City, school at odds over sewer issue

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Martin city officials have declared an emergency situation involving an inoperable sewer system which is the center of debate between the city and the board of directors of a private school.

City leaders are trying to head-off $25,000 per day in fines from the state's environmental protection agency (EPA) for a faulty sewer system they say they don't own. City officials say that the board of directors for Mountain Christian Academy (MCA) own the system and claim school officials installed the system without the city's permission.

Raw sewage is being dumped into Beaver Creek because of problems with the lift station.

David Gardner and Roger Recktenwald, with the Big Sandy Area Development District, told the Martin City Council Wednesday that the state's EPA officials are of the opinion it is the city's responsibility to immediately correct the problems with the sewer plant. He said that since the city has been accepting sewage from those lines, EPA officials feel it is up to the city to correct the problems.

Council members argued that MCA officials installed sewer lines and the lift station in 1983 without city approval.

Recktenwald told council that it was his understanding there was supposed to be an agreement between the city, MCA and the Martin Housing Authority which called for the city to take possession of the sewer project and reimburse the two agencies for their costs to install the system.

There is no signed agreement on file, Recktenwald said, and no easements were obtained from property owners on whose property the sewer lines were installed.

On August 4, MCA counsel Arnold Turner Jr. filed a civil lawsuit against the city and four property owners seeking to force the city to take possession of the sewer system.

The lawsuit also claims that the property owners, one of whom is councilman Pete Grigsby Sr., have illegally trespassed and tapped into the sewage treatment system built by MCA.

The school is seeking $28,480 plus interest from June 17, 1985, for reimbursement from the city. The suit also seeks damages and a connect fee from property owners Grigsby, Carl and Debra Price, E.C. and Garnett Moore and George and Mary Barnett for the alleged trespass.

At Wednesday's meeting, Gardner gave council a proposed settlement agreement from MCA which asks the city to repair the lift station and to

Owens inspects site

Floyd school board member Hattie Owens checked out the $450,000 "dirt pile" Tuesday at Betsy Layne Elementary. The local board voted last month to abandon the project. Group told three votes are needed to revive addition

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

It will take a majority of school board members to vote to proceed with construction of a 21-classroom addition at Betsy Layne Elementary, a citizen's group was told Tuesday.

Three members of the Floyd County Board of Education met with about 35 Betsy Layne residents Tuesday who asked for the meeting to question a board decision to abandon the classroom addition project.

Members Hattie Owens, Bob Isaac and chairman Eddie Patton listened to the citizens' concerns about the condition of the grade school building and the number of mobile units used for classrooms.

District Three board member Brent Clark did not attend Tuesday's meeting which angered some citizens because that was the second community meeting Clark did not attend.

Some citizens suggested that a write-in candidate be found to oppose Clark in the November general election. Clark is unopposed in the race for the District Three board seat.

Clark made the motion to cancel the Betsy Layne addition project at the July school board meeting. Clark argued at that board meeting that a middle school needed to be built first. Clark also said a middle school would eliminate classroom trailers at the grade school.

Board Chairman Eddie Patton told Betsy Layne residents the only way to get the project back on track was to sway the votes of three board members.

"Unless you get three board members to change their votes, it's a done deal," Patton said. "Another thing to look at is it's just as important to make this place as safe as possible before school starts."

Betsy Layne Elementary principal Fonzo Akers gave board members a list of repairs that need to be made at the grade school before school begins August 24.

Akers' list included fixing ceilings, repairing the plumbing and

Authority to seek grant for upgrades, expansion

The Prestonsburg Housing Authority will apply to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for a grant for 25 additional dwelling units and will resubmit a proposal to HUD for improvements to its properties.

If the housing grant is approved, the Housing Authority will look at possible sites for the project. The funding may also be used to add units to existing housing developments, Section 8 coordinator, Patsy Ryan, said during Wednesday's meeting of the Housing Authority.

The Housing Authority recently

requested that HUD fund several improvement projects. HUD reviewed the preliminary proposal, made on-site inspections, but asked that several items be deleted from the grant. HUD also requested that a revised proposal be submitted for approval.

Current improvement projects are estimated to cost around $218,000 and include the installation of a new basketball court at Indian Hills and replacement of curbs and sidewalks at Green Acres and Dixie. Approximately $80,000 of the funding will be used for termite treatment at Indian Hills and Dixie.

County gives final okay to property corp.

Floyd County Fiscal Court members held the second reading of an ordinance Wednesday to issue bonds to build a fairgrounds and convention center on property near Route 3.

Issuing bonds for that project was the only item on Wednesday's special meeting agenda.

After Wednesday's meeting, it was announced that a special meeting of the newly-formed Floyd County Public Properties Corporation will be held prior to the August 20 monthly meeting of the fiscal court. The meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in the fiscal court meeting room and the corporation will discuss authorizing the closing of the bond sale and the organization of the corporation.

The Floyd County Public Properties Corporation is separate from the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Public Properties Corporation.

Also Wednesday, County Attorney Jim Hammond commended the fiscal court for their initial actions in advancing funds for the Mountain Area Drug Task Force.

Hammond said the court was the first to obligate money for the six-county drug task force which will target street level drug dealers.

One injured

Freda Maynard of Inez was injured in a two-vehicle accident around 2:18 p.m. near Combs Bridge in Prestonsburg, Thursday. Maynard told investigating officer Anthony Castle that she looked both ways before entering U.S. 23 from North Arnold Avenue, but did not see an approaching car driven by Michael Lafferty of Goble-Roberts. Lafferty was not injured in the crash, Castle said. Both cars were totaled. (photo by Mike Burke)

Firefighters still looking for cause of Martin blaze

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Martin fire chief William Petry wasn't sure what caused the blaze that destroyed a home Wednesday night just outside Martin's City limits, but he said the fire was of a "suspicious nature."

Petry said firefighters worked an arson case at the location a couple of years ago at the request of the Unisign Corporation, which owned the house at the time. The house, located on Route 80 near the Martin bridge, was used as rental property, Petry said.

Petry said he wasn't sure who owned the home now, but an investigation into the fire would have to be instigated by the owners because the building was located outside city limits.

Neighbors told Petry that no one lived in the home. "It appeared as if no one had lived there for four or five months," Petry said. "The weeds were grown up."

The fire had been burning for more than 30 minutes when Martin firefighters were called to the scene. Because the home was "too far gone" when they arrived, firefighters concentrated their efforts on protecting power lines and a nearby home.

Firefighters ran a water shuttle from a hydrant in Martin because no water supply was near the fire site. Approximately ten firefighters battled the fire for about an hour and a half.

Citizens question board members

Betsy Layne Citizens asked Floyd County school board members Tuesday about their decision last month to abandon a 21-classroom addition project at the school. Board members Hattie Owens, Bob Isaac and chairman Eddie Patton made no promises, but said the issue will be on the agenda for Tuesday's meeting at Stumbo Elementary. (photo by Susan Allen)

Feud between clerk, mayor's wife erupts at city council meeting

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An ongoing feud between Martin's city clerk and the mayor's wife erupted Wednesday at the city council meeting with the city clerk emerging as the apparent victor.

Mayor Raymond Griffith's wife, Ann, accused city clerk Johnnie Stephens of not doing her job as the city's alcohol beverage commissioner.

Ann Griffith presented a report last month to council members which reportedly listed several city businesses shown owing the city penalty payments for failing to pay alcohol beverage taxes on time.

Stephens said Wednesday that whoever prepared the report did not understand the process in which taxes were paid. The clerk said that the payments usually ran a month behind because tax payments for July would not be due until August.

Pat Stumbo, representing Martin Liquors, asked who prepared the report that showed her business as owing over $10,000 in penalty payments.

Ann Griffith said that she had prepared the report using the clerk's records. She said her husband had asked her to do the report.

Council members Hazel Robinson and Pete Grigsby Sr. were surprised to learn that the mayor's wife had prepared the report.

"It's very irregular for Ann to come in and make those figures up," Grigsby said. "She's not on the payroll."

"We didn't know she was doing it," Robinson said. "How did you get the book?" Robinson asked Ann Griffith.

Mayor Griffith answered that he had copies of all city records at his home and the report was prepared from those records.

Kathy Isaac, who was with Stumbo, asked who took the clerk's records.

"I did," the mayor said.

Isaac said that the mayor's wife should not be trying to do the clerk's job.

"If it's not your job, you shouldn't be doing it," Isaac told Ann Griffith. "Just because you're married to the mayor, that doesn't give you the right to the ink pen and checkbook. It's the clerk's job, so why is someone else doing it?"

Stephens said the information Ann Griffith presented to the council did not come from her. The clerk then passed out copies of a sworn statement which said that the records Ann Griffith used were not in her handwriting. Stephens asked the council to dismiss her if they were dissatisfied with her work.

"If you think I'm doing such a bad job, fire me and get me out of here," Stephens said. "This is not directed (at the council), it's directed at me. It first started with Ann saying I was paying the city council illegally. Ann brought that up meeting after meeting. I brought in the law which said I was not doing that. And now, it's this."

"I'm under three bonds," Stephens added. "Do you think I'm going to do anything illegal? We will go to court. . . and that's not the only ordinance being violated."

Stephens explained that the council has ignored collecting penalties relating to alcohol beverage taxes for the past 11 years. She said the one time a case was turned over to the city attorney, it was dropped.

Councilman Jeff Jones said he could find nothing in the ordinance that the city could do if the penalties were not paid. Jones suggested that the ordinance be amended.

Grigsby said that he felt the city should not try to collect delinquent penalties and that it made no sense to drive a business out of town that paid the city approximately $30,000 in taxes annually.

"Why are we trying to collect $10,000 and drive these people out of town?" Grigsby asked. "I don't know why this is being pushed."

Mayor Griffith said the issue would probably go to court.

Jones disagreed.

"If we go to court, we're going to lose," Jones said.

"We may have to lose," the mayor countered.

Grigsby said that the council would have to vote to file a lawsuit to collect the money owed.

Robinson agreed.

"Surely to God one person, like Ann, can't say (if we go to court)," Robinson said.

Grigsby, Jones and Robinson told Stephens that they felt she was doing a good job as clerk and she shouldn't be concerned about losing her job.

Council voted unanimously to amend the ordinance to eliminate the penalty for late payments of alcohol beverage taxes.

Also Wednesday, Ann Griffith told the council that a certified public accountant had been hired to do the city's 1992-93 fiscal year audit.

That news caught council member Robinson by surprise.

"I'm glad to know it," Robinson said. "We didn't know it."

Some time after Ann Griffith's comments that an auditor had been employed, Mayor Griffith asked the council to employ Flo Bartrum to do an annual audit of the city's books.

"Ann said she's already been hired," the clerk remarked.

The mayor said Bartrum had not been hired and council unanimously voted to hire the CPA.

In other business Wednesday, several residents complained to council that a railroad crossing near Cracker Bottom was being blocked for up to 45 minutes by CSX trains.

Mayor Griffith told the residents that the best way to resolve the situation would be to obtain warrants against CSX for blocking the crossing.

City policeman James Burke explained that when the train conductors see officers approaching, the train moves slowly back and forth. Burke said that as long as the train was moving, officers could not cite the conductor for blocking the crossing.

The mayor agreed to go with citizens to the county attorney's office to see what can be done about the situation.

On another issue Wednesday, Sister Mary Fannin asked the council to join the state's certified cities program and she also asked the city to repair sidewalks near Our Lady of the Way Hospital. The mayor said that the sidewalks could be repaired. The mayor told Fannin that it was a good suggestion that the city rejoin the state program.

Councilmen Denzil Halbert and Steve Jenkins were absent from Wednesday's meeting. The next regular meeting of the council is Wednesday, September 8 at 7 p.m. at city hall.

take ownership of the sewer system.

Gardner and Recktenwald suggested that the city take immediate possession of the system and make repairs to the lift station to avoid being fined by the EPA. They also recommended that council have a meeting with Turner immediately to resolve the issue.

Council members were not in favor of taking immediate possession of the system and making the necessary repairs.

"We made a proposal (to MCA) about a month ago that we would take over the line if they would live up to the contract," Mayor Raymond Griffith said. "They wouldn't do it."

Griffith said MCA has not been paying a sewage bill because the city was giving the school credit toward the amount of money the city owed for installation of the system.

Griffith added that Turner had approached him asking that the city join in the lawsuit against the four property owners. The mayor said if the city joined in the lawsuit it would be admitting they owned the sewer plant.

Grigsby said he felt the city should have sued the school because permission was not obtained from the city or landowners to construct the sewer plant and install the lines.

"With the lines laid, it's too late," Grigsby said. "The horse got out of the barn."

Grigsby added that he had been on the council "quiet a while" and he wasn't aware of what was going on concerning the issue.

Councilman Jeff Jones favored taking possession of the plant and making the repairs to avoid being fined.

Grigsby disagreed, saying that school officials could decide not to give the city possession of plant after the repairs are made.

Council agreed to declare the issue an emergency and to arrange a meeting with Turner as soon as possible to resolve the problem.

The privately-owned property involved in the dispute is Martin Prescription Center, Pic-Pac Supermarket, Long John Silver's Restaurant, Reid's Pharmacy, Tackett Furniture Company and the SuperAmerica Station.

CONCURRENT NOTICE NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT AND NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS Aug. 13, 1993

The Floyd County Fiscal Court, Courthouse Annex, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, (606) 886-9193, applicant.
TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:
On or about Tuesday, Aug. 31, 1993, the above-named county will request the Kentucky Department of Local Government to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) for the following project:

RND Design, Inc., in which the county will acquire and improve a 60-acre tract located approximately two miles south of Martin, Floyd County, adjacent to Ky. Rt. 80. The property (Census Tract 980600) will be improved via grading, leveling and paving of additional parking area and improvement of the existing ditch drainage system. The property will subsequently be leased to RND Design, Inc., a manufacturer of outdoor lighting fixtures. Said acquisition and improvement will allow RND Design, Inc., to locate its manufacturing and administrative facilities in Floyd County and to employ a minimum of 60 persons.

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the above-named county has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The reasons for the decision, pursuant to Part 58.16(a)(3), are: 1) No public agency or individual has presented any data which indicates there are any negative environmental impacts to result from this project; 2) All environmental impact issues raised during environmental assessment have been resolved or will be addressed during project implementation; and 3) All NEPA requirements can be met without preparation of an Environmental Impact Statement.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the within project has been made by the above-named county which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request, in the Office of the County Judge-Executive, Floyd County Fiscal Court, Courthouse Annex, Prestonsburg, Ky., during normal office hours.

No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of federal funds.

All interested agencies, groups, and persons who disagree with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the county to the office of the County Judge-Executive. Such written comments should be received at the County Judge-Executive's Office, Floyd County Fiscal Court, Courthouse Annex, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, on or before the close of business Monday, Aug. 30, 1993. All such comments so received will be considered and the county will not request the release of federal funds or take any administrative action on the within project prior to the date specified on the proceeding sentence.

The Floyd County Fiscal Court, via its agent, the Floyd County Development Authority, will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the Kentucky Department of Local Government (KDLG) under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The Floyd County Fiscal Court is certifying to the State that county and Mr. Darrell Gilliam, in his official capacity as executive director of the Floyd County Development Authority and project certifying officer, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the Floyd County Fiscal Court may use the Block Grant funds and the State and HUD will have satisfied their responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. The State will accept an obligation to its approval only if it is on one of the following bases:

- (a) The certification was not in fact executed by the county's Certifying Officer.
 - (b) The county has failed to make one of the two findings pursuant to 58.41 or to make the written determination decision required by 58.47, 58.53 or 58.64 for the project, as applicable.
 - (c) The county has omitted one or more of the steps set forth at Subparts F and G for the preparation and completion of an EA.
 - (d) No opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 36 CFR Part 800.
 - (e) Objections have been made by a federal agency.
- Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to the Kentucky Department of Local Government, Division of Community Programs, Capital Plaza Tower, 2nd Floor, Frankfort, KY 40601.
- Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by the State. No objection received after Thursday, Sept. 16, 1993, will be considered by the State.
- Signed: Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, Floyd County Fiscal Court, Courthouse Annex, Prestonsburg, KY 41653.
and Mr. Darrell Gilliam, Floyd County Development Authority, certifying officer.

building canopies and paving walkways from the preschool trailers to the main school building and to the gym.

Akers also said that only five and a half of the school's 14 mobile classrooms would be eliminated if a middle school is built.

Citizens also expressed concerns that the local board has spent over $450,000 on "a dirt pile" which adds to the cramped conditions on the school campus.

Patton said that the pile of dirt, part of site preparation for the now-abandoned expansion project, will be removed and the area can be used for much needed parking at the school.

Board member Isaac said that the validity of contracts for the project architect and construction manager (CM) was the reason the project was abandoned.

"Contracts that were not properly signed is what stopped it," Isaac said. "That put the question on it."

Earlier this year, state school officials brought charges against late board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell for entering into contracts on the Betsy Layne project with the architect and CM without full board approval.

State officials were also concerned that the project cost had escalated from $1.3 million to $3.8 million.

At Tuesday's community meeting, board members offered no promises to revive the project, but said the issue would be on the agenda for Tuesday's meeting at Stumbo Elementary.

Arts & Sciences 100 :

PCC course designed for leaders and "wannabes"

Are you a leader? If not, do you want to be? If "yes" is your answer, a course at Prestonsburg Community College this fall may be what you need.

The course, targeted at community college students and adult community members who aspire to or are already in leadership roles, is called formally "Arts & Sciences 100: Phi Theta Kappa/W.K. Kellogg Foundation Leadership Development Project."

The long name refers to the background of the course, a part of the new National Leadership Development Project funded by a grant from the Kellogg Foundation and led by Phi Theta Kappa International Office.

PCC is the only college in Kentucky selected to participate in the project which addresses the need to educate and advance tomorrow's leaders.

The course is part of a three-year pilot project designed to spur leadership development for students and the community at large.

It will be offered Tuesday evenings from 6-9 p.m. on the PCC campus. Registration for the fall semester is set for August 18-27. The first class meeting will be August 31.

The purpose of the course is to help prepare students to assume increasingly responsible leadership roles in their personal, professional and/or academic lives, according to faculty members Dr. Bill Loftus and Lynn Weddle.

It focuses not only on theories of leadership and how leaders lead, but it also includes hands-on learning opportunities where students can "practice" leadership. The course objectives include (1) establishing and understanding the student's personal leadership philosophy, (2) learning critical leadership skills, and (3) completing three programs that will help students use what they have learned.

The class will also include discussion of real and fictional leaders in a variety of circumstances and prepare the student to interact with leaders in his or her community.

Provided to students at no cost will be the Phi Theta Kappa Leadership Development Program textbook. In addition, students will view films and engage in other learning activities, such as role playing.

At the beginning of the course, students will be asked to evaluate their own leadership strengths and weaknesses. Then at the end of the semester, they will reevaluate to measure their progress.

For more information, contact Loftus, assistant professor of sociology, or Weddle, associate professor of nursing, at 886-3863. Or, you may review the leadership textbook and course outline on reserve at the PCC library.

Paul D. Tackett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walker Tackett of Teaberry, has been hired as the principal of Osborne Elementary. Tackett accepted the position August 7. Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

A drop in the bucket

by Scott Perry

It looks like the president's promised "New Beginning" is relying on Congress' use of New Math to get things rolling.

That's about the only way to explain the Senate's decision last week to adopt Clinton's $467 billion deficit reduction plan, complete with new taxes.

Prior to the Senate vote which, by the way, was once again completed with the tie-breaking ballot cast by non-elected Veep Al Gore, polls showed Americans opposed to the plan by a 3 to 1 margin.

Another example, we suppose, of how our representative form of government isn't really representative of those it is elected to represent.

Just for your information, the tax increases authorized by the budget bill are retroactive to January.

Here's the good news...

Thanks to our government's fiscal responsibility, the national debt will increase by just one trillion bucks this year instead of by a trillion and a half.

Isn't that special?

OLD PROFESSORS JUST WON'T FADE AWAY

by Kenneth Eskey
Scripps Howard News Service

Come the end of this year, colleges will have a problem that defies easy solution: How do they get rid of aging, unproductive faculty members who no longer can be required to retire at age 70?

Tenured college professors—those with unlimited job protection—are one of the last exceptions to a federal law prohibiting mandatory retirement. The exception expires Dec. 31 and a committee of academics has recommended (no surprise) that it not be extended.

That means mandatory retirement will apply only to executives in policy-making positions who qualify for pensions of at least $44,000 a year. They can be retired at 65.

The irony here is that Congress recognizes the need for corporations to clear out aging executives but permits old Mr. Chips, who hasn't had a new thought in years, to continue pattering around the research lab or teaching a course or two.

There are bright, productive people working well into their 70s, but colleges will have little chance to pick and choose once mandatory retirement is eliminated. More often than not, the most competent faculty members will leave early, and the least competent will hang on until the last shot is fired.

A college should be resilient and intellectually challenging. That's hard to achieve when the same lectures delivered in 1974 are delivered in 1994.

Few workers stay too long in jobs that require heavy lifting, dangerous duties or severe stress. But a college campus is a different proposition. There's the daily interplay with fellow faculty members, the pageantry of graduation, the tickets to the football game, an office to go to, a lab to work in.

Personnel experts say the tendency to overstay will be strongest at research universities, where senior faculty members often have light teaching loads and minimal contact with undergraduates.

How these schools can induce aging professors to retire is a question that soon may rank with how to attract more students and how to hold down tuition increases.

"Colleges can offer windows (incentives) to retire, but those are expensive," says Mary Riebold, a managing director of Mercer Inc., a New York consulting firm.

Normally, she says, a company might compile evidence of poor performance before pushing an older worker out the door, but productivity is hard to measure on college campuses.

Loss of health-insurance coverage is an obvious drawback to retirement, not just for college professors but for other Americans who worry about medical bills. Workers under 65 need coverage before they qualify for Medicare. Those over 65 might be more inclined to retire if they were offered an insurance supplement to Medicare.

To some extent, the concern on campuses and in corporations about "old Joe who won't go" may be overrated. Most of us retire before 65 and only a small percentage are still working after 70.

But the trend toward early retirement easily could reverse itself in future years. People are living longer, retirement savings often are inadequate and anxiety over the rising cost of health care is making it hard to walk away from a job with good fringe benefits.

Young people, many of them with college degrees, are finding job opportunities few and far between. The market could become even tighter if millions of workers in their 60s and 70s decide not to retire.

When simply being there is not enough

We've just learned that the Floyd County Board of Education has taken steps to improve student attendance. From now on if a high school student misses more than nine days, unexcused, he will not get credit for those classes and a grade schooler who misses more than 18 will not be promoted.

Certainly, we applaud this attempt to keep kids in school and to prevent their dropping out. All school systems should have stricter policies and more rigid follow through, even if it means a return to the days of a snooping truant officer.

We also believe that rather than the accepted practice of expulsion, students who "act up" should be sentenced to come to school and, if need be, made to sit in a productive detention all day. It's always struck us as ironic that being told to not come to school is exactly what the problem student wants.

Likewise, tying the driver's license to staying in school is not a solution to any real problem — other than for the numbers crunchers.

The dropout problems that plague Eastern Kentucky schools cannot be solved by simply making the students show up. What does it profit a student to make him stay in school if he's not learning anything? If that's the case, the school becomes a poor model for a productive life after graduation. It tells a young person that the only real value is in being there, and we refuse to believe that's the point. So what if the dropout rate goes down? It looks good in a report to Frankfort. But that's only numbers. It does not mean education has improved.

The only positive, lasting form of dropout prevention hinges on two institutions — the school and the home. For the school to be effective in making kids want to stay in school, it must have, foremost, dedicated and creative teachers who can transfer a love of learning to the students. It must also have the courage to evaluate teachers based on their effectiveness. The school must also take seriously those programs designed to help the slower learner achieve success.

Of course, the basic love of learning must come from the home. It's difficult for any teacher to turn around a student whose parents do not value education or see its benefit. We can't legislate good parenting, but we can encourage it. The family resource centers are a good place to start. The courts, adult learning centers, social services agencies, employers, friends and neighbors all play a part, as well.

Forcing a young person to sit in a classroom serves only to please the pupil counters and the money dolers. It does not improve the educational system. That takes much more. Appalachian News-Express reprinted from the Mountain Eagle, Whitesburg

Prescription for action

This summer, there has been too much talk about what legislator's refuse to do on health care reform — raise taxes — and not enough talk about how to make health-care reform happen.

Enter a citizen activists' coalition and Dr. Grady Stumbo, chairman of the state Democratic party. To their credit, they're not willing to accept a do-nothing option.

That option is not adequate for the 28 percent of Kentuckians who said in a May Poll that someone in their immediate family lacked health insurance. Nor is it acceptable to the 32 percent who said when they were sick last year, they did not go to the doctor because they were worried about the costs.

For his part, Stumbo is ready to take the offensive. He plans to use the party apparatus to organize grass-roots support for health-care reform.

"It's not going to hurt to inject a little politics," he said. And he's right. If Democrats picked up their telephones and pens, legislators surely would be more inclined to work with the governor to begin writing a plan rather than sitting around talking the problem to death.

In a separate effort, about 20 advocacy groups say they will do their own grass-roots work to generate ideas and support for a health-care reform plan. They include such groups as the Community Farm Alliance, the Kentucky Association of School Administrators, the Catholic Conference of Kentucky and the Kentucky Academy of Family Physicians.

These efforts to organize are a healthy sign. Legislators know Kentuckians believe everyone should have a right to health care. Moreover, a majority of those polled in May would be willing to pay higher state taxes if all Kentuckians would be covered by a health insurance plan.

But legislators still appear reluctant to act. The only hope for breaking their holding pattern is for regular citizens to let them know they want action this year. — Lexington Herald-Leader

They couldn't pass the bucks

No one, of course, expected them to do otherwise. Former Kentucky congressman Larry Hopkins and Carroll Hubbard have pocketed their surplus campaign money under a convenient loophole in an ethics law that makes it all nice and legal — as long as they pay income taxes on the money. Obviously, the two just couldn't pass up the big bucks showered on them by contributors throughout their political careers.

For Hopkins, a Lexington Republican who represented the 6th District in the U.S. House of Representatives for more than a decade, the windfall amounts to $665,000 (before the inevitable tax bite). He could be the richest of the bunch that qualified to keep excess campaign funds if they left congress before this year.

Hubbard, the longtime Democratic congressman from the 1st District, will get only a minimum of $216,000 of unspent campaign money.

Perhaps netting hundreds of thousands of dollars they did nothing to earn will allow them to look their contributors in the eyes if either of them ever bothers returning to Kentucky to visit. Perhaps Hopkins can justify to his conscience breaking his promise not to take the money on the basis that no one believes campaign promises anyway.

Sadly that's true, and Larry Hopkins and Carroll Hubbard are two reasons why. — The (Frankfort) State Journal reprinted in the Lexington Herald-Leader.

ECHOES OF SLAVERY CAN'T BE IGNORED

By Leonard Larsen
Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON—An angry outburst by Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun, D-Ill., turned the Senate's stuffed-shirt white males into tail-wagging puppy dogs, seemingly so fearful of the first black woman ever elected to the Senate that they didn't dare contradict her excursion into revisionist history.

She targeted a legitimate if previously unnoticed grievance, a Confederate flag symbol used by an obscure organization, the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

And she shamed the Senate into backing away from what had been since 1898 a routine official approval of a design patent used as the insignia of the group, whose concerns are now said to be mainly with granting scholarships to high-school seniors and volunteer work at veterans' hospitals.

There's no quarrel here with elimination of an antique Senate ritual that endorsed display of a Confederate flag, even though that Confederate flag version is the original, without the stars and bars and recognizable by perhaps a handful of Civil War buffs.

But in scoring her great personal victory, Moseley-Braun still bulldozing the Senate's stuffed shirts also prevailed in a tortured view of history that would insist on wiping out important chapters of America's awful, agonizing and glorious past.

It was, after the noise and all the congratulations for Moseley-Braun died down, another example of a politician running off at the mouth and finishing up doing the wrong thing while trying to do the right thing.

There was, in Moseley-Braun's view, more to this than re-approval of an insignia for a little-known women's group, even more to it than an insult to black Americans and a foolish lack of feeling among the Senate's stuffed shirts.

"The issue," she lectured on the Senate floor, "is whether or not Americans such as myself who believe in the promise of this country... will have to suffer the indignity of being reminded time and time again that at one point in this country's history we were human chattel. We were property. We could be traded, bought and sold."

The Senate vote on re-approval of the patent. Moseley-Braun said, "is about race... and the single most painful episode in American history" and the flag of the Confederacy is something that has no place in our modern times... no place in our society."

Painful as it may be for Moseley-Braun and for all Americans, it is still the fact central to all that's happened since that black Africans were shipped to America in slavery, that the awful, pitiless commerce went on more than 200 years, that its burden split the country north and south and the Civil War erupted as a consequence.

Slavery can't be forgotten and the entire nation—not Moseley-Braun alone must "suffer the indignity of being reminded time and time again..."

There was slavery and there were slaves and, however much Moseley-Braun may be upset and insulted by the retelling, there was the long suffering of the Civil War in which nearly 500,000 Americans of the Union and the Confederacy lost their lives.

It's the history of that war that our nation teetered for a time at the brink of extinction over "the issue" that Moseley-Braun would now avoid. And it was the promise of the war that it settled the issue of slavery, ended it and outlawed it as the Founding Fathers wouldn't, shed the shame of slavery if it didn't end the shame of racism in America.

As for the symbolism of the Confederate flag, Moseley-Braun won decisively over Senate approval of its use by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. That's a start. Maybe now she'll apply her eraser to government libraries, historical texts and documents, novels, movies and TV, monuments, public buildings, perhaps to Civil War battlegrounds and museums that are federal property. Gettysburg might be a suitable place for her to start.

Chances are Moseley-Braun isn't going to win, either in obliterating the historical record or in her demand that Confederate flags just disappear. Certainly she's in for tougher fights than against the Senate stuffed shirts.

Youth indicted in firemen's death

A Fleming-Neon teenager has been indicted on two counts of murder in connection with the 1991 death of two members of the Neon Volunteer Fire Department.

And indictment returned by a Letcher Circuit Court grand jury charges that Tommy N. Yonts, 19, intentionally set a forest fire on October 29, 1991, that killed volunteer firefighters John Emerson Spangler and John Randall Adams. Both were 19 when they died.

The jury also indicted Yonts on two counts of first-degree wanton endangerment in connection with serious injuries suffered by two other volunteer firemen who were battling the blaze along Hogg Hollow Road.

Yonts has also just been indicted in connection with the burglary of a Neon auto parts store that occurred shortly after the forest fire.

In that indictment, Yonts and another man, Michael Arnett, are charged with third-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking for allegedly breaking into Vanover's Auto Parts on November 7, 1991.

Yonts and Arnett were scheduled to be arraigned Wednesday, August 11, before Letcher Circuit Judge Sam T. Wright.—The Mountain Eagle

Hearing set on Magoffin teacher

The state Department of Education has scheduled a hearing August 24 to determine whether former Magoffin County school superintendent Carter Whitaker should be removed as a teacher.

His qualifications was questioned by state Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen, who said Whitaker never spent enough time as a classroom teacher to achieve tenure.

Whitaker quit as superintendent in the face of 19 charges of misconduct filed against him two weeks earlier by Boysen.

Whitaker's wife, Phyllis, the district's testing coordinator, and teacher Johnny Green are accused of involvement in wrongful use of school district vehicles. Kay Arnett, a bookkeeper, also faces dismissal because she processed disbursements made by Carter Whitaker that were considered unlawful.—The Courier-Journal

WCC gets charter, Pontiki get for vote

Before the union election at Pontiki, both sides of the union issue held weekend meetings to discuss whether or not Mapco's Pontiki No. 1 and No. 2 should become Mapco's first union represented mine.

About 225 people, including about 130 hourly employees from Pontiki held a Saturday afternoon pig roast at the Inez swimming pool. In the weeks since 80, percent of Pontiki's hourly employees signed UMW authorization cards, an increasing number of employees have expressed doubt about the union's ability to effectively represent Martin County miners. These miners came to tell why they feel that union representation might not be beneficial to Pontiki miners.

Much of the Pontiki miner's district in the UMW was reflected in the words of Gary Ball, a union miner from Logan County and guest speaker at the picnic, who says the union's leadership let him down.

"There's not way that I could tell anyone not to vote for the union," Ball said, "but I can tell you what the leadership has done to me and to members of my local union. The union talks about job security. Well, they took our job security at Wade Eagle and sold it away."

On the other side, about 520 miners from Wolf Creek Collieries, Marrowbone Development and Pontiki came to a pre-election picnic at Laurel Lake Sunday afternoon both to give employees at Wolf Creek its new union charter and to encourage Pontiki miners before voting on August 13.

After swearing in local union officers, union officials said that they were confident of a union victory at Pontiki.

The selective strike began May 10 and has continued, though federal mediators continue to entice both parties to the negotiating table.—The Mountain Citizen

Mountain Top Baking proposes settlement

Strike-bound Mountain Top Baking has offered to settle 50 unfair labor practice charges with the United Steelworkers Union, officials said Tuesday.

John E. Philbin, spokesman for Ohio-based Consolidated Biscuit Co., said the company has agreed to pay some back wages to dismissed employees and those placed on suspension. However, he said those dismissed would not be reinstated.

Philbin said the company also agreed to post notices saying it would not engage in such illegal activity.

"The entire settlement is prefaced with an acknowledgement that this is not an admission of the violations," Philbin said. "From an expense standpoint, it costs far less to settle than it does to try..."

The NLRB made the formal complaint in April and must now consider the settlement.

Meanwhile, about 400 workers continue the strike they began late last month when the company failed to meet pay demands.

As for the alleged threats to shut down, Philbin said he told workers on several occasions that the idea was ludicrous.—Appalachian News-Express

Magoffin schools offer $75,000 to settle suit

The Magoffin County school system will pay $75,000 to settle a federal lawsuit by a woman who said she was fired because of her opposition to a huge landfill, the woman's attorney said.

Patty Sue Arnett claimed that she was fired last summer as a secretary of Magoffin County High School because of her involvement in the group Magoffin Countians for a Better Environment. The group was formed in 1991 to block a 300-acre landfill proposed by a Florida-based partnership called Eastern Kentucky Resources Inc.

Former Superintendent Carter Whitaker informed Arnett July 8, 1992, that she would not be rehired the next year. Arnett claimed Whitaker told her to "get out of the front" of the landfill dispute.

"We had them taped with Carter saying that he fired her because he was getting political pressure to fire her," said Gordon Long, Arnett's attorney. "They knew that they did wrong."

Arnett's case was scheduled to go to trial September 8 in U.S. District Court at Pikeville. She had asked for reinstatement but has since dropped that request.

A judge has ruled that the contract allowing the landfill was illegal, but the company has asked the judge to reconsider that position.—Lexington Herald-Leader

Creating a new environment

Maxine Daniel ponders her next stroke while painting a mural for a wildlife exhibit at the Dewey Lake Corps of Engineers office.

New wildlife exhibit at Corps office

The Corps of Engineers Office at Dewey Lake will soon house a beautiful wildlife display, thanks in part to the efforts of local artist, Maxine Daniels. Daniels, a resident of Van Lear, is painting a mural that will be used as the backdrop for a display of mounted wildlife, endemic to this area. The purpose of the exhibit is to show the wide variety of wildlife species found in our area and to educate visitors about what they may encounter hiking around Dewey Lake.

Some of the wildlife on display will include: squirrel, coyote, mink, deer, fox, pileated woodpeckers, owls, and an assortment of small birds and fish. All the wildlife to be exhibited are road kills, have been killed accidentally, or died of natural causes in and around Eastern Kentucky. The beautiful mounting work has been done by Paintsville Taxidermist Zeke Hensley.

Daniels discovered her interest in painting about 10 years ago, when she decided to take some time for her self. It really began as a hobby for her (she was in nursing for over 15 years) and developed into something more. She's been painting ever since.

Daniels has taken a few art classes, under the direction of Tom Whitaker, at Prestonsburg Community College, William Alexander of British Columbia, and Bob Ross in Cincinnati. She has sold some individual paintings and painted murals for other organizations as well. Some of her beautiful murals can also be seen at the Eastside Freewill Baptist Church in Thelma and the Auxier Freewill Baptist Church.

The mural Daniels is working on is entitled "Autumn Splendor" and is best described as a woodland scene with rolling hills near a meandering stream. The exhibit is expected to be completed sometime in September. Located in the lobby of the Corps office (just below the dam, on Rt. 302). Office hours are Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m.-4:00 p.m. Stop by for a visit!

Prime Country keeps on winning

Prime Country won the local level of the True Value/Coca Cola Country Showdown held at the Martin County Fair, Saturday, August 7. Prime Country will now go to the state finals to be held at the Sage Brush Roundup in Fairmont, West Virginia, September 11.

Last year the band won the KY/TN combined states title in the showdown at the Fall Color Cruise in Chattanooga, Tennessee and went on to compete in the North Eastern United States regional competition.

If Prime Country makes it through the state and regional competitions they will go to the national finals to be held in Branson, Missouri to vie for $50,000 and a recording contract.

This makes Prime Country two wins in less than a week. They won a preliminary in a "Battle of the Bands" contest sponsored by K-93 FM in Lexington held at the Sundance Club last Tuesday, August 3. The band, with members from Floyd, Johnson, and Morgan counties, will compete in the final round on Tuesday, August 24, starting at 8 p.m.

Floodplains and Wetlands Notice Notice of Explanation

The Floyd County Fiscal Court, via its agent, the Floyd County Development Authority, and RND Design, Inc., intend to undertake improvements to RND Design, Inc.'s proposed manufacturing location on Ky. Rt. 80 in Floyd County.

RND Design, Inc., plans to locate on a site on the east side of Ky. Rt. 80 approximately two miles south of Martin, Ky., in Floyd County. The property was most recently used by United Supply Co. The site fronts Ky. Rt. 80 and contains approximately 60 acres. Approximately 10 acres are flat to rolling land; the remainder is hillside property. A pre-engineered metal building of approximately 15,000 SF is on the site. The building includes 12,000 SF of manufacturing space and 3,000 SF of office space.

Site improvements will include clearing, grading, leveling and paving a parking area; and improving the existing ditch drainage system.

These improvements are needed to allow the Floyd County Fiscal Court to have a suitable location for RND Design, Inc., to locate its manufacturing facility in Floyd County.

A portion of this project is located in the 100 year flood plain. Proposed improvements to the property cannot be made elsewhere, nor can a suitable alternative location be found. There is, therefore, no practicable alternative to the proposed project.

The proposed improvements are not anticipated to have any significant or long-term impact upon the floodplain. The site and building are generally level with Ky. Rt. 80 and minimally impact the floodplain.

Standard mitigation measures will be utilized during all phases of the project scope to minimize any temporary floodplain impact.

Failure to provide these improvements would result in the inability of the Fiscal Court to successfully recruit RND Design, Inc., to relocate in Floyd County. It is the county's judgment that the beneficial economic impact of the proposed project outweighs consideration of Executive Orders 11988 and 11990.

The other agencies involved in this project are: HUD/Community Development Block Grant funds; Big Sandy Revolving Loan Fund; Industrias La Mesa (a Mexican firm); the Small Business Administration; and RND Design, Inc.

Comments on the proposed project will be accepted until Monday, Aug. 30, 1993. Please send your comments to the Big Sandy Area Development District at the address below.

A more detailed description of the project and the FIA flood maps are available for citizen review at the offices of the Big Sandy Area Development District, 100 Resource Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky., between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Signed: Mr. Darrell Gilliam, Executive Director, Floyd County Development Authority, P.O. Box 311, Prestonsburg, KY 41653.

THE INQUISITION REVISITED

It was all so innocent at first. A cheeseburger here. A Butterfinger there. Maybe a refreshing grain beverage or two. So, the Levi's were starting to get a little snug. Big deal. I mean, even though the button shot off that one day and knocked my wife colder'n kraut, she eventually woke up.

Sure, the thing about not being able to head down to the swimmin' hole on those hot summer days because my big, fat Casper-white body might cause somebody's granny to go into convulsions sort of bothered me a little, but I got over it.

"No problem," I thought. "I'll just do a few sit-ups sometime this century and work off those unwanted pounds. Or maybe settle down for a nice Suzanne Summers Thighmaster commercial and watch the blubber just melt away."

But the cheeseburgers and the Butterfingers and the refreshing grain beverages started to add up after awhile. Until yesterday, I didn't realize just how much.

Because yesterday, a day that will live in infamy and ever afterwards be known as The Great Geoff Belcher Porkchop Massacre-o-'93. I (oh, the horror)... I (oh, the humanity)... I... FAILED THE PENCIL TEST!!!

(We now pause for a moment to allow the ladies an opportunity to explain to their male companions the exact implications and ramifications of this horrendous event. Talk amongst yourselves.)

"What could possibly be next," I wondered. "Cottage cheese thighs?!"

I resolved right then and there never again to eat, drink, smell, look at or even think about anything that had one calorie more than your average styrofoam container. And of course, I'm sure you can just guess what I did next.

I ate an entire box of fudge-covered Oreos (well, you know, if I was gonna give up food forever, I had to have one last little snack to tide me over).

Right after that, though, I headed straight for the gym.

The REAL kind of gym, too. The kind of gym where anybody wearing spandex gets tossed out on his sissy little behind. The kind of gym where they knew better than to decorate the place with ferns because the overwhelming odor of 20-year-old sweat socks would just make them wilt anyways. The kind where REAL men grunt and cuss and lift REAL weights and compliment each other on their tattoos and stretch marks.

When I walked into the place, all heads turned. I was a manly man, and I knew it. I proved it, too.

Push-ups! Sit-ups! Chin-ups! Bench presses! Dead lifts! Leg lifts! Arm curls! I did 'em all. I even did calf raises (and let me just tell ya, them suckers may look awfully cute when they're standing in a field or sitting on a sesame seed bun, but they sure are heavy!)

In short, I did virtually every exercise on every weight machine, aerobic exerciser and torture device known to mankind. For three solid hours, I did nothing but sweat and breathe like an obscene phone caller, because I, manly man that I was, was bound and determined to tone, trim, lift and separate.

Somewhere along the line, though, maybe on that last set of squats, I think I maybe separated a little too much. Like a bone or two.

The doctors tell me it should heal pretty well, though, and won't hardly leave a scar at all. And I don't think the owner of the gym got too mad about all the screaming, because he said that everytime the ambulance comes by, the hardcore lifters get real impressed and enrollment doubles.

Still, he said he'd appreciate it if I didn't come back anymore.

I guess the moral here, kids, is that you should always consult a physician before beginning a strenuous exercise program.

Personally, I think next time I'll just settle down with a refreshing grain beverage and a Thighmaster commercial.

Saw a bumper sticker this week which fit right well into our current state of affairs which, if you've been keeping up with the news, generally concerns the government's plan to ease the national debt by increasing individual debt.

In economic circles, this procedure is known as Revenue Enhancement. The general public, however, will recognize the plan, in laymen's terms, as another "#@&!~# tax!"

Anyway, back to the bumper sticker...

"Forget keeping up with the Joneses," it said. "I can't even keep up with the Simpsons."

The Simpsons, for those of you who don't know them, is television's portrayal of the average family of the 90s which is as dysfunctional as their 1960s predecessors...like "Donna Reed" or "Father Knows Best" were pristine.

The similarities between Jim Anderson, the father who knew best, and Homer Simpson, the father who knows nothing, are few and far between...just like the situations faced by parents in the 60s and parents of today.

The Andersons had kids named Bud, Kitten and Princess, who went to sock hops, picnics and church socials. They used words like "gee" and "golly" and all the young women were virgins at least until their fifth wedding anniversaries.

The Simpsons have a son named Bart who advises one and all to eat his shorts.

The point of all this is that few of us have to work at keeping up with the Simpsons.

They do, after all, live in a cartoon world that is a heck of a lot closer to reality than the family fantasies portrayed in the 50s and 60s.

The Anderson family, no doubt, would have erased our federal deficit with a bake sale and had money left over to buy back the Panama Canal.

The Simpsons, in keeping with general public opinion over our country's fiscal state of affairs, would likely offer their standard solution to address the problems...

Don't have a cow, man.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Billie realized Curtis was her presumed-dead father. Moved by his profession of love for her, she agreed not to tell Bo about seeing the man who shot at John and Kristen. Curtis later called his boss to report he may have scared John and Kristen into staying apart, and if they don't, they'll be sorry. Bo spotted a blur in the photo. Holly told Blake she always loved her, and was sure she would have a better life with Ross than Holly had with Roger. Against Frank's wishes, Eleni asked Alan-Michael for her divorce settlement money for Marina's surgery. Macauley told Mindy, Nick had rifled through his houseboat. Nick's "lead" prompted Harley and Mallet to suspect a police coverup. Buzz stole the vintage car Jenna bought for Roger's wedding gift. Hart, furious at how Jenna created bad feelings between him and his father, Roger, told her Roger had also proposed to Holly. Wait To See: Roger is caught in a new dilemma.

LOVING: Ally and Casey agreed on a trial reconciliation. Gwyn and Buck were rescued. Tess' campaign went on, as Trucker learned Mac was dying. Faison was arrested after an explosive boat chase. Fearing Ava was dead, Jeremy nearly confessed his love for her, but after she was rescued, the couple began to bicker again. Despite Trucker's attempt to bring his father and brother together, Buck refused to get to know Mac. The sonogram showed no abnormalities, but the doctor cautioned Shana not to assume that all was well. Stacey asked Buck for a date. Wait To See: A jealous Gwyn has plans for Buck.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Ty considered Alex's bid for a second chance. Dr. Jonas was unable to put Cord under hypnosis. Angela and Cain conned Dorian out of $50,000. Todd created chaos in the courtroom to stop Powell from confessing. Nora was upset that her guilty clients would go free, but the judge refused to let her withdraw from the case. Viki assured Sloan his book on Victor Lord, her late father, wouldn't affect their relationship. Cassie was upset by the book's suggestion that Dorian may have killed Victor. Later, Dorian realized Angela had conned her. Wait To See: Cord has a "revelation" about his past.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nina seethed when Victoria turned up with Brandon at Ryan's surprise party. Brandon decked Ryan for saying Victoria was chasing after her ex-husband. Jill's mother, Liz, arrived to see her new grandson, whom Jill named for her late father, William Foster. Douglas found it hard to follow Victor's instructions not to tell Nikki he was alive. Nikki turned down Jack's bid for dinner. Victor told Hope that working on the farm gave him a new outlook on life. The judge ruled Jabot was to return to John Abbott. Lauren fantasized about intimate moments with Brad. Wait To See: Cricket faces a crisis in her marriage to Danny.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

A Cincinnati woman charged recently that a 42-year-old man sexually assaulted her after taking advantage of a medical condition which usually causes her to faint when she hears the word "sex." Allegedly, the man accosted her in her apartment building, uttered the magic word, and then assaulted her after she fell to the floor. In a court appearance in July, the woman fainted twice when prosecutors used the word "sex" in descriptions of her condition.

was once a Jehovah's Witness, and he regarded the boy's cry as an "omen."

— The Wilmington, N.C., Star-News reported in April that some parents from Gaston County had demanded that Africa and Germany be removed from maps and globes in local classrooms because they believe those places are anti-Christian. They also called for the suppression of Greek letters from the curriculum because they believe their use constitutes an endorsement of homosexuality.

— The London Daily Telegraph reported in November that the new state-of-the-art telescope operated by NASA and the Vatican Observatory in Arizona will be used to search distant galaxies for signs of intelligent life so that, if any humans are discovered, the Catholic Church will be prepared to baptize them.

— In June, the 40,000-member Christian Motorcyclists Association held its annual national fund-raiser, "Run for the Son," in Sedalia, Mo. CMA's purpose, said an organizer, is to ride "the highways and byways to promote the gospel of Jesus Christ."

— And later in June, the week-end-long "Christian Woodstock" rock music festival, "Creation '93," was held near Mount Union, Pa. It featured a "fringe stage" for punklike bands, which, wrote an Associated Press reporter, sounded like mainstream punk rock but, according to lyrics sheets, made clear Biblical references. Also in June, the Austin (Texas) American-Statesman profiled local Christian rock concert organizer Blanche Pall, who promotes heavy-metal acts like Mortification and constantly argues with ministers over whether the music is satanic.

— A floating shrine in the Bocaue River in The Philippines capsized in July, drowning more than 300 worshippers who had boarded it in prayer as part of the annual nine-day religious festival in the town of Bocaue.

— Oral Roberts University withdrew its City of Faith complex from the Tulsa, Okla., real estate market in June after failing to attract a buyer in more than a year and a half. The three towers (one 60 stories high, unusually tall for Tulsa), once ORU's medical school, were built after Mr. Roberts revealed that God told him to build it.

— Postal carrier George Yoerger resigned in Menville, Iowa, in June after refusing to deliver copies of Time and Newsweek because the covers featured sexual themes. "As a follower of Jesus Christ," Yoerger said, he had no choice but to resign.

THE WEIRDO-AMERICAN COMMUNITY

Kenneth Morseon, 36, was arrested in Portage, Ind., in June after he forced a service station employee to sell him, after closing hours, three quarts of oil, which he then poured on himself in order to ward off evil spirits.

LEAST COMPETENT PERSON

Fernando Rivera, 28, was arrested in July in New York City after he allegedly attempted to rob an elderly woman in line at a bank. Police surmised that Rivera went to that bank because he failed to acquire the $1,000 he had expected from robbing another bank: He had left off a zero in the holdup note, and the teller had dutifully given him only $100.

I DON'T THINK SO

Lars Christiansen, 19, and Michael Peters, 25, charged in a German court in May with killing three men last year in a right-wing political firebombing, admitted they had joined the neo-Nazi movement in Germany. Peters had even left a "Heil, Hitler" phone message to the police after the firebombing. However, both men said they didn't hate anyone and had joined the movement only because of the friendship and "free beer."

FREE WILLY

On the surface, the more cynical among you may sneer that this movie couldn't possibly miss. After all, it has the requisite heart-tugging bond between a precocious kid and a very clever animal (in this case, a whale). Not only that, the movie is politically correct in that it champions the "Save the Whales" movement.

Yet, after viewing this flick, there's much more going on here. This is truly a stunning film. It is artistically executed, and all the actors, including the whale, know just how to get through some of the more wrenching scenes without overdoing it, as is the case with many movies of this ilk.

Newcomer Jason James Richter is Jesse, an angry, lonely orphan who amuses himself by splashing graffiti all over the place. When Jesse defaces an aquatic theater which just happens to house Willy (Keiko), a killer whale, or orca, the boy is sentenced to community service cleaning up the mess he's made. Willy, as we learn in the beginning of the film, has been snatched from his parents quite cruelly. It seems that orcas are family-oriented creatures which stick with their family groupings their entire lifetimes. In fact, it is not unusual for an orca to remain with its mother for over 50 years.

Willy was languishing in his too-small tank, refusing to cooperate with the seedy owners of the theme park. Although highly intelligent, Willy will not execute any of the tricks he's being taught. He's obviously homesick.

As fate would have it, Jesse and Willy discover each other. Reaching out in their mutual loneliness, the two create a beautiful relationship, and Willy decides to do his tricks just for Jesse. However, the greedy owners of the whale soon discover he's worth more dead than alive (insurance), and Jesse sets out to "free Willy."

There are several subplots, but what I've just related is the meat of the film. What's particularly delightful about this movie is the fact that it is never maudlin. It never pushes the audience to the point of saccharine overdose. Best of all, this is something you can bring the kiddies to without fear of anything even remotely inappropriate for them. I give it four stars.

BURIED ALIVE

It is probably a good thing that I never became a soap opera addict.

Admittedly, once or twice I got caught up in episodes from different daytime dramas, and a few nighttime programs, but something always kept me from becoming a full-fledged fan.

This was fortunate for me because if I had been watching one particular soap last week, I would have been having nightmares.

"Sara!" my friend cried. "A woman's been buried alive!"

"Good Lord, Jean! Who?"

"A woman on TV.!"

"Avalanche?"

"No!" she screamed.

"Earthquake?"

"Huh, huh," she replied painfully.

"Quicksand!" I exclaimed.

"No. A friend just buried her alive."

Whoa!

Maybe I take friendship too seriously, but if one of my "friends" ever tried to bury me alive I'd remove their name from my Christmas list.

"Jean?" I asked cautiously, "Is this on the news?"

"No, it's on a soap.

Even though I didn't know the woman—and it was only acting - the thought was unsettling.

"What kind of program would stoop to burying people alive?" I asked.

"Obviously a desperate one,"

Jean replied. "It's sweepweek."

That would explain it, but what a morbid subject. I couldn't help wondering what type of twisted mind would resort to this tactic.

"Is she dead?" I asked.

"No. She still has oxygen, and the woman who buried her put a walkie-talkie in the casket so she could talk to her. Sort of to torment her, I guess."

As far as I'm concerned being buried alive under six feet of dirt would be torment enough.

Several days after this conversation, I asked Jean how the live burial was coming along.

"They dug her up."

"Good. I couldn't keep from thinking about it."

"You couldn't! Why did you think I mentioned it? It's my worst nightmare."

"You're kidding," I laughed.

"It's my greatest fear. Isn't it yours?"

"Nope. My greatest fear is getting hooked on soaps."

HAND-ME-DOWNS—I have three daughters who wear hand-me-downs. Each has a foot locker of handed-down clothes to grow into that have been passed on from the older sister. When one outgrows clothes, they go into the next locker until they fit the next person. This helps keeps clothes sorted until needed. Louise K., Ventura, Calif.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Business and pleasure don't mix this week. Small problems could arise now in connection with a friendship. Career concerns may take priority over recreational pursuits. Guard against a tendency to spend too much money.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Feelings deepen in romance, and couples will enjoy good times together this week. Home life may be upset in some way. It is not the best time to have company over. The weekend finds you in an extravagant mood. Make sure that your plans are down to earth.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Not everyone will agree with you this week. It is a poor time for financial negotiations, though some progress will be made in a career endeavor. You could overlook some important details now. Some you deal with this week tend to exaggerate.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Plans for shopping should be put off until another time. Some extra expenses could arise this week. Make sure you get the proper compensation for your services. Social life is active this weekend, and you will spend a bit too freely. Happiness comes through romance and leisure activities.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You will be able to bring an end to a family problem this week. Guard against a tendency to overdo, and watch your sweet tooth. It is not a good week for work interests. Hence, an existing assignment may take more time to complete than anticipated.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You could be fretting about little things this week. Try not to dwell on problems, but make a point of getting outside of yourself through relaxing endeavors. Not all is clear in the romance department. Advice you receive may be misleading. Weigh opinions carefully.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family member with hurt feelings needs extra attention this week. Shoppers may come home with an unusual purchase. An obstinate partner may not want to join you at a social function. The weekend spells merriment, but watch a tendency to go overboard on spending or the use of credit.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You have charisma this week and are effective in getting your ideas across to others. It is not the best week for career interests, however. Be less critical of others. This weekend, your moods veer from over-optimism to unjustified fears. Seek a middle ground.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) There could be something you are taking for granted on the job this week. Stay on top of small details. There is some concern about a financial matter. Be tolerant of those whose beliefs differ from your own. Travelers could meet with extra expenses this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Be careful not to abuse credit this week. Partners may disagree about the use of joint funds. Singles meet with romantic introductions. Group activities are favored. Penny-pinching ways alternate with extravagant spending. Self-indulgence is a possibility this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This week's behind-the-scenes developments may benefit your career. You may be a bit short-tempered now with a close tie. You may inadvertently hurt this person's feelings. Try to be more trusting of others. Rise above a tendency toward suspicion of others' motives.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You may have to forget about that plan to work on a pending project this week. Constant interruptions mean that little will be done. Friends from afar contact you. You may somehow become unduly involved with a friend's problems. Remember your priorities.

Young Authors

The Floyd County Times and the Department of Instruction of Floyd County Schools jointly feature the student work of Andrea Jarvis a Young Authors' winner from the late Mrs. Desta Price's room at Adams Elementary. Her book, A Book of Poems, was a winner in the seventh grade poetry competition. Her writing is printed with permission.

Andrea's book was a room winner, a school winner, and a county-wide winner for the 1991-92 school year for her book. She received a $50 U.S. Savings Bond at a spring awards ceremony. Over 5,000 elementary and middle school students participated in competition throughout the county.

A book of poems

by: Andrea Jarvis
This book is dedicated to all of my friends. They inspired most of my poetry. Thanks for everything Danna, Tiffany, and LeAnna.

The Heartbreakers

Good looking guys
With beautiful eyes.

The best at baseball—
Or any sport.
The ones that look great
On the basketball court.

The boys with white, dazzling smiles.
Always on their face.
They'll always flirt with any girl.
No matter what color or race.

The ones you notice
Before they notice you.
If they just happen
To flash that grin your way,
You scream and freak—
And don't know what to do.

If you just happen
To snag a date,
He may not ask you again—
But you went out
With him at any rate.

The Rose

The perfect petals so soft
Like a baby's skin,
The long green stem

Gently swaying with the wind.

To glitter in the morning sun,
It adds to the beauty
Beckoning me to come.

"Come and enjoy my fragrance
Held so deep within.
Come and admire my petals so red.

And come watch with me
As the day begins,"
Is what the rose
Seemed to have softly said.

And as the sun sets
Behind the horizon,
I watch the golden rays
That it's surrounded by.
They add to the elegance
Of the lovely rose,
And soon darkness fills the sky.

The bright stars
Accent the rose,
And I watch as I stand near,
I think of how
The new mist and dew,
Remind me of a newly fallen tear.

My Country Life

Up early to feed the cows and hogs,
And we have to kill a chicken.
Mama's gonna fix it up for dinner,
It'll be so good and finger lickin'!

I put the cows out to pasture,
And I fed the hogs their slop.
It's getting hot outside now,
I'd like to have a soda pop.

But Pa will have none of that,
And then I'm ordered to feed the goat.

I do as I'm told and leave the killing of the chicken for my brother to do,
I go to check on our
goat, Bessie,
And find her feeding her kid so new.

After all my chores are done
I run off to play for a while.
I go down to my neighbors house,
Who lives down the road
'bout a mile.

Mama calls me home to eat,
And after I'm finished
I go to sleep.
I dream of sweet things
And how I love my country life.

The Floyd County Times and the Department of Instruction of Floyd County Schools jointly feature the student work of Jonathan Shepherd, a Young Authors' winner from Mrs. Cheryl Moore's room at Clark Elementary. His book, Adventures of a Mountain Boy, was a winner in the "books with words" competition. His writing is printed with permission.

Johnathan's book was a room winner, a school winner, and a county-wide winner for the 1991-92 school year. He received a $50 U.S. Savings Bond at a spring awards ceremony. Over 5,000 elementary and middle school students participated in competition throughout the county.

Adventures of a mountain boy

by Johnathan Shepherd

Once upon a time, my cousin got caught with nine squirrels. He was lucky they didn't take his gun. He brought them down the hill. We skinned the squirrels and after that we went fishing.

We caught catfish, sucker, bluegills, sun-dad, bass, and a hornyhead. After that I went home.

The next day, we went to climb hills, hunting for gingseng, yellow root, bloodroot, and all kinds of things.

We saw two snakes. We saw a black snake and a copperhead. Then we rolled rocks. We climbed trees and we saw a gray squirrel and a fox squirrel. We can find all kinds of things to do in the mountains.

We went home. It was dark and I got my telescope. I looked at the stars. The next day I helped my mom plant the garden.

We planted onions, tomatoes, and flowers. I look forward to springtime in the mountains. Next spring I can do all the things I did this spring.

My six sisters and my brother help in our garden and in the house. We are a happy mountain family.

BASEBALL, A TROUBLED SPORT..

Major League baseball owners are searching for a way to save the game and bring back some kind of order to what was once billed as America's favorite pastime. The high salaries of spoiled baseball players, plus the escalating cost of operating a team have caused some concern to those who are unfortunate enough to own a major league club.

Now the owners are seeking a salary cap for players for next season and they want to expand the playoff format.

No one is to blame for the chaotic conditions that face the owners other than the owners themselves. They are the ones who started the bidding wars for the services of players in hopes of "buying" themselves a World Series title.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter challenged the free agency market and won, setting a precedent for other players to follow. Hunter's jump from the Oakland A's to another club established what has since gotten out of control.

Owners, such as New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, have been adding fuel to the flame. Steinbrenner went out in the early '80's and enticed some of the game's top players to come as free agents to the Yankees in hopes of winning the World Series. One such player was Dave Winfield from the San Diego Padres. Winfield never played on a World Championship team while in New York.

Owners such as Marge Schott haven't been too good for the game. She allowed her team to roll up the largest payroll in the National League and one the highest in the majors.

Now, Marge is wanting "boy wonder" Jim Bowden to cut the payroll drastically.

The Padres have all but traded the farm trying to reduce the salaries on the ballclub.

Is there a conspiracy from the owners going on? Are they trying to break the Major League players union?

I feel that it is too late for a reversal of this ongoing situation. It is only going to get worse and hurt baseball. The television networks are crying "foul ball" over the loss of revenue in carrying the games into homes.

The players and owners, or their representatives, must come together and agree upon a plan that will spare the game of more greed and ill feelings or major league baseball will be nothing more than a glorified minor league system.

Two threats are looming over the game today. The players are threatening to strike next month when they feel it would hurt the owners the most — the owners are close to receiving $250 million for post-season television revenue. The walkout would hold up or postpone the playoffs and series.

The second threat is a lockout by owners in spring training next season that could hurt the players in their preparation for next season.

The owners have offered a revenue sharing proposal to the players but the owners also want a salary cap and other concessions for the offer.

I personally don't care if they cancel the whole season next year and let the spoiled children go out and find a real job. I have always loved the game of baseball on the major league level. I have all my life been a Cincinnati Reds fan. But right now, I am fed up with the whole bunch and I really don't care if they ever play another game or not. Professional sports have a way of putting a bad taste in your mouth.

On the local scene, there is trouble in the Kentucky Rifles camp. The entire coaching staff quit this past Wednesday. Coach Roy Cutright, Pikeville College coach, and his staff left the team.

Former major league standout Johnnie Lemaster will take over the helm of the Rifles for the remainder of the season.

The franchise has been in disarray since late July because of poor management of team affairs. They also have failed to generate any fan interest in the area. Most of that is due to poor public relations on the part of the Rifles.

Attendance has been very disappointing and the lack of support from the Paintsville area has had a negative effect.

Reed, Reffitt ink letters-of-intent with Pikeville College

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Pikeville College girls' softball coach Paul Butcher is serious when it comes to putting together a competitive team in 1994 that will be a solid contender.

Butcher inked two of the best in Floyd County when Amy Reed and Carolyn Reffitt inked letters-of-intent with the Lady Bears Monday night at the college.

"We doubled our scholarships this year," said assistant coach Bill Baird. "This year we have ten $2,000 scholarship to give out."

"Last year we only played 10 players because that is all that we had," said Butcher. "Next year we will have a full squad."

Pikeville finished 3-6 last year while playing in the K-IAC conference and District 32. But the Lady Bears had to battle the weather.

"We had 12 games rained out on us," said Baird. "Next season we have 25 games scheduled, plus we will play in two tournaments."

Reed and Reffitt helped make the Prestonsburg High School softball an immediate success with their natural ability to play the game. Coach Bridget Clay said that both were exemplary athletes.

"They both were neck and neck in leading our team," she said. "They both gave a 110 percent effort all three years they played here at Prestonsburg."

Reed led the Lady Blackcats this past season with the long ball. She connected for 12 home runs while sporting a .580 batting average. Reed picked up 28 RBIs which was second on the ballclub.

Reffitt had 56 hits in 91 plate appearances where she batted .615, second on the team. She collected 26 runs batted in and had three home runs.

It was the defensive ability of Reffitt that made her an outstanding outfielder in high school and she hopes to carry that ability to Pikeville with her.

"I'm looking forward to playing at Pikeville next season," said the former Lady Blackcat. "I'm amazed that I made the team."

"I like the school because it is small and close to home. I feel that the people there are ready to help when I need help. I didn't want to go to a larger college where I would just be a number."

Reffitt said that she wants to learn while at Pikeville and "have fun playing softball."

"I feel that I can make an immediate contribution next season," she stated.

Pikeville was looking for some speed in their outfield and they certainly found it in Reffitt. But her coach thinks that she never did recognize her ability.

"Carolyn just never did realize how good she was or could be," said Coach Clay. "She never played softball until high school and that was only in our first season three years ago. She just kept getting better and better."

"Carolyn has the potential to be a great outfielder," said Coach Baird of his recent recruit. "She has excellent speed for an outfielder and is a very good hitter."

Clay said that Reffitt's strength lies in her ability to hit with runners on base.

"She is a more effective hitter with runners on base," said the Prestonsburg mentor. "Also, she played a strong defensive game in the outfield for us. She is a tremendous athlete. So quick. Has good power and is good line drive-type hitter."

Reed has excelled in the game of softball and comes from a baseball oriented family. Her father, John Reed, will also be helping out at Pikeville College next season as an assistant. Brother Alvin was a member of the Harold-Allen-Prater All-Star team.

Justin Ray: "I'll be back"

As you scan the South Floyd Raiders football roster, the name of Justin Ray appears there, although he will not be able to throw or run any time this year.

Ray, who was injured in an automobile accident, remains part of the Raiders' team. He will be the team's statistician this season. While being disappointed about this season, Ray is looking forward to next year.

"I'll be back" were the words that Ray used. "I'll be back and playing next year. I'm looking forward to it."

Grigsby inducted into National High School Hall of Fame

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

What does former McDowell girls' basketball standout Geri Grigsby have in common with sports legends such as Oscar Robertson, Jackie Robinson, Jesse Owens, Red Grange or Jack Nicklaus? The National High School Hall of Fame is all.

"This is the top of all the honors that I have received," Geri said. "I don't know of any other honor that I could share that would mean as much."

Geri is the most prolific scorer (boy or girl) in the long, storied history of high school basketball in Kentucky after her stellar career at McDowell High School.

Because of her accomplishments at McDowell, Geri was inducted in the National High School Hall of Fame. Her parents, Pete and Phyllis Grigsby, along with her basketball coach Johnny Ray Turner, attended the festivities held at the Stoffer Hotel in Nashville, Tennessee on June 29.

"This is an honor that I can share with my family, coach and friends and all the fans at McDowell High School," Geri said. "It is something that I want to share with the people at McDowell."

"I was fortunate to have a coach like Johnny Ray Turner who gave me the freedom to score like I did."

"The girls that I played with at McDowell — there will always be those memories. Sometimes we get so caught up in life and in our work that we fail to think of those things."

Basketball became a sanctioned sport before Geri's sophomore season, and she proceeded to put McDowell on the basketball map the next three seasons. She had yearly point totals of 1,079, 1,421 and 1,885 for a grand total of 4,385, the most in the history of five-girl basketball nationwide.

The former Lady Daredevil had been inducted in other halls before the National High School Hall of Fame. She is also a member of the Kentucky-Indiana (summer series) Hall of Fame and Kentucky High School Athletic Association Hall of Fame.

"I never dreamed that all this would happen to me when I started playing basketball," she said. "I was small and, being a girl, I thought I never would have a chance to accomplish all this."

Geri could not play girls' basketball as an eighth grader or freshman because there was no girls' sport. However, Geri fell in love with the game and attended her father's practices while he was coach at McDowell.

"I was fortunate to have the opportunity to play basketball," Geri stated. "Title IX gave me that chance."

"She would come to practice and play against the managers," said the former McDowell coach. "Then, of course, she would practice outside at home."

Geri said that many times that she would attend her dad's team practice and it would "be 30 boys and me" playing.

"I never dreamed she would use her skills the way that it has turned out," her dad said.

Geri, in her freshman year, made an impression on then-boys' head coach David Turner.

"He was considering using her the next year on the boys' varsity," said her father. "Then that was the year that Title IX came in and they had a girls' team at McDowell."

"We knew the law had been passed requiring Title IX," said Geri, "but it was up to the individual school as to whether they wanted to implement it. I would have hated to have forced a decision on whether to play on the boys' team."

"I hated to see the end of McDowell High School," she continued. "So much of dad's life and work was there and all the memories that I have."

Adams looks to break 1,000-yard mark for South Floyd Raiders

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The South Floyd Raiders will take to the gridiron August 27 when they face the Betsy Layne Bobcats. The game will not only open a new season for the team, but will usher in the beginning of a new school.

While it may be a new school with a new name, one player will be returning — and he has a goal in sight.

Arnold Adams has long been one of the top running backs in the region in high school football. He will enter the season with over 800 career rushing yards and hopes to break into the exclusive 1,000-yard club in the first three games of the 1993 season.

"That's my goal this year," he said at a recent practice. "I want to go over the 1,000-yard mark."

Adams was the county's third leading scorer last year, scoring nine touchdowns, five conversions for 64 points.

A hard-nosed runner, Adams has the good speed that many fullbacks lack.

Adams is not ready to rest on past laurels but hopes for a big senior year for the Raiders.

"I want to go out and do real, real good this year," he said. "I believe we may surprise some people this year."

Adams likes the makeup of the Pikeville team in district play and also Fleming-Neon, although "Side Saddle Jack" has stepped down.

"Neon is a good program and always tough," said Adams. "Pikeville has tradition going for them and they will be good again this season."

Adams likes the mixture of veteran players and the youth that seem to be coming in this year, especially from McDowell.

"The players from McDowell are wanting to learn to play football," he said. "I try and help out all that I can. I offer some advice on certain situations. I don't push my advice on them but I am willing to help if they ask."

"I think they are catching on real fast. They are out there giving 150 percent in practice."

Adams said that he, along with teammates Cruise Caudill, Charles Johnson and Patrick Tackett, are going to have to show the team leadership this season. Several of the returning players will be experiencing some position changes and must catch on quickly.

"Cruise will be moved into the backfield this year," explained Adams. "I think that he will be a

Allen Central's Hall wins "hot shot" competition at camp

by Ed Taylor

Allen Central's point guard Jeremy Hall is known for his ability to hit from the three-point range in basketball. The hot-shooting guard used that ability and won the "Hot Shot" competition at the prestigious Hoops Scoops Camp recently in Campbellsville.

Each contestant in the event had to see how many points he could score in a one-minute time limit. Hall scored 42 points in the 60 second span.

He also finished second in three-point competition. Hall qualified for the finals in this event by drilling 10 out of 10 treys.

Also attending the Hoops Scoops Camp was Allen Central's Thomas Jenkins. Jenkins was impressive in the camp as he and Hall were on the same team.

Players from all over the nation were on hand for the camp that included thousands of college scouts.

A Look At Sports

Pikeville doesn't draw all that much more than Paintsville. The average attendance is around 50 at Pikeville and close to 35 at Paintsville.

Two teams in the newly formed Frontier League folded and ceased operations last month. Their demise caused some speculation that the entire league may be in trouble.

Other franchises such as Zanesville and Portsmouth have found fan, as well as business support, in their area.

The players are good and are entertaining to watch and to follow. I haven't covered many Rifle games because of the athletic events that take place in Floyd County. I feel that coverage of local events is the most important to our fans in the area. However, because I haven't covered the Rifles much doesn't mean that I am against the league.

Just the opposite. I want the league to be a success. I want the teams to stay intact and come back next year stronger than before. The games that I have covered I enjoyed.

But I feel that someone is going to have to step in and be more of a salesperson for the Rifles team if it is to survive. No stats, results or news releases are ever sent out from the Pikeville office. The team's public relations output is very low and almost nonexistent.

General Manger Raymond Ferrell will have to take a long hard look at the team after the season is over and then immediately get things together for next season. A good public relations officer must be hired by the Rifles and there is none better than Jason Blanton of WSIP radio.

I have worked with Jason before and he has headed up the media relations departments for regional basketball tournaments. He can sell. He can sell the Rifles and he would be a tremendous addition to the staff.

I hope the folks at Paintsville/Pikeville get the franchise back in order. Lemaster will be a fine replacement for a manager. And I believe that with him connected to the team, a more positive outcome will result.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

A point of view..

rough one back there. He's a strong runner.

"Charles will move to a split end slot. But that should be an easy move for him. He did real well last year.

"Patrick also will move into the backfield with Cruise and myself."

But there are question marks.

"Who will play quarterback for us is the big question mark for us this year," said Adams. Two freshmen and two sophomores will be vying for the signal calling slot and Adams believes that it could be a slim year behind center with the inexperience.

However, Adams feels that this ballclub will be a good club at the halfway mark of the season.

"I think once we get a few games and some learn their positions, we will be a good ball team," he said.

"While Pikeville and Fleming-Neon are the top two choices in the district,

I feel that the other four teams (Allen Central, South Floyd, Jenkins and Elkhorn City) will match up pretty well."

Adams says the team (consolidation) will blend better than people think and the two schools have hit off thus far.

"I'm looking forward to the start of the season," Adams said. The highlight for Adams last year was beating Johns Creek and making the playoffs for the first time since the '70's.

Adams struggled some last year as a junior and feels that other teams were keying on him. He came on strong toward the end of the year to lead the Trojans to a playoff berth.

The South Floyd Raiders, who returns 18 seniors, may be inexperienced in some key spots but with Adams in the backfield, they have one of the best in the region.

On hand for celebration!

It was a big night for Geri Grigsby as she was inducted into the National High School Hall of Fame in Nashville, Tennessee. Helping to celebrate the occasion were her father Pete Grigsby Jr., Billy Wise, KHSAA Commissioner and Johnny Ray Turner, Grigsby's high school coach. (photo courtesy of Phyllis Grigsby)

Geri said that what she had accomplished was not only for her. She felt she was a pioneer of sorts for others to follow.

"I feel what I have done is not for me alone but also for those before me who did not have a chance to play basketball.

"I remember my first game that I played," she recalled. "It was on November 1, 1974 and we were playing Allen Central at home. I was a sophomore then and the gym was packed.

"Most of the people who came out came out of curiosity. They didn't know what it was to watch girls play basketball. Allen Central (Kathy) 'Catbird' Isaac played then. We got beat, but I did score 37 points in my first game. That broke my dad's personal record of 36 points."

The former McDowell standout believes that every girl should play some type of organized sports.

"Every kid should play. It helps with the things you encounter in life. It helps you cope with adversity, disappointment and dealing with success."

Geri was also a Parade All-American and played in the National All-Star game her senior year in which former Boston Celtic great Bob Cousy was the coordinator.

She holds the scoring record for the Kentucky-Indiana series by scoring 30 points at a time when only four-minute quarters were played.

"I am surprised that her record has stood as long as it has," said Grigsby. "The family is very pleased with her and her accomplishments. She was just a little ahead of her time."

The elder Grigsby said that it was by accident that he noticed her skills at playing basketball.

"I was still coaching in '72," he said. "Dickie Parsons (former Kentucky assistant) and Joe Hall were here scouting Steve Smith who played for me then.

"We were standing outside of my office talking and Geri was playing a game against some of the boys on the floor. We were standing where we could see the end of the floor.

"Dickie said to me, 'Who is that girl playing basketball with those boys? She is burning them up'. That is when I first noticed her skills."

Geri played three years at the University of Kentucky and played her senior year at Western Kentucky.

During her 95-game career, Geri averaged an amazing 46.1 points per contest, with high games of 81 and 66. The 81-point mark is the fifth best nationally in history. She holds the national record for points scored in a season (1,885), and her junior year total of 1,421 ranks third according to the National High School Sports Record Book. Her senior year scoring average was a phenomenal 49.6 points per game.

She was a three time all-state performer and was named Miss Basketball in Kentucky her senior season after finishing runner-up in the balloting as a junior.

In 1978, she was named Kentucky's Sportswoman of the Year.

In addition to her massive point totals, Geri managed to average about seven rebounds and eight assists per game, and she shot 50 percent on field goals while hitting at a 75 percent clip at the charity stripe. Academically, she was perfect with a 4.0 grade-point average.

"The older I get the more I appreciate the honors," she said. "I never expected to be elected to the National Hall of Fame.

"The good people of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association nominated me. They presented me to the selection committee and gave them my stats. I was voted in.

"When you look at the list of those that have been elected to the Hall of Fame, it makes it even more of an honor."

Geri is currently an attorney with the EEOC in Washington, D.C., and resides in Alexandria, Virginia.

Inks with Pikeville College

Reffitt signs with Pikeville

The Pikeville College women's softball team got a lift when they signed Prestonsburg's Carolyn Reffitt Monday evening to a letter-of-intent. Reffitt signed in the presence of her parents Kenneth and Phyllis Reffitt. Watching the events are Pikeville coach Paul Butcher, Prestonsburg coach Bridget Clay and assistant coach Bill Baird. (Continued from B 5)

Reed is a solid performer and will be a good team leader even as a freshman. Coach Clay said that Reed is a package of talent.

"Amy is a solid ballplayer with great potential," she said. "She has much talent and will be a big addition to the Pikeville program."

"Amy is a tremendous all-around player," said Coach Baird. "Not only is she a tremendous athlete, but an outstanding student as well."

Coach Baird said that Reed will see playing time in the outfield as well as playing some first base, her natural position in high school.

"She can play either position and play them well," said Baird, who recruited Reed.

Reed echoed the same sentiment as Reffitt in stating her reasons for picking Pikeville as her college choice -- the small school atmosphere.

"I like it also because it is close to home," she said. "I had considered going to Eastern but I wanted to play sports."

Reed feels that help will be readily available for her if she needs it at Pikeville College.

"I like the coaches there," she continued. "I was very impressed with them."

While not only starring in softball this past season, Reed also was All-District and All-Conference while at Prestonsburg her junior and senior year in basketball. But basketball will have to take a back seat to softball.

"I've always enjoyed baseball and it will be good to have my father there to help coach me. He's the one who got me started playing. He was my coach when I attended Mountain Christian Academy."

Clay expressed her best wishes for the two athletes and hopes they "both do well."

"I'm going to miss them," she said. "But I'm glad they are continuing to pursue their academics and will be playing athletics.

"I'm proud of them and both players made us the success that we were."

Reffitt, unlike Reed, wants to continue to play basketball and may try out for the college team as a walk-on.

"I would like to play basketball at Pikeville," she said. "I just don't want to have to sit the bench. I'm not used to doing that."

The two girls have been teammates for the past four years and Reed is glad that Reffitt will be making the trip.

"I'm glad that Carolyn is going to Pikeville also," she said. "We've been together a long time."

Reffitt said that she had also considered Kentucky Christian in Grayson.

The loss to Prestonsburg High School is Pikeville's gain and the coaching staff at Pikeville landed two of the best in the state, not only in ability but in personality as well.

Ray

Ray's disappointment is over the fact that this was to be his season with a shot at being the team's starting quarterback.

"This was to be my year," he said at a recent Raider practice. "I had a shot at being the starting quarterback, but I'll be back."

Ray was the backup quarterback to Steven Shelton last year at Wheelwright. With the departure of Shelton, Ray was the likely choice to replace him.

Ray is a very positive thinking young man and a pleasure to be around. One has to think, when talking with Ray, that he means just what he says -- he will be back.

The young sophomore quarterback seemed to be in good spirits and looking well. He has one hand in a brace and he has no use of his left thumb.

"But the doctors say that the feeling will return to it eventually," said Ray.

We're thankful that this young man is improving and just to see him walk across that field gives us that much more to be thankful for.

We believe that Justin Ray will be back!

NEWS OF HEALTH

Hysterectomy Breakthrough

(NAPS)—Women facing hysterectomies may be out of the hospital in two days and back to work within two weeks thanks to a new minimally invasive surgical technique that dramatically reduces pain, scarring, recuperation time and costs for many patients.

New surgical technique sends many women home within two days of a hysterectomy.

Called Laparoscopically Assisted Vaginal Hysterectomy, or LAVH, the procedure is gaining wide acceptance because it is performed through 3-4 tiny openings instead of a 4- to 6-inch incision. The small incisions mean patients avoid a hospital stay of nearly a week and up to six weeks of painful recovery at home. Surgeons perform LAVH with specialized instruments, including a new surgical stapler, while viewing the patient's internal organs on a video monitor. For a free brochure about LAVH call: 800-423-USSC.

Healthy Eating For A Healthy Heart

(NAPS)—Heart attack is the number one killer in America. One of the major factors that increases your chances of having a heart attack is a high level of cholesterol in the blood.

Changing your diet is often the most effective way to lower or maintain your cholesterol at a desirable level. Many of us eat almost half of our daily calories in fat, and our bodies respond by making more cholesterol. Your goal should be to limit fats to less than one-third of your total calories. You can do this by avoiding fats, such as butter, and "hidden" fats used in processed foods.

Another way to reduce your cholesterol level is to eat more fiber. One kind of fiber (soluble fiber) lowers your cholesterol level by keeping the cholesterol you eat from being absorbed by your body. Oats, fruits and beans are rich in soluble fiber.

Eating more complex carbohydrates can also help reduce cholesterol. Complex carbohydrates such as grains, beans and root vegetables (carrots, potatoes, beets, etc.) aren't terribly fattening, and are healthy substitutes for fatty foods.

For every one percent you lower your cholesterol, you can reduce your risk of cardiovascular disease by two percent.

HAIR TODAY!

The Right Tools For Today's Hair Styles

Self-holding rollers make setting a breeze.

(NAPS)—Pretty, soft and feminine are the operative words for hair styles this season. The wash n' wear hair of the past has been replaced with wavy, ringlets and tousled tendrils. Curling tools are on the roll again. According to Helen Oppenheim, Publicity and Creative Director for La Coupe Hair Salons in New York and Montreal, "dressed" hair, hair that's curled, crimped or permed, is one of the important trends.

To simplify settings, traditional tools such as curling irons and rollers have been given a new twist. Oversized-mesh rollers, like the new Self-Holding Rollers (SHR) from Goody Products, Inc., are popular because they're gentle on the hair and easy to use. They grip hair firmly in place and are ideal for creating soft waves and springy curls. Use them on dry or damp hair but always unwind rollers, never yank them out.

Whether you opt for crimped waves, spiraled curls, updated Afros or simple shiny straight hair, selecting the right hair brush is key to maintainance and styling. Since hair brushes come in all shapes, sizes and bristle types, it's a good idea to check out the brush that's best suited to your hair texture and style. Shown below from left to right, a selection of salon-style brushes from Goody Products, Inc. designed for different hair needs: contour handled Ultra Lite™ styling brush with Comfortip® bristles gives crimped hair a finishing touch without pulling out waves; flare brush with tufted bristles smooths straight hair and keeps slicked-back hair in place; medium round brush flips hair out or under; round blow-styler makes an ideal curling brush; vented Comfortip bristle brush detangles and styles wet hair and is designed to use with hand-held dryers and the black matte ACE® all purpose vented brush is ideal for long, free-flowing manes. Goody Products, Inc. is introducing a new collection of ACE brushes coordinated to the ACE hard rubber signature combs that have been a mainstay of American grooming for 140 years. The ACE brushes have longer handles and come in a choice of styles and bristle types.

COMPUTER NEWS AND NOTES

Computer Hardware For Today's PC Owner

(NAPS)—An increasing number of local stores now offer many new products that meet the needs of today's sophisticated personal computer (PC) consumer, surveys show.

In the not so distant past, PC purchasers needed hands-on help from vendors to assemble and install their systems. All that's changing. These days, consumers are increasingly comfortable with electronics products and many are extremely sophisticated in their knowledge of computers and peripherals. They expect to be able to purchase off-the-shelf components and match up their own processor, monitor, printer, modem and other compatible peripherals.

Meeting the needs of the new generation of PC consumer is a family of computer hardware created by Identity Systems Technology, Inc. The company manufactures and markets several families of computers, peripherals, and upgrade products under the IDENTITY™ brand label, that match IBM compatibles and Macintosh®.

By supplying a full line of products under one label, the company can offer price-competitive, high-quality, system-assured products—factory-tested for compatibility. Clear, informative package labeling and detailed installation and operation instructions make it easy to choose components and set up the system yourself.

Today's computer buyer wants upgrades that work well together and are easy to install.

Many retailers carry the full line of Identity products so consumers benefit from one-stop shopping convenience. HEALTH HINTS

Taking Your Medicine—The Easy Way

Health care professionals say that there are many reasons people don't take their medicine. Some are forgetful; others dislike the flavor, and for still others, the medicine's delivery system, or form, makes it difficult to take. These concerns may seem to be minor, but they can significantly affect the likelihood that patients will take their recommended dosage.

These days, however, you don't need a spoonful of sugar to help the medicine go down. Through advanced technology, the pharmaceutical industry is now producing an array of revolutionary new forms to suit almost everyone's needs. For example: there are patches now available that are simply placed on the skin for people trying to quit smoking and who are uncomfortable with the taste or texture of prescription chewing gum.

There's also good news for stomach problem sufferers who complain about the taste of traditional stomach antacid remedies. New technology has been used to produce Mylanta Gelscaps, an entirely new form of antacid which is swallowable and non-chalky.

Technology has produced an entirely new form of antacid.

With so many options, here are some helpful hints to help you get the most out of our medicine:

• Look for new products. Look around for new products and new technologies on the shelves that make taking medicine easier to swallow.

• Talk to your doctor or pharmacist. Ask your health care professional about the availability of different flavors or forms. If you must take medicine with an unappealing taste, find out if you can take it with a food you like.

• Be a good patient. If you find you're not taking your medicine, don't be embarrassed to tell your doctor or pharmacist. Let them help you find another way to administer your medicine.
