Guessing game over, Thompson in for sheriff

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

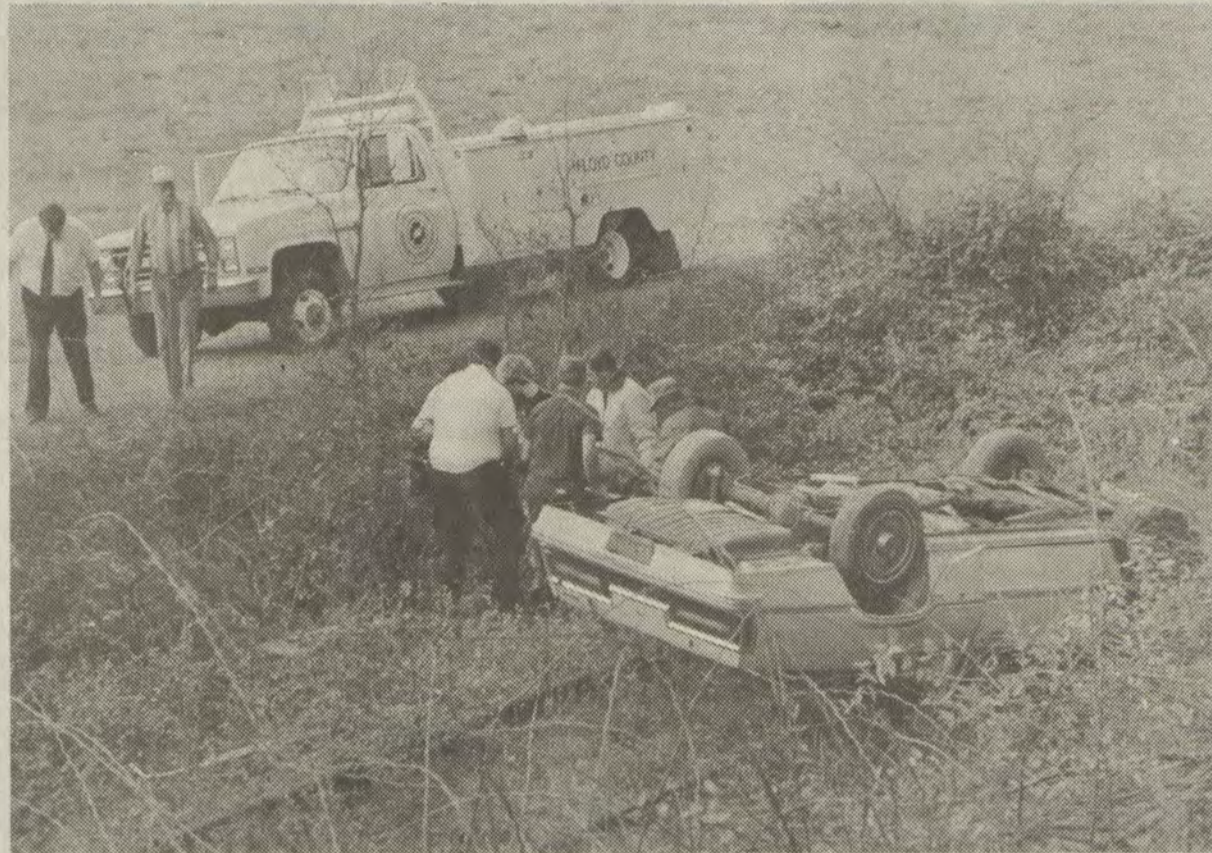

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson ended speculation that he might seek another office in the May, 1993 election when he filed his intent to seek a second term as sheriff Thursday afternoon.

It had been widely rumored that Thompson had intended to bid for the office of Floyd County Judge/Executive in next year's primary election until he filed his re-election bid with the Floyd County Court Clerk's office. He became only the third office-seeker to place his or her name on the 1993 ballot so far.

Wheelwright police chief Charles Harmon has also placed his name on the May ballot on Monday, November 9, seeking the office of Constable for District 3. Harmon cited his distrust of the city's current city commission as the reason for his candidacy.

Floyd County Court Clerk Carla "Robinson" Boyd has also placed her name on the May ballot, seeking re-election to her current office.

Among other offices that will be up for contention in the May, 1993 race are the offices of Floyd County Attorney, currently occupied by Jim Hammond; County Judge/Executive, John M. Stumbo; Commonwealth Attorney, Jerry Patton; County Coroner, Roger Nelson; Jailer, Lawrence Hale; District One magistrate, Gerald DeRossett; District Two magistrate, Jackie Edford Owens; District Three magistrate, Betty Caudill; District Four magistrate, Ermal Tackett; District One constable, Morgan Joseph; District Two constable, Bob Hackworth; District Three constable, Buddy Bryant; and District Four Constable Paul Stilton.

Accident near David

Three men were seriously injured Thursday evening when the vehicle they were in went off the road and into a gully near David. A preliminary investigation by Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson revealed that the vehicle careened through a ditchline, went back into the roadway and went over the gully on the opposite side of the road. ## Vandalism issue is non-issue

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County school board members heard no explanation from builders or school administrators at Tuesday's meeting regarding vandalism at the Left Beaver High School site.

Neither project architect Paul Hoffman nor construction manager representative Byron Hughes were asked about security at the site while they were before the board giving a monthly update on school construction projects.

Floyd County superintendent Steve Towler said after Tuesday's meeting that he "didn't know" the general work contract, which includes security, is under the supervision of the construction manager and the architect.

"I was not aware of that," Towler said Tuesday.

B & J Construction was awarded the general work contract in January 1990 and that contract was extended for six months in October by the school board.

In order for B & J Construction to receive monthly payment from the board, the architect, construction manager and company president must verify to the board that the work has been performed.

It was reported last week that the school had been vandalized Halloween night. Towler said last week that he would inquire at the meeting as to the whereabouts of security personnel.

Buildings and Grounds director Frankie Francis said last week that "we don't have security there right now" and he was investigating the situation.

Francis did not attend Tuesday's school board meeting.

Board member Eddie Billips brought up the security issue near the end of the meeting and asked Towler for a full report on the incident and an estimate of damages.

"It bothered me to find out in the press (about vandalism at Left Beaver)," Billips said. "I'd like a report on the damage, dollar wise, and who is ultimately responsible for the damages, monetarily."

Towler told Billips that "vandalism is ongoing" in the school system and offered to give the board a weekly report on the issue.

In other business Tuesday, the board heard from Pat Martin con-

Landfill delay costing county

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The Floyd County Landfill, which closed temporarily in September and was originally intended to re-open around the first week of November, may not open at any time in the foreseeable future.

According to David Cooley, director of the facility, construction on the landfill is currently on hold pending the Kentucky Cabinet for Natural Resources Division of Solid Waste's approval of construction plans.

The Division of Solid Waste has not yet approved plans for the facilities liner or groundwater monitoring wells, Cooley said. However, he added, Floyd County Solid Waste has resubmitted the plans twice.

"This is costing the county big money," Cooley said.

World's largest steam locomotive passes through county on its last run

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The world's largest operating steam locomotive passed through Prestonsburg Thursday morning on its way to joining the Santa Claus train for one last time before it is retired and placed in a museum.

Challenger Number 3985 designed by Union Pacific and built in 1943 by the American Locomotive Company, was retired in 1962 and stored in a roundhouse in Cheyenne, Wyoming.

In 1975, the locomotive was placed on display near the Cheyenne depot, and in 1981, a group of Union Pacific volunteers restored it to operating condition.

People from as far away as Dayton, Ohio gathered at the Cliff crossing in Floyd County Thursday to greet the locomotive on its historic run. Steam locomotives ceased operating in Kentucky in the mid-1950s, and the last time one passed through Floyd County was in 1976.

Among the on-lookers was Cliff-dweller Jean Daniels, whose father Sam George worked for the C&O Railroad for more than 52 years, beginning at age 14.

"My father sure would've loved to have seen this," Daniels said. "It's beautiful."

The locomotive will lead the Santa Claus Train in Kingsport, Tennessee

this weekend, delivering toys and Christmas presents to needy children.

After that, the Challenger will travel back through Kentucky to Huntington, West Virginia where it will be placed in a museum by the John C.C. Mayo National Railroad Historical Society.

Those who missed the Challenger's visit Thursday will have a chance to see it again when it passes through on its return trip Monday.

Corps official disputes claim on date of floodplain revision

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Reports from the Army Corps of Engineers conflict with reports made during Tuesday's meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education involving a $30,000 change order on a construction project at Betsy Layne.

Project architect Paul Hoffman and Byron Hughes, representing Martin Engineering and Construction, told the board Tuesday that a $30,702 change order was needed on the project because the Army Corps of Engineers had raised the floodplain elevation by two feet since the site preparation contract was signed on June 1.

John Reed, with the Army Corps of Engineer's office in Huntington, West Virginia, disputed that claim Wednesday, saying the most recent floodplain revisions for Floyd County were released April 16, 1990.

"The revised map for this area was finalized April 16, 1990," Reed said Wednesday. "The 100-year elevation is 663 feet. If they were to build anything it should be that height or higher."

John D. Bottom, with the floodplain management section of the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, said Thursday that fill permits applied for in May to build on that site were initially denied because engineering information called for the building pad to be at an elevation of 661.94 feet.

Bottom confirmed that no revisions have been made to the map since it was released by the Army Corps of Engineers in April 1990.

The fill permits applications were sent to the Natural Resources Cabinet on May 18, Bottom said. Bottom issued a letter to Alchemy Engineering engineer Gary Ousley on June 9 which said that additional information was needed on the project.

"We have completed a preliminary review of your request on behalf of the Floyd County Board of Education to place fill and build a new school structure at the Betsy Layne School and are unable to issue a permit based on the information provided," the letter said. "For our review to continue you must submit the following: proof of public notice and redesigned construction drawings indicating no encroachment into the floodway... Note that the new design must take into consideration the revised 100 year flood elevation at this location."

Bottom said Thursday that a typical review of a fill permit requires the department to look at the existing flood mapping at the location.

The April 1990 revisions to the flood plain and the maps are on file in the Floyd County judge-executive's office, Bottom said.

"The engineer, up until that point, had not done very many flood plain permits up in that area and was unaware that new flood mapping had been done for the county," Bottom said. "The study was done in 1989. There have been no revisions since

Floyd trucker hurt, Louisa man is killed

A Floyd County man was injured at Louisa Wednesday when his coal truck collided with another vehicle, killing the driver and critically injuring the passenger.

According to a preliminary investigation by the Ashland Post of the Kentucky State Police, James H. Rowe, 45, of Arkansas Creek, was driving north on U.S. 23 near the Route 2565 junction at Louisa.

William L. Bush, 58, of Louisa, headed south on Route 2565, drove into the north-bound lane of U.S. 23 directly in the path of Rowe's vehicle. Rowe was unable to stop in time and the two vehicles collided.

Bush was pronounced dead at the scene by Lawrence County Coroner Aaron Moon. A passenger in Bush's vehicle, James L. Pike, was also injured.

Pike, 27, of Louisa, was transported to Humana Hospital in Louisa by employees of the Lifestar Ambulance service and later air-lifted to St. Mary's Hospital in West Virginia by HealthNet helicopter.

Rowe was transported to Humana Hospital, where he was treated and released.

cerning a running track facility at Allen Central High School. Martin asked for the board to approve an engineering study to proceed at the site and that architect Randy Burchett visit the site to determine how much dirt needed to be removed to relocate the baseball field.

Towler unexpectedly announced to the board that he thought the school system could allocate $100,000 for the project.

Various citizens have appeared before the board for the past several months concerning the track facility. The board has repeatedly postponed any commitment for the track, but did authorize Burchett to do a cost analysis on the project. Burchett has estimated the project to be in excess of $100,000.

Billips said he was not opposed to a track facility at Allen Central, but suggested the board defer action on the issue until they could be given a detailed report from the maintenance department on what repairs are planned this year for existing school facilities.

Towler said there was "a long list" of repairs scheduled to be made and added that "we could spend millions, quickly, on those kind of things."

"At some point, we need to say to the people at Allen Central if we are going to do this this year or not at all," Towler said. "I feel the project is justified and we should give them an answer no later than December."

Board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell said he thought the board should "commit to them tonight."

"I'm not knocking it," Billips said. "But a tax increase was passed because we're losing revenue and we need to make it up," Billips said. "I don't see the harm in waiting until December. It would be wise and prudent to wait until December."

The board voted 2-1 to commit to the project, but the measure did not pass because the three members in attendance, Campbell, Billips and Mary Hall, would have had to vote unanimously on the issue. Billips voted against committing the funds for the project.

Board member James Duff was absent from Tuesday's meeting.

During public comment at Tuesday's meeting:

- the board heard from Loretta Martin, representing school cooks and custodians, who asked for a salary increase similar that was granted to bus drivers earlier this year;

- the board heard from Jean Rosenberg, Floyd County Education Forum, who asked Towler to publicly commit himself and his staff to the full implementation of education reform in the Floyd County;

- the board heard from Keith Hays, Maytown PTA, who asked that equal access to technology and educational opportunities be available in all schools and asked that safety hazards at the school be repaired; and
- the board heard from Susan Compton who asked to be transferred from principal at Osborne to principal at Martin.

There was no response to the citizen's requests.

Other action Tuesday:

- the board postponed creating the position of director of community relations until a job description and salary have been developed;

- the board voted to appeal a court decision they lost in September concerning a civil suit brought by Triple B Construction company and agreed that if the appeal is lost to proceed immediately with legal action against the firms or individuals responsible for the loss;

- the board raised the price of yearbooks to $14;

- the board approved assuming the administrative cost of employing Ulysses Horne as a part-time family resource/youth service coordinator pending the determination whether or not the job needed to be advertised;

- the board heard an attendance report for the first two months of school from Pete Grigsby, who said attendance increased from last year, but the report failed to note that last year the district's bus drivers went on strike and classes were dismissed for five days during the same time period;

- the board approved a delay in the start of the December 15 meeting at Duff school until 6:30 p.m. in order to hold a public reception for outgoing board members Duff and Hall; and

- the board agreed to dispose of surplus property, which includes the old Wayland, Garrett, Bonanza, Spruce Pine and Drift school buildings.

Rogers visits Betsy Layne

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Newly re-elected Fifth Congressional District Representative Harold "Hal" Rogers visited Floyd County Tuesday afternoon, both to thank his constituents and to set the agenda for his next term.

Rogers addressed a crowd of nearly 100 people at the Betsy Layne Senior Citizens Center, answering questions and acquainting himself with the needs of the people of Floyd County.

Primary among the concerns expressed by those attending the luncheon was federal funding for a proposed low-income housing project for senior citizens.

The project, a 16-unit apartment complex, would be constructed on property owned by and adjacent to the senior citizens center.

Aging Services Representative for the Big Sandy Area Development District Bonnie Hale said that each apartment would be single-occupancy, for those over 60 who no longer wish to maintain a large residence.

Each tenant would pay according to his or her income, Hale said.

Unfortunately, representatives of the senior citizens center and the Big Sandy Area Development District have been turned down twice for federal Housing and Urban Development grants to construct the complex.

Big Sandy ADD is currently working on an application for a Farmers Home Administration grant, Hale said.

Rogers, a senior member of the U.S. House of Representatives Appropriations Committee, pledged his support for the project, and cited his past record of successfully recruiting funds for his district.

Among the most recent projects Rogers has successfully lobbied for in congress are the soon-to-be constructed arm of Interstate 66, which will pass through Eastern Kentucky.

Attorneys provide free legal service to site based councils

The Lawyers for School Reform, a group of approximately 30 attorneys from across the Commonwealth, will support education reform by providing pro bono legal advice to school councils.

The Lawyers for School Reform, organized by the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, emerged after a year of planning and research to determine how attorneys might assist and encourage school-based decision making.

The activities of these education advocates include: gathering information on school law; drafting legal memos; providing legal advice to councils; mediating disputes; and training other attorneys in school law.

William McCann, an attorney and vice chair of the Prichard Committee, has been instrumental in the group's formation.

"The Lawyers for School Reform will continue to learn more about the Kentucky Education Reform Act, answer questions from school councils, and offer legal advice to them in an effort to resolve legal disputes," McCann said. "The idea of solution is our purpose; the idea of litigation is not our purpose."

To use this service, school councils should call The Prichard Committee and identify their need. If necessary, an attorney will get back with the school council.

The Prichard Committee can be reached at 1-800-928-2111 or, in Lexington, 233-9849.

Or, contact Duane Sanders, Floyd County Community Comm. for Education, at 886-8249.

The Prichard Committee is a unique 12-year-old independent organization of citizen volunteers from across Kentucky who are dedicated to improving Kentucky education.

that 1990 mapping."

In a related correspondence concerning the elevation change, the use of the flood plain figures prior to the April 1990 revisions could prove to be a costly mistake.

A June 8 letter from project architect Paul Hoffman to then interim superintendent Eldon Smith indicates that the Betsy Layne project will have to be redesigned and redesigning the project will "adversely affect the project schedule."

Hoffman's letter said that the 661.94 feet elevation was "established in reliance of information prepared and published on the project surveyor's topographic drawing, dated 2/13/92, stating that the 100 year flood plain was 658.5 feet."

"The upward revision of the 100 year flood plain will have several immediate consequences for the project," Hoffman's letter said. "The following is a recital of some of the impacts as I presently understand them to be:

"A. The construction documents are approximately 90 percent complete. The raising of the floodplain will necessitate the redesign of the interior stairs and the connection of the existing physical education building."

"B. The contract documents for the recently awarded contract for mass site improvements will have to be modified to reflect the changes necessitated by the new floodplain.

Basically, this will mean that the lower two feet of the 'unengineered' fill will become an additional two feet of 'engineered' fill. The limits of the fill as shown on the site grading plan will change. Fortunately, the bidding documents issued in conjunction with this contract contained unit prices for both 'engineered' and 'unengineered' fills. Once the magnitude of these changes are understood, a change order would have to be executed to modify the contractor's contract.

"C. I have contacted the project's geotechnical engineer, Bowser-Morner, to review their subsurface data and to analyze the effect of the 'new floodplain' elevation on the existing site conditions.

"D. The building's foundation systems were initially designed to bear on soils which were above the 658.5 elevation. The structural engineer has been contacted to see if the same foundation design will work given the latest floodplain information.

"E. The work of the mechanical/electrical engineers will, likewise, be reviewed for possible effects on the project.

"F. The project is designed to include the partial renovation of the single story brick building into a preschool facility. The finish floor elevation given for this building on the site survey is 658.95'. This places the floors above the 'old floodplain,' but, approximately four feet below the 'new floodplain.' It become questionable whether this building could now be used as a preschool facility. I have contacted the KDE office for facilities management for their determination.

"G. All of the above will adversely affect the project schedule. While the contractor for the mass site improvements would be able to proceed with the demolition portion of his contract, it is probably prudent not to issue the notice to proceed pending a better understanding of the implications of the 'new floodplain.'

"H. I have begun an assessment of the number of manhours, and the cost thereof, that can reasonably be expected in the redesign of the 21 classroom addition to the new criteria. I will present these as soon as they are available."

Architect Hoffman and Byron Hughes could not be reached Thursday to comment on the project.

Area high school students tour Kentucky College of Business

Every year the Health Careers class of Floyd County Technical High School tours the medical facilities at Kentucky College of Business.

Last week was no exception. Twenty-three students and FCHS teacher Annette Harris visited the Pikeville campus of Kentucky College of Business to learn about health-related training programs available, with particular interest given to the Medical Assistant program.

Among those students present during the career day field trip were: Irene Goble, Irvonna Hunt, Clara Jarrell, Linnie Jarrell, Dewanna Terry, Yvonne Burchett, and Jamie Anderson all of Prestonsburg.

Also, Renee Johnson of Melvin, Sheila Dye, Robin Hall and Parthena Gayheart of McDowell, Karrie Duncan and Sherri Patton of Hueysville, Christy Osborne of Martin, Kathy Carr and Georgette Gilliam of Ivel.

Other participants include: Carrie Kidd of Honaker, Denise Marsillett, Billie Howell and Crystal Blackburn of Auxier, Melissa Gibson of Wayland, Lisa Rudder of Allen and Virginia Walters of Harold.

"It's a learning experience for everyone involved," says Patty Justice, the college's six-year medical assistant instructor. "The kids love it and get a true sense of what it's like working in the medical industry."

After a brief welcome and history presentation by Kentucky College's Campus Director Kathy Deskins and Admissions Representative Lois Adkins, the Floyd County students toured Kentucky College's medical facilities. The clinic and laboratory areas include a small waiting room, exam tables, microscopes, lab equipment, scales, a medical library and working counter space.

"The only way to learn the real thing is to practice the real thing," says Justice, who received her certification as a Licensed Practical Nurse from Mayo State Vocational School in Paintsville. She has also worked for the Pikeville Methodist Hospital, a private physician's group and a health-care company in Georgia.

"Our medical facilities are modeled after real-life clinics," she adds. The comprehensive two-year Medical Assistant Associate Degree program at Kentucky College includes the How-To's of taking vital

Hypothermia, the cold killer

It may be the middle of winter but many people still spend time near the water. Whether they are hunting, fishing, boating or even working, these people could fall prey to a cold killer.

HYPOTHERMIA.

Hypothermia is a lowering of the body's internal temperature, and may result from exposure to cold water or air. Cold water chills 25 times faster than cold air. After falling into cold water, it will quickly numb your hands and feet, and your cold fingers will be unable to buckle or hold onto a life jacket, hold rescue line, or your own boat. In minutes, the temperature of the heart, brain and other organs begins to drop. Unconsciousness can occur when your core temperature drops below 90 degrees.

If you fall into cold water, try to get out right away. Right the boat and climb in it, or climb on top of an overturned boat.

If you cannot get out of the water, remain as still as possible, and huddle to preserve body heat. Moving to keep afloat drains heat from the body, so wear a hat and lifejacket to keep warm. Keep your clothes and shoes on and buttonup collars and cuffs. Despite the misconception, wet clothes won't pull you down, but they will keep you warmer. Stay with the boat, so you will be easier to spot when rescuers come. Even if the shore is close, you cannot swim far in cold water.

Any person pulled from cold water should be treated for hypothermia. Symptoms include intense shivering, loss of coordination, mental confusion, cold and blue skin, weak pulse, irregular heartbeat, and enlarged pupils. Once shivering stops, core body temperature begins to drop below critical levels.

Hypothermia victims require professional medical attention. Keep them warm by removing wet clothes and bundling them in warm blankets, or huddle them between two other people to share body heat. Warm them slowly. Never give alcohol to a hypothermia victim. For more information call Dewey Lake, 886-6709 or 789-4521.

On your mark . . .

by Scott Perry

If we didn't know better, we'd suspect that a school board proposal to build an athletic track at Allen Central High is a trade-off for the future support of an in-coming school board member in whose district the facility is proposed.

But things like that just don't happen in Floyd County anymore, do they?

Surely not.

We have to believe then that a $100,000 expense for an athletic facility is of critical importance to the system, so necessary, in fact, that the board can't wait for the recommendations of a just-formed advisory council that is charged with surveying and prioritizing the system's building needs.

Floyd County taxpayers owe superintendent Stephen Towler a debt of gratitude, too, for finding the needed $100,000 in the budget to finance the project.

With all that loose change lying around, we can no doubt expect Towler to recommend at the December meeting that a tax increase passed this fall will be rescinded.

Who needs it?

After the board spends this hundred grand on a track, maybe they'll be able to squeeze a few more bucks out of the budget for less important needs...like instructional materials or classroom supplies. If they can't, well, at least teachers will have a place to walk or run off their stressful frustrations.

Putting extra school funds into school supplies would be somewhat contradictory, also. If students didn't have to sell candy bars to pay for those supplies and other extras, look at all the valuable business experience they'd be losing.

Wonder if there is a track and field event for running backward?

"Extra"-ordinary

Don't get us wrong, we're not anti-athletics. We'd like to see every Floyd County student make it to the Olympics.

Athletics, though, are extra-curricular activities. Translated, extra-curricular means after school.

After school this Friday, the Prestonsburg Blackcats will take on Lawrence County for the Class AA regional football title.

Coach Bill Letton and Company merit our applause for a great season. We hope they make it all the way.

The Blackcats literally wouldn't be where they are today without the backing of their fans, who have over the years put their money where their mouths are.

Prestonsburg will enjoy a home field advantage tonight thanks largely to the financial support of the community decades ago which helped underwrite the expense of building the Blackcat stadium.

That type of support is the real definition of "extra" in extra-curricular and a blueprint for all sports boosters to follow.

Patton congratulated

Editor:
Is there anything on earth more beautiful than a Kentucky October? As I recall my Kentucky Octobers, the mountains in their Autumn dress, I am refreshed, and decide, "Yes, I will endure one more day of this 99-degree desert heat." Word has it that we will cool down to 90-degrees tomorrow. Gee, we might all freeze to death!

The purpose of this letter is not to comment on foliage and weather; however, memories of those Octobers came flooding back when I opened The Times and there was somebody I have known all his life running for the School Board. His name is Edward Patton, and he is my nephew.

First, I want to congratulate Eddie on his decision to run. It could not have been an easy decision under the best of circumstances; and, after the traumatic events in August (losing his wonderful father, almost losing his dear mother and first-born son), we all appreciate even more Eddie's strength of character. We thank Ola and Ed for Eddie. It is due to their love and devotion that has made Eddie the terrific guy he is today.

Let me tell you about Ola and Ed Patton. Two of the finest people to ever grace this earth. They were always there for us. Always giving; never complaining. I see so much of both of them in our Eddie, Daddy and Mommy Bill's first grandson. I am sure Ola and Ed were never aware of how important they were in my life. From my first memory of Ola sewing, washing, cooking, doing my hair for me, to my one-hour-long calls to her at least once a month, as recently as a couple of weeks before the accident. She made sure my dresses were starched and my shoes were shined. She made my costumes for our school plays. During these years, Ola and Ed had small children of their own Eddie and Jerry.

And, as a starving student in Bowling Green, Ola would send a CARE package. Her timing was impeccable. My roommate and I would be down to our last bean, and did we ever devour that food. By this time, Ola and Ed were adding two more boys to their family Keith and Kern. Yet, all these family responsibilities did not deter them from their generous giving — materially, spiritually, emotionally.

They were always there those Octobers transporting me to and from the Lexington airport. I imagine my biggest challenge to Ola was when we were losing our parents and she had to put up with my emotional outbursts over the telephone. Sure didn't make things any easier for her, as she was grief stricken herself. She could have said, "For heaven's sake, get hold of yourself, stop crying." She didn't; just let me cry it out.

There are so many things I could say to define Eddie and his parents and someday, I will do so. My purpose today is to give you a thumbnail sketch of Ola and Ed and the way they touched my life.

Eddie Patton will make a fine member of your School Board.

Congratulations, Good Buddy.

I, Naomi Thomas, was in the city of Prestonsburg, Kentucky on Wednesday, October 21, 1992. I was there with my husband, Arthur Thomas. We were there for our flu shots at the health department. Arthur had an X-Ray for his lungs. He was to be back at 3:00 p.m. to see the doctor.

I, Naomi, went for a walk on the street. I met William James May in front of the Bank Josephine and we talked for a while about his aunt and Mrs. Earl A. Stumbo and about Arthur's mother and my mother. I thanked him for the dishes that he gave me that were Tress Francis. He said he was glad that I was enjoying them, then I went across the street and sat down at one of the tables that are outside at the Playhouse Restaurant.

I was talking to some school children and having a good time with them. I was enjoying talking with the children when I was taken off the street by two policemen of the Prestonsburg police force. I was not told what I had done. I was asked by the large policeman if I had been in the mental health place. I told him no I had not.

Better Bingo

Now that Kentuckians have voted to make charitable gambling constitutional, it is time, finally, to make it clean.

If there were any doubts about the urgency, the shocking results of recent raids on Louisville bingo hall operators—a bucket stuffed with $128,000 in cash, a purported veterans organization with bank accounts totaling $765,000—should have dispelled them.

Charitable gaming, despite our visions of Aunt Alice and her friends down at the church hall, is a big-money industry ripe for big-time abuse. Ensuring its integrity will require Kentucky to impose, as several other states already have, strict and thorough regulation.

If it doesn't, the legalization of charitable gambling will produce a bonanza—not for charities, but for middlemen, skimmers, con men and crooks.

In anticipation of the voters' November 3 approval of the charitable gaming constitutional amendment, the 1992 General Assembly made a feeble stab at stopgap regulation.

Its interim Committee on Business Organizations and Professions has now taken the initial steps toward redeeming the situation and is to receive a thorough report on the issue next week.

Now is the time for Kentucky's other legitimate charities to swallow hard and embrace the principle of meaningful regulation. They will find, as charities in other states have, that the benefits far outweigh the inconveniences. - The Louisville Courier-Journal

I had no business in there, he told the young policeman to get me and not let me run away, away from what — I had not done anything. They made me look like a criminal in front of the children, it hurt me to look at them.

The young police did not take a hold of me, he was nice to me, I think he knew me, I am not for sure. I begged the large policeman to let the young one to go and tell my husband where they were taking me. He said no, you are going to jail; maybe he will find you.

They took me to the mental health and made me stand up in front of some workers and asked them if they had seen me in there. They said no they had not seen me in there. Then I was taken back in a side room by the large policeman and pushed down in a chair and he made me empty my purse out on the table and asked me if I had a gun. He put his hands on me looking for a gun. I have never owned a gun, and I had no gun then.

The young one came in with a woman, who took a paper out of her purse, gave it to them and told the police to take me to jail, but they didn't. I was taken back out where they had gotten me. Arthur was there; I guess the children had told him what had happened. Then the large policeman said to my husband that I was not arrested. What do you think?

I was pushed around and talked to like a dog. I said to the large policeman that I was going to see my attorney, he said you need three or four, just like he was making fun of me. I am a sick person. I have heart trouble.

I have arthritis and I can hardly walk at times. I was sick all that night with my heart after all this took place. I am still sick.

I do know some very nice people in Prestonsburg, but I would like to know where the police force of the city get their training and if they are taught to mistreat and shove old ladies around like me.

I am sixty-three and a half years old. I am an upstanding person in this county, and I raised my children by myself. They are all Christians, my grandchildren are also Christians and are also trying to raise the great-grandchildren the same way.

I have worked in Prestonsburg for 40 years. I bought my land. I paid for it myself. I asked no one for help. I did not even ask for food stamps. I worked hard for what I got and I will not be treated like a criminal on the street. I pay my taxes and I was snared up on the street as if I were a dog. I am sick and tired of it.

I also went to Cooley Pharmacy to pick up Arthur's and my prescriptions. I will be afraid to come back in the city again. I have tried to stay calm and not get upset and sit and cry; I don't want to do anything to hurt my family but I have not done anything wrong and now I am mad and ready to fight. I am going to have some respect in this city.

Ford blames G & B for fatal accident

Ford Motor Company says it was not responsible for a September collision between an ambulance and a coal truck that killed four people in Johnson County.

Instead, Ford, which manufactured the ambulance involved in the September 14 fatality, claims the vehicle's owner, G & B Ambulance Service of Salyersville, made "unauthorized alterations" that were a "substantial" cause of the accident.

In a response filed Friday to a lawsuit, Ford contends that the ambulance "was not in its original, unaltered and unmodified condition" when it collided head-on into Isaac Jude's coal truck on Route 460 at Oil Springs. Jude's family filed a complaint October 20 in Johnson Circuit Court, claiming the manufacturer's and the ambulance service's negligence caused the accident.

But Ford's attorneys, Lionel A. Hawse and William C. Shouse of Lexington, say unauthorized changes, "including failure to observe routine care and maintenance," had been made to the ambulance by G & B, playing a part in the fiery crash.

The emergency vehicle was "designed, manufactured, tested and sold in conformity with the generally recognized and prevailing standards" at the time it was planned and made more than eight years ago, claims Ford, which asks that it be dismissed as a defendant in the lawsuit.

In addition, Ford and G & B, which responded to the suit Thursday, contend that Jude "was himself guilty of negligence" in the accident. They didn't elaborate.

Police said the ambulance was on the wrong side of the road when it crashed into the coal truck. Jude, two ambulance attendants and a patient were killed when the vehicles caught on fire and exploded.

A $10 million suit has been filed by the patient's husband, but Ford is not named as a defendant. — The Paintsville Herald

Martin County man sought in shooting

A former Martin County man is being sought in connection with the shooting death of a Columbus, Ohio man on Saturday.

Beverly Stepp, 60, formerly of Warfield in Martin County, is accused of shooting his 20-year-old neighbor, Dennis Eskelson, and beating 11-year-old James Gillman with a pistol.

According to a Columbus police report, the argument started over a Ford Escort, which was owned by Stepp.

Stepp is six-feet tall, has brown eyes, and weighs 199 pounds. — The Mountain Citizen

Pike customers owe county more than $1 million in solid waste bills

As Pike County's bills for hauling garbage to a West Virginia landfill pile up, the stack of unpaid solid waste bills from county residents is growing rapidly as well.

Information obtained from the Solid Waste Department showed that, at the end of October, 697 customers owed the county at least $1,000. Of those, 10 — mostly businesses — had a balance of more than $5,000, with three owing more than $10,000.

The last payment date on some of the outstanding accounts went as far back as September 1984. Some customers had never made a payment.

The unpaid bills, listed by account name, amounted to more than $1.1 million in lost revenue for the county. — Appalachian News Express, Pikeville

Judge may decide Friday if body should be exhumed

A judge may decide this week whether the body of slain Johnson County Sheriff Gene Cyrus will be exhumed for an autopsy.

Pike Circuit Judge Bears Collier will hold a hearing Friday to consider a motion requesting that Cyrus' body be exhumed. The request is by the attorneys for Flem Burchett, 63, of Oil Springs, who is charged with shooting the sheriff to death March 18.

An autopsy wasn't performed on Cyrus because Coroner J.R. Frisby said there was enough evidence from a post-mortem examination to show that Burchett shot the sheriff. But Maysville lawyers Ronald Rigg and Dale Homer say an autopsy is needed to prove their theory that someone else, possibly a state police officer fired the shot.

They claim the shot may have come from "an angle from which (Burchett) could not have fired." — The Paintsville Herald

The high cost of AIDS

AIDS is taking its toll worldwide, in wealth as well as lives. A look at its financial impact:

Unequal spending

- 94% of all the money spent treating AIDS is in industrialized countries
- 80% of all the new cases are in poor countries
- One year's treatment for an AIDS patient costs $38,000 in the U.S.
- Only $400 is spent a year for a patient in Africa

High worldwide costs

Estimates for total spending worldwide this year, in billions:

U.S. treatment costs nearly double in four years

Costs for treating one patient in the U.S. from diagnosis to death:

'89	$57,000
'90	$75,000
'91	$85,000
'92	$102,000

Floyd County artist has work in PCC exhibit

Prestonsburg Community College art instructor Thomas J. Whitaker has a work on display at Prestonsburg Community College as a part of Images From the Mountains: A Traveling Exhibit of Appalachian artists. Now in its fifth year, the Images From the Mountains show is a juried exhibit that showcases professional and emerging eastern Kentucky artists. This year's exhibit includes 24 paintings and prints by 17 regional artists. The exhibit is organized by Appalshop, the media arts organization in Whitesburg. After opening in Whitesburg at the end of 1991, the exhibit tours eastern Kentucky throughout this year. The exhibit is on display at PCC through December 3.

$306,000 in grants to 29 counties for increase in cancer screenings

Twenty-nine Kentucky counties have been armed with an additional $306,000 in state funds to increase life-saving cancer screenings for low-income women.

The grants from the state Department for Health Services will allow health departments in the 29 counties to concentrate efforts on getting women to have regular mammograms (breast cancer screenings) and Pap tests (cervical cancer screenings).

The ultimate aim is to improve life for women by reducing the deaths attributed to breast and cervical cancer in Kentucky, according to Health Services Commissioner Rice Leach, M.D., who is himself a survivor of a cancer detected in its early stages.

"Cervical cancer is almost always totally curable if caught in its early stages," said Leach. "And the only way to catch it early is for women to have regular Pap tests.

"By the same token, women greatly increase their survival chances if breast cancer is detected in its early stages," he said. "A mammogram is the best way we have of detecting early breast cancer.

"If these grants can help health departments encourage women to take advantage of screening services that are already in place, we can actually save lives."

Plans for increasing screenings include education through civic, church and homemaker groups, adult education classes, senior citizens centers and schools; extending clinic hours; screenings off health department premises; educating all female health department patients about screenings; educating local doctors about services; and conducting health fairs.

The Floyd County Health Center received a $17,827 grant. The grant will be used to visit local doctors to make them aware of health department cancer programs; speak with all female health department patients about screenings regardless of the service they are receiving; ask patients to give friends and family informational brochures; develop tickler card system for rescreening.

The Christian Appalachian Project helps many needy families annually, and the Christmas season is no exception. Six hundred and ninety-five families in Floyd, Magoffin, and Knott counties and 100 more in Lawrence and Martin counties will receive a Christmas basket. CAP has already chosen this year's recipients of the baskets from applicants they have helped all year long. "These families that receive aid donate time doing community work," said Judy Crum, director of the project. "The are people who try to help themselves."

The recipients will actually get a feast in a basket. All the items they'll receive are good quality brand-name items. Each basket will be filled with a 3lb. Armour ham, Jello vanilla pudding, Betty Crocker cake mix, Zesta crackers, Showboat sweet potatoes, Ocean Spray cranberry sauce, Stove Top stuffing, Stokely corn, 10 lbs. Idaho potatoes, 5lb. Red Delicious apples, and 8 lbs. navel oranges. The total cost of filling those 795 baskets was $14,850. That comes to $18.65 per basket. "If it weren't for local merchants helping us out with the cost, we wouldn't be able to put so much stuff in," Crum remarked. Local merchants and national companies send bulk items to CAP. Those that donate are much appreciated. without all those donations, CAP could not serve as many people.

No more applications will be taken for this year's Christmas baskets. There is no sign-up list. These baskets are already selected for people who have a need, but have tried to help themselves.

Some clients come from the Outreach program, which helps people pay utilities, etc. Crum says they often get clients from the emergency assistance list. The list of clients changes each year and those people are served only once a year. In this way, everyone in need will be served at some time or another. Christian Appalachian Project probably won't need any volunteers to help with the Christmas baskets. However, they welcome volunteers at other times, especially for the Garden Seed Program, which will be started at the end of January. In this project, CAP usually gives about 8 types of seeds (all of which have to be packaged individually.) In addition, the recipients get fertilizer and canning jars.

Christian Appalachian Project will give out Christmas baskets to pre-chosen recipients on December 16, 17, and 18. For the past 28 years, CAP has made Christmas a jollier time for needy families in Eastern Kentucky. CAP's contribution to our area is truly an example of sharing the Christmas spirit.

Piarist School lists honor roll

Ten students have been placed on the honor roll at the Piarist School in Martin for the first quarter, said Principal Rev. Thomas Carroll.

Three freshmen students earned first honors, which means they attained a quality point average of 3.8 or higher out of a possible 4.0. Those students are Britany Francis of Garrett, Stephanie Sizemore of Martin, and Karen Strawser of Pikeville.

Seven students earned second honors with quality point average above 3.0. They are Elizabeth Blackburn of Water Gap, Leigh Ann Blackburn of Betsy Layne, Duran Bryant of Harold, Angela Collins of Water Gap, Matthew Hale of Prestonsburg, Justin Reichenbach of Prestonsburg, and Wendy Vanderpool of Drift.

The Piarist School is a small, private college preparatory high school in Martin.

Leaves can cause skidding on wet roads

Leaves can turn into a road hazard for drivers when it rains. While rain alone can reduce tire traction by as much as 30 percent, leaves on top of asphalt can increase slipperiness and the risk of skidding. The Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation offers the following tips for drivers:

- * Watch for leaves in curves or dips of two-lane roads, where they tend to collect.
- * Reduce your speed by half when traveling on a wet road covered by leaves. Be especially careful when temperatures dip to freezing and moisture on the leaves may have turned to ice.
- * Adjust your speed before you come to a curve, so you will not have to brake suddenly and risk skidding.
- * Keep your tires properly inflated. Reduced air pressure allows the treads to squeeze together, reducing the ability of the tire to sweep away water and maintain traction.
- * If you do skid on wet leaves, try to steer and slow down without locking up your brakes. Avoid hitting anything head on. It is better to hit something with a glancing blow.

For more information on defensive driving, contact the Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation by calling 233-1111 (outside Lexington call 1(800)568-5222).

Pikeville College hosts academic team quick recall tournament

Pikeville College will be hosting a tournament for the Kentucky Collegiate Quick Recall League on Saturday, November 21, in Armington Science Center. Competition begins at 10:00 a.m. and will be completed at 4:00 p.m. The KCQRL has been in existence since 1989 with member schools throughout Kentucky and neighboring states.

Member and non-member schools compete throughout the academic year in quick recall tournaments sponsored by member schools. The schools compete in two divisions. Division I is juniors and seniors from 4-year schools and Division II is freshmen and sophomores from 4-year schools and community colleges.

The Pikeville College Tournament will host teams from Alice Lloyd College, Eastern Kentucky University, Hazard Community College, Hopkinsville Community College, Jefferson Community College-Downtown, Jefferson Community College-Southwest, Murry State University, Pikeville College, Transylvania University, Union College, and the University of Kentucky.

The teams will compete within their own divisions in a modified round robin in the morning for seedings and then the top teams will compete in a single elimination tournament in the afternoon. The public is invited to come and watch this spirited competition.

Summers deployed to Meditterean

Navy Seaman Recruit Jeffery F. Summers, a 1985 graduate of Perry High School of Massillon, Ohio, recently deployed aboard the destroyer USS Caron, homeported in Norfolk, Virginia, to the Meditterean with the USS John F. Kennedy aircraft carrier battle group.

The battle group is composed of more than 9,000 sailors and Marines, 10 ships, two submarines and a variety of aviation squadrons and detachments. The Navy and Marine Corps, "sea-air-land" team is capable of a full range of action—from port visits and humanitarian relief to major offensive operations.

Summers will participate in numerous exercises designed to challenge the mission readiness of the ship and crew.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK READ-A-THON

Mountain Christian Academy
November 16-20, 1992

During Children's Book Week, students and faculty at Mountain Christian Academy will be reading, reading, reading. Each class and the faculty have set goals of the number of books they will read during the week. On Friday, Nov. 20, a teacher, Sr. Judy Yunker, will hold a read-a-thon. She will begin at 8:00 a.m. and read as many pages, books as she can until 3:00 p.m. Sr. will be joined in her reading marathon by various classes of students during the day. Parents and families are invited to the library to read along.

Then at 7:00 p.m., Sr. Judy will give a lecture, open to the public, on all the books she has read that day. The books will be selected by Carolyn Traum of The Bookworm. Sr. will be collecting pledges per page as a fund raising activity.

The purpose of the read-a-thon is to show that the more you read, the more you can read.

Academic excellence

Billy Grimm of Floyd County has maintained a high scholastic record at Alice Lloyd College. He will graduate in the spring.

Alice Lloyd student prepares for community involvement

by Stephanie Smith
ALC Writer

Alice Lloyd College awards a scholarship to those students who attain academic excellence during high school. Scholars who receive the Memorial Scholarship must graduate from high school with a minimum 3.5 grade point average. The student then must maintain a 3.0 g.p.a. during their stay at the college in order to keep the scholarship. The reward these dedicated young people receive not only praises their academic achievements but also provides the student with a virtually free education.

Billy Grimm, a senior at Alice Lloyd, has conscientiously worked to maintain high scholastic standards which have enabled him to maintain the Memorial Scholarship each of his four years. He graduates in the spring with a degree in math/physical science secondary education and plans to work toward a master's degree at the University of Kentucky. After completing his education, the senior aspires to become politically active within the community he works.

Through Alice Lloyd, Grimm has been provided the opportunity to develop the intellect and character he will need to reach his goals. He stated, "Alice Lloyd College has been one of the most positive influences in my life." The same positive force that influenced Grimm issues forth a challenge to all students to strive toward excellence in academics and in life.

World travelers

As the sixth grade class at Mountain Christian Academy studied early civilizations, they created projects to demonstrate their understanding. Ancient Greece, Rome, Egypt, and Mesopotamia were some of the areas studied. Most chose to build structures that were typical of these ancient societies. The yurt, a dwelling place, as well as the Parthenon and Coliseum, were among the structures created. Pictured are, first row, Steven Allen and Matthew Mayo. Second row, Jonathan Senters, William Sallsbury, Gracie Smith, and Joshua Hall.

Science direction

Governor Jones announces new Kentucky Tech scholarship program

Governor Breton Jones has announced the creation of a new scholarship program to help high school students continue their education at the state's vocational-technical schools. The announcement came at the dedication of a $5 million expansion of facilities at the Workforce Development Cabinet's Kentucky Tech-Central Kentucky State Vocational-Technical School in Lexington. The Governor's Kentucky Tech Scholarship (KTS) Program, administered by the Kentucky Tech System, will provide two scholarships annually to each of the state's vocational-technical schools and health technology centers, as well as the Kentucky Advanced Technology Center in Bowling Green. Funding will cover tuition, registration fees, required books, supplies and uniforms, and has an estimated dollar value of $2,200. Funding for the program will be absorbed by the Department for Adult and Technical Education.

Scholarships are automatically renewable in the second year to allow a student to complete the two-year diploma program. A maximum of four scholarships per year could be in effect at each school.

A five-member review and selection committee, including a representative of business and industry, school administrator, two faculty members and a school counselor, will be formed at each school to select recipients. The committee will also make recommendations on renewals for the second year of a diploma program.

To be considered for a scholarship, high school students must attain a 3.2 GPA at mid-point of their senior year, submit four letters of reference and a copy of the Kentucky Education Reform Act Writing Portfolio including a two-page statement on why they have chosen a particular field of study, occupational objectives and a listing of high school extra-curricular and community activities.

"The Governor's Scholarship will help to attract academically prepared students to the increasingly complex field of technical training," said Gary Werenskjold, commissioner of the Department for Adult and Technical Education. "We believe it will do much to answer the clear mandate from business and industry for a highly skilled and well qualified workforce," he said.

The first two scholarships will be awarded at each institution during the 1993-94 school year. For more information, contact the Department for Adult and Technical Education at 1-800-223-5632.

Speaker says individuals must take responsibility for betterment

Dr. Leola Travis, professor and executive assistant to President Mary Smith of Kentucky State University, was the featured speaker at a recent Modern Social Problems project on African Americans-Perspectives for the '90's. Dr. Travis has taught business education for the past 30 years at Kentucky State. She received her Ph.D. from Bloomington University in Bloomington, Indiana, and her M.A. from Marshall University in Huntington, West Virginia.

In her address, Dr. Travis stressed the idea that African Americans must take responsibility for their own betterment. She used as an example, her successful brother who is employed for a six-figure salary in Washington, D.C. According to Dr. Travis, he did it all on his own. What must be obtained are the pride and self-esteem which make it possible to envision ones success.

Accompanying Dr. Travis was Kentucky State graduate Margaret Miller.

Don't let stroke strike you out if you, or someone you know, has a stroke

Is life over?

That depends.

Stroke is the No. 3 killer in the United States. But you can recover. How successful you are in fighting the battle of recovery is up to you.

Often severe and sudden, stroke occurs when a blood vessel bringing oxygen and nutrients to the brain either bursts or is clogged by a blood clot or another particle. This prevents blood from flowing to a part of the brain. Brain cells are damaged or die when they don't receive blood.

The various kinds of strokes could alter your behavior and thought patterns, memory, senses, ability to move parts of your body, speech and your ability to understand speech.

The effect of a stroke depends in part on which brain cells are damaged and the extent of the damage. It also depends on how well the body repairs the blood supply system to the brain, or how quickly other areas of brain tissue take over the work of the damaged cells.

Your temperament before a stroke also will determine how you react afterward. So it's up to you, in part.

Keep in mind three keys to a successful recovery from stroke:

- Rehabilitation should begin as soon as possible.

- Rehabilitation should be a time that the family shows strong support for the patient.

- Rehabilitation should be a team effort in which doctors, nurses and other health specialists work closely with the patient and the family.

People with stroke are at higher risk for having another. Thus, it's wise to have a good medical follow-up program that can help you control some risk factors.

Besides prior stroke, risk factors you can't control are your age, sex, race and having diabetes mellitus. Risk factors that can be changed by medical treatment are high blood pressure, heart disease and transient ischemic attacks (TIAs). And risk factors that can be changed by lifestyle are high blood cholesterol, cigarette smoking, obesity and excessive alcohol intake. Focus on those you can change.

It's also good to know the warning signs of stroke: sudden weakness or numbness of the face, arm or leg on one side of the body; sudden dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye; loss of speech, or trouble talking or understanding; speech; sudden severe headaches with no apparent cause; and unexplained dizziness, unsteadiness or sudden falls, especially along with any of the previous symptoms.

Call the American Heart Association at 1-800-AHA-USA1 for more complete information on how you or a loved one can recover from a stroke. You'll find that stroke doesn't have to strike you out.

PCC looks at death and dying

A unit on the topic of "Death and Dying" in the Prestonsburg Community College Modern Social Problems class, organized by students Stacy Smith, Melanie Rice, Sue Smith and Ann Castle included a mock funeral on the PCC campus on October 29. Officiating in his role as minister for the funeral was Dr. Tim Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg. Other activities in the three day unit of study were a field trip to Carter Funeral Home where various aspects of the funeral industry were discussed, and a panel composed of members of the community who are knowledgeable about the topic of study. Professor Leo Weddle is the instructor of the Modern Social Problems class.

The Floyd County Times

Friday, November 20, 1992 A 9

Miranda Lafferty

The The Floyd County Times and the Department of Instruction of Floyd County Schools jointly wish to feature the student work of Miranda Lafferty, a first grade Young Authors' winner from Mrs. Debra Hick's class at Clark Elementary. She is the daughter of Anthony and Patricia Lafferty of Hippo. Her non-illustrated book, The Ghost in My Closet, is printed with permission.

She was a room winner, a school winner, and a county-wide winner for the 1991-92 school year for her book. She received a $50 U.S. Savings Bond at a spring awards ceremony. Over 5,000 elementary and middle school students participated in competition throughout the county.

Her book and all the county-wide winners may be viewed in the display, November 16 - 25 at the Floyd County Library.

The Ghost in My Closet

by Miranda Lafferty

One night I heard something in my bedroom closet. It said, "Whooooooooooo!" I screamed, "Mom! Dad! There's a ghost in my closet!"

But they didn't believe me. They said, "Just go back to bed." So I went back to bed. Then the closet door opened. There was the ghost!

I got my bat and hit the ghost. It started to cry. It cried so loud that it nearly shook the house down.

I said, "Don't cry! I'll be your friend." He stopped crying and said, "Thank you." I asked the ghost what its name was. He said, "Simon."

I asked Simon if he wanted to go to school with me tomorrow. I took Simon to school. All the kids screamed.

We went outside. He pushed everyone off the slide. Simon didn't come when the teacher told him to. Simon got me in trouble. The teacher said, "You leave that ghost at home!" Simon cried, "I was only playing with the kids."

Simon sneaked into school another day and he was sent to the principal's office. Simon cried and cried.

Mr. Combs said, "Stop!" Simon got his feelings hurt and he never came back to school again.

Simon still lives in my closet.

ABCs OF EDUCATION

by Jennifer Little

Many things have been written in this column about parenting and ways parents can change children's lives. But children change adult's lives on a daily basis. Not much has been said about that. What can you say? Let us hear how you have seen your child grow. Let others know what brings you joy about your children or the children in the neighborhood.

I have taught many children over the last 20 odd years, and all have brought joy into my life in some way. Some days their leaving school was the best thing I could say about them, but overall they changed the way I teach children, the way I view the world. I have learned to see things through the eyes of children of all ages. Most mothers have to as they raise their children, but often they forget how to "see" what the child sees.

The child is a frightened, joy-filled creature on an adventure of life. He or she is willing to risk everything to have someone accept him or her just as he or she is. The child will encounter adults openly unless he or she has been taught to distrust. Only adults teach children distrust, hate, jealousy or suspicion. A child naturally does not have those "instincts" in his or her nature.

What they do have in their nature is a fear of losing the love and acceptance of the adults most important to him or her — the parents in his or her life. The parents reject a child out of necessity by ignoring his or her cries while they answer the phone, tend to the needs of other children, prepare dinner. They draw the child back to them through conversation, hugs and shared experiences.

How often we forget our simple inattention can be perceived as a rejection to a child. How often we do not attend fully because we are preoccupied with our own thoughts and ideas of what a "parent" or "adult" should be. We "should" not be anything other than what we are — human beings with our own faults and frailties. To teach a child anything else is a disappointment at some time or another.

The best lesson I teach my students, every year it seems, is that I do not know. They ask me a question and, rather than cover my ignorance, I simply state I do not know. Often they become angry because I "should" know. Wrong, I "should" not because I do not. I know what I know, and I don't know a whole lot when it comes right down to tests and other such measures of "knowing."

But I do know kids. I know they need love and attention, just like a garden, before they bloom and grow fruit. I know they like to play and work, sometimes at the same time. I know they like to share good things and sad things, just as I do. I know they like to smile and have a good time at whatever they are doing, just as we adults do. I try to do that for my

Mountain Voices — by Willie Elliott —

Where are we in KERA?
By Willie Elliott

As we muddle along in our attempt to implement KERA, it seems that the primary block is having the most significant impact on our schools. There are at least two reasons for the successes that this group is having: first of all that group got more practical training than the rest of us. (The training was directed at this one group and seems to be getting the results that was intended). I don't know if this was a chance happening or the state department, under a money crunch, started at the ground level. Another factor is the fact that the primary block teachers, as a group, are working more than the rest of us.

I have heard any number of success stories coming out of the primary block. I have also heard stories about teachers spending an inordinate amount of time working on lesson plans and projects for this group. Linda spent many of her summer days working to get ready for this program. Now she spends many evenings (sometimes going into the night) working on projects. Yet she seems more contented with her work this year. Each day she has a success story to relate; whereas, last year each day seemed to bring another discipline problem. Most of the primary block teachers at McDowell Elementary are really working hard to make this program a success.

This program is having an effect on our lives at home. We are beginning to use the encyclopedia as we never did before. I have already read about goats, money, embryos, ducks, and a host of other topics. Sometimes I wonder how students this young get interested in some of these topics, but there is always a correlation between these topics and the unit being taught. It is also interesting to read about these topics (or they have been so far).

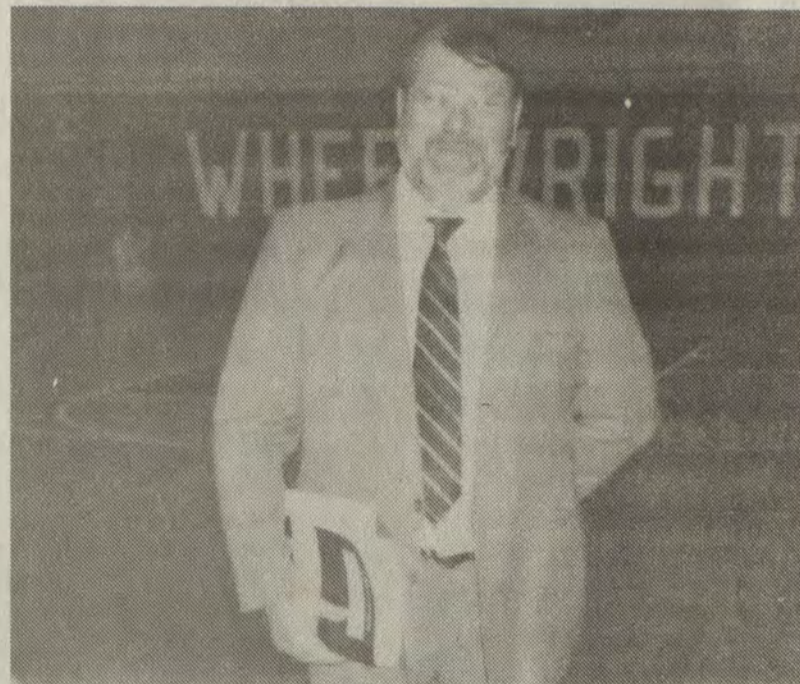

In the past I would read stories to Linda that we had covered in our English classes. I still do this to some extent, but for the most part, the tables have turned. She is always telling me about children's stories that I should read. Even though these are short they are still books. One such book was The Giving Tree. I agreed with Linda that it was a very fine book. Since then she has brought such fine books as The Story about Ping, The Napping House, and More Spaghetti

I say. I have come to be a fan of children's literature. Maybe the study of children's literature should become a part of an English major's curriculum.

So what have I learned from all this? I have a unit writer expert living in my very own house, and I plan to take advantage of her knowledge. Let's face it: these primary block people are far ahead of the rest of us when it comes to creating units. If my first unit includes such stories as "The Three Little Pigs," "The Little Red Hen," or "The Story about Ping," you will know that Linda did my unit.

I applaud the successes that the primary block group is having, and their successes suggest that the same kind of success is on the way for the rest of us. We must have some top-notch training and I think that is coming. I look forward to making the progress that this group has made.

A visitor at Wheelwright

On October 12, Judge Danny Caudill, a WHS alumnus who graduated in 1966, visited Wheelwright High School to talk to students about drug and alcohol use. He also told the students about the consequences of using drugs and alcohol. For example he told the students that if a 16-year-old gets caught for DUI, their license would be suspended until they are 18. Judge Caudill mentioned many other things; he especially stressed for anyone who is 18 or older to go vote.

McDowell academic team begins on a successful note

Academics at McDowell are top priority as the Academic Team is again competing in the Jenny Wiley Academic Conference. McDowell's Quick Recall team is undefeated.

Members are Neil Moore, Nathaniel Meade, Jessica Frazier, Brandon Howell, Jada Hall, Brandon Elswick, and Danielle Tackett.

Several McDowell members have placed in written Assessment. In addition to Quick Recall members, the team consists of Carrie Reynolds, Launa Rose, Stacia Stumbo, Lorrie Patton, Kerrie Patton, Monica Reid, Amanda Compton, Wendell Wilson and Nathan Reed.

Also, several sixth-grade students are participating.

The Daredevils Academic Team is coached by Kitty Frazier.

Osborne Preschool celebrates Halloween

On Friday, October 30, Karen Johnson's Preschool students celebrated Halloween at school. The young students donned costumes of various characters, enjoyed treats of the season, and performed to the music of "Witches' Brew" and "Ghostbusters." Alesha Tackett, preschool assistant, helped Johnson with the activities. Learning was accomplished through fun and games.

WHS students visited by Berea professors

Students of Mrs. Woody and Mr. Reynolds American Studies class at Wheelwright High School were visited by Berea College professors. Exhibits were prepared to give the visitors a better understanding of the area and the work of the students on such projects as Mantrip, a magazine written by the Wheelwright High School Cultural Journalism class. The professors wanted to learn more about the area of Wheelwright and the education process there. The professors asked questions about the coal industry, politics, and the current economic status of the area. Teachers and members of the community were also present to give their opinions and ideas on the topics. Denver Osborne, a graduate of W.H.S., who has lived in the area all of his life gave the professors a brief history of Wheelwright and the mining industries that were once a major part of it. After the discussions were brought to an end the visitors were treated to snacks prepared by members of the class, leaving them with a positive look at Wheelwright and the people's there.

Can we do it for all our kids, just once, all at the same time? Maybe we need a "fun day" for everyone to recognize that it is OK to love each other just as we are and have a good time that way. Smile Awhile

by Sarah Hopsan

A horse of a different color?

It's always infuriated me, but Eastern Kentuckians have often been blamed for being one brick short when it comes to mental acumen. I vehemently disagree with this shortsighted assessment, yet we sometimes do lend credence to some of the highly exaggerated folklore that is attributed to us.

A good example of this type of scuttlebutt could be found in an article written in this past weekend's newspaper. The article surrounded the arrest of a man for drunk driving.

First, let me say that anybody with enough sense to know realizes that drinking and driving are a deadly combination. I don't want anybody I know or love out driving while drinking, nor do I want anybody I don't know or love out driving while drinking because they could hurt someone I know or love.

Now that I have voiced my opinion, I want to say that the drunk driving arrest in the article only served to make us look even more moronic because the man was arrested for drinking while driving a horse. That's right. A four-legged creature who probably couldn't get up enough speed to catch a turtle with a bad limp.

Honestly, if the man had been in the middle of an interstate highway, he could have probably caused an accident, but it is highly unlikely that anything of this magnitude would occur. On the other hand, had it been the horse that had been drunk it could have altered the course of events immensely.

The article did not say whether or not they impounded the horse, but I think it would have been more realistic if they had let the man lead his horse back to the barn. That might have sobered him up a bit. Instead they chose to be more realistic and fine him for being drunk while operating an unmotorized vehicle.

The good thing about horses being named as an unmotorized vehicle is that the emissions from a horse aren't as lethal as those from an automobile, however more pungent. And, of course, you aren't required to buy a license and pay taxes and insurance on your horse so why should you be liable for the same consequences?

My whole point here is that I can just hear people from New York discussing this article if it was picked up by the AP (which it probably was).

"Hey, Saul. It says that some hill-billy got arrested for driving a horse while drinking."

"Ya got to be kidding?"

"Nah! Those hayseeds are so stupid."

"Ya can say that again. Why my Uncle Moe's not even dumb enough to do that, and he hasn't been sober (See Smile Awhile, B 2)

Emmy award winner correspondent to lecture during Writer's Workshop

David Dick

David Dick, director of the University of Kentucky School of Journalism, will be a presenter in the Floyd County School's High School Student Writer's Workshop to be held Monday, November 23, at the Wilkinson/Stumbo Convention Center at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Dick graduated from the University of Kentucky with bachelor's and master's degrees in English Literature. He worked as a reporter for WHAS radio and television in Louisville from 1959-1966. Then, he became a news correspondent for CBS and was based in Washington, Atlanta, Caracas, and Dallas. He worked in this capacity through 1985. Dick received an Emmy for his covering of the shooting of George Wallace in 1972, and he was inducted into the Kentucky Journalism Hall of Fame in 1987.

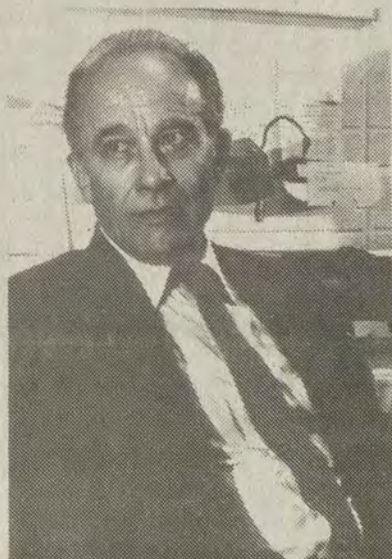

He writes the monthly column: "The View from Plum Lick" for Kentucky Living, the rural electric magazine. He has recently published a book by that same title, which is a group of essays.

In addition to David Dick, other noted writers and professionals will take part in presenting to high school students. Presenters and their expertise are: Bob Smith, anchorman from WSAZ; Gayle Compton, writer for News Express; Barbara Hager, Madison Magazine; Scott Perry, Floyd County Times; Paul Gearheart, WPRG; Dr. Carolyn Turner, non-fiction author; Anne Shelby, author of children's books, poetry and fiction; Angie Debord, storyteller; J.D. Hall, artist who uses puppets with writing; and Steve Porter, photographer.

Students from all five high schools have been invited, and 200 will participate with this event. Part of the program includes student presentations of writing or writing projects.

This all-day Student Writer's Workshop is offered through the Writing Program of Floyd County Schools. Coordinating events is Patricia Watson.

Noted author will address Floyd County students on November 24

Jim Wayne Miller

Jim Wayne Miller, noted poet and essayist, professor of German at Western Kentucky University, is to be a guest author of Floyd County Schools' Eighth Grade Student Writers' Workshop, scheduled for Tuesday, November 24, at the Wilkinson/Stumbo Convention Center.

Miller has published several books and other writings. Some of his writings include: Dialogue With a Dead Man (1974), The Mountains Have Come Closer (1980), Vein of Words (1984), Nostalgia for 70 (1986), and His First, Best Country (1987). He has edited works of Jesse Stuart and James Still. Miller's poems and essays have appeared in many magazines and journals, and in anthologies and textbooks, among which include: United States in Literature (Scott, Foresman and Company), A Kentucky Album (University Press of Kentucky, Brannan and Horvath, eds.), Laughter in Appalachia, Loyal Jones and Billy Edd Wheeler, eds., August House, 1987; and others.

Miller has received several awards for his writings. His honors include: Thomas Wolfe Award, Zoe Kindaid Brockman Memorial Award for poetry (North Carolina Poetry Society), Appalachian Writers Association Book of the Year Award, 1989, Jim Wayne Miller Literary Festival, Emory & Henry, 1988, Fellow of the Corporation of Yaddo, and he has been an invited reader of the Folger Shakespeare Library.

In addition to Jim Wayne Miller, other presenters will take part in the workshops on Tuesday. Presenters and their topics are: Angie DeBord, storytelling; Betty Lykins, mountain heritage; Chuck Stamper, character dramatizations; J.D. Hall, writing and storytelling with puppets, music and art; Anne Shelby, children's books and non-fiction; Steve Porter, photography; Susan Nicholas, WYMT; Geoff Belcher, Floyd County Times; Gorman Collins, Jr., WQHY/WDOC; and Paul Gearheart, WPRG.

Eighth grade students from every grade school have been invited to attend this event. Over three hundred students and their teachers will be part of the day.

This all-day Student Writer's Workshop is offered through the Writing Program of Floyd County Schools. Coordinating events is Patricia Watson.

Truth, Justice and the American Way

by Geoff Belcher, staff writer

Go into the street, and give one man a lecture on morality, and give another a shilling, and see which will respect you the most.

-Samuel Johnson, quoted in Boswell's "Life of Samuel Johnson," 1763

Moral principle is a looser bond than pecuniary interest.

-Abraham Lincoln, speech, October, 1856

Religion is always a patron of the arts, but its taste is by no means impeccable.

-Aldous Huxley, "Faith, Taste, and History," Tomorrow and Tomorrow and Tomorrow

Sorry, kids, but I'm not in a very funny mood today.

An old friend of mine died this week.

He had been a true inspiration to literally millions of people all over the world.

He was a reporter, like myself.

At least part of the time.

The rest of the time he was faster than a speeding bullet.

More powerful than a locomotive.

Able to change the course of mighty rivers with his bare hands.

Yes, he was that strange visitor from another planet who was sent here to Earth to fight for Truth, Justice and the American Way.

Now he's just a memory.

At least until the corporate powers-that-be bring him back in one form or another.

In the comic books, he was killed by an escaped cosmic psychopath. In reality, he was killed by the decline, the utter, abysmal decay of human morality and decency.

Really. I ain't kiddin'.

Let me put it this way. There's this cartoon circulating around the office right now. It shows ol' Santy Claus sitting on a chimney. His drawers are dropped and he's holding a roll of toilet paper. The caption reads "December 24, 1985: Santa exhibits the first signs of Alzheimer's."

Personally, I about laughed my fool head off, but one of my co-workers took one look at it, shook her head and said "Nothing's sacred anymore."

And she was right.

Superman kicked the bucket, the Three Stooges ran for president (and they actually won) and now ol' Kris Kringle potties down the chimney (and be extremely careful when you check those stockings this year, kids).

Nothing is sacred.

Look at it from my point of view.

I mean, we're living in a society where Madonna, a woman (and I use the term very loosely) who can't sing, can't dance and can't act, a woman who has virtually no education and no talent whatsoever, makes bazillions of dollars every year just because she occasionally takes her clothes off and generally acts like a tramp.

In many societies that still exist today, she would have long ago been stoned to death in the streets and saved us all the aural agony. (And if I hear "Papa Don't Preach" just one more time, I swear to Ross Perot, I'm gonna go spastic.)

We're living in a society where the birth of the man that approximately two-thirds of the entire world accepts as its Holy Savior is celebrated with the K-Mart blue-light special, beer blasts and the biggest advertising blitz all year long and Jesus, Joseph and Mary are reduced to brightly-painted plastic lawn ornaments (and, just for those of you who wrote in saying that Halloween is nothing but a pagan holiday, the birth of Christ is celebrated on December 25 only because that was the day of the pagan feast of Saturnalia and the pope figured that moving Christmas to that day was the only way to get the heathens to celebrate it; the Christmas tree is a symbol of the druids, those guys in the funny robes who worshipped trees; historians widely accept that the Three Wise Men were members of the Wiccan religion, or in other words they practiced witchcraft; and the Easter egg and the maypole are fertility symbols representing sexual organs—put that in your pulpit and smoke it.)

We're living in a society where our religious figures have become little more than merchandise, disgraced, dishonored and desecrated by plastering them all over T-shirts and bumper stickers or made into little statues for sale to those who are truly devoted but don't realize that it's all for the almighty dollar instead of the Almighty.

We're living in a society where Reverend Bubba can get on national television and dupe the old, the sick and the infirm into sending him all the money they've slaved for all their lives in the form of a "love gift."

We're living in a society where in order to be popular and/or successful, movies, books and television have to throw as many naked and/or chopped-up bodies at us as possible (and people objected to my sheep joke).

We're living in a society where songs have to graphically describe sexual acts and be accompanied by large-breasted scantily dressed women or preach violence against authority in order to sell records.

We're living in a society where third-graders use the f-word as part of their everyday language (and I never even heard the word until I was in high school—and I didn't know what it meant 'til much, much later).

Hain't no wonder ol' Superman kicked the bucket.

All he does is catch bad guys.

He doesn't rip anybody's guts out.

He gets all the chicks but he never takes advantage of 'em—he's saving himself for Lois—she's saving herself for marriage.

He never lies, never does anything wrong and always tries to help the little guy.

In other words, he's boring.

So the geniuses (and I use that term very loosely) at D.C. Comics have decided to kill him off and bring him back to life all stream-lined and ready for the nineties, which I guess means he'll be mean and ornery, rip people's guts out and show his butt every chance he gets.

So they can make some more money.

According to an Associated Press article, the comic book company has shipped more than ten times the usual amount of issues of Superman comics for the big guy's death scene, and are having to ship even more to keep up with the demand.

Thousands of little kids, and most likely more than a few adults, are bawlin' their little hearts out even as we speak.

So they can make some more money.

An American institution, as ingrained in our collective minds and culture as baseball, hot dogs, apple pie, Chevrolet and fudging our tax returns, has been perverted, twisted and generally mangled out of any recognizable shape.

So they can make some more money.

I have an idea.

Let's all go stomp on some puppies and make a tape of it and send it to America's Funniest Home Videos.

Or let's all go sell our children to Satan worshippers for use in some

TALKING IT OVER

MY MIND GOES BLANK

Whenever I am about to introduce people to each other, my mind goes blank. I can't remember my mother's or my wife's or my best friend's name. In those situations, I draw a total blank. Sometimes I handle the predicament by ignoring the obvious need to introduce people, and that must seem rude or strange to others. At other times, I'll make a joke of it by saying, "Napoleon, meet Josephine" or some other nonsense. It's embarrassing. I can give talks in front of a hundred people with relative ease, but ask me to introduce my wife to a doctor friend, and my mind goes blank. This problem is diagnosed Social Phobia. For me, it's not really disruptive to my life, and I've never put any effort into trying to get over it. But, for some people, this illness can be devastating. Here's a letter from a sufferer:

"Dear Dr. Benton: I am writing to you because I have stage fright. I have spent all my life shy and afraid to talk to people or to do anything like other people. I want to talk to people, but I can't. I get all nervous and can't think of anything to say. It's like a switch cuts off in my mind. I can think of all kinds of things to say when I'm not with them, but when I see them, I go blank. I have been miserable all my life. Sometimes, I don't think it's worth living. I don't have any friends or any life at all. Will you please tell me what to do? I need your help."

This woman's life has been severely limited by a Social Phobia. Other symptoms of this condition are, being unable to urinate in a public bathroom, hands trembling when writing or holding a cup in front of other people, choking on food when eating with others, "feeling like an idiot" while talking to others. In general, the sufferer is so afraid of being humiliated or embarrassed in front of other people that his or her anxiety level goes through the roof.

The exact cause of Social Phobia isn't known. There may be a chemical problem in the brain that leads to an overwhelming increase in anxiety, or the person may have experienced humiliation and shame as a child. I know that I did. My parents thought it was okay to publicly shame a child. I remember being loudly scolded for my poor table manners in a restaurant. I looked around at the other diners and really believed that they thought I was an awful child for holding my fork wrong. Now as an adult, I realize that the other diners were probably thinking that my parents are off the wall, and that poor kid is being abused.

The treatment of this condition is both chemical and psychological. Medications that can be helpful include the Beta Blockers, such as inderal and tenormin, and a type of antidepressant medicine, called an MAO Inhibitor, such as nardil or parnate. The MAO Inhibitors are more effective, but patients must follow a strict diet while taking them, and there can be serious side effects and interactions with other medicines. The medications can decrease the severity of the anxiety reaction to the point that it doesn't overwhelm us.

The psychological approach to Social Phobia can include Behavioral Therapy, in which the person is taught to relax, and is gradually exposed to anxiety-provoking situations in an attempt to "decondition" the fear reaction. Then, there is Dynamic Psychotherapy, in which you go back to childhood experiences of shame and humiliation, and get an understanding of how the problem developed from your family situation. This approach can be difficult and lengthy, but it will help to deal with the low self esteem and self criticism that accompany the Social Phobia.

The illness most often begins during the teens or 20s, lasts many years, and seriously disrupts people's lives. About two percent of the population suffers from this condition - that's millions of people. Most sufferers never get help for the problem, possibly because of the shame they feel.

I'm sending a copy of my booklet on Generalized Anxiety Disorder to the above quoted letter writer. The rest of you can get a copy if you'll send $3 and a large self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Arnold Benton, C3 Features Weekly Service, 235 East 45th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

Mark J. Davis, 28, was charged with trying to break into a dentist's office in Aurora, Ohio, in August. In his van police found dental tools and orthodontic devices, and in his home in Willoughby, Ohio, they found enlarged photographs of girls' mouths as they were undergoing dental work. In Davis' pockets were 20 driver's licenses that had been reported missing—19 of them belonging to females who wear, or did wear, braces. Said Aurora Police Chief Steve Poling, there is "something weird going on here."

REACHED THE BOILING POINT

—Lawrence Werner was charged with disorderly conduct at the Oxford Valley golf course in Levittown, Pa., in July. Werner and his group had tried to move past a slower-moving group to get to a tee, provoking a man in that slower group to threaten Werner with a club. Werner then pulled a .38 caliber pistol out of his golf bag and, not surprisingly, his group was permitted to play through.

—Dong Huibo, 24, died of injuries inflicted by one of Shanghai's notoriously aggressive female bus conductors in August. The incident began when Dong took issue with the woman's description of his buttocks. She swore at him, slapped his face, and grabbed and then kicked his testicles.

As he scrambled to get out a window, the driver hit the accelerator, hurling Dong to the street, where he died.

—Robert A. Chase, 43, was charged with threatening an 11-year-old boy with a knife in Madison, Wis., in June. The boy was watching Chase play basketball with another adult when the opponent accused Chase of "traveling" (taking steps without dribbling the ball). To seek an impartial opinion, Chase asked the boy, but the boy agreed that Chase had traveled. Chase then allegedly grabbed the boy, held a knife to his throat, and asked, "Now. Did I travel?"

—Motorist Albert Simon, 28, whose car broke down on the Manhattan Bridge in New York City at 12:50 one morning in September, looked under the hood and then pulled out a pistol and fired four shots through the windshield.

—Elizabeth Teague, 30, jailed in Burlington, Vt., pending trial for killing her boss in 1991, was charged recently with attacking her cellmate, who had objected to Teague's reading the Bible out loud. According to cellmate Karen Jarvis, Teague "pounced on me like a wild animal. She was banging my head against the concrete wall, and she was banging my face against the metal on the top of the bunk bed."

—Robert Davis, 28, was charged with assaulting a secretary at the Advanced Power Products factory where they both worked, in Hillside, N.J. According to the local prosecutor, Davis reacted badly when the secretary gave him some personal mail that had been addressed to him at work.

GOVERNMENT IN ACTION

—The Oklahoma City daily newspaper, The Oklahoman, reported in June that a state-run juvenile counseling center in Tecumseh, Okla., with only 13 clients, had 172 full-time employees and 18 other professionals on contract.

—Charles County, Md., County Administrator Melvin S. Bridgett was charged in August with theft from the county-owned White Plains golf course. Bridgett, the highest-ranking and highest-paid employee of the county, worked weekends as a clerk at the golf shop. On at least three occasions, police said, his thefts were videotaped by a hidden camera, and marked bills were found on him.

—An investigation by the Dallas Morning News revealed in May that the city's public schools employ at least 185 people who have been convicted of felonies, including two convicted murderers. In response, the school superintendent promised that the city would begin periodic records checks.

—The Millbourne, Pa., Borough Council voted in June to make it illegal to grow corn or other vegetables to a height of 6 feet or greater. Asked the purpose of the law, a police officer said, "If you have 8-foot corn stalks, it's easy for people to hide behind them."

—The Los Angeles Department of Water and Power (DWP) was ordered in April to pay $333,000 in penalties to Inyo County because DWP's property tax payment arrived late—after having been sent back for $3.40 in additional postage.

INEXPLICABLE

The Ontario Press Council recently dismissed a complaint filed by Allan Sorensen against the Toronto Sun, which had reported that Sorensen had choked his ex-girlfriend. Sorensen's complaint was that his reputation was somehow damaged because the Sun engaged in "speculation" that he had used only one hand to choke her (the other being forced into her mouth). In fact, he said, he used both hands to choke her.

for 20 years."

"I didn't know your Uncle Moe had a horse."

"That's why he wouldn't be dumb enough to do it."

Oh, I can hear people say, "those goofy hillbillies! Why don't they drink and drive a car like everybody else does? If you're going to get points counted off your license, get them taken off for a better reason than driving a horse while intoxicated."

They may have a point, but logic eludes me. I might have arrested the man for public intoxication, but not drunk driving. Who was he threatening? Roy Rogers? After all, how many alcohol related deaths can be attributed to someone while riding a horse. It's more likely a saddle slip could be more serious.

Basically, it's no wonder the world views us so harshly and ridicules us for appearing to be simpletons. Many of us are naive, simple people who lead relatively simple lives. So if that's what we're guilty of, so be it. It's just that no one ever seems to hear the good things about us.

Thank goodness the horse didn't run over a politician, or Congress could be in the process of passing new legislation.

Police in Georgetown, Texas, said in February when arresting George Vasquez, 17, for shooting a 12-year-old girl and her 8-year-old brother to death that Vasquez chose the house he would commit a murder in by means of an eeny-meeny-miney-mo exercise.

Soap update

Sheila takes a big gamble. DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Lawrence trapped Vivian into admitting that Niki is his and Carly's son. On Lawrence's orders, Ivan disposed of Lianne's body in a fiery car wreck. Philip defied Clare to try to get Marlana to help Kimberly. After learning Roman had the videotape, Philip was forced to tell him the truth: Lacey James is his sister, Kimberly. Marlana was bitten by a poisonous snake. Stella forced her to read a message to Roman that she was in Washington on an emergency. Jack found an old manuscript about someone named Leslie Morgan. Carrie learned Billie's dad was killed by the police right in front of him. Wait To See: Lawrence takes steps to recoup his child, his fortune, and Carly.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Ryan's amorous advances turned to murderous severity when he realized Felicia's memory was coming back. Sensing her danger, Mac tried to reach her by snowmobile. Bill agreed the paintings had been switched, and suspected Constance Chapman did it. Jenny denied Ned's assertion that Jack Kensington, Jr. fathered her child. Dominique lashed back at Jessica's attempt to intervene in their divorce proceedings by telling Scotty they should try to stay married. Aware of Tiffany's growing attachment to little Lucas, Bobbie, Sean, and Tony feared they might have a serious custody problem to deal with. Wait To See: Felicia realizes she may not escape Ryan's murderous attempts.

GUIDING LIGHT: Eleni and Frank tried to leave Springfield, but were stopped by Alan-Michael, who was delighted to learn she was pregnant. Vanessa, suspicious of Nadine's pregnancy, sought out her doctor. David locked Kat's date, Keith, in a closet when he overheard his plans for her. After Pierre turned up, Alan-Michael schemed to prevent Eleni from learning of his connection to the bombing. Mallet realized he could hear when Julie knocked something over in his apartment. Wait To See:

Alan-Michael's desperation leads to another dangerous situation.

LOVING: All of Trucker's wedding plans came through, as the couple were wed in a ceremony marked with sleighs and all sorts of beautiful happenings. Stacey was being gaslighted by someone leaving Jack's watch in the house, and then making it disappear, and calling her on the phone using Jack's voice. (Unknown to her, but not to us, was the gaslighter's identity, namely Clay.) Jeremy came to Corinth to accept the teaching position at Alden University, explaining that Ceara would join him later. Wait To See: Leo runs into a problem about the silver.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Renee was shaken by Viki's news that Clint - unable to deal with Viki's apparent feelings for Sloan - had left her. Blair and Luna planned to bring Max back to Llanview. Luna begged Max to fight even as his resistance seemed to wear down. Andrew told his father he should leave town for everyone's sake, especially Viki's. Kevin caught Lee Ann with Duke. Luna saw "Death" kiss Max. Wait To See: Luna is determined to use her love as a weapon in the fight to save Max.

SANTA BARBARA: Although she was found in Skyler's room, Jodie told Reese and B.J. nothing happened with him. On the stand, B.J. had a series of flashbacks about the gun and when Arnold asked if she shot Frank, she said, yes. Ted and Lilly announced their engagement. C.C.

learned Sophia's doctor had not, as she told him, prescribed the pills he saw her taking. Lilly overheard Lisa on the phone to Rich saying she (Lilly) may have ALSO trapped Ted by the pregnancy ploy. What, Lilly wondered, did that word ALSO, mean? Micah was stunned to learn his emergency patient was his son. Wait To See: Andie is in danger.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Paul told Victor about following Ryan and Victoria to a hotel room, and calling Nikki when he couldn't reach Victor. Cricket was devastated when Randall warned her that the law was a male-dominated field, and she could risk her career if she pursued her actions against Michael. Sheila persuaded Molly to call Lauren. Lauren persuaded Scott to let Molly visit, explaining she was like a grandmother to little Scotty. Dru told Blade she's going back into ballet, and like her sister and Neil, she intended to work hard toward her goals. Wait To See: Sheila is in for a surprise.

Dear Abby

Couple's exchange of letters leads to exchange of rings

DEAR ABBY: When I told my friends I had a pen pal on the USS Midway during the Persian Gulf War, they smiled apprehensively and said, "Gee, that's nice." Little did they (or I) know at the time that what I once considered an innocent correspondence would turn into a full-fledged love affair. Yes, Abby, I, too, succumbed to an age-old romantic technique: writing letters.

After 10 months and hundreds of cards, letters and love notes, we truly opened our hearts to each other and fell in love — sight unseen.

When the war ended, Mike and I agreed to meet when he returned to the States. With butterflies in my stomach, I flew to Long Beach, Calif., to meet "my" sailor while he was on a four-day leave.

One kiss, and the rest is history! At our second meeting (after writing to my mother to ask her for my hand in marriage), Mike flew to New York to put a diamond ring on my finger.

Our third meeting: I flew to California again, we rented a car and drove to Las Vegas and were married in one of those romantic little chapels! Some people think I'm crazy. Some people think I'm lucky. Either way, Mike and I are very happy, and we thank God for the wonderful blessing of love.

For those ladies and gents who claim "all the good ones are taken," try reaching out a little, and never underestimate the power of words. I will cherish those letters forever.

So, from my heart to yours, Abby, I thank you for encouraging me, as well as others, to write to "Any Serviceman." It was the best advice I've ever taken in my life.

Mrs. Michael J. Pauli, Babylon, N.Y.

DEAR MRS. PAULI: While not everybody who has participated in Operation Dear Abby has managed to snatch the gold ring, many have found friendship, and it is a project in which people of all ages can participate. But letters such as yours are especially thrilling. May you and your husband enjoy many happy, healthy, successful years together.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing "Welcome to Holland." I am still crying. My son, Greg, was born with neurofibromatosis. He died in January after one of his tumors became cancerous.

The thing I regret most is that I spent too much time wishing it was Italy, and not enough time enjoying Holland.

Please thank Emily Pearl Kingsley for putting into words what many of us are not able to. Also, for those with children whose handicap may result in the child's death, please tell them about Compassionate Friends—the nationwide organization for parents of children who have died. It is helping me as it helped others. The age of the child—or how he/she died—doesn't matter.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are a real live wire this week. You start wild, and you end up even wilder, with partners hanging on the edge, dreaming, wishing and desiring. Oh well, make the most of the quiet times midweek to get work done, errands run, etc.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may think you can get into the groove this week, but guess what? A tantalizing offer appears before the work week ends, and you're off. The boss will see red if you don't get the job done, so don't be surprised if you're in the office over the weekend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You won't believe what you hear this week, and you'll want to hear it all. You're the sign of the communicator but also of the twins, so be careful what you say and to whom. Consider isolation to prevent foot-in-mouth disease.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Since you are guided by the moon, you could really be out of whack this week. Watch out for extreme mood swings, possessiveness and overspending. You switch to high beams this weekend, when another zeros in and responds to your energy.

LEO (July 23-August 22) Sorry, my dear cat, but you peak early on in the week. When it's good, it is really great, and when things start going downhill midweek ... well, it still isn't that bad. Once you bring home the bacon, you'll want to enjoy a little early T.G.I.F.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) You start the week in low gear, but once you make that shift into high ... well, you're on a roll all week long. Be more aware of how extravagant you can be. Enjoy the lavish life, at least for a day or two.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) Bingo! Everything falls into place easily this week. Or does it? Plans fall apart easily, but once you rebuild, it's on stronger ground. You fly into the weekend in great shape, ready to conquer the universe. All you need to do is smile and radiate.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) Responsibility is key this week. If your work performance shines, you could be up for a promotion. Better yet, a member of the opposite sex could start winking at you. Try to put a little fun into your schedule.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) Remember, there are no problems, only opportunities. You find yourself daring to break through barriers this week. Take this spirit into work, and discover your sleuthing approach is contagious. As a result, you get to celebrate long before the weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Negotiate exactly what it is you want from that special someone this week. One-to-one discussions that lead to intimate dinner chats might work. Otherwise, go bold and try the exotic approach. The good news is, you're on top of the world by the weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) Others dominate, and there's little you can do to change this. Make another's wish your command. Good behavior brings many goodies. The sky's the limit, as you gaze up to the stars and wish. Something or someone is making you very happy.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) If you think this is going to be a quiet work week, you've a big surprise coming. Invitations flood in, and it behooves you to take up another on at least one or two of these. Expect a mellow weekend, when you review recent happenings and decide on what's important in the long run.

NEWSOME A CLASS ACT...

I was saddened when I heard that Betsy Layne's head basketball coach Junior Newsome was stepping aside for five weeks from the upcoming basketball season (story elsewhere in sports). Newsome is one of Eastern Kentucky's finest coaches and a very successful one at that.

Respect for the coach is one thing that I, along with others, have always had since I have known him. He runs a quality program and has always put a competitive team on the basketball court.

Coach Newsome will not be at the helm when the Bobcats open their season next Monday night at home against Paintsville.

It will seem strange not to see the veteran coach in his usual position.

There is not intent here to take away anything from the two who will guide the Bobcats for the next five weeks — Tim Rice and Keith Henry. Both are very capable coaches. Once before they were thrown into the same situation when Coach Newsome had to serve a one game suspension in the first game of the 1989 district tournament. They are also veterans who what needs to be done.

Personal and health reasons were given for Newsome stepping aside. Many of us don't know what a grind it is in coaching basketball or any other sport which demands one's time. Health needs are essential in an individual's life and there comes a time when one has to come to grips with the fact there more important things in life than basketball.

Coach Newsome will take some time to think over the situation and we are told that he will make a decision on December 18 whether he will return or not.

I consider Junior Newsome to be a very good friend of mine, not just another coach, but a friend that I have respected all these years I have known him. I wish him the best and I know he will make the right decision. I'm praying that he will be able to come back. High school basketball needs Junior Newsome.

BOWDEN, WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN?

I like what new Cincinnati Reds General Manager Jim Bowden has done in the short time that he has been in the front office.

Bowden made the deal that shipped Paul O'Neil to the Yankees in exchange for Roberto Kelly and then during the expansion draft landed a player that was once a terror in the National League — Kevin Mitchell.

I like the deal. Norm Charlton for Mitchell. God bless you Lou, you got one of them anyway.

Mitchell will allow the Reds to move Bip Roberts to second base on a full time basis. Mitchell in left, Reggie Sanders in center and Kelly in right. I like the lineup.

Although Mitchell did not produce the four-bag numbers (9) at Seattle that he did in San Francisco, he will be playing for Tony "Doggie" Perez this year and I believe he will be a big difference in the Reds team this spring.

The Reds still need to shop for a solid starting pitcher this winter. Some players or players package could be made attractive for the right pitcher. Bill Doran is now expendable, but it may be hard to find someone to take his large contract. Then again, with the loss of Freddie Benivides in the expansion draft, Doran may stick around for utility purposes. Willie Greene will be in the thick of things for the Reds this season.

AARON CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION...

Hank Aaron. I never did care much for his attitude as a ballplayer or whatever position he holds with the Atlanta Braves now. He was a great baseball player in his day, there's no doubting that. Now he want's Marge Schott, majority owner of the Reds, investigated for her racist remarks about minorities.

While I agree that Schott should keep her thoughts private, he has no right to call attention to what has been brought out about her. Many times in the national sports media, Aaron has made some derogatory

EKMC basketball panorama tonight at Allen Central

The Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference basketball panorama begins tonight at the Allen Central High School gymnasium with three games on tap.

In the first game, Jackie Pack's Wheelwright Trojans will face a young Fleming-Neon team starting at 6 p.m. Wheelwright, last year's Floyd County Conference champions, will be looking at some different players this year. Losing a array of talent last season, the Trojans still feel that they can be a competitive ballclub this season. Muntu Oden, Steven Shelton, Greg Johnson, Matt Johnson and Kevin Johnson are some of the players returning for Coach Pack this season.

Elkhorn City will take on Jenkins in game two that will start at approximately 7:30 p.m. The Cougars sport all-regional guard Todd Conley who has been a mainstay for Elkhorn City the past three years. Conley is one of the region's prolific scorers and will be expected to guide coach Randy McCoy's club this season.

Allen Central will square off against the Bearcats of Johns Creek in the final game of the evening starting at 9 p.m. The Rebels of coach Johnny Martin is expected to be one of the top teams in the 15th Region this season. David Martin, David Moore, Carl Watkins, Jason Martin, Jeremy Hall and a solid bench will make the Rebels a definite regional contender as well as one of the favorites to win the 58th District tournament.

Each game will consist of two 15 minute halves with halftimes consisting of eight minutes.

For a preview of some of the EKMC teams, come out tonight to Allen Central and enjoy some good high school basketball.

Alice Lloyd Lady Eagles win over Montreat, 56-47

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Alice Lloyd's head basketball coach John Mills may have lost All-American Katrina Short, a high scoring forward, but Mills got a balance scoring effort from his Lady Eagles as they posted a 56-47 win over Montreat Anderson College (North Carolina) this past Tuesday night.

The win improved the Lady Eagles record to 3-1 on the season, giving them their best start in the past three seasons. Montreat evened their record at 1-1.

Denise Stacy scored 13 points and Terri Strickler added 10 to top the Lady Eagles in scoring. Former Betsy Layne standout, Brenda Hamilton, netted eight points.

Alice Lloyd held a six point lead at the end of the first half and then led by 10 to 14 points throughout the second half.

The Lady Eagles only had one three-pointer in the game and that came from Stacy. Linda Slone, who scored two points, had five assists to lead the Lady Eagles. Alice Lloyd out rebounded the visitors 43-27 with Wells pulling in 11.

Montreat committed 28 turnovers in the game while Alice Lloyd had 17. Amy Baker led all scorers with 19 points for Montreat. Tracy Haynes scored 10.

Prestonsburg's Fitzer signs letter-of-intent with Pikeville

Wanting to get it over with so that he could concentrate on the upcoming high school basketball season, Prestonsburg senior forward Eric Fitzer signed a letter-of-intent with the Pikeville College Bears for next season. Pikeville head basketball coach Rick Scruggs was in town to sign the 6'5" forward.

Fitzer becomes the second signee with the Bears this fall as Coach Scruggs signed Sheldon Clark's John Slone earlier this month.

According to Scruggs, Fitzer is the kind of player who has been on the Bears shopping list. With Christmas on the horizon, it was a early gift for the enthusiastic coach who has turned the Pikeville program around.

"Eric is the kind of player that we need now," said Coach Scruggs. "He is a post player who is inside-outside oriented and Eric will fit right in with us at Pikeville."

Fitzer expressed his delight in signing with Pikeville College at a news conference held at the local high school with the press and radio people on hand. Mr. and Mrs. Terry Fitzer, Fitzer's parents, witnessed the signing along with Prestonsburg coach Gordon Parido and school principal Karen Trivette.

"I'm very happy about going to Pikeville," said Fitzer. "I chose Pikeville over other schools because it is close to home and my family will be around to watch me play. I like Coach Scruggs and I like Pikeville College."

Coach Scruggs said that he "was impressed with Eric and his playing ability" when he first watched him play.

"Eric is a hard worker on the court," explained Scruggs, "and is doing the things that he needs to do and he can play at Pikeville College."

Scruggs said that he has seen an improvement in Fitzer's play over the summer months.

"He has improved drastically," said the Pikeville College mentor. "He can step into our program and help out and that is a tribute to his coach Gordon Parido."

Coach Parido stated that Fitzer is the first one that he has coached to sign a letter-of-intent to play college basketball.

"I'm excited for Eric and his family," commented Coach Parido. "Some kids get rewarded for hard work and Eric is a hard worker."

Jenkins, Slone combine for 36, in Martin win

Chuck Rowe
Sports Writer

As the Right Beaver Classic resumed Wednesday night after a one day lay off, the Martin Purple Flash and the McDowell Daredevils were hooked up to play their first round game of the tournament. Thomas Jenkins and Brandon Slone combined for 36 points, each with 18, to lead the Purple Flash to a 56-42 victory over the Daredevils.

Martin's Slone scored two of his 18 points early in the first quarter that gave his team the 2-0 lead before his basket was matched by McDowell's Jeremy Huff which tied the game at 2-2. Back-to-back baskets by Martin's Jenkins and Slone gave the Purple Flash a four-point lead and a technical foul against the McDowell bench added to Martin's lead as Jenkins hit both the free throws. McDowell started diminishing Martin's lead when Chris Moore hit a basket and was fouled, hitting the free throw, then a basket by Alan Osborne brought the Devils to within one, 8-7. Martin's Slone made a basket and was fouled but was unable to make the free throw. Two free throws by the Devils' Moore kept his team close at 10-9. Martin finished out the scoring in the first quarter with a basket by Eric Moore, a free throw by Shane Blackburn, and a basket by Slone to

Goldsmith: "Should be a good one..."

Two district champions hook up tonight in regional finals

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Ask both coaches for tonight's Region 4 championship game and they will tell you that it has been a good year for their respective football teams. Tonight both teams enter the game with identical records (11-1), but after tonight's game, one team will pack it in for the winter months and await next season.

Lawrence County reached tonight's championship game by nipping Fleming County last Friday night 12-9 on a last second touchdown. Prestonsburg, on the other hand, used their defensive squad to perfection in holding powerful Russell to just three points, 28 yards rushing in the second half and - get this - one second half first down.

"Anytime a team's defense holds Russell to just three points they are a very good defensive team," said Lawrence County coach Bill Goldsmith.

Prestonsburg earned a right to tonight's game by handing Russell a 13-3 defeat last Friday here at Prestonsburg. The Blackcats defense stole the show in the game with a great second quarter goal line stand plus the interception by Jason Crisp late in the game.

"We don't turn the ball over as much as we did the first part of the season," stated Goldsmith. "We've had only four interceptions all season and our defense has picked off 15 so I think that is a pretty good ratio."

Prestonsburg quarterback Aaron Tucker hasn't had but one completion in the two playoff games after going 0-3 last Friday night. But, as Tucker noted after the Russell game, they don't feel they have to pass the football.

It is just the opposite with Lawrence County.

"We will have to throw the football against them," said Goldsmith. "And we will have to play some good defense."

Goldsmith has always been a coach that takes a lot of pride in shutting down the other teams' offense.

"If we can hold Prestonsburg under 20 points then we may have a chance," the Bulldog mentor said. "They are the most explosive team that I have seen in all the years."

An injury to Ronnie Jordan, the Bulldogs top receiver, will keep the sure-handed tight end out of the championship game.

"We thought he was going to be able to play, but he will not get in the game," Goldsmith said.

Goldsmith views the two teams as being similar in several ways. "We're both 11-1 on the year, both won our districts and we both depend on the running game. We can throw the football, but basically we run the ball more."

Goldsmith, like all other coaches, had nothing but praise for the duo in the Blackcats backfield as well as the signal caller.

"Prestonsburg has two of the hardest running backs around," he said. "Those two along with Lee (Abshire) are the best around. Also Aaron (Tucker) is a very good quarterback, a veteran of four years and plays hard

Football Weather Forecast

Weather Friday will be partly cloudy with highs in the 70's. No rain is in the forecast until Saturday. Game time temperatures will be 60 degrees with temperatures remaining mild throughout the game. Lows will be in the 50's. All fans come on out and support the Blackcats!

Newsome to step aside, temporarily

The rumors flying around the area that Betsy Layne's head basketball coach Junior Newsome was going to resign was put to rest when school principal Alan Osborne issued a statement that denied any possible move on Newsome's part.

However, Osborne also said that Newsome was going to take a lateral step to the side for a five week period of time leaving the ballclub.

"He has not resigned or taken a leave of absence," said Osborne. "It's just a lateral step to the side for five weeks at which time Coach Newsome and myself will sit down and discuss his plans."

Osborne said that assistant coaches Keith Henry and Tim Rice will oversee the ballclub during Newsome's five week absence.

"Both are capable to run the team," said Osborne. "Last night (Tuesday night) was Coach Newsome's last night to practice the team. Both assistants will handle the ballclub in practice and during the scheduled games."

Betsy Layne is scheduled to play in the Johnson Central panorama this Saturday night where they will meet Sheldon Clark at 7:45 p.m. Rice and Henry will be at the helm for this game and all other practices until December 18.

"The decision was purely Coach Newsome's," explained Osborne.

"He will step aside until December 18 at which time he will make a decision whether to return to coaching or not. We will sit down and reevaluate his situation. Again, that decision will be strictly his. We have games scheduled for December 18 and 19 and if he decides on December 18 to return to coaching, coaches Rice and Henry will still run the team during those games.

"With the Christmas holidays coming up that will give Coach Newsome more time to get back into the flow of things and working again with the team."

Osborne stated that the reasons for Newsome deciding to step aside was for personal and health reasons. "There is no diagnosis of any life threatening illness like the rumors that are going around," said Osborne. "He just wants time to think about staying in coaching."

Osborne said that Floyd County Superintendent Steven Towler was told of the decision and that no leave of absence or resignation will be involved.

Newsome is a veteran coach and led his young ball club to the 58th District title last year. He came to Betsy Layne in 1975 and led the Bobcats to regional championship in 1976. He has made two trips to the Sweet Sixteen.

The Betsy Layne mentor has gained the respect of all area coaches and has compiled an impressive record while at the Betsy Layne school.

Betsy Layne will open the 1992-93 basketball season November 30 when they host the Paintsville Tigers.

Eagles go 4-0...

Webb's 35 points lead ALC past Montreat

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The high flying Alice Lloyd Eagles are off to a perfect start in jumping off to a 4-0 record after defeating a good Montreat (North Carolina) team Tuesday night 103-82 behind the scoring of Henry Webb and Mullin's Russell Clark. Webb tossed in 35 points and Clark netted 28 to lead the Eagles offense.

It was Clark who came on strong for the Eagles in the second half when Webb seemed to struggle late. Clark drilled five three-pointers in the game when the Eagles broke open late in the second half.

Alice Lloyd held a 54-42 halftime lead and pulled out to a 23 point advantage when Clark hit a three-pointer with just under eight minutes to play. Montreat could never regroup after that.

Alice Lloyd used multiple defenses that seemed to confuse Montreat in the second half. The visiting team pulled to within 10 points, 67-57, but a Eagle run of 17-4 seem to break their spirits. Clark scored 10 of the 17 points for the Eagles.

Webb started slow for Alice Lloyd, but found the range after the first 10 minutes of the first half. The hot shooting guard completed a three point play with just over 16 minutes remaining in the game to give him 33 for the evening. Webb then went into a dry spell as if a lid had been placed over the basket.

The game was close in the early going as the lead switch hands 14 times before Alice Lloyd scored 13 points unanswered points in the first half to take their 54-47 lead.

Rick Conley's driving layup gave the 2-0 lead to Alice Lloyd, but a three-pointer by Lewis made it 3-2 in favor of Montreat. Montreat tied the game at 41-41 before the run by the Eagles.

Webb's first two points came at the 16:41 mark when he hit two free throws. Webb was perfect from the charity stripe going eight-for-eight. He had three treys in the game.

Montreat was able to cut into the big lead that the Eagles had built by closing the lead to nine points, 68-59, before Alice Lloyd made another run led by Clark.

The outing was pleasing to Eagle coach Jim Stepp.

"We played and beat a good team here tonight," said Stepp. "They defeated King, who was ranked 17th in the nation. Of course they beat them on a neutral floor. I am pleased with the way we played tonight. We shot less than 50 percent tonight and still won. That's good. It always feels good to win."

Stepp said that his team needs to pick up on their rebounding after Montreat had out rebounded them. The Eagles had 33 team rebounds in the game. Webb was the leading rebounder for Alice Lloyd with nine, and both Clark and Conley had eight each.

Mitch Harris (Shelby Valley) led in assists with seven. Webb and Shawn Hager (Belfry) had four assists each. Avery Fairchild came up with five steals to lead in that stat. The Eagles hit 20 of 25 free throws as a team.

Conley finished with 12 points and Robert Marcum added seven. Hager netted six with Fairchild tallying five. Harris also had five points.

Alice Lloyd had only 12 turnovers in the game, something that Coach Stepp says they can live with. Montreat turned the ball over 25 times.

Ross led Montreat with 20 points and Scott tossed in 17. Lewis had 11 and Gahnela added 10.

Alice Lloyd (4-0), who stays perfect in conference play at 3-0, will travel to King (Tennessee) tonight. The Eagles return home next Tuesday to play Kentucky Christian.

Fitzer signs

in recruiting good athletes, there are other qualities he also looks for.

"We also look for integrity and character when we are recruiting a player," explained Scruggs. "We want to know that the kid will graduate in four years. We want a player to come here and know that when he leaves he won't be back on the streets."

Fitzer stated that he feels good about signing with Pikeville and he wants to go to Pikeville College and get an education. "I also like the players there," he said. "Playing with the other players, I enjoyed that."

The elder Fitzer said that he and his wife have always been supporters of Pikeville College and that he feels that is "a dream come true" for Eric. "I'm happy that he could go to a program that he wanted to go to," said Fitzer. "His mother and I have talked about it and Eric has had aspirations to play college basketball."

Mrs. Fitzer shared the same views. "We're happy that he is playing close to home," said Mrs. Fitzer, "and we will be able to take in most of the games. Eric has worked hard. I'm happy for him."

The University of Charleston was also actively recruiting the Prestonsburg forward.

Mrs. Trivette, in her first year as principal at Prestonsburg, stated that she had seen Fitzer play in only two games, but that she was looking forward to seeing him perform in the upcoming season.

"I'm happy to see Eric go to Pikeville," said Trivette, "being that I am an old Pikeville graduate myself. Eric has impressed me as a fine young man who has displayed integrity and character. I think that is a credit to his coach who also has just become our athletic director this year. I'm looking forward to watching Eric play basketball this season."

Both coaches Scruggs and Parido agreed that Fitzer will need to work on his foot speed during the upcoming season.

"Just because he has signed a letter-of-intent," said Coach Parido, "that doesn't mean that he can take it easy this season. He will have to work even harder if he is going to play on the next level."

Where Fitzer has dreamed of playing college basketball, Coach Scruggs said that "dream has become a reality."

"I see no problem for Eric in playing at Pikeville College," said Scruggs. "He will contribute to the program."

The Pikeville College coach said that there is a possibility that the Bears could sign yet three other players and one may be an Eastern Kentucky player.

"I want to recruit Eastern Kentucky players," said Scruggs, who also stated that he plans to be at Pikeville College for a long time.

"This is not just a stopping place for me until something better comes along," he said. "My wife and I are here and we want to stay here as long as we can."

Scruggs stated that the Pikeville coaching staff never quits recruiting. Recruiting is something they do year round.

"Eric now can concentrate on his studies and the upcoming basketball season," said Scruggs. "He will need to work on his jumping speed."

Scruggs described the type of players that Pikeville College looks for in their recruiting efforts besides integrity and character.

"We look for players with speed, those who want to improve and can improve," said Scruggs. "We want players who will work hard and every coach looks for athletes who can score. Eric fits into that mode."

Scruggs the up-tempo style of play the Bears play is the type that attracts fans to the games.

"When people leave the gym, even if we lose, we want them to say that it was an exciting game," remarked Scruggs. He said that the up-tempo reputation that Pikeville College had developed has players wanting to come to Pikeville to play.

Prestonsburg by six points

Jim Allen, Sports Director, WQHY-FM
Prestonsburg by one point
"If Prestonsburg plays as well defensively as they did against Russell, they should win. But they must stop the sweep. Lawrence County likes to go wide."

Joe Back, Sportscaster, WQHY-FM
Prestonsburg by a touchdown
"The touchdown twins (Hyden and Garza) must have a big game behind their supporting cast and they will win the region."

on both sides of the lines." Coach Goldsmith said that he believes that the Prestonsburg defense has stepped up some in the last three weeks and could be a problem for the Bulldogs.

"They are playing tremendous defense," said Goldsmith. "We are having a lot of problems in finding any weakness in their defense. We have looked, believe me, we have looked and cannot find any."

"Prestonsburg has a lot of size. They can throw the football as well as run it," said Goldsmith. "This is a big game for both programs if one of us makes it to the final four. It will mean publicity for the programs state-wide."

Goldsmith and the Bulldogs made it last year, but lost to Mayfield 21-18 in the semi-state.

"The winner of this game will get to host either Rockcastle County or Danville next week. I hope it is us, but if not then there is not a team I would rather see win it than Prestonsburg."

Joining the Bulldogs coaching staff this season is former Blackcat head coach Chuke Williams who was the last coach to guide the Blackcats this far back in 1985. Goldsmith said that Williams has been a happy addition.

"We all get along real well," said Goldsmith. "We're happy to have Chuke with us this year. He has done a tremendous job in working with our offense. We also have a Paintsville native in Dave Lemaster."

Goldsmith believes that tonight's game will be a clean, hard fought contest.

"I see it as an emotional game for both teams," he said. "When we play good we have a tendency to be emotional. We play well that way. It is very important for us to get off to an early start. That is going to be the key to this game."

Lawrence County will have Morgan Cyrus (6'0", 210 senior) running at the fullback position. Cyrus has rushed for over 500 yards this season. The leading rusher for the Bulldogs is tailback Lee Abshire (6'1", 187 junior) who has carried the football 153 times this year for 1,455 in yardage. Others out of the backfield will be Eddie Young (5'7", 175 senior) who has over 500 yards rushing. Roger Lyons (5'1", 162 senior) quarterback the ballclub and he also has over 500 yards in gains this season.

"Roger can throw the football very well," said Goldsmith. "And as I said earlier, we may have to."

Three-year starters James Moore and Chris Hamilton anchor the offensive line.

Backing the offensive line will be Chad McCreary (5'10", 215), Eric Hayes, Chris Sizemore (6'1", 235) and Martin Wright (6'4", 180).

"Prestonsburg has to be the favorite in this one being played at home and all," said Goldsmith. "I just hope we can keep the fans out of the game."

Goldsmith said that penalties will go a long way in deciding who will win this one.

"Yes, penalties will play a big part in this game," he said. "Against Fleming County we had a 87 yard touchdown pass called back, plus a 49-yard run because of penalties. As far as turnovers go, we are doing a lot better now than we did the first of the year. This should be a good game and I am looking forward to it."

Coach Goldsmith's record is 43-25 and in the past four years Goldsmith has a 34-13 record.

Tucker said he believes that defeating Lawrence County is not going to be an easy task. "They are a tough football team," said Tucker following the Russell game. "They are the kind of team that can drive in down your throat. It is going to be a close game. We have to have some intensity and maintain our blocking."

"Lawrence County is a good football team," said Prestonsburg coach Bill Letton. "They are a physical team that plays good defense. It will be a tough one."

Letton said though that this year's Prestonsburg team is a team that never quits.

"There is something about them," he said after the Russell game, "that makes them want to arise to the occasion. They're something special."

Case scores 29, Arms 13 as Prater Cougars sweep two from Harold

Chad Case scored 29 points to lead the Prater Cougars to a convincing 58-20 win over the Harold Red Devils in grade school basketball this week.

The Cougars held Harold to just one first quarter point as they raced to a 15-1 lead at the first stop. Case scored 10 points in the first period for Prater. The Cougars jumped out to a 8-0 lead before Harold scored on a free throw by Doug Keathley. Case hit a six-foot jumper and then two free throws for a 4-0 game. Josh Hamilton hit a short jumper off the left side and Case's layup made it 8-0.

After Keathley's free throw Prater scored the last seven points in the quarter for their 15-1 lead.

Prater picked up where they left off in the second quarter as they ran off 14 consecutive points to go ahead 29-1. Harold got two baskets from Keathley and a long jumper by Shannon Potter just before the half ended with Prater owning a 31-7 lead.

After Harold scored the first two points in the third period on Keathley's rebound basket, Prater ran off the next 16 points to lead 47-9 after three quarters. Harold did manage to outscore the Cougars 12-11 in the final period.

Hamilton finished with eight points for Prater with John Kidd tossing in nine points that included one three-pointer. Jeremy Conn had five points and a three-pointer. J. Burkett had five points.

Keathley led Harold with 11 points. Stanton Niece added seven and Potter finished with two. Niece had a three-pointer for Harold.

In the girls' game, Misty Arms tossed in 13 points to lead the Lady Cougars to a 27-24 edging of the Harold Lady Red Devils in overtime.

The game was tied at 22-22 at the end of regulation play. Jessica Johnson hit a 15-foot jumper with precious seconds left in regulation play to tie the game at 22-22 and send the game into overtime. Prater held a 18-15 lead early in the fourth quarter and a free throw by Johnson tied the game at 20-20 with 37 seconds left. Arm's basket made it 22-20 before Johnson tied it at 22-22.

With 50 seconds left in the overtime, Arms grabbed a rebound and put it back in for a 24-22 lead. Ashley Akers tied the game again at 24-24 on a six-foot jumper. With 20 seconds showing on the scoreboard, Arms hit a 10-foot jumper and the Lady Cougars owned a 26-24 lead. After Harold failed to score, they sent Mendy Rowe to the free throw line with six seconds left. Rowe hit the front end of the bonus shot for the 27-24 lead. Harold could not score as the horn sounded.

Prater led 10-6 after the first quarter, but the Lady Red Devils came back to tie the game just before halftime at 14-14. Harold was not able to put any points on the scoreboard in the third period, but they did manage to pick up on Prater by outscoring them 8-4 in the final period.

Rowe finished with nine points for Prater. Susan Conley and Angie Ousley added one each.

Jessica Johnson led all scorers with 18 points for Harold. Ashley Gearheart, Natasha Clark and Ashley Akers finished with two points each.

Blackcat community ask to show their colors

It is "Blackcat Hysteria" week here in the city and residents are being asked to "show their colors" this weekend in support of the Prestonsburg Blackcat football team who will be hosting the Lawrence County Bulldogs in the championship game of Region 4.

Team and community spirit is the order for the weekend, and residents, as well as business owners, are asked to decorate their porches and places of business with just anything to show their support for the team. Tie a red ribbon around a tree, lamp post or the dog and cat. Get involved and show that you are backing coach Bill Letton's squad all the way.

Jenkins, Slone

take a 15-9 first quarter lead.

In the second quarter, Martin went on a scoring run to push out to a 22-11 lead, at the 2:46 mark. The Purple Flash went on yet another scoring tear, after a missed Devil free throw, to take a 27-11 lead with :49 left in the half. The Devils slimmed the Martin lead before the half, scoring on Jeremy Huff's free throw, a two-point basket, and on a Steve Hamilton basket with :04 left in the half. That cut the Martin lead to 11 going into the locker room with the score 27-16.

Martin started the third quarter scoring six straight points, taking their biggest lead of the game, 33-16, before the Devils' Huff hit a basket to end the scoring run of the Flash. Jenkins finished off the third quarter scoring, hitting one of two free throws and recording seven of his team's 15 points of the quarter.

It was the Moore show early on in the fourth quarter for the Devils as he scored the first 10 points the Devils recorded and scored 10 out of 15 in the quarter. But still Martin matched or outdid the Devils equaling, once again, their biggest lead of the game as Jenkins made a basket and was fouled, missing the free throw, making the score 49-21. The largest lead Martin held was a 19-point lead with Beau Tackett hitting the front end of the bonus and Wade Damron hitting both of his free throws that made the score 52-33. The Devils were able to match Martin through the rest of the game and trim the lead to 14 points when the horn sounded.

Recycling Video For Communities

North American Precis Syndicate
CBS news correspondent Charles Osgood narrates "The Original Recyclers: The Story of the Scrap Recycling Industry," a new 10-minute video that historically traces the development of U.S. recycling from 19th century immigrant entrepreneurs, then describes current collection, processing, and reuse practices involved in recycling scrap metals, paper, plastics, glass, and textiles. Fast-paced yet comprehensive, the video explains where recyclers obtain scrap commodities, demonstrates processing techniques, and shows how industrial consumers use recyclables as raw material for manufacturing new products. It describes the importance of markets to recycling, explores how government at all levels can help to expand markets for recyclables, and explains Design for Recycling®, a program that encourages manufacturers to consider the recyclability of a new product when it is being developed. The video, a winner of the 1992 CINE Golden Eagle Award, has been selected to represent the United States in international motion picture festivals. The Institute of Scrap Recycling Industries produced "The Original Recyclers" as a community resource. Schools, civic organizations, and government officials can obtain the video by calling 1-800-243-6877 and requesting video #24974, "The Original Recyclers." Cable and public television stations can use it by calling 1-800-237-8913.

Winning The War Against Aging

In The Near Future

Living 120 or more years was once the stuff of science fiction novels. Today, it's within reach, and in the near future, it's inevitable, according to Dr. Roy Walford.

Dr. Walford, internationally renowned expert in the area of aging, who will resume his teaching duties at UCLA when he emerges from Biosphere II in late 1993, has probed the aging process for four decades.

He's proved that a low-calorie diet of nutritional substance, combined with essential vitamins, minerals and amino acids, significantly prolongs the life of his lab rodents. Not only that, he is practicing what he preaches. He's developed a human equivalent he recommends for us all.

He began his experiments on laboratory mice in the early '70s when no one else was looking into diet as a means of prolonging life and vitality. His lab mice lived the equivalent of around 135 human years on their lean diet. Even though their palates weren't pampered, their days in the maze were long and lively until they eventually succumbed to disease, at an advanced mouse age.

From Biosphere II in Arizona, the fit and trim 68-year-old pathologist, physician, professor, philosopher, poet, playwright, world traveler, and pundit, presented the challenge to the rest of us. He said, "There are just too many interesting things to do in life to die off," and he should know.

Even before being selected as one of eight for the 24-month Biosphere II residency, he's penned some 319 scientific papers, an additional 100-plus abstracts, numerous books, including "The 120-Year-Diet". He'd hitchhiked across Africa, cruised by Cuba, and studied fisheries large and small.

Not everyone need be as adventurous as Dr. Walford to experience the "many interesting things" life is all about. Everyone has his or her own road to travel, but some need the kind of guidance Dr. Walford offers to maintain health and energy.

The most captivating research results Dr. Walford published pinpointed the immune system as a search and rescue apparatus programmed to combat "enemy" invasion. The foe could be anything from a simple bacterial infection to a budding cancerous tumor. He believes undernourishment (not malnutrition) keeps the immune system and our hormonal directives prepared for any enemy.

In the future, Dr. Walford predicts, and he has substantial proof upon which to base his prediction, we can, and many of us will, adopt his life/health regimen. Food (the right kinds) plus essential vitamins and minerals, plus exercise equal a longer, healthier, life—one that could exceed 120 years or more.

"I'm not talking about a bunch of doddering old people," Dr. Walford emphasized, "I'm talking about 60-year-olds who look and act like 40-year-olds." His goal is to extend middle age into what was once thought to be early old age, and to prolong life while decreasing the period of "decrepitude" (infirmary and reduced mental capacity).

From his remote residence in Biosphere II, Dr. Walford admitted that he hadn't fashioned the food intake program for his companions. "We've got a half-acre of land to grow our food on. Our original plan was to produce enough food to provide 2,500 calories a day. Due to agricultural problems, we're producing about 1,900 calories a day."

In spite of his 2-year absence, Roy Walford's research goes on. He will emerge from Biosphere II in late 1993. His experimental mice, which have been injected with life-prolonging genes, should still be frolicking in their cages.

The recipient of dozens of prestigious awards, a pioneer in his field, and a world-class adventurer, Dr. Walford has advice to offer those who aspire to maximum lifespan. He said, "It's never too late, or too early (to begin his 120-year diet). It's something anyone can start at any time and benefit from. If you have children, start them. If you're middle-aged or older, start now."

This profile of Dr. Walford, produced by the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, is one of a series paying tribute to the scientists working to understand the aging process and to prevent and/or alleviate the ills often associated with growing old. Research such as this holds the promise of making one's retirement a truly golden period.

However, much more needs to be done—particularly in the funding of such research. Our population is aging. Research now can forestall monumental problems in the decades ahead.

WORD FROM WASHINGTON

Can The New Congress Change Superfund For The Better?

The year 1993 may add record numbers of new members to the U.S. Congress, and potentially a new Administration. One of the hottest issues facing them will be Superfund—the largest, costliest and least effective environmental program in U.S. history, many agree.

Superfund was created in 1980 to cleanup America's old hazardous wastes. Twelve years and billions of dollars later, only 109 of Superfund's 1200+ sites have been completely cleaned up. With approximately 100 new sites added each year, cleanup could take up to 60 years and cost more than $750 billion—topping the S & L bailout!

Experts say Superfund has benefited lawyers and consultants more than the environment. Raising cleanup funds through Superfund's liability system has generated a firestorm of litigation which delays cleanup and diverts billions of dollars to unproductive transaction costs. Estimates based on a recent study by the RAND Institute for Civil Justice indicate that big business alone will spend more than $10 billion on transaction costs in the next decade—to no environmental benefit!

Our country cannot afford this enormous waste of resources. Many people are demanding substantive Superfund reform and will expect the next Congress to eliminate government waste and ensure that federal regulations achieve their goals with a minimum drag on jobs and the economy. Congress avoided fixing the program in 1990 by extending Superfund as is, without any public comment or debate! Voters deserve to know how well aspiring officeholders understand Superfund's problems and the need for comprehensive, practical solutions, many feel.

One such solution would create a National Environmental Trust Fund (NETF).

The Trust Fund would replace Superfund's reactive liability system with a broad-based fund. The NETF would provide more money for cleanup of old hazardous wastes, eliminate unnecessary transaction costs and reduce litigation, and ensure rapid, cost-effective cleanup.

This election many Americans who are concerned about this issue are urging their candidates to support Superfund reforms that channel money away from litigation and into cleanup—where it belongs.

For information on Superfund and the NETF, write: Jan Edelstein, Director, NETF Project, P.O. Box 50592, Washington, DC 20091-0592; or call 202/638-1400.
