Suit payoffs cause deficit, city audit says

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Lawsuit settlements of more than $200,000 pushed the city of Prestonsburg into a deficit situation at the close of fiscal 1993 even though the actual costs of litigation weren't incurred until this year.

An audit detailing city finances for the 1992-93 fiscal year, accepted Monday evening by council, suggested the city ended the year with a deficit totaling $12,076.

The audit reflected payments of $202,724 in court judgments resulting from suits filed by several current and former city firefighters. Of the total paid out for those judgments, only $63,000 was reimbursed to the city from its insurance coverage.

With the exception of one separate court settlement, actual cash outlays by the city for the firefighter litigation was not made until early 1994, but Mayor Jerry Fannin said the expense was credited to the prior fiscal year for accounting purposes.

In addition to their contribution toward a deficit for 1993, the cost of the lawsuit settlements puts a crimp in the city's current financial position which, Fannin said, will require a variety of spending cuts. The city was forced to borrow funds to pay off the $117,000 not covered by insurance reimbursements.

Without the expense of litigation, the audit indicated Prestonsburg would have closed out the 1992-93 fiscal year with a surplus of approximately $180,000.

The city currently has a special audit underway of 1993-94 finances and a routine review of city accounts will be conducted following the close of this fiscal year on June 30.

In other business Monday, council adopted a resolution to reconfigure the debt structure for a proposed Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg, which also authorized Mayor Fannin to proceed with a full application for a $1 million grant to help finance the project.

Allen council says city isn't for the 'birds'

Chickens will be banned from the city; dogs will no longer be allowed to run loose; and there could be a shift in the leadership in the police department after Monday's meeting of the Allen City Commission.

A problem with a neighbor's noisy chickens has been bothering Commissioner Sharon Woods for some time. Monday night commissioners voted to add chickens to a city ordinance which bans hogs from the city limits.

Commissioners discussed banning all livestock from the city limits until Commissioner Ann Bentley asked that goats be exempt in the ordinance.

"My granddaughter got a goat in her yard, but she keeps it behind a fence and tied up," Bentley said. "I'm not for putting goats in (the ordinance)."

Commissioners directed city attorney John Coleman to revise the city's ordinance to include banning chickens from the city limits. Mayor Waugh said the commission would handle similar types of problems on an individual basis.

Bentley said Tuesday that she did not vote for the ordinance revision, but at Monday's meeting she did not object and voted in favor of the ordinance revision.

Bentley also asked that something be done about the problem of dogs running loose in the city. She said that several "new" stray dogs showed

Three-year investigation leads to six indictments in cocaine 'ring'

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A cocaine distribution ring, which stretched from Florida to Kentucky, has been cracked after a three-year investigation and a Floyd County man has been indicted on a federal drug charge.

Six people were indicted last week in connection with the case by a Pikeville federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to distribute five kilos of cocaine.

On Thursday, the grand jury charged Joe Hopkins, 59, of Harold; William "Happy" Coleman, 58; Paul Young Jr. and Billy L. Phillips, all of Pike County; and William and Diann Smothers of Shepherdsville, with one count of conspiracy to distribute five kilos of cocaine.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation started an investigation in March 1991, and at various times the probe has included officers from the Mountain Area Drug Task Force; the Kentucky State Police; and the Floyd and Pike County sheriff departments.

Task force director Stan Farler said Friday that the cocaine the six

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Prestonsburg firefighters will be taking to the hills in their new fire-engine red ATVs (all-terrain vehicles), but it won't be for pleasure.

The ATVs are the latest rescue equipment acquired by the Prestonsburg Fire Department. The two four-wheelers will be used mainly for hillside rescue operations, said Tom Blackburn, Prestonsburg fire chief.

In the past, firefighters have had limited access to hillside sites for rescue and fire fighting operations, Blackburn said. Options, such as power winches, backboards, and bumpers will be added to the ATVs later to aid in hillside rescues.

Back-pack blowers, which can be transported on the ATVs and which will be used to fight forest fires, have already been purchased, Blackburn said.

The four-wheelers and the back-pack blowers were purchased with the aid of a $10,000 grant from Disaster and Emergency Services (DES) after the DES's Rescue Grant Review Board approved the application.

Firefighters will purchase the optional equipment with funds from their candy and pop machines located throughout the city.

The ATVs will also be used for travel during snow and ice conditions and for first-aid runs during festivals in Prestonsburg, Blackburn said.

Results of tests next week could determine future for many schools :

'Window' is opening on critical test period

Test patterns...

Duff Elementary School has been conducting a pre-test "kickoff" this week in anticipation of the start next week of annual student performance evaluations. Duff was the top-ranked elementary school in the county after last year's test results were released and the school has exceeded its goals already for 1994 scores. (photo by Scott Perry)

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

Test is a four-letter word. But it's not the kind of four-letter word you might imagine.

Not anymore, anyway. In fact, many Floyd County students and their schools are pretty excited about a series of tests that begin next week.

At Duff Elementary, for example, this entire week has been devoted to a "KIRIS-KICKOFF," a pre-test motivational effort for next week's student evaluation examinations. KIRIS is an acronym for the Kentucky Instructional Results Information System, which is the Kentucky Education Reform Act's measuring tool for student performance evaluations.

This week, the KIRIS-KICKOFF at Duff included the posting Monday of motivational posters and banners. On Tuesday, students were treated to a concert by the Kentucky Opry Junior Pros and on Wednesday, today, Kentucky Opry comedian Munroe Birdshet is slated to perform. On Thursday, students will refine their writing processes, a key element in the testing program; and on Friday the school will conduct a pep rally for KIRIS.

The "window" for student testing, school assessment coordinator Phil Paige said Tuesday, opens between April 18 and April 29.

Why all the hoopla for a test? Because there is plenty at stake in the results.

Performance on 1994 KIRIS assessments will determine the futures for most schools.

This will be the third and most critical year of assessment under the KIRIS program.

Results from 1991-92 tests established what are known as "baseline" scores for individual schools and set a "threshold," scores schools are required to reach after two years.

This year marks that critical second year and, as the mid-term results released earlier this year detailed, most schools have a way to go before reaching their required thresholds.

At least three county elementary schools—Duff, Harold and Prater—have either reached or exceeded their 1994 goals, meaning those schools must only protect themselves against a decline on this year's testing. Most other elementary schools were well within reach of their threshold goals after 1993 test results were released.

The trouble spot on threshold attainment in Floyd County, and across the state for that matter, appears to be on the high school level, where four of six schools tested in 1993 produced scores that declined from the 1991-92 baselines. Two of those schools—McDowell and Wheelwright—have since been consolidated into South Floyd High School.

The assessment tests on the high school level are administered to 12th-graders and possibly for the last time, this year. The state's general assembly passed a bill moving high school KIRIS assessments to the 11th grade for next year.

up in her yard almost weekly. Policemen Tony Conn jokingly asked Bentley if she fed the dogs. "Yes, I do," Bentley said. "Scraps. I hope the birds eat them before the dogs get to it."

City clerk Bill Parsons told commissioners that a leash law was passed some time ago, but it was passed for one dog that bit a child.

"I don't think it pertained to the town or a group," Parsons said. "It will probably have to be revised."

Mayor Chris Waugh said that there were numerous stray dogs in the city and that a leash law needs to be enacted and enforced.

"I'm probably the one that violates the leash law the most," Waugh said.

Townfolk often tease Waugh about his Cocker Spaniel which runs freely through town.

Waugh suggested that a leash law not be enforced until May 1, so that citizens can be informed that police will begin to cite citizens violating the ordinance.

Parsons said that he would find a copy of the city ordinance for commissioners to review. The issue is expected to be discussed next month.

Also Monday, police chief Virgil Conn offered to "trade" paychecks and positions with his nephew, policeman Tony Conn, so that Tony Conn can make more money.

Commissioner Bentley first suggested that the commission give Tony Conn a pay increase, with part of the increase coming from the city and part from Virgil Conn.

"We can give him $50 and let Virgil take $50 out of his (paycheck) and give him," Bentley commented.

Chief Conn said that "he didn't care" to give Tony Conn funds out of his paycheck and then suggested that the two trade jobs and salaries.

City Clerk Parsons informed commissioners that the police department's budget has been exceeded by approximately $3,200 and that it would be difficult to find monies to give Tony Conn an increase in salary. Mayor Waugh and commissioners Virgie Woods, Sharon Woods asked that a decision be postponed until they could have a "heart to heart" talk with Virgil Conn.

"I don't know what to think about it," Waugh said. "Virgil has been police chief for all these years. I want to talk it over with Virgil."

Virgil Conn has been police chief for the city for the past 22 years.

Also Monday, Waugh asked commissioners to consider naming the city clerk as the city's administrator rather than having individual commissioners oversee certain areas of city government.

No decision was made on the issue and it is expected to be discussed at the May commission meeting.

In other action, commissioners declared the month of May as city clean up month.

Commissioner Jimmy Parsons was absent from Monday's meeting. The next regular meeting of the council is set for Monday, May 9 at 7 p.m. at city hall.

Floyd County added to federal storm damage assistance list

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Floyd County has been added to the list of 67 counties eligible for federal assistance for costs incurred because of the February 9-11 ice storms.

Edward A. Thomas, Federal Coordinating Officer for the disaster recovery effort, made the designation after a review of additional information regarding costs and damages from the freezing temperatures.

A representative of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) was in Floyd County recently to assess deterioration of county roads and bridges caused by mud slides.

Damages in Floyd County were assessed at $180,500, Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo announced Tuesday. Those figures do not include storm damages in Prestonsburg, Archer Park and around David School, explained David Chaffin, Area 9 coordinator for Disaster and Emergency Services.

A bid to repair and clean up Archer Park was over $200,000, Chaffin said. Federal officials will return to the county to assess the additional damage estimates.

With the disaster designation, Floyd County is eligible for 75 percent matching federal aid for the costs of emergency services, debris removal, and the repair and replacement of public facilities such as roads, bridges, buildings and utilities.

A representative of FEMA will be in Floyd County today, Wednesday, to begin the disaster survey and to write-up the reports.

"The five kilos of cocaine came from Florida, Lexington and Louisville and was distributed in Pike and Floyd County," Farler said.

Farler added that a kilo of cocaine weighs 2.2 pounds.

Young and Phillips were arrested Friday afternoon by an FBI agent assisted by officers from the drug task force, the Kentucky State Police and the Pike County Sheriff's Department.

Hopkins was arrested in February on drug charges by officers with the drug task force and the Floyd County Sheriff's Department. He is currently being held in the state prison in LaGrange on a parole violation.

Coleman and the Smothers were taken into custody prior to being indicted and remain in the custody of federal officials in Lexington.

United States Attorney Joe Famularo said Monday that Phillips and Young were to be arraigned in federal court in Pikeville Monday morning. He said he did not know when the other four people charged would be arraigned.

Famularo said the alleged distribution of the cocaine occurred between October 1991 and March 11, 1994.

Young and Phillips appeared in federal court Monday and an a May 2 arraignment date was set. The two were released on their own recognizance. The arraignment is set for 4 p.m.

Kentucky's AFDC program places in top 10 for accuracy

Kentucky's Aid to Families with Dependent Children program has placed among the top 10 most accurate of state AFDC benefits programs in the latest rankings just released.

Gov. Brereton C. Jones has been notified by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services that Kentucky's AFDC program posted a 3.1 percent error rate in fiscal 1991, the year for which statistical analysis has just been completed. The average error rate among all states for that year was nearly 5 percent—4.96 percent.

"Our low error rate means that our AFDC program is getting the right amount of benefits to Kentuckians who are eligible," Gov. Jones said. "That year, an average of 209,823 adults and children each month received AFDC benefits totaling an average of $16.4 million.

"That high accuracy also keeps us in excellent standing with the federal government," he said. States with error rates above the national average must reimburse the federal agency for overpayments; Kentucky's low rate allows it to avoid any sanctions.

Kentucky Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson noted that the department has consistently ranked among the top five or 10 states in AFDC accuracy. "Also, our accuracy in administering food stamps coupled with our low administrative costs has brought us a bonus of $3 million to $4.5 million more in federal funds in each of the last four years."

Gov. Jones said, "All the credit for that outstanding performance in getting AFDC benefits, and food stamps as well, to eligible citizens needing that assistance belongs to the staff in the Social Insurance field offices around the state."

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

If they only had a brain . . .

by Scott Perry

What does a report issued this week by the Carnegie Corporation have to do with the Kentucky Legislature?

Well, you be the judge.

The report details new research on brain development and it suggests that any attempt to "maximize intellectual growth" must begin during the first three years of life.

That's a lot earlier than previously believed.

"By ensuring a good start in life, we have more opportunity to promote learning and prevent damage than we ever imagined," the Carnegie report says.

While it is much too late to apply this newfound knowledge to better ourselves, it certainly does help to explain a few things.

For instance, most Kentuckians are still scratching their heads in bewilderment over the latest session of Kentucky's General Assembly which, as best as we can describe, resembled a Chinese Fire Drill.

The legislature passed a budget that is $600 million out of balance; killed a health care bill that just about everyone, including a reluctant governor, admits is a pretty good stab at the state's health care problems; and rewrote a Worker's Compensation law that helps everybody but injured workers.

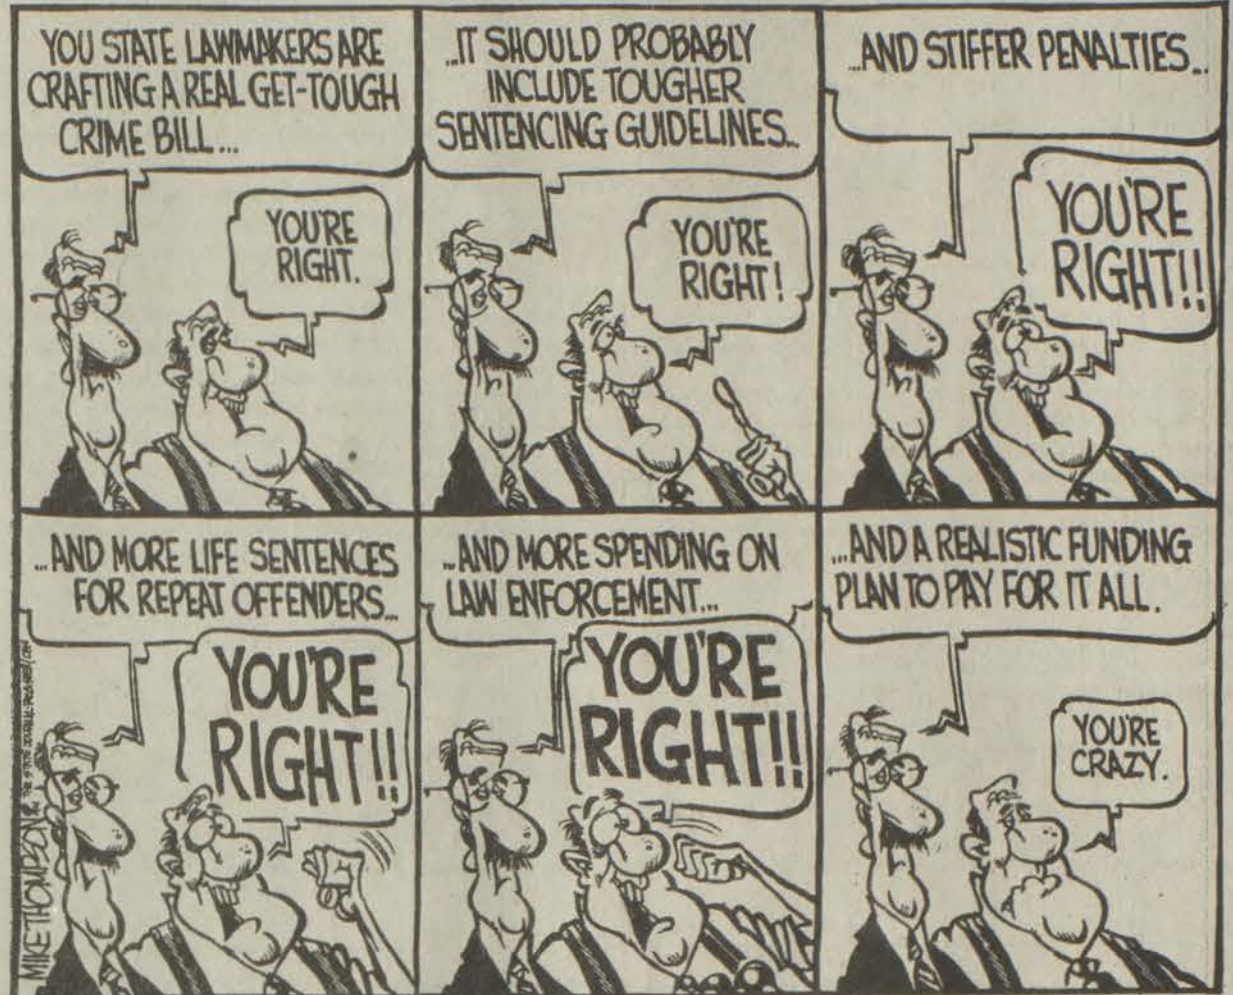

So, what's the connection between early brain development and the General Assembly?

We can only speculate, but it would appear that most of our "leaders" spent the first three years of their lives locked in a closet.

That would explain why "maximizing intellectual growth" is well out of season where our government is concerned.

Fact is, early brain development is the least of our concerns for many of our so-called leaders.

We suspect a few of them may actually be brain-dead.

Sports fan lands Grady Wallace

Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Bob Watkins, whose Sports in Kentucky column runs in the Times.

Editor:
I recently began receiving the Floyd County Times and have read with interest your column in that paper. Although I am a Kentucky fan it is nice to read a column that is not afraid of taking a shot at Kentucky or their coach, Rick Pitino. But that is not why I am writing to you.

I have been reading in your column and the column of Times writer, Ed Taylor about all the fine basketball players that have come out of Kentucky High Schools. One player that I have not seen mentioned is that of Grady Wallace who graduated from Betsy Layne High School in the early '50's, possibly 1954. Grady went on to Pikeville College where he had a big career and when his coach left to become an assistant at South Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Grady and several other Pikeville College players went with him. Pikeville was only a junior college then. Grady went on to become a legend in South Carolina where he led the ACC in scoring and also led the nation in scoring. He became an All-American at South Carolina. After college he went on to play for the Phillips Oilers in AAU ball and starred there until hurting his knee two or three years later. He still lives in Columbia, S.C.

Taking in his college career, he certainly surpasses most players who came out of Kentucky high schools. I certainly think that Grady Wallace does not get credit for all that he accomplished in his basketball career.

As a former college player I had the privilege of playing against Jerry West, Cliff Hagan and Frank Ramsey. I won't discuss how well I did against them. As a native Kentuckian I will say, however, that I do enjoy reading your column.

Sounds of silence

Editor:
I'm glad Wheelwright citizens have an alarm to let them know when prisoners escape. But what about Bypro, Burton, Jacks Creek, Melvin?

We all have elderly parents and grandparents who don't know that there are escapees.

We should have some way of letting them know, instead of waiting until the next day. A lot of our parents are old and sick; they have disabilities that hinder them from getting around to protect themselves.

A lot of their children live in other states and they are alone. Why don't we hear an alarm? It sure would be alarming to hear that your mom or dad was opening their door to a criminal. This is one way of getting rid of people, scaring them to death.

Maybe that's what they're trying to do, scare the people that worked all their life to live in peace of mind and get them to move out so their house will be empty and all these prisoners can move their family members in.

Well, it won't work that way. Our parents should have the same rights, they should be told, somehow.

Why protect an escapee when they should be locked in, not the citizens of Floyd County?

I think they should have leg braces that monitor their whereabouts or what they call house arrest. But, it looks like the ones under lock and key are the ones that made this community.

Now, in their old days they have to be scared and nervous. Well, I know one thing, those prisoners aren't in there for chewing gum and walking the railroad at the same time.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

This week we pass another one of those milestones that, at this age, arrive all too frequently and, more often than not, are about as pleasant as passing kidney stones.

But, this is an anniversary, and anniversaries ought to be noted if for no other reasons than to convince ourselves that we've accomplished something or to remind us that we haven't accomplished anything.

Twenty years ago this week we said good-bye to college (or did college say good-bye to us?) and headed home to take a hand in the family business.

Our family business happened to be publishing a smalltown newspaper.

Can't say we've never looked back, wondering where we might be or what we might be doing had we chosen another path, but we have no regrets.

Well, okay, maybe a few. Like trading in that 1967 Mustang for a new car. Boy was that dumb. Best car ever made. If we had it to do all over again, we'd make a few changes. Not many, though.

In twenty years we've seen ourselves grow from an irresponsible, idealistic young man into an irresponsible middle-aged man whose cynicism has risen in direct proportion to the drop in our waistline.

We've seen this business of newspapering change, too.

The technological advances our industry has made are dumbfounding.

But the job hasn't gotten any easier.

Guess we're all sort of like the housewife who has all these modern, time-saving appliances and conveniences at her fingertips, yet it still takes a whole day to clean the house.

Oops. Better make that housePERSON instead of housewife.

Political correctness is one of those changes we newspaper people have to be in tune with. At least that's what all the politically correct butthead-persons tell us.

If someone had told our old man back in the 60s that he had to adjust to politically correct sensibilities he would have poured molten lead in their shorts.

Not that he wasn't sensible or sensitive, though. It's just that he didn't take kindly to others telling him how to run a newspaper. It was his job to tell others (meaning us) how to run newspapers which, by the way, he still does in the most politically incorrect fashion, though he's been retired for several years.

Anyway, as we speak, it comes to us that we have spent darn near exactly one-half of our life in the newspaper business. Spent half of the other half hanging around smalltown newspapers.

It's been real.

But it hasn't necessarily been real fun.

Can't wait to see what the next twenty years have in store.

The Birmingham Barons, a double-A farm club for the Chicago White Sox, had to work like dogs last year to bring in a million bucks worth of revenue for the club.

Heck, even the club's mascot...Babe Ruff...was dog-tired by season's end.

What a difference a year can make.

This season, the Barons have a player on their roster who probably earns more on his savings account than the club took in last year.

The presence of Michael Jordan, who has traded his superstar status on the basketball court for sixteen bucks a day in travel pay, is turning the "bush leagues" into a real field of dreams for minor league club owners.

People are lining up everywhere for tickets to see the Barons play or, more likely, to catch a glimpse of his royal Airness as he attempts to make the transition from the hardwood to the diamond.

We're rooting for him, too.

With all the overrated, overpaid, undervalued crybabies infecting Major League baseball these days, it's refreshing to see a real sports hero trying to work his way up the ladder.

Hit 'em where they ain't, Mikey.

Show and tell

McDowell ARH Hospital presented a program for the McDowell Elementary sixth grade class on medical instruments used in the health care field. The program was scheduled by the McDowell Family Resource Center. Participating in the program were Betty Tackett, nurse supervisor, who demonstrated and explained the blood pressure cuff and read blood pressures in the class; Josephine Akers, O.R. supervisor, who discussed surgery procedures and displayed a suture tray; and Donald Lyons, director of respiratory therapy, who demonstrated the percussor and pulse-oximetry. The demonstrations were followed by a question and answer session.

7th annual East Kentucky leadership conference April 28-29, 1994 at Pikeville

Leaders from all walks of life in Eastern Kentucky are invited to attend the 7th Annual East Kentucky Leadership Conference. Any person or group that aspires to a leadership role in Eastern Kentucky should take this opportunity to meet with other leaders from the region.

The Conference will be held at Pikeville College and the Landmark Inn, in Pikeville, April 29th and 30th. Brochures for the Conference and advance registration forms can be obtained from the Kentucky River Area Development District offices, 381 Perry County Park Road, Hazard, KY 41701 (606) 436-3158. Participants can register the day of the conference. There is a $25 registration fee that includes all conference meals.

The conference begins with early bird sessions Friday from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. on "Gambling on Your Future," "Higher Education in Economic Development," and "Leadership Training." There will also be a special meeting of the Kentucky Appalachian Task Force.

A live broadcast of WYMT-TV's "Issues and Answers" will be held at 7:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m.

Jesse White, the newly appointed Federal Co-Chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, will be a featured speaker at the conference.

Concurrent sessions on 11 topics will begin Saturday, April 30th, at 9:30 a.m. The topics are: "Defining Ourselves; Recycling East Kentucky's Image; Women Networking; Rebuilding Confidence in Government; Family Violence; Strategic Development; Citizens Role in Government; Unlocking the Door; Meeting the Needs of Rural Families; Violence Control; Child Abuse, Drugs, Guns and TV; Wood Industry; Health Care; Tax Incentives and Economic Development; and Kentucky Education Reform Act—Site-based Councils."

The East Kentucky Leadership Foundation Awards will be given at 4:00 p.m. Saturday.

Workshops and mini-grants for community organizations

Teamwork for Tomorrow is a special program designed to provide leadership training and organizational development workshops for community organizations. Mini-grants will be available to organizations that participate in the program, which is sponsored by Brushy Fork Institute of Berea College and Eastern Kentucky Area Development Districts (ADDs). Individual citizens are also welcome to attend the workshops, but will not be eligible for mini-grants.

The program begins with a series of one-day workshops. Brushy Fork Institute will present sessions on effective meetings, recruiting volunteers and maintaining a successful organization. The one-day workshop will be offered three times at different locations: the BITAC Center in Hazard (April 14), the Big Sandy ADD office in Prestonsburg (April 20), and the Bath County Courthouse Annex in Owingsville (April 27). These workshops will begin at 9:30 and end at 4:00 p.m.

All the participants in the one-day workshops will be encouraged to attend a special two-day workshop at Natural Bridge State Park on May 13-14. This workshop will include sessions on project organizing, fundraising and organization development. Individuals and organizations that have not attended any of the one-day workshops will be included as space permits.

To be eligible to apply for a mini-grant, an organization must send three people to one of the one-day workshops and to the two-day workshop. Mini-grants must be matched one-to-one with funds from other sources. Organizations may apply for up to $2000, but the size of the grants will be determined in part by the number of qualifying grant applications.

Registration for the one-day workshops is $10 and scholarships are available. Up to 40 full scholarships will be awarded for the two-day workshop, including meals and lodging.

Teamwork for Tomorrow is sponsored by Brushy Fork and Eastern Kentucky Area Development Districts and funded by the Appalachian Regional Commission with support from the Office of Governor Brereton C. Jones.

For more information, or to register for the workshop, contact the Brushy Fork Institute, CPO 35, Berea College, Berea KY 40404, (606) 986-9341, ext. 6838 or the Big Sandy Area Development District, 100 Resource Drive, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, (606) 886-2374.

Two honored at Spring Math conference

The Eastern Kentucky Council of Teachers of Mathematics held its annual spring conference on Thursday, March 31, at the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. The conference included sessions specifically geared for levels P-4, 5-8, 9-12, and college, utilizing work space at both the Lodge and Conference Center.

The after-dinner address was delivered by Dr. Bob Ronau, a secondary math education faculty from the University of Louisville and secondary PRISM Component Director for Kentucky. Dr. Ronau spoke about the direction of math education in Kentucky and the nation. He emphasized the student-centered classroom as opposed to the teacher-centered classroom, empowerment of students—students as policy makers and as assessors, and the teacher as a facilitator.

During the evenings activities two Eastern Kentucky educators were presented plaques recognizing them for their outstanding service by EKCTM President Zella Wells. The two honorees were Linda Mahanna a nongraded primary math specialist who teaches at Hager Elementary in the Ashland Independent System and Dr. Don Ryoti who is a member of the math education faculty at Eastern Kentucky University. Both of these individuals are extremely involved in math education and have served on numerous local and statewide committees.

Both Mahanna and Ryoti had served as sessions speakers during the afternoon activities. Other session speakers included Jan Melvin, Paintsville Independent; Afo Jean Jacobs, Ethel Thornsberry, and Denise Gibson, Knott County System; Jay Barrowman, Johnson County System; Susan Nichols, Russell Independent; Dr. Gary Bogges, Murray State University; and Dr. Connie Widmer, Northern Kentucky University.

The Eastern Kentucky Council of Teachers of Mathematics, an affiliate of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, operates on funds provided by the District VI Science and Math Alliance in addition to donations from business and industry.

trict representative Ann Chaney told council Monday the resolution was necessary to reallocate the collateral for loans that have been acquired to cover costs not covered by grant monies.

As approved Monday, a $2 million loan from the Farmers Home Administration will be secured by revenues generated by a city hotel, motel and restaurant tax. A construction loan of roughly $850,000 will be secured by private funds raised through contributions and by a mortgage on property adjacent to the Arts Center site.

Chaney also told council Monday that the federal Economic Development Administration had invited the city to file a full application for a $1 million grant which virtually assured the project of receiving those funds.

The $6 million Arts Center project, which will serve as the home for the renowned Kentucky Opry, could be under construction early this fall.

Also Monday, council:

- authorized a $3,000 contribution toward expenses for a Fourth of July fireworks show this year;
- agreed to research the expansion of job requirements for a replacement for city revenue officer Mark Wells, who resigned this month, to consider the employment of a full-fledged city manager; and

- approved Mayor Fannin's appointments of Jim Sparks and Thomas Lafferty to the city tourism commission; Frank Heinze to the city housing commission; and Randy Polk and Kaye Willis to the city park board.

All members were present for the April 11 session of council.

Sixth annual state spring clean-up set

No, you don't need an eye exam. Those florescent orange dots you see along the highway rights-of-way are actually your neighbors! They're joining over 3,700 other civic groups and organizations throughout the Commonwealth to make Kentucky "Cleanly A Winner" as they participate in the Sixth Annual Adopt-A-Highway Spring Clean-up, sponsored by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet. Citizens from all walks of life, including boy and girl scout troops, civic clubs, businesses, college students and veterans, will demonstrate unified support for a clean environment as they take part in this one-day event beginning at 10:00 a.m. Saturday, April 23rd.

"The Adopt-A-Highway Program provides a great opportunity throughout the year for the Cabinet and community groups to work together to improve the environment and the Spring Clean-up is a perfect time to show our support for a clean community," Transportation Secretary Don C. Kelly said. "We are extremely proud of the dedication and concern exhibited by the Adopt-A-Highway participants and we want to recognize all those who take part. We ask all travelers to be cautious when volunteers are working and to support their efforts."

The Cabinet's Annual Adopt-A-Highway Spring Clean-up is held each year during the same week as Earth Day, but program participants continue to maintain their adopted section of roadway throughout the year. Individuals and groups interested in participating in the Adopt-A-Highway Program can contact their local district highway office or call the Transportation Cabinet at (606) 437-9691.

A state-wide shotgun start will kick off the event with help from local fire departments, many of whom have agreed to sound their alarms at precisely 10:00 a.m. on Saturday.

Walk to stop abuse

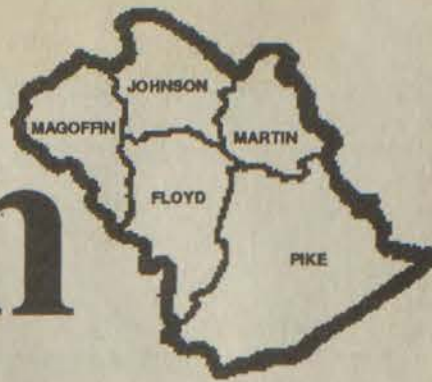

The Eastern Regional Office of the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse is asking the public to "Take Steps to Stop Child Abuse" by walking on Prestonsburg Community College's Riverwalk on Thursday, April 14.

The event is not designed to raise money, said regional coordinator Janie Beverly, but rather to raise public awareness about child abuse and neglect.

Information about child abuse and how to prevent it will be available to persons who walk on the track between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Refreshments and gratuities will be provided, Beverly said.

PCC staff will assist with the event. For information, contact Beverly at 886-1260 or JoAnn Buchanan at 886-3863, ext. 430.

against the contempt motion because "false words" were put into his mouth by Bill Moore, Carlson's attorney. But Moore maintains that Perkins made "false presentations" to Lowe.

Stock shares from Gopal Environmental Industries Inc. of Austin, Texas, which has since bought Devco's assets, were to have been put in escrow pending the suit's outcome. Moore contends Perkins lied during the December 6 hearing, when Perkins said Devco had not received the stock though he already had been given 125,000 shares of Global's stock as payment for services.

Perkins maintains that he merely told Lowe that Devco's officers did not have control of the Global stock. — Louisville Courier-Journal

2 million granted for job projects

The federal Economic Development Administration has granted Kentucky 2 million for projects to replace lost coal-related jobs, U.S. Representative Harold Rogers announced.

"This extra little bit of money maybe will go a little way toward alleviating the problems that some of these counties are suffering from," Rogers, R-5th District said Friday.

Rogers said the state has lost around 6,400 mining-related jobs in the last five years. He said this money will help counties in both Eastern and Western Kentucky coal fields find ways to replace those jobs.

Rogers said the Economic Development Administration will work with area development districts to identify projects for funding. — Louisville Courier-Journal

Body of Magoffin man found in pond

The body of a Salyersville man was found floating in a pond early Monday on a strip-mine site in Breathitt County, Kentucky State Police said Monday.

Larry Howington, 33, was on a hunting trip with three other people when he apparently got tired and stayed behind to rest near the strip-mine pond. When the others returned, they could not find Howington and contacted authorities at 3:52 a.m., police said.

Contempt motion against Chris Perkins is dismissed

A judge refused Friday to hold former U.S. Representative Chris Perkins in contempt for supposedly lying to him in connection with an alleged stock-fraud scheme.

"Totally asinine," Perkins said of the contempt motion after Pike Circuit Judge Charles Lowe Jr. ruled against it.

Perkins is representing Pikeville Devco Energy Inc. in a 1992 lawsuit that charges company officials with illegally stripping Devco founder Ray Carlson of his ownership.

Perkins said he was forced to defend himself

Johnson County health care facility proposal under review

The Interim Office of Health Planning and Certification is considering under nonsubstantive review a health care proposal from Johnson County.

Mountain Manor of Paintsville seeks a cost escalation on a project approved in April 1991 to construct a facility consisting of 110 nursing facility beds. The original capital expenditure was $3,627,749; the facility is asking for approval of a $1,832,054 escalation, bringing the total capital expenditure to $5,459,803.

Nonsubstantive review expedites the formal review process required for a certificate of need; such review can be granted in certain cases as specified by statute and regulation.

Persons affected by the proposed change under review may request a public hearing on the application. Requests must be submitted in writing by April 14 to Barbara M. Pauley, Chief Hearing Officer, Interim Office of Health Planning and Certification, 275 E. Main Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40621.

The interim office plans to complete its review by May 9. — Staff report

Prevention: a promise to the future of children

Blue ribbons displayed this month will remind everyone to prevent child abuse throughout April—Child Abuse Prevention Month.

Blue ribbons will be distributed at Wal-Mart stores in Floyd, Johnson, and Pike counties on April 14. Governor Jones has proclaimed April 14 Blue Ribbon Day across the Commonwealth.

Blue ribbons will also be distributed during the first annual "Our Promise to the Future" Walk scheduled for Blue Ribbon Day, Thursday, April 14, on the Prestonsburg Community College Riverwalk track. Everyone is invited to join in a show of support for prevention efforts by walking anytime between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

According to Janie Beverley, regional coordinator for the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse, there were 2,133 reports of child abuse and neglect in the Big Sandy District involving 3,635 children.

This walk is symbolic in the sense that it encourages us to take action, to take 'steps' to end this tragedy in our communities and across the Commonwealth," Beverley said.

Staff within each of the DSS offices are working to develop an event that will memorialize those 20 children who died as a result of abuse or neglect in Kentucky during 1993 and to remember those 57,706 children involved in the total number of reports of abuse and neglect across the state.

Blue ribbons will also be distributed during tree planting ceremonies being conducted by each of the local Departments for Social Services throughout the Big Sandy District. Wal-Mart in Prestonsburg has agreed to donate the trees.

In Floyd County, the Eastern Regional Office of the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse and the Floyd County Department of Social Services will be conducting a "tree planting" ceremony on the site of the Chamber of commerce in Prestonsburg on Wednesday, April 13, at 2 p.m.

The pink dogwood tree, donated by Wal-Mart in Prestonsburg, is being planted in remembrance of the 20 children who died as a result of abuse or neglect in Kentucky in 1993 and in honor of the thousands of child abuse and neglect survivors in Floyd County.

Blue ribbons will be distributed to all attendees to wear on Thursday, April 14, Blue Ribbon Day.

For more information about the tree planting ceremony, contact Rose Meek at 886-8192.

Kentucky State Police cruisers will sport blue ribbons for child abuse prevention.

The Blue Ribbon Day concept began in Virginia as the result of a child's death by abuse and a courageous grandmother's commitment to preventing this tragedy for other children and their families.

To participate in this campaign, the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse encourages everyone to:

- *wear a blue ribbon on April 14;
- *place a ribbon in a visible spot on your desk, your home or office door, or your car;
- *distribute ribbons at work, in your civic, church or other group
- *participate in the "Promise to the

*attend the tree planting ceremony to remember abused and neglected children scheduled in Floyd County on Wednesday, April 13, at 2 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce in Prestonsburg.

The Kentucky Council on Child Abuse is a prevention based organization that would like to invite you to become involved in the prevention of child abuse and neglect in one of the following ways:

Take time for a parent or child who could use a friend; encourage your colleagues and friends to be a "voice for children"; write letters of thanks to media personalities, teachers, legislators, social workers, or most important, parents or others who have made a significant, positive contribution to the well-being of children in your community.

Or, call, Kentucky Council on Child Abuse, 886-1260 or the Parent Helpline at 1-800-432-9251 about other ways to get involved in child abuse prevention.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

It is okay to take care of yourself physically and emotionally. Children learn to take care of themselves by watching you. Take time to exercise, read, nap or work on a special project to recharge your battery.

You are a mirror for your children. They believe what you tell them about themselves. "Helpful," "Creative" and "Curious" are building words. Unkind words like bad or stupid tear children down and teach them that they just aren't good enough.

Respect children and use a courteous tone of voice. If we talk to our children as we would our friends, our youngsters may be more likely to seek us out as confidants.

Children are never too old to be told they are loved. Saying "I love you" is important. Writing it in a note provides the child with a reminder that he can hold on to.

Giving your children chores around the house builds cooperation and responsibility. "Thanks for helping me pick up the house. We make a great team. Now we can go to the park."

Rules help children feel secure. Without limits children do not know where they stand. To avoid arguments try the "When/Then" method: "When your toys are picked up then I will read you a story," or "When the dishes are put away then you may use the phone."

Help children feel good about their successes. Instead of, "I'm proud of you" try, "You really worked hard on that. I bet that makes you feel proud of yourself."

24,121 Kentucky children were victims of abuse or neglect last year

At least 24,121 Kentucky children were known to be victims of abuse and neglect during the 1993 fiscal year; that's an average of 464 children being harmed every week.

That's also nearly 1,000 more child victims than during the previous year.

Twenty of those children were more than fatalities, their deaths linked to abuse or neglect.

"Yet those totals hardly begin to describe the size of the problem," said Commissioner Peggy Wallace of the Department for Social Services. "During that time—the 12-month period that ended June 30—we investigated 36,901 reports of possible abuse involving more than 57,000 children."

In the previous 1992 fiscal year, the department confirmed abuse or neglect of 23,172 children, after investigating nearly 36,000 reports that involved 56,181 children. Over the past five years, the number of child victims has increased 26 percent and the number of reports, 36 percent. Sexual abuse accounted for just 9 percent of the incidents of abuse confirmed last year, Wallace said.

"Neglect—especially failing to supervise a young child—and physical abuse, which typically happens when someone uses physical punishment and loses control, are overwhelmingly the most common types of harm," she said.

Neglect was cited in 49 percent of the incidents, and physically hitting, kicking and slapping in 26 percent.

"Detailed data we've been collecting for eight years now gives us a much better picture of what is actually going on," said state child protection specialist Joel Griffith.

"Contrary to national media attention or popular opinion right now, there does not seem to be any real statistical evidence of false or malicious reporting." An unsubstantiated report does not indicate a malicious report, just an unproven one, he said.

"People are more aware and reporting threatening situations more—but I don't believe we are anywhere close to the reality of what's happening yet. National specialists say that for every abuse incident reported, there are two or three unreported."

Griffith said that every report—and callers may remain anonymous—offers additional evidence to help document that a child is in danger.

"Children are vulnerable and unable to protect themselves," Griffith said. "Social workers go to a home to assess the child's safety, and to see if there are any services the family needs, not to find someone guilty."

To report any signs that a child is endangered or being neglected, call the local social services office or the state abuse hotline, 1-800-752-6200.

Parents under stress or anyone seeking information or help for a family can call the Kentucky Council on Child Abuse Parent Helpline, 1-800-432-9251.

"I Wish You Were Never Born."
"Why Are You So Stupid?"

Sticks and stones can break your bones, but words can never harm you...

When it comes to child abuse this old adage just isn't true. Because while verbal abuse doesn't leave any marks on the outside, it almost always leaves scars on the inside.

And what's hardest to see, is often hardest to cure. That's why so many children with low-self esteem often grown to become abusive parents themselves. And most of the time, they don't even know it.

It isn't always easy being a parent. It takes wisdom, love and a lot of patience. So next time you've reached the end of your rope, take a deep breath and count to ten. Or perhaps call a neighbor or friend or seek professional help.

But please, think before you speak.
Because harsh words really can harm them.

Three members of the English faculty—Dr. William Barnette and Dr. Marie Parsons, both associate professors, and Dr. Carolyn Turner, professor—attended the Appalachian Studies Conference March 11-13 at Blacksburg, Virginia.

An article by Gay Herrin, associate professor of writing, has been accepted for publication in Mature Living magazine. About her battle with breast cancer, the article is titled "I will 'not go gentle (nor silent) into that good night.'"

Sandra Robertson, director of the library, made a presentation on PCC's Alternative Learning Center during a February meeting of community college library directors.

Robert Looney and Hope Bennin, associate professors of communications, conducted their fourth annual Basic Communication Course Workshop for faculty at all Kentucky colleges on March 3-5 in Lexington. Eileen Lewandowski, assistant professor of communications, chaired a panel during the workshop.

Laura Weddle, professor of communications, and Brenda Miller, office assistant III, Division of Humanities, attended a training session in Morehead in February to help them plan a classified staff workshop at PCC.

Kathy Smallwood, associate professor of economics and business, is the newly elected secretary/treasurer of the Kentucky Economic Association.

President Dr. Deborah Floyd was one of a small group of community college presidents from across the country who met in early February with U.S. Labor Secretary Robert Reich to discuss workforce training and the role of two-year colleges. The meeting was arranged through the American Association of Community Colleges.

Kenneth Slone, associate professor of English and chairman of the Humanities Division, judged the District Governors Cup Scholars academic competition February 5 at Paintsville Elementary School.

Hailu Bogale, professor of mathematics and engineering, is one of 20 faculty members across the state selected to participate in the 1994-95 Community College System Leadership Academy. The first event is the Summer Institute scheduled for Shaker Village. Also, he participated in the Cultural Awareness Program at the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center in February. He and Paresh Nayak, assistant professor of computer science, surveyed a lot for the city of Prestonsburg in early March. Angela Duncan and Randall Watts, instructors of math/Pike County Campus, both received Summer Teaching Improvement Fellowships from the University of Kentucky Community College System. As a result, they will take a graduate course, "Topics in Number Theory" at Western Kentucky University in May.

Two academic divisions have selected new leaders for 1994-95. Barbara Napier will chair the Division of Social Sciences, and Arif Azeem the Division of Physical Sciences. Napier is associate professor of accounting and business, and Azeem is association professor of computer science.

Judy Tackett, formerly office assistant I for the Single Parent & Homemaker Program, is the new office assistant II in business affairs. She replaces Virginia Powers who resigned.

Pamela Kay Hicks of Pikeville began in March as office assistant with the Division of Biological Sciences.

Phyllis Honshell, professor of English, was appointed to the Floyd County Board of Education recently by the state commissioner of education, replacing a board member who resigned.

Recently promoted in rank were Dr. Alice Adams, English, from associate professor to professor; Dr. Rui-Xiu Dai, math, Myra Elliot, nursing, Toufic Saad, computer science, and Dr. Shirley Thomas, biology, from assistant to associate professor; and Randall Watts, math, and D. Lee Beard, counseling, from instructor to assistant professor.

FACTS OF LAW

By Miller Kent Carter

A finance agreement whereby you agree to purchase a vehicle and to make installment (monthly) payments therefor is a contract to buy at that price and to pay those payments. If you fail to pay the contract payments (default) the lien holder (secured party—which is usually a bank or a car dealer) may then repossess the vehicle, conduct a sale of the vehicle and hold you responsible for any deficiency between the resale amount and the outstanding balance on the contract at the time of your default.

A secured party (bank or car dealer) has the right, after default, to take possession of the vehicle (repossess) without court action in most instances. Under some circumstances a secured party (bank or car dealer) may, if it chooses, retain a repossessed vehicle in full satisfaction of the outstanding debt and the debtor-purchaser then is no longer obligated under the contract, and the secured party (bank or car dealer) keeps the vehicle to sell or dispose of as it sees fit.

In Memory

It's Hard To Say Good-Bye

I've known you for 9 years,
We have shed many tears,
Some would be filled with gladness,
Some would be filled with sadness;
You always knew the right words to say,

And you always said them in a kind way;
I remember the things we did together,
I just wish they could have been forever.

On His Birthday, April 14, 1914

*God saw you getting tired and a cure was not to be,
So He put His arms around you and whispered, come to me.
With tearful eyes we watched you suffer, and saw you fade away,
Although we loved you dearly, we could not make you stay.
A golden heart stopped beating; hardworking hands at rest,
God broke our hearts to prove, He only takes the best.
It is lonesome here without you, we miss you more each day,
Life does not seem the same, since you have gone away.
When days are sad and lonely, and everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear you whisper, cheer up and carry on.
Each time we see your picture, you seem to smile and say,
Do not cry, I am in God's keeping, we will meet again someday.*

Associated Designs-Eugene, Oregon

Passers-by take a second look at the Verona, a small three-bedroom home designed to meet the needs of a family with young children. The plan's versatile size also appeals to empty nesters and singles.

An open entry faces French doors leading into a spacious, naturally bright family room/kitchen at the rear. The living room and dining room are opened up with a vaulted ceiling above and a bright expanse of windows. The dining room has a pass-through window to the kitchen that makes it easy to transport food service items.

In the informal family living area, sliding glass doors open onto a screened porch. Windowed on three sides, the octagonal nook is filled with light. Plants flourish in the triangular space in front of a kitchen sink that's tucked into a corner with windows on both sides. Other amenities include a pantry and built-in appliances.

Bedrooms are on the left. The master suite is more luxurious than one expects to find in a home this size. It has a huge walk-in closet, and a private bathroom with two basins, a glassed-in corner shower, and a spa tub nestled in an alcove lined with glass blocks.

Bedroom three, to the left of the Verona's entry, could be used as a den or home office. Utilities are in a pass through space to the garage.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $10 to Associated Designs, 1260 Chamelton St., Suite 2, Eugene, Ore. 97401. Please specify the Verona 11-074 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring over 150 home plans is available for $12. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

A gift from labor and management

John C. Wells, at center, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and a native of Auxier, was presented a watch by Mick Crum, an employee of American Standard in Johnson County. The presentation took place at the Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee Annual Breakfast held Thursday, April 7, at May Lodge. The watch was a gift from American Standard and the Labor-Management Committee. At right is Gary Moberly of the state Labor Cabinet. (photo by Polly Ward)

Calhoun brings labor home

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

For John Calhoun Wells, his appearance at the Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee Annual Breakfast at May Lodge last Thursday morning, April 7, was a homecoming of sorts. Wells' position was that of a hometown boy who made good, and who came back to share his success with the people who helped instill the values that made him successful.

Although Wells was in the county performing his role as director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS), a government agency that promotes stable labor-management relations, the Auxier native admitted in the opening of his half-hour keynote speech that "This is not a formal presentation, but a personal one."

Several of Wells' relatives were on hand for the breakfast, which he noted with the comment, "It is very meaningful to me to see family and friends from Auxier here."

During his speech, he referred to the strong values he learned in Eastern Kentucky that helped make him successful. "Family and values and home still mean a lot to us who live in rural areas, especially in Eastern Kentucky. This is what has made us strong."

Tying in Eastern Kentucky background with his role of director of FMCS, he said that he has five personal goals: (1) to provide leadership; (2) promote collective bargaining and labor management agreement; (3) provide and prepare a future for the agency; (4) provide customer service to the taxpayers; and (5) be the best director he is capable of being.

Wells said that the United States is in an "economic war" with other countries, adding that "Eighty-nine percent of everything produced in America has foreign competition."

He said that he would rather the United States remain "on top in the world" in terms of jobs and productivity than drop due to foreign competition. One important factor for remaining the top industrial country is smooth labor-management relations.

"Labor-management has implications..." Wells said, "for the big goal — a quality of life, a strong America and economy."

Free seminar on women's cancer to be held at ARH

The ARH Regional Medical Center and the Southeast Kentucky Area Health Education Center are sponsoring a free program on breast cancer and cervical cancer Tuesday, April 26, 6:30-8:30 p.m. at the Gorman Education Center in Hazard.

The speakers will be Dr. Deborah McIntyre, breast surgeon from Hazard, and Dr. Wade Baker an obstetrician and gynecologist from Whitesburg.

The doctors will discuss detection and treatment, recognizing warning signs (when to call the doctor), actions you can take for a healthier life: mammograms, pap smears, self-breast exam, coping strategies and community resources (where to go for help) and survivors' personal victories.

Participants will have a chance to see a mammogram display, American Cancer Society display, Reach to Recovery display, breast model display, and Ky. Cancer program display by the Markey Cancer Center. For further information call the SE AHEC at 606-439-1331, extension 123.

Focusing on Eastern Kentucky, Wells said the region "needs to deal with its image problem. It is not like it used to be, but needs to be worked on." As a native of the region, he said Eastern Kentucky has an outstanding work force with a strong work ethic, a fact that must be capitalized on to dispel the region's negative image. He noted that during his travels as director he has seen "Eastern Kentuckians scattered all over America doing well."

Wells said that the Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee has a crucial role in promoting leadership and cooperation between labor and management in the region for a brighter economic future for Eastern Kentucky.

As for the nation as a whole, he said that the Clinton Administration is "preparing for the future so our children can have education and jobs...It is a bigger world now...Americans compete with nations all over the world. The Tigers of the East have devastated segments of our country." He cited the auto, garment, and electronic industries as examples.

"We must prepare ourselves so we will have a future...so those who follow will have the same opportunities we've had."

After his speech, Wells was given a watch by Mick Crum, on behalf of Crum's employer, American Standard, which crafted the watch, and the Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee. Afterwards, Wells toured the American Standard plant located in Johnson County.

23rd annual Cardinal Hill telethon scheduled for Sunday, April 17th

The 23rd Annual Cardinal Hill Telethon with the theme "Give Ability a Chance" will take place on Sunday, April 17. The Telethon goal for 1994 is to raise $335,000 to help Cardinal Hill continue to extend its outstanding rehabilitation services to people throughout central and eastern Kentucky and many other states. The 1994 Telethon will be broadcast live in Lexington on WKYT-TV Channel 27 from 10:30 a.m.-7:00 p.m. and in Hazard on WYMT-TV Channel 57 from 12:00-7:00 p.m.

Cardinal Hill is represented by three outstanding Telethon Ambassadors this year. Cindy Arnold is an energetic 29 year-old mother who lives with her daughter, Taylor, in Mount Sterling. In December, 1992, Cindy was diagnosed as a quadriplegic as a result of a spinal cord injury sustained in an automobile accident. She entered Cardinal Hill as an inpatient in January, 1993.

"When I came to Cardinal Hill, I couldn't sit up, use my arms or feed myself," said Cindy. "After a two-week stay, I went home and began outpatient therapy. Now I am pushing my own wheelchair, have use of my arms, and I'm starting to take steps with the help of a walker. I can't say enough about what Cardinal Hill has done for me."

Although Cindy takes one day at a time, she has hopes of returning to full-time work. She notes that her daughter, Taylor, has been a big help in her rehabilitation process. Apparently, Taylor's encouragement is paying big dividends. Kim Crocetti, Cindy's physical therapist, says, "Cindy is such a hard worker and very determined. She always has a smile and encouraging words for the other patients."

Jordan Yurt is an active five-year-old who lives with his parents and brother in Lexington. One would never know from watching Jordan that his parents were told he might never be able to walk. Jordan was diagnosed at birth with Arthrogryposis, a condition that affects the nerves leading to the muscles, causing Jordan to have no use of the biceps in his arms and no muscle tone in his legs. In 1990, when Jordan was nine-months old his parents enrolled him in the Cardinal Hill Pre-School program. Jordan has come a long way in the past four years. Today he runs, swims, rides his bike, and even bowls in a city bowling league.

"The only reason Jordan is able to walk and do the many things he can do is because of the wonderful care he has received from the therapists at the hospital and the attention from his Pre-School instructors," said Karen Yurt, Jordan's mother.

Nathan Hagan is a handsome five-year-old from Versailles. Nathan was born with hydrocephalus, a condition causing an increase of cerebrospinal fluid within the brain. Doctors told Nathan's parents soon after his birth that he would possibly be retarded and would not be able to learn as other children.

Since September, 1993, Nathan has attended the Pre-School program at Cardinal Hill. He experiences some weakness on his right side, which necessitates the use of arm and leg splints. Mrs. Hagan notes that she has seen tremendous improvement in the use of his right side since beginning therapy at Cardinal Hill.

"The Pre-School experience has been wonderful for Nathan," said his mother Leah. "His teachers and therapists are very motivational and help him as he strives to reach his maximum potential. Nathan loves going to school each day."

From the Big Sandy area, Dwight Buckley Sr. will appear during the telecast. Buckley, a former patient at Cardinal Hill, is a member of Pain Management Program.

Cardinal Hill Rehabilitation Hospital, Lexington, is a nonprofit physical rehabilitation facility serving patients from throughout Kentucky and other states. Cardinal Hill provides a wide range of therapy and services for adults and children with various disabling conditions, with a license for 100 inpatient beds and extensive facilities for a growing outpatient program. Cardinal Hill is now the largest and most experienced physical rehabilitation center in the region combining the latest medical rehabilitation advances with a warm and caring approach to treatment. Many of the specialty programs offered by Cardinal Hill are the only services of their kind in this area. The 23rd Annual Cardinal Hill Telethon is an outstanding opportunity for our community to help support a great regional resource.

Weekend CPR class offered at Wheelwright

Are you a high school or college student, senior citizen, boy/girl scout above the age of 12, parent, childcare worker, grandparent, baby-sitter, teacher, etc.? Are you interested in learning a few easy techniques that may save the life of a friend or loved one? If so, a one day class in CPR (Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation) can put your mind at rest.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin, offers regular classes in CPR for beginners as well as for those wishing to renew their certification. A basic or beginners class usually lasts 6-8 hours; a recertification class 3-4 hours.

Upon request, Our Lady of the Way can bring the classes directly to your place of business, school, church, community or resource center, etc. CPR classes are very affordable and Our Lady of the Way has a wide range of rates, including group, student and senior citizen rates.

The next class that will be offered will be on Sunday, May 1 at the old Wheelwright High School Gymnasium building in Wheelwright, Ky. The class will be a combination of basic and recertification, depending on the students' needs.

Interested individuals may now register by contacting either Keith Smallwood at 452-9303, or the Community Health Education Department at Our Lady of the Way Hospital at 285-5181, Ext. 388. The registration deadline is April 22.

MSU Summer and Fall registration set

Advance registration for Morehead State University's two summer sessions and the fall 1994 semester will be conducted Monday through Thursday, April 18-21, on the main campus, at MSU's extended campus centers and at Lees and Pikeville colleges.

Students currently enrolled and those interested in attending MSU this summer or fall may register during this period, according to Gene Ranvier, MSU registrar.

Course schedules containing trial schedule blanks are now available from academic departments and the off-campus advance registration sites.

Main campus students will advance register in their major department, beginning with graduate students, seniors and juniors on Monday, April 18. From Tuesday through Thursday, the final day, the process will be open to all other students as well. Students without a declared major will register in the Office of General Studies, 233 Allie Young Hall.

Advance registration at the Ashland Area, Big Sandy and Licking Valley extended campus centers, Lees College and the Appalachian Graduate Consortium at Pikeville College will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Off-campus students who have never enrolled at MSU before should contact their nearest extended campus center or off-campus registration site.

New students planning to study on the main campus should initiate the admissions process in 301 Howell-

McDowell Administration Building for undergraduate admission or in 701 Ginger Hall for graduate admission.

MSU's summer dates are June 13 to July 8 for Summer I and July 11 to Aug. 5 for Summer II. Fall 1994 classes begin August 22.

Omitted from recent edition

The time for the wedding of Sidney "Janie" Bailey to William S. Bamer was omitted from their wedding announcement in Wednesday's Times. The couple will wed April 23 at 6:30 p.m. at the Garrett First Baptist Church.

Two Pike County coal operators have been indicted

Two Pike County coal operators have been indicted for allegedly submitting false coal-dust samples from five mines, including a Floyd County mine, according to an Associated Press report.

A federal grand jury in Lexington indicted Dean and Dallas Francis of Hatfield in Pike County on charges of conspiracy and mail fraud. The indictments are related to submitting fraudulent coal dust samples to the U. S. Mine Safety and Health Administration, Assistant U.S. Attorney H. Davis Sledd said Friday. The fraudulent samples were allegedly submitted between May 1989 and January 1993.

The samples were submitted for A&A Francis Energy Company No. 1 Mine in Pike County and No. 2 Mine in Floyd County. Samples also came from the Big Hill Coal Company No. 3-A, 6-A and 9 mines in Pike County.

If found guilty, each man faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine on each count, Sledd said.

PRO to conduct educational meetings

Kentucky Medical Review Organization, the Medicare Peer Review Organization (PRO), will be conducting a series of educational programs for the medical community. Physicians and other providers of medical care are encouraged to attend these free sessions. Advance registration is required as seating is limited.

A meeting will be held on April 21 at Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg.

The main focus of the meetings will be the new approach the PRO community is taking in its 1993-1996 contract with the Health Care Financing Administration. This approach, known as the Health Care Quality Improvement Program (HCQIP), integrates the individual case by case review method into a more comprehensive approach of quality improvement. The shift of emphasis is now on patterns of care and patterns of outcomes, which will give the PRO a more complete view of the care provided to Medicare beneficiaries. It also provides the PRO with the ability to address issues that will have a far broader impact on care than can be identified and acted upon through case review alone.

In addition to the HCQIP, a portion of each program will be devoted to current medical review issues. A Medicare representative will be on hand to assist with this segment of the PRO agenda.

For additional information or to reserve a seat, please contact: Kentucky Medical Review Organization, Outreach and Publications Department, (812) 234-1499.

Strong field makes up Hillbilly Days' Classic

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Bobcats are hoping for a repeat of last year's classic. Coach Dave Thomas of Pikeville High School has put together a strong field of high school baseball teams for the Pikeville High School Hillbilly Days' Classic, which is scheduled to begin this Thursday at the W. C. Hamby Athletic Complex.

The Classic will be held in two divisions with four teams in each division. Each team will play three games with the winners of each division meeting Saturday at 8 p.m. for the championship.

Phelps, Betsy Layne, Williamson, W.V.A., and Pikeville make up Division I, while M.C. Napier, Paintsville, Belfry and Shelby Valley complete Division II.

At 4 p.m. on Thursday, Pikeville will face the Betsy Layne Bobcats with Williamson squaring off against Phelps in the second game scheduled for 6 p.m. The nightcap will find Shelby Valley facing Belfry in game three.

The tournament continues on Friday, April 15 with Pikeville taking on Williamson at 3 p.m. and Napier facing Paintsville in game two at 5 p.m. Belfry and Paintsville will meet at 7 p.m. and Betsy Layne will match up against Phelps at 9 a.m.

It will be all-day baseball at the Hamby Complex with the first game kicking off at 10 a.m. Shelby Valley faces Charlie Adkins and the Paintsville Tigers, while Napier awaits Belfry in the noon game.

At 2 p.m., Phelps takes on host Pikeville. Betsy Layne faces Williamson at 4 p.m. and Napier squares off against Shelby Valley at 6 p.m.

Betsy Layne is the tournament's defending champion. The Bobcats expect some stiff competition from Pikeville and Paintsville this year, two of the top-ranked teams in the 15th Region.

Betsy Layne defeated Paintsville 2-0 in the championship game last year behind the pitching of Shannon Newsome.

Outside of fielding good baseball teams, another quality mark for the Classic is the outside cookout that is held at the ballpark. Fans will find that the cookout is time to relax and enjoy some quality high school baseball and they will not have to be concerned about their next meal.

It is a day that baseball lovers will relish since 13 games will be played. It all starts Thursday. If you love baseball, you don't want to miss this event.

Last year's field of teams featured some good individual talent and much the same is in store this year.

The weather was rainy and cool last year and is expected to be the same this season. But the weather didn't dampen the zeal of last year's fans.

JAMERSON, HUGHES SHOW DEDICATION

This past Saturday, I had the opportunity to take in my third straight Clay County Invitational Track and Field Meet.

I can only say that it keeps getting better and better. The competition this year was the strongest that I have seen at the meet.

I tracked the Allen Central track and field team to Manchester but missed seeing South Floyd (Wheelwright last year) there.

The shot put was my first stop as I arrived about 15 minutes before the meet was scheduled to start. Participants were getting loose, throwers were taking practice throws at the shot put circle as well as the discus ring.

Everyone seemed excited about getting the prestigious meet underway and let the games begin.

The skies were overcast after the sun was out in the earlier morning hours. A light to heavy breeze blew across the complex but it helped keep the runners cool.

Once the games did begin, there in the middle of it all were Dewey Jamerson and Forrest Hughes helping out anyway they could while their team took part in the events.

Jamerson was found at the long jump pit measuring the leaps of the many different athletes. Forrest was around the discus pit doing the same thing.

Sometimes in the course of the games, we fail to recognize the ones who have made it all possible. The putting together of a squad, that is.

I have known these two coaches for several years. I have seen them as they have unselfishly given of their time and weekends to insure that these kids got to participate in track and field.

I have seen them work extra long just to see that he or she improves and progress up the ladder to become a fierce competitor. Dewey works with the sprinters and distance runners, Forrest works with the field participants.

This past Saturday, I saw more than I have seen out of these two, who give more than is expected of them. Young grade school runners and field participants -- several grade school members -- got encouragement from both. I saw kids who never would have been on a basketball court, a football field or a baseball diamond. They were competing. And you know who they were competing against -- themselves.

That's what track and field is all about. Your competition is yourself, trying to better the time you had at the previous meet, trying to jump farther and higher than you jumped earlier, trying to throw the shot or the discus much farther. Placing in an event is nice, but self-improvement is the most gratifying thing that takes place in a track and field participant's season.

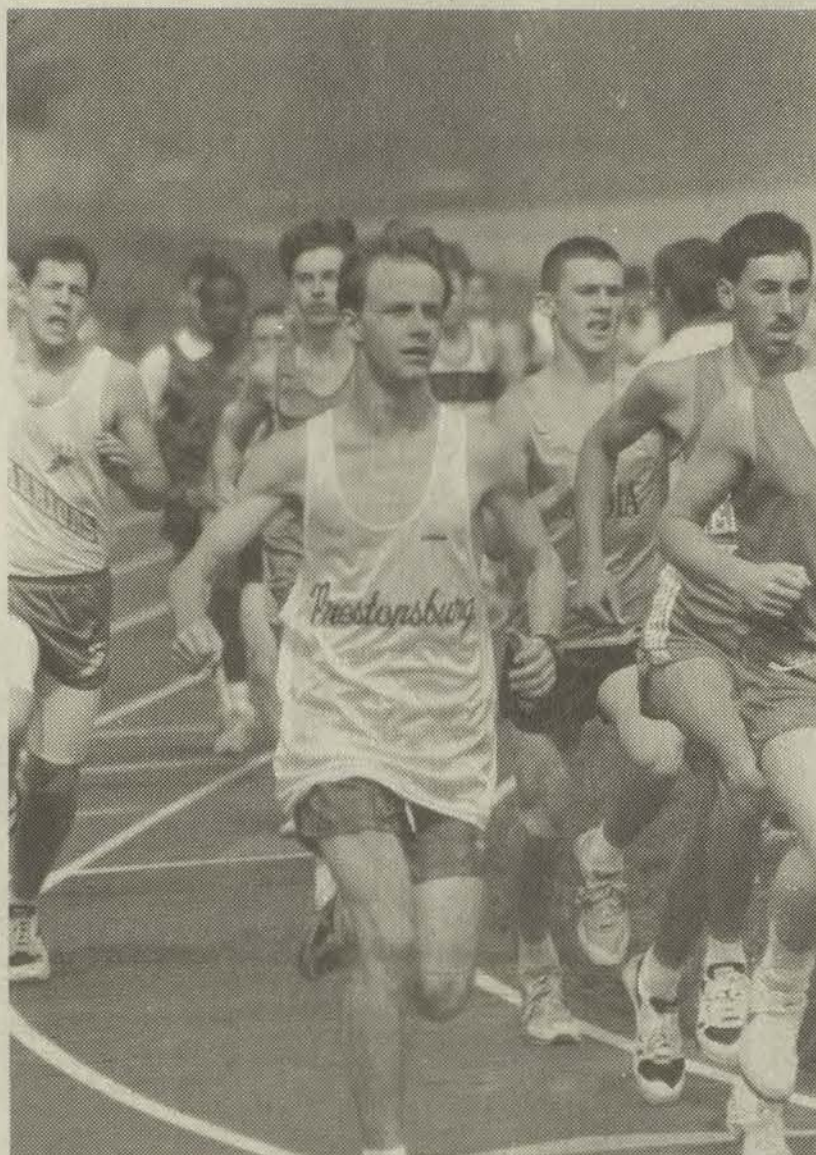

Dewey and Forrest work so well together coaching these kids. They seem to understand them and want them to have high self-esteem. They want these kids to be the best that they can be and still be able to hold their heads high even when (the participant) thinks he is a failure.

As the breeze blew in the afternoon hours, and I beheld the running of the men's 1600-meter run, I noticed a young man who was not from Allen Central but from Prestonsburg High School. He did not come with a Prestonsburg team, but with Allen Central, although he represented Prestonsburg in the meet.

Stewart Robertson was a very good representative for Prestonsburg at the meet. He performed very well and took home a second and third place finish.

When I talk with Stewart, you just hear it in his voice that he has just one desire and that is to get better with each meet. He has progressed from a novice to a very strong competitor in the distance events.

Despite running wrong lane, Robertson finishes strong in track meet

Despite running in the wrong lane in the men's 1600-meter run, Prestonsburg's Stewart Robertson placed third in the event with a time of 4:52.

Robertson ran in his first Clay County Invitational this past Saturday in Manchester.

"I got boxed in in the back," said Robertson about the 1600-meter run. "I then got into the second lane which caused me to run four-yards more."

It was a lesson for Robertson in running his first big meet. But the Prestonsburg runner is confident that better things are on the horizon for him.

"I was pleased with the way I ran," he said. "Overall, I'm very happy. It was the first big meet that I had ever been to. Keith Combs (who is considered one of Kentucky's best) is a great runner."

New softball league for women forming

If enough teams enter, a new women's softball league will become a reality at Archer Park this season.

Any women teams that are interested in being part of the new league are urged to contact Pam or Kenny Music at 886-1032 for more information.

The league is expected to start in two weeks.

Be one of the first to sign up for what promises to be an exciting women's softball league.

Combs won the 1600-meter run. Robertson evaluated his race and knew he could do better in the grueling 3200-meter run.

"I sat down and looked at the way I ran the 1600 meters," he said. "I wanted to place higher in the 3200 meters. I decided that I didn't want anybody between me and Keith Combs in the 3200 meters."

There wasn't. Robertson, figuring that he did not get out fast enough in the 1600, broke out on top to start the 3200. He held the lead through the first lap.

"I ran out fast, real fast," he said. "It was on the back stretch of the second lap that Keith took over."

After Combs took the lead, the real race for Robertson was to keep the way clear between him and Combs. David Evans, from Pulaski County, became the real challenger for Robertson. It was either compete with him or settle for another third place finish.

"It was neck and neck most of the way," said Robertson. "The lead changed several times between us. We both kept the same pace until the final six laps. I passed him and kept the lead. I still had some kick left after the first seven laps. He ran so hard in just trying to keep up. He just didn't have anything left."

Robertson edged Evans for second place, beating the Pulaski runner by two seconds. While the margin or victory was small, the victory was sweet.

"I'm happy to have beaten the top three runners from Pulaski County," said Robertson. I remember them from the cross-country meets."

Robertson is looking to win a regional championship and advance to the state finals.

Queen places first in long jump at Clay County meet

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The cancellation of their first two track and field meets of the season may have presented a problem for the Allen Central girls track and field team. But not for Nikki Queen who just keeps getting better. She and her teammates competed in the Clay County Invitational in Manchester this past Saturday.

In only her second meet of the season, Queen established a new school record in the women's long jump and took home first place in the prestigious meet that attracts some of the best competition from around the state.

Fifteen teams gathered at the Clay County track and field facility and the weather was just right as runners and field competitors competed in the full day's events.

Queen, who last week won the long jump event at Johnson Central, had a leap of 14 feet, seven and a quarter inches to bring home the gold medal for Allen Central. Her leap was a new school record.

"It was a surprise to me," said Allen Central coach Dewey Jamerson. "It's only her second meet of the season and to do that good in just the second meet is certainly a surprise."

But according to Jamerson, Queen's first two jumps in the long jump event was better than the previous school records.

"To establish a new school record this early is something of an accomplishment," he said.

Nicole Clark, in her first year of competition, was impressive in the long jump with a leap of 11 feet, 5 inches. Clark has the promise of being a good one once she gets more meets in, according to Jamerson.

"Nicole needs to concentrate on her distance rather than not placing," he said. "She will be a good one yet this season."

In other field events, Melissa Mullins took fifth place in the women's discus. Mullins had a toss of 72 feet, 8 inches in placing. Jenny Wells tossed the discus 53 feet, 7 inches.

The Allen Central girls' 3200-meter relay team took third place with a time of 11:33.00. The four-some consisted of Kristel Floyd, Annie Harvey, Dreama Isaac and Crystal Martin. The quartet took home a third place medal.

"Kristel is not in shape," said Jamerson. "But when she does get in shape she will really help us. She is faster than the time she ran in her laps (2:57.40)."

"Annie had her fastest time (2:46.37). And Dreama had her fastest time also (2:50.88). It was our fastest time of the year and they looked good running. We had three under three minutes and that was a good effort," said Jamerson.

Desiree Wallen and Jenny Wells competed in the women's shot put, but did not place. Both are grade-schoolers. Heather Conley competed in the high jump for Allen Central.

Lisa Stumbo ran the 100 hurdles in 19:60, which was good for fifth place overall. Allison Conley got tangled up in the hurdles and stopped, forcing her to be disqualified.

Allison Hall ran her personal best in the women's 100 meter with a time of 14:73. Queen also competed in the event and posted a time of 14:36.

The relay team of Rena Burke, Nicole Clark, Amy Howard and Dreama Isaac had a time of 2:14.4 in the women's 800 relays. The team did not place in the event.

Sturgill gets ace on difficult five hole at Stumbo Park

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Todd Sturgill of Betsy Layne did something that no other golfer has been able to do at the John M. Stumbo Beaver Valley Golf Course: Ace a hole-in-one on the number five green.

"We've had several hole-in-ones here at the course," said Kay Auxier, who works in the pro shop at the course, "but it is the first one on number five."

Sturgill's ace is the 11th to be sunk since the course opened in 1990.

The fairway leading to the number five hole is 240 yards in distance. It is a par 5 hole. Of the 11 hole-in-ones that have been made at the Allen course, seven have come on home number three, which is a 210 yard shot.

"I can make one on hole number three," said Auxier. "But number five seems to be more difficult."

"It was my first ever," said Sturgill, an avid golfer. "I've had plenty of time to get it in."

The shot was witnessed by Duran Newsome, Tim Rice and Larry Hale.

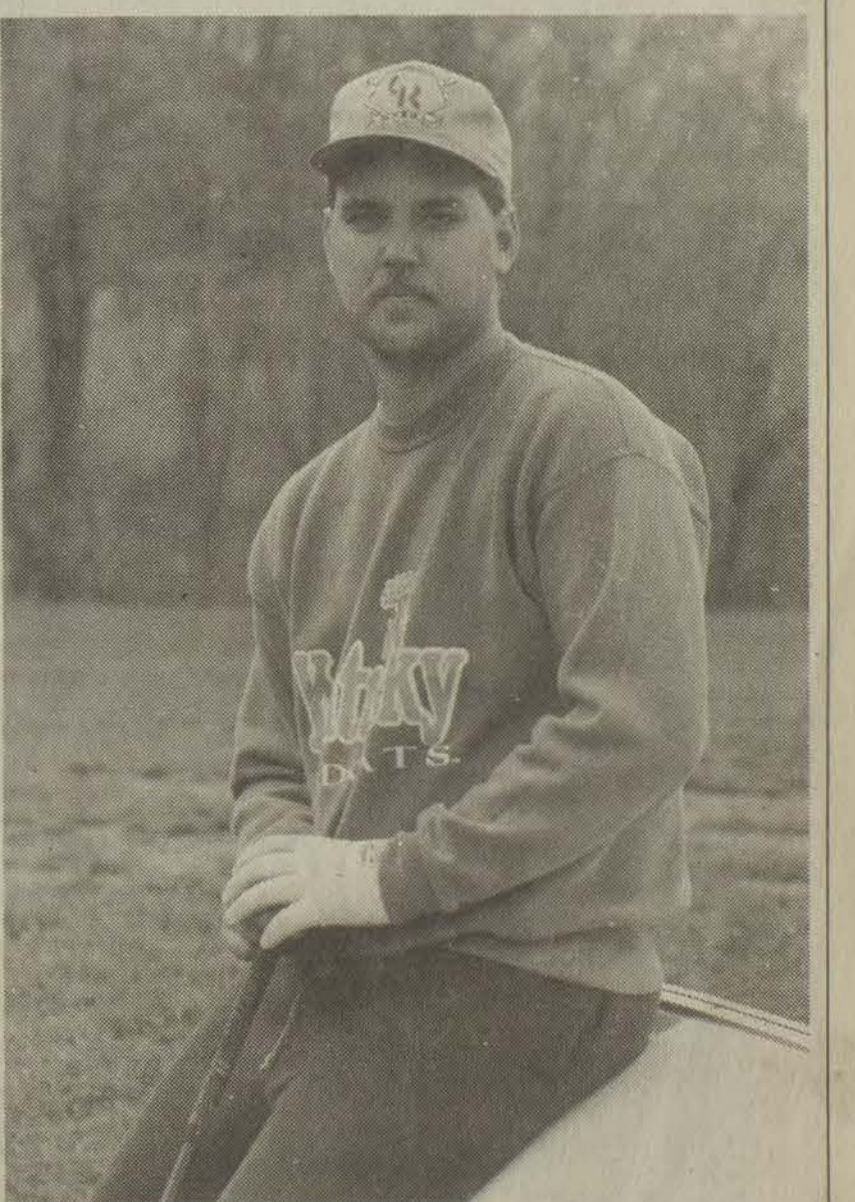

Auxier stated that the clubhouse would present Sturgill with a plaque in honor of his sinking the ace. But Auxier would like to take it a step further and recognize all persons who have or will get a hole-in-one at the course.

"I would like for us to get a big

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Magoffin County's Brian Combs and Betsy Layne's Shannon Newsome hooked up in an old-fashioned pitching duel when the two teams met at the Allen Park this past Friday evening.

Newsome bested Combs in a 2-1 win, but it took a late seventh-inning rally to help the Bobcats notch their fifth win of the season. Betsy Layne is currently 5-1 on the year.

Combs, a lefthander, kept the usually hard-hitting Bobcats off stride by mixing his pitches and setting up the hitters for his off-speed pitch.

Newsome, on the other hand, came at each hitter and was sharp with his pitches that blew past the hitters from Magoffin County.

Chris Potter collected his second double of the game and it was a big one as Shawn Rose, who was pinch-running, scored from second base on Potter's long drive in the final frame.

Brad Kidd, who pinched hit for Rose, walked and Rose was reinserted to run the base paths. Scott Ousley laid down a sacrifice bunt that moved Rose to second. Potter then drilled a Combs fastball to left center for the game-winning hit.

Neither team could generate any kind of offense since Combs and Newsome were well in control. Magoffin County reached Newsome for a run in the fourth inning with the help of a two-base error in center field.

With two out, Brian Conley's fly ball to center field was dropped by Ousley with Conley resting on second base. Combs then roped a base hit to center field, scoring Conley and giving the Hornets a 1-0 lead.

Betsy Layne finally reached Combs in the bottom of the fifth inning to tie the game at 1-1. The run scored on what appeared to be a suicide squeeze by Derrick Newsome. Willie Meade started the one-run rally with a lead off walk. Rose fanned and Ousley drew a walk, putting runners at first and second.

Potter hit a bouncer to shortstop, forcing Ousley at second base and moving Rose to third. Newsome then laid down the bunt and legged it out for a base hit, scoring Meade with the tying run. Potter, in some shaky base running, was caught in a rundown between second and third for the final out.

The Bobcats missed a chance to score in the sixth inning when they got a leadoff double by Shannon Newsome down the left field line. With one out, Brandon Castle hit a fly ball to left that was misplayed and fell for a two-base hit.

Newsome, looking for the ball to be caught, held second but was only able to advance to third on the hit. Combs then went to a 3-2 count on Greg Hunter before striking him out. He then got Meade looking for the third out.

Magoffin County put two runners on in the first inning by walks, but Newsome got Combs on strikes and induced Conley to fly out to right field.

Betsy Layne looked to break the scoreless deadlock in the bottom of the third, but Combs bowed his neck and pitched out of a jam.

With two out, Ousley singled and went to third on Potter's first double. But Combs caught Derrick Newsome looking for the final out.

Shannon Newsome was in complete control as he held the Hornets to only two hits in the game. He struck out 10 batters while giving up only two walks. Both of those came in the first inning. Betsy Layne committed two errors behind Newsome.

Combs, a hard thrower, fanned eight Betsy Layne batters and issued only three base-on-balls. He allowed seven hits and both runs were earned. He struck the side in the third inning.

The defensive play of the game came in the top of the seventh when Conley hit a screaming liner to left field that Derrick Newsome made a diving catch of.

Making a winner of your young athlete

by Bonnie Hutchins
Program Director
WI Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse &
Author of Hey Coach! Winning Ways with Young Athletes

Sports are very important to children and can help them develop physically and personally. But simply placing children in a sports situation does not guarantee that they will benefit.

How can parents help their children have a positive experience in organized sports?

The kind of support parents give their children can make sports fun and rewarding or the source of varying degrees of stress. Here are some ways parents can help their children - whether 6 or 16 - enjoy their sports experience and benefit from it. By following these principles, parents can both motivate their young athletes and help them develop a healthy, positive self-image:

- Keep in mind the two major reasons kids play sports - to have fun and to feel worthy, competent and successful.

- Teach your son or daughter that success in sports is more than just winning. Help them feel successful when they are improving or mastering skills, giving maximum effort, and striving to win. In this way, parents can help their athlete accept disappointment, and not see losses as personal failures or blows to self-worth.

- Help your athletes set realistic, achievable, yet challenging goals. Offer to work with them to meet these goals. When a child's skill level improves, s/he will feel a sense of accomplishment.

- Reward and encourage skill improvement, good plays, and good behavior. Remember to praise effort - not just performance - to motivate a child to try hard. The best way to reward is verbally or with a physical response like a smile or thumbs-up sign. Try to avoid money or other material rewards.

- Mistakes are part of learning a sport, and young athletes will make plenty of them. When your child makes a mistake, give encouragement and, if needed, ideas on how to proves performance.

- Show your children that you love and accept them, regardless of the game's outcome or how they performed. This is the basis for a positive self-concept.

Some Words of Caution...

- Though it is perfectly natural to identify with your children, and want them to be successful, be careful not to live out your own dreams through them. Seeing a child's performance in sports as a reflection of one's own self-worth and success can cause parents to set unrealistically high goals for their children and place pressure on them to perform, a major cause of stress in sports for kids.
- Watch your behavior at games and practices. Remember, parents are role models for their children. If you want your son or daughter to show good sportsmanship a self-control, you need to exhibit it yourself, no matter how frustrating it may be to see a poor call or bad play.

- During games and practices, leave the coaching to the coach. It confuses players when they get instructions from more than one source.

The positive attributes that can be developed through sports can be strengthened by a parent's wise management and support of their child's sports experience. Years from now, it won't matter whether an athlete could field a line drive or make a left-handed lay-up at age twelve. But, the self-esteem, attitudes toward achievement, and understanding of success as maximum effort and improving skills that parents can help instill in children through sports, can make them winners today—and tomorrow.

A Look at Sports

Now, all that just didn't come to Stewart overnight but through many hours of dedicating himself to being the best that he can be. All that was instilled in this young man by Forrest Hughes, even though Robertson attends another high school.

Coach Hughes, as well as Dewey, are unselfish coaches who are willing to help whoever is interested in being the best they can be.

From this side of the computer I can honestly say that I appreciate these two outstanding coaches who are willing to give of themselves so athletes can have a chance to excel. The job is not glamorous nor is it easy. But the rewards reaped when these kids one day walk up and receive a medal because they placed in an event, cannot really be weighed in a coach's life.

If you have never attended a track and field competition, you are short changing yourself of total enjoyment. The competition is tough and fierce, but what a pleasure just to see the look on a kid's face when he or she excels in his events.

Once the new track and field facility (if ever) is built at the Allen Central football field, and the kids have a place to practice on, I am convinced that under the guidance of Dewey and Forrest we will see a state champion in more than one event.

Presently, while other schools have their facility to practice on and prepare for a meet, Allen Central is having to practice running in the gym and even leaping hurdles.

For most coaches, this would be discouraging enough, but for these two fine coaches, they take what they have and do the best they can do.

For anyone who has stood opposed to the facility going in, come to a meet and watch not only the events but the kids faces as they compete.

My hat's off (wish I had one Saturday) to Dewey and Forrest. Keep up the hard work!

NEVER DREAMED...

When I first started writing my column back in 1990, I never dreamed that it would reach out as far as it does. I never in my wildest expectations thought it would be read like it has been. I say that very meekly.

But all the letters and calls that I get, I appreciate all who say they enjoy reading my column. From California across the states, I hear from them all. Thanks so much.

The Grady Wallace Story seems to have been a big hit with many, many people that had wondered what happen to the former Betsy Layne standout.

Grady was so gracious to take time to talk with me and I appreciated his time so much.

We hope to profile and look back at others who made their mark in Floyd County sports. Whether it was football, basketball, baseball or some other sport, we want to find them and remember them once again.

If you have someone in mind, contact me by letter or phone and let's talk.

A TRIBUTE TO...

With Memorial Day approaching, I want to offer you a chance to pay tribute to that athlete, coach, or just a big sports fan who has passed on.

If you want to pay tribute to such a one, send me a photo and a brief (now brief) summary of the individual. I want to run them in the sports section from now until Memorial Day.

Let me know the school they played for, coached or followed as a fan. Also, add the date of passing away.

Now, you say, I want to do that. Then do it as soon as possible and don't delay. Mail to Ed Taylor, c/o Floyd County Times, Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. Or if you prefer, drop it off at the Times office. Out of county and state subscribers are welcome to participate. It must be an athlete, coach, fan or even a cheerleader.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports. Thanks Dewey and Forrest.

Reed doubles home winning run in 5-4 win over Lady Cats

The Pikeville College Lady Bears hosted the University of Kentucky Lady Cats in college softball action last Friday. The two teams split the doubleheader with Pikeville winning the opener 5-4 in 10 innings and dropping the nightcap 12-8.

The opening-game win was the first time a Pikeville team had ever defeated a UK squad.

Former Prestonsburg standout, Amy Reed, delivered the game winning RBI when she doubled in the bottom of the 10th inning, scoring Tina Childers for the 5-4 win. Childers had two hits in the game for UK. Sarah Norman and Heather Bartley collected two hits for the winning Lady Bears. Stephanie DeLong picked up the win.

UK posted a 12-8 win in the second game after Pikeville had tied the score at 6 in the bottom of the sixth inning. Elizabeth Baird led the Lady Bears at the plate with two hits, and she drove in four runs.

Midway College came to town on Saturday, and the Lady Bears rolled to a doubleheader sweep, winning the first game 10-0 and posting a 6-4 win in game two.

Stepanie DeLong was the winning pitcher in both games for Pikeville. Reed swung the hot bat for the Lady Bears in collecting three hits and three RBIs. Reed also displayed some outstanding base running.

Bartley collected two hits and drove in two runs for the winners. Carolyn Reffit, another Prestonsburg standout, along with Claire Fuller, Melissa Davis and Baird, all had two hits each. Susan Rowe scored two runs and had one hit.

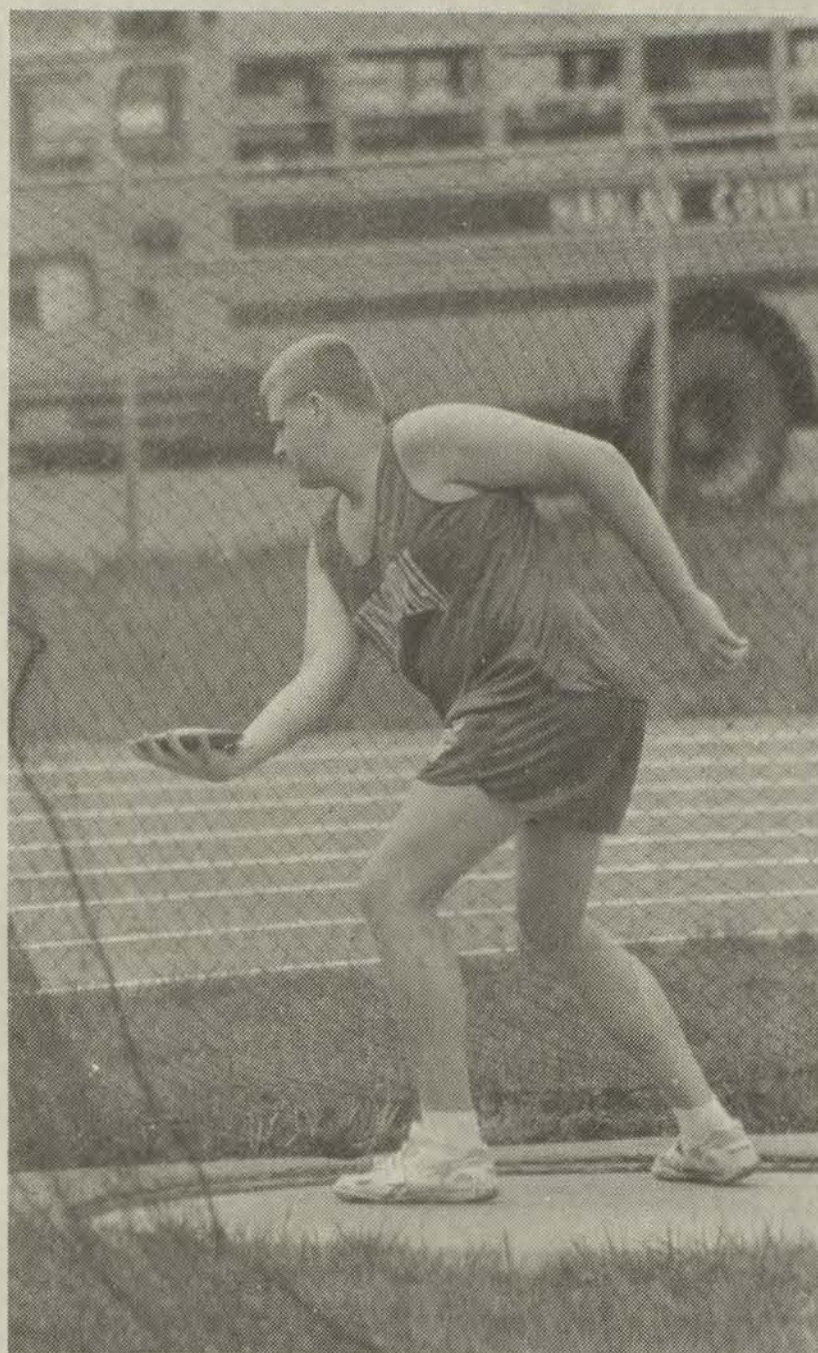

Reed continued her hot hitting with two hits in the second game. Reed had a single and triple.

The Lady Bears took a short break and returned Saturday afternoon to face a strong Ashbury College team. Ashbury swept the Lady Bears, winning the first game 9-3 and taking the nightcap, 3-0. Reed and Bartley each had a run batted in during the first game.

Pikeville loaded the bases on two occasions with no one out but could not take advantage of the situation. Excellent defensive play by Asbury prevented the Lady Bears from opening up the game.

Tina Childers had three hits for Pikeville in the second game. Pikeville finished the week with a 5-5 record and stands at 12-11 overall on the year.

Pikeville travels to Cumberland tomorrow and will return home to host Union at 4:30 p.m. The Lady Bears are scheduled to host Georgetown in a twin-bill Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m. All games are played at the Bob Amos Park.

Bobcats avenge earlier loss to Sheldon Clark

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Bobcats opened their 1994 high school baseball season by dropping a 16-10 decision to the Sheldon Clark Cardinals. The Bobcats had a bad time in fielding the baseball in the opener, but the second round against the Cardinals on the road, Betsy Layne came away with a 13-2 mercy win to avenge the earlier setback.

Derrick Newsome took the mound for the Bobcats and hurled a nifty three-hitter in picking up the win while going the distance in the five-inning game.

Newsome fanned just three batters and walked seven as he struggled with his control. Whereas defense was the problem in the first game (seven errors), it was the blessing in the second encounter. The Bobcats played errorless baseball.

Shannon Newsome, who appears to have snapped an early season slump, collected three hits and scored four runs for Betsy Layne. The big righthander and third baseman had been struggling at the plate in the first five games, but has hit well in the last two.

Newsome had two doubles and a single while walking once for a perfect day at the plate. He doubled in the fourth and fifth innings.

Chris Potter continues to sting the baseball. He had two hits. He singled home a run in the second inning and led off the fourth with a base hit.

Two hits came to Derrick Newsome who also scored two runs. The pitcher doubled in the fifth inning, driving in a run.

Keith Hamilton and Greg Hunter each collected two hits.

Betsy Layne took a 4-0 lead after they batted in the top of the second inning. The Bobcats collected five hits in the frame with Barry Clark getting a run-producing double in the inning. A base hit by Shannon Newsome started the rally and Clark followed with his double. A one-out base hit by Hamilton and Hunter's first hit scored two more runs. Potter then singled home the fourth run in the inning.

Sheldon Clark got one run back in the bottom of the second on a walk to Jason Pinson, a base hit by Alley, a walk to Maynard and Davis' fly ball. After Betsy Layne scored twice in the third, on Hunter's second hit of the game, Sheldon Clark added their final run on a lead-off homerun by Brad Tiller with two out in the third inning.

Betsy Layne added four in the fourth as they got three consecutive hits to start the inning. Potter singled leading off and Derrick Newsome followed with a base hit. Shannon Newsome scored Potter with a double and Brandon Castle's one-out double sent Derrick Newsome and Shannon Newsome home. Castle came on to score on sacrifice fly off the bat of Hunter.

The Bobcats made it a mercy game with three in the top of the fifth. Derrick Newsome and Shannon Newsome had back-to-back doubles in the inning and Hamilton collected his second hit.

The Cardinals left the bases loaded in the bottom of the fifth inning on three walks from Newsome. Newsome got Maynard to pop to first base to end the game.

The May was the losing pitcher for Sheldon Clark. He worked the five innings allowing all 13 runs and giving up 13 hits. He walked three batters, hit two and had no strikeouts.

It was the sixth straight win for Coach Junior Newsome's ballclub, which improved to 6-1 on the year.

Betsy Layne plays at Pikeville tonight in a regular scheduled game. The Bobcats return to Pikeville for the Hillbilly Days' Classic when they will face Pikeville at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Jessica Martin, a newcomer, ran her personal best with a 8:05.44 in the women's 1600-meter run.

With the fastest time in two years for an Allen Central 400-meter relay team, Burke, Clark, Hall and Howard posted a time of 1:01.3.

"And they did it without a Jenny Wiley running the race," said Jamerson. "We just need to get it under a minute."

Lisa Stumbo had a time of 58:90 in the women's 300 hurdles. Allison Conley posted her personal best with a time of 1:14.70.

It was a sixth place finish for Annie Harvey, who was running her first race of the season. Harvey recorded a 2:49.29 in the women's 800-meter run despite some controversy.

"They wanted to place a girl from Oneida Baptist ahead of Annie. I went over to the judges and questioned it. They realized they made a mistake and said okay," said Jamerson.

Crystal Martin, in her first year of competing, ran a 2:57.00 in the 800-meter run.

Coach Jamerson is looking for someone to step in and fill the spot left vacant with the loss of Jenny Wiley in the women's 200-meter run. That person, Coach Jamerson thinks, is Kristel Floyd who ran the race in 30:83 to finish fifth. It was the first time Floyd competed in the event.

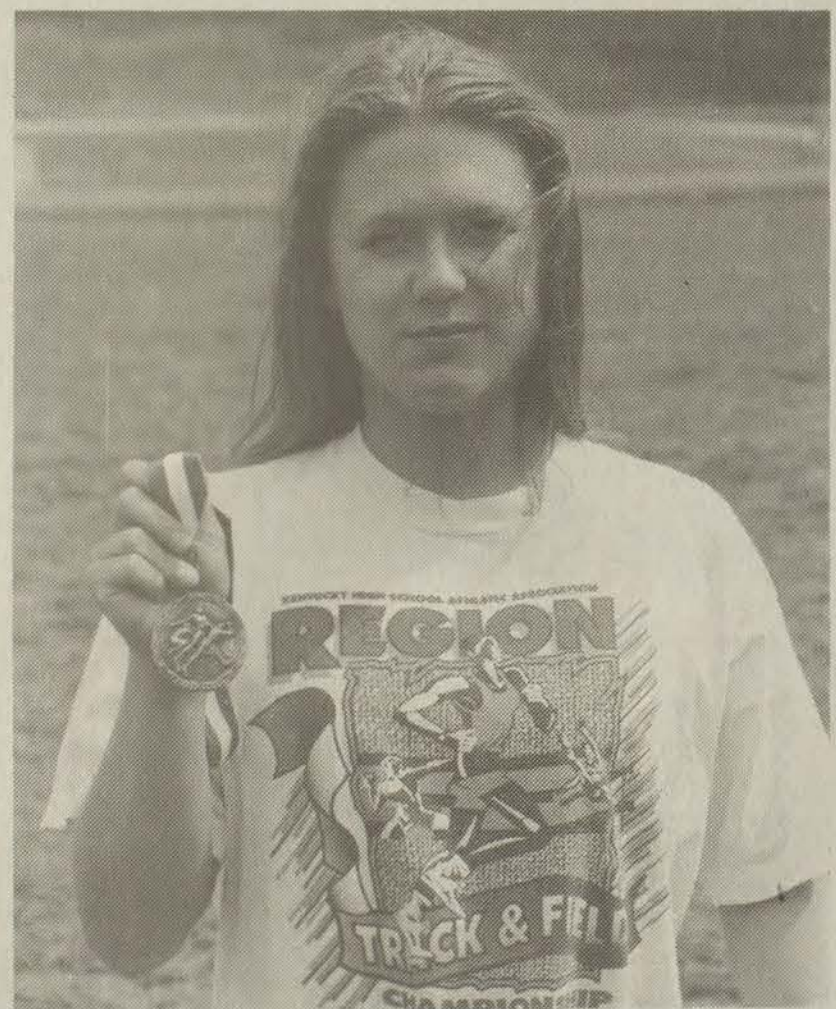

The Allen Central mile relay team placed sixth overall in the afternoon's track events. The foursome of Floyd, Isaac, Martin and Lisa Stumbo posted a time of 4:56.00.

Mary Baldrige had a time of 17:43.08 in the women's 3200-meter run.

"Overall, we did well," said Jamerson in assessing his team's efforts. "We will compare our times this year to last year's and I believe they will be close, if not better."

"We ran some good times despite of the competition being so strong. That's why we go there each year; the competition is good. We just need to get our kids to not be thinking about places, but times. Each one is competing against themselves and they are just going to get better."

Allen Central will be at Pikeville this Thursday for a meet.

Places first in long jump!

A school record fell when Nikki Queen of Allen Central placed first in the women's long jump at Clay County Saturday. Queen proudly displayed her gold medal for the photographer after taking first place with her leap of 14 feet, 7 inches. The jump was a new school record at Allen Central. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Robertson shines when the sun doesn't

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The sun didn't get the chance to shine Tuesday afternoon on a very overcast day; but veteran Prestonsburg runner Stewart Robertson did. He placed first in two meets at Johnson Central.

Robertson established two new school records in the meet that included Johnson Central and Allen Central.

Robertson placed first in the men's 1600-meter run as he bested Allen Central's Josh Patton. The Prestonsburg runner posted a 4:47, which was one second better than the old record of 4:48.

In the 3200-meter race, Robertson was over a minute better than the old record of 11:47 after posting a 10:41 for first place. Again, he out-distanced Patton.

Robertson will take his act on the road when he travels to Clay County for an invitational meet this Saturday.

Big HEATING SANDY COOLING

Brought to you by: Jim Skaggs, owner

an independent Lennox dealer
297-HEAT(4328) or 297-COOL(2665)

Q. I keep hearing about indoor air quality. What is it and what can I do to improve it?

A. Many everyday, unsuspected household items contribute to poor indoor air quality. Chemical compounds, found in common building and decorating items such as glue, plywood and carpet, constantly emit fumes. These fumes can reach harmful levels, especially in today's tighter, energy-efficient homes. Things like weather-stripping and storm doors keep indoor air in, and outdoor air out. This can mean a build-up of contaminants.

One way to clean indoor air and keep indoor air quality at a high level is with an air cleaner. Even though all comfort systems have an air filter, this only protects your equipment from large particles. It is not designed to clean indoor air. Air cleaners are designed to take harmful particles out of the air and come in a variety of styles. Media filters remove many airborne pollutants, including dust and pollen. Media filters are effective at removing larger particles, but must be replaced periodically. Electronic air cleaners remove smaller and many more airborne particles including spores and smoke. These air cleaners do not have to be replaced. They can simply be cleaned and returned to the filter case. Consumers who don't want to purchase an electronic air cleaner now, can still have high quality indoor air with the option of upgrading later to an efficient electronic air cleaner with minimal effort and cost. Lennox Industries Inc. has developed a new Clean Air Case which can be installed along with a heating and cooling system and accepts highly efficient four-inch pleated filters, or common one-inch fiberglass filters. The Clean Air Case offers homeowners the option of installing a complete electronic air filtration unit at any time, without the additional time and cost associated with adding or altering duct work. A trained installer can replace the existing filters with an efficient, cost effective electronic air cleaner in less than 10 minutes.

UK FANS ON PITINO (PRO & CON); PELFREY STILL DRAWS INSPIRATION FROM CURRY

Fans, I love 'em. Some of them write letters to Sports In Ky. Emma L. Benton, Providence challenged a column about Rick Pitino: "You've got a personal problem. You sound like a jilted lover. There is NO quiet majority in Kentucky where UK basketball is concerned! We are happily gathered around our television sets or radios cheering one of Kentucky's crown jewels.

"I don't think Mr. Pitino dislikes Kentucky or looks down his nose at us. Personally, I feel if Mr. Pitino doesn't want to drive down a country road, it's his right. I don't think he's paid to do that. Mr. Pitino is an asset to Kentucky and if some of us chose to carry him and UK basketball 'a little high,' it's a deserved and well-earned position. I'm not Ann Landers, but I know what she would tell you: Get Counseling!!"

Roy Jones, Florence: "Hoo-rah! Hallelujah! Nobody could have expressed better than you did last week, grading UK and Pitino. When, oh when are UK fans going to wake up and see what that little bantam rooster is doing. He really cares nothing at all about our state or our people. In fact, he looks down on us.

"He stays here for three reasons—1. The income, not salary, but total income, over a million a year; 2. This is an ideal place to raise a family (which he admits); 3. UK provides him the best stage in college basketball from which he can constantly pop off his ego."

Richard W. Davis, Charleston, W. Va. (but native Kentuckian): "Although I am a Kentucky fan, it is nice to read a column that is not afraid of taking a shot at Kentucky or its coach, Rick Pitino."

Oswald Jett, Lexington: "As his legions of friends know, Rick Pitino is a warm, caring and genuinely friendly person. Real Wildcat fans do not expect him to win all the tough games, nor do they make sneering references to his New York accent and sophistication. Be confident that he will always lose enough games to keep his jealous critics happy, and win enough to hold his loyal supporters."

Bill Bentz, Bowling Green (instructor at WKU): "I'm a lifelong UK fan and proud of our state. The points you made about Rick Pitino hit some buttons with me. Excellent. Having lived away from Kentucky for a number of years then coming back, I have a special pride in our people, our state. And I get the feeling Mr. Pitino does look down on us. Your last column made some very good points. Thank you."

Warren Miller, Roundhill, Ky. on Indiana coach Bob Knight's '94 antics, head butting Sherron Wilkerson, and telling Hoosier critics to kiss his patoot. "I've kept quiet for as long as I can. I would like to see an investigation on Coach Knight's hold on Indiana University athletic department. Is it a place of higher learning when a man can't say five words without using profanity? Half of teaching is by example. (We see) temper tantrums like a 3-year-old and abusing a player on the bench and this guy says he's being picked on?"

Joe Dan Beavers, Princeton, "I read your comments on (a possible NCAA) Duke-Kentucky match. You continually deny Duke the respect it deserves.

"The last time these two met (Duke's victory) was written off as a lucky shot. I considered it to be the greatest college play of all time. One last comment—If Coach K and Rick Pitino switched places, UK finishes season undefeated."

COMMENT: Hmmm. Thanks for writing.

COMMENT II: According to a national telephone poll conducted during the NCAAs, 44 per cent of fans said the 1992 UK-Duke game was "the most exciting of all time." The North Carolina State-Houston game 1984 was second with 40 per cent.

Russell Bell, Rumsey, Ky. "A coach can make or break a good ball player. Is Kentucky's Jared Prickett headed for the same fate as Richie Farmer?"

COMMENT: Thank all of you for sharing your points of view. More Readers (right) write next month.

DOUG PELFREY

What does Cincinnati Bengals and ex-UK place kicker Doug Pelfrey think about the NFL revised rules affecting field goals—add the two-point conversion, and give the football to defensive teams seven yards back of the line of scrimmage on missed field goals?

"Last time I checked, Mr. Tagliabue hadn't called to ask me what I thought," Pelfrey said laughing.

"But seriously, me being a kicker I don't like the change much. I realize they're trying to do something to put more points on the board and encourage fewer field goals in the game. While it might do away with the automatic (short) kicks, it penalizes the long field goal-try and that takes some of the excitement out of it."

The new rule dictates that on a missed field goal, the offensive team surrenders the football to the defense at the point from which the field goal was attempted.

"That's seven yards back of the line of scrimmage," Pelfrey explained. "I just disagree with it."

Pelfrey's career? After a shaky start last season (two for six) he settled down and, along with the Bengals, finished strong and is looking forward to mini-camp next month.

"I'm more confident now and I know more what to expect. But it was quite an adjustment. At this level you just sort of stand on the sideline then run out there and do your job and come back. It's a business."

Part of Pelfrey's upside adjustment to the NFL came thanks to UK fans, and naturally, Coach Bill Curry.

"I went down to the UK-Ole Miss game last fall and it was just incredible how many fans and former players came up and talked to me, encouraged me. Gave me a good feeling. That really made a difference," he said.

"It got me thinking about when I was kicking at UK. Every time before I went on the field I'd go by and coach Curry would get right up in my face and tell me how much confidence he had that I was going to make the kick. "There's not a doubt in my mind, you're going to make this," he would say. It was something.

"At the pro level you don't have anything like that so I've tried to remember those times at Kentucky, draw confidence from that and motivate myself with it."

UK-UCLA

Kentucky will play the UCLA Bruins in the first annual Wooden Classic next December in Pauley Pavilion.

From its 21-7 team this season, UCLA returns Ed and Charles O'Bannon, 7-foot center Jiri Zidek, point guard Tyus Edney, 2-guard Cameron Dollar, and a batch of talented freshmen including 6-11 omm' A Givens who UK tried to sign.

ANTOINE WALKER

Having watched the McDonald's All-Star Game Sunday, if 6-8, 210-pound Antoine Walker passes his college entrance test and signs the proper forms, it could be reload time for Kentucky Wildcat fans.

Walker's shooting range is impressive, but his passing and ball handling skills are exquisite.

Walker's (team) skills blended with Tony Delk's shooting, a heavier Walter McCarty, improved Jared Prickett, (co-captain) Mark Pope, and Rodrick Rhodes and...

UoFL RECRUITING

University of Louisville basketball fans may get an unexpected bonus this recruiting season. Analyst Bob Gibbons predicts much-sought-after 6-9 Samaki Walker of Columbus Oh. will sign with UoFL during his 10-day visit leading up to the Derby Classic Apr. 30.

"Being around Louisville and their players for a week, I think Samaki will sign with Denny Crum," Gibbons said last week.

It would wrap up a dandy campaign for the Cards with 6-5 Craig Farmer already on board and 6-8 Tyrone Nesby, 6-7 Damion Dantzler, 6-3 Eric Johnson and (verbally committed) 6-8 Alex Sanders on the way. Scuttlebutt is Nesby may not qualify academically and could be ticketed for junior college.

Kentucky Rifles ink Stash, Taylor for '94 season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

In a move to field the best possible team for the 1994 season, Kentucky Rifles General Manager Whitebeard inked two standouts from last year's squad.

Jamie Stash and Rob Taylor, from Meta, signed Monday as the Frontier League season is scheduled to open in June.

Stash played centerfield for the '93 Rifles and was the second player to sign for 1994. He batted .302 last season while hitting five homeruns. Stash collected 23 RBIs for the Rifles and had seven stolen bases in just 52 games last year.

Whitebeard likes the multi-dimensional player. "Jamie can hit for average, power and drive in runs," said Whitebeard. "He runs the bases well, steals bases and he's a tremendous outfielder."

Whitebeard likes the offensive abilities of Stash but sees more than that in the major league prospect.

"Offense is important," he said. "But Jamie also will help us toward our goal of having a great defensive team."

The Rifles General Manager, along with others, was surprised that Stash wasn't picked up by a major league franchise.

"Frankly, we were all a little surprised that Jamie wasn't signed over the off-season, but he and I are confident that a strong '94 campaign will land him in organized baseball."

One team that has expressed an interest in Stash, according to Whitebeard, has been the Florida Marlins, one of baseball's newest entrants last season.

"The Marlins said they will be scouting Jamie throughout the season," stated Whitebeard.

Stash led the team in stolen bases last year, as well as stolen base percentages, runs and times at bat. He was among the leaders in batting averages, slugging percentages, homeruns, RBIs and doubles.

Taylor, who is head baseball coach at Pike County Central, a product of Pike County, also signed to return to the Rifles this season.

Taylor graduated from Johns Creek High School in 1988 and Pikeville College in 1993, where he was drafted by the Rifles in their initial season.

He was named to the All-KIAC first team in 1992 and again in 1993. Taylor was also the 1992 Most Valuable Player for Pikeville College.

"Rob is a tremendous defensive catcher," said Whitebeard. "Last year he threw out 50 percent of would-be base stealers."

Whitebeard expects the Rifles to be a running team in their second season.

"We'll be stealing a lot of bases this year, and other teams will try to retaliate, so Rob will be pretty busy," said Whitebeard.

Whitebeard said that the Rifles remain committed to having local talent on the team and Taylor will be one of those.

"With his talent, we would have signed him quickly anyway, but it reinforces our commitment to having some local players on every Rifles team," Whitebeard stated.

Another local player who played for the Rifles last year, Adam Smith, who shared duties behind the plate with Taylor, will not return this season. Smith will enter the UK Medical School in mid-August.

The Frontier League season begins June 17 and runs through August 28. The Rifles will play all their home games at the W.C. Hambley Athletic Complex in Pikeville. The team split their home schedule between Paintsville and Pikeville last season.

Season tickets for the Rifles' home season are available through the Rifles' office. For more information, call (606) 432-HITS.

Merchandise from caps to t-shirts to souvenir bats will be sold at the team's booth during Hillbilly Days in Pikeville April 14-17.

Kids' Day in the Park to be fun-filled for all Fun, fun and more fun. That's what is in store for youngsters from the ages of three to nine years old when WMDJ and Food City host the first annual Kids in the Park Day at Prestonsburg's Archer Park.

The fun-filled day begins at 11 a.m. on Saturday, May 14 and will feature some of the favorite athletic events that has tickled mom and dad down through the years.

Who doesn't remember the days of tossing water balloons? The three-legged races? Sack races? Kickball contests?

These and much, much more will await those within the age groups, as they compete for trophies and ribbons.

So, moms and dads, get fresh batteries for the video cameras and be sure to bring your camera because you don't want to miss this fun-packed day.

Just out!
It was close, but Betsy Layne's Scott Ousley (12) was called out at first base on a bang-bang play. The Bobcats posted a 2-1 win over Magoffin County last Friday in a pitchers' duel between Brian Combs and Shannon Newsome. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Organizational meeting scheduled for men's and women's softball at Archer Park

The Floyd County men and women's softball league will hold an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. Archer Park on Monday, April 18. The meeting is to organize the league for the upcoming season. All team managers or sponsors are urged to be in attendance at the initial meeting. The meeting is for both men and women.

Thanks from the Special Care Nursery

On March 26, 1994, approximately 700 people gathered for the fifth anniversary party for babies treated in the Special Care Nursery at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. It was a wonderful time for celebrating, for seeing children who had a tough start in life grow up healthy, for sharing memories, laughter and even a few tears.

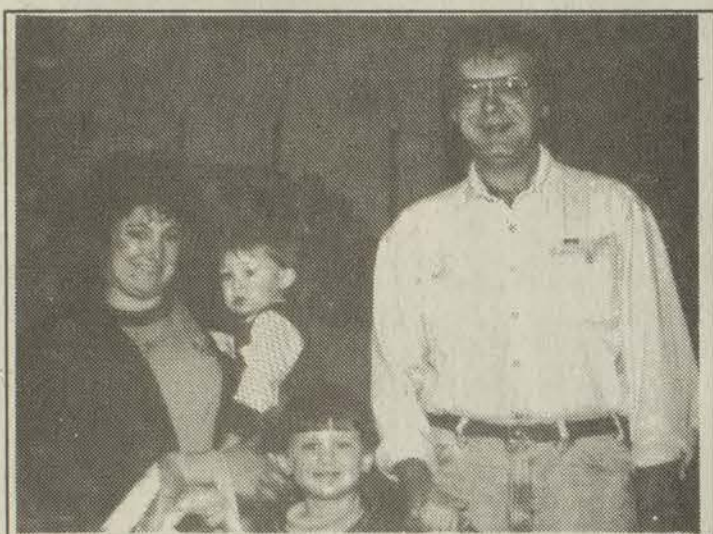

We would like to thank all those who had a part in making it happen. We thank the Board of Directors, administration, medical staff, and employees of Pikeville Methodist Hospital. Without the excellent medical services available at the hospital, we would never have been able to start a Neonatal Intensive Care Unit. We thank this community for caring about children and their future and for supporting our Neonatal Services. And, we express sincere appreciation to the parents of these special children for once again sharing them with us for a little while.

Burma Little of Pikeville National Bank presents Kristen Johnson and her mother Wanda with the grand prize of a $500 savings account.

Mr. Cartoon and Beeper played games with children and parents.

Prestonsburg's Robertson places second in 3200 meters; Halbert has big day

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Prestonsburg's Stewart Robertson found out what running with the big boys was all about when he took part in the Clay County Invitational Track and Field Meet this past Saturday.

It was also a big day for Chris Halbert of Allen Central. He established a new school record in two events.

Robertson placed second in the men's 3200-meter run and took third place in the mile race. His times were not available.

Allen Central, which had some participants absent due to ACT testing, placed 10th out of the 15 competing teams and the finish was no surprise to Coach Dewey Jamerson.

"We finished about where we figured we would," said Jamerson, who lost several veteran runners from last year's team.

One of the surprises of the meet was the fierce competitiveness of Halbert, who set a new school record in the long jump event. Halbert took part in the first heat of the event and had a jump of 20 feet, 8 inches to finish third overall.

"Chris is the first that we have had to go over 20-feet in the long jump," said the Allen Central coach.

Halbert left the long jump pits and headed to the opposite end of the field to compete in the high jump.

"He asked me if he had to jump in the high jump," said Jamerson. "I asked him if he felt like it. Then I told him to just go down there and see how it goes. If he doesn't feel like it, then he can scratch. I was walking down the field and asked someone how Chris was doing and they said that he is still jumping."

Halbert was still jumping after going through many competitors. In fact, he was one of the four who was left when the stick was raised higher. Halbert had cleared the 5' 10" mark and, on his third try at the 5' 11" mark, the back of his feet caught the bar and he was eliminated.

However, the effort was good for a fourth place finish.

"I'm tired," said Halbert after he cleared the 5' 10" bar. "The long jump just took too much out of me."

"He was getting tired after the long jump," said his coach. "But he did set a new school record."

Ronnie Samons was absent for the shot put event because he was taking his ACT test. But Shawn Robinson, a late replacement for Bubba Moore, finished sixth in the event with a toss of 38 feet, 3 inches. Levi Wells had a toss of 37 feet, 11 inches.

For the first time in the history of the track and field team at Allen Central, the Rebels had two to compete in pole vault. Estill Stumbo and Curtis Webb competed in the event but did not have any height. Stumbo cleared the bar, but failed to move his pole away from the bar.

Kevin Stumbo was only an inch away from a school record in the men's triple jump. Stumbo recorded his personal best with a leap of 38 feet, 1 inch. Kenneth Bradley jumped 32 feet, 4 inches in the same meet.

For about two minutes of the discus meet, Allen Central's Shawn Robinson held the lead with his final throw of 131 feet, 6 inches. He had trailed Jeremy Green of Bell County throughout the meet until his final throw. Green was the last to throw as he steadied himself on the pad and lofted the discus 136 feet, 5 inches for first place.

It was an exciting finish in the men's discus that saw Robinson finish second. Last year, he placed third in the same meet.

"Maybe next year I will get first place," he said.

Chris Bailey finished fifth in discus with a toss of 107 feet, 11 inches.

In the track events, the Allen Central men's 3200 relay team finished with a time of 9:34.03. It was the fastest time of the year for the foursome of Mike Elzokari, Todd Howard, Josh Patton and Kevin Stumbo.

"Kevin is not in shape," said Jamerson. "He just needs to go out and get in some mileage."

Nick Halbert and Estill Stumbo took part in the men's 110 hurdles with Stumbo posting a time of 19:79 and Halbert running in at 19:90.

Two eighth-graders ran the 100-yard dash for Allen Central. Nick Green finished in 13:80 and Todd Samons came in at 13:96.

"Both did a good job for us and both are going to do a good job for us in years to come," said the Allen Central mentor.

Josh Patton and Todd Howard competed in the men's 1600-meter run with neither placing. Howard finished with a run of 5:50.30 and Patton posted a time of 5:15.26.

"Josh put in a very productive day," said Coach Jamerson. "He was just three seconds off the school record. He just wanted to do something."

It was the grade school team that found the first heat of the men's 400-meter relay the toughest. The foursome of John Goble, Nick Green, Jackie Owens and Todd Samons had to compete against the high schoolers in the initial heat and the four finished with a time of 56:02.

"Not bad," said Jamerson, "considering that they could have competed against their own group had they been in other heats. But the competition was good for them."

Halbert and Webb turned in their personal best in the men's 400-meter dash. Halbert was under a minute at 57:90 while Webb finished at 1:02.62. "Chris just had a super day for us," said the Allen Central coach.

Estill Stumbo placed fifth overall in the men's 300-meter hurdles. Stumbo had a time of 45:90 while Nick Halbert finished the same race at 48:56.

"Estill was right at his time," said Jamerson. "He just wanted to win so bad."

Elzokari ran an extremely strong first lap in the men's 800-meter run. He finished with a time of 2:23.42.

John Goble and Todd Samons ran the men's 200-meter dash.

It was a personal best for Shawn Amburgey in the 3200-meter run. Amburgey finished at 12:24.95. Josh Patton ran in at 11:36.87.

The 1600 relay team had a time of 4:10.8, a time that Jamerson thinks they can improve.

"Mike was killed from running the half-mile," he said. "He can run faster than the time he posted (1:04.33)."

THE CALENDAR IS MISLEADING

Wouldn't you just love to have about four or five days in a row of warm, dry, pleasant weather? Perhaps my memory is failing me, but I could swear that when I was a kid, springtime weather came a lot earlier than it does now. I mean, it seems like we went barefooted a lot quicker in those days.

I think that maybe I'm lulled into a false sense of security just because the calendar says it's spring. (It doesn't say anything, however, about redbud and blackberry winters that are yet to come.)

Could there really be some merit to all this ozone layer stuff? Are weather patterns really changing all that much? If so, maybe we ought to write our congressman about officially changing the calendar date for spring. While we're at it, we could also declare it a legal holiday and celebrate it. The ancient Romans did. They called it Lupercalia, and every February 15, they'd gather in the streets and dance and eat and play games and, no doubt, ole Nero would play his fiddle. The coming of spring was obviously a pretty big deal to them.

Maybe it ought to be for us too. Maybe we ought to make a big to-do about it. After all, what's another festival among friends anyway?

Now, don't misunderstand. It's not that I dislike winter, it's just that I hate it...especially ones like the last two or three we've had.

Celebrating spring on February 15 may have been fine for the ancient Romans, but with the cooler temperatures that keep hanging on, it sure wouldn't do for us. Neither would March 21.

So, to play it safe, why not change the official first day of spring to May 1? That way, we wouldn't really expect warmer temperatures until they actually had a shot of getting here. We could tie it in some way with a May Day celebration. Remember how much fun it was when we were kids and danced around the Maypole at school? We could even go a bit further and rope off Main Street and since it'd be a lot closer to actual summer-time activities...like grass cutting...we could have a parade of lawnmowers. We could decorate them up with crepe paper and balloons, divide them into different categories—like push...and ride—and give a big prize to the winner. Maybe we could even have a prize for the best decorated weed eater.

And, since it wouldn't be long until we could count on sunshine on a daily basis, it might be fun, too, if, in honor of our true Anglo-Saxon heritage and our winter of indoor activities, we staged a whist-legs contest. (Of course, those who've been to Myrtle Beach or a tanning bed would no doubt giggle and poke fun, but who cares, right?)

Popular, dedicated duo retires at Prestonsburg Community College

by Pam Shingler
Contributing Writer

She was a tenant farmer's daughter. People who study those sorts of things would probably have laid odds she would grow up to be a poor tenant farmer's wife.

He was the son of a barber and became a barber himself before entering the Marine Corps where he was a machine gunner.

But fate had different long range plans for Laura and Leo Weddle. Both were changed by education, and both have changed others' lives through education.

When the semester ends, the duo will retire from Prestonsburg Community College. For more than 35 years they have demonstrated to thousands of students in the Big Sandy Valley, as well as other parts of the state, that education is important.

"I don't know what either one of us could have gone into that we could be as satisfied or excited about," says Leo, an award-winning professor of psychology and sociology.

"As the years go by, you see so many former students become doctors, teachers, bankers, lawyers, all kinds of professionals," says Laura, a communications professor who, as the college's professional development coordinator, helps other teachers improve their teaching.

"When they're young, you wonder if they'll make it through," she says with a smile that engulfs everyone in its range.

Laura relates that when she suffered a heart attack several years ago, she woke up in the hospital surrounded by former students who had become nurses and doctors.

Among the couple's most recognizable students were a young Martha and Wallace Wilkinson who attended Campbellsville College where the Weddles worked in the early '60s. The young couple kept in touch with their mentors as they built a business empire and then moved into Kentucky's governor's mansion.

"I can just see them now," Leo remembers. "She sat in front of him in class. Both were so eager to succeed."

Attorney and state representative Greg Stumbo was one of Laura's speech students. "He says he learned how to speak from Mrs. Weddle," she beams, "but I think he just says it to make me feel good."

From different backgrounds, the Weddles came together at Georgetown College. Leo grew up in Somerset, what he refers to as a "Norman Rockwell childhood" in a well-established family. He went to college after stints in the family barbering business and in the Marine Corps.

Laura grew up on a series of tenant farms in rural Anderson County. Her intelligence, warmth and talent earned the attention of a succession of public school teachers who encouraged her to excel.

They married when Laura graduated, and Leo followed her to Grand Rapids, Mich., where she taught and he continued his college work. From there, they came back to Kentucky where she went to graduate school at the University of Kentucky and he finished his bachelor's degree.

For a time, he taught seventh grade and she taught eighth grade at the old University School at UK.

Their two children were born in those early career years. Lynn is now associate professor of nursing at PCC, and Jeff, a former English instructor, is working on his PhD at the University of Mississippi.

"Both of our kids could not help being teachers," says Laura. "I carried them with me to school before they were even born."

The couple hired on at Campbellsville where their schedules were arranged so one could be with the children while the other taught and vice versa. The family lived on campus where Leo was dean of students, and the whole family joined in Laura's drama productions.

In 1965, they became the first married couple to join the fledgling University of Kentucky Commu-

A chapter concluded

Laura and Leo Weddle will retire from PCC at the end of this semester. The two have dedicated their lives to educating students in the Big Sandy. They plan to move to Somerset.

nity College System, as members of the faculty at Somerset Community College.

But a year later they were lured east by Dr. Henry A. Campbell, the late founding president at PCC, which was then two years old.

"This was always the best community college. Everybody knew it. It was just Doc's style," says Laura who was chosen the faculty speaker at Campbell's recent funeral.

The Weddles have been an integral part of PCC's growth. In their tenure, it has grown from one small building to five, from a few hundred students to several thousand.

Their involvement and their impact at PCC will be hard to replace. Laura, for instance, sponsored the student yearbook for several years. In the late '60s and through the '70s, her students won myriad awards at state speech tournaments. She took the college debate teams to meets across the region.

"The success," she says, with the typical modesty for which she's known, "was in just letting the students know they could do it."

Today, her extra-class activity has mostly to do with planning workshops for faculty on teaching improvement and coordinating a colloquium series where faculty can share their research and academic interests.

Leo's innovative Modern Social Problems course has become a kind of model for participatory education. He has helped students plan special programs on social issues that have brought more than 5,000 professionals to campus, exposing students to larger worlds and, as he puts it, "developing all kinds of skills."

Three years ago, he was chosen for PCC's Great Teacher Award in student balloting and went on to become one of only five to receive the award throughout UK and the Community College System.

The couple now are teaching the second generation of students. "We've watched some get married and have children, and we now have those children in class," Laura says, adding that they've even taught some of the college's current staff members and their children.

Besides their classrooms, the Weddles' home has always been open to students. Leo explains, "We've had many come to the house with problems—every kind of imaginable situation."

Both are firm believers in community colleges. "One of the big pluses about a community college is that you have a family-type situation," says Leo.

Laura agrees. "At a community college, you get a dimension you don't get at a residential liberal arts college: You know the families."

The Weddles' zest has extended beyond the college and into the community. Both have been involved with Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theater, Highlands Folk Festival and National Folk School Association.

Laura is a former director of the local Children's Theater, gives poetry readings for area organizations, participates in a local book club and is involved with the Old Christmas celebration at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

Leo is a longtime member of the board of The David School, whose founder and director Danny Greene is a former student. He has also served on the board of the area Community Action Program and has been on the local planning commission.

The two pride themselves on attending nearly every community festival in the area and are regular denizens of Johnson County's stockmarket complex.

Their immersion in community activities has enriched their teaching, both agree. "If you don't understand the context of the community, you won't understand the kids," Leo emphasizes. "Teachers must understand the context."

But the community that's been their home, where they raised their children and influenced so many lives, will lose the Weddles when PCC does.

They're retiring to Somerset where Leo inherited his family home. Laura, an avid collector, already has an antique booth at a mall there.

They're not worried about boring each other when they retire. "For 30-plus years Laura and I have worked at the same place and have seen each other every day," Leo says. "Ours has been an adventure. We've always helped each other. We've been buddies."

Leo and Laura Weddle have also been buddies—if you define buddies as friends, helpers and influencers—to students at three colleges, two high schools and a junior high. What the farming and barbering worlds lost was education's gain. A legacy like theirs does not retire.

A reception in the Weddles' honor is planned for April 28 from 3 to 5:30 p.m. in Room 102 of the Johnson Building on the campus of Prestonsburg Community College.

WE HAVE OUR ROLL MODELS AT HIS HOUSE!

My wife's frown told me I was caught red handed. I knew better than try something so forbidden, so clearly defiant. I've been caught at it before. I knew the consequences. Now I could only stand before my wife with a guilty look, feeling ashamed of myself again.

"Why didn't you put the new roll of toilet paper on the dispenser?" she asked.

What could I say? You would think that after a dozen years of marriage it would be impossible to forget such a big house rule.

But then again, it's not like they're written in stone—or anywhere else for that matter.

Yet, every family has them. The things family members like and what they don't. You know, when you can sit in one chair and not another. How you should bake the chicken. When you can get away with a practical joke and when you can't.

You get to know the rules by experience—until you slip for an instant and find yourself crossing some other family member's danger line.

"You know how that irritates me," my wife said about my style with the toilet paper.

At the time I didn't think much about it, but my memory returned in a hurry.

Then I got to thinking how most of these hallowed rules involve seemingly minor details.

But I've learned over the years that skipping those details can get you into trouble faster than anything else you can do.

PLASTIC RINGS AND THINGS

At our house, we probably drink about three gallons of milk a week from plastic jugs.

I usually crack the top of the plastic lid, pour and forget about it.

Big mistake.

"You did it again!" my wife said one recent morning.

My mind raced a thousand miles a second to figure out what I had done. Had I forgotten to pick up insurance forms again? Did I leave a knife on the counter within reach of the children?

"What did I do?" I said, clueless and barely awake.

"You left the plastic ring on the jug again," she said in disgust.

For some strange reason, the ring stays on for me no matter how much milk I pour. But it always falls off into her cereal or the children's oatmeal when she pours.

I really don't know why, and sometimes I lose the courage to ask when she's really disgusted about it.

Same thing happens at night when I leave the toilet seat up.

It really isn't a matter of trying to be inconsiderate.

It is a matter of being so sleepy in the middle of the night that I don't think about it—until her cries of "I almost fell in!" wake me up.

All this isn't to say the unwritten rules of our house apply only to me.

GET YOUR OWN!

Practically every time I get a cold soda I ask my wife if she would like one.

"No thanks, dear," she usually says. "I'll just drink some of yours."

I'd be tickled to pour her own beverage in her own glass filled precisely to her own specifications.

But forget the idea. She would rather drink half of mine than have one to call her very own.

Then there's the way she's been known to help me sample her latest dish.

I learned a long time ago that I'm treading on thin ice if I refuse to try something new that she's cooked for the family.

So I usually volunteer, even if I'm not sure if I want to sample it. But sometimes she helps me out by scooping up a huge portion with a spoon or fork and then, right as I start to speak, here comes the food.

"Try this!" she'll say before I have a chance to respond.

Thanks for giving me a choice. She's picked up on how much that activity bugs me, and she doesn't do it often because she knows how I feel about it. But we both know there's no guarantee her desire to see me try it won't force her to do it again.

Perhaps that understanding is part of what's held us together all these years.

Looks like she's going to keep me for a while longer even if I am a toilet paper misplacing, toilet seats up and milk jug left on kind of guy.

Maybe Shakespeare was right when he said we would rather "bear those ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of."

THE RED FOX OF THE MOUNTAINS

The search for Doc M. B. Taylor, the Red Fox of the Mountains, was widely known and the dimensions and weight of the box in which he was hiding, shipped from the train station in Norton, made several people suspicious.

Word was sent to R. P. Bruce, Commonwealth Attorney and to Big Ed Hall, who had continued his search for Doc Taylor. Hall mounted his horse and sped to the station in time to buy a ticket for Bluefield.

Big Ed Hall climbed down from his coach in Bluefield and walked directly to the boxcar before the luggage and boxes were unloaded. When the long fruit box was taken from the train, Big Ed directed the agent to open it. The box opened after a few whacks with a hatchet and there lay Old Doc dressed in a new suit.

"Why Ed, fancy meeting you here," Doc said snidely.

"Don't as much as breathe, Doc, or I'll blow your brains out," the legendary manhunter answered in a deep voice.

Doc offered no resistance. Local authorities arrived shortly thereafter and arrested the fugitive for the murder of Bad Ira Mullins and four other family members.

When Doc M. B. Taylor was returned to Wise to stand trial for the murder of Bad Ira Mullins and four other family members, he was put in a cell adjoining of that of his old nemesis, Talton Hall. Hall had exhausted all of his appeals and was awaiting the hangman's noose.

The Fox feared Talt Hall and offered to shake hands to heal old wounds. Hall responded by cursing and striking at him with his manacles. "I ain't shakin' hands with no one that kills women and children," Talt blurted out with disgust.

Both the hunter and the hunted were now confined in close proximity.

In ensuing days, the Fox whiled away his time by lying on a hammock in his cell, singing hymns and reading his Bible. He gazed at his pocket watch, studying it closely, before putting it away and resuming a mournful hymn and more reading.

Meanwhile Talton Hall, whose buddies had not broken him out as promised, enjoyed pestering his old nemesis.

Water Colors Quilt workshop

A Water Color Quilt workshop was held at the Floyd County Extension Office last week with 14 ladies attending.

Water Color Quilting is done by selecting fabrics in a range of dark colors fading into light colors forming a water color effect. Each person attending started a wall hanging and will complete it at the May 4th Workshop.

Co-chairpersons, Mary Sue Moore, Dorothy Harris and Gypsy Jones were elected by the group and a quilting group will meet the first Wednesday of each month to learn and quilt together. Anyone wishing to attend is welcome.

Attending were Jean Watson, Emma J. Branham, Helen Boyd, Judy Allen, Mary Sue Moore, Gypsy Jones, Lisa Roe, Arietta Hall, Eileen Martin, Dolly Dotson, Dorothy Harris, Penny Hale and Frances Pitts.

The next meeting will be held May 4, at the Floyd County Extension Office located at 670 South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg.

"I know I'm bad, but there's many men worse than me in this world," Hall, who had killed many men, would say as he kicked the wall with his huge boot. "The Fox in there for instance. There ain't nothing twixt The Fox and me except this iron wall."

Hall stared coldly at Old Doc with his dark eyes making the red-haired, red-bearded man uneasy.

Heartbeats quickened a few nights later when a gunshot was heard near the jail. First thoughts were that Devil John Wright's men were breaking out Talt as they had vowed to do.

They soon found however that a cow had wandered near the jail and one of the guards fired in the dark.

"They're not coming after me," Hall spoke up, his hopes dashed. "No one's coming for me."

On the eve of his execution, Talt Hall tried to escape by starting a fire in his cell. Although smoke filled the jail and there was a general alarm, his attempt was unsuccessful as the fire was doused with water.

"This man is the devil," Doc complained. "He's trying to burn the jail down. Get more guards in here."

"Oh, I was just trying to smoke out the Fox," Hall jested, to no one in particular. The next morning as the guards led Hall from his cell to the gallows, the doomed man paused as he passed in front of the Fox.

"Doc, I wancha to know that I ain't got no hate left in me," Talt Hall uttered. "I'm not taking that to the grave with me."

The Fox acknowledged him, but remained a safe distance away.

The Fox could hear the hanging of Talton Hall. He watched his watch for nearly two minutes following Hall's fall through the trapdoor and the snap of the rope, before breathing a sign of relief and returning to his hammock and Bible.

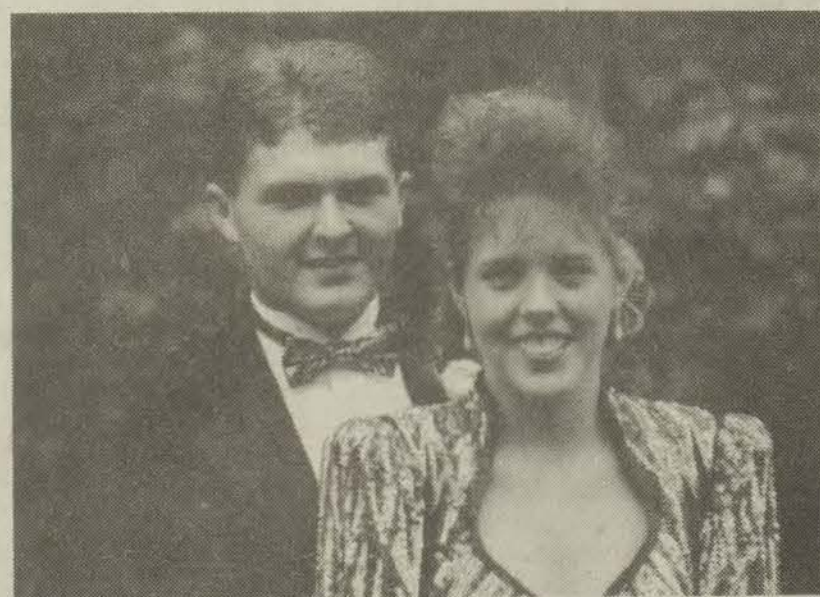

Hall's body was taken by wagon to Kentucky for burial.

Feelin' Young and Spry

Last Saturday was beautiful! Seeing that sunshine pumped this amazing energy through my body, which I'm paying for today in a not so wonderful way. My grandfather came in from Campbellsville and we all decided to drive to Price and pay dad and Scott a visit. Being out in that sun was wonderful. My brother decides to take my daughters next door to let them burn some energy on the neighbor's trampoline. Mom and I went along to watch. Dad and papaw watched from dad's yard. Ash and Tiff were flipping frontwards, backwards, doing toe touches high in the air, layouts—Barnum and Bailey would've been proud. Then it happened! "Come on mom, you get up here and jump." I don't think so, I said. "Oh, come on," my girls said, "you're not too old." Old, there's that word they always attach to 33. Off went the shoes, up I climbed. "Off with your bad selves," I told them. "Let me show you what this old woman can do." I bounced one time and I'm here to tell you I felt parts of muscles I thought no longer existed. Three times, high, higher and higher, then a toe touch. Wow this is fun. "Kimberly Lynn," my mother said in one of those motherly tones, "you better quit." "What? Why, mom? This is fun," I wouldn't quit. "Do a front flip, mom," I heard from my daughters. Okay, I'll try. Bounce, bounce, bounce, bounce and over—I did it! My brother clapped. "Yeah, sis," I heard. Dad clapped, papaw clapped, the girls were jumping for joy. Mom was smiling from ear to ear. It was fantastic! I felt 13 again. Then we went back to dad's yard. Ash and Tiff, side by side, running down the yard. Round off, back handspring. "Yeah, girls, that was great," dad says. "Let's see you try that, Kim, tee hee tee hee!" Well, I'll try a round off, I said. "Kimberly Lynn," my mother said as she shook her head. "What, what?" I asked. Oh, well, I go to my starting point and quietly said my little prayer. "Dear Lord, please don't let me break a bone." Took off runnin' and flipped like a beached whale, and landed flat on my back. As my brother and dad peeled me off the grass, I now know why mom was saying "Kimberly Lynn" in that tone of hers. But, hey, it was too late, 33 doesn't flip like 13. Well, it's Sunday now, and as I write this column with the help of the spouse holding this pen so I can, every stinkin' muscle aches so darn bad it hurts to bat an eyelash. How could having a few minutes of fun, hurt so bad, I ask? Well, I'll have to end now, the spouse needs to make a run to the store for some Icy Hot and holding this pen by myself is impossible. So, till next week, have fun in the sun, but know your limits—it'll help!

Let's celebrate! Senior Citizens, your exclusive program has just passed its first milestone. The Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens is one year old.

Since it's birth, it has had to endure some growing pains. One of those was organization. It is one thing to organize a state-wide program. It is quite another thing to make that plan workable. This has been a year of trial and error. Some things work.
Some things did not. But through it's infancy, it maintained and magnified its chief purpose for existence: To help deserving senior citizens get benefits that are legally and rightfully theirs.

The Benefits Counseling Program is funded by federal and state monies.
Why does it exist? 1) to inform senior citizens of their many benefits that are available to them; 2) to refer senior citizens to the appropriate federal, state, and private agencies that have been established to help fill certain needs; 3) to help senior citizens understand and respond to correspondence, and to assist with applications or other requested paper work; 4) to help senior citizens work through any problems or roadblocks they may encounter in pursuit of assistance that is legally and rightfully theirs; 5) to refer a questionable case to an attorney, for legal advice or representation, should it be felt that one has been unfairly treated, or unjustifi-ably denied assistance; 6) and, perhaps the most important, to have an advocate at your service, to work with you free of charge, in your quest to obtain rightful and necessary benefits.

What are some of the benefits available to senior citizens? Whom do I contact? What can the Benefits Counseling Program do for me? There are many benefits available to senior citizens. The list, even in an abbreviated form, is too long to include in one article. You may call my office at 1-800-556-3876 to request a free copy of a brochure we have prepared for you. This brochure will give you a broad overview of services available.

Once you receive this and read it, if you have a need, or if you feel you have been denied a benefit to which you are entitled, by law, call me at this same toll-free number. We will discuss your needs, help to determine your eligibility, and assist you, free of charge. Again, allow me to emphasize, this office and this number serves senior citizens in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. If you have a friend or relative in need that lives outside of these counties, call me. I will refer them to another office that serves the county in which they live.

Yes! Senior citizens, it's time to celebrate. And, it's time to thank the Floyd County Times for their willingness to publish your Sunshine Lines column week after week. It is because of the concern of this newspaper that we are able to reach so many senior citizens. The Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens would not have been nearly as effective without their loyalty to your cause.

My goal for your program, during the next twelve months, is to help three times as many senior citizens as we were able to help through this first year.

Remember, we can't help you if we don't know you have a need. If you've had a problem, we can't help solve it if we are not made aware of it.
Call us, toll-free, in Prestonsburg, if you have a need. Our services are

Poison Oak

The possibilities are endless.
Why, with a little effort, we might even be able to get a few local politicians to make speeches, a few local bands to sing some springtime songs from beds of flat-bed trucks, and a few local organizations to sell lemonade...or hot chocolate, whichever's more appropriate at the moment. (I doubt, though, that we'd need to sell chalk dogs and velvet Elvises for this one.)

That's what we ought to do, all right. Officially make the first day of spring come on May 1, then celebrate it. Not only would it give us another big event to look forward to all winter long, but it'd come late enough in the year so we'd feel comfortable if we left home without our mackinaws,

(Stay tuned. In a couple of months, I'll use this column to gripe about how hot it is.)

Golden Ages

Senior of the Month

Millard Gibson was the Betsy Layne Senior Citizen of the Month in March.

Since we started the Neurosciences Institute, it's been one headache
after another.

Don't get us wrong. We're not complaining. In fact, we're rather proud of all the headaches, backaches and other neurological disorders we've helped treat during the past six years.

Last year alone we performed approximately 5,000 exams in our Neurodiagnostic Lab, testing for disorders such as seizures, hearing or balance problems, tumors, pinched nerves, ruptured discs, and diseases such as Parkinson's and Alzheimer's. We have the facilities, equipment, and qualified staff to perform a variety of tests including electroencephalograms (EEG), evoked potential (EP), electromyography (EMG), electronystagmography (ENG) and neuromuscular thermography. (Sound confusing? Just think of these tests as ways that help us get to the bottom of your problems.)

If you've been having symptoms you suspect may be neurologically-related, call King's Daughters' Neurosciences Institute at (606) 327-4653. We can help diagnose and treat the problem. And you'll have one less headache to deal with.

Potential big new market for corn production: ethanol

Corn makes good alcohol to drink and maybe even a better alcohol to burn. At least the market to produce more corn for use in motor fuels—ethanol—could someday mean significant profits for Kentucky corn growers.

Ethanol is one of the safest and most environmentally friendly fuels that can be used in an internal combustion engine, said Morris Bitzer, extension grains specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"Alcohol that is mixed into motor gasoline, usually a 10 percent blend, is the same alcohol that can be added to beverages for humans," he said. "That's why it is 'denatured' to keep people from drinking it before it leaves the manufacturer. Denaturing means it is mixed with a powerful chemical—unleaded gasoline—to prevent anyone from drinking it."

"We sometimes joke about 'drink the best and burn the rest,'" said Phillip Lampert, regulatory coordinator of the National Corn Growers Association's Ethanol Work Group. Lampert was in Kentucky to speak to the Kentucky Corn Growers Association at its annual meeting and to encourage use of ethanol as a motor fuel.

"In 1993 about 1.2 billion gallons of ethanol were sold," he said. "Production of this required 400 million bushels of corn. This level of demand added 15 to 20 cents of value to every bushel of corn which represents an additional $130 million of income to farmers."

As important as this income is to today's farmers, it is minuscule to the potential.

In 1993 the U.S. consumed more than 115 billion gallons of gasoline, he said. Kentucky consumed 1.9 billion gallons. While Kentucky did produce about 230 million gallons of petroleum, the state remains an energy importer like most other states.

In fact, Lampert said of the $237 billion spent on petroleum by the U.S. in 1990, more than half left the country to pay for crude oil. Payments for imported oil are the largest single cause of America's international trade deficit which reached $84 billion in 1992.

Bitzer added some other reasons for encouraging increased use of ethanol fuels.

Grain is a renewable fuel, he said. Petroleum and other fossil fuels will someday be exhausted, but there are few limits on production of renewable fuels.

Plant matter uses carbon dioxide in photosynthesis and gives off oxygen.

Use of ethanol in motor gasoline reduces emissions of carbon monoxide, non-methane organic hydrocarbons and air toxins.

"Ethanol burns clean, increases the octane of motor gasoline and assists in keeping fuel lines and injectors clean," Bitzer said. "It also prevents fuel lines from freezing up in extremely cold weather like Kentucky recently experienced."

Ethanol also reduces pollution during the manufacture of fuel; there is no underground contamination of ground water due to ethanol and there is no long-term environmental damage from ethanol being spilled either on land or water.

Although ethanol represents less than 1 percent of the total U.S. transportation fuel market, Lampert said it has already generated $2.5 billion in investment in rural communities as well as 4,000 direct jobs and another 3,000-4,000 jobs in companies supplying services and goods to ethanol refineries.

Flies can fly away with potential profits from beef cow operations.

"Planning and developing a beef cattle fly control program yields results for farmers," said Lee Townsend, extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Major insects with beef cattle include the hornfly which feeds along the sides and back line and can build up large numbers, said Townsend. It is a blood-sucking insect. Another major insect pest is the face fly which spends most of its time away from the animal, returning only to feed on secretions around the eyes.

"The behavior of insects and how they feed on the animal makes a big difference in the effectiveness of control measures," he said.

The hornfly spends most of its time on the animal, he said. It may move from animal to animal in the herd, but only leaves animals to lay eggs. Because it is on animals so much, generally any insecticide treatment will give good results.

"In contrast, the face fly spends most of its time off the animal, and comes only to feed," said Townsend. "When it is around animals, it is only around the eyes and mouth and doesn't rest on the sides or back very often."

This makes it more difficult to treat because these are surfaces where insecticides can be washed off, he said.

Several options exist for pasture fly control.

"Insecticide ear tags provide good application of the insecticide to the back and shoulder which is especially good for hornfly control," said Townsend.

"Backrubbers and dustbags provide good control for both types of insect pests," he said. "Backrubbers equipped with some flaps where animals can get their faces treated increase the degree of face fly control."

A non-insecticidal approach to fly control is the use of a cage which catches the flies as animals move through an area.

Townsend said a big factor in pest control is weather. Flies are usually worse during wet springs and are less of a problem in dry weather.

Producers should look at the successes they had last year to when making adjustments in control measures for 1994.

Bovine growth hormone in milk is safe.

"Recently it became legal to produce milk with the aid of a biotechnology-produced bovine growth hormone," said Joe O'Leary, Extension dairy technology specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Many consumers are concerned over the use of this biotechnology, he said. However, research has shown the process is safe and has been approved by health regulators in the U.S. and many other countries.

"This hormone is a bovine hormone and has no effect on humans since they are not closely related to the bovine species," he said. "In addition, all milk is pasteurized and this heat treatment destroys the biological activity of the hormone."

Bovine growth hormone is a protein and therefore it is broken down in the digestive system and loses its biological effect, O'Leary said. It is not yet known to what extent this technology will be used by producers, but consumers can rest assured that milk will continue to be a safe, wholesome food.

A whole new world at 4-H camp 1994

Floyd County 4-H'ers will experience a whole new world at 4-H Camp this summer. Tyrone Martin, 4-H Council member and Diederich 4-H Center board chairman, and many dedicated volunteers have begun work to renovate the existing 4-H Center.

Floyd County 4-H'ers have camped at the Diederich 4-H Camp for 17 years, and this year will even be better, with programs being planned for the first time by Teen Council members.

Floyd County will be able to take 150 campers this year to camp, and the planning committee is very excited about the possibilities.

The theme for camp this year will be "A Whole New World." The Camp fee is $65 and applications will be available at all schools after spring break, or at the Floyd County Extension office. If you would like more information, please call the Floyd County Extension office at (606) 886-2668.

Jenny Wiley Festival Invitation for Food Booths

The Jenny Wiley Festival Committee is inviting Floyd County civic, church and charitable organizations to have first opportunity for food booths in its festival this October 7th and 8th.

"Exclusives" will be given to foods other than hot dogs and hamburgers. The rate is $50.00 a day or $75.00 for Friday and Saturday.

May 6, 1994 is the cut-off for holding "exclusives" for nonprofit booths. After this date, exclusives can be issued to "commercial" for-profit vendors.

The Committee wants to consider nonprofit groups here in Floyd County first, so please encourage your group to participate.

Thank you, and you may contact Ms. Maxine Bierman at 886-6101 for an application.

BACON-WRAPPED CRACKERS

Waverly Wafers
Thin sliced bacon
Wrap a Waverly cracker with a thin slice of bacon. Bake in a 250° oven for 50 minutes. Serve immediately or store in an airtight tin.

BLUEGRASS CREAMED OYSTERS

4 cups small oysters
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup cream
2 tablespoons grated onion
3 tablespoons chopped chives
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
Drain oysters and reserve liquor.
Melt butter in a large heavy pan; blend in flour and cook 2 minutes. Gradually stir in milk, cream and oyster liquor; continue to stir until thickened. Set sauce aside. In a heavy skillet, heat oysters for 2 minutes until edges curl. Add oysters, onion, chives and seasonings to sauce. Serve from a chafing dish into individual toast cups or patty shells.

BAKED KENTUCKY COUNTRY HAM

1 country ham, preferably about 18 months old
1/2 cup whole cloves
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup vinegar
1 1/2 gallons water
Scrub ham with stiff brush to remove any mold. Immerse, skin side up, in cold water and soak overnight. Sprinkle 1/4 cup cloves in the bottom of a large roaster. Add ham, fat side up, and stick remaining cloves in fat.

Add brown sugar, vinegar and water to roaster; cover and bake at 375° for 1 hour. Lower heat to 275° and bake an additional 20 minutes per pound. Cool; trim off fat. If desired, remove bone and tie ham securely with string. Refrigerate overnight. Remove string from ham; cover with Topping and bake at 350° until brown.
Topping
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup cornmeal
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon ground cloves
Combine ingredients and mix thoroughly.

FILET DE BOEUF

1/4 pound (1 stick) butter
1 whole beef tenderloin, softened
To cook tenderloin rare, preheat oven to 500°. Spread butter all over meat; put in a roasting pan and place in hot oven. Immediately reduce the temperature to 350°; bake for 20 minutes or until meat thermometer registers 120°. (The meat will continue to cook a little after it leaves the oven.) Allow meat to cool, then refrigerate. When ready to use, cut into thin slices.

BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 1/2 tablespoons shortening
3/4 cup milk or water
Sift the dry ingredients together. Work shortening into flour with a fork or tips of fingers. Make a well in the center; pour in the milk all at once. Stir well for 20 seconds until all the flour is moistened. Toss dough on floured board at once and knead for 20 seconds. Pat or roll until 1/2" thick. Use as little flour as possible on the board when shaping the dough. Cut into rounds, place in pan and bake in very hot oven (450°) for 10 to 15 minutes. Makes 20 medium-sized biscuits.

HENRY BAIN SAUCE

...serve with steak or roast beef
1 (14-ounce) bottle catsup
1 (12-ounce) bottle chili sauce
1 (10-ounce) bottle A.I. steak sauce
2 tablespoons Tabasco sauce
1 (10-ounce) bottle Worcestershire sauce
1 (8-ounce) jar Major Grey's chutney
Combine all ingredients, mixing well and pour into bottles. The sauce will keep for months in refrigerator.

LEMON BARS

Crust
2 cups flour
1 cup margarine
1/2 cup confectioner's sugar
Combine ingredients, mixing thoroughly; press dough in the bottom of greased 13" x 9" pan. Bake at 300° for 30 minutes or until lightly browned.
Filling
4 eggs, beaten
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup fresh lemon juice, unstrained
1/4 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
Confectioners' sugar
Dash of salt
Combine eggs, sugar and lemon juice; add flour, baking powder and salt beating until fluffy. Spread evenly over baked crust. Bake at 300° for 30 to 40 minutes. Cut into 3" x 1" bars while still warm and dust with confectioners' sugar. Makes 3 dozen.

CHOCOLATE MINT SQUARES

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, softened
1 cup sugar
4 eggs
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 (16-ounce) can chocolate syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Cream butter; gradually add sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Combine flour and salt; add to the creamed mixture alternately with chocolate syrup, beginning and ending with flour mixture. Pour batter into greased and floured 13"x9"x2" baking pan; bake at 350° for 25 to 28 minutes. Cool completely. (Cake will shrink from sides of pan.)
Frosting
1/4 cup butter, softened
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons creme de menthe
Cream butter; gradually add sugar and creme de menthe, mixing well. Spread evenly over cake; chill about 1 hour.
Chocolate glaze
1 (6-ounce) package semi-sweet chocolate bits
1/4 cup butter
Combine chocolate bits and butter in the top of a double boiler; bring water to a boil. Reduce heat to low; stir until chocolate melts. Spread over frosted cake; chill for at least 1 hour before cutting.

MUSTARD SAUCE

1 quart Hellmann's mayonnaise
1/4 (6-ounce) bottle Escoffier Diable Sauce (no substitute)
1/2 (5-ounce) jar Mr. Mustard (no substitute)
1 tablespoon dry mustard
2 1/2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
Dash of Tabasco sauce
1 tablespoon tarragon (optional)
Combine ingredients in a large bowl; stir to mix, then use an electric mixer to blend well. Use as a dressing for salads and cold seafood and for chicken or turkey sandwiches.

CHICKEN SALAD SUPREME

4 1/2 to 5 pounds chicken breasts
Melted butter
Salt and pepper
3 (3 1/4-ounce) packages slivered almonds
2 cups homemade mayonnaise
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 cups sliced celery
3 (6-ounce) cans water chestnuts, drained and sliced
2 pounds seedless grapes
Boston or Bibb lettuce
1 tablespoon curry powder
Brush chicken breast with melted butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Wrap in heavy-duty aluminum foil; seal edges tightly. Place in shallow pan and bake at 350° for 1 hour. Cool; remove meat from bones and cut in bite-size pieces. Coat almonds with melted butter; spread on cookie sheet. Roast at 350° about 30 minutes or until a mellow brown. Spread on paper towels; sprinkle with salt. A few hours before serving, mix mayonnaise with curry powder and soy sauce; combine with chicken, celery, water chestnuts and grapes. Chill. Arrange lettuce leaves around edge of large platter; mound chicken salad in center. Sprinkle almonds on top. Serves 12.

Note: Hellmann's mayonnaise plus the juice of 1 lemon may be substituted for homemade mayonnaise. The chicken may be cooked and the almonds roasted a day ahead.

THE KENTUCKY JULEP

THE JULEP is not a miser's beverage, and it reaches its height of conviviality only where friends are gathered together to lend the nectar of their charm to the succulent ingredients, which combine to soothe all of the senses of man. Even as friendship is a nurtured emotion...so is a JULEP born.

One does not dash madly to the ice tray; bombard commercial glasses with characterless lumps of cold; splash whiskey, sugar and water into a blasphemous hodgepodge...stirring the whole with a hasty finger that has only just applied some mint to the conglomeration with the gesture one would use to discard parsley from a main course to his butter plate.

Ah, no! The JULEP is a triumph of leisure! First, one should have a prechilled silver tumbler. He then selects a tender sprig of mint (the sacrificial mint) which is rubbed with firm, though gentle, pressure around the interior walls of the tumbler, being careful not to crush, or mince the leaves...it is fragrance we are seeking.

Crush ice to the size of pebbles from a clear and running brook until each particle sparkles in the late afternoon sun like the eyes of fairies caught in the morning dew.

Pack the tumbler with these joyous creatures, then feed them sweet nectar brewed of equal parts of sugar and water to the consistency of liquid honey. A teaspoon and a half, poured slowly over the ice, should suffice.

Now, stir until a frost appears; add fresh, tender, topleaf sprigs of mint about three inches long, and serve.

Did you ever FEEL such a cool caress?

Did you ever SEE a more relaxing picture?

Did you ever HEAR a more pleasing tune?

Did you ever SMELL a more fragrant odor?

Did you ever TASTE a more enjoyable sip?

What more, then, can you possibly need...except a friend to enjoy a JULEP with you?

By J. Cabell Breckinridge, a long-time resident of Lexington, Kentucky. He identifies strongly with the communities traditions and his recipe for a Mint Julep merges his sentiments with a dash of humor for how a Julep is really made and enjoyed.

Editor's Note: These recipes are reprinted from the Cookbook, Bluegrass winners. Copies may be obtained by writing Bluegrass Winners, Box 22091, Lexington, Ky. 40522.

REACHING OUT—It would be nice if when younger people are having a party, barbecue or whatever, they would prepare a plate and deliver it to a less mobile person who lives in the immediate neighborhood. It might not mean the difference between the recipient eating or not eating, but it would mean he or she would get something different and perhaps festive.

In the case of elderly or handicapped people, cooking is usually down to basic items, with little variety. It would cheer them up and make them know they are thought of. Miranda A., Mobile, Ala.

Local Wal-Mart employees honored by UK hospital

Prestonsburg Wal-Mart employees were honored recently by the University of Kentucky Hospital for their support of the Children's Miracle Network Telethon. Wal-Mart is a national sponsor of the telethon.

This is the first year Prestonsburg Wal-Mart employees have participated in the fundraising effort. Wal-Mart stores throughout Kentucky donated $110,139.25 in 1993. Over the past six years, 25 Wal-Mart stores, SAM's Club, and their associates have contributed $386,131.28 to UK Hospital's pediatric program.

This is the seventh year the UK Hospital has participated in the Children's Miracle Network Telethon. The UK Hospital is the only hospital in the state to be involved in this annual event. One of the most important aspects of this telethon is that all money raised in Kentucky stays in Kentucky to benefit the future UK Children's Hospital. Last year's telethon raised a record-breaking $411,000, bringing the six-year total to $1.7 million.

Plans are already underway at the Prestonsburg Wal-Mart for events and activities to benefit the 1994 telethon. Their goal is $6,000.

The 1994 Children's Miracle Network Telethon is Saturday and Sunday, June 4 and 5. The telethon will be broadcast live from Disneyland by WLEX-TV, channel 18 (Lexington). It will begin at 9 p.m. on Saturday and continue for 21 hours until 6 p.m. on Sunday. During the telethon's local segments, children from across Kentucky who have been helped by the UK Hospital will be featured as "miracle children."

This year's honorary chairman is UK athletics director C.M. Newton.

For further information about the Children's Miracle Network Telethon, call (606) 259-1115.
