly.

"Even if every Kentuckian has health insurance with substantially lower premiums, we won't have gone far enough for some people if we've merely insured their health in a community without a doctor," Jones said.

"We have the resources through our medical schools, or hospitals and our health departments," he said. "We've just got to make better use of them."

Commission chair and Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Leonard E. Heller said increasing preventive primary care to rural Kentucky is the key.

Arnett to attend leadership seminar

by Jill Messer

Alea Amber Arnett has been chosen by the June Buchanan School as their representative to next spring's Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation Leadership Seminar. The Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation commonly known as "Hoby" holds seminars in all 50 states.

The program is an opportunity for outstanding sophomores who have demonstrated leadership abilities to meet with distinguished leaders in business, government, education, and a variety of other professions to discuss present and future issues.

Arnett is the daughter of Jeanne and Barry Jenkins of Wayland and James Edgar Arnett II of Royalton.

key. "We need the university medical and allied health schools to put more emphasis on primary and preventive medicine," Heller said. "That may require limiting non-primary care residencies until vacancies are filled in primary care, but that's what it may take to provide more doctors to underserved areas."

Financial incentives will offer a more effective "carrot" approach to newly degreed and licensed medical professionals.

"We need to provide loan forgiveness to doctors and nurses who locate in underserved regions of the state. We can raise the reimbursement levels to those primary care providers, especially in the 'in-need' counties," he said.

The plan currently under study would create a Kentucky Health Services Corps to bring physicians who received loans through various state assistance programs to serve in areas in need of more doctors.

"If they stay in that area after their tour of service, we can extend tax credits to make those communities more attractive for a practice," said Heller.

One section of the plan calls for more liberal use of "physician extenders"—nurse practitioners and physician assistants, for example—in rural areas by allowing them to write prescriptions, with a doctor's review.

Another area for reform is the design and implementation of a regionalized, as opposed to localized, system of delivering health care.

"Many of our community hospitals have fewer than one-third of their beds occupied on any given day of the year," said Heller. "While they can continue to serve as centers for the primary care or emergency room care, we can designate a single facility in a region as the full service hospital."

"Costly new medical technology should be limited to these regional facilities, while we improve statewide access to primary care through local health departments, primary care centers and community hospitals."

"All of these elements together expand the access Kentuckians have to health care, while controlling the factors that explode the cost," he said.

"If we can't accomplish these two things at the same time, we risk changing the health care system of today, but leaving the causes that plague that system in place to ruin any advances just a few years down the road."

KET again provides comprehensive statewide election coverage

As Americans go to the polls November 3 to choose the next president, Kentuckians also will pull the lever for their choices for seats in the state legislature and the U.S. House and Senate — and on three constitutional amendments which, if passed, would cause sweeping changes to the way state government is run. KET will be there again to provide comprehensive statewide results and analysis throughout the evening on Election '92: The Vote, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Viewers can stay tuned to KET for both state and national results. PBS will provide hour-long programs of news and analysis on the presidential race at 7 p.m. and 11 p.m.

During the hours in between, political journalist Ferrell Wellman and WKYT-TV/Bowling Green Public Affairs Producer Barbara Deeb will track the statewide results from KET's Lexington studio. They will be joined by David Holwerk, editorial page editor of the Lexington Herald-Leader, and Larry Craig, editor of the Ohio County Messenger, for additional commentary.

Are the incumbents on the way out, or will most keep their jobs? That's one of the trends veteran political analyst John McGarvey will be looking for throughout the evening. He'll analyze the way Kentucky votes, identifying statewide trends in both the state races and the presidential election.

KET will extend its election coverage beyond the Lexington studio with live reports from more than a dozen locations, including newsrooms in every congressional district as well as the state Democratic and Republican headquarters in Louisville and candidate headquarters throughout the state.

such events as trade shows, conventions, outdoor concerts and rodeos.

The facility, to be constructed on land on new Route 3, which will be purchased from local businessmen Jack Absher and Hobart Potter, will cost around $5.9 million. The funds will be provided by a 20-year tax-free bond that will be paid back from funds generated at the track, Gilliam said.

The only foreseeable difficulty at this point, Jennings said, is that the racing commission ruled Wednesday that intertrack wagering at the facility may not be conducted until opening day. That means that Eastern Kentucky Racing president Clyde Woods will be unable to conduct intertrack wagering at his Center Stage nightclub at Watergap after December of this year or until next July, thus missing the spring Keeneland meet.

Still, Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta said Thursday, the hard part is over.

"I'm gratified that they've given us an opportunity," Latta said, "and I think some of (the commissioners) still have misgivings, but by allowing us to proceed I think we can show them that we are capable of building a quality race track up here which is going to help the sport of racing (all over) Kentucky.

"There's never been an opportunity to develop any kind of an audience up here for any kind of horse racing... and I think this is going to stimulate an interest in the whole sport."

Amendment

ernment, the manner in which they are selected for service, and the duties they each perform evolved during Kentucky's first 100 years, but have remained essentially unchanged since 1891. The number of elected constitutional executive officers increased with each succeeding Constitution. Kentucky's first Constitution, approved in 1792, provided only for a Governor, who was elected by the members of the state Senate. Two other officers, the Attorney General and Secretary (later to be known as the Secretary of State), were appointed by the Governor, subject to the consent of the Senate. In addition, a Treasurer was to be appointed by the General Assembly. In 1799, Kentucky's second Constitution required that both a Governor and Lieutenant Governor be elected by the people by separate votes for each office. The 1850 Constitution, the state's third, added a Register of the Land Office, and Treasurer to the list of those officers to be elected for a four-year term rather than appointed. An Auditor of Public Accounts was to be elected for a two-year term, but the Secretary of State was still appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate. Under the fourth and current Constitution, adopted in 1891, nine executive offices are to be filled by a statewide popular vote for four-year terms: the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Treasurer, Attorney General, Auditor of Public Accounts, Secretary of State, Commissioner of Agriculture, Register of the Land Office, and Superintendent of Public Instruction. A three-member Railroad Commission, which had previously been appointed by the Governor, was also required to be elected, each by the vote of a separate district. The 1891 Constitution also prohibited all statewide elected officers from serving consecutive terms in office.

Eight of the 49 other states have the same number of elected executive offices as Kentucky, four states elect more, and 37 elect fewer. A Secretary of State is elected in 36 states, a Treasurer is elected in 12 states, an officer to head the state Education Department is elected in 16 states, and a Railroad Commission is elected only in Kentucky and Texas.

The 1891 Constitution permitted the General Assembly to abolish the office of Register of the Land Office and to provide by law for the custody and preservation of its records. In 1898, the office was abolished as an elective one by law; its duties were assigned initially to the Auditor of Public Accounts, then in 1934 to the office of Secretary of State, where they are still performed.

Section 93 of the current Constitution provides that the duties of elective state officers are to be set by law by the General Assembly. Prior to the passage of the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA), one elected state officer, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, served as head of the Department of Education and the various state boards of education. KERA created the position of Commissioner of Education, to be appointed by the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education. The duties previously performed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction have been transferred to the new Commissioner of Education. The General Assembly has given the Superintendent of Public Instruction the duty to act as a citizen advocate for elementary and secondary education and has reduced the salary of the Superintendent to $3,000 per year.

The Railroad Commission was formed as an appointed agency to regulate rail safety and rates prior to the 1891 convention. Much debate at the convention focused not only on whether the commission was necessary, but also whether its members should be appointed or elected if it was retained. The resulting vote established a three-member commission elected from districts, to be paid $3,000 per year, except for its chairman, who receives $3,600 per year.

At the time of the 1891 convention, the U.S. Congress was taking steps to require the federal government, instead of the states, to regulate matters concerning interstate rail commerce, including the rates charged for rail transportation and the condition in which rail lines must be maintained. In the early 1980's, the federal government was authorized to regulate intrastate rail transportation as well. As a result, the states are left with little regulatory and enforcement authority over matters affecting the railroads.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGES

(1) Appointment of Secretary of State, Treasurer, and Commissioner of Agriculture

Section 91 of the Constitution requires that nine state officers be elected by the people statewide. The proposed amendment would remove the Secretary of State, Treasurer, and Commissioner of Agriculture from the list of officers to be elected, beginning in 1995, and would permit the Governor to appoint those officers. Persons appointed to those offices by the Governor would be eligible to be reappointed to a consecutive term of office. The remaining state officers elected in 1995 and thereafter would be eligible to be elected to consecutive terms if Constitutional Amendment #2 is adopted.

(2) Senate Confirmation of Public Officials

Section 93 of the Constitution provides that state officers that are not specifically provided for in the Constitution may be appointed or elected, as the General Assembly may determine by law, for a term of not more than four years. The proposed amendment to this section would also apply this provision to the appointment or election of members of various boards and commissions which have been created over the years to perform technical assistance, licensing, advisory, regulatory, or oversight functions over subject matters not specifically or routinely addressed by other agencies of state government. Another portion of the proposed amendment would provide a constitutional check and balance on gubernatorial appointments of state officers, boards, and commissions by permitting the General Assembly to write into law a requirement that appointees to certain posts must also be approved by the Senate before assuming office. Permitting Senate confirmation of gubernatorial appointments is not a new concept in Kentucky; the state's first three Constitutions required the Senate to confirm the Governor's nominations of appointed state and local officers. Some appointed board members, such as those on the lottery's board of directors, must already be confirmed by the Senate under statutory law.

(3) Elimination of Elective State Officers

Though the duties of the Register of the Land Office and Superintendent of Public Instruction are now performed by other officials, they are still listed in Section 91 as officers to be elected. The proposed amendment would abolish those offices as elective ones, repeal Section 209, requiring that the Railroad Commission be elected, and amend Section 201 to permit a state agency having jurisdiction over matters addressed by the Railroad Commission to perform those duties. If the amendment is adopted, no election for these officers would be held in 1995.

EFFECTIVE DATE

If the proposed amendment is approved by the voters on November 3, 1992, it would become effective immediately upon passage.

Plan

ber 31. The revision said that any changes in structure and personnel will be implemented by July 1, 1993.

The district action plan which placed improved communications internally and externally as a long-term goal was recommended to be a top priority and must begin immediately.

The revised plan recommends that the creation of a position that will spend half-time on communications and community relations and half-time as a personnel administrator.

The district plan which called for developing a master plan to be used by the local planning committee to develop a new facility survey and instructional planning was inadequate. The state's review said that recommendation did not adequately address the overall instructional planning and programming for the school district.

The revised plan calls for the long-term planning process that was initiated in the fall of 1991 to be reactivated with the main focus on the overall instructional plan and program for the district. That process is listed as beginning on November 1.

The district plan which projected a June 30, 1993 completion date for a comprehensive study of the maintenance operation was unacceptable. The state review recommended that the study and recommended changes be implemented as soon as possible.

The revised plan calls for recording all unwritten job descriptions, practices and reporting relating to physical plants by December 31 and reviewing those materials and preparing a work plan to be implemented by June 30, 1993.

The district plan which called for a revised policy concerning the practice of allowing employees to live in school owned facilities and a procedure to be used for establishing a rent and utilities charge for occupied facilities was unacceptable. The state's review said that the district's plan would not terminate the arrangements, but would instead perpetuate the practice.

The revised plan recommends terminating the practice of employees living in school owned facilities by December 31 and installing separate utility meters at each location and establishing an appropriate rental fee. Another option will be to sell the residential property.

The district plan which listed revising custodial work schedules to reduce the number of hours worked when students were in the building as part of the long-term plan was recommended by the state to be implemented as soon as possible and incorporated in the short-term plan.

The revised plan calls for schedule changes to allow maximum cleaning time at each location and the reduction of work during school hours.

The district plan which said a broad-based committee has been formed to advise the board on future planning for facilities and site acquisition was inadequate. The state review said that the committee has not been formed and no meetings have taken place to discuss facility construction issues.

The revised plan says that a new local planning committee will be formed in early November which will consist of four teachers, four administrators, four parents, a central office administrator, a local business person and one board member. The superintendent will serve as a non-voting member. The planning committee will work during November, December and January 1993 to present a proposed plan to the local board.

Management assistant director Sandy Gubser said Thursday that she has not reviewed the board's resubmitted plan.

Babbage predicts record turnout

Secretary of State Bob Babbage predicts a record number of Floyd Countians will go to the polls on November 3 due in part to increased voter registration statewide.

"We expect turnout on November 3 to surpass the 70 percent recorded in the 1980 presidential election. A majority of new voters tend to go to the polls the first time after they register," Babbage said.

A total of 29,025 Floyd Countians are registered to vote in the November 3 general election.

Babbage said that 184,301 new voters registered this year setting an all-time registration record for a single year.

"Of course, interest and registration traditionally increase in presidential election years," Babbage said, "but never before at this level."

"Although registration is very important, each Kentuckian needs to remember that their vote only counts if they use it," Babbage said.

No One Ever Said it Was EASY

Voting for a tax increase right before the election isn't smart politics. But then, Dr. Mary Hall isn't in the race for political gain.

Unlike her opponent, Dr. Hall has the courage to make tough decisions and base them on what's best for our children. So when it came to funding education reform, she didn't back down. She knows it's a small price to pay when our children's future is at stake.

Her opponent says he'll account for every dime of your tax money. Someone should tell him the district already does. The treasurer's report (all 48 pages) appeared in the same issue of the newspaper as his ad.

He says the district's budget is $30 million, and asked how it is being spent. If, less than a week before the election, he doesn't know how the district operates financially, when will he?

If he is more worried about short-term popularity than long-term progress, how can he move the district forward?

If he is not willing to make a necessary but unpopular decision, how can he stand up for education reform?

HOW? HE CAN'T.

We win!

by Scott Perry

If you've ever doubted that persistence pays off, it's now safe to be a believer.

Despite the fact that the new and not-necessarily-improved state racing commission was stacked against the interests of standardbred horsemen and harness racing, Floyd County will be home to the state's newest harness racing facility this summer.

One vote Wednesday made the difference between do-or-die for the local project, but it was a damn-the-torpedoes approach by local supporters of the track that beat the odds to land the track in Eastern Kentucky.

On at least two occasions, the thoroughbred-dominated racing commission brought down the axe on the Floyd County project, barely disguising their biases against the harness industry and their greed for off-track betting parlor revenues.

Proponents of the Floyd County project could have folded their tents, unashamed, after either setback. But they didn't.

Damn straight, they didn't.

They fought, they clawed, they scratched and they won.

We won't name them for fear of leaving someone out, but we'll salute them all for their persistence and their guts.

Who says you can't fight city hall?

A bite of crow

A few issues back we lamented in this space about the lack of attention Floyd County development projects were getting from Governor Brereton Jones.

We are now dining happily on a plate of crow.

The governor's announcement this week that Wheelwright would most definitely be the site of a new minimum security prison is most welcome news and a most welcome job development project for one of the most needy areas of this state.

Thank you governor for recognizing a need and for wasting no time in addressing it.

Editor:

At the recent dedication of the Josie Harkins (Daniel's Creek) School at Jenny Wiley State Park, many local persons were recognized by Frances Brackett, who did an outstanding job in seeing this project through to the end.

However, one contribution needs to be highlighted, because it came from those we ordinarily consider outsiders" or at least "temporary residents" in our community—the members of the Job Corps who with their teachers did so much work to get the schoolhouse and site ready.

Unlike most of the people recognized, these young people have no historical connection to this county, nor were they teachers or educators interested on a personal level in its successful completion. But, they do have a real connection to Floyd County's Bicentennial Project. Their involvement is closely related to education since they come here to learn and improve their skills, and they do so, in part, by involving themselves in the community. They have never hesitated to help, when asked, and often they offer help before being asked. Practicing such values is an important part of education.

Of course, there are differences to be overcome due to racial and cultural backgrounds, but working together is a great way to do that, is it not? As kind and helpful as these young men and women have been to us and in our community's projects, it is hard to imagine that we would do anything less than show our deepest concern and neighborliness when one of them was in need.

The Bible observes of a true community, "When one rejoices, we all rejoice, and when one suffers, we all suffer together." We rejoice in their good works, and we sorrow when any member of our community—lifelong resident or temporary sojourner—suffers.

Anniversary thank you

Editor:

On September 11, 1992, our parents Addison and Cora Collins celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. We the children would like to thank everyone for coming to help make this day a memorable one.

We would also like to thank the members of the Wheelwright Free Will Baptist Church. They helped decorate, cook food, and participate in the ceremony.

The singers who sang, the friends and family that came was a gift no words can say. Rev. Louie and Linda Ferrari are to be commended, for without them this day would not have been possible.

Thanks.

Need road and bridge

Editor:

I would like to agree with the lady, Mrs. Bailey, about the Town Branch Road.

I live at Allen and frequently travel the road. I was please when I read in the Floyd County Times that the road was going to be blacktopped and repaired.

Going into Prestonsburg, the road saves me time. I also noticed only a few patches of blacktop. I was very disappointed. Maybe whoever got the job started will get it finished. I wonder how much this cost.

I also am concerned about the safety of the Town Branch bridge. A three-ton limit is ignored. I once met a county truck with a load of gravel.

I have quit traveling the road. Maybe a new bridge is justified. I used this road to avoid U.S. 23 construction.

I would like to travel the road if the bridge is safe. Hope some official will respond in the paper.

Four more years

Editor:

The 1992 Election represents a pivotal moment in America's history, as this will be our first national election in the post Cold War era. Voters will determine who will lead us into the twenty-first century. I am confident that for reasons outlined here, Kentucky voters will cast their lot in favor of George Bush.

The world is a very different place than it was just four short years ago. As Americans, we can stand proud at the triumph of our ideals which have expedited an end to the Cold War. The franchise of hope has been brought to millions of people previously bound by the shackles of Communism. The bold leadership of the Reagan-Bush era, guided by the philosophy of "peace through

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

First, build your community; then build an economy

A group of about 30 people from a dozen different Kentucky counties gathered in Berea this week to learn a new way to help their communities, a way that won't go away. The teacher was Michael Kinsley from Old Snowmass, Colorado, and he was brought in by the Kentucky Local Governance Project. Kinsley is a proponent of a style of economic development that aims first at building a community rather than factories...

What Kinsley brought to this group was a new vision of economic development and a new way to make it come about. First, Kinsley said, "growth and development are not the same thing." Prosperity can be achieved without towns necessarily getting bigger. To think otherwise, Kinsley said, "is to write off thousands of towns...because they aren't going to grow."

Economic renewal, Kinsley told the Berea gathering, comes in small steps. Communities should work to "plug the leaks" in their economies. (Government purchases made in Lexington, for example, can be transacted in the county seat.) Towns should look to help their existing businesses, and should explore ways to capitalize on local assets. (Kinsley told of one Georgia town that turned the Mayhaw berry into a canning enterprise now selling products in 36 states.)

Kinsley promotes collaborative decision-making. If a community (or a neighborhood) can develop a common vision of its future, Kinsley said, the disputes tend to melt away. Economic development, he said, grows out of a community that has a full and fair vision of itself. A town fixes its economy by first fixing itself...

It is a radical step for a state always intent on landing the next big paper mill or auto plant. It may also prove to be the most long-lasting.

—Bill Bishop, Lexington Herald-Leader

Are you better off?

The economic clouds parted Tuesday, enabling President Bush to boast that the gross domestic product had grown at a surprisingly strong 2.7 percent annual rate last quarter.

But his moment in the sunshine was brief. Yesterday brought news that orders for durable goods, an indicator of future economic activity, fell in in September for the third straight month. It was the first time that's happened since January-March 1991, in the depths of the supposedly now-ended recession.

The lesson here is that no one—not Mr. Bush, not Bill Clinton, not Ross Perot—can draw sweeping conclusions from a single set of economic statistics. This is especially true when the figures are likely to be revised later.

What counts in evaluating a president's handling of the economy is how he did over the long haul. And if voters focus on Mr. Bush's nearly four years in office, he's in big trouble.

Job growth has been puny and private-sector wages for production workers have fallen, when adjusted for inflation. Most Americans are not better off than they were four years ago.

strength" has been vindicated. No longer are our children haunted by the specter of nuclear holocaust which threatened so many for so long. President Bush made these dreams become realities.

However, for all of America's success abroad, this election will be a referendum on which vision is best for America's future.

Bill Clinton believes in empowering bureaucracies instead of people. The main ingredient of his economic plan is a whopping $150 billion tax increase. He proposes a federal takeover of the nation's health care industry, and calls for $220 billion in new spending for social programs. What he calls "investment in America," is merely warmed-over tax and spend liberalism. Despite his desperate attempts to portray himself as a "moderate," the Governor of Arkansas subscribes to a philosophy that places him in lock-step with the traditions of Dukakis, Mondale, Carter and McGovern.

President Bush endorses a philosophy that emphasizes the importance of the individual. He understands that a person's capacity to contribute to society can only be maximized when government doesn't interfere with the pursuit of excellence. George Bush believes not in the equality of result, but in the equality of opportunity. He does not seek the redistribution of wealth, but the creation of it in an economy that promotes and rewards the undying entrepreneurial spirit.

Recently the President outlined a bold vision for the country in his "Agenda for American Renewal" which calls for across-the-board tax cuts, paid for by spending reductions. His plan also includes market-oriented approaches to reforming our health care and education systems. Many of these proposals have been languishing on Capital Hill for the past four years, stopped by partisan Democrats who represent the real obstacle to our prosperity.

Kentucky's voters should consider the impact of a Clinton Presidency on the livelihood of our state.

Tobacco farmers ought to examine the manner in which Clinton has wavered on the issue of supporting the federal tobacco program, as well as the fact that the Democrat platform fails to make any real commitment to agriculture.

The environmental extremism of Senator Al Gore raises questions towards the security of vital industries which employ thousands of hard working Kentuckians.

In his recent book, "Earth in the Balance", Gore calls for a coal tax to reduce demand. This will place our coal industry in serious jeopardy. Gore also states that cars are, "posing a mortal threat to the security of every nation that is more deadly than that of any military dictator." Let him tell that to the thousands of hard-working Kentuckians who proudly build Ford explorers in Louisville, Chevy Corvettes in Bowling Green, and Toyota Camrys in Georgetown.

Kentucky would also suffer as a result of reckless defense cuts being proposed by the Clinton-Gore ticket. The future of Fort Knox, Fort Campbell and Naval Ordnance in Louisville would be questionable, as would the economic future of the surrounding communities.

Finally, this campaign comes down to the question of who do you trust? Who has the necessary leadership skills to protect and manage our vital national security interests? George Bush has demonstrated those skills time after time whether it has been the liberation of Panama or Kuwait. He has led the way to winning the respect that our country deserves.

General H. Norman Schwarzkopf recently stated that the most important aspect of leadership is "character." The voters should view character through the eyes of a brave eighteen year-old naval fighter pilot who repeatedly risk his life for his country during World War II. That view should be contrasted with the one seen through the eyes of a calculating 22-year-old Rhodes scholar who chose to hide in a dormitory in Oxford, England when his time came. We must also remember that George Bush's actions were never motivated by a desire to maintain his "political viability." That comparison underscores just who has the moral authority to serve as Commander-in-Chief, and to ask other young Americans to lay down their lives should the situation ever arise.

The choice is obvious. On November 3rd, Kentuckians should vote for the proven leadership of George Bush.

Pikeville adopts emergency property tax ordinance

The Pikeville City Commission adopted an emergency property tax ordinance that amended discount and penalty dates on real estate, tangible personal property and stocks.

The purpose of the tax is to provide funds for the general operation of the city of Pikeville for the current fiscal year.

The commission voted to assess a tax of 0.181 cents per $100 on all real estate within the city of Pikeville, not specifically exempted from taxation.

That means a house valued at $460,000 would be assessed an additional $108.60. All tangible personal property and franchises that are not specifically exempt from taxation will also be assessed 9.181 cents per $100.

All shares of stock in banks, trust companies and savings and loans associations operating within the city of Pikeville will be taxed 22.02 cents per $100. At this rate, a savings account worth $10,000 would be taxed $22.02.

The ordinance was passed with emergency status because property tax bills were due to be mailed out to taxpayers as soon as the ordinance went into effect. — Appalachian News Express

Student dies in fall from floor of EKVU dorm

A 20-year-old student at Eastern Kentucky University fell to her death from a campus dormitory early Wednesday.

Madison County Coroner Embry Curry said foul play is not suspected in the death of Hollie Goodrich, a junior from Knott County.

Goodrich apparently fell from her 11th-floor room in Telford Hall around 1 a.m., said EKVU spokesman Ron Harrell. Curry and EKVU's Division of Public Safety are investigating. Curry said he didn't know of any witnesses to the incident. But Harrell said that based on the preliminary investigation, "there's nothing to indicate anything other than an accident."

Goodrich, the daughter of Brad and Virgena Goodrich, transferred to Eastern as a freshman from Alice Lloyd College in 1990.

Former Inez doctor named in Medical board complaint

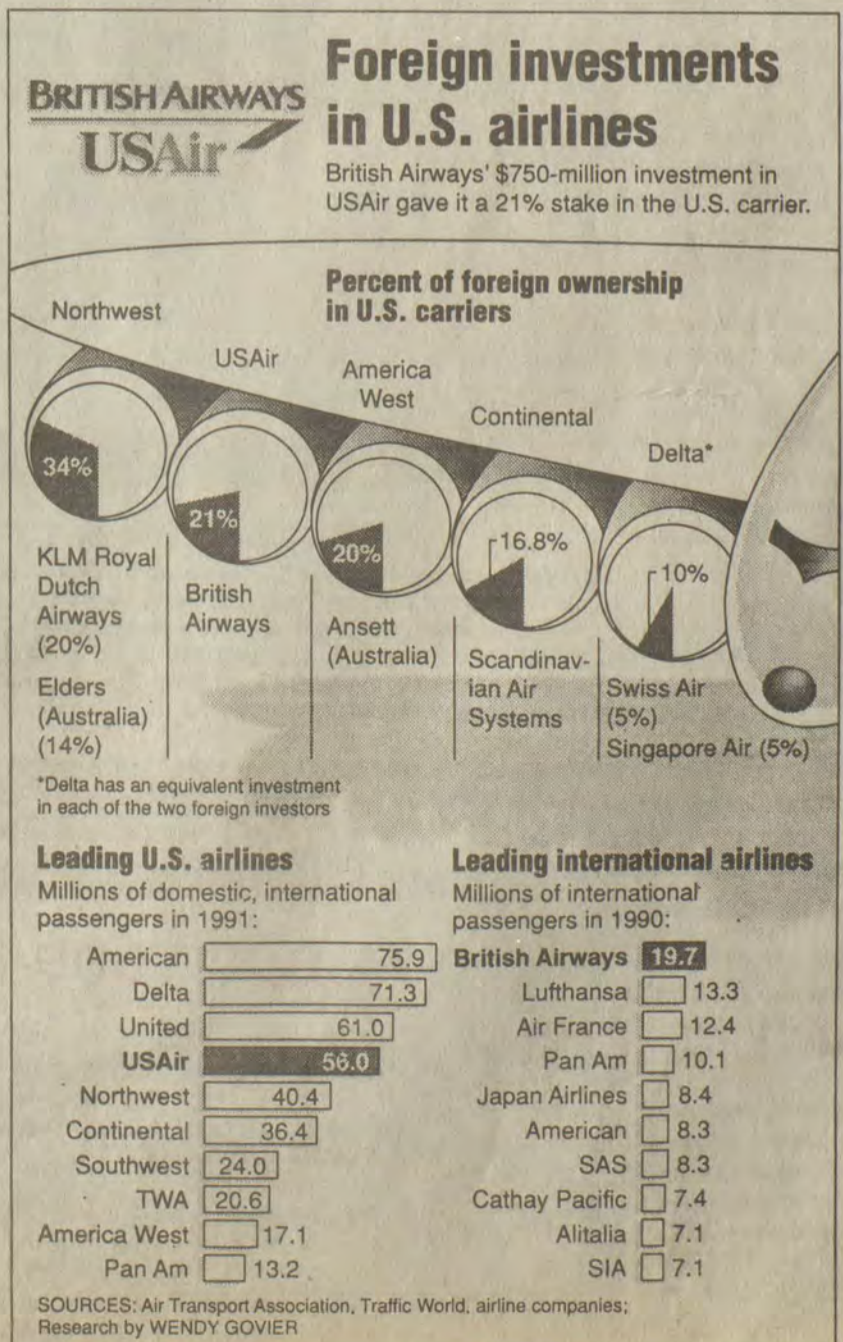

Dr. John C. Adler, former publisher of the East Kentucky Sun, has been named in a formal complaint filed by the state Medical Board of Licensure for excessive and inappropriate prescribing of medication and inadequate record-keeping.

The board of inquiry met on October 15, prompted by the January 4, 1992 death of Ella Rose Fletcher, whose mother, Mary Fletcher, was a patient of Adler's, charges that Adler over-prescribed medication to four patients and that he kept no medical records to justify the number of prescribed volumes of medication.

If the charges are substantiated, Adler faces numerous penalties ranging from the revocation of his medical license to possible criminal proceedings.

Adler, 71, closed his medical practice, sold the fledgling paper in June and moved to Tennessee amid charges of political persecution which he claimed was the result of expressing his political beliefs through his newspaper.

Issues on nutrition:

Food, health and development

October 16, was this year's World Food Day Teleconference and the accompanying panel discussions on the issues of Nutrition: food, health and development at the Prestonsburg Community College. The World Food Day is a Worldwide event designed to increase awareness, understanding and informed, year-round, long-term action on complex issues of food security for all.

Television programs sponsored by many private and public voluntary organizations often show us what it is like, to starve by many displaced peoples across the globe, especially in the Third World. According to the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) of the United Nations, nearly 40,000 people die of hunger and hunger related causes every day. Given the abundance of food and other resources in the world in general, it is hard to imagine why many people in both the developed and developing societies, would still die of hunger.

The World Food Day (WFD) teleconference attempts to create the awareness of hunger, a direct consequence of poverty. Through consensus seeking among governments of the world, the WFD further searches for solutions to hunger and its related diseases such as bulimia, Kwashiorkor, scurvy, anorexia, etc. In this year's panel discussion at both the Washington, D.C., and Prestonsburg Community College sites, experts examined the difference between malnutrition arising from undernutrition—found mostly in many Third World Countries—and that from overnutrition, commonly found in advanced societies of the world. In many advanced societies, the problem is that of determining when to quit over indulging in the different types of food and delicacies found. Most of the diseases such as heart disease, high blood pressure, and cancer, are food related.

The World Watch Institute concludes what is needed is more public education, and efficient distribution of food already in abundance, from where they are plentiful to areas of scarcity due to draught and famine. The advanced societies (DCs) have developed infrastructure necessary for efficient distribution and storage of food, but less developed societies (LDCs) will continue to rely on them for assistance in the future. A firm commitment from DCs to LDCs is what is required if the problem of world hunger and malnutrition is to be solved. In addition, many experts call for a more prudent exploitation of the world's non-renewable resources. For example, the United States is only about 5 percent of the world population but is said to consume more than 33 percent of its resources, and contributes to more than half of its pollution. However, an adequate redistribution of the resources from the rich to the poor countries, shall contribute to the reduction of poor nutrition and hunger in the Third World.

One might ask, how does all these concern us in the Big Sandy area. Issues about food and hunger are important in the Big Sandy area because many people in the area counties go hungry especially during the winter season when the demands for heating and electricity add to the tension on the overstretched dollars for food and medicine, especially for the elderly poor and single parent families with children. Also, recalling that the rate of poverty in the area has been on the increase since 1980, while job opportunities are scarce for the few well qualified to be gainfully employed, one should not be surprised that malnutrition may be prevalent in our communities. Hidden hunger most common among growing children needs to be given close attention, since the importance of adequate and balanced nutrition at the growing stages of children has been documented for many years. Adult hunger and hunger among the homeless were also addressed. Soup kitchens, such as the God's pantry, and others provided by many religious and voluntary organizations serve food at many locations for the homeless, and elderly throughout the United States. One of the experts stressed the health benefits of eating balanced food rather than "junk food" as is common in a time driven society as the United States.

Also, the world is becoming increasingly interdependent. For example, a major catastrophe in one region of the world immediately produces effects in other parts of the world. As pointed out by one of the panelists at Washington, D.C. a healthy population in the Third world means that they would increase their consumption of much of the goods produced in the First World. That of course translates into more jobs and opportunities here at home.

Participation from the community in events such as this is usually welcome. Although our panel discussion was well attended by students and faculty, we would like to see many community leaders and ordinary citizens in next year's World Food Day teleconference.

Early flu last year means flu shots advised now for Kentuckians

Because of an early flu season last year, health officials are advising Kentuckians to have flu shots now through November for the best chance of being protected during influenza season.

Flu shots are available through most local health departments and private physicians. Kentuckians should check with the health department in their county to find out when shots are available or call their doctor.

State Department for Health Services officials recommend that anyone with chronic heart or lung disease should have a flu shot. Those with chronic kidney disease or diabetes should be immunized, as should nursing home residents.

Anyone older than 65—regardless of their health status—and physicians, nurses and other health care professionals who have contact with high-risk patients should also have a flu shot, according to Clarkson Palmer, M.D., manager of the department's communicable diseases branch.

Although nearly anyone who wants to prevent the flu can get a shot, health officials recommend the shots particularly for high-risk groups because of the possibility of complications for elderly and chronically ill people.

"Elderly people and those with chronic diseases are more likely to suffer serious complications from a bout with the flu while most other people experience a three- to five-day illness," said Palmer.

"In fact, these complications, such as pneumonia, can even be life-threatening," he said. "People in high-risk groups need a flu shot every year."

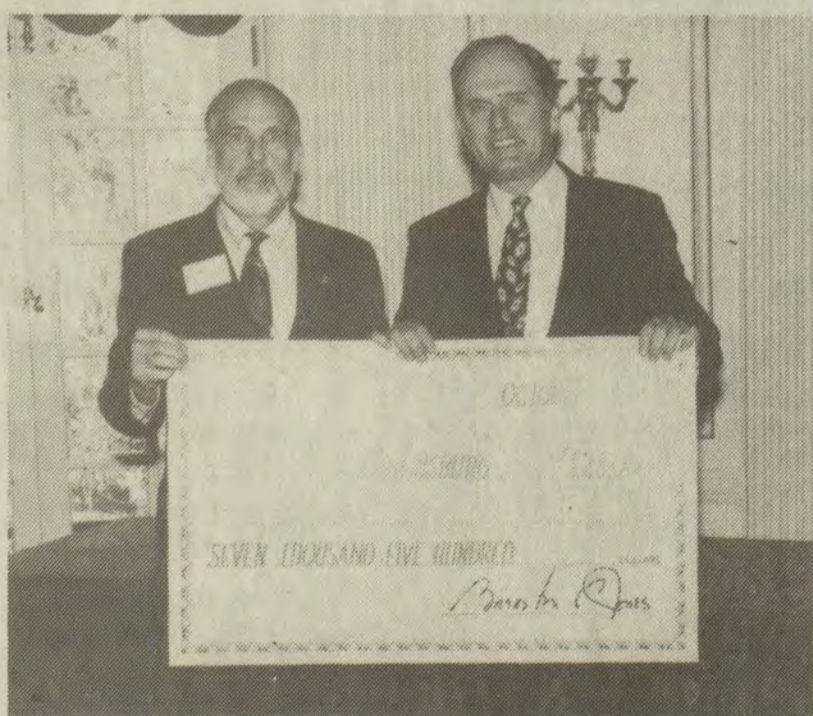

The shots can be given to most people, except those with a severe allergy to eggs. Those people who have a short-term illness with fever should put off getting the shot until they have recovered.

Pregnant women should consult with a doctor before receiving a shot.

People younger than 18 who have a flu-like illness should not take aspirin while sick because of the risk of Reye's Syndrome, Palmer said. Reye's Syndrome is a disease that affects the central nervous system and liver and is associated with the combination of flu and aspirin use in children and teen-agers. The syndrome is fatal in 10 to 40 percent of the cases.

Parents should contact their child's doctor for alternatives to aspirin use during flu-like illnesses.

During a press conference at the Governor's Mansion on Friday, October 23, Gov. Brereton Jones presented a check for $7,500 to representatives of the City of Prestonsburg. The grant was approved by the Appalachian Regional Commission at the request of Gov. Jones for continued support for the existing position of Main Street manager. Fall colors still alive

Colors are still very pretty and bright despite the fact that most areas are past-peak and many of the leaves have fallen and continue to fall. Even the leaves that are on the ground are quite colorful. The 1992 fall foliage season is rapidly coming to a close although there are some areas still showing peak conditions.

The southeastern portion of this region was slow to change this season and is still showing peak conditions. The Ashland area still has quite a bit of color but it isn't expected to last much longer.

Awareness is vital link in health care reform

To have sound health, one must take care of oneself. For Kentucky to achieve sound health care reform, a lot depends on getting Kentuckians to "take care" when taking care of themselves.

Woven throughout statewide public meetings as well as a plan to restructure Kentucky's health care access, delivery and payment systems is the necessity for people to take responsibility for a healthy lifestyle, including regular preventive medicine.

"For everyone to have access to health care, we have to control costs," said Gov. Brereton C. Jones. "To control costs, everyone has to play their part and that definitely includes our choices in how we take care of ourselves."

"The changes we've proposed for Kentucky's health care systems can't reach their fullest potential unless we also change how all of us use those systems."

The Governor's Commission on Health Care Reform is considering measures ranging from more consumer health education, especially in schools, to requiring that all insurance policies cover annual physicals and risk assessments.

Commission Chair and Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Leonard E. Heller said consumer awareness, acceptance and action are essential.

"Unneeded emergency room visits for bellyaches drive up costs. Treatable illnesses that aren't detected early often mean prolonged treatment and recovery and drive up costs. Poor diet, lack of exercise, smoking and drinking heavily can lead to heart disease, cancer and diabetes and drive up costs," Heller said.

"On the other hand, treatment prescribed by a physician who knows the patient can be done at home over the phone with the same results as a trip to the emergency room at much less cost," he said.

"Annual checkups and risk assessments can and do catch conditions such as breast cancer early when it is highly treatable."

"And the more we know about how we treat our bodies, especially in terms of what we put into them, the better our chances of avoiding the onset of long-term, costly and life-changing conditions such as diabetes, high blood pressure, cancer, heart disease and stroke," said Heller.

One area the plan proposes to use to heighten public awareness of preventive health care is through Kentucky's schools. The plan proposes that the Kentucky Education Reform act be amended to integrate comprehensive school health education into the curricula in grades kindergarten through 12.

"You've got to get 'em young' is more than just an old adage, particularly when you're talking about people's lifestyles," Heller said. "We have to do more in the educational process to help our children understand what they're doing to themselves if they aren't physically active or take up smoking."

"Women of child bearing age need to know the effects of alcohol and other drugs during pregnancy and how they may cause developmental delays and other medical difficulties for the child, not to mention the long-term costs to treat that child created by what the mother did when she was pregnant," he said.

The plan also supports increasing consumer health programs aimed at adults, emphasizing healthy lifestyle choices and passage of a statewide seat belt law, which experts say would reduce serious injury or death in many auto accidents.

Heller concluded that taking care of oneself goes beyond benefits to the individual. "How people live and the personal health choices they make have an impact on the job they do in terms of gained or lost productivity, and a healthy workforce can be a significant economic development tool for Kentucky."

Christmas parade to be nighttime event

Make no mistake about it, Pikeville's Christmas Parade is really on December 4 at 7 p.m.! The Pikeville Main Street Program's Promotion Committee is extremely excited about having the parade in the month of December and even more excited about having the parade at night.

This year, the promotion committee has worked diligently to develop activities at Christmas that will enhance family celebrations and create an exciting atmosphere in downtown.

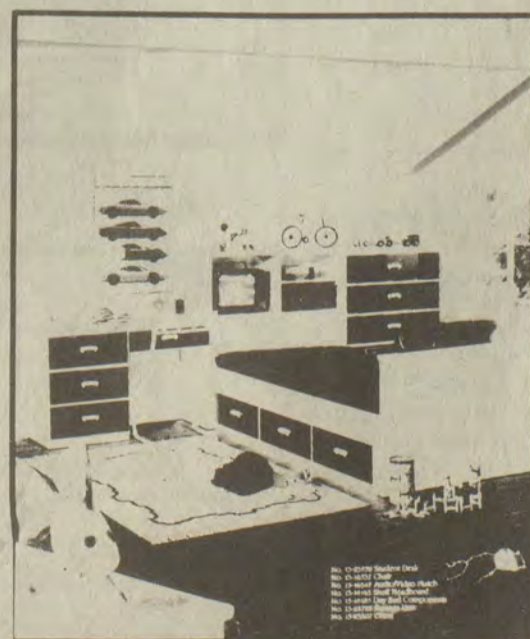

"The parade is a major portion of Main Street's activities for Christmas," executive director Myra Chico said. "We talked about having a night parade all year and the committee was so excited about the atmosphere that a night parade could create that they were determined to have this part of our Christmas celebration at night."

Keep kids safe on Halloween

Halloween is just a short time away and October 31 falls on a Saturday this year. Already, retail stores are displaying Halloween candy and costumes; school bulletin boards are decorated with pumpkin faces, witches and ghosts; and children have started to plan their costumes and how they can collect the most treats. Parents should begin their plans to keep kids safe on Halloween.

The Louisville and Jefferson County SAFE KIDS Coalition led by Kosair Children's Hospital offers these tips to take the fright out of Halloween night:

Falls are the leading cause of accidents on Halloween. Make sure the costume is short enough to avoid tripping. Choose costumes that have face paint or cosmetics that are applied directly to the face. Masks can obstruct a child's vision. If a mask is worn, cut the eye holes large enough to allow full vision and make certain it fits securely. Secure hats so that will not slip over children's eyes. Have children dress in their own shoes; mother's high heels are not safe for trick-or-treaters. Do not allow children to carry knives, swords or other props unless they are soft or flexible. Give trick-or-treaters flashlights so they can see and be seen more clearly. Warn children not to cut across yards where they can trip over lawn ornaments or other objects that become invisible in the dark. Tell them to stick to the sidewalks.

Pedestrian injuries are another serious problem on Halloween night. Costumed trick-or-treaters can be difficult to see on a dimly-lit street. Parents should brighten up costumes and place reflective tape on the front and back.

Motorists need to take precautions. Motorists driving on Halloween, including parents and baby-sitters who are chauffeuring kids around the neighborhood, can also take precautions that will make the holiday safer for trick-or-treaters. Drive slowly through residential areas and obey all traffic signs and signals. Watch for children walking in the street or on medians and curbs, and look for children who may dart out in the street from between parked cars. Enter and exit driveways and alleys carefully. Make sure your headlights are clean and working properly. Be sure to discharge any passengers on the curb side of the street, away from traffic.

Parents should plan and supervise the distribution of treats. Children should bring their treats home before eating them. Parents should check treats to ensure that items are safely sealed and have not been tampered with. Be careful with fruit—cut it open before allowing a child to eat it.

Trick-or-treating should be limited to familiar areas. Instruct children to trick-or-treat only in familiar areas and along a pre-established route. Establish a time for them to return home. Young children should be accompanied by parents or other responsible adults who keep them in sight at all times.

Sarah Helmantoler

Open house planned for Miss Helmantoler

She founded Sunday Schools at the Johnson Fork of Middle Creek in the Risner vicinity. She founded Sunday Schools at the Johnson Fork and Alum Lick schools. MDA offers free flu shots to those it serves

The Muscular Dystrophy Association will again offer free flu shots nationwide to people who have any of the 40 neuromuscular diseases in its program, Central Kentucky Chapter President June Hess has announced. MDA has provided the shots each year for more than 20 years, she added.

The Association will pay for flu shots for all those it serves, whether inoculations are administered by personal physicians or by physicians at one of MDA's 235 hospital-affiliated clinics. In Lexington and Central KY, the MDA Clinic is located at the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center.

Hess said, "It's important to our patients to be protected. Adults as well as children with neuromuscular diseases can be at risk of serious illness if infected by highly contagious flu viruses."

Throughout the United States and Puerto Rico, MDA provides people affected by neuromuscular diseases with services and quality health care ranging from diagnosis to physical and occupational therapy consultations to equipment such as walkers, braces, wheelchairs and hospital beds — all at no direct charge.

MDA is a national voluntary health agency working to defeat 40 neuromuscular disease through programs of worldwide research, comprehensive patient and community services, and far-reaching professional and public health education. The Association's programs are funded almost entirely by individual private contributors. In December 1991, Money magazine listed MDA as "one of the 10 best-managed large U.S. charities."

To The Voters of District 5:

For many years all of us—parents, citizens, and members of the business community—have given up our responsibility in supporting and running our schools. We have turned over the education of our children to policymakers without demanding any sort of accountability for the policies they made, for the money they spent, for the personnel they hired, for the buildings they built or did not build. We didn't ask how the policies would benefit our children. We didn't ask whether or not the money spent would benefit our children. We didn't ask whether the best qualified people were hired as teachers, support staff, and administrators. We didn't ask whether the buildings that were constructed were located where they were most needed. No longer can we afford to give up these kinds of responsibilities. Elect me, PHYLLIS BURNETT HONSHELL, as board member in District 5, and together, let's reclaim the ownership of our schools.

Fall forest fire season:

A catastrophe in the making

The colorful fall leaves Floyd Countians have enjoyed in recent weeks, coupled with below normal rainfall, could create a catastrophic fire season this fall.

"Fallen leaves are the biggest problem because they are very dry and loose, providing added fuel for forest fires," said Doug McLaren, extension forest management specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "Sixty to eighty percent of the leaves already are on the ground."

The abundance of burnable material is just part of the problem. Recent weather conditions compound the potential for a catastrophic fire season.

"October is normally the driest month of the year," said Tom Priddy, extension meteorologist. "This October was drier than normal. We normally get two to two and a half inches of precipitation. This year, we had only about one half inch."

"People shouldn't have any fires near or in the forest this time of year," McLaren added. "Our forests are vulnerable because there is so much leaf litter that will burn. The potential for fires is extremely high."

"State law prohibits burning before 4:30 p.m. during the fall forest fire season. Anyone found guilty of igniting a fire, whether by accident or mistake, is responsible for all of the costs to suppress the fire."

One bright spot is that the long-range weather outlook is for above normal precipitation in November, according to Priddy. "Rainfall normally picks up when we move into November and December," he said.

However, the extension specialists cautioned that rainfall often lulls people into a false sense of security about the potential for forest fires.

"Even after a rainfall, all it takes is for the leaf litter to dry out and we're back in the same dangerous situation," McLaren said. "We're sitting on a time bomb, especially if it doesn't rain."

"The bottom line is don't burn; the fire season will be over in mid-December," he said.

Forest fires burn Kentucky economy

Forest fires cause damage that is not always visible, but has an immense impact on the economy.

"Most people don't realize that although a fire doesn't destroy trees, it does damage them," said Doug McLaren, forest management specialist with UK. "This damage creates entrances for diseases and insects and reduces timber quality. The more forest fires we have, the more low quality trees must be removed. And this depresses the timber market."

McLaren gave the following data on Kentucky's forest industry.

- Over half of Kentucky is forested, with some 12 million acres in timber.
 - Kentucky ranks fourth nationally in hardwood production.
 - 105 out of 120 counties have some type of wood industry.
 - 26,000 people are employed in the wood industry, with an annual payroll of $330 million.
 - Timber shipments have a value of $1 billion annually.
 - The value of timber sales to landowners is $160 million a year.
- "It would be higher if fires didn't damage timber quality," he said.

National PTA shares holiday safety tips with parents

During the holiday season families look forward to a delightful and magical time of year. However, during this joyous period, the National PTA reminds parents to be mindful of and steer clear of holiday hazards.

The PTA is celebrating its seventh annual Child Safety and Protection Month during November. This pre-holiday observance provides a good reminder to keep children and youth safe not only during this time, but throughout the year.

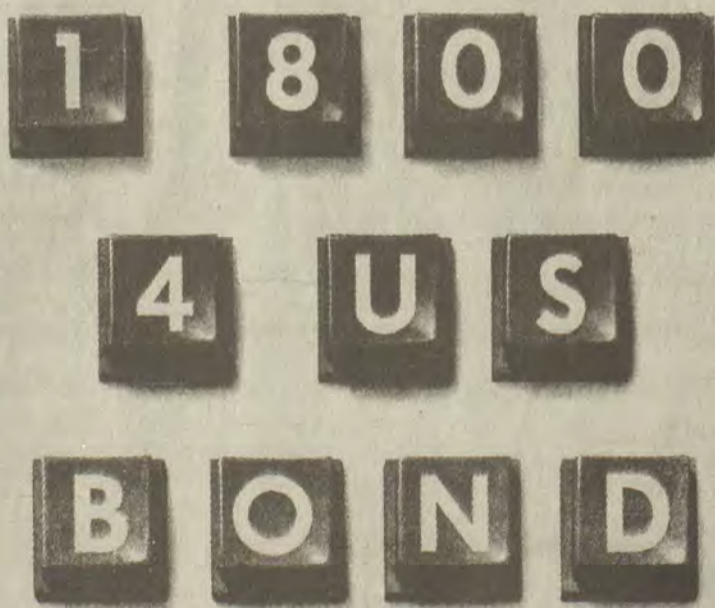

One of the greatest dangers of the holiday is increased drinking. According to the National Safety Council, drinking is a factor in at least half of all fatal traffic accidents. The PTA strongly reminds everyone not to drink and drive. For those adults who insist on drinking, arrange a ride with a non-drinker or call a taxi.

Parents should especially caution teens about the dangers of drinking and driving or riding with someone who has been drinking. This is a good time to discuss peer pressure. You can help your teens resist situations they may feel pressured about. Use this time to set firm limits for your teen. Clearly explain your standards about alcohol and drugs and the rules you expect your teens to follow. You can set a good example by avoiding drinking not only during the holiday, but throughout the year.

The PTA hopes that everyone will use these ideas for a safer holiday driving season. Taking a few precautions today and throughout the year may help prevent an accident that could have been avoided.

Founded in 1897, the National PTA is the country's largest child advocacy volunteer group seeking to unite home, school and community to promote the education, health and welfare of our children, youth and families.

Book Reviews

(Books reviewed are on display at the Floyd County Library.)

Abraham Lincoln stood out in a crowd as much for his wit and rollicking humor as for his height. Here is a warm, appealing biography of our Civil War president, illustrated with dozens of carefully chosen photographs and prints.

Russell Freedman begins with a lively account of Abraham Lincoln's boyhood, his career as a country lawyer, and his courtship and marriage to Mary Todd. Then the author focuses on the presidential years (1861 to 1865), skillfully explaining the many complex issues Lincoln grappled with as he led a deeply divided nation through the Civil War. The book's final chapter is a moving account of that tragic evening in Ford's Theatre on April 14, 1865.

Lincoln: A Photobiography concludes with a sampling of Lincoln writings and a detailed list of Lincoln historical sites.

This book is a John Newberry medal winner. This is an interesting book on Lincoln.

 "I don't like the dark," said Little Bear.
 "What dark?" said Big Bear.
 "The dark all around us," said Little Bear.
 In this tender account of a sleepless night in the Bear-Cave, Big Bear sets out with all his patience and understanding to put an end to Little Bear's bedtime fears. Bringing first a teeny-weeny lantern, then a bigger one, and finally the Biggest Lantern of Them All, Big Bear attempts to show Little Bear that the dark is nothing to be afraid of. When all the lanterns in the cave aren't enough to quell Little Bear's troubled emotions, Big Bear offers—in a final loving gesture—nothing less than the bright yellow moon and the twinkly stars!

More comforting and reassuring than a familiar lullaby, this bedtime story has been called "the most perfect children's book ever written or illustrated" by the Sunday Times of London.

This is a book for every parent to read to children who don't want to sleep.

Floyd County schools receive double donation

School system and community cooperation were evident recently when the Floyd County School District received a double donation from Consolidation Coal Company of Kentucky. A monetary donation was received by Gary Frazier, assistant superintendent for instruction from Dan French, supervisor for Human Resources of Consolidation Coal.

The second donation was a sponsorship of videos produced by Science Screen Report in cooperation with the National Council of Teachers of Science and Math in which Consolidation Coal Company will pay for the reproduction of the videos. The first video of the year was presented by Rebecca Berkey, manager of Public Relations of Consolidation Coal Company to Cosetta Newsome, coordinator of Science and Math for the Floyd County School District. Each school will receive videos throughout the school year concerning math and science topics, grades 7-12.

A B C S OF EDUCATION

by Jennifer Little

Parents can make many changes in their children's lives. They can affect the child in many ways that they may not be aware of. For example, can you recall all the small things that your parents did to or for you? Probably not, yet you knew they meant well or tried or even cared for you. It is not so much what you do, it is more that you are trying.

When we try, we make an effort. We are conscious of what we have "usually" done and of what we are desiring to do. An example is when we try to quit smoking or lose weight. We become very conscious of smoke, matches, ash trays, certain people who smoke, where people smoke, the scents lingering in the air from other smokers, etc. We become conscious of every food-related sign, every restaurant, the rustling of candy wrappers, the smells of people's meals cooking in the homes we walk or drive by, the habitual urges from situations usually triggering our desires for chocolate, ice cream or other goodies.

Just as we must change our behaviors and attitudes toward our health, so we must change our attitudes toward our children. I was recently told by a fireman in Lexington that we punish our children for being children. It is true, for many times we expect that they will "behave" just because they are with us.

Often a child does not "see" what the adult sees. The child sees all the wonderful toys he or she could play with in a store. The adult sees the high prices and the "too-muchness" of the stores. Children will cry out of frustration, anger, hunger or pain. We may only hear impatience and temper tantrum behavior. We do not hear, see or understand their view of the world.

Children have a unique way of approaching life. They see the wonder in everything around us. They do not see the limitations that we adults have come to expect and/or understand exist in the world. They see excitement and joy in trying something new and different, even if it does mean they may skin their knee or tear the new dress in the process. Children can remind us of the joys of being alive.

How often we resort to paying money for experiences which would bring us as much joy as a simple activity like a picnic, or candlelight dinner or a different tie/scarf with our shirt/blouse. How frequently we fall into habits of routine rather than thinking of how we came to fall into that pattern. An example is the route you may choose to drive from point A to point B. Is it because it is the fastest? the shortest? the most enjoyable drive? the best road? the only known route?

What can you think of in your life that you do by habit or routine? Is one of those things the attention you give your child or children? When I was a child, my father was gone six days a week, and I cherished the few moments he took to hold me, talk about silly things like leaves or bugs or even my adventure on my tricycle. Later, when he was gone months at a time, it was a treat to see him and have him help me with my homework. It did not matter what we did, only that I was able to spend some time with him.

The goal for both the teacher and the parent is for the child to enjoy growing up, learning new things, trying new adventures in his or her life. To give the child a model of success, we must also try new things in life. A classroom using the same materials and lecture as thirty years ago will not work today.

A parent may use the same logic or actions his or her parents used. Do you want your child to be raised the way you were? I have yet to meet a parent who says, "Yes." In that case, how did you want to be raised? Do what you wanted or needed. You may be surprised at how well your child (and you!) respond to the new ways of doing things.

THE UPS AND DOWNS OF PHONE CALLS

The telephone is a wonderful tool for communication and should be used in a serious manner. However, there are times when the telephone is a source of unexpected humor and at other times a source of irritation.

I got this call from a lady and the first thing she asked was, "Are you wily?"

I chuckled under my breath and then said, "I'm getting a little old for this kind of thing, but in my time I suppose you could say I was a fox." I went on, "Anyway, Linda frowns on my being foxy unless it is with her."

She continued, "Oh, I didn't mean that. I wanted to know if you were Wily Elliott." I told her that I was not Wily Elliott. She then wanted to know if I was related to Wily. I told her Wily was from that bunch of Elliott's that had money, but all my bunch ever got was phone calls. Wily, I want to meet you. You have a number of people who want to get in touch with you, and they call either late (after eleven p.m.) or early (before seven a.m.).

Another use of the telephone is making sales. One such organization uses the telephone to sell light bulbs for the handicapped. The first year this group called I agreed to buy some bulbs for a good cause. The bulbs are supposed to last twenty years. When I heard that the bulbs lasted twenty years, I thought to myself that this outfit was going to run out of customers very quickly. Not so. They called back the next year. I tried to explain to them that we had not used up our other twenty-year light bulbs. They still asked that I take another order. This went on for three years. Finally, I told the lady that we had enough light bulbs to last us through the middle of the twenty-first century. They still call.

There is one group that is easy to get off the line. I refer to this group that wants to install new windows in houses. I let them get up to the point where they ask what kind of windows I have. I tell them, "Andersen windows." The caller then curtly replies, "Thank you for your time." I wish there was such a formula for other callers who take up time.

Then there are the prank calls. There was a period of time when someone called and just held the phone. No talking at all. One can look and sound rather silly going, "Hello, Hello, Hello...." I decided to see what fun there could be in such an activity. I called a number at random. I chose a number in Prestonsburg so it would be relatively far from McDowell. I dialed 886-9311. Some guy at a bank wanted me to bank there and then started blubbing about the weather. I figured he was in worse condition than I was so I hung up. I tried another number. I just held the phone (and I still don't see the fun in it), but the person on the other end gave a talk that would blister the paint on the wall.

I really don't worry too much about the problems listed above. You see Ryan is getting ready to enter that age where he can occupy the phone sixty percent of his non-sleeping hours. I refer to those maddening teenage years. I figure these people will have a hard time getting through and when they do, Ryan will shoo them off the line in no time flat. Who said teenagers were good for nothing? May you have pleasant calls.

Local students learn about blood basics

From children and adults—to doctors and patients—safe, available human blood is a critical component of human health. This informative edition of Science Screen Report, titled "Human Blood," explores this important, life-giving fluid from new perspectives.

Available for viewing in several junior and senior high schools in Floyd County this October, "Human Blood" begins with a dazzling presentation of blood basics. Student or not, if you've ever wondered what that red stuff floating around inside us really is, "Human Blood" has the answers. Red and white cells, platelets, and major components of the human circulatory system are all reviewed. Using microscopic and computer animated imagery, topics such as blood flow, virus and bacteria defense, and basic functions of the human heart are presented in vivid detail.

"Human Blood" visits chemical, cellular and genetic researchers as they work to find better treatments and cures for major blood diseases such as hemophilia and leukemia. New treatments and surgical techniques used to battle high blood pressure, heart disease, and hardened arteries are also detailed. The program concludes with a fascinating look inside laboratories at the United States Office of Naval Research, where a new synthetic blood substitute, called liposome encapsulated hemoglobin, is now under development.

What is that red stuff inside us? What are your twenty-five trillion blood cells really up to? Do age, diet and heredity make us more susceptible to blood disorders? Students in Floyd County are seeing for themselves.

SCIENCE SCREEN REPORT, an educational video series produced in cooperation with the National Science Teachers Association, presents the most recent developments in science, technology and engineering. This award winning program is donated each month by SCIENCE SCREEN REPORT as a community service to schools in Floyd County.

Must be Halloween night

by Tom DeRossett, Jr.
No one was in the house but me,
A scary show was on the TV.
Loud screams came from outside,
Lord, sure must be Halloween night!

I took a peek out the door window
There at the gate was a white glow,
Couldn't see much in the shallow light;
Lord, sure must be Halloween night!

Went to the phone to call next door,
That old phone was dead for sure.
On and off went the hallway light;
Lord, sure must be Halloween night!

That doorbell just rang and rang,
Then old shutters went bang, slap, bang.
Outside, October wind blew just a mite!
Lord, sure must be Halloween night!

I keep hearing someone say "wake up!" "Wake up!"
Well, if that don't beat all the luck!
Dream up a pretty good fright!
But, you know, tomorrow's Halloween night!

THE TIMES' WEEKEND

Prime Country band wins country music showdown

The Tennessee/Kentucky combined-states title in the True Value Hardware/GMC Truck Country Showdown has gone to Prime Country, a five-member band based in Prestonsburg. The group bested ten other competitors in a contest held Saturday, October 24, at the Fall Color Cruise and Folk Festival in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

Representing radio station WSIP in Paintsville, Prime Country band members Barry Potter, James Hall, Greg Garrett, Bob Wootton and Vernon Lewis won the balloting with performances of "Don't Think I Still Love You" and "One Track Heart," both original tunes.

Earning $1,000 in prize money, Prime Country will now advance to the north-central regional competition to be held November 22 at the Star Plaza Theater in Merrillville, Indiana.

A win in Merrillville will take Prime Country to the televised national final set for January 9, 1993, at the spectacular new Grand Palace theater in Branson, Missouri. Country superstar Kenny Rogers will host the star-studded show and award the Grand Prize of $50,000, a 1993 Yukon from GMC Truck and a recording contract.

The world's largest country music talent contest and radio promotion, the Showdown is featuring over 1,000 live events in 1992, reaching over 4 million country music fans. Beginning in March and continuing through late summer, thousands of aspiring artists will showcase their talent in hometown Showdowns produced by over 400 country music radio stations nationwide. Local winners such as Prime Country compete in dozens of state level contests, many of which feature concerts by leading stars of country music.

Competing alongside Prime Country in the Tennessee/Kentucky final were Denim & Lace, representing radio station WZKS in Louisville; Speed Limit, (WSMT, Sparta, TN); Zaffire (WUSJ, Johnson City, TN); Eddie Hendrix (WNGO/WXID, Mayfield); Tina Martini (WEKG/WJSN, Jackson); Kevin Neal (WOFM/AM/FM, Rockwood TN); R.P. Stowers (WDOD, Chattanooga, TN); and Greg Strode (WGRK, Greensburg).

Prime Country

After winning the combined-states title in a country showdown, Prime Country will compete in north-central regional competition. The group has been performing together for the last three years. About two years ago they vied for the combined-states title but lost.

Smile Awhile

RESPONSIBILITY AND THE OLD WOMAN

The last meaningful conversation between my son and me took place three years ago. That record held until this past Saturday night.

In what seemed to be a warm-up to a boxing match, my son attempted to match wits with his mother concerning what he should be allowed to do as a 15-year-old.

The whole argument boiled down to the fact that I should give him more responsibility. After all, he was 15! Seven months shy of driving age. Nineteen months shy of being able to vote and register for the draft (the latter is a sickening thought). And as I understand it, I was putting a damper on his right to be a teenager.

Since my mother was an innocent bystander to our loud discussion, she calmly assured me that my son was old enough to know right from wrong, and if we hadn't taught him any values before now it was too late anyway. She also expressed her belief that I should let my son make his own decisions on occasion.

This was not one of them. But what bothered me the most was my son's insistence that he be given responsibility. Let me explain my reluctance:

THINGS I'VE BEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR BUT FORGOT

1. My son has had three sets of retainers since his braces were removed. Two sets have been purchased in the last two months.

2. Since school started, my son has lost a pair of sweat pants and a shirt.

3. Last Saturday night, my son forgot his tickets to the dance at home.

4. My son did not know what he was going to wear to the dance even after I asked him two weeks prior to the event. (He said he'd let me know. He did. The same day 30 minutes before time to leave.)

5. My son played football even though he has to limp to walk because of shin splints.

6. My son made a less than adequate grade in one of his classes because he didn't think he was doing bad enough to do extra credit work even after the teacher suggested it.

At this point, you are probably saying, "What's her problem? He's no different than most teenagers." And you'd be right, but why does he think he's responsible?

Okay. He makes his bed and cleans his room without being told, but that's because he likes to keep his territory nice since he never comes out unless he has to. I've been told that's a plus in some homes. He also bathes daily without being told and gets out of bed as soon as he's roused. That's great, too, and I'm proud of him. But does this constitute responsibility?

Intrigued by being given responsibility, I asked my son what new responsibilities did he want? He said, "I want to make my own decisions."

"For instance?" I asked.

"I don't know."

"I'll give you a responsibility son," my husband intoned. "You sweep the garage out every weekend, or you don't go anyplace."

You can now add this to my son's list of "Things I've Been Responsible For But Forgot".

Teenagers really do have it rough.

Truth, Justice and the American Way

by Geoff Belcher, staff writer

Nowhere are prejudices more mistaken for truth, passion for reason, and invective for documentation than in politics. That is a realm, peopled only by villains or heroes, in which everything is black or white and grey is a forbidden color.

-John Mason Brown, Through These Men

Political skill is the ability to foretell what is going to happen tomorrow, next week, next month, and next year. And to have the ability afterwards to explain why it didn't happen.

-Sir Winston Churchill, "Politics," The Churchill Wit

Successful... politicians are insecure and intimidated men. They advance politically only as they placate, appease, bribe, seduce, bamboozle, or otherwise manage to manipulate the demanding and threatening elements in their constituencies.

-Walter Lippmann, The Public Philosophy

I suppose you're wondering why I've gathered you all together like this.

Well, the answer is simple. THERE ARE ONLY FOUR SHOPPING DAYS LEFT BEFORE THE ELECTION!!!

And let me just tell ya, kids, you better be dang fine consumers on this one. 'Cause to tell ya the truth, I'm really gettin' tired of bargain basement politics.

Now for those of you who have just landed on this planet or who have just been released and/or escaped from one of this state's fine mental institutions and are unfamiliar with the current political landscape, let me just run down the candidates that you, the thrifty shopper, will have to choose from next Tuesday.

1) George Bush, the incumbent Republican presidential candidate, who has been in the White House for the last twelve years and is now campaigning on the premise that if you really want change, you should vote for him.

Past accomplishments:
• became a self-made millionaire after his daddy gave him several million dollars;

• served for several years as the director of the Central Intelligence Agency (a contradiction in terms if ever there was one), the government branch that conducts undercover spy operations; covertly funds South American and Middle Eastern dictators, who either quickly disappear, are assassinated or take over neighboring countries; and that says Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone even though he fired only three bullets and J.F.K. and his body guard ended up hole-ier than the pope (but hey, who do you trust?);

• spent eight years as vice-president of the United States under Ronald Reagan but has absolutely no clue how any of them there pesky arms-for-hostages deals or savings & loans failures happened (but to his credit resisted the temptation for eight long years to just run up behind ol' Ronny and yell "Boo!" which would have made him the boss a lot earlier);

• has been president of the United States for about four years, during which time he single-handedly brought about the demise of Communism (suuuuuure); turned this country's economy around (and around and around); hired Jethro Clampett's dumber brother as his second-in-command; left Saddam Hussein with a job and millions of Americans without one; and puked on the prime minister of an economic super-power.

Most Quotable Quotes: "Read my lips, ""I will never, ever, never, not in a bazillion years ever not never raise taxes again! Maybe," and "Millie, get off my leg!"

2) Bill Clinton, governor of Arkansas, who claims he will be as great a president as he is a governor, which must mean that he will spend the last year of his term looking for another

Past Accomplishments:

• pulled himself out of the depths of poverty to become one of the most influential and recognizable politicians in the country even though he had an abusive father, a convicted drug-dealing brother and a mother that nicknamed him "Elvis";

• was educated at Oxford, where he even taught his own subject, entitled "How To Really Stick It To The Running Dog Imperialist War-Mongering Americans And Still Maintain Your Political Viability;

• didn't inhale;

Dear Abby

Widow looking for good man doesn't know where to begin

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, just turned 50. I am in good health and love to travel. I was married for 29 years to the most ideal man in the world. I honestly feel that there is no man on Earth as perfect as my late husband. We have two grown children.

Donald and I were very compatible, loving and affectionate until the end. I miss his companionship. We were each other's best friend. He was always telling me how happy I made him. We had a perfect marriage.

Abby, I would like to meet someone who will appreciate me and love me. I know that good men are hard to find, and I could make some man very happy.

Where do I start looking? And, is it true that people who have had good marriages are the ones who get married sooner?

LAURA (NOT MY REAL NAME)

DEAR LAURA: Yes, it's true. You "start looking" by looking your best and letting your friends know that you would be interested in meeting a gentleman who is good company, and that you would like to get back into circulation. Traditionally, people meet nice people through the generosity of their friends. (And, I'm sure there is a special place in heaven for the matchmaking angel who is constantly "fixing up" dates for singles.)

Get out of the house and get involved in the community. Get a job, go back to school, enroll in some adult education classes, learn to paint or sew, or volunteer your services. Work with your church, the Red Cross, your political party, the underprivileged, the disabled, the mental health society—the list is endless. They need volunteers—that's where worthwhile people meet other worthwhile people.

And now, may I offer you a little unsolicited advice? Should you meet a gentleman whom you find attractive, the less said about your husband, the better.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, you had a letter about a couple who were soon to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. Their children requested that, in lieu of gifts, their friends write a brief letter recalling a memory they had shared with their parents.

My parents will soon be married 50 years, and I would like to do something similar for their anniversary. Unfortunately, I misplaced the article. Would you please run it again? I'm sure other readers would appreciate it, too.

M.M. IN EVANSVILLE, IND.
DEAR M.M.: Here it is:

"The children of Iver and Helen Dahl invite you to celebrate with them the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents. A reception will be held May 7, at 2 p.m., at the Elmhurst Country Club.

"We request your help in compiling a book that recalls memories from our parents' first 50 years of marriage. On the enclosed sheet, we ask that you write one memory or experience that you have shared with them and return it to us by April 26. We believe that the loving memories they have shared with you, their friends, would be the most treasured gift they could receive; therefore, we request that no other gift be sent."

Want your phone to ring? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular" for people of all ages. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Postage is included.

Mort, who had begun to catch on to Alex's lessons on how to "become" Carlo, saved Renee from eating arsenic-laced pastries. Cain told Blair he knew, through Addie, that she wasn't really pregnant. Wait To See: Marcus may be more dangerous than Luna expected, and Blair is determined to protect her status as Asa's wife.

SANTA BARBARA: Kelly took B.J. to an incest survivor's meeting. B.J. had a flashing memory: it was Frank who shot her. At the resort, C.C. told Ted about the discovery of the ancient village, and the artifact that would prove it. Meanwhile, Angela bought an antique to fool Ted, and had Rafe fly it to the island. To Minx's horror, her tarot cards showed love for Gina and Lionel. In spite of the photo showing him kissing Jodie, Micah reassured Carla she was the only woman in his life. Wait To See: Despite Connor's assurances, Kelly begins to suspect Ken of being less than honest about his motives.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Victor confronted Nikki about their change of plans and told her he was sure she was pregnant. After trying to deny it, Nikki finally admitted it was true, insisting Jack had a right to have a child of his own. Meanwhile, to Jack's surprise, Dr. Noah gave him the news: Nikki was three months pregnant. Hilary accused Cricket of forcing Michael out of the firm. Scott and Lauren were remarried. Despite Ashley's insistence that she and Brad were never more than friends, Traci accused her of breaking up her marriage. Wait To See: Nikki ponders Jack's reaction to news about the baby, while Nina seems to get mixed signals from Ryan.

Trail of Tears Marks Indians' Passing

For centuries Indians journeyed across Kentucky literally and figuratively leaving their mark on the state. Indian trails crisscross the state, including the famous path that Cherokee Indians traveled on their journey west to Oklahoma: the Trail of Tears.

At least one-third of the Cherokee Nation died on the march, a result of a treaty renegade Cherokees signed, ceding all lands of the Cherokee Nation (in Georgia) to the United States in exchange for new lands in the west.

Henry Clay spoke in favor of the Cherokees, who appealed to the Supreme Court, but the efforts were to no avail in a country bound to move the "Red Savage" out of civilization's way. In 1838 the Cherokees were forced to leave their property in Georgia and were rounded up into stockades before the trek began.

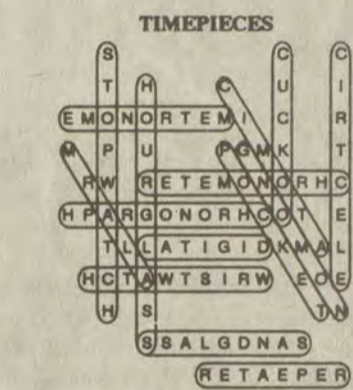

The United States military ushered Indians on land and water routes through Kentucky. Hopkinsville, located in Christian County, was a major stopping point for thousands of Cherokees. Two highly respected chiefs, Whitepath and Fly Smith, died with many other Indians and are buried on the banks of Little River there.

In Livingston County, many Indians sought shelter under Mantle Rock, a 40-foot sandstone arch beside the icy Ohio River.

Today, Hopkinsville honors the Cherokees with Trail of Tears Commemorative Park. The park is located on a portion of the Indian campground, and includes the graves of Chiefs Whitepath and Fly Smith, sculptures of the chiefs, a log cabin museum, and a plaque showing the route of the Trail.

Each September the Trail of Tears Commission, Inc., sponsors the Trail of Tears Pow Wow, featuring competition dance events, traditional craftsmen, storytelling, and Indian food.

For information, write to P.O. Box 4027, Hopkinsville, Kentucky, 42241, 502/886-8033.

Truth, Justice

• married an intelligent, talented, independently-wealthy wife, cheated on her with a Penthouse centerfold for 12 years and didn't end up neutered or in an asylum;

• became governor of the poorest state in the nation and twelve years later had catapulted it to the lofty position of second-poorest;

• firmly established himself as a man who will take a definite stand on an issue, both sides of it if necessary;

• earned the nomination as Democratic candidate for the office of president of the United States, beating out such tough competitors as Paul "Fishface" Tsongas, Bob "Who?" Kerrey and Jerry "Shirley MacLaine Is My Guru" Brown.

Most Quotable Quotes: "It's time for a change," "Hey, dude, don't bogart that joint," and "Don't worry, my wife won't be home for hours."

3) Ross Perot, independent candidate, one of the richest men in the world, who only joined the race after the American people, at least two of them, asked him too.

Past Accomplishments:

• served honorably in the United States Navy, but allegedly resigned his commission because he was shocked to learn that sailors cuss;

• took a small, failing computer company and single-handedly turned it into a multi-billion dollar business, in the process revolutionizing the entire industry (hey, even I can't knock that one);

• allegedly dropped out of the presidential race so the Republicans wouldn't sell fake incriminating photos of his daughter to the National Enquirer (which shows what he knows; if the people at the Enquirer want incriminating photos, they'll fake 'em themselves);

• dropped back into the race because those two people said they still wanted him (he knows for sure, 'cause he's got it on tape);

• discovered that there was a covert plot by the Republicans, the Black Panthers, General Motors, Walt Disney (who even though he died, was frozen, then thawed out and cured but is living in complete secrecy in the Kremlin, which looks sort of like the Enchanted Castle—ya see the connection?), Elvis Presley (who faked his death entirely so he could work undercover for the CIA) and Adolph Hitler (who really did die, but was reincarnated as a small Jewish woman who bears a striking resemblance to Dr. Ruth) to sneak up behind him and make his ears start flapping, so that he takes off like a Pershing missile and lands on the moon, where he will no longer be a threat to the likes of George Bush and his conspirators.

Most Quotable Quotes: "I want to buy the presidency and give it back to the American people," "I quit," and "Stop touching me!!!"

4) Geoff Belcher, write-in candidate, protector of the universe and the last bastion of morality and decency in these United States, who has vowed to correct every single problem in the world by declaring martial law and setting himself up as dictator, the only truly successful type of ruler.

Past Accomplishments:

• graduated high school and college without having a nervous breakdown;

• some office/clerical work and a brief span in the construction industry before falling in a hole like a big goon and splintering his ankle into a million pieces, thus forcing him to hunt for other work;

• once opened a child-proof cap without the aid of a child or chainsaw;

Most Quotable Quotes: "I want my dog back," "Don't call me that," and "Get out of my way before I club you like a baby seal."

So there you have it. These are your choices.

Personally, I like number 4.

So get out and vote and have a safe and happy Halloween.

And stay away from my house with them rotten eggs!

"Some date! I found out a guy doesn't have to be religious to believe in the laying on of hands."

DOCTOR AGREES WITH TEEN WRITER ON AIDS

TALKBACK FROM JEFFREY D. SNEDEKER, M.D., DUKE UNIVERSITY MEDICAL CENTER: I am a pediatrician and a specialist in infectious diseases of children. I'm writing (about your response) to Michael, 16, in Paducah, Ky., who expressed reservations about condom use because of their failure rate and the lack of a cure for HIV infection. Your comments about condom failure, teen pregnancy and abortions are accurate and appropriate. However, I must take exception to the comments (quoted) about prevention of viral infection.

While it is true that smallpox virus has been eliminated worldwide, it is the only human virus for which this is the case, and it is highly unlikely that any other human viral infection will be eradicated for many years to come, if ever, for a variety of reasons that are beyond the scope of this letter.

Michael's concern about the difficulty in dealing with viral infections either through treatment or prevention is very well-founded, and this certainly applies to HIV in spades.

In the specific case of HIV, there are many reasons to believe that a successful vaccine may NEVER be possible; even the most optimistic in the scientific community believe that a truly effective vaccine is decades away at best. I agree completely with Michael; don't hold your breath waiting for EITHER a cure or a vaccine for HIV.

PAT AND DAVID: Thank you for writing and for sharing your expertise with our readers.

FROM HOLLY AND TONYA IN FLINT, MICH.: The 16-year-old from Kentucky (is) proof that there is awareness among teenagers. Because AIDS is beginning to become such a huge epidemic, we need more people with knowledge and self-control. Who cares if his statistics were slightly off; his point was well-taken. It gives us hope that there are people like him out there.

PAT AND DAVID: There are countless teenagers who give us hope. See our new "High 5" below.

FROM 'VERY REBELLIOUS': I consider myself a very rebellious person, sometimes too rebellious where I get into trouble. Could you recommend any kind of help for people who are violent, have low self-esteem and a negative attitude and also for just the kind of person who wishes they were never born. I'd feel more comfortable talking to a male adult. I don't know why, most girls like talking to the same sex. Help, I really am confused.

FROM PAT AND DAVID: We believe that you need to ask your school counselor for the names of "adult male" professional therapists who are experienced in working with teenagers. If your counselor is unable to give you the needed information, call your State Department of Children/Family Services.

Finally, you need to involve your parents in the counseling process. Let them know that you want and need professional help in sorting out some serious issues.

FROM 16-YEAR-OLD IN VIRGINIA: I have been sexually abused before. I am not sure, but I think I remember abusing someone else at least about five years ago, and someone else about three years before that. (For about the last) five years, nothing else has happened. What are the chances of me becoming an abuser? I want to avoid that. I hate the thought of putting someone through what I went through.

PAT AND DAVID: To deal with the pain that you've been through and to learn how to prevent any further tragedies, you need professional counseling. However, we realize that you may not have your own money to pay for counseling. Since we do not know who has abused you, we don't know if you will be able to approach your parents for such fees.

But YOU DESERVE HELP. We suggest you call a non-profit organization such as your local city or county community mental health center, child abuse center, domestic violence center, rape crisis center, or Incest Survivors Anonymous. Phone numbers for any or all of these should be in your local phone book.

HIGH 5 to Jay Witcher, 16, a student at Glen Burnie Senior High in Annapolis, Md. He was elected by student representatives from throughout the county as a full-voting rights member of the Anne Arundel County, Maryland, School Board. As far as we know, he's the only high school student in the United States with full voting rights on a school board.

PAT AND DAVID: To nominate a teenager for national recognition in HIGH 5, send the person's name, age and reason for nominating, along with a name and phone number where the information can be verified to Pat and David, c/o Universal Press Syndicate, 4900 Main St., Kansas City, Mo. 64112.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You jump through hoops this week, as you try to please partners, relatives and a boss. What is this servitude, Aries? Obligations call most of the weekend, yet you still manage to find the time to regain your perspective.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others are "in command" all week, and throwing a tantrum just doesn't make a difference. Work on understanding where others are coming from. Once you get there, life becomes a snap. Be a little experimental this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Count on a distraction—the nice kind—this week, and you won't be disappointed. Use the quiet moments to plunge into your work and prove your efficiency. Call it an early weekend. Yes, you give in to temptation, and, yes, you make hay while you can.

DEE AND TOM HARDIE

GRANDPARENTING

GRANDMOTHER CAN'T WATCH GRANDSON'S 'DISCIPLINE'

Q: My son, 30, recently married a very independent, strong-willed woman of 33. He has a son, 8, by his first marriage, and she has a 9-year-old girl.

I have a hard time keeping quiet about this witchy daughter-in-law and her antics. Every time my grandson does something wrong, she punishes him by making him wear—in public—a dress or skirt and blouse, complete with lacy underwear!

When I recently met them for lunch at a shopping mall, my grandson and his stepmother were actually dressed like twin girls. His stepmother told my grandson to hike up his dress to show off his pink panties. Even his medium-length hair had been styled. I was shocked and told my daughter-in-law so, but I was advised to keep out of the way.

After lunch the three "girls" went shopping. When my grandson and his stepmother went into the dressing room together and came out in jean skirts and blouses, I had to leave.

I can't believe how passive my grandson has become. He goes along with whatever his "mother" says. She claims that he prefers to wear dresses and pretty lingerie and deliberately does something wrong so that he can continue to dress like this. My son has apparently agreed to let his new wife handle the "discipline."

I am at my wit's end. Please help!
—Orange County, Calif.

A: You should be worried. If you will excuse us, your son sounds like a wimp. That grandson of yours needs a father, not a wardrobe mistress.

Your son should put his feet down and find other means to discipline. His son is being made into a "party-waist" in every possible way.

All kids like to dress up, but this is extreme. And going "public" in a mall sounds sick to us. We wonder what your grandson's friends think. Don't they ridicule him? He could be warped for life.

As for your daughter-in-law, she is either terribly jealous of this young boy, or she wants another daughter. You say that your grandson "goes along with whatever his 'mother' says." What about his natural mother? You never mention her. Has she abandoned her own son? If so, maybe that's why he acquiesces so easily.

He may simply want a mother. If his real mother is still in the picture, she CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your creativity makes a difference, as you cut through your work and come up with the new and different. Finally, Moonchild, you get your just desserts. Enjoy all the congratulations, compliments and adoration. You just soar into the weekend.

LEO (July 23-August 22) Understand where you are coming from, and know you will find the solution. Humor, flirtation and a special opportunity knock on your door. The sign of love, you go with the moment. The bad news is that you spend most of the weekend catching up on your work.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) You change your position on an important security issue this week. Life gets so crazed, you decide it's all irrelevant as you throw up your hands. Now is the time to perfect the art of flirtation and romance, and you do so this weekend.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) Worry less about money and domestic matters. Learn to talk, risk and be vulnerable on a deeper level. You are surprised (and delighted) by others' response and support. You rediscover a special relationship this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) Your more possessive and needy side comes out this week. Discussions lead to an interesting chain of events. Stay open to all the possibilities. You don't have to go very far to taste the milk and honey this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) This week you prove you can handle all the vicissitudes of life. You glow as you command the ship at work. Don't neglect an important bill, however. A slip-up could mar your weekend. Insecurity hits out of the blue and suddenly you're "not sure."

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Much of this week you're stuck in your own head, having an intense and conflicting inner dialogue. While you mentally play out the possibilities, events throw you into action. You're a tough one, you old Goat, and you bring in exactly what you need.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) Take a bow this week and accept your laurels. All your hard work and understanding finally pay off. Another important project—catching that cute flirt—also comes to a successful conclusion. Make no plans this weekend, as you are likely (and will want) to vanish.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) You finally understand another's point of view. Once you do, you are able to take the lead and make it happen. A boss is in the wings watching how well you handle all this. For your sake, and so that your work performance record remains tiptop, call it an early weekend.

should get into the act immediately. If your daughter-in-law is telling the truth and your grandson honestly prefers dresses and pretty lingerie, he is very confused and needs professional help, as does your daughter-in-law.

But before taking such a step, your son should stop these silly masquerades and take the boy shopping for boy clothes, and start tossing a football with him. He desperately needs a real man in his life.

Regular Season ends.....

Trojans , Blackcats headed for playoffs

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor
It's hard to conceive that the 1992 high school football's regular season is coming to a close with the final games being played tonight. Wheelwright will travel to Elkhorn City, Prestonsburg faces M.C. Napier on the road while Betsy Layne will close out their season with a trip to Sheldon Clark. Allen Central will celebrate homecoming tonight as they host the Phelps Hornets.

Of course, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright will have secured a spot in the upcoming playoffs that will get underway next Friday, November 6. What needs to be decided tonight when Wheelwright plays at Elkhorn City is third and fourth place.

Prestonsburg, already a lock, will try to win their district outright as they stand at 5-0 in District 2.

Betsy Layne and Allen Central will complete their season tonight and look to the weight rooms this winter in preparation for next year.

WHEELWRIGHT AT ELKHORN CITY

Coach Donnie Daniels' ball club has not played up to par of late and this is a big game for them. The winner of this one takes third place while the loser settles for fourth. Elkhorn City comes into tonight's game off of a 36-12 win over the Betsy Layne Bobcats. The Cougars will bring a 6-3 overall record into tonight's contest while they remain 4-2 in district play. Wheelwright on the other hand sports a 5-4 record and is even in district play at 3-3.

The Trojans were ambushed big time at Ironton St. Joe last Saturday in a passive performance by Wheelwright. The Trojans defense allowed the Flyers to run at will as they were perhaps looking to tonight's matchup.

While the St. Joe game was of no significance as far as district play goes, still Wheelwright wanted to keep their momentum going, especially having to close the season on the road.

Wheelwright's defense will have to contend with some heavyweights tonight. Running out of the backfield for the Cougars will be a pair of good ones in Aaron Blizzard and Eddie Morton. Also there is Joe Williams who runs the sweep as about as well as anyone. Jason Dales will quarterback the ballclub that has been a surprise this season.

Wheelwright's offense is very active and alive in one of the best backfields the Trojans have dressed in recent years. Arnold Adams and Muntu Oden give the Trojans the punch they need to move the football. Oden is very quick and had an outstanding game at St. Joe. He rushed for 236 yards, scored two touchdowns and had one reception for 45 yards.

But, it wasn't just a one-game stat for Oden. He has been consistent in the last three games the same way.

Adams is a bulldozer of a runner. He is big, strong and hard to bring down. When the Trojans need short yardage, Adams gets the call.

Besides being a battle for third place in the district, the Trojans need the win to have a winning season this year in what could be their final year at Wheelwright.

PRESTONSBURG AT M. C. NAPIER

At the beginning of the season it was thought that the Prestonsburg Blackcats would be a good 8-2 ball club. But now the Cats are knocking on the door of a 9-1 season if they can avoid any upset ambitions of the Navajo's of Napier.

When these two teams get together on the football field there is usually more than a football game to be seen. There has been bad blood between the two schools in recent years and both schools have tried to "duke" it out on the field in the past two years. Last year's altercation at Prestonsburg saw the two benches empty in the closing minutes of the game and it took awhile to restore any kind of order. Two years ago at Napier there was an altercation also.

But the game will be a big one for Prestonsburg who is currently one game ahead of second place Sheldon Clark. A loss at Napier still would give the district title to Prestonsburg on the strength of the Blackcats 48-43 win over the Cardinals. But coach Bill Letton's ball club is not interested in sharing a title with the Cardinals, and football will be on the mind

Tackett rushes for 103 yards to lead Allen Central past Sandy Valley, 22-12

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor
The Floyd County Grade School football season entered its final week as the Allen Central Little Rebels hosted the Sandy Valley Bobcats at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex Monday evening. A good crowd was on hand.

Beau Tackett rushed for 103 yards, scored a touchdown to lead the Little Rebels to their fifth win of the season as they handed coach James Derossett's ballclub a 22-12 setback.

The battle was for second place in the Floyd County Conference. Eric Moore carried the football five times for 87 yards and Thomas Jenkins had three receptions for 27 yards. Jenkins also had a kick off return of 28 yards.

Allen Central took a 8-0 lead on their first possession of the game. After Tackett took the opening kick-off and returned it 28 yards to their own 48-yard line, two plays later Moore raced 45-yards for the touchdown. Moore hit Jenkins with a pass in the end zone to complete the two-point conversion.

Sandy Valley came back with a good drive that started on their own 25 yard line. Behind the running of Craig Johnson and Doug Keathley the Bobcats went 80 yards for the touchdown when Johnson ran the ball in from 23 yards out with 29 seconds left in the first quarter. Johnson had 52 yards in the drive.

Sandy Valley got the football back after they recovered an Allen Central fumble on their own 39-yard line. The Rebels were called for a 15 yard penalty when they were guilty of having 12 players on the field, moving the football to the 44-yard line.

Johnson, using his speed on a sweep, picked up 29 yards before being brought down on the Rebels 10-yard line. Keathley gained 7 yards, resting the ball at the three. But the Bobcats fumbled the football on their next down and Allen Central recovered the fumble, stopping the drive.

Allen Central moved the ball out of the end zone area on a carry by Levi Wells for 3 yards and a 10 yard run by Tackett. After Wells gained another three, Moore hit Jenkins with a pass for 13 yards and Moore carried on the next down for 7 yards.

A late hit penalty against Sandy Valley placed the football into Bobcat territory on the 41-yard line. Tackett took a pitch out from Moore and raced 41 yards for the touchdown and a 14-6 Allen Central lead with 1:34 left in the first half.

All-Star Bowl to close out grade school football season

While the seventh grade football players will wait until next season, the eighth grade players will play their final game of their grade school careers Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the football field in Prestonsburg. This All-Star game will see players from five schools, all over the county, come together as the first- and third-place teams in the county and the second-, fourth-, and fifth-place teams combine to play in the game that should be a lot of fun and excitement.

The White team will see the coaches and players from Adams Middle School (First place) and Sandy Valley (Betsy Layne) (Third place) come together. The white team will be coached by Monty Branham, Todd Goodman, Jack Howard, Chuck Rowe, David Thacker (Adams' coaching staff), James Derossett, and Charlie Thompson (Betsy Layne's coaching staff), and will have around 28 players on the roster.

The White team's players (from Adams) are Jon Morris, Mike Castle, Gavin Hale, Jason Blackburn, Jason Pack, Jason Osborne, Jeremy Osborne, Rusty Young, Brian Jones, Chris Lawson, Robbie Cain, Eddie Tackett, Wesley McGuire, Aron Ochoa, Josh Luster, and Reaford Syke. The players from Sandy Valley (Betsy Layne) are Ramey Hunter, Stuart Hall, Shawn Keathley, Craig Hamilton, Jarred Newsome, Jason Newman, Tony Swiger, Brad Kimbler. Cory Howell, Kevin Howell,

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

JIM ED'S LIST.....

Radio Sports Director Jim Ed Allen sends us along his list of keepers for the Cincinnati Reds in light of the November 17 expansion draft. The Reds, like all major league clubs, will be allowed to protect 15 players from the Florida Marlins and Colorado Rockies.

Here at the 15 players that Allen views the Reds protecting:

- Barry Larkin
- Bip Roberts
- Reggie Sanders
- Joe Oliver
- Jose Rijo
- Tom Browning

- Norm Charlton
- Jeff Branson
- Willie Greene
- Rob Dibble
- Chris Sabo
- Freddie Benavides
- Hal Morris
- Scott Ruskin
- Paul O'Neil

Says Allen, "The Reds probably will keep Sabo and O'Neil for the purpose of trading for a front line pitcher." Allen sees Morris as a possible player who the Reds may trade.

The WQHY radio announcer believes that Greene is going to become a major league ball player for the Reds. What about a manager for the Reds?

"I would like to see Tony Perez be the next Reds manager," stated Allen. "But I look for Davy Johnson (former New York Met manager) to get the job. He was on a talk show in Cincinnati talking about winning."

Give us a call and tell us your 15 names and any other comments you may have about the Reds.

PLAYOFF BREAK DOWN.....

The high school football playoffs start next Friday night and Prestonsburg will host either West Carter (good bet) or East Carter in the opening round at Prestonsburg Stadium. In fact, if the Cats keeping winning they will be able to host the first three games of the regional meet.

A Prestonsburg win in game one would pit the Blackcats against the winner of the Fleming County - Whitesburg game. Lawrence County, another regional favorite, will face Shelby Valley in their first game while Sheldon Clark will host Russell.

Should a game between the Lawrence County Bulldogs and Prestonsburg Blackcats come about, the Cats would be the host team because of the odd and even rule.

Four regional winners will meet with two advancing to the state finals at Louisville.

Should Wheelwright finish fourth in their district they would face Hazard or Cumberland in the first round of Class A, Region IV, District 2 play. Hazard and Cumberland are currently tied for first place in their district and the championship will be decided tonight when the two teams meet on the gridiron at Cumberland. This will be a big one.

Hazard is currently undefeated with their 9-0 record while Cumberland has lost twice at 7-2. If the Trojans finish third with a win over Elkhorn City tonight, then the same would hold true. Wheelwright would play the loser of the Hazard - Cumberland game.

It will all be clearer after the weekend.

GRADE SCHOOL BASKETBALL.....

Gets underway next week with the Auxier Hornets hosting the John M. Stumbo Mustangs.

A preview of the upcoming grade school season will be coming in two weeks.

BELATED HAPPY BIRTHDAYS.....

Happy birthday wishes go out to Betsy Layne Principal Alan Osborne who turned (?) last week. Another birthday greeting goes to my good friend Mike Potter up Betsy Layne way. No age given!

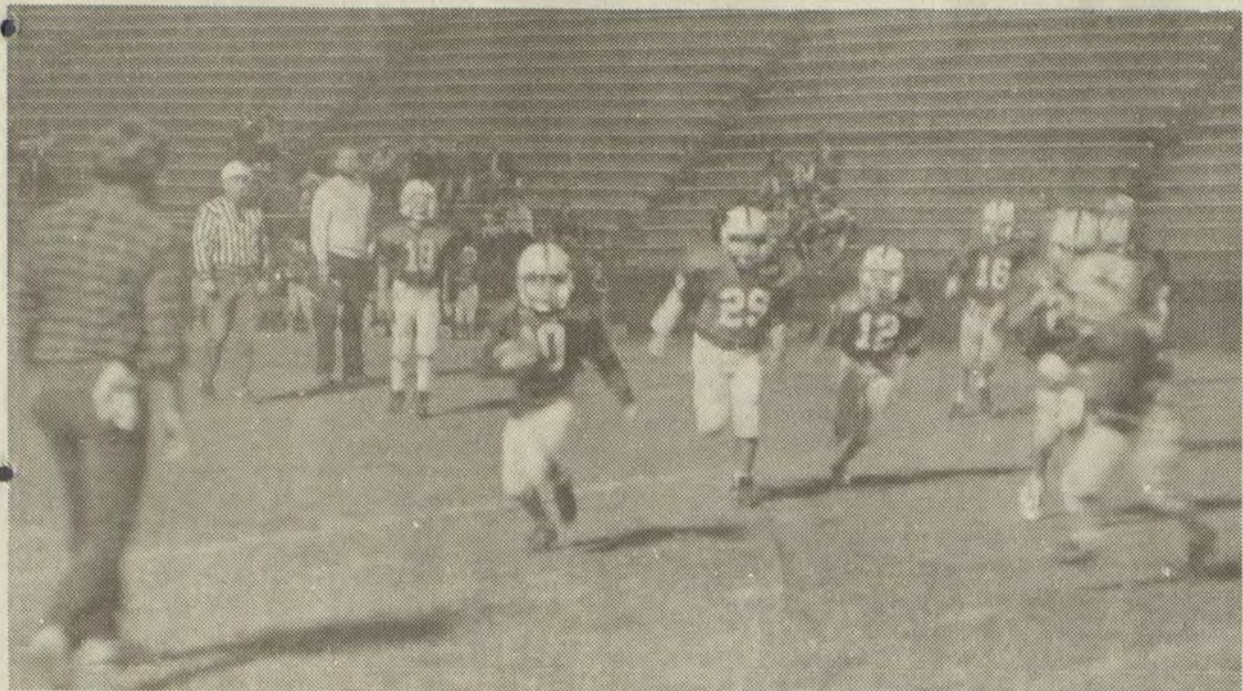

Does your favorite sports person have a birthday coming up? Call us and let us know.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

A good prospect!

Learning at an early age!

It has been a good year for the Pop Warner Football League, and they will play their final game of the season this coming Wednesday. Here Mike Stone carries the ball for the Packers in his team's 34-0 win over the Lions. (photo courtesy of Daryl Patton)

Pop Warner football enters its final week

This past Wednesday night the Packers of the Pop Warner tackle football program kept their undefeated record alive as they handed the winless Lions a 34-0 setback. The victory improved the Packers record to 5-0 on the season entering the final week of play. The Lions stand at 0-5. In the second contest Wednesday night, the Falcons won a close one over the Saints to stay close to the front-running Packers. The Falcons posted a 28-18 win and ran their record to 4-1 on the year. The Falcons hope to even the score with the Packers when they have a rematch of an earlier game. The two top teams meet in the final night of Pop Warner football when they are scheduled to go at it next Wednesday starting at 5:30 p.m. The Saints and Lions will claw at it in the second game. The Lions will hope to salvage their first win of the season. Dr. Don Chaffins, league director, encourages all fans to come out for the final night of Pop Warner football as they endeavor to build for a great football future locally.

field position getting the football on the Rebels 48-yard line. But Matthew Rose's pass was intercepted by Tackett just before the first half ended. Neither team was able to score in the third period. Allen Central scored early in the fourth quarter only to have the TD run by Moore called back because of a personal foul call. Tackett had set up the run with a 42-yard gainer, placing the ball on the Bobcats' 36-yard line.

Facing a first and 25 play, Moore connected with Jenkins for an 11 yard pick up and Moore then carried the football for 9 yards to the Sandy Valley 11-yard line. Wells moved the ball to the Bobcats' six before Wells went on a sweep around left end to score the touchdown. Moore ran the two-point conversion for a 20-6 Allen Central lead with 3:12 left in the game. Sandy Valley made good use of the remaining time to put six more points on the scoreboard. Jenkins, on the kickoff, lifted the football straight up in the air but the ball took an Allen Central bounce and was downed on the Bobcats 22-yard line. But Sandy Valley got some help from a two back-to-back flags that assessed the Rebels with two 15-yard penalties—one for a face mask and one for a personal foul. The ball rested on the Rebels' 16-yard line and a first down for Sandy Valley. On a third and 14 play, the Bobcats fumbled the football but recovered it. But they lost 4 yards on the play bringing up a fourth and 18. On a busted fourth down play, Johnson got the football and raced 23 yards for the touchdown as time expired. Johnson led all rushers with 128 yards on 13 carries and scored two touchdowns. Keathley rushed for 62 yards on 10 carries. Sandy Valley lost the football three times, twice on fumbles and again on an interception. The Bobcats were assessed 15 yards in penalties. Rose was 0-1 in passing. Allen Central had one fumble and no interceptions. The Rebels were flagged five times for 45 yards in penalties. Jenkins had three receptions for 27 yards. Allen Central improved to 5-2 on the season while Sandy Valley fell to 2-6. Sandy Valley will combine with the Adams Middle School to form the White team for the upcoming All-Star Bowl this Saturday. Allen, Allen Central and Osborne will form the Blue team.

Trojans, Blackcats

of the Blackcats tonight. This has been a potent Prestonsburg offense this season as many expected it to be. Aaron Tucker, at quarterback, has been the club leader guiding the Blackcats on some important drives in big down situations. Tucker has a very talented backfield running behind him in Dwayne Garza, Seth Hyden and Jody Comette. Garza and Hyden has been on a rampage of late and both know the importance of tonight's game. Coach Letton has had opportunities to install some of his younger (and very talented) players in the past two games and that could prove a good move in the upcoming playoffs. Seniors Dicky Johnson (out with an injury), Bill Bottoms, Brian Horn and Jay McIntire, along with junior Ryan Elliott, has led a solid offensive line for the Blackcats. But the defense of the Cats has not gone unnoticed in junior Kyle Fitzpatrick, senior Todd Clark, sophomore Larry Morris along with Bottoms, Horn and senior Joey Nunn. It has been a good year for senior Jason Crisp at split end as well as sophomore Thomas Ratliff. Both have filled a void that was questionable when the season started. Prestonsburg will have their mind on this one with next week's playoff opponent being either West Carter or East Carter. BETSY LAYNE AT SHELDON CLARK The first win of the season has eluded the Bobcats of Betsy Layne thus far this season. And going to Sheldon Clark will not make it any easier to secure that first win. But the Bobcats will finish the season and start focusing on next year in their second year out of district competition.

Sheldon Clark has one of the most explosive offenses in area football. Quarterback Jesse Watts can certainly throw the football with the best in the state. Add running-backs Brad Tiller and Ray Collins to go along with fullback Donnie Slone and you can see why the Cardinals are 8-1 on the season. Another one that can throw the football is Betsy Layne's Bryan Combs. He is a strong arm quarterback that makes it look easy. Combs is definitely Division One material. Gary Arnold has been a pleasant addition to the Bobcat's program this year. Good hands and good speed describes this lanky end. Doug Hammonds hasn't had the kind of year he expected to have, but it's not because he hasn't tried. He is a hard worker and a good runner and he has caught a few of Combs' passes also. The season will be over for the Bobcats after tonight, but you can be assured that coach John Derossett will have them in the weight rooms this season. Look for the Bobcats to adjust their schedule for next year. PHELPS AT ALLEN CENTRAL What look like a disastrous year for the Rebels has been salvaged with two wins in their last four games. The turn around has been because of the improved play of Kevin Patton and David Gilliam in the backfield, along with the emergence of Glenn Floyd. Allen Central brings a 2-7 record into their final game of the year as the Hornets of Phelps stands at 4-5. It will be homecoming at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex as a new homecoming queen is crowned. The Rebels will have to contend with some strong running backs in

Bo Wohlford and Danny Kidd, although Kidd is the quarterback of the ball club. If everything holds to form, the only ones carrying the football for the Hornets will be either Kidd or Wohlford. Kidd has been the main ball carrier for the Hornets and will pass occasionally. Allen Central would love to close out their 1992 season with their second consecutive win.

All-Star Bowl

impressive as this is their last grade school football game. There was no roster available for the Blue team. The Blue team will be going into the All-Star game with combined records of 9-12 overall and 4-8 in the conference. If you want to see a really exciting grade school football game and see some of the future high school stars in advance come on down to the Prestonsburg football field Saturday, October 31, at 1:30. The tickets will be $3 a ticket for students and adults. The money from the gate and the concession stand will go to pay for the jerseys the kids will be wearing in the game. Come out and show your support for your grade school football teams.

Is there enough time for those in the top row to rebound and overtake Neeley? With the exception of four, it was a horrible week for many. The pro ranks are just getting harder and harder to predict. But, on the local scene, Prestonsburg should come away with a clear title to District 2 with a win. Wheelwright will find it hard to win at Elkhorn City according to the pollsters. Roy Kidd and the Eastern Kentucky Colonels should make it two wins in a row after dropping two. On the pro level, Cleveland will find the Bengals to their liking and Houston should handle the Steelers. Our picks will continue through the playoffs.

ALICE LLOYD EAGLES

Eagle sharp-shooters gunning for national tournament berth

The Eagle's guns are smoking. For the past five years, Eagle shooters have ranked nationally in the top five for blazing the nets at the three-point range. The Eagles, who went 20-11 last year, and have strung together three consecutive 20-game winners, appeared in the final four of District 24 playoffs last year, and have their sights set on a national playoff berth in 92-93.

The Eagles come in this year very young, but talented. A key loss to the team will be Todd Johnson, who set a career single-season record of 247 assists last year. With a young team, the pressure will be applied to the team's only senior, Henry Webb. Webb is coming off a great season where he averaged 26 points per game, and received honorable mention as an All-American. Webb will need to show his leadership on and off the court this year. "If Henry can better the players around him, the team will thrive from it," said Coach Jim Stepp.

However, Webb is not alone. Also returning for the Eagles are Russell Clark, Rick Conley, and Mitch Harris. Clark averaged 18 points per game and shot an outstanding 46 percent from three-point land. A much improved Rick Conley, who averaged 8 points per game and 7 rebounds last year, returns to the post. Conley will have to get his hands on the ball for the Eagles to succeed this year. Harris, who shot 45 percent from 3-point land, will possibly try to fill the point guard position.

The Eagles did very well with their recruiting class. "They could possibly be one of the best ever," said Coach Stepp. This could be an understatement. Of the new recruits, Shawn Hager, Robert Marcum, and Brad Arrington could possibly see a lot of playing time.

Shawn Hager, a 5'9" point guard, lead Belfry to the state tournament three years in a row. Hager could share time with Harris at the point position.

Robert Marcum, a 6'3" guard from Clay County, has impressed the coaching staff of the Eagles. "He possesses a lot of knowledge of the game for his age," said Stepp. He will see time at the shooting guard position. Brad Arrington, a 6'8" forward-center, who lead Knott County to two straight state tournament appearances, is constantly improving each day, and could share time with Conley in the post.

Although the Eagles are young, they are considered one of the favorites to challenge for the District 24 championship and a national playoff berth. The Eagles open up the regular season on November 10 against Clinch Valley College at 8 p.m.

Final Week

The high school football season enters its final week of regular season play. All but four of the state's 208 football teams play their final games this week. Anderson County, Evarts and Bowling Green will have this week off to prepare for the upcoming playoffs while Muhlenberg North waits 'til next year.

Out of the 208 schools that play football in Kentucky, 49 are in Class 4A, 45 in Class 3A, 52 in Class 2A and 50 in Class A. There are 12 schools not competing for a district title this year. Over 61 percent of the teams qualify for the playoffs (128 teams) yielding 64 first-round playoff games next week.

Games of the Week

There are several games with playoff implications being held this week-end. Games where winner is crowned district championship:

- Bardstown at Washington County (A, II, I)
- Hazard at Cumberland (A, IV, I)
- Hopkinsville at Paducah Tilghman (3A, I, I)
- South Oldham at Oldham County (3A, II, 2)
- Eastern at Trinity (4A, III, 2)
- South Laurel at George Rogers Clark (4A, IV, 2)

Other district championships will be decided also; however, more than one game will determine the winner. To determine second- and third-place finishes, Newport Central Catholic travels to Lloyd Memorial (A, III, I) and Russell County visits Adair County (AA, II, I). To determine third- and fourth-place finishes, Bourbon County travels to Boyle County (AA, III, I), Logan County entertains Owensboro (AAA, I, 2) and Leslie County plays host to Breathitt County (AAA, IV, 2).

Those teams playing for the final playoff spot in their respect districts include Dayton at Bellevue (A, III, I), Lynn Camp at Pineville (A, IV, I) and Taylor County at Fort Knox (AA, II, 2).

Perhaps the most interesting district is Class 4A, Region I, District 2, a four-team district that could end in a three-way tie. Central Hardin, at 7-2, 2-0, travels to Shelby County. If Central Hardin wins, it's the district champ. A Shelby County victory, coupled with a North Hardin win over Bullitt Central, will create a three-way tie which would be determined by the KHSAA tie-breaker system. If North Hardin loses to Bullitt Central, the Shelby County/Central Hardin winner would be champion. All clear now?

Other Games to Watch

Belfry, which suffered its first loss of the season to Clay County two weeks ago, will play host to Paul Blazer Ashland Friday night. The two schools have tangled in both regular season and postseason play over the past several years. Ashland won the Class 3A title in '90. Belfry was knocked out of the Class 3A playoffs last season by eventual champion Bell County.

Harrodsburg will travel to Garrard County for the Class A, Region II, District 2 title this Friday. Garrard County (8-1) registered a 45-6 victory over Owen County last week while Harrodsburg (7-1) rested with an open date. Both teams have an identical 5-0 records in district play.

Louisville Male will play host to DuPont Manual this week in the state's oldest rivalry on record. This will be the 108th meeting between the two schools and will determine what position they will occupy in the district standings for playoff consideration.

Transplanted Tigers

Hopkinsville suffered only its second loss of the season last week, falling to North Hardin 26-7. But the Tigers, 7-2 overall, 3-0 in Class 3A, Region I, District I, are excited about their very successful start. Hopkinsville is led by tailback Chris Robinson, who has rushed for over 1,100 yards this season. His running mate, senior Darrell Alston, has gained nearly 700 yards. Others, junior quarterback Matt Bapp and senior linebacker Cory Sanders, have also paid huge dividends for the Tigers' program in '92. Bapp has thrown for 500 yards while Sanders is averaging nine tackles per game.

All four have parents stationed at Fort Campbell. In fact, when military personnel can't find housing on base, most live in Hopkinsville's district. Robinson and Bapp both moved from Germany this year, while Sanders and Alston both moved from the base.

The Tigers and their transfers face Paducah Tilghman this week for the district title.

NO MORE GOOSE EGGS....

The Greenwood Gators picked up their first varsity win in school history last week with a 35-22 victory over Westmoreland (Tennessee). Greenwood's string of 28 straight defeats began with the school's first season in 1990. The Gators were 0-11 in '90, 0-10 in '91 and 0-7 in '92 before last week's big win.

HOLBROOK HAUNTED....

Nathan Holbrook, the state's leading rusher at Fairview, averaging 222.1 yards per game and 17.4 points per game, was held to just 31 yards and no points in the Eagles' 44-6 loss to Raceland last Friday. His low numbers still should keep him at the top of the leader board at 198 yards per game.

ONE, TWO PUNCH....

Marion County's 7-1 start can be attributed to the Knight's possession of the state's top passer and second-leading receiver. Quarterback Tommy Owen threw for 379 yards and four TDs last week in the Knights' 38-7 win over Mercer County. Wide receiver Anthony Epps, also a budding star on the basketball court, caught six of Owen's passes for 219 yards and two TDs.

MEASLES OUTBREAK....

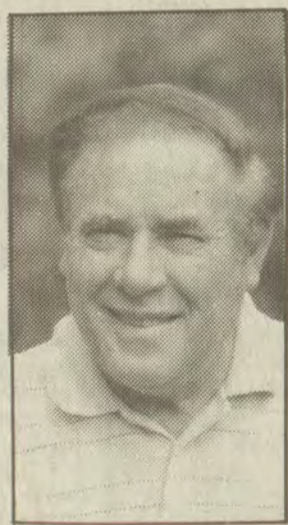

Jessamine County was concerned with a county-wide outbreak of Rubella, old-fashioned measles, when the Colts were preparing to leave for their game against South Laurel last Friday. The team was not infected but the concern focused on fans who may have the virus, spreading it to fans in London. The game, however, went on as planned since neither team could reschedule the game at a later date. South Laurel won 30-21 and maintained its spot tied for the district in Class AAAA, Region IV, District 2 with George Rogers Clark. Those two teams, Clark and South Laurel, may face off October 30 for the district title in Winchester.
