Four bidders show, but just one has offer

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County's solid waste commission could decide today (Wednesday) in a special meeting beginning at 5 p.m., whether to accept the only complete bid submitted last week for garbage collection and disposal services.

At Friday's bid opening, four waste disposal companies were represented, but only one company, Rumpke of Kentucky, submitted a complete bid for those services.

In a puzzling move, representatives from the three other companies—BFI, Local Sanitation and Green Valley—deliberately turned in their proposals, two of which turned out to be no bids. Green Valley submitted a bid for transportation only.

Commissioners asked the company representatives if they would explain why they did not bid on the services.

Drew Skaggs, with Green Valley, said that no complete bid was submitted because the company did not offer door-to-door collection.

Skaggs also asked where the waste would be taken that was collected by Rumpke, if the company is awarded the contract.

Rumpke representative Ron Henke said that waste would be disposed of at the company's Montgomery County landfill.

Skaggs asked where it would be taken after July 1995, when stricter landfill regulations will take effect.

Henke said the company had landfills "all over Kentucky," and added that if those landfills were not allowed to accept waste under the new regulations, the trash could be trucked to Ohio.

During Skaggs' comments, Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond jumped in and said that Skaggs was telling Rumpke that they did not want them to use their landfill if it became necessary.

"I don't think I said that at all," Skaggs responded.

Green Valley offered to transport the county's trash for $37.39 per ton.

BFI representative Mike Stallard said Friday that he felt companies were reluctant to bid on the project because Floyd County could not assure payment for services to residential customers. Stallard said that the bid specifications were strict without assuring payment. He said his company would be willing to discuss an alternate bid.

Local Sanitation representative Steve Hodges declined to discuss why he did not bid.

Rumpke submitted the same proposal that was privately negotiated by the county attorney and judge-executive earlier this year.

On Tuesday, court-appointed solid waste custodian Bob Meyer said he

Site for new sewer plant raises stink at Allen meet

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Construction of a sewage treatment plant in Dwale and a rash of dog poisonings set the stage Monday night for heated and emotional discussions at the Allen City Commission meeting.

Plans to build a sewage plant in Dwale apparently caught homeowner Melvin Rice by surprise and he asked commissioners when the location had been selected.

Allen City Clerk Bill Parsons explained that the site had been chosen almost two years ago after a federal judge ordered city leaders to build the facility.

Parsons explained that the city purchased a two-acre tract from the First Commonwealth Bank last month to build the plant and bids for construction will be let next month. Parsons added that several public hearings on the sewer plant had been held.

Rice told commissioners that he found out only four weeks ago that the plant would be located within several hundred feet of his home.

"It's a shock to me," Rice said. "No one's approached me and I live right under the daggone thing. Everything that I've worked for is what I got there. It's going to decrease the value of my property."

Parsons told Rice that the plant would not decrease the value of his property and, that in all likelihood, it would increase in value.

Rice disagreed. "You can't tell me that it's not going to smell," Rice said. "I disagree. You've only got four families to fight with in Dwale and I guess you don't want to fight with all of Allen."

The Dwale location was the only one of four proposed sites that the federal Environmental Protection Agency would approve, Parsons said. Other options were a tract of property located in Allen; hooking up the system to the Martin sewer plant; and running lines to connect to the Prestonsburg sewer system.

Parsons added that three public hearings are to be held this month to discuss the project, but no dates for those meetings have been set.

In other action Monday, several city residents asked commissioners if they had any information about the rash of poisonings and the disappearances of several dogs in the community.

Mayor Chris Waugh told the citizens that the city has not ordered that any animals be picked up and that he was unaware that any animals had been poisoned.

Second effort at murder trial gets started Tuesday

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Testimony ended abruptly Tuesday in the murder trial of a Floyd County man accused of shooting an Auxier teen-ager last year.

Jerry Michael Martin is charged with firing the shot from a pickup truck that killed Shawn Prater, 19, of Auxier, last June, during a high speed chase near Betsy Layne.

Proceedings ceased Tuesday afternoon when a co-defendant in the case, William Blackburn, testified that an apparent agreement had been reached with the commonwealth concerning his case.

Pike teen killed in mishap

A Pike County teen-ager died Friday afternoon in a one-vehicle accident in Floyd County.

Christopher R. Fields, 16, of Pikeville, was traveling east on Mare Creek Road at Stanville, at a high rate of speed when he apparently lost control of his vehicle in a curve and ran off the roadway, according to Kentucky State Police. The accident happened at approximately 12:55 p.m. Friday.

Fields was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson. Fields was not wearing a seat belt.

The accident is under investigation by trooper Byron Hansford.

Jacobs receives medical treatment

Accused murderer Clawvern Jacobs was taken for medical treatment Tuesday in Prestonsburg. Jacobs is being held in the Floyd County Jail awaiting trial in connection with the 1987 death of Alice Lloyd College student Judy Ann Howard. He was transported by Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and chief deputy Linzie Hunt. (photo by Susan Allen)

Fannin to wear three hats to cut city's costs

By Matt McCarty
Staff Writer

Getting more for its money was what the Prestonsburg City Council had in mind when it drew up the budget for 1994-95 and made a few personnel changes.

The council decided to consolidate the position of superintendent of public works, city manager and mayor as Mayor Jerry Fannin will be doing all three jobs for one salary.

"We're getting the same work load for less money," Councilman Robert Allen said.

Mayor Fannin will receive $17,400 as superintendent of public works, $7,600 as mayor, and no salary as city manager.

In last year's budget, superintendent of public works Mike Meade received $25,000. Meade was dismissed from that job this week.

Despite a cutback in personnel positions, the proposed budget for next year is $218,300 more than last year's budget.

"It is at the same time an aggressive budget and a conservative budget," councilman Estill Carter said.

"We've tried to address the real world needs here," Carter added, "and not just a number that would look good on paper."

Carter also noted that both the personnel committee and the finance and revenue committee will be looking at the first six months of the budget around January 15 of 1995 and making sure everyone is within their budget.

"I would urge department heads to realize that these are expenses for the whole year and that our income will have to be spread out as well as those expenses for the whole year," Carter said. "We won't be able to frontload a lot of this stuff."

One major cutback in the budget is in city administration. In last year's budget, city administration received $143,900, but only $17,149 is budgeted for the upcoming year.

In other action, the council:

Betsy Layne's best for '94

"This is not the end, this is not even the beginning of the end, but it is perhaps the end of the beginning."
— Winston Churchill

The graduating class of Betsy Layne High School experienced the end of the beginning on Friday June 3 at the Lloyd Hamilton Football Field where its commencement exercises took place.

There were 150 graduates who received their diplomas to mark the end of their high school days.

Betsy Layne also began a new tradition with this graduating class — high distinction rather than the Top Ten.

In order to graduate with high distinction, a student had to have a 3.9 grade point average or better.

The eight students who graduated with high distinction were:

• Amanda Hamilton. Hamilton, the daughter of Hayes and Buleah Hamilton of Beaver, graduated as the class valedictorian.

• Campbell Brock Harmon. Harmon is the son of Tommy and Shirley Harmon of Ivel and is the salutatorian of the class.

• Eugina Fields. Fields is the daughter of Eugene and Kathryn Fields of Allen and graduated with high distinction.

• Amy Harmon. Harmon, who also graduated with high distinction, is the daughter of Avery and Diane Harmon of Stanville.

• Tammy Hunt. Hunt is the daughter of Robert and Doris Hunt of Banner and graduated with high distinction.

• Melissa Mullins. Mullins is the daughter of Randy Mullins of Pikeville and Anna Mullins of Harold and was a graduate of high distinction.

• Mark Reed. Reed, the son of Estill and Trelvia Reed of Betsy Layne, graduated with high distinction.

• Stephanie Tackett. Tackett is the daughter of Harvey and Jewelene Tackett of Beaver and graduated with high distinction.

Cindy Parsons told commissioners that her dog had been poisoned between 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. last Monday night. She said someone had put poisoned hamburger patties in the lot where she kept her dog.

"If I find out who did it, I'm going to hurt them in their heart so bad like I'm hurting," Parsons said. "I thought I knew everybody in this town, but somebody here is a murderer."

Parsons also got into a verbal confrontation with police chief Virgil Conn because Conn apparently almost shot her dog when it tried to jump through his screen door.

Parsons told Conn that if he had shot her dog, she would have killed him. She also complained to commissioners that Conn discharged his gun near a child during the altercation with her dog.

Conn responded that if the child had not been near the dog he would have shot it.

Parsons said Conn should not be the chief of police.

"Virgil, you're too old to be a police," Parsons said. "You just jerk out your gun when it's not mandatory."

Commissioner Sharon Woods spoke up and said she trusted Conn's judgment concerning the use of a firearm and she was not aware of the incident.

Parsons said "all hell would break loose" when she found out who poisoned her dog.

Conn, who apparently felt Parsons' comment was directed at him, said he did not poison any dogs.

"There's no way I poisoned your dog," Conn told Parsons. "You're not laying that on me."

Mayor Vaughn said he would write a letter to the county animal shelter concerning picking up stray animals in the city, but he had no ideas how to deal with the recent poisonings. He added that he hoped the person who did it was caught and prosecuted.

Also Monday:

- Commissioner Sharon Woods asked that a proposed ban on chickens in the city limits be dropped because it was not fair to the citizens;
- Commissioner Ann Bentley wanted the April meeting minutes to reflect that she was not in favor of voting for the chicken ban;
- commissioners agreed to purchase two park benches to place near the stop sign in town so that citizens could sit there in the evenings to "gossip"; and
- commissioners received the 1994-95 budget and decided to meet on June 20 at 7 p.m. to discuss it.

All commissioners were present at Monday's meeting.

Bids

felt companies didn't bid on the services because they couldn't respond to specific items in the request for proposals. He said that he felt most companies knew what Rumpke had proposed and that they could not offer a better bid.

One stipulation in the request for proposals is that a 400-ton per day transfer station be built on the county's property at Garth. The county expects the large transfer station to generate additional revenue, which would be used to pay off the solid waste department's $3 million debt.

Floyd County generates approximately 100 tons per day of trash and it is unclear where the additional garbage will come from.

Meyer said Tuesday that, to his knowledge, no other counties have made a commitment to bring the trash to Floyd County and dump it at a transfer station for $40 per ton.

It is the theory, Meyer said, that surrounding counties will use the transfer station to account for the additional 300 tons of trash. But, without any commitments to use the facility, Meyer said it is a gamble.

"It's a crap shoot," Meyer said. "Based on my understanding, (the 400-ton capacity) is going to be built into the contract. The only revenue I have any faith in, right now, is the 15 percent Floyd County Solid Waste will receive from residential customers. Beyond that, it's conjecture. Who knows what will happen in the next 12 months?"

Under Rumpke's bid, the county would receive 15 percent of the $10 per month fee for the county's 13,000-plus residential customers. The county would also get seven and one-half percent of out-of-county customers using the transfer station at a price of $40 per ton.

After Friday's meeting, solid waste commissioners said they were disappointed that only one bid was received. They were also concerned that no senior citizen discount had been included in the contract and that commercial rates remained the same, which is triple the current cost.

Prior to Friday's meeting, solid waste commissioners had announced that the bid evaluations would take place behind closed doors, an apparent conflict with the Kentucky Open Meeting Law.

Just after Friday's meeting began, chairman Mike Vance said that a planned closed session had been a mistake.

"Neither I nor any member of this board wish to conduct the business of the people in secrecy," Vance read from a prepared statement. "Neither does this board wish to hold any informal or 'off the record' meetings to evaluate bids. It is our full intention to open the bids, discuss them and evaluate them in public..."

Vance said he had prepared Friday's meeting agenda with "clerical help" from County Attorney Jim Hammond's office.

Board member Darrell Patton echoed Vance's comments saying, "I don't see any reason to open bids in closed session."

In other business Friday, the board voted to hold its monthly meetings on the third Monday of the month at 5 p.m. in the conference room at the courthouse annex until such time that a larger room may be needed to accommodate the audience.

Murder

Blackburn is charged with criminal facilitation to commit murder and was allegedly the driver of the pickup truck the night of the shooting.

Blackburn's testimony reportedly contradicted testimony given earlier in the day by state police detective Joel Newsome.

Newsome reportedly said that no arrangement had been made with Blackburn in the case.

Martin, Blackburn and another man allegedly raided a pot patch belonging to the victim.

This is the second time attempt to try Martin. During proceedings last month, a mistrial was declared after a potential juror blurted out an inappropriate comment concerning the defendant.

A jury was selected Tuesday morning and the prosecution presented most of its case during the afternoon.

The prosecution is scheduled to finish presenting their case this morning and the defense is expected to finish by this afternoon.

Dan Rowland is the attorney for the commonwealth and Prestonsburg attorney Phil Damron is representing Martin.

New cadets join Pikeville Post

Four members of the Cadet Class #71 of the Kentucky State Police, who graduated Saturday, June 11, will be assigned to the Pikeville Post.

Timothy Dials, Christopher Pearin, Ronald Peppi II, and Johnny Slone were among the 54 new troopers sworn-in by the Honorable Sara Combs, Court of Appeals.

KSP Commissioner Billy G. Wellman was the keynote speaker for the graduation which took place at Franklin County High School.

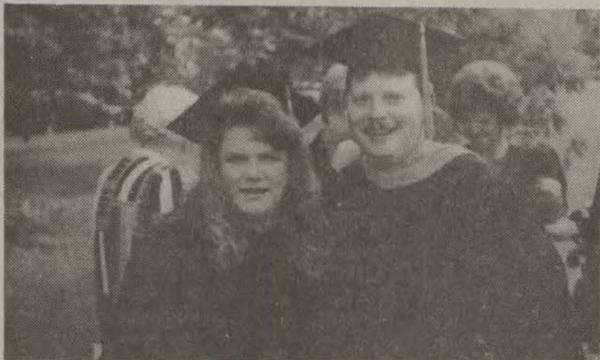

The graduates went through 22 weeks of training in order to join the ranks of the Kentucky State Police.

Local student graduates from Georgetown College

Jack Byron Crider, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crider of Prestonsburg, received a bachelor of science degree in chemistry and biology during Georgetown College's 165th commencement ceremony May 14. President William H. Crouch Jr. presided over the conferring of degrees.

KET Executive Director Virginia G. Fox delivered the commencement address to 219 graduates, one of Georgetown's largest graduating classes in the last decade. She encouraged the Class of 1994 to be more concerned with who they are than what they do. "Jobs are being invented and reinvented as we sit here," said Fox. "It's important to embrace change, not cope, endure or tolerate it. Those who embrace change will be the winners in this world and the hereafter." She added, "If you live your values, even when it hurts, you will be the best that you can be."

Georgetown College, located 12 miles from Lexington, is a four-year private liberal arts institution affiliated with the Kentucky Baptist Convention. The college has an enrollment of nearly 1,300 undergraduate and graduate students.

Safe sitter classes offered

Baby sitters in the area will have an opportunity to receive special training and certification in basic child care with Safe Sitter classes offered June 16 and 17 at Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

The Safe Sitter program is a medically-accurate instructional series that teaches 11- to 13-year-old girls and boys how to handle emergencies when caring for younger children. To successfully complete the program, participants have to pass a practical and written test to show that they have mastered the key concepts and have the skills necessary to handle an emergency. At the end of the two-day course, a certificate is awarded to the participants who have successfully completed the program.

Dr. Patricia Keener, an Indianapolis pediatrician, developed the Safe Sitter program after a friend's toddler choked to death while in the care of a sitter who didn't know what to do. The goal of the program is to reduce the number of accidental and preventable deaths among children being cared for by baby sitters. Six nurses at Pikeville Methodist Hospital have received certification from the national Safe Sitter program to teach the course. The instructors will also provide tips to make sitters more confident caregivers and will teach safety and security precautions, such as what to do if a stranger comes to the door and when and how to call for help. They will give information on child development and suggest age-appropriate activities for children. And they will teach sitters about the business aspects of babysitting.

The Safe Sitter classes, scheduled for June 16 and 17, will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. Cost for the class is $20. To register, call Sandra Meyers at 437-3936.

Against the odds

by Scott Perry

Hindsight may be 20/20, but we're not relying on it when we suggest that the development of an athletic track at Allen Central High School has been one colossal blunder.

We said so at the start.

Since the board pressed forward on the track, established programs in baseball, and now football, have been forced to suffer.

Facilities for both those sports were razed to make room for the track which, as best we can determine, is yet to be completed.

The baseball team lost everything to the track...its field, its lights, its dugouts, its bleachers...most of which were built through the generous support of boosters.

One thing the team didn't lose was its spirit, which propelled it past regional favorite Paintsville and into the regional finals.

Eventually, the Rebels will find another home, on property donated by fan Gary Frazier, but somebody is going to have to come up with some big bucks to get a field ready for play.

Now, the ACHS football team is being victimized by the track project.

The Rebels had been all but told to look elsewhere for a place to play this fall because their facility won't be ready in time for the season opener.

Fortunately, ACHS has a band of dedicated boosters who have rededicated themselves to the task of preparing the football field for the upcoming season.

They've chipped in to buy sod and were busy this week placing it.

That's the type of spirit that makes an athletic program work, but it's a shame so much of it had to be expended on work that never should have been necessary in the first place.

Like the song says, be true to your school.

ACHS boosters have.
Against the odds.

Questions for Rogers

Editor:
Hal Rogers' recent press release criticizing President Clinton concerning the pending federal crime bill shows what a courageous and knowledgeable leader the little man from Somerset really is.

In his criticism of the President's crime bill Hal Rogers takes a bold stand; he tells us we need to "eliminate parole." Of course parole has been eliminated from the federal court system for many years. Not a single person has been paroled from a federal prison within recent memory.

The courageous little man from Somerset also tells us we need "truth in sentencing" so that "offenders serve their full jail time." Of course truth in sentencing is a concept wherein a jury is told of a defendant's criminal record before recommending a sentence. Truth in sentencing has absolutely nothing to do with the federal crime bill, because juries have nothing to do with sentencing in federal court. All sentencing in federal court is done by the Judge who is always informed of the defendant's criminal record. Exactly how truth in sentencing has anything to do with the crime bill is unclear.

Finally the little man from Somerset tells us we've been too "soft on criminals" and we need to "build more prisons." I assume only doubling the federal prison population for the last ten years shows softness. Now what would really take courage is for the little man from Somerset to tell us specifically which of our taxes he intends to raise to build the new prisons he thinks we so desperately need.

Says nursing program not as it is represented

Editor:
I read with interest the letter on June 3, 1994, in support of P.C.C.'s nursing program. The writer's praises of the program and its instructors were very endearing, but I'm afraid they weren't very realistic. While the writer is certainly entitled to her opinion, I question several of her remarks.

Like a child who soon forgets a punishment, Miss Landers has all too soon forgotten what being a nursing student at P.C.C. was like, as well as some of the instructors. I have the utmost respect for and consideration of many of the instructors at P.C.C.; Susan and Margaret deserve a world of credit for what they do each and every day.

It is clear to any student that passes through the doors of the nursing lab, that they are much more than just instructors. They have been friends, confidants, counselors, as well as instructors. They are often the rock that many students lean on when the end seems too far to reach. Paula Gibson, Kim DeRossett, Lynn Weddell, Jennifer Little, to name a few others, are also deserving of the same credit.

All of these instructors go well out of their way to help a student succeed. They do their job with the grace, dignity, dedication and concern expected of one in their profession. Unfortunately, not all of the instructors possess these same qualities. For those, I feel they have no place among ones truly dedicated to the teaching profession.

The writer suggested that one can't look at just the outer surface to diagnose a problem, and she is correct. But, I was not on the outside, I was inside, and experienced many of the problems with P.C.C.'s nursing program.

She also stated that she felt the program has not been looked at as a whole picture. Again, she is correct. The truth of the matter is that the program has not been looked at period, despite numerous complaints, many of which, came from members of her own class who were forced to withdraw the same semester she graduated.

Further, I feel that it was because

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Boy, some molders of opinion certainly have interesting notions about what sorts of investments are good for the people of Kentucky.

In the last week or so, editorial writers at one of our state's more prestigious newspapers called State Rep. Greg Stumbo the king of the porkers for pressing a proposal to build a new golf course in Eastern Kentucky, then followed up the next day with a dramatic plea for funding for a new bridge to link Louisville with Indiana.

Granted, the financing for these projects would come from different pots, but both are filled by the same folks...the taxpayers.

So, how is a bridge that will cost hundreds of millions of dollars less a pork barrel project than an $8 million golf course?

Don't we already have bridges spanning the Ohio between Kentucky and the Hoosier State?

Yes.
Do we already have a quality golf course in Eastern Kentucky that will stimulate our tourism economy and create news jobs?

No.
We don't know how much the state plans to invest in the new bridge at Louisville, but we recommend in an effort to end the current legislative impasse over the state budget, that the general assembly scrap that deal and redirect that money to reinvigorating the state park system.

Maybe a bridge is important to Louisvillians who want to travel to Indiana and vice versa, but if Kentucky taxpayers have a choice of pork on the menu, this little piggie would rather stay home.

Speaking of staying home, here's one from noted Appalachian humorist Loyal Jones....

A man arrived at the Pearly Gates to find Heaven all that he imagined...streets of gold, bands of angels, etc....but he heard an awful racket off to one side.

He walked over and found thousands of people chained to the walls.

"What's all this?" he asked St. Peter.

"Oh, nothing to worry about," St. Peter responded, "those are just the Eastern Kentuckians."

"But why are they all shackled like that?"

the newcomer asked.

"Well," St. Peter answered, "if we didn't chain them up, they'd all go home every weekend."

The budget feud continues this week in Frankfort between the House and the Senate, where the main point of contention is who gets what.

The House has apparently backed off its all or nothing stance for funding nearly $300 million in construction work, offering to settle for just $3.2 million in design funds.

The Senate, meanwhile, isn't biting because the compromise includes nothing for the design of three big ticket projects...a convention center and a football stadium in Louisville and a new library at U.K.

The taxpayers are anxiously awaiting the conclusion of the debate, which has cost roughly $40,000 a day since the opening shot of the special session on June 6.

As of today, Wednesday, the tab for accomplishing nothing is about 400 grand.
Ah, the price of progress.

While most Kentuckians are focusing on the rift in Frankfort, the world has its eyes on North Korea, which is threatening war.

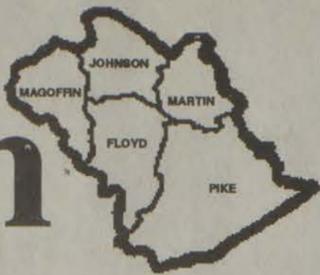

The North Koreans said this week that any effort by the United Nations to impose economic sanctions over a dispute concerning nuclear weaponry would be considered an act of war and they would respond accordingly.

That's a frightening ultimatum. Meanwhile, President Clinton has decided to give Japan, which is just a missile shot away from Korea, a vote on the U.N. Security Council.

Perhaps the Japanese, who have never been overly cooperative on matters relative to world security (they didn't participate in economic sanctions against Iraq, you may recall), will take the lead in addressing the Korean problem since they are so close to the danger.

Think they'll vote to send in Godzilla?

Company faces fines in fatal mine explosion

A southeastern Kentucky coal company faces $450,000 in fines for nine alleged violations that led to an explosion that killed two miners last month, officials said Monday. Investigators of the May 11 blast at Day Branch Coal Co.'s No. 9 mine found cigarette butts in the pockets of both dead miners. They also listed 36 problems with the battery-operated scoop the men rode into the area where the methane explosion occurred.

"The violations cited indicate that the mine operator failed to follow some of the most fundamental rules necessary to mine coal safely," J. David McAteer, head of the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration, said about Day Branch owner Bobby Joe Hensley.

Roof bolter Otis Henry and scoop operator Norman Daniels were killed in the explosion at the mine at Pathfork in Harlan County. The blast occurred just hours after an MSHA inspector closed the mine for ventilation violations.

Among the alleged violations cited was the illegal removal of ventilation controls intended to keep explosive methane from building up in the mine. Cement "stopping" used to direct the flow of air were not maintained in the working area, and the miners were getting less than half the amount of air required, the inspector said.

Inspectors also found nine cigarette butts and a lighter on one of the bodies, and three butts on the other victim. There were other spent cigarettes in the scoop itself and smoke and unsmoked cigarettes were found in the working area of the mine, according to the citation. — Lexington Herald-Leader

How to finance our public schools

By Kenneth Eskye
Scripps Howard News Service

Give the state of Michigan credit for tackling one of the thorniest problems in public education—the great disparity between the amounts of money rich communities spend on their schools and the amounts spent by poor rural communities and depressed industrial towns.

The spending gap is no secret. Reformers have been complaining for years about the over-reliance on property taxes to pay for public education. The difference now is that the have-nots are going to court and demanding more equitable treatment.

More than half the states either are locked in litigation or have had their financing plans declared unconstitutional. Since 1989, funding formulas have been struck down in Texas, Kentucky, Montana, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Alabama and North Dakota.

Michigan and its reform-minded governor, John Engler, responded by dumping the old system and conducting a March referendum on how to replace it. The result: Voters raised the state sales tax from 4 percent to 6 percent, tripled the cigarette tax and approved a modest state property tax to replace the local property tax.

Whether this is the best way to pay for schools is debatable. The sales tax is a regressive tax, falling most heavily on families in the low and middle income brackets. Critics say it can be unreliable, with collections declining sharply during recessions.

But the clear message here is that having wealthy districts with high property values operate superb public schools while their less affluent neighbors struggle to buy new textbooks is unacceptable.

Education is, by law, a state responsibility, and it makes no sense (in Michigan) to have some districts spending less than $3,500 a year per pupil while others are spending more than $10,000.

The same disparities exist in other states. In Texas, the richest district spent seven times more than the poorest in 1990-91.

Pouring money into a failing school system is no guarantee of academic success. It's been tried—in Kansas City, for example—and the results have been less than inspiring.

Some systems are so bureaucratic that shake-up measures such as charter schools run by teachers and parents are well worth trying.

But let's not buy the argument that money doesn't matter. "The only people who say it doesn't matter are those who already have it," says Craig Foster, who represents 300 poor districts in Texas.

In recent years, states and local communities have split the cost of public education, with the federal government chipping in about 6 percent, but there are wide variations. In Michigan, only 26.8 percent of school money came from the state in 1990-91.

On the other hand, Hawaii's school system is almost entirely state financed. In New Mexico and the state of Washington, nearly three fourths of the money comes from the state.

Police detail case against Ky. trooper

A state trooper in Hazard is accused of stealing about $2,000 from his own agency by pretending that the money was going to an informant, according to internal misconduct charges made public Monday.

The informant received no more than $425 from Trooper Mark Lopez, but Lopez listed payments of $2,470 on his monthly expense reports, the charges state.

In addition, he took 5 pounds of marijuana that had been "confiscated in a criminal case and gave it to the same informant, Troy Fugate, to sell in Lopez's behalf," the charges state.

The officer also pointed a gun at Fugate and threatened to kill him, according to the charges. On duty at the time, he allegedly made that threat in the parking lot of the Hazard state police post, records state.

Lopez's hearing, scheduled Monday before the internal trial board at Kentucky State Police headquarters, was postponed. — Lexington Herald-Leader

Bank: FBI tape made robber plead guilty

It was the FBI and a videotape, not a guilty conscience, that caused an Elkhorn City man to plead guilty to stealing $3,120 from a bank, the bank's attorney said Friday.

Raymond Aragon, 48, pleaded guilty Tuesday to robbing the Elkhorn branch of Trans Financial Bank on January 10. Defense attorney Larry Webster contended his client turned himself in after thinking about the crime for several days.

But Trans Financial general counsel Kay Craft said Friday that Aragon was anything but willing to admit his guilt.

"We confronted him with it," she said. "We told him we had him on tape doing it. He denied it several times."

She said the FBI questioned Aragon about the theft, and noted that Aragon had pleaded innocent to a bank robbery indictment returned May 2. Webster continued to maintain Friday that Aragon voluntarily surrendered himself and the money.

Aragon, who is scheduled for sentencing on August 9, faces up to 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine. — Appalachian News Express, Pikeville

UMW cancellation of benefits upheld

The Kentucky Court of Appeals on Friday ruled that the United Mine Workers union did not violate its constitution by canceling benefits to a local whose members were on strike for five years.

Members of Local 2492 sued the international union in Pike Circuit Court in 1990, after UMW President Richard Trumka called off their strike against contractors working for McCoy Caney Coal Company.

A three-judge appellate panel upheld Pike Circuit Judge Bayard Collier's ruling that Trumka and the union had discretion over strike payments. — Appalachian News Express, Pikeville of those students speaking out, that the ones remaining found the instructors to be much more lenient for the remainder of the semester. They were allowed to re-take their renal exam because the majority of the class had failed the first one.

Letters

Certain students were given the option of choosing which instructor they preferred to have for clinical. Were these things done merely out of a true concern for the student's success, or were they done in an attempt to lessen the then present controversy brought about by the complaints of Miss Landers' classmates?

The school official's solution to the situation was to single out one instructor as a scapegoat, and remove her as fourth semester clinical instructor until the heat died down. Does the writer consider this an example of looking at a problem both objectively and subjectively?

The writer makes mention of P.C.C.'s good pass rate on state boards, and a young man who sat beside her during testing. Firstly, Hazard's pass rate is comparable to that of P.C.C.'s when you consider their much larger classes. Secondly, if I am correct, the young man she referred to was from a four-year program at Morehead. My original comparison of P.C.C. and Hazard was made because these two schools are in the same college system, thus having the same guidelines and requirements from beginning to end. Morehead is not a part of the U.K. system, and their students' lack of knowledge in certain clinical areas does not address or adequately explain the drastic difference in the number of graduates between two schools that exists.

Lastly, I would like to say that while some students may expect it, I personally did not, nor have I ever expected anyone to hand me anything, least of all a nursing degree on a silver platter. Just like the other students in my class, I worked my tail off to get where I was; I had my share of writer's cramps, lost sleep, night after night of studying, and neglecting my kids to do so.

I do, on the other hand, expect to be treated fairly and reasonably, something that the instructors responsible for failing me, apparently do not know how to do. I was failed clinically, and for reasons that many physicians and nurses not associated with P.C.C., feel unfounded. But, because of the wide range of subjectivity afforded instructors such as those who failed me, they can and do fail students for just about any reason they choose. It is for this reason, and not merely because they weren't cut out for nursing, that many of the students fail.

Miss Landers failed to state why she had to repeat semesters. If it was due to reasons similar to my own, and she is still able to sing such songs of praise, then I applaud her. She is much more forgiving than I can be. I cannot find it in me to accept their unjust failure of me with an attitude of gratitude and thankfulness. I found it curious that she also attributes her new-found self-confidence and esteem entirely to the program and her instructors.

If Miss Landers has, indeed, gained so much of these qualities, then why does she fail to credit the one person most responsible for her success? Herself! While her instructors may have helped her along the way, it was her hard work and dedication that earned each and every letter on the name plate she now wears, and no one else. I just feel she could have earned it a little easier, and with a lot less stress.

Area students awarded student scholarship loans

The Appalachian Student Fund, a non-profit group organized in 1990, has announced their third group of scholarship loan recipients. The Fund is supported by donations from individuals, foundations, businesses and industries, primarily in Eastern Kentucky.

The Fund loans enough money, from $1,000 to $3,000 per year per student, to significantly help high school seniors who are academically exceptional and exhibit leadership qualities. After graduation from the college of their choice, the recipients must return to one of the 40 counties of Appalachian Kentucky to have the loan forgiven, on the basis of one year of work for each year the loan is granted. If they do not return to the area, they must repay the loan and interest. Recipients may reapply, and provided they meet certain criteria and if funds are available, they may be supported in future years.

The objectives of the Appalachian Student Fund are to stem the flow of outstanding area graduates to other regions and to provide future leadership for eastern Kentucky through loan incentives. The Board of Directors, composed of Eastern Kentucky leaders from varied professions, has also been examining a program designed to help businesses select future leaders as employees. The Fund, with offices at 635 Whitaker Street, Morehead, Kentucky 40351, continually accepts tax-deductible contributions.

The 1994-95 awardees and their schools are Vernon Adkins, Jackson County; Julie Anglin, East Carter; Sharon Bolt, Rowan County; Jennifer Harris, Lewis County; Nathan Holbrook, Fairview; Miranda Lacy and Nathan Miller, Morgan County; Sandra Lambert, Fleming County; Shandon Melvin, Raceland-Worthington; Travis Patterson, South Laurel; Christopher Potter, Betsy Layne; Elizabeth Ryle, Bracken County; Tim Sizemore, Evarts; and Tammy Tolson, Wolfe County, recipient of a special Kentucky River Medical Center scholarship.

These 14 awardees join 18 other recipients presently supported by the Fund. Twelve other students have received support for at least one year. ASF has now awarded over $110,000 to young eastern Kentucky scholars.

District band

On May 1, these seventh and eighth grade students participated in the K.M.E.A. District 9 Jr. High Band concert held at the Carriage House Motor Hotel in Paintsville. Students were chosen by audition. Approximately 40 schools participated. These students participate in Sandy Tackett's band at Prater and Betsy Layne Elementary Schools. They are, front row: Ashley Roberts, Mindy Conn, Kabrina Stratton, Amy Bates. Back row: Mrs. Tackett, Wesley Nelson, Shawn Deskins and James Akers.

The examination date for the Support Service Associate for the Floyd County Health Department will be July 6, 1994 at 2:00 p.m. at the Health Department in Prestonsburg. This date has been changed from June 22, 1994.

Words of life

by Wayne Burch
Little Paint Church of God

John Denver sounds so sincere singing "Take Me Home Again, Country Road." It is hard to believe he wasn't born and raised in West Virginia. But he wasn't. Denver didn't even write the song; two musicians named Bill Danoff and Taffy Nivert were the authors. Neither of them grew up in the mountain state. In fact, they had never even been there when the song was composed. It was actually written while they were on their way to a Nivert family reunion in Maryland. As they drove through the countryside, along the winding, tree-lined roads, Bill passed the time by writing a little tune about their rural surroundings. Gradually, it became "Take Me Home, Country Roads."

How did West Virginia get into the song? A friend of Nivert's kept sending him picture postcards from West Virginia with notes like, "West Virginia's almost heaven." Mr. Nivert was so impressed by the postcards that he incorporated them into the lyrics of the song. John Denver discovered the song while performing in Washington, D.C. at a folk club. These three got together and Denver put their song on his next RCA album; it made him a star, and made Nivert & Danoff some hefty royalties.

There is another place, about which, many musical lyrics have been written. These compositions stand today as some of the greatest pieces of literature to bless the soul of God's creation. They are songs about the Cross. "On a hill far away, stood an old rugged cross, the emblem of suffering and shame." No doubt of all the hymns which speak of Calvary, this one is the most revered. However, there is a song about Calvary which is of much more recent origin which contain these lyrics, "I've been to CALVARY, I can say I've seen the Lord, I've been to CALVARY, through the witness of his word: Each day at CALVARY, what a thrill of love divine, just to know that this Savior is mine."

Yes, through the transforming word and power of God, demonstrated by our Lord Jesus Christ, He will take you on a trip to CALVARY BY FAITH! To become a Christian you MUST GO TO CALVARY! John Denver can sing "Country Roads" and glean millions from his performances, but YOU CAN'T BECOME GOD'S CHILD UNTIL YOU VISIT THE CROSS! Nivert & Danoff may write and Denver might sing songs about places and things they have no personal knowledge about and would audiences, and their records make GOLD, but you CANNOT reap salvation benefits without traveling to CALVARY BY FAITH and acquiring "first-hand," on sight information and experience about the saving grace of our dear Savior.

This transaction is what provides the power to SAVE us. It provides power to SHAPE us. It provides power to RAISE us. The power of His resurrection is the same POWER of our resurrection!

I have personally stood and beheld many of the beauties of my native state of West Virginia. I have many of the outstanding scenes preserved on film. I have seen Spruce Knob on a gorgeous spring morning. I have been in the Cranberry Glades in the winter. I have been at Blackwater Falls in every season of the year. I have backpacked along its murmuring streams. I have had a gobbling turkey to wake me up in the morning. I have heard hounds chase Red Foxes from ridge to ridge! But NONE of those experiences can compare with what I have experienced by my trips of FAITH to CALVARY'S BROW!

I, too have royalties in unspeakable amounts which would pale John Denver's in comparison. "John, you spend yours now, I'll redeem mine later....!"

Seventh-day Adventists Believe...

All humanity is now involved in a great controversy between Christ and Satan regarding the character of God, His law, and His sovereignty over the universe. This conflict originated in heaven when a created being, endowed with freedom of choice, in self-exaltation became Satan, God's adversary, and led into rebellion a portion of the angels. He introduced the spirit of rebellion into this world when he led Adam and Eve into sin. This human sin resulted in the distortion of the image of God in humanity, the disordering of the created world, and its eventual devastation at the time of the worldwide flood. Observed by the whole creation, this world became the arena of the universal conflict, out of which the God of love will ultimately be vindicated. To assist His people in this controversy, Christ sends the Holy Spirit and loyal angels to guide, protect, and sustain them in the way of salvation.—Fundamental Beliefs, 8.

Seven students awarded RN degrees

Seven nursing professionals have completed the B.S.N. degree program offered through Morehead State University's Big Sandy Extended Campus Center.

The group joined 80 other degree candidates who completed the University's A.D.N. and B.S.N. degree programs this semester. They were eligible to participate in MSU's 1994 Spring Commencement.

The R.N. degree candidates are: Traci Thornsbury and Teresa

Owens, both of Pikeville. They are insurance claims adjusters in Pike County.

Terri S. Conley, of Salyersville, who is a school health nurse with the Magoffin County Board of Education.

Teresa Joseph, of Prestonsburg, who is employed in the outpatient surgery department at Highlands Regional Hospital in Prestonsburg.

Loretta Ruth, of Elkhorn City, Claudette Smith York, of Kimper and Mavis Johnson, of Pikeville, who are employees of Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

MSU's nursing baccalaureate degree program offers two options for students: the generic track, a four-year program for students who plan a traditional pursuit of the degree, and the R.N. track, offering registered nurses who have an associate degree or diploma an opportunity to earn the bachelor degree while working full-time.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

A LOT OF SPORTS!

Well, vacation time is over and time to get back behind the computer and turn out a few stories.

You would think with the high school season all over with in all sports, that it would slow down somewhat.

But the truth is that it is just as busy as ever with all the youth leagues we have going on.

Some of the parents have called and wondered why some of the little league scores from their league hasn't appeared in the paper. It is simply because your coach of your team doesn't want it in the paper. If he did, then he would put forth an effort to get it to me.

I am willing to put everyone I can in the paper, but I cannot be at every ball game.

The high school season went a little longer than normal because of the tournaments. Vacation time, I just had to have one.

With the youth leagues playing their final week of the regular season, the tournaments will begin next week and after that comes all the all-star games.

Before you know it, it will be time to cover football. I can't wait!

ENJOYED BANQUET AT ALLEN CENTRAL

I had a great time at the Allen Central Ridge Runners Track and Field Banquet Sunday before last. We all enjoyed a delicious meal and awards were passed out to all the members of the team and some received special awards.

The folks in the booster's club have worked very hard all season and it certainly was a very successful year for the program at Allen Central.

I want to thank all those who prepared the event and you did an excellent job.

Hopefully, the track and field complex will be ready by next spring and when that facility at Allen Central is completed it is going to be great. What a nice football/track and field facility it will be.

I got to salute a great individual in Mary Wallen. When I first came to the Floyd County Times six years ago as Sports Editor, one of the first persons to call me was Mary. Her concern? We need a track and field facility in Floyd County.

At the time, her son, Brian, along with Tim Slone, was the total track and field program perhaps in the county. But Mary knew that the programs would grow in the county if only we had a complex.

Brian has since graduated and is in college, but Mary Wallen still fought for the facility even though Brian was not there.

I know there are others that have been instrumental in getting the facility, but for six long years, Mary has worked hard to see this come to past.

Ina Robinson is another one that has put in a lot of time and effort in making the dream of a facility a fact.

Her untiring work, despite an accident, should never be forgotten by those around the county. The new facility will benefit all Floyd County schools and not just one.

I was at the site this past Saturday and I tell you that I was impressed. Of all the problems and headaches in getting this facility, it will have been worth it all once completed. It is magnificent.

COACH REEVES, COUNTY FORTUNATE TO HAVE HIM...

I like the determination of Allen Central football coach Glenn Reeves. He doesn't take a "no" answer very well. He is a very determined individual and rightly so. Because he is such a determined person, that is why Allen Central one day will have a strong football program.

Faced with the possibility of having to play his home football games elsewhere because of having to hydro-seed the football field, the coach said no-way, we'll put

To sod or not to sod; that was the question

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The "Sod-Busters" struck at the Allen Central football field this past weekend.

Becoming impatient over the way things were progressing in readying the football field for the upcoming season, coach Glenn Reeves and the Allen Central football boosters club took matters into their own hands and set out to answer the questions of whether to put down sod or wait until next year to play on the field.

Faced with the possibility of having to revert to plan B for the fast approaching season, the Sod Busters thought waiting for the local school board to accomplish the work on the field was a bit too much.

The problems for the football program began when its field was dismantled in preparation for the installation of the track and field facility. The field, along with the bleachers, press box and concession stand, was completely dismantled and left in limbo.

The football field was finally crowned and ready for the hydro-seeding process. But Coach Reeves and the boosters club knew the process would wash out its home football schedule if that plan was followed.

"We were told that we would have to go to plan B and play our home games somewhere else," said Coach Reeves. One of those places would have been the Prestonsburg field when the Blackcats were on the road.

"I figured they brought me down here as the coach and I didn't come to play on someone else's field," said the Rebel coach.

Not liking plan B, the boosters club and coach had their own plan -- sod the field. So, this past Saturday morning the sod was delivered and 25 to 30 fans as well as the coach gathered at the field to begin the process of laying down the sod.

"We purchased the sod on our own," said Coach Reeves. "The school board gave us $2,000 and we got $1,000 from the school."

The sod cost the boosters just over $7,000 with a $2,100 hauling bill from Lexington. The boosters will raise the necessary funds to pay the debt.

"I'd rather have sod anyway," said Coach Reeves, when comparing the sod to hydro-seeding. "With sod you don't have the rocks and gravel in the grass."

The group gathered early at the field and, with donated equipment, made good progress in their effort to finish the project over the weekend.

The field then was rigged with a sprinkling system and must be watered daily so the sod will take to the turf.

"We won't be able to get on the sod for 30 days," said the Allen Central mentor. "We will be going to camp for two weeks and that will give it a little longer to settle."

The new facility, which will include a six lane track, will be a show place in the region. Drainage lines are presently being installed. Some fill work that was required at one end of the track must settle before asphalt can be laid.

Bleachers, a new press box and concession area will be installed and a new scoreboard is expected to arrive from the Pepsi-Cola company.

Sod-Busters!

With the high school football season fast approaching, this group of Sod-Busters gathered at the Allen Central football field this past Saturday and Sunday to lay sod on the field. Players, coaches and boosters took part in the fun day. Coach Glenn Reeves (center) holds a piece of the sod that was delivered from Lexington. The football field, had it been hydro-seeded, would not have been ready for the start of the season, forcing the Rebels to play their home games elsewhere. Problems have slowed work on the field as a track facility has been added to the complex. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Drift Astros post 8-5 win to snap ARH Renegades 10 game streak

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Manager Clinis Hall and the Drift Astros got some revenge as they posted an 8-5 winner over the Appalachian Regional Hospital (ARH) Renegades last week in the Beaver Creek Little League.

The Astros had their six game winning streak snapped by the Renegades earlier in the month and returned the favor by stopping a 10 game winning streak of the Renegades.

ARH fell to 10-1 on the season and Drift improved to 9-1. A possible playoff game could develop later this week if both ballclubs win their remaining two games.

John Mullins, who lost to the Renegades earlier, picked up the win in a five inning stint. Brent Slone came on to pitch the sixth inning for Drift.

"I didn't take John out because he was doing bad," said Coach Hall, "but because it made us a better defensive ballclub in the late inning."

Mullins did not walk a batter in the five innings he worked. He struck out nine. Slone entered the game with a runner on base in the sixth and proceeded to strike out the side to end the game.

"Brent has been playing great baseball for us," said Hall. "He is playing better than any other little league player I know."

"He has really come on strong lately and is doing real good. He's playing good defense, he throws the ball hard and is hitting real good. He's just playing smart baseball,"

Castle hurls three-hitter in win over HAP

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Brandon Castle hurred seven strong innings last week in the Floyd County Babe Ruth League as the Allen Sox defeated HAP 8-2 to run their overall record to 6-1 on the season.

Castle scattered three HAP hits while giving up the two runs. He walked only two batters and struck out 14.

(See Castle, B 2)

Hall said.

ARH took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a base hit by Ryan Shannon, who reached second on an error and stole third. He scored on Patrick Martin's RBI single.

The Astros tied the game at one in the first with Slone scoring on Byron Hall's run producing single.

The Astros took their first lead in the third inning with two runs to make it 3-1. Joe Skeens walked and Jason Spriggs singled behind him. Both runners dented home plate on Slone's two-run double.

ARH went in front 4-3 with three in the fifth inning. Jonathan Turner and Zack Layne reached on an error and both runners scored on Shannon's base hit. Shannon later scored on an error.

Five runners crossed homeplate for the Astros in the sixth inning after the Renegades had taken a 5-3 lead with a run in the top of the inning.

Mike Hall was hit-by-a-pitch and Joe Skeens was safe on an error. Spriggs then roped a base hit to left center to score both runners. Slone walked and Mullins cleared the bases with a long triple. Mullins scored on Jimmy Lee Stumbo's base hit to give the Astros a 8-5 lead.

The Renegades failed to score in the sixth inning.

James "Bub" Goins suffered the setback for the Renegades in going the distance.

Mullins allowed five runs on just four hits in getting the win.

"I've got a good ball team," said Hall of his team's effort. "They play good team ball. This is the best getting along team that I have coached."

Earlier in the week, Drift won over the Garrett Cubs 15-11 with Slone collecting three hits, all doubles, and driving in four runs.

Jimmy Lee Stumbo picked up the win for the Astros. Byron Hall had a double and a triple for Drift and picked up four RBIs. Gradon Allen had a double and three runs batted in.

The Astros will face the Martin Braves tonight at the Martin Park.

Lifelong dream realized as Tiller signs with Cleveland

by Jason Blanton
Contributing writer

Brad Tiller, the first Martin Countian to be drafted by a professional team, realized a lifelong dream Sunday when he signed to play professional baseball with the Cleveland Indians.

"I've been waiting for this for a long, long time," said Tiller. "It's a big step and a huge relief to get it over with."

Tiller, expected to be a shortstop or second baseman, was selected in the ninth round by Cleveland on the first day of the draft (June 2). He therefore had to decide whether to accept an offer from the Indians or play at the University of Kentucky - he signed last fall with the Wildcats.

"I had some time alone to think about the decision. I changed my mind so many times and I finally made the right decision," he said.

Tiller left Monday morning (June 13) for Winter Haven, Florida and was scheduled to work out with his new team. He got together with his teammates yesterday and will head to Burlington, North Carolina later this week.

Burlington, the Cleveland rookie league team, plays in the Appalachian League, another reason Tiller decided to sign. The Huntington Cubs also play in the Appy League.

"We will come to Huntington, so that will give my family a chance to see me play and that was a plus."

"My family has been very important to me. They have given me a lot and over the past week, they've supported me 100 percent," he said.

Tiller was told that he would be in Huntington to face the Cubs on July

Tiller's family called upon the services of former major leaguer Johnnie Lemaster to help with talks with Cleveland.

"Johnnie was a great help," said Tiller. "He not only helped this weekend, but by me playing for him (Paintsville Big League). I really appreciated his help."

According to one report out of Martin County, Cleveland offered 100 percent tuition to a college and a bonus, if he would sign. Indian officials would not confirm or deny it.

"We think Brad has a lot of ability," said Jerry Jordan, Cleveland Scouting Supervisor. "We think he will only get better. We look forward to the day that he plays in the big leagues with Cleveland."

Tiller will not have much time to get ready for the season. The Appalachian League season begins June 19.

Martin Cards upend Reds, defeat Orioles

by Ed Taylor

The Martin Cardinals continued to roll as they won two games in the Beaver Creek Little League this past week.

One of the wins came against the front-running Martin Reds. The Cards disposed of the Duff Orioles in the second game.

Where's the catcher?

He's behind all the catcher's gear! With a helmet that's too big, a breast protector long enough to cover the body and shin guards that was made to fit Johnny Bench, this Martin Angel's Pee Wee catcher was ready for anything that came his way. (photo by Ed Taylor) down sod. I received a phone call early Saturday and was told of the venture that was going on at Allen Central. I journeyed to the site with my camera in hand and was very much impressed with what I saw.

Laying on his stomach and laying sod was Coach Reeves and not just him, but a host of others who care about the program at Allen Central.

While there may be some that would like to see the program discontinued, there are still those that are like Coach Reeves, determined to see that it is a success. My hat goes off to these fine people at Allen Central.

I would love to start mentioning names of those that have stood behind the program, but I won't in fear of omitting someone's name.

ARE THEY LAUGHING AT US IN FLOYD...?

The surrounding counties are wondering what is going on in Floyd County when the top officials refuse to develop a piece of ground into a top notch baseball facility.

Yes, they are making fun of us in Floyd County.

They think we can't get anything straight.

The school board turned down a group of folks that was doing all they could to develop a piece of donated property into a decent place for kids to play baseball.

Several had donated their time and effort in getting the development off the ground. Kids were getting excited that maybe, just maybe, our officials would care enough to see the project through and come up with the needed funds.

The $369,000 price tag surely scared everyone to death. But, if you stop and look at it, that much money is wasted at other places and no one is hollering about that.

Sure, it sounds like a lot of money. But when you look at the future of these young kids that need a decent, and I mean decent, place to play the game that all those in charge grew up to play, it isn't much at all. We waste that much on other things.

Eddie Patton suggested hiring a "temporary" county athletic director to take a look at the facilities in the county for upgrading. The only problem with that is there are no facilities to look at.

I believe every high school in Floyd County should have their own baseball field. Sure. Why not? The places that we call ballparks are deplorable and everyone else laughs at us when we talk of our "facilities."

If we had good baseball fields to put our kids on, we could compete better against the Paintsville, Johnson Central and Pike County teams.

Someone from this county should step out of their office and tour the other counties and see what they have done for their youth. They did it because they cared.

With an investment, the Allen Park could be a showplace, a showplace, for high school, Babe Ruth and other leagues. Maybe the Kentucky Rifles would play a few games here.

We could host the high school regional tournament here. It doesn't have to be played at Pikeville or Paintsville every year. It would bring money into our area.

Hey, let's show these kids coming up that we really, really do care. Do something!

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports.

Foul ball!

Baseball fans will not hesitate to tell you they would rather watch the Pee Wee players play than any others. Little tykes, like this Martin Padre players, take the game very seriously and play very hard. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Prestonsburg Rangers drop two games to Yankees, A's

The Prestonsburg Rangers found Little League play last week rather tough as they dropped two games in the Prestonsburg Little League.

The Rangers suffered an 11-1 drubbing at the hands of the Prestonsburg Yankees and fell 11-5 to the A's in the second game.

The Yankees, coming off their first loss of the season, defeated the Rangers last Tuesday night at Archer Park as the Rangers were guilty of some shoddy fielding. The Rangers committed four errors in the game and could only collect two hits in scoring their lone run.

The Yankees took a 3-0 lead in their half of the first inning. Kyle Shepherd started the rally with a two-out walk. He advanced to third following a walk to Eric Fleming and a passed ball. Another passed ball allowed Shepherd to score the first run. Fleming came around to score on Justin Hackworth's triple. Hackworth scored the third run on a passed ball.

The Yankees added four more in the second after the Rangers went out harmlessly. Gabe Shepherd had a two-run single in the second inning. Kyle Shepherd also had a RBI single.

It was 11-0 after the Yankees batted in the third.

The Rangers scored their lone run in the top of the fourth when Robert Spradlin doubled home Chad Wallen.

Against the A's, the Rangers still looked shell shocked as they could generate no offense in the first three innings.

While the Rangers were looking for ways to score, the A's had built a 6-0 lead going into the fourth inning. The Rangers did manage to get on the scoreboard in the fourth.

Ranger starter Robert Spradlin retired the first six batters he faced and then the defense seemed to collapse behind him as the A's plated six runs on two Ranger errors and a two run double by Holbrook. Greg Hall and Perry had RBI singles for the A's in the inning.

After Josh Slone's first inning single for the Rangers, the A's pitching set down the next eight batters. Four consecutive singles by Slone, Spradlin, Powers and Wallen produced two runs for the Rangers.

Clifton Jordan tripled to open the Rangers sixth, but was left stranded as Jordan bounced back to the pitcher to end the game.

Castle

Kaleb Yates led the Allen hit parade with two hits, including a third inning double. Castle doubled in the same inning.

Shannon Potter, Lance Jones, Craig Hamilton and Brad Kidd collected the only four hits for HAP. Hamilton had the only extra base hit for HAP.

Jones started on the mound for HAP and was the losing pitcher. He worked the first five innings, allowing six runs on seven hits. Jones walked two batters and had seven strikeouts.

Chad Case relieved Jones in the sixth giving up two runs on two hits.

HAP took a 2-0 lead with a two-run second. Craig Hamilton doubled and scored on Kidd's RBI single. Kidd stole second and eventually scored on a passed ball.

Allen tied the game with two in the bottom of the third. Wesley Collins was plunked with a pitch from Jones and he stole second before scoring on Castle's run producing double. Yates followed Castle with his two-bagger to tie the game at two.

Three runs crossed the plate in the fourth for Allen as they went up 5-2. Chris Moore started the rally when he roped a single to the outfield. With two out, Collins singled home Moore and Eric Cook lined a hit to center to score Collins. Cook later scored on a wild pitch.

The Sox added a single run in the fifth and two more in the sixth to win 8-2.

Hamilton hurls, bats Paintsville past Bath County

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Paintsville Big League baseball team played its second double-header of the young season and split the two games with Boyd County Monday night at Boyd County.

Paintsville took the opener 10-2 before dropping the nightcap 3-2.

Brent Hamilton took to the hill in the first game and hurled five strong innings before giving way to Jason Pinson. Hamilton allowed only one run on three hits. He struck out five batters and issued three base on balls.

Pinson worked the final two innings, allowing just one run on three hits.

Hamilton collected two hits for Paintsville in game one as did Johnson Central's Mark Shortridge. Jon Holbrook, Brent Adams and Don Montgomery each had a hit.

In the second game, Allen Central's Josh Hansford picked up two RBIs with a base hit, but his team came up a run short in a 3-2 loss.

Paintsville's Craig Ratliff suffered the setback with Jimmy Wayne Frazier working in relief.

Paintsville collected only four hits in the contest with Jason Pinson getting two. Hansford had his single and Ratliff singled.

Paintsville will host its annual tournament this weekend at the Paintsville Park. Louisville Fern Creek, Laurel County, the Lexington Giants, Huntington and Madison County will join Paintsville for the tournament which will run through Sunday.

Paintsville split with Hazard in season debut

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Paintsville Big League team began the defense of its state title by traveling to Hazard for a doubleheader this past Friday evening.

Paintsville came away with a split with the Bulldogs, winning the opener 11-1 before dropping the nightcap 7-3.

All 19 Paintsville players saw action in the second game, giving coaches Paul David Brown and Johnnie Lemaster a chance to take a look at all the players.

Don Montgomery (Paintsville High School) picked up the win in game one for Paintsville, going the first four innings. Montgomery allowed just the one run, unearned, on one hit. He walked four batters and fanned three.

Brent Hamilton (Paintsville High School) worked the final three innings allowing no runs on three hits. He walked one and struck out one.

Paintsville played excellent defense, committing only one error. They were perfect in stolen bases with five in five attempts.

Jon Holbrook (Paintsville High School) led the way at the plate with three hits in four plate appearances. Chad Webb (Johnson Central) and Hamilton collected two hits in the first game.

Paintsville came out on the short end of the score dropping a 7-3 decision in game two.

Where Paintsville was solid on defense in game one, the opposite was true in the second game. Paintsville committed four errors which proved to be costly.

Jeremy Melvin (Johnson Central), after spending all day at a college tryout, arrived in time to take the mound in the second game for Paintsville.

Melvin suffered the setback in going just three and a third innings. He allowed seven runs on five hits. Only two of the seven runs were earned as the Paintsville defense collapsed behind Melvin.

Melvin walked four and did not strike out a batter, which is very uncharacteristic of the hard thrower.

Jimmy Frazier hurled two-thirds of an inning with Sheldon Clark's Jason Pinson going the rest of the way.

Coach Brown was pleased with what he saw, but the club will get better.

"I thought we played well for this early in the year," said Brown. "We still have a lot of work to do, but the kids are working hard."

Betsy Layne's Greg Hunter had a single in the second game. Holbrook collected one hit as did Johnson Central's Todd Tackett. Pinson and Chris Bowlin (Johnson Central) had a hit apiece.

The Paintsville Big League team will host the first of its two tournaments this weekend at the Paintsville Park. Besides Paintsville, Madison County, Lexington, Huntington and Laurel County will be taking part.

The tournament begins Friday and will conclude on Sunday.

Out? It was close!

It was a bang-bang play at first base as HAP first baseman Brad Reynolds held onto the ball to retire a Garrett Ranger runner on a close play at first. The two teams met last Saturday. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Astros, Cubs split two as season comes to an end

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Harold-Allen-Prater Little League's regular season came to a finish this past week as the league prepares for its league tournament and all-star selection.

The Allen Astros and Mud Creek Cubs split their last two games as they faced each other in back-to-back outings.

The Astros posted a 6-5 win in the first meeting of the two teams and the Cubs won by one run in a make-up game.

The Astros scored the winning run in the bottom of the sixth inning in Friday night's game. Chris Hall scored after drawing a one out walk. Hall came around with the winning run on a base hit by Aaron Swiger, his second hit of the game.

The Cubs had scored three times in the top of the fifth to tie the game at five after trailing 5-2 through five. A leadoff walk to Jonathan Tackett started the rally for the Cubs. With two runners on base, Leroy Adkins singled home two runs to make it a 5-4 game. Adkins scored the tying run on Ryan Hall's base hit.

The Astros threatened in the bottom of the fifth, but left the bases loaded as Brandon Hansford struck out.

The Cubs were unable to score in the top of the sixth after Brent Hamilton led off the inning with a base hit against Chris Hall, who relieved starter Nick Spears in the fourth. Hall proceeded to strike out Brandon Newsome, Tackett and Ryan Justice to end the inning.

The Astros led 2-1 after the first inning and went on top 4-1 after two. Each team scored single runs in the fourth for a 5-2 game.

Swiger had two hits for the Astros with a double in the first inning that scored two runs.

Spears, who started for the Astros, worked just the first three innings facing 10 batters. He struck out seven of the ten.

Hall was the winning pitcher going the final three. Hall allowed four runs on three hits. He fanned seven.

In the make-up game, the Cubs got some revenge of sorts as they came away with a one run victory. Jake Carroll had a triple and a double to lead the Cubs from the plate. Brent Hamilton also collected two hits. Ryan Hall had a second inning double.

The Cubs scored all the runs they would need in the first two innings with two runs coming home in the first and three in the second.

The Astros plated three runs in the third inning and scored one time in the bottom of the sixth on a RBI single by Chris Hall. The Astros left the tying and winning runs stranded in the inning.

Brent Hamilton doubled in the first and scored on Carroll's triple to give the Cubs a 1-0 lead. Carroll scored on a wild pitch to make it 2-0.

Brent Newsome singled to start the Cub's second and came around to score on Brandon Newsome's double. Newsome was caught trying to steal. Brock Keathley doubled and scored on Hamilton's base hit to make it 5-0.

Swiger blasted a two-run home run in the bottom of the third inning to account for two of the three runs the Astros scored. Chris Hall had tripled to start the inning and he stole home to put the Astros on the scoreboard. One out later, Matt Zemo reached on an error and Swiger hit his round tripper.

The Astros went out in order in the fourth and stranded one runner in the fifth.

Carroll picked up the win for the Cubs going the first four innings.

Mud Creek Reds defeat Indians and Braves to stay undefeated

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Mud Creek Reds Pee Wee baseball team remained undefeated after it posted double wins over the Mud Creek Indians and Braves last week.

The Reds recorded a 15-3 win over the Indians in the first game to run their record to 6-0 on the season.

Jason Hamilton got the win for the Reds against the Indians in a game that went only three innings before being called because of the mercy rule.

Joe Hall had a triple in the first inning and doubled in the second before singling in the third. Daniel Osborne had two doubles and a single for the Reds, who scored five times in the first three innings.

Adam Newsome collected a triple in a three-hit night. Adam Parson was hard to retire with two triples and a double. Jason Hamilton had two hits for the Reds and it was his RBI single that scored Parson to give the Reds a 10 runs lead.

The Reds won 17-3 over the Braves, scoring eight times in the third inning to improve to 7-0 on the season.

Adam Newsome had six RBIs in the game with a home run and two singles. Jason Hamilton also had an inside-the-park home run in the third inning. He finished with three hits and three RBIs.

Frankie Firestone had two hits for the Reds against the Braves. Brandon Hall doubled in the third.

Jeremy Johnson doubled for the Braves in the third inning in a two-for-two evening. Dallas Mitchell had a double in the third.

The Braves, in second place in the Mud Creek league, fell to 4-3 on the season.

Good news: Walker, Edwards qualify; Kentucky reloads again

Good news for University of Kentucky basketball fans. Recruits Antoine Walker and Allen Edwards received satisfactory scores in the mail last week on their college entrance exams and will be eligible to play as freshmen.

Edwards clearing the academic hurdle was a pleasant surprise since two previous testings had not been encouraging.

The 6-5 Miami native's passing his exam is a demonstration "if you want something bad enough..."

Next, forget the hype about where Kentucky's recruiting class ranks nationally. The important question-answer is how will the rookies blend into a veteran-laden roster?

For 1994-95 Kentucky's front court is loaded, top heavy talented with Andre Riddick and Mark Pope in the middle, Jared Prickett, Walter McCarty and Rodrick Rhodes being joined at forward by Walker and Scott Padgett.

Backcourt shootists: Tony Delk, Chris Harrison and Jeff Sheppard will be joined by Cameron Mills. And point guard Anthony Epps now has a partner too in Edwards.

Role plays to watch at UK? Each is a vignette of much interest.

Center. Riddick's forte is defense, Pope's is offense. The former has shown a penchant for "drifting of" at times while the latter, while being an intense type, has been out of game competition for a year.

Power forward. Prickett is looking for a comeback season. Walker, if he adjusts mentally to team at this level, has the skills to impact. Padgett may do spot duty or don a red shirt.

Small forward. Which Rodrick Rhodes will show up next season? Meanwhile, McCarty—if he's absorbing steaks and shakes and doing the weight room things—needs only a dose of consistency to bloom.

2-Guard. Delk's shot goes south occasionally, but his strength, nose for defense and attitude about rebounds, make him vital next season.

Jeff Sheppard and Chris Harrison could be to Kentucky what the Nasty Boys were to the Cincinnati Reds four years ago.

Point guard. One sophomore, one freshman. A mystery.

FILL IN THE BLANK

This college basketball coach (fill in the blank) "always has valued loyalty over ego, family over financial considerations, happiness over high profile. He can afford to be choosy so he is."

A paragraph by college basketball writer Gene Wojciechowski about Rick Pitino, right?

Wrong. Mike Krzyzewski after Duke's coach turned down overtures from NBA Trailblazers.

Postscript: Wojciechowski also wrote: "as to reasons why he (Coach K) considered leaving, who knows for sure. We have enough problems spelling his name..."

Yes, we do. And yours too.

IDEAS DEPT.

A baseball strike next month? Time for a reality check and I have an idea. Hire Buddy Ryan away from the Phoenix Cardinals. Make him baseball commissioner.

Ryan exhibited a perfect political correctness for the times recently when he negotiated a contract renewal with wide receiver Gary Clark. "You can take a 30 percent cut or a 100 percent cut," Ryan said.

Baseball owners and their toy soldiers better wake up. Americans will find other entertainment, cheaper too.

Yo, Dick Motta, a history lesson—remember who Portland Trailblazers passed over in '84 to draft Sam Bowie? Do the Dallas Mavs a big favor. When they open your microphone, say, "Dallas chooses Grant Hill."

Pat Riley. When he came out of the University of Kentucky in 1967—bad back and all—Riley was an NBA first round pick by San Diego (now the Houston Rockets).

A solid 6-3 190-pounder, Riley was also drafted that year by the Dallas Cowboys as a tight end.

Come to think of it, Riley coaches a football team doesn't he? Anyone else agree with the headline in last week's Sporting News on the NBA title series: Just Get It Over With?

CORBIN GETS DEATON

Corbin Redhound fans lost basketball coach extra-ordinaire Billy Hicks last month, but they are going to like the new guy. Mike Deaton (ex-Caverna) is a keeper. He is 36 and been involved with basketball since the cradle (father Carl coached 38 years); mother coached too. And Mike's sister Andrea was an academic All-American player at Campbellsville College last season.

Deaton, who played quarterback at UK in 1977 and '78, was a 2-time all-state basketball player. He is 57th on Kentucky's all-time scoring list, 2,268 points for Green County.

KY. ALL-STARS

Kudos to Ky. Lions officials for introducing new wrinkles to try and invigorate the Kentucky-Indiana summer all-star series.

A 3-point shooting contest at half-time of the boys and girls games June 18 in Freedom Hall will feature 16 of the state's top perimeter shooting seniors-to-be.

Athalf-time of the girls game, eight boys will have one minute to shoot five balls each from three spots on the court.

Athalf-time of the boys game, eight senior-to-be girls will do the same.

Selected for the first 3-Point Shootout: Craig Offutt of S. Hopkins; Derrick Clubb, Warren East; Gilwan Nelson, PRP; Tim Couch, Bullitt East; Stephen Moses, Harrison Co.; Chris Fitzgerald, Pulaski Co.; James Hurley, Buckhorn; and Michael Lynch, Ashland-Paul Blazer.

Girls: Farrah Beach, Calloway Co.; Ashley Gilmore, Owensboro Catholic; Farrah Sullivan, Taylor Co.; Latachie McIntyre, Fern Creek; Amanda Finn, Boone Co.; Andrea Hill, Woodford Co.; Janet Jones, Knox Central; and Jamie Runyon, Belfry.

Also, following practice and dinner June 16 at the Ky. School for the Blind, the Ky. and Ind. all-stars will listen to featured speaker Winston Bennett, UK assistant coach and Mr. Basketball, 1983.

GIRLS' SLO-PITCH

It's a hunch, but legislating in fast-pitch softball to replace Kentucky girls high school slo-pitch without so much as an experimental or phase-in season or two, feels like a bad idea.

Fast-pitch will create more college scholarship opportunities, reasons Rep. Anne Meagher R-Louisville who sponsored the bill.

Sounds noble enough, but a scholarship or two or three does not balance well against a far more important element at the high school level, participation.

The price of fast-pitch will be high since indicators are hundreds of girls will choose not to play.

Here is an opportunity for new Commish Louis Stout to exhibit some leadership. Implement a phase-in program that would give those who play a vote (with their feet) on what sport the majority wants.

That's one of the KHSAA's primary goals isn't it?

WORTH REPEATING DEPARTMENT

Egad, UK-Rick Pitino fans! If it's true the LA Clippers are about to offer Pat Riley $3 mill a year for five and a piece of the franchise, watch out. That's just the kind of deal (from say, the Celtics) that might turn Da Coach's head.

Kidd in (jail) khaki. California law enforcement authorities have recommended basketball star Jason Kidd be prosecuted for reckless driving and hit and run. Projected to be an NBA lottery pick this month, anybody want to bet against Kidd getting off?

Pacers coach Larry Brown on Reggie Miller and other smart-mouthed NBA players today: "It bothers me a little bit because I love the game and I think these guys have such an effect on people and kids."

UK Scholastics. For the eighth time in 10 years the University of Kentucky football program led the SEC in academic honor roll selections. Since 1980 Kentucky has put 124 student-athletes on the academic honor roll.

PARTING SHOT

Houston Rockets guard Vernon Maxwell before a playoff game against the Utah Jazz. "None of our guys like the city of Utah."

And so it goes.

Against Martin, the Cards scored six times in the third inning en route to a 6-4 win. The win kept the Cardinals one game behind the Reds in the North Division entering the last week of the regular season.

Heath Scott hurled a complete game in securing the win for the Cardinals. He walked five batters while striking out eight. Scott scattered five Reds' hits.

Henry Napier worked the first four innings for the Reds in taking the loss. Larry Mullins went the final two.

Napier suffered some control problems in the third inning when the Cards took a 6-0 lead. Napier retired the first six batters he faced until he walked Dwight McKinney leading off the third. Napier walked the next two batters to load the bases.

David Watkins put the Cards on the scoreboard with a two-run single. After Scott walked, Jeremy Hayes delivered a two-run single and Tim Davis had a RBI single to make it 5-0. Charles McGlothen reached on a base hit and the sixth run scored when Josh Bailey singled home a run.

The Reds caused the Cards some concern when they plated three runs in the bottom of the fourth for a 6-3 game and came back with a single run in the fifth for a 6-4 game.

Chris Damron singled with one out in the bottom of the fourth for the Reds to start the three-run rally. Crum then doubled him home and he and Napier scored on Fields' base hit. Samons scored the lone Reds run in the fifth after walking and coming home on Damron's triple.

The win improved the Cards record to 7-3 on the season and it was their fourth straight victory.

Scott retired the Reds in order in the sixth inning in securing the win.

Against the Orioles, Brandon Click thrilled the Cardinal fans as he went all the way in his team's 12-4 win over the Duff Orioles.

The Cardinals scored five runs in the top of the sixth inning to put the game in the win column.

Nick King went the distance for the Orioles in suffering the setback.

Jeremy Hayes had a double for the Cardinals as did Charles McGlothen. Click had a two-bagger in the fourth inning and Josh Yates doubled in the sixth. Yates finished with three hits in the game.

Freedman outlasts Tallent in Maryland Amateur

Chuck Freedman of Crofton took a four shot lead after 18 holes in the morning, then went on to a 5 and 4 victory over Pat Tallent of Congressional to win the Maryland Amateur golf championship yesterday at Norbeck Country Club, former site for USA Open tournaments.

The 36-year-old Greenbelt resident seemed to make more key putts at the course where he used to be a member, and in four long days he played seven rounds of golf.

"I'm tired," said Freedman. "I'm sure I'll regain consciousness sometime tomorrow."

He said this tournament is as much an endurance contest as a golf match. "I kept hanging in there," said Freedman, a former pro who regained his amateur status last year.

Tallent, of Vienna, played exceptionally well at 2 under par Saturday in winning quarterfinal and semifinal matches. Sunday, he was somewhat off his game, shooting a morning 77, compared to Freedman's 1-over 73, and found himself 4 down at the lunch break.

He fell to 5 down after he drove into the trees and took bogey on the first hole of the afternoon round.

Tallent managed a mini rally with two straight birdies on Nos. 5 and 6 to pull within three. The par-4 seventh hole was pivotal. Tallent appeared poised to pull within two when he hit the green with his second shot and Freedman missed to the right. But Freedman regained his four shot lead by chipping up and making his par putt and Tallent three-putted for bogey.

"I just didn't putt well," said Tallent, who was a medalist in this event twice and in 1989 made it to the semifinals. "It was grueling hard work, but Chuck had to do the same thing I had to do."

Tallent defeated Adrian Druzgala of Hobbit's Glen, 3 and 2, to make it to the finals. Freedman edged Phil

Fairbanks of Hobbit's Glen, 2 and 1 in his Saturday afternoon semifinal round after eliminating Tom Mensing of the University of Maryland in his morning quarterfinal.

Tallent had played the traditional tournament many times. He has been a qualifying medalist, a co-medalist, and in 1989 he lost to eventual winner Gary Mason in the semifinals.

"I've played in it a long time, it's a great tournament," said Tallent, 40, a former Maytown Wildcat standout and George Washington University basketball player.

Tallent was signed out of high school where he took his talents to the Washington metro area school and played for his brother, Bob Tallent, then head coach, who played at the University of Kentucky.

Tallent is just one of four basketball talented brothers that played at Maytown High School.

T.V. weather anchor receives AMS Seal

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Elhanan Pete Grigsby III of WEVV-TV has been awarded the Seal of Approval of the American Meteorological Society in recognition of the quality of his television weather broadcasts.

Grigsby is a former basketball standout at the former McDowell High School.

The Seal is awarded by the Society to broadcast meteorologists who meet established criteria for scientific competence and effective communication skills in their weather presentations. Among radio and television meteorologists, the Seal of Approval is sought as a mark of distinction and a recognition of achievement in the communication of scientific information.

To earn the Seal of Approval, a broadcast meteorologist must apply to the Society, offering evidence of education and professional experience sufficient to meet established national standards, along with three examples of his or her work. The application is judged by a national board of examiners to assess four elements: technical competence, informational value, explanatory value, and communication skills.

Sealholders are highly respected among their peers. Professional meteorologists have confidence that weather presentations made by sealholders will be technically sound and responsibly delivered. The general public can have equal confidence in the quality and reliability of weather presentations made by broadcast meteorologists approved by the Society.

Grigsby has a B.A. Degree in communications from Brigham Young University and a Meteorology Degree from Western Kentucky University. He is a native of Floyd County and a 1982 graduate of McDowell High School.

Conley injured; to miss both All-Star series with Indiana

Hurts knee in Sunday's practice

by Jason Blanton
Contributing writer

After a storied high school career, Elkhorn City's Todd Conley was looking forward to ending his high school playing days as a member of the Kentucky All-Stars.

But that came to an end Sunday night when he was injured during practice for the Saturday's game against the Indiana Hoosiers.

Conley tore part of the patella tendon in his left knee during the second practice.

"I came down the court and tried to stop and my knee gave out on me," Conley told reporters. "I was ready to play. I got myself in shape and was ready to go."

According to trainer Tom Stelterkamp, the injury will not require surgery.

"It's a shame," said Elkhorn City coach Randy McCoy. "Todd has worked extremely hard to get to play. He was really looking very good."

Conley had trimmed down from 240 to 227 for the All-Star games.

"He would have either started or played a lot off the bench," said McCoy.

The Georgetown College signee will wear a brace nearly the length of his leg for two to three weeks. The injury will cause him to miss both this Saturday's game in Louisville and next week's event in Indianapolis.

"It has to be tough for Todd. He has always played through minor injuries. But in this case, with an injury like this, you can't take any chances," said McCoy.

Conley averaged 27 points per game for Elkhorn City this past season.

McCoy stated that Conley is still in Louisville and will be on the bench for both games of the series.

Fishing with ...

Fishing in the spring will give us an opportunity to use a lot of shallow water patterns. As the fish move into the shallows and prepare to spawn, one of the most productive methods to catch and land them is with a floating worm and the famous Slug O. Both of these baits will catch fish year round, but the best results seem to come while the water is around 60 to 65 degrees.

I, myself, usually fish a floating worm on spinning tackle. I'll use a medium heavy action 6' tall St. Croix rod and a ball bearing spinning reel. I'll spool on 12lb test Triple Fish line and use a 3/0 VMC worm hook. Then I'll move into the shallow spawning flats and fish it by twitching the worm with short twitches. A lot of the time you'll actually see the fish nose up and look the bait over before he'll actually take the worm. Then what I'll do is shake the rod tip to make the worm quiver. A lot of time this will entice the fish to inhale the bait. When fishing a floating worm, fish it in the flat back of pockets and bays and along shallow creek channels. It comes in a variety of colors, but white or chartreuse usually works for me.

The Slug O made by Lunken City is probably the best thing to come along since the plastic worm. This bait is so real looking it is unbelievable. The action of the Slug O is tremendous when it is worked with a rod twitched vigorously then let settled for about 3 seconds then worked again. This will draw bass out in a hurry. This bait will catch quality fish regularly. I like to fish it in some of the same places as I do the floating worm. The tackle I'll use is a 6' - 6 1/2' St. Croix bait casting rod with 17 - 20 lb test Triple Fish line. The Slug O comes in two sizes. One is about 3" long. This one I'll use with an offset 3/0 VMC hook. The 5' Sluz

O I'll use an offset 5/0 VMC hook. If you try some of these techniques this spring, I'm sure you'll be happy with your catch.

Three main reasons bass strike

Bass like other beings have so called reasons for reacting and or behaving in the manner which they do. I want to categorize and discuss the three main behavioral reasons bass strike. Keep in mind there are other reasons besides these three. Also the percentage of strikes you obtain from any one category will differ from myself and other fishermen as well. The reason for this will depend on your style as a fisherman, the baits you use, and the time of year you fish.

I have found, and feel that most everyone will agree, that the number one reason bass strike is to feed. These feeding bass I feel are also some of the easiest to catch. A hungry bass isn't too terribly particular. They are also very aggressive and strike hard therefore hooking themselves to a point that they're hard to lose. Bass feed for several reasons and even more conditions determine when they'll feed and for how long. A few examples of this are barometric pressure, cloud cover, or a warm up after a cold front.

The second reason a bass will strike is out of reflex. It's a natural reaction for any predator. The most important thing to remember to obtain a reflex strike is presentation of the lure. The bait must be in front of the bass to generate a strike of this kind. Imagine where you think the bass will be on a stump, for example, and throw the bait so it will go directly in front of its eyes. The main lures to use for a reflex strike are the crankbait and the spinnerbait.

The third most important reason a bass will strike a bait is out of anger. To generate a strike out of anger is to me one of the funniest reactions to get from a bass. One of the main lures to use to get an anger strike is a buzzbait. This very noisy and fast moving bait could make anyone or anything angry if provoked enough. You know when a buzzbait is hit, the bass' sole purpose is to make the aggravation go away.

Keep a positive attitude, Keep casting, and Keep FISHING!!!

The Adventures of Pinocchio was written by Italian author Carlo Lorenzini, under the pen name Carlo Collodi.

Woo Dawes

To keep your line from slipping off your spinning reel and tangling, there are four simple steps you can take.

- First, don't over-fill the reel. Leave 1/8-inch space from the top.
- Second, when you're spooling new line, make sure it comes off the factory spool clockwise.
- Third, take off about 30 feet of line and stretch it straight. Fourth, rub fish attractant into the line to make it more limp, which will make it come off the reel more smoothly.

Bassin' with the Pros

LARGE, NOISY TOPWATER LURES COULD CATCH BIG BASS NOW

Former world bass fishing champion Guido Hibdon attributes much of his success to light line and small lures, but unknown to many, the Missouri pro also keeps plenty of big, noisy topwater lures in his tacklebox.

"A big topwater lure like a Zara Spook can catch a bass at any given time," says the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler. "Even now in the summer, you don't have to limit yourself to early morning and late afternoon with topwater lures."

"You can use one all day long. You may not get that many strikes, but the hits you do get will be from big fish."

Hibdon says he has always believed that using larger lures like the Zara Spook, rather than smaller topwater plugs, draws strikes from bigger bass, and he's willing to sacrifice numbers of smaller fish to get fewer larger fish.

"You can fish a big topwater lure just about anytime of year, except perhaps in the coldest part of the winter," he explains. "In the summer you may have to make several casts to the same spot to get any strikes, but when a big bass finally decides to hit, he's going to hit with a vengeance."

"There's nothing like it in bass fishing."

Many anglers limit their topwater fishing to cloudy, windy days, but Hibdon prefers to fish topwaters on clear, calm days.

"Basically, it's because not many other anglers will be doing it," smiles the Johnson pro. "I don't want to use the same lures everyone else does, so I usually try something different."

Topwater plugs like the Zara Spook are excellent fish-finding lures, adds Hibdon, but few anglers actually use them for that purpose.

"You can throw a big topwater plug around a boat dock or over a deeper point and work it noisily back to you," he explains, "and for whatever reason you can get strikes when nothing else works."

"Even if you don't actually catch the bass that hit, at least you know they're present and you can start using other lures. Several professional tournament anglers have made a career by fishing topwater lures like this, but it's something very few do."

Hibdon uses a fiberglass rod rather than graphite when he fishes a topwater lure because the rod is more forgiving.

"What that means," he says, "is that the rod flexes easier and lets the bass engulf the lure. It's easy to take a topwater plug away from a bass because the rod doesn't flex enough before we react and set the hook."

Treble hooks rarely hook as well as single hooks, either, so you have to give the bass every chance you can to take the lure completely, especially if it's a big fish."

Evinrude and Johnson outboard dealers offer the Pro-Team Bass Vest, a personal flotation device (PFD) designed for bass fishermen. The vest features four pockets, adjustable sides and a D-ring for attaching an emergency ignition cut-off tether.

NEVER-GIVE-UP-ATTITUDE ESSENTIAL IN PROFESSIONAL FISHING

Professional angler Mickey Bruce of Buford, Georgia, has always kept a never-give-up attitude when he's bass fishing, and recently he proved just how important such feelings can be.

Bruce, a veteran tournament competitor and a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff, weighed in an incredible 83 pounds, 12 ounces of bass during a tournament on Georgia's Lake Seminole, but his catching time was far shorter than his fishing time.

"On the first afternoon of competition, I only had one fish at 2:30 p.m.," he explained. "I only had 30 minutes left before the weigh-in when I found a school of bass, and then I caught 19 pounds before I had to leave."

The second day, Bruce weighed in a five bass, 26 pound, 12 ounce stringer, and added 18 pounds, four ounces more the third day.

"Then on the final day I lost the fish," says Bruce. "The weather had turned bad and the bass moved. At 2:00 p.m. with less than an hour remaining in the tournament, I did not have a single bass in the live well."

Even though he saw his potentially high place finish in the event slipping away, Bruce continued fishing and searching as hard as he could. Then, with just 15 minutes of fishing time remaining, he found the bass again and boated a stunning 20 pound stringer. He finished second in the tournament and won $30,000.

"I was the only person in the tournament fishing deep water," explained the Evinrude pro, "even though everyone else was catching bass shallow. Last year, I found fish deep when we fished Lake Seminole but by the time the tournament started, those fish had moved shallow and I never found them again."

"This year I felt at least some of the bass had already been shallow to spawn and may have returned to deeper water. I started fishing shallow like everyone else but I couldn't locate any fish."

"At 2:30 that first afternoon I basically started all over, and then on the final afternoon I just kept telling myself that every time I made a cast

I was getting closer and closer to the fish and that eventually I'd find them."

Bruce believes he developed his never-give-up attitude during his fishing days at Lake Lanier, a popular impoundment north of Atlanta. It is a deep, clear water lake with bass famous for being fickle.

"Bass on Lanier move a lot," says Bruce, "so you often have to spend a lot of time just looking for them. On really tough days, you have to convince yourself you are really learning something, even if you aren't catching anything."

"I didn't realize it then, but those years of having to fish that way were good preparation for tournament competition."

A SISTER'S TRIBUTE TO DAD(S)
Sunday is Father's Day, and as usual, I've spent the last couple of weeks trying to put together an appropriate column — one that would say exactly the right thing, and at the same time, not be generic.

I needn't have worried, because all I had to do was go to the post office. You see, it seems that my sister Mary Jean (who is now retired and living in Georgia) has been thinking about fathers, too, and mailed me a "little something," as she put it, that she'd written about our own father, Bill Pack.

With her permission, and even without it, I'd like to share her thoughts.

She wrote, "I don't know why, but it seems it takes us a lifetime to know what it is about fathers that we loved so much. I knew he loved me and that I loved him, but there are so many things that only the years have made me realize. There are so many things that I wish I could say to him now.

"First and foremost," she continued, "my dad was a Christian. He lived and practiced this to the best of his ability and he took his family to church. I'm sure there are some of his friends who still remember his charity; some sort of help he gave them.

"Secondly, he was an Eastern Kentucky coal miner. In this day of modern mechanization, that doesn't say much, and little, if anything, ever gets said about what that job entailed. But I know, and so do all the other children whose fathers made their living mining coal. Few people give thought to how every day, a 1940s coal miner put this life on the line so that someone else could live a little more comfortably. As a child, I didn't understand about that danger, and I'm sure that in my wildest imagination, that even now, I could never comprehend how very hard he had to work.

"I do remember, however, how he would take me by the hand and how we would walk together to Granny Puckett's to get milk and butter when our own cow was dry. I was very proud of him then."

Mary also remembers, "how safe I felt because I was Bill Pack's girl, which is what people would say when I told them my name. My dad was respected in the community."

She also commented upon his death: "Dad died in 1969 and I've thought many times about what impact he left on this world. In material things, not much. But he left five sons and two daughters who grew up to be respected citizens of their communities, who practice the same moral values that he did, and who have raised their families the same way. I'd say that is quite a legacy, and that he left this earth much richer than it would have been if he had never been here."

Thanks, Mary, for sharing your thoughts. Because of you, today's column is also much richer than it ordinarily would have been.

We love you.

Barnett is 1994 Mother-of-the-Year

by Patricia Watson

"SHE is the very one!" was the vote of the members of the Independent Christian Women's Fellowship as they selected Daisy Barnett, of Martin, as their choice for 1994 "Mother-of-the-Year!"

Daisy Barnett, 76, was honored at the 18th annual Mother-Daughter-Friends banquet which was held May 7th at the Wilkinson/Stumbo Convention Center at Prestonsburg. This honor is given in recognition of her Christian testimony within both her home and community as well as for her service.

She enjoys gardening and working with her pink geraniums and gladiolus flowers. She is a homemaker who enjoys serving favorite dishes such as fried chicken and delicious banana pudding to her family of five sons, their wives, 14 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren (with another one on the way).

Daisy's sons are: T.J. Barnett, of Michigan; Bobby Barnett, of Lexington; Darby Barnett of Lexington; Billy Barnett of Martin; and Walter Raleigh Barnett, Jr., of Lexington.

"Daisy is a 'doer!'" was the description by her daughter-in-law, Judy. "Just ask her for help and she sees that it gets done." She presently helps with the care of her 100-year-old mother and visits the rest home and the sick as she has opportunities.

Throughout the years, Daisy has been a busy worker in her church, in Sunday School and, in earlier years, with teaching some Bible lessons in schools. Two of her favorite verses include: John 3:16 and Proverbs 22:6, which reads: "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Daisy was saved in her garden while picking beans and was baptized in the creek near the little church she later attended.

Daisy was presented a framed certificate which named her "Mother of the Year, 1994," and a double white carnation corsage from the ladies' fellowship. She was presented a dozen red roses from her family.

Other highlights of the evening included: a surprise tribute to Mrs. Joyce Ousley, by her niece, and namesake, Amy Joyce Arnett. Joyce received a bouquet of red roses and a framed tribute from, Amy Joyce.

Past "Mother-of-the-Year" honorees who were in attendance were recognized. These women included: Mrs. Eva Furman of Betsy Layne; Mrs. Orbie Vaughan of Prestonsburg; Mrs. Lizzie Shepherd of David; and Mrs. Leah Bowers of Sassafras. Each was presented a single, long-stemmed rose during the program.

Presenting a toast to all mothers and daughters was the mother/daughter team, Lori and Rita Daniels, of McDowell.

The banquet theme was "Praises to the Rose of Sharon!" White table linens were decorated with blue scalloped center pieces which held elevated opened song books with a single red silk rose, adorned with clinging dew drops. Fifteen-inch tapered blue candles set on either side of the opened book atop the blue mats. The decorating committee was headed by: Lois Holmquist, Barbara Wynsma, and Joyce Ousley.

Beautiful music provided by the Dick and Leah Bowers family — violin, piano, saxophone, guitar — was enjoyed throughout the meal. Vocal selections were enjoyed from daughters Bonnie and Bethany, along with daughter-in-law, Beth Ann. Exquisite sounds from musical glasses left the guests completely in awe as favorite hymns were recognized.

Participating in the program were: Patricia Watson, club president; Alice Skeans, club vice-president; Orbie Vaughan with opening prayer; and Sherry Hall and Gloria who presented a skit after the dinner.

Speaker for the evening was Mrs.

Sue Howard who spoke about "fragrance."

The Mother-Daughter-Friends banquet is an annual event sponsored by the Independent Christian Women's Fellowship of Floyd County.

"Daisy is a 'doer!'"
Daisy Barnett was named 1994 "Mother of the Year" during the Mother-Daughter-Friends banquet held May 7. At 76, Daisy is active helping others overcome their problems. Her friends say she's always willing to lend a helping hand.

Martin County student tells story on CNN

When Cable News Network (CNN) approached Tim Preece for an interview for a story it was planning on the 30th anniversary of the War on Poverty, the Martin County man was somewhat leery.

"I've seen how the media make Eastern Kentuckians appear, and I've never liked it," said Preece. "They assured me they would be fair and wouldn't use the negative stereotypes."

By and large, Preece is pleased with the way the network handled the presentation "One Paycheck from Poverty," which aired internationally in April. Preece's situation—a former coal miner struggling to live on reduced wages—is the focal point of the hour-long presentation.

The program intersperses Preece's story as it points out the plight of millions of Americans who are barely getting by financially—as the title says, people who are "one paycheck from poverty."

Preece said he was just three years old in 1964 when President Lyndon Johnson came to Martin County to announce the start of his famous War on Poverty, a set of economic and social programs designed to eradicate poverty in the U.S.

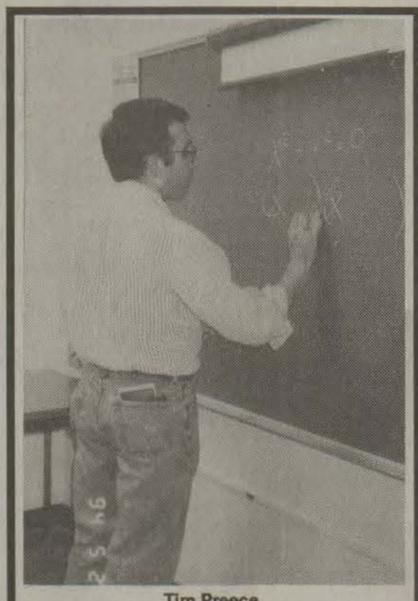

When Preece was graduated from Sheldon Clark High School in 1979, poverty seemed far removed from his life. He enrolled in Prestonsburg Community College but dropped out at mid-term, lured, he said, by the "idea of making big money."

He landed a job with Martin County Coal, which promised an affluent lifestyle without the need for a college degree. "The cost of an education compared to my yearly wages was what I was considering," he said. "I was not looking at the long term."

The decision is understandable. Before Preece was laid off from MCC in early 1989, he was earning more than $15 an hour, had full medical, dental and eye insurance, and was bringing in bonuses of $250 to $400 a month. Had he taken advantage of opportunities to work overtime, Preece said he could have made as much as $60,000 a year.

After the layoff, Preece's family faced an adjustment in pay, even though he was able to land a job with another mining company. That job and a subsequent one paid less and had fewer benefits.

But by 1991, the downturn in the coal industry left him with no job at all. The son of a coal miner decided it was time to leave mining. "I didn't want anything else to do with coal mining," Preece said.

During his mining years, he had thought about going back to college, but the coal money was too attractive. Now, all of a sudden, that was gone and nothing stood in his way.

Preece's wife, Linda, went back to work at Inez Deposit Bank. He got a job at the Pizza Shop and re-enrolled at PCC for the spring semester in 1992. The combined income amounts to less than a third of what Preece once brought home from the mine and puts the family of four below the poverty level.

In addition, as with so many struggling families, the Preece children, Tommy, 13, and Nikki, 12, are forced to be "latchkey children," locking themselves in their house every afternoon after school because their mother is working and their father is going to school, as well as working.

Though Preece is close to getting an associate's degree at PCC and transferring to a four-year institution, his life still has complications aplenty. As the CNN program pointed out, the lack of medical insurance coverage is a threat hanging over the heads of America's "working poor."

Once covered by a generous benefits plan, the family now has no medical insurance, and Preece has been a diabetic since he was six. Medication normally runs about $100 a month, he said, but because of recent complications with the disease, that bill has jumped to about $300 a month.

In fact, Preece had to miss the last month of classes in the spring semester at PCC because he was experiencing sudden dips in his blood sugar level, which led to blackouts. Since he had already proven himself to be a conscientious, bright and serious student, however, his instructors allowed him to complete his work at home.

History professor Dr. Don Barlow let Preece take a final exam near the student's home at Sheldon Clark High School instead of having to drive to Prestonsburg. The college normally offers evening classes at the Martin County high school.

The CNN program points out that Preece has not allowed his health and financial problems to get him down. He is a volunteer tutor, coaches Christian basketball and softball teams, and is a supervisor for Soil and Water Conservation, in addition to being associate pastor, Sunday School superintendent and janitor at Inez Freewill Baptist Church.

"Every day people have different battles," Preece explains. "Despair is something you allow to happen. It knocks at the door trying to come in. I keep the door shut to it."

The CNN show captures many of the battles that those living near the poverty line, such as the Preecees, have to fight. But it very clearly reflects Preece's positive outlook. "I take each day as it comes," he tells the camera.

Build around Preece's story are some startling statistics about poverty in this country. For instance, the narrators say that the number of "working poor" has increased by 50 percent in the last 3 years, and that whereas the United States recorded the highest wages in

Close to HOME
by Joe Adams
THINKING OF THE MOON ON FATHER'S DAY

When Neil Armstrong walked on the moon, my grandfather Adams in Elliott County wrote off those giant steps for mankind as one huge hoax.

He watched the black-and-white television pictures of the moon landing, saw the walk like everyone else and shook his head.

"You stand right here and you look up there at that moon and you tell me how anybody would get up there," he used to say.

I wish I could call him and talk about it on Father's Day.

But I can't. He was 76 when I was born and I was eight when he died. So we didn't have much time to get to know one another.

Just about everyone can name at least one person he or she wanted to know better, but couldn't because circumstances made it impossible.

My father's father always comes to my mind. The older I get, the more intriguing he becomes to me.

He never saw a computer, never used a calculator and never heard of a fax machine. He didn't drive a car. Not only did he discount the moon landing, he laughed at weather forecasters, too.

"Those weathermen wouldn't know a nickel from a dime," he used to say.

He was a plant-by-the-Old Farmer's-Almanac kind of guy.

Despite the growing differences between his world and mine, I'm sure we would find plenty of common ground.

UNANSWERED QUESTIONS

I wonder about things like how he weathered the Great Depression and how he dealt with losing his first wife and three children to premature deaths.

And I would like to hear him elaborate more on his doubts about the moon thing.

If there's any good news about having someone you didn't get to know well enough, it's that you can usually find people who did.

They've filled in some of the blanks for me on the man who spent his life running a country store and scratching out a living from fertile patches of bottomlands stretched between hillsides on Devil's Fork.

Most families have their share of black sheep and hell-raisers, and mine is no different. But my grandfather never gets mentioned in those terms.

He wasn't a drinker or womanizer, and the worst thing I ever heard about him was that he could be stingy and cranky at times. Friends and family put him in the "worked from daylight to dark and minded his own business" category.

The angriest my father can remember him getting was when my granny's cousin said something rude to her. My grandfather, normally a quiet and gentle person, bopped him over the head with a lantern for insulting his wife.

COLLECTING STORIES

One of my favorite stories about my grandfather involved a neighbor named Jim.

Jim liked to believe that nobody really died—they just disappeared and went somewhere else to live. One day Jim told the story of how he had seen my grandfather's recently departed dad working in another county.

"Now Jim," my grandfather responded. "You know daddy's been dead for a while."

"But I saw him," Jim said. "And he looked good, too."

My grandfather, better known as "Wid" to Jim, tried to reason with his friend but got nowhere. Then he asked Jim this question:

"Now Jim, if somebody cut your head off and put it over there on that hill and then put your body on another hill, what would you be?"

"Headless, Wid," Jim answered. "Headless." Those stories are fun to hear, but I'm not totally without my own memories.

Every time I pass my grandparents' house, I think of my grandfather, thin as a pencil, climbing the gravel road beside his house. I remember his plain starched shirts buttoned at the neck and the smell of the brown Stetson hat that covered what little hair his bald head had left.

I remember the wooden sandbox he made me and the time he destroyed my cap gun when he tried to fix it. I remember the pats on the head and the smiles he gave me. I remember the driving rain at the cemetery in Sandy Hook the day he was buried.

I suspect he no longer thinks the moon landing was a hoax. After all, he's got a better view of the heavens now.

Happy Father's Day, Papaw.

Kim's Korner

Reds, Tigers, Pirates, and Yankees—Oh, my!

This year marked the first for the Little League Girls' Softball teams here in Prestonsburg.

by Kim Frasure

And if you've missed seeing a game, you've missed some of the best entertainment Floyd County offers.

Talk about "coming a long way, baby," these little girls certainly have.

Softball never was one of my favorite sports to watch, but now thanks to the Reds, Tigers, Pirates, and Yankees, it's one of the best.

And watching from the stands while Vicki Pack cheers them on is a hoot!

As the old sayin' goes, "all good things must come to an end" and this season ends this Friday. So, to those adults who so kindly volunteered their time to coach, ump, to Bridget Clay, Steve Stevens and all involved—hats off!

To all you little girls, thanks for bringing smiles to our faces and for "coming a long way, babies."

"Correction..."

To those of you who phoned last week and commented when you saw me out and about, my apologies for the typographical error of "dead readers" which of course should have been "dear readers" in last week's column.

Some of you got a kick out of it, while others were offended.

Mistakes happen. To err is human and to apologize is divine.

My apologies extended. Till next week.

THE RED FOX OF THE MOUNTAINS, PART 13

The manhunters searching for Cal and Heenan Fleming were at the general store the following morning. It also housed the post office and after showing their warrants for the Flemings, the postmaster was totally cooperative.

The Flemings were later than usual in arriving so they sent the West Virginian to look for them. Soon he met them face to face.

"Hey, what's your fellers names?" Hoss inquired, wondering if they were who they were searching for.

The two Flemings went into a rage and pulled their guns.

"Listen you mangy scoundrel," Heenan cursed. "Our names are our business. Not yours. Ours."

Hoss knew he was in trouble and had to think fast.

"Now fellers, I'm the tax collector," Hoss spoke up. "If 'n you all are from West Virginia then I'm supposed to know who you are. Of course I can wait and see ya when the taxes are due, if ya'll are still here."

The Flemings fell for it, put their guns away and soon started walking toward the postoffice. The three lawmen were watching from a house across the road. As soon as the men entered and closed the door, the three scurried across the road and entered the store with their guns drawn.

As many as thirteen people were in the store and they hit the floor or quickly exited when they saw the unholstered guns.

Cal Fleming, reading a letter, was caught totally offguard as Branham, Hall and Swindall surged through the door.

"You are my prisoner," Ed Hall said as he grabbed Cal by the lapels of his coat and held a gun on him.

Cal reacted by springing backwards to break Hall's hold but when he did the gun discharged, sending a bullet crashing through the fugitive's chest. He died instantly.

Heenan, who had gone unnoticed although sitting ten feet away, sprang to his feet and shot Ed Hall, dropping the officer to his knees.

The outlaw turned automatically toward the other two lawmen and shot Branham in the chest and Swindall through the neck, blood spouting to the floor and Dock soon following.

Ed Hall, who was still on his knees, exchanged shots with Heenan. A shot shattered Fleming's jaw but the battle continued until a bullet ripped through his hand, sending Fleming's pistol to the floor and splitting his arm to his elbow.

"Durn you Heenan, you give up of I'll kill you shore as the world," Big Ed cursed.

Heenan ran to the back of the store but found no exit. He returned with his bloody hands held above his head in surrender.

"Well Ed, I can't fight no more," Heenan muttered as he gave up.

Ed picked up the letter Cal had been reading when the battle royale began. It was from Jarvis Caudill, back in Wise County, warning them, "Look out, John Branham, Dock Swindall and Ed Hall are after you."

Gooseneck John Branham died a few days later.

Cal Fleming lay dead, to be buried at Boggs by some of the loggers. His brother, Heenan, was taken back to Wise, VA, by Big Ed and Dock Swindall, both wounded. Swindall was wheezing noticeably through the hole in his windpipe. The two men split the $700 reward.

Swindall moved to Illinois and lived for several years. Big Ed Hall was gunned down in cold blood as he worked with a cattle and sled.

Heenan Fleming went on trial in Wise, on July 24, 1894, for the slaying of Bad Ira Mullins and four others.

He was pale as he sat in the prisoner's box in the Wise County Court House, the sunken place in his law giving noticeable testimony of the earlier gunbattle in West Virginia.

John Fox, Jr. approached the prisoner during a recess in the trial. Heenan glared at him with dark eyes after recognizing him as the man who had worn his hat during the manhunt.

"You're lucky man," Heenan told the famous author. "I was beadin' on my hat and if you'da taken three steps my way, I'da had ya. A man shouldn't take another's hat."

The author hesitated without mentioning that Heenan had taken much more and under less honorable conditions.

"Heenan, did you ever get your hat back?," the author asked instead.

"No," he answered.

"Well, if you come clear of this, go up to the store and get the best hat in town and have it charged to me," John Fox, Jr. replied.

That brought a smile from Heenan but everyone, including the author, felt he would certainly suffer the same fate of hanging as Talt Hall and the Red Fox before him.

But Jane Mullins, whose testimony sent the Red Fox to the gallows, and who was to be the lone witness to place Heenan Fleming at the scene of the crime, died.

The Commonwealth's attorney tried to prove Heenan's guilt but, without the testimony of Jane Mullins, he gave up after a few days and asked the court to dismiss the charges.

Some rumors circulated that she was killed to prevent her testimony. In any event, Heenan Fleming was released and rode out of town.

But before leaving Wise, Va., he paused at a store to buy a brand-new derby hat—a hat that he charged to John Fox, Jr.

Picture Perfect

An eye-catching landscape

"It's so pretty, it looks like a picture," is how one judge described the Prestonsburg Woman's Club "Garden of the Month" selection for June.

The landscape of Paul and Pat Setser at 259 Central Avenue was first choice out of six other yards the judges picked. The judges liked the use of material in the small space the winners had. "Everyone thought it was neat," judge Martha Johnson said. "The front yard drew attention to the house."

The one-story house, with cream siding, green window boxes and front door, is set off by pink begonias planted in the window boxes and in two miniature, decorative green and cream colored wheel barrels positioned on either side of the door. The use of river pebbles and red lava rock to create "islands," accented by plantings of blue rug juniper, nandine and Alberta spruce, make the landscape unique and eye-catching.

Pond and Lagoon construction advice

An estimated 25 to 40 percent of ponds in Kentucky don't hold water. Landowners wishing to build a pond or lagoon should follow certain construction guidelines for the best outcome.

Some dairy and hog waste lagoons can be potential sources for contamination of groundwater. How can ponds and lagoons be constructed to hold sufficient water and reduce seepage of waste products?

There are two major items to consider—geology and soils. Kentucky is fortunate to have good soils for construction throughout most of the state. These are soils with a relatively high clay content and a good distribution of silts and clays.

The most important parameter besides good soil is moisture content. An accurate way to determine how wet soil should be during construction is to contact a soils lab to conduct a Proctor test of the soil. This provides the relationship between how wet the soil is and how much compaction can be achieved.

Research at the University of Kentucky shows that moisture content should be about two or three percent above the value from the Proctor test.

What is the best way to use this knowledge during actual construction?

Have several bags of soil already prepared. Some should be dry, some just right and some a little wet.

During construction, apply water to soil in the pond, disc it up, blend, mix and feel it to determine if it is too dry, too wet or just about right. This sounds very simple, but gives the landowner a good feel for what the right moisture content should be during construction.

Other construction considerations include proper construction equipment and operation of that equipment. Initial soil preparation is also very important.

Water should be thoroughly mixed throughout the soil profile because mixing and blending of soil helps in the compaction process. A disc may be used for this mixing.

Following these simple guidelines and remembering that soil moisture is most important will greatly improve construction of ponds and lagoons which hold water.

Local Dealership Obtains Aurora Franchise

Jane D. Howard of Prestonsburg bought the first Aurora from the new Fletcher and Halls franchise. She is pictured here with salesperson, Bobby Burchett.

Fletcher and Halls Motor Corporation of Pikeville has added a new automotive line, Aurora, to their Chevrolet, Buick, Oldsmobile, Geo dealership. Aurora is more than just another new vehicle for Oldsmobile. This flagship vehicle represents the "renaissance" of Oldsmobile and will be the benchmark for the division's future product direction.

The Aurora, designed to take on the best import luxury sedans on the market today, combines innovative design, V-8 performance, unsurpassed luxury, and world-class engineering with an attractive price. It offers a list of standard features no import in its price range can match.

GM Powertrain engineers designed and developed a new 4.0 liter DOHC V-8 especially for the Aurora with the first tune-up scheduled at 100,000 miles. This 250 horsepower engine has the spunk to show taillights to the competition. Preliminary EPA mileage ratings are 16 mpg. in city driving and 25 mpg. on the highway, sufficient to keep Aurora owners from paying any gas guzzler tax.

Backing up the Aurora V-8 engine is a state-of-the-art 4-speed electronically-controlled automatic transaxle called the Hydra-matic 4T80-E. This is a heavy-duty design with the highest combined speed and torque capacity of any front-drive transaxle in the world to support the quick reflexes of a powerful luxury performance sedan. The Aurora's poised, powerful V-8 engine and state-of-the-art 4T80-E transaxle are world-class in every respect. Luxury sedan customers who thought they could be satisfied with a conventional V-6 powertrain are in for a surprise.

Aurora was planned and engineered to be as safe and secure as any vehicle on the road. The same structural integrity that assures a quiet, controlled ride also provides a very substantial base for the suspension to do its job. Low profile radial tires, independent front and rear suspensions, and speed-variable rack-and-pinion power steering all contribute to superb road holding and maneuverability. The Aurora's extensive safety systems work harmoniously to make this luxury performance sedan a personalized sanctuary on wheels.

The Aurora embodies product advancement such as the first automotive application of Bose Acoustimass speaker technology. Similar to the Bose AM-5 speaker system sold for high-fidelity home use, the Acoustimass system launches sound into the cabin by using a mass of air rather than a vibrating surface like a speaker cone. The Acoustimass system was designed exclusively for the Aurora by cooperative efforts between Bose and Delco Electronics.

For more information about the Aurora and its availability, contact any of the salespeople at Fletcher and Halls in Pikeville.

About Animals

LISTERIOSIS

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

Diseases which affect both animals and humans (zoonoses) are really rather commonplace, but not all are as well known as rabies or brucellosis.

One of the lesser known is Listeriosis, which isn't very prevalent in Kentucky at all — only 33 cases in the past seven years — but which can be severe or fatal if contracted.

It affects at least 42 species of domestic and wild animals, 22 species of birds, as well as fish, insects and crustaceans. The organism which causes the disease, Listeria monocytogenes, has also been found in sewage, water, insects, silage and other feedstuffs, as well as soil.

In sheep and cattle it seems to occur more frequently in winter months. In humans, it is seen more often in summer months.

Effects of the disease can vary. It causes abortion in both animals and

Heart Association kicks off stroke initiative campaign

The American Heart Association is currently conducting its Stroke Initiative Residential campaign in Prestonsburg.

The AHA's efforts will be directed toward educating people about the importance of knowing the warning signs of stroke—this country's third leading cause of death. At the same time, AHA volunteers will work to raise donations to support the AHA programs and cardiovascular research.

For more information on how to reduce your risk for stroke or heart disease including quitting smoking, controlling blood pressure levels, exercising and healthful eating, call 1-800-AHA-USA1.

humans. It can cause encephalitis or meningitis in both animals and humans.

An infected animal will usually become solitary at the onset of the disease, and braces itself against a corner of a fence or a stationary object as if unable to stand. When it walks, it will walk in a circle. Temperature may be elevated, the animal will develop depression and anorexia and sometimes blindness.

The disease may recur on the same premises in successive years.

Recent studies indicate that 20 to 30 percent of sporadic human infection can be attributed to consumption of non-reheated hot dogs, undercooked chicken, various soft cheeses and food purchased from store delicatessens.

Pregnant women and their newborn infants, the elderly and individuals with immunosuppressive conditions are at most risk.

A total of nine deaths in Kentucky (24 percent of the reported cases) have been reported over the seven years. There is an age differential, however. The disease seems to be fatal in 50 percent of the infected people over 60 years of age, but in only five percent of those under 60.

Some treatments may be effective if the disease is found in animals. More success is reported in treating the disease in humans, but prevention is the treatment of choice.

Some tips for preventing foodborne Listeriosis include thoroughly cooking raw food from animal sources; thoroughly washing raw vegetables before eating; keeping uncooked meats separate from vegetables; cooked foods and ready-to-eat foods; avoiding consumption of raw milk or foods made with raw milk; washing hands, knives and cutting boards after handling uncooked foods.

Additional recommendations for persons immunocompromised by illness or chemotherapy, pregnant women and the elderly, include avoiding soft cheeses (no need to avoid hard cheeses, cream cheese, cottage cheese or yogurt); reheating leftover foods until steaming hot before eating; thoroughly reheating cold cuts before eating.

Your veterinarian can explain in more detail how the disease is spread, how it can be treated and how it may be prevented.

While not common, Listeriosis can be a severe problem.

VERY BERRY ICE CREAM JELLY ROLL CAKE

4 eggs
1/2 cup water
1 package (18.25 ounces) yellow cake mix
1 1/2 quarts vanilla ice cream or frozen yogurt, softened
1 cup blueberries
1 cup raspberries
1 cup sliced strawberries
Fresh berries
Mint sprigs
Powdered sugar

Grease 2 jelly roll pans, 15 1/2 x 10 1/2-inches. Line bottom of pans with waxed paper; grease and flour. Beat eggs until thick and lemon-colored in large bowl. Mix in water. Mix in cake mix at low speed. Pour batter into pans, spreading evenly with spatula. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven until cake begins to pull away from sides of pans, 15 to 18 minutes. Immediately invert cakes onto towels that have been sprinkled with powdered sugar; peel off waxed paper and discard. Roll cakes up in towels, starting at short ends; cool on wire racks 8 to 10 minutes (do not cool longer, or cakes will be too difficult to unroll and fill).

Spread cakes with ice cream; sprinkle with berries, lightly pressing berries into ice cream. Roll cakes up; freeze until ice cream is firm, 6 hours or overnight. Cut rolls into halves and store in freezer bags. To serve, cut into slices. Garnish with fresh berries and mint sprigs. Makes 2 rolls (8 to 10 servings).

Note: Fresh or frozen berries can be used in this recipe.

TIPS FOR HOME BUYERS

Growing Acceptance Of Manufactured Housing Opens Door To Rebound In Home Sales

(NAPS)—If you're one of the growing number of Americans turning to manufactured homes as your housing choice, you're not alone.

Sales of manufactured homes continued their dramatic rebound in 1993 with sales totalling 254,276 homes—an impressive 20.6 percent increase over 1992 sales. This constituted the second year in a row that manufactured home sales have increased by 20 percent or more, with sales for 1992 up 23.5 percent over 1991. The total increase in home sales during the past two years was a dramatic 48.9 percent.

Why the surge in popularity for manufactured housing?

Several factors have spurred the rebound in manufactured home sales—first is the unique combination of affordability and value for the dollar for manufactured homes versus conventional site-built homes. Depending on the region of the country, manufactured homes can cost 25 to 50 percent less per square foot of construction than for conventional site-built homes. And in many regions of the country, it's now cheaper to purchase a manufactured home than to rent an apartment.

Manufactured homes can be built for less because of more efficient production technologies... much like the difference between a hand-built car and one produced on a modern assembly line. Manufacturers use the same quality materials as site-builders and still spend less because they're controlling inventory while assembling a home in less time and without interference from weather and other costly delays.

A second reason is that today's manufactured homes offer a wide variety of floor plans, architectural styles, and custom amenities that allow the home to reflect the home buyer's wants and needs.

Today's manufactured homes offer all the style and comfort you could want in any home. And with a wide variety of styles and prices, there's a manufactured home to fit almost every lifestyle and budget.

At your local manufactured home retail sales centers, it's now possible to see the choices available to you and how far your housing budget can stretch by choosing a manufactured home. There, you also can see first-hand how today's manufactured homes provide all the comfort and conveniences you expect in your home.
