Man, wife die when car, truck collide

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

A Floyd County couple died Wednesday afternoon after their automobile collided with a coal truck on Route 114 at Middle Creek.

According to a report filed Wednesday by the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police, Eula Mae Huppert, 73, of Prestonsburg, drove her vehicle out of the Compton's Grocery parking lot on Route 114 directly into the path of a fully loaded coal truck driven by Donald Sturgill.

Sturgill, 42, of Pound, Virginia, was unable to stop in time and struck the Huppert vehicle. Both vehicles careened into the east-bound lane and struck a guard rail. Sturgill's truck went over the hill, knocking over a utility pole.

Huppert's passenger, her husband, John W. Huppert, 65, was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger E. Nelson.

Eula Huppert was removed from the vehicle by members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad and was transported to the Highlands Regional Medical Center, where she later died of injuries suffered in the wreck.

Sturgill apparently suffered only minor injuries.

Responding to the scene were members of the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police; the Floyd County Sheriff's office; the Middle Creek Volunteer Fire Department; and the Rural Electric Company Cooperative.

The accident is still under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

Sentencing set for February 5:

Verdict returned in PCC rape case

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County Jury found a Johnson County man guilty Thursday of the attempted rape of a Prestonsburg Community College student last year on the school's campus.

Romie Adams, 60, of Nippa, who was an usher at the Upper Room Church in Paintsville, was convicted of first degree criminal attempt to commit rape after a two-day trial in Floyd County Circuit Court which included graphic and surprising testimony.

The jury recommended Adams be sentenced to a nine-year prison term.

Adams' conviction apparently will be appealed by David Williams, with the Department of Public Advocacy, who mentioned to the court that there were "several appealable" issues in the case.

Both sides in the case gave completely different versions of the incident: the prosecution claimed that the victim was brutally raped; the defense claimed the two participants were acting out the victim's fantasy.

The victim, a Johnson County woman who was a student at the college, testified that Adams grabbed her from behind as she was leaving the campus on the evening of April 4, 1991.

The woman said Adams dragged her over an embankment, gagged her and tied her hands in front of her with a piece of rope. She testified Adams ripped her clothes off and attempted to have sex with her in various positions.

She said she recognized Adams because she knew him from church

Caudill to take over for Conley in Letcher

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Newly appointed Floyd County Circuit Court Judge John David Caudill will be dividing his time and duties between Floyd and Letcher counties.

Caudill was informed this week by the Administrative Office of the Court (AOC) that he has been assigned to temporarily preside over the Letcher County Circuit Court.

Retired Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, who was assigned to Letcher County when that county's judge was indicted, asked to be relieved from his duties due to family health problems.

Letcher Circuit Judge Larry Collins was indicted last year for allegedly offering protection to drug dealers in exchange for money and drugs. Collins was suspended from his duties by AOC pending the disposition of the case.

Judge Caudill, who will be presiding in Letcher County three days a week, said he foresees no problems in his assignment and that he is looking forward to job.

"I'm ready to do it," Caudill said

Sized-down Floyd ASCS office could be phased out after all

by Geoff Belcher

Despite earlier reports and a United States Department of Agriculture spokesman's insistence to the contrary last week, the Floyd County Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Services may still fall under the knife in a massive budget cut.

School improvement standards established:

Lines drawn for progress

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

The starting lines have been drawn, and a 20-year race for educational improvement is on in Kentucky schools, where the stakes are high for those unable to keep up the pace.

Test scores released Wednesday by the state Department of Education will serve as the baseline for improving education in Kentucky and they suggest some schools will have to travel a wider circuit if they are to meet state goals.

The formula for measuring success is fairly simple. Schools are expected to attain test scores of 100 points over a period of 20 years. Scores from 1992 testing serve as the starting point, and the difference between that number and the goal of 100 points must be made up in ten percent increments every two years.

For example:

- A school which received a baseline score of 30 from 1992 testing needs to improve by 70 points over 20 years to reach the 100 point goal. Ten percent of 70 is seven, so test scores must improve by seven points every two years... to 37 in 1994, 44 by 1996, etc. Those improvement goals are called "thresholds."

Once thresholds are set, an accountability process takes over.

- Schools which exceed their scoring goals qualify for cash rewards which can be used however teachers and administrators decide.

- Schools which fall short of the threshold goal must develop improvement plans approved by the state.

- Schools which fall behind their original baseline will be assigned an assistance team of teachers and administrators from a pool known as Kentucky Distinguished Educators.

- Schools which fall way behind, five percent or more below their baseline, will be considered schools in crisis. All teachers and administrators of that school will be placed on probation, students will be allowed to transfer to other schools and a Kentucky Distinguished Educator will be assigned to the school with the power to pursue the dismissal of any teacher or administrator.

State officials have stressed that test scores should not be used to compare one school against another, but to measure the progress of individual schools.

The accompanying chart shows baseline scores for Floyd County schools and the threshold scores they are expected to attain on 1994 tests.

Floyd deputies kept at bay in Knott County barricade

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

A Knott County woman reportedly held Kentucky State Police and Floyd County Sheriff's deputies at bay with a shotgun for nearly five hours Saturday when they tried to serve her with an arrest warrant in a criminal suit caused by what one woman calls "a case of fatal attraction."

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said Thursday that two Floyd County deputies and members of the Hazard Post of the Kentucky State Police attempted to arrest Henrietta Crigger on three counts of telephone communications harassment Saturday at her Chaffins' Branch home in Knott County.

Crigger then barricaded herself in the house with a shotgun and refused to come out.

Eventually, Thompson said, the Kentucky State Police special response team was called in, and Crigger surrendered at her family's urging.

Also on the scene were Knott County sheriff's deputies and District Two Constable Bob Hackworth. Crigger was charged with one count of second-degree wanton endangerment and one count of resisting arrest, Thompson said. She was incarcerated at the Knott County Jail and released Monday on $2,500 bond.

Crigger was scheduled to appear in Floyd Circuit Court Monday on the harassment charges, which were filed last month by Darnell Combs, of Martin.

Combs said Thursday that Crigger has on several occasions harassed and threatened her on the telephone. The threats, Combs said, resulted from her impending marriage to Crigger's sex-husband, Quentin Henry Scott.

Scott, who divorced Crigger in 1982, said Thursday that two years ago Crigger had assaulted his previous girlfriend, striking her in the head and inflicting a wound that required several stitches.

"Every woman that I have any sort of dealings with," Scott said, "well, (Crigger) just stalks them."

"I fear for my life and for my family," Combs said Thursday. "Restraining orders mean nothing with this woman.... She even called me from the jail after she was arrested"

Second accident at new 23/1428 intersection

Matthew Mullins, 19, of Jenkins and Sam Bentley, 24, of Virgie were critically injured Tuesday evening when their vehicle went through the intersection at Route 1428 and the new section of U.S. 23. A previous accident at the same site killed Jimmy Howard Brewer, of Seagrove, North Carolina, last month. (photo by Geoff Belcher)

Lethal intersection almost claims two more unsuspecting victims

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The intersection of the new Floyd County branch of U.S. 23 and Route 1428 nearly claimed two more victims Tuesday evening in the second accident at that site in less than a month.

According to a report filed by Deputy Sergeant Lloyd Powers of the Floyd County Sheriff's office, Matthew Mullins, 19, of Jenkins, was apparently driving south on U.S. 23 at an unsafe speed, failed to stop at the intersection, and crashed into a rock wall.

Both Mullins and a passenger, Sam Bentley, 24, of Virgie, were seriously injured. The men were taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Bentley was air-lifted to Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington, West Virginia, where he remains in critical condition. Mullins was transferred to Humana Hospital at Louisa for orthopedic care.

Responding to the scene were members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad; the Floyd County Sheriff's office; the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police; and the P&B and Respond ambulance services.

The accident is still under investigation.

According to Powers' report, Mullins did not know that the roadway came to a dead stop despite the presence of stop signs and flashing caution lights, which were installed earlier this month after a North Carolina man died in a crash at the same site just before New Year's Eve.

James Howard Brewer, 34, of Seagrove, North Carolina, was killed Wednesday, December 30 when he failed to stop at the intersection and crashed into the rock wall.

That accident is still under investigation by officers of the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police.

Housing Authority lauded for keeping expenses low

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

In these trying times of ever-soaring federal debt and government overspending, the Prestonsburg Housing Authority offers a breath of fresh air... the department of Housing and Urban Development says it hasn't been spending enough.

Housing Authority Executive Director Julia May addressed members of the Housing Authority board Wednesday at a special budget meeting. May told board members that she and her staff had been advised by HUD agents to spend about $30,000 worth of reserve funds so that the Housing Authority does not lose them.

Board members voted unanimously to approve May's proposed operating budget for the 1993-94 fiscal year.

Among other items discussed at Wednesday's meeting:

- the board voted unanimously to write-off uncollectible accounts totalling $2,084.08.

- May said that HUD officials had stressed a "family self-sufficiency" program for tenants. She added that she and her staff were investigating training courses in the program, as well as revenue sources to pay for them.

- The Housing Authority voted to issue a special proclamation to Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta thanking her for meritorious service.

- The position of Housing Authority deputy director will be changed to a full-time position.

Only Mayor Ann Latta was absent from Wednesday's meeting.

Local honor students are Gregory Brian Dye, son of Rabon and Millie Dye of McDowell; Dustin Haley, son of Wilma Haley, Prestonsburg; Jose Ilagan, nephew of Dr. Clarita Vicher of McDowell; William Michael Nalle, son of Scarlett Wallen of Minnie and Bruce Nalle of Ashland, and Novella Anne Snyder, daughter of Elsworth and Loveda Coburn of Garrett.

Saturday.

Combs said that Crigger blames the episodic behavior and threatening phone calls on a near-diabetic condition that she claims causes her to behave irrationally if her blood sugar level gets too low. The Floyd County jailer's log indicates that Crigger was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center for medical treatment during a previous incarceration for failure to appear in court on the harassment charges.

Although Crigger has not made any more threatening calls since the weekend, Combs said, she fears the situation is not yet resolved.

"I have been inside my house now since before Thanksgiving being stalked by this woman. I've done everything legal and taken it through the courts step by step, and now this woman is out again walking the streets."

Office

County Executive Director Sharon Conley of the local ASCS offices said Thursday. The reason for the confusion, Conley said, may be that the Floyd and Knott County ASCS offices were officially combined in 1986, so that when and if the Knott County branch closes, the Floyd County branch will as well.

Although there are about 400 farms listed as being in Floyd County, Conley said, the Floyd County office is considered a sub-office and is open on Wednesdays only.

She added that Madigan has yet to implement the ASCS office closures, recommended by a joint USDA/Office of Management and Budget review team.

"At this time," Conley said, "we just don't know what's going on.... We heard the earlier rumors about the proposed cuts, but nothing has been done... All I can say is that we're open until further notice."

Caudill

Thursday. "I was excited about becoming a judge and Letcher County is no different than Floyd County. I want to get the docket under control and get those cases disposed of and decided. I don't foresee any problems at all."

Caudill will go to Letcher County Tuesday to become familiar with the docket and to get his office organized. The judge added that he, like Conley, will not schedule any criminal trials until after a special grand jury meets next month.

A special judge from Fayette County will preside over the deliberations of the special grand jury which is expected to hear testimony relating to alleged criminal activity involving county government officials.

and that his ex-wife was her best friend.

After the incident, the woman crawled up the embankment, across the parking lot toward the Johnson Building on the college campus where police found her, she testified.

The woman said she had loaned Adams money to send to his ex-wife in Indiana and on another occasion, money to send to his stepdaughter in Florida. She said Adams repaid some of the money by letting her use his credit card to purchase gas and for car repairs.

Prestonsburg City police officer Ricky Conn testified that he found the woman, hysterical, bound and gagged, near the Johnson Building.

Kentucky State Police detective Lynn Cross and Prestonsburg policemen Greg Hall, Roy Roberts and Jeff Stumbo arrested Adams the next day near his home at Hager Hill.

Cross testified that the officers took Adams to his home, at his request, to feed his dogs. Cross said Adams consented to a search of his home where officers found a shirt which had been cut and parts of the shirt used for the gag. Officers also recovered muddy, grass-stained clothing the man said he wore the night of the incident.

Adams, who testified on his own behalf, claimed the woman had asked him to meet her on the college campus to carry out a sexual fantasy.

"I loved her, I cared for her," Adams testified. "What she wanted to do, I'd do. I wanted her to be my companion. I wanted her to be my wife."

Adams said the two "laid" in the grass near the college for about 20 minutes and that he attempted to have sex with the woman, but that he was "too scared." He said the woman said, "Romie run" and he left her. He testified that he went back to the scene because he had lost his car keys and wallet.

He testified that the woman helped him search the area for his keys and wallet and when the items were found he left her at the scene.

During cross-examination by Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton, Adams said the two were supposed to meet at his house after the incident at the college.

"Weren't you worried when she didn't show up?" Patton asked.

"Sure," Adams said. "I got her some Diet Pepsi and a pizza because she was supposed to meet me at the house. I sat home and (ate) some pizza."

"You were worried about her, so you sat home and (ate) pizza?" Patton asked.

"Sure, I was hungry," Adams answered.

Adams also testified that the woman had asked him for money on various occasions prior to the incident and promised him "dates" after he had given her money. He said the two had engaged in graphic phone conversations about sex and that on one occasion she wanted money to purchase a "sex kit," which included a pornographic movie. Adams said he had previously purchased X-rated movies at Wal-Mart.

In closing arguments, Adams' attorney, Sid Trivette, argued that the two had a "weak mind, strong mind" relationship and that the two needed each other for different reasons. Trivette said that with Adams' interest in religion, he could have purchased an R-rated or PG-rated movie at Wal-Mart and it could've been, in his opinion, pornographic.

"In no way am I suggesting that they are selling X-rated movies at Wal-Mart," Trivette said. "He's not the most educated or perceptive person I've seen. He can be led down a path to disaster. After that, anything could happen."

Patton argued that Adams' account of the relationship was "beyond comprehension."

"What he sold you today was a fantasy," Patton said. "Never, never in my greatest imagination had I ever given any thought to what he sold you today. Above all, this man testified that he belonged to the church and he engages in something like this. That's sick. It's beyond comprehension."

"To leave her bound and gagged on the creek bank and go home and eat pizza is so ridiculous I don't want to make this argument," Patton continued. "That is a very, very troubled man who has fantasized the whole thing."

The jury deliberated an hour and 35 minutes before returning the verdict.

Formal sentencing has been set for Friday, February 5.

Note: The Floyd County Times does not publish the names of the victims of sexual assault.

Let Benny Ray do it

by Scott Perry

While the state legislature waits for Governor Brereton Jones to submit his Plan B for health care reform (Plan A sleeps with the fishes) and some proponents of reform say the state should wait for Congress to act, Senator Benny Ray Bailey has been stitching together his own plan.

Bailey, who represents part of Eastern Kentucky, including Floyd County, knows of what he speaks, and he's been speaking about it for some time.

As the administrator of a Hindman clinic, Bailey knows full well the problems the uninsured or underinsured cause for the state's health care system and the costs associated with providing that care.

His plan appears to be consumer oriented, calling for immediate rate-setting on services, and it addresses a growing need for medical service in rural Kentucky by requiring medical students to spend 30 weeks per year in the field.

We've seen only a summary of Bailey's proposal, so we'll reserve final judgment on it's worth.

It's something to study, though, and that's a sight better than nothing.

And, we'd much rather have someone familiar with Kentucky's problems writing a plan for Kentucky than to wait on Congress, which has a history of putting special interests above the public need.

Give us a plan that is affordable, efficient, comprehensive and understandable and let the nation follow our lead.

We've wasted enough time already.

Community support greatly appreciated

Editor:
 I would like to publicly give my thanks to the people and companies listed below for their cooperation in the development of a "Real Life Skills" program that I am currently using with success in my math class at Allen Central High School.

Thank you to Rita, at the First Guaranty National Bank in Martin, for providing checks, a checkbook, a savings passbook and statement forms. Marla at the Floyd County Solid Waste, Geneva Casebolt of Kentucky Power, James Campbell at Tel-Com, Inc., and Larry Francis at Equitable Gas, for cheerfully providing fictitious bills made out to my students in his name and address at no cost to me or to the school. The program is a success largely due to the "real bills and checks" I am able to give in class. This is a positive example of local businesses taking a part in the education of local students and future consumers.

They're off

Good news: Ballots are bulging at the seams

All across Kentucky, the list of candidates in this spring's primary election is looking more like a stampede than a ballot.

Nobody is sure what it is behind this surge in interest. Maybe it's a sign of the recession. Maybe it's nothing more than an indication that people want something to occupy themselves this spring.

Or maybe, just maybe, it's a sign of a rebirth of democracy. We don't have a more definitive notion than anyone else, but we'll take that hopeful interpretation until somebody proves it wrong.—Lexington Herald-Leader

Straightening the road issue

The mountain counties have made advances in roadbuilding over the last 20 years. But look what we've got. U.S. 23 is still not four-laned through Pike County, and we can't predict when it will be. We've still got a big gap of hazardous and steep roadway on U.S. 119 that effectively logs off part of the county. In the vast midsection of Pike County, roads are barely wide enough for a compact car and a coal truck to pass each other.

From Campton east, how can they call Mountain Parkway a parkway? Ditto for the Daniel Boone Parkway. You won't find less than four lanes on the Bluegrass Parkway or the Western Parkway or any of the others.

The last thing in the world any of us in this region expect or want is a six-lane highway to the capital. What we need are a few good four-laned highways to help us develop economically, and we need a bunch of good two-laned roads just so we can get to work and back without feeling we're on the brink of disaster.

Get in touch with U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers, Lt. Gov. Paul Patton, and Gov. Brereton Jones. Inundate the phone lines at the Department of Transportation. Urge those decision-makers to reroute that money for six-laning I-64 back this way. Don't beat around the bush. Tell them we need that road money, we deserve it and we won't hush 'til we get it.—Condensed editorial from Appalachian News-Express

Clinton should keep promises

Bill Clinton's campaign pledge to end welfare as we know it is one promise that he can keep.

And he should keep it. Trimming the welfare rolls is a worthy goal. The savings should not be measured in dollars and cents alone, but in the independence and self-respect of those now on the dole.

Reforms should begin with unwed, teen-age mothers.

Forty-three percent of those who have been on welfare for 10 years or longer began as unwed teen-age mothers.

Going on welfare is their only hope. About half of all unwed teen-age mothers go on welfare within a year of the birth of their children. Less than a quarter escape welfare entirely.

Getting off welfare isn't easy. Giving birth interrupts, if not ends, many teens' quest for a high school education.

They lack the basic work habits their peers acquire in part-time, after-school employment. A 17-year-old mother with a child to support would be foolish to give up free health care for a minimum-wage job.

Clinton's call in the primary season for ending welfare after two years is one way to gain the attention of young mothers. Mandating community service can help develop job skills.

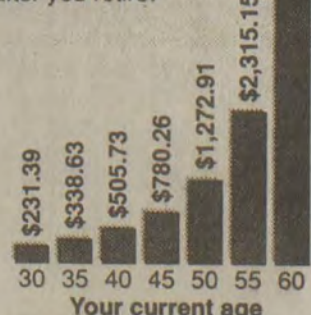

Also, it would keep idle hands busy and away from drug abuse and other self-defeating behavior. Clinton's goal is simple:

Encourage people to get off welfare and get on with a more rewarding way of life.—Condensed editorial from Charleston (W.Va.) Daily Mail, reprinted with permission in the Lexington Herald-Leader

SPECIAL ORDERS COULD BE CURTAILED

By Leonard Larsen
Scripps Howard News Service

Majority Democrats in the House of Representatives are threatening to narrow a window where Americans can see the full-flowered looniness that passes for official congressional business.

Unless they're turned around before Congress convenes, Democratic leaders may trim the time allotted at the close of each day's session when members can speak on "special orders" into the wee hours of morning, until they run dry.

The tradition, which began a few years ago when C-SPAN, the cable network, started coverage of house proceedings, allows any member—ordinarily under tight time restrictions in routine House deliberations—to yammer on about anything, sometimes even making serious sense.

House members, especially minority Republicans, saw the political advantage of making speeches on the House floor to C-SPAN's national TV audience while appearing to command the rapt attention of the nation's largest legislative body.

Actually, the House is almost always an empty cavern during "special orders" and, because former Democratic House Speaker Tip O'Neill once got fed up with Republican sniping, the emptiness looms large on after-hours C-SPAN.

O'Neill, in an order that still stands, said the TV cameras should swing around the chamber every once in a while to show the huge hall and acres of empty seats as "special orders" speakers drone on.

The latest Democratic fit of pique, the pending decision to curtail "special orders," is blamed on the antics of Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., Congress' reigning zealot and collector of patriotic derring-do, items which usually feature Dornan himself.

Prior to the congressional adjournment in October, Dornan captivated flat-earth conservatives—and, to its regret, the Bush White House—with a series of manic speeches directed at the presidential candidacy of Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton.

All the Dornan speeches were intended—or seemingly intended—to show that Clinton was not only a liar and a draft-dodger during the Vietnam war but, possibly, a young man who betrayed his own country to the Soviets.

Democrats, obviously unappreciative of the pure wackiness and psychic wonder of Dornan's performances, were upset and still are that the president-elect took such a verbal lashing in the guise of patriotism. The move against "special orders" was viewed as a muzzle, at least partly intended for Dornan.

Dornan's lectures on Clinton were certainly political attacks. But they had the giddy rush of a wild ride on a runaway freight train: bits of history speeding past in a blur of good and evil, alarms ringing, drums rolling, wars fought, good men betrayed, heroes dying—and Dornan hammering it all together, as if to demolish Clinton's candidacy in a fit of patriotic fervor.

Reciting his suspicions that Clinton, as a Rhodes scholar in England, might have become a Soviet operative while on a visit to Moscow, Dornan, in his nightly speeches, kept recalling a world trip of his own about the same time.

The oft-repeated Dornan travelogue with its attacks on Clinton took up page after page of the Congressional Record for several days. His nightly passage took him through "time-frame references" from Moscow's freezing cold, to America's deep South, to Vietnam, to India, to San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge, to Arlington National Cemetery, to everywhere.

Along his path, Dornan might recall—for reasons never quite clear—that he'd swum "the Chappaquiddick canal," "marched with Martin Luther King," recited the poem "High Flight" at a funeral and stopped off in India where, "by the way, I saw Indira Gandhi."

His accompanying attacks on Clinton during one travelogue included a fascinating account of how, during the Vietnam war, Soviet-built MIG fighters could fly out of "a Robert McNamara dishonorably-created sanctuary...to make one run to kill some lieutenant on his first mission who graduated from college with better grades than Bill Clinton."

Put me down against any shut-down of "special orders." The nation—and maybe psychiatric teaching hospitals—shouldn't be deprived of such important stuff.

'Airport manager, board at odds over road

The road leading to the Big Sandy Regional airport has become unsafe due to the mud created by coal trucks hauling to and from Raven Mine, the airport manager James Mineer said.

Mineer threatened to file a lawsuit if the problem is not corrected within a month. The mine superintendent said he couldn't afford to wash the road.

Airport board members then passed a motion that Mineer not be allowed to act as a representative of the airport when contacting any governmental agency. —Paintsville Herald

HIV-infected student urged to switch courses

A state school official told the parents of an HIV-infected student their son should drop cosmetology because of his illness and even offered to get him a home computer so he could switch fields, court documents show.

Donnie Jones, 19, of Perry County, claimed in a federal lawsuit filed in May that he was threatened with expulsion from the Hazard Vocational Technical School. He said the threat by Finley Begley, southeast regional director for the state Board for Adult and Technical Education, came because Jones was infected with the virus that causes AIDS.

Begley has denied he threatened to expel Jones. But in a deposition, filed January 19, in U.S. District Court, Begley acknowledged discussing a course change with Jones' parents during a visit to their home November 1, 1991.

Under questioning from Jones' attorney, E. Douglas Richards, Begley acknowledged he was not aware of any health guidelines suggesting HIV-infected persons not perform such work.

Donnie Jones quit school November 4, 1991, but Begley denied claims that he gave the parents until that date to persuade their son to leave cosmetology. But Margaret Jones, in a deposition also filed January 19, said that was exactly what happened.

"He put it like this," she said. "He told us that he could run an interlude for Donnie to give me and my husband one week to, you know, get Donnie to change to computers or some other class. But he also stated as of 4 o'clock Monday evening, November 4, that he would have to step in."

"It's hard for me to think I'd do that," Begley said in his deposition of the deadline.

The discrimination case, which court officials have said could be the first in Kentucky involving HIV, is scheduled for a non-jury trial May 26. —Lexington Herald-Leader

Boons Camp man charged with sex crimes in Ohio

A Johnson County man was arrested Monday by Kentucky authorities on indictments from Ohio charging him with sexual-related crimes.

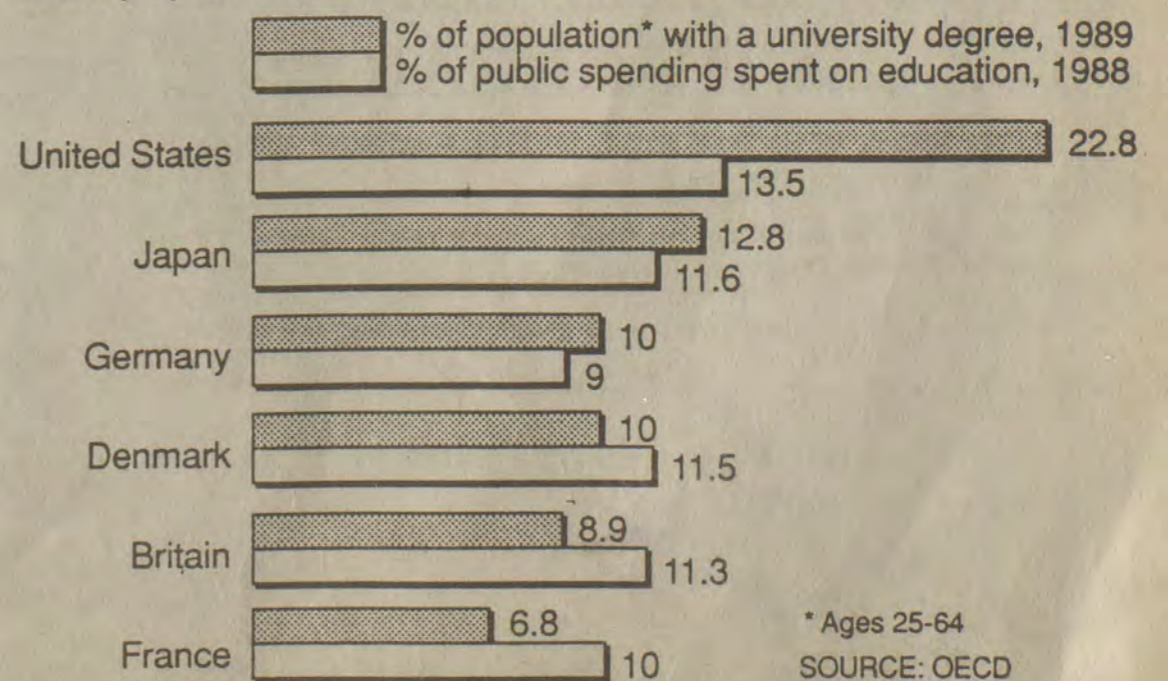

Gary D. Meek, 36, of Boons Camp was arrested by Kentucky State Police on a fugitive-from-justice warrant issued by Larain County, Ohio authorities. He was briefly held in the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center before being taken to Ohio to face the charges.

Meek was charged with 32 counts of various sex crimes, according to jail records. They included nine counts of rape, 11 counts of gross sexual imposition and 12 counts of corruption of a minor.

No details on the charges were available at press time. —The Paintsville Herald

Enrollment under way for KET's Spring GED on TV session

Adults interested in obtaining their GEDs through KET's GED ON TV study-at-home program should call KET at 1-800-538-4433. A new GED ON TV session begins March 2.

The KET GED ON TV program is convenient for any adult without a high school diploma who, because of lack of transportation, lack of child care, conflicting work schedules, or other difficulties, needs to prepare for the GED exam at home.

KET began the program in 1975 to give Kentucky adults another chance to improve their education. Since that time, more than 15,000 Kentucky adults have received their GEDs after preparing with the KET GED ON TV program.

Each student enrolled in GED ON TV receives three workbooks which follow the KET/GED Series broadcasts on KET, a practice test prior to the actual GED test, and a certificate which pays the GED testing fee. Throughout each GED ON TV study session, students may call tutors at a toll-free telephone number for help with particular problems.

The KET/GED Series, which is used nationwide, includes lessons for each area of the GED exam: math, writing, reading, science and social studies. The series also includes programs giving test-taking tips and strategies.

For more information about KET's GED ON TV program, please call 1-800-538-4433.

Senate makes Ford's Motor-Voter Bill a top priority for action this year

The National Voter Registration Act of 1993, commonly referred to as the "Motor-Voter bill," was introduced in the Senate January 21 by Majority Whip Wendell Ford. As the second item introduced in the Senate for the 103rd Congress, the "motor-voter" bill immediately became a top priority for passage this session.

The bill is the same legislation which passed the House and Senate in the 102nd Congress, but fell short of overriding the Presidential veto. President Clinton has endorsed the measure and indicated his intention to sign it into law upon passage by Congress.

Among the highlights:
•States will allow voting registration with the application for a driver's license, by mail and in person at appropriate state and federal agencies;

•Approximately 90 percent of eligible voters will be registered;

•Federal criminal penalties will apply for voter fraud;
•Effective date is January 1, 1995, for all states.

Rebecca Venable

The daughter of a former Floyd County resident has been chosen as a grand finalist in 'Teen Magazine's 1993 Miss Teenage America (R) Program. Rebecca Venable, 17, of Gate City, Virginia, daughter of Jerry and Lana McCloud Venable (Lana is a BENEFITS AFFECTED BY JAIL TERMS: A reader says he's facing a possible felony conviction, and wanted to be assured that he'll continue to receive his compensation benefits if he goes to prison.

Unfortunately, I can't provide such assurance. The fact is, as recently as September, 1992, the VA reaffirmed its position that compensation benefits may not be paid in excess of certain amounts for any person incarcerated in a federal, state, or local penal institution for conviction of a felony. Beginning on the 61st day of incarceration, vets rated 20 percent or more are limited to 10 percent; veterans rated less than 20 percent are limited to half of the 10 percent rate.

Dependents may have the right to an apportionment while the beneficiary is incarcerated. Any apportionments will be discontinued, and full benefits restored upon release, or upon participation in a work-release or halfway house program.

Senior Service Line

by Matilda Charles

SENIORS TARGETED AGAIN: People who make their living shaving a few corners off their ethics apparently find seniors the most "rewarding" targets of their often misleading and frequently fraudulent schemes. As I've said in this column many times, it's not that seniors are naturally gullible. Rather, seniors tend to be shrewd in business deals, that is, if they're dealing on a one-to-one, aboveboard basis. However, that's not always the case. Many seniors who tend to be a mite more trusting than they could be, too often write checks before checking things out.

One of the "deals" that is aimed at the senior market involves so-called "inside tips" to government giveaways of surplus property. You may have seen the headlines on the advertisements for publications that promise to reveal secret information on how to get in on these fabulous deals: "Drug raid seizures! Dirt cheap." Or,

"Government homes for $1." Or, "... Jeeps for $44." However, as the Consumer Information Center points out, while these ad headlines may make you think the government is practically giving away surplus property, or confiscated vehicles, or seized real estate, etc., that just isn't true. Also, you don't need to buy any publication promising "inside" tips on how to learn about "secret" government sales. For one thing, the sales aren't secret. For another, you can get information free of charge on when and where sales will be held, what is being offered, how to buy, where to get more details, and other useful tips in a booklet called "The U.S. General Services Administration Guide to Federal Government Sales." For your free copy, send your name and address to Federal Sales Guide, Pueblo, Colo. 81009. When you look through your free guide, you won't find any

"pay-next-to-nothing" deals promised in the ads, because they don't exist. The government must sell at fair market value.

A further note: Those guides or catalogs being offered for sale can cost $20 to over $100. Also note that if you reply by phone to their 900 number, make sure the ad states how much you'll be charged per minute. Also be wary of attempts to keep you on the line longer than necessary. And, be wary if they insist on sending the publication via UPS or other private carrier. This enables them to avoid investigation by the U.S. Postal Service for sending fraudulent materials through the mail.

When you send for the "...Guide to Federal Government Sales," you'll also get a free copy of the Consumer Information Catalog which is updated quarterly. It lists more than 200 free and low-cost publications available on a wide variety of subjects.

VA questions and answers

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA Counselors. Full information is available at any VA Office.

Q.—Is the VA claim number the same as veteran's social security number?

A.—A veteran who filed an initial benefit claim before 1974 will have a VA claim number. A veteran who filed after 1974 generally will be identified by his or her social security number.

Q.—My VA pension is being deposited directly into my bank account. I have decided to change banks. How do I get the direct deposit changed to my new bank?

A.—Ask your new bank to complete a new SF-1199A, Direct Deposit Sign-up Form, and send it to your VA Regional Office. Be sure not to close your account at the old bank until the direct deposit starts at your new bank. It should take between 30 and 60 days for the change to take effect.

Q.—I was recently separated from the military under the Special Separation Benefit (SSB) incentive plan. I also was determined to be 30 percent disabled by VA. Does the SSB payment affect the compensation I will be getting from VA?

A.—It probably will because, in most instances, VA must recoup the SSB payment. The only instance where this does not happen is when a veteran previously received compensation for a disability incurred during a period of service prior to the period of service used to compute the SSB payment.

Q.—I have been in the Army Reserves since 1989. Am I entitled to payments under the Montgomery GI Bill (Selected Reserve) for attendance at a vocational welding school?

A.—You may be eligible for this type of training. However, you will need to provide evidence that, since October 1, 1990, you have re-enlisted or extended your enlistment to have six years of obligated service remaining after the re-enlistment or extension is signed.

Book Review

Knick Knack Paddywack

by Marissa Moss

In her lively adaption of the familiar nursery song "This Old Man," Marissa Moss extends a well-known old fellow's experiences and escapades.

Obviously a devotee of astronomy, with dreams of going to outer space, this old man gathers an unusual assortment of parts and paraphernalia for an ambitious project. Clever readers will quickly guess what he's building and will watch with delight as the project takes shape. Meanwhile, all about him, one dog, two dogs, ten dogs frolic and dance.

A funny, engaging picture book with lots to look at and plenty to sing about!

Clara Barton: Healing the Wounds

by Cathy East Dubowski

In the Declaration of Independence Thomas Jefferson asserted as a "self-evident truth" that "all men are created equal." This "truth," however, did not encompass women. Nowhere, either in Europe or the new nation of the United States, were women treated equally with men. Their place was thought to be the home—in the kitchen or the nursery. This sphere of influence could occasionally extend to the church or schoolroom. Certainly women did not have equal opportunities in politics. Nor did they achieve even a hope for equality in that realm until 1920, when they won the right to vote.

The situation for women began to change in the 19th century, particularly in education and religion and, more gradually, in nursing. In Europe, almost all teachers were men, but in the United States women slowly replaced men as teachers, and—by the time Clara Barton was born, in 1821—it was taken for granted that the majority of teachers in the schools were women.

Young Clara Barton was one of these women. She was a school teacher at 16 and, in one way or another, continued to teach for the rest of her life. By her time, especially in New England, women had begun to take charge of education. Margaret Fuller gave lectures to women on their rights and Elizabeth Peabody introduced the kindergarten from Germany. Young Clara Barton was determined to carve out a career for herself as well.

Eventually Barton grew weary of teaching. For some years she had nursed an invalid brother, and now she wanted to become a nurse. The Civil War gave her a more than ample opportunity. She hurried to Washington, where she helped organize medical support for the army. But Barton was not content with administration. After considerable effort, she obtained permission to nurse wounded soldiers at the actual scene of the fighting. From that point on Barton did much of her nursing on the battlefields. When medicine and supplies ran out, she had recourse to New England towns, many of which responded lavishly to her appeals. In recognition of her services, she was appointed superintendent of nurses.

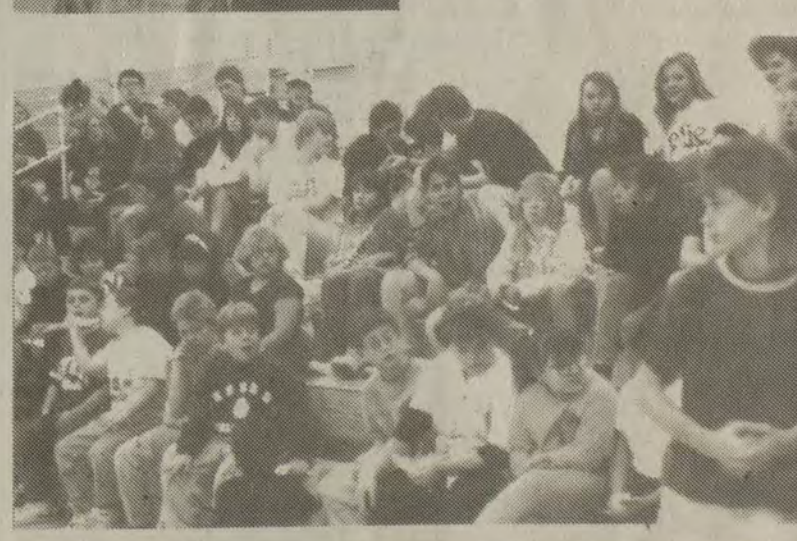

After Appomattox and the end of the war, Barton went abroad. In Europe, she nursed the wounded on both sides in the Franco-Prussian War, and was honored by kings and emperors for her contributions.

Barton's experience abroad introduced her to the newly-organized International Red Cross, with headquarters in Switzerland. This set the stage for her greatest achievement. Back in her own country she set out to persuade congressmen and senators to commit the United States to join the Red Cross. Inevitably, she was appointed president of the American branch of the organization, and created policy for Red Cross aid in war as well as in domestic disasters. In her old age, she helped establish the American Woman's Suffrage Association, and, not content with that, the Woman's International Peace Association.

In all these activities, Barton was a kind of combination of England's Florence Nightingale and America's Julia Ward Howe—a blending of nursing skill and compassion with the desire to uplift and to educate.

Clerk visits Duff

Floyd County Clerk Carla Boyd, pictured with Manis Jones, a fourth grade student, explained the voting process to students in grades 4-8 at Duff Elementary. The students later participated in a mock election.

Food preparation and management class project

The food preparation and management students of McDowell High, under the guidance of their instructor, Gwinetta Mitchell, selected a foods related topic to research. Students were required to make use of community resources.

Students spent time writing and phoning government agencies, developing questionnaires for interviews and surveys, contacting individuals for interview, taping interviews or demonstrations, and visiting local businesses and health agencies. Topics of research included a comparison of grocery stores and restaurants, foods careers, the present food crisis in Somalia, exercise and wellness and various other health related topics.

The students then compiled their research into a paper and presented their information to the class. The presentations included taped interviews, preparation of a diabetic and low fat meal, charts showing comparisons, simulated game shows and a talk show. Mitchell stated she was very pleased with the efforts of her students. The students were very creative and conscientious. They spent much time completing a project that taught them as much about themselves and their community as the topic itself.

Don't jump now!

Retirement's around the corner. Conventional would be the last term used to describe Harold Newman, teacher at Wheelwright High School. In his 29th year of teaching, he uses any method possible to get the point across. Here, he's demonstrating that air has pressure to his Introduction to Chemistry and Physics class. Hang in there, Harold!

If you have children you'll know what I'm talking about here.

If you don't, you may borrow mine. Any parent will tell you that there are momentous occasions during child rearing worthy of documentation, the importance of which differs dramatically among moms and dads.

Mothers, in fact, are primarily responsible for the deforestation of South American rain forests, where trees are considered much less critical to our survival than the paper they provide for the volumes of reference manuals known to mothers as "Baby Books."

These books, which can range in page count from the War and Peace Economy Pack to the More Lines Than The Federal Budget Bonus Book, offer useful and often embarrassing insight on the growing child, as seen through the eyes of people who honestly believe it is important to note when, where and how their child took its first, er, number two.

The quantity and quality of these historical entries is, according to a scientific study I conducted during halftime of the NFC title game, directly proportionate to the ratio of children per household.

In other words, the first kid gets all the ink.

Firstborns are special because they are family guinea pigs whose every move is analyzed, measured, recorded and powdered by inexperienced parents. It is a well known fact that hospital emergency rooms were invented for rookie moms and dads who needed someplace to rush their firstborn children anytime they burped.

The natural offshoot of this life under the microscope is the Baby Book, which brings us rather nicely back to the question at hand...

What, exactly, is Congress going to do about this deficit thing?

Oops. Wrong question.

What, exactly, is the criteria for Baby Book-worthiness?

Here's an easy test to determine your qualifications as a Baby Book author:

(1.) Which of the following would you record as a "memorable event" in your child's Baby Book?

- (A.) Baby's first step.
- (B.) Baby's first tooth.
- (C.) Baby's first job.

(2.) Which of the following would you consider to be a "photo opportunity"?

- (A.) Baby's first step.
- (B.) Baby's first tooth.
- (C.) Baby's first trip to the fridge to get you a cold beer.

(3.) Which of the following would you submit to your hometown newspaper as a "newsworthy event"?

- (A.) Baby's first birthday.
- (B.) Baby's second through twenty-first birthdays.
- (C.) Baby's first deer kill.

(4.) Which of the following articles would you consider suitable for "bronzing"?

- (A.) Baby's first shoe.
- (B.) Baby's other shoe.
- (C.) Baby.

(5.) Which of the following items would you consider as "keepsakes"?

- (A.) A lock of baby's hair.
- (B.) Baby's kindergarten diploma.
- (C.) A videotape of U.K.'s 1978 National Championship win over Duke.

Now for the scoring. If you answered A or B to all of the above questions, you are a compassionate, caring, considerate, involved and attentive parent.

If you answered C to one or more of the above questions, you have more than one kid.

Open road leads to Nashville

Passing another milestone

Karl Jarol and Open Road are determined to succeed on their journey to the country music charts. The collective talents of Jarol and his band have helped their self-written songs gain radio play time.

Staff Writer

Traveling down the road to stardom may be slow, but it seems to be a straight path for Karl Jarol and his Open Road band.

The group recently signed a four-year contract with BMI Broadcast Music International. All the group's music will be licensed through the BMI company.

They've also signed a one-year contract with Guy Rhodes Entertainment Inc. in Albany, Indiana. Rhodes Entertainment has promoted major entertainment stars such as Lee Greenwood, T. Graham Brown, and the Guess Who. The company keeps the band busy on weekends touring the Northern Kentucky and Southern Indiana circuit. Jarol and the Open Road will travel the circuit until May, and will then move on down to Nashville, Tennessee and, hopefully, the big time.

Jarol currently is singing on Wednesday nights at the Nashville Palace where country music legend Randy Travis regularly dipped his hands in the dishwasher to earn a living. He has performed with John Michael Montgomery at the Austin City Saloon in Lexington, and the group has performed with the Bandit

We never know the love of our parents for us till we have become parents.

—Henry Ward Beecher, Proverbs from Plymouth Pulpit (1887)

One of the most visible effects of a child's presence in the household is to turn the worthy parents into complete idiots when, without him, they would perhaps have remained mere imbeciles.

—Georges Courteline, La Philosophie de G. Courteline (1917)

Today, class, I'd like to share with you yet another amusing anecdote from my own mishaps, mistakes and misadventures. I'd liked to enthrall you with a moving tale of wit and wisdom, based upon happenings in my everyday life and the lessons I have learned from them.

I'd like to, but I can't.

I DON'T HAVE ANY!!!

See, the trick to having amusing anecdotes and moving tales from your everyday life is actually having an everyday life.

I don't anymore. I've sacrificed mine to a higher purpose.

For you see, I have once again become a parent.

That's right. It's time to pass out the ol' Havanas and proudly proclaim that "It's a boy! And another boy! And a girl! And some more boys! And another girl! And a couple more boys!"

Yes friends, my ever faithful, ever affectionate German shepherd/general nuisance mix Elvira became just a little too affectionate. With everybody in the neighborhood.

Oh, we tried talking to her. We told her that old story about not buying the cow if you can get the milk for free (we even told her the 90's version: "No ring, no thing," but kids today just don't listen).

I blame myself, really.

Kids today grow up so fast, and it isn't like this hasn't happened before. Regular readers will remember the tear-jerking saga of my beloved Elvira, Elvira's first-born who was later snatched from us by some cruel person who wasn't good enough to bite the fleas off him (I'm fairly certain that the dog-snatcher got what was coming to him, though—when he was only seven weeks old, the age at which he was taken from us, Elvis weighed ten pounds and was eating three cans of dog food, half a bag of Puppy Chow and a couple of strips of aluminum siding per day—he's probably eaten the dognapper's whole house and started on the neighbors' by now—and by the way, Mr. Dognapper, if you happen to be reading this while sitting in the crumbling remains of your once lovely home, I STILL WANT MY DOG BACK!!!!)

At any rate, after Elvis, we knew

Elvira would eventually start hanging around with the boys again. We planned to take her down to the health department for some family counseling and maybe buy her some "protection," but it all happened so fast.

I mean, one day she was just lying quietly on her favorite blanket and the next day, there she was in the street, wagging her tail for any boy that would come around.

And come around they did. Somebody must have written "For a good time call Elvira," on the local fire hydrant or something, because all of a sudden we were surrounded by dogs of every race, creed, color and national origin pulling into the driveway with their fast cars and their devil's music played at a Voodoo beat.

There were German shepherds. Irish setters. Australian wolfhounds. Labrador retrievers—yellow, brown and black. There was even a little French poodle helping a Mexican hairless carry a stepladder down the street.

We tried to keep her locked in her room, but she kept climbing out the window. We tried to chase off the troublemakers, but waterhoses meant nothing to those... those... animals.

It was a tough decision, of course, but eventually we opted for adoption rather than abortion.

I almost think the pregnancy was tougher on the wife and I than it was on Elvira, though. We had to follow her around constantly making sure she ate a proper balanced diet and didn't root around in the garbage anymore. And of course we had to keep slapping the whiskey and cigarettes out of her mouth, but she eventually straightened out and took on that glow (and incredibly huge, pumpkin-shaped, ground-dragging stomach) that all expectant mothers seem to have.

And then came that fateful day when she finally experienced the joys of natural childbirth (and boy, those Lamaze classes really paid off).

Now I have ten hungry mouths to feed (well, technically, I don't have to feed them—I'm not really equipped for the job, although just a couple more Zippy's pizzas may make me look like it).

Although we were worried at first, Elvira's turned out to be a wonderful mother.

She feeds them, cleans them, changes their diapers and all that. And she doesn't even pick them up by their little heads and sling them around anymore (we told her that was child abuse and that social workers would come to take her babies away and she'd probably lose her welfare and food stamps if she kept it up).

The only real drawback to the whole thing is that now there is a

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

A state appeals court in Santa Ana, Calif., upheld a lower court in December by granting Sheryle Ulyate an increase in child support payments from her ex-husband for their 15-year-old daughter, from $2,000 a month to $6,000 a month. Ulyate said the girl's monthly expenses included $2,000 for clothing, $300 for jewelry, and $1,600 for entertainment, and she asked for $15,000 a month. The ex-husband made a fortune selling mini-blinds.

FETISHES ON PARADE

-- Last winter, Fort Worth, Texas, police stopped a car that had been the subject of reports that a bound and gagged blond woman had been spotted in the passenger seat. After deputy sheriff David McPherson stopped the car, he found that the "woman" was a blow-up doll and that the driver had been engaged in a "joke." The man was released after being scolded.

-- In May, Kenosha, Wis., police arrested a 40-year old, heavyset man inside a women's restroom at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside, charging him with disorderly conduct. He was dressed as a French maid, bound and handcuffed, and police said he had been arrested before for a similar incident. Police said he paid a female student to tie him up, claiming it was part of a fraternity prank.

-- In July, a Jackson Center, Pa., woman reported that someone used a ladder to climb into the second story of her home and that apparently all that was missing was $10 worth of diapers, despite the presence of jewelry and antiques in the same room as the diapers.

-- In August, Baton Rouge, La., police charged Redmond McGee, 25, with breaking into a woman's house to burglarize it and brushing her hair against her will.

-- In Toms River, N.J., William Radice Jr., 20, pleaded guilty in November to forcing a woman to take off one of her black loafers and give it to him. He had accosted her in her driveway as she was unloading groceries.

PET PROJECTS

--A civilian dog in Knoxville, Tenn., came home in December carrying in his mouth a bag of cocaine with a street value of $16,000. His owner declined police efforts to recruit the dog.

-- London's Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons in November announced guidelines to discourage vets from routinely shortening dogs' tails, especially poodles' and bulldogs'. About 20 percent of Britain's dogs have been so "docked," and more than 25 percent of registered breeds have their tails shortened by tradition.

-- In July, seconds after Pat Lees' prize pigeon Percy won a France-to-Sheffield (England) homing race, beating out 900 others, a cat pounced on it and ate it. By the time Lees could retrieve Percy's tag, as proof that it had finished the race, two other pigeons had landed, giving the late Percy only third place.

-- In December, a St. Louis domestic relations judge decreed that a divorcing couple, Tony and Carla Julius, were each entitled to custody of one of their two dogs, but that each Sunday the dogs must play together for four hours with Tony and four with Carla.

LEAST COMPETENT PERSON

David D. Cousins, 22, was arrested for bank robbery in Quincy, Ill., in November, after being tricked by the bank's executive vice president, Louis McClelland, into surrendering after a six-hour standoff. McClelland had faked a heart attack and told Cousins that if he died, the robbery would be too gruesome to be acceptable for movie rights, but that if he got medical treatment, he could help Cousins sell the story so they could both achieve fame and fortune. Shortly afterward, Cousins surrendered.

INEXPLICABLE

The Tass news agency reported in December that Olga Frankevich, who fled Soviet security police in 1947 during the Stalinist purge, surfaced from a house in western Ukraine, where she had been hiding under a bed for 45 years. Her slightly bolder sister roamed the house but never left it.

LORENZO'S OIL

You'd never know it by the title, but this movie is about a miraculous medical discovery made in real life by a couple determined to defy the odds and save the life of their son.

Lest you think this sounds too much like the "Disease of the Week" flicks we are afflicted with on television, you will be pleasantly surprised—and inspired! Nick Nolte and Susan Sarandon portray Augusto and Michaela Odone, parents of a precocious little boy, Lorenzo (Zack O'Malley Greenburg). When Lorenzo becomes ill, the doctors diagnose his malady as adrenoleukodystrophy (ALD), a degenerative neuromuscular disease passed on only to boys through a defective gene in their mothers. Augusto and Michaela are told there is no hope for their son, but they relentlessly refuse to accept this.

In a frantic race against time and the ravages of the disease, they set about researching it on their own, determined to save their son. What makes their struggle particularly real to the audience is the fact that this couple is all too human. They rant and rave not only against the unfairness of their little boy's illness, but at each other as well, as they vent their frustrations. This is more true to life than we've all been spoon fed with movies of this sort.

While I won't give away the ending, I will say that the title has all to do with what this couple ultimately accomplished for their son. Their courage and determination can only be termed awe-inspiring.

As for the actors themselves, there couldn't be a stronger, more talented cast to take on this script. The only hindrance is Nolte having to effect an Italian accent. It doesn't come naturally to him, and it shows. However, with everything else good going for it, you can forgive this small flaw in the movie. I wholeheartedly recommend it.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Victor dropped the assault charges against Ryan, but insisted on going ahead with annulling his marriage to Victoria. Although Michael was found guilty of sexual harassment, Cricket's victory was dimmed by the belief that the photo of Danny and another woman was real. After overhearing Lauren tell Molly how she really felt about Sheila, Sheila took photos of her and Brad making love, then turned the photos into a jigsaw puzzle, plotting to send Lauren the pieces over a period of time. Her object: to "persuade" (or blackmail) Lauren not to interfere in her plans to marry Eric. Wait To See: Danny and Cricket face a difficult choice.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I'm afraid you may have interrupted Dr. Michael Steinberg before he was finished when you asked him about the risk of letting a dog lick a baby's face. (He said if the dog is healthy, there is no risk.)

Abby, dogs (and cats) clean themselves with their tongues, so being licked by a dog (or cat)—especially around one's mouth and face—makes one vulnerable to a parasite known as "pinworm." Although it isn't life-threatening, it causes severe itching. (Animals have been known to scratch themselves raw from this affliction.)

I am a former medical laboratory technologist, and pinworms were a fairly frequent pest, judging from the number of times it turned up on parasitology examinations. In fact, a special test was developed to check for it when a patient complained of anal itching that couldn't be explained by some ordinary infection. (You may not want to include the details of this procedure, considering some of our readers will be reading this while eating breakfast.)

DICK ENEY
HYATTSVILLE, MD.

DEAR DICK: I appreciate your passing along this helpful information, as well as your sensitivity regarding the "details." Suffice it to say it is wise to prevent a dog (or cat) from licking a baby's face.

DEAR ABBY: I have been away from home for two weeks, during which time my 20-year-old step daughter is visiting her father (my husband) at our home.

When I phone in the evening they say they are on our bed together watching television. Abby, there are two other television sets in the house; one is in the guest room where she is supposed to be staying.

When I expressed my unhappiness at her being on my bed with her father, he was outraged at my "dirty" mind. Abby, I am positive that there is nothing sexual going on, but I am bothered and offended by this. Just the thought of her being in our bedroom with him upsets me.

Am I wrong? What should I do?
UPSET AND ANXIOUS

DEAR UPSET: Relax and stop worrying. Since you are positive that there is nothing sexual going on (your words), even voicing such suspicions is insulting to your husband and his daughter.

I think you owe them both an apology.

DEAR ABBY: I laughed (to myself) when I read the letters from people who were born on Christmas Day, or the day before—or after. They all got combination birthday and Christmas presents, which sort of shortchanged them.

I can top that. My husband once handed me a check with this little speech, "Listen, I hate to shop, so this is for your birthday, anniversary, Christmas and Mother's Day for the next five years!"

HIS WIFE

DEAR READERS: Who said, "The first half of our life is ruined by our parents and the second half by our children"? The answer is Clarence Darrow.

Brothers, who released the hit song "Women."

Though the band sings a variety of country songs, including the hits of Garth Brooks, Diamond Rio and Vince Gil, they also write their own songs. Recently the band spent 13 hours in a recording studio producing a tape to send to Nashville. Six of those songs were original.

Four of their original songs, previously recorded, Yesterdays All I've Got (To Look Forward To), I Couldn't Love Her Anymore, What's Got Me Thinking, and Don't Let Me Step Over and Over have fast been gaining airtime on local radio stations and other radio stations throughout their touring circuit. Twenty additional radio stations have picked up their music.

Area radio listeners may remember Jarol as the disc jockey "CJ the DJ." He is the lead singer of the group and also plays rhythm guitar.

Other members of the group are Brian Spears of Harold, who plays lead guitar, sings and does back-up vocals. He has performed with bands since he was 14 years old.

Also doing back-up vocals is Dwayne Hunt of Pikeville. Hunt plays bass guitar.

The newest member of the group is Guadalupe Ruelas Jr., "Led Foot Lou." A member of several bands in Louisville, he performed with a well-known band in southern Texas, the Texas Ten. He plays guitar and does back-up.

The group's manager, Jim Lawson of Pikeville, sees a bright future for the group and is planning to open a recording studio in Pikeville. Lawson plans to open the Appalachian Songwriter's Guild Inc. studio by spring. Area songwriters can bring their songs to the studio to be set to music or to be recorded for a demo. Can't find the right words? Co-writers will be available. Songwriters can also get copyright information at the studio.

The studio will host workshops and also bring in Nashville songwriters to critique the songs or music.

Kentucky playwrights entertain America

Kentucky can boast two Pulitzer Prize-winning playwrights, John Patrick and Marsha Norman.

In 1906 Patrick was born John Patrick Goggan in Louisville. He was abandoned by his parents at an early age, grew up in foster homes, and became a hobo while still a teenager. At nineteen he settled in San Francisco, found work as a radio announcer, and began writing scripts for NBC radio, training that may have helped his future career. In 1945 Patrick won a name for himself when he wrote The Hasty Heart, now an established favorite of community theatre groups.

Patrick was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in drama for Teahouse of the August Moon, which has won numerous other awards and brought Patrick international fame. He has also written a series of five plays about Opal, a crotchety junk collector, and earned accolades for screenwriting adaptations such as Three Coins in a Fountain (1954), Love Is a Many-Splendored Thing (1955), High Society (1956), The Philadelphia Story (1956), and Some Came Running (1959).

Born in Louisville in 1947, Marsha Norman worked with disturbed children at the Kentucky Central State Hospital, taught gifted children, and wrote for the Louisville Times before devoting herself to writing plays. Her first play, Getting Out, debuted at the Actors Theatre in Louisville before heading to Broadway. Her other plays include Circus Valentine, The Holdup, and In Trouble at Fifteen, but she is most well known for the controversial 'night Mother.

'night Mother, a one-act play about a mother and her grown daughter, who plans to commit suicide, won the Pulitzer Prize in drama for 1983. Like 'night Mother, Norman's other plays focus on bleak subject matter, and have inspired antagonism among viewers and critics even as they have inspired some of the world's highest praise.

HOME TIPS

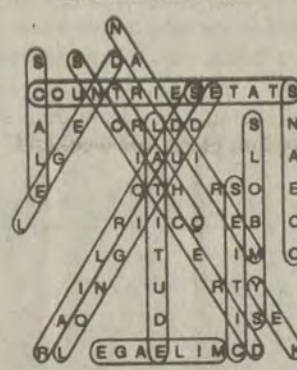

TWO FOR ONE—Save the plastic closures from your bread wrappers for scraping scorched pots, pans, and casserole dishes. It saves wear and tear on your fingernails.

For those squeaky doors, just squirt some hand cream on them. It will also make your room smell lovely. Ceil V.C., Papillion, Neb.

THOUGHTFUL REMEMBRANCE—When my husband passed away recently, I didn't know what to do with his solid-gold wedding band. I didn't want to leave it in a box just to look at or wear it on a chain. Then I thought I'd have earrings made out of it. I asked a jeweler if it could be done, and he said yes. He cut the wedding band in half and attached a gold post to one end of each half. This made a beautiful pair of earrings that I now wear with pride and love. I think this is a wonderful way to get use as well as sentiment out of a ring that meant so much. Gina P., London, Ohio PEST-FREE STORAGE—To keep those annoying weevils from invading my kitchen pantry, I store pasta, cookies, flour and other edibles in empty coffee cans. The larger ones are especially handy. Best of all, I'm recycling. Dorothy W., Fall River, Mass.

Parido gets first win at D.W. Howard Fieldhouse

Four score in double figures in 67-66 Blackcat win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor
It was a first. Mark the date on your calendar, an absolute first. Prestonsburg boys' head basketball coach Gordon Parido is 1-7. That's correct. He has won one and lost seven -- against Betsy Layne at Betsy Layne that is.

The Prestonsburg coach got his first win ever as a head coach over Betsy Layne on their own floor as the Blackcats stunned a good Bobcat team with a 67-66 come from behind victory.

"I'm one and seven now," said Parido after the game. "It's always good to come in here and win. This is the first time I've won here. It doesn't happen too often."

Parido said that he tried to keep it quiet but he feels that his squad knew of his tough luck at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

"They knew that it was a thorn in my side," said the Blackcat mentor. "We've beaten other teams here but never Betsy Layne. I'm very pleased with the win."

Eric Fitzer came alive in the second quarter and teamed with Jason Crisp to lead the Blackcats from a 14 point deficit to within six points of the Bobcats just before half time.

Crisp led the Blackcats with his 15 points and Fitzer played a strong inside game scoring 14 points. Cory Reitz tossed in 12 points and Joe Whitt added 10.

"We placed four players in double figures tonight," said Parido, "and had one with eight points. When some other tries to scout you it's hard for them to determine who to key on."

Betsy Layne took a 29-15 lead on Chris Potter's second three-point basket of the first half. It was then that Prestonsburg went into high gear and went on a 8-2 run that narrowed the margin to seven 30-23 with 2:07 left in the half. Jonathan Tackett connected on a 14-foot jumper to ease back out by nine points, but a layup by Fitzer and Sean Damron's free throw cut the lead to six at the half.

Aaron Tucker made it a three-point affair with a trey to start the third quarter as Prestonsburg went on a 15-6 spurt that gave them a 44-38 lead.

"We made a couple of adjustments in our press at halftime," said Coach Parido. "We looked the same way we did against Shelby Valley earlier. We had people out of position on the press, people not rotating like they should. So at halftime we made some adjustments and then did some good things out of it. We got a 10 second call and other things. We made the press work for us."

Trailing 38-33, Tucker hit his second three-pointer with 4:31 left in the third period. Fitzer completed a three-point play and then, on a break, scored on a layup to give Prestonsburg a 41-38 advantage. After Brian Hunter missed two free throws, Crisp drilled a three-pointer off the top of the circle for a 44-38 game.

Hunter's free throw and Lyons rebound basket made it 47-43 after three quarters.

Prestonsburg led by six, 51-45 in the final period. Betsy Layne made a run that regained the lead at 57-51. Betsy Layne scored 12 unanswered points in assuming the advantage.

In the run, Chris Burke was whistled for a foul, his fourth, and while explaining to the official what happened, the official called a technical on Burke which counted as his fifth personal foul. Potter hit both free throws and then on Betsy Layne's possession, buried a three-pointer that gave Betsy Layne the 57-51 lead.

But the Bobcats couldn't stand prosperity as they committed some costly turnovers that Prestonsburg took advantage of. A three-point play by Ryan Ortega sparked a 14-0 run by the Blackcats. They took the lead at 65-57 when Tucker hit Crisp with a run out pass from out of bounds. Crisp laid the ball in. The pass brought flashes of the past football season when the two hooked up in some pass completions.

"I was hoping he wouldn't fumble it," said Coach Parido laughing. "It was a set play that we have."

After Hunter hit two free throws to make it a 65-59 game, the Bobcats started putting Prestonsburg on the free-throw line where Joe Whitt, normally a good free throw shooter, missed the front-end of a bonus attempt.

With 19 seconds left, Hunter grabbed a rebound and scored to cut the lead to four, 65-61. Again, Prestonsburg put Whitt on the charity stripe and again he missed the first attempt. Newsome scored on a layup for Betsy Layne with only seven ticks left on the clock for a 65-63 game.

Betsy Layne put the wrong shooter on the line their next trip up court. Crisp toed the line and connected on both attempts to give Prestonsburg a four point cushion, 67-63. With the final seconds ticking away, Clark buried a three-pointer for the final 67-66 score.

Betsy Layne, who lost their second consecutive game, came out and looked as if they were ready to challenge the Blackcats. After a basket by Chris Burke that gave Prestonsburg the early 2-0 lead, the Bobcats scored

Johnson scores 30 points in 72-38 loss to John M. Stumbo

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Jessica Johnson put on a shooting exposition as the Section IV basketball tournament got underway at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse in Betsy Layne Wednesday night. Johnson tossed in 30 points, drilling six three-pointers but that wasn't enough to offset the combined effort of Penny and Ashley Tackett.

Ashley Tackett scored 25 points and Penny Tackett netted 22 to lead the John M. Stumbo Lady Mustangs to a 72-38 first round win over the Lady Red Devils.

No offensive help for Johnson was available as only Ashley Gearheart and Natasha Clark scored four points each.

Poised Lady Cats stay in contention with 61-49 win over Prestonsburg

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

According to Betsy Layne girls' head basketball coach Bill Newsome, the Lady Cats were very much aware of the importance of their game with the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats Tuesday night at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

"Everyone of them knew how important this game was going to be," said the Betsy Layne coach. "This was a very important game for us because it was a home game. Had we lost this one, the girls' may have collapsed the rest of the way."

Betsy Layne posted a 61-49 win over Bridget Clay's squad. Clay also knew how important this game was for them.

It was the inside play of Dee Dee Martin that proved too much for the Lady Blackcats to handle as she scored consistently inside by taking the ball down low. Martin led all scorers with 21 points before fouling out.

"Dee Dee must have had a truck load of rebounds for us also," said Newsome of his star center while searching for his stat sheet. "Overall, we played well tonight. Jessica (Hamilton) came into the game and did a good job for us."

Newsome said that Hamilton is the most improved on his team and she's trying "hard to work her way into the starting lineup."

Prestonsburg jumped out quickly behind the hot shooting of Carolyn Reffitt who hit her first three shots, which were all three-pointers. Prestonsburg took a 9-7 lead with 4:54 left in the period. Christy Johnson hit one of two free throws and Martin then scored on a layup to give Betsy Layne the lead at 10-9. Stephanie Music's basket reclaimed the lead for Prestonsburg but two free throws by Martin and Misty Johnson's jumper gave the Lady Cats a 14-11 lead. The margin became one on Music's short jumper as the first period ended.

"We were too relaxed at the start of the game," said Newsome of his team's slow start. "Reffitt hit those three three's at the start of the game and we had to focus on her after that."

Focus they did as Reffitt was held to only two free throws in the third quarter to finish with 11 points in the game.

Prestonsburg had trouble taking the ball inside against the Betsy Layne defense, an area that Newsome said his team has improved on.

"We look good on defense," said Newsome. "We've adjusted better now. We got our hands in the passing lanes and knocked the ball down. Our defense was good."

Betsy Layne took a 27-20 lead to the locker room with them at half time as the result of a 8-4 run late in the quarter.

Rhonda Conn made an appearance on the court for Betsy Layne, but the appearance made an impact. Conn scored six very quick points that helped the Lady Cats build a 49-33 lead in the fourth quarter.

more," said Newsome. "I have to find a place for her. She's too good a hustler and a good attitude to keep on the bench."

Betsy Layne lead by as many as 20 points, 56-36, mid-way into the fourth quarter and Newsome began inserting his bench.

Prestonsburg took advantage of the move and cut the lead to nine, 56-47, before Newsome had to bring his starters back in.

"I wanted to get everybody some playing time," he stated, "but I looked up and we went from 20 points ahead to nine. So I had to put our starters back in."

The Betsy Layne coach is looking for his team to peak and hopes that it comes at tournament time.

"We haven't peaked yet this year," he said. "I'm hoping that we will around tournament time. We want to play well in the conference and get to the regional tournament this year. I feel that the regional is wide open this year and the team that peaked could win it all. I think that Allen Central has an excellent chance of winning it. Johnson Central, though, is perhaps the best team that I have seen this year."

Reffitt and Music scored 11 points each to lead the Lady Blackcats. Jamie Ratcliff, off the bench, tossed in 10 points. Amy Reed, the team's leading scorer, was held to just 10 points.

Misty Johnson scored nine points for the Lady Cats. Hamilton tossed in seven. Misty Clark hit for six and Conn finished with eight.

Betsy Layne improved to 9-8 overall and 4-1 in conference play.

Prestonsburg falls to 5-8 on the season and is currently 2-2 in the conference.

Prestonsburg will host Sheldon Clark Monday as part of a double-header with the boys. Betsy Layne awaits the conference leading Lady Rebels Tuesday night at Betsy Layne.

Duff captures Second I title behind Moore, Scott

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Lady Bulldogs of Duff Elementary pulled off a big upset in tournament play at Allen Central Wednesday night with a 43-39 win over top-seeded Maytown.

The Lady Bulldogs bit hard in the closing seconds of the game in a comeback that saw them erase a nine-point deficit and post the win.

Duff was led by Shauna Moore who tossed in 16 points and Misty Scott added 15 to lead Duff.

It was the inspired play of Janice Thornsby in the closing minutes that sparked the Lady Bulldogs. Thornsby buried a three-pointer on a busted play that made the game a two-point affair. Maytown held a 36-29 lead with just over a minute left in the game. Moore scored on a rebound basket. Maytown failed to score on their next possession with Duff coming up with the basketball. On a play that wasn't supposed to be, Thornsby found herself wide open off the left side and buried the trey to make it a 36-34 game. The shot surprised Duff coach Ronnie Patton.

"She wasn't supposed to take the shot," he explained. "The ball was supposed to have gone down in the right corner. I don't know why she decided to take the shot." But the Duff coach had no complaints about the results.

Maytown missed several free throws down the stretch but Martin's two charity tosses gave Maytown a four-point cushion to work with in the closing 49 seconds. Thornsby again was the attraction. Still beaming over her three-point basket, Thornsby fouled. She went to the free-throw line and hit one of two. Lori Nichols followed with a rebound basket to pull her team to within one.

Mandy Samons missed the front end of a bonus shot and Scott grabbed the rebound and went the length of the court for a lay-in that gave Duff the lead at 39-38 with 22 seconds left.

Prater, just before she was injured and had to leave the game, hit a free throw that tied the contest at 39.

With only 14 seconds left, Moore put the Lady Bulldogs back in front 41-39 as the bench began to celebrate and Coach Patton jumped four feet off the floor.

Maytown still had a chance to tie the game but misfired and Scott put the final nails in the game with a basket underneath with 10 seconds left. Time expired on the Lady Wildcats and Duff pulled off the surprise win.

It was a good Maytown team that just couldn't hit the free throws down the stretch. Maytown is one of the top girls' teams in the county.

Maytown scored the first 10 points of the game for a 10-0 lead and led 14-4 after the first quarter. The Lady Wildcats led 19-10 at the half.

Crystal Martin led Maytown with 14 points. Prater tossed in nine and Samons finished with six. Dreama Isaac netted four with Jessica Martin and Donna Gibson scoring three each.

Maytown will face the winner of Section II, Osborne, at 6 p.m. on Thursday, February 4.

Duff takes on McDowell, runner-up in Section II, Monday night at 6 p.m.

Lady Devils advance to finals, defeat Melvin 38-10

Chuck Rowe

The Section II Tournament started Monday night in Wheelwright as the McDowell Lady Devils faced the Melvin Lady Cougars in the first game of the tournament. McDowell's defense did their job and their offense came through as the Devils defeated the Cougars 38-10. Jessica Maldonado led McDowell and the game in scoring as she scored 15 points in her team's advancement into the final game. Kristi Hall scored seven of Melvin's 10 points in the loss.

After Melvin's Hall started the game with a basket that gave her team the early 2-0 lead, McDowell took the lead on an eight-point run, behind Maldonado's six points, and they never looked back. After a basket by Melvin's Stacy Isaac with 2:20 left in the first quarter, McDowell scored on back-to-back baskets by Miranda Ousley and Amanda Compton to take a 12-4 lead going into the second quarter.

The only offense Melvin recorded in the second quarter was two free throws by Hall with 2:39 on the clock. McDowell took advantage as they outscored the Lady Cougars 10-2 taking a 22-6 lead at halftime. Maldonado scored six of the 10 points McDowell scored in the second quarter.

McDowell opened up the second half with a 10-0 run that ran completely through the third quarter as the Lady Devil defense held the Lady Cougars scoreless. Maldonado and Jo Jo Pack scored three points each as McDowell took a 32-6 lead heading into the final quarter.

Melvin scored their first basket since the 2:20 mark of the first quarter at the 3:32 left in the fourth quarter on a basket by Hall and a free throw by Hall with 2:58 left in the game. A basket by Melvin's Danielle Tackett and Martha Crawford pushed the Lady Devils out to a 36-9 lead with 1:38 left in the game. After a free throw by Melvin's Jamie Gearheart, McDowell's Lora Chaffins scored the game's final basket assuring the Lady Devils a 38-10 victory.

After a Lewis basket to start the second quarter to give Allen their first lead of the game, Adams went on a nine-point run to take a 20-12 lead with 3:10 left on the clock. After a basket by Allen's Tiffany Warrix, Adams scored on back-to-back baskets by Heather Collins and Jenna Fannin that took them out by ten points, 24-14, with 1:34 left in the third quarter. An exchange of baskets ended the scoring for the quarter with Adams' lead 26-16.

Adams recorded a basket by Burchett and two free throws by Nunnery as they took a 30-16 lead with 4:59 left in the fourth quarter. After a basket by Allen's Lewis, Adams scored six points on six free throws by Nunnery as they took their largest lead of the game at 36-18 with 2:30 left in the game. In the final 2:15 of the game, Allen outscored Adams 7-1 as they cut the final score to 37-25.

In the award ceremony following the game, Auxier won the Sportsmanship Award for the tournament. The Auxier Hornets won runner-up in the cheerleading competition.

Jenkins scores 24 as:

Martin claims Second I title

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

This was supposed to be a down year for the Martin Purple Flash after losing several key players from last year's squad.

Martin won the county tournament last year and is a good choice to repeat again this year.

The Purple Flash took that first step by handing a very talented Maytown Wildcat team a 52-45 victory in the championship game this past Wednesday night.

Maytown and Martin split the two regular season games with each winning on the other team's home floor. The tournament was staged at Allen Central High School.

A very large crowd gathered at the J.E. Campbell Arena to take in the championship game between the two grade school powers.

Martin followed the guidance of their top scorer, Thomas Jenkins as he poured in 24 points to lead the Purple Flash. Shane Blackburn added seven with Eric Moore and Beau Tackett scoring six each. Brandon Stone tossed in five with Wade Damron scoring four.

Todd Howard led Maytown with 15 points. Tommy Brown chipped in with 14 and Jason Shannon added nine. Levi Wells scored three as did Ethan Martin. Brandon Hicks finished with one point.

Martin had built a 14-point, fourth quarter lead as they went on top 41-27 on a basket underneath by Jenkins. But Howard took over the offense for the Wildcats and scored five unanswered points to narrow the margin to nine, 41-32.

Two baskets by Jenkins sandwiched in between with a layup by Howard gave Martin an 11-point advantage, 45-34, before Maytown went on another run. Shannon and Brown each hit back-to-back three-pointers to cut the lead to five, 45-40. The closest Maytown could come as Martin held on to win the championship.

Martin led 17-11 after the first quarter and had a seven point, 27-20 lead in the second until consecutive baskets by Brown cut the lead to three, 27-14, at the half.

It was a drastic third period for the Wildcats as Martin outscored them 10-2 in the period to build a 37-26 lead after three quarters. Howard had two free throws to account for Maytown's two points. Jenkins scored eight of Martin's 10 points.

Lady Eagles held on to defeat McDowell 20-16

Chuck Rowe

The McDowell Lady Daredevils had trouble at the free-throw line as they hit only five of 31 Tuesday night in the finals of the Section II Tournament as they faced the Osborne Lady Eagles. The Eagles took advantage of the poor free throw shooting by the Daredevils and defeated them 20-16. Jackie Gibson led the Eagles in scoring with 11 points. Jesse Maldonado led McDowell in scoring with eight points.

A three-pointer by McDowell's Jo Jo Pack gave the Daredevils the 3-0 lead with 1:00 ticking off the clock. A basket by Osborne's Gibson cut the lead to one point, 3-2, with 4:40 left on the clock. A free throw by Maldonado with 3:24 on the clock, ended the scoring of the first quarter with the Devils hanging on to a 4-2 lead.

A basket by Osborne's Tonda Ford tied the game at 14 with 5:10 left in the second quarter. After a free throw by McDowell's Brandy Tuttle took the Devils up one point, the Eagles recorded back-to-back baskets by Gibson and Kelly Miller that took them up by three points, 8-5, at the end of the first half.

An exchange of free throws started the second half with the Eagles hanging on to a 9-6 lead with 3:23 on the clock. McDowell recorded back-to-back baskets by Maldonado as the Devils took the lead at 10-9 with :25 left in the quarter. A basket by Osborne's Jancene Fields ended the scoring of the quarter with the Eagles regaining the lead at 11-10.

McDowell took the lead back, 12-11, on a basket by Beth Tucker with 4:05 on the clock. Osborne went on a 5-2 all on free throws run taking the lead back at 16-14 with 1:55 left in the fourth quarter. An exchange of baskets kept the Eagle lead at two points, 18-16, with 1:20 left in the game. The Eagles secured their victory on a basket by Gibson with :20 left in the game as Osborne went on to win 20-16.

Now There's Help For Winter Dry Skin

(NAPS)—Winter fun in the wind and sun can wreak havoc on delicate skin. As the temperature drops and the wind howls, damage to your skin by drying, harsh conditions increases. Think of it as freeze drying your skin.
Cold weather isn't the only culprit. Dry, over-heated homes and offices can suck moisture out of your skin making it feel tight, even painful. What is even worse, scratchy winter clothes can irritate sensitive skin. But you can mount an effective attack against winter dry skin.
1. Always moisturize your entire body the minute you emerge from your tub or shower. Tip: Use your towel to pat the skin till it's almost, but not completely dry. Then pour body oil into a mister and apply a fine mist all over to create a moisture shield. This will actually help prevent moisture loss from your skin.
2. Be sure to dress smartly. Dressing in layers of silk, cotton and wool helps create a body heat buffer while shielding skin from moisture robbing indoor and outdoor climates.
3. Protect wrinkle prone areas like skin around the eyes and neck with an extra helping of heavy duty non-comedogenic moisturizer. Reapply every time you face the elements. Tip: Use a moisturizer with a sunscreen. Remember that the sun knows no seasons...winter sun can be just as damaging as summer sun to your skin.
4. Treat yourself to a moisturizing facial, then slip into a just right, not too hot tub scented with oil of lavender. Inhaling the sweet steam will indulge your senses and relax your mind and body. After seven minutes get out of the tub and gently rinse your face and neck with cool water to close the pores. Tip: A tub bath can be very relaxing, but staying in too long will actually dehydrate your skin. Also be sure to keep the water warm enough to be comfortable, but not so hot that it will dry the skin.

5. Sometimes no matter what you do to prevent dry skin and irritation, you may get a bothersome condition known as winter skin itch. You may find patches of cracked, chapped skin that cause painful itching. Tips: Look for a creme which contains both a moisturizer and a medication to stop the itch. One to try is Lanacane Medicated Creme. It contains an antibacterial medication to aid healing, an anesthetic to instantly relieve itching, and Aloe to soothe and moisturize sore, dry skin.
Winter's fun need not be spoiled by dry, painful skin irritation. Establish good, sensible habits to protect your skin...then enjoy the invigorating and refreshing elements of the season.
