Go-ahead is given on design of center

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Architects hired to design the Mountain Arts Center to be built in Prestonsburg got the green light Wednesday to begin drawing a blueprint for the center.

The Prestonsburg/Floyd County Public Properties Corporation voted in special session Wednesday to authorize the architectural firm of Sherman, Carter and Barnhart to move ahead with the project.

Bob Meyer, with the Big Sandy Area Development District, told board members that they could proceed with the project at their own risk because grant funds earmarked for the project have not been officially awarded.

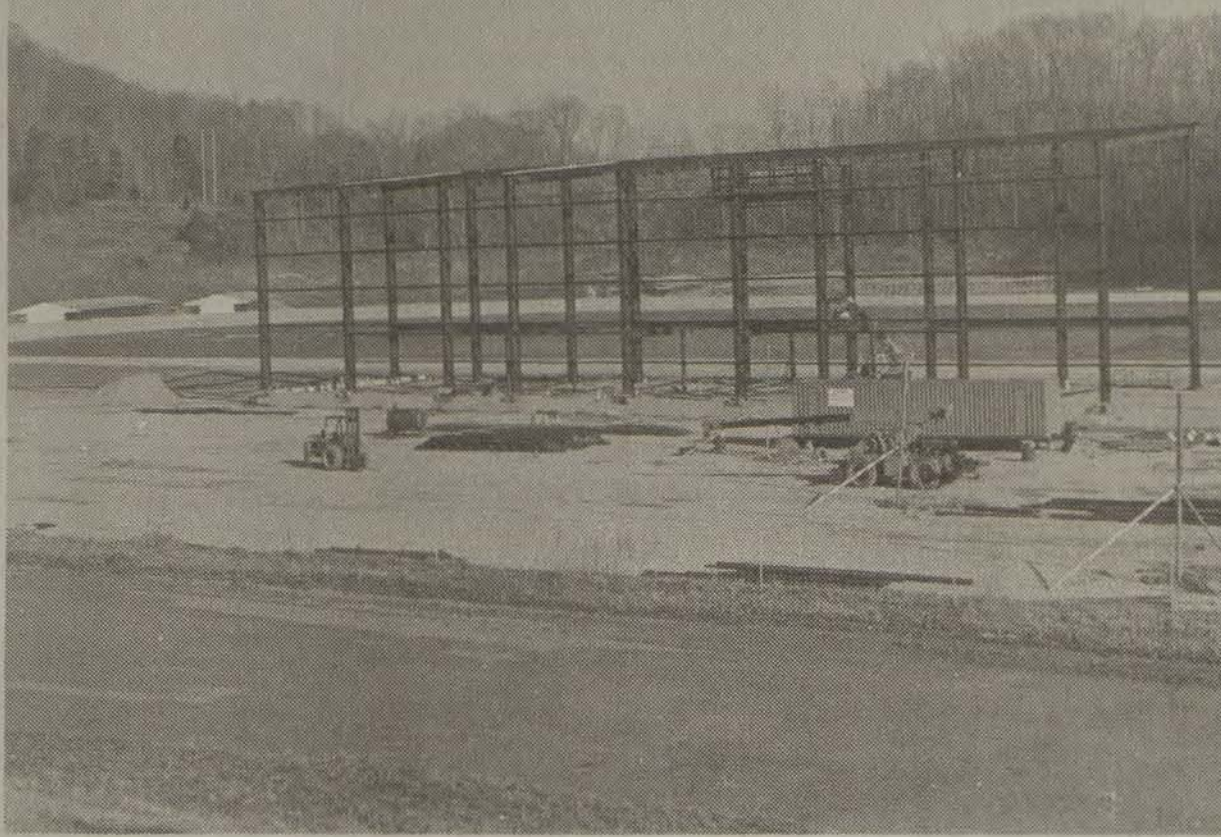

A one million dollar Economic Development Authority grant has been requested and another million dollars has been asked for from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Work can begin immediately on site improvements for the project, Meyer said, because that is not included in the application for grant monies.

Paul Phillip Hughes reported that the group can proceed with site work under a previous permit issued by the state Division of Water, but the name on the permit must be changed. Hughes said he did not foresee any problems with getting the permit changed.

Judge casts tie-breaker on track bids

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

It took the county judge-executive to cast the tie-breaking votes Tuesday for fiscal court's approval to proceed with construction of a harness racing track in Floyd County.

At a special meeting Tuesday afternoon, the fiscal court awarded three bids for site preparation, blacktop and concrete work on the track project by a 3-2 vote.

Magistrates Jackie Edford Owens and Tommy Neil Adams voted against the contracts because they wanted the work rebid. Adams commented that there weren't a lot of Floyd County companies that submitted bids for the work and he felt that a second round of bidding should be held.

Owens didn't offer any comments about his vote at the meeting, but he asked Adams how he was going to vote on the issue before he cast his no vote.

Owens did mention at the meeting that he thought more Floyd County contractors would be interested in the project.

Bonding agent Terrell Ross, who is also part owner of Mountain Racing Inc., the company that is building the track, urged the court to approve the bids so that a July 2 completion deadline can be met.

Mountain Racing must have the race track complete by July 2 as part of an agreement with the Kentucky Racing Commission to conduct live racing this summer.

A bid for site preparation was awarded to Boyd Construction of Dana for $237,787; Mountain Enterprises received the blacktop bid for $529,290; and Ooten Coal Company of Pikeville was awarded the concrete bid for $99,000.

Magistrates Gerald DeRossett and Eralm Tackett voted in favor of the bids and Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo cast the deciding vote.

Also Tuesday, the court voted to approve the sale of $2.5 million in bonds for the county's financially plagued solid waste department.

Two bids were received for the bond sale. Ross, Sinclair and Associates of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Morgan Keegan and Company of Memphis, Tennessee.

Torrell Ross, an owner of Ross, Sinclair, reported that his company had submitted the lowest bid. The company's interest rate for the 20-year bonds would average out to 7.1 percent annually, compared to 7.4 percent from Morgan Keegan.

Magistrate Owens said he felt the bond issue should be rebid because only two companies submitted proposals.

Ross said that interest rates are

Martha Layne Collins

Former governor among women presenters at PCC

Former Kentucky Governor Martha Layne Collins will kick off a week of student-sponsored programs on "Kentucky Women Leaders: Role Models for Tomorrow" Monday, March 28 at Prestonsburg Community College.

Collins, Kentucky's first woman governor, will speak on "Dream Dreams" at 12:40 p.m. in the Pike Auditorium on the Prestonsburg campus as part of a three-part series of programs planned by students in Leo Weddle's Modern Social Issues class.

Collins, who is now president of St. Catharine College in Washington County, was governor in the mid-1980s. Under her leadership, the state was able to attract the giant Toyota manufacturing plant to Georgetown.

Also scheduled to speak on women leaders that week will be Jean Hale, president of Pikeville National Bank, and Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, president of PCC.

Hale will speak Wednesday, March 30 on "You can do anything if you work hard enough for it." Floyd's talk is set for Friday, April 1, on "Simple Steps for Success."

The programs are free and open to the public.

Wells to keynote breakfast meeting of area committee

Dr. John Calhoun Wells, director of Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Washington, D. C., will be the keynote speaker for the Big Sandy Area Labor Management Committee's breakfast buffet on April 7 at May Lodge.

Wells, an Auxier native, was appointed by President Bill Clinton as the 13th director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in November. Prior to his appointment, Wells assisted labor and management in constructing new relationships based on common ground and mutual self-interests.

Wells was Kentucky's first Secretary of Labor. He was also president of the John Gray Institute in Beaumont, Texas; a senior Research Fellow at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University; and a special assistant to U.S. Senator Wendell Ford. He also served in state government during the administrations of John Y. Brown Jr. and Martha Layne Collins.

Other speakers at the labor committee's meeting include Carol Palmore, Kentucky Secretary of Labor, and Gary Moberly, executive

Floyd County wins and loses in dispute over state budget

A standoff in the Senate budget committee over a proposed tax increase could mean the elimination of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of state capital improvement projects, including several targeted for Floyd County.

Senate Budget Committee chairman Mike Moloney, D-Lexington, has sliced millions from the state budget as a result of the failed effort to raise the property tax on manufacturing equipment in the state. That tax measure would bring in an estimated $62 million more each year, which the Senate budget chief said was necessary to balance the state's budget.

After a 6-5 vote against the tax in committee Wednesday, Moloney began announcing cuts that affect state parks, colleges, and a variety of proposed salary hikes.

Floyd County came out on the losing side of the ledger with the elimination of funding for a $9 million wellness center at Prestonsburg Community College and a $6.6 million cut in an allocation for the construction of a new golf course at Jenny Wiley State Park. The proposed budget did retain $675,000 in funding for repairs and renovations at the park's swimming pool; $4.2 million for renovations at May Lodge; and $1.3 million for improvements at the boat dock.

Other programs targeted for cuts that could directly or indirectly impact Floyd County include the elimination of $1.3 million for pay raises for veteran state police troopers; the cut of $3.1 million for funding expansion of the state police computer system; and a $260,000 cut in raises proposed for prison guards.

Governor Brereton Jones downplayed the budget issue Wednesday, though, noting in news reports that he thought "there is some maneuvering going on, which is certainly not unusual for this time of the legislature."

The tax dispute involves a proposal to triple the property tax on machinery used in manufacturing. The tax would raise between $30 and $35 million a year and it would supplement $30 million to be raised annually by a bill rewriting the sales tax exemptions for industrial supplies.

When the siren is sounded, citizens can monitor police transmissions with a scanner to learn specifics of the incident.

Also, information will be forwarded immediately to television station WYMT; radio station WMDJ; and the Associated Press. Other media sources will be notified also.

Five inmates have left the facility in two separate incidents in February and March. Four of the inmates have been recaptured and Larry Rigdon remains at large.

In the event of a walkaway, citizens should:

- ensure that their vehicles are locked and that they have possession of the keys to the vehicle;
- be advised that there will be patrols looking for the inmates and persons participating in those patrols could be dressed in civilian clothes;
- report any suspicious movement

Prison officials to use siren to sound alarm for escapes

Officials at the Otter Creek Correctional Facility in Wheelwright have decided to use a siren to notify citizens that an inmate has walked away from the minimum security prison.

One long, continuous blast from a siren, located in the city's fire department, will sound when a prisoner walks away from the facility.

Middle Creek skirmish is a warm up for the real thing

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Members of three Civil War re-enactment units skirmished at Middle Creek Saturday and Sunday.

Re-enactors from the 5th Kentucky and 36th Virginia Confederate units and the 91st Ohio Union unit also conducted drills and practiced battle formations throughout both days.

The troops also planned the Battle of Middle Creek campaign coming up on June 3, 4, 5, and 6. The campaign begins in Paintsville with a Confederate Memorial Service by the Sons of Confederate Veterans (SCV). June 3, Jefferson Davis's birthday, is Confederate Memorial Day for Kentucky.

A Confederate Memorial Service will also be conducted in Prestonsburg Saturday, June 4. The service will be held at the Confederate Memorial in front of the Floyd County Courthouse and will be held by the SCV in conjunction with the 5th Kentucky.

Saturday's activities will include skirmishes, living history exhibits, and various entertainment. Sutlers will also be selling their wares Saturday and Sunday. During the Civil War, Sutlers were traveling salesmen who followed the troops and sold goods such as clothing, food and other supplies to the soldiers. Today, Sutlers sell everything from Civil War apparel, furniture, weapons, to books and antiques to re-enactors and the public.

The 5th Kentucky will soon begin fund-raising activities for the June event, said Owen Wright, captain of the 5th Kentucky. The items the unit must provide for participating re-enactors include hay, wood, and one meal. For more information about how to help offset these costs, call Wright at 886-0344.

Those assisting the 5th Kentucky in the weekend's events were Capt. Mike Sheets, Bob Frampton, Ed Nutter, Kevin Frampton, William Freeman, Dave Mercer, Scott Mitchell, Jerry and Dan Trautwein, Paul Frampton, Willis Thomas and Dwain Hamlin, all of the 36th Virginia; and Phil Wood and Buck Gulick, both of the 91st Ohio.

County could be added to list applying for assistance

Federal inspectors will survey Floyd County next week to assess damage caused by February's ice storm.

An initial report by Floyd County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo estimated the damage at $75,000. Damage estimates include removal of fallen trees and mud slides.

In District 2, one mud slide kept county workers busy. The road has had to be cleared five times, said Janet Tackett, with the county judge's office. Tackett also said that several county roads are sinking and will need major repairs.

On March 16, President Bill Clinton issued a disaster declaration for several Kentucky counties. If Floyd County's storm damage falls within the declaration's guidelines, the county will be eligible to receive funds to repair and replace such public facilities as roads, bridges, and utilities. The county will also receive assistance for cost incurred for removing debris.

Income tax filing days at Kentucky Taxpayer Service Centers; federal forms available

Taxpayers who need assistance filing their 1993 Kentucky individual income tax returns can receive help during special "filing days" at the Kentucky Revenue Cabinet (KRC) Taxpayer Service Centers (TSCs) statewide. This annual program has offered special assistance to countless Kentucky taxpayers for nearly 40 years.

In order to receive assistance from KRC, taxpayers must bring completed copies of their 1993 federal income tax return and supporting federal schedules.

Kentucky income tax forms can be ordered from the Property and Mail Services Section, Kentucky Revenue Cabinet, Frankfort, Kentucky 40620.

going up and if the county took the time to rebid it would result in a higher rate of interest. Ross added that if the bond issue was not approved by March 31, the county would have to make a payment on the existing bond issue by May 1.

Under the bond refinancing, the county's first payment will be due in September 1995.

Judge-Executive Stumbo also had to cast the tie breaking vote on the solid waste refinancing package because Owens and Adams voted against it.

The court adjourned Tuesday's meeting and immediately held a special public properties corporation meeting to approve the same items discussed in the fiscal court meeting.

Another special meeting of the fiscal court is set for Tuesday, March 29. The time of that meeting has not been determined.

Darrell Gilliam said that if the architect starts the design process immediately, construction on the building could begin this fall. Gilliam added that if for some reason part of the funding package fell through, there is a clause in the architect's contract which says the corporation can halt work at any time.

The arts center is expected to cost approximately $6 million and will include a permanent home for the Kentucky Opry. The center will also have a performing theater and classrooms. The facility is being financed with grants and private donations.

Banks pleads not guilty

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Wayland man charged with murder pleaded not guilty Thursday during his arraignment in Floyd Circuit Court.

Joseph Banks, 32, is charged in the January shooting death of Robert Dean Jacobs. Police allege that Banks shot Jacobs one time in the head/neck area after the two men argued at a residence near Shop Fork.

Banks is also charged with first degree wanton endangerment for allegedly shooting in the direction of Janet Sexton during that same incident.

Banks pleaded not guilty Thursday to the charges before special Judge Kelley Asbury of Boyd County.

Attorneys John Delaney and Keith Bartley also asked the judge to reconsider bond for Banks, which has remained at $200,000 cash since his arrest in January.

Delaney argued that the bond was excessive because Banks has virtually no criminal record and has strong ties to the Wayland community. Delaney said that Banks' wife and family resided in the Wayland area and that he posed no risk to leave the area.

Assistant Commonwealth Attorney John Mann countered that Banks has a brother living in Florida and he was concerned he could abscond to that state.

Judge Asbury lowered Banks' bond to $100,000 or $200,000 property and ordered that he have no contact with the victims' families.

Judge Asbury also set a September 28 trial date and will hear all pending motions in the case on April 26 at 2 p.m. A pretrial conference is scheduled for July 5 at 2 p.m. All proceedings in the case will be held at the Floyd County Courthouse.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

War and peace

by Scott Perry

Had a pleasant conversation this week with Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin which, we hope, will result in an open-door policy between this newspaper and city government.

It was refreshing, in fact, to see an elected official interested in establishing lines of communication with the media in a county where the relationships between the press and government are often strained.

While the media and government are not...and should not be kissing cousins...it is important that we understand the workings of one another if either is to achieve our ultimate goals.

Those goals are not so different.

Public officials should be devoted to improving the quality of life for those they serve.

The media has that same responsibility.

We tend to cross swords more over the methods employed to reach those ends than anything.

And, while most everything is negotiable in this give-and-take world, there is no compromise for principles.

It is our job as a community newspaper to report on the events that shape our lives and our futures.

Some people in high places don't like that. They dislike it so much, in fact, that they go out of their way to make our job as difficult as possible.

They withhold important information or hide it to protect their cronies. They make us stand in line to wait for no reason other than to inconvenience us or sign office registers to prove to themselves how "powerful" they are.

We try to shrug off most of these absurdities as Floyd County politics-as-usual.

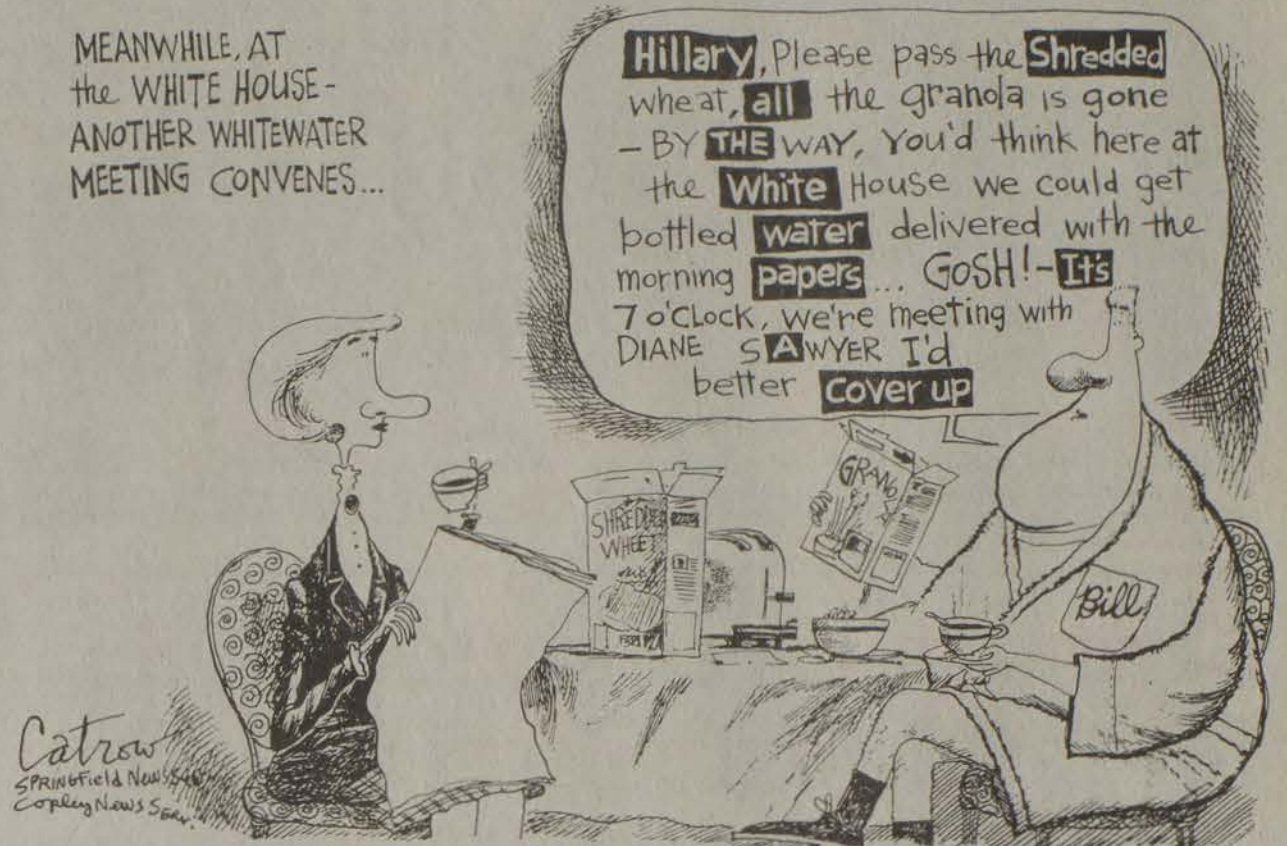

Fortunately, there are some public officials in Floyd County...like Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin...who actually want the public to know what they're trying to do.

They know that they'll make mistakes along the way and they understand it is our job as a newspaper to point out those errors or, at least, open the way for debate and discussion.

The point is, we don't have to be adversaries, even when we disagree.

Those who prefer to wage war with us, though, should understand that we're not easily intimidated and we won't shy away from a fight.

Family tree needs few more branches

Editor:
I would like to hear from anyone descended from or having information on the following Smith and Wallen families. I am researching my family tree.

John Smith and his first wife Polly Prater had Nancy Jane Smith, born around 1879. Nancy Jane Smith married Newton Wallen and had the following children: Samantha Wallen born 1898, Johnnie Wallen born 1899, Bessie Wallen born 1900, James

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

Republican Party on the rise in Kentucky

If recent events are any indication, the Republican Party is on the rise in Kentucky.

Take, for example, the recent election of Republicans John David Preston of Paintsville and Barry Metcalf of Richmond to the state Senate. They won their races despite a Democratic majority in their districts.

Both men replaced lawmakers convicted in the FBI's BOPROT investigation, which could be a signal that voters are wary of the Democratic-controlled General Assembly.

Their victories upped the number of Republicans in the Senate to 14, the highest since 1960, the last time a Republican held the governor's office.

They also set the stage for interesting legislative races in November and for next year's elections, when a new governor and other statewide officials will be chosen.

Could it be that Kentucky has a chance to be a two-party state after all these years? Stay tuned. — Paintsville Herald

Parents should be held responsible in gun accidents

When will people ever learn not to keep a loaded gun in the house, especially with children?

The tragedy that occurred in Carter County last week isn't the first and I'm sure will not be the last.

When a 5-year-old accidentally shoots a 2-year-old, it just sends a shock through the community, but this could be prevented.

You would think that after a similar incident in Carter County last July in which a 3-year-old was shot by a 4-year-old, that people would get the hint.

However, just as in all tragedies, people have the "this will never happen to me," or "my kids know better than that," attitude. But children who are that young do not know any better.

Incidents such as these have brought about bills that would hold parents responsible for such acts.

Although none have been passed yet, they are badly needed.

Perhaps if it was a law, and parents could be found negligent for keeping loaded firearms in the house, more would stop doing it.

There is just no excuse to keep a loaded gun in the house to begin with.

Why would it be so much trouble to keep the gun in one place, and the ammunition in another?

How many lives could have been saved if this had been done?

A similar measure was passed in Florida, and the following year the number of accidental deaths dropped from 18 to six. I doubt that this was just a coincidence. — Big Sandy News (Louisia)

Find out for yourself

The test scores are in, and while the results are mixed, local schools improved, for the most part, from testing done during the 1991-92 school year.

But the most important thing about the score and bills now under consideration that would change some aspects of the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act is that it has gotten people talking.

It's taken four years, but more people are finally getting concerned about the education the state's children are receiving.

Teaching methods are being closely examined. The goals of the reform are being reviewed and honed.

Along those lines, more and more people are taking issue with KERA.

In general, when you ask people how much they know about KERA, they say very little. Often, however, they begin to tell you what they dislike about the reform effort.

Change has always been frightening and nothing is perfect.

But for the good of the children, find out about KERA for yourself. Don't accept secondhand information. Attend the nearest school council meeting. Call the state Department of Education and ask how you can get better informed. Attend those meetings with educators who question the benefits of the new program.

Then, decide for yourself. Another massive change in the way we educate our children will also be flawed. We should constantly be fine-tuning the way we impart knowledge and teach learning to the future of this state.

To turn your back on the program now, to criticize without information, is not being fair to what has come before or what is yet to come. — Appalachian News-Express (Pikeville)

Other Voices

(Editor's note: The following is an address by Senator Nick Kafoglis to the State Senate on Thursday, March 17, 1994.

Senator Kafoglis is a Democrat representing the 32nd District. A medical doctor, Kafoglis has long been a proponent of health care reform.)

"I want to thank the President of the Senate for helping put this matter in perspective and to also thank him or his leadership and the diligence that he has shown in trying to put together and pass a very important piece of legislation.

I want to take a minute or two to try to add, if I can, to some degree to that perspective.

We've all seen the industry-generated letters and the TV commercials that say that House Bill 250 will increase insurance premiums by 90 percent and that it is a bureaucratic takeover of the state health care system. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The irony is, this propaganda, and that's what it is, comes from those who profess to believe in a free enterprise market economy. I tell you, my friends, they really don't. They are afraid of competing in a market in which the consumer can compare price and quality.

There is no price competition in health and health insurance. They like the status quo in which they make a lot of money. The Golden Rules of the world want to keep on making profits, insuring the healthy while the sick become destitute.

House Bill 250 is a good bill. It is a very good bill. It is probably the best bill that you will get an opportunity to vote on in this session. Other than the budget, it will do more for Kentuckians than any other bill that will come before you.

There is one thing wrong with it. It doesn't do enough. It doesn't provide health insurance for the nearly half million Kentuckians who don't have any health insurance coverage. But at least it will make it possible for every Kentuckian to buy health insurance, regardless of whether they are healthy or not, and it can't be cancelled if they get sick or change their job.

The standardization of policies and the health purchasing cooperatives, or Alliance, as it is called in the bill, will provide some true price competition, and will make it possible for small employers to buy health insurance at lower rates.

The Health Policy Board and Alliance, which have been the targets of the opponents of health care reform, would not run the system as the opponents charge.

The Health Policy Board and the Alliance are simply the referees that make sure that all the players are playing by the same fair rules.

They say to the industry in this bill, nobody can be denied insurance. We want quality measures for the product you are selling. We want to know if the prices you are charging are fair and reasonable. We want you to compete on a fair level playing field. That is essentially all that the Health Policy Board and Alliances do.

The rest is left up to the market place that I think most of us believe in.

Isn't it time that we put these simple rules in place? How long are we going to put up with a system that has become so expensive that it is a major cause of bankruptcy? How long are we going to put up with a system that insures the healthy at the expense of the sick? How long are we going to put up with a system that provides no measures of quality and in which there is no price competition?

I say it's been long enough. And we need to vote yes on House Bill 250. It will not correct all the inequities of our current health system, but it is a long step in the right direction.

It's rare that we have an opportunity to vote on a bill that can do so much for the people we represent. Let's not miss that opportunity. A 'yes' vote for House Bill 250 is a vote for the people of Kentucky, and make no mistake, a 'no' vote is for the status quo and those who profit from it.

I hope you will think about it very carefully before this bill comes up for a vote."

Rogers votes to allow prayer in schools

U. S. Representative Harold "Hal" Rogers (KY-5) was among a majority of Kentucky legislators who voted March 21 to allow prayer in public schools. The amendment overwhelmingly passed 345-64. The action will prevent the Federal government and states from denying funding to public school districts that allow prayer during the school day. The amendment also prohibits schools that do not permit voluntary prayer from receiving Federal funding.

"Our young people should have the opportunity to pray in school if they choose to," Rogers said. "For many, it is a source of inner strength, wisdom and integrity." — Staff report

Case against ex-principal ends in settlement

A nine-month-old case against former Johnson Central High School principal Steve Butcher came to a sudden halt March 16 when a settlement was reached between Butcher and the Johnson County Board of Education.

Terms of the settlement were not disclosed, but Butcher's attorney said Butcher has regained his teacher tenure contract terminated last June by superintendent Frank Hamilton.

But the attorney, Clyde Johnson of Prestonsburg, said Butcher will not be back to work in the Johnson County School District.

"My client intends to resign from the school system," Johnson said.

Hamilton said last Friday that Butcher's offer to resign from the school system prompted the settlement.

The superintendent was referring to a tribunal hearing that began March 14. The settlement was reached at the conclusion of the third day of testimony in the case.

Johnson and Hamilton declined to say whether Butcher received a monetary settlement from the school board.

Butcher, who was principal of JCHS for two years, was fired June 11, 1993, and charged with numerous administrative violations. Hamilton claimed Butcher "permitted thousands of dollars in school funds to be squandered and lost" during his term.

Those charges were dropped as part of the settlement, Johnson said.

In return, Butcher will drop a lawsuit he filed against Hamilton and the board in January. — Paintsville Herald

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

People who live in rural areas are eating Hostess Twinkies in large amounts. At least that's what a recently conducted national survey concluded. The results of this eye-opening survey also showed that Twinkies eaters are more likely to enjoy bacon, aerosol-can cheese, Kool-Aid and malt liquor.

What I found particularly interesting about this survey was of what importance was it to the American public? Obviously the company that manufactures Twinkies are impressed to learn these facts, but who else would care? Yet, on the Chronicles page of Time magazine, a detailed map ranked areas of the United States from high to low in Twinkie consumption.

Kentucky ranked high in Twinkie ingestion with the exception of the Northern Kentucky area which includes Cincinnati; or, if you prefer, the Greater Cincinnati area which includes Northern Kentucky. It all depends on which side of the Ohio River on which you live. On the other hand, Ohio ranked above the national average in consumption.

My theory on this is that Ohio is considered the industrial North, so eating a Hostess Twinkie is probably considered a sissy thing to do. Particularly if "youse guys" are in a union.

The area of lowest consumption was in Southern Florida. I could have figured that one out on my own. In all probability, you're thinking that the high concentration of high-fat, sugar conscious elderly people is what prohibits purchasing Twinkies. On the contrary, I believe it's the high level of Mexican Fried Ice Cream that beats it out 4 to 1.

Ironically, San Francisco, home of the famed "Twinkie defense," ranks low on Twinkie consumption. Again, it is my theory that a food with a "wishy-washy" name like "Twinkies" is bound to present problems to some bay area purchasers who are already plagued with this perception.

In defense of Eastern Kentucky, it is my humble opinion that Twinkies are part of the area's four food groups. A friend of mine, who lives in the heart of Eastern Kentucky, recently told me that his four major food groups included: pork rinds, pizza, beer and Slim Jims. "Twinkies fall in the same category as pizza," he added. My friend must not have participated in this national survey, or his answers would no doubt have been included in the final composite.

Even larger Twinkies consumers than the Bluegrass were residents of North and South Dakota. However, when you think of it, what else is there to do in those states except wonder how they got the cream in the middle? In all probability that question is pondered no less than 50 times a day. It gives the locals something to do when they're not shoveling snow or trying to pronounce the name of South Dakota's capital.

The northernmost area of Virginia, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania also escaped being labeled as a Twinkies haven. And the farther west you go the less likely you are to run into people who eat Twinkies. Once again, there is no basis for this theory, but I believe people who don't eat Twinkies lack a sense of humor, and can't be trusted. If you can't relax and enjoy a Twinkie every now and then

In January at the Lake Como Fish and Game Club near Syracuse, N.Y., Brian Carr beat out three dozen competitors in the annual ice-fishing derby, with 155 catches. The temperature that day was minus 30, and prize money for the top three anglers was $8, $6.50 and $5.

THE CONTINUING CRISIS

In Las Vegas in November, thieves broke into the car of James Ross and Maryo Griffin just before they were to be married, and stole, among other things, a cardboard box containing the ashes of Ross's first wife, Judy. Ross and Griffin had planned to scatter the ashes in the Grand Canyon, then marry in Las Vegas, thus dramatizing for Griffin the end of Ross's first marriage. Said Griffin, "They got Judy. I don't see how we can be married until we get Judy taken care of."

In January, game wardens near Arambagh, India, finally managed to herd 50 renegade elephants that had rampaged for days over 250 miles of terrain. In two days, the elephants would have reached Calcutta, where they could have done severe damage.

The elephants could not be killed because they are an endangered species, but people had used stones, spears, fires and tribal drumbeats to ward them off. At least six people were trampled to death.

News of the Weird

by Chuck Shepherd

In January, Susan Franano, general manager of the Kansas City Symphony, suspended oboist Ken Lawrence after he made a "facetious response" to a complaint about him. Franano had relayed a complaint by a horn player that, during a rehearsal for "The Nutcracker," Lawrence had passed gas in a loud manner, "creating an overpowering smell."

In November, officials at the Tokyo Sea Life Park aquarium reported that about 10 percent of its bluefin and yellowfin tuna have developed deformed faces because of the "stress" of swimming in a small tank. Large bumps have appeared on some fishes' faces; other fishes' eyes have become partially dislodged.

In December, Atlanta attorney Dennis Scheib stopped by the prosecutor's office on his way to court to represent a new client in a criminal case. Just outside the office, he saw two officers chasing a man down the hall, and he joined in to help. After the three men caught the escapee and handcuffed him, Scheib learned the man was the client he had been on his way to court to represent.

In January, the government of Brazil reported an annual inflation rate for 1993 of 2,500 percent, and Yugoslavia reported that the cost of living rose 6 trillion percent over the course of 1993. In Belgrade, a factory that manufactures steel springs paid its workers in live pigs rather than money. In Rio de Janeiro, a survey sponsored by the weekly newsmagazine Isto E found that inflation was at least partly responsible for the diminished frequency of sexual relations in Brazil — from an average person's three times a week to 1.6. Said a Sao Paulo psychotherapist, "You can't be a victim in the street and a hero in bed."

In January, the wife of Peter Harrower was granted a divorce in Edinburgh, Scotland, after 46 years of marriage, because Harrower cussed too much. Magistrate Nigel Thomson said the clinching factor was that Harrower's 21-month-old grandson had begun to cuss after being around him.

In December, the Illinois Appellate Court postponed indefinitely the electric shock therapy that had been prescribed for Lucille Austwick, 80. Lower courts had declared her mentally incompetent and had scheduled the therapy, but her guardian testified that, when informed of the therapy, she said, "That's ridiculous. If they want to do that, let them go shock themselves."

Mike Moloney took his axe,
And gave a hundred million whacks,
To his colleagues' fronts
and backs,
'Cause they wouldn't pass
his tax.

Mike Moloney, one of the more powerful Democrats in state government, is acting an awful lot like a Republican these days with his demands that the legislature actually find money to pay for budget projects.

The similarities stop there, though, because Moloney wants his cohorts to triple the property tax on manufacturing equipment to pay for several million bucks worth of capital improvement projects.

So, those projects, which include golf courses, college classrooms, state park lodges, and a pay raise or two are out of the budget unless and until the legislature changes its mind and okays the tax hike.

This system of government is known in Kentucky as Blackmail-as-Usual.

It works like this: legislators sell their votes for important things in exchange for large allocations of money for vote-attracting things in their home districts.

If they don't vote just right, they don't get their party favors.

That's how the Kentucky Education Reform Act was adopted, you know.

We didn't get KERA because our statesmen thought kids needed to be better educated.

We got it because the billion dollar tax hike that came with it paid for a lot of stuff that didn't have anything to do with education in KERA supporters' hometowns.

And, because so much of the KERA tax hike went to pay for other goodies, we don't have enough money to pay for KERA itself.

This deal to triple the tax on manufacturing equipment is the same sort of blackmail.

If legislators don't enact it, they won't get their prizes.

What's worse, the state's industry leaders and the Chamber of Commerce are being made the culprits because they say the tax proposal isn't fair.

And they're right. It isn't because new businesses in Kentucky...like Toyota...were given all sorts of tax breaks to come here while the guys already here got to pick up the tab.

Now they want the same manufacturers to chip in another $62 million a year to pay for parks and swimming pools.

Since we newspaper publishers are classified as manufacturers, we'll voice our support for the tax hike on our equipment when we see a new press on the list of things to be financed by the proceeds.

Power does not corrupt men; fools, however, if they get into a position of power, corrupt power.

Big Bad Wolf put on trial at Clark

by Geoff Belcher
 Floyd County Schools

It was the crime of the century, the stuff of fairy tales and bad dime novels. Someone had killed and cannibalized two of the famous Three Little Pigs. Someone had to pay, and the fall guy pegged to take the rap for it was the biggest hood in town: The Big Bad Wolf.

Judge Alyson Layne, an ungraded primary student at Clark Elementary, banged her gavel and called the court to order as Bailiff Nathan Blackburn escorted the accused into the room.

In her opening arguments, Prosecuting Attorney/Student Teacher

Jeanne Caudill said that although the trial was merely a KERA-influenced culminating activity for the class's unit study in fairy tales, she still intended to see that justice was done and that Billy Joe Hicks—better known as the Big Bad Wolf—would pay for the pigs' untimely, unsavory demise.

"The Wolf killed the pigs by blowing their (straw and stick) houses down," Caudill said. "Then he ate them."

Defense Attorney/Primary Teacher Debbie Hicks countered that the wolf had merely gone to the pigs' houses to borrow a cup of sugar and had inadvertently blown their houses down when he began sneezing uncontrollably.

Primary student Brandy Perry, Wolf's grandmother, was the first witness. She corroborated testimony that Wolf had gone to borrow sugar from the pigs that day to bake her a birthday cake and that he had indeed had a cold that may have caused a sneezing fit. On cross-examination, however, she admitted that he did in fact eat two of the pigs although she didn't know why because she, personally, had never served him pigs at home.

Katie Hale, student, reporter and eyewitness to the crime, testified that on the day in question, she had seen

Wolf "huff and puff and blow their houses down," after the pigs had refused his cries of "Little pig, little pig, let me in."

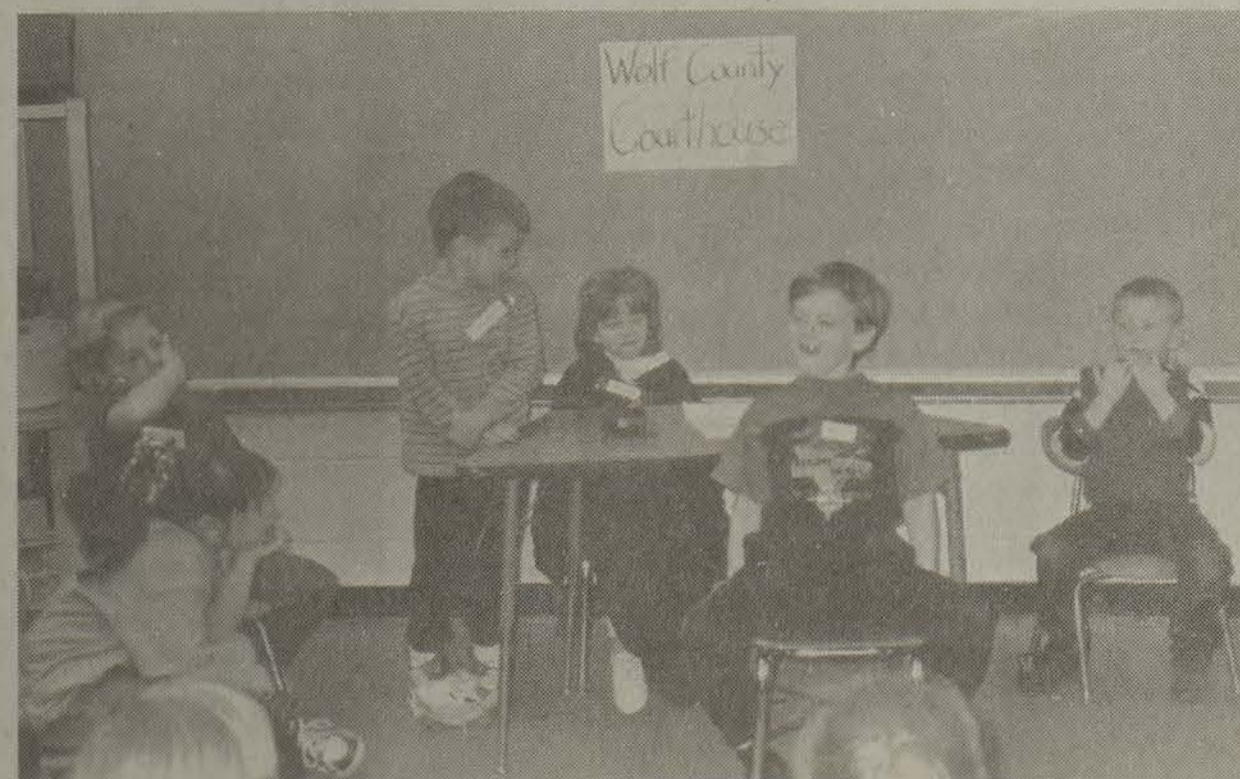

On the stand, Wolf crumbled: "I sneezed and I blew their house down," Wolf said. "I didn't mean too.... I ate them because I was hungry... (and) 'cause I didn't want my next-door neighbor's house to stink."

"Not only did he blow their houses down," Caudill said in closing, "but he ate the first and second pigs... just like they were a big ol' cheeseburger."

Judge Layne, who along with the rest of the class had studied the law personally under Floyd District Judge Danny Caudill prior to the trial, pronounced Wolf guilty and sentenced him to life imprisonment in the Wolf County Jail.

Other participants in the trial included: arresting officer Larry Vance; Wolf's doctor Kyle Ousley; court reporter Michael Nelson; Third Pig Brandi Pack; original Third Pig Joseph Gilliam; jurors Jessica Prater, Charity Fitzpatrick, Shane Miller, Brittany Montgomery, Angelina Evans and John Crager; and spectators Stephanie Slone, Ashley Slone, Beth Allen, Dallas Music, Louis Montgomery, Chris Robinson and Christina Broome.

Wolf was led to jail amidst angry cries of "Guilty! Guilty!" by trial spectators, but was immediately released on early parole for math class.

Guilty!

Judge Alyson Layne, ungraded primary student at Clark Elementary School, pronounced Billy Joe Hicks, AKA the Big Bad Wolf, guilty of killing and eating two of the three little pigs. The exercise was a culminating activity for Ms. Debbie Hicks' tutorial on fairy tales for her ungraded primary students. Floyd District Judge Danny Caudill provided legal assistance. Forensics team to compete

by Geoff Belcher
 Floyd County Schools

As seeming thousands of Floyd Countians continue their mass exodus to Louisville to watch the Allen Central High School boys' basketball team go for the gold, even more are headed in a more westerly direction to witness members of the Floyd County Forensics Team reach for the brass ring.

More than 107 Floyd County students will participate in junior level competitions this weekend at the Kentucky High School Speech League's annual state competition at Bowling Green.

The term "forensics" means "a friendly, formal, public discussion or debate," as well as a field of medical science and was chosen to represent the school system's speech/drama program in a familiar-yet-unique manner.

Led by Writing/Language Arts Coordinator Patricia Watson and teachers at each of the county's high schools and 12 elementary schools, Forensics Team members will compete Friday and Saturday in several arts/entertainment categories, including broadcasting, solo acting, storytelling, interpretation of literature, poetry, prose, duo acting, extemporaneous speaking, oratorical declamation, public speaking and demonstration.

Junior level team members will compete in three rounds in state competition Friday, with the semi-final and final rounds and awards ceremony to be held Saturday.

Deputy Superintendent for Instruction Gary Frazier said this week that the Floyd County School System will be providing transportation and lodging for all participants at Bowling Green's Scottish Inn; individual school principals are providing food.

Martin and Hall combine for 45 points to lead Rebels

The Allen Central Rebels may have been playing their first state tournament game Wednesday night, but they performed like a team that had been here before. The Rebels played with poise and with confidence en route to a 74-65 win over Shelby County at Freedom Hall.

Senior Jason Martin and Junior Jeremy Hall combined for 45 points to lead Coach Johnny Martin's ballclub. Martin led the Rebels with 27 points, scoring 15 in the fourth quarter. Hall had 18 points and picked up 11 assists.

It was the board work of the Rebels that allowed Shelby County only one try at the basket. The Rebels out rebounded the Rockets 42-35 as they dominated at both ends.

Freshman Thomas Jenkins and Steve Turner pulled down nine each.

Turner finished with 10 points in the game and Jenkins added nine.

Center Philip Patton continued to play smart down low and netted 10 points. Patton had eight rebounds in the contest.

Jeremy Burchfield led all scorers with 31 points. No one else scored in double figures for Shelby County.

Allen Central built a nine-point lead, 47-38, toward the end of the third period, but some mental mistakes and torrid shoot by Burchfield allowed the Rockets to pull to within two points, 47-45, with 6:03 remaining in the game. Burchfield scored nine straight points to narrow the margin to two points.

Jenkins took charge and led a 9-1 run by the Rebels as they extended their lead to 10 points, 58-48 at the 4:06 mark. Jenkins hit a short jumper and three free throws in the spurt.

Allen Central took their biggest lead of the game, 65-50, when Martin buried two three pointers and a free throw.

Shelby County scored the last six points to make it a 74-65 game.

While the Rebels broke a first game jinx that has plagued 15th region teams, Coach Martin wasn't that pleased with his team's performance.

"We didn't play well," he said. "We couldn't get into our running game. It wasn't our best performance, but we did pull away in the 4th quarter."

Allen Central's variety of defenses and game plan impressed Shelby County Coach Gary Kidwell.

"Coach Martin did an excellent job of getting his team ready," he said. "He had a great game plan. I want to compliment him and his team and wish them well."

The game plan for the Rebels was to establish the tempo and keep Shelby County from slowing down the game. Allen Central jumped out to an 8-2 lead in the first quarter, and Hall and Turner hit treys to give Allen Central an 18-14 first quarter lead.

In the second quarter, Allen Central maintained a four-point advantage, but some mental mistakes kept the Rockets close.

"We didn't play well in the second quarter," said Martin. "We took some ill-advised shots."

A technical foul on Hall in the second period stemmed a comeback for the rockets. Shelby County was totaling 28-18 when Hall was stripped of the ball. Thinking he was fouled, Hall said something to the official and was whistled for the technical.

Shelby County then ran off six straight points to cut the lead by four, 30-26. Jenkins' layup gave the Rebels a 32-26 halftime advantage.

Shelby county cut into the lead to start the third period, 35-32, but a 10-2 spurt gave the Rebels a 45-34 lead at the 3:42 mark.

The Rockets kept it close by outscored Allen Central 9-2 to trail 47-43 after three quarters.

"Jason was on fire in the fourth quarter," said Coach Martin. "But he's done that before."

Martin likes to take the ball in the lane and pull up for an eight-foot jumper.

"That's been my shot the whole year," said the senior forward. "but I didn't hit like I usually do."

Allen Central wanted to mix their defenses to contain Burchfield

"Our defense was lousy most of the time," said Coach Martin. "We tried to disguise it. We played some match up, 2-2-1, and 1-3-1."

The Allen Central Coach said that his point guard played well, but he did make some mistakes.

"We play better when Jeremy scores 15 points and picks up 15 assists. He was to blame for some of our mistakes," the Rebel coach said.

"This has been a big thrill for me. It's a thrill of a lifetime. It's been great, like a dream come true," Martin said.

"Allen Central just did things well tonight," said Coach Kidwell. "We shot and missed. They rebounded so well."

"We would close to within three or three points. We would relax and they would hit a trey," he said.

Allen Central (28-7) advances to the quarter finals today in a 2:30 p.m. tip-off to face top-ranked Louisville Fairdale.

The Allen Central faithful turned out in large numbers, which pleased coach Martin.

"It made cold chills run through me, seeing all those people. They gave us a great send off, and it has been great."

The Rebels shot 47.6 percent for the game. They had 20 turnovers to Shelby County's 13. The Rebels were seven of 11 from the charity stripe, while Shelby County hit 15 of 21.

Halleckson jumps to figure skating nationals in first try

by Pete Temple
Sports Editor
ThisWeek Newspapers

For some figure skaters, it takes years of training and several appearances in regional and sectional competition before they ever qualify for a national meet. Some never make it at all.

Lindsay Halleckson did it in one try. The Kenwood-Trail Junior High School eighth-grader took her remarkable skating surge to its highest level Dec. 5-12, when she was first in figures, second in freestyle, and second overall at the Midwest Sectionals in Indianapolis, Indiana. That result, coming against skaters from 22 states, qualified her for nationals, to be held at Morristown, New Jersey in April.

Competing at the intermediate level, Halleckson began this rise to national prominence at the Upper Great Lakes Regional Oct. 31-Nov. 4. The event was held at Augsburg College in Minneapolis, which is where she trains regularly as a member of St. Paul Figure Skating Club.

At the meet, the Prior Lake resident was first overall in the first round to qualify for the finals. There, she was third in figures, fourth in freestyle, and second overall. She became one of four intermediate skaters to advance to the sectionals.

The Midwest Sectionals was only her 14th competition, and she has been in hard training for just two years.

Gentle, friendly and unassuming off the ice,

'Her lack of weaknesses is what makes her good. She's very determined, and very hard-working. She has a lot of inner drive.'

—Ann Olson,
skating coach

she becomes a fiery competitor on it.

"Her lack of weaknesses is what makes her good," said Ann Olson, Linsy's coach. "She's very determined, and very hard-working. She has a lot of inner drive."

Best of all, she seems to have it. Despite a training schedule that puts her on the ice 3-6 hours per day, five or six days a week, she can't wait to get back for more.

"If I take two days off, I'm saying, 'I've got to get back there,'" she said. "I think it's really fun. You get to travel, and meet a whole lot of new people. And I just love skating."

Halleckson, 13, has little difficulty handling the pressure of such important meets.

"I don't get nervous," she said.

Olson, her coach explained.

"Everyone gets nervous, but she doesn't let her nerves bother her," Olson said. "She uses her nerves to enhance her performance. She uses nerves in a positive way, so she probably doesn't think of it as nervousness."

Most of her preparation has to do with concentration.

"I go over my program a whole lot, and draw my figures on paper," she said. "I run through my jumps, think about what I'm going to do, and stretch out a little bit. I run through the program in my mind."

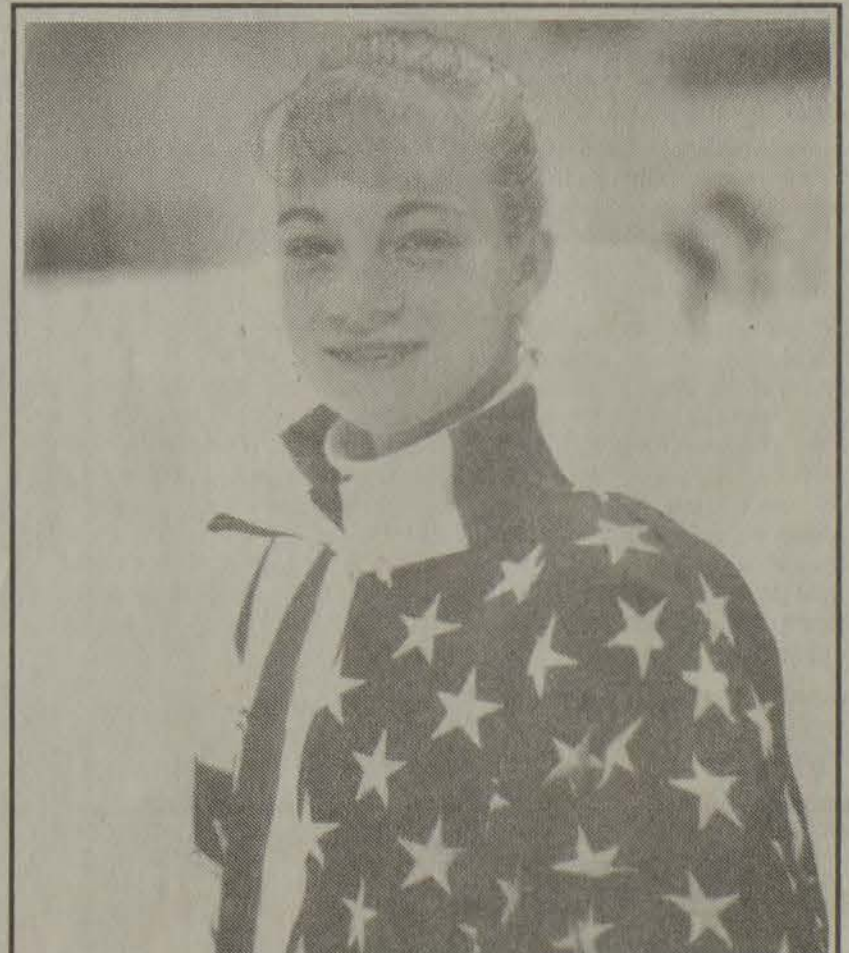

Halleckson's recent success has her thinking of bigger things.

"In four years I want to be up to the point where I could be in the Olympics, if I'm good enough," she said.

For now, however, she has two things to focus on: testing to move up to the novice level, which she hopes to accomplish before nationals; and the national meet itself.

"If I could place there...wow," she said.

TURKEY PERMITS NOW AVAILABLE; SEASON OPENS APRIL 20

Permits for wild turkey hunting should now be available at your local hunting and fishing license outlet, according to officials with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

This year, persons required to possess a hunting license can purchase the $17.50 permit for use during the April 20 through May 3 season and the fall archery season. The limit during the spring season is two turkeys with visible beards and for the fall bow season one bird of either sex. Only one bird may be taken per day during the spring season.

Shooting hours for the spring turkey season are one-half hour before sunrise to 1 p.m. Shooting wild turkeys while they are roosting is illegal. All hunters must have oral or written permission from the landowner or tenant to enter and hunt on private lands.

Portions of all of over 100 counties will be open for turkey hunting this year, although according to KDFWR biologists last year's nesting season was worse than normal. Kentucky's wild turkey population now stands at close to 40,000, thanks to an ongoing restoration effort by the fish and wildlife department.

A few items to keep in mind this season is that the only firearms allowed for hunting wildlife turkeys are shotguns 10 through 20 gauge using shot sizes no larger than number 4. Archery equipment is limited to longbows, recurve and compound bows which do not have devices designed to hold an arrow at full or partial draw without aid from the archer. Only barbless arrows with broadhead points at least 7/8ths inch wide are permitted, and no chemically treated arrows or chemical "pods" may be used.

Hunter requirements include that all hunters born on or after January 1, 1975, except those under age 10, must have completed a state-approved hunter education course and must have a valid course completion card in possession while hunting. Turkey hunters under age 18 must be accompanied by an adult capable of maintaining reasonable control over the young hunter at all times while hunting. Persons not required to have a hunting license are exempt from the hunter education requirement.

For complete information about the 1994 wild turkey season, ask for a copy of the Kentucky Turkey Hunting Guide wherever you purchase a license, or contact the KDFWR Information & Education Division, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY, 40601; phone (502) 564-4336 weekdays 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Eastern time.

Rock & Roll Express

Smoky Mountain Wrestling returns to Paintsville

Smoky Mountain Wrestling returns to Paintsville on Friday April 8th at the Paintsville High School Gym.

In the main event for the Smoky Mountain Tag Team titles, either the Rock & Roll Express will take on "Prime Time" Brian Lee and "The Suicide Blond" Chris Candido, managed by Tammy Fytch; or the Heavenly Bodies, managed by Jim Cornette, will take on the Thrillseekers. The match will be determined by the April 1st match in Pikeville at the second annual Bluegrass Brawl.

In a match for the Smoky Mountain heavyweight title, the champion, the Dirty White Boy, managed by the Dirty White Girl, will face his toughest challenger to date as the controversial Prince Kharis makes his debut in Paintsville. Accompanying Kharis to the ring for this SMW title match will be the equally controversial Darrell Van Home. Kharis, at almost 7ft tall and 350 pounds, will give the White Boy all he can handle.

Also making their debut in Paintsville will be the team of Well Dunn, Timothy Well and Steven Dunn. This team in recent months has wrestled in the WWF and should become a force in the SMW tag team picture. Their opponents this night will be the team of former SMW heavyweight champion "The Wild-Eyed Southern Boy" Tracy Smothers and Ashland's own Bobby Blaze.

In another first for Paintsville, there will be the 1st Annual Paintsville Rumble. This is a 12-man Battle Royal under Royal Rumble rules.

The first two contestants will wrestle for 2 minutes and there will be another wrestler entering every minute thereafter.

There will also be one other match scheduled.

Parents:

Making a winner of your young athlete

By Bonnie Hutchins,

Program Director, WI Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse & Author of Hey Coach! Winning Ways with Young Athletes

Sports are very important to children and can help them develop physically and personally. But simply placing children in a sports situation does not guarantee that they will benefit.

How can parents help their children have a positive experience in organized sports?

The kind of support parents give their children can make sports fun and rewarding or the source of varying degrees of stress. Here are some ways parents can help their children - whether 6 or 16 - enjoy their sports experience and benefit from it. By following these principles, parents can both motivate their young athletes and help them develop a healthy, positive self-image:

- Keep in mind the two major reasons kids play sports - to have fun and to feel worthy, competent and successful.

- Teach your son or daughter that success in sports is more than just winning. Help them feel successful when they are improving or mastering skills, giving maximum effort, and striving to win. In this way, parents can help their athlete accept disappointment, and not see losses as personal failures or blows to self-worth.

- Help your athletes set realistic, achievable, yet challenging goals. Offer to work with them to meet these goals. When a child's skill level improves, she/he will feel a sense of accomplishment.

- Reward and encourage skill improvement, good plays, and good behavior. Remember to praise effort - not just performance - to motivate a child to try hard. The best way to reward is verbally or with a physical response like a smile or thumbs-up sign. Try to avoid money or other material rewards.

- Mistakes are part of learning a sport, and young athletes will make plenty of them. When your child makes a mistake, give encouragement and, if needed, ideas on how to correct the error. Be sure to do it in a positive way. Avoid criticizing and punishing for mistakes. Criticism teaches athletes to fear failure, causing them to worry that they will not perform well and to dread the possible disapproval of their parents, their coach, and teammates. Being negative or punitive hurts rather than improves performance.

- Show your children that you love and accept them, regardless of the game's outcome or how they performed. This is the basis for a positive self-concept.

Some Words of Caution . . .

- Though it is perfectly natural to identify with your children, and want them to be successful, be careful not to live out your own dreams through them. Seeing a child's performance in sports as a reflection of one's own self-worth and success can cause parents to set unrealistically high goals for their children and place pressure on them to perform, a major cause of stress in sports for kids.

- Watch your behavior at games and practices. Remember, parents are role models for their children. If you want your son or daughter to show good sportsmanship and self-control, you need to exhibit it yourself, no matter how frustrating it may be to see a poor call or bad play.

- During games and practices, leave the coaching to the coach. It confuses players when they get instructions from more than one source.

The positive attributes that can be developed through sports can be strengthened by a parent's wise management and support of their child's sports experience. Years from now, it won't matter whether an athlete could field a line drive or make a left-handed lay-up at age twelve. But, the self-esteem, attitudes toward achievement, and understanding of success as maximum effort and improving skills that parents can help instill in children through sports, can make them winners today—and tomorrow.

The Nine BIGGEST REASONS To Sell Through Our Classified Displays

An ad in our classifieds reaches many more people than most other local media.

8

It's so easy to place an ad. Just call our classified advertising hotline number, charge it to your credit card, and it's a done deal.

7

If you don't know what to say in your ad, our experienced ad counselors will help you word it to generate the maximum response.

6

It doesn't matter what it is, from cars to furniture, or from boats to baseball cards, we'll find the appropriate spot to list it.

5

Your potential buyers are just a phone call away when you list in our classifieds. They can reach you for more information or make an appointment to see the item for sale.

4

When you sell your seldom used things through our classifieds, you can convert excess items into cash and free up space in your home.

3

It's a bargain. The cost of placing a classified ad with us is incredibly low, compared to most other media. And you'll probably make back the cost of the ad...and then some!

2

You get fast action from our classifieds. Place the ad today and start getting responses tomorrow.

1

For a limited time, you'll get an additional 10% off the total cost of your ad by paying in advance.

Coming: Cancer Cure?

(NAPS)—There is new hope in the battle against cancer these days and it's thanks to the work done by dedicated young scientists and the contributions of concerned Americans to cancer research.

Progress in immunology research may lead to a cancer cure.

One hundred percent of every contribution to the Cancer Research Fund of the Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Foundation, for instance, goes to cancer research. It supports young scientists such as Jennifer A. Punt, VMD, Ph.D. Working at the National Cancer Institute, she is researching thymocytes (young T cells) and why some mature but most die off. Mature T cells spot foreign invaders, including out-of-control cancer cells and call for an immune response.

Since 1946, the Foundation has awarded more than $79 million in grants and fellowships to some 2,400 young scientists. You can make a donation by writing the Cancer Research Fund of the Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Foundation, 131 East 36th St., New York, NY 10016.

The first free clinic in the U.S. was established by Dr. Benjamin Rush in Philadelphia in 1786.

Beer, Spirits Drinkers Virtually Identical

(NAPS)—Despite the popular notion that what you drink depends on your economic status, there is no one drink of working people or of the middle class, market research data indicates.

More than 100 million adult Americans drink beverage alcohol. Thirty-eight percent of spirits drinkers and 39 percent of beer drinkers come from households in which the annual income is below $30,000, according to Simmons Market Research Bureau, an independent research firm that interviews 22,000 people a year on consumer preferences. Another 37 percent of spirits drinkers and 38 percent of beer drinkers come from households earning $30,000 to $60,000, Simmons reports.

Although more men drink beer than distilled spirits, more women drink spirits than beer. And 76 percent of beer drinkers also drink spirits.

This data reveals that the demographics of beer and spirits drinkers are virtually identical for all income classes. There is no one drink of the middle class or of working people.

For this reason, the federal excise tax on spirits hits the middle class especially hard. The tax on a typical serving of spirits (1-1/4 ounces of liquor in a mixed drink) is twice that on a typical serving of beer (12 ounces), even though both contain the same amount of alcohol.
