Towler, Stumbo to be asked to clarify positions :

Forum blasts criticism of school reform

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Education Forum members voted Monday to send letters to State Representative Greg Stumbo and superintendent Steve Towler asking the two to clarify whether or not they supported Kentucky's Education Reform Act (KERA).

The forum's action was in response to an incident last week when copies of a letter from Stumbo to Floyd County Administrators Association president Frankie Francis and a six-page essay highly critical of school reform were mailed with a notice of a job vacancy from the central office to all school principals.

The report of those documents being mailed to the schools, at public expense, came just after Stumbo launched another verbal attack on Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen.

The essay, titled "Common Sense for Complicated Times" called KERA a "magic elixir" bought by legislators from "out-of-state witch doctors."

Forum members said Monday that they were disturbed by Towler's comment that essay was a "satirical commentary" on KERA and the incident "was no big deal."

"This is not a joke, it's a message," forum member Jean Rosenberg said. "(With it attached to Stumbo's letter, the picture's clear that the impression is that our political leaders for community are in support of (the essay)."

Members voted to ask Towler what his position is on the essay and to request that Towler instruct the administrative staff not to attempt to sabotage KERA.

Forum member John Rosenberg call the essay "scurrilous" and said it was inaccurate and full of distortions concerning KERA.

"This is not satirical, it's devastating," Rosenberg said.

The group will ask Stumbo if he intended for his letter to Francis to be attached to the essay because of the "recent trend" of his statements about Boysen. They will also ask Stumbo to reaffirm his commitment to KERA.

Forum members voted to send copies of their letters to Boysen, state school board members and members of the state education subcommittee.

City puts auxiliary force back on the job

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The Wheelwright City Commission voted to reinstate the city's auxiliary and part-time police officers Monday evening, overturning an earlier decision that prompted Wheelwright citizens to petition for the resignation of two of the commissioners.

The controversy began in October, when the commission conducted an emergency budget meeting to oust officers Terry Meadows, Terry Chaffins, Dennis Buckley, Rodney Newsome, Danny Bates and Bob Moore. This action left only police chief Charles Harmon on active duty, leaving the city unprotected 128 hours each week.

Commissioner Lowell Parker said the action was necessary because the police department had gone over its annual $16,000 budget.

Harmon, however, alleged that the commission's decision was arbitrary, improper and illegal and said that it was prompted by his earlier arrest of a friend of one of the commissioners. Harmon filed an injunction against the commission in Floyd Circuit Court and requested an immediate investigation by Kentucky Attorney General Chris Gorman.

Harmon announced his candidacy for the office of magistrate for District 3 the next day, adding that if the commissioners would not allow him to protect the citizens of Wheelwright, he would find a way to do it without

Groundbreaking event

David School founder Daniel Greene led the groundbreaking at the site of the new school building's planned woodshop. The facility was made possible by a $100,000 grant to the school from the UPS Foundation, a charitable arm of the United Parcel Service. The groundbreaking ceremony closed an hour-long celebration of the school's achievements and Greene's numerous contributions to the community and the region. (photo by Geoff Belcher)

Could speed development of horse track :

Property compromise is eyed

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

After leaping hurdle after hurdle, the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Properties Corporation is way out in front and approaching the final stretch of the race to bring live horse racing to Eastern Kentucky.

The Properties Corporation is currently working on an agreement with Eastern Kentucky Racing president Clyde Woods under which Woods would initially purchase the property on Route 3 upon which the proposed facility will be built. This would expedite construction on the site, Floyd County Development Authority Executive Director Darrell Gilliam said at a Properties Corporation meeting Tuesday, and allow the project to be completed by the July, 1993 deadline.

If the Properties Corporation adopts the agreement, once the requested tax-free and taxable bonds have been issued, the Floyd County Fiscal Court would then purchase the property from Woods and turn it over to the Properties Corporation. If for some reason the plans for the track were shelved, under the agreement the fiscal court would still purchase the site from Woods for use as an industrial development site.

The Properties Corporation also voted to accept architect Randall Burchett's suggestion to hire numerous expert contractors to build the facility under the direction of a construction coordinator rather than hiring one contractor who would then have to sub-contract most of the labor. Burchett selected Prestonsburg contractor Ted Nairn to act as construction coordinator.

Although the construction coordinator plan will initially add an estimated $120,000 to construction costs, it will greatly reduce overall costs by eliminating the need for expensive sub-contractors, Burchett said. It will

Paying attention to rules before the hunt could prevent paying of fines afterward

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Although hunting may be Eastern Kentucky's number one passion, many hunters might benefit from a little self-restraint and self-education before boldly rushing in where Bambi fears to tread.

According to estimates by both the state and national Departments of Fish and Wildlife Resources, nearly as many deer and other game animals are killed illegally each year as are "harvested" by legal methods.

Carl Oliver, who works in the legal enforcement division of Kentucky's Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, says that much of the problem is caused because many hunters are not fully versed in the state's hunting laws.

For instance, Oliver said Tuesday, the term "poaching" has been widely misinterpreted to mean the

Advisory panel begins work on 4-year plan

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Members of Floyd County's local planning committee for school facilities and curriculum met for the first time Monday evening and wasted no time in getting down to the business at hand.

At the end of their mission, the 17-member committee will recommend to the school board the course for school construction and instruction in the district for the next four years.

The committee was formed in accordance with new regulations passed by the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education in November which revamped the guidelines for school construction. Kentucky School Boards Association consultant Ken Brooks gave the group a run down of what is expected of them during the next several months. Brooks said that the responsibility of the committee will be to identify facility needs in the county and develop a plan to address those building needs for the next four years. Their work will also include long-range plans for the district in instruction as it relates to Kentucky's Education Reform Act.

"It is critical that you not miss any needs in the district," Brooks said. "Be generous when estimating the needs. You need to error on the side of overestimating the need."

Under the new regulations, more input will be gathered from the public through several public forums and public hearings to determine the building needs in school districts.

The committee will be trying to beat the clock to form their plan, Brooks explained, because the plan must be approved by the state school board by June 30 which means the plan must be approved by the local board at the February meeting.

Brooks said that since the state board does not meet in June, the plan will have to be acted upon by the state board at their May meeting. Items to be discussed by the state board have to be submitted for their review 30 days prior to the meeting, which would be in April. Before the plan is submitted to the state, a public hearing must be conducted in the county that must be advertised for two weeks

New jail is in the works

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

In an unannounced action, Floyd County Fiscal Court members held their regularly scheduled November meeting Friday instead of November 20 and offered virtually no discussion on two important issues on the agenda.

Fiscal court members quietly passed a resolution to reduce the county budget by $275,394.93 due to a shortfall in coal severance tax revenues. Court members did not discuss what areas of county government or what services would be affected by the budget reduction.

A letter from county treasurer David Allen said that cuts would be made in the county's road materials account. Allen's letter offered no specifics on that reduction.

Court members also declined discussion on a motion for County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo to enter into a contract with Chrisman, Miller and Woodford, a Lexington architectural firm, to develop plans for a new jail facility.

In a November 4 letter to Judge-Executive Stumbo from Robert Powell, director of local facilities for the Department of Corrections, a plan to correct physical deficiencies at the Floyd County Jail were to be submitted to the corrections department by November 15 or the jail would be closed.

The jail was not closed. The county jail facility has been cited numerous times by the state for deficiencies and state officials have been threatening to close the jail since January.

Fiscal court members held few public discussions on the state citations or how the problems with the jail facility could be solved.

At Friday's meeting, there was no discussion on what the plan to be developed by the architectural would include or where the facility would be located.

Stumbo told court members that a special meeting of the court would be called soon to discuss the jail plan developed by Chrisman, Miller and Woodford.

Also at Friday's meeting, heirs of Riley and Florence Hall protested the construction of a road in the Hall Subdivision at Allen to the site of a proposed new Allen Volunteer Fire Department.

Marshall Davidson, speaking on behalf of the Hall Heirs, told the court that the road was being protested because it would create a hazard in the residential community because

Art therapy is a new tool for treating abused

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

"Every child is an artist—the problem is how to remain an artist once he grows up." Those words were spoken by Pablo Picasso more than fifty years ago, but the meaning and wisdom behind them remain as incisive today as they were then, at least as far as Pikeville native Jo Dale Anderson is concerned.

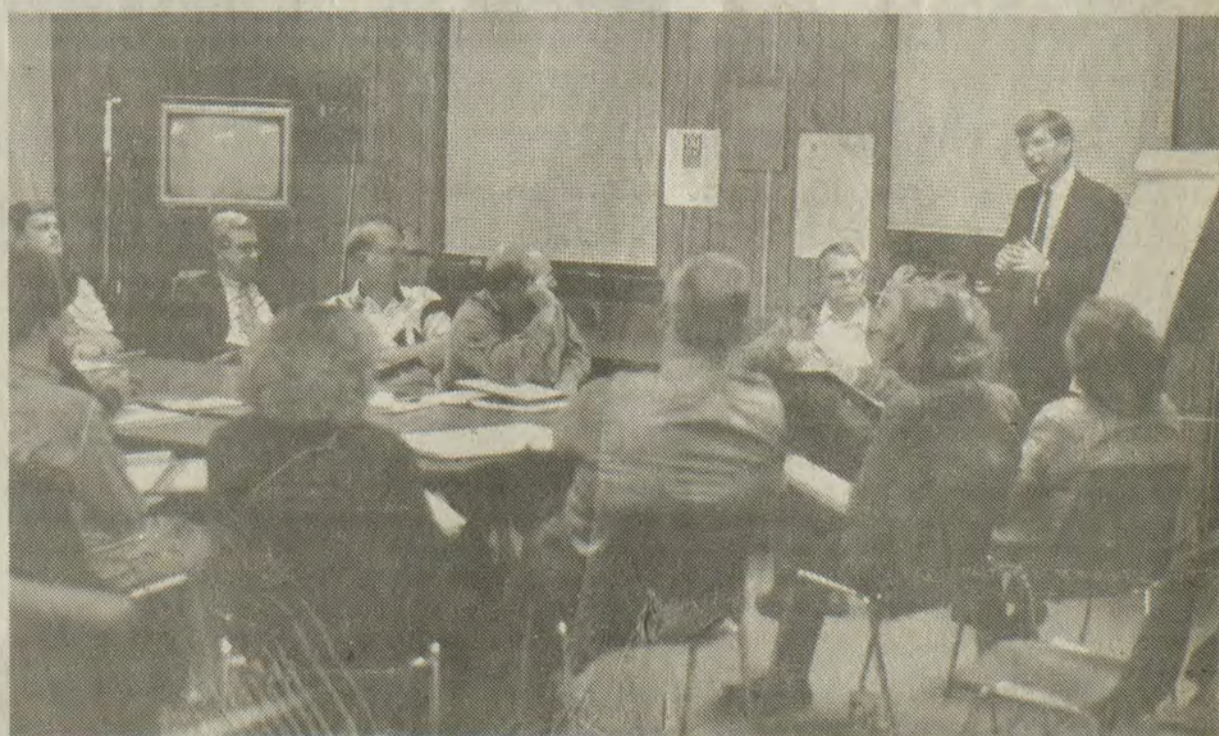

Anderson is an art therapist, one of only 59 practicing art therapists in the state and the only art therapist in Eastern Kentucky.

Art therapy, as defined by Anderson, is "the use of art in a therapeutic setting for psychological growth or improvement of human beings."

Basically, Anderson says, she uses a number of art mediums, including drawing, writing, dance, music, drama and play-acting, to help people get in touch with their feelings and emotions and thereby improve their psychological health.

Art therapists function in a number of different capacities, including working with abused children; operating in private practice with other mental health professionals; performing mental health work in hospitals, prisons and mental institutions; and prior to the hearing. After the public hearing, the plan must be submitted to the Kentucky Department of Education for review. If the education department does not approve the plan, revisions will be made.

The committee set the following dates to tour school facilities and to hold public forums to gather citizen input:

- December 6, Sunday, public forum at McDowell High School cafeteria from 2-4 p.m.;
- December 7, Monday, public forum at Duff Elementary library from 6-8 p.m.;
- December 10, Thursday, public forum at Allen Elementary library from 6-8 p.m.
- December 5, Saturday, tour schools in the Prestonsburg area from 9 a.m. until noon; tour schools in the

- Betsy Layne area from 1-3 p.m.;
- December 6, Sunday, tour Melvin and Osborne schools from noon until 2 p.m. and McDowell schools from 4-5 p.m.;
  - December 13, Sunday, tour Maytown, Martin, Allen Central High School and Duff schools from 1-4 p.m.

The committee also elected Allen Central High School principal Jody Sword as chairman and local businessman Paul Hughes as vice chairman.

Committee members are: Sword, Hughes, Dickie Jarvis, Wayne Combs, Ned Bush, Ray "Shag" Campbell, Mary Conn, Bob Isaac, Charles Scoville, Linda Gearheart, Linda Holbrook, Gary Hopkins, Denver Newsome, Mike Caudill, Judy Carter, Gene Davis and superintendent Steve Towler. Scoville and Davis were unable to attend Monday's meeting.

A Pike County man was slightly injured Monday morning when he apparently attempted to pass a coal truck on U.S. 23 near Ivel but instead collided with it. The driver of the coal truck was uninjured, but the collision ruptured the truck's fuel tank, spilling diesel fuel all over the road. week in Frankfort before a legislative subcommittee. Stumbo said education reform was not working because of a lack of leadership from Boysen.

In other action at Monday's meeting, forum members voted to begin a pilot program to assist site based decision making councils by acting as a local resource center to distribute technical assistance.

Floyd County school board member Eddie Billips told forum members that Prestonsburg Community College Dean Robert Allen had contacted him about his suggestion at the October school board meeting that the school district work with the college to assist school councils.

Billips said that Allen was willing to work with the school system to provide basic accounting information to school councils.

Allen said Tuesday that the college would "be happy to do whatever it could" to assist school councils.

The forum chose Martin Elementary as its "pet" project to offer the council resource assistance including the areas of school budgets and information on legal issues.

Any site based council will be welcomed to ask for the group's services which will obtain information from the Pritchard Committee, the Kentucky Education Association, the Kentucky Department of Education, parents, teachers, PTAs and the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce.

of emergency fire runs the department would have to make.

A spokesman for the fire department told the court that in a survey of the property bought by the department an access road to the site of the new fire department/community center was provided for in the deed. The unidentified spokesman asked for the court's assistance in constructing the road once the issue was settled.

Stumbo said the court would take the proper action once the property dispute was settled.

In other action Friday, the fiscal court:

- granted a pay increase to $7.42 per hour for deputy jailers James R. Click, Chris Vanhoose and Carl Conley;

- agreed to seek authorization from the attorney general's office to build a bridge inside the City of Wheelwright for the new prison;

- agreed to investigate a proposed road closure by Kinzer Drilling between Jerry DeRossett's property and Kinzer Drilling;

- held first reading of an ordinance to designate Robert McAninch as director of Disaster and Emergency Services for the county; and
- took no action on a letter from the Floyd County Firefighters Association that asked the proposed E-911 be operated by the Kentucky State Police.

All members of the court were present at Friday's meeting and the next scheduled meeting of the court is Friday, December 18 at 10 a.m. at the courthouse annex.

providing expert witness in court cases.

Art therapy helps abused children by allowing them to express their memories, emotions or past histories—concepts which many times they aren't even capable of understanding—in ways that are therapeutic and beneficial rather than embarrassing or painful.

The field can also be very beneficial for adults, Anderson says, because it helps the individual to get in touch with his or her "inner child," or in other words, get in touch with his or her deepest hidden emotions.

Last week Anderson conducted an art therapy workshop for Mountain Comprehensive Care counselors and therapists from around the region who work with abused children. Anderson guided the participants through a number of different exercises designed to help them understand themselves better and come to terms with their lives. One of those exercises required the participants to draw a scene from their respective childhood experiences with their non-dominant hands, forcing them to regress both physically and mentally and speak through their hearts rather than their minds.

Anderson trained for several years to become an art therapist, graduating from Elkhorn City High School and Pikeville College and earning a Master's degree in art therapy from Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio.

Currently, Anderson works with mentally retarded adults at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Prestonsburg and is available for expert witnessing, consulting work and art therapy workshops, but she hopes to eventually get back to working with abused children, with whom she feels she can do the most good.

Anderson can be contacted at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in downtown Prestonsburg at 886-8572.

Parker said Monday that the city was still near financial ruin, with only $3,184.48 left in city coffers.

Among other topics the commission discussed at Tuesday's meeting:

- the commission voted to resume payments of utilities and replace broken windows in the police chief's quarters;

- commissioners tabled acceptance of a new financial report until it could be reworded to eliminate any future confusion—the report referred to the city's system of government as a mayor-council body rather than as mayor-commission;

- Parker criticized the Wheelwright Utility Commission for voting to borrow $25,000 to purchase and renovate the old Dollar Store for use as a new city hall, both because it put the city in debt and because the current city hall is a landmark and should continue to be used. Parker asked to meet with utility commission members so that the city and utility commissions could work out any difficulties and misunderstandings.

also allow local businesses greater opportunities to bid on the project.

Lexington consultants Chenault Woodford and Larry Prynne have nearly completed their feasibility study on the site and the prognosis is very encouraging, Gilliam said.

According to preliminary studies, Gilliam said, the harness track and intertrack wagering facility would repay a substantial portion of the bond issuance. Also according to Woodford's studies, the plans for the proposed convention center need to be refined somewhat, but the center should generate enough funds to pay for itself quickly. Woodford will meet with the Properties Corporation on Tuesday, December 1 to iron out the final results of the feasibility study.

Hunting

killing of deer out of season when in reality poaching is the killing of any game fish or animal by means other than those expressly described in the state's hunting laws.

Also, Oliver said, many people do not understand that hunting season is essentially void between sunset and sunrise, which means that people hunting after dark are breaking the law and subject to extreme penalties.

Another major problem, Oliver said, is that many hunters fail to obtain permission before hunting on private property, whether it is posted or not.

For instance, Meredith Hager, of Lick Branch, is virtually terrorized every deer season when hunters roam her hillside property behind her house. Once she was even shot at.

"It's gotten to the point where I'm almost afraid to go out of the house," Hager said Tuesday, "or let the children out of the house."

Over and over again, Hager said, hunters come onto her property, tear down her "no trespassing" and "no hunting" signs, and proceed to shoot at everything in sight without regard to her family's safety.

However, Oliver said, those hunting on or even crossing private property without permission can be charged with trespassing, fined between $25 and $1,000, and can be held liable for up to three times the actual damage of any property, equipment or livestock. Those laws are enforceable by all federal, state and local officials within the jurisdiction, Oliver said, not just Fish and Wildlife officers. If local authorities are unavailable, Oliver said, property owners may report violations to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources toll-free number, 1-800-25ALERT.

Among other actions that are illegal and considered as poaching, Oliver said, are the use of dogs or any other domestic animal to flush out deer; shooting from any type of vehicle or boat; shooting when the deer is swimming; shooting from, over or across a roadway or by using fire or smoke in any way. Also illegal is shining bright lights to confuse or frighten the deer, Oliver said.

Rattling sabres . . .

by Scott Perry

It's a given fact that not everyone in Kentucky supports educational reform.

You can't please all the people all the time.

It's also a fact that this country was founded on a basic principle that allows everyone the right to think what they wish.

We'd be the last to suggest that a person's right to express their own opinion was subject to any restriction other than our own right to not listen.

Last week an essay highly critical of education reform was circulated to school administrators from the Floyd County Board of Education's central office.

We're not going to get all worked up over it, even though it was improper to distribute the criticism under the color of administrative authority.

We would have expected no less from those who feel threatened by change.

School reform is law, like it or not, and until such time as the people of Kentucky decide to change it, it will be the mandate for administering our educational system.

Critics of reform will continue to rattle their sabres...it's a matter of self-preservation. If reform works as it should, they'll be high atop the list of endangered species.

Old habits die hard, but our resolve for a better way should hasten the funeral.

Hats off to Danny

Thanks to the United Parcel Service and the commitment and persistence of a brought-on New Yorker, some holes have been plugged in Eastern Kentucky's educational dike.

A UPS Foundation grant of $100,000 has allowed the David School the opportunity to continue its expansion of programs that target students who are likely dropout candidates. Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new vocational education center were held Friday at the school.

School founder Danny Greene merits our applause for providing the means for second chances for a good number of kids who might otherwise have given up and been given up on.

Greene may talk like a furriner, but there's no doubt-ing his roots.

Eastern Kentucky, through and through.

Taking another giant, environmental leap

Editor:

In 1988 the Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, a citizens action group oriented to giving the people of Kentucky away to express our views and work toward over common good, was able to gain the support and vote of our fellow citizens and pass the Broad Form Deed Amendment to our constitution. This legislation was a first step in restoring control of our lands to the landowner. Now we need to dedicate ourselves further and become involved in applying not only the control of our surface, but applying the same environmental regulations to oil and gas companies we now do to coal companies. There are many of us who have seen our property destroyed and found out the oil and gas companies don't have to reclaim the land, restore lost or damaged water supplies, or even get our permission to intrude on our property. Just ask Senator Benny Ray Bailey or Dr. Grady Stumbo who are now being broad-formed by oil and gas companies.

The KFTC urges those who have had problems or are in a situation to become a victim or just simply interested, to call our office in Prestonsburg at 886-0043 and inquire as to how you may become involved in our common quest for justice.

Hays gratified by votes cast

Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to thank my many friends who supported me and voted for me for U.S. Representative, 5th Congressional District. It was most gratifying to receive over 97,000 votes across the 5th district. More importantly, while elections come and go, friendships made during the course of these campaigns will last a lifetime.

There are many pressing needs and problems in the 5th District and in the nation as a whole and for that reason I wish my opponent the best in the coming two years.

I must in all honesty state I am seriously considering a race for the same office two years from now. I look forward to hearing from my many friends throughout the district regarding this and other issues of importance to them.

Making holidays brighter

Editor:

Cablevision cares about our community and wants to help other organizations which are working to help those less fortunate this holiday season.

As in previous years, new cable customers or cable customers upgrading their services who donate a toy valued at $10.00 or more will receive free cable or premium service installation. The toys will be given to the Floyd County Headstart Program to be distributed to children in time for the holidays.

We've supported the Floyd County Headstart Program before, and appreciate their work in making the holidays brighter for needy families. We're proud to help them with this promotion.

Thanks for your assistance in getting the word out about this valuable program.

Coffee Break

Charities—more precisely the administration of charities—have been getting a pretty bad rap what with the recurring reports that they aren't all that charitable when it comes to dishing out dollars to the needy.

There is a new program, however, operating in the Big Sandy region which merits our attention and our financial support.

Spearheaded by the Big Sandy Area Development District, the project aims to provide meals to elderly folks who can't always provide for themselves. Area senior citizen centers are helping administer the program.

If you'd like to find out more about helping local folks in need, give Sandy Williamson a call at the Big Sandy ADD...886-2374...you'll feel good about it.

What if they had a recession and nobody came?

Went on our first Christmas shopping reconnaissance mission over the weekend and discovered hard evidence that the region's economic downturn has been, at least temporarily, put on hold.

Can't say if the crowds of shoppers we shuffled down the aisles with Saturday spent any money, but most shopping carts were well stacked, suggesting that area businesses could be on the receiving end of a decent season.

'Bout time.

Do your part in the war against the recession...shop at home.

New Route 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville is far from being completed, but it's safe to dedicate the road as an official highway.

Only a few miles of the Floyd County section are actually four-laned and blacktopped, but we witnessed a telltale ceremony last week which formalizes the road's status as a true-blue Kentucky highway...

A state trooper had a speeder pulled over. Drive carefully.

The line item veto, a budget-balancing tool coveted by but denied to a great many presidents, may be one of the first congressional gifts presented to Bill Clinton.

The line item veto would allow a president to cut individual expenditures from the federal budget without the now-required veto of an entire budget bill.

Nearly every president in modern times (meaning the first time Congress spent more than it took in) has sought line item veto power to no avail, but Congress now seems willing to hand the scalpel to Clinton.

Sort of.

The fine print on the deal all but renders the veto power worthless since Congress retains the right to override any individual cuts by a simple majority vote.

Anyone who believes a congressman will vote to uphold the veto of a colleague's pork barrel project at the risk of losing his own hasn't been paying much attention to the way our government store is run.

Clinton may get the line item veto power, but don't look for the management of Deficits R Us to take it seriously.

Searching for truth

Editor:

I have a very unusual dilemma. I am trying to locate my father, Virgil Lee Howard, if alive, or any living relatives. I never met my father or any of his family due to the secrecy of my mother and her family, and their hostility and uneasiness whenever I broached the subject.

It was recommended to me that I write to you and explain my situation. I'm 48 years old, having been born in 1944. I thought maybe my father might have moved back to Pike County to retire, as it has been said that that is where he originated from. He and his parents, John and Elizabeth Howard, and a brother Billy, apparently moved to Detroit, Michigan because they were here in the early forties. The information that I have is very little.

He was in the army branch of the military because I saw his dog tags as a child. He was very tall and strikingly handsome as I saw a picture of him. I'd say he might have been 6' 3" tall or more and bronze skinned. One step-aunt brought one of the major Detroit newspapers over to show to my mother somewhere between 1952 and 1958 and discussed an article that claimed a Virgil Howard was killed in an auto wreck at that time. It may or may not have been my father.

I have begun a search officially with the Michigan Department of Vital Statistics and in three months I will know for certain if he was indeed killed during the aforementioned time, but I must explore every avenue available in the meantime. I just can't help but think that there must be some living relatives or at least acquaintances in your state that might be able to tell me something. His blood type was 0 positive because I saw it on his dog tags, that have long since come up missing. I could have used that serial number! He also had a right very front tooth on the top that slightly overlapped the left front tooth near the chewing surface. I know this because when my permanent teeth came in, they were like that and my mother exclaimed "You've got Virgil's teeth, they overlap just like his." My mother's name before she married him was either Wavel Louise Preston, or Wavel Louise Preston Webner, or Wavel Louise Black; or Marvel Louise Preston or Marvel Louise Preston Webner, or Marvel Louise Preston Black. You can see the deception in my maternal family.

Also, my grandmother and grandfather Preston went to their graves well-guarding this secret and therefore eliminating 2/3 of all hope of ever learning anything about the Howards, the other third being my living mother who is quite ill, and who has no intention of helping. I have either overheard or wormed the information I have out of less involved relatives.

If I find my family, the Howard's, and they don't want to be bothered, that's fine. I don't want to disrupt any lives. But lately, at 48, I find myself crying for my father. I never had the luxury before, nor do I have it now, but at least I'm not in my mother's presence and am not shushed. My stepbrother and stepsister, envious of the respect their children show my husband and me, and of the fact that they love to come up here, recently told their children that they shouldn't have anything to do with us, because I am not blood to them and blood has to stick together. So feeling the overwhelming sense of loss of family, recognizing the severe dwindling to a very few in number of those I always thought of as family, and the empty void of a whole missing paternal side of family, intensifies the pain of it all.

Kindness eases burden in time of trouble

Editor:

Recently, my husband, Frank Price, was critically injured in an automobile accident near Paintsville. He was transported by helicopter from Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center to St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington.

His employer, East Equipment Company, provided transportation to St. Mary's for our family to be with him. The company and their employees also assisted us with financial help.

Other members of the community have aided us during this difficult time through financial contributions or through prayers offered on our behalf. Words alone cannot express our thanks for this assistance. The comfort of knowing others are thinking about us helps to ease the burden.

Frank is still in the Surgical Intensive Care Unit at St. Mary's. His recovery is uncertain at this point, and we still need the prayers of families, friends, and fellow Christians.

Once again, thank you for your help.

Bring-A-Bike Day is success, thanks to sponsors

Editor:

I want to thank all of the generous citizens who sponsored a child in our "Bring-A-Bike Day" safety course. I don't know all of you, but I want you to know that with your help, we raised $419.50 for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. This program helps combat two of our most pressing problems in America, bicycle accidents and childhood cancer. I hope that the basic bicycle safety habits stressed in this program will be remembered throughout the year. I know that the research at St. Jude, America's leading center for the study of childhood cancer, will benefit stricken children everywhere. If through this program we prevent an accident and save a cancer-stricken child, your support will be rewarded in full.

ECONOMIC RECOVERY IS POSSIBLE FOR U.S.

By Kenneth Eskey
Scripps Howard News Service
Forget the political rhetoric. Forget all those half-baked promises to jump-start the economy by cutting taxes or spending more money. Face the fact that a president has no magic wand to put millions of Americans back to work.

This economy simply is too big and too complex to be swayed, one way or the other, by the results of a presidential election campaign.

It's going to be a painful recovery, regardless of what happens in Washington over the next six months. Anyone who believes otherwise has a distorted view of what a government with a $4 trillion debt and a projected budget deficit approaching $350 billion or 1993 can do to promote economic growth.

If the politicians don't panic and give away the bank, the outlook should be much brighter a year from now.

"This is still a very strong economy," says Robert Cizik, chief executive officer of Cooper Industries, a manufacturing conglomerate in Houston. "We're seeing some early signs that things may be getting better."

Cizik, who heads the National Association of Manufacturers, polled 120 of his fellow CEOs at their October meeting in Pittsburgh and found little support for quick fixes at government expense.

"They were 4 to 1 against the idea of enacting a short-term economic stimulus package that would increase the deficit," he says. Two-thirds of those polled said they expect a more robust growth rate in 1993, most likely in the second half of the year. Eighty-two percent said they oppose new deficit spending, even if the recovery remains sluggish and slow.

What the country needs, says

Cizik, is a credible program to reduce the federal budget deficit; reasonable limits on product liability and medical malpractice suits, and an affordable health care system.

The best pro-growth medicine, he says, would be final approval of the proposed free trade agreement with Mexico; investment tax credits to spur spending on new plants and equipment, and permanent tax credits for research and development.

Some of this is self-serving, of course. Skeptics argue that tax credits for business investment subsidize expenditures would have been made anyway. But such spending does have the virtue of improving productivity and making U.S. companies more competitive. A tax break could be the difference between modernizing or standing pat.

"I'm here to tell you that we are not increasing our productivity growth rate as we should," says Cizik. "If we don't do something to turn things around, 20 years from now we can forget about being a world super-anything."

Well, that's 20 years away, you say. What about now?

The truth is that the economy is beginning to pull itself out of the mud. Some companies, even without an investment tax credit, are retooling again. You may not believe that if you're a middle manager who's just been laid off by IBM or General Motors, or if you're a college graduate who's living at home and can't find a job.

If you're unemployed, words like "restructuring" and "downsizing" are euphemisms for "We don't need you anymore."

But the low interest and inflation rates, combined with reductions in corporate debt, are making it easier for companies to borrow and invest. Once demand picks up, both at home and overseas, it's not hard to visualize an upsurge in the economy next year.

CLINTON NEEDS TO STIMULATE ECONOMY

by Kenneth Eskey
Scripps Howard News Service
The election of Bill Clinton, first Democrat in 16 years to win the White House, is causing anxiety among corporate executives and investors in stocks, bonds and other securities. They wonder whether he'll be a big government president who expands the federal deficit, drives up interest rates and imposes a string of new regulations on private industry.

That was the picture George Bush painted of the Arkansas governor during the presidential campaign, but there's not much evidence to support it.

By most accounts, Clinton is a political moderate, a professional politician who works well with business, prefers compromise to confrontation and has no desire to roll the financial markets.

"Clinton will not be a tax-and-spender," says Jay Goldinger, chief investment strategist for Capital Insight Inc., a Los Angeles brokerage. "He won't plunge ahead with new programs to prime the pump. He may prove to be a fiscal conservative."

John Makin, an economist at the American Enterprise Institute, says Clinton is in a tough spot: He's got to stimulate the economy with tax breaks while launching a long-term program to slash the federal budget deficit, now approaching $350 billion a year.

Much-needed spending lids on middle-class entitlements such as Social Security and Medicare will run into stiff opposition from doctors and retirees, says Makin, but there's no other way to bring the budget deficit under control.

Independent candidate Ross Perot, a no-nonsense deficit cutter, would tax 85 percent (instead of the current 50 percent) of Social Security benefits received by affluent retirees. Perot was on the right track, but try telling that to the old-age lobby on Capitol Hill.

Everyone in Congress has a favorite anti-recession, anti-deficit proposal, but here's what Clinton is likely to do:

- Seek to increase the top tax rate on couples earning more than $200,000 a year from 31 percent to 36 percent and offer a one-year tax credit to companies willing to invest in new plant and equipment.
- Propose a $20 billion public works program for 1993 to put people to work and give hard-hit cities and states a boost. This one is questionable, not only because a massive road-building program already is under way, but because public works financed by federal deficits eat up capital that otherwise would go into private projects.

- Sharply reduce military spending. Put more money into the Head Start program for pre-school children and enterprise zones for inner-city neighborhoods, programs also backed by Republicans.
- Sign into law a bill, vetoed several times by President Bush, that would grant workers in companies with more than 50 employees unpaid parental leave of up to 12 weeks for family emergencies.
- Begin work on a sweeping reform of the health-care system, including cost containment, a simplified claim form and coverage for millions of Americans who have no health insurance.

The bottom line is that Clinton isn't inheriting a wrecked economy that needs radical surgery. He'll be asking for trouble if he tries to do in 20 minutes what it may take four years to accomplish.

Thacker sentenced to 20 years in murder conspiracy

Convicted murder conspirator Draxie Thacker began a 20-year prison sentence Friday in connection with the 1986 death of her husband. Pike County Circuit Court Judge Bayard Collier ordered Thacker to be taken into custody after her defense attorney, Bernard Pafunda, said he found no legal reason for the sentencing to take place. Collier stipulated that Thacker would be credited with 102 days of jail time she had already served.

Thacker was charged with conspiring with her then-15-year-old son to kill her husband, Ansel Thacker, to collect insurance money. Her son, John Thomas Frasure, was accused of shooting Ansel Thacker in the head with a .22-caliber pistol in May 1986. Frasure was never charged in the incident because he was a juvenile at the time of the killing. — Appalachian News Express

Pike school systems plagued by unexpected sporting goods bills

The Pike city and county school systems are trying to get to the bottom of some unexpected bills they received this year for sporting equipment purchased, in some cases, more than three years ago.

The bills from Lowe's Sporting Goods, based in London, began arriving at the county board in October. The statements showed that Belfry High School owed the store $48,765.38 and that Elkhorn City High had an outstanding balance of $3,932.35.

School officials said they were caught off guard by the bills' arrivals because neither the monthly financial statements from the individual schools nor annual audits had turned up the debts. School board members were steamed and ordered "investigative audits" for all schools at the urging of Superintendent Larry Burke. — Appalachian News Express

Student not drunk before fall

An Eastern Kentucky University student who fell 11 stories to her death October 28 was not intoxicated when she fell, a toxicology report indicates.

Holly Goodrich, 20, a junior from Knott County, fell from the middle of three windows of her dorm room in Telford Hall, where 650 female students live.

Toxicology results released Monday showed a blood alcohol level of 0.071 percent, less than the 0.10 required to be considered intoxicated in Kentucky. No other drugs were detected in Goodrich's blood stream, Madison County Coroner Embury Curry said Monday.

University police continue to investigate the case, but they said no evidence of suicide exists. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Magoffin judge-executive, foreman arrested after parking lot squabble

Interim Magoffin County Judge-Executive Beecher Barnett and former road foreman Billy Joe Howard were arrested Monday after a confrontation which allegedly stemmed from a lengthy landfill dispute.

The incident occurred when Howard pulled into a parking space reserved at the county courthouse for Barnett, who was appointed last month to replace the late Charles Allen.

"I told him that we'd been parking like this forever," said Howard, who was recently laid off by Barnett. "One word led to another, and he drew his knife out and told me he'd cut my head off."

Howard said Barnett hit him once in the shoulder. Barnett said it was Howard who instigated the fight.

Howard swore out a warrant charging Barnett with fourth-degree assault and terroristic threatening. Barnett filed charges of terroristic threatening and harassment against Howard, saying the confrontation appeared staged.

They are scheduled for arraignment December 1. Barnett was released on a $4,000 bond, Howard on a $2,000 bond. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Key Health Care Reform element saves millions, earns U.S. vote of confidence

One of the major components of Kentucky's health care reform plan — physician managed care for Medicaid-eligible mothers and children — has gained a critical endorsement by the federal government, Gov. Brereton C. Jones announced recently.

The U.S. Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) has approved a two-year waiver to continue the Kentucky Patient Access and Care (KenPAC) System. Under the Social Security Act, states must obtain a waiver from HCFA in order to modify Medicaid coverage.

"KenPAC has a proven six-year track record in two areas of major importance to health care reform: cost containment and preventive treatment," Jones said.

"Last year, a University of Kentucky study estimated that the KenPAC link of 300,000 mothers and children to 1,088 primary care clinics and physicians saved Kentucky more than $125 million in unnecessary Medicaid costs," he said.

"Even more important is the impact KenPAC has had on the quality of care for its clients. In independent surveys, doctors and patients alike said that the continuity of care improved under KenPAC's managed care approach giving the physician responsibility for primary care and referral to specialty care."

Gov. Jones' health care reform plan would seek federal waivers to allow Kentucky to extend Medicaid to cover eligible persons living at 200 percent of the poverty level, privatize the administration of the Medicaid program, cover adult day care, home care and foster care services for the elderly under Medicaid, and to include all Medicaid and Medicare participating in the managed care "Megapool" that would include between 1.5 and two million Kentuckians.

Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Leonard E. Heller said the federal approval to continue KenPAC had a unique outcome this year.

"Because of KenPAC's six-year success story, HCFA has relieved Kentucky of the normal requirement of an independent assessment of the program's continued effectiveness," said Heller.

"This is a significant departure from HCFA's normal response to a state waiver request, and we believe it undercuts the federal government's confidence in Kentucky's ability to carry out original health care initiatives with equal attention given to cost containment and good patient care."

Heller said the state estimates that since KenPAC's implementation in 1986, the state has saved in excess of $296 million in Medicaid costs through preventive medical treatments and avoidance of unnecessary expenses such as emergency room care for non-emergency ailments.

Jones said the HCFA evaluation of KenPAC and the election of Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton as president-elect are a double boost to Kentucky's health care reform plans.

"KenPAC has definitively shown that innovative Kentucky ideas can cut health care costs without a negative impact on quality, and that will work for us when we seek additional waivers under the final reform plan," he said.

"At the same time, HCFA traditionally mirrors the policies of the White House, and Gov. Clinton's national health care plan has already been favorably compared with the ideas we're working on here.

"Together, these are positive signs that we're going in the right direction."

Unemployment rate decreases for area counties

In the Big Sandy region, the unemployment rate decreased from a revised 10.3 percent in August to a preliminary 9.6 percent in September. Local rates ranged from 7.3 percent in Johnson County to 14.8 percent in Magoffin County, one of two counties in the ADD with a rate at or above 10 percent. Floyd County recorded 8.4 percent.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 44.3 percent had worked in mining, 14.8 percent in trade, 12.5 percent in construction and 9.5 percent in services.

Andalucian Night held at PCC

As a way of internationalizing the campus at Prestonsburg Community College, Dr. John Shiber presented a program on Thursday, November 5th, entitled "Listening To and Appreciating Spanish Gypsy Music" in which he acquainted people with this unique, down-to-earth, and quite beautiful music.

Dr. Shiber played tape-recordings of several different Andalucian singers (some of whom he knows personally), each accompanied by a flamenco guitarist. As the music played on, he explained a little bit about life in southern Spain and why this music continues to be such an integral part of its culture. He also had a number of souvenirs on display which are representative of that area.

Anyone interested in participating in such a class, which is free and open to everyone of all ages, should contact the Continuing Education Office at the college for more information.

*Editor's Note: As a service to the many clubs and committees that meet in our community, the Floyd County Times' Community Calendar will post meeting and public service announcements. ## Floyd man attends meeting in Frankfort Elmer Morrison, chairman of Wayland Senior Citizens, and a member of the special advisory commission of Senior Citizens, represented Floyd County at a two-day commission meeting held in Frankfort, November 5-6.

The panel, which advises the Kentucky General Assembly on a variety of issues, heard from Sue Tuttle, Director of the Division on Aging in the Human Resources Cabinet. She briefed commission members about the recently completed Governor's Conference on Aging. The commission also began the process of issue development and research in order to prepare its recommendations for the next session of the legislature, Mr. Morrison said.

Gov. Jones has said he intends to call a special session of the legislature early next year to address the current health-care crisis, a critically important issue to most older Kentuckians.

Michael Hammonds of the Governor's office also spoke. He said that the main thrusts of the governor's proposed health-care initiative stress universal access and cost and quality control. He described the current situation where almost 500,000 Kentuckians lack basic health insurance as intolerable. Hammonds said the administration feels a sense of urgency to press forward since so many Kentuckians do not have access to adequate health care.

Universal access will be accomplished through mandated coverage provided by employers, he said. For those small businesses which cannot afford to provide health insurance, the state will provide some form of financial assistance either through tax incentives or a monetary subsidy.

In an attempt to control spiraling medical costs, the state would create an insurance mega-pool of about two million people including state workers, teachers, medicaid recipients and state and local retirees. The larger pool would give the Commonwealth more leverage in price negotiations with health care providers. Anyone seeking to purchase insurance would be able to do so through the mega-pool.

The plan would also create a new health care rate-setting authority which would also have the power to halt the unnecessary duplication of services which frequently drives up the cost of basic health care. Also included in the proposal is the creation of an arbitration panel which would have authority to review all insurance claims and, if necessary issue binding judgments.

The Special Advisory Commission of Senior Citizens, formed 14 years ago, provides a forum through applications. The following is a list of dates in which people can apply, according to the first letter in their last name:

- F, G: November 18.
- H: November 19 or November 23.
- I, J: November 24.
- K, L: November 25.

Pikeville College students selected for Jeopardy tryouts

Two Pikeville College students have been selected to audition for the Jeopardy College Championship. The students underwent a personal interview, a two-hour written examination, and a mock Jeopardy game in Orlando, Florida last week, at MGM studios. This preliminary competition will determine whether or not they will be selected to compete in the championship.

Dwayne Stevens, the son of Leonard and Glenda Stevens of Harold, is a junior, majoring in Chemistry and Biology. He is a member of the Academic Team, Science Club and the Student Government Association.

Leigh Ann Smith is also a junior this year at Pikeville College. She is the daughter of Russell and Sue Smith of Dana, a member of the Academic Team, Arts and Literature Club, and fiction editor of the Pikeville Review.

If selected, students will be flown to Los Angeles, California for tapings of the championship tournament on February 22 and 23, 1993. The competition will be a ten-game affair, with all players guaranteed at least $1,000. In some ways, Latisse Tackett is an ordinary 4 1/2-year-old. She spends at least an hour a day coloring and she loves to play with her toys. What makes her extraordinary is that Latisse is a kindergarten student (younger than most kindergartners) who can read, write and spell. For the last year, she has been a model with Affiliated Models, Inc., based in Utica, Michigan.

Tackett's modeling career began when she was in a beauty pageant. A photographer wanted her to come in for some photos. She did. Tackett's mother sent in some pictures and she was signed to an agency.

Latisse has appeared in advertisements for K-Mart, Hudson's, Jacobson's, Frank's Nursery and Crafts, Allman's, and UHL and has done some fashion show work. She appears on four toy boxes from American Plastic toys, as well. Around here, those toys are in stock at K-Mart and Wal-Mart.

This busy 4 1/2-year-old usually does some kind of work about twice a month. In addition to school and modeling, Latisse takes tap and singing lessons. Last August, she sang at the Michigan State Fair.

Tackett is the daughter of Harold "Bub" and Margaret Tackett, who are formerly of Hi Hat. They now reside in Taylor, Michigan. She is the granddaughter of Delores Tackett of Hi Hat.

When asked what she'd like to be when she grows up, "I'd like to be a nurse like my momma." "I'd like to be a cheerleader, too." She added that she gets embarrassed when her mother brags on her, but said, "I like to see myself in the papers, though."

Just recently, Latisse was signed with Affiliated's film department. Her mother said that Latisse could try acting if she wanted to. She is expected to be auditioning for some commercials in the future.

All the money Latisse makes goes into a bank account. "We're going to save it for her future," commented Margaret, Latisse's mother. "She can use it for college or to buy a car. It will come in handy for her." After such a fine start, Latisse's future could be very bright.

Since 1971, the Close-Up Foundation has attracted more than 335,000 high school students, teachers, and older Americans from all 50 states, U.S. territories, and foreign countries. The annual Close-Up programs allow people to become more familiar with the Washington, D.C. area, talk with the nation's leaders, take part in visits to the Supreme Court, Senate, Library of Congress, etc.

The only school in Floyd County to visit this program was McDowell High School. Gary Frazier, who was then a social studies teacher at the school, took approximately six students on the trip during the 1981-82 school year. He took another group the following year. After that, Ogie Stone took the Close-Up group until 1985. This is when Bobbie Lynn Moore took over the program.

This year, Ms. Moore and her group will attend the Pacific Crossroads Close-Up session in Honolulu, Hawaii. Each year the organization offers a different learning experience. Last year and this year, the students who attended and will attend the Pacific Crossroads session will learn about trade agreements, imports, government of the island, and the history and culture of Hawaii. Each year the Washington trip is offered, and the alternate sessions are offered in two-year segments.

Since Ms. Moore has been the head of McDowell's Close-Up program, she has taken over 150 students on the trip. The McDowell group always has the most participants from the tri-state (Ky., W.Va., Ohio) area.

As well as learning about the government, the M.H.S. students room with the students from other states. The Alaskans students went to an island school where they had to fly to play basketball games. As well, they have roomed with students from Indian reservations and schools with an enrollment of less than 29 pupils.

The cost of the trip is paid by the students. That price includes lodging, transportation, designated transit expenses, meals, program instruction, sightseeing, entertainment, academic materials, tickets to the theater or other cultural event, a banquet, etc. McDowell's program has a very active boosters program. They have concession stands, ballgames and other fundraising projects. Anyone wishing to donate to the program can contact Bobbie Lynn Moore at 377-6202. All donations are tax-deductible and will be very appreciated.

PCC historians discuss favorite moments in Kentucky history

The November event in the College-Community Round Table Series sponsored by Prestonsburg Community College will be another in the Kentucky Bicentennial tribute series. Entitled Faculty Members' Favorite Moment/Event in Kentucky History, this round table will feature PCC's historians speaking about events with which they are familiar.

The event will take place on Thursday, November 19, from 6:30 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. The location has been changed from campus to the May Lodge at Jenny Wiley State Park because it will be presented as a part of the Elderhostel taking place at the lodge.

Presenting historians and topics will include the following: Tom Carroll, early settlement, crossing the gap; Kathleen Carroll, brotherhood rally, standing down the klan in Prestonsburg; Doug Herman, anti-evolution bills in the 1920's; Carolyn Turner, 1880's, John C. C. Mayo and coal; and J. B. Wells, the civil war in the Big Sandy.

The group's moderator, Eileen Lewandowski, has indicated that the usual round table format will be used—that is, the presenters will talk about their areas of concern for about 10 minutes. At the end of each presentation, there will be a few moments for questions or comments from the other panelists and audience. The program will conclude with an open forum during which others can add their favorite events/moments in Kentucky history, time permitting.

Babbage announces high voter turnout in Floyd County

A total of over 64 percent of the registered voters in Floyd County participated in the November 3 election, according to Secretary of State Bob Babbage. "Citizens of Floyd County can continue to help rebuild the democracy by continuing to encourage voter registration and voting," Babbage said.

Records for voter registration in Kentucky were set in the past year and 1,489,132 Kentuckians voted in the recent general election.

Local officials, business and community leaders took active roles in 1992 to help with programs to boost registration and voting, Babbage said.

Many of the voter registration programs implemented in 1992 through the Secretary of State's office, the State Board of Election and Democracy Incorporated of Kentucky will continue.

"Our goal is to continue to invite Kentuckians into the democracy," he said. Babbage explained that programs will be implemented to explain voting and the election process to school students who are eligible to vote for the first time and for pre-voting age students. Other programs will continue to focus on voter education and ways all eligible citizens can participate.

"We experienced the highest single year of new voter registration in the period between the 1991 and the 1992 general elections," he said. "Our goal in rebuilding the democracy should be to maintain and increase citizen participation," Babbage noted.

"Election day turnout is usually higher in presidential election years and seems to decline in following years," Babbage said.

"Local elections are just as important to the individual citizen as are presidential elections," Babbage observed. "All government and all government decisions directly affect the citizen. Therefore each citizen's voice is equally important in any election."

Local officials, district and circuit judges and commonwealth attorneys will be elected in 1993, Babbage said.

Q: Is there really a pill now that can prevent breast cancer?
A: Women all around the country are helping answer that question by taking part in a new study to see if the medication tamoxifen can prevent breast cancer. All women are at risk for this disease, but the study will include only those women who have the highest risk—women who are 60 years old and older or who have certain risk factors, such as a mother, sister or daughter with breast cancer.

Half the women on the study will take tamoxifen for five years. The other women on the study will take a pill that looks just like tamoxifen but contains no medication (a placebo). All women on the study must agree to regular examinations for five years. Most of this care can be given at the health department or by a family doctor.

If you are concerned about breast cancer and think you might be eligible for the study, call 1-800-4-CANCER, the Cancer Information Service, to find out more information. The Breast Cancer Prevention Trial is being conducted at several locations in Kentucky (Lexington, Louisville, Ashland, Bowling Green and Edgewood) as well as in neighboring states.

Wade places 17th in state cross-country

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When Allen Central cross-country runner Jessica Wade crossed the finish line in last week's state cross-country meet at the Kentucky Horse Park Camp Ground in Lexington, she knew that she had done well.

"When I saw her come across the finish line," said Allen Central coach Dewey Jamerson, who made the trip to Lexington to encourage her. "The look on her face was worth it all. She knew that she had done well."

Wade, one of the top female runners in the state in track and field, placed 17th out of 118 runners with a time of 16:09. Wade is a hard worker and can be seen often running in the early morning hours as well as in the evenings.

"Jessica runs with a lot of dedication," said Jamerson. "That is why she does as well as she does. She runs every morning and evening because she wants to."

Wade missed eleventh place by just five seconds in her first-ever state cross country meet.

"She wasn't straining at all when she came across the finish line," said Jamerson. "She told me that although she wasn't straining, she just couldn't go any faster. But she did say that had she known she was so close to the finish line that she might have been able to take out a couple of runners ahead of her."

Wade has been one of the pleasant surprises in the track and field, cross country events for Allen Central. She didn't become involved in any of the running until her sophomore year.

"I first saw Jessica in the Red, White and Blue 5K race in Martin. I talked to her and she came out for the track team her sophomore year," explained Jamerson.

Anthony Moore is the cross-country coach at Allen Central but was unable to make the trip to the state meet.

Coach Jamerson said that he was looking for a great season this spring when track and field begins.

"We are expecting several new people to come out this year," he said. "Forrest (Hughes) has been talking to some of the students at Maytown and we hope to have some of others come out for the first time."

A force of one!

Regional semifinals...

Blackcat's defense ends Russell's season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Russell High School's head football coach Ivan McGlone may have felt like a prophet when he said that the Prestonsburg Blackcat's defense would "be a challenge to us" in last Friday night's semifinal regional contest at the Prestonsburg stadium.

That statement may have been just a passing one, but it turned out to be on the button. On a chilly Friday night, the Blackcat's defense was the culprit that handed the Red Devils a 13-3 loss thus ending the season for Russell.

This game had it all. Great plays, hard hitting, great defense and controversy. Controversy!

It was an active Prestonsburg bench that was quick to point out that Russell had touched the football after an awful punt by Prestonsburg. After a poor punt attempt by Jody Cornette from his own 18-yard line traveled upfield for only 12 yards, the Prestonsburg players fell on the ball and immediately Prestonsburg coach Bill Letton and his coaching staff began to point to the play claiming the football had touched a Russell player and the Blackcats had recovered the football. The official agreed with the assessment and awarded the Cats the football on their own 33-yard line.

"We have always taught our players to cover the football on a punt attempt such as that," said Coach Letton. "The ball did touch the player. It rolled up his chest."

While there was some hesitation in making the call, the Blackcats did get the ball back, something that did not please Coach McGlone.

"There was some doubt in the official's mind," said McGlone, concerning the call. "You could see that he was hesitant in making the call. I feel the Prestonsburg coaching staff got the call made."

It turned out to be a big break for the Blackcats as they retained possession of the football instead of Russell taking over on the Prestonsburg 30-yard line.

Sports commentary...

"Where have all the fans gone?"

It has become a quite a mystery as to why Prestonsburg football fans have not been turning out in large numbers for the regional playoffs that have been going on at the Prestonsburg stadium entering the third week this Friday night.

Anticipated record attendance has not materialized as it was first thought when the Blackcats captured first place in the district and held the home field advantage throughout the playoffs. It was thought that the crowds would be overflowing with the excitement this year's team has created. But that hasn't been the case in the first two games.

While this past Friday night's attendance was a little over 200 more than the first night against Mason County, still Prestonsburg Athletic Director Gordon Parido is still hoping that Blackcat fans will turn out in large numbers to support the Blackcats against Lawrence County, who were District 1 champions this year.

"It may have been the cold weather we've had the first two nights of the playoffs," questioned Parido. "People just don't seem to be as excited about the playoffs as before."

"It's not like basketball, where when tournament time comes around there's still that enthusiasm," said the Prestonsburg AD. "We're hoping that the fans will turn out this Friday night."

Prestonsburg had a very good gate against Sheldon Clark when the game drew over 1400 paid fans. But the playoffs have just not produced the numbers that was hoped for.

Changes in Right Beaver Classic announced

Tournament Director Rick Hancock announced a change in tonight's schedule of games in the Right Beaver Classic basketball tournament that will be played at the Maytown gym.

Due to the large crowd that has been in attendance in the first round, the Martin and McDowell boys game will be played at 5:30 instead of the scheduled 7 p.m. start. The Duff girls will meet the Auxier girls at 7 p.m. and the Auxier boys will face the Duff boys in the 8:30 p.m. game.

The move was made to better handle the fans who want to see the games.

Adams Middle School versus John M. Stumbo. Speed against strength. Both teams boasting some of the top players in the county in grade school basketball. Billed as the highlight game of the Right Beaver Classic tournament. Fans say that it should have been the championship game.

But the way the pairings went, the two teams ended up in the same bracket and were paired against each other in the first round.

David Turner turned in a stalwart performance and Wesley Samons and John Ortega did not let size (the lack of it) intimidate them.

Turner scored 15 points to lead the Blackcats to a 56-47 win over a determined and good Stumbo team. But Turner also had some needed help in Samons and Ortega. Samons finished the game with 11 points with Ortega one point behind scoring 10 points.

It was the awakening of Turner in the second half that allowed the Blackcats to build a lead in the third period. Turner did not score in the first half but opened the third quarter with a jumper off the right side to give Adams a 25-18 lead early in the third period.

Stumbo, behind their standout guard Rocky Newsome, mounted a comeback in the fourth period only to see it stall out.

Down 50-38 to the Blackcats with just over a minute remaining in the game, Keith Vance hit a three-pointer to cut the lead to nine points. Newsome, down the lane, hit a fade

Stumbo defeats Adams, 36-32

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was a rematch of last year's county championship game, only this time with different results. Ashley Tackett scored 23 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to lead the John M. Stumbo Lady Mustangs to a 36-32 victory before a packed Maytown gym Monday night.

Sunshine Bates topped all scorers with 22 points for Adams. Jenna Fannin added six and Crystal Layne scored four.

Penny Tackett had five points for Stumbo with Krystal Newsome scoring four.

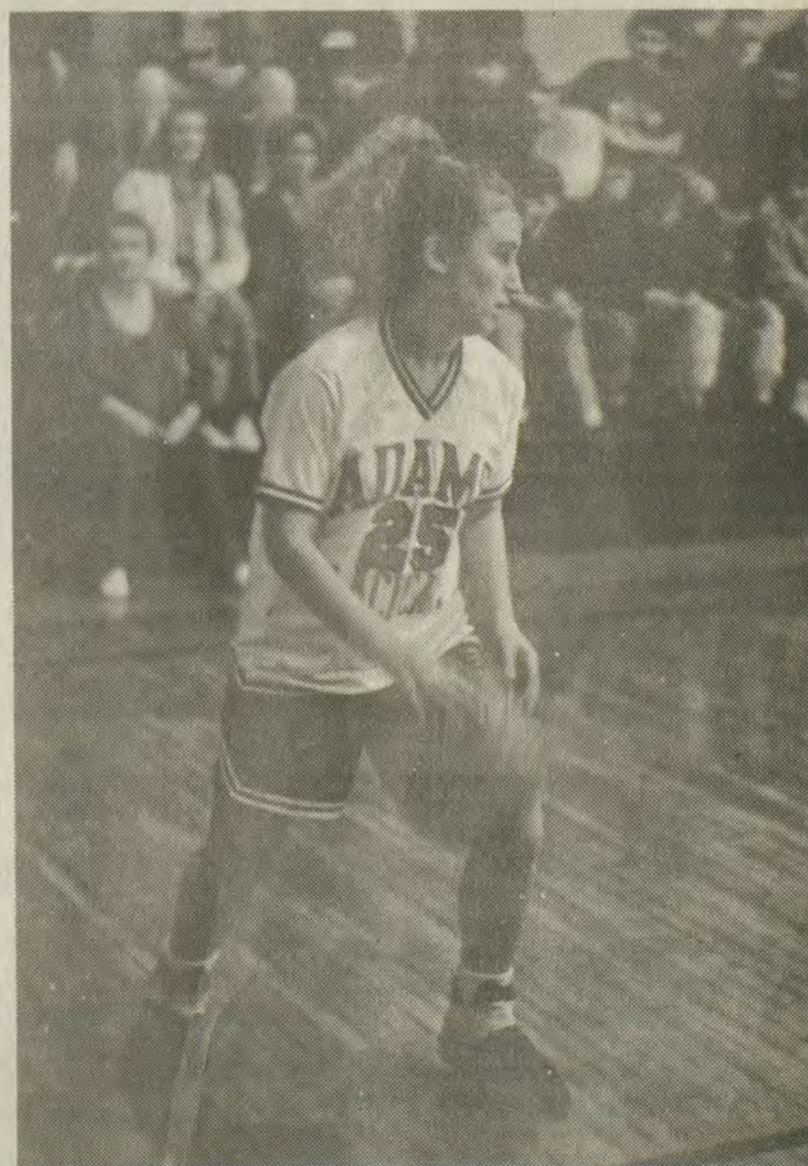

The Maytown gym was filled with basketball hungry fans as they continued to pour into the small gym. The seating capacity for the gym is only 500, but the crowd exceeded that.

In last year's county championship game, the Lady Blackcats ambushed the Lady Mustangs and handed them a loss in their quest for a county championship. But this time around Stumbo survived the onslaught.

The score was tied at 26-26 at the end of the third period and entering the fourth stanza. Tackett hit the back side of a two-shot foul to give the Lady Mustangs a 27-26 lead. Stumbo took a three-point lead at 29-26 before Adams scored the next two baskets to go on top 30-29. Penny Tackett's free throw tied the game at 30-30.

Adams was called for a three-second violation and Stumbo capitalized on the mistake by scoring the next four points on two free throws by Ashley Tackett and two from

Blackcats

The defensive unit for Prestonsburg came up with what was a big goal line stand when Russell moved the football to the Blackcat's 4-yard line just before the first half ended.

The Red Devils were facing a first-and-goal situation but failed on the four attempts to move the ball across the goal line. On a fourth-and-goal, Dwayne Garza punted Mike Cross for a 2-yard loss giving the football over to the Blackcats.

"Our defense was spectacular tonight," said Letton. "We had so many penalties last week (Mason County game) but we were able to cut those down tonight."

Last week Prestonsburg was assessed 100 yards in penalties and was flagged but four times for 40 yards against Russell.

With 4:20 left in the game, Jason Crisp came up with a big interception for the Blackcats, a play that sent the Prestonsburg bench into celebration.

"I was lucky," said Crisp of the interception. "We knew they were going to throw the football so we had good coverage downfield. It was a big play. But our defense tonight was great. They held Russell when they had a first-and-goal and that turned out to be a big play for us. We held them just before halftime and then we got the ball to start the second half."

Russell took the first lead at 3-0 on a 32-yard field goal by Steve Thompson that concluded a good drive by the Red Devils. The drive covered 36 yards and the time expired just as the ball split the uprights.

Garza took the opening kickoff, to start the second period, and returned the ball 29 yards to their own 44-yard line. Prestonsburg went the 66 yards that saw quarterback Aaron Tucker carry the ball into the end zone from 2-yards out with 5:46 left in the quarter and Marcus Araujo added the extra point to give Prestonsburg what proved to be all the points they would need.

Prestonsburg put the "icing on the cake" in the fourth quarter when Seth Hyden scored on a 9-yard run with 5:29 remaining in the contest. Araujo added the extra point but a penalty flag brought the ball back to the 10-yard line for a second attempt. The PAT was blocked but the Cats led 13-3.

Kevin Vaughn played a super defensive game for the Blackcats for the second straight week. Vaughn had seven first hits and two solos.

"It was a good game for us," said Vaughn. "I think it was the best defensive of the season for us. Seth and Dwayne both played a great game on offense."

Why has the past two games been Vaughn's best? "I don't know," he responded. "Just being in the playoffs, I suppose."

"The turning point in the game was the goal line stand the defense made in the second quarter," said Hyden, who rushed for 85 yards on 19 carries. "It was very physical game but it ended like we wanted it to."

Tucker, who had only one pass completion against Mason County a week ago, was zero for three against the Red Devils but, according to the senior quarterback, the Blackcats did not look to throw against Russell.

"We didn't look to pass," said Tucker. "We just wanted to use our power game and the sweep. We knew they couldn't control Seth or Dwayne. We also got some good blocking from Matt Porter."

Tucker echoed his feelings that the turning point in the game was the goal line stand they had in the second quarter.

"They had the ball first and goal on the three," said Tucker. "It was a big, big play for us when we stopped them. I feel that it was the turning point in the game."

The goal line stand turned the momentum around for us," said Kyle Fitzpatrick. "It had to be a frustrating time for them not to be able to score after moving to the 5-yard line. The only points they got was what we gave to them and that was the field goal."

Fitzpatrick, like many of his teammates, said that it was "a great feeling to defeat Russell"

Defensive lineman, Larry Morris, said that the defense just took upon themselves to win this one.

"Our offense had been struggling some," said the sophomore lineman. "so we (defense) just took up on ourselves to stop Russell."

"This is a team that just will not quit," remarked Coach Letton. "Just something about this team that makes them arise to the occasion. There's just something special about them."

One would have to wonder what would have been the outcome if the defense had not been in place.

"Well, our defense certainly showed up tonight," said senior center Dickie Johnson. "They played hard and they also showed a lot of character. We can credit the defense for this win. Todd (Clark), Matt (Porter) and Kevin (Vaughn) played real good for us tonight. Matt also ran the ball a few times for us and he ran real hard along with our other backs."

Garza led the ground game for Prestonsburg with 101 yards on 21 carries. Hyden finished with 85 yards and scored one touchdown.

While Prestonsburg had no yardage through the air, Tucker directed this team on offense and showed what he had been showing all season — maturity.

The final stats shows how balanced a defensive game this one was. Glenn May, Todd Clark, Kyle Fitzpatrick and Ryan Elliott each had five first hits in the game, as well as Vaughn. Clark had four assists as did Brian Horn to go with his three solo hits. Larry Morris came up with four first hits and three solos.

The Blackcats defense held the Red Devils to only 143 total yardage with 134 coming on the ground. Russell was one for four in passing with Jason Rister making the only reception. That came in the fourth period when Matt Robinson hit Chad King with a pass for 9 yards. Robinson came on in the fourth period in place of Chad Malone, who started the game at quarterback. Robinson is supposedly the better passer.

Malone was the leading rusher for Russell with 54 yards on 14 carries. Matt Cross rushed for 35 yards on eight carries.

While the crowd was not a disappointing crowd at Friday night's game, the attendance could have been better. All Blackcat fans, as well as others in the county, are urged to come out this Friday night and show their support for Prestonsburg in the finals of the Region 4 playoffs. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Win $1,000,000 at Betsy Layne or McDowell shooting hoops

Basketball enthusiasts can take a shot at winning ONE MILLION DOLLARS at Betsy Layne High School and McDowell High School in the first annual One Million Dollar Kentucky Shootout, a unique fundraising program benefiting Kentucky High Schools, the National Kidney Foundation of Kentucky and the Kentucky High School Athletic Association. The event is sponsored by The Bank Josephine and Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky.

The One Million Dollar Shootout will culminate at the championship game of the 1993 Kentucky State High School Boys' Basketball Tournament at Rupp Arena in Lexington. One lucky contestant will take a single shot from the mid-court line. If it goes in, he or she will win ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

During the 1992-93 basketball season, over 100 high schools throughout Kentucky, from Paducah to Pikeville, will use the Shootout as an exciting fundraiser at boys' and girls' home basketball games and other events. Contestants can qualify for the Shootout by making a $1 donation.

Each player shoots four free throws. If they hit two out of three, the contestant's name will be entered into a random drawing from which sixteen regional and two "wild card" winners will be selected to participate in a final shootout at the 1993 Kentucky State High School Basketball Tournament.

It will come down to one person attempting a shot from the mid-court line for $1,000,000 (fifty thousand dollars each year for 20 years).

"We would love to see someone make the half-court shot and win," said Mark Haertzen, Director of the event. "The shootout could become one of the most successful fundraisers for charity in Kentucky."

Lady Cats, Bobcats win first game with double victory over Red Devils

The Betsy Layne Elementary Bobcats picked up their first win of the season after suffering two losses in their first two games of the season. The Bobcats got 20 points from Tommy Taulbee and 10 points from Brad Kimbler to nudge the Harold Red Devils 50-43 Monday night.

Randy Coleman led the Red Devils in scoring by tossing in 17 points. Shannon Potter added 13 for Harold and Doug Keathley tossed in 11.

The game was tied at 40-40 with 2:28 left in the contest as Harold tied the game on a three-pointer by Keathley. Betsy Layne missed four consecutive free throws before Harold took a 42-40 lead on a basket by Potter from six feet out with 1:52 remaining. Kimbler's two free throws tied the game at 42-42 and two charity tosses by Taulbee gave Betsy Layne the lead with 1:11 on the scoreboard. Brock Bryant hit the front end of a two shot foul to make it a three-point game at 45-42. Kimbler then followed Bryant to the free throw line and connected on two from the charity stripe to make it a five point game. Harold could get no closer in going down to defeat.

After the Bobcats roared out to a 12-4 lead after the first quarter, Harold caught fire in the second period to pull to within one point at the half.

Betsy Layne scored the first five points of the second stanza on a three-pointer by Bryant and his two free throws to make it 17-4. Harold trailed 20-10 with 2:50 left in the first half. Then they outscored Betsy Layne 10-2 to narrow the lead to two points on a six foot jumper by Keathley with just over a minute left in the quarter.

A three-point play by Coleman brought the Red Devils back to within seven points, 22-15. Three of four free throws by Potter made it a four point affair at 22-18. The latter two free throws by Potter were the result of a technical foul called on the Bobcats.

Getting the ball after the technical foul, Harold made it a two point game on Keathley's basket. But Betsy Layne scored the final seven points of the stanza for a 29-20 lead.

Betsy Layne improved to 1-2 on the year while Harold, in playing their first game, dropped to 0-1.

In the girls' game, Georgia Tibbs scored 17 points and Sabrina Yates tossed in 16 to lead the Lady Bobcats to their initial win of the season - a 43-28 setback for the Harold Lady Red Devils.

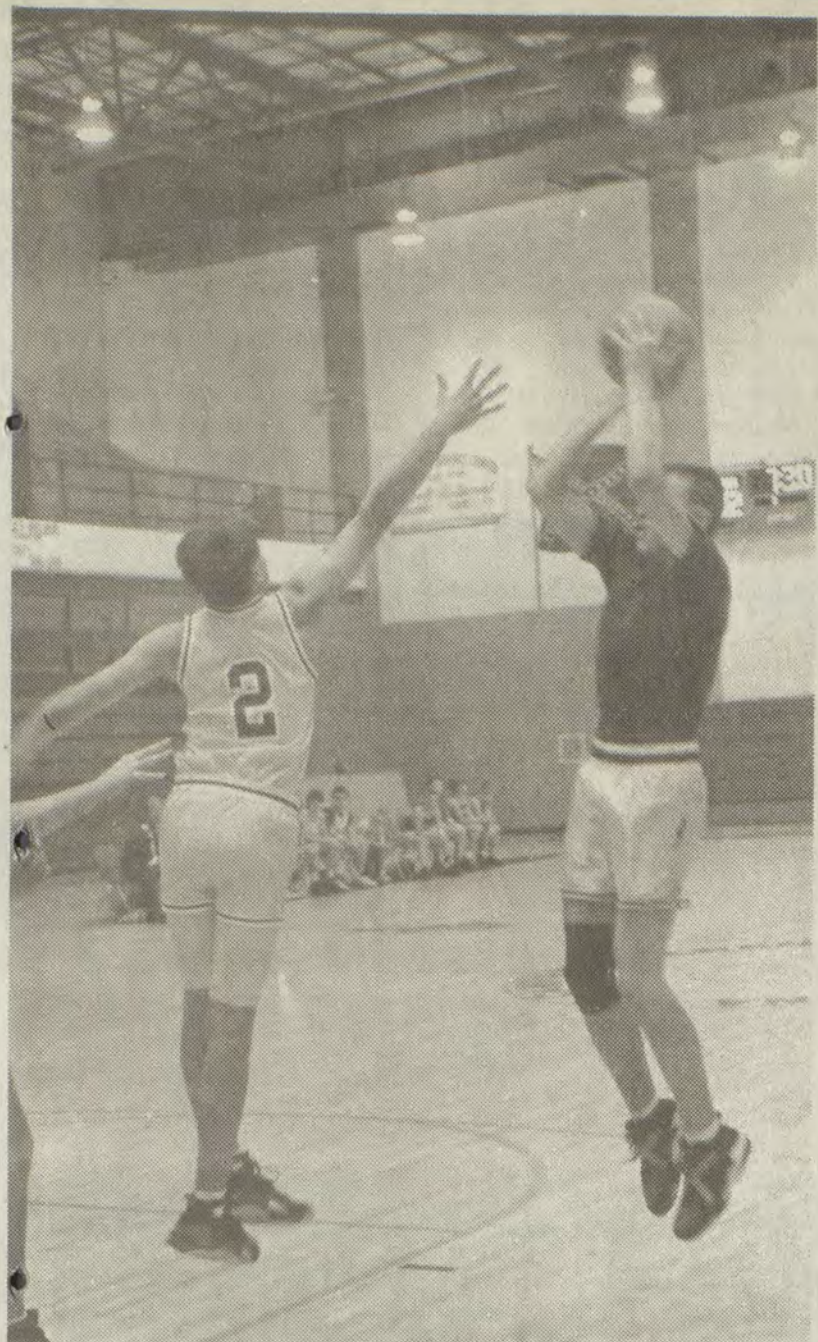

Harold led 6-4 after the first quarter, but a 12-1 spurt in the second period by Betsy Layne netted the Lady Cats a 16-7 halftime lead.

Jess Johnson led all scorers by scoring 23 of her teams 28 points. Tara Johnson had three points for Harold and Ashley Akers netted two.

Kelly Blevins scored four for Betsy Layne. Rachael Thompson had two as did Crystal Scarberry. Angie Hunter and Jessica Hill finished with one point each.

Betsy Layne is 3-0 on the year while Harold falls to 0-1.

Case nets 31 points as Prater Cougars edge Melvin, 48-46

Chad Case scored 31 points to lead the Prater Cougars past the Melvin Cougars 48-46 in elementary basketball play last week at Melvin. Josh Hamilton added nine points for the winners. Hamilton hit the game's only two three-pointers.

Andy Branham led the Cougars with 16 points. Justin Holbrook, off the bench, tossed in nine for the Cougars.

"Melvin just refused to quit," said Prater coach Zenith Hall. "Each time we thought we had them put away they fought back."

Prater jumped out to a 9-2 first quarter lead behind Johnny Kidd's four points, but Melvin came back in the second period and cut the margin to three points at the half, 22-19. Branham scored nine of his team's 12 points in the quarter that triggered a comeback. Branham had one three-pointer in the period.

Prater came back out in the third period and raced to a seven point lead after making some adjustments at half time. But Melvin refused to quit and outscored Prater 13-7, but fell two points short.

Melvin connected on only 12 of 30 free throws against Prater and the cold shooting was their downfall.

Prater (1-2) got three points from Joseph Boyd with Jeremy Conn scoring one point.

Coby Little had six points for Melvin. Scotty Johnson and Randy Adams added three points each. Nicholas Compton scored two points as did Mark Smallwood.

Prater will travel to Osborne tomorrow night (Thursday) to face the Eagles. Prater will host the Auxier Hornets at the Allen Elementary gym on Monday.

Prater will be playing all their home games at the Allen gym.

Fans

"Our lowest regular season attendance was 960," said Parido. "Against Mason County we had 624 paid while this past Friday night we had 960 in attendance that paid."

But, according to Parido, the crunch has hit all playoff teams and not just Prestonsburg.

The coaching staff and school officials would like to urge all Blackcat fans to be in attendance Friday night in support of these young men who have played extremely well on the gridiron this season. Wear the school red and be there for a great evening of high school football.

See you Friday night at the playoffs!

away jumper to make it a 50-43 game following an Adams turnover. Ortega misfired at the charity stripe with 1:05 remaining in the contest and Stumbo moved the ball quickly up court where Craig Johnson hit a short jumper to cut the lead to five, 50-45.

Adams began to get careless with the ball against Stumbo's pressure defense and threw the ball away. The Mustangs took advantage of the mistake and Billy Rogers hit a soft jumper off the left side and the lead was at three, 50-47.

Gavin Hale got behind the Stumbo press and Samons hit him with a pass for an easy basket to put the Blackcats up by five, 52-47. Samons, who was all over the court, stole the ball from Newsome on a critical turnover and he was fouled on the play. Samons drilled both free throws with 19 seconds on the clock for the seven point spread at 54-47. Samons put the finishing points on the scoreboard with two more free throws with just eight seconds on the clock.

Adams jumped out to a 3-0 lead on a basket by Jon Morris and a free throw by Jason Blackburn. A three-point play by Jason Tackett tied the game at 3-3. Adams went on top 6-3 on a Morris free throw and field goal, but back-to-back baskets by Vance and Billy Rogers gave Stumbo the lead at 7-6. Ortega reclaimed the lead for Adams with a basket, but Newsome put the Mustangs up 9-8 with a layup. Ortega scored on a layup following a Stumbo turnover and Adams led 10-9 at the first stop.

Vance gave Stumbo the lead back with a nice inside move to make it a 11-10 game as the lead continued to seesaw back and forth. Samons hit a three-pointer and it was a two point Adams lead. But Newsome, on a great move inside, tied the game at 13-13. That would be the last time the game was tied as Adams ran off the next six points on a basket by Ortega, two free throws and a basket by Hale for a 19-13 game.

Adams pressed Stumbo into two consecutive turnovers, but the Blackcats were unable to take advantage of the mistakes. A free throw and field goal by Vance cut the lead to three, 19-16 as Adams made two mistakes.

Back-to-back baskets by Ortega gave Adams their biggest lead at 23-16. Vance scored just ahead of the horn to make it a 23-18 lead for the Blackcats at the half.

Adams took their biggest lead with 2:08 left in the third period when they went on top by 11 points, 35-24. Adams led 39-30 after the third stanza.

The game was an exciting game from the very beginning with both teams using their players well. Stumbo made some great passes in their unselfish play. Adams did what they had to do in solving the pressure defense of Stumbo.

Newsome led Stumbo with his 16 points and Vance finished with 14. Jason Tackett added nine points for Stumbo with Rogers scoring four.

FISHING/HUNTING AGREEMENT SIGNED BETWEEN KENTUCKY AND ILLINOIS

Kentucky and Illinois wildlife officials have signed an interim agreement to honor either states hunting and fishing licenses on the portion of the Ohio River lying between the two states.

According to Don R. McCormick, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR), the agreement will be beneficial to sportsmen of both states who hunt or fish on the main stem of the Ohio.

"The interim agreement with Illinois is similar to those Kentucky has already established with Indiana and Ohio. Kentucky will honor Illinois licenses along the portion of the river bordering the states, and Illinois will recognize Kentucky licenses," said McCormick.

Licensed resident sportsmen benefit because they will not have to worry about the actual boundary line between the two states, and whether or not they should purchase nonresident licenses.

This interim understanding between the two states will remain in effect until a permanent agreement can be established, pending the U.S. Supreme Court ruling to determine where state boundaries lie. "Hunters and anglers should remember that this agreement only applies in the main stem of the Ohio, not embayments or streams on either side," said McCormick.

Kentucky licensed sportsmen who hunt or fish in embayments or tributaries on the Illinois side of the river must obtain the appropriate license from Illinois.

"Sportsmen will also be required to follow the applicable hunting and fishing regulations in effect for the state where they are licensed," McCormick added.

DON'T FORGET HUNTER EDUCATION REQUIREMENT

Kentucky's deer hunting and other small game seasons are rapidly approaching, and those hunters required to meet the hunter education requirement are strongly encouraged to take the free course as soon as possible and not wait until the last second.

The mandatory hunter education requirement states that all hunters born on or after January 1, 1975, unless license exempt or under age 10, must carry a valid hunter education course completion card while hunting. To get that card, hunters required to have it must attend a 10-hour course provided free by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Courses are held periodically throughout the state all year long. However, similar to those who wait to file their income tax until the absolute deadline, hunters who wait until right before they want to go hunting may find that a course is not available close by two days before a hunting season opens.

The hunter education course is spread across a three-day period, including two evenings of classroom instruction and usually a morning of live-fire range work. The items included in the instruction are required by both federal and state guidelines.

For information about upcoming courses, contact the KDFWR Information and Education Division at (502) 564-4762 or 564-4336. Don't wait and miss out on going hunting when seasons open!

Modern gun deer season Nov. 14-23

With the exception of some counties in the eastern and southeastern portion of the state, modern gun deer season began November 14 and ends November 23. Counties designated in Zone 7, as shown in the 1992-93 Kentucky Deer Hunting Guide, are now open to a five-day modern gun season.

Hunters who have not yet picked up a copy of the Kentucky Deer Hunting Guide booklet are strongly encouraged to do so before hunting. This booklet, available from most license outlets or directly from the fish and wildlife department, contains all the information necessary to have a safe and legal deer season.

Hunters should remember that all harvested deer must be tagged and checked at an official check station. Those hunters not required to purchase a tag must provide their own, attach it to the harvested animal, and then take the animal to a check station.

Wearing solid, unbroken hunter orange clothing on the head, chest and back is also required during the modern gun season, or any period when firearms can be used for deer hunting. Hunters must wear a cap and vest as outer garments which are visible to other hunters while in the field.

Hunters who have any questions about deer hunting should contact the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources at (502) 564-4336 for complete season information. Office hours are Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Ten area teams take on ten out of county teams in panorama

The games started early and lasted into the evening as 20 teams gathered at the Allen Central gym for the Martin Elementary Basketball Panorama this past Saturday. It was a good crowd that turned out for some excellent grade school basketball with teams from Johnson County, Pike County and Knott County providing the opposition for the 10 Floyd County teams.

OSBORNE AND HOPKINS LEAD MCDOWELL TO WIN
Alan Osborne and Justin Hopkins combined for 22 points to lead the MCDowell Daredevils to a 45-31 win over Mullins in the first game of the panorama. Coach John Martin's ballclub looked impressive as they put eight players in the scoring column. Hopkins scored 12 points and Osborne 10 with Jeremy Huff coming in with seven.

Jerry Fields of Mullins led all scorers with 20 points and Bobby Akers netted four points.

The Daredevils followed Osborne with eight first-half points to roll to a 24-11 halftime lead. Hopkins and Steve Hamilton, who finished with five points, each had three-pointers in the game. Fields drilled two treys for Mullins.

Kent Dye netted five points and Sammy Bentley four for the winners. Eric Cook tallied three points while Kris Branham and Brent Ousley scored two each.

Bobby Akers had four points for Mullins with J.R. Goodman and Chris Webb scoring three and two points, respectively. Wes Mullins also had two points for Mullins.

JOHNS CREEK HANDLES MCA EASILY

For the Mountain Christian Academy Falcons, it was a rough outing against the Johns Creek Bearcats in the second game of the morning. Josh Thacker tossed in 16 points and Mike Gillespie added 11 to lead the Bearcats to a 43-27 win over MCA.

MCA trailed at the half 25-15 but cut the lead to eight in the second half only to go cold from the floor and the Bearcats opened things up from that point.

Phillip Butler was impressive for the Falcons with 11 points hitting one three-pointer. Shannon Slone, who is going to be a good one, tossed in eight for the Falcons. Ward Hale added six points and Matthew Mayo finished with two points.

James Lyons had six points for the Bearcats with Jeremy Robinette adding four points. Jonathan Ford, Anthony Estep and Bill Blackburn each scored two points.

CASE TREY GIVES PRATER WIN OVER CANEY

It came down to the last shot and Chad Case of the Prater Cougars took it. It was a three-pointer with time running out. Case pulled up at the 19' 9" circle and let the ball fly with the score tied at 45-45. The ball found nothing but net just ahead of the horn and the Cougars came away with a 48-45 win over Caney Creek in the third game of the panorama.

Case finished the game with a game high 29 points. He was practically unstoppable in the second half when he scored 20 of his 29 points. His quickness allowed him to slipped through the lanes for easy baskets and he drilled some outside shots also.

Jeremy Conn scored six points for Prater as did Johnny Kidd. Joe Burkett added three points with Josh Hamilton tossing in three.

Prater only held a 15-13 lead at the half

JOHNS CREEK EDGES OUT AUXIER

The Auxier Hornets couldn't stand prosperity. The Hornets held a comfortable lead over the Bearcats only to let it get away in the final minutes of the game and saw Johns Creek come back to edge the Hornets 38-37.

Josh Thacker scored 15 points and Mike Gillespie added 10 to lead the Bearcats to victory. Jeremy Robinette added four points with Patrick Nichols adding five. Jonathan Ford scored three with James Lyons netting one.

Catrell Farler and Clabe Hall each scored 12 points to lead the Hornets. Ricky Johnson tossed in nine points before he fouled out. Hall connected on three three-pointers and Farler hit one. Tony Honeycutt and Stewart Daniels each scored two points.

ALLEN STARTS FAST THEN HOLDS ON

The Allen Eagles got off to a fast start against Caney Creek and then had to hold them off in the second half to post a 39-31 win in the panorama.

Brandon Castle scored 13 points and John Hurd added 10 to lead the Eagles in scoring. Billy Mitchell added eight points with Sammy Nelson netting four. Kyle Conley had three points, a three-pointer in the first quarter. Jason Keathley scored 1 for Allen.

Caney was led by Watts with 13 points and Huff added six for the losers.

Allen held a 17-8 lead at the end of the first half and extended it to 15 points before Caney came back to narrow the margin to six points. Caney outscored Allen 23-22 in the second half.

JENKINS POURS IN 25 IN MARTIN WIN

Thomas Jenkins scored 25 points to lead the Martin Purple Flash to a convincing 41-24 win over Johnson Central Elementary in the sixth game of the panorama. Jenkins was all over the court shooting the jumper and taking the ball off the board for some put-backs.

Shane Blackburn had eight points for Martin with Wade Damron scoring six. Brandon Slone had two points. Auxier led Johnson Central with 10 points and Hollan added six.

Martin led 16-8 at the half with Jenkins scoring 11 of the 16 points. Blackburn had the other five first half points.

MAYTOWN ROLLS PAST AUXIER

Jason Shannon scored 14 points and Levi Wells added 11 as the Maytown Wildcats defeated the Auxier Hornets by 20 points, 51-31 in the seventh game of the Martin Panorama.

Ricky Johnson led Auxier with nine points and Tony Honeycutt tossed in seven for the Hornets.

Maytown found the Hornets to be a stubborn team not ready to quit as the Wildcats led by one point at the half, 14-13. But it was all Maytown in the second half as they out scored Auxier 37-18 to open the game up.

The Sonics jumped out to a 6-2 first quarter lead with Absher scoring six of his 14 points in the first period. The Sonics held the Lakers scoreless in the second quarter to take a 7-2 half time lead.

The Lakers tried to rally in the fourth quarter behind Martin but the rally fell short. Fannin scored six points in the final period to offset the scoring of Martin and to hold the come back attempt.

The Sonics are 1-0 while the Lakers drop to 0-1.

Bulls "bullish" in overtime
It took an overtime period before the Bulls could pull out a win over a gammed Bullets team Saturday morning at Adams. Angela Howell scored 10 points to lead the Bulls to an exciting 28-25 overtime win.

The score was tied 24-24 at the end of regulation play. Howell scored four points in the overtime to send the Bulls past the Bullets.

The Bullets held a 8-2 first quarter lead but the Bulls got a balanced scoring attack in the second quarter with Matt Turner scoring four points to narrow the margin to 14-12 at the half. The Bullets led by one point, 17-16, at the end of three-quarters of play. Michael Stephens, who led the Bullets with 12 points, scored five points in the final quarter to tie the game.

Gillispie scored six of his seven points in the fourth quarter when the Hawks outscored the Sixers 14-5 to take the otherwise close game.

The game was tied at the half 4-4 after the Hawks took a 4-1 lead in the first period. The Hawks held a slim one point advantage, 5-4 after three quarters of play before Gillispie got the hot hand in the final stanza. Brannham also turned it up a notch scoring all five of his points in the fourth quarter.

Bo Sturgill had four points for the Hawks with Carly Bingham scoring two. Zachary Hilton had one point.

Jeffrey Allen netted three points for the Sixers with Phillip Allen scoring one.

Pistons edge Hornets behind Hall

The Hornets played the Pistons tough through four quarters but could not sustain the run in falling 15-12 in Junior Pro basketball play Saturday.

Robert Hall scored nine points and Josh Justice added four to lead the Pistons. Hall scored five of his nine points in the final quarter to hold off the efforts of the Hornets.

Matt Tackett lead all scorers with 12 points, scoring all of the Hornets points against the Pistons.

The score was 10-7 at the end of the first half after the Pistons held a 4-1 lead after the first quarter. The Hornets failed to score in the second period and the Pistons did not put any points on the scoreboard in the third period.

Stumbo girls

Penny Tackett. Sunshine Bates drove the lane for two points with 3:18 left in the game. Bates went to the free throw line with 2:37 left and a chance to tie it, but missed on the front of the bonus shot. Ashley Tackett's two free throws gave Stumbo a four point lead with 2:27 remaining, but in the final two plus minutes, Adams was unable to score again.

Stumbo took a 7-4 first quarter lead as Ashley Tackett scored all seven points. The score was tied at 2-2 on Crystal Layne's basket, but a field goal and free throw from Tackett gave Stumbo a 5-2 advantage. Bates scored on a drive through the lane, but Tackett grabbed an offensive rebound and put it back in for a 7-4 game.

Stumbo led early in the second quarter 11-6, but an offensive rebound basket by Jenna Fannin, and a free throw and layup by Bates tied the game at 11-11. Bates was fouled on the shot, but missed the free throw.

After Tackett's free throw gave Stumbo a one point lead, Adams scored the final five points to take a 16-12 lead to the locker room at the half. The lead did not hold up very long as Stumbo came roaring back to go on top 19-18 at the 3:48 mark by scoring seven unanswered points. Tackett scored all seven of the points.

Bates scored on a short jumper following a Stumbo turnover to give the Lady Cats a 20-19 lead. Five straight points by Stumbo, led by Tackett, netted the Lady Mustangs the lead at 24-20. Bates and Layne scored for Adams to tie the game at the end of the third period.

Both teams were very quick. Adams experienced some cold shooting in the early going, but they were beating the Lady Mustangs on the boards for second and third shots. The Lady Blackcats got into foul trouble early in the third period.

Stumbo improves to 2-0 on the season with Adams dropping to 1-1. The Lady Mustangs will face the Lady Eagles of Allen on Friday at 5:30 p.m.

McDowell Lady Daredevils defeat Martin, 22-10

What happens when two young and inexperienced teams get together for a good game of roundball? You usually have a lot of turnovers and a marathon game on your hands.

That is the assessment of Monday night's second game of the Right Beaver Classic when the Martin Lady Flashes tangled with the Lady Daredevils of McDowell. McDowell came away with a 22-10 win, but not without struggling earlier.

The game was marked with numerous turnovers by both ballclubs as both teams are trying to rebuild their programs with young players.

McDowell took a 2-0 lead on the first basket of the game and led by the same score when the first quarter ended.

Martin had many chances to really open the game up in the second period, but could not hit at the free throw line. The Lady Flashes shot 10 free throws, but could only hit two of them to tie the game at 2-2. Martin took their only lead with just over two minutes left in the first half when Jennifer Hopkins scored to give the Lady Flashes a 4-2 lead. McDowell scored the next five points to take a 7-4 lead at the half.

McDowell held Martin to two free throws in the third period in outscoring them 7-2 and taking 14-6 lead. Becky Hopkins, who led McDowell with eight points, scored four in the third-and-four in the fourth as the Lady Daredevils advanced to play the winner of the Allen/Stumbo game on Saturday at 4 p.m.

Hopkins and Howell led Martin with four points each.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENT FLOYD COUNTY TAXPAYERS

Kentucky Law requires the County Attorney to notify taxpayers that delinquent taxes have not been paid so that they may have an opportunity to pay the taxes before a lawsuit is filed against them. In that event, delinquent taxpayers could also be assessed additional costs, including court costs resulting from the lawsuit required to collect the taxes owed.

The Tax Collection Division of the Office of the Floyd County Attorney has been advised by the Floyd County Sheriff and Floyd County Clerk that certain taxpayers have failed to pay their property taxes and are now delinquent.

A letter of notification of delinquent taxes has been sent to the taxpayers who have failed to pay their taxes, giving them notice of this delinquency.

If the taxpayer thinks that he or she does not owe the bill, or if the property had been sold prior to the year(s) of tax liability, or if he or she feels that the property bill is incorrect, he or she should immediately contact the Property Valuation Administrator (Tax Commissioner) and get the bill(s) corrected.

The delinquent taxpayers are urged to immediately take the notice letter to the Floyd County Clerks Office and make arrangements to pay the delinquent taxes, if owed.

Please take notice that the amount stated in the notice letter does not include interest and/or penalties owed by reason of the nonpayment of the taxes. However, the delinquent taxpayer may call the Floyd County Clerks Office, (606 886-3816), and get the exact amount that is due upon receipt of payment. Payment can then be made to the County Clerk either in person or by mailing the payment in check or money order form.

The longer the property tax bill remains unpaid, the more interest and/or penalties will be added, so it is important that the delinquent tax bill is settled immediately.

NOTICE OF TAKING ROAD INTO COUNTY SYSTEM

At the October 16, 1992, regular Floyd County Fiscal Court meeting, the Court received a petition from property owners who live on a roadway off U.S. #23, going from Prestonsburg to Allen, on the right side of the highway, just before the Route #80 Water Gap exit, asking that their roadway be taken into the County Road System. The Court agreed to advertise this roadway before deciding on the matter at the December 18, 1992 regular Fiscal Court meeting, to be held in the Courthouse Annex building at 10:00 a.m. Any comments from citizens should be directed to the County Judge/Executive's office, during normal business hours. If no adverse comments are received, the roadway will be taken into the County Road System at the December Fiscal Court meeting.

MARTIN JR PRO TO HOLD SIGN UPS

The Martin Junior Pro basketball league will be holding sign ups for the upcoming basketball season at the Martin gym this Saturday, November 21 from the hours of noon until 3 p.m.

The league is open to all county kids from the ages of five years old up to 12 years of age.

LOCAL CABLE TO AIR "BLACKCAT HYSTERIA"

"Blackcat Hysteria" has hit the city and CableVision, a local cable station, will be touring the city with their roving reporter to capture the thoughts of Blackcat fans and fans in general concerning Friday night's regional championship game against Lawrence County.

According to Fred James, the program will be aired over CableVision Wednesday night at 7 p.m. and repeated again Thursday morning at 10 a.m. and shown later Thursday at 7 p.m.

The game between Prestonsburg and Lawrence County will be taped and played back Saturday morning at 9:30 a.m. over channel 7.

AND THEN THERE WERE EIGHT...

What started out as a 32 team field has now been reduced to eight as the Class AA football playoffs ended week two last Friday night.

While there were no surprises, there were some close calls. District 1 champions, Lawrence County, had to have some last second heroics to pull off their 12-9 win over a stubborn Fleming County. Seemingly with victory in reach, Fleming County could only watch as Lawrence County got a 44-yard touchdown pass with only nine seconds left in the game.

Jason Wells hauled in Bulldog quarterback Roger Lyons pass with only 18 seconds on the clock. Wells, finding nowhere to go as the clock was running, lateralled to halfback Lee Abshire who ran down the sidelines untouched. Who called such a play? Former Blackcat coach Chuke Williams.

Rockcastle County posted a 12-0 whitewash of Anderson County, setting up a matchup with defending 2A champion Danville this coming Friday night in what will be one of the top games in the state.

Danville destroyed a Corbin team 49-3 to run their record to 12-0 on the year. Danville is the only undefeated team left of the eight remaining teams. The worse record? Elizabethtown at 8-4.

Glasgow ended Bullitt East's dreams with a 42-21 dubbing. Bullitt East had a 6-5 record entering the contest and found out quickly that they could not play with Glasgow. Glasgow built a 42-0 lead after three quarters of play.

Fort Campbell had its way with McLean County Friday night, rolling to a 42-13 win. Glasgow led 21-7 at the half and moved to a 35-7 advantage after three quarters. But for one quarter it was McLean County 7-6.

Mayfield will visit Fort Campbell this Friday night with both teams sporting a 11-1 record. Glasgow (10-2) will entertain Elizabethtown (8-4). Rockcastle County (11-1) will travel to Danville (12-0) while Lawrence County (11-1) will visit Prestonsburg (11-1).

Rick Roberts captures JFK Memorial Classic

Van Lear's Rick Roberts ran ahead of Jackson's Harold Deaton at the 400 yard mark to take the lead in the JFK Memorial Classic 3,000 meter run this past weekend and nosed out Deaton to win the classic with a time of 11:17. Deaton finished 41 seconds slower for second place at 11:58. The race was number 495 for Roberts who has set a goal of reaching 500 career races. Roberts plans to reach and pass the goal this year.

Locally, Paintsville's Cassie Cooper posted a 20:20 to win the women's title.

Marvin McFaddin placed fourth overall winning the 55 and over age group with a time of 12:35. Tim Goble of Oil Springs took fifth overall, winning the 30-35 age group. Goble had a time of 12:54.

Robin Cooper won the 40-45 age group while Brandon Tosti, also of Paintsville, finished second in the 15-19 age group.

"I will be running in the JFK 50 mile Ultra-Marathon this weekend in Hagerstown, Maryland," said the veteran runner Roberts. "I should hit the 500 mark on November 29 and go over the 500 total in the Almost Heaven Marathon on December 6 in Charleston, W. Va."

Roberts said that once his goal is realized he plans to slack off next year and run in local races only.

FISHERMEN CAN GO UP OR DOWN FOR SUMMER BASS

Fishermen looking for hard-to-find summer bass have two options. They can go up or down.

That's the advice from veteran tournament pro Jerry Rhyne of Denver, North Carolina, who suggests anglers go as far up the lake as possible where they may find moving water, or down the lake where they'll find shady boat docks and piers. Bass will use both.

"Two of the primary things bass need are well oxygenated water, and cooler shade," explains Rhyne, a long-time member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and a highly-respected tournament competitor.

"You can usually find current by going far up a lake where it actually turns into a river. Bass in moving water are always more active, because baitfish and other foods are also active and moving.

"This water also will also be more dingy because it's moving, and that helps keep the bass shallow and more active, too."

Rhyne suggests fishing shoreline cover such as logs, stumps and rocks that may offer bass hiding places in the current with plastic worms, jigs, and spinnerbaits.

"Bass will usually be holding behind rocks to escape the main flow of the water, but they will position themselves where they can see food nearby, and rush out to ambush it," says the Johnson pro. "Lure presentation is really important in this type of fishing."

At the opposite end of the lake, summer bass often relate to boat houses, docks and piers that offer shade and cover. In addition, says Rhyne, many dock owners put out brush like discarded Christmas trees and this also helps attract and hold bass.

"The brush is really to bring in crappie," laughs Rhyne, "but bass use the brush, too. If you can find a boat dock with some fishing rod holders mounted on the railing, you can usually bet the owners have put out brush."

Around boat docks, Rhyne prefers to fish small plastic worms with light sinkers and light line. He uses spinning tackle because it allows him to skip the worms far underneath the docks where ordinary casts don't reach.

"On many lakes, boat docks are popular fishing targets in the summer months," he explains, "and the easy-to-reach places like the corners and outside pilings will see a lot of casts."

"The bass simply move further under the docks, and you need to use a little more finesse to catch them."

Rhyne occasionally uses crankbaits around boat houses, which, he says, serve a double purpose. The diving lures locate brush piles and they also catch bass.

"Of the two locations, up the lake or down, I believe I'd rather fish up a lake," he says. "There may not be quite as many bass, but they're often larger, while down the lake there are probably more fish, but they aren't as big."

Service experts at OMC recommend bass fishermen install a water pressure gauge on their boats to warn of possible engine problems caused by loss of water pressure. Trimming the outboard too high, or getting the water intake covered with weeds or mud can cause loss of water pressure that can lead to overheating. A water pressure gauge gives earlier warning of trouble than an engine temperature gauge.

FOLLOW THESE TIPS FOR FISHING CROWDED WATER THIS SUMMER

During the warm summer months, the most dreaded words for bass fishermen are "crowded water."

The implication, of course, is that bass anglers do not mix well with water skiers, pleasure boaters, and swimmers with whom they share the water.

"Sometimes a fisherman can actually use heavy boat traffic to his advantage," says Cliff Craft, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff and a veteran of fishing crowded water on Lake Lanier near Atlanta. "I actually believe that in some areas around bridges and marinas the constant movement of boats keeps the bass more active than they might otherwise be."

"Because of the constant water movement and wave action created by the boats, baitfish are always moving, and that keeps the bass on the move, too."

"Boat docks, marinas, and bridges are always excellent places to fish on crowded lakes. I believe the bass become accustomed to all the activity and adjust to it. I believe they may use the different pilings and structures for extra cover, too."

Another way heavy boat traffic can help bass fishermen, explains the Evinrude pro, is by the creation of mud lines along clay banks and shorelines.

"The steady action of waves along a clay bank will produce an area of muddy water extending 10 to 15 feet out from that shoreline," says Craft, "and there will be a distinct line where this muddy water meets the clear lake water."

"Bass that normally patrol the shoreline will move out of the muddy water and stay right along this mud line, and you can frequently catch them with a crankbait, spinnerbait or plastic worm."

"Sometimes you can move along a mud line like this for more than a hundred yards and catch as many bass as you want."

The best way to fish a mud line, explains Craft, is with long parallel casts that keep the lure in the mud line during the entire retrieve.

"I don't believe heavy boat traffic changes deep water bass, except perhaps to make them go even deeper and become even harder to catch," adds Craft. "The real problem is controlling your own boat in the waves they create."

The Georgia pro believes too many fishermen lose their concentration in boat traffic and then blame that traffic for poor fishing success.

"It is hard to concentrate on fishing when boats and skiers are moving back and forth around you," the former guide admits, "so you have to learn to make the traffic help you."

"Concentrating your fishing around marinas, bridges, piers and mud lines are some of the best ways I know."

OMC System Matched Parts and Accessories offers a spin-on fuel filter, similar to an automotive oil filter, with a treated paper element able to catch particles as small as 25 microns and separate water from fuel. The filter kit is available from Johnson and Evinrude outboard dealers and may be adapted for use with almost any brand of outboard motor.

Small World

by Aileen Hall

CONVICTIONS

Having just come through another major political campaign, we are reminded of just how seriously some people regard their political alliances.

Most people who take an interest in politics at all become very interested and, once convinced of their party preference, they aren't easily swayed in their voting support.

Dr. John Hobbs of Lexington remembers when his grandmother, Leatha Hobbs was Postmaster at Woodburn, Kentucky, in Warren County. A staunch Democrat, she had been appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and her framed certificate with his signature was a matter of great pride to her.

As a college student, Dr. Hobbs remembers that his grandmother bought him a car. He knew about her political convictions, but he must have underestimated how strong they were.

Barry Goldwater was the Republican nominee for President, and young John was excited about his candidacy. Enough so that he put a Goldwater bumper sticker on his car.

Home for the weekend, he decided to go visit his grandmother; but before he got out of the car, she had spotted the decal.

"Young man," she announced, "I'll give you five minutes to get that sign off that bumper—or I'll sell the car!"

He had it off—with two minutes to spare.

A STORY SHARED

The recent campaign was significant to many of us in that our congressional district has been realigned and, for the first time since 1948, we chose someone other than a Perkins to represent us.

I once told Senator Wendell Ford I was interested in picking up some stories about our old friend, Congressman Carl D. Perkins.

"Have you heard about the time he was driving around in his district in an old beatup Ford Falcon?" he asked. "He didn't call it his car or even his Ford. He called it his Falcoon."

It seems Congressman Perkins was driving along on a mountain road when he spotted a familiar house and decided to visit its occupant, an old farmer friend.

He pulled over on the edge of the road, parked his car and walked up an embankment to the house.

No sooner had the old friends engaged in conversation than another driver came down the steep road in an old pickup truck. He ploughed into the car and knocked it over the hill into the farmer's barn where it exploded, burning both the car and the barn.

Mr. Perkins came running out of the house waving his arms. "Young man," he exclaimed, "that was my Falcon you hit."

Maybe the driver was aware of the Congressman's generous nature—or that most any car he drove was pretty much a wreck already—for he heaved a sigh of relief.

"I feel real bad," he said, "but if I had to hit somebody's car, I sure am glad it could be yours!"

Kim's Korner

"Women Are Their Own Worst Critics,"

an article in the Sunday Lexington Herald-Leader by Elizabeth Coady, Kim Frasure struck the initiative for this column.

If you missed it, the article talked about the many roles women have played over the years and how women are always concerned about other women's opinions.

Also mentioned in the article was the notion that we (women) are perceived as property. Well, my mind began to roll on that statement.

Property? It's said we women even believe we belong to somebody. Well, at first I was like, "No way!" Then I read on.

"We primarily think of women in relational terms: somebody's mother (Boy, did I relate to that one), somebody's sister (Again I related), or somebody's wife (Mrs. Bubba related once more)."

Then I began to reminisce of my younger years. Still, I could remember being known as somebody's something rather than Kim.

According to studies by Beverly Guy-Sheftall of Spelman College, men are related to their professional identities—which I can also understand.

We were grocery shopping not long ago and as Ronnie passed by some youngsters, they yelled: "The Computer Man, The Computer Man! Wow!" Now, the next time they see me, I'll be known as The Computer Man's Wife.

I felt, after reading the article, extremely fortunate to realize my own identity. It's really simple. Follow me here.

First, I'm Alvin and Pat's daughter, Ronnie's (otherwise known as Bubba and sometimes referred to as Spouse) wife. Then, of course, Ashleigh's mother and to a younger generation, Tiffany's mother. Oh, let's not forget, Scott's sister, the Republican's daughter-in-law, Judy and Alvin Fields' daughter-in-law (even with Frasure as the last name)—Go figure!

Who? Till next week.

Dr. John Shiber

Presents paper in Ashland

Dr. John Shiber, of Prestonsburg Community College's Biological Sciences Division, recently presented a paper entitled "Drug Abuse, STDs, and Birth Control—A Community College Survey" at the 78th Annual Meeting of the Kentucky Academy of Sciences (KAS) held in Ashland. The paper discusses the results of a two-year survey which Dr. Shiber conducted on PCC Biology students regarding their knowledge and opinions about these topics. A colleague from the Social Sciences Division, Dr. Nnamdi Anosike, provided an interdisciplinary contribution to the part of the discussion dealing with drug abuse.

Dr. Shiber's paper, which was presented under the auspices of the Psychology Section of the Kentucky Academy of Sciences, was very well-received and triggered a number of stimulating questions from the 35-40 people in attendance, many of whom requested personal copies. The abstract of the paper will be published in the March 1993 volume of Transactions of the Kentucky Academy of Sciences, the official scientific journal of Kentucky.

At 87, Molly Stapleton is an academic achiever

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

In 1924, when Molly Stapleton was 18 years old, she fell in love with a young man and they decided to get married. Although she lacked only one and a half credits to graduate from Maytown High School, she quit school to become a wife and a mother.

"I got married and quit school to raise a family," she said during a recent interview at the Betsy Layne Senior Citizen Center. "It's been seventy years since I went to school."

She paused as her mind reeled back over the years. "So many years have gone by that it's hard to remember exact dates," she said apologetically. But at age 87, her memory is marvelous and her mind is sharp and clear, so much so that she recently returned to school to finish her high school education.

Stapleton is a student in an adult education class designed to help adults further their basic education and, in most instances, earn their GED or high school diploma. The class meets at the Betsy Layne Senior Citizens Center Mondays and Wednesdays 1p.m. - 4p.m. and is a satellite of the David School adult education program.

"I had been wanting to finish school for along time," Stapleton explained as she sat in class at the center, a government book opened before her. "I always loved school all my life."

She was born in 1905 at the tiny community of Pin Hook and attended a one-room school at Wilson Creek near Maytown. After graduating from the eighth grade, she went to high school at Maytown. School at that time meant "no electric lights. We used oil lamps to study by and waded in the branch in summer time to get to school," she recalled.

She met her future husband at a party and "We went on from there," she grinned. "We dated it seems like forever - but it was about a year."

Mr. Stapleton worked as a teamster for a drilling company in Maytown. As a teamster, he hauled oil well drilling parts in a wagon pulled by horsepower.

The couple married and seven years later, in 1931, Mr. Stapleton was transferred to Betsy Layne to read meters. The Stapletons made Betsy Layne their home.

Through the next two decades, the couple raised five children - four girls and one boy - and buried three others.

"I lost three children. They were just babies. We never did get over it. One daughter was two years and four months old. She was our idol. She took the intestinal flu. The other two died when they were less than a year old." She added, "I put everything I had into my children."

Although, she said, "I insisted my children get an education," still she worried they wouldn't finish school.

Four heeded their mother's advice and finished high school. One daughter who didn't finish school has considered taking adult education classes along with her mother. In addition to her children, Stapleton has 17 grandchildren, 19 great-grandchildren, and one great-grandchild who was born this month.

Lack of a high school diploma did not prevent Stapleton from getting jobs over the years to help to support their growing family. First she painted and papered homes. "I felt like I've papered every house in the county," she said with a shake of her head and a smile. "They were just pick-up jobs. I just learned (on my own). You just get in there and do it."

She quit that work because, "I had several broken bones. I was afraid to climb up on things."

For 12 to 15 years she worked at the school lunchroom at Harold. "I liked it," she said. "It was about one of the first lunchrooms around."

Then she worked in a restaurant at Ivel. "They had the best cook, so I didn't do a lot of cooking. I prepared tables, cleaned the kitchen, and made beans and potatoes - mostly preparation work."

The turning point in her and her husband's life was when they became Christians. They were both in their thirties, and their commitment to the Lord unified them as a family and made their good marriage stronger. "Our Christian life, when the Lord saved us, was the greatest thing," she recalled, her dark green eyes lighting up at the memory. "We took our children to church. We didn't have a car, but we had a pickup truck. We'd put a quilt in the back for our children to sit on and we went to church."

For 15 years she taught a Sunday school class for younger children at Betsy Layne Freewill Baptist Church. She also sang in the choir, and she and a friend from church used to sing for a radio gospel program at Pikeville.

Although Mr. Stapleton died in 1982, she still faithfully attends church and occasionally she will sing "just an old-fashioned song" if requested, she said.

An active woman both physically and mentally, Stapleton's favorite hobbies are "quilting, going to church, raising a garden and canning."

She hand quilts patterns such as flower gardens, windmills, and Trip Around the World. "I've been giving the quilts to my children, but they've been piling up on me. I'm going to sell some. I love to quilt."

Her only health problems are arthritis, especially in her hands which keeps her from writing a lot, and bouts of bronchitis in the winter.

But, "If you have seen the garden I grew this summer you'd say I was as strong as a horse," she said grinning. "I pickled, canned, dried, and put away (produce) in the deep freeze. My children - they all like it."

Although she has lived an abundant life, her dream of earning her high school diploma remained unfulfilled. Then one day last summer she saw her opportunity and seized it.

As a regular participant of activities at the center, Stapleton noticed the adult education class, and realized this was her chance.

Mrs. Myra Pepper, who teaches the adult class for David School, remembered when Stapleton first expressed interest in joining the class.

"Molly came to the center (often) and she stayed late one day and said that she wanted to finish her high school diploma. I said, 'We can help you do that.'"

"She lacked one and a half credits

Age is no barrier

As Molly Stapleton watched others graduate from high school, she always felt that she too would like to one day receive her diploma. When the opportunity came along, she seized it. (photo by Polly Ward)

Funny Books Straight from Heaven

When I was eight or ten years old, it wasn't uncommon for up-coming special events to be advertised by people in cars with large, bell-shaped loud speakers on top of them driving slowly through the neighborhood.

Chased by barking dogs and kids on bicycles, the giant speakers would often trumpet the fiddles and banjos of a bluegrass band, interrupted intermittently with announcements of what was showing at the Prestonsburg Drive-in theatre, or those making sure that everybody who wasn't dead or completely deaf knew that Dusty Rivers and the Rangers would be playing at the Muddy Branch school house "this coming Friday night at the big pie supper."

Once in a while, the message of some big politician running for jailer or high sheriff would echo between the hills and up the hollows as these noisy intrusions shattered the silence of our otherwise peaceful existence.

Regardless of the message being delivered, though, these commercials on wheels usually attracted a good deal of attention.

Such was the case on one particular afternoon when the boys' game of marbles and the girls' preoccupation with hop-scotch were intruded upon with the proclamation that free funny books would be given away. All we had to do was follow the car until it parked at the mouth of the hollow.

Wow! Free funny books? Since most everybody I knew read and traded funny books, as far as we were concerned, this announcement could have come straight from Heaven.

Well, not quite. The books were of a religious nature, though. As a matter of fact, they were based on stories from the Bible. So, quite naturally, we called them Jesus funny books. The two men giving them away represented some strange church "from away from here." I say strange in that they didn't represent the Free Will Baptists, which was the only church that most of us had ever heard of at the time.

There must have been thirty or forty kids surrounding the car as one man continued to announce over the loud speakers to "come one, come all and get your free funny books," while a tall, skinny, pale young man wearing wire-rimmed glasses and a tie, passed out the free Jesus funny books from the brown pasteboard box he'd placed on the hood of the car.

We all eagerly grabbed our copy, took it home, and read it. I didn't enjoy it very much, though, because I already knew about David and Goliath and about Jesus walking on the water. Besides, half the fun of reading funny books back in those days was trading them to someone else after you'd read them. Since everybody else had gotten a copy of the same book you had, who were you going to trade with?

Anyway, what brought those free Jesus funny books to mind in the first place, was an article I read in the paper last week about a firm in Lexington that is distributing what they're calling the Way Cool Bible.

If I understood what I read, it's—in a sense—a Jesus funny book.

Now, the ones we got for free forty years ago must have portrayed the biblical themes accurately and in a traditional manner. Had they not, what with Dad being a deacon, and the community itself being church orientated, I'm sure we'd have heard about it.

I'd hate to think how adults in our community then would have reacted to these new comics. According to the article, Jesus is pictured wearing sunglasses and having teeth like Donny Osmond.

Satan, on the other hand, is a green monster in a pilot's hat, and is shown taking tickets from the unsaved to "the eternal vacation hot spots," with stops at "The Pit" and the "Lake of Fire."

Now, don't get me wrong. I'm not passing judgment on this new publication or anything. I'm just saying that I think I knew the old folks back then well enough to know that—free or not, and regardless of how big the loud speakers were that advertised it—this would be one Jesus funny book that we'd never have read.

Day Homemakers hold November meeting

Members of the Prestonsburg Day Homemakers Club held their regular meeting on Tuesday, November 10, at 1 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, Prestonsburg, with Mary Sue Moore, president, in charge.

The devotions were presented by Lucy C. Regan, who based her discussion on "Thanksgiving." She said it was a good time to give thanks, but that we should always remember to be thankful for what God has given us. She ended her discussion with prayer.

Dorothy Stover, secretary, gave the roll-call, read the minutes, and gave the financial report.

Frances Pitts, Floyd County home economist, said there would be no January meetings of Floyd County Homemakers, but that a newsletter would be mailed to each member. It was agreed that the annual Christmas luncheon would be held this year at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Members of this club are to meet at the First United Methodist Church, Prestonsburg, at 11:30 a.m. for the carpool to this luncheon.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Lucy C. Regan.

The Christmas ornament contest was won by this club's president, Mary Sue Moore.

Frances Pitts repeated the need for members to make finger puppets for small patients at a local hospital.

Pitts presented the lesson entitled, "Ways to Recycle Gifts, Gift Wraps and Decorations." She displayed many interesting examples of how this may be accomplished. The thought that "We should take care of what the Lord has given us," was stressed.

Door prizes of miniature jars of spices, furnished by FoodLyon, were given to all members in attendance.

Hostesses for the February meeting were selected; Beverly Hackworth, Lucy C. Regan, and Phyllis Herrick agreed to serve as hostesses for the meeting.

Hostesses for Tuesday's meeting were Ann Alley, Rose Glenn and Phyllis Stanley, who served a salad course with punch to Frances Pitts, Mary Sue Moore, Dorothy Stover, Jane Wallace, Mabel Donahoe, Rebecca Rasnick, Docia Woods, Fannie Runnels, Alice Harris, Anna Belle Harris, Dorothy Osborne, Myrtle Allen, Lucy Regan, Ruth Worland, Otela Smiley, Nancy Webb, Eleanor Horn, Hope Whitten, Mildred Branham, Beverly Hackworth, Linda McIntire, Julia Curtis, and Phyllis Herrick and two grandchildren.

You can beat colorectal cancer. Sandra May is living proof.

"At first I thought it was hemorrhoids. It started off as just cramping, then turned into diarrhea. I'd get real hot and sick to my stomach. I had headaches and went down to 89 pounds. I had these symptoms for about five years."

Sandra May, of Staffordsville, had developed a lesion in her colon, or large intestine. And like many of us, she put off getting it checked. "I was just sure it was cancer."

Still, she caught it in time. "Dr. Basha (her surgeon) said if I had waited very much longer, it would have been widespread cancer." Although the surgery, performed by Dr. Basha at Highlands was not easy, "I just put myself in his hands because I knew he'd bring me through...and he did. I'm just sorry I put it off as long as I did. I would urge anyone that has symptoms to go to a physician and have tests run...especially if you're over 40. Then you have a chance of being cured. I was 39."

Get a colon cancer screening and a free cancer risk test

Cancer of the colon will strike 155,000 this year, and kill 60,000, mostly over the age of 50. But prevention and early detection can beat it. Call your doctor and arrange for a colorectal screening exam.

Heifer Project International Starts Rounding Up Cowboys

Heifer Project International, a non-profit international development organization, is trying to locate thousands of venerable cowboys. The organization wants to find 7,000 men (and a few dozen women) who accompanied livestock on ocean freighters destined for war-ravaged and developing countries, primarily in the 1940s and 1950s.

Heifer Project International was founded in 1944 by a church relief worker named Dan West. As he doled out cups of powdered milk to hungry refugees from the Spanish Civil War, he realized that a more sustainable solution, i.e. the gift of a food source rather than food stuff, would preserve the dignity and work ethic of the recipients. That idea was the birth of a process and a philosophy of development: "not a cup but a cow." West also decided that each family receiving an animal would be asked to "pass on the gift" by giving the first offspring to another needy family, thus continuing a chain of giving.

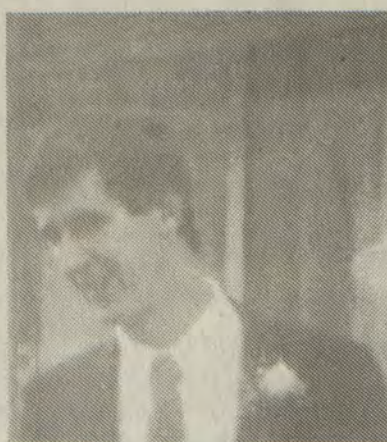

Over the years, both the name of the game and the game plan have remained steadfast while heifers have been joined by livestock such as goats, yaks, pigs, rabbits, and sheep. For some low-income, rural families, the "livestock" from Heifer Project has been fish, chickens or honeybees, and an increasing number of families have begun to receive vaccines, semen and appropriate technology to make the most of existing animals. Heifer Project livestock and training in environmentally sound farming have gone to hungry families in over 100 countries and 30 U.S. states since cowboys accompanied the first shipments in 1944.

The cowboys have been chosen as symbols of the hundreds of thousands of individuals who have worked as volunteers for Heifer Project International since its founding in 1944. All of Heifer Project's volunteers and contributors will be celebrated during the development organization's 50th anniversary in 1994.

Volunteers have pored through tattered records to locate the names and original addresses of more than 7,000 people who shared a unique experience of passing on the Heifer Project gift. "We hope to locate hundreds of these cowboys as well as their children and grandchildren. It's our way of saying thank you again to HPI's dedicated volunteers worldwide," says Executive Director Jo Luck Cargile.

What Heifer Project is calling the Cowboy Roundup gets into full swing in October when hundreds of inquiries go out to newspapers all over the United States. Press releases are being sent to newspapers serving the areas where the volunteers resided at the time of their Heifer Project voyage and to newspapers in areas where cowboys were likely to settle. Former cowboys, or anyone having any knowledge of their whereabouts, are asked to write to Cowboy Roundup, Heifer Project International P.O. Box 808, Little Rock, Arkansas 72203.

Check Your Home

by Ray F. Cawood

If you buy a home that is served by a private well, you should have the water quality checked.

Normally, water is checked to see what types and amounts of minerals and bacteria it contains. However, due to increasing concern over radon, a radioactive substance, you might also have the water checked for that, as well as for hydrocarbons or any other pollutants you might be concerned about.

These tests can be performed by private testing laboratories, but might also be available from county agencies. Ask your county health department.

Q: What does a water softener do?
A: Removes minerals from the water. Mineral deposits are hard on pipes and water heaters. During a bath or shower, "soft" water lathers more easily.

Governor's scholars will have chance to apply for agricultural scholarship

Participants in the Governor's Scholars Program will be eligible for college scholarships, low-interest loans and internships in agribusiness under a new program aimed at encouraging Kentucky youth to pursue careers in agriculture.

The Agriculture Department is placing $750,000 from its Kentucky Rural Rehabilitation Fund Student Loan Program into a trust fund to provide 15-20 scholarships per year in amounts of from $300 to $3,000 per recipient. The 700 Kentucky youngsters who annually participate in the Governor's Scholars Program will be eligible to apply for scholarships or loans with the intent of earning a degree related to a career in agriculture or agribusiness.

An advisory committee representing business and higher education will oversee the scholarship and internship programs. Frank Fitzpatrick, a Prestonsburg attorney, is a member of the advisory committee.

Scholarship recipients must attend a Kentucky college or university, unless the advisory board makes an exception based on a special educational need that is not available in the state. Special emphasis will be placed on assuring that all of Kentucky's agriculture schools (University of Kentucky, Western Kentucky University, Eastern Kentucky University, Murray State University and Morehead State University) have scholarship recipients. The first scholarships will be awarded for the Fall 1993 semester. Applications for those scholarships must be submitted by March 1, 1993.

Agent attends national 4-H conference

Chuck Stamper, Floyd County Extension 4-H Agent attended the National Conference of Extension 4-H Youth Agents in Kansas City.

Stamper was among 1200 youth professionals from throughout the United States and Canada who attended the five-day meeting Nov. 1-5. Stamper said the seminars focused on creative programming for culturally diverse youth and family audiences.

Participants received over 400 hours of educational contact time attending seminar and research sessions covering topics such as youth development, educational design, building community coalitions, strategic planning, strengthening the family, volunteer development, organizational and resource development.

Stamper said he found sessions on Lifestyle Management and Teen Productivity particularly helpful.

"I gained a lot that will help my work in Floyd County. This trip focused me on what goals I should try to achieve," he said.

Author Robert Fulghum opened the conference by exploring the creative link between traditional ideas and the significant needs of children and families in today's society. Dr. Edwin J. Nichols, psychologist and organizational development consultant, discussed the impact of communication and values across cultural lines. Dr. James Kern, educator and author, gave participants a better understanding of human behavior in his capnote presentation on "Understanding Ourselves and Others."

University 4-H Youth Development Programs are conducted in all 50 U.S. states and several U.S. territories. In addition, 83 countries have similar youth programs. Current programs focus on development of like skills for youth: leadership and citizenship skills, decision-making and problem solving skill development in critical areas facing youth today. For more information on how you can become more involved with today's youth, contact the Floyd County Extension Service at 886-2668.

Lower interest rates not stimulating purchases of large farm machinery

Farm machinery dealers are finding that lower interest rates are not enough of an inducement to entice farmers to purchase big ticket items such as tractors and combines.

"Sales of farm machinery and equipment turned lower in 1991 and have continued at an unexpectedly slow rate in 1992," said Forrest Stegelin, an Extension agricultural economist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The number of new tractors and combines sold to the U.S. farmers through August 1992 was off 18 percent from last year's pace and 24 percent below the level reached during the first eight months of 1990, he said.

The downturn in tractor and combine sales is occurring despite lower interest rates, a slight increase in crop acreage and prospects for a bumper harvest — factors which usually are associated with an increase in sales.

Why?
"The second quarter 1992 downturn in sales may be tied to speculation of drought in the grain belt. The retreat in farm sector earnings also may have turned buyers away from big purchases," Stegelin said.

In addition, farmers' recollections of the financial distress that gripped agriculture during much of the 1980s, their awareness of the shrinking safety net provided in federal farm price support programs and their concern about grain exports have undoubtedly contributed to their cautious spending patterns.

Further, Stegelin said, the move toward reduced tillage, which tends to allow tractors to last longer, may also be a factor in the sales slump of tractors. The increase use of custom combining also may reduce the market for combines.

Grethel Homemakers discuss Thanksgiving

Grethel Homemakers met November 5 in the Grethel Baptist Church annex at 6:30 p.m. with Arietta Hall presiding.

Devotions were led by Glenna Evans on the subject, "Thanksgiving." Roll call was answered by responses to the question, What good deed have you done this month for someone?

Several homemakers made Christmas ornaments to compete in the county contest. The lesson, "Holiday Ways to Recycle Gifts, Gift Wrap, and Decorations," was taught by the Floyd County Extension Agent, Frances Pitts, who displayed many samples and distributed lesson sheets to the group.

Homemakers present were Glenna Evans, Barbara C. Newman, Shirley Hamilton, Arietta Hall, Marjorie Givens, and Eileen Martin.

The next meeting will be held December 1 at 6:30 p.m.

EMILY'S DREAM BARS

1 cup extra crunchy peanut butter
1/2 Butter Flavor Crisco Stick (1 2 cup)
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 cup milk
2 cups 100% natural oats, honey and raisins cereal
2 cups semi-sweet mini chocolate chips, (1 12-oz. package), divided
1 cup almond brickle chips
1 cup milk chocolate covered peanuts
1 package (2 ounces) nut topping (1/3 cup)
Heat oven to 350°F. Grease 13x9x2-inch pan with Butter Flavor Crisco.

Combine peanut butter, Butter Flavor Crisco, brown sugar and corn syrup in large bowl. Beat at medium speed of electric mixer until creamy. Add egg and vanilla. Beat well.

Combine flour and baking powder. Add alternately with milk to creamed mixture at medium speed. Stir in cereal, 1 cup chocolate chips, almond brickle chips and chocolate covered nuts with spoon. Spread in greased pan.

Bake at 350°F. for 20 to 26 minutes or until golden brown and toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Sprinkle remaining 1 cup chocolate chips over top immediately after removing from oven. Let stand about 3 minutes or until chips become shiny and soft. Spread over top. Sprinkle with nut topping. Cool completely. Cut into bars about 2x1 inch. 4 1/2 dozen cookies.

PUMPKIN FLAN

3/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup water
1 cup canned pumpkin
3/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice

Correction:

Friday's edition of the Times will contain a Holiday Cookbook. An ingredient in the California Casserole recipe in the vegetable section of the booklet is wrong. The recipe lists 1 (10 ounce) pkg. frozen cauliflower twice. The recipe requires 1 (10 ounce) pkg. frozen cauliflower and 1 (10 ounce) pkg. frozen broccoli.

1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg

6 eggs
1 cup half-and-half
1 cup whipping (heavy) cream
Heat oven to 350°. Heat 3/4 cup sugar and 1/4 cup water to boiling in heavy 2-quart saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly. Boil, without stirring, until syrup is deep golden brown.

Place quiche dish, 9x1-1/2 or 10x1-1/4 inches, in hot water until warm (to prevent dish from cracking when pouring hot syrup into it); dry completely. Pour syrup into dish; immediately rotate dish until syrup covers bottom.

Beat remaining ingredients except half-and-half and whipping cream in large bowl until well blended. Beat in half-and-half and whipping cream. Pour over syrup. Place dish in shallow roasting pan on oven rack. Pour very hot water into pan until 1 inch deep. Bake 1 to 1-1/4 hours or until knife inserted in center comes out clean.

Remove dish from water; cool 15 minutes. Refrigerate about 3 hours or until chilled. Loosen side of flan from dish, using knife; unmold. Refrigerate any remaining flan. 12 servings; 280 calories per serving.

This recipe credited to Betty Crocker's 40th Anniversary Edition Cookbook.

Professor presents paper at conference

Dr. Robert Perry, of Prestonsburg Community College's Humanities Division, presented a paper entitled "John Smith, William Bradford and the Mentality of Exploitation" at the October 30th meeting of the Community College Humanities Association in Portsmouth, Virginia.

According to Dr. Perry, "The writings of John Smith and William Bradford exhibit evidence of the mentality of exploitation, a mentality which continues to haunt us today. The American soul is divided between the urge to exploit the land's resources and move on, and the urge to nurture the land and create a permanent home."

Also presenting at this conference was Dr. Thomas Carroll of the Prestonsburg Community College history department. Dr. Carroll, along with Bill West, a history professor from Owensboro Community College, conducted a presentation regarding the cross-disciplinary courses currently being offered in the University of Kentucky Community College System. Most of these courses were organized during a National Endowment for the Humanities Seminar conducted last summer.

ARTHRITIS ADVICE

"Arthritis" means inflammation of a joint. The disease categories commonly known as arthritis—which is also known as "rheumatic disease"—include over 100 different conditions. They vary in symptoms and probably in cause. Some forms are better understood than others, but the causes of most of them are not yet known. Many effective treatments are used today to control arthritis symptoms, but there are few cures.

Most forms of arthritis are usually chronic, lasting for years. The more serious forms involve inflammation—swelling, warmth, redness, and pain. In older people, the two most common forms of arthritis are rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis.

Rheumatoid arthritis (RA) is an inflammation of the joint membrane. It varies in severity and can cause severe crippling. RA afflicts three times more women than men, and it usually appears in the middle years, although it can begin at any age.

RA can affect many body systems but most frequently appears in the joints—fingers, wrists, elbows, hips, knees, and ankles. Persistent swelling and pain in joints on both sides of the body are typical symptoms. Morning stiffness is especially common.

RA should be treated as soon as it's discovered because uncontrolled inflammation of joint membranes can damage the joints.

Osteoarthritis (OA) is often a mild condition, causing no symptoms in many people and only occasional joint pain and stiffness in others. Still, some people experience considerable pain and disability.

OA is called degenerative joint disease, a more accurate name since "osteoarthritis" implies that inflammation is a part of the disease, which is not usually the case. While wear and tear on the inside surface of the joint is probably a cause of some cases, heredity and being overweight may be other possible factors.

Although OA is almost always present in older people, the condition can occur at any age, especially after a joint injury. Joint stiffness in OA can be brief, is often received by activity, and may recur upon rest. The large weight-bearing joints of the body—knees, hips and spine—are most often affected.

Treatment
The aim in treating arthritis is to relieve pain and stiffness, stop joint destruction from inflammation, and maintain mobility.

Aspirin is the medicine most often used to treat arthritis. It relieves pain and reduces joint inflammation. But aspirin should be taken for arthritis only under medical supervision since large doses are required to reduce inflammation. In some patients, long-term use of aspirin can cause stomach irritation or other side effects, and may interfere with blood clotting.

Acetaminophen—a common aspirin substitute—does not reduce inflammation, although it can relieve aches and pains. "Arthritis-strength" aspirins are plain aspirin with small amounts of caffeine or antacids.

Newer prescription medicines used in place of aspirin are nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs). These include ibuprofen, naproxen, fenopfen, tolmetin, and sulindac. They are similar to aspirin in their ability to reduce inflammation and may have fewer side effects. Indomethacin, oxyphenbutazone, and phenylbutazone are other NSAIDs that provide relief for patients with arthritis but they may have more side effects. At this time, one of the newest NSAIDs, piroxicam, offers the advantage of a once-daily dosage.

Other stronger or non-aspirin drugs available by prescription include: antimalarial drugs (such as hydroxychloroquine); gold salts; steroids (including prednisone and cortisone); and penicillamine (not the same as penicillin). These drugs can have more serious side effects than aspirin.

Physical therapy is fundamental to treatment. People with arthritis tend not to move around very much, and while rest can reduce inflammation, too much rest stiffens joints. So rest and exercise must be balanced.

Daily exercise like walking or swimming can help maintain joint mobility. Good posture and proper eating (to prevent overweight) can help relieve joint strain.

Surgery is sometimes used in patients with RA or OA when joints are severely damaged and the more conservative forms of treatment have failed to control pain. Hip and knee joints are replaced most often. The purpose of surgery is to relieve pain and restore function for patients for whom other forms of treatment have not been successful.

Unproven and "Quack" Cures
Arthritis symptoms, especially in RA, may go away by themselves but then reappear weeks, months, or years later. This sudden disappearance of symptoms makes arthritis an ideal target for quack products or gimmicks. Some of the more common unproven or unsafe remedies are:

DMSO (dimethyl sulfoxide)—Currently, this drug is approved only for the treatment of interstitial cystitis, a bladder disorder. Studies are now being conducted to determine the safety and effectiveness of DMSO for the treatment of certain illnesses, but as yet there is no evidence that is it useful for arthritis.

Special Diets—Diet is not a factor in the cause or treatment of arthritis. Any ads promoting certain foods, vitamins, or diets as "cures" are false.

Medical Devices—Magnetic

bandages, vibrators, or other gadgets are of no use in treating arthritis. Be wary of ads that use words such as "cure" or "miracle treatment."

Warning Signs of Arthritis
Any recurring joint symptoms (lasting longer than 6 weeks) should be checked with a doctor, no matter how mild or "temporary." A physical examination, X-ray studies, and specific laboratory tests can distinguish arthritis from other ailments and can identify the specific type of arthritis.

Important arthritis warning signs are:

- Pain, tenderness, or swelling in one or more joints.
- Pain and stiffness in the morning.
- Recurring or persistent pain and stiffness in the neck, lower back, or knees.
- Symptoms such as these that go away for a week or a month but return.

Older hearts don't have to break

Getting older is inevitable. Getting heart disease is not.

As you age, your risk of developing cardiovascular disease increases. But that doesn't mean that heart disease "comes with the territory" of growing older. You can fight the nation's No. 1 killer.

One of the most common causes of heart disease is high blood pressure. Your blood pressure increases when blood vessels constrict, forcing the heart to work harder to pump blood through them. The added strain can damage the heart and blood vessels.

The exact cause of high blood pressure is still unclear. But the American Heart Association says heredity, obesity, and too much sodium in the diet are risk factors that contribute to it.

Because this condition shows no symptoms, you should have your blood pressure checked regularly. If you have high blood pressure, your doctor may suggest that you limit your sodium intake. You can do this by not putting salt on your food at the table or when preparing it. And you should also avoid foods with a lot of sodium.

Losing excess weight is also important because the more fat you have, the harder your heart has to work to supply the body with blood. The best things you can do to lose weight are to eliminate fatty foods from your diet and exercise regularly. Talk to your doctor before starting an exercise program.

Another condition, called atherosclerosis, also increases your risk of heart disease. Over many years, fatty substances in your bloodstream such as cholesterol collect on the inner walls of arteries. These substances harden, narrowing the arterial passages and adding strain to your heart. If a clot forms in one of these narrowed vessels, blood flow is blocked to that region. This often results in a heart attack or stroke.

reduce the amount of cholesterol deposited in arterial passages.

Your heart is a powerful muscle that pumps your blood through miles of vessels in a matter of seconds. Imagine the strain on this muscle as it works with little rest for decades and decades. That's why it's even more important to take care of it as you grow older.

For more information on how to fight heart disease, contact the American Heart Association at 1-800-AHA-USA1.

Car Care Corner: Getting good auto repair

Here are some tips from the experts at the non-profit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) to help make your auto repairs go a little smoother.

You don't have to be a do-it-yourselfer wizard to read your owner's manual or to become familiar with the basic vehicular systems. Be conscious of strange sounds, unusual odors, or changes in performance or handling.

Don't delay routine maintenance or minor repairs. Master auto technicians agree: failure to have your vehicle serviced regularly can lessen your car's life by 50%! Also, minor problems can turn into expensive repairs if left unchecked.

When you go to a shop, look for signs of professionalism such as an orderly facility with a courteous staff. Check the shop's reputation with local consumer groups, and ask friends for their recommendations.

Check out the technicians, too. A helpful way to judge them is to look for professional certification. The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) offers the only national, industry-wide credential available to working technicians. ASE auto technicians have passed tough tests, carry pocket credentials, and wear blue and white shoulder insignia. Their employers often display the blue and white ASE sign.

When dealing with repair staff, describe the problem in detail—noises, pings, odors, etc. But resist the temptation to make a diagnosis or demand a specific repair. Let the pros determine the cause and the cure.

Finally, make certain you understand all policies regarding labor rates, estimates and guarantees. Keep good records.

On The House

Managing Your Biggest Investment

Selling your home in the winter

In many parts of the country, selling a home during the winter months can be a challenge. Dreary, cold weather and the end-of-the-year holidays can keep buyers away and heighten fears of your home staying on the market longer than expected.

However, there are a few things you can do to enhance "curb appeal." And when that happens, buyers will take notice.

For example, if your home has been on the market for more than six months, it's probably time to change the sales approach. There are several factors that could be reviewed with your real estate agent to determine improvements that can be made. Ask for a reassessment of the sales price; it may be too high for the current market. Also, ask the agent for a new or updated marketing plan and ask for a specific explanation of each activity. Marketing your home goes beyond a few ads in the newspaper and a listing on the Multiple Listing Service (MLS); a good agent will do more to get your home sold.

If your current agent doesn't respond to your satisfaction, you should contact the real estate broker (the owner of the office) and ask for a different sales agent - or, if you're no longer under any contractual obligation to the firm, it might be time to change real estate offices entirely.

When setting the asking price through a comparative marketing analysis, compare similar homes sold in the winter months. Many owners set their asking price too high because of comparisons with sales prices during peak seasons. Always try to compare like properties sold at the same time of the year.

Once you've settled on an asking price, it's time to spruce up the interior and exterior of your home. Many real estate agents recommend opening as many curtains as possible to add light and color to rooms. Also, it's suggested that you keep spring and summer pictures of your home out on tables and in clear view. Photos of your front yard flowers or the backyard shade tree in full summer bloom can help swing many buyers in favor of a purchase.

Staying on top of winter maintenance and chores is another sure-fire way of adding value to your home. A neatly shoveled driveway and cleared walkway can add a nice touch. Make sure the furnace is in good working condition and that the room temperature is kept at a comfortable level. Also, check to see that the basement is dry and sealed from any drafts.

Take yourself on a tour of your home. Start in the basement and work your way through the house. More than likely you'll see many previously undiscovered cluttered spaces and needed repairs that can turn off potential buyers.

Don't overload your home with holiday decorations, either. The buyer should have a chance to see your home in its everyday condition.

Completing these simple tasks can help present your home in the best possible light during the winter months. It'll also make a bigger impact on potential buyers and help you sell your home quicker.

Rental car rates can be negotiated

DEAR BRUCE: I know you travel a great deal. Would you recommend reserving my rental car before I go to Florida, or do you think I can find a car on location? If so, can I get a better deal?—R.T., Hilo, Hawaii

DEAR R.T.: You are going to Florida, one of the most competitive rental car markets in the country, and one of the least expensive.

You should reserve ahead of time. But car rental rates can be and are negotiated at the rental counters.

For example, when you reserve a non-luxury car, agents will do their best to upgrade you if those better cars are available. The reason is simple: They are paid a higher commission on the upgrade.

Often, it pays to reserve a smaller car than you really require, then negotiate for the upgrade at the counter. This can result in a lower rate.

Just before your trip, try to make yourself aware of any fare wars that might be taking place. Usually by reading ads very carefully you can determine this. Once again, when this happens, bargains abound.

DEAR BRUCE: We've just returned from what turned into a blasted vacation. It's the fault of the rental car company and hotel. I'm told there's absolutely nothing I can do to go after these people for what they've done to us.

We first rented a car and rented a room for the weekend. We returned the car and paid our hotel bill.

At the next stop, we attempted to rent another car on our credit card, and we were told that our credit line was exhausted. We were working a little close to the limit, but figured we had plenty of money to cover the rental cars and hotels.

We found out that even though we were only renting a car for two days, the credit card company had taken $500 out of our account (at the request of the car company) and a similar amount requested from the hotel even though the charges were only a small fraction of this.

Those two numbers added up to almost all of our available credit. We were told that the money would be reapplied to our account, but that it would take several days.

In the meantime, no credit. I had to call home and plead with my parents to wire us some money so we could continue our vacation. This is a fine way to start out a marriage.

Nurses receive certification

Cooley Medical Nurses, Teddie Ratliff, R.N.C. and Debra Burchett, R.N., received certification in technical Waveform Analysis on October 7-9 in Cleveland, Ohio. The MultiChannel Waveform Analysis course was a "hands on experience" update to the application programs used with pneumogram and apnea monitors. These monitors are often used for respiratory patients and for infants with apnea, or the cessation of breathing. Apnea can lead to SIDS (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome). The course was sponsored by The Department of Professional Education of Healthdyne Technologies. The Waveform Analysis was attended by nurses, physicians, respiratory therapists, and ECG technicians.

Internal Revenue Service seeking those due refunds

The Internal Revenue Service has something that will help some people do their holiday shopping this year—unclaimed refunds.

The IRS in Louisville said that 414 Kentucky taxpayers are due an average of $305 in refunds from 1991 or before. These individuals' checks were returned by the post office as undeliverable.

The most common reason for a tax refund being returned is that the taxpayer's address is incorrect, or the taxpayer has moved without leaving a forwarding address. Refunds that cannot be delivered to their owners are returned to the Treasury Department.

The IRS suggests that taxpayers avoid these kinds of problems by using the peel-off mailing label that comes with their tax package by filing Form 8822, "Change of Address" whenever they move.

There is another method suggested by the IRS for those who don't want the hassle of mailing a return, or the worry of waiting around for the refund to come in the mail. Taxpayers who file their returns electronically can elect to have the refund deposited directly to their savings or checking account. Electronic filing eliminates the possibility of lost, stolen or undeliverable refund checks. In addition, refunds are made much faster than with traditional filing through the mail. Anyone feeling they are due a federal tax refund from 1991 or before should contact the IRS. The refund check will then be reissued. The IRS number to call for information on undelivered refunds is 1-800-TAX-1040 (1-800-829-1040).

Carter comes to Floyd as development specialist

Steven E. Carter

Steven E. Carter, Menifee County, has been assigned as a development specialist to work with Floyd and eight other area counties. A native of Menifee County, Carter graduated from Morehead State University in 1979 with a B.S. degree in Business Computer Programming and Sociology. He has worked in retail store management and also for the Forest Service at the Frenchburg Job Corps Center.

The Kentucky Cabinet for Economic Development's Department of Community Development now has field staff persons in place to work with community leaders and existing industries and businesses on a regular basis, according to Lieutenant Governor and Secretary of Economic Development Paul E. Patton.

Along with Floyd County, Carter will also serve Breathitt, Johnson, Knott, Lee, Magoffin, Martin, Pike and Wolfe counties.

Carter is a part of the staff of the East Kentucky Regional Economic Development Office headquartered in Prestonsburg. The Jones Administration established the regional office at Prestonsburg along with offices in Frankfort and Madisonville to make programs and services of the Cabinet for Economic Development more accessible to local communities and industries.

The development specialists assigned to the offices are available to work directly with community leaders in helping prepare communities for job retention and expansion. The specialists also visit local existing industries on a regular basis to both inform them of services available through the Cabinet and Department of Community Development and also help them in better utilizing these services.

Census Bureau to collect data here

This month's survey will include questions on voting and registration. Information supplied by individuals is kept confidential by law. Only statistical totals are published.

MONEY MANAGEMENT

SMART WAYS TO BORROW MONEY

If you've been postponing putting that addition on your home or buying new living room furniture, consider this: Over the past year, banks and other lenders have substantially reduced the interest rates on loans. As a result, borrowing money for a special project or purpose has become more manageable. However, as the Kentucky Society of CPAs points out, smart borrowers should carefully investigate their financing alternatives before making any purchasing and borrowing decisions.

THE REAL COST OF CREDIT CARDS

The lowering of interest rates by the Federal Reserve Board, and subsequently banks and other lenders, generally has not been reflected in the rates charged by credit card issuers. Even if you are one of those individuals who is deluged with offers to use various bank credit cards, chances are the interest rates on these cards are much higher than the rates charged on some bank loans. Don't forget, too, that the interest you pay on credit card balances is no longer tax-deductible. These are two reasons to show self-restraint when it comes to purchasing items on a credit card.

If you like the convenience of credit cards and can't resist the impulse to make some purchases with them, then it's time to take a close look at the fine print: What is the interest rate? What method does the credit card issuer use for computing interest?

How much interest you're actually paying depends, in part, on the credit card issuer's method for computing interest. Many companies charge an annual percentage rate using the adjusted balance method. This means you are charged interest on what you owe after subtracting your payment from the previous balance. Another way of computing interest and one that is less favorable to you is the previous balance method. With this method, you are charged interest based on your balance at the end of the previous month, regardless of any payments made during that month.

Some credit card issuers charge you interest based on your average daily balance. The credit card issuer will add your balance each day, divide it by the number of days in the billing period, and charge you interest on the average balance.

Be sure you take the time to compare your cards' interest rates, methods for computing interest, annual fees, and grace periods with those of other cards. Depending on the size of your average balance, a difference of even one-and-a-half percentage points in interest rates can save you over one hundred dollars during the course of a year.

To avoid interest charges entirely, it's wise to limit the use of your credit card to purchases you are able to pay off within 25 to 30 days. If you are thinking about purchasing big-ticket items, such as those that cost $1,000 or more, be sure to explore other financing alternatives.

THE BENEFITS OF HOME EQUITY LOANS

Adding a bedroom to your house? The job may cost more money than you have in the bank or more than you care to withdraw from your savings. However, that's no reason to rethink your remodeling plans—just your financing options. Expanding or renovating your home may warrant the use of a home equity loan. In most instances, you can borrow up to 80 percent of your home's value, less the balance on your mortgage. What's more, interest rates on these loans are likely to be significantly lower than the rates offered by credit card issuers, and the interest paid on home equity loans of up to $100,000 is generally tax-deductible.

Keep in mind that a home equity loan usually involves paying closing costs to the lender, just as you did when you first purchased your house. However, you don't have to go to your current mortgage lender to obtain the loan. Shop around for a competitive interest rate. Also, be aware that banks charge different application fees and will sometimes run promotions with a reduced or waived application fee.

When taking out a home equity loan, remember that your home is the bank's security. Be certain to read and understand the terms of your agreement and honestly assess your ability to pay off the loan.

Be aware that if you use the proceeds of your home equity loan for purposes other than those related to homeownership or home improvements, you may be subject to the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT), since the related interest expense is not deductible for AMT purposes.

WHEN PERSONAL LOANS CAN HELP

If you're having trouble paying off your debts, you may want to consider taking out a personal loan to consolidate them. However, be aware that while personal loans are a valuable source of credit, they tend to be an expensive way to borrow money. The interest rates on personal loans can be several percentage points higher than the interest rates on home equity loans.

KNOW YOUR CREDIT LIMITS

Before borrowing any funds, be sure you consider all financing options for the item you want to purchase. Depending on the item and how quickly you plan to pay off the debt, you may be able to borrow money without incurring hefty finance charges.

CPAs suggest that you limit the amount of your debt payments, excluding your mortgage, to 20 percent of your after-tax income. They also suggest that you keep track of your outstanding debts and try to pay off those with the highest interest rates first.
