Floyd County native is the man in the middle of baseball strike talks

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Little did John Calhoun Wells, formerly of Auxier, realize that one day he would sit at the head of a bargaining table and help major league baseball players and owners try to reach an agreement that would put the players back on the field and fans back in the stands.

Wells, who was appointed by President Bill Clinton as the 13th Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service on November 15, 1993, is in that position.

The former Floyd Countian is the chief negotiator in the dispute that has shut down baseball since the players walked out on August 12.

"Never in my wildest dreams did I ever think that I would be sitting there with 12 owners and 18 major league baseball players trying to help them find a solution to the problem," said Wells during an exclusive telephone interview with the Floyd County Times Thursday.

"I turned down the New York Times five minutes ago. But I one side and players on the other. The Kansas City Royals, Toronto Bluejays, New York Yankees, New York Mets and eight other teams are represented at the table.

The talks recessed Thursday (yesterday), but the mediator said he felt that much was accomplished.

"We have just gone into recess," he said after the two parties split

Mishap at park puts a damper on reunion

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

A family reunion at Archer Park Saturday turned into an adventure that one Lexington family won't soon forget after their three-year-old toddler tumbled into a creek.

The toddler fell into the creek around 2 p.m. when he attempted to climb into the back of his grandfather's truck, which was parked close to a creek bank at the park, said Orville Cooley, who attended the Matt Parsley reunion Saturday.

The child lost his balance and rolled down a steep embankment, landing in the creek, Cooley said.

Recent rains had swollen the creek, and the water was too deep for the child to stand. When the child tumbled into the creek, his grandfather, Ronnie Goodman, jumped into the creek after him.

"The child's mother was right behind him," Cooley said. Goodman held the child above the water, which Cooley said was almost up to the man's chest.

The three looked for a place to climb out of the creek, but the embankment was too steep, Cooley said. Family members called the Prestonsburg Fire Department for help.

Prestonsburg firefighters Tim Blackburn and Terry Music responded to the call. When they arrived, they extended a ladder down the hill, and the Goodman family climbed out of the creek, unharmed.

Jury is expected to begin deliberating today on testimony from murder case

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer and Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Jurors are expected to render a verdict today (Friday) in the murder trial of Larry Robinson, who is accused of killing William Bucky Rose on Memorial Day, 1993.

Testimony in the case concluded Thursday in Floyd Circuit Court and jurors will be given instructions and closing arguments in the case this morning. Then will retire for deliberations in the case.

Robinson is accused of intentionally running over Rose with his vehicle at Banner on May 29 last year. Robinson was following Rose and Rose's wife, Mary, whom Robinson had been dating.

During open arguments Wednesday, prosecutor Dan Rowland told jurors that Mary and Bucky Rose had had marital difficulties, but were talking about reconciling just before his death.

The Roses had separated and filed for divorce, but did not pursue the divorce proceedings, Rowland said. During their separation, Mary Rose had dated Robinson.

On the day of Rose's death, Mary Rose and her husband were going to Pikeville to look for a car. Before the Roses went to Pikeville, Robinson came by Mary Rose's home at Auxier and had asked her to go with him to pick out a light fixture. Mary Rose declined and left with her husband.

Rowland said that Robinson followed the couple until they pulled off the road at Banner.

Defense attorney Steve Owens argued that Rose's death was an accident and that Robinson stayed at the scene giving aid to Rose.

Mary Rose testified that she and her husband stopped at Banner because Bucky Rose wanted to talk to Robinson. Mary Rose said her husband got out of their vehicle and was walking toward Robinson's truck when Robinson ran over him.

Mary Rose said after her husband had been run over, Robinson kept telling her, "I'm sorry baby."

Board okays annual grading for teachers

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County school administrators will not be the only employees evaluated annually: school board members voted Monday night to require that teacher's job performance be gauged each year, too.

The board voted Monday to revise a proposed evaluation process to also include teacher attendance as a part of an overall evaluation.

The board's decision followed a long and spirited discussion with members of an evaluation committee, headed by Connie Tackett, coordinator of elementary education.

Tackett and other committee members told the board that annual teacher evaluations would virtually take all of a principal's attention, which would leave little time to oversee daily operations at the schools.

Board member Eddie Patton said that a teacher's performance should be evaluated constantly by a principal.

Board member Dolores Smith agreed and said she saw no problem with annual evaluations.

"We say that principals are instructional leaders and that's exactly what we want them to be doing," Smith said.

Board member Phyllis Honshell disagreed, saying that principals should know if there are weak teachers at their school and that those teachers should be evaluated more often.

Patton also insisted that teacher attendance be made part of the evaluation and that their attendance be based on the average daily attendance of students.

"We need to set a standard for the teachers in the county and it should match the kids' (attendance)," Patton said. "We have a problem with teacher absences."

Man tells cops he thought he was shooting at a dog

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Police say a Daniels Creek man said he thought he was shooting at a dog Saturday evening when he fired two blasts from a shotgun, hitting a man riding a four-wheeler past his home.

Kentucky State Police forced their way into the home of Malcolm Lewis, 74, Saturday night at approximately 10:25 p.m. and arrested him after he allegedly shot Charles Jervis, also of Daniels Creek, at 9:45 p.m. Trooper Bobby Day and sheriff's deputy Ricky Newsome said that Lewis ignored repeated requests by officers to come outside his residence and that Lewis was heavily armed inside his home.

Deputy Newsome said that officers found a shotgun, a SKS rifle and Tackett said that the number of days a teacher is absent could create a false impression because the absences could be caused by serious medical problems.

Patton said that the reasons for the absences could be noted on the evaluation form.

a .22 caliber rifle, all loaded, inside Lewis' residence.

The police citation noted that alcohol was involved in the incident.

Jervis, 28, was struck by buckshot from the shotgun blasts on numerous parts of his body. He was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center, where he was treated and released.

Lewis was arraigned on first degree assault charges Monday morning in Floyd District Court and a not guilty plea was entered on the charge. Lewis was ordered to have no contact with Jervis and bond was set at $20,000, 10 percent cash or property. A preliminary hearing is set for September 6 at 2:30 p.m. in district court.

Troopers Lynn Cross, Mike Thorpe and John Slone also responded to the scene.

Hal Rogers to keynote arts center ceremony

Fifth District Congressman Hal Rogers will dig in during groundbreaking ceremonies in Prestonsburg for the Mountain Arts Center on Monday, August 29.

Rogers will join local officials Jerry Fannin, Prestonsburg mayor; John M. Stumbo, Floyd County Judge-Executive; and Paul Hughes, chairman of the Kentucky Opry Board for the ceremony which begins at 2 p.m.

Last week, Rogers announced the approval by the U.S. House of Representatives of $1 million in Small Business Administration funds to help with construction of the new arts center.

Rogers will also conduct a town meeting on Monday. The meeting will be held at 5 p.m. at the Floyd County Courthouse. He will be available to answer questions and hear concerns about issues such as health care reform, social security, crime, and economic development.

Tourism funds are awarded to city, summer theatre

Floyd County received a portion of the state's tourism pie this week.

Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre and the Prestonsburg Tourism Commission received funds disbursed by the state Department of Travel Development to the Eastern Highlands-North Tourism Region through a matching grant program.

Jenny Wiley Theatre received $5,000 for printing and mailing of brochures and for tourism advertising in magazines and other tourism-related publications, said Tedi Vaughan, theatre general manager.

The Prestonsburg Tourism Commission was awarded $780. Fred James, Prestonsburg tourism director, said the funds will be used for ad rack rental space. Brochures about Floyd County events will be placed in welcome centers and motels along I-64 and I-75, James said.

Unanimous vote needed to impeach

Wheelwright officials suggest they'll press for ouster over lawnmower deal

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A unanimous vote by the commission and mayor is required to impeach a Wheelwright City Commissioner for the alleged unauthorized sale of a city lawnmower.

It appears unlikely that the commission will be able to garner enough votes to oust Commissioner Allen Taylor, because earlier this month Mayor Marlee Sammons tried to persuade fellow commissioners to drop plans to impeach Taylor.

Commissioners Luther Johnson Jr., Charles Harmon and David Hall want to oust Taylor for selling a lawnmower for $35.

But that claim could be a non-issue because Taylor may have not needed city approval for the sale.

A spokesman for the Legislative Research Commission (LRC) said Thursday that under the mayor/commission form of government commissioners are usually put in charge of certain city departments and have the authority to dispose of city property.

At the time of the lawnmower sale last February, Commissioner Taylor was named to oversee the streets and parks department.

As for impeaching Taylor, a charge of misconduct, incapacity or willful neglect of duty must be publicly made against the commissioner, according to the LRC. Taylor then must be afforded a public hearing to face the charges and it will take a unanimous vote by the commissioners and mayor to oust him.

If the commissioners and mayor do vote to impeach Taylor, Taylor has the right to appeal the decision to circuit court.

On Wednesday, Harmon said he

Council hopes rate hike is last resort

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Martin City Council is looking for ways to raise extra funding for the city's water department without having to raise rates for water customers.

For the past several months council has been trying to get a handle on the finances in the water department to ensure that the city will be able to repay loans for the construction of a new sewer plant.

Council is frustrated with the amount of money owed to the city in past due accounts and that virtually no attempt has been made to collect approximately $40,000 in outstanding debts. An apparent lack of management in the city water department has also been an issue with council.

At Wednesday's city council meeting, councilman Alan Whicker said he would not vote for an increase in water rates and suggested the city look at other ways to make the water department self-supporting. He blamed the water department's financial problems on the lack of management and on politics.

"The reason the water department is in this condition is because of politics and poor management," Whicker said. "The problem I have with a water rate increase is why hasn't it been done prior to now? Why hasn't the council and mayor acted before? The blame is over with. This is where the buck stops. I understand that we've got a problem and we've got to manage the system."

Councilman Denzil Halbert told Whicker that prior administrations had neglected to address problems in the water department.

Halbert said he did not feel any problem in the water department was the fault of the water clerk.

"The city water clerk is not responsible for going out and collecting bills or physically pulling water meters," Halbert said. "Her job is to keep the books. Deficit spending in the water department is nothing new. When a water commissioner owed $2,000 to $3,000, they are not going to vote to pull the meter. If the money is not there, you can't make the books balance. The whole idea has been blown out of proportion."

Council rejected a proposal from Water Resources Assistance Corporation, a division of the Big Sandy Area Development District, to take control of the water department to attempt to solve the managerial and financial problems.

Council balked at relinquishing complete control of the department and opted to look at hiring a part or full-time manager.

Councilman Steve Jenkins commented that if council had the answers to their questions, they could find a solution to the problems.

"I think we're pretty close to having a good water system," Jenkins said. "This governing body needs a few answers to know which direction to go in. If we had the answers, we could make a hard and fast decisions."

Whicker suggested the city hire someone who has no connections to the city or city council members. He said that would be the only way to take politics out of the department.

Council made no decision on the issue.

Also Wednesday, council had second reading of an ordinance which set sewer usage rates at $10.71 for the first 2,000 gallons of water used and $5.10 for each additional 1,000 gallons. The money generated by the usage charge will go toward paying for part of the construction cost for the new sewer plant.

Councilwoman Hazel Robinson voted against the rate, saying that some citizens would not be able to afford the cost.

In other business Wednesday: Council accepted an estimate from Bobby Griffith of $3,400 to make all the property owned by the city handicapped accessible. Council was cited earlier by state officials because not all city owned buildings were handicapped accessible. City officials have until August 31 to make the needed renovations.

Council held first reading of an ordinance which will deny sewer service to any facility built in the flood plain. Clerk Johnnie B. Stephens told council that the ordinance had to be passed in order to comply with state and federal regulations.

Council approved opening up a line of credit of up to $500,000 to pay for necessary expenses associated with the sewer project.

Council voted to change the name of the Martin Volunteer Fire Department to the Martin Volunteer Fire and Rescue Department in order to be eligible for grant monies.

Council denied a request from Harold Case for the city to hire its own dispatchers for the police department, citing a lack of funds.

Councilman Everett Akers Jr. was absent from Wednesday's meeting.

Board

The board voted 4-1 for the evaluation process, including the additions, with Honsshell voting against it.

Also Monday:

Board members voted 3-2 against giving school administrators two extra paid vacation days. Board members Smith and Honsshell voted in favor of the extra days.

Board members agreed to contribute $15,000 toward a settlement with Triple B Corporation for site work at South Floyd High School. Triple B sued the board and was awarded a judgment in the case in September 1992.

Board members voted to let the student body at South Floyd High School choose the name for the gym. The board also agreed that no school should be named after anyone who is living.

Central office employees will no longer have to punch a time clock with Monday's board decision to discontinue the practice.

The next scheduled meeting of the board will be Monday, September 19 at Prestonsburg Elementary.

Fun and sun for students at Duff School

On May 25, the fifth grade students of Duff Elementary attended the Floyd County Day in the Park at Dewey Lake. The Duff students were joined by all Floyd County fifth graders who had completed the DARE program sponsored by the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

The students enjoyed music, dancing, and playing in the park. A helicopter and hook-and-ladder fire truck were on display for the students to tour. After a picnic lunch, the deputies climbed into a dunk tank and the students lined up in order to have a chance at "dunking a deputy."

Near the end of the day, the Sheriff's Department provided the students with sodas to take home.

Chaperoning this event were Charlotte P. Case, Helen Martin, and Melanie Turner.

Murder

In a statement given to defense attorney Steve Owens, Mary Rose said she thought Robinson accidentally killed her husband. In her statement she said, "I don't think Larry intended to kill Bucky."

Paula Spriggs, a witness to the accident, testified Thursday that she saw Bucky Rose's body under Robinson's vehicle, but she did not remember seeing Robinson's vehicle hit Rose.

Spriggs, who was acquainted with Robinson, said she spoke with him at the scene, but he was unresponsive. Spriggs said she came forward after she saw an advertisement in the newspaper asking if anyone saw the incident. Spriggs gave a statement to police about what she saw.

Robinson's father, Edward Robinson, testified that his insurance company had investigated the incident and deemed it to be an accident. Edward Robinson said his insurance policy had a clause that said no claims would be covered if it was proved that someone intentionally caused bodily injury to another person. The insurance company paid Edward Robinson's claim after an independent investigation.

On Wednesday, Kentucky State Police detective Joel Newsome testified that Robinson told him that he was trying to avoid Rose and struck him while trying to go around him with his vehicle.

The case is being heard by special Judge Doug Combs of Perry County.

recall." Wells said that he and the two sides talked all day Wednesday and half of the day Thursday.

"Each side wanted to just step back and reflect on what was discussed the two days," he said. "They want to just look at all the issues that we discussed."

"At the table yesterday and today, both sides defined the issues and there was a good, full discussion on the issues."

"There is definitely a difference between the two sides."

Wells said that while the two parties did talk, something they hadn't done until Wednesday, they still remain far apart on a settlement.

"Both sides were straight with each other," he said. "They were forthright over their concerns. They are going to step back and look at everything and see how to find the best way to address the differences."

Wells said that he did not know when the talks would resume, but as mediator, he is subject to recall when they want to return to the bargaining table.

"Timing is the thing right now," he said. "But it's hard for me to say how the talks will go."

Major league owners want a salary cap to preserve the game of baseball while the players want a bigger share of the market.

The strike is the eighth stoppage in the history of the game and the second longest.

"It is something that someone from Floyd County is part of the mediating force," he said. "I'm working hard to get baseball started back for Americans, Kentuckians and Floyd Countians.

"I am a big baseball fan and would like to see the game resume," said Wells. "But here I am in the middle of downtown New York, in the Big Apple, trying to negotiate a settlement."

Wells took time to reflect on his days as a third baseman in the Prestonsburg Little League when he played third base for the Indians and coach Earl McDonald.

"We played on the field at the grade school at the time," he recalled. "Coach McDonald wasn't an easy coach."

From third base in the Prestonsburg Little League to head mediator between major league players and owners, Wells has made Floyd Countians proud of their native son.

His interview on ESPN was seen by many Floyd Countians and it seemed to please him that his hometown folks were able to see him.

"Did you see me?" he asked. "I haven't been able to catch it on the news myself. I'm glad the folks back home were able to see it."

The Auxier native holds a B.A. from the University of Kentucky and pursued graduate studies at McGill University. He earned his Ph.D. from Rutgers University.

Wells was an active member of various community and state organizations while living in Kentucky and Texas.

He was Kentucky's first Secretary of Labor, serving under Governors John Y. Brown and Martha Layne Collins.

Wells and his wife Charissa Ann reside in Reston, Virginia.

intends to pursue impeachment proceedings against Taylor because Taylor did not have permission to sell the lawnmower and because of other unspecified charges.

"There has never been any doubt that Commissioner Taylor turned in the $35 (to the city clerk) he received from the sale of the city's $1,000 riding lawnmower that was two years old. Commissioner Taylor has stated twice that I and Commissioner Johnson told him to sell the lawnmower. I can't speak for Johnson, but I, on at least four occasions in front of witnesses, told Commissioner Taylor that not only was it illegal for him to sell city property on his own, but it was also foolish to sell a $1,000 riding lawnmower that we could fix for $150 for an amount like $35."

Harmon said that he and fellow commissioners are looking out for themselves.

"Commissioner Taylor thinks he can do as he pleases," Harmon said. "And, when we stop him from actions that could land us all in jail, he goes through this town, house-to-house, telling slanderous lies on other members of the city commission, which keeps this town in a constant turmoil. . . I've always liked Allen and wish things hadn't gotten to this point, but the lawnmower is only one of several items that will be discussed in the upcoming impeachment proceedings. . ."

Harmon added that he thought Mayor Sammons was asking commissioners at the August 15 meeting to allow Taylor to return the money to person who bought the lawnmower so that the lawnmower could be returned to the city.

Taylor has maintained that he has done nothing wrong and will fight the charges.

Water carried disease increases 250 times

One million Americans a year become sick from diseases caused by bacteria or man-made poisonous compounds found in the nation's water supplies.

That statistic is a small fraction, when you consider a nation of nearly 300 million Americans. But taken from another viewpoint it is significant, because just 15 years ago the incidence of illnesses from water supplies was about 4,000 cases each year. In other words, in just a decade and a half, the incidence of reported disease from contaminated water has increased 250 times.

That statistic was the purpose underlying the formation of "The Drinking Water Awareness Council." The Council is a non-profit agency whose purpose is to bring new awareness and understanding about how contaminated water affects the nation's health and future.

Free information about drinking water and the results from testing various purification systems are available for interested consumers. Write to the Drinking Water Awareness Council, Dept. GM, 140 W. 29th Street, Pueblo CO. 81008.

Rural America Invests In New Satellite Television Service

It's amazing what a little cooperation can accomplish. For the 798 rural utilities and independent investors who make up the National Rural Telecommunications Cooperative (NRTC), their combined effort purchased rural distribution rights to the 18-inch satellite dish television system which many industry experts say could offer the best and most economical on-ramp to the information superhighway for rural Americans.

The service, called DIRECTV, is the nation's first high-power direct broadcast satellite (DBS) television service. It will be launched nationally this fall and will provide subscribers with approximately 150 channels of television, with laser disc-quality video and CD-quality audio, using an 18-inch satellite dish antenna, which can be easily mounted on a roof, porch railing or the side of a house.

Offering nearly all of the most popular cable channels, plus pay-per-view movies, events and out-of-town sports, with digital picture and sound quality, DIRECTV offers everything today that fiber-optic cable promises for the future, according to its proponents.

Plus, you don't need the cable company to run a wire into your house to receive DIRECTV, which is what caught the attention of NRTC and its rural members.

"Many people don't realize it, but there are more than 12 million people in the U.S. who live beyond the reach of off-air and cable television," says Bob Phillips, NRTC's chief executive officer. "In most cases, it's simply not economically feasible to run wires out to most rural areas. Through the NRTC/DIRECTV partnership, these disenfranchised Americans will have access to the same affordable, comprehensive information and television services enjoyed by the rest of the country. And, for people who do have access to cable, it will give them a choice."

For DIRECTV, the partnership provides an established rural distribution arm with a proven record of quality service and customer satisfaction, according to DIRECTV President Eddy Hartenstein.

"We feel that serving rural America is a key part of our mission," says Hartenstein. "There is no better entity to provide rural DBS service on the local level than NRTC and its members."

While DIRECTV will be available nationally through a number of other outlets, NRTC members are in a rather unique position, due to their large investment in the project. Except for selected test markets, NRTC members will be the only distribution chain that will be selling DIRECTV this summer, albeit on a limited basis—the full national roll-out is not scheduled until the fall.

In addition, consumers who live in NRTC-member territories will have access to exclusive programming packages and private-label Digital Satellite System (DSS) receiving equipment not available through other channels. Finally, these consumers will have a true local service provider in their area, who will provide complete billing, service and technical support for their products.

The DSS hardware, which subscribers will use to receive DIRECTV, consists of an 18-inch dish antenna, remote control and set-top receiver, about the size of a VCR. Thomson Consumer Electronics is manufacturing a basic ($699) and step-up ($899) unit under the RCA brand name for national distribution. In addition, Thomson will be producing these same units, plus a mid-line ($799) unit, as private-label products exclusively for NRTC.

The wheels of justice

by Scott Perry

If we were a gambling man, which we are on occasion, we'd give even money that special judge Doug Combs will issue a summary judgment in favor of Judge John M. Stumbo in a civil suit that accuses Stumbo of election fraud.

That seems to be the only fair resolution given the fact that no facts directly linking Stumbo to any wrongdoing have been offered into testimony in the case.

There has been testimony, however, to suggest that the democratic process in Floyd County is anything but democratic and to more than hint that illegal activities occur during elections.

It should not have taken a civil suit to bring many of those matters to light.

The allegations should have been actively investigated by people who get paid to investigate alleged criminal activities ...as soon as those allegations were made.

Instead, more than a year has passed since an election that, witnesses have testified, had its share of underhandedness.

Six months have passed since a local grand jury asked the state Attorney General to look into allegations of public corruption.

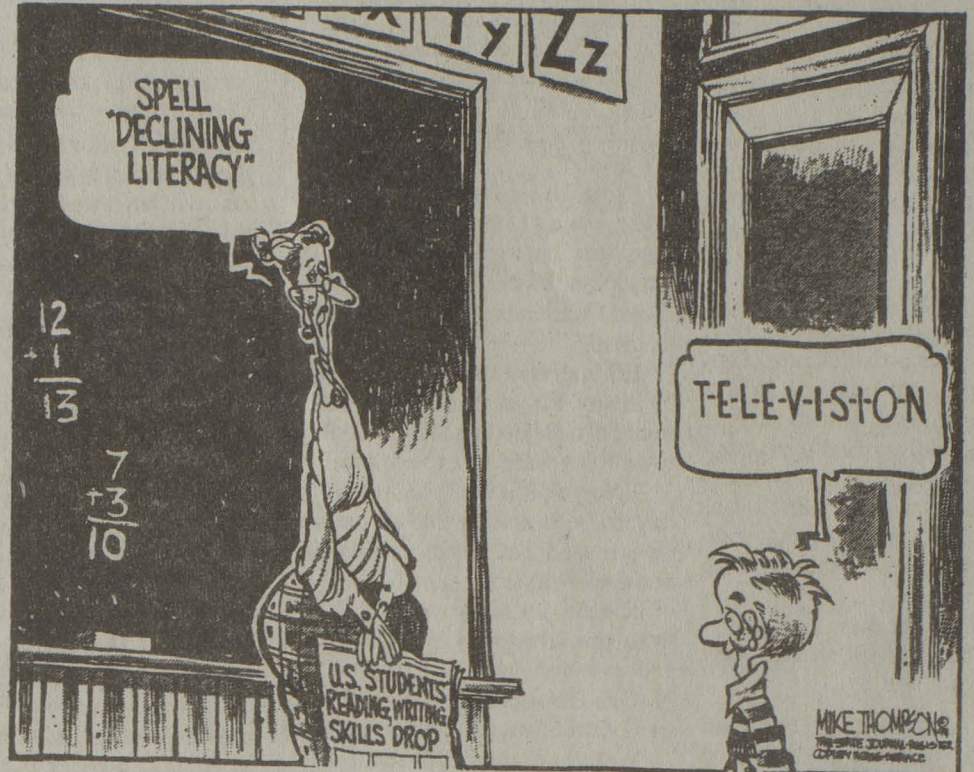

State officials are taking a look at the issues, but it's obvious they haven't made much progress.

Maybe they're just being deliberate.

Maybe they're just hoping the issue will just dry up and blow away.

Whichever, it's painfully clear that the wheels of justice move slowly.

Sometimes we wonder if maybe they haven't rusted to their axles.

Reader appreciates historical article

Editor:
I would like to thank you for an article that was printed in your paper some time ago. This article was about the history of Laynesville. Having lived in the community of Laynesville for the first twenty years of my life, I really appreciated seeing this.

My parents, Dewey Roberts, who was magistrate in District Four for many years, and Sola Boyd Roberts lived there until their deaths.

This article brought back many good memories of this small community and the people who lived there many years ago and of the people who still live in the same area.

I noticed that the basis for this article came from a book called The History of Floyd County. I would appreciate information on where this book can be obtained. Laynesville and Floyd County are a big part of my heritage, and I would like to have a copy so that my children and grandchildren can share in this history.

I enjoy reading the Floyd County Times and look forward to receiving each edition.

Betsy Layne gym shut down! Thanks a lot, Brent Clark!

Editor:
The EPA has apparently shut down the Betsy Layne domed gym as of Wednesday, August 24. This shutdown is due to numerous damaged asbestos panels in the gym that might affect air quality and pose a health hazard. Many of these panels have been damaged for years.

The Floyd County School Board's employees have ignored repeated requests to repair the air conditioner in the band room which is in the Betsy Layne gym. When county employees were asked if ceiling fans could be installed in this room, they said, "no way." At times last year the temperature in the band room exceeded 100 degrees. The band room has no windows for ventilation.

It appears from what we have been told that they didn't want to fix the air conditioning because of an asbestos problem. Fan installation wasn't allowed for much the same reason.

Side panels in the gym wall contain asbestos. A recent count showed at least 33 panels had damage to them and we couldn't access all of them. One panel was damaged bad enough that a towel had been stuffed into a hole in the panel to slow down cold air flow during winter time.

Numerous county employees and some board members were well aware of the damaged panels in this facility. The asbestos panels in the gym were scheduled to be removed as part of the gym renovation that was planned. The leaking roof on the gym was to be fixed and the dilapidated bleachers in the gym were to be replaced. Handicapped access via elevator was to be provided.

The planned renovation and repairs to the gym was canceled last year along with the Betsy Layne School addition. Two present board members were part of this cancellation, as Brent Clark made the motion to scrap the Betsy Layne project.

The Betsy Layne gym is used by Harold and Betsy Layne Elementary schools, along with Betsy Layne High School. Kids from all over use this gym for training league games.

When Brent Gilford Clark pushed to kill the gym renovation did he take into consideration the safety of any child from all the different schools and areas that use this gym?

Education and safety should be top priorities at any school. Before canceling any project shouldn't the safety of the students be considered?

Part of the half-million taxpayer dollars Brent tried to throw away by killing the Betsy Layne addition was the architect's work on the design for replacement panels for the gym.

How long will the gym be shut down for asbestos removal, and do you reckon they will make use of the panel design that the board has already paid the architect for, or do you reckon they'll put plywood up for windows?

If you're going to scrap repairs you must accept the responsibility for allowing the Betsy Layne gym to be shut down. How long will the gym be shut down and will all necessary repairs be made to make the gym safe to use?

What others are saying

The following articles are excerpts of editorials taken from Kentucky newspapers

Who suffers most?

A senseless, needless act. What else can you call what happened to a young Pike County woman on Saturday?

Delora Shell, 22, died Saturday after being shot in the head with a shotgun. Her soon-to-be ex-husband, Brian Stephen Henry, 25, has been charged with murder.

Although a protective order against Henry had been issued and was in effect until October, police say that Henry and Shell got into an argument at her mother's home on Rockhouse of Marrowbone. Minutes later, Delora Shell was dead.

It gets worse, if possible.

The shooting happened with Shell's daughter, who is not quite two, in the house.

There is more tragedy in this story than can ever be told, but it is a classic among horror stories.

It seems inevitable when you read a woman was killed by her husband/lover/estranged significant other that a protective order had been sought and/or issued. There is almost always a long case history of abuse, stalking and/or domestic violence.

All too often, children are involved and become the real victims in this scenario.

There are people working to change how domestic violence cases are handled. One of those is Travis Fritsch, an expert on domestic violence who was instrumental in the push for tougher spouse-abuse laws passed in the 1992 legislative session. She has worked closely with Pike judicial and law enforcement officials to strengthen the county's own regulations in dealing with spouse abuse.

A staff assistant with the state attorney general's office, Fritsch has unfortunately met with some difficult times. She is appealing a reprimand she received last spring, calling it an example of "political discrimination." She has accused Attorney General Chris Gorman and others in his office of trying to stifle her criticism of judges and their handling of domestic-violence cases.

A hearing on the appeal is set for tomorrow.

We hope her troubles are worked out soon. She is too good and believes in her job too much for this state to lose her and her expertise.

Meanwhile, the violence marches on. And innocent young men and women grow up never knowing the love of their fathers and mothers.—Appalachian News-Express

Rogers knows something about pork, all right

Republicans have been running hog wild at the mouth in the past few weeks about the pork barrel projects in the crime bill—those tasty little morsels for the folks back home. While fingers are pointing during this election year, they also should be aimed at Kentucky and Rep. Hal Rogers, the Republican from Somerset.

For the folks back home, he tucked a bit of money into a conference committee report last week. The $5.5 million gift from Rogers will buy modern radar equipment for the Jackson weather station—money that initially was not included in the weather service appropriations bill but was included in closed-door negotiations.

At first blush, asking for up-to-date radar sounds like a reasonable request. Indeed, the National Weather Service has wanted better equipment since the late 1980's. And Congress said fine. It supported the National Weather Service's plan to update weather satellites and radar systems nationwide and consolidate 250 weather stations into 115 uniform offices.

In Kentucky, Jackson and Lexington offices were on the list to close. Louisville, Morristown, Tenn., and Charleston, W. Va., would provide the radar coverage for Eastern Kentucky.

Yet Rogers has held fast, including language in bills to keep Jackson open on a year-to-year basis. Now, with approval for the fancy new radar, Jackson appears to have a lock on continuing its role in the weather service.

But Jackson's role duplicates what the National Weather Service has planned for Kentucky. Rogers' radar amounts to an umbrella placed under a tent of protection for the entire state.

Under the old system, Kentucky was covered; and under the modernization plan, Kentucky will be covered. All counties will continue to receive warnings for severe thunderstorms, tornadoes and flash floods, but in the new era with advanced radar systems prescribed for the job.

Rogers' radar is a dose more than the scientists said we needed. It is a waste of money, pure and simple; and it looks like a project Rogers championed to improve only one forecast: his own, on Election Day.—Lexington Herald-Leader

WHY CONGRESS SHOULD NOT ELIMINATE SELF-INSURANCE

by Mary Jane Rintelman
Government Affairs
American Medical Security

There's a lot of talk in Washington about how the federal government can help small employers provide their employees with health benefits—whether they're mandated to do so or not.

Unfortunately, for all the talk, Congress is coming close to eliminating self-funding of health insurance.

Self-funding is one of the best ways small employers in Wisconsin and elsewhere have found to provide good health benefits at a reasonable cost.

For the past two years, I have been traveling across the United States talking to small business owners about American Medical Security programs designed to help the uninsured. These business people have told me time and time again to encourage Congress to protect their ability to self-fund the health insurance benefits they provide to their employees.

Legislation now under consideration on Capitol Hill, including the Gephardt and Mitchell "compromise" bills, would prohibit employers from self-insuring solely because of the size of their business. This is happening despite the widespread adoption of self-insurance by employers of all sizes—from the largest, to many of the smallest.

If Congress wants to reduce the number of uninsured, expand health care coverage and keep costs under control, it should let every employer regardless of size continue self-insuring their health benefit plan. Employer self-insurance is health reform that's already there.

Even voluntary insurance buying pools would force small employers to give up their self-insured plans and compel them to buy more expensive conventional insurance.

Close to half of all businesses in the United States self-insure. A majority of these firms have less than 100 lives.

With self-insurance, employers pay most of their employees' medical expenses directly. In case of catastrophic health expenses, self-insured employers buy "stop-loss" insurance to cover the high bills.

Self-insurance has some outstanding benefits.

- Self-insured employers offer their employees more health promotion and wellness benefits;
- Self-insurance allows employers to reduce claims processing expenses by as much as 80 percent;
- Self-insurance makes health insurance possible for small employers who could not afford to do it previously; and
- Self-insurance, in general, helps bring about more widespread health coverage and lower costs.

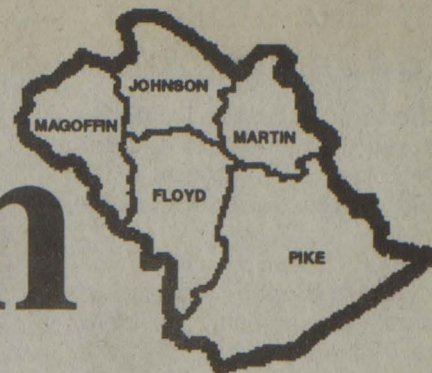

I ask, "Why should Washington force us to get rid of what's already working for Wisconsin and the rest of the nation?"

We at American Medical Security believe that small companies that self-insure should have to comply with the same insurance reforms that larger companies do. These include portability of coverage, limits on pre-existing conditions, basic benefit package and guarantee issue. But we also believe they ought to share in the benefits guaranteed to large companies, and the primary benefit here is self funding.

I encourage all business owners and employees of businesses—especially small businesses—to contact their U.S. Representative and U.S. Senators immediately. Please encourage them to support legislation that will keep employer self-funding of health insurance available to all size businesses.

Banks wants trial delayed

Former Letcher County Jailer Eugene Banks is undergoing treatment for cancer and will be unable to stand trial on theft and forgery-related charges any time soon, his attorney says.

In a court document filed in Letcher County August 18, Prestonsburg attorney Ned Pillersdorf asks that Banks' trial be postponed because Banks underwent "radical kidney surgery" for cancer in Lexington on August 2.

Banks is one of five former public officials and private citizens scheduled to stand trial in Bowling Green on charges resulting from a two-year Kentucky State Police probe into public corruption in Letcher County.

Banks and his wife, Barbara, and former Judge/Executive Ruben Watts were scheduled to be tried this month on charges they devised a scheme to allow the Bankeses to spend $7,000 in county money on furniture for their homes.

The trial was originally set for August 15, but was postponed July 19 after Special Judge Thomas Lewis Sr. ordered the trial moved to Warren County because it would be too difficult to get an impartial jury in Eastern Kentucky.

Pillersdorf filed a separate motion this month contesting the change of venue. The motion says that moving Bank's trial beyond a county bordering Letcher violates state law, and that moving the trial outside the Eastern District of Kentucky violates federal law. The hardship of a five- to six-hour drive from Whitesburg to Bowling Green and the costs associated with holding a trial that far from Letcher County is a violation of Banks' constitutional rights, the motion says.

Banks was indicted in September 1993, about a week after state police seized several pieces of furniture and appliances during a search of his home at Isom.—Mountain Eagle

Pike man arrested on drug charges

Pike County Sheriff's Deputies have arrested Terry Fields of McCarr on various drug charges, including trafficking in cocaine, possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, and possession of a controlled substance, codeine.

Confiscated from Fields were two handguns, a .410-gauge derringer, drugs consisting of several pills, 16 grams of cocaine along with items used to package cocaine, and marijuana, less than eight ounces.

Deputy Sheriff Gary McCoy along with officers of the Mountain Area Drug Task Force made the arrest Monday.—Appalachian News Express

Pike County board chairman bows out of race

After one term on the Pike County School Board, Chairman Tommy Dean Runyon is calling it quits.

Runyon publicly announced his decision to withdraw from the District Four school board race at the close of a special called board meeting Monday.

Runyon's withdrawal means certain victory for his opponent in the race, Bobby Darrell Varney, 41, of Turkey Creek.

"I was shocked a little bit, then relieved," said Varney of the news he said he heard about a week ago.

Varney said he has spoken with Runyon on several occasions and the current board chairman has indicated to him that he will help him in making a smooth transition.—Appalachian News Express

Kentucky Craft Marketing program to conduct semi-annual jury session

The Kentucky Craft Marketing Program will conduct the semi-annual jury session September 14 in Frankfort. Kentucky craftspeople are invited to participate by bringing five different samples of their craft product to Frankfort on Monday, September 12, from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m., or until noon Tuesday, September 13, EDT. Five slides of professional quality may also be submitted by September 9. A $10 application fee is charged per craftsman for applying, and he/she may enter several different media categories.

Three out-of-state craft professionals serve as jurors for the fall session: a representative of the Florida Craftsmen Inc.; a potter/gallery owner from Massachusetts; and a furniture maker from Alabama. "The juried portion of the Craft Marketing Program focuses on those craftspeople who have a marketable product and desire to wholesale on a national level," said Fran Redmon, program manager. According to Redmon, "The Program utilizes out-of-state craft professionals because they are more familiar with the craft market and what it will bear."

Craftspeople accepted into the Program this fall will have the opportunity to exhibit at the annual Kentucky Craft Market, January 27-29, 1995. Expansion into the West Wing of the fairgrounds in Louisville will allow for the biggest craft market ever. Newly juried participants will be eligible to compete for a Market scholarship to help offset booth fees and will be identified at the Market as new exhibitors.

According to a recent study by the University of Kentucky Center for Business and Economic Research, Kentucky craft businesses generated more than $24 million in 1993 sales. The total economic impact of these sales exceeds $50 million. "The craft industry has become an important contributor to the overall state revenue in Kentucky," said Redmon.

The Kentucky Craft Marketing Program, a division of the Kentucky Arts Council in the Education, Arts and Humanities Cabinet, received a 1994 Cultural Olympiad award for the Kentucky Craft Market from the Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games for excellence and innovation in promoting Kentucky craftspeople.

For additional information on jurying, contact the Kentucky Craft Marketing Program, 502/564-8076.

Trucks

You can't beat 'em!

Just ask John R. Ramey of Sugarloaf Branch in Prestonsburg...

Mr. Ramey watched the odometer on his 1987 Toyota 2-wheel drive turn over 600,000 miles!

John told us, "I can go out there right now, start up that truck and still drive it anywhere!" He bought the truck from his brother-in-law when it had 147,000 miles on it and "it was just like brand new."

And how many repairs did it take to keep his truck running? "One!" "I replaced the clutch at around 375,000 miles."

How long will YOUR Toyota go?

Longer than that ol' bunny that keeps on going and going and going!
Just ask John Ramey!

Come and see us TODAY for a TOUGH new or used truck!
No one will sell you a new Toyota for less...NO ONE!

American Lung Association awards grants to aid in tobacco prevention and control

The American Lung Association of Kentucky, representing the Kentucky Alliance to Control Tobacco In Our Neighborhoods (KY ACTION), has just been awarded a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. The grant will serve the purpose of increasing capacity for tobacco prevention and control efforts in the state and promoting the health of Kentucky children.

The grant is one of 19 awarded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation as part of its SmokeLess States program. The American Lung Association will serve as lead agency for KY ACTION on the grant. KY ACTION also includes the American Heart Association, the American Cancer Society and a number of other interested organizations.

Barry Gottschalk, executive director of the American Lung Association of Kentucky said his agency is pleased to work with other members of KY ACTION in administering the grant. "The exciting part of this grant is that it focuses on giving our state's youth a way to tackle the problem of tobacco use on their own level and terms," said Gottschalk.

With the support of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, a unique student-directed tobacco prevention program will be introduced across the state. The program will empower young people to research and document the problem of student addiction to tobacco products.

Students will work in regional teams to study the health and economic issues associated with tobacco use. Based on their findings, they will formulate strategies to launch local initiatives and a statewide media campaign to reduce the use of tobacco products by children and youth.

In addition to the student-directed project, the Center for Prevention Research at the University of Kentucky will conduct a survey to gather information on tobacco use by young Kentuckians.

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the nation's largest health care philanthropy, was established in 1972. The late Robert Wood Johnson built the family-owned business, Johnson & Johnson, into a worldwide health and medical products company. The foundation awards grants to organizations committed to promoting health and preventing disease.

Grants, loans available to aid Kentucky students

Over 26,000 Kentucky students enrolling in postsecondary educational institutions for the 1994-95 academic year have been offered Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA) Grants, which include the College Access Program (CAP) Grant and the Kentucky Tuition Grant (KTG). Awards to these students total $27 million, according to Paul P. Borden, executive director of KHEAA.

A CAP Grant may be used at an eligible Kentucky public or private nonprofit college or proprietary school or publicly operated vocational-technical school. The award amount for college students is equal to the community college tuition rate (for the 1994-95 academic year, the amount is $40 per semester hour not to exceed $480 per semester). Students attending a proprietary school or vocational-technical school receive awards equal to the tuition rate at publicly operated vocational-technical schools (for the 1994-95 year, the amount is $125 per quarter for full-time enrollment).

KTG awards may be used at an eligible Kentucky private, nonprofit institution. The maximum award for a full-time student is $1,200 per school year.

Both CAP and KTG funds are now depleted for the 1994-95 academic year, and new applicants will not be sent individual notification letters. Although KHEAA Grant funds were exhausted before the needs of all eligible applicants were met, executive director Borden said that several sources of financial aid are still available.

Applications for Federal Stafford Loans (both subsidized and unsubsidized) and Federal PLUS Loans for parents are being accepted and processed. In addition, students may establish eligibility for the Federal Pell Grant Program or for financial aid available through some Kentucky colleges.

KHEAA Grant funds are limited, and those who apply early—by March 15 for the 1995-96 academic year—will have the best chance of receiving funds.

Mountain trail

Hiking more than just trails; it's getting away from it all

By Rosalind Stanley
Pikeville Bureau Chief
Williamson Daily News

For Beverly Williams hiking is more than a way to get exercise or see wilderness scenery — it can be a life altering experience.

Williams, one of a group of people who is trying to get hiking trails in Pike County, said hiking changes your attitude. She said a person comes to realize how few material things are needed to survive and what is important in life.

The unnamed group met recently to organize an effort to get the trails. Personnel at Fishtrap Lake support the idea, as have several political figures including Congressman Hal Rogers, Williams said. She is excited about the prospect.

An avid hiker who travels to other areas to enjoy the sport, as well as hiking unblazed trails in the county, Williams sees hiking trails as a means of opening up hiking for others. "Lots of people who walk downtown or at the walking track might be interested to know they can go in the wilderness and get the same benefits," she said. Plus, trail hikers get away from it all.

Going into the wilderness and communing with nature can even be a life-changing experience. She related how she carries everything she needs to exist on her back when she hikes. People don't need that much, she said. "It is so heartwarming to know you can go back."

"I don't understand people sitting on their couch. They can experience so much more by getting outside than by sitting on a stationary bike," Williams said.

She first became interested in hiking after reading one man's account in the book, "Walk Across America." Since reading it she has wanted to walk the famous Appalachian Trail, which stretches across several states.

The group plans to concentrate immediate efforts on getting trails around the lake. Long-term goals call for trails from Pikeville to Fishtrap and from there to the Breaks Interstate Park.

"I really think there are some wonderful things to see, that people are not aware exist," she said. Hiking trails, she believes, will also enhance the local economy by bringing in tourists. "The same people who travel to white water rafting and spend money here, will travel here to hike," she said. "The possibilities are endless. If they had any idea what we have here, they'd come."

There are 44 miles of shoreline at Fishtrap, she said. "We can start by using the dam as a trail head," she said. One campground is already set up and group members have discussed the possibility of starting from the dam, going from the left side to Grapevine and then working their way around. There are several miles between Powell's Creek and Lick Creek that are already usable, she said.

Boy Scout groups have offered to blaze trails to earn badges, she said. Engineer Jack Sykes has agreed to do mapping and help with a proposal for the Corps of Engineers.

The Pike County Chamber of Commerce has offered the use of its non-profit status for the group to seek grants, she said. The group will, however, also seek its own status for the future.

"I'm just so excited about it," Williams said.

Many already understand that a person can take the stress off by going outside and walking, she said. "It makes a difference."

While hiking, Williams has met many different people from all walks of life. She related how a blind man walks trails with his seeing eye dog. One woman walks trails with a llama. "You learn a lot about human nature," she said. Many people begin hiking, because of some trauma in their lives, such as divorce, she said. What they discover is that hiking becomes "a whole different life," she said.

The group plans another meeting in the near future to elect officers and discuss incorporating.

Forums scheduled to reinvent soil conservation service

The U. S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service (SCS) in Kentucky has scheduled a forum to solicit recommendations on the agency's future direction.

The Hazard forum is scheduled for Wednesday, September 14, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the William D. Gorman Education Center, 601 Main Street in Hazard. A survey form is available for those who are unable to attend the forum.

"The Soil Conservation Service is at a crossroads, and we and our customers have an unprecedented opportunity to anticipate future needs and refocus the agency's mission," said Kentucky SCS State Conservationist Billy Milliken.

Nearly 60 years ago, the Soil Conservation Service was created to address a national resource crisis called the Dust Bowl. Since then, the agency has undergone a number of changes, resulting in the agency now known as the Soil Conservation Service. In its reinvention process, the agency aims to create the natural resources conservation agency of the future.

Predicting the future is a difficult task. However, we believe that one of

Big Sandy Woodland News

by Bob Marsh, Service Forester
Kentucky Division of Forestry
Betsy Layne

Where has our summer gone? I've noticed that some of the black gum, sumac, and sassafras have already started showing off their fall colors. It won't be long until the maples, hickories, and poplars dig out their fall wardrobe for what promises to be another beautiful autumn here in the Big Sandy.

A lot of folks look to spring as their favorite season and I can understand why. But for me, fall is the capstone for the year. I remember, as a kid, helping my dad dig potatoes on bright, cool Saturday mornings in early September. Even as a teenager, more worried about wrestling matches than spuds, fall meant a sliver of time between summer heat and winter cold that begged for attention and deserved the praise.

As we edge into fall, it's time to think about fall tree planting. The Division operates a tree nursery near West Liberty (Morgan County) and they are gearing up now for fall tree planting season. If you are interested in ordering tree seedlings, contact this office at (606) 478-4495. Orders are filled on a first-come, first-serve basis.

We offer a variety of species in 100, 500, and 1,000 stem bundles. The Division will deliver your order or bundles of 100 can be shipped UPS at no additional charge. Bundles of 500 and 1,000 can be shipped UPS for an additional charge. In addition, a special wildlife packet is available which consists of 100 seedlings made up of ten different species of trees.

Joint-Heirs sing at Salyersville

Joint-Heirs sing southern gospel music. The group consists of Kenneth Crace, the son of the late Edward Crace; DeAnna Sexton, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Lafferty, of Cliff; and Clyde Sexton Jr., grandson of Elkane Sexton of Martin.

Coming up September 17 and 18 in London, is the Kentucky Wood Expo. This event includes heavy logging equipment displays, chainsaw demonstrations, and entertainment. For more information, call the Kentucky Forest Industries Association at (502) 875-3136.

October 1 is the first day of the fall forest fire season. Our last bad fire season was in the fall of 1991 and if the troubles out west are any indication of what's in store for use this fall, we might be pretty busy.

The Division is always looking for people interested in helping us fight forest fires. The work is seasonal and part-time, but if you or someone you know is interested in making a little extra Christmas money, call or come by the office and we'll get the paperwork filled out and your name in the pool. For specific burning regulations and/or hours, please contact the office at (606) 478-4495.

Landslide and flooding seminar

The Floyd County Soil and Water Conservation District in cooperation with the U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, is sponsoring a "Landslide and Flooding Seminar" on September 7.

The seminar will take place at Jenny Wiley State Park in the May Lodge from 9:00 a.m. until noon.

Citizens, builders, developers and other interested persons are encouraged to attend this meeting. Some of the common questions to be answered are "I'm planning on building a home, what do I need to look for to try to prevent future problems?" and "I've had a slide on my property, what do I do now?"

This seminar will answer these and other questions about landslides and flooding. Call the district office at 886-3128 with the number of people attending so an accurate count can be maintained for the planning of this seminar.

AS TIME GOES BY

Anyone under the age of 30 doesn't understand the true meaning of the word "old." They understand "older" as in "my older sister" and "oldest" as in "our oldest family member." But the plain old word "old" eludes them.

There's a simple reason for this: people under 30 are young. They understand young, younger and youngest because they will never be old, older or oldest. At least not for a long time. Hah! Nothing could be farther from the truth. A couple of years ago (it seemed like a couple of years ago), I was young. Then subtle changes began to take place. At first they were almost too small to notice. A crowsfoot appeared. Not crowsfeet. They weren't quite that noticeable. Just a foot here and there around the eyes that could be covered with makeup.

Not long after the crowsfoot incident, it became more and more difficult to see things. Actually I could see things, I just couldn't make out what they were. This didn't bother me until I realized I couldn't distinguish my own reflection in the mirror. Not only was I old, I was old and didn't know who I was.

The subject of age came up over the weekend because it was my birthday. No one over 30 said anything about my getting older, but the younger crowd thought it amusing that an old person would want a pair of tennis shoes or some free weights.

"Hey! I'm into fitness," I said enthusiastically to my son. "Great, Mom, but you have to move around some to stay fit."

"I move."
"Energetically. You have to get your motor running and from the way you move I'd say your engine is about a quart low."

"Just wait until you're my age. You'll see," I told him. "When I was your age, I felt the same way you do. I thought I'd never live long enough to be the age I am now. Now that I'm this age, I don't feel a bit different than I did then."

"You sure look different," he said.

"Yes, I do. I've got smile wrinkles, frown lines, sorrow marks and glad furrows. You can read one's life in their face."

"If that's your life on your face, it looks just like a road map of Colorado with a detour along the Grand Canyon."

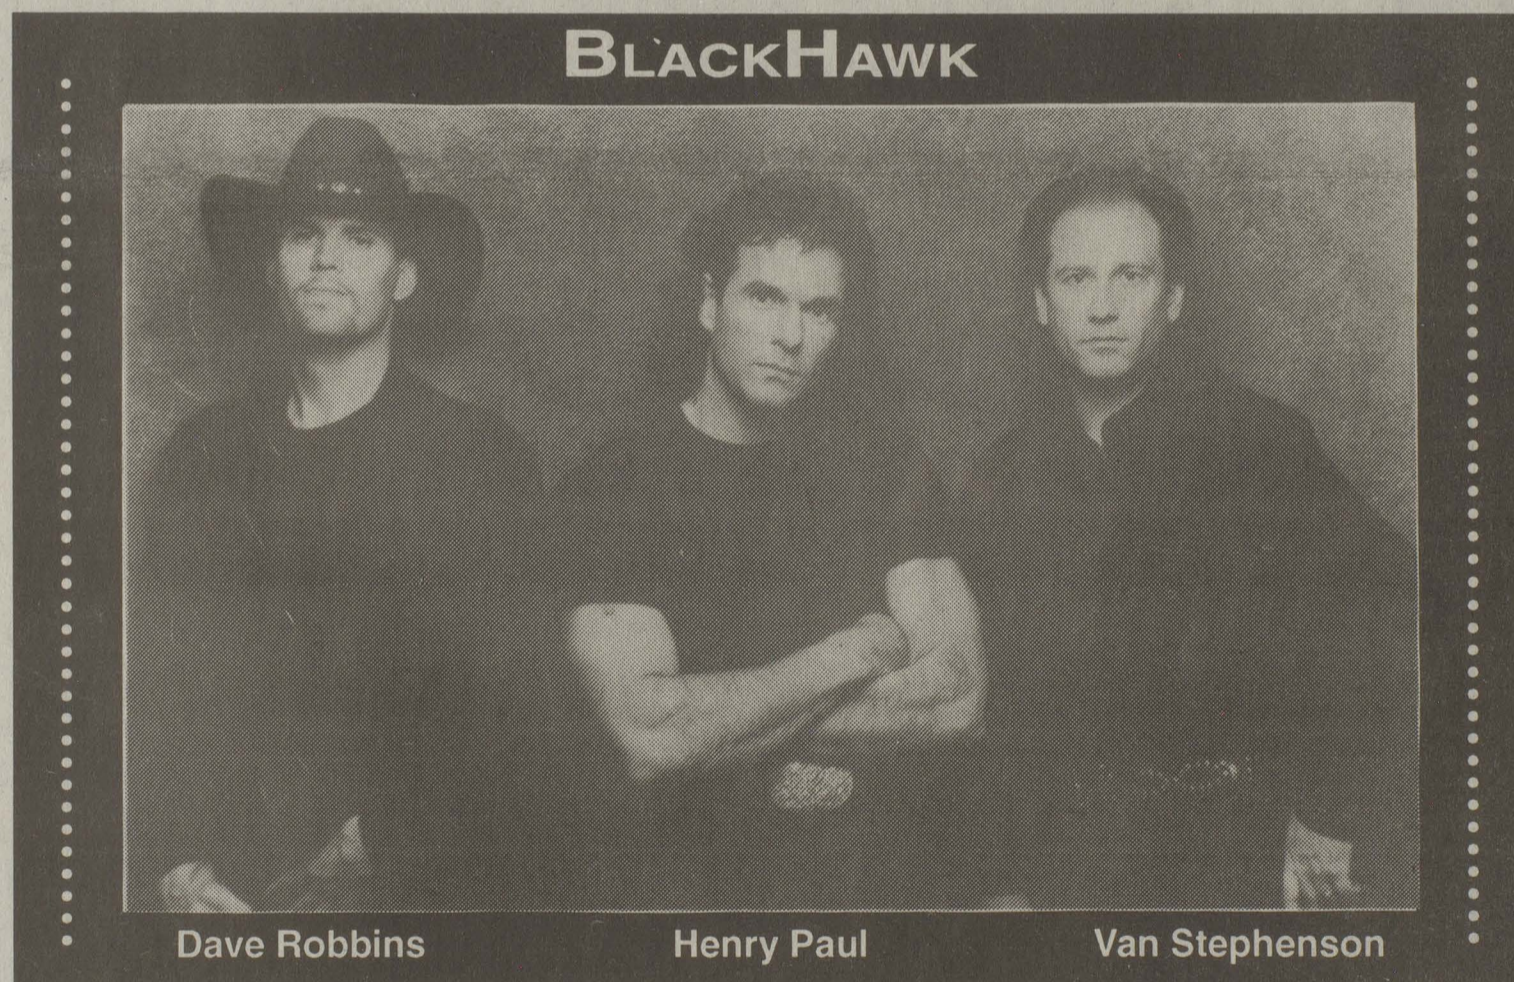

"That's okay, J. R.," I said calmly. "When you get to be my age, you'll understand what I'm saying. My mother said the same thing to me, and now I'm saying the same thing to you. Age is passed on from one generation to another, but I still remember thinking that my parents were old people when they were the same age I am now. Listen Son," I said as I pulled him close to me. "Let me tell you a little story about being old. One time I watched my dad kiss my mom and it made me sick. He puckered his lips and bent over and kissed my mother. He screwed his lips up in the funniest way, it was sickening. I remember old."

My son just looked at me with the strangest expression on his face. I thought I finally had his attention when he shook his head and said, "Mom, you're boring me to death."

Young people miss out on the best part of life because they're too young to enjoy it.

THE TIMES' WEEKEND Extra

BlackHawk to perform during Autumn Jam in September

Dave Robbins

Henry Paul

Van Stephenson

BlackHawk combines the talents of Henry Paul, from the venerable Southern rock band The Outlaws, with Dave Robbins and Van Stephenson, the versatile writers behind many of Restless Heart's biggest hits.

The trio's collective experience takes in some of the most inventive country and rock of the last decade and a half.

They combine soaring harmonies and gently applied layers of acoustic instrumentation with white-hot electric guitar and soul-baring lyrics for a sound that's truly one-of-a-kind.

The band's members came together just over two years ago when Florida-based Paul came to Nashville to get back in touch with his country roots.

It was there that he met Robbins and Stephenson, who as one of Music City's most versatile song writing teams, had penned hits for not only country artists like Dan Seals, Eddy Arnold and Restless Heart (with whom they hit the top ten four times), but rockers like Poco and Eric Clapton (both of whom struck Gold with Robbins and Stephenson).

"This music is very Southern in its origin," says Paul, "from the harmonies to the stringed instruments, with keyboards to broaden our musical base and enough of an electric edge to bring it into the '90s.

"Our approach has utilized all our resources, allowing more for an album than just a collection of songs. Most important is that the collective effort has been fresh and different for all of us."

That diversity of approach is evident throughout BlackHawk's debut. From the poignant heartbreak of the first single "Goodbye Says It All" to the gentle, strains of "Every Once In A While" and "I Sure Can Smell The Rain" to the raucous road house thump of the devil-may-care "Down In Flames" (a song Robbins says "makes me want to get in my truck, roll down the windows and drive all night"), the trio use their individual strengths to forge a singular sound as invigorating as any around today.

"We sat down together and started from scratch," is how the Georgia-born Robbins describes BlackHawk's genesis. "We all brought our influences to the table," and over the course of the next two years, the three discovered their common ground stretched much further than they'd ever imagined. "Flatt and Scruggs and Johnny Cash were what turned me on to music," recalls Paul, who formed the Outlaws in the early '70s, predating the country-rock trend. "I really don't know that much about classic rock—I was always more interested in country."

Van Stephenson was likewise drawn to the Nashville scene as a teenager. "My goal was always to be a country music songwriter," says the Ohio native who had his first taste of success when Crystal Gayle recorded his "Your Kisses Will" in 1979. "Song writing has always been the basis of my involvement in the music business and we knew it had to be the foundation of this group."

And even though their naturally engaging harmonies (which cross the craft of Crosby, Stills, and Nash with the uplifting spirit of Alabama) shine bright over the smooth canvas of deftly-picked guitars and subtle keyboards, it is the exquisitely detailed songs that ultimately set BlackHawk apart.

Whether adding a Celtic lilt to the anthem-like "Love Like This" or expressing the hard-won survivor's perspective of "Between Raged and Wrong" (a song Stephenson says "expresses the rough side of BlackHawk—the idea that members of this group have all walked alone out there, where right and wrong become obscured by mistakes and pain") they manage to maintain tradition while staking out fresh, uncharted turf.

With their engaging but uncompromising sound, and a wide-ranging array of talents, BlackHawk has everything it takes to give country fans a long, thrilling ride.

Whoa. You think you've got marital troubles?

Just be glad you're not president of Peru.

That guy just fired his wife as First Lady.

Had to, he said, because she was going around making allegations of corruption in his government.

Plus, she wants his job.

If I were Bill Clinton, I'd be keeping a close eye on the Peruvian situation.

Never can tell when Hillary might decide to fire him as president.

Bill hasn't been faring too well lately in the polls, you know.

And, it's been rumored that he likes to fool around.

That's caused some problems with Hillary's efforts to run this country.

She may need to find somebody with a cleaner image.

Nobody knew until the Clintons moved into the White House just how powerful a role the First Lady could play in the governmental decision-making process.

Well now, that's not necessarily true, is it?

Anyone who has been married for any length of time knows that married couples always share in making decisions of importance.

You know how it works.

You're planning the family vacation and the wife wants to go to the beach, but you'd prefer to go camping.

You sit down, discuss the merits of each alternative, then you load up the car and go to the beach.

That is known in the world of matrimony as give-and-take.

The wife gives you the option to accept her decisions, or you take your own clothes to the laundromat.

The same principle applies to highly placed married couples like the Clintons.

Bill may want to invade Haiti to restore democratic rule to that island nation, but Hillary may want to, say, press Congress to enact health care legislation.

Haven't seen any marines heading toward the Caribbean now, have you?

Wonder what Congress is up to?

Football season opens tonight

Raiders look for win as '94 season begins

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The 1994 high school football season gets underway tonight when two of the four county teams take to the gridiron this evening. Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg will play Saturday night.

Coach Donnie Daniels' Raiders will be going after their first win since consolidation last year. South Floyd finished 0-10 in their first season.

The Raiders will face a very strong Magoffin County Hornet team that some think will make noise in their district this season.

However, both teams will have the look of a MASH unit because some key players are either hurt or sick.

"I think Magoffin County will be a surprise team this season," said Prestonsburg's Bill Letton.

But when you talk with Hornet coach Mitch Caba, you get the feeling that the Raiders' size could be a problem for his ballclub.

Caba's scouting report...

"They are a big team," he said in his scouting report. "Where they are big, we're so small. We have a couple (of big) kids, but they don't start. When they are in the game, they are good for two or three plays."

The Hornet coach said that containing fullback Chad Slone will be priority number one for his defense.

"I was very impressed with him," said Caba. "He's sort of a mystery runner. He's a quick runner. We need to contain him and force them to throw the football more."

"At least that's our game plan. We want them to have to feed the other backs and let them run the football," he said.

Coach Caba said that his team will rely on their speed to help compensate for their lack of size.

"We can't run the football against them," he said. "We'll just have to use our speed the best we can and we'll throw the ball a lot."

Other concerns...

The size of South Floyd is not the only concern for the Hornet coach. He has two players who are injured, including one who will be out for the next four to six weeks. Jason Wages (6'4, 173), a wide receiver, suffered a separated shoulder in the scrimmage game against Betsy Layne at South Floyd two weeks ago.

"That is a big loss for us," said the Hornet mentor. "He will miss our first four games."

Caba said Greg Ward will replace Wages in the Hornets' offensive lineup.

Playing just on the defensive side of the football will be Jason Robinette.

another outstanding receiver, who broke his thumb in practice following Wages' injury.

"He, of course, can't catch the football," said Caba, "but he will play on defense."

Ward is coming off an injury himself, but the Hornet coach said that he is at full strength and capable of filling Wages' position.

Quarterbacking the Hornets will be Mike Caba (6', 161) a sophomore that many consider one of the top signal callers in the area.

Hornet field...
Fans will be treated to an almost new stadium at Magoffin County. The Hornets' stadium has been renovated.

"We have put in a $125,000 stadium," said Coach Caba. "We have new seating that will seat 1,500 people, a new press box ordered from the factory and we have a new $60,000 scoreboard."

"We're very proud of the facility and we just want to get people thinking football again," he said.

Daniels' scouting report...

"Magoffin County is an uncharacteristic football team," said Coach Daniels. "They will throw the football 90 percent of the time. Caba is a heck of a quarterback."

"I like the (Grayson) Smith kid," said Coach Daniels. "I think he can play at the next level. He's also the best linebacker that I have seen since Larry Morris of Prestonsburg."

Coach Daniels said that his team knows what to expect from the Hornets.

"They will throw the football," he said. "We know what's coming. We've practiced all week for it."

A look at the Raiders...

The Raiders will put some big size on the field led by tackle Shawn Curry, who stands at 6'6" and weighs in at 345 pounds. But Curry could be a question mark for the Raiders.

"He has blisters all over his throat," said Daniels. "I have about 10 players who are sick."

Senior Justin Ray will call the signals for South Floyd while Chet McCarty and Adam Wright will join Slone in the backfield. However, all three of the members of the backfield are under the weather and McCarty is doubtful for the game.

"Chad has a hamstring pull," said Daniels. "Adam is out with a sore ankle, as is Chet. I tell you, we are in bad shape. I don't know what we will do. Just go out and play the best we can. It may be our JVs against their varsity."

Jarrod Compton and Curry will anchor the offensive line at the tackle line.

(See Raiders, B 4)

Questionable for tonight!
Shawn Curry, a 6'6", 345-pound tackle may be hard to get around or over, but for tonight's game a sore throat may put the big tackle out of action when South Floyd faces Magoffin County tonight on the road. The two teams are to open the '94 season. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Lemaster named baseball coach at Pikeville College

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Forget the "Bad News Bears." The Pikeville College Bears got some good news that makes them the "Good News Bears."

Former major leaguer Johnnie Lemaster has accepted the head coaching position of the Pikeville College Bears baseball team and he will be a big plus for the program. The Paintsville native is one of Eastern Kentucky's best known sports personalities.

Lemaster replaces former Bears' coach Roy Cutwright, who was recently named the college's head basketball coach after Rick Scruggs opted for a school in Tennessee.

"I think it's a great fit -- Johnnie Lemaster and the Pikeville College baseball program," said the former San Francisco Giants shortstop. "Roy left the program in great shape. I know a lot of the kids already there and some new ones coming in. Hopefully, we'll put together a couple of championships."

Lemaster was the Giants' first round draft pick in 1973, the sixth pick overall. He remained with the Giants' organization for 13 years, 10 of those with the parent club. He split his final two major league years between Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Oakland.

Lemaster played one year in the short-lived Old Timers League in 1989 before returning to Paintsville to open his first sporting goods store. He now also has a store in Pikeville.

He coached the last four summers in a league sanctioned by Little League for 16-18-year-olds called the Big Leagues. His teams won Kentucky state championships in 1991 and 1993.

When asked what he looked for in his new position, Lemaster replied, "My number one priority is the kids' education; number two is how they conduct themselves on and off the field."

Lemaster plans to be busy through the fall working with the players in an early training period. He'll stress fundamentals, pitching and base running during this time.

"It's important to let the kids know what I expect from them on the field. All the little things really add up."

Besides his sports experience, Lemaster has been busy in other arenas. He served two terms on the Paintsville City Council, from 1990-1993. He is a deacon in the Paintsville Church of Christ and currently serves on the Paintsville Recreation Committee.

Search Committee Chairman Ron Damron was understandably pleased. "We're real excited and happy that Johnnie took an interest in our program and glad he's part of the Pikeville College team."

Prestonsburg cheerleaders receive awards

It was a busy summer for the Prestonsburg varsity cheerleaders under the supervision of sponsor Kara Huffman, and all their hard work has paid off.

The local varsity squad attended camp in July at the University of Kentucky and came home with some awards. The camp was sponsored by the Universal Cheerleading Association (UCA) in preparation for the new year.

During the final day of evaluations, Prestonsburg received a superior trophy which qualifies them to participate in the Citrus Bowl half-time program to be held in Florida.

The superior trophies were presented to the squads in camp that exhibited superior attitudes, cooperation and performance during the entire week of camp.

During evaluations of materials learned during the week, the squad received five blue ribbons and six

Allen Central to host Elkhorn City tonight

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The date was October 29, 1993. It took place at Phelps High School.

With time running out, Phelps kicked a field goal that gave them a 36-35 win over the Allen Central Rebels to close the season.

The win closed the season, because had the Rebels won, they would have gone on to a playoff berth for the first time in the school's history.

However, the football went through the uprisings—but not according to Rebel fans and players—to give the Hornets the playoff spot.

The game still lingers in the minds of the Rebels, especially as they prepare to take to the gridiron tonight to face the Elkhorn City Cougars at the Don Daniels Complex in the season opener for both clubs.

Game time is set for 8 p.m.

"The Phelps game was a big disappointment for us," said James Osborne. "We should have won the game. We had all the talent to win it."

"I think everyone here — it still haunts," said Jy Shepherd. "I watched the final field goal and I think we got cheated out of it. We're out for revenge and I feel like we will go to the playoffs this year."

Allen Central has fire in their eyes this year and coach Glenn Reeves has his ballclub ready to play. After hitting the weights over the winter months and a good summer of camp, the Rebels think they can put together a winning season and make an appearance in the playoffs.

Adam Coleman will return at the quarterback slot for the Rebels. He took over the position mid-way in the 1993 season. Coleman is a good option quarterback with good foot speed.

He will have pair of sure-handed receivers in sophomore Thomas Jenkins and senior Brad Blackburn. Blackburn could see some time at the signal-calling spot also.

The backfield will be young and untested. Sophomore Beau Tackett will be the feature back for the Rebels this year and he looks for the Rebels to come out running.

"I will be starting this year in the backfield," said Tackett, who was impressive as a freshman last season. "I think we will surprise some people this year."

Joining Tackett in the backfield will be junior Josh Reeves, sophomore Matt Varney with freshman Josh Reeves running in and out.

Defensively, the Rebels will be strong, led by senior Shawn Robinson and Shepherd. Robinson will hold down the left defensive end slot and play tackle on the offensive line. Shepherd will be on the other side opposite Robinson.

Hard-hitting Mark Varney will be at a guard slot on defense. The linebackers will be both Reeves boys and James Osborne.

Elkhorn City will have their third coach in three years, meaning that the team must learn another coaching philosophy.

At the helm for his first year will be Derek Potter, a former player for the 1965 Cougars team which won a state championship that year.

Potter was a starting tight end for three seasons at the University of Kentucky. He served as an assistant at Tates Creek High School before moving to Florida to serve in the same capacity. Before returning to coaching, Coach Potter was in private business.

The Cougars return most of their starters off the offensive line from last season with quarterbacks Isaac Swiney and Jason England returning.

While losing two running backs last year, Jason Smith will return at the fullback slot for the Cougars. Joe Leathers and Jamie Rose will fill the halfback positions for Coach Potter.

"It's a rebuilding year for us," said Coach Potter. "We've only got seven seniors on the team, but they're all good players. But it's still a rebuilding year. We have some good young players and we're real excited about them. They'll help us in the years to come."

Kelly Adkins will be at center for the Cougars. "Kelly started last year and did a fine job," said Potter.

Rocky Bartley will be at the right guard. "He's a senior and one of the leaders on our team, both on offense

Heater to represent PHS in Pike Co. Bowl

Paula Heater

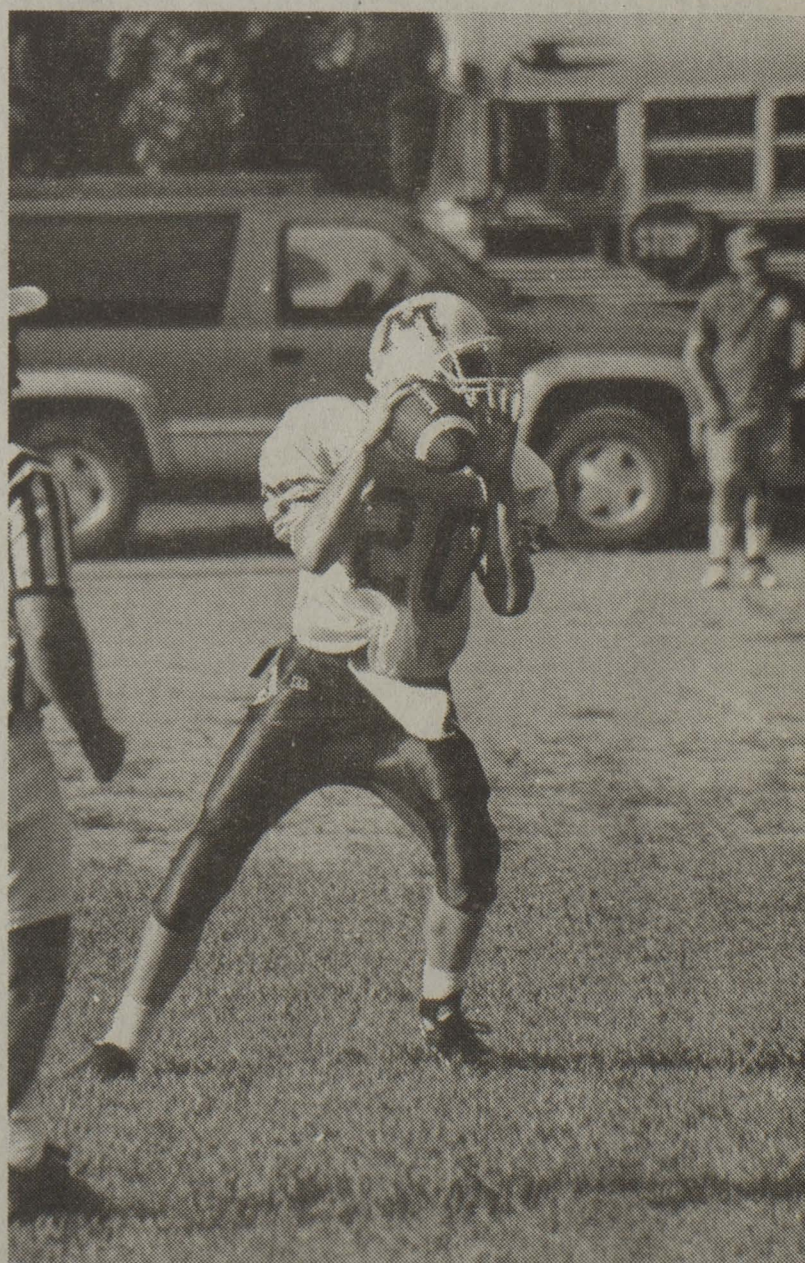

The Prestonsburg Blackcats will face a tough Pikeville Panthers team when the two collide on the gridiron Saturday night as the 1994 football season opens.

But for Prestonsburg cheerleader Paula Heater, 17-year-old daughter of Kenneth and Mary Heater of Prestonsburg, the competition begins earlier.

Heater will represent Prestonsburg High School in the Pike County Bowl Queen competition this weekend with the coronation of the new queen taking place during half-time of the first game between Belfry and Montgomery County.

The selection committee will begin early Saturday, meaning Heater will get an early start. All the candidates will go through an interview session with the judges. The four girls in competition were chosen to represent their individual schools based on their grade point average, an interview and their poise.

Heater has a grade point average of 4.19. She is very active in the National Honor Society, biology club and history club. She has been a Blackcat cheerleader for four years and is a senior captain.

Hornet sting!

Magoffin County quarterback Mike Caba (20) will be looking down field for a receiver when the Hornets entertain the South Floyd Raiders tonight in the opening game of the 1994 high school football season. Caba, a junior, threw for over 300 yards in a grid game against Betsy Layne two weeks ago. (photo by Ed Taylor) gold. They also received a gold ribbon for their performance of home pom-pom routines.

Rates superior at camp!

The Prestonsburg varsity cheerleaders received a superior trophy for their performance at UCA camp at the University of Kentucky in July. The squad is sponsored by Kara Huffman and assisted by Kim Boyd. Front row, Deana Williams, Deana Laferty, Donna Williams. Second row: April Newsome, Madelyn Schoolcraft, Jill Reynolds, Jenny Morrison, captain. Third row: Moriah Hyden, Jennifer Walters, Paula Heater, co-captain, Allison Elliott, Stephanie Wells.

The girls are looking forward to supporting the fighting Blackcats' football and basketball teams, as well as competing in several at-large competitions this year.

Morrison named All-Star Cheerleader...

Jenny Morrison, the 17-year-old daughter of Rita Morrison of Prestonsburg, was chosen as a UCA All-Star Cheerleader during the UCA camp.

Morrison was chosen as an All-Star after competing against several other girls in areas which included cheers, poms and jumps.

Being chosen as an All-Star enables Morrison to participate in the Lord Mayor's New Year's Day Parade in London, England.

Morrison is a senior and captain of the Prestonsburg varsity cheerleading squad. This year will be her fourth year as a Blackcat cheerleader.

positions. Compton has reported a sore throat and a bad cough. Stencil has an inner ear infection and Aaron Caudill is coughing badly.

"We'll just see what happens," said the Raiders' coach.

Compton, Travis Johnson and either Colby Little or Chris Isaac will be at the linebackers' slots on defense.

Last year's quarterback, Aaron Hall, has been moved to defensive tackle. Kevin Stencil or Bo Rogers will be at the other tackle.

Defending Champions

All four football champions from 1993 will be in action this weekend. Beechwood, which returns an offensive backfield trio of junior running back Jeff Lubrecht, senior running back Brett Brockhoef and senior quarterback Greg Hergott, will begin its quest for an unprecedented fourth state title. The Class A Tigers kick off the Heritage Bowl in Bowling Green against Class AAA power Warren Central. As a side note, Brockhoef broke a small bone in his left hand during practice two weeks ago but should be available to play in the opener.

Mayfield, which rallied for a come-from-behind win in the '93 Class AA championship game against Prestonsburg, will face Fulton County on Friday night.

Covington Catholic will begin the season defending its Class AA crown in perhaps the biggest game of the week, playing host to Boone County at 5:30 p.m. Friday. CovCath will and defense," he said.

Brad Cure will start at right tackle for the Cougars, a position that he played last year.

Shawn Tipton will run at tight end. "Shawn started last year, also," said Coach Potter. "Shawn is another leader on this team. If he'll improve his pass catching ability, he'll be a fine player for us."

Tipton also will play a linebacker position for Elkhorn. Timmy Rose will be at the left guard. Rose didn't see much action last year, but Coach Potter likes his toughness.

Jason Dorton will catch the ball at split end. "He needs to improve on his speed," said Potter.

"Most of our guys play both ways," said Potter. "We're not fortunate enough right now to platoon." Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

have to try and stop Mr. Football candidate Shaun Alexander, Boone County's dynamic tailback. CovCath defeated Boone County 28-21 in last season's opener.

Class AAA champion Louisville Male, which returns quarterback Chris Redman, will take on Fairdale at 7:30 p.m. Friday. Redman passed for 1,836 yards and 25 TDs as a junior last year. For his career, he's thrown for 3,899 yards and 45 scores.

Starting Over

When Prestonsburg defeated Danville 16-15 in overtime in the Class AA semifinals last November, the loss ended a streak of 42 consecutive wins for the Admirals, second only on the state's all-time list to Trinity's 50 consecutive wins. The Ads last loss prior to the beginning of their streak came in their 1991 season-opener at Bates Creek's Thoroughbred Bowl, a 35-29 defeat at the hands of Steel Valley, Pa.

The last in-state team to defeat Danville before the Prestonsburg loss was Corbin, a 30-7 loss in the 1990 state playoffs.

This Saturday night, Danville will lock horns with Corbin in the Thoroughbred Bowl at 8:45 p.m. in what could be a preview of the Class AA playoffs this fall.

Better With Age

Newport named a new football coach last month. He's Bob Miller, who also happens to be 75 years young. The KHSAA believes he is the oldest high school football coach in America this year. While coaching rosters are not kept at the National Federation office, John Gillis, a National Federation spokesperson, said he did not know of any other football coach that age. Believed to be the leader last year was August Bossu of Cleveland Benedictine who was listed at 77 years old in the National Federation of Interscholastic Coaches Association. But Bossu has since retired.

Miller replaces Marty Lenhof at Newport who left Aug. 1. With practice starting, Miller agreed to take the position for one year until there's time to put together a search committee and hire another coach at a later date.

Miller's history is detailed but he may be best known statewide as one of the main coaches to spearhead the drive for a state football playoff system, which was finally instituted in 1959.

Miller played at Bellevue and began his coaching career as an assistant there in 1945. He coached at Newport from 1953-58 before leaving to become an assistant coach at the University of Cincinnati from 1959-62. He returned to the high school level as head coach and athletic director at Campbell County the following year and stayed there until 1980. In '81 he retired from coaching and accepted an assistant A.D.'s job at Newport where he's been the past 14 years.

The National Federation did verify that the oldest high school coach in America is Durham Hillside (NC) track coach Russell Blunt. Blunt, who is 86, coached Hillside to the state track title this past spring.

Three at Three Different Schools

Last year, Joe Jagers made a bid to become the first coach to coach three different teams to a state title. His North Hardin Trojans, however, fell in the quarterfinals to eventual state runner-up Shelby County. Jagers has won titles at Trigg County and Ft. Knox.

Now in position to also achieve the same is Henderson County coach Tom Duffy. Duffy left Highlands after last season where he won two titles to go with his two trophies at Danville.

Brugh Watch

Walter Brugh became the all-time winningest football coach in the state of Kentucky last fall when he surpassed retired Bardstown coach Gamis Martin. Brugh will begin the 1994 season, his 39th year, with a career record of 274-130-5.

To act is to annex to our thoughts vaster fields of experience.

Big Sandy Bowl pits Bobcats against Paintsville

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The 1994 edition of the Betsy Layne Bobcats will not, repeat, will not compete for a district championship again this season.

The sad part about that is that this year's seniors will miss once more not being able to have a shot at a playoff berth in this their final year.

"It is disappointing," said senior tackle "Bubba" Combs. "We watched last year as teams that we had beaten went on to play in the playoffs."

This year Coach John Derossett is trying to instill in his seniors the fact that the biggest game of their career will come tonight when they face the Paintsville Tigers in the first game of the Big Sandy Bowl.

"The Paintsville game is a big one here at Betsy Layne," said Coach Derossett. "These kids have worked for three years with no hope of a district championship.

"We build this Paintsville game up as a big game for our seniors. It will be the biggest crowd that they will play before. It will be one of the nicest fields they will play on. It will be a chance to showcase their talent in front of the media that will be there to cover the game."

Combs will be one player who all eyes will be on as he takes his position at the tackle spot on both offense and defense. Combs is considered one of the top defensive players in the area and several colleges have already been knocking at his door.

Quarterback is a question mark for Coach Derossett this year. Craig Hamilton, a sophomore, and senior Brent Akers are vying for the job, but Coach Derossett stated that one player doesn't have the edge over the other.

"It's whoever I give the nod to before the game," he said. "They are so close to being the same (in ability), that it doesn't matter who we start there."

There will be no question as to whose hand the football will be placed when it comes to running the ball. Senior halfback Rocky Hamilton has been a solid performer out of the Bobcats' backfield for the past three seasons. His final year at Betsy Layne he wants to make a memorable one.

"I want to rush for 1,000 yards and lead the county in scoring," he said. "We will have a strong offensive line coming back with experience."

Joining Hamilton in the backfield will be Chris Hicks at the fullback slot. Akers or Craig Hamilton will be the third in the backfield. Jason Hamilton and newcomer Wes Collins also will see time in the backfield for Betsy Layne against Paintsville.

Defensively, the "MudCreek Trio" will be at the linebacker slots. Rocky Hamilton, Jarred Newsome and Jason Hamilton will be behind the defensive line.

Rocky Hamilton will handle the kicking duties for Betsy Layne. But Coach Derossett said that the Bobcats' speciality team needs work.

"We have worked hard on our speciality teams in camps," he said "We will have to emphasize our speciality teams this year."

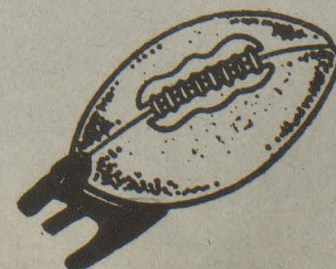

As Rocky Newsome put it, "A win over Paintsville would put Betsy Layne on the map."

Betsy Layne finished 5-5 last season for their best finish in recent years.

Game time is 6:30 p.m. at the Johnson Central field. WSIP-FM could carry the game.
