Regional projects on Jones' wish list

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Kentucky Governor Brereton Jones met with President Bill Clinton this week in an effort to procure a portion of the president's proposed $16.3 billion economic stimulus package for the state.

Jones, along with other Kentucky officials, hoped to gain more than $700 million for the state, which would be used to begin statewide construction projects and create literally thousands of jobs.

Frank Ashley, Jones' press secretary, said Tuesday that although it would be unlikely for Clinton to earmark such a large amount for the state, special consideration would be given to projects in counties with unemployment rates higher than 6.7 percent. According to the latest figures available, Floyd County's unemployment rate is nearly 12 percent. Other Eastern Kentucky counties, such as Magoffin and Johnson, have even higher unemployment rates.

Among the projects that Jones has deemed as most urgent is a proposed $4.4 million wastewater treatment plant to be constructed in Floyd County. A Jones spokesperson said Wednesday that the project is still only in the preliminary planning phase.

Other proposed projects that could benefit the Big Sandy region within the next three years include a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers flood-control project at Salyersville, which will

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Results of a special session of a Floyd County Grand Jury Wednesday will not be released until April 5 because of a scheduling conflict with a grand juror and the illness of the father of the commonwealth attorney.

Grand jurors met in special session this week to review an unusually high number of murder and assault cases which have occurred in the county since February. The grand jury reviewed evidence in four murder cases and a host of assault cases.

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton was unable to preside over Wednesday's session because his father was undergoing surgery in Ohio. Patton said Thursday that he wanted to review any indictments returned before they were handed down.

Among cases presented:

- Mike Watkins who is charged with the beating death of Simson Smith of Turkey Creek in November 1991;
- Glennis Gayheart who is charged with murder for allegedly causing the death of Cora Booth while he was driving a vehicle while intoxicated;
- Chad Edward Lovely who is charged with murder for allegedly stabbing to death Michael Lloyd Manns;

• John Preston Henderson who is charged with murder for allegedly shooting Whirley Hall;

• Jenny Slone who is charged with concealing the birth of a child and failure to report the death of that child;

• Pamela Turner who is charged with first degree assault for allegedly stabbing her husband, Jeff Turner; and

• Johnny Haywood who is charged with first degree assault for allegedly stabbing Michael Thompson.

Health care topics talked

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

Health care providers, educators, public officials and private citizens from around the Big Sandy region met at Jenny Wiley State Park Monday to debate and discuss Governor Brereton Jones' controversial health care reform package in one of a dozen health care forums statewide.

Among the most hotly-contested points of Jones' proposal Monday evening seemed to be the universal access clause, which mandates that employers statewide must provide a minimum benefit health insurance policy to all employees effective January 1, 1994.

Under the clause, employers would be required to offer, but not pay for, a family plan for employees, at an estimated cost of $116 per month. Employers would be required to pay a pro-rated share of their part-time employees' health insurance costs based on a 40-hour work week, and individual employees would be required to provide coverage for any

Johnson shooting, Floyd arrest

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

A Johnson County man led state police on a high-speed, two-county chase Tuesday afternoon after allegedly firing shots into a Paintsville business.

Harold Dingus, of Paintsville, allegedly shot into the offices of the Ferrellgas Company located on U.S. 23 in Paintsville before leading Kentucky State Trooper Scott Hazelette on a high-speed chase that ended in Floyd County.

Hazelette arrested Dingus in the parking lot of Wildcat Liquors on U.S. 23 near Auxier.

Dingus was charged with one count of wanton endangerment, with other charges pending further investigation.

Dingus allegedly fired into the business office due to a grievance with the company's billing policies.

Dingus was lodged in the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center Tuesday, where he was released Thursday morning on a $500 cash bond.

Job demotion prompts suit

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An Allen Central High School teacher filed a civil lawsuit Monday against the board of education and the superintendent claiming that a reduction in extended employment pay violated his civil rights.

Developmental Occupation Program teacher Stephen Halbert alleges that a move by the board last year to reduce extended employment to 185 days with his salary reduced accordingly was intended to punish him.

"In taking the action to demote the plaintiff and substantially reducing his salary... the board, through its action and the actions of its policymaker, was motivated by a desire to punish plaintiff because of his affiliations, associations, activities and beliefs..." the lawsuit claims. In the lawsuit, Halbert claims that notification from interim superintendent Eldon Smith that the reduction in responsibility and salary was part of a uniform plan affecting all employees in the Floyd County school district did not apply to all employees.

"The resulting reduction in pay for plaintiff was not the result of a uniform plan, equally affecting all teachers..." the lawsuit said. "There was, in fact, no reduction of duties and responsibilities for plaintiff for the 1992-93 school year. In fact, the duties assigned plaintiff for the 1992-93 school year are greater than the duties assigned other DOP (develop-

Martin councilman is cited

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Martin City Councilman has been charged with second degree wanton endangerment for allegedly trying to run a vehicle off the road with his vehicle on Tuesday.

A criminal summons was issued Wednesday in Floyd County District Court for councilman Jeff Jones. The complaint charges that Jones tried to run a vehicle off the road in which James Meade of Hi Hat and Margaret Woods of McDowell were riding. The citation does not list the location of the alleged incident.

The summons also orders Jones to have no physical or verbal contact with Meade or Woods.

A preliminary hearing has been set for April 28 at 9 a.m.

Track work is underway

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The marathon darkhorse effort to bring live harness racing to Eastern Kentucky has rounded the final stretch and is headed boldly for the winner's circle.

After hurdling obstacle after obstacle on the rocky track to success, the proposed Kentucky Downs Harness Track project is back on schedule, and the facility is expected to be open for business by the Kentucky Racing Commission-mandated July 2 opening date.

Ownership of the Route 3 property designated to contain the track was officially transferred to the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Public Properties Corporation Thursday morning and construction on the site began immediately.

The Public Properties Corporation also began efforts Thursday to step up construction in order to bring the project back on schedule. The original owners of the site, Hobart Potter and Jack Absher Sr., had required the grading and excavation contractor to be bonded, a process which Floyd County Development Authority Executive Director Darrell Gilliam said Thursday would take several weeks. The Public Properties Corporation authorized waiving the bonding process, and Eastern Kentucky Racing Incorporated President Clyde Woods, who will lease the facility from the Properties Corporation once it is completed, signed waivers releasing the municipal-county organization from any claim liability.

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond said Thursday that the only remaining potential obstacle to having the track open on time would be inclement weather that would prohibit construction on the site.

Once the track is operational, Pub-

School group goes public with allegations

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Members of a Floyd County School Administrators Association claim in a proposed federal lawsuit that efforts to reorganize the system's central office result from a personal vendetta on the part of one member of the board.

A civil complaint prepared for the administrators, but not yet filed, accuses board member Eddie Billips of plotting to eliminate "all Floyd County administrators."

The proposed legal action, prepared by Prestonsburg attorney Mickey McGuire, surfaced Thursday prior to a meeting of the Floyd County board at which a central office reorganization plan was expected to be offered by Superintendent Steve Towler.

McGuire said Thursday that the complaint would be presented to the board Thursday evening, adding that it would be formally filed in U.S. District Court if issues were not resolved by the board.

Billips was the only defendant named in the proposed suit, but it also suggested other "unknown parties" may be involved.

McGuire said the complaint represented the concerns of 23 Floyd school administrators.

The complaint includes a number of allegations against Billips, including:

• that Billips has threatened administrators with the loss of their jobs because employees refused to support his election campaign against Dr. James D. Adams;

• that after Billips was elected to his board seat, Billips threatened administrators with termination of their jobs and that Billips "has developed

The Army Reserves Health Care Team recruits nurses

If you are under the age of 47 1/2, and have or will soon have an Associates Degree or higher in nursing, you can apply for a direct commission in the United States Army Reserve Nurse Corps.

"As a nurse in today's Army Reserve, you can combine your professional skills and a strong sense of commitment with opportunities to explore new areas as you serve your community and your country," said Lt. Col. George P. Eckles, commander, Beckley Recruiting Battalion, Beckley, West Virginia.

Under the U.S. Army Reserve Nurse Corps, there are two options: You can join an Army Reserve Medical Unit or an Individual Ready Reserve Unit.

When you join an Army Reserve Medical unit, you will serve two days per month, usually one weekend and two weeks per year, according to Eckles.

The benefits with this option include having your educational loans paid off with the $20,000 Health Professional Loan Repayment Program, using the $6,120 Reserve GI Bill or Tuition Assistance for educational purposes, earning benefits from a part-time job and becoming more clinically diversified.

With option two, joining the Individual Ready Reserve, you can serve two weeks per year with no monthly weekend meetings.

Benefits include $397 or up to $794 per month to obtain your Bachelor's or Master's of Nursing or for attending a Nurse Anesthesia school or an Operating Room school. (You only have to attend half time in an accredited school.) With the Individual Ready Reserves you can also be paid for up to five days per year to attend Continuing Education Unit Program and gain valuable new experience.

"There are many other benefits that are included in both options," said Eckles.

The Army Reserves offers a good second income, low-cost life insurance, shopping privileges and usually a unit close to your hometown, not to mention retirement benefits. It is a part-time career with full-time benefits.

If you would like more information call your local Army recruiter. Come join the Army Reserve Health Care Team.

Program on KET examines roots of Bluegrass Music

Bill Monroe, "The Father of Bluegrass Music," popularized the art form of bluegrass music, which he learned from the townsfolk of Rosine and from his uncle, old-time fiddler Pendleton "Uncle Pen" Vandivere. An encore of Rosine: The Legacy of Uncle Pen, a look at the origins of bluegrass music and its impact on the culture of Western Kentucky, airs on KET at 11 p.m. Saturday, April 3 as part of the Kentucky Independents Present series.

Monroe drew his inspiration from his Western Kentucky hometown of Rosine, where for generations people have gathered every weekend to play the fiddle, gossip, sing, and make candy and popcorn after a hard week's work.

"Uncle Pen has been immortalized through the words and music of his now-famous nephew," says Producer Dan Hays. "This old-time fiddler unknowingly influenced an entire musical culture through the early impact he had upon the music in Western Kentucky and the youth of young Monroe."

Rosine has remained relatively unchanged since the introduction and popularization of bluegrass and country music, according to Hays. The town is at the center of the documentary, which features interviews with its citizens—including relatives of Monroe and Uncle Pen—and performances by townspeople.

Rosine: The Legacy of Uncle Pen was supported by the KET Fund for Independent Production.

In Wednesday's edition of the Times, an article concerning the arrest of two brothers for the theft of a pickup truck said the vehicle was stolen from Mike's Pizza Plus at Auxier.

Mike Justice, owner of Mike's Pizza Plus, said Thursday that the vehicle was stolen from a nearby trailer park and the victim used the telephone at Mike's Pizza Plus to contact police.

dependents not covered under another plan or program. Cost of the family coverage would be $393 per month, $116 of which would be paid by the employer and $277 by the employee. Under the clause, Kentuckians who are financially able to secure health insurance for themselves and their dependents but fail to do so would be subject to a $200 per month fine, and businesses that fail to purchase insurance or pay a greatly increased payroll tax would be subject to a fine of $200 per month per employee without coverage.

Although Jones has pledged state subsidies to lower income residents and employers with annual incomes under $50,000, critics of the proposal suggested Monday that the universal access clause could potentially devastate small businesses statewide.

lic Properties Corporation Sam Blankenship said Thursday, it is expected to bring an estimated additional $11 million annually into the area; increase the county's tax-base by nearly $4 million annually; and create approximately 273 new jobs, both at the site itself and through collateral businesses.

Ray Brackett, Properties Corporation treasurer, said Thursday that initially, only the two-thirds mile track, water and sewer lines, horse stalls, and temporary bathroom facilities will be installed at the site.

Permanent facilities, such as a 500-seat grandstand, a paved parking lot and a convention center will be constructed after the 1993 racing season, Brackett said.

- that Billips has threatened members of the association with physical violence;

- that unknown parties may have "schemed, conspired or assisted" Billips in his "illegal, unlawful and tortuous" actions;

- that after Billips was elected he ordered school employees to perform certain jobs and "unlawfully asserted authority over school grounds"; and

- that several administrators have been "shaken by the brazen, outrageous and tortuous" statements made by Billips.

The proposed lawsuit asks for $100,000 in compensatory and punitive damages from Billips on behalf of the 23 members of the organization and seeks an injunction that will secure the continued employment of each administrator in their former position with back pay and benefits.

State's only nonprofit Lung Health Agency adopts new slogan

Struggling for every breath you take is a terrifying feeling. Right here in Kentucky, over 500,000 adults and children who suffer from lung disease know this all too well. That is why the American Lung Association of Kentucky, the state's only nonprofit health care association dedicated solely to fighting lung disease, has adopted a new slogan, "When you can't breathe, nothing else matters." This slogan replaces the agency's nearly 20-year-old tagline, "It's a matter of life and breath."

Rice designs museum shovel

A Floyd County artist recently crafted a shovel for ground-breaking ceremonies of a $1.2 million expansion project for the Owensboro Museum of Fine Art.

Russell Rice of East Point was among the fifteen Kentucky artists invited to design shovels for the ceremony which was held Thursday, March 11, on the lawn of the John Hampden Smith House, adjacent to the museum. Rice, a member of Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts, is well-known for hand-crafted canes.

The shovel will join the museum's collection in the Kentucky Folk Art section.

The expansion project includes the construction of a wing designed to house a gift to the permanent collection of 16 turn-of-the-century Munich stained glass windows from Owensboro's historic St. Joseph Church.

An enclosed atrium and sculpture court will connect the wing to the Smith House, the museum's pre-Civil War property, acquired as part of the project.

Another wing, the Kentucky Wing, will document cultural history of the Commonwealth through permanent display of the rapidly growing collection of works of art by Kentucky artists and craftsmen.

Tours of the museum can be arranged by calling (502) 685-3181.

He has been practicing pharmacy at St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington since his successful completion of the Kentucky Board of Pharmacy Licensure Examination in September 1992.

Fleming will receive his doctorate in May 1993. He will graduate with the mark of "With High Distinction." Fleming will also receive his B.A. in Biology from Transylvania University in May 1993.

Fleming is a member of Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity, the Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Association, the Kentucky Academy of Student Pharmacists, the American Pharmaceutical Association and the American Society of Hospital Pharmacists. He contributed several articles to medical journals.

Trans Financial Bancorp expands to Pike County

Trans Financial, Inc. (NASDAQ: TRFI) and Trans Kentucky (AMEX: TKB), announced Thursday that they entered into a definitive agreement providing for the acquisition of Trans Kentucky in an all-cash transaction.

Trans Kentucky, headquartered in Pikeville, is the $190 million one-bank holding company for Citizens Bank, Pikeville.

Under the terms of the agreement, Trans Kentucky Bancorp shareholders will receive approximately $18,500,000 in exchange for all 191,000 shares of outstanding common stock of Trans Kentucky Bancorp.

Douglas M. Lester, chairman and chief executive officer of Trans Financial said, "Citizens is an outstanding opportunity to affiliate a quality staff and bank into our network. We think this will be a strong base on which to build in the region."

Trans Kentucky Bancorp chief executive officer Daniel P. Stratton said, "The benefits of affiliation with Trans Financial are many and varied. The full range of Trans Financial products and services will contribute significantly to our product lines and enable us to participate more fully in the economic development of Pike County and the surrounding region."

The acquisition is subject to the approval of the shareholders of Trans Kentucky Bancorp and the appropriate regulatory authorities. It is anticipated the transaction will be concluded by early third quarter.

Trans Financial serves Kentucky and Tennessee through 30 offices. Its stock is traded in the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol TRFI.

Leapin' Lizards!

Dinosaurs are in Ashland! Several primary classes from Prestonsburg Elementary School enjoyed a field trip to the Kentucky Highlands Museum in Ashland where they were entertained by the moving, roaring, full size creatures of Dinamation, Inc. Triceratops, Apatosaurus, and Pteradon were among the life-like creatures in the exhibit.

Students were able to participate in a hands-on area where "Do Not Touch" was a pre-historic command. All children were allowed to touch and admire the life-like creatures. The tour also included a video room and a pre-historic gift shop.

All teachers received a detailed exhibit guide full of information for the classroom such as creature data, information on pre-historic times and the ice age, learning games and puzzles with a dinosaur theme. Because of the inclement weather, all classes which had been scheduled to attend the exhibit have not been able to go. The last day for a tour was March 20th.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Hold your horses

by Scott Perry

Word that our new U.S. Attorney General has asked all Republican-appointed U.S. Attorneys to resign comes as no particular surprise to anyone, affected attorneys included.

Those positions are political plums for rewarding in-crowd team members and, since the team has a new coach, it's time to rewrite the starting lineup.

The transitions in various U.S. Attorney's offices probably wouldn't have mattered a hoot or a holler to most Kentuckians were it not for the fact that our two U.S. Attorneys...Joseph Whittle and Karen Caldwell...are the leading players in one of the hottest investigations to come down the Frankfort pike in many moons.

We are, of course, referring to BOPTROT, that ongoing probe into government corruption and influence peddling down at the state capital.

Kentucky Senator Wendell Ford, a Democrat, has asked that Whittle and Caldwell be spared the political knife for the duration of the BOPTROT probe and we agree.

It makes no sense to swap horses in midstream just to satisfy political initiatives.

U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno said recently the transitions were necessary to "build a team that represents a Department of Justice that represents my views and the views of President Clinton..."

In Kentucky, it is more important at this point to stick with a lineup that knows the game so that it may proceed without delay in its efforts to eliminate political corruption from our government.

Faced with making sacrifices to help pay for the deficit, what will the rich do?

Help in time of trouble

Editor:
I guess we will always remember the blizzard of March 13, 1993. As long as I've lived here in Floyd County, I've never seen anything like it. You're not really prepared for a snow like this no matter how hard you try. I've been listening to the scanner all day and now all night. People needed kerosene, mother's calling about milk for their babies. People stranded by the road, and so much more. Where are these people getting all this stuff from at a time like this?

The answer my friend is the dedicated Floyd County Sheriff's Office, the National Guard, and the Floyd County Rescue Squad people.

As I sit here listening, worrying about my husband, because he is out there helping, it brings tears to my eyes, to know we have help in a time of trouble from someone who I really realize tonight cares for all the people in Floyd County—it's Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson.

He is out there my friend, you better believe it. I hear him running here to help and over there to help. Carrying kerosene to people in need. Calling to his deputies and making sure that this one or that one got their kerosene, or whatever their problem was. Are they now o.k. and been taken care of? He's not just sitting there at the courthouse behind a desk and letting everyone else do the job. He's out there fighting the twenty-four inches of snow and helping the people of Floyd County in need.

I'd like to say thank you Mr. Thompson and I like to say a prayer for you and your deputies tonight that God will watch over you all, and may he bless you all for your help in a very hard time of trouble here in Floyd County.

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

Tobacco's problem is tobacco itself, not taxes

In the tobacco-growing states of the Southeast (Kentucky included), legislators and farmers are once again engaged in a rear-guard action to preserve the cigarette industry. As usual, the argument is that tobacco is in trouble because of some grand conspiracy.

This time, many tobacco farmers are crying foul over President Clinton's planned "sin tax" on cigarettes as part of health care reform. To consumers, that might mean prices above $4 a pack. To tobacco farmers and their states, it means an economic pinch. Some are even saying this might mean the end of the cigarette industry.

Maybe. But tobacco's real problem isn't that the new president wants to tax it out of existence. It's that cigarettes kill people.

That's why fewer people are smoking. That's why the revenues from tobacco taxes are down across the country. And that's why tobacco is a crop without much of a future, the anguished cries about taxes notwithstanding. As has been true for two decades now, the real issue is how to find alternatives for tobacco, not how to preserve the cigarette industry. — Lexington-Herald Leader

Honk if you hate littering

With the heavy rains of a few weeks ago and the melting of the snow, area waterways are high and running swiftly. They'd be a soothing and refreshing sight but for one thing — garbage.

We can expect some criticism for airing the county's dirty linen in public, but that's almost literally what it is. What's in our streams, however, is not linen that will wash clean. What's there is what we've thrown away: plastic bags, the cliché milk jugs, pop cans, food wrappers, all manner of food containers, and not-so-disposable disposable diapers.

And it's already public. Take a look around. The trash is rushing by us in just about any fork, branch, ditch, creek and river.

We cannot hold public workers responsible for this mess. It would mean hundreds of them working full time to clean up the county and keep it clean. Our tax dollars should not be going to pay for cleaning up the nastiness a few of us create.

Here's an idea that may not put much of a dent in the problem, but it might make us feel better. How about honking our car horns whenever we see someone littering as he or she drives or walks?

Sure, it'll be too late to stop the litterer that time, but if we lay on the horn loud and long every time we see the act, maybe we'll make that person think twice and break the mindless habit that shames us. — Appalachian News Express

Save the referral center

Eastern Kentuckians will be making a big mistake if they allow the Veterans Referral Center in Paintsville to remain closed.

The center has been assisting veterans in Johnson and the surrounding counties for the last five years. It provided services that were never available before on a daily basis. It also served as a place for veterans to get together and socialize.

But now all that appears to be over because the center, which was funded by contributions from people and businesses, has run out of money. Unless more money is raised, the facility will stay closed.

That's where you come in. As center director Bill Scurtlock says, if every person in the area would give at least $1 a year, the Referral center could stay in business. That's being a little naive, of course, but it illustrates how simple it would be for the facility to continue.

If you can't afford to donate but would like to help, call U.S. Hal Rogers' office or local officials. They could probably get the ball rolling in the right direction.

It would be a shame to lose a center that has benefited thousands of veterans the last five years. — Paintsville Herald

The language of work

The U.N.'s International Labor Organization says there's a worldwide plague afoot — that stress has become one of the most serious health issues of the century. We've got the ulcers, high blood pressure and heart attacks to prove it.

Working women suffer more than men. They are trying to do their jobs and the chores at home.

Perhaps the overworked, overstressed among us will find the greatest comfort from the U.N.'s recognition that employers have a role in cutting the causes of stress. The how-to's range from introducing flex time or job-sharing to adopting a less confrontational style of management. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Consumers are tired of poor service

by Judith Clabes
Scripps Howard News Service

It's the economy, stupid.
Yes, we got it.
Now, what to do with it.

I'll leave to others the intricacies of supply-side, trickle-down, stock indexes, GDP, monetary funds, the FED, interest rates, foreign exchanges, trade tariffs, imports, exports, deficits, budget-balancing, red-ink and such.

I want to address a small part of the economy as an example of the challenge ahead. I do this not from any particular expertise but from a consumer point-of-view.

Remember consumers? We're the folks who've lost confidence, they say. We don't know whether it's more patriotic to save or to spend. We're suffering from pent-up demand that may or may not (multiple choice) break through.

We're the people who are going to have to save this country's bacon by releasing this pent-up demand in time for the Christmas season if things are going to be merry and bright for retailers. We could spend this recession away. We are very important.

Now, in addition to these, there are some things that must be known about us Great American consumers. For one, we already have a lot of stuff.

For two, we really don't mind getting a lot more stuff.

For three, most of the fun of getting more stuff we don't really need in the first place is in the shopping: We are looking for bargains, or at least a good buy for the money, and—since most of us are very busy doing something productive to make the money we are willing to spend for stuff we don't much need—we want that shopping to be as recreational, time-efficient and hassle-free as it is reasonably possible to be.

We have just hit the wall. As an illustration, here is the true story of how two very willing Olympic-class consumers spent their only day off in a very busy week, consuming—or at least giving it the all-American try.

We checked the newspaper inserts for the best buys, in advance.

We made lists. We got ourselves together.

We made five stops or so. In NOT ONE place did we emerge without (1) a glitch in the scanner check-out or (2) a clerk's error in pricing or making change.

In one store, the scanner check-outs were "down," so nobody could check out until the computer was ready. At almost every place, we were charged at least one incorrect price. That is, the scanner did not ring up either the price on the item or the advertised price. Always, of course, the correction consumed time—and irritated all those standing in line behind. This is not as bad as having to wait for a price on an item that is not marked, and this also happened.

In more than one store, we were kept waiting—money and merchandise in hand—in full view of employees who were (1) talking about their plans for the evening, (2) grousing about their jobs, (3) discussing their next break or (4) enjoying a private joke.

By the time the morning was finished, so were we. We decided it is not a good idea to paint the house, have toilet paper on hand, buy clothes you already had plenty of, etc...

We offered to treat ourselves to a nice lunch. Which we did, not minding at all the slow pace of service. Then, we talked ourselves into dessert. The restaurant's posters told us their pies were the best in the country, so why not? We waited and waited and waited. No waitress in sight. No real crowds demanding her attention. She seemed to have disappeared off the face of the earth.

After a long while and a great measure of patience, we decided we could do without the pie, proceeded directly to the cashier who, with great effort, retrieved a check for us, paid up and left.

So what does a piece of pie have to do with the economy?

Well, a couple of pieces of pie didn't get circulated. And these two pieces of pie might well have meant an extra margin of profit to the baker and the owner and the supplier of flour and the farmer who grew the grain.

Looked at this way, a piece of pie is a domino. If enough pieces of pie are sold, one at a time, you get Partridge Farm and they employ more people to make more pies.

It seems simple enough.
But, it's the service, stupid.

10-year sentence urged in Pike abuse case

A circuit court jury has recommended one of the stiffest penalties ever for spouse abuse in Pike County, a prosecutor said.

The panel deliberated only 30 minutes Monday before finding John L. Adkins, 45, of Pikeville guilty of second-degree assault against his wife, Karen Adkins, 45. It recommended a maximum 10-year-prison sentence.

The case stemmed from an incident October 20, 1990, in which Karen Adkins alleged that John Adkins assaulted her with a pool cue and then used it to bat broken pieces of glass against her face.

Commonwealth's Attorney Ronald L. Burchett said Karen Adkins testified that her husband attacked her in October 1990 because she refused to leave their home. She said he struck her on the head, face, arms and body with the pool stick and stomped on her foot.

"An interesting thing, to me, was that she stayed with him until August 1991 and wrote letters both to her attorney and our office, saying it didn't happen," Burchett said.

The letters were introduced as evidence by the defense attorney that the attack never happened, Burchett said, but Karen Adkins told the jury her husband coerced her to write them.

"She was afraid he'd leave her," Burchett said. "He had convinced her she could not support herself. She had no skills or formal training. She was convinced she had to live with him in order to survive, no matter what he did."

Burchett said Karen Adkins finally moved to Ohio. "I don't know what the catalyst was, but she got a job as a housekeeper at a hotel and felt secure enough to come back here and testify." — Lexington Herald-Leader

Jury's recommendation ignored by Pike judge

A Pike County District Court judge ignored a jury's recommendation Thursday that a woman spend 90 days in jail for endangering her child.

Judge Howard Keith Hall's final sentence for Rhonda Anderson, 23, of Pikeville, entailed many stipulations, the largest being that she be put on two years of supervisory probation and spend 10 days in the Pike County Detention Center.

Anderson was convicted March 9 of endangering the welfare of her then nine-month-old daughter. Police testified that Anderson left the child in a hot apartment with no ventilation while she went to the grocery store with a friend last June.

The Department of Social Service took the child into custody, but returned it to Anderson in September, after she enrolled in parenting classes. — Appalachian News Express

Learning Nigerian Culture

Mrs. Patricia Anosike was guest speaker during two recent sessions of art enrichment classes for third and fourth grade students of the Floyd County Gifted Education Program. Anosike, a native of Nigeria, who now lives in Eastern Kentucky, wore traditional Nigerian dress and talked about her country's culture during a question and answer session. The children are studying African sculpture. The art classes are taught by Ralph Clark of the Children's Museum of Art at Mountain Heritage Arts and Crafts. (photo by Polly Ward)

Area site may become "Historic Place"

A Prestonsburg property will be considered for entry in the National Register of Historic Places. The DeRossett-Johns Site on East First Street is being reviewed for its information about the town's history prior to the Civil War.

A nomination form documenting the archaeological value of the site will be considered by the State Historic Preservation Review Board in their March 25 meeting. The meeting will be held in Frankfort and is open to the public.

If approved, David L. Morgan, State Historic Preservation Officer and Executive Director of the Heritage Council, will send the nomination form to the National Park Service in Washington, D.C. for final review and entry in the National Register. The process will take until June.

National Register listing officially recognizes a property's archaeological, architectural, or historical significance and provides a measure of protection against federally funded projects. The status does not affect property ownership rights.

Under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 the Kentucky Heritage Council is authorized to identify and recommend eligible properties for listing in the National Register of Historic Places. In order to facilitate the National Register nomination process, the Council maintains an inventory of Kentucky's historic resources. Owners of National Register properties may also qualify for tax benefits for rehabilitation of income-producing structures or for the charitable contribution of preservation easements.

Award winning novelist come to Pikeville College

Sharyn McCrumb is an award-winning Southern novelist whose mysteries exploring the politics of culture have won critical acclaim and the most prestigious awards in mystery fiction. Her skill as a lecturer, her wit, and her wicked satires of the pretensions of society have inspired critics to compare her to Mark Twain. She is a member of the Appalachian Studies faculty at Virginia Tech. McCrumb's Awards include:

•Edgar Winner for the Best Paperback Mystery 1988 (Bimbos of the Death Sun).

•New York Times Notable Book of the Year, If Ever I Return, Pretty Peggy-O; also named on Year's Best List by the Dood Review; The San Diego Union; and The Roanoke Times. Nominated by Scribner's for the Pulitzer Prize in fiction.

•Agatha Winner for Best Short Story 1990 ("A Wee Doch & Doris")

•Winner of 1985 award for "Best Appalachian Novel" for Lovely in Her Bones.

McCrumb has written ten novels: Missing Susan, If Ever I Return, Pretty Peggy-O, The Windsor Knot, Paying the Piper, Bimbos of the Death Sun, Highland Laddie Gone, Lovely in Her Bones, Sick of Shadows, Zombies of the Gene Pool, and The Hangman's Beautiful Daughter.

McCrumb will be on campus Tuesday, March 30, at 7 p.m., in Chrisman Auditorium to read selections from her work. A reception will follow in the lobby of the Armington Science Learning Center.

Books by McCrumb will be available for purchase and can be autographed at that time. Admission is free and the community is invited to take advantage of this opportunity to hear and meet with one of the most talented Appalachian writers of our time.

Her appearance has been made possible through the efforts of Dr. Laurie Lindberg and the Pikeville College Special Events Committee.

VanDevender-Chaffins to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Benny VanDevender of Albany, Georgia announce the engagement of their daughter, Stacy Ann, to Hal Chaffins of Betsy Layne, son of Peggy Chaffins of Betsy Layne and the late Harold Chaffins.

Miss VanDevender is a 1990 graduate of Lee County High School and will graduate from Darton College with an Associates Degree in Business Education in June 1993. She is presently employed with Nations Bank in Albany, Georgia.

Mr. Chaffins is a 1982 graduate of Pikeville High School, attended Prestonsburg Community College and is presently employed as warehouse manager of Cooley Medical Equipment in Prestonsburg.

The wedding will be held July 17 in Albany.

Receive scholarships from Alice Lloyd

Three Floyd County students are recipients of Alice Lloyd College's most prestigious scholarship. Kenneth Ray Scarberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Charles Scarberry of Martin; Rachel Leigh Childers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Childers of Allen and Donetta Renee Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Martin of Hueysville have accepted the Memorial Scholarships as incoming freshmen.

The Memorial Scholarship guarantees the student room, board and tuition expenses at Alice Lloyd College for the academic year. The scholarship is the equivalent of an annual grant of $8,272.

Sabrina West

Sabrina West to appear in "42nd Street"

Sabrina West of Harold, a junior at Eastern Kentucky University, has landed a part in the upcoming Broadway musical performance of "42nd Street," to be directed by the Lexington Music Theater in May. She will portray the chorus girl Phyllis. She will be tap dancing, singing, and acting.

The show appears to be a fun, energetic tap-dancing show, and tickets for the performances are expected to be sold out quickly. For information on dates and tickets, call 257-4929.

Also, she and other members of the EKU show choir will be performing at Renfro Valley in April. Their annual spring concert will be performed April 24 on the EKU Campus.

She is the 20-year-old daughter of Patti and Dan West of Harold. She has a 3-year-old brother, Britt Anthony. She has maintained a 3.8 gpa, majoring in health care administration. She is a pledge to EKU's Delta Zeta, and is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School.

Retreat planned

Victorious Women, Inc. will usher in spring with its 9th annual ladies retreat.

"DESIRING GODLINESS...with all thy HEART, SOUL, MIND AND STRENGTH" is this year's chosen theme. All ladies 16 and older are invited to attend. The dates are Friday, April 2 through Sunday, April 4. The Carriage House Inn of Paintsville serves as host for all Victorious Women retreats.

Advance registration is necessary. Brochures may be obtained from local Christian bookstores or by calling (606) 666-2359. Reservation deadline is March 26.

The First Presbyterian Church will have a number of activities to celebrate the Lenten season.

On March 28, at 7 p.m., there will be a concert of Lenten Music given by the Church Choir under the direction of James Ratcliff. For part of the program, the choir will be joined by singers from the First Presbyterian Churches of Pikeville, and Williamson, West Virginia. The public is invited to this service or worship.

On Palm Sunday, at 8 a.m., the annual Palm Sunday Men's Breakfast will be held at the church. This is the 13th annual event. The speaker will be Rev. Edwin Grigsby of Pikeville.

On March 21, Linda Howell Ratcliff was welcomed into the church on confession of faith and baptism. Also received on that day were Dr. and Mrs. Duane Sanders, along with their children, Elizabeth and Maggie.

TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

People can make any derogatory remark they want about U.K. Basketball Head Coach Rick Pitino, but they can't say he hasn't been good for the University of Kentucky.

I read yesterday that Pitino is getting a lot of flack from the public about his endorsements of certain products. If I remember correctly, curly-haired Eddie Sutton was on the tubes every time I turned on the television, and I don't think I have seen Pitino's face any more than I did Sutton's. In fact, I see former coach Joe B. Hall's image almost as often as I see beer commercials.

Personally, I question whether or not people would stop eating one type of potato chip just on the say so of Rick Pitino.

"Hey, Sara," a friend says, "Why aren't you eating Rip Chips? Everyone knows they're the best because Rick Pitino eats them. And you know how well he knows his chips."

"Really? Well, that does it for me. I'm switching right now. I guess this information will put the Lays people out of business."

"Yeah. I can see the headlines tomorrow. Stock in Lays drops 4 points because Rick Pitino eats another chip."

"The man's powerful, all right," I say, shaking my head. The same goes for his endorsements of automobiles.

"Sara, you're driving an inferior car. Did you know that?"

"No. I didn't. How can you tell?"

"Rick Pitino says you should be driving a car from a dealership in Lexington."

"I don't want to go all the way to Lexington to buy a car."

"You wouldn't want him to think you didn't trust his judgment would you?"

I value Pitino's opinion on the court, but his personal opinion doesn't alter how I live my life anymore than Michael Jordan does when he smiles while pushing that underwear. Like my husband says, I won't try to tell Pitino how to coach if he doesn't tell me how to do my job. His endorsing one particular car dealership doesn't affect my life one iota.

In my opinion, I don't think people are swayed as much by personal endorsements as they used to be. They might be swayed by a product, but it all depends on what the product has to offer. For instance, you couldn't make me buy hominy if Johnny Mathis sung the jingle for it. He's my favorite, and I don't care how much money he'd make if I bought it. If I don't want the product, I don't want the product. Of course, if I was in the market for hominy, I would purchase the brand he suggested.

Whited performs with the best

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Music runs deep in the veins of the Whited family. Dorsey and Marie Whited's sons James and Tony Whited are stars of the Kentucky Opry and play in their own band, Breakaway. The music has been dormant in their younger son, Mark, 18, until now.

Early in life, Mark, now a senior at Mullins High School and a member of the Kentucky Junior Opry Pro, refused to become involved in music, despite threats of spankings from his father.

"Five years ago, you couldn't pay me to pick up a guitar. When I was little, my dad tried, but I told him I didn't want to turn out like James and Tony," said the musician, who plays the guitar, drums and saxophone.

Then, he looked around and saw the talent around him, the talent that flowed in his own blood. "It feels like it's always been there, but never surfaced. It took someone like James and Tony and B.J. (Billy Jean Osborne) to bring it out," said Mark, who explained that they encouraged him and pushed him, "but not too hard."

Mark bought his first guitar at 15, and his brother James gave him his first guitar lesson.

Once he began playing, the music captured his heart and attention. "They couldn't take my guitar away. If they tried, I'd freak out," he said with a smile.

He plays with his brothers' band and says it prepared him to become part of the Kentucky Junior Opry. He believes that to become better, musicians must play with the best, and, according to Whited, his brothers are the best.

"They elevated me higher," he said. "I wasn't that good. They're better musicians."

He also believes in "practice, practice, practice," getting in at least one to two hours each night perfecting scales. He also practices at least two or three times each week with the group.

Whited doesn't believe practice is hard work. "It's hard to call something you like so well, work,"

Despite his love of music, he doesn't want it to be his career. Whited plans to attend college and possibly pursue a degree in biology or medicine with a minor in communication. He turned down a music scholarship.

"Music is an important part of my life, but I don't want it to take over," said Whited.

He's currently taking college classes at Prestonsburg Community College, and took a music theory class last year and was a member of the guitar club at Mullins.

He was active in sports until he became involved in music. He played in the Junior Baseball League at Mullins for four years in grade school. An excellent basketball player, he refused to join his school's basketball team because of the time involved. He even gave up playing in the school band, where he was a member for about three and a half years, because too many ballgames took him away from his practice sessions for the Kentucky Junior Opry.

He finds a lot of support among the Kentucky Junior Opry troupe. "We help each other. If you have a problem, you ask for help," said Whited. "There's no fear in asking for helping."

Whited believes these youngsters can tackle anything — together.

"It's in the blood"

After graduation from Mullins High School and the Kentucky Junior Opry Pros, Mark Whited of Pikeville hopes to join the Kentucky Opry and his brothers James and Tony.

Poperri

by Geoff Perry

It's been five long years. Time to quit sniveling and to act like a man. Life goes on.

My wife bought me a new recliner last week for no particular reason other than a man needs to have a recliner.

It wasn't easy to accept.

Five years ago, you see, I had another recliner. We had been together for a long, long time. It was more than a chair, it was a pal.

I watched it grow old and die, suffering the throes of age and abuse.

I still carry a picture of it in my wallet.

When it croaked, my wife said I should go out and find a replacement.

She didn't understand.

Do you think Timmy would have run right out to the pet shop just as soon as Lassie was squashed by a hay truck?

No way.

A period of mourning is required. Respect for the dead, you know.

Anyhow, I'd kept up the vigil for five long years, resisting temptation by avoiding the chair sections during trips to the local furniture outlets.

Then I came home from a weekend trip to find this trespasser sitting squarely in the middle of my living room, the seat occupied by two lazing Siamese cats.

I ignored its lure for three days before giving in to the urge to try it out.

It was new, the cushions were firm and minus the popcorn kernels and stains of sloshed beers. There were no spots from dripping ice cream cones, no tears in the fabric, no squeaks, no rattles, no moans.

"Hah! You call this a chair?" I asked the cats. "Why it doesn't even have any loose change in its innards."

The cats, being cats, ignored me.

Finally, the need to navigate through the living room forced me to move the chair to the TV room, where its predecessor had reigned supreme years before.

"Don't get any ideas," I said to the cats, who appeared only slightly annoyed by the move. "This is only until I can find it a good home."

So there it was, in the "spot" before the television, looking right at home...beckoning.

I took a crowbar and pried the cats out and sat down. Just for a little rest from the rigors of moving. I pushed the lever and the footrest popped up, silently, and reclined the back.

Thirty minutes later a tinkling sound awoke me. Seems some change had slipped from my pocket, through the seat and clinked on the metal frame.

A familiar sound.

I went to the kitchen, popped some popcorn, grabbed a beer, flipped on the TV with the remote and settled in for a real test drive.

Guess the cats are going to have to find another place to lounge.

Spring is come home with her world-wandering feet,
And all things are made young with young desires.
—Francis Thompson, "From the Night of Forebeing" (1897)

Y e-e-e-a-h-h-h buddy, it's that time of the year again.

In case y'all didn't notice, IT AIN'T COLD NO MORE!!!
Spring is in the air.

Got that Spring in my step.
Spring, the season of rebirth and rejuvenation. Spring, when Hope Springs eternal.

Spring, to paraphrase Lord Tennyson, that time of year when a young man's fancy turns lightly to thoughts of bikinis (not to mention mini-skirts, tube tops and short shorts).

Now if it would just stop raining.

Still, this is purt near my favorite time of year. Mother Nature begins once more to gracefully don her verdant, emerald glory, covering the ragged, ravaged bare bones of the mighty forests, so relentlessly scavenged by the merciless rigors of Old Man Winter's sweeping scythe.

Plus, all the babes start to wear skimpy outfits.

Of course, my being a married

Truth, Justice, and the man these days, and dutifully bound to my dear loving wife, I don't check out the Spring fashions for the skin. Nope, I check 'em out for my wife. Allow me to illustrate: Beautiful woman walks by wearing outfit that would make J. Edgar Hoover sit up and beg like Rin Tin Tin (and not just because he'd like to wear it).

Me (head rotating 360 degrees, eyes bugging out like a cartoon crab): "Uhhh, gee honey, that girl just looks like an old bag in that dress but it would look great on you."

Wife (not buying it): "Thank you, beloved husband, for that beautiful compliment. You are so kind and so courteous. I certainly hope you'll enjoy sleeping with the dogs again this evening, dear."

Yeah, these days whenever we go out in public, I just wear blinders. Keeps the fleas off.

Now, despite my seasonal enthusiasm, there are some drawbacks to Spring.

First of all, the warmer weather encourages the young hoodlums in our neighborhood to celebrate the joyous season with heavy property damage.

So far this week, our cars have been egged, soaped and shot with BB guns. We got off much better than our next-door neighbor, however, who had his car spray-painted with obscenities. Now I feel that all this just reinforces my stand that the state should enact child leash-laws, but my wife is pretty much convinced that euthanasia is the way to go.

Another Spring bummer is that, believe it or not, grass grows, and for some reason or other, due to archaic societal standards, people actually expect you to take this huge, gas-guzzling, environmentally-destructive, ear-splitting machine called a "lawn-mower" and cruelly cut down those poor little grass blades in the prime of their lives.

My wife actually made me do it twice last year. It was awful. But the absolute worst part of Spring (other than the fact that I can no longer wear baggy sweaters to cover up my protective coating of arctic blubber) is that, for some mysterious reason that, utilizing literally billions of sensitive measuring instruments and tax-dollars, the world's finest scientific minds have still been unable to discern, the very fabric of time actually jumps forward by one hour.

Personally, I think it's all part of the greenhouse effect.

Oh sure, the politicians try to convince us that it's a good thing. They even try to make it seem more convenient by calling it "daylight savings time." Whatever they call it, all it really means is that you have to get up an hour earlier and that the clock on your VCR is gonna be off by an hour for at least the next three months, until you finally work up the courage to try changing it and finally decide to just leave it blinking "12:00" until the next time there's a three-year-old at your house who can figure out how to work it.

Okay, I admit it. I hate Spring and I hate everything about it. I hate getting up earlier and I hate mowing the lawn and I hate having to wear blinders and I hate little kids who make it their life's ambition to destroy my home and I hate my life and I hate my job and I hate....

Well, I hope your happy now. You've depressed me.

Now leave me alone. I have to get the lawn-mower out. There's some kids playing around my car.

SOAP UPDATES

ALL MY CHILDREN: After Dixie admitted to Tad that Jamie is his son, he blasted Brooke for withholding the truth from him. Palmer accused Tad of using Nola for her money, and predicted he would walk out on Dixie now that he was independently rich. Shaken, Tad left immediately for California. Taylor got herself substituted for An Li as a hostage by two teenage robbers. Mimi shot one of the robbers to death after he wounded Trevor. Adam defended Gloria when she was berated by her mother, Helen. Wait To See: Tad makes another startling discovery; Erica makes an important decision about Dimitri.

ANOTHER WORLD: Spencer was furious when Grant told him to get out of his life. Jenna sought counsel about the baby at the convent. Christy feigned distress when she told Cass and Frankie that she was forced to tell the police that only Frankie knew what Douglas ate and drank before he died. Billy later asked Christy if Frankie could have helped Douglas commit suicide. Brett, who had been waiting anxiously for Ryan's return from Banff, was startled (but pleased) when he asked her out. John and Frankie learned that Billy had a copy of her paper on euthanasia. Wait To See: Carl's unseen presence continues to dominate Ryan's life.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: At Matthew John's christening, Seth and Angel announced plans to wed in April. Royce learned of Scott's threat to Michael that his next accident would be his last if he didn't stop bothering Neal. Michael demanded Royce pay him $100,000 to leave town and not disclose his and Neal's secret. Lyla was stunned to learn Susan hadn't told John of Emily's offer to donate an egg for her (Susan) to carry. Dawn was upset that she and Margo might not be called to testify for Tom. Julie found Holden unconscious after he was hit by a falling tree limb while he tried to close the barn door. Michael was on the scaffold when he was blinded with a sudden bright light. Wait To See: Margo has new reason to worry about Tom's chances.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: Macy told Darla it was probably all over between her and Thorne since he hadn't responded to her tape. Taylor read the passage in Caroline's diary where she hoped Ridge and Brooke would marry after her death. Brooke was heartbroken when Ridge told her that in spite of his feelings for baby Bridget, he'll never divorce Taylor to marry Brooke. When Taylor returned home, she found Ridge had a surprise for her in the bedroom: a baby. Determined to bypass Stephanie's influence on Eric, and get him to marry her quickly, Sheila dropped a white powder in his wine-glass as step number one in her plan. Wait To See: Sally is startled by Jack's statement, and Eric is startled by Sheila's revelation.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: A shaken Austin heard Carrie blame him for her being scarred for life, but sensed there was another reason for her behavior. Later, Carrie removed the bandages and was horrified to see what her face looked like. Carly's car crashed (Vivian had ordered Ivan to drain the brake fluid), but she was saved by Billie moments before the vehicle exploded. Bo moved into Billie's apartment when Cash began harassing her again. Vivian, intent on her "get-Carly" scheme, developed chest pains and learned she may not have long to live. Seeing Marlena's car coming up John's driveway, Rebecca answered the door clad only in one of his shirts. Wait To See: Carrie gets disturbing news.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Ryan has his own plans for a former girlfriend that would keep her from helping Mac and Felicia get incriminating evidence on him. Scott was devastated when Dominique's deteriorating condition caused her to lose her sight. Aware of his problems with Tiffany, Jessica put some subtle moves on Sean. Bill was furious at Halifax's hoax about Holly being in danger. Brenda tampered with Karen's term paper, jeopardizing Karen's college future. Monica worried that A.J. will learn how Alan got Nikki to leave Port Charles. Jennifer nailed Senator Kensington and Ned for the tactics that discredited her. Wait To See: Halifax has new plans for Bill and Holly's "well-being."

GUIDING LIGHT: Mindy confronted Eve about the photos of herself and Nick that had been defaced and tossed on her bedroom floor. Eve, however, accused Mindy of ruining the photos herself to get Nick back. Nadine told Mallet she was trying to prevent Harley from learning of her father's criminal record. Holly tried to explain Ross and Blake's relationship to Michelle. Blake, meanwhile, was grateful that her one-night tryst with Alan-Michael during the blizzard was "undiscovered." Jenna was hurt when Roger wouldn't discuss Hart's rejection of him as a father. Wait To See: "Rex" (actually Buzz) pulls off an important "deal."

LOVING: Buck Huston arranged for Trisha to be mugged. He then stepped in to "save" her. A grateful Trucker and Trisha invited him to spend the night at their place. While they slept, he went through their belongings. Believing Leo had sent her flowers, Shana confessed her true feelings for him. Later she learned they came from Stacey and Trisha. Curtis didn't turn up for his date with Betty (Dinah Lee) because he believed she was a married woman with children. Meanwhile, a heartbroken Dinah Lee sought comfort from Ava. Gwyn told Curtis, Betty deserved a chance to explain, but Ava refused to give him her real name. Shana took a pregnancy test. Wait To See: Buck begins the next step in his plan.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Nora found Bo grieving at Sarah's grave. Dorian realized Jason broke up with Lee Ann on purpose, and she allowed him to move back in with her. C.J. ran away from home after Cord lost his temper. Believing Mortimer was really Carlo, the police continued to pursue him, but Renee managed to keep him hidden. Alex spread a rumor that Carlo had Moose killed, hoping Moose's mob would then kill Mortimer. Viki told Joey and Jessica her marriage to Clint was over. Clint, however, told Kevin he believed they could still work things out. Wait To See: Cain begins to see what it means to be one of Alex's "soulmates."

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nikki lost her baby. Jack told her he complied with her wishes: he donated the organs of their child to medicine. Depressed over John's vasectomy, Jill's mood changed when Dr. Laski gave her some unexpected news. Michael broke through the fire wall and into the Romalotti's hallway closet. Drucilla and Neil were married at the Chancellor estate and went off on their honeymoon. Lauren kept insisting to Brad that he was not in the photo puzzle Sheila had sent. Scott entered, but refused to buy Lauren's story that she and Brad were only discussing business. Wait To See: Victoria makes a decision that could put her marriage to risk.

Unfortunately, Pitino is better looking and dresses more stylishly than Eddie and Joe, but he still lacks that down home country boy air. He still can't quite combine that New York brogue/spit shine look with that Red Man, coon dog image. Done successfully, he could be a cross between Mel Gibson and Garth Brooks, and then everyone would accept him no matter what he endorsed or how much money he made.

And while I'm defending Pitino's right to make as much money as he can while he can, what about Cawood? Why I've seen his face so often on television stations in Eastern Kentucky, I confuse him with President Clinton. Back during the Presidential campaign, it was weeks before I discovered that he wasn't Ross Perot.

Whatever the reason for Pitino making headlines that didn't pertain to his team winning their first game in Vanderbilt, I would rather hear what Travis Ford and Jared Prickett think about the upcoming game. Big Blue fans have more to worry about than what Pitino eats and drives. We've got a national championship to win.

Go Big Blue!

Dear Abby

Stepchildren's sour attitude makes this home not sweet

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for four years to a man with two children, ages 23 and 25, who still live with us. They work almost full-time and take a class or two at the university, so they are "in school." Neither contributes anything, but they are able to buy themselves plenty of the best of everything.

His daughter is rude, manipulative, snooty, and generally engaged in hurtful activities. To protect my privacy, I've had my personal mail delivered at work, important belongings placed in a security unit, and a private telephone line installed for myself. My financial contribution is equal to my husband's.

Three weeks after we were married, my husband requested I sign a waiver of rights to all he owns, so "It will go to my children."

All five of his children (including the three who live away) treat me rudely—as though I have no business in their home. It's like living in a hotel. I feel that my marriage is destroyed and have suggested family counseling. My husband says no. He realizes that the children are causing the problems in our marriage, but he can't ask them to move out because the kids were there first. Please comment quickly.

sponse in English is "God bless you." In German, it's "gesundheit," which means "good health!"

The reason is interesting: According to "Curious Customs—The Stories Behind 296 Popular American Rituals" by Tad Tuleja (Stonesong Press Inc., 1987):

"In many European cultures, sneezing is traditionally associated with death, and it is to this sternophobic (fear of sneezing) tradition that Americans adhere. You are very close to death when you sneeze, because sneezing can expel the soul, and thus the life, from the body—no basis in fact, of course; this is merely superstition. So, when someone sneezes, we say, "God bless you" to remove the curse of possible ill health or death. Neglecting this magical utterance could mean that the sneezer could end up in the next world."

HAD IT IN PROVO

DEAR HAD IT: First, I am grateful that you didn't ask me to help you, because the only person who can help you is YOU. My comment: Nowhere do you say you care for this man or that he cares for you. Your husband's lack of consideration for you is appalling, and his adult children's rudeness is insulting.

Why are you wasting your time in this abusive situation? You are contributing equally to a household where you are treated like an intruder. If I were you, I would pack up and move.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Outraged Mother," whose child came home from school with wet pants because his teacher wouldn't let him go to the restroom, brought back some memories my husband had 65 years ago.

He said when he was in first grade, he held up his hand, made faces and squirmed in his seat, but his teacher ignored him. He had a bad stomachache and couldn't hold it any longer, so he let go right in his seat. He made a terrible mess, so the teacher drove him home in her new car; in those days cars had running boards, so she made him stand on the running board.

When he got home, his mother soaked him in a tub of water for an hour. My husband said he has held a grudge against that teacher all his life.

DEAR ABBY: What is the current etiquette on responding when someone sneezes? "God bless you"? "Gesundheit"? Or simply silence?

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

In December, Ohio University was awarded the nation's second patent for an animal—for a mouse that carries a human gene. The mouse is to be used in lab studies; the human gene helps make it resistant to viral infections, which limit the utility of ordinary lab mice. The first patented mouse was engineered to grow tumors rapidly.

THE LITIGIOUS SOCIETY

-- In October, Katherine Balog, 60, filed a lawsuit in Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., against Bill Clinton and the Democratic Party to recover damages for the trauma caused by Clinton's candidacy. The fact that Clinton was then on the verge of becoming president, despite allegedly being a "draft dodger" and a "communist sympathizer" induced in her, she said, "serious emotional and mental stress" that was certain to create future medical expenses.

-- William and Tonya Parker filed a $10,000 lawsuit in December against the Holiday Inn of Midland, Mich., claiming that an employee walked into their room without warning on their wedding night while they were having sex. The couple said they now suffer post-traumatic stress syndrome and that their sex life has become dysfunctional. A Holiday Inn spokesperson said the intrusion was an accident and that the couple should have hung the "do not disturb" sign on their door.

-- In January, The New York Times reported that as many as 10 city prisoners over the last three years have had guns smuggled in to them and have then shot themselves so that they can file lawsuits against New York City for negligence in allowing guns in the cells. One lawsuit asks $8.5 million in damages.

-- High school student Leigh Ann Fisher and her parents filed a $4.2 million lawsuit for emotional distress in August after she was replaced as captain of her high school cheerleader squad in Vilonia, Ark., near Little Rock.

-- In January a Montgomery County, Maryland, judge finally warned litigant Michael Sindram that he would face contempt of court charges if he filed any more "frivolous" lawsuits. The Washington Times reported that Sindram had filed at least 350, losing them all except "one or two" that were settled, according to the judge, because of their nuisance value. Sindram is O-for-42 at the U.S. Supreme Court.

-- Schenectady, N.Y., jail inmate Jose Rivera Martinez, 33, filed a $750,000 lawsuit in February against the county jail, alleging that he was permanently disfigured in 1990 by the warts he received from eating jail-issue hot dogs, to which he said he was allergic.

-- In January, former Northwestern University professor Olan Rand filed an employment discrimination complaint against the university, claiming he was wrongfully fired the month before. Rand was fired after he pleaded guilty to theft of $33,000; he had continued to collect his mother's Social Security checks in their joint account for five years after her death in 1981. In his petition, he claims the university should not have discriminated against him, since he suffered from the disability of "extreme procrastination behavior."

-- Ella Bagwell filed a lawsuit against the owners of the friendly Food Mart near Anderson, S.C., in February, claiming they failed to pay off on a video poker game in the store. She claimed that the store's clerks by custom paid 25 cents for each replay earned on the machine, that one day she won 999,999 free games, and that she is thus entitled to $249,999.75. The store owners said the machine must have malfunctioned.

-- According to records obtained by New York Newsday, New York city paid $30 million last year, and has paid $320 million since 1978, in lawsuit damages to people who have tripped on sidewalks that are in disrepair. City law actually requires property owners, and not the city, to maintain the sidewalks, but the city gets sued for failure to enforce the law against procrastinating property owners.

-- Bentonville, Ark., inmate Ross Chadwell filed a lawsuit against Benton County in February, claiming that Sheriff Andy Lee violated his civil rights. Chadwell had tried to escape in August 1992 after being temporarily made a jail trusty, but was soon captured and further punished. Chadwell said Lee acted "recklessly" in putting him in a position from which he could attempt to escape.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You roar into this week. Play money wizard and act like the communications satellite, Telstar, as well. Your efficiency cannot be doubted, nor can your enjoyment of the good life. Plan on ripping up the city this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may keep your agenda hidden from most of the world this week. However, once you decide to take a direct action, there will be no turning back. Count on entering the weekend on a high note and feeling very, very good.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Go for exactly what it is that makes you heart flutter and your mind abandon the present. This week, you are very likely to make long-term desires happen. Now don't think that this is going to be a snap. It'll take some work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Whether you want to or not, you get to take a major stand this week. The best part of all is, you get much applause from your closest friends and supporters. Make plenty of time for group activities. You love being with the gang until exhaustion hits.

LEO (July 23-August 22) Be an explorer this week and let that adventurous Lion out. You come up with some interesting information and ideas. You are super involved with your image normally, and right now that fussing and grooming pays off.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) Think carefully before you open up your mouth and insert your foot. Talks could be rather fragile right now, and another could be overly sensitive. Negotiate what you want money-wise. Admiration can be the beginning of deeper feelings.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) Others seek you out all week long. Count on being euphoric and happy as long as you stay cool. Money matters are up for debate. See what is being offered before you make any declarations. Plan on a mini-vacation this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) You are up for work this week, and just as well, because you cruise through everything you need to. Be ready for some spontaneous invitations, as your popularity peaks. You are presented with many choices.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) Bring some of last weekend's fun spirit with you into this week. Be careful, however, not to overdo or go to extremes and turn a mild case of spring fever into something more serious. Expect a wild few days this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Understanding what is important to you is primary. Just hang out with the space and move with an opportunity. Expect another to tease and tantalize. For some reason, you have a lot of work to catch up on this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) You can't seem to get away from it all. Calls come in, others seeks you out and demands are placed on you left and right. The great news is you handle it all, and easily at that. Do insist on getting your rest, however.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) You are more than aware of what you offer and how much others care. You get testimony to this fact even more so this week. Plan on some extra cash for whooping it up during the week. You know how to make the most of an opportunity when it strikes.

Young Authors

Kurastine Adkins

The Floyd County Times and the Department of Instruction of Floyd County Schools jointly feature the student work of Kurastine Adkins, a fourth grade Young Authors' winner from Dana Tackett's class at Betsy Layne Elementary. She is the daughter of Ronald and Naomie Adkins of Tram. Her book, The Humming Old Man and a Little Girl Named Kasey, printed with permission, was the winner in the fourth grade "non-illustrated" competition.

Kurastine was a room winner, a school winner, and a county-wide winner for the 1991-92 school year for her book. She received a $50 U.S. Savings Bond at a spring awards ceremony. Over 5,000 elementary and middle school students participated in competition throughout the county.

THE HUMMING OLD MAN AND A LITTLE GIRL NAMED KASEY

by Kurastine Colina Adkins

There was a man who lived in my neighborhood who always went around humming the same old song all the time. He lived in an old spooky house that all the kids in the neighborhood were scared to go into. It seemed like the house was always making weird, popping sounds that popped so loud that it sounded like firecrackers shooting off.

One day a little girl named Kasey came skipping down the road that led to the old house. She was a new girl in town and she wasn't afraid of anything. She skipped up to the house and tapped on the door. The old man had hummed himself to sleep and didn't hear Kasey tapping on his door. So Kasey wasted no time. She divided the hedges and went around to the back of the house. She hoped the old man was home because she could meet him. She wanted to make friends with him. Kasey wasn't worried that she might not be wanted there. She was just hoping to make new friends. She walked up the door and knocked. The old man opened the door so fast that it scared Kasey and she started to run away. The old man saw that it was a little girl and he ran after her.

He grinned when he caught up with Kasey and looked at her and said "Hi! My name is Sam." What is your name? Kasey grinned back and told him her name. Sam told her he was sorry for scaring her and ask her to stay for some lemonade. Wasting no time, Kasey took the glass of lemonade he handed her. She ask him why he hummed all the time. He said he lived alone and it gave him something to do all day. She reached into her pocket and pulled out a candy bar. She divided it with Sam. They talked a long time that day. Kasey went home. She was happy because the humming old man was Sam, her friend.

Exciting

E-X-C-I-T-I-N-G is the word to describe a spelling bee. Prestonsburg Elementary proved that to be true on Friday, February 26th when eight finalists met to determine a spelling champion. Words were spelled correctly for quite awhile before one student was eliminated. The tension mounted until one student, Neil Fannin, was declared the champion. Neil is a fifth grade student of Sherrille Slone and the son of Danette Hazelett of Prestonsburg.

A "vision" for Prestonsburg High School

Saturday, February 13, is a date that many parents, community leaders, school administrators, teachers, and students alike envision as the dawning of a new Prestonsburg High School—not new in just a physical sense, but new in the ideological and philosophical sense.

Facilitators Jane Fuller and DeWayne Westmoreland from Greens Professional Development Academy in Louisville, led by an assemblage at the Jenny Wiley Convention Center in discussing and developing a vision for Prestonsburg High School. Superintendent Dr. Steven Towler also addressed those concerned about the future of Prestonsburg High School.

During the day-long meeting a number of groups participated in brainstorming exercises devoted to identifying and prioritizing values, facilities, curricula, funding, accountability, staff involvement, and assessment planning. The groups brought the day to a close by drafting belief statements relating to their "vision" for PHS.

Developing a vision

During a recent meeting of concerned citizens and educators, the "vision" of a new Prestonsburg High School was discussed.

Bridges

Linda Bartrum's seventh graders at Auxier Elementary learned some basic engineering skills recently. Students were challenged to draw plans for the construction of a toothpick bridge using only 130 toothpicks. The purpose of the project was to see which bridge would hold the most weight before breaking. The project also included keeping journals, accounting sheets, writing checks, making out orders for supplies and doing research on bridges. All bridges passed the initial test for holding 1000g. The final winner, "Bridges R Us," held over 2000g before breaking. Though the generous donations of Home Depot in Atlanta and Boise Cascade Corp. in Idaho, students were supplied with nail aprons and hats for making this project a real life working experience.

PHS students place at FBLA competition

The Prestonsburg High School chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America attended the Region V FBLA competition at Morehead State University on Thursday, March 11. Over 40 schools from Eastern Kentucky attended the competition. Two members of PHS placed in the competition. Mike Maynard, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Maynard of Prestonsburg, won second place in the Business Procedures event. Chris McKinney, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale McKinney of Prestonsburg, won third place in Word Processing. Both students will now compete at the FBLA State Leadership Conference in Louisville April 22-24. FBLA is sponsored by Judy H. Combs.

Winners

Ribbon winners

R.I.F.

Reading is Fundamental, a government funded reading program, will hold its second distribution of the 1992-93 school year soon at Prestonsburg Elementary School.

On Wednesday and Thursday, April 7th and 8th, several R.I.F. volunteers will report to the Elementary School library to assist in helping students make their selections. Each student is given the opportunity to view books covering many different subjects and select one book each which they can keep.

The government provides the majority of funding for the purchase of these books with the PTA and local civic groups donating money to complete the cost. This year marks Prestonsburg Elementary's 12th consecutive year to be involved with the R.I.F. program.

Inventor

Tim Hall, a seventh grader in Linda Bartrum's class at Auxier, displays one of his completed electrical circuit systems. With some time, patience, and concentration, he skillfully made a bell, a telegraph system and a buzzer. His talent stems from his hobby of working on car motors which he has been doing over a period of years.

PGS employs caring custodian

It is truly wonderful to have a man around the house! Prestonsburg Elementary is very fortunate to employ Eugene Slone as a custodian for the school. PGS is home to 39 teachers, 11 teacher aides, and seven lunchroom personnel. Of the 54 people employed, four are men.

Every time something needs to be moved, lifted, loosened, tightened or whatever, the call goes out for Slone. He is always available to help anyone at school.

One day when a parent brought his child to school at 6 a.m., Eugene took the little boy around with him to unlock the doors and get the building ready for the other kids. All the kids know they can get a smile from Eugene and have come to depend on him.

Some kids aren't so sure of his name so they make up one of their own. A cute little kindergarten girl came to the office and said, "Send Blue Jeans to our room, my teacher needs him." No matter what name you give him, he is always willing to be of service.

Cooperative decision making

One of the "valued outcomes" of K.E.R.A. is that students learn to work together in cooperative groups. Prestonsburg High School goes one step further—the faculty utilizes cooperative groups to solve many problems that formerly was the principal's job to solve. According to PHS Principal Karen Trivette, "Decisions which affect the faculty should be made by teachers. It makes such decisions much more palatable to the faculty, especially when it involves extra duties or supervision. Another positive fallout is that teachers better understand an administrator's view of running the school. It's a 2-way street." Pictured are, from left, Dickie Leslie, Gary Hopkins and Lowell McCown.

Academic Cats capture 57th District Governor's Cup

On Saturday, February 13, Prestonsburg High School's Academic Team claimed its seventh district championship in eight years. Bouncing back from a second place finish in the Jenny Wiley Academic Conference, the PHS "Academic Cats" were determined to redeem themselves, and they did just that.

Leading the way was Emily Damron who won first place in Language Arts and took second place in General Knowledge. Rick Nunnery took first place honors in mathematics. Mike Maynard garnered a second place finish in Social Studies. Freshman Ruth Jessen captured two third places in Language Arts and General Knowledge. Mike Marcum provided some much needed points with a third place in Science.

Kathryn Mullins claimed fourth place in English Composition. Stewart Robertson had two fourth place finishes in Social Studies and General Knowledge. Their future problem solving team of Chris McKinney, Becky Carter, Stephen Allison, and Casey Jones placed third.

The quick recall team of Mike Maynard, Emily Damron, Rick Nunnery, Stewart Robertson, Aaron Bond, Tonya Miller, Mustaf, Badrudduja, Jennifer O'Neill, Allison Dunn, Kathryn Mullins, Daryl Shepherd, Will Lester, Mike Marcum, and Sean Little finished in first place. The PHS Academic Team is coached by John Neal Patton.

Piarist school announces honor roll

The Piarist School announced recently that nine students have been placed on the honor roll for the third quarter.

Five students earned first honors for having grade point averages above a 3.70 on a 4.0 scale. They were: juniors Leigh Ann Blackburn of Betsy Layne and Duran Bryant of Harold, sophomore Amy Coleman of Prestonsburg, and freshmen Brittany Francis of Garrett and Karen Strawser of Pikeville.

Four students earned second honors for having grade point averages above a 3.0. They were: sophomore Elizabeth Blackburn of Prestonsburg and freshmen Jarrod Hunt of Langley, Jennifer Young of Prestonsburg, and Stephanie Sizemore of Martin.

The Piarist School is a small, private, college preparatory high school on Route 80 in Martin. The school will be holding an admissions test for incoming ninth and tenth graders on Saturday, April 24, at 8:30 a.m. For more information call the school at 285-3950.

Kids find answers

Our Lady of the Mountains School students had a variety of projects and experiments for their Science Fair on Tuesday, March 9. After parents viewed the projects in the evening, awards were presented to the winners. Prestonsburg Community College sent eight students from their Science Department to judge the projects. The judges were: Kevin Minix, Tim Lavender, Joe D. Hunley, Mather Goodwill, Jean Dorton, Teresa Wells, Kami Collins, and Kimberly Lyons.

A Look At Sports

JUNIOR PRO HELPING LOCAL ECONOMY..

If you get to wondering why there are so many cars around the city with Woodford, Fayette and Scott county tags on them it is because of the Junior Pro basketball tournament that is currently being played.

The tournament began last evening (Thursday) with the games being played at two sites - Adams Middle School and the high school gym.

According to director Dickie Jarvis, it is the largest tournament they have hosted in Prestonsburg.

Ten teams will make up the field that will participate in the three-day affair. That means with teams coming in from Lexington, Woodford County and Scott County, motel rooms must be available. Last year the Holiday Inn was booked up because of the local invitational tournament.

Gas stations, as well as local restaurants, benefitted from the games played last season and they will reap from this year's tournament as well.

It is just another way that the junior pro is helping the local economy. Folks like Jarvis and Neal Turner, as well as unknown helpers, should be applauded by the community for their efforts in putting on a tournament of this magnitude. From this desk, I say thank you for all that you are doing for the kids and the community.

TRAGEDY STRIKES....

Who can but help feel for the families of Tim Crews and Steve Olin whose lives ended in a boating accident this past Monday night in Winter Haven, Florida.

Both were part of the Cleveland Indians baseball team, and they were no doubt looking forward to the start of another season of baseball.

According to reports, the boat crashed into a dock in the darkness of the night at a high-rate of speed.

On board were found vodka and beer according to a news report given.

A news report said that cans of beer were on the boat as well as an open bottle of vodka, but it hasn't been determined that they were drinking.

Our boating experts have been preaching for years now that drinking and boating, just like driving, don't mix. But the message also seems to have fallen on deaf ears. Now two lives have been snuffed out because they probably thought boating accidents only happen to others and not them.

Sad isn't it! GOOD NEWS OUT OF MARTIN COUNTY...

The good news out of Martin County and especially Sheldon Clark High School is that girls' head basketball coach Robin Harmon-Newsome will not submit her resignation but will return to guide the Lady Cardinals next season.

Harmon has been one of the most successful girls' coaches in the 15th Region in the past five years.

I am glad to hear that she will be coming back and that she will once again head up a promising Lady Card team.

As I have said many times before, Robin is a credit to the game of basketball and has given so much to it and her teams. Glad that you are staying, Robin.

HARLESS STILL A (?)....

What about the fate of boys' basketball coach Roger Harless?

Seems the last time I wrote about this subject in my column it caused a stir in Martin County. We even made the front page of the Martin County Sun. It was not my intention to cause any stir, but I just stated my opinion on Coach Harless and I stick by it. I think he should be retained by the school board as the boys' head basketball coach!

Harless has reapplied for the head coaching job at Sheldon Clark and has certainly made the Cardinals one of the top teams in

Prestonsburg to host junior pro tournament

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Junior Pro basketball league will host their fourth annual Junior Pro Invitational Basketball Tournament this weekend as ten teams compete in the Junior Varsity division and eight in the training league division.

Teams from Lexington, Scott County and Woodford County will join other local teams in the four-day event.

The Junior Varsity division started Thursday evening with all JV games being played at the Prestonsburg High School.

First round play will continue tonight with Duff opening the evening games against the Lexington Southeast White Team in a 6 p.m. tipoff time.

Lexington Southeast has traditionally been one of Kentucky's stronger junior pro teams and always brings a large following with them.

The second game Friday night

(7:15 p.m.) will pit Scott County's Red Team against the winner of the Belfry/Prestonsburg Red Team. Scott County, like Lexington, is a solid program and very active in play on the state level.

Paintsville will go against the winner of the Betsy Layne/Prestonsburg Black game at 9:45 p.m. Friday night.

Scott County's White Team will meet Woodford County to close out the first round of play. The game is scheduled for 8:30 p.m.

The semifinals of the tournament will start at 1:45 p.m. and the second semifinal game will be played at 3 p.m. The final game of the winner's bracket is set for 7:15 p.m. Saturday night.

The loser's bracket will play in the morning hours Saturday with games scheduled to start at 8:45 a.m. and running through 12:30 p.m.

The tournament will conclude on Sunday afternoon with the championship game set for 5:15 p.m.

The Training League tournament will be held at the Adams Middle School. Mullins and Prestonsburg will kick off the event at 6 p.m. Betsy Layne White will face Scott County White in the second game at 7:15 p.m.

McDowell goes against Duff in an 8:30 p.m. game and the first round will conclude at 9:45 p.m. as Scott County Red faces Pikeville.

The loser's bracket begins play at 10 a.m. on Saturday morning. The winners bracket will resume play on (See Junior Pro, B 7)

South Floyd AAU is perfect with 5-0 record

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The South Floyd High School hasn't even opened yet but there is a South Floyd AAU basketball team and they are setting the Pikeville 11-year old AAU League on fire.

The Floyd County team is coached by Doug Tackett with Gene Tackett and Darrel Williams assisting.

The squad is a perfect 5-0 on the year and the top team in the AAU league.

South Floyd faced Elkhorn City in their first game of the season and came away with a convincing 56-19 win over Elkhorn. Todd Craft led South Floyd with 15 points and Tyson Blair added 10.

Dusty Tackett tossed in eight points as part of a balanced attack for South Floyd. Ryan Shannon had seven points and Charlie Williams netted five. Dustin Mullins totaled five points also with Shannon Williams netting four points.

Nathan Tackett scored two and Rusty Tackett added one. Charlie Williams had the only three-point basket for South Floyd.

Ben Runyon scored five points to lead Elkhorn City. Jonathan Belcher and Josh Belcher each had five points.

South Floyd trailed 10-7 after the first quarter but a 11-5 second gave Floyd a 18-15 lead. South Floyd outscored Elkhorn 19-4 in the third period and shut them out in the fourth with a 19-0 barrage.

Blair scored 15 points and Shannon Williams added 11 as South Floyd took care of Pikeville, 55-42, in their second game of the season.

Ryan Shannon added eight points and Dusty Tackett tossed in seven. Charlie Williams netted five points with Rusty Tackett finishing with four. Todd Craft and Nathan Tackett had three and two points respectively. Shannon Williams had a three-point basket for South Floyd.

Lynch led Pikeville with 22 points and Justice scored 12.

South Floyd led 15-7 after one quarter and took a 31-16 lead to the locker room at the half.

Four players scored in double figures for South Floyd in their matchup with Johns Creek as they rolled to a 61-24 win in game three.

Ryan Shannon scored 17 points and Shannon Williams added 15 to lead the local team to their third consecutive win.

Dusty Tackett added 14 and Tyson Blair scored 10. Nathan Tackett had five points.

The score was 22-5 after the first quarter and 40-5 at the half as Johns Creek failed to score in the second period.

South Floyd posted a 55-22 win over Mullins two weeks ago with Dusty Tackett scoring 13 points to lead the way. Charlie Williams added 12 points with Shannon Williams and Tyson Blair netting 10 each.

Todd Craft had eight points in the win for South Floyd and Ryan Shannon scored two.

South Floyd defeated Virgie 55-11 in their game last week at Virgie. Ryan Shannon led the way with 17 points and Dusty Tackett added 11 for the winners.

Charlie Williams netted six points and Todd Craft scored four. Dustin Mullins also tossed in four with Nathan Tackett and Shannon Williams scoring two each.

South Floyd only led 5-4 after the first quarter but took a 17-8 lead at the half. South Floyd held Virgie to only three second half points.

Duff training league to sponsor dance at Wayland gym Mar. 27

If rock and roll, the twist, the jitterbug, country line dancing, clogging or even the waltz is your cup of tea then the Wayland gym is where you will want to be Saturday night, March 27 from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m.

It all happens at the Wayland gym as the Duff Training League basketball team sponsors a dance raising money for expenses to travel to Georgetown and other tournament sites.

Teams in the junior pro leagues are responsible in raising their own finances to pay for motels and food as they travel.

The Duff team will be taking part in the annual Georgetown tournament which is one of the more prestigious tournaments in Kentucky.

So if you have itchy feet and want to burn off some energy mark March 27 on your calendar and head for the Wayland gym.

All proceeds from the dance will be used entirely for the Duff Training League. Help a good cause and be in attendance.

Over fifty athletes will make up the Allen Central track and field squad as the sport continues to gain popularity at the Right Beaver school.

Coach Dewey Jamerson will be entering his fourth season as head track and field coach at Allen Central as the Rebels open their season at Pikeville April 6.

"I'm chomping at the bit to get started," said Jamerson who was instrumental in developing the program. Veteran Forrest Hughes will be alongside Jamerson as they have built one of the top programs in the region.

Concern over his squad being in shape has Jamerson looking to the start of the season so that they get started.

"The team seems semi-enthused about the season starting," said Jamerson. "But once it gets underway I think the kids will crank up. We need to work on our fundamentals more. The weather has hurt us as far as being able to get in shape."

Jamerson said that since March 10, his team has only been able to hold four practices because of the weather.

"We may be in better shape than some of the others," he stated. "We have been at it for two months now."

Jamerson says that his team will be stronger in some areas than last years and, because of the loss of key people,

FRANKIE FRANCIS

Francis honored by chance to call Sweet 16

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

There are many honors that come an individual's way during life. Some are honored that they had the privilege to coach a high school basketball team to a regional title. Former basketball coach Frankie Francis did just that during his tenure at Wheelwright.

Some coaches feel honored to have taken their team to the Sweet 16 state tournament. Francis accomplished that when his 1970 Trojan team played in the big show in Lexington.

It is rare to find a coach that has taken his team to the state tournament and then, some years later, is chosen to officiate the Sweet 16. Francis has done just that.

Francis, who calls 14th Region games, was chosen to officiate his first state tournament, something he considers an honor.

"It was very rewarding time for me," he said after the event. "I was pleased and honored to be chosen to work the tournament."

Officials are chosen to officiate the state tournaments on a rating system in the state of Kentucky. Francis drew high ratings from coaches and the assigning secretary which led to his selection for the 1993 tournament.

Francis called two games in the Sweet 16. His first game was the Paul Lawrence Dunbar-Grayson County game. Francis then got to work one of eventual state champion Marion County's games when they faced a good Warren East squad.

Francis, who lives in the 15th Region, says there is a reason that he calls in the 14th.

"I don't think it would be right for me to be Athletic Director in Floyd County and call in the 15th Region," he said. "That is the reason that I went to the 14th. I didn't want to work the games of schools in our region."

Francis just completed his 18th year as an official, working the first years in the 15th Region before moving to the 14th. He is quick to point out his feelings for the game of basketball.

Florida trip, 43 regular season games highlight Bobcats season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Bobcats open their high school baseball season this Sunday afternoon and they won't have to worry about the rain and wet fields.

Coach Junior Newsome's club will depart from Betsy Layne High School today (Friday, 9:30 a.m.) and head to the state of Florida where they will play their first 10 games of the season.

The Florida schedule includes games against Breckinridge, Somerset, Pikeville, Greenup County, West Carter and Morgan County. Betsy Layne will play two games a day except Sunday.

The Bobcats will play their final game against North Laurel in the Cocoa Expo on Friday, April 2 before returning home.

After the Florida trip, the Bobcats will return home to begin a 33 game regular season schedule that will include nine doubleheaders.

Two tournaments are on the Bobcat schedule. After returning from the Southland, Betsy Layne will play in the Knott County Invitational beginning April 5. The Pikeville Invitational will be the other tournament that the Bobcats will participate in.

Coach Newsome and his club will travel to Lexington on May 7 for a doubleheader against Paul Lawrence Dunbar.

Betsy Layne has three open dates in May. The district tournament will begin May 18 with the regional tournament slated for May 25.

The Bobcats will face Sheldon Clark twice in non-district play. Two games, home and away, with powerful Knott County face the Bobcats.

Independent b-ball tournament April 1 at Wheelwright

All independent basketball teams take notice. There will be an independent basketball tournament held at the Wheelwright gym starting April 1. The double elimination tournament is open to all area teams.

Entry fee is $75 per team with the proceeds going to the Wheelwright High School baseball team.

For more information contact Luther Johnson at 452-9545 or Bill Newsome after five at 452-4433.

Allen Central gearing up track and field season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Over fifty athletes will make up the Allen Central track and field squad as the sport continues to gain popularity at the Right Beaver school.

Coach Dewey Jamerson will be entering his fourth season as head track and field coach at Allen Central as the Rebels open their season at Pikeville April 6.

"I'm chomping at the bit to get started," said Jamerson who was instrumental in developing the program. Veteran Forrest Hughes will be alongside Jamerson as they have built one of the top programs in the region.

Concern over his squad being in shape has Jamerson looking to the start of the season so that they get started.

"The team seems semi-enthused about the season starting," said Jamerson. "But once it gets underway I think the kids will crank up. We need to work on our fundamentals more. The weather has hurt us as far as being able to get in shape."

Jamerson said that since March 10, his team has only been able to hold four practices because of the weather.

"We may be in better shape than some of the others," he stated. "We have been at it for two months now."

Jamerson says that his team will be stronger in some areas than last years and, because of the loss of key people, weaker at other places.

"It will be because of new kids coming into our program this year that we will look to get stronger in some places," he said. "We will need a person in the boys high jump. Our long jump team will be okay and I feel that we will be stronger in the running events."

A banner year is expected for the much experienced girls' track team that will return for Allen Central. Jessica Wade is one of the regions top performers and will be expected to advance to state competition again this season.

"Jessica will be running in four events this year," said her coach. "She will run the two-mile relay, half-mile, mile (1600) and two mile (3200)."

Jenny Wiley, Crystal Floyd and Misty Goble are expected to make their usual excellent contribution to the program and head to the state meet in May.

"Jenny will run the 400 and 200 meters," said Jamerson. "She will also run in the mile relay. Crystal will run the 400, half-mile and mile relay. Misty will run the two-mile relays."

Jamerson feels that his girls' relay team will be one of the best in the region.

"There's not going to be very many that will come close to us in the relays," said the Allen Central coach. "In fact, we may do some jockeying in the girls' relays." Floyd is expected to run the high hurdles this year, an event that will be foreign to her.

"We are already looking toward the regionals and plotting who will run where," said Jamerson. "In our boys' track and field we lost some good kids from last year's squad."

One was Shane Stumbo who is a senior this year but decided not to participate this season. Stumbo was one of the top hurdles performers last year, making a trip to the state.

Jamerson is hoping to pick up some extra points this year by adding the pole vault to his teams' list of events.

"Dan Stumbo is the only one that has tried pole vaulting although we do have three others that will be in the event," explained Jamerson. "Dan is the only one that has gone over the bar and none of the others have climbed the pole before."

Taking part in the pole vault event will be Stumbo, Steve Akers, Charlie Wade and Jim Reynolds.

"While we may lose points in the hurdles, we want to pick up some in pole vaulting," Jamerson said.

Although pole vaulting is a new event for Allen Central, Jamerson feels his team will fair well in competition this year.

"Pikeville is the only one that has been strong in pole vaulting and they lost their top two from last year's team. We'll be competitive."

Jamerson is hoping that Thomas Jenkins, an eighth grader at Martin, will run the hurdles for the Rebels this year. Jenkins is 6-5 and weighs in at 180-pounds, making him a solid candidate for the hurdles.

"He hasn't been out to practice as of yet," said Jamerson. "They're trying to find out if he is eligible for AAU basketball after playing varsity ball here. So we're hoping that he will be out for the team."

Gary Webb and Justin Scarberry will be returning hurdle runners. Jamerson is expected to move Jason Samons to the 400 hurdles and hopefully get Estill Stumbo involved in hurdles.

"Our distance runners and short sprinters are okay," he said.

Trevor Fitch, Kevin Patton and Kenny Scarberry return as sprinters for Allen Central. Patton will also participate in the long jump as well as triple jump. Scarberry will run in the half-mile relays as well as the mile.

Todd Howard is just a seventh grader at Maytown but a veteran when it comes to running. Howard has become one of the most promising distance runners for Allen Central. He will run in the half-mile and up for Allen Central and holds several school records.

Levi Wells, Shawn Robinson, Dave Gilliam and Ronnie Samons will work the discus and shot put pits for Allen Central. Also coming into the field event picture is Chris Bailey who will throw the shot put as well as the discus.

"Overall we look good for a good season," said Jamerson. "We're hoping to repeat as conference champions but I look for Wheelwright and Elkhorn City to challenge us. It's not going to be as easy as last year."

More interest in track and field has gotten other schools taking part and Jamerson says that is good.

"The more teams the better it will be," he said. Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne are expected to join Allen Central and Wheelwright in competition this year. Betsy Layne has had a team but scaled down to just a few athletes.

Allen Central will travel to Pikeville for their first meet on April 6. But the Rebels will have a busy week the first of the season having three dates to fill.

"After we go to Pikeville on the sixth we then return to Pikeville on the eighth and then on to Clay County (Invitational) on the tenth," said Jamerson.

Allen Central will also take part in the Boyd County Invitational on April 24 and May 1 will go to Shelby County for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Invitational. The Rebels will take part in the EKMC meet at Jenkins on May 4.

the 15th Region on a consistent basis.

According to reports, several other head coaches have applied for the job at the Martin County school and Superintendent Bill Slone has said that names are being withheld because those applying want to remain unknown until the job has been filled.

Slone has stated that he does want a winner at Sheldon Clark. Now, I don't know what constitutes a winner with the Martin County superintendent, but Harless has proven himself a winner. Regardless of who does come into the program next season, there will be no guarantee that they will be regional champions. There is no guarantee that the Cardinals will win 20 games. I know they return an undefeated junior varsity squad. But there has to be someone who is a veteran coach and already knows the system and whose system has been put in place to win.

I'm sure that Mr. Slone and the board of education in Martin County will weigh the matter and make the choice they feel is best for the school's basketball program without any influence from this sports editor.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Training League 8 & 9 yr. olds (At Adams Middle School)

Winners' Bracket

Saturday afternoon beginning at 12:30 p.m. The championship game will be played at 4:30 p.m. at Adams.

According to Neil Turner, a free throw shooting contest will be conducted during the tournaments.

"This is going to be the biggest one that we have ever hosted," said Turner. "It should be a good one. We're going to have T-shirts for sale and we're expecting a big turnout for the tournament."

Director Dickie Jarvis echoes Turner's thoughts.

"This will be the biggest tournament we have put on," he said. "We've had teams calling us wanting to get in it."

"The people from Lexington called and said they definitely wanted to play in it," said Turner. "They talked about how much they've enjoyed coming here before. The nice facilities that we have to hold a tournament in."

Passes will be sold for the tournaments. A pass will allow entry to either or both tournaments.

Athletic scholarships available

Over 100,000 collegiate athletic scholarships are available each year to male and female high school and junior college students' athletes.

Contrary to popular belief, students don't have to be all-state to qualify. Much of this money goes unused. A new publication with forms, sample letters and tables of factual information is available for student athletes.

It takes them step by step through the important process of getting an athletic scholarship and includes college and conference listings.

For more information on how to get a collegiate athletic scholarship, send a #10 self addressed, stamped envelope to the National Sports Foundation, 611A Willow Drive, P.O. Box 940, Oakhurst, NJ 07755.

Francis (Continued from B 5)

"I love basketball," said the veteran official. "I love the kids. I enjoy being around the coaches. I try to be fair to everybody and in this day and time that is hard to do."

Francis said that his rating for his work in the state tournament was also gratifying.

"I was real pleased with the comments and rating I received in the state tournament. I tried to stay on top of things with good hustle while retaining my integrity."

Francis prides himself in going through the whole season without calling a technical foul or having a coach challenge his calls.

"I think being a former coach and having taken a team to the state tournament helped in calling the tournament," explained Francis. "Other coaches respect you knowing that you have been there also. It was just a great feeling to work a state tournament."

Coaching in a state tournament and officiating one is a rare feat and not too many have accomplished the feat before.

"I think that Goble Ritter who coached at Hazard had a team in the state tournament and also officiated one," stated Francis. "It's a feat that very few people get to do."

"All that is left for me to do now is become a jockey and I'm too heavy for that."

Healthful Hints

Making Smart Choices Of Foods And Beverages

(NAPS)—A healthier lifestyle isn't just a matter of dieting, but rather making smarter, or better, choices in the foods and beverages we consume.

Tea, served hot or cold, tastes great and is a smart choice for a healthier lifestyle.

These tips for making smarter choices when it comes to what you eat and drink should be easy to digest:

- Look for "lite" dairy foods. Almost every dairy product is now available in a low fat form, including cottage cheese, yogurt, cream cheese, ricotta and mozzarella.
- Ask your butcher to trim the fat from the meats you order, and look for the new, leaner cuts.
- Add more grains and beans to your diet. Brown, wild and arborio rice, cous-cous, barley, split peas and chick peas. They're good for digestion and affordable to boot.
- Substitute fruits for less healthy snacks and the high-caloric sugar desserts of the past.
- Choose natural beverages such as tea, that are compatible with today's healthier lifestyle. Tea is an all natural, relaxing and refreshing thirst-quencher that tastes great, can be served hot or cold, and is a smart choice for a healthier lifestyle.
