Chances look good for racing next year

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

It appears that persistence has paid off for a group trying to bring harness racing to Floyd County with Tuesday's comments from a member of the state's Racing Commission that 1994 racing dates will be recommended for a Floyd County racetrack.

Johnny Jones, vice chairman of the racing commission and chairman of the dates committee, said after Tuesday's committee meeting it appears that live harness racing is on its way to Floyd County.

"It looks to me like I'm going to be recommending to the full commission, unless something comes up between now and then, that the dates be granted as presented," Jones said Tuesday. "I think they want a racetrack and I think the county wants a racetrack and I think they're going to get one... but it needs to be done properly."

The Racing Commission meets Monday, August 30 to announce live racing dates for 1994.

Tuesday's comments from Jones ended a four-day flurry of activity for the Floyd County Public Properties Corporation, the fiscal court and representatives of Mountain Racing Incorporated.

School construction issues continue to pester officials

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County School Board members voted Thursday to proceed with plans to build an athletic track facility at Allen Central High School and fire the project architect for apparently dragging his feet on the plans.

Board member Hattie Owens moved to fire architect Randy Burchett because he has repeatedly failed to meet two-week deadlines he imposed on himself to present drawings of the track facility.

"It's been going on a long time and all we got out of this man is excuses," Owens said. "It's not just the track—it's the (Adams) middle school, too. If he's too busy, he should release the project."

Owens added that Burchett had designed a "state of the art football field" that was not requested for the project.

Board members Owens and Bob Isaac and chairman Eddie Patton voted to "terminate the services" of Burchett and board member Brent Clark abstained from voting, saying he was a "personal friend" of Burchett's brother.

The architectural firm of Ross Feldman and Associates, who has a consulting contract with the board, was chosen to proceed with plans for the Allen Central track.

The board also put Burchett on notice to finish plans in two weeks for an addition to Adams Middle

For board to meet state improvement criteria :

Final exam date nears

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

It's final exam time for the Floyd County Board of Education and its superintendent with a comprehensive report due September 15 to state school officials outlining improvements made in the district since a scathing state report on the district was released last summer.

Earlier this year, Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen warned that the Floyd County system could face a state takeover if adequate improvements were not documented by September 1993.

At Thursday's continuation of the board's monthly meeting, board chairman Eddie Patton told fellow board members and superintendent Steve Towler that that report will most likely determine the state's next move in the Floyd County district.

"This board and the superintendent will be getting their final grade," Patton said Thursday. "I can't over emphasize the importance of that report. It has been requested by the state that we submit a comprehensive report showing what we've done since the improvement plan has been in effect. It has to be submitted to the state by September 15."

Board member Hattie Owens commented that the report should not be put off until the last minute and that the board have ample time to review the findings.

"Let's get started on the report and not wait until September 14 to get started," Owens said.

Board member Bob Isaac directed Towler to have the report finished by September 13 and have copies sent to board members.

"It could be six inches thick," Towler said.

New Mud Creek offices on display

An open house will be held Saturday, August 28, for a new office building at the Mud Creek Clinic.

The new office complex adds one of the area's most needed services—a dental office, said Eula Hall, founder of the Mud Creek Clinic. Bryan Griffith, formerly of Allen, will be the dentist on staff, Hall said. Griffith is a recent graduate of the University of Kentucky Medical School.

The complex also houses the Mud Creek Water District and the Food Pantry.

The celebration begins at 2 p.m. Tours will be given of the facility and refreshments will be served.

The office building was built through the efforts of volunteers, Hall said. Supplies and labor for the building were provided by churches in the Louisville area, including the Ballardsville Baptist Church.

Off-the-court battle may be next for Allen Central Rebs

by Ed Taylor

When a visitor approaches the gate that leads to Allen Central High School, he is welcomed by a sign that reads: "Allen Central High School, Home of the Rebels."

In the inner courtyard flies the American flag and the state flag. The two are surrounded by four "Rebel" flags.

Once inside the concourse of the gymnasium, a huge Rebel flag is embedded into the foyer floor, signifying that the visitor is indeed in Rebel territory. Painted on the gymnasium floor is a "Rebel" dribbling a basketball.

The main building welcomes its visitors with a Rebel soldier seated high on horse on the wall near the water fountain.

Allen Central, which opened its doors for the first time in 1973, has always had the mascot name "the Rebels."

But if the Kentucky NAACP has its way, all that will be history. The school may be asked to drop the Rebel nickname.

There are eight high schools in the state that have the Rebel mascot name and all eight will be requested to find other names and symbols. Those named were: Allen Central, Boone County, Boyle County, Casey County, Louisville Atherton, Owen County, Todd County Central and West Hopkins.

Allen Central principal Jody Sword was unaware of the movement to oust the Rebel name and he declined comment until he could familiarize himself with the situation. He promised a statement later.

(See Rebs, page two)

Could be Rebel's last ride!

There has been much in the news lately concerning high schools that carry the Rebel name. Allen Central's rebel soldier sits high in the saddle overlooking the water fountains in the foyer of the school; but he could be making his last ride if the Kentucky chapter of the NAACP have its way. The chapter wants all eight Kentucky schools that use the name to find another one because the "Rebel" name and other Confederate logos are considered offensive. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Missing man found near home unharmed, again

After rescue workers had combed the hills of Meade Branch Monday night for a missing Abbott Creek man, he was found early Tuesday morning about 15 feet from his residence by his sons.

Members of the Floyd County Rescue Squad, Floyd County Sheriff's Department and Kentucky State Police began searching for Edd Hall, 74, around 9 p.m. Hall, who reportedly has Alzheimer's, wandered away from home to go ginseng hunting, said Chuck Hall, with the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Rescue workers searched the hills and creeks on Meade Branch of Abbott Monday until around 4:30 Tuesday morning for Hall, who has a heart condition, said Onda Hunt, a member of the Floyd County Rescue Squad. The search team returned to town to have breakfast and to regroup for a full-scale search effort, Hunt said. Before rescue workers returned, they received a call from Hall's family telling them he had been found about fifteen minutes after rescue crews left.

Hunt said this was not the first time rescue workers had hunted for Hall.

About a year ago, Hall was reported missing at Martin, Hunt said.

Parents of special needs students meet

An organizational meeting for parents of special needs children who attend the Floyd School System will be held Tuesday, August 31 at 7 p.m. in the conference room of the Floyd County Courthouse Annex.

Delores Dingus, a parent of a special needs child who is organizing the meeting, is asking parents who are having problems getting help for their children to attend the meeting.

"We parents have to stand up for our children or who else will?" Dingus said in announcing the meeting. "Together we can make a difference. This new school board is willing to work with us. We must make them aware of the problems we have always faced in dealing with the central office staff."

Open house set for new circuit court

Floyd County Circuit Court Judge John David Caudill will hold an open house at the new courtroom facility Monday, August 30 from 10 a.m. until noon.

The new courtroom facilities are located in the old Korner Drug Store building in downtown Prestonsburg. Refreshments will be served and the public is cordially invited to attend.

What's the deal on the county's racing deal?

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Plans to bring horse racing to Eastern Kentucky have often been as clear as a jockey's goggles on a muddy track, but the concept behind the proposed development is really nothing new.

The picture has been clouded somewhat by the public-private relationship formed to effect the development and a last-minute flurry of activity to accumulate information needed by the state Racing Commission.

Those familiar with a now-defunct system of funding private enterprises through industrial revenue bonds will recognize similarities in the proposals for financing development of the Floyd County project.

In the late 70s, industrial revenue bonds were primary sources of funding for a variety of commercial ventures...like shopping centers. Bonds were issued under government authority, by either a city commission or county fiscal court, and they were repaid by the private company which used the proceeds. Government agencies had no risk or obligation to repay industrial revenue bonds.

The racing project in Floyd County, which is actually to be a multi-purpose facility, will utilize government sponsored bonding and privately invested funds. Bonds issued by the county's fiscal court do involve some risk and obligation on the part of the county, but there are protections built in, as well.

Here's a summary of how the project will work:

- The county's fiscal court has authorized the sale of $2.7 million in bonds at a low interest rate...probably below five percent.

- Revenue from those bonds will finance the construction of project elements that do not deal with actual racing or gambling. For instance, bond proceeds will pay for the construction of a convention center/stadium, site acquisition and preparation, parking and access roads.

- Private investors have pledged approximately $3.5 million toward the project. Those funds will pay for racing/gambling related costs like the race track itself, stables and an intertrack wagering facility.

- Private investors make up a corporation known as Mountain Racing, Inc. That corporation will lease the entire facility while live racing is being conducted...about 45 days a year...and will lease the intertrack wagering facility on a year-round basis.

- Lease payments from the private corporation will equal bond payments plus ten percent. As long as the racing project remains afloat, financially, the county will bear no expense.

- Should the private corporation fail, the county would be obligated to pay off the bonds. A "fail-safe" system would give the county the option to convert the site, located on Route 3, to an industrial park where coal severance proceeds can be used to retire the debt.

- During the 20-year term of the bonds, the private corporation may at any time pay off the total indebtedness and become the sole owner of all facilities and property.

Answers to some commonly asked questions:
Will public funds be used to finance a gambling enterprise?

No, public funds will finance only the elements not associated with racing.

Will bids be taken on the construction process?

Yes, a single proposal was accepted by the fiscal court last week only to assure state racing officials that a commitment was available. The bid remains sealed and others will be sought for opening next month.

Who are the private investors?

Seventy percent of the stock in Mountain Racing is owned by former Governor Julian Carroll, Prestonsburg businessman Clyde Woods, and bond agents Terrell Ross and Merrel Sinclair. Thirty percent is owned by minority stockholders who include Caroline Baldrige and Randy Burchett, of Prestonsburg; Nancy Loy, of Columbia; and Ched Jennings, whose address was not listed.

The state Racing Commission's sub-committee on dates reportedly agreed Tuesday to recommend 45 live racing dates for the Floyd County track for 1994. Those dates are tentatively planned for July 3 through Labor Day.

Construction is well underway on the track itself and other elements are expected to be underway by October.

A Times Analysis

Rebs

However, Floyd County schools Superintendent Dr. Steven Towler said the decision will rest with the Allen Central principal.

"Usually the school council decides things like this, but Allen Central has no council," said Towler. "The request for the change will have to be made to Mr. Sword who will deal with it as necessary."

"He then would bring it to the board who has the responsibility to oversee matters in the school district. If the board agrees with the change then a change will be made."

Towler also stated that others would be involved in the decision-making, namely the students.

"The student body at Allen Central would be involved in the decision. They would vote to change or not to change."

Towler recalled when South Floyd was originally named the "Miners," but that was changed.

"The students at McDowell and Wheelwright didn't want the name Miners at South Floyd but decided on the Raiders. So, the board agreed to the change."

Not only is the Rebel name in danger, but all that is a reference to the Confederacy in the schools, such as flags, logos, uniforms, yearbooks, mascots and school newspapers.

Allen Central has most of the above. The Rebels have a mascot who is dressed in a full Rebel uniform who carries and waves a large Rebel flag. Rebel logos are found throughout the school. The name "Rebel" appears on the team's new football jerseys as well as track shirts.

Delegates for the Kentucky chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Color People directed their state President William Cofield to make the request to the schools.

The conference stated that the use of Confederate flags and mascots as well as nicknames are wrong. The Kentucky chapter feels that the flags, mascots and logos stand for a system that's offensive to African-Americans.

If Allen Central school is asked to make such extensive changes, the cost would be enormous to the school system. New football jerseys would have to be ordered for the football team as well as for all other teams at the Right Beaver school.

"Our track jerseys have 'Runnin' Rebels' on the front and you're talking about replacing them," said track and field coach Dewey Jamerson.

One of the crowd-rousing songs played at basketball games has been "Dixie" and the band could be asked to no longer make that one of their selections at future games.

"It would be quite a cost to us if we have to change everything," said Towler. "Mr. Sword will have to look at the cost of such a move."

New uniforms would have to be purchased at a cost to the school. The Floyd County Board does not provide monies for uniforms except for new schools.

"Where South Floyd was a new school, we did purchase the uniforms for them," said Towler. "But for a school that is off and running with a program, it is their responsibility to fund the purchases."

Towler said that this sort of request is not new. The Atlanta Braves and Washington Redskins are professional sports teams who have Indian mascots that the American Indians have tried to change.

"The Indians feel that those two names downgrade them and they tried to get the names dropped without any success."

Towler recalled one school he was associated with where the nickname was "Red Devils."

"Some thought it was promoting Satan worshiping," he said. "There are a lot of mascots around and problems with mascots go back a long way. The problem with the Rebel mascot is that it is a symbol of the South during the Civil War."

Towler said that some of the those involved may not want to change.

"They may not feel that it is offensive," he said. "In a place where you have a large group of minorities it would be different, but you don't have that many minorities in Floyd County.

"I suppose that Mr. Sword will want to check with some of the other seven schools and see how they will handle the situation."

Towler said that if Allen Central and the board decide to not change the name after being asked to, the only way the change could be enforced "is in the courts."

"I don't think they will want to go that route," he said.

Owens told the superintendent that he makes arrangements to have copies of the monthly meeting agenda delivered to board members and that he could have the report delivered.

In May 1992, a 32-member team from the Kentucky Department of Education conducted an investigation into the district's instructional, fiscal, construction and personnel management practices.

The findings of that investigation were released in August 1992, and were highly critical of the management of the school system. The report said that the children of Floyd County were being denied adequate educational opportunities because of "a fundamental breakdown in the governance and leadership of the school district."

State officials directed the local board to develop a short-term improvement plan to be submitted to the state by September 15, 1992 and three-year long-term improvement plan due by December 31, 1992. The local board missed the September 15 deadline and was given until October 15 to submit the short-term plan.

State officials have been monitoring the local district's progress since last October.

KET offers more on dinosaurs

Contrary to common belief, dinosaurs were not the sluggish, slow-moving beasts often depicted in old movies and vintage textbooks. In reality, some of these creatures were quite dynamic in their movements.

How scientists arrived at these and other conclusions is explored when the four-part series The Dinosaurs! comes on KET at 9:00 p.m. Thursdays beginning September 2.

Part 1, "The Monsters Emerge," focuses on the colorful early history of the discovery of dinosaur remains. By the 1850s, dinosaurs had become highly lucrative; people couldn't seem to get enough of them. The American West became a scientific and commercial battleground, with rival crews of diggers occasionally settling disputes over the rights to fossil-rich sites with gunfire.

Subsequent episodes explore the latest theories about just what kinds of creatures dinosaurs really were, how they lived, and why they died.

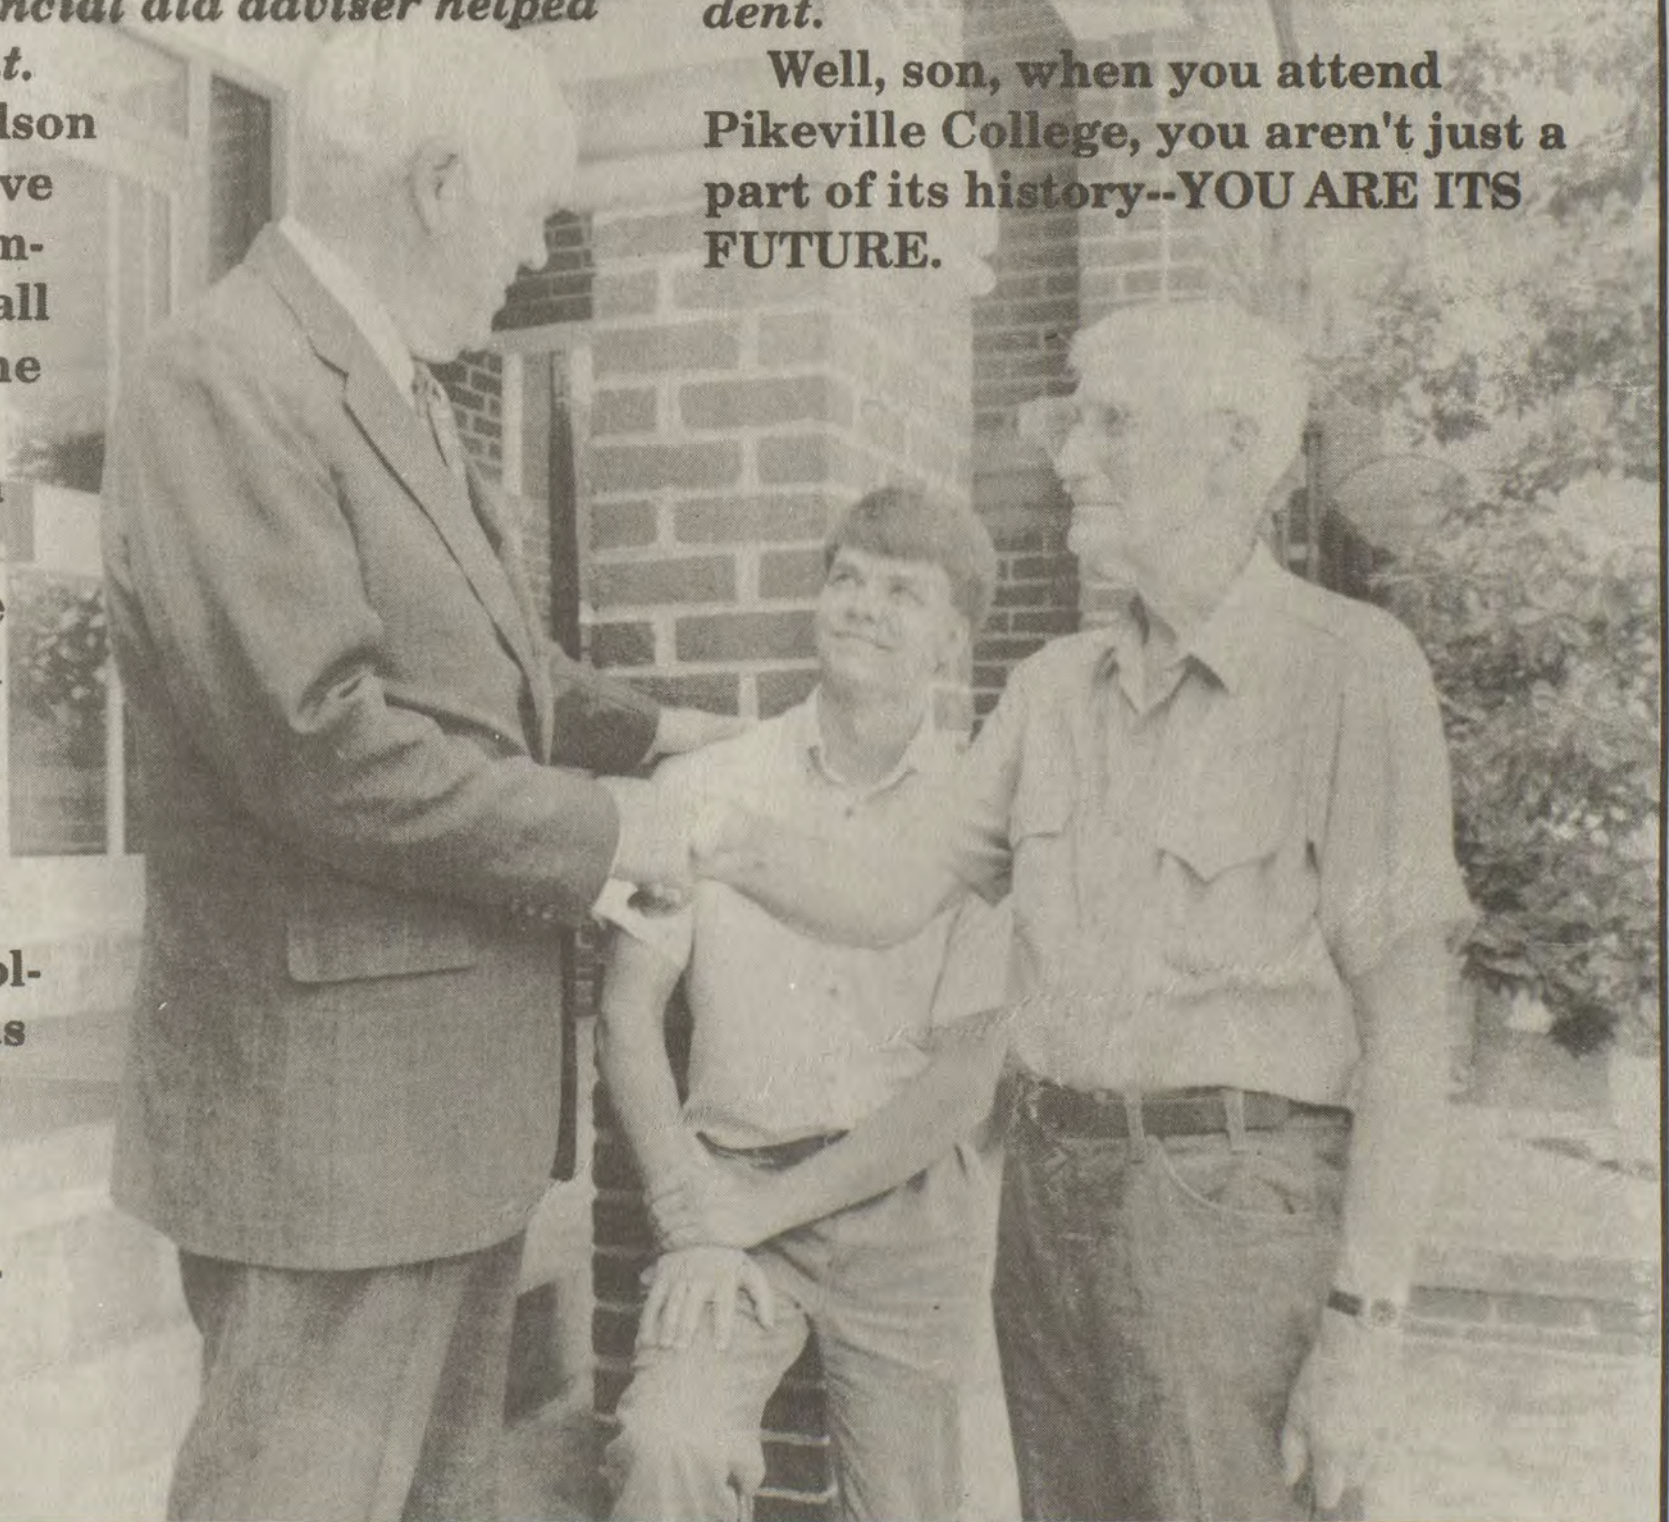

Yes, President Owens, I can't wait to start Pikeville College. I didn't know that it had so many programs and all of the extracurricular activities. The cost was my biggest worry, but the financial aid adviser helped me with that.

My grandson seems to have been very impressed by all the people he has met on campus. I'm personally glad that he has decided to carry on our family tradition of attending Pikeville College. ...It was good seeing you again President Owens. Perhaps we'll run into each other next week while my grandson is registering for classes.

Granddad, how do you know President Owens? I know it's a small school but I didn't expect to be standing here talking to the College president.

Well, son, when you attend Pikeville College, you aren't just a part of its history--YOU ARE ITS FUTURE.

who is legal counsel for Mountain Racing, presented the group's plan to finance and build a racetrack, convention center/fairgrounds and horse barns to the dates committee at their meeting Tuesday.

Carroll attended a special meeting of the newly-formed Floyd County Public Properties Corporation, which is made up of fiscal court members, Friday morning to ask the corporation to accept a contract with Simpson and Associates, of Tribe, Florida to build the "East Kentucky Stadium Facility."

District Two Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens said at Friday's meeting, he felt the project should be put out for bids to allow local contractors to vie for the project.

The contract with Simpson and Associates was not available for Friday's meeting prompting court members to postpone action to Monday's meeting. Owens and Magistrate Gerald DeRossett did not attend Monday's meeting.

The contract stipulates that public bidding be conducted on the project and, should any company offer lower costs, the Simpson and Associates contract will be voided in favor of the lowest bid.

Owens also objected to a provision in a sub-lease agreement with Mountain Racing that would allow the corporation to obtain ownership of the facility and property if the $2.7 million bond issue is paid in full.

"We buy the sucker and let them have it when it's paid off," Owens said. "We should've been informed; we should've had (the lease) before the meeting."

Under terms of the sub-lease approved by the court, the project's indebtedness will be retired through lease payments from Mountain Racing, not by county funds.

The sub-lease agreement with the racing corporation references exhibits to be filed along with the lease agreement in the Floyd County Court

Clerk's Office.

There were no exhibits filed with County Court Clerk Carla Boyd as of Tuesday morning.

Carroll and County Attorney Jim Hammond told Owens that if the racing corporation did not have all the necessary documents "on the table" Tuesday morning before the dates committee, they wouldn't be able to get 1994 racing dates.

Carroll told Owens that they needed a contract with Simpson and Associates before Tuesday and that Owens could sit in on a negotiation session set for Saturday with the company.

Due to the tight timelines, Hammond suggested that the county corporation declare the situation an emergency, saying "if a real emergency didn't exist, we'd come back and bid it."

Carroll jumped in and told Owens that any contractor who wanted to bid on the project may do so.

Owens voted against declaring the situation an emergency.

After Friday's public properties corporation meeting was recessed to Monday at 5:30 p.m. Owens commented that he felt an emergency had been created in an attempt to bypass the bidding process.

When the meeting resumed Monday, the corporation approved a sealed bid from Simpson and Associates which was presented to the racing commission Tuesday.

Simpson's bid will remain sealed and bids will be accepted to build the convention center until September 30. Construction is scheduled to begin by October 15 and the facility is expected to be completed by June 1, 1994.

Mountain Racing is asking for 45 days of live racing per year.

What a day for a daydream

by Scott Perry

Hear no evil.

It seems we were too quick to praise the Floyd County Board of Education last week for giving four hours of their time to a public comment session on a variety of school-related issues.

Obviously, they didn't hear a thing.

Had board members been paying attention, they might have heard a parade of witnesses testifying to a troubling set of circumstances concerning the services provided to handicapped students.

And they might have been concerned that the school system is not adequately meeting its obligations to provide those exceptional needs students an adequate environment for learning.

Had the board been paying attention, they might also have learned that the system's science program has been woefully neglected...to the tune of 20 years at Prestonsburg High...and lots of money is needed to bring that most important area of study up to par.

Had the board been paying attention, they would have learned, too, that many students...particularly primary students in the critical years of their education...are forced to attend classes in aging and inadequate mobile classrooms.

Instead of listening to these and other horror stories, though, the board apparently was daydreaming about handsome new athletic facilities and the importance of repairing a swimming pool that hasn't been used in 20 years.

While we're creating all these new jobs in the school system, maybe we ought to hire someone to lord over our board members and crack their knuckles with a yardstick every time they drift off into la la land.

Gotta be some way to get their attention.

Project scraped and building has falling sections

Editor:
After several years and the expenditure of almost one-half million dollars the Floyd County BOE has voted to scrap the planned addition at the Betsy Layne Grade School.

The need is great at this school with 15 mobile classrooms in service. Children must walk long distances through all kinds of weather (rain, snow and cold) just to use the bathroom and they must do this unattended. Many of our youngest kids are housed in these trailers. The main building built in 1948 has large sections of ceiling missing and a child was struck by a falling section in April of 1993. This child required emergency room treatment and two follow-up visits to a doctor. Many kids and parents travel across a shaky 55-yard-long swinging bridge every day just to get to school because of access and parking problems.

Construction at this site is the least cost alternative as this property is already owned by the county, a gym is already here, and almost one-half million dollars has been spent for site preparation and engineering work.

Can we afford to throw away this type of money and get absolutely nothing for it? Can the BOE members give a justifiable reason as to why construction has been halted? The parents, the concerned citizens, the voters, and especially the taxpayers of Floyd County want answers.

Coffee Break

Why are all these women smiling?
Probably because they know that Thursday is one of the most important anniversaries in their heritage since Eve ate the apple.

Thursday is officially known as Women's Equality Day, marking the 73rd birthday of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

That amendment gave women the right to vote, and their presence on the political scene has grown steadily more influential since its adoption.

It's probably no coincidence, then, that August 26 is also the birthday for Geraldine Ferraro, the first female candidate for U.S. Vice-President.

Is that the theme song to the Twilight Zone we keep hearing?

The Public Broadcasting System, a.k.a. PBS, has been criticized by a media watchdog organization as being too mainstream.

Say what?

Seems a group known as FAIR (Fairness and Accuracy In Reporting) feels that public television doesn't do a good job of reflecting the country's diversities, concentrating instead on "the establishment line."

As far as we can tell, the average American is pretty well fed up with the emphasis being placed on "fringe" issues with which they share little interest. And, since most Americans fit rather nicely into the "mainstream," it fits that public television programming should emphasize their interests.

We don't need to waste tax dollars force-feeding our country the news of the weird. The networks give us enough of that, for free.

Rebels with a cause.

Talk about being stuck between a rock and a hard place, that's just where you'll find several state schools who are about to be asked by the NAACP to stop identifying their schools through the use of "Rebel" mascots and the Confederate flag.

Schools that fail to respond no doubt will stand accused of glorifying a tragic part of our history when our country was literally divided by racism while schools that do remove the symbols will bear enormous financial burdens.

We should note that while slavery was the most apparent cause of the Civil War, economic and political differences had more impact on the separation of states.

We condemn racism in any form.

We doubt, however, that school boosters have anything but their team colors in mind when they root for their Rebels.

Ah, the sights and sounds of back to school.

The kids are groomed, plumed and perfumed. The books are dusted, the halls are waxed and somewhere in Kentucky someone is out on strike.

This year, the honors go to bus drivers in Breathitt County, who have delayed the start of classes over a dispute about their pay.

Can't fault the drivers for wanting adequate salaries, but we're darned if we can figure out why these issues aren't resolved before school is scheduled to start.

Children shouldn't be held hostage by labor disputes, yet for the past four or five years one school system or another in Kentucky has remained locked up on opening day because adults can't get their acts together.

When will we ever learn?

Burchett to be tried in shooting

A judge found Flem Burchett competent Wednesday to stand trial in the shooting death of Johnson County Sheriff Gene Cyrus but said Burchett is too retarded to face the death penalty.

Pike Circuit Judge Bayard Collier heard testimony from two psychiatrists who said Burchett, 64, of Oil Springs, most likely has an IQ below 70. State law classifies someone at that level as severely mentally retarded and prohibits the death penalty in such cases.

Collier scheduled a November 22 trial for Burchett.

Kentucky State Police allege Burchett gunned down the 56-year-old law officer March 18, 1992, as Cyrus stood on the front porch of Burchett's home. Burchett had walked away from his rape trial in Johnson Circuit Court, and Cyrus went to retrieve him.

Defense attorney Ron Rigg argues that Burchett was not competent to stand trial because he could not remember the shooting.

But Dr. Frank Deland, a psychiatrist with the Kentucky Correctional Psychiatric Center, testified that Burchett's memory was fine. Deland said Burchett purposely did poorly on his evaluations to make his IQ appear lower than it was.—Lexington Herald-Leader

Federal suit filed in alleged police beating

An Eastern Kentucky man filed a $100 million federal lawsuit Tuesday in connection with the alleged police beating that his lawyer said was "twice as bad" as the infamous Rodney King beating.

Douglas Collins, 32, of Offutt, claimed he was brutally beaten during an arrest on August 7 by two Johnson County sheriff's deputies, James Paul Primm and Mike Wattenberger, a state trooper, Larry Preston, and a constable, David Auxier.

Collins claimed he suffered a broken nose and some vision impairment and had to be hospitalized.

Referring to the videotaped beating of Rodney King, Keese said, "Rodney put up a fight, and Doug didn't. Doug was handcuffed; Rodney was not."

Keese said he sued for about twice the amount King sought.

Capt. Rodney Brewer, a state police spokesman, said Preston is on a voluntary vacation while an internal affairs investigation continues.

Doug Collins of Offutt is charged with driving under the influence, attempting to elude, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct.—Appalachian News-Express

Woman charged in scam

A Pike County, Ohio, woman was lodged in the Regional Detention Center in Paintsville after being arrested in a check-cashing scam.

Police said Amy D. Foster, 22, and an accomplice opened a $200 checking account at a bank August 3 and closed the account the next day, but continued writing checks at stores in Louisa.

The scam was discovered when Foster tried to return some items to the Pamida Department Store for cash.—The Paintsville Herald

Letcher Co. to implement High School Dropout Law

The Letcher County School District will be working hand in hand with the Transportation Cabinet to institute the High School Dropout Law which prevents persons under age 18 from receiving a drivers license if they are not enrolled in school or if they are academically deficient.

The law allows the school district to forward the names of those students who are not enrolled in school, who have acquired nine or more unexcused absences, or who have not passed at least four classes within a given semester to the Division of Driver Licensing.

The division will suspend the driving privilege of the student until he or she re-enrolls in school and becomes academically sufficient, becomes 18 years of age, or moves into a school district that does not have an approved alternative education program.

Students 16 or 17 years of age, attending school, must provide proof of school enrollment before obtaining a driver's permit or license at the local circuit court clerk's office.

Recent reports have ranked Kentucky's dropout rate as one of the highest in the nation, however; many counties instituting the High School Dropout Law have since seen dropout rates steadily decrease.

Letcher County will begin instituting the High School Dropout Law September 1.

Thus far, 79 school districts in the Commonwealth have approved alternative education programs and have implemented the law.—staff report

They're buccaneers with briefcases

by Scripps Howard News Service

In harder times, pirates relieved people of their riches with a cutlass and a brace of pistols. But as an Ohio marine-exploration group has woe-fully discovered, the chief weapon of the modern buccaneer is a briefcase.

Once again, the Columbus-America Discovery Group is in federal district court in Norfolk, Va., fighting for the billion-dollar treasure that its high-tech adventurers hauled from the sunken S.S. Central America in the late 1980s. Columbus-America invested $10 million and 13 years in finding the side-wheel steamer, which sank in 1857 some 180 miles off the South Carolina coast, carrying tons of California gold to the ocean bottom.

But, as Columbus-America founder Tommy Thompson wryly notes, while the explorers were searching for the Central America, 39 insurance companies were searching for a team of lawyers. The companies laid claim to the cargo, asserting that their corporate ancestors had paid for its loss. Yet, in 130 years, the insurers had never turned one oar trying to find the gold. They had no plans to do so.

The Norfolk court ruled for Columbus-America, the spirit of discovery and common sense. But an appellate court, splitting 7-5, opined that the Ohioans were due only a salvage fee. Lamentably, the U.S. Supreme Court let stand this "finders, weepers" decision and returned the case to the Norfolk judge to weigh the insurers' claims.

The insurance companies' evidence—scribbled memos and such—may prove too frail to establish ownership. But even if Columbus-America retains most of its prize, the high court should reconsider admiralty law.

If the appellate court's decision stands, deep-sea treasure hunts won't cease. Merely, such endeavors will be conducted secretly, their bonanzas liquidated on the black market. Nobody will be the wiser—including a public that will not be told of ancillary scientific or historical finds that would incriminate the searchers. (Columbus-America has recovered textiles, newsprint and books from the Central America, and the National Association of Academies of Science has become its legal ally.)

As for the ongoing hearing in Norfolk, well, the Crown once hanged pirates. Sending their worsted descendants packing would be downright lenient.

Road concerns dominate court meet

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Fiscal Court members heard typical back to school complaints Friday as concerned citizens squeezed into the tiny meeting room to ask for maintenance on roads traveled by school buses.

Rita Harvey of Mill Creek near Wayland, asked the court to cut weeds that obstruct the view on a portion of that road which, she said, could create a hazard for bus drivers.

Harvey said that obstruction has already caused a traffic accident which injured an 18-year-old youth. Harvey said that the 18-year-old's view of the road was obstructed and he swerved over an embankment to keep from hitting a car being driven by a pregnant woman.

"It was either hit her or go over the hill," Harvey told the court. "Those weeds need to be cut. It's not fair. I have three children that ride the bus. When some kids get seriously hurt, it's too late then."

Court members agreed that high weeds beside roads are a problem all over the county, but there was not enough equipment or manpower to get the job done.

The mother of the 18-year-old boy told the court she felt they were responsible for her son's accident and they ought to pay his medical bills.

Several magistrates commented that Earl Ousley, director of transportation for the school system, has notified several citizens that buses will not be making traditional runs because of road conditions and overgrown weeds that obstruct a driver's view.

Magistrates Jackie Edford Owens and Gerald DeRossett suggested that more equipment be bought by the county to combat the problem. Owens suggested another bush-hog be bought to clear large areas and DeRossett suggested that hand-sickles be purchased for county road workers.

The court took no action on the issue, but Owens said he would look at the problem at Mill Creek.

Floyd County school superintendent Steve Towler asked the court for assistance with building an access road at Betsy Layne High School to alleviate traffic congestion. Towler said the school hopes to obtain property adjacent to the school campus so that a road can be built to U.S. 23. The superintendent asked the court to install a culvert for the road.

Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo told Towler, "if you get the property and the permits, we'll do it."

Also Friday, one citizen, who did not identify himself, asked the county judge-executive if the court was in violation of the state's Open Meetings Law by having their meetings in such a small meeting room.

County Attorney Jim Hammond responded that the court did not have a "facility big enough" to hold their meetings and that was one reason a new courthouse facility was needed. In other business Friday:

- Citizens on opposite sides of a proposal to close a road at Auxier pleaded their cases to the court. After much discussion, the parties were told to try to resolve their difference and then the court could take action on the issue.
- The court also declined to act on a request to close the Hayes Branch Road at Hi Hat because of objections filed by citizens.
- The court accepted Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson's audit which showed $1,539 in excess fees that were returned to the county. One weakness in the sheriff's department noted in the audit was the lack of adequate segregation of duties due to the limited number of employees. The report said that the instances of noncompliance (segregation of duties) were not material to the financial statements.
- The court approved an inter-local cooperation agreement on the Mountain Area Drug Task Force which included Pike County which was inadvertently omitted from the first agreement. The court also agreed to advertise for vehicles for the task force.

The next regular meeting of the court is Friday, September 17 at 10 a.m. in the courthouse annex. The meetings are open to the public.

The best coal mine rescue teams from around the nation will meet in Louisville, September 13-16 to compete in the National Mine Rescue, First Aid and Bench Contest. The event is sponsored by the Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA).

MSHA to sponsor rescue contest

The national contest will take place at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville. Coal mine rescue teams, composed of six members each, are required to complete a mine emergency problem calling for intense rescue and recovery work.

Mine rescue training began in the United States in 1910, the year that the U.S. Bureau of Mines was created. The Bureau's first director, Joseph A. Holmes, sought a training vehicle that would provide the mining industry with a cadre of mine rescue specialists who would be ready and able to respond to mine disasters.

For more information regarding this year's national contest, contact Timothy Thompson, co-director of the contest, H.C. 66, Box 1762, Barbourville, Ky., 40906, telephone 606-546-5123.

Pester

School.

Isaac commented that the board had approved the hiring of an industrial arts teacher at the middle school on Burchett's assurances that the addition would be built and ready for occupancy by the beginning of the 1993-94 school year.

After some discussion, board members decided to ask Feldman and Associates to review the middle school project to determine the status of the project and make a report to the board within two weeks.

The middle school project, the gym at South Floyd High School and the now abandoned 21-classroom addition at Betsy Layne Elementary were originally scheduled to go out for bids last fall.

Burchett is the architect for the middle school project and Paul Hoffman is employed as the architect for the South Floyd and was the architect for the Betsy Layne project before the board canceled the project.

The only project the board has seen architectural drawings for is the South Floyd gym.

In other construction issues Thursday, board chairman Eddie Patton produced a letter from architect Ross Feldman which recommended that the board not make any major repairs to the middle school until construction on the addition is completed.

Due to a settling problem, large cracks have appeared in the walls at the middle school and floors in some areas have buckled.

Feldman's letter also said that a design development review from state officials in July showed that several items were missing from the plans and those omissions have not been included in the plans.

Controversy continues on the South Floyd High School gym project with an apparent rift between Hoffman, the architect, Jim Ellis, the former architect at South Floyd, and mechanical engineers Kaiser-Taulbee.

Superintendent Steve Towler reported to the board Thursday that although the gym project was advertised and bids were set to be opened

August 27, contractors have been unable to get a complete set of plans to bid the project.

Kaiser-Taulbee had refused to release the mechanical drawings in the gym because Hoffman owed the engineers money for work at South Floyd and John M. Stumbo Elementary, Towler said.

The engineers refused to release the plans until Hoffman paid them approximately $60,000. The debt between Kaiser-Taulbee and Ellis, which was not disclosed, is in litigation.

Board attorney Cliff Latta advised the board that $7,000, which can be documented, is due to Kaiser-Taulbee from the board for work at South Floyd.

Jim Osborne, chief of operations for the school district, said that the engineers agreed to release the plans if the school board would pay the $7,000. Osborne said that the plans had been sent to the printers and that no money would be released until he has the blueprints.

The board voted to pay the engineers $7,000.

Latta recommended that the board withhold a $53,000 payment to Hoffman until they had "plans in hand" for the South Floyd gym.

The board voted not to pay Hoffman until the complete bid documents were in the possession of the school board.

In another issue concerning the academic building at South Floyd, chairman Patton reported that problems with the school's fire alarm system has caused the Left Beaver Fire Department to respond to the school on several occasions during the early morning hours.

Patton said the fire department told him that they would have to charge the school system for responding to the calls if the problem persisted.

Byron Hughes, representing construction manager Sam Martin, said the fire alarm system "worked fine" during a state inspection and the problem could be a "surge" in water pressure when Beaver Elkhorn Water employees fill another water tank in the Left Beaver area.

Patton said he wanted the problem corrected before the school year began.

Also Thursday:

- Owens questioned the costs associated with operating the district's family resource and youth service centers. Owens said, "Family resource centers are a good program, but there is a lot of expense." Owens was also concerned the board providing liability insurance for resource centers that provide child care services.
- The board voted to purchase two time clocks: one to replace the broken one in the central office and one to be installed in the instructional department which moved to offices above Inacom Computers in Prestonsburg. The board also asked that they be provided with copies of monthly logs kept by central office personnel.
- Betsy Layne parent Lance Blackburn asked that the board investigate the possibility of acquiring land near Betsy Layne Elementary so that buses would be able to make a loop to drop-off school children. The board directed Towler to ask the Floyd County Fiscal Court for assistance in installing a culvert, if land is available, for a bus loop.

Board member Clark asked if it would be a conflict of interest if he continued to provide dental services for Head Start students which is paid for by the program. Towler advised Clark that it would probably be a conflict of interest and recommended he discontinue providing dental services to Head Start students.

The board voted to hold a work session September 4-5 to discuss job descriptions and a three-hour workshop on school construction guidelines on October 5.

Board member Eddie Billips was absent from Thursday's meeting.

Group of World War Two veterans meets in Indiana

by Ralph H. Elkins
Allen, Kentucky

On August 10, 11 and 12 a group of veterans met at Springs Mill Inn, Mitchell, Indiana as they have done since 1988. These men were veterans of the Company I, 39th Regiment of the 9th Division.

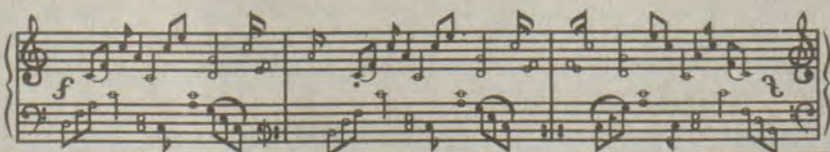

This represents the 50th anniversary of the entry into military service for most of them. However, a few were in the service before 1943, in the North Africa and Sicily campaigns. These men were considered the wise men of the outfit.

The topic of conversation almost always led to the battle experiences each person had during their combat days. Very little surpasses the life and death challenge they faced on a day-to-day basis.

These men came from a wide geographic area and from a wide range of lifestyles, but their training led them to think and act alike in the face of a determined enemy. Several were wounded in action and returned later to their outfit, remaining until the end of the war in Europe in early May of 1945.

Each time the men meet, something new comes up. Someone remembers an event that took place in North Africa, Sicily, Normandy, the dreadful Hurtgen Forest, The Battle of The Bulge or crossing the Rhine River at Remagen on the now famous Remagen Bridge. Hopefully, these same people will meet again next summer in Indiana, Ohio, or Kentucky for their sixth annual reunion.

The Floyd County Chamber is in gear to have a teleblitz for 1993 on August 25 and August 31. If you are a business in Floyd County or doing business in Floyd County and are not a member, then more than likely you will be receiving a phone call from one of the Chamber volunteers who will be asking businesses to join—the more members, the more clout.

Czechoslovak visitor to talk at PCC

Come and meet Karla, a 4-year medical student from the University of Masaryk in the Czech Republic (formerly a part of Czechoslovakia), who is visiting PCC's Dr. John Shiber and his family for the summer.

In the interest of UK's recent efforts toward "internationalizing" its community college campuses, Dr. Shiber has asked Karla to speak and answer questions about her country.

The discussion will be held Friday, August 27, from 6-7 p.m. in Room J-135 of the Johnson Administration Building. It is free and open to everyone. Refreshments will be served.

Safety day

Big Sandy Coal Mining Institute will hold its annual Safety Day, a day of mine rescue, benchman and EMT competition, beginning at 8 a.m., Thursday, September 2 at Stumbo Memorial Park at Allen.

Lunch will be provided by Big Sandy Coal Mining Institute.

Social hour and a banquet will follow the contests at Jenny Wiley State Park, beginning at 4:30 p.m. and dinner at 5:30. Awarding of trophies will follow dinner.

Ham operators alerted

A weatherspotter's workshop for ham radio operators will be held August 25 at 6:30 p.m. in the DES office at the National Guard Armory. The workshop will be conducted by the Weather Service in Jackson and the Floyd County Disaster and Emergency Services.

Skipping Kentucky makes national wanted list for nonsupport

A Kentucky father has made the national "Wanted" list—wanted for non-payment of child support.

The Kentucky Department for Social Insurance's Child Support Enforcement division nominated Robert Wayne Lovejoy from Morgan County for the Wanted poster compiled annually by the National Council of State Child Support Enforcement Administrators.

This year's poster with 24 absent parents from various states has just been distributed, in Kentucky through area child support enforcement offices.

"Last year, the delinquent Kentucky dad was found in California through this poster effort, and we hope to have similar results again," said Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson.

"This is one more way of publicizing the fact that parents will be held responsible—to their children and to orders of the court," Robinson said.

Hall Lodge to meet

On Saturday, August 28, at 6 p.m., the John W. Hall Lodge No. 950, Martin, will have three degree work. All master masons are invited. Members are requested to bring a covered dish.

ACTS Christian Singles

Singles are invited to join ACTS Christian Singles for dinner and fellowship in the meeting room of Mr. Gatti's in Paintsville on August 28 at 6 p.m.

See the family circus in the park

Don't miss the laughs and excitement of Tom Sparough when he juggles his way to Jenny Wiley State Park, May Lodge, on August 25 at 7 p.m. His show is entitled "Family Circus in the Park" and lasts for about an hour.

Stop in to unwind with the 19-year veteran juggler. Laughter, fun and good old-fashioned skill are Tom's tool to help folks relax.

He works with bowling balls, apples, machetes, bean bag chairs and small children.

It is free. Everyone who comes will actually get a chance to try a few juggling tricks. See the show!

For more information, call 886-2711.

Community chorus

The Community Chorus of Prestonsburg Community College will have its first fall semester rehearsal on Monday, August 30, at 7 p.m. in room 155 of the Johnson Building at PCC.

The chorus meets every Monday from 7-9 p.m. and is open to anyone who enjoys singing.

United Methodist Youth Fellowship kick off

The United Methodist Youth Fellowship kick off will be held August 29, at 5 p.m. at the Christ United Methodist Church at Allen. Youth ages 12-19 are invited to participate. The group will have a weiner roast to kick things off with many more activities planned in the near future.

The drive will be held from August 31-September 2 at the Prestonsburg Donor Center in the Municipal Building, from 11 a.m.-7 p.m. Tuesday; from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday.

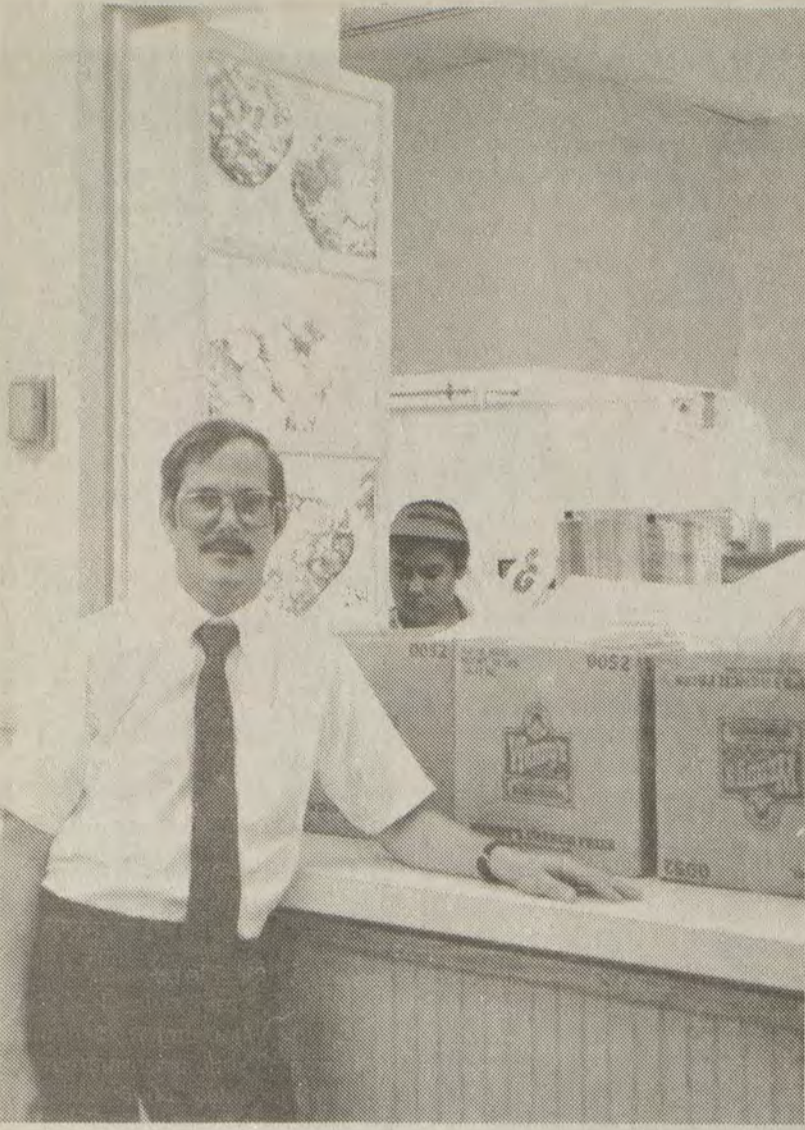

Donors will receive a free T-shirt and will be eligible for door prizes provided by the clubs. For more information, call the donor center at 886-1557.

Living Well with Diabetes class

The Living Well with Diabetes class will be held Thursday, August 26 in the learning center at Highlands Regional Medical Center at 6:30 p.m. Topics will be new food labels.

Horseshow

The Big Sandy Senior Classic Horseshow will be Saturday, August 28, at 6:30 p.m. at Archer Park, Prestonsburg. The public is invited to attend.

Food for thought

Tom Slack, manager of Wendy's restaurant in Prestonsburg, began August 14 giving free lunches to persons who take the examination for the Graduate Equivalent Diploma (GED) at Prestonsburg Community College. Slack said the service is one way the restaurant supports education. The test is administered the second and last Saturday of each month at PCC. About 40 people who showed up to take the test were surprised by the restaurant's giveaway of burgers, fries and soft drinks. Slack said he plans to continue giving lunches to those who take the test at PCC. Helping him with the food was Jessica Weyer.

Kentucky's efficiency earns federal food stamp bonus

For the fourth consecutive year, the federal government is giving Kentucky a multi-million dollar bonus for operating one of the most efficient food stamp programs in the nation.

Gov. Brereton C. Jones has announced a $4,492,878 bonus from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in recognition of the performance accuracy of Department for Social Insurance caseworkers and supervisors across the state.

"They are responsible for reducing our food stamp program's error rate from 5.19 percent in 1991 to 4.85 percent last year—the third best in the nation and tops among the large state food stamp programs," Jones said.

"At the same time, the Social Insurance department registered the lowest administrative costs per case of all the 'bonus' states while handling a rapidly increasing caseload—nearly 14,000 more households and 45.5 million dollars in coupons more than the previous federal fiscal year."

While low administrative costs and high accuracy put Kentucky among five states and territories qualifying for the USDA FY '92 bonuses, efficiency in handling a caseload nearly 2 1/2 times larger than the other four areas combined brought Kentucky 68 percent of the "enhanced funding" awarded.

"We're proud of 2,500 workers in our 124 local offices," said Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson, "and also proud of our first-in-the-nation food stamp automation system. We believe it helped workers keep errors low while they served an average 197,278 Kentucky families."

The department is phasing in a system merging the food stamp program with Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), State Supplemental Insurance and Medicaid for automated determination of eligibility and benefit amounts.

"Over the past four years of enhanced funding, USDA has awarded over $29.6 million—and Kentucky has garnered 55 percent of that," Robinson said. "We have used it partly for developing our advanced automation so we can give more clients more efficient help without increasing our staff."

Kentucky's latest error rate of 4.85 percent was bested last year only by Hawaii, which has an average caseload of 39,216 households, and South Dakota, with an average caseload of 19,269 households.

Kentucky topped the five FY 1992 qualifiers with the lowest administrative costs—just under $114 per case—while Hawaii was the second highest, at $180 behind the Virgin Island's $346.

For the 1991 federal fiscal year, Kentucky's share of the $9.42 million bonus funding was just over $3.38 million, second behind Alabama with $3.84 million. Kentucky's bonuses each of two years before that were $4.07 million and $4.27 million, while Alabama's bonus remained under $1 million and the other states—Hawaii, the Dakotas, Montana and Nevada—had small caseloads, qualifying for much lesser bonuses.

This year's bonus money totals $6,563,540. The other qualifying programs in order of error rate are South Dakota, 4.52 percent with administrative costs per case (rounded off to the nearest dollar) at $130; the Virgin Islands, 5.65 percent and $346; and North Dakota, 5.89 and $160 per household.

Bonus check

Gov. Brereton C. Jones (right) accepts a bonus check in the amount of $4,492,878 from Virgil Conrad, regional administrator, U.S. Department of Agriculture Food and Nutrition Service, as a reward for Kentucky's operation of one of the most efficient food stamp programs in the nation.

DEPRESSION
 My roommate was depressed. More than the blues. I mean seriously depressed. She always looked sad. Cried a lot. She couldn't sleep, eat, or do any of her work.
Treat it! Defeat it!
 Most of the time she wouldn't talk to me. I figured she needed to get professional help, before her pain got worse. So I checked it out.
 I was amazed. Once her depression was diagnosed, treatment was effective and began to work within a few weeks.

Army Corps to survey homes near Big Sandy

About 440 residents living along the Levisa and Russell Forks of the Big Sandy River will be selected to participate in a survey being conducted by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The Huntington District Corps of Engineers is preparing a General Plan Supplement Report (GPS) to seek approval from the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works for the construction of certain flood damage reduction projects in the basin.

These measures may include structural projects such as the proposed Haysi Dam Project in Virginia and nonstructural projects such as flood-proofing and floodplain acquisitions in both Virginia and Kentucky.

Architect/engineer consultants will collect data on individual homes and businesses in the area. This data will include elevations of first floors, sizes of structures, structure photographs, types of construction (frame or masonry), existence of basements and owners' willingness to participate in the flood-proofing and floodplain acquisition program. All data collected will be strictly confidential and will be used to support the approval of the proposed flood protection measures.

Participation in the survey is not mandatory, and representatives of Booker Associates in Lexington will first visit residents to find out if they're willing to participate in the survey. Booker employees will carry a letter from the Huntington District signifying their identity and involvement in the study.

If the homeowner agrees to the study, Booker representatives will identify the home on the floodplain mapping and photograph the residence to identify the sample home for subsequent studies.

Following their visit, representatives of Bocook Engineering from Paintsville will begin the survey by surveying the first floor elevation and collect data on the size and construction character of the home.

Bocook Engineering employees will also carry a letter from the Huntington District identifying their involvement in the study effort.

Once this data has been collected, Booker Associates will return to fill out a survey form about participation in any flood protection measures approved for implementation in the Levisa Fork basin.

Not being visited by one of the Corps' architect/engineer consultants in no way limits a homeowner's ability to participate in the flood protection program in the future. Because of the large number of structures in the basin (more than 4,000) and the limitations on available study funds and study time, the Corps can only collect detailed data on a percentage of the total number of structures for the study. Those structures not selected for the study will be included in the final report for approval.

Homeowners who have questions regarding the study process may call Larry Workman or Gus Drum at (304) 529-5644; or John Justice at (304) 529-5691.

Associate educators

Patricia Murphy, center, was one of the four Floyd County educators to be selected as Regional Service Center Associates. A workshop was held for the educators at the service center offices located in the Big Sandy ADD on Cliff Road.

Four area educators selected as restructuring leaders

Four Floyd County educators have been selected to become part of a leadership program of the Kentucky Department of Education. The Regional Service Center Associate Program is a new initiative of the Kentucky Department of Education for those who are interested in supporting reform and building capacity within each of the eight regional service center areas. Thirty-nine associates were selected from the eleven counties in the Region 8 service area. The RSC Associate Program includes individuals from traditional leadership positions such as principals and central office personnel and teachers who serve as leaders on school teams and councils.

The Floyd County educators selected for the Associate Program are teachers Patricia Murphy of Allen Central High School and Pamela Combs of Maytown Elementary; Principal Juanita Combs of McDowell Elementary and Susan Compton, director of Federal Programs (Chapter one-Chapter two.)

The associates will serve as an important link between Frankfort and educators in their own district. The RSC Associate is asked to support the capacity building initiatives of the regional service center in their area. These initiatives will include the development of the skills necessary for the successful implementation of the Kentucky Educational Reform Act. The RSC Associates have just completed six days of training at Region 8 Service Center in Prestonsburg and will continue to network throughout the school year.

The associates will also work within their districts to assist with change as well as remain in contact with the staff at the Region 8 Service Center. Although the regional service centers were established in 1991, they did not become fully operational until 1992-93. Staffed with consultants from the region in the areas of primary, school based decision making, curriculum/assessment, technology, and extended school services, the centers' main purpose is to serve the schools in their region. They assist districts in planning and implementing KERA.

PCC advisory panel to meet

The Prestonsburg Community College Advisory Board will meet in regular session Thursday, August 26 at 7:30 p.m. in room 102 of the Johnson Building on the main campus.

Dr. Charles Wethington, president of the University of Kentucky, and Dr. Ben Carr, chancellor of the UK Community College System, will be in attendance at the request of PCC President Dr. Deborah Floyd.

This will be the first time the officials have attended an advisory board meeting since Floyd was named president in July 1991.

Also in attendance will be members of the Big Sandy College Educational Foundation Board, the Pike County College Educational Foundation Board, and college employees.

The college's plans for development, including the Regional Center for Health Education and Wellness in Prestonsburg and the Regional Classroom and Technology Center at PCC's Pike County campus, will be discussed.

On Friday, Wethington and Carr will tour both the Prestonsburg and Pikeville campuses, Floyd said.

A reception for the board and guests is set for 7 p.m.

State visit

Kentucky Secretary of State Bob Babbage stopped off at Prestonsburg Community College during a recent visit to several Eastern Kentucky counties. Showing him around were Jackie DeRossett (left) of Prestonsburg, student and part-time secretary in the president's office, and PCC President Dr. Deborah Floyd.

Free nicotine patches available to low-income Kentuckians

Free nicotine patches will be available to a limited number of low-income Kentuckians in 33 counties beginning September 1.

Health departments in the 33 counties will dispense nicotine patches made available free of charge by Lederle Laboratories to 1,229 low-income Kentuckians who meet the criteria for receiving the patches, which aid in stopping smoking.

Patches are available at the Magoffin County Health Department.

Health Services Commissioner Rice Leach, M.D., says that people selected to receive the patches must meet medical and financial qualifications and demonstrate a willingness to stop smoking.

"Nicotine patches are an aid to those people who really want to quit smoking," he said. "For the patches to work, smokers must have the desire to give up the habit and the determination to make it happen."

The limited number of patches will be distributed to Kentuckians who:

- are at or below 200 percent of the poverty level ($13,941 for an individual) and have no other payment source for nicotine patches;

- smoke at least one pack of cigarettes a day;
- indicate they would like to quit smoking;
- have no past or current medical conditions that would prevent the use of nicotine patches;
- have a written prescription for the patches from their family doctor or from a health department-affiliated physician.

Carol Forbes, who is coordinating the nicotine patch program for the department, says that those receiving the patches must participate in either a group or individual smoking cessation program and must visit the health department weekly for counseling and evaluation.

"The patches are just one part of a comprehensive stop smoking program," Forbes said. "Group and individual counseling work to increase the chance that the smoker will actually stop."

Forty-four Kentucky health departments expressed an interest in providing the free nicotine patches, Forbes said. Selection of the 13 sites was based on health departments that had experience in dispensing nicotine patches.

Lower U.S. jobless rate reduces emergency unemployment benefits

Kentuckians who qualify for unemployment benefits under the federal Emergency Unemployment Compensation Act of 1991 will now receive 10 additional weeks of assistance instead of the original extra 20 payments effective immediately.

The decrease was triggered when the seasonally adjusted National Total Unemployment Rate (TUR) average for May and June fell below seven percent, said state Department for Employment Services Commissioner Margaret Whittet.

"People who qualified for 20 weeks of emergency benefits before the change will continue to receive the 20 weeks of benefits," Whittet said. "This change affects only people who are new filers."

To qualify for the 10 weeks of extended benefits, individuals must have exhausted their regular benefits (26 weeks) on or after July 12, or have a balance on a previous emergency unemployment compensation claim. An estimated 10,200 new emergency unemployment compensation claims may be filed.

Further improvement in the national economy may trigger additional reductions in future extended benefits. "For example, if the national two-month average TUR falls below 6.6 percent, new filers after that point will be eligible for only seven weeks of emergency benefits," Whittet said.

New jobless benefit filers continue to have the option of receiving either regular unemployment insurance benefits or emergency unemployment compensation. Filers may choose the most beautiful claim depending on their weekly benefit amount.

We Know That Sometimes, It Takes Great Pains To Get You To The Doctor.

That's why at King's Daughters' Medical Center, we've taken "great pains" (and put forth a lot of effort) to make sure the doctors you need are here for you. Doctors who have studied at prestigious medical centers. Doctors who know and perform the most up-to-date medical procedures. And most importantly, doctors who take "great pains" to provide the right care for their patients.

David Goebel, MD, is one of those doctors. He specializes in hematology/oncology (the treatment of cancer). Dr. Goebel graduated from the University of Kentucky School of Medicine in Lexington, Ky., and completed an internal medicine internship and residency at Temple University Hospital in Philadelphia, Pa. He completed his fellowship training in hematology/oncology at the University of Kentucky Medical Center's Markey Cancer Center. Dr. Goebel is certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine. He is joining the practice of Dana Johnson, MD, at Tri-State Regional Cancer Center, 706 23rd St., Ashland, Ky.

Dr. Goebel now is accepting new patients.

Pikeville High School Golf Invitational August 28 at Green Meadow Country Club

The Pikeville High School golf team will hold its first annual Pikeville Invitational Golf Tournament this Saturday, August 28 at the Green Meadow Country Club in Pikeville.

Pikeville is the defending regional champion and champion of the Kentucky Invitational Tournament last season. Pikeville will be facing 11 of the top ranked teams in the state which include the 1992 reigning state champions, Louisville St. Xavier.

Also included in the field are three regional champions: Lexington Henry Clay, Somerset and Covington Catholic. Harlan and Boyd County are regional runners-up with Louisville Trinity, Lexington Catholic, Bowling Green, Montgomery County and Clark County rounding out the field.

The 18 hole tournament will begin at 7:30 a.m. and the public is invited to attend.

Game tickets still on sale at Prestonsburg High School for Appalachian Bowl

A savings of a $1 a ticket can be yours if you are one of the many fans who will be traveling to Clay County for the Appalachian Bowl game. Advance tickets are on sale at Prestonsburg High School which will save time standing in line at the gate in Manchester.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for students when purchased in advance. All ticket revenue stays at the local high school.

Prestonsburg will be facing Clay County in the second game of the Appalachian Bowl with kick off time scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Leslie County will take on Pulaski Southwestern at 6 p.m. in game one.

All Prestonsburg fans encouraged to purchase their tickets in advance at the local high school and be in attendance in support of the Blackcats as they open defense of their regional championship. Stop by the high school and, when purchasing a ticket, purchase a Blackcat t-shirt also.

Betsy Layne Golf Tournament tees off on September 11 at Stumbo Park

A four-man team golf scramble will get underway at the Beaver Valley Golf Course on Saturday, September 11 as the Betsy Layne Bobcat baseball team holds its first annual event. The proceeds from the tournament go to help pay expenses for the team's southern excursion in the spring.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the tournament. Prizes for first, second and third place will be given out plus prizes for the longest drive, closest to the pin, longest putt, closest to the line and lowest score.

Entry fee is $20 per person and the fee includes all green fees as well as lunch and refreshments.

The tournament promises to be a competitive one and is open to all golfers in the area.

Tee off is scheduled for 8 a.m. at the Allen Park. For more information contact William Newsome, Jr. at 478-1985, 478-2522 or 478-9138.

Coach Reeves encouraged with Rebel play in loss to Fleming Neon

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It's only a scrimmage game.

That was the feeling of the Allen Central Rebels football team after they dropped a 16-6 contest to the Fleming-Neon Pirates in their final scrimmage game of the preseason Saturday night.

Although the Rebels fell, still Coach Glenn Reeves saw some silver linings.

"I was encouraged with the way our kids played tonight," he said after the game. "We ran the ball well even though we are still having problems with our line."

The Allen Central backfield rushed for 217 yards against the line of Fleming-Neon. Quarterback Brad Blackburn was only one-of-seven in the passing department for 14 yards. Freshman Thomas Jenkins had the only reception for the Rebels.

The sweep hurt the Rebels two ways. For one, they could not get outside of the Pirates' line to run their sweep and again when Neon ran the sweep, they found plenty of running room.

"The off-tackle hole, we hit it well," said Reeves, "but the sweep hurt us. We just couldn't run the sweep. Off-tackle we could run with them."

The Rebels played the Pirates tough as the defense stopped the Pirates on their first drive that took them to the Rebels' 45-yard line. James Osborne and Shawn Howard played excellent defense for coach Reeves.

Allen Central moved the football to the Pirates 34 before they were forced to punt.

With 5:35 left in the first 18 minute half, Fleming-Neon scored from 4 yards out and completed the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead.

The Rebels wasted little time in responding. Glenn Floyd took a handoff from Blackburn and galloped 67 yards for pay dirt. The conversion attempt failed and it was a 8-6 game with 4:51 on the clock.

Neon scored the final points of the game just before the first half ended. The Pirates moved the football, despite penalties, 70 yards on eight plays to take 16-6 lead.

An interference flag against the Pirates gave the Rebels an automatic

Over the shoulder catch!

South Floyd wide receiver Charles Johnson grabbed a toss from quarterback Aaron Hall in the EKMC Gridorama Saturday night at Jenkins. The catch was good for 28 yards and a first down, but the Raiders fell 36-16 to Magoffin County. Johnson had three receptions in the game. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Penalties, turnovers trip up South Floyd Raiders against Magoffin County

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was to be the final tuneup for the South Floyd Raiders as they faced the Magoffin County Hornets at Jenkins Saturday night just before the start of the 1993 high school football season.

South Floyd coach Donnie Daniels made sure that his younger players got some playing time in game situations, because they played the whole first half of the game.

"That's what we wanted to do tonight," said the Raiders coach, "and that was to play a lot of players. We wanted to get them in under game type situations. We played kids in the first half who have not played under those circumstances yet."

The younger players got some valuable playing time and the Raiders coach is hopeful that they learned something from the 36-16 stinging they took from the Hornets.

"I want to say that I am pleased with it," he said. "But we've got a lot of work to do on our second unit and the only way they work on it is by letting them play and see what they are doing on film."

The younger secondary of the Raiders was suspect as Magoffin County's sophomore quarterback Mike Caba threaded the Raiders defense for 64 yards passing, including a touchdown pass to Jason Robinette.

Magoffin County did all their scoring in the first 18 minutes of the ball game when they led 36-6 at the half. The Hornets scored on their first possession when they went 83 yards for a TD. Greg Ward scored from 4 yards out and a Brian Risner's pass gave Magoffin a 7-0 lead. The quick score surprised new coach Mick Caba.

"I was surprised that we scored as quick as we did," said Caba. "If felt good for our kids to move the ball on their first possession and score."

Turnovers plagued the younger Raiders as they had four turnovers in the game to go with 85 yards in penalties.

The first turnover came on South Floyd's first possession. The Raiders had mounted a good drive and moved down field to Magoffin County's 32-yard line but Aaron Hall's pass was picked off by freshman Chad Weddington who returned the football to the other end for a touchdown. Caba hit fullback Grayson Smith with a pass on a busted play for the conversion and a 15-0 game.

"The defensive score happened so fast," said Coach Caba. "It was like electricity. That's something we can build on."

South Floyd got their first score in the first half when Cruse Caudill plunged across from the 1 yard line. Quarterback Aaron Hall scored the conversion on a keeper and it was 15-8.

The Hornets wasted little time against a young and inexperienced Raiders' line. Ward broke tackle and raced 65 yards for the score for a 21-8 game.

On the first play from scrimmage, South Floyd fumbled the ball over to the Hornets and they marched up field with Ward scoring from 3 yards out and Risner adding the extra point to establish a 28-8 lead for the Hornets.

On a third and long play for South Floyd, Hall had his second pass intercepted as David Montgomery picked off the errant throw at the 17-yard line. Two plays later Caba hit Robinette with a 15-yard pass for the TD and then connected with Risner for the conversion. Magoffin County led 36-8 at the half.

It was a different South Floyd team that took the field in the second 18 minute half. The Raiders' defense was much stronger, although the offense did struggle against the smaller Hornets.

The Raiders got their second score in the second half when first-year player Chad Slone broke tackle, made a cut to the inside and broke free for a 34-yard touchdown run.

"That was my first touchdown ever," said Slone, "and I want to dedicate it to the memory of Brandon (Holbrook)."

Adam Wright ran the conversion play for the final score of 36-16.

"We played against a big, physical team," said Coach Caba. "They really manhandled us the second half. But, I believe our speed was a little more than they could match up against."

Caba said that quickness was one thing his ballclub has worked on and that the team has been blessed with a couple of kids who can run.

"We also have a passing attack that we believe will mix things up for us."

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO...

This is a special birthday wish to a very, very special person -- my son Greg. Greg will turn 25 tomorrow (Thursday). How time flies. It seems that not long ago we were running around in an old jeep when we lived in Indiana, going to Little League games and having a fun time. I remember when I took him to his first day of school. I can identify with those of you who took your child to school for the first time.

He's a very special person to me and his old dad wants to wish him a very, very happy birthday!

ANOTHER SPECIAL PERSON IS...

Kelly Bates. Kelly is a cheerleader at South Floyd High School this year but will be unable to take part this season because of recent knee surgery.

Kelly is recuperating at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington and we want to wish her a speedy recovery and tell her to keep her head up because she will be right in the thick of things next year.

Get better Kelly!

IN PLACE OF...

The new school year begins without a Floyd County athletic director. Former AD, Frankie Francis, will not handle the complaints about athletics this season as in previous years.

Instead, a council has been established in the county headed up by Alan Osborne, principal at Betsy Layne High School. The official name of the council is Athletics and Extracurricular Council.

According to county school superintendent Stephen Towler, athletics is not all that the council will handle.

"They will be handling academics as well as athletics. They will handle things like the special olympics, county tournaments and other events," Towler said in a telephone interview.

Three people will represent each of the four high schools in the county. A total of 12 members from the high schools will sit on the council.

"The three people will be the choice of each of the high schools," said Towler. "We wanted it to consist of a principal, athletic director and a parent."

Towler said that the council would elect their own chairman and that Osborne would just convene the committee.

The athletic council would be responsible for recommending operational procedures for all extra-curricular activities at the high school level that will affect the entire county.

Each school will be encouraged to develop unique procedures as desired at the school level for decisions that should be made at each school.

While it is recommended that the council be a standing committee, the board and membership can change as desired by each individual school.

"This will allow the local schools to deal with their own problems," said Towler.

A separate council will guide and oversee the elementary and middle school levels with Duff Elementary principal Ralph O'Quinn convening the board.

Membership on this council will consist of one representative from each grade and middle school school, thus forming a 15-member council.

The group will function essentially the same as the high school group and have equal authority.

Simply put, all problems that come up in the school system that involves athletics in the county will be brought before the council.

When that takes place here, especially with cheerleaders, the council will be pretty busy meeting and solving the problems.

The two councils meet soon to elect a chairman.

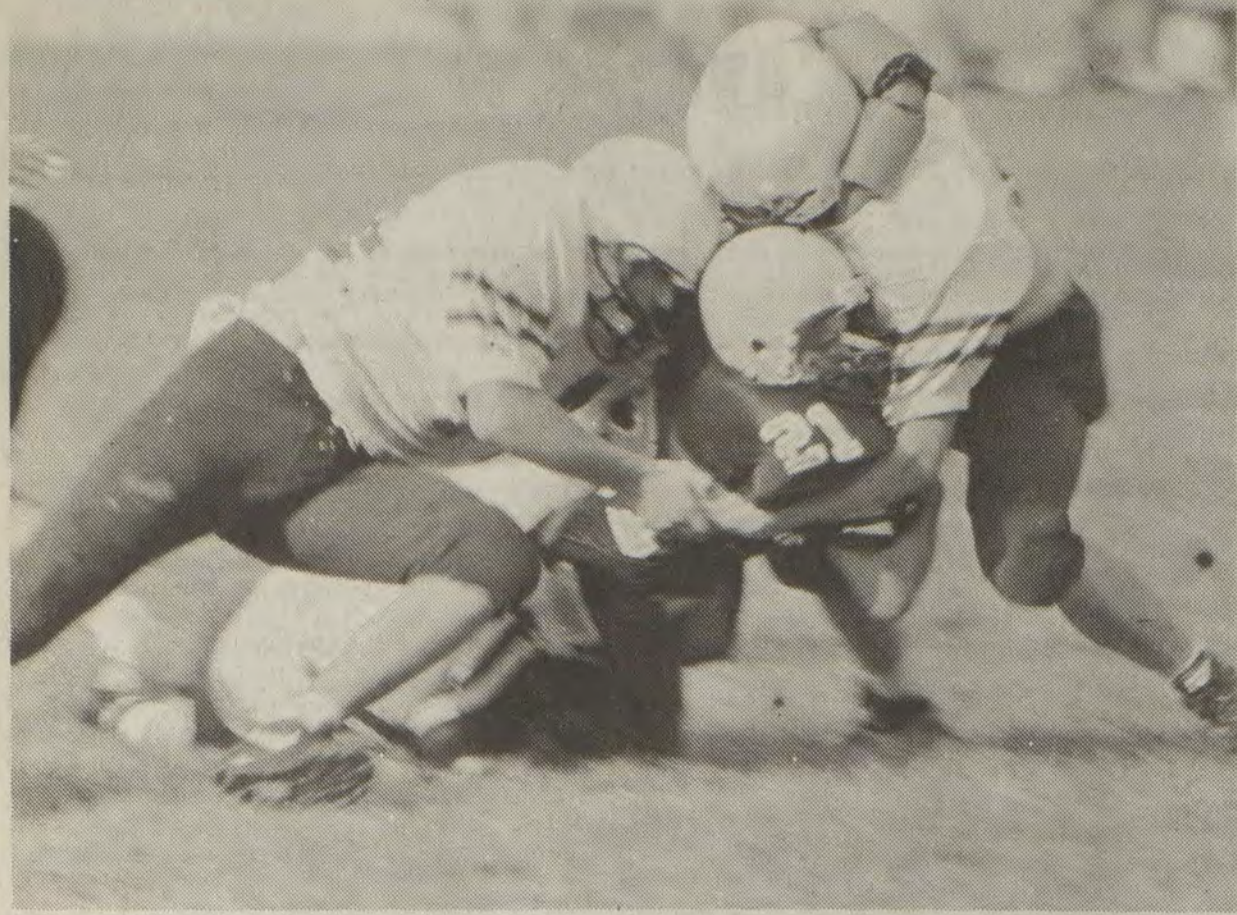

TRACK UPDATE...

The track and field facility at Allen Central has been given a boost and the pavement should be laid this fall before bad weather sets in.

Specifications for the retaining wall have been received.

My hat's off to the board. It will be a great addition to athletics in the county and will allow coaches to dip deeper down into their grade schools for future stars.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Carr Fork to be site of annual bass tournament

For the third consecutive year, the Take Pride In Your Lake Committee (TPIYLC) will host its annual bass tournament at Carr Fork Lake. And once again some lucky angler will walk away with over $2,000 in prize money.

This yearly event is being sponsored by TPIYLC, Childer's Oil of Whitesburg and Pepsi-Cola of Hazard. The prizes for the Saturday, September 4 tournament are: first place, $1,000; second place, $500; third place, $300.

a.m. until 4 p.m. Registration fee is $40 per boat with a limit of two anglers per boat. The "Big Bass" pot is another $10 per boat.

In addition to the main tournament there will be a free kids tournament held from noon until 2 p.m. This tournament will feature two classes: ages six and under and ages seven to 12.

The kids tournament will be held on the bank in the immediate area of the Irishman creek Marina. Trophies will be given away for the most fish caught and one for the biggest fish caught. Kids fishing in this tournament must supply their own pole, bait and it is advised that they bring a bucket in which to put their catch.

For more information on the tournament contact the Carr Fork Lake U.S. Army Corps of Engineer's office at (606) 642-3308 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

B. L. basketball, football tickets on sale

Betsy Layne High School is trying to make it easier for their fans to attend their football and basketball games this year.

The school is offering season tickets to fans that will include all football games, as well as reserved seating at all boys' and girls' basketball games this coming season.

The tickets are sure to be a bargain at $50 per adult and $25 per student. All tickets are on sale now at Betsy Layne High School.

For more information contact athletic director William Newsome, Jr. at 478-9138. Or you may call 478-1985 or 478-9322.

FOLLOW THESE TIPS WHEN BUYING A NEW BOAT THIS SPRING

It is often said the two best days in a boat owner's life are the day he buys a new boat and the day he sells it, but bass tournament pro Charlie Reed doesn't agree.

"In between those two days, a boat can provide countless hours of pleasure and relaxation," says Reed, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff, "but only if you have a boat that suits your particular needs."

For Reed, winner of the 1986 Bass Masters Classic* world championship, that translates into a boat for fishing.

"Unfortunately," he says, "the determining factor for many boat buyers is cost but it really shouldn't be. Most boat manufacturers today offer a wide variety of models and styles at different prices."

"The real key is getting a boat designed to do what you want it to do."

In fishing boats, adds Reed, one of the main criteria is storage space. This includes not only lockers for fishing rods, but also places in which to put extra tackle boxes, rain suits, and other equipment.

"These are items every fisherman takes on the water with him," explains the Johnson pro, "and if there isn't ample storage space, then the floor of the boat will be so crowded no one can move around."

"These storage areas should also be waterproof and they should have locks, too."

Another feature Reed likes on his fishing boats is a large casting deck in the bow. In tournament competition, both anglers normally share this space, and the more room available, the more efficiently each can fish.

"Boats today also come in many different lengths and with various horsepower ratings," he continues. "A fisherman should seriously consider the type of fishing he does most often when he looks at boat size."

"If an angler fishes small lakes and does not normally travel to some of the really big lakes and reservoirs very often, then a smaller boat will generally be more practical."

"Boating experience is also important. A fisherman buying his first boat should seriously consider purchasing a smaller model with a less powerful outboard to gain experience before stepping up to a larger boat with a 150 horsepower outboard."

Reed also emphasizes the importance of considering how many persons might be using the boat. For example, a family of four that enjoys water sports and is likely to participate in weekend outings together will be much more comfortable in a larger boat than in a smaller one.

"It's amazing how short a 15 or 16 foot boat can become when you add one or two additional people," he laughs, "but at the same time, adding two or three feet in boat length, up to 17 or 18 feet, can give everyone plenty of space."

"This is something every family should study carefully."

Many dealers offer on-the-water tests before purchase, adds Reed, and he recommends prospective buyers take advantage of these offers whenever possible.

* Bass Masters Classic is a registered trademark of the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society.

To help keep outboard motors running smoothly all season, OMC recommends the use of OMC Engine Tuner. Available in a 13-ounce spray can, OMC Engine Tuner removes gum and varnish build-up and cleans excessive carbon deposits from rings, pistons and ports when sprayed through the carburetor of a running motor. It's available at most Johnson and Evinrude outboard dealers.

POST-SPAWN BASS OFTEN PREFER WILLOW TREES

If you're looking for post-spawn bass this month, think willow trees.

That's the advice from North Carolina tournament pro Jerry Rhyne, who says he catches more bass from around flooded willows than anywhere else this time of year.

"I really don't know what it is about willow trees that attracts bass when they leave the spawning nests," explains the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler, "but I do know that on many lakes that's the best place to find them."

"It's really strange, because on many of these same lakes, you can't find bass around the willows as they're moving in to spawn. It's only when they're moving back out toward deeper water."

Rhyne thinks the tannic acid willows add to the water may be part of the reason bass favor the trees, but he isn't sure. The fish may also be attracted to the thick root systems around each tree.

The best way to fish flooded willow trees, Rhyne believes, is with smaller lures that can be worked slowly and thoroughly around those roots.

"I like to use small plastic worms but occasionally I'll use a plastic lizard, especially if the lake is known for its big bass," he says. "A lot of anglers also prefer jigs, too. Overall, I'd say post-spawn bass prefer smaller lures."

"It's important to make sure you work the lures down around the base of the willow trees, too, right in the root system," adds the Johnson pro. "Post-spawn bass are not especially active fish and you have to get the lure down in front of them."

Rhyne says flipping and pitching are among the best lure presentation techniques because of the accuracy they provide. Casting also works well if the lure is cast beyond the target and then retrieved to the tree and allowed to sink.

"The important thing is to give the bass plenty of time to see and react to the lure," says Rhyne. "You can't just drop a worm or jig beside a willow and expect a strike."

"You have to shake the lure and usually make several flips or pitches all around the base of the tree before you'll get a bite."

Water depth is important when fishing for post-spawn bass, Rhyne adds. Normally, the best areas will be those in which the willow trees offer the first available cover away from the spawning beds. This can mean water anywhere from four to 10 or 12 feet deep.

"We usually call the immediate post-spawn season the toughest two weeks in fishing," Rhyne smiles. "It is tough, too. Thank goodness it doesn't last any longer than that."

Sports in Kentucky

Bob Watkins

NEXT STEP (UP) IN FOOTBALL, STADIUM EXPANSION ARE NEXT PRIORITIES, NEWTON SAYS

C.M. Newton 'n things.

Seated in the most secure, some would say the best, job in all of sports, (even Super Bowl owner Jerry Jones has to put up with helmet-haired Jimmy Johnson), University of Kentucky director of athletics C.M. Newton settled comfortably into a deep chair in his mahogany-lined office and talked about The Business last week.

• Top priority at UK. "Expand our two revenue producing sports. Our basketball must continue to be good. Our football needs to go to the next step. The only source of revenue out there involves expanding our stadium. That's why it's so important for our program to be successful, create a demand for those additional 12-14,000 seats, plus 52 sky boxes."

• (In the wake of three straight losing seasons) is Bill Curry on the hot seat?

"No more than we all are. If you mean any job threat circumstance, no."

• Rick Pitino. His affection for the Bluegrass State seems to be growing.

"Yes, he's developed very strong feelings for what's happening here. One thing that attracted Rick to Kentucky was people's passion for basketball here. He had a grasp of what it means. But I think he gets a little annoyed sometimes about too much attention. To him basketball is still just a game."

• Morale in Newton's sports community at UK seems extraordinarily high.

"We've worked very hard to create family here and that's not lip service. Our coaches working, helping each other in revenue and non-revenue sports. We're really a team and we've got to nurture that."

"I remember when I was at Alabama the basketball coaches went on recruiting visits and spent as much time helping recruit Ozzie Newsome for the football team as we did Leon Douglas for basketball. It really works."

• Will the SEC revert to a seven-game league schedule, re-opening the way for another non-league foe, and seven home games?

"It's the first motion I make at every conference meeting and I get voted down. But I tell you, I think we're killing ourselves from a financial standpoint."

"No, we're going to be at six home games for awhile into the future now."

• What does Louisville coming onto the schedule mean?

"Tremendous boost for football in the state. Part of the design of having a UK-UofL season opener, what you hope happens, is, after spring practice and as the summer wears on people start saying, 'Boy, the Cats and Cardinals are going to play here before long.' People are talking football."

• What about the (fan) proposal that would match Kentucky and Louisville on Thanksgiving Day?

"That's totally backwards. I watched the Alabama-Auburn series and that's where you develop an unhealthy rivalry. What happens is it's the last game of the season and people sit around the coffee shops and Rotary Clubs beating their chests, waiting until it's time to play again."

"No, you play a game like this in an opener and then both teams move on to their league games."

"It's also why it's good to play Indiana early in football and basketball. It's a game that could get out of whack."

"I wouldn't ever want to play Indiana late in basketball because of the chances of these two teams being ranked, say, one and three. It's a game that could get screwy."

• On cheating, (Auburn got two years probation last week), is college sports getting any 'cleaner'?

"I've never been one to think college sports is dirty. There are a few who cheat, but I think the big, big majority of people want to do it right."

• The possession clock in college basketball this season will be 35 seconds.

"Implementing a change to 35 seconds without a trial season is incredible. It's going to change the game, force things more. If I'm a coach my team is going to start picking you up before you reach the center line, make it into a jump shot game."

"What's worse," Newton adds, "is taking away the S-second close-guarding rule. It's such a judgement call anyway. Now, a guard is going to be able to stand out there and dribble the ball and you'll have to come and double team him."

"It's like Adolph (Rupp) used to say, 'Sure, I'll come out and double team the guy if you'll let me have five players to guard the other team's four.'"

• Some fans opposed allowing NBA players on the U.S. Olympic team. You have been an avowed supporter of the concept.

"We're the only country that denies our pro players on his country's team while others do. My preference as chairman of the (selection) committee was to keep it to college players, but it's simply too selfish to deny Magic Johnson and Larry Bird, people like that, to compete. I can tell you this, choosing players for the team was one of the hardest things I've had to do. It was something we'd never done before."

• Proposition 48. You have said, 'let's wait and see.'

"I would not favor a change that might weaken Prop 48 at this time. We're still talking about minimum standards, you know."

"I think the message is getting to the high schools now finally, and to parents and to coaches—if you want to play, and you're good, then you'd better pay attention to school work."

Newton still disagrees with the SEC edict that allows entry to no Prop 48 athletes.

"I still think you have that occasional kid, a Sean Woods or Reggie Hanson from time to time. I would like to see us give us a couple in basketball and football. Give those kids a chance to prove what they can

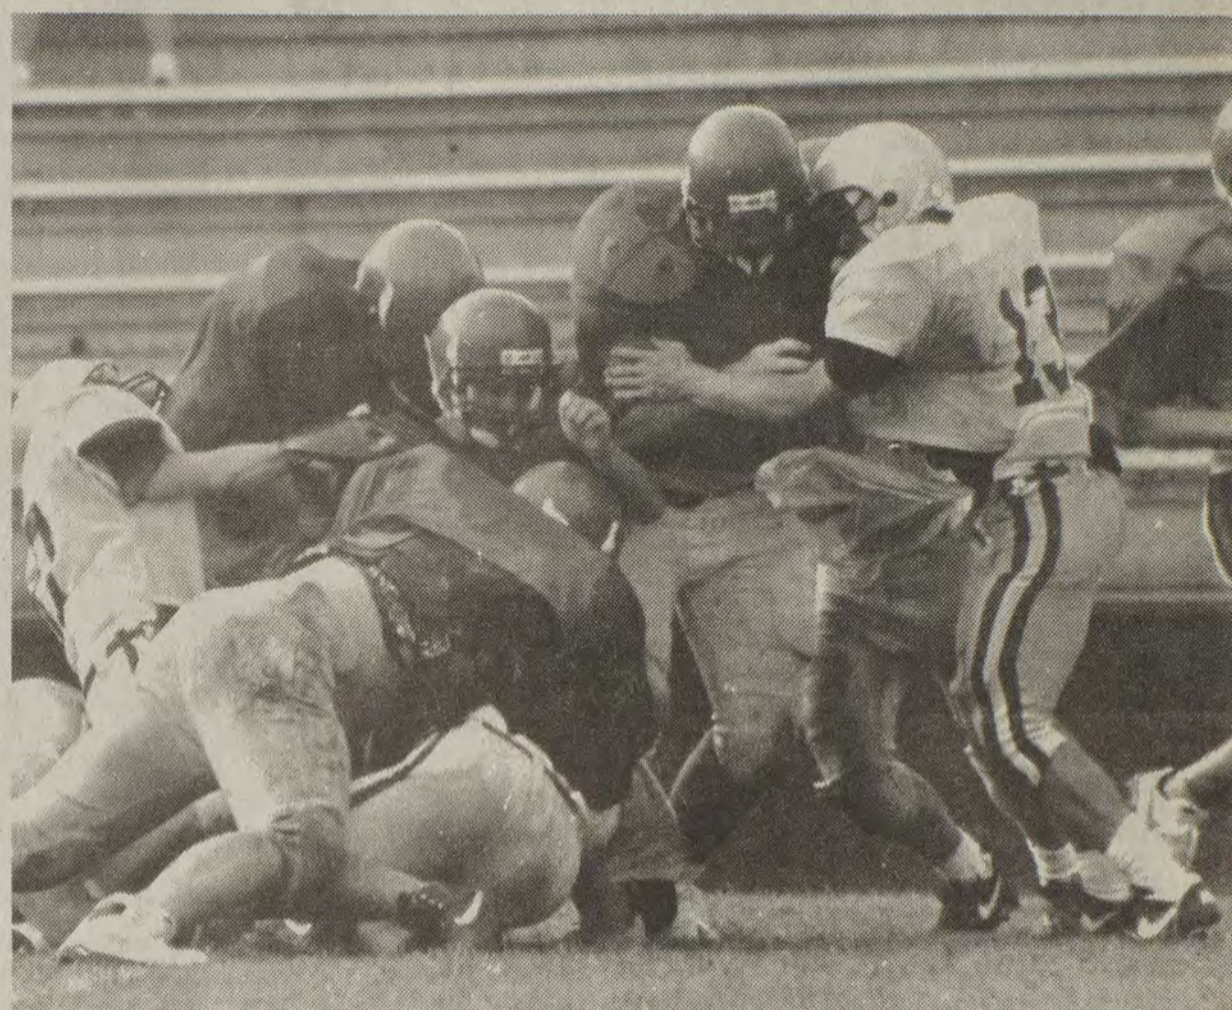

BILL CURRY ON...
• Members of his team; "Every student-athlete on our squad is going to go to class, go to study hall, remain drug free, show up for (injury) rehab, and be respectful, especially to women."

• Running back corps: "First we want them to take care of the football (not fumble). It's something you can do. Next, I want one who can make something happen. I'm looking for a tailback that can go phfft, like O.J. (Simpson)."

• Skeptics '93: "I'm sure there's plenty of skepticism. You'll always find that around. But I'm not into politics and I never listen to (radio) talk shows."

Some of Paintsville Lake area is "no hunting zone"

The Corps of Engineers at Paintsville Lake, in conjunction with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife, have designated a few areas on the Paintsville Lake wildlife management areas as "No Hunting Zones". The Corps has posted a map and description of these areas along with a list of appropriate hunting dates for the wildlife management area on outdoor bulletin boards located at the Corps of Engineers Office/Visitor Center, Paintsville Lake Marina, overlook, downstream area and Big Mine Fork and Open Fork boat launch ramps.

Those hunters wishing to hunt in the Morgan County section of the wildlife management area can do so without any hunting zone restrictions. Those hunters wishing to hunt in the Johnson County section are urged to check this map since a few areas close to the dam have been designated as "No Hunting Zones".

The 1993 small game hunting season dates for the Paintsville Lake wildlife management area have been set and are as follows:

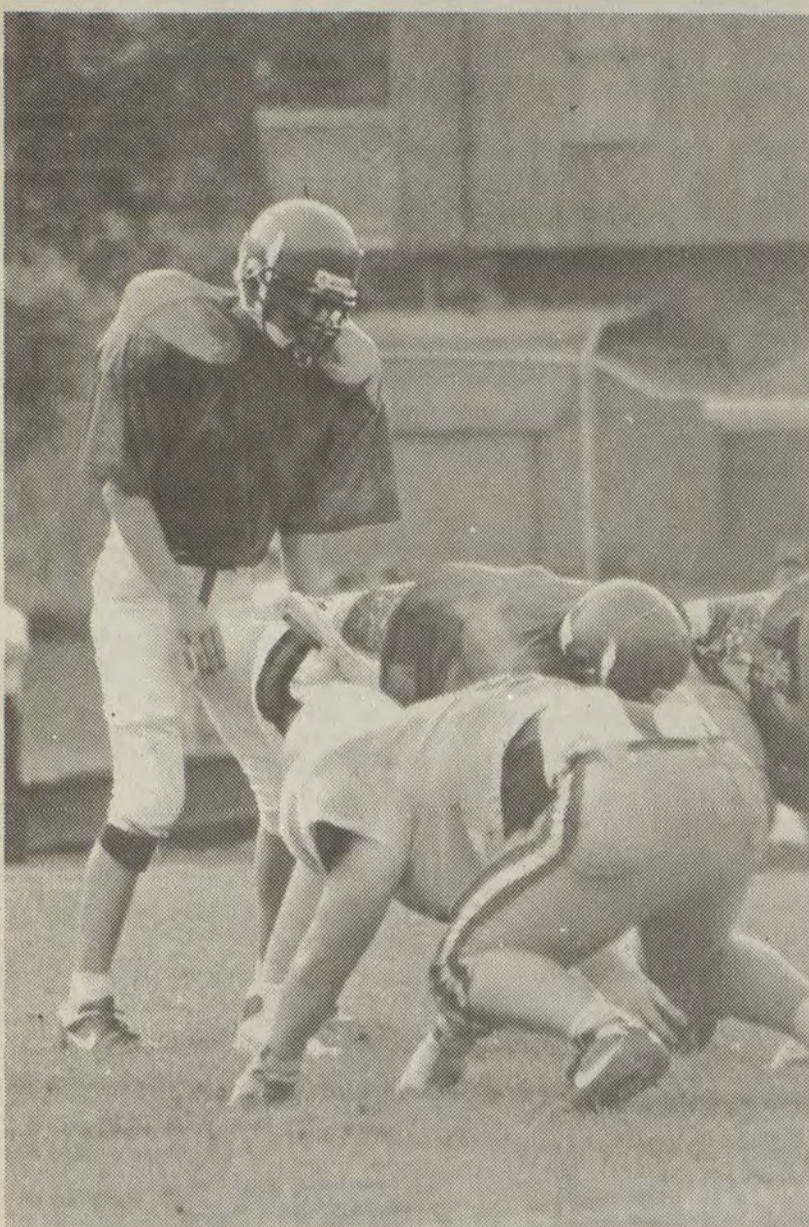

- Squirrel, opens September 4, closes December 31.
- Rabbit and Quail, opens November 1, closes December 31.
- Grouse, opens October 1, closes December 31.
- Furbearer, opens November 23, closes December 31.

Upland game bird, small grouse or furbearer hunting, trapping or unleashed dogs are prohibited during periods when breech-loading (modern) fire-arms are permitted for deer hunting (see deer guide). Shakeout season closed. Unleashed dogs prohibited from March 1 through August 31, except during permitted field trials.

The Corps reminds all hunters that they are responsible for knowing the proper hunting zones and hunting regulations before hunting on the wildlife management area.

The Corps also posts these bulletin boards with park regulations and general hunting and fishing information.

For additional information, contact the Resource Manager at Paintsville Lake, Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at (606) 297-6312.

Bike racing has become a big sport in Auxier as these three winners claimed prizes for placing in a recent race. These boys, along with others, have built their own dirt track and held their first race on August 8. The race consisted of four heats, two for the older ones and two for the younger bikers. Hubert Clevenger won first-place for the younger racers and Ralph Mullett placed second. Sean Pilch took first-place for the older group and Tony Honeycutt placed second. Only the first-place winner took home prize money.

Coach Daniels was pleased with the work of his sophomore quarterback.

"I think that Aaron has come a long way in a week," said Daniels in reference to his team's first grid game. "He made some bad choices, but for the most part he made good choices on the option play tonight.

"He's going to get better every day. It's a new position for him and a tough one to learn."

Hall found tight end Charles Johnson for three completions and hit fullback Arnold Adams once as he passed for 83 yards on seven completions. He was intercepted twice.

Adams led the rushing game for South Floyd with an unofficial 66 yards on 10 carries. Caudill ran for 29 yards and Stone finished with 48 yards.

Ward topped the Hornets' rushing game with 124 yards on eight carries. Magoffin had 235 yards total offense with 171 coming on the ground.

South Floyd rushed for 163 yards and totaled 246 yards on offense.

They were flagged 12 times for 85 yards in penalties. The Raiders were guilty of turning the ball over six times. They fumbled four times and had two interceptions.

Sophomore quarterback Terrance Mullins saw some time behind center and looked impressive. He was sacked once.

"We had a lot of breakdowns in the first half," said Daniels. "We lacked any kind of pressure on their quarterback in the first half. He was standing in the pocket and fired at will.

"We put more pressure on him in the second half and he did not throw the ball as effectively."

Caba had no completions in the second half and the Hornets failed to move the ball against the Raiders in the second part of the game. In fact, the Hornets failed to pick up a first down in the second half.

The Raiders will now put the pre-season scrimmages behind them as they play for real this Friday night at Betsy Layne. Kickoff time is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Allen Central quarterback Brad Blackburn found throwing time against Fleming-Neon Saturday night. The Rebels faced the Pirates in the third game of the EKMC Gridorama, falling 16-6. Allen Central opens against Elkhorn City Friday night at home. (photo by Ed Taylor) first down when they were facing a third and long situation. The penalty moved the football down to the Pirates 14-yard line. Osborne picked up 11 yards placing the ball on the four and a first down.

On a third-and-goal play, Osborne had the opening but fumbled the football on the one where Neon recovered.

On the last possession of the game, Allen Central reached the Pirates 14-yard line before the horn sounded to end the game.

Neon, one of the premier teams last year, has dropped the "side saddle" offense and found the Rebels a different team than last season. It was a challenge that coach Reeves saw his team accept.

"They took the challenge well," he said. "The kids wanted to win this one."

But the defeat was a positive thing for the Rebels, according to Reeves.

"The score and the way the game went is going to give us a lot of encouragement. At least they are not discouraged or beaten down.

"Our defense was good tonight. We just don't have the kids fast enough to play the corner position in high school. We'll be hurting there."

Osborne and Floyd once again look like they are ready to play for keeps as they shared 183 yards in rushing. Floyd led the ground game with 122 yards on 12 carries and Osborne finished with 61 yards on 13 carries. Howard raced for 21 yards on just three attempts.

Fleming-Neon totaled 190 yards with 183 coming on the ground. The Pirates were penalized six times for 55 yards. They had no turnovers in the game.

Allen Central lost the ball once on a controversial fumble. The Rebs had 231 yards total offense with 217 on the ground. Jenkins had one reception for 14 yards.

Allen Central was penalized only 30 yards on four flags.

"James (Osborne) had a heck of a game for us," said Coach Reeves. "Floyd gave us another good outing. We try to pick on the defense a little bit in finding their weaknesses."

Reeves said that his ballclub has come a long way since the first practice.

"By that I mean we've come a long way in regard to the fundamentals of the game such as blocking, tackling, those type of things.

"The kids are thinking out there more. They are using their heads."

The fun of fishing

By Scott Patton and made possible by these sponsors:

Scott Patton fishes the BASS-MASTERS Tournament Trail. He won the 1989 B.A.S.S. Federation State Championship. He was named 1987 Hydra Sports Points Champion. Scott is sponsored by TRACKER Marine, Burnett Brothers Boat Mart and Triple Fish.

Experienced fishermen know the importance of water temperature in relation to catching fish. Every game fish species has a preferred temperature range which governs feeding, spawning, migration, and so forth. In short, water temperature will determine how active or inactive any given species may be.

Surface temperature has become easy to identify using small, compact temp gauges found on most modern fishing boats. But what about temperatures lower than the water surface—say 20 to 50 feet deep? Doesn't this have a distinct bearing on the habits of game fish? The answer is: absolutely!

Most bodies of water experience two major temperature conversions during the course of a year's time. In the spring, the warm rays of the sun will increase the surface temperature and force the cooler water down. In the fall, the cooler days will lower the surface temperature, forcing the warmer water down. What happens during these two periods is a condition beneath the surface called stratification.

In the spring the warmer layer near the surface is referred to as the epilimnion layer. The lower level of colder water is called the hypolimnion layer. In between we have a unique comfort zone referred to as the thermocline. This dense layer of water can be detected on most depth sounders as long as the sensitivity is properly adjusted.

There are several unique observations to be made from studying the thermocline. In most freshwater impoundments, the thermocline will usually hold at a constant level regardless of where one moves on the body of water. A conclusion can certainly be drawn: It is possible to be fishing too deep when the thermocline is present. Fishing beneath the thermocline would produce no results what-so-ever.

Learn to identify the thermocline by using your sonar and fish accordingly. It can help increase your catch by placing your bait where the fish are.

My wife, Angela, and I just returned from the 1994 Tracker/Nitro Dealer Show. This show is where Tracker Marine invites all of its dealers and pro-team anglers to see the new lineup for 1994.

We spoke with Larry Columbo, Hummingbird's Director of Public Relations, and he explained that Hummingbird electronics will be on every Tracker/Nitro boat. I was excited about this.

Columbo explains depth sounder

Larry Columbo explains the features of Hummingbird's new wide-view depth sounders. The new sound device will be on all Tracker/Nitro boats.

Kentucky Afield

Officials with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) are reminding Peabody Wildlife Management Area (WMA) permit holders that the White City WMA is not part of Peabody WMA lands.

According to Lauren E. Schaaf, KDFWR wildlife director, White City WMA is a separate management area and governed under different hunting regulations than the Peabody WMA lands. White City WMA is located in Hopkins and Muhlenberg counties, and in close proximity to portions of the Peabody WMA. The tract of land is also shown on the area map that Peabody WMA users receive when they buy a Peabody WMA permit, and the inclusion may have caused some confusion about use of the two WMAs.

"At the present time, sportsmen do not need a Peabody WMA user permit to hunt or fish on the White City WMA, but they do need to be aware that special hunting season dates and other requirements are in effect on White City for deer hunting," said Schaaf.

"Small game hunting is open on White City following statewide season dates and limits," Schaaf added. While most of the Peabody WMA lands will be open to deer hunting this year under statewide deer hunting regulations, the only deer gun hunting permitted on White City WMA will be by advanced-application quota hunts. The 10-day statewide modern gun season and the muzzle-loading seasons are not open on White City. Only those persons selected through a random computer drawing and in possession of a valid quota hunt permit will be allowed on the area on quota hunt dates. Archery season is October 1 through November 12 and November 23 through December 31 on White City WMA and does not require advanced application.

"Although White City lies close to a portion of the Peabody WMA lands, the boundaries of the White City WMA are clearly marked. Hunters should have no problem discerning whether they are on Peabody lands or White City lands," said Schaaf.

Persons interested in applying for one of the two quota deer hunts to be held on White City WMA this season, or who wish to obtain a copy of the 1993-94 Small Game Hunting Guide should contact the KDFWR Information Division, #1 Game Farm Rd., Frankfort, KY 40601; phone (502) 564-4336, M-F, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. EST.

Brugh Watch!

Paintsville coach Walter Brugh needs just three wins to tie, four to pass Garnis Martin's all-time win mark for Kentucky high school football coaches.

Martin, who coached at Bardstown for 38 years, finished the 1989 season with a record of 271-114-7. Brugh, who began his career in 1956, has recorded a mark of 268-125-5, with state runner-up trophies in 1978 and 1985. The "Blue Legend," as Brugh is known, has had one undefeated season (10-0-1 in 1962) and has twice won 11 games in a season (1960, 1978).

The Paintsville Tigers open the new season Saturday against Shelby Valley in the Big Sandy Bowl at Paintsville. If his Tigers can begin the season with consecutive wins, Brugh could tie the mark at Everts on September 10 and capture the record at Nicholas County on September 17.

Highlands 600, Ashland 500

Highlands, the state's defending Class AAA champion, needs three victories to top the 600-win plateau while Ashland Paul Blazer is just three victories short of reaching its 500th win in school history.

Highlands tied with Trinity for the most state titles at 11, enters '93 with 597 victories since the program's inception in 1915. The Bluebirds are 597-187-26 overall and will face Bell County (8/28), Moeller (9/3) and Holmes (9/10) and Ironton, Ohio (9/10). Vic Marsh's club finished 1992 with a record of 8-4.

The state's all time win leader is Louisville Male with 617 victories, beginning in 1893.

won 50 straight from 1988-91 under current coach Dennis Lamplsey.

St. Xavier has won nine straight after losing its annual fight with archrival Trinity 13-10 early last season. Scott High, on the other hand, is in the midst of a state-leading 22-game losing streak.

Turkey Bowl Rematch!

Remember last season's Turkey Bowl game, featuring Highlands and Bell County in the Class AAA state semifinal game? Bell County ruffled a few feathers in Northern Kentucky when it scheduled the game on Thanksgiving Day. But Highlands won the contest 21-6 and the state title the following week.

Now, the two teams will lock horns again when they kick off the season in Tate Creek's Thoroughbred Bowl on Saturday, August 28. The game gets underway at 6:30 p.m. followed by Lafayette and Corbin at 8:45 p.m. Incidentally, the KHSAA Board of Control passed a rule after last season requiring that both teams agree on the date and starting time for playoff games.

Redd Recovering!

Bardstown's star tailback William Redd suffered gunshot wounds to the abdomen and face while trying to break up a fight last month. The incident occurred July 3. His most serious wound was in the abdomen, where the bullet pierced his stomach. Luckily, it missed other major organs. Redd is predicted to be one of the top backs in the state this year. He was given the OK to practice by his doctors beginning August 12, according to a report in the Lexington Herald-Leader.

Last year in the 1992 Class A title game, the 5' 10" 195-pound senior rushed 22 times for 148 yards and one touchdown as the Tigers fell in defeat to Bardstown, 21-14.

The Devils made him do it!

Henry Clay had such an exciting package to offer, coach Sam Simpson couldn't turn the Devils down. And when Henry Clay travels to Marion County this week, Simpson should have no problem finding his way around Lebanon. Simpson coached Marion County to a 9-2 record in '92, losing to South Oldham in the first round of the playoffs.

Henry Clay will be trying to snap a 19-game losing streak. It just so happens the last team Henry Clay defeated was Marion County in the 1991 season opener.

Name change!

One of the top football players in the state of Kentucky this season hails from Paducah Tilghman. The 6-3 line-backer -- who is also a first cousin to EKV Colonel Emerson Wells -- has undergone a name change. Senior Marcus Jackson has changed his last name to Cross. Cross may be a top contender for Mr. Football honors.

Defending champions!

Beechwood, Danville, Highlands and St. Xavier will kick off their respective football seasons this weekend as defending state champions.

Danville starts with Belfry in the Pike County Bowl, Highlands faces Bell County in the Thoroughbred Bowl and St. Xavier knocks heads with Jeffersontown. Beechwood will have to wait a week. Without an opening game this Friday, the Tigers tee it up on the road at Hazard next week.

Beechwood and Danville earn the distinction as two-time defending champs. Beechwood, however, lost all-state tailback Brandon Berger to graduation. In the last two championship games, Berger rushed for 271 yards and 199 yards respectively. Danville, meanwhile, returns starting quarterback Colin Rogers for his senior year.

Roll Ads!

The Danville Admirals, coached by Sam Harp, begin the season with the state's longest active winning streak at 29 games. Danville hasn't lost since its 1991 opener to Steel Valley, Pa. The Ads went 14-1 that season, winning the state title before repeating last year with a perfect mark of 15-0. The last Kentucky team to beat the Admirals was Corbin... a 30-7 win during the 1990 state semifinals.

Currently, Danville is tied with Highlands for sixth place on the state's all-time consecutive win list. Highlands won 29 from 1981-83 under coach Bill Herrman. The state's longest streak belongs to Trinity, which AREN'T WORDS SILLY?

Even though we'd have a terrible time communicating without them, you've got to wonder about them sometimes. I mean, how did we ever come up with some of the things we call certain things? Surely I'm not the only one who ever wonders about stuff like that.

I mean, at one time or another, everybody must have wondered about why they call it a "hamburger." It doesn't make a lick of sense since it has no ham in it. It's just like "driveway" and "parkway." We don't drive on a driveway, we park. We can't park on a parkway because we'll get run over. That's where people drive. See what I mean?

Even some of those little every day, ordinary words we take for granted bother me sometimes. Like the word "toothbrush," for instance. "Tooth" is singular. So, why isn't it called a "teethbrush?" We brush them all, don't we? Unless, of course, we just drop 'em in a glass and soak 'em.

Did you ever wonder why we drink coffee from a teacup and tea from a glass? Or, why folks who loaf on a "sofa" (why isn't it called a "lofa?") are called "couch" potatoes?

It sure makes me wonder. Then, there are those ordinary things that have names that many of us didn't realize had names. Like the little plastic tip of a shoelace, for instance. That's called an "aglet." Did you know that the hole in a pencil sharpener where we put the pencil is called a "chuck?" Or, that the slit made with a knife or a saw is called a "kerf?"

To me, some things we call things just don't make sense. Skunks, do though, but did you know that the word "scent" comes from the Latin word "sentire" which means "to feel?" Now, that's kind of strange in itself, especially when one realizes that we "scent" with our nose and "feel" with our fingers. Personally, I'm kinda glad that's the way it is.

Can you imagine someone saying, "Stick your nose to that radiator and see if it's still hot?"

I'd prefer to use my finger, if you don't mind.

The word "finger?" It's based on a Greek word for "five." That's kind of reasonable since we have five on each hand. However, since we also have five toes on each foot, wonder why we don't call our toes "fingers," too?

Then we could say, "I can't understand why my fingers are cold. I've got on three pair of socks." And, Tiny Tim could have "tip-fingered through the tulips."

A tulip is a flower. So is a rose. Since "rose" is the past tense for "rise," doesn't it make sense, then, that yesterday's roses should be referred to as "rises?"

"What used to be planted here, Mom?"

"Why, last summer, we had 'rises' planted, my son."

And since, as Hemingway says, "the sun also rises," why aren't roses call sunflowers?

It just doesn't add up. Some snakes do, though. Some snakes areadders. Then again, so are mathematicians. And speaking of such, did you know that the highest number recognized in math is called a "centillion?" This is a one, followed by 600 zeros.

"Zero" is taken from a French word meaning the absence of magnitude or quantity.

Somehow it seems appropriate for me to stop here.

Birth place of healthy beginnings

The overall goals of every pregnancy are simple—to have a healthy mother and her baby. For the mother, that means maintaining or improving physical and emotional health, reducing complications through prompt identification and treatment, and improving standards of care for the labor and delivery process. For infants, the goals of care are the reduction of mortality during birth and early days of life, and the reduction of birth defects. A comprehensive prenatal program of medical and educational care is needed to reach these goals for mother and child.

Highlands Regional Medical Center's Birth Place is a comprehensive prenatal education program aimed at helping new parents have a happy and healthy pregnancy. The education program is designed to complement the new $1.2 million redesign and expansion of the Obstetrical Department, scheduled for a September 1993 opening and named the Birth Place.

The program will review with expectant parents the normal physical and psychological changes that occur during pregnancy, healthy maintenance and care during pregnancy, nutritional needs and fetal development.

The importance of prenatal care

The woman who suspects she is pregnant should schedule her first visit with an obstetrician or family practitioner after she has missed a menstrual period. Most books and physicians encourage that early care, but many of today's health conscious parents-to-be are looking for an even earlier way to ensure their baby's well-being and care.

"The preconception visit may be the single most important health care visit as viewed in the context of its effect on pregnancy," according to a report of federal panel of experts as prenatal care. The "Caring for Our Future: The Content of Prenatal Care," outlined recommendations that all women visit their obstetrician at least once before conception.

The sooner the better

As part of the preconception visit, mothers are asked questions about medical history, past pregnancies and lifestyle factors. Before pregnancy is the best time to evaluate a woman's health. The better her health before conception, the better the chances for having a healthy pregnancy and a healthy baby, according to these experts. Preconception can also give the woman time to change habits that can affect the fetus, such as smoking and drinking, and to start treatment for conditions such as diabetes or hypertension.

The most crucial stages in the baby's development will occur before most women know they are pregnant.

Damage from certain infections, maternal illnesses, drugs, alcohol and environmental hazards can be minimized if precautions are taken during the early weeks of pregnancy. The first prenatal visit usually takes place within weeks after conception and is vital to both the health of the mother and the fetus.

The main focus of pre-conception counseling is to allow for a healthy environment for the developing infant. That means helping the mother-to-be do the most she can to prepare herself both physically and psychologically for the upcoming pregnancy.

While the terminology may be new, the concept is really just an extension of a not so new principal. "It's just good, preventative medicine," said Kathy Rubado, Public Relations coordinator.

"The focus for the past 20 years has been on early prenatal care. Now, we're just moving that visit up even earlier."

Signs of pregnancy

A women usually guesses she's pregnant by a delayed menstrual period. Other early warning signs of pregnancy include nausea and vomiting (so-called "morning sickness") brought on by the hormonal changes of pregnancy, increase in breast size and weight, increased fatigue and lack of energy and an enlarging uterus resulting in increased frequency to urinate.

During a prenatal office visit, physicians can usually detect pregnancy two to three weeks after a missed menstrual period by the physical signs alone, but many will perform pregnancy tests to confirm that diagnosis. Hormonal test of urine, blood tests and ultrasound are routinely used to confirm pregnancy, due date and any early signs of problems.

The most dramatic physical changes in pregnancy involve the uterus. The weight of the muscles increases tenfold and the capacity increases from one half ounce per minute in early pregnancy to more than one pint per minute when birth is near. Increased hormone levels cause the skin to have some darkened pigment and "stretch marks" appear on the skin of the abdomen.

Perhaps the most visible signs are the weight changes that a woman experiences. The average weight gain is 25 pounds during the nine month period.

Of this amount 19 pounds are accounted for in the pregnancy itself, the fetus about 7 1/2 pounds, the placenta 1 pound, the amniotic fluid 2 pounds, added weight of the uterus 2 1/2 pounds, increased blood volume 4 pounds.

The rest of the weight represents accumulated fats and fluids retained by the body but will normally be lost after birth.

Other systems are affected by the pregnancy as well: carbohydrate and insulin metabolism, cardiovascular systems, respiration, gastrointestinal tract, musculoskeletal system and perhaps the most talked about, emotional impact.

Proper nutrition, exercise and education can pave the way for a healthier baby and a successful pregnancy and delivery.

Facts on the babies born too small

More than 250,000 American babies are born each year with low birth weight.

For every $1 spent on prenatal care, $3 are saved in the special care a critically ill baby would need.

Locally, the average hospital cost for a low birth weight baby is $45,000. The total cost of neonatal intensive care in the United States exceeds $2.5 billion each year.

Sixty percent of all infant deaths occur to infants of low birth weight.

Classes in prenatal care will be held both at HRMC and in nearby communities. Class schedules are still being finalized but can be obtained by calling Call-A-Nurse at 1-800-844-NURSE (6877).

Ask Dr. Bubba

Editor's Note: Dr. Bubba is not a licensed, practicing therapist, but studied for many years under his mentor and third and fifth wife Dr. Joyce Brothers and was recently acquitted of those silly stalking charges she lodged against him in a fit of jealousy when she caught him at a McDonald's drive-through with Ann Landers. Dr. Bubba also wishes to announce that any half-witted moron who thought he was trying to make fun of people who NEED state or federal assistance in his column last week either ought to read more thoroughly next time or else just stick to the Soap Updates column where they really gotta be careful what ya eat.

Dear Dr. Bubba: While on my trek west, I made a pilgrimage to that holy shrine of Bubbaness. Yes, I ordered a Big Mac at the McDonald's in Hope, Arkansas—the birthplace of Bubbadent Bill Clinton. I sure can understand why he feel's everyone's pain. Man, I did after I finished the burger. Took four Tums E-X to knock it down. Days later, I'm gaining a lot of weight, my hair's looking real bad, and I want to sympathize with everyone I meet. Do your think Bubba Bill put something in these burgers to alter people's genetic codes—to make us all more Clintonian? If he's done this nationwide, we may have a Bubba epidemic on our hands. What do we do? Asinine in Arizona

Dear Asinine: First of all, I really wish ya wouldn't make fun o' my half-brother Bill like that. Second of all, when ya travel in foreign countries like Arkansas, ya really gotta be careful what ya eat. And finally, I wouldn't worry too much about Bubba epidemic, for I am the One True Bubba. All the rest are Bubba impersonators.

Dear Dr. Bubba: I don't have any serious mental problems, but my wife, Bertha Sue Biggum (the grouchy old cow) says I lack sensitivity. I just don't know where that fat heifer gets such ideas. You would think that someone who is as ugly as she is would be happy, just cause she managed to marry within her own species. In fact, I told ol' lardbottom that even someone as stupid, backwards, dense and unsanitary as Dr. Bubba would see that I am not the type of person who would ever hurt someone's feelings. I mean, who but some over-sensitive Oprah Winfrey-type would get upset just because I happen to mention that our kids look a whole lot more like the other members of my softball team than me. Now she has threatened to leave me if I don't become even more sensitive to her feelings than I am already. So I figured that it would be cheaper to write some penny-ante advice columnist like you and learn how to become more sensitive than to have the kitchen wall knocked down so she can leave. What do you suggest? Already Sensitive Sal in Saltlick

Dear Sal: If ya really wanna show 'er how sensitive ya are, I suggest ya hand 'er a large baseball bat an' then tell 'er exactly what ya think about 'er. I'm sure that the problem'll take care of itself.

That's it fer this week, kids. Remember, keep them cards an' letters pourin' in ta "Ask Dr. Bubba," c/o The Big Sandy News, P.O. Box 766, Louisa, Ky. 41230. An' be sure an' tune in next week, same BubbaTime, same BubbaChannel, fer the further excitin' adventures o' The Young and the Pitiful.

Kim's Korner

By the time you read this, many of us will have returned to the routine of waking at 6 a.m. and getting our children to school. Some for the very first time.

by Kim Frasure

A couple of nights ago, K.J. called in tears. Trying to calm myself after being scared to death from her tearful, crackling voice, I said, "Tell me what's wrong!"

"Taylor started kindergarten today," she said, "I might as well have left her alone with a pack of wolves, it's the same feeling," she continued.

"Oh, no," I said, "try and calm down, it'll be okay. I promise."

"How did you make it through this?" she asked.

"The same way you are," I told her. "But K.J.," I said, "my experience is not going to make you feel better."

"You see, 1986 seems like yesterday to me. I can still remember vividly walking Ashleigh into her classroom, thinking 'She's too little to leave,' and now, K.J., she's in the seventh grade."

"Hush, don't tell me anymore," she scolded.

"I'm sorry, it's true, but think of it like this. You, like me, get to go through this a second time with Kaitlin."

"Oh, you really know how to make a person feel better, Kim," she told me in a derogatory tone.

"It gets easier the second time, though. Tiff couldn't wait to go to school like her big sister. But then you'll probably have to go through this too, K.J."

"What?" she asked. "Well, although Tiff wanted to be like her big sister and go to school, she didn't want to go to the same school."

"If my girls had their way about things, one would be on one end of the county and the other one at the other end."

"Oh, are you in for some good times my friend," I told K.J.

"Your life is just now beginning. Before you know it, you'll be kept up till the wee hours of morn from pajama parties. You'll be going to parent-teacher conferences (but probably not till Kait starts school. Ha! Ha!), and oh, the best one, your phone will begin to ring and it won't be for you or Gene."

"Yes, these are the times of your life. Keeping your sanity will be the hardest thing to accomplish," I said.

"Sometimes I think I've had a nervous breakdown, I just can't stop long enough to remember when it was."

"Just wait till those good ol' preteen stages hit your household. Honey you'll be on you hands and knees begging for those terrible twos."

"I think fifth grade was our household's worst nightmare so far, knock on wood. That was the year the spouse and I knew nothing, and we were on the verge of calling a local optometrist to see if our daughter's rolling eyes were normal. Oh, K.J., shall I continue?"

"Well, it seems, that with your second child these oh so wonderful stages come sooner."

"You're joking," she said.

"No, no, I'm not," I continued. "You see, Tiff is in the fourth grade this year and over the summer she began to roll those big eyes of hers every time her dad and I said a word."

"Now, it seems she's beginning to know more, also. The Good Lord help me if this phone starts ringing for her this year."

"Ronnie, nor I, will never get a call."

"Well, Kim," K.J. said, "I'm really glad I called you. I'm more depressed now than I was before."

"I'm sorry. I was only trying to prepare you for what's ahead. And K.J., if it helps, I left out the really bad parts."

Till next week, keep those babies babies as long as you possibly can!

Rebekah Lodge plans district meeting at I.O.O.F.

The regular meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 was held August 17, with Noble Grand Violetta Wright presiding.

Several members remain on the sick list and three others were added to the list. Cards were signed to mail to them.

It was noted that the Rebekah District 4 meeting will be held September 18 in the I.O.O.F. Hall. Plans for this meeting will be completed at the next meeting.

The committee on curtains for the main hall reported and discussion followed. It was agreed to purchase them and try to get them up before the district meeting.

The Rebekah Creed was led by Hope Whitten and repeated by all present.

Present were Violetta Wright, Hope Whitten, Sue Moore, Rebecca Bingham, Susie Clifton, Jean Hickman, Deborah Johns, Claudine Johns, Dora Johns, Mabel Jean LeMaster, and Maman Leslie.

The next regular meeting will be held September 7, in the I.O.O.F. Hall.

Sons of the American Revolution

The annual meeting of the Kentucky Society, Sons of the American Revolution, was held at historic Talbot Tavern, Bardstown, July 27, with president, Ray Brackett of Allen, presiding.

Following the business session and luncheon, new state officers were installed before the approximately 100 members and guests.

Newly-installed president, Ben Brewer of Louisville, presented the J. Colgan Norman Award to the chapter with the highest percentage member increase which went to the Big Sandy Chapter, their second in a four-year period.

President Brewer announced that the 1850 Kentucky Census on microfilm would be presented to the National Society Library with an engraved plate bearing the name of Stephen Ray Preston Brackett as a gift from the Kentucky Society.

Angela Frances Brackett accepted the Certificate of Appreciation "for recognition of outstanding support given to the Sons of the American Revolution" for her father posthumously, who had been Big Sandy Chapter president and Kentucky Society vice-president.

Ray Brackett, national trustee and Kentucky's outgoing president, received the past president pin and certificate from President General Paul H. Walker and the Patriot Medal, highest award for exceptional services to the Kentucky Society, from President Brewer. Brewer also presented Frances Brackett the SAR Medal of Appreciation in recognition of outstanding services rendered to the KYSSAR.

Mrs. Derrick Joe Young

Vows exchanged June 5

Staci Deidra Dotson, daughter of Stephen and Sandy Dotson of Indian Harbor Beach, Florida, and Derrick Joe Young, son of Billy Joe and Martha Young of Athens, Alabama, were married Saturday, June 5, at 3 p.m. at the Seymour Johnson Air Force Base Chapel by Scott Rummage in a double-ring ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a white satin gown with a sheath with a demicathedral length train decorated with seed pearls and lace. The headpiece was tulle blusher with a crown of lace and pearls.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white orchids, ivy, stephanotis and gardenias.

Serving as best man was the father of the groom. Ushers were James Moran of Dayton, Ohio, Jeff Mase of Miami, Florida, Johnny Furline of Athens, Alabama, Steven Dotson of Kernersville, North Carolina, and Lee Perkins of Winterhaven, Florida.

Mike Nault served as the organist and vocalist.

The maid of honor was the sister of the bride, Shawn Dotson of Greensboro, North Carolina. Bridesmaids were Melissa Malone of Kernersville, North Carolina, Melissa Allred of Randleman, North Carolina, Cali Dotson of Greensboro, North Carolina, Dawn Furline of Athens, Alabama, and Patricia Perkins.

The flower girl was Breanna Furline and at the register was Sharon Dew. Ora Spencer served as the director.

A reception was held at Walnut Creek Country Club in Goldsboro, North Carolina.

They honeymooned in Athens, Greece and Geneva, Switzerland. They now reside in Goldsboro, North Carolina.

The bride is the owner of Uniglobe, TTM in Greensboro, North Carolina, and at Seymour Johnson AFB in Goldsboro, North Carolina.

The groom is a pilot for American Airlines and the Air Force Reserve at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base.

Golden Ages

Nurses conduct survey

Mary Anderson and Donna Thomas, registered nurses at McDowell ARH and its home health agency, have been devoting many hours this summer to a survey of all the resources available to the elderly in the McDowell area.

Their work is part of a major project sponsored by Appalachian Regional Healthcare. The multi-disciplinary task force which they serve is examining all the issues relevant to aging in Appalachia. Projections indicate that the percentage of those over 65 in the area will approximate 13.4% by the year 2000. Most of these seniors will enjoy longer and healthier lives than preceding generations. Advances in medical technology and their own healthier lifestyles will work together to keep them independent.

In recent years, there has been an expansion of senior support services in this country, including Senior Citzen Centers, local social service agencies, home healthcare, Meals on Wheels, citizen advocates, telephone monitoring systems, and assisted living centers, all of which help older citizens maintain their independence. Such services, and many more in Appalachia, are being approached by Anderson and Thomas' task force and invited to participate in a community collaboration effort designed to assess the needs of Appalachia's older generation and together see that those needs are efficiently and economically met.

ARH is a not-for-profit health care system with hospitals, primary care centers, home health care, and other related facilities and services in Kentucky, West Virginia, and Virginia.

Overcoming fears on life's road to college

by Jerry Kibler and Sabrina Tomblin

With the fall college season just around the corner, parents and students both are a little unsure of what lies ahead on life's road.

Mother and Dad aren't sure what life is going to be like without their child at home. Anxieties rise about security for their daughter and son. After all, this is the first time their child is going to be out on his own. Mom and Dad, aren't going to be there to make sure John or Mary is in at night. Panic also strikes in Dad's heart as he thinks, "How am I going to pay for college? I know it's best, but where is the money going to come from?"

On the other side we see seniors eagerly awaiting college. They can't wait to get out on their own. However, if we were able to read their minds we might pick up on a conversation like this, "Am I going to be able to make it? How hard is college, and with Mom and Dad not around, who should I go to for answers? What is my roommate going to be like? Should I even be doing this? Shouldn't I try to get a job and make some money? After all, I've been in school for twelve years; now do I want to go four more years?"

Sabrina Tomblin had these fears just two short years ago. Ms. Tomblin, 20-year-old daughter of Gordon and Carol Tomblin from Harts, West Virginia, now a junior Business Administration major at Alice Lloyd College shares her experience in the following essay.

My first visit to Alice Lloyd College was filled with mixed emotions. I was nervous about leaving home and being on my own for the first time. I had no idea what to expect out of college. Like most students entering college for the first time, I was in tears when my mother drove away that first day and left me to begin a new chapter of my life. I felt an emptiness inside that I thought would never be filled.

My nerves were calmed a little when I became acquainted down Caney for the first time. I found that the atmosphere and surroundings were almost like home, and the people are the most caring people in the world. One of the advantages that I have realized in the past two years of going to a small college is the communication between the students and the faculty. The closeness of these relationships is very important to me. Most of the students and faculty are on a first name basis. The faculty at Alice Lloyd College has been very encouraging and supportive to me throughout my career as a student. They are almost like an adopted family. They congratulate me when I do well and correct me when I am wrong. Their doors are always open and they are always willing to listen. This helps a lot when you are used to seeking the advice of adults.

My parents' advice has always been very important to me. I could never have grown into the person that I am today without their guidance. My biggest fear was losing the closeness of my family. It was hard for me to let go of being a child and make the decisions that were made for me by my parents for eighteen years; not to mention how hard it was for my parents to let go and let me be an adult. By going to a college close to home, I am able to go home almost every weekend to see them. The closeness of my family is even stronger now.

Being in college I found that it is very expensive to call home every time that I needed some advice or just an encouraging word. My professors have been there for me every time that I needed an ear. The Baptist Student Union also became an important part of my college life. We meet once weekly and have Bible studies and share our spiritual life in Christian fellowship. This also helps students make it through each day, for without God where would you get your strength to go on?

Alice Lloyd is challenging, but it makes me strive to be my best. I have learned a lot in the past two years; about life and about myself. I have learned that it takes a lot of hard work, courage, and determination to succeed; but it is worth it. I graduated from Chapmanville High in 1991 as valedictorian, and I thought that if I was that successful in high school that I had college licked. NOT! College is NOT high school.

I entered college in the fall of 1991 on a Memorial Scholarship and I have worked very, very hard to keep it. Long hours of studying, writing, researching, and preparing for classes are part of every day for me. The Memorial Scholarship is granted to students entering college with a GPA of 3.5 or better. To retain this scholarship one must have a cumulative GPA of 3.0 at the end of each year.

This covers all college expenses for me except books, $135 matriculation fee, and personal expenses. It is well worth all the hard work and time that I put into it, and I am sure to benefit in future years.

I plan to get my bachelor's degree in business administration at ALC in 1995 and eventually get my master's degree in advertising or journalism.

Because of my interest in advertising and journalism, ALC has provided me with a summer job in the Public Relations Department. This job has given me a chance to gain experience, knowledge on news writing, and improve my writing skills. My main job was to write articles about all ALC summer activities. The first time I saw one of my articles in print was such a thrill. This has made me more confident about choosing a career in this field. My articles were published in several newspapers, and I have met many people in the same field.

I will continue to work in the Public Relations Department this fall as my work study assignment at ALC. I feel that by working in this department I have gained experience that will help me in my future career.

To me Alice Lloyd College is a special place, for special people, with a special purpose. Before I came to ALC, I thought I could make it, but now I know that I can. I have learned that every person has a purpose in life, and with God's help I hope to fulfill my purpose. While attending ALC I have made mistakes just as everyone else has, but I have realized that it is okay to make mistakes. Picking yourself up and moving on makes the difference.

My plans have changed from three years ago; but there is one thing that I would like to say to all those attending college for the first time. It is okay to change your mind. As you journey down life's road in pursuit of success, happiness, and purpose, detours are inevitable. Do not be afraid to change.

College has been a growing experience for me. The emptiness that I felt on that first day is a closed chapter in my life. It has been replaced with so much more. I feel that with ALC's purpose and guidelines, the time I have spent here has molded me into what I need to be and has set me on, as Alice Lloyd would say, my Purpose Road to success and World Service.

HELL, (GUN) FIRE AND BRIMSTONE, CONCLUSION by Jadon Gibson

Roaring Fork, a tributary which runs southeast from Stinking Creek, near the Tennessee border, received its name from the roaring of its waters and not from the roaring of guns which occurred nearby on a hot summer day in 1907.

John Gambrel was shot four times and killed during a shootout which occurred during a church service at the Roaring Fork school house. His cousin Allen Gambrel, whisked away by his family and friends following the shooting, fled from the state of Kentucky soon thereafter to evade prosecution.

Lawmen mounted an extensive search without turning up any clues of his whereabouts.

Allen Gambrel was in Illinois for several weeks before he wrote a letter to his family. The sheriff learned of his hiding place, most likely from postal authorities, and he was captured and returned to Barbourville, Kentucky, to stand trial.

The lengthy trial that followed included a host of witnesses testifying for both the defendant and the prosecution. He was defended by B.B. Golden, James D. Black, J.M. Robinson and W.R. Black, four of the most outstanding attorneys of the area.

Allen admitted during the trial that he shot Allen Gambrel. There were so many witnesses it would have been ludicrous for him to claim otherwise. But he claimed he fired in self-defense.

"After I heard the shot I stepped inside the building," Allen admitted. "He fired a shot at me and it knocked off my hat. I then shot him in self-defense."

A doctor testified that he removed four bullets from the dead man. Two were slugs from a 38 special and one each from a 45 and 32 caliber.

The verdict was guilty and the lanky Allen Gambrel faced life imprisonment in the Kentucky State Penitentiary.

Gambrel's attorneys appealed the case to the Kentucky Court of Appeals where he was granted a new trial. The lower court had erred in instructing the jury that the defendant could not rely on self-defense as a defense.

Three years after the first trial, Gambrel again faced his accusers in the Knox Circuit Court in Barbourville. It was argued by the prosecution that Allen caused the shooting by entering the schoolhouse. Many witnesses agreed.

At the conclusion of the legal process "Guilty," was again the verdict and life imprisonment was sentenced.

Allen Gambrel's thoughts were of escaping as he waited to be transferred back to the penitentiary.

A young woman cooked meals and did other jobs in the jail at Barbourville. Gambrel saw her as his best opportunity at escape and began establishing a friendship with her.

"They will be transferring me back to the penitentiary soon," Gambrel told her. "Put the jail key in a bucket of coal and we will leave this town together and never look back."

It worked. Jeopardizing her own freedom she placed the key to his jail door in the bucket of coal and a few hours later he used the key to gain his freedom. Harris Davis, the jailer, slept through the escape undisturbed.

Allen did not show up for a clandestine meeting with the young lady who aided his escape. Instead he went to his brother's home and then rode a mule from there to his father's house. He and his brothers discussed his plans for leaving and evading the law.

"Allen, never surrender," his brother, Tom, said while handing Allen his 45 caliber pistol. "If you must die looking down the barrel of this 45, then do it, but never surrender."

Allen nodded his agreement. Later that night, Allen was seen by Will Swanson, a friend, boarding a train. If Swanson knew Allen Gambrel's destination, he would not say.

Gambrel then vanished into the night and was never seen nor heard from again. The jail passkey, used in the escape, was found in the trunk of a family member several years later.

The parties in the story are now presumed dead.

Green tobacco sickness is potential problem

Tobacco field workers may be at risk of developing a type of nicotine poisoning which results from the skin absorbing nicotine while workers handle wet tobacco.

"A recent study by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), indicates a startling number of tobacco workers are becoming afflicted with this illness called Green Tobacco Sickness, (GTS)" said Larry Piercy, Extension safety specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "During a two-month period in 1992, NIOSH researchers identified 47 people who sought emergency room care for green tobacco sickness in a five-county Kentucky area alone," Piercy said.

Those statistics prompted NIOSH director, J. Donald Millar, to state, "If the numbers found in Kentucky are any indication of the magnitude of this problem, then we are dealing with an illness which is inflicting a tremendous burden on this nation, both in terms of human and economic costs."

Tobacco harvesters whose clothing becomes saturated from wet tobacco after rains, or perhaps wet from morning dew, are at high risk to develop this illness, Piercy said.

Symptoms of GTS include nausea, vomiting, dizziness, and severe weakness, Piercy said. Workers also have reported severe abdominal cramping, headaches, fluctuations in blood pressure and heart rate and difficulty in breathing.

Costs of the sickness impose a major burden on Kentucky tobacco farmers, said Gary Palmer, Extension tobacco specialist with UK. Most tobacco workers are not covered by worker's compensation and many have no health insurance.

"Medical costs are not the only loss to the farmer when someone gets sick during the busy tobacco season," Palmer said. "Taking the sick worker to medical care ties up another worker and a vehicle. That slows down harvesting by the loss of one or more workers."

There are questions about why so many cases of GTS occurred in Kentucky in 1992, Palmer said. Whether they resulted from an unusually wet growing season or if it is a regular occurrence, is not yet known.

How can tobacco farmers protect themselves?

Piercy offered the following suggestions:

- * Protective clothing may reduce the amount of nicotine absorbed through the skin.

- * Chemical resistant gloves such as those used in mixing pesticides can prevent workers' hands from absorbing nicotine.

- * Plastic aprons and rainsuits may reduce the exposure, but be aware such plastic apparel increases the risk of heat stress.

- * If a worker's clothing becomes saturated with moisture from the green tobacco leaf, he should change into dry clothes as soon as possible.

- * If a worker becomes ill while working in tobacco and requires medical attention, the physician should be told of the exposure to nicotine to help in the diagnosis.

Kentucky Housing Corporation to accept applications

Kentucky Housing Corporation has announced acceptance of applications for approximately $4.5 million of 1993 Low Income Housing Tax Credit beginning August 16, 1993.

The Low Income Tax Credit is a federal program that provides a credit against federal income tax liability for persons who construct, acquire or rehabilitate buildings which contain rental units for occupancy by qualified low-income tenants.

Application packages may be obtained by calling Gerry Sisco at (502) 564-7630, extension 285, or Tom Wolfe, at extension 264. The deadline for submission of applications is September 15.

For more information about the Low Income Housing Tax Credit Program, contact Tom Wolfe at (502) 564-7630 or (800) 633-8896, extension 264, or (800) 247-2510 (for the hearing impaired only).

We Do Chicken Right.

County Kettle

Labor Day is just around the corner and here are some great recipes to try out on the grill. Pasta salads are great to serve with grilled steaks, pork or chicken. They are easy to prepare and more flavorful if you make them ahead of time.

The Deep Dish Peach Cobbler, Apricot Nectar Cake and the Apple Crisp are three of my favorite summertime desserts. If you try any of these recipes, please let me know how you liked them. We welcome any recipes that you would like to share with our readers. Please write or call Charlotte McFall, P.O. Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653.

1/4 Tsp. coarsely ground black pepper
8 Oz. linguini
Combine first 7 ingredients, let stand for at least 1 hour. Cook linguini according to package directions omitting salt. Drain, rinse with cold water and drain again. Combine linguini and artichoke mix. Cover and chill. Toss before serving.

DEEP DISH PEACH COBBLER
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
1 Cup sugar

1 Cup self-rising flour
1 Cup milk
1 Quart sliced peaches
Combine butter, sugar, flour and milk in a blender. Blend on high till smooth. Pour into a well buttered 2 quart casserole dish. Add peaches, do not stir. Bake at 350 degrees till brown.

APPLE CRISP
1 Can apple pie filling
3/4 Cup brown sugar
1/2 Cup all purpose flour

1/2 Cup oats
1/3 Cup margarine, soft
3/4 Tsp. cinnamon
1/2 Tsp. nutmeg
Place apple pie filling in a 1-quart baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients and sprinkle over filling. Bake at 375 degrees 20 - 30 minutes or till golden brown.

PINEAPPLE TERIYAKI STEAK
2-20 Oz. cans slice pineapple in heavy syrup

2 cloves of garlic
1/2 Cup brown sugar
1/2 Cup soy sauce
4 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 Tbsp. salad oil
1/2 Tsp. ground ginger
2-2 inch thick 8-oz. filet mignon steaks

Reserve 2 slices of pineapple for garnish. In blender or food processor combine remaining pineapple and juice, garlic, brown sugar, soy sauce, lemon juice, salad oil and ginger. Process till all ingredients are liquefied. Place both steaks in a non metallic container and pour marinade over steaks and refrigerate for about 24 hours or if a less intensified flavor is preferred marinate for at least 1 hour.

When ready to cook grill over low heat (to prevent scorching) and cook 25-30 minutes for medium or to desired doneness. Baste with marinade while cooking. Remove to plate and top with pineapple slice.

HAWAIIAN PORK CHOPS

1 can pineapple slices
6 pork chops
1 1/2 Cup soy sauce
1/3 Cup vegetable oil
1/4 Cup minced onion
1 Clove garlic, minced
1 Tbsp brown sugar
Drain pineapple and reserve 1/4 cup of the juice, set aside. Place chops in a shallow dish. Combine 1/4 cup of juice, soy sauce, oil, onion, garlic and sugar, mix well. Pour over chops and marinate 2 hours. Grill over hot coals basting with marinade. Place pineapple over chops during the last few minutes of grilling.

GRILLED SIRLOIN AND RED ONION KABOBS

1 1/4 lb. boneless beef sirloin steak cut 1" thick
1/4 Cup red wine vinegar
3 Tbsp. olive oil
2 Tsp. dried oregano leaves, divided
1 Tsp. honey
3/4 Tsp. cracked black pepper, divided
1/2 Tsp. each of dry mustard and salt
1 Medium red onion cut into 8 wedges

Combine vinegar, oil, 1 1/2 Tsp. oregano, honey, 1/4 Tsp. pepper, mustard and salt. Place onions in plastic bag, add marinade, turning to coat. Let onions marinate while coals are being prepared

Meanwhile soak eight bamboo skewers in water 10 minutes. Combine remaining oregano and black pepper, press evenly into both sides of beef sirloin pieces. Remove onions from marinade, reserving marinade for basting. Skewer onions and beef alternately. Cook over hot coals until desired doneness.

SPICED PORK CHOPS

2 -1/4 inch sliced gingerroot
4 Pork loin chops, cut 1/2 inch thick
1 Tbsp. soy sauce
1/2 Tsp. paprika
1/4 Tsp. dry mustard
1/4 Tsp. pepper
Peel skin of gingerroot. Rub over surface and sides of each pork chop. Brush chops with soy sauce. Mix remaining ingredients and rub over chops with your fingers. Grill uncovered till done.

FRUIT AND PASTA TOSS

2 Oz. medium sized pasta shells
1 Can 8 oz. pineapple chunks
1 Medium orange peeled and sectioned
1/2 Cup seedless red or green grapes, halved.
2 Tbsp. honey
1/4 Tsp. ground allspice
14 Cup walnuts chopped or broken

Cook and drain pasta, rinse in cold water, drain well. Drain pineapple reserving 2 Tbsp. juice. In large mixing bowl combine pasta, pineapple, oranges and grapes. For dressing: in a jar with a lid, combine juice, honey and allspice. Cover and shake until mixed well. Pour over pasta and toss gently till well coated. Cover and chill several hours or over night. Stir in walnuts.

PASTA WITH BASIL AND SWEET PEPPER

3 Tbsp. olive oil
1 Medium red or yellow pepper finely chopped
1 Large garlic clove, minced
1/3 Cup water
1 Chicken bouillon cube
1 Tsp. dried basil
1 Tsp. red wine vinegar
7 Oz. pasta cooked and drained.
In skillet heat oil over medium heat. Add garlic and pepper, saute 3 minutes. Add water, bouillon and basil, bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 4 minutes. Remove and stir in vinegar, toss with pasta. Serves 4 to 6.

PASTA WITH ARTICHOKE HEARTS

1 16 Oz. can artichoke hearts, drained and quartered
1/4 Cup olive oil
3 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 Cloves garlic, minced
3 dashes of hot sauce
1/2 Tsp. salt

Remember When...

Remember August 1973
PRESIDENT SPURNS SENATE
 They were the tape recordings everyone wanted. Richard Nixon had them. Senator Ervin wanted them. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox subpoenaed them. It all started in late July when Alexander Butterfield, former deputy assistant to the president, revealed the existence of tape recordings of conversations between President Nixon and his aides. The Senate Watergate Committee, chaired by Sam Ervin, hoped the tapes would shed light on the tangled testimonies of administration officials. President Nixon stated that the independence of the three branches of government, "the very heart of our constitutional system," gave him the right to withhold the tapes from Congressional inspection. Senator Ervin responded that the only question was "whether the president is above the law." By month's end the debate was headed for the courtroom of District Judge John Sirica.

WHERE'S THE BEEF?
 A cartoon showed police officers standing outside a bank and neighboring meat market. They told the gathered reporters, "It's a classic case. Obviously, the robbers hid in the bank until it closed and then blasted through the wall to gain access to the butcher shop." The humorous twist made sense in light of a nationwide shortage of beef. Not that cattle were in short supply, but ranchers were keeping Bessie down on the farm for now. Price controls on beef, one of the last items still under a government freeze, were to come off September 12. Ranchers figured they would get a better price for their product then.

NEWSMAKER OF THE MONTH
 While the President was busy sparring with Congress, the Vice President received his own bad news. On August 8, Vice President Spiro Agnew disclosed that he was under investigation on charges of receiving kickbacks from contractors during his tenure as Governor of Maryland. The charges, said Agnew, were lies, and he vowed to fight.

I'M OK, YOU'RE...
 It is not easy to take the latest psychiatric theory and explain it to the masses, but that is what Thomas A. Harris tried to do in his best-selling book, I'm OK, You're OK. The theory, Transactional Analysis, recognized a child, a parent, and an adult side to each personality. The trick was to get them in harmony.

ENTERTAINMENT: IS THAT OPIE?
 Ron Howard was grown-up and starred as a 1950's teenager nearing the end of his high school days in a popular summer '73 movie, "American Graffiti." Cindy Williams costarred as Ron's girl. The film was the work of director George Lucas who went on to produce the "Star Wars" films. While Lucas chose to explore the future, Howard and Williams stayed in the good old days. They moved to television in the roles of Richie ("Happy Days") and Shirley ("Laverne and Shirley").

CROWDED COURTS
 Tennis was the "in" sport. Men and women, young and old, waited their turns as the nation's tennis courts filled with new enthusiasts. A crop of outstanding professionals was part of the inspiration. Stan Smith, Rod Laver, Arthur Ashe, and John Newcombe starred for the men. On the women's side one player dominated. Her name was Billie Jean King. However, a young Chris Evert, 18, was attracting attention with her aggressive playing style.

THE HOT OPTION
 The newest features available on cars included several related to safety.

The most popular new options in 1973 included disc brakes, radial tires, rear window defrosters, and bucket seats.

ANSWER TO THE AUGUST 1963 TRIVIA QUESTION
 "The Great Escape" had several stars including Steve McQueen, James Garner, Charles Bronson, and James Coburn. The movie chronicled their efforts to escape from a high-security Nazi POW camp by digging elaborate tunnels under the camp's perimeter.

AUGUST 1973 TRIVIA QUESTION
 What PBS television program was banned in the USSR? This popular children's show was watched by millions of American children, but the Soviets complained that the program contained dangerous "veiled neo-colonialism." Answer next time.

New faces at PCC this fall

When fall semester classes begin at Prestonsburg Community College on August 25, students will meet 13 new faculty members who come here from both coasts and with a variety of experience.

The College of the Bahamas in Nassau is Timothy Heywood's most recent employer. The assistant professor of mathematics holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Idaho and did post-graduate work at the University of Tennessee. He has also taught at Erie Community College in Buffalo.

A Midwesterner, Dwight Smith is another addition to the math faculty. The new assistant professor is a former faculty member at the University of Wisconsin-Stout. He has a master's degree from Bowling Green (Ohio) State University and bachelor's degree from Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois. He has done advanced graduate work at Bowling Green and at the University of Minnesota. He resides at Allen.

From Oregon comes James L. Fuller, who will teach computer science at PCC's Pike County Campus. Fuller, an assistant professor, has taught at colleges in Oregon and has worked for several corporations in California, including Hughes Aircraft and Control Data. He holds academic degrees from Oregon State University, West Coast University and California State University at Long Beach.

Kolandavel Ramasamy comes to PCC from India, via the University of Kentucky, where he earned a master's degree in computer science, which he is teaching here. He also holds a similar degree from Anna University in his homeland and a bachelor of engineering degree from the University of Madras, India. He taught and worked in engineering in India. He is living in Prestonsburg.

Texas is the home of Jo Ann Buchanan, new instructor of psychology. Now living at Lancer, she has been a counselor, therapist and teacher in the Dallas area. She earned a master's degree in psychology from Emporia (Kan.) State University and a master of science in social work from the University of Texas at Arlington, as well as a bachelor's degree from Southern Methodist University.

Craig L. Mulling leaves Hawaii for PCC. He has been studying for a Ph.D. degree in political science at the University of Hawaii at Manoa. The sociology instructor has a master's degree from Bowling Green in Ohio and bachelor's degree from Baldwin-Wallace College. He has won several awards for his research on Asian issues, particularly the 1988 Seoul Olympics. He lives at River in Johnson County.

New to the biology faculty is instructor Melissa A. Perry of Pippa Passes in Knott County. She has academic degrees from Alice Lloyd and Berea colleges and Morehead State University. She has taught previously at PCC and Alice Lloyd.

Michigan native Kelly J. Adam is the college's first instructor of health/physical education and recreation. Also director of the Wellness Center, she recently received a master's degree from Southern Connecticut State University. Adam, who lives in Prestonsburg, earned a bachelor's degree from Saginaw Valley State University in her home state.

Four of the new faculty members join the nursing department as instructors. All have worked at Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg and all have attended PCC.

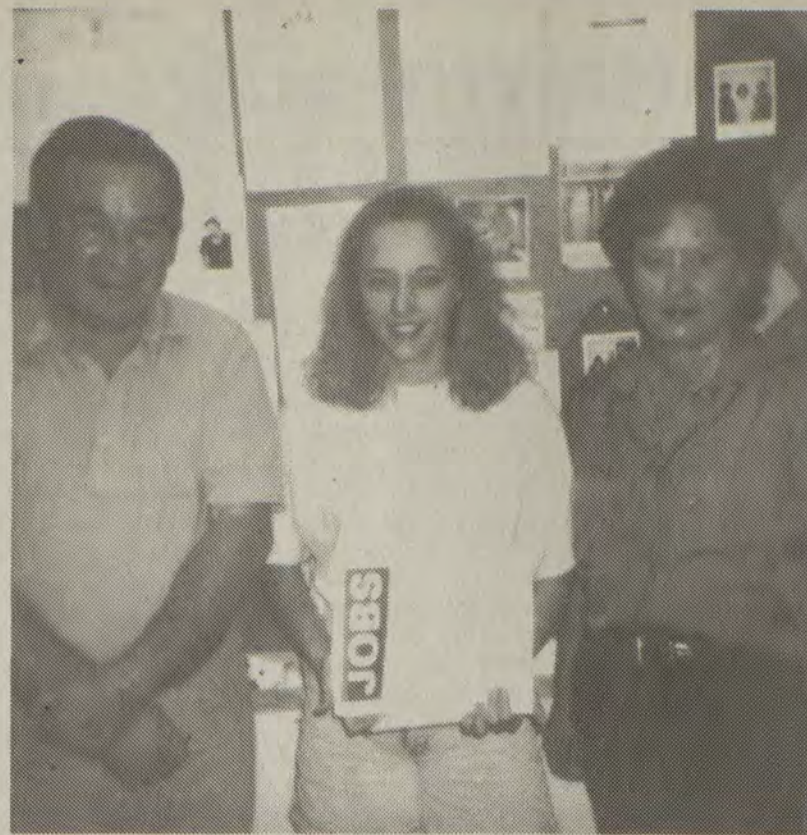

Judith Briggs, who lives at Hager Hill in Johnson County, holds bachelor's and master's degrees in nursing from Bellarmine College. In addition to HRMC, she has been on the nursing staffs of hospitals in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio. She has also worked at nursing homes and for the American Heart Association.

Charlene Carrell of Dana recently earned a bachelor of science in nursing from Morehead. She has worked at Riverview Manor Nursing Home, the Floyd County Health Department and Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

Also a graduate of PCC and Morehead, Tammy Hoskins of Salyersville previously worked with the Magoffin County Health Department, where she supervised two school clinics. She is also a former home health nurse for the Floyd County Health Department.

Patsy Jackson, also of Salyersville, most recently worked for Salyersville Healthcare. She earned an associate degree in nursing at PCC and began immediately taking courses toward the master of science in nursing degree, the first student in this area to go directly from the two-year degree to the graduate degree.

Former editor of the Appalachian News-Express in Pikeville and the Floyd County Times in Prestonsburg, Pam Shingler joins the PCC staff as instructor of English and director of public relations. The Hager Hill resident, who has previously taught for PCC, is a University of Georgia graduate and attended the University of Pittsburgh. She has worked in public relations in Georgia, Arkansas and Pennsylvania and is the former News Bureau Director for the Kentucky Press Association.

Living : Family values? They're all around us

by Judith Clabes
Scripps Howard News Service
Add "family values" to the list of All-American things we celebrate at this All-American time of year. A concern about "family" permeates our present, collective mood—from violence on television to health care to homelessness, the economy, schools, the environment... and everything in between. We have a feeling that something important has been lost.

How do we restore a sense of "family" to America and how do we nurture the "values" inherent in that term?

That's what we want to know. Perhaps, however, the better question is: How do we capitalize on the strong family values already at work in America?

Consider the findings of two recent surveys.

The Family Values Survey commissioned by Shoney's Restaurants shows that traditional family values remain strong across the nation.

The poll of adults who have at least one child living at home shows a real commitment to such—"valued" behavior as helping with schoolwork, going to church, having meals together and vacationing together.

The results show that mothers, on the average, spend over six hours a week helping their school-age children with homework; fathers spend more than three hours. They also showed that traditional, family-oriented activities bring families together on a routine basis: Meals at home, the kids' involvements and church.

According to the survey, two-thirds of parents are satisfied with the amount of time they spend with their families, with mothers being more satisfied than fathers and lower-income families being more satisfied than those with higher incomes. In addition, a healthy majority—61.8 percent—say they are spending the same or more time with their families than they did five years ago.

Religious activities are still important to a lot of families, with about a third saying they attend religious services four times a month. Church-going is strongest in the South where 35.6 percent attend services regularly. In the Midwest, it's 26.2 percent; the West, 21.8; and the Northwest, 16.4 percent.

The survey, conducted by 20/20 Research of Nashville, revealed that on the average, parents spend 45.6 waking hours a week with at least one other family member.

A second survey dispels some myths about successful working women.

Conducted by the UCLA Graduate School of Management and the executive search firm Korn-Ferry, the study shows today's woman executive is married with children. Her average age is 44—and she did not sacrifice a family for a career.

In terms of the Total Woman, women may have come even further than we thought. Today, about 60 percent of senior women executives are married and 57 percent have children. Ten years ago, only 40 percent were married and 60 percent had no children.

This is real progress. From a family values perspective, it's very good news.

The news isn't all good, though: The number of women holding the title of executive vice president more than doubled, but only from 4 percent to 8.7; women still take home only two-thirds the pay of their male counterparts; two-thirds of the women say they have been sexually harassed; and while women executives earn more than their husbands, they still have primary responsibility for housework.

In all, however, the fact that today's woman executive is both a career woman, a mom and a wife creates a positive role model in a family values environment.

Family values are all around us. We just need to see the forest for the trees.

Beware of college financial aid scams

School bells are ringing and many parents of college bound students are feeling an added strain to their bank accounts. While financial aid is available, it is sometimes difficult to determine what route to take; whether to apply for grants, scholarships, loans or work programs. The Better Business Bureau of Central and Eastern Kentucky, Inc., warns consumers making these decisions to beware of firms claiming to find easy financial assistance for college in exchange for a fee.

"While there may be legitimate services that charge fees for assistance in finding financial aid, it is important to realize that this information is available free of charge from college financial aid offices," explains BBB Director of Operations Charlotte Carver. "Unfortunately, there are several unqualified firms or individuals that simply sell basic information obtained from these financial aid offices, backing up the information with faulty or misleading guarantees of acceptance. It is important that consumers call the Better Business Bureau, 1-800-866-6668, to check the reliability report of any firm with which you are considering doing business."

The Bureau advises consumers to start planning for financial aid early, as most paperwork will need to be submitted to the college as early as January 1 of the senior year in high school. Available financial aid is generally divided into three categories:

1) Grants and Scholarships—Consisting of money that does not have to be repaid. Some of these are awarded on the basis of academic ability or talent, while others require that you or your child perform some type of service (i.e. athletic scholarships require participation in athletics program).

2) Loans—Available from a wide range of sources of money, these loans must be repaid over a prearranged period of time.

3) Work-Study—Most colleges have a need for full or part-time employees to help in various positions on the campus. The school's financial aid office may define certain jobs, and upon acknowledging the student's "need" may arrange for him/her to fill a position to work in one of these roles.

"Explore your options early, work closely with the financial aid office of your college of choice, and remember that the Better Business Bureau is always here as a source of information, especially when dealing with unfamiliar, for-profit terms," adds Carver.

For further information, the Better Business Bureau offers a booklet on financial aid, "Tips On Financial Aid for College." To receive this booklet, mail $1.00 to Better Business Bureau, Financial Aid, 410 West Vine Street, Ste. 280, Lexington, Kentucky 40507.

Dr. Park joins Lexington Clinic staff

Dr. Suzanna Park

Suzanna I. Park, a native of Johnson county, has joined the medical staff of Lexington Clinic in the Gastroenterology section.

Dr. Park is a graduate of Paintsville High School. She attended Prestonsburg Community College and graduated from Transylvania University.

Dr. Park completed her medical education at the University of Kentucky College of Medicine. This was followed by an internship and residency in Internal Medicine at the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

Dr. Park also completed a fellowship in Digestive Disease at the University of Cincinnati Medical Center and did research in liver organ transplant.

Dr. Park is board certified in Internal Medicine and Gastroenterology by the American Board of Internal Medicine. She lives in Lexington and is married to Patrick Tracy, also a Johnson County native. Her parents are Dr. Don and Gloria Park of Hager Hill.

BBB offers tips on giving to police and firefighter groups

When we think of police and firefighters in our communities, we think of the people who put their lives on the line to protect us, our families, and our neighborhoods. So when we receive calls or letters asking for donations to a police or firefighter group, our first reaction is usually generous. But the Better Business Bureau of Central and Eastern Kentucky, Inc. warns that there are a lot of hype merchants out there, fast talking hucksters only too happy to take your dollars without giving you all the facts needed to make an informed giving decision. If you donate to groups like these, your hardworking local police or firefighters might not be helped much, if at all.

"There are legitimate firefighter and police groups that could use your support," explains BBB Director of Operations Charlotte Carver. "By donating to a deceptive group that may not actually be affiliated with your police or firefighters, you are not only throwing away your money, you are depriving legitimate groups from those funds."

How do you find legitimate groups? Ask questions! Groups offering financial assistance to your police and firefighters will welcome your questions...and have answers for you. Some of the questions you should ask are:

1) How much of your donation will actually go to the police or firefighter group? (Specifically, what percentage of the gross monies raised go to the cause as opposed to administrative overhead and fundraising efforts.)

2) What programs will the money you donate support? Get the specifics; find out who will benefit. [CAUTION: THE WORDS "POLICE" OR "FIREFIGHTER" IN AN ORGANIZATION'S NAME DOES NOT ALWAYS MEAN THAT PEOPLE IN YOUR LOCAL POLICE FORCE OR FIRE DEPARTMENT ARE MEMBERS.]

3) Find out if your contribution is tax deductible, and if so, what amount? If you get a gift or benefit in exchange for what you give—even if it's a ticket you turn over to a needy child—the Internal Revenue Code states that the full amount paid is not deductible as a charitable donation.

4) Get the company's full name, address and phone number and CALL THE BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU for a report on the firm at 1-800-866-6668.

"Whether or not to give to any charitable organization or fundraising effort is a personal decision," said

Carver. "Check out all the facts, call the Better Business Bureau, and don't give in to pressure for an immediate decision." The bottom line? Always be certain that your donation will be used wisely.

The Better Business Bureau offers a pamphlet on this topic, "Tips on Police and Firefighter Organizations." To receive a copy, send $1.00 to BBB, "Police/Firefighters," 410 West Vine St., Ste. 280, Lexington, Kentucky 40507.

The Floyd County Times

Wednesday, August 25, 1993 C 9

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 636-8005, Major Revision

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Costain Coal, Inc., Box 170, Tollage Creek Road, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501, has applied for a major revision to an existing coal processing facility located 0.25 miles south of Ivel in Floyd County. This major revision will add 2.0 acres of surface disturbance making a total area of 25.55 acres within the revised permit boundary.

The proposed major revision area is approximately 0.25 miles south from U.S. 23's junction with Ivy Creek Road and located 0.25 miles south of Levisa Fork of Big Sandy. The latitude is 37° 35' 25". The longitude is 82° 34' 56".

The proposed major revision is located on the Harold U.S.G.S. 7-1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be affected by the major revision is owned by Windell E. Stratton and the J.K. Stratton Heirs. The operation will affect an area within 100 feet of county roads #1020 and #1081. The operation will involve permanent relocation of county road #1020. This relocation will be in the form of an underpass approximately 1900 feet west of the current track crossing on county road 1081.

The major revision application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 1346 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date.

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350, notice is hereby given that Island Creek Coal Company, P.O. Box 840, U.S. 119, Holden, WV 25625 intends to apply for a phase I bond release on Allen & Newsom Coal Company, Inc., permit 836-5011 as per Reclamation Abatement Agreement GAH-18761 between Island Creek and the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet. The reclaimed underground mining operation affected a surface disturbance of approximately 2.49 acres and underlaid an additional 117.7 acres located 2.2 miles southeast of Printer in Floyd County.

The permit area of the reclaimed underground mining operation is approximately 0.7 miles northeast from Kentucky Route 2030's junction with Gunstock Branch Road and located 0.75 miles east of Spurlock Creek. The latitude is 37° 31' 20". The longitude is 82° 42' 30".

The total bond now in effect for the permit is a surety bond in the amount of $10,000.00 dollars of which approximately 60% is to be included in this application for a phase I bond release.

The reclamation work was performed according to Reclamation Agreement. The reclamation work was performed during the spring of 1992. Reclamation work performed includes: Backfilling, grading and seeding to achieve a phase I bond release.

A public hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday, September 28, 1993 at 9:00 a.m. at the Department of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Prestonsburg Regional Office, 1346 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Written comments, objections, and/or requests for a public hearing must be filed with the Director of the Division of Field Services, Department of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, #2 Hudson Hollow Complex, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date.

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE

In accordance with KRS 350.093, notice is hereby given that Buck Coal, Inc., 300 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653, has applied for Phase II bond release on increment number 2 of permit number 836-0060 which was last issued on 7/10/92. The application covers an area of approximately 30.59 acres located 1.9 miles west of Eastern in Floyd County.

The permit area is approximately 1.5 miles east from Ky. 550's junction with Ky. 850 and located 0.1 mile south of Right Fork of Beaver Creek. The latitude is 37° 31' 00". The longitude is 82° 49' 22".

The bond now in effect for Increment 1 of Permit Number 836-0060 is a surety bond for $61,100. Approximately 25% of the original bond amount of $225,300 is included in the application for release.

Reclamation work performed includes: Grading and seeding completed during the summer of 1987.

"This is the final advertisement of the application." Written comments, objections, and requests for a public hearing or informal conference must be filed with the Director, Division of Field Services, #2 Hudson Hollow, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, by October 1, 1993.

A public hearing on the application has been scheduled for October 5, 1993 at 3:00 p.m. at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 2705 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. The hearing will be cancelled if no request for a hearing or informal conference is received by October 1, 1993.
