Double Fatality on Route 23

A Magoffin County woman and her son were killed Wednesday afternoon when their car apparently hydroplaned on wet pavement, crossed the center line and crashed head-on into a Johnson County sanitation truck on Route 23 just south of Louisa. Karen Workman, 39, and her son, Michael "Shane" Workman, 20, both of Salyersville were pronounced dead at the scene of the mishap. The truck driver was not injured. ## Manslaughter verdict issued after panel debates all night

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

It took just over 11 hours of deliberations Wednesday before a jury returned a verdict of second degree manslaughter against a Floyd County man charged in last year's shooting death of an Auxier teen.

Jurors recommended a 10-year prison sentence for Jerry Michael Martin who shot and killed Shawn Patrick Prater, 19, last-summer during a high-speed car chase at Betsy Layne.

Martin and two other men were in a marijuana patch belonging to Prater's brother-in-law, Billy Ray Craft, prior to the high-speed chase. Jurors began deliberating at 3:50 p.m. Wednesday and returned their verdict just before 3 a.m. Thursday. On several occasions jurors declined Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill's offer to cease their discussions and return on Thursday morning.

The prosecution wrapped up its case just before noon Wednesday and defense attorney Phil Damron called only one witness, state police detective Joel Newsome, to the stand.

Damron asked Newsome about a knife belonging to Prater or his brother-in-law Billy Ray Craft, which was found near Craft's vehicle at the Cardinal Mart at Stanville. Craft or Prater allegedly cut Martin over his left eye when he was fleeing from Craft's residence.

Newsome testified that there appeared to be blood on the knife, but he did not send it to the state police crime lab for testing. Newsome said he could not recall whether Martin had a cut over his left eye after the shooting.

Prater's brother-in-law, Billy Ray Craft, testified that Martin and two other men had been sneaking around his house at Allen and when he shined a flashlight at the three, they took off running and later jumped in a pickup truck and left the area.

Craft said he and Prater began chasing the three men and tried to pull them over so they could fight. Prater, Craft said, was hanging half-way out of the car window waving a pipe wrench.

When Craft's vehicle pulled just behind the pickup truck, where Martin was riding in the back, Martin fired a shotgun and the slug ricocheted off the vehicle's side mirror and struck Prater in the chest.

Craft drove to the Cardinal Mart at Stanville to seek help for Prater. Prater was pronounced dead at the scene.

Damron asked Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson if the slug would have struck Prater if he had

Board finally gets two bids on school contract

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

It appears that the third time was the charm for a local engineering firm when they were the apparent low bidder on a hoisting contract for the Betsy Layne Elementary addition project.

When school officials bid the project for the third time, two bids were received for hoisting service, one from Martin Engineering and one from Warco Land Improvement Company.

The school system's operations chief, Jim Osborne said that Warco had bid $125,000 on the hoisting package and Martin Engineering bid $56,650.

Warco did not submit a bid on the hoisting package during the first two rounds of bids.

It was reported last week that school officials were apparently in violation of state law because it was recommended that Martin Engineering, who is the construction manager for the project, receive the single-bid contract.

State law prohibits the construction manager from receiving a general trades contract on a project which they've been hired to oversee the construction when less than two bids are received.

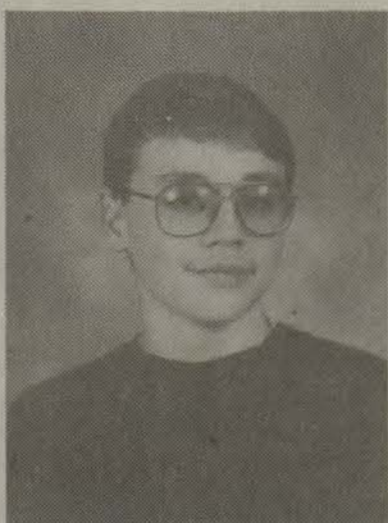

Osborne, said Tuesday that the school board had not technically vio-

Grand jury session set for police only

The Floyd County Grand Jury will meet on June 20 and 21, in a session limited to police agencies.

Commonwealth Attorney John Earl Hunt said Wednesday that grand jurors will hear cases from persons "who have conducted investigations" into allegations of criminal activity.

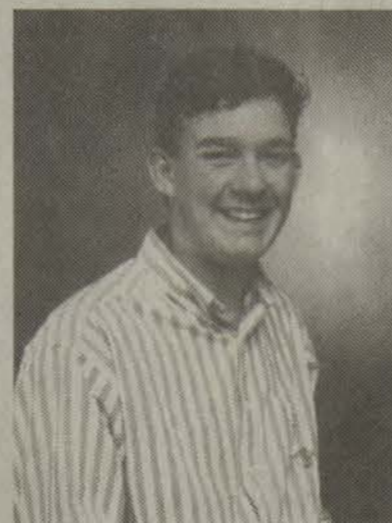

A grand jury session will be held next month which will be open to the general public, Hunt said. The date of the grand jury meeting will be announced later.

Five are named Governor's Scholars

Although most Floyd County students have said good-bye to the school year and are just having fun in the sun this summer, several of Floyd County's top students will spend some time back at the desk.

Five county students from two area high schools have been selected as Governor's Scholars and will join several hundred students from across the state to participate in a six-week summer enrichment program. The summer sessions will be held at Centre College and Northern Kentucky University.

Allen Central students selected were Jeremy N. Elliott, son of Wiley and Phyllis Elliott of Martin, and Joshua S. Flanery, also of Martin.

Prestonsburg High School students selected were Aaron D. Bond, Kathryn R. Mullins, and Stewart E. Robertson. Bond, who aspires to become an architect, is the son of Jane Bond of Prestonsburg. Mullins, the daughter of Freddie and Della Mullins of Lancer, hopes to become a biomedical engineer. Robertson's goal is to be an architectural engineer. He is the son of Charles and Sandra Robertson of Prestonsburg.

Students were selected on the basis of test scores and other criteria by a committee at the school level. Each school was responsible for submitting nominees for the program. The selection then went into the hands of another committee at the central office who had to select "the best of the best," said Edgar V. Craft.

Rumpke bid to be forwarded to court

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County's solid waste board is expected to recommend to the fiscal court today (Friday) approval of a contract with Rumpke of Kentucky for garbage services.

Rumpke co-owner Thomas Rumpke and other representatives attended Wednesday's solid waste commission meeting to discuss the company's proposal to the county.

Rumpke assured the commission that his company could perform the services offered in their proposal and that they are working toward getting a landfill constructed in Kentucky which would conform with more stringent state regulations, which become effective on July 1, 1995.

Commissioners quizzed Rumpke about the cost of trash pick up and disposal for small business owners and churches in the county.

Rumpke and Ron Henke, who will be the company's district manager in Floyd County, told the commission that any business or church which generates less than two cubic yards of trash would be charged the same as household customers, $10 per month. Henke explained that two cubic yards equals approximately fifteen 30-gallon trash bags of garbage.

Any non-household organization which produces more trash than two cubic yards, can negotiate a rate between $10 and $52 per month, Henke said.

Rumpke said that governmental agencies, such as the school system and the county, would pay the set non-household rate of $6 per cubic yard for garbage removal. Rumpke added that within the next three to five years, the company would most likely be able to offer some type of recycling service to help organizations reduce the amount of waste generated.

Another issue discussed was the company's commitment to purchase Floyd County Solid Waste's equipment. Under the bid, Rumpke would appoint an appraiser, the county would appoint an appraiser and the two appraisers would appoint a third appraiser to assess the value of the department's equipment.

County Attorney Jim Hammond told commissioners that Rumpke would have to have a clear title to the equipment, which means the commission would have to pay off any debt on the equipment.

If the fiscal court approves the

Handbook outlines basics of health care reform law

The state's Legislative Research Commission (LRC) has published a citizen's handbook outlining Kentucky's new law concerning health care reform, and the booklets are available to the public.

Health care reform in the state will be phased in over the next 18 months, and the new law will take full effect in January, 1996.

The LRC booklet offers an overview of the new law, its provisions, and timelines for phasing in key provisions. It also includes a section on commonly asked questions pertaining to health care reform and answers for many of those queries.

To obtain a copy of "Kentucky Health Care Reform: A Citizen's Handbook," write the Legislative Research Commission, State Capitol, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 or call the LRC at 502-564-8100.

Attorney says judge acted as witness, prosecutor and jury

by Leigh Ann Wells
for the Times

A Johnson County man's attorney is appealing a contempt of court conviction handed down by Floyd District Judge Danny P. Caudill on grounds the judge should have disqualified himself from the case.

Pikeville Attorney Randall Starnes said that Tuesday's conviction of Jeffrey Ayers, 44, of Paintsville will be appealed as soon as possible.

Ayers was sentenced to 179 days in the Floyd County jail after Caudill alleged he was in contempt for not joining a home confinement program after pleading guilty last year to third-offense driving under the influence of alcohol.

Starnes said Ayers entered a guilty plea to the DUI charge last August. He was sentenced to 60 days in home confinement in lieu of 30 days in jail. Ayers was arrested on a bench warrant for not joining the program.

Starnes said he is appealing Caudill's ruling on two main points—that Kentucky law does not allow for home confinement on third-offense DUI because of the 1988 "slammer bill" and the fact that Caudill was the complaining witness, prosecutor and judge in the case.

The "slammer bill" is designed to put multiple offenders in jail in order to deter them from breaking the law again, Starnes said. Third-offense DUI convictions carry a sentence of 30 days to one year in jail.

Starnes said Ayers failed to join a home confinement program because of financial circumstances.

Starnes said Ayers had just finished his 30-day DUI sentence when Caudill held the contempt hearing.

Starnes also said that Caudill should have disqualified himself as judge in the case because he brought the charges against Ayers.

During the hearing, Starnes argued that the original sentence of 60 days in home incarceration was contrary to the law, therefore the contempt verdict was null and void and Ayers should be released.

"The charges were brought by Caudill, not the county attorney," Starnes explained. "It is improper for a judge to act as complaining witness, prosecutor and judge. Having brought the charge, he should have disqualified himself as judge."

After Caudill imposed the sentence, Starnes told him in open court, "179 days is unduly harsh, vindictive and spiteful."

Living with AIDS airs on KET; portrays the changing face of AIDS

Living with AIDS, an award-winning documentary airing on KET at 11 Saturday, June 25, portrays the diverse types of people that are being infected with the deadly virus that causes AIDS today.

According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, over one million Americans may be currently infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. And while the vast majority of people with AIDS in the United States are young males, the disease is increasingly affecting women, minorities, infants and drug users. Women account for 11% of people with AIDS, and the disease is now of one of the top five causes of death among women between the ages of 25-44.

Living with AIDS gives a glimpse of the personal stories behind the statistics through a series of personal, in-depth profiles of AIDS victims.

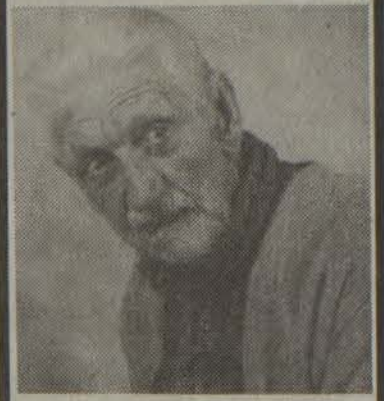

We share in the struggles of Jody, the mother of two teen-age daughters, who endured the pain of watching her husband die of the disease and now must face her own sickness while continuing to care for her family alone. Steven Bradley, once a successful dancer with the Joffrey Ballet, must now live a new life that is dictated by his fatal disease. Dianna, who knew about her husband's infection with AIDS, allows the camera to follow her from her decision to be tested for HIV to discovering the results. Jerry, a merchant seaman with AIDS, confides with his family about his disease, only to find his news met with a chilling reception as he is rejected and abandoned by those he loves most. David, who has developed full-blown AIDS, faces each day knowing it could be his last.

The program also presents important new information about preventing transmission, the testing process, the importance of early detection, increases in heterosexual transmission, the high cost of health care for AIDS patients, and the impact of AIDS on the general health care profession. Among the new facts presented about AIDS are: not all types of condoms protect against the AIDS virus, and only 1/3 of babies born HIV positive ever develop AIDS.

Living with AIDS is a production of Houston Public Television. It is closed captioned for the hearing impaired.

that Martin Engineering had disclosed their intentions to bid.

On Tuesday, Osborne said an addendum to Martin's construction management contract, approved in October 1991, allows the company to bid on trade packages if they announce their intention in writing.

Part of the 1991 addendum says, "the construction manager shall not recommend the award of any bid to any individual who is related by blood or marriage to any officer, director or manager of the construction manager or the architect...without having first disclosed such relationship to the owner for its approval or disapproval."

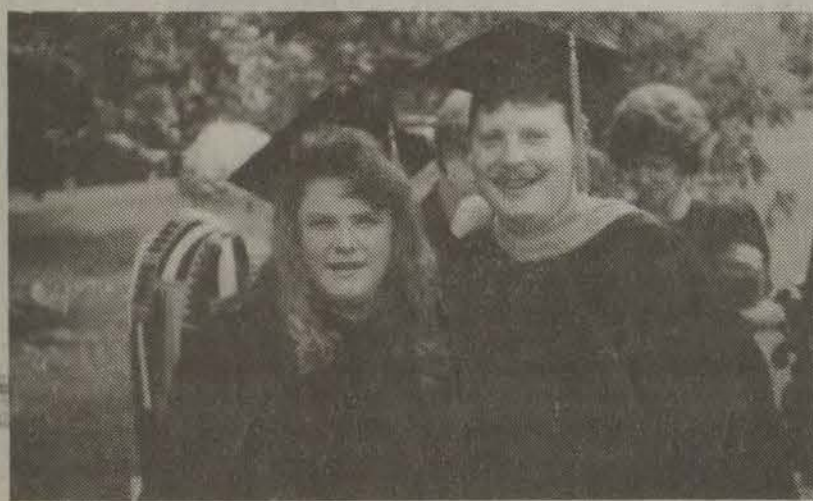

In a letter to the board dated May 21 from Martin Engineering owner

Sam Martin Jr., Martin announced that he intended to bid on the hoisting package.

The issue is expected to be discussed at Monday's Floyd County Board of Education meeting. The board will meet at Martin Elementary at 6:30 p.m.

Husband-wife team receives degree

Rodney A. Stevens and Sandra Crum-Stevens were awarded a doctor of dental medicine degree from the University of Louisville during special commencement ceremonies on May 15. The convocation address was given by Dr. James H. Gaines, president of the American Dental Association. Just minutes after Rodney was hooded for his doctor of dental medicine degree, the University broke tradition and allowed him to hood Sandra for her degree. Rodney is the son of Jack and Joyce Stevens of Hueysville and Sandra is the daughter of Earvin and Kathleen Crum of Martin. The couple is residing in Louisville.

Damron said he plans to appeal the verdict.

Prosecution witness William Blackburn, who was driving the pickup truck, told police last year that he had heard shots being fired at them during the high-speed chase.

When he testified Wednesday, Blackburn could only recall hearing one shot fired, which was when Martin fired at Craft's vehicle.

contract today, it is unclear when Rumpke would begin offering their services. Rumpke's bids sets out a July 1 starting date, but Hammond said the county has to fulfill its part of the deal before turning the operation over to Rumpke.

Hammond said that the county had to do several things before the company could start work, such as getting the Garth site ready to build a transfer station; remove the garbage from the site; close the old landfill; and get a permit to build the transfer station from state officials.

Rumpke said his company was ready to start the transition immediately if the fiscal court approves a contract.

Commissioners gave Rumpke a rating of 96.5 points out of 100, taking off points because of the non-household rate.

In other business Wednesday, the commission met in closed session for over an hour and a half to discuss pending litigation with the state's Environmental Protection Cabinet.

The commission will meet in regular session Monday, June 20 at 5 p.m. in the conference room at the courthouse annex. The meeting is open to the public.

Starnes alleged that Caudill made statements outside of the courtroom before the hearing that he was going to give Ayers the maximum sentence. Caudill lessened it by one day.

Caudill was unable to be reached Wednesday because he was presiding over court. But officials in the Floyd County Circuit Clerk's Office said that Caudill is a firm believer in bench trials and the home confinement program. The officials said that, contrary to Starnes' argument, home confinement is an option for DUI offenders who are either found guilty or plead guilty.

Starnes said he would file an immediate appeal or habeas corpus action. Ayers was detained at the Floyd County Jail.

Former Floyd countian named director of Foxfire

Bobby Ann Starnes, daughter of Elizabeth Lambert Owens and the late Miles M. Owens, has been selected as the executive director and president of the Foxfire Fund, Inc. in Rabin County, Georgia.

Those familiar with recent Foxfire publications will recognize this as the product of a national education reform movement rooted in the mountains of northern Georgia. The writings are reflective of regional folklore and traditions.

Bobby is no stranger to the folklore and customs of Appalachia. She was born at the mouth of Hollybush in Pippa Passes of Knott County. Her early childhood was spent here and in neighboring Floyd County where her father worked in the coal mines.

The family moved to Dayton, Ohio, in the fifties. Bobby was schooled there and later taught several years herself. Her efforts were encouraged by her parents and Bobby soon established her own school for children 18 months to 13 years old.

Quite a few years passed but Bobby never forgot her mountain roots. She remembers well the rickety bridge her car would go across into Baptist Bottom and the welcome sight of her Aunt Leona's light in the distance. Bobby had returned to visit.

Harvard was the next educational step for Bobby. At first she felt strange and out of place there. When her advisor guided her into independent studies involving mountain people, everything began to click. It was then that Bobby realized: Appalachia was where she belonged.

With both a master's and a doctorate's degree from Harvard behind her, Bobby taught briefly at Roger Williams University in Rhode Island. Following this, she headed south to the mountains of North Georgia. She now has this to say about her new job:

"This is like coming home. That is the reason I felt the job is so right for me. What I felt like it did was let me blend everything I'd done in my life up to now. When I thought about this job and how I perceived it, and what I knew about it, I saw this as what I'd really been preparing for all my life."

Bobby Ann Starnes says her priority is to restore the Foxfire Fund, Inc. to a prominent role in local schools, while continuing to expand the teaching method nationally. With her background, her attitude and her perseverance, she has every reason to succeed.

Examining health care

Dr. Raghu Sundaram (standing) and area health professionals met on March 20 at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn to discuss health care reform. They will meet again on June 28.

Area health professionals meet to discuss health care

Area physicians will meet June 28 at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn to discuss Healthcare reform. Dr. Dempsey and representatives of the University of Kentucky hospital will lecture about the Prevention of Strokes.

The physicians held a meeting on March 20 at the Holiday Inn where they discussed healthcare reform with State Republican Senator John David Preston, of Paintsville, and Kentucky and U.S. Congressional Representative Hal Rogers.

Senator Preston discussed the circumstances of the House Bill 250 as well as the passage of the Bill and explained that there was considerable conflict between the State representatives and the Governor of Kentucky.

Several physicians expressed their concern about health care reform and several people in attendance requested that Representative Rogers cosponsor the Bills HR3486 and S1658.

The East Kentucky Pharmacist Association voiced their concern about patients keeping their right to choose their own healthcare provider rather than having a state government appointed provider. Also, in an effort to control escalating costs of prescription medication, the association stated the need to end discriminatory pricing by drug manufacturers which passes higher prices on to the cash paying customer.

Representative Rogers informed those in attendance that he has taken notice of their problems and he has discussed several plans that are being considered. He also offered the opinion that the healthcare reform proposal of the Clinton family is not likely to pass. The health care providers reiterated that they will continue to provide care without charge or at reduced rates for the uninsured and others who cannot afford care. Dr. Raghu Sundaram, in this connection, mentioned that physicians have been providing care to the uninsured and to the poor.

There is a toll free number for those who can't afford to pay for health care by calling the Kentucky Physicians Care toll free number at 1-800-633-8100.

Over a hundred physicians and allied health personnel were in attendance.

Black Lung Association attends unveiling ceremony

Members of the East Kentucky Black Lung Association were in Washington, D.C. on Thursday, May 19, seeking passage of a bill to reform the Black Lung benefits program. While there, the group attended a ceremony in the House of Representatives to honor Congressman Carl D. Perkins, which included the official unveiling of a portrait of Mr. Perkins. Mr. Perkins was considered a great friend of the worker and a strong advocate for Black Lung benefits. He died in 1984, after 36 years of service as the Congressman from eastern Kentucky.

his son, and Edgar Martin, Den Hunter, Faye Hensley, Nancy Akers, Ron Hensley and Carmel Akers.

The Black Lung Reform Bill was passed by the House of Representatives by a vote of 252-166, and represented a significant victory for disabled miners and their widows trying to improve access to benefits. Efforts by the bill's opponents to amend the bill failed. Congressman Harold Rogers supported the bill.

The bill must be approved by the Senate and signed by the President before it becomes a law. The Senate will probably vote on the bill later this summer.

Donor center begins designated donations

Patients who are preparing for planned surgery have a choice in the blood supply they want to use during surgery. The Prestonsburg Donor Center of Central Kentucky Blood Center is offering an alternative to the community blood supply: Designated donation.

Designated donations allow you to choose your own blood donors for your planned surgery. This procedure must be prescribed by your physician.

Designated donors must be the same type or a blood type compatible with the patient. It is the responsibility of the patient to determine appropriate donors. Designated donations must be made at least 72 hours prior to the date of transfusion. For this reason, designated donations are not intended for emergency transfusion needs. Designated donors must meet the same strict requirements as volunteer donors and pass a medical screening.

Unused designated units are placed in the volunteer blood supply so that they can be utilized for other patients.

If you would like more information about the designated program, call Georgia Sanders at 886-1557.

Poverty's poster child?

by Scott Perry

If you've been wondering why this newspaper hasn't joined the media frenzy over the National Guard's visit to Floyd County, we think you're due an explanation.

We don't intend to contribute to the fashionable belief that Eastern Kentucky, and particularly Floyd County, ought to be poverty's poster child.

Certainly, the Guard's efforts to provide medical and dental care to needy folks is appreciated.

But poor people shouldn't have to pay for that care with their self-respect.

Since the Guard arrived on Mud Creek, news accounts have dished up the standard fare of adjectives that put Appalachia into that all-too-familiar position of having to defend itself against the stereotypes...

Desolate.

Depressing.

They've even compared us to Guatemala.

The publicity surrounding the Guard's visit to Floyd County was well-planned.

Television and newspaper reporters were flown in for the best photo opportunities.

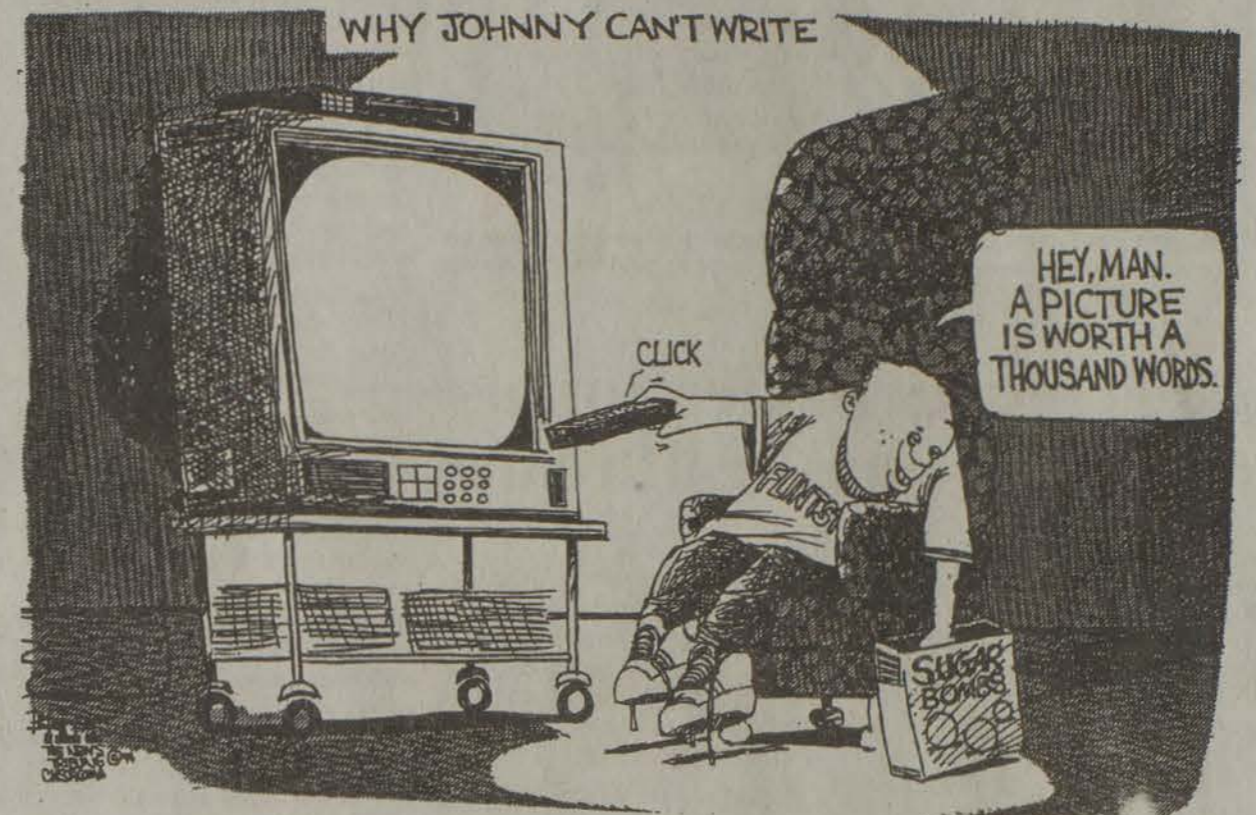

We won't go so far as to suggest the whole thing was little more than a publicity stunt: we sincerely believe the doctors, dentists and other medical personnel associated with the Kentucky National Guard really wanted to help those in need.

We're glad they came and we're certain that those they have assisted are just as thankful.

What's the point, though, of bringing TV cameras into the examining rooms or keeping a running count of how many teeth have been pulled?

"The greatest pleasure I know," wrote Charles Lamb, "is to do a good action by stealth, and to have it found out by accident."

Goodness is its own reward. No spokesman is necessary.

—Other Voices— Higher education and equal opportunity

by Wendell Thomas

In May 1990, The Kentucky Plan for Equal Educational Opportunities in Higher Education established commitments and objectives for Kentucky resident African-American students, staff and faculty for each of Kentucky's eight public institutions. Specific commitments included:

- increasing recruitment, retention and graduation of Kentucky resident African-American undergraduate students;
- increasing Kentucky resident African-American graduate students, and students in first-professional programs such as dentistry, law and medicine;
- increasing African-American faculty and staff employed by the institutions; and
- ensuring the appointment and representation of African-Americans on the Council on Higher Education and other governing boards.

The Commonwealth's eight public universities had five years to implement The Kentucky Plan, dating from September 1990 with completion by July 1995. A July 1993 progress report indicated that although specific institutional performances fluctuate for a given commitment, in general, the system is moving in the right direction.

How are the universities striving to meet the goals? At the University of Kentucky, an outreach center for science and health careers opportunities at the Chandler Medical Center is designed to stimulate interest and to facilitate progress among African-Americans toward degrees in the sciences and health. Student volunteers from the Chandler Medical Center also work in Project SMART (Science, Mathematics and Rising Talent), providing science-related experiences for children in grades three through five, with special attention paid to developing African-American role models.

Western Kentucky University has set aside $100,000 to support graduate assistantships for Kentucky resident African-American graduate students. Through another program, African-Americans with master's degrees are recruited and appointed to faculty positions. Funds support efforts toward earning a doctoral degree, leading to full-time tenure-track positions at the university. A $132,000 U.S. Department of Education grant for the next three academic years will be used to recruit more minority students into the teaching field.

The need for more college-educated minorities is obvious, for study after study shows that the earnings gap between college-educated and high school-educated workers is wide, and it is expected to keep widening. According to 1992 statistics from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the average net worth of households headed by a person with four years of college or more is $72,373 as compared to $33,254 for a high school diploma.

Kentucky colleges and universities, both public and private, continue to attract an increasing percentage of Kentucky residents. The proportion of both African-American and white Kentucky high school graduates who entered public colleges and universities expanded between 1987 and 1991. The American Council on Education recently reported that improved retention of these students will depend upon the implementation of on-campus environments that improve the achievement of all students. Colleges and universities must therefore increase the number of student-oriented faculty, staff and administrators who are committed to effective institutional practices for improving student retention.

The Kentucky Advocates for Higher Education applaud the Commonwealth's universities on their commitment to its African-American people. We must not let this progress lag. Now, more than ever, higher education has an important role to play in the lives of Kentuckians of all colors.

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

Not a mirror image

It happened again this weekend.

A less than flattering headline ran in one of the state papers, which again called Eastern Kentucky's image into question.

The headline read: "Students thrive away from their mountain homes."

The story itself was a nice piece on three students from the mountains who attended "elite schools," like Yale and MIT. It was a follow-up to a story about the three that ran in 1990.

To reiterate, it is not the story that we object to; it is the headline.

The headline could be taken one of two ways. One, it could imply that it is a surprise Eastern Kentuckians are able to do well anywhere else; that they lack the skills to survive away from home.

Two, some might take it that our youth MUST travel somewhere else to "make it."

Both concepts are false, and both are insults.

[O]ur area, like any other, has enough problems without implying it has some it doesn't. — Appalachian News Express, Pikeville

Counties, cities should begin writing ethics code

January 1, 1995 will be here before we know it, and for that reason county and city officials in Kentucky should begin writing their ethics code.

A report in Sunday's Lexington Herald-Leader said none of the state's 120 counties or 435 cities has adopted a conduct code for local officials. That's not surprising, since many local officials have no idea where to begin. But now is the time for them to start writing proposed codes because this is one ordinance that deserves input from citizens.

A new law requires every city and county in Kentucky to have an ethics code adopted by January 1. Although the law does not set minimum standards, it does require fiscal courts and city councils to:

- Set standards of conduct for elected and appointed officials and employees.
- Establish requirements for financial disclosure statements to be filed annually.
- Establish a policy on the employment of officials' relatives.
- Designate a person or board to investigate complaints and enforce the code.

Some of these issues — especially financial disclosure and nepotism — will probably be controversial topics in some counties and cities. In fact, I predict very few governing bodies will require officials to disclose their finances or ban the hiring of relatives.

I also suspect that some fiscal courts and city councils will try to sneak an ethics code ordinance by the citizenry by passing them at the end of the year, when public comment will be too late. This shouldn't happen; after all, this kind of behind-the-scenes action is what an ethics code is trying to eliminate.

For that reason, I strongly urge our local government ... to begin holding public discussion on an ethics code and have an ordinance in place well before the January deadline.

There's no reason to wait until the last minute. — The Paintsville Herald

Basebrawl strikes out

It's bad enough that big-time ball players lose control of their mouths, elbows and their fists, setting a lousy example for young admirers.

But there's no place for trash talk and fighting in high school sports. Officials of New Albany and Floyd Central High Schools (in Indiana) and the Indiana High School Athletic Association moved promptly to make sure that principle is better understood in the often overheated world of southern Indiana sports competition.

The brawl that erupted after a hotly-contested baseball game between the two schools is the latest reminder that sportsmanship isn't the only victim when players swing at each other — with bats.

Kids, too, get hurt. By luck, only one was hospitalized overnight. It could have been much worse.

The players were hardly innocents in this nasty affair. The taunts exchanged by the teams as New Albany took a victory lap around the bases raised the tension level. But the behavior of adults, responsible for containing youthful high spirits was a disgrace. A parent led the charge. Coaches joined in pushing and shoving.

The sanctions agreed on by the schools and the state regulatory body are regrettable but necessary. The two schools won't play in any sport for a year. The baseball teams are on probation. Three coaches are suspended and several parents banned from sports activities.

Sports-inspired rumbles are hardly the invention of the current high school generation...

High school sports are supposed to be educational activities. They teach teamwork, build confidence and help young people learn to manage both success and setbacks. That's the emphasis that needs to be restored. — The Courier-Journal

Bank rates: Your deposit, no return

by Kenneth Eskey
Scripps Howard News Service

Bankers are enduring a fair amount of acrimony these days for the way they do business—and deservedly so.

At a time when commercial banks are earning record profits, exceeding $43 billion last year, they seem to be nickel-and-diming their customers with stiff fees for routine services.

You bounce a check, you pay a penalty that more than compensates the bank for its trouble. Simply maintaining a checking account at a bank can be costly if you let the balance dip too low.

Now comes a report from the Consumer Federation of America charging that banks are making "huge profits" on automated teller machines, more than 78 cents on each dollar in ATM fees.

"Only in banking do consumers pay more for self-service," says Chris Lewis, the federation's director of banking policy. "In banking, self-service is regarded as a privilege for which the consumer is required to pay a premium for saving the bank money."

Just how much money banks save by installing ATMs rather than hiring new tellers or opening new branches is a matter of dispute.

For one thing, banks spent more to buy and operate ATM machines last year than they received in ATM fees.

And the easy availability of ATMs encourages people to make more bank transactions than they would have made otherwise. If you're short of cash, you can always get some from the magic machine that's open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

There were more than 7.7 billion ATM transactions last year, so it's obvious that bank customers like the service and are willing to pay a fee if they use another bank's ATM for convenience.

The way to avoid such charges is to use your own bank's ATM whenever possible. Most banks charge no ATM fee to their own customers, but almost all charge an ATM fee to non-customers, usually around $1.

Another problem for consumers is the slowness of banks to pay higher rates of return on certificates of deposit and other savings accounts. The gap between what banks charge for loans and what they pay in interest to depositors is much too wide.

One reason banks are so profitable is that they're charging double-digit rates on credit-card balances and personal loans and 8 percent or more on car loans and home loans, while paying bargain-basement rates to depositors with money-market accounts.

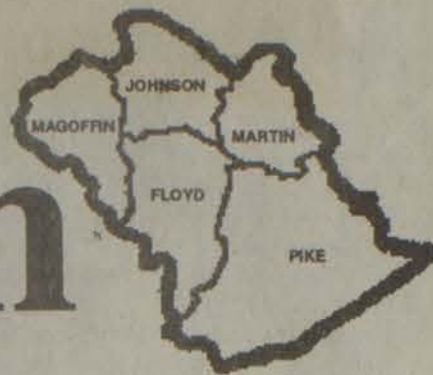

Banks are in business to make money, so it's no surprise they pay as little as possible to attract deposits. But bank customers have some options of their own. They can complain about low rates. They can move their money. Banks do compete with each other, and rates vary from one bank to the next.

Too much of the debate over banking has been centered on efforts by Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan to head off future inflation by raising short-term interest rates to cool off the economy.

Democrats on the Senate Finance Committee accuse Greenspan of favoring Wall Street over Main Street. But they know, or should know, that Greenspan will do what he thinks is right, no matter what. That's why we have an independent Federal Reserve Board.

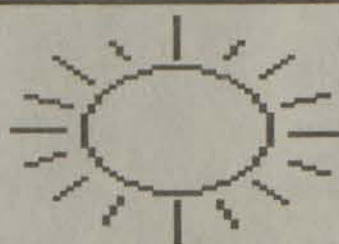

Much more can be accomplished by average citizens urging banks to lower their interest rates on consumer loans while raising the rates on savings. You'd be surprised what friendly persuasion can do.

Flood projects added to bill

The U.S. House has approved a bill that contains more than $41 million for flood-control projects in Southern and Eastern Kentucky.

The 1995 Energy and Water Development Appropriations bill passed late Tuesday by a vote of 393-29. The president's budget doesn't include money for the projects, but U.S. Rep. Harold Rogers, 5th District, used his position on the energy and water appropriations subcommittee to insert the funding into the bill.

The biggest chunk of the money is $20 million for the Harlan flood wall and related levees. There was also $15.5 million for Pike county projects on the Tug Fork, $3 million for flood wall design at Williamsburg and $1.2 million for Middlesboro. Other counties with projects in the bill are Breathitt, Floyd, Johnson, Leslie, Magoffin, Martin and Perry. — The Courier-Journal

Judge retreats on suit dismissal

A federal judge has withdrawn a ruling dismissing a wrongful-death lawsuit against the Pike County Detention Center.

On April 29, U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood dismissed a suit filed by the mother of an inmate who hanged himself at the jail in November 1991. Hood had said Wanda Sue Mullins failed twice to file responses in the case.

But Hood reversed that order Monday after learning that attorneys had agreed to a deadline extension so Jailer Morris "Coo" Stratton could give a deposition.

Mullins sued the jail in December 1992 over the death of Charles Ray Baker, 19, Mullins, who is seeking $1.25 million, claims jail employees were indifferent to her son's psychological condition and his history of suicide attempts.

In his earlier ruling, Hood said Mullins failed to show that the jail's policies contributed to her son's death. He gave her 20 days to take the jailer's deposition. — The Courier-Journal

Tipsy tipster responsible for Floyd County man's success

by "Briar Buck," in Floyd County Times
Editor's note: The following story is reprinted at the request of Larry G. Arrowood, grandson of Turner. From an edition of the Floyd County Times printed sometime in 1940s.

The man was drunk, almost roarin' drunk.

But he "had something there." He was in a talkative mood, yet his words meant more than your ordinary, common drunk.

"Willie," quoth he, "when a feller r'ars back and jingles the money in his pocket—by gum, Willie, you al'ays have some in your pocket to jingle right back at 'im."

Willie—"Big Will" Turner to you—took the uproarious bit of advice so to heart that he became an outstanding success among Floyd county's business men.

Big Bill then was a youngster astraddle a mule. Since then, heeding this sage advice, he has always managed not only to have some jingling money in his pocket but also to have something handy out of which foldin' money could be realized.

His acres high and broad, his own home and all those homes he rents to others, his various businesses—these are not to be enumerated here. Mrs. Turner, modest to a fault, asks that that be skipped.

But you start jinglin' money at him and he can, if he cares to, jingle right back and raise you, not one, but several. At the age of 62, by dint of hard labor, honest but sensible dealings with others and the practicing of frugality, Big Bill is an unqualified success in Floyd county's own little world of finance.

As a mere boy, he cut corn on Beaver Creek for the late Jno. H. Preston, for the noble sum of 2 1/2 cents per shock to pay for a primary Arithmetic and Geography, his first and last schoolbooks. "I've always believed that if I'd have gone another month to school, and learned to say, 'No,' I would be worth a lot more today," he will tell you.

His store business at Drift, where he has been thus occupied for the last 17 years, isn't such a far cry from his life occupation of "trading." At the age of 17, he traded a seven-jewel Elgin watch and $16 which he'd earned by working at the lordly pay of 35 cents a day for an old, saddlesore, sway-backed mare, bridle on her and the spur to sink into her ribs and make her "act pert." His last dime he spent for "heal-powders" and so, shortly afterwards, he rode her to Baptist Association on Stone Coal where she went in a trade for a mule. Then the mule passed on to the late Abbott Barnett in return for a horse and saddle. Gone the days of ridin' bare-back.

Then the tradin' started in earnest. Sheep, cattle, horses, hogs, chickens, pocket knives—what have you—any time, anywhere, he would buy, sell or swap.

So, by the time he was 26 years old, Mr. Turner had a horse and "two or three hundred dollars" for his very own. Just then, the little guy with the bow and arrow got in his work and he was married to Miss Cissely Robinette, young daughter of the late Elbert Robinette. The young groom was offered a home with his bride's parents, but this offer he courteously rejected, explaining that "No house is big enough for two families."

So to Turkey Creek Mr. and Mrs. Turner went and there, ignoring the warning that "the land is wore out," rented a farm owned by Isom Moore for $20 a year. The home they outfitted with home-made furniture, and they worked—worked hard. Sometimes as late as 11 o'clock at night in his "new ground" Bill Turner toiled. And he sold corn, every year of the five he spent on Isom Moore's "wore out" acres. By Christmas of 1908 he had saved $1,300 and with this he bought from John G. Turner his first piece of property—a tract of 140 acres on Sizemore Branch, a tract which he still owns.

From that good day to this, W. J. Turner has been working, saving, trading and buying. Now he is Floyd county's largest individual taxpayer in the matter of dollars and cents. As for weight he tips the scales at 350 pounds. And today he will walk two miles just to trade cows with a neighbor.

An he's still working. From 12 to 16 hours a day. Not because he must, nor because of a desire for more wealth, but merely for the wholesome reason that he enjoys "dealing and trading" with folks.

"I have never wasted a half day's work in my life on whiskey," Mr. Turner says. Yet he is no teetotaler. He doesn't use tobacco. He is always ready and willing to donate to the relief of the needy. Every day, scores of men and women come to him for sound advice or financial aid; very few go away disappointed. The goodwill of children he respects very highly, and often expresses the belief that an ounce of reasoning is worth more with a child than a pound of punishment.

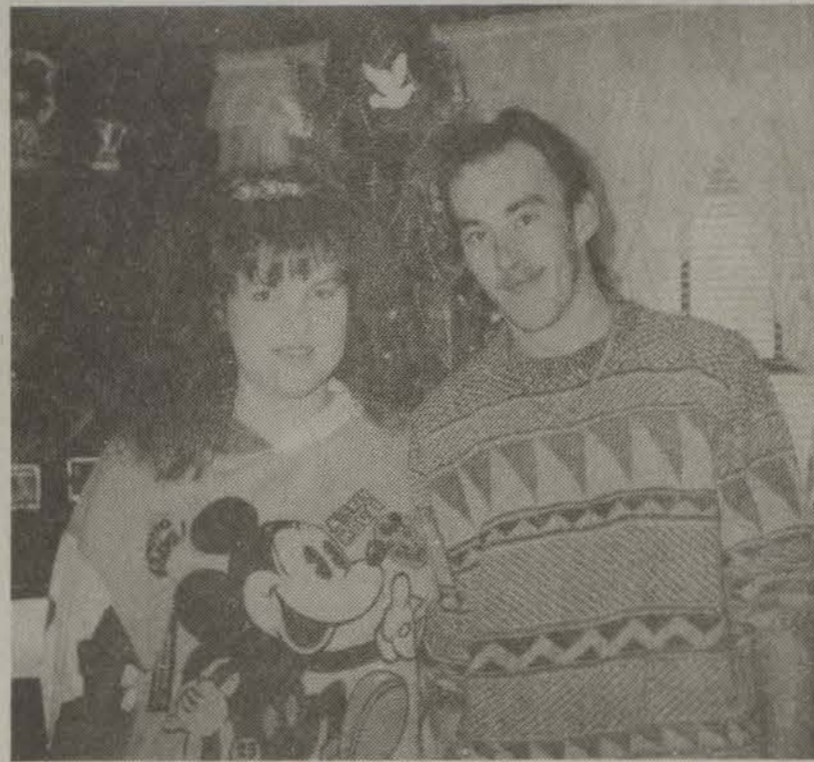

Looking back from his lowly start, Bill advises the young fellow starting out that "Nothing risked is nothing gained." Yet he would emphasize to youngsters the importance of hard work, honesty and the sound policy of spending less than what you earn.

All three of his sons, Ernest, Raymond and Roe, are also merchants. Of his four daughters—Madge, Mallie, Mrs. Wm. Martin and Mrs. Bill Arrowood—two are teachers.

And the man who was wise enough to take sound advice even from a drunk, isn't a bit "high-hat" today. If you have some advice worth passing along, he's always ready to lend an ear.

"Beakman's World" series receives an emmy award

"Beakman's World," the critically acclaimed weekly television series based on the Universal Press Syndicate feature You Can With Beakman and Jax by Jok Church, has received a 1994 Emmy Award for Best Sound Editing. Nominated for a total of three Emmy Awards this year, "Beakman's World" is a joint production enterprise of Columbia Production and Universal Belo Productions, and it appears on CBS as well as The Learning Channel. Universal Belo Productions is a joint venture of A.H. Belo Corporation and Universal Press Syndicate.

"Winning an Emmy Award is a wonderful tribute to the innovation and high quality of 'Beakman's World,'" said Universal Press Syndicate President John P. McMeel. "As a pioneering effort in the movement toward more fun and exciting educational programs for kids, Beakman has deservedly become a recognized success in children's television viewing."

Since its premiere in syndication and on The Learning Channel last year, "Beakman's World" has won much praise from both critics and viewers. The series immediately attracted wide critical acclaim from parents and educators for its unique format of educating young audiences about science in a hip, entertaining manner. The series has been endorsed by the National Foundation for the Improvement of Education (NFIE) for offering "a stimulating, scientifically sound, humorous and effective presentation of science." "Beakman's World" has also been honored by the Excellence in Media organization with a Silver Angel, which is awarded to communications projects that promote moral and/or social impact. "Beakman's World" recently won the Cable ACE Award for Children's Programming Series, 7 and Older.

The show is based on the newspaper feature, You Can With Beakman and Jax, which is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate to more than 200 newspapers. In the feature and the television program, questions from readers and viewers cover a variety of subjects, such as: "How do magnets work?" "How does a mirror work?" "How can the color white be all other colors mixed together?" "Why is the grass green?" and many more. Questions and experiments are the basis of the feature and the show, rewarding kids' curiosity with projects that let them discover the answers to all kinds of questions through simple experiments they can do at home. The active participation gets kids involved in discovering the reasons behind an answer — to learn why as well as what — which enhances understanding and reinforces an active learning experience.

Universal Press is the largest independent newspaper syndicate in the country. Its features list ranges from Pulitzer Prize winners Garry Trudeau, Roger Ebert, Pat Oliphant, Tom Toles and Garry Wills, to famed columnists including Abigail Van Buren, Erma Bombeck, James J. Kilpatrick and William F. Buckley Jr. In addition to You Can With Beakman and Jax, it distributes the children's feature The Mini Page by Betty Debnam. UPNS comics include Cathy, Calvin and Hobbes, The Far Side, For Better or For Worse, FoxTrot, Tank McNamara, Where I'm Coming From and Ziggy.

The award-winning syndicate column is printed in The Floyd County Times' etc., which is published on the first Wednesday of each month.

Floyd health department adds service

The Floyd County Health Department Home Health Agency, located in Prestonsburg, was awarded a certificate of need to expand its home health service to include all of Floyd County.

The certificate, one of six approved by the Interim Office of Health Planning and Certification, was for $44,000, which is a capital expenditure, not a state grant.

HIGH SCHOOL CREDITS AT PCC

Students who need to earn high school credits to "catch up" with their classmates or to finish the requirements for a high school diploma can take high school classes at PCC this summer, June 20-August 12, from 9:00 a.m.-12:00 Noon on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. AN EXERCISE
IN HUMIDITY

Walking is good exercise. It tones the body and provides an excellent aerobic workout for the heart. But like everything else, there's a time and a place for it.

A friend and I decided that we were going to walk. Not your ordinary "get out and enjoy nature" type of walk, but the "I'm going to beat this flab" type of walk. We picked a time and found a place, however, we failed to coordinate the two.

On the first day of our planned "walk," we bounded out of the car and started off in a runwalk. Less than five minutes into our newly established routine I turned to look at my friend. Men stretched out on racks have had less pained expressions.

"Anything wrong?" I gasped. My friend shook her head negatively and sputtered, "Why?"

"You looked as if you might be having some discomfort."

"Naw," she said as she exhaled heavily. "I'm fine. How long have we been walking?"

"At least 30 minutes," I said between panting breaths.

"Are you sure? It seems more like an hour."

By this time my shins, which I never knew existed until now, were stinging and the soles of my feet felt as if they were resting on hot pavement.

"Getting tired?" my friend asked.

"Not at all," I puffed.

"Then why are you perspiring?"

"Am I perspiring. I thought we'd just passed a lawn sprinkler."

"We can stop if you want," my friend said.

"Oh, no. I could go on forever. I love to walk. Does it look like rain to you?"

"Yes. That's probably why my clothes are sticking to me. Humidity, you know."

That was it. The humidity was causing us to labor as we continued to walk our way to fitness. After 15 more minutes, my body began to rebel. My gait had slowed to a crawl, and my legs were failing to send the proper messages to my brain.

"How far have we walked?" I asked my friend.

"Well, we've walked two miles, but one and a half of them were executed in excruciating pain."

"How much farther are we going to walk?"

"We can quit when we get back to the car," my friend said.

"We should have parked closer," I panted.

"It's not us, it's the weather," she insisted.

By the time we arrived back at the car, my friend and I were holding literally each other up. She rummaged around in her pockets until she found the key and rammed it into the lock.

"Can you turn it?" she asked.

Together, we unlocked the door and fell into the seats. If walking was healthy for us, we were too unhealthy to get into any kind of shape.

"What time do you want me to pick you up tomorrow?" my friend asked.

"For my doctor's appointment?" "No, for our walk?"

"You mean we're going to do it again?" "Don't you feel energized?"

"Energized? I'm pooped, sister!"

"By the end of the week you'll be addicted to

"To what? Pain killers? My feet are hurting worse than a hog's bite.

I can't stand a week of this getting in shape." If this exercise fails, we're thinking about entering the Marquis de Sade Clinic which specializes in liposuction. It couldn't be any more painful.

THE TIMES' WEEKEND

Flying by Foy:

Bringing theater magic to Jenny Wiley

For the child in everyone who has dreamt of flying off to Neverneverland, but feared that the magic was unattainable, Jenny Wiley Theatre has secured both the magic and the secret of theater flight for this summer's production of Peter Pan.

The wind beneath Peter's wings will be supplied this summer by Flying by Foy, an organization known internationally as the standard in the theater world of special flight effects. The company spends most of its time providing the gift of flight to Broadway productions and for celebrities ranging from Paula Abdul and Michael Jordan to Lucille Ball and Bob Hope, but Flying by Foy will bring its unique brand of theater charm to the rolling hills and starry nights of Eastern Kentucky this summer.

Executive Producer Tedi Vaughan sees the employment of Flying by Foy as a tremendous example of the theater's commitment to providing the best experience possible for its viewers, especially with the theater celebrating its 30th anniversary this season.

"We really feel like bringing in the best in the business, in this case Flying by Foy, shows that we are truly dedicated to bringing standards of excellence to our viewers from many different sources," Vaughan said. "It's especially rewarding being able to see the first-ever on-stage flying taking place to open our 30th year."

David Coleman, a Paintsville native who has served as Jenny Wiley's prop master for the past two seasons, has trained as master flyman and will operate the magical equipment that will propel Holly Wooten, who will be this season's Peter Pan, and the other cast members into Neverneverland this summer.

Through his early experiences with Flying by Foy, Coleman believes new standards will be established for the theater this year.

"This changes the entire Jenny Wiley experience," Coleman said. "It really adds a new dimension to the performances and it should expand our audience base."

The Peter Pan cast and props crew trained with a Flying by Foy representative this past weekend to ensure that the June 24 opening aerial adventure to Neverneverland goes smoothly and provides all the before-missing magic for the kid in everyone.

OVERREACTIONS

— In December in Los Angeles, Patrice Lavann Haslip was charged with shooting her husband in the head because he was making too many errors filling out entry forms for the $10 million grand prize in the Publishers Clearing House and American Family Publishers sweepstakes.

— A 22-year-old, formerly long-haired man was arrested and charged with vandalism in Hengelo, The Netherlands, in December, after he allegedly caused $50,000 damage to a barber shop. He said he had grown increasingly upset that, two weeks before, a barber had wildly overdone his request for a "slight trim."

— Recent beatings in the news and their provocations: Larry Dean Weaver, 27, Allentown, Pa. (punched his mother in frustration in February at not being able to connect his VCR to his TV set); Jose Archuleta, 32, San Antonio (in March attacked the driver of an ice cream truck that was playing "Pop! Goes the Weasel" repeatedly over the loudspeaker); Tracy and John O'Donnell, Westport, Conn. (brawled on their wedding day in August after Tracy thought John was putting cake into her mouth too hard).

— Recent shootings in the news and their provocations: William Bronson, 33, Birmingham, Ala. (allegedly shot two Hardee's employees in August because they wouldn't let him use the men's room before the store opened); a 14-year-old boy, Metairie, La. (shot his teacher in January because she assigned him a classroom seat in the front row); Marlene Lenick, 60, Sewall's Point, Fla. (allegedly shot her husband in October after he announced he wanted to watch yet another football game on TV).

— Recent stabbings in the news and their provocations: Margaret Armstrong, 64, Toronto (in December allegedly stabbed her husband, 60, repeatedly because he talked too much while she was watching TV); Jimmy Durante, 56, Fredericksburg, Va. (was stabbed in the neck in April when his putter broke off during a club-to-club duel with another golfer about courtesy on the green).

COMPELLING EXPLANATIONS

— Victor Shaw, 56, was arrested near White River Junction, Vt., in April after trying to break through a police "rolling roadblock" on Interstate 89. Shaw, who was charged with DUI and other offenses, said, "I saw it so many times in the movies I had to try it."

— In April, John Patrick Murphy was sentenced to 4 1/2 years in prison for 10 counts of making terroristic threats to various St. Paul, Minn., area judges and prosecutors, including instances of slashing their tires and leaving dead animals outside their homes. Said Murphy, when his victims complained: "I think they're consumed by hate, anger and revenge. [They]'ve got to let the anger go."

— South Carolina state Sen. Robert Ford, after it was revealed in May that he had mailed advertisements for his Charleston car dealership at taxpayer expense: "I don't know every damned thing in that ethics law."

— In February at the trial of former office manager Carol Reinbold, who is charged with misuse of more than $600,000, an accountant testified that Reinbold told him that she took the money and spent much of it on clothes. However, the accountant said, she did that only to sell them in order to make money to lend to her former husband, who needed money for his safety because his girlfriend is the wife of a lieutenant of Gen. Manuel Noriega.

— In May the Minneapolis Star-Tribune reported that George Puzak, a member of the city's Park and Recreation Board, had requested reimbursement for official travel at 29 cents a mile despite the fact that he travels by bicycle. State Rep. Phyllis Kahn said she has billed the state for official travel by bicycle since 1979 but not at the maximum rate. She said she always requests a per-mile rate that covers the cost of the bananas and yogurt she eats for "fuel," plus a penny a mile for bicycle depreciation.

— In October, Deptford, N.J., politician Mike Mostovlyan told the Philadelphia Inquirer that he had not intended to send the two large, dead fish he sent through the mail to his political foe, Deputy Mayor Bea Cerkez. Actually, said Mostovlyan, he had intended to mail the fish to a friend in Puerto Rico and a book to Cerkez and simply mislabeled the packages.

— A jury in San Mateo, Calif., was unable to reach a verdict in February in the case of Dr. Eric Southwood, 66, who was on trial for sexual battery for fondling the breasts of several female patients. His lawyer told the court that Southwood simply lacks an appropriate bedside manner and is overly concerned with potential breast cancers, but according to the arresting officer, Southwood said the women were attractive and that he just "likes breasts."

— Michael Stokes, 37, of Elsmore, Kan., was charged in April with threatening President Clinton's life because Clinton refused to support prayer in public schools.

It ain't the heat, it's the humidity.

Same thing might have been said a few months ago, when about three feet of humidity was piled up on the roads, yards and roofs throughout Eastern Kentucky.

We have this fascination with the weather.

Probably because it is one of two things over which man has no particular control.

The other thing is teenagers.

We did an informal survey this week of a few acquaintances and found that the weather was foremost on most minds.

"What," we asked one person, "do you think of the Korean situation?"

"It's not the heat, it's the humidity," was the answer.

"Well," we followed, "what about O.J. Simpson and those two murders?"

"It's the humidity, stupid," came the response.

Okay, okay. We get the picture. But what about this debate over translating the Bible into Klingon?

"Huh?"

Now that we have your attention shifted away from the weather, let's examine this cosmic controversy.

It is a major issue among psycholinguists.

Those are people who have absolutely nothing to do but study languages that don't really exist.

Translated literally, "psycho" means "crazy"

"Linguistics," meanwhile, is an Italian pasta dish.

Put them together, and it suggests that psycholinguists are "off their noodles."

Anyway, there's a big debate over translating the Bible into Klingon.

For anyone vaguely familiar with the famous Star Trek series, Klingons are the arch enemies of the guys aboard the Starship Enterprise.

The Klingon language was invented in 1984 for the movie Star Trek III: The Search for Spock.

Spock is not a Klingon, he's a Vulcan.

Vulgans speak English and put a great deal of emphasis on logical thought.

But then they live on a planet that conjures up images of Dante's "Inferno."

Illogical? Nah, it's the humidity.

One with the law is a majority.

Ken's Trophy Shop captures Johnson City Classic

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Saying that his team wasn't playing very well in the local softball league, Ken's Trophy Shop manager Kenny Conley said that his ballclub may have rediscovered themselves after they journeyed to Johnson City, Tennessee to win the CMT-Worth Softball Classic — one of the oldest tournaments in the USA.

Ken's had little trouble in the three day event as they breezed in all but one game. They edged Patterson in the fourth round 9-6, but aside from that it was a cake walk for the local team.

Jimmy Blakenship Classic's Most Valuable Player

"We just wasn't playing good at all," said Conley. "But down there we just seemed to find ourselves and played real good softball."

Last year the team played under Ken's Sports Shop. A fire destroyed the business and Conley has reentered business as Ken's Trophy Shop.

The local softball team defeated McClain's in the championship game as it went through the double elimination tournament undefeated at 5-0. Ken's posted a 10-6 win in the chamampionship game. They scored eight of their 10 runs in the fourth inning to erase a 3-2 McClain lead.

Strawn Berger belted a three-run home run in the eighth run fourth as they sent 11 batters to the plate.

McClain scored two in the second to take a 2-0 lead. Ken's came back to tie it at two with two in their half of the third. Rod Spradlin and Kane Hale had RBI singles in the inning.

McClain went up 3-2 with a lone run in the third before the local softball team exploded for eight in the fourth for a 10-3 lead.

McClain mounted a rally in the bottom of the seventh by pushing across three runs for a 10-6 final.

Ken's could see how things were going to go in the prestigious tournament. They blitzed S & M Amusement in the first game 30-6 with 15 runs in the sixth inning. Jimmy Blakenship and Mike McQuate homered in the first round game.

Ken's faced Auto Pro in the second round and came away with a convincing 21-9 win. Ken's scored ten times in the bottom of the second inning after plating seven in the first.

Spradlin collected three hits for the winning team as did Bud Newsome. Ronnie Little collected two doubles and batted in three runs.

The victory advanced Ken's to the semifinals of the winner's bracket where they took on a good Patterson team.

Ken's, leading 4-2, scored five times in the fifth inning to open up some room between the two teams, giving them a 9-2 lead.

Patterson made a game of it by pushing home three in the fifth and one in the sixth.

The finals in the winner's bracket pitted Ken's against Fleet Air and the outcome was decided after the first three innings when Ken's scored six runs in the second and six more in the third. Hale homered for Ken's in the third inning, a three run shot.

Jimmy Blakenship was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player. Blakenship collected 14 hits in the five games and hit three home runs.

"Hoss" Halbert elected to Hall of Fame

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The letter began, "Congratulations! You have received the highest honor associated with high school athletics in Kentucky..."

Thus ended a long...
Honored upon former Martin Purple Flash coach Denzil "Hoss" Halbert as he received official notification from the Kentucky High School Athletic Association that he will be inducted in the KHSAA/Dawahares Hall of Fame on March 14, 1995.

"It's great. It's just great. It's a great thing," said the ever so popular former Martin coach who guided the Purple Flash 25 years in a career that began in 1947 and lasted until 1972 when Martin consolidated with Maytown, Wayland and Garrett to form Allen Central High School.

Commissioner Billy Wise, who was also elected to the Hall of Fame this year, notified Halbert of his selection.

Halbert was invited to play a round of golf in the Hall of Fame Golf Tournament, but declined.

"I told them that I would meet them on the 18th hole," Halbert said.

Halbert, who underwent surgery last year, will go under the knife again the first part of July, but this time on his right knee.

"I'm going to get me a whole new right knee," said Halbert. "I can live with my left one, but my right knee, I just can't put any weight on it."

The surgery had been delayed because of the weight of Halbert, who has dropped several pounds.

"I'm going to have it done, if everything is all right. I have to go the last of this month for a check up to have my heart checked and other things.

"The doctor told me that I can do normal things with it, except athletics," he said.

Halbert, in his 25 years at Martin, compiled a record of 528 wins and 331 losses. He had one team to win a regional and advance to Freedom Hall in Louisville and that came in 1965.

"Mr. Purple Flash," as he is commonly referred to, was a motivator as well as an educator and basketball coach.

"I was tough, but I always tried to be fair," he said.

Many outstanding basketball players came out of Martin with two making All-State. Pete Grigsby, Jr. was named to the All-State team in 1952, his senior year. He later went on to sign with the University of Kentucky.

Larry Hall, who was instrumental in leading Martin to its lone state tournament appearance in '65, was also named to the All-State team in '65.

Halbert, who has had many outstanding teams, named the 1949-50 team as his favorite. It was the first year Martin won a district tournament.

Under his guidance, Martin won five district tournaments and were runners-up four times.

Another accomplishment of Halbert's was the success of his baseball program at Martin. The Purple Flash won over 250 games with two district championships and runners-up in the region once.

After consolidation, he served as director of athletics at Allen Central for three years before moving to the central office where he became the county athletic director.

The biggest heartbreak for Halbert came in September 7, 1968 when he was told that the Martin gymnasium had burned to the ground.

"I lost a lot of pictures and other trophies in that fire," he said. "A lot of memories were gone."

Halbert retired on June 30, 1985 after 38 years of service as an educator and coach.

A special section on the former Martin coach will be forth coming the latter part of June plus a special tabloid on his accomplishments, player's comments, photos and an overall look at his career.

Skeens no-hits Martin Braves in 12-1 victory

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was to be Joe Skeens' day as the Drift Astros and Martin Braves met in the regular season final for both clubs at the Martin Park Wednesday evening.

The Braves scored their lone run, unearned, in the second inning. Scott Bradley walked, stole second and third before coming home on an error.

The game was called after four innings because of the 10 run mercy rule.

Skeens, in working the four innings, struck out nine batters and walked eight. Jessie Compton took the loss for the Braves, going the four innings. He fanned six and walked three.

The Astros got on the scoreboard in a big way in the first inning as they scored six times against Compton. Skeens started the inning with a base hit and Jason Spriggs followed with a single.

Brent Stone, who has been on a tear lately, drilled a two-run double to score both Skeens and Spriggs. Byron Hall drew a walk before John Mullins lined a base hit off the fence, scoring both Stone and Hall. The hit parade continued when Graden Allen doubled home Mullins and he scored on Robbie Stumbo's base hit.

The Astros pushed home two in the second on Stone's two-run single. "Stone's been our big RBI man," Astro manager Clinis Hall said. "Adam Ward has been playing some good baseball for us also."

Ratliff named to Kentucky All-Star baseball squad

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

All-Star games will be happening all over the state and beyond this weekend as the boys and girls play basketball in Louisville, the footballers play in Memphis, Tennessee and the baseball boys of summer will do their thing in Corbin this Saturday and Sunday.

While two join the football forces from Prestonsburg High School, another from the same school, and the quarterback, will don different spikes as he takes to the diamond for the annual Kentucky All-Star tournament.

Thomas Ratliff, Prestonsburg, was named to the elite squad this week and will travel to Corbin for the two day affair. The teams will play Saturday evening and again Sunday evening.

Ratliff played for Coach Russell Shepherd's ballclub and held down second base as well as pitched for the Blackcats.

On Saturday morning, a baseball camp will be held for all the players and the camp will draw the attention of several major league scouts as well as college coaches.

Hyden, Fitzpatrick off to Memphis for All-Star series

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

While the focal point on all-star games is on Louisville tomorrow night, there is still another all-star game being played in Memphis, Tennessee.

The Kentucky/Tennessee football all-star series will resume Saturday night at 7 p.m. and two Floyd Countians will be part of the festivities.

Prestonsburg star running back Seth Hyden and outstanding defensive player Kyle Fitzpatrick will be part of the 40-man Kentucky All-Star team.

Both players were instrumental in helping Prestonsburg to reach the Class 2A championship game in Louisville last December.

Hyden has the inside track on starting at the fullback slot. Fitzpatrick will see valuable time on the defensive side of the football where he was regarded as one of the best in the state.

Kentucky trails in the series with Tennessee 8-2 and hopes to turn things around this time out. Bell County coach Dudley Hilton will guide the Bluegrass team and has been running them through three-a-day practices at Western Kentucky University for the past two days.

Hilton still hadn't decided on a starting lineup as of Wednesday. While there are several capable quarterbacks on the team, Anderson County's Joe Smith or Tommy Owen of Marion County appears to head the list.

Hilton said that UofL signee John (See All-Stars, B 5)

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

CRUM WRITES; SANDBERG SAYS HE'S THROUGH...

It was good to talk to Maynard Crum of Alexandria, Virginia last Monday afternoon. Crum sent me the story on Pat Tallent and his taking part in the Maryland Amateur Golf Tournament last weekend.

Maynard is a former Purple Flash and is currently serving our country in the service (Navy) where he works for the Department of Energy.

He has been a sailor for the past 22 years and will be make it to 30?

"I don't know yet," he told me over the phone.

Maynard graduated in the last senior class at Martin High School and that was back in 1972. He said that he always enjoyed watching Pat Tallent play basketball.

"I used to caddy for his dad in golf," Crum said. "I got to know him well."

"The Times has always been great about covering folks out of the area," said Crum.

TO SANDBERG, $16 MILLION DOESN'T MEAN MUCH...

I know that a lot of us cannot say that, but to Ryne Sandberg, his performance on the baseball field means more.

It must have because the popular second baseman of the Chicago Cubs called it quits after struggling all season.

I admire Sandberg because his evaluation was that with the way he was playing, he wasn't worth the money he was getting.

Many would have stayed on and drew the easy money, but Sandberg said, "It has never been a part of my thinking or why I played the game..."

FOOTBALL HALL OF FAMER QUESTIONED...

O.J. Simpson, former football great and a member of football's Hall of Fame, found himself as a "witness" in the death of his wife and another man.

I always liked O.J. as a football player. He seemed to play hard every time out and was a credit to the game.

It will be interesting how this one ends!

WALKER, EDWARDS GIVE CATS A BRIGHT FUTURE...

I, like all Kentucky basketball fans, was pleased to learn that Antoine Walker and Allen Edwards qualified to play next season as freshmen.

Both will be a year away from making an impact, but should see major playing time.

I still like Anthony Epps as a point guard. He can handle the basketball and shoot the treys as well as anyone. He will only get better and Edwards may not be the man come December.

Jarred Prickett is going to be the key to the Kentucky offense next season. Jarred had a horrible sophomore season and looks to improve his game and bounce back this season.

Walter McCarty will be a big part of the scheme of things for coach Rick Pitino. Mark Pope. Well, we'll just have to wait and see on him.

KENTUCKY RIFLES...

How many are aware that the Kentucky Rifles (rookie baseball team) do exist? The Rifles will be in their second season and will open up tonight (Friday) on the road in Portsmouth, Ohio.

The club certainly needs a good public relations person that will make the team more known in Floyd County.

I personally feel that the club (and league) needs to showcase more local players. Fan interest would be greater and more tickets would be sold if fans could identify with some of the players performing.

A good regional radio broadcast would be beneficial.

I plan to attend some of the home games this season. Last year, communications was a big problem. A good strong public relations person is a MUST for the Rifles.

The team will play a 22 game schedule plus a playoff at season's end.

All home games will be played at Pikeville instead of splitting the games between Paintsville and Pikeville. Game times Monday through Saturday will be 7:35 p.m. and 2 p.m. on Sundays.

GOOD TO SEE...

A local regional player, Brad Tiller, did the area proud when he signed with the Cleveland Indians last Sunday.

I got to know Brad through coverage of the Paintsville Big League games the last two seasons and he is a quality ball player. I wish him the best in his ventures through the minor leagues.

BLUEGRASS GAMES BOOKLETS
The Bluegrass State Games will begin on July 29 and some deadlines are approaching.

If you need a booklet that has an application form in it, I have plenty here in my office or you may pick one up at the front desk.

Also, if you are competing in the games this year, let me know what category you will be in. We want to cover as many as we can this year. Give me a call and inform me.

I sure hope we can have several in 3-on-3 basketball.

PARIDO'S CAMP...

Prestonsburg head basketball coach Gordon Parido will conduct his annual camp this coming Monday for grades 3-5. Grades 5-8 will attend the second week, June 27-July 1.

Camp times are 9 a.m. until noon. Each camper will receive a T-shirt, individual instruction, awards and prizes.

Should be a fun two weeks. For more information, call Coach Parido at 886-8488 or 886-8578.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports. It's always nicer to be good sports. Take the kids to church this Sunday.

Prestonsburg Yankees survive Indian attack with 6-5 win

Hackworth's two-run single keeps Yanks first

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It took extra innings before the Prestonsburg Yankees could put the Prestonsburg Indians away in Little League action Tuesday night at Archer Park, but the first place team posted a 6-5 win over Greg Dixon's ballclub.

Dixon just ran out of pitching as Sam Shepherd hurled his allotted six innings before giving way to Ryan Martin.

Martin pitched the seventh with his team nursing a 5-4 lead. It appeared as Martin was going to escape a two on, no out situation when he got Jessie Hunter to line hard to center and Kyle Shepherd to loft a fly ball to left field for the second out.

Before the two outs, Martin issued a leadoff walk to Elray Cline and Jacob Shepherd was safe at first on a fielder's choice. Both runners moved up a base on an overthrow from the outfield.

Justin Hackworth then worked Martin to a 2-1 count before drilling as base hit to right center scoring Cline with the tying run and Shepherd with the winning run.

Martin suffered the setback in relief of Shepherd. Kyle Shepherd picked up the win for the Yankees, throwing the last four innings.

Gabe Shepherd started for the Yankees on the mound going the first three.

The Yankees jumped out in front early in the first inning on a one out walk to Kyle Shepherd, who came around to score on a catcher's error.

Two runs came home to give the Yankees a 3-0 lead in the second inning. The Yanks scored without the benefit of a base hit.

Brooks Stinnet was hit-by-a-pitch and Gabe Shepherd walked. With Stinnet on third, Mike Stephens hit a sacrifice fly to right scoring Stinnet. Shepherd moved to third, but on a decoy play by the Indians, Shepherd was nailed at the plate.

Cline walked and scored on an error to give the Yankees a 3-0 lead.

The Indians made it 3-2 with a pair of runs in the top of the third. John Dixon collected a one out triple and scored when Jarrod Hall's liner to second went for an error. Hall went to second and third on wild pitches before scoring on a wild pitch.

A single run for the Yankees in the fifth inning gave them a two-run cushion at 4-2. Consecutive walks to Eric Fleming and Stinnet set up Stephen's RBI single.

Back-to-back doubles by Dixon and Hall for the Indians tied the game in the sixth inning. Martin walked to start the frame with Dixon roping a double to center scoring Martin. He came around on Hall's double.

The Indians took their only lead in the top of the seventh when Sam Shepherd singled and went to second on an error in right field. Josh Turner walked, but Shawn Newsome went out to left field. After Mark Blankenship drew a walk, Martin bounced to second where Blankenship was tagged out, allowing Shepherd to score and give the Indians a 5-4 lead.

The Yankees missed a golden opportunity to put the game in the win column in the bottom of the sixth. But a strong effort by Sam Shepherd kept the Yankees off the board in the inning.

Kyle Shepherd opened the sixth with a double and Justin Hackworth followed with a base hit, but third base coach Bobby Shepherd chose to hold up Shepherd at third base with Hackworth moving into second.

With no outs, Coach Dixon instructed Shepherd to pass Eric Fleming intentionally to set up a force at any base. Shepherd got Stinnet to pop out to short and fanned Gabe Shepherd and Stephens consecutively to shut down the Yankees.

Kyle Shepherd picked up the win in his four innings. He allowed three runs on four hits and struck out seven while walking eight batters.

Gabe Shepherd went the first three, giving up two runs on three hits. He walked one and fanned five.

Sam Shepherd allowed the Yankees four runs on five hits. He struck out seven, but was wild, walking 11.

Martin gave up two runs on one hit. He walked one batter.

Hackworth had two hits for the Yankees and he collected two RBIs. Sam Shepherd had a two-hit night for the Indians as did John Dixon. Dixon had a double and triple in the game.

The Yankees improved to 10-1 on the season while the Indians fell to 7-4.

Skeens

Astros in the third inning as he reached on an error, stole second and third before scoring on an error.

The final three came in the fourth on a RBI double by Stone and Ward's two run single.

"Joe and Jason are two tough little ball players," Hall said. "They are both only 10-years-old. They are going to be good ones. They get on base and score runs. They're playing great."

The Astros completed their regular season with an 11-1 record, but may have to play an extra playoff game today at Minnie. If the ARH Renegades won their game yesterday (Thursday) against the Martin Braves, the two teams would be tied for the top spot in the South Division of the Beaver Creek Little League, forcing a playoff game.

Montgomery goes distance as...

Paintsville splits with Ashland in doubleheader

Don Montgomery homered and hurled a complete game in game one of the Paintsville Big League's doubleheader against Ashland Tuesday night, a game won by Paintsville 4-2.

The local Big League team dropped the nightcap 5-2 to Ashland. Paintsville evened its record at 3-3, splitting their first three doubleheaders.

Montgomery (2-0) went the full seven for Paintsville, allowing just the two runs on two hits. He had double figure strikeouts with 13 while walking two. It was his second win of the year.

Mark Shortridge and Brent Adams collected two hits each in the first game.

Jon Holbrook banded out three hits in four plate appearances in game two, but it wasn't enough as Paintsville dropped the 5-2 game.

Jeremy Melvin went the distance for Paintsville in the losing cause. He allowed all five runs (three earned) on five hits. Four of the five hits came in the fourth inning. Melvin fanned four and walked three.

Allen Central's Todd Bingham had a hit in the second game.

Paintsville will face Madison County Friday night at 5:30 p.m. to open the City Between the Lakes Tournament at the Paintsville Park. Paintsville will play two games Saturday and two on Sunday.

All-Stars

Barber looked good in practices, but will be used elsewhere rather than at the signal calling position.

"Barber can play so many other positions," Hilton said. According to Hilton, Barber could play at three positions because of his versatility. He will see some time at linebacker, tight end and wide receiver.

While Hyden appears to be the front-runner at the fullback slot, others have been impressive thus far.

"We want to let them all have an equal opportunity at it," the Kentucky coach said.

Others include Clay County's DeShea Henson, who faced the wrath of the Prestonsburg defense in the opening game of last season's schedule. Kentucky's Mr. Football, Jeremy Simpson of Lincoln County, has caught the eye of the coach.

Local park beehive of activity

Archer Park has been and continues to be a very busy place with all the youth leagues along with men and women's softball going on.

Chuck Scoville reports women's results of games played at the park this week:

- Monday evening, the Yankees minor league team posted a 19-6 win over the minor league A's.
- Tuesday evening in the minor leagues, the Pirates were a 12-7 winner over the mighty White Sox.
- Also Tuesday, the Cubs handed the Braves a 12-3 setback.
- Little League action was hot and heavy as Tuesday's play saw the Yankees and Indians battle in extra innings before the front running Yankees posted a 6-5 win in seven innings. The Yankees are 10-1 on the season.

• Canier Hall's red hot A's recorded a thrilling 4-2 win over the Mets to take sole possession of second place in the league standings. George Hall was impressive on the mound for the A's in going the distance. He fanned the side on two occasions during the game.

The A's victory, coupled with the Indians loss, gave the A's the second place position with an 8-3 record.

WMDJ winners...

In men's softball play, Dale McKinney's WMDJ team held on to defeat Vanover and Hall 13-11.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-5307
In accordance with KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that MATT/CO, Inc., P.O. Box G20, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653, has applied for a permit for an underground coal mining operation located 0.50 mile northeast of Emma in Floyd County. The proposed operation will disturb 15.61 surface acres and will underlie 729.15 acres, and the total area within the permit boundary will be 744.76 acres.
The proposed operation is approximately 0.24 mile north from Kentucky Route 1428's junction with Kentucky Route 194 and located 0.08 mile east of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. The latitude is 37° 38' 30". The longitude is 82° 41' 45".
The proposed operation is located on the Lancer U.S.G.S. 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be disturbed is owned by Eddie B. Merritt. The operation will underlie land owned by Eddie B. Merritt, Ed Leslie Estate, Forrest Burchett, Troy Whitt, Clyde Burchett, William Jarrell, Irvin Harris, Roland Blackburn, Leonard Gobel, Rosie Woods Estate, Columbus Jarvis, and Gale Burchett.
The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 2705 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director, Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.
This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date.

PROPOSAL. The bid security is required as a guarantee that if the Proposal is accepted Contract will be immediately entered into and the performance of it properly secured. A cashier's check is not considered proper bid security.

NOTICE OF BLASTING SCHEDULE

Permit Number 836-9013
Pursuant to Kentucky Public Law 405 KAR 16:120, Section 3, Costain Coal Inc., 170 Tollage Creek Road, Pikeville, KY 41501, Telephone (606) 432-0307, proposes the following blasting schedule:
The blasting area consists of approximately 140.03 acres and the blasting site is located approximately 0.5 miles South of Ivel in Floyd County and located approximately 0.6 miles South of U.S. Route 23's junction with the Ivel Road and located in Stratton Branch at latitude 37° 34' 47" and longitude 82° 40' 26".
Blasting will begin on or about June, 1994 and continue for not more than twelve months. All blasting is to be conducted during daylight hours Monday through Sunday. No blasting will be performed between sunset and sunrise.
Entry to the blasting area will be regulated by signs or barriers. An authorized representative will prohibit access to the blasting area by unauthorized persons at least ten (10) minutes prior to each detonation. At five (5) minutes prior to each detonation, a preliminary warning consisting of a one minute series of long blasts of a siren or air horn will be sounded and the area will be cleared and secured. After securing the area, and approximately 1 minute prior to detonation, a series of long blasts by the siren or air horn will be sounded, followed immediately by the detonation. No unauthorized person will be allowed in the blast area until is thoroughly checked. If safe, an all clear signal of three short blasts of the siren or air horn will be sounded.
Events which could lead to the blasting at times other than scheduled include, but are not limited to rain, lightning, or other atmospheric conditions which involve personnel, operational, or public safety. If conditions occur that require blasting at times other than the normally scheduled blasting hours, the audible signs described above will be used to warn the public of the blasting activity. In the event blasting is conducted at unscheduled times, all personnel within one-half mile of the blasting area shall be orally notified and a signal as described above will be sounded before detonation.
