New twist in Floyd vote fraud case

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The continuing saga of a Floyd County election fraud case took another turn Wednesday when a motion was filed in circuit court to set aside an earlier judgment which exonerated the defendant.

Last month special Judge Douglas Combs Jr. of Perry County ruled that radio station owner Dale McKinney failed to prove his claim of election fraud against Floyd Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo during the 1993 May primary.

Judge Combs ruled in favor of Stumbo and ordered that McKinney pay Stumbo's costs in the civil lawsuit.

On Wednesday, a motion was filed in the circuit clerk's office from McKinney's attorney, C.K. Belhasen to "alter, amend or vacate" Judge Combs' order and asks that the case be tried before "a live" judge in Floyd County.

On Thursday, Stumbo's attorney, Arnold Turner Jr., called Belhasen's motion "frivolous" and said he will seek legal sanctions against Belhasen and his client. Turner added that the motion was not filed within the 10-day period after Combs' ruling was recorded.

Belhasen countered that the motion was put in the mail last Thursday and should have arrived in the Floyd Circuit Court Clerk's office before Wednesday, the day it was stamped at the clerk's office as being filed.

"It's unheard of for a letter to take four to five days to get from Paintsville to Prestonsburg," Belhasen said.

Turner called Belhasen's motion "désà vu" and added "it's nothing new," except that McKinney has apparently changed his mind about the case.

"... (McKinney) reversed himself since he asked that the case be dismissed," Turner said. "He had filed a

Republicans and Democrats dip into political pool at Wheelwright

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County's top dog in the Democratic party dipped into the political pool Thursday with a Republican Congressman in Wheelwright in an effort for a hand—and some funding—to repair the town's swimming pool.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, who many in the county feel has the strongest political organization, teamed up with U.S. Congressman Hal Rogers Thursday to visit the Left Beaver community for a look at the Wheelwright swimming pool, which is in dire need of repairs.

The Wheelwright pool was the first Olympic sized pool to be built in the state. It has not been in use for many years and children in the Left Beaver area have to make a 50-mile round trip to use a pool.

Rogers spoke to a small group at the South Floyd Family Resource Center about the project.

"I'm going to work with the Big Sandy Area Development District to see if there are any funds available to renovate the pool," Rogers said. "Children in Floyd County are entitled to have swimming available to them as much as children in Louisville, Lexington and New York."

Rogers also used the occasion to criticize the Lexington-Herald Leader for editorials denouncing funds Rogers has acquired for the eastern part of the state.

"They don't think it's a big deal unless it's in the bluegrass," Rogers said. "I was criticized for getting funds for the Jackson Weather Service and an editorial in the Lexington paper said I was bringing pork to the mountains and wasting money."

"When (Congress) announced closing the Lexington weather office, which is not needed, they started raising Cain," Rogers added. "It is imperative to keep the Jackson office. (The Lexington Herald-Leader) implies that the lives of Eastern Kentucky people are not worth it. It makes my blood boil."

Democrat Walter "Doc" Blevins is challenging Rogers in November for the Fifth Congressional District seat.

Three netted in sting

by Susan Allen

Agents with the Mountain Area Drug Task Force and the Federal Bureau of Investigation raided a Perry County establishment Thursday and arrested two suspected cocaine dealers, which is expected to stem the flow of drugs into Floyd County.

A federal arrest warrant was executed on Troy P. Combs, 44, of Hazard and agents also executed a federal search warrant at the Junction Bar at Darfork Station.

Combs was charged with conspiring to possess with the intent to distribute and distribution of cocaine. Also arrested was George Feltner, 43, of Hazard. Feltner was charged with conspiring to possess with the intent to distribute and distribution of cocaine.

Stumbo services Saturday

Floyd County government lost one of its most valued members Wednesday with the death of Pluma Martin Stumbo.

Stumbo, 62, widow of former circuit judge Harold Stumbo and mother of Representative Greg Stumbo, died Wednesday, October 12 at the St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington, following an apparent heart attack.

Although she did not hold any political offices, Pluma Stumbo was as well known at the Floyd County

McFarland interprets Russian sign language

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

Tina McFarland's role as a skilled sign language interpreter has led her down many avenues of ministry.

The latest was a two-week mission tour of Russia. From September 7 to 21, the Prestonsburg resident led a deaf ministry team on a survey of Russia's deaf population in Moscow and surrounding areas. The trip was sponsored by the Kentucky Baptist Convention (KBC), a state-based arm of the Southern Baptist Convention. In January, the KBC launched a five-year partnership with the Russian Baptist Union to strengthen the work of Baptists in Russia.

"Our purpose was to gather information to assist in the planning of future ministry among the deaf" in the former communist country, McFarland said. "This was an attempt on the part of the Southern Baptist Convention in taking a proactive role in reaching out to the deaf in Russia."

Road worker claims squire's wife got his job

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A former Floyd County road worker has sued the fiscal court claiming that his job was taken by the wife of a magistrate.

Arnold Daniels filed suit October 4 claiming that he was laid off as a road worker because of "lack of work," but that District Two Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens hired his wife, Hattie, instead.

Hattie Owens was hired in January as a crew chief in district two.

Daniels claims in the lawsuit that his job was eliminated, "wrongfully, due to nepotism" so that Hattie Owens could be hired. The suit also claims that the fiscal court's action violates the county's administrative code because, according to the code, a personnel board is to give the worker "reasons for his dismissal and offer a hearing within five to 10 days thereafter for an opportunity to make a statement on his behalf."

Audit tallies water debts for Martin City Council

by Michael Lynn Huff
Staff Writer

After nine months of trying to find out its financial status, Martin City Council discovered it owes almost $50,000 in debts.

An audit of the city's finances revealed that the water department is $47,428.23 in arrears; $36,000 of that debt is owed to Prestonsburg City Utilities.

The debt to Prestonsburg increased by $11,000 when a changeover in computer systems failed to include the rate increase from 1993.

The water department is currently generating $14,000 in revenue each month, but its expenses total $17,000 per month.

The council discussed the possibility of raising rates on water bills. But, if the council decides to raise the rates, they will have to vote on it

Phase one construction underway on new county justice complex

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Justice is under construction in Floyd County. The Floyd County Fiscal Court has begun construction of the first phase, the Adult Detention Center, of the three phase project.

Approximately $3.1 million has been allocated through the sale of bonds to build the new facility. That $3 million spent on building the new jail means a $15 million impact on Prestonsburg and Floyd County, said Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond.

The new detention center should be self-supporting, said Damon Newsome, chief deputy jailer. The current jail is a 72-bed facility. The new jail, Hammond said, will be a 116-bed facility as mandated by the state, which should allow the jail to bring in enough revenue to more than cover costs of building the facility.

The 116-bed capacity will give the jail several sources of revenue. Prisoners sentenced on Class D felonies—a sentence of from one to five years—can be ordered by the judge to serve their sentences at the new facility. The state will pay the county $22.50 per day per person to house those prisoners, Hammond said.

Individuals arrested on federal charges can also be held at the Adult Detention Center until they are tried. The county will receive rent from the federal government for their incarceration, Hammond said.

Prisoners convicted in misdemeanor cases can also be ordered to serve in the "halfway house situation" within the center, he said.

The new detention center will have two levels. The bottom level will be the Sally Port, where law enforcement officials will bring their prisoners. The door to the Sally Port will be unlocked by an official in the master control room on the first floor who monitors the area via video cameras. Law enforcement officials pull their vehicles into the Sally Port, and the doors to the area are locked before the prisoners leave the police car.

Prisoners will then be taken upstairs by elevator or stairwell that is used exclusively for the transfer of inmates.

The new facility will have three detox cells, six dorms for men, seven smaller cells, two dorms for females, as well as isolation centers and visitation rooms.

The detention center will also have a large outdoor exercise area that is enclosed. Inmates will be able to see the sky through a clear top that will enclose the area.

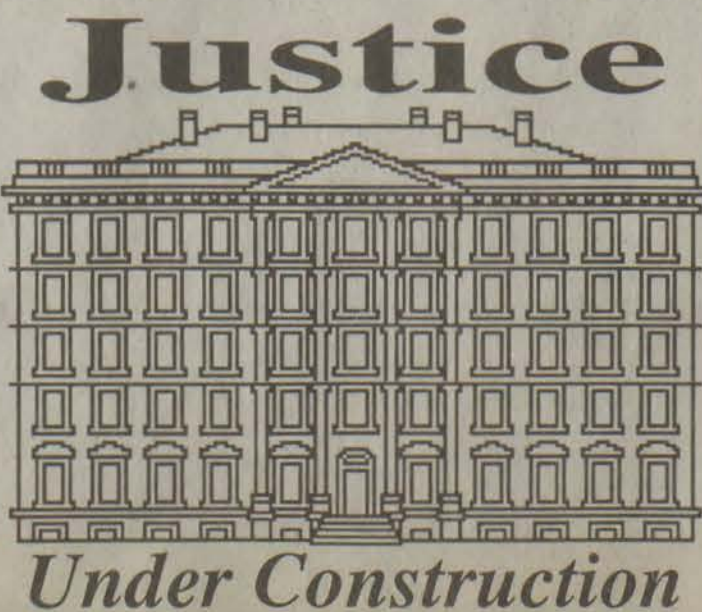

Another feature of the new jail will be the arraignment room. Arraignments can be held without transferring prisoners to the courthouse. An arraignment is held soon after an individual's arrest. At the arraignment, the person accused of a crime can plead guilty or not guilty, or the attorneys in the case can work out a plea bargain agreement. The accused can also ask for a pre-trial conference. The date of the conference or the trial is then set.

The facility is expected to be completed by the end of the year, but D.W. Wilburn Construction, the company building the new jail, can get extensions to finish the project.

The new facility will also create employment opportunities in Floyd County. Around 22-24 additional persons will be hired to man the Adult Detention Center.

The other phases of the project—the new courthouse-justice complex and renovation of the courthouse annex for a juvenile detention center—will also mean an economic impact on the county. Those phases will be explained in future editions of The Times.

nator for the Pike and Enterprise Associations, which includes Floyd and surrounding counties, of Southern Baptist churches. Tina took time off from her full-time job as director of development at Mountain Christian Academy in Martin to make the mission trip.

At the request of the KBC, Tina formed a mission team composed of four other Kentuckians who have extensive experience working with the deaf. One member was Samuel Marsh a deaf pastor of Danville Deaf Baptist Mission; Beth Driver, a deaf person who teaches a Sunday school class at the First Baptist Church in Bowling Green; Shane West, a medical physicist whose parents are deaf; and Tom King, a sign language interpreter from Irvine.

The team's itinerary was mapped out by Vladimir Boyev, Russian Baptist missions director. "He made initial contacts in each city before we arrived," Tina said. "When we arrived at each city, we were met by those contacts—pastors and lay leaders."

When the team arrived at Moscow on Thursday after spending close to twenty hours on a plane, they were rushed to a church where the team was welcomed "wonderfully by over thirty deaf people who had learned that some Americans were coming to visit," Tina said. Moscow, the capital and largest city of Russia, as well as the third largest city in the world, has a population of 11 million people. Included in that number are 25,000 deaf people, Tina noted.

During the trip the team traveled to six other cities—Tambov, Lipetsk, Yelets, Zondonsk, Oosman, Voronezh — an area which comprises about 600 miles, before returning to Moscow. The group spoke at churches and visited work sites, schools and cultural centers for the deaf.

"Under communism, deaf people were grouped in their jobs almost in 'bulk,'" Tina said. "For example, there are many sewing factories, airplane factories, military munitions factories that have a majority of deaf workers. Since communism fell, many deaf don't have jobs, don't have food, and don't have homes.

"When communism fell, deaf people were the first to be ostracized. Under communism everyone was equal. With the fall of communism, deaf people were among the first to become nobody. That is not just from my observation, I heard that from the managers of the factories and the deaf people themselves."

In Tambov, the team visited a sewing factory where most of the workers are deaf. "Four of them (the team) spent time with employees, and I spent time with management to see about how many deaf were there and what we can do to help. In the smaller areas (towns), the deaf haven't been touched."

The first day, the manager of the factory was reluctant to talk, Tina said. The second day, however, the workers "had cleared a room at the factory and had a tea for us."

The team also visited an elementary and high school for the deaf where the missionaries gave out presents. "Samuel talked and Beth told a Bible story in Russian sign language," Tina said.

At the start of the mission trip, Tina had told Boyev that the team members, who are fluent in American sign language, would learn and use Russian sign language during the trip. Boyev, a hearing man whose parents, grandparents and sister are deaf, didn't believe such a feat was possible. However, by the third day, the team was using Russian sign language to communicate with the deaf. "We learned by spending time with the Russian people," Tina said. "We were conversant — not fluent — but conversant."

When Boyev saw that the team has accomplished this goal, he was overcome with emotion. "I had never seen a man cry like that before," Tina said.

The team also accomplished another goal—laying a portion of the groundwork for a video designed specifically to unify the religious language of the deaf population.

"The deaf people of Russia only began to learn of the gospel two years ago following Billy Graham's crusade there," Tina said. "Some Russian sign language interpreters became Christians and felt a burden to share Christ among the deaf. Challenges involved in that include the creation of signs to express religious concepts among the deaf community."

During the trip, the team worked with Phil Cantrell, a missionary to the deaf through International Missions, to create a video that will help unify some of the religious language among the deaf.

The team also established some contacts in each of the cities they visited, in preparation for future ministries with the deaf. "The Southern Baptist Convention will now recruit deaf people and interpreters from America to go to these cities to teach, preach, and reach them with the gospel," Tina said.

She added that the KBC will be recruiting another mission team to return to Russia next year, and that she will probably be a member of the team.

motion to dismiss and two to three weeks later, he wants a new trial."

Belhasen's motion claims that witnesses who gave depositions in the case committed perjury about their involvement with "individuals who were attempting to rig the election, including employees of (Stumbo) who work at the highest echelon of (Stumbo's) administration.

Turner commented that the motion does not name which witnesses allegedly committed perjury or what they are accused of lying about.

"Why?" Turner asked. "Because they know there's not any competent evidence against John M. Stumbo."

The motion mentions tapes that McKinney says he has which were made by "informants" during the May election and reportedly contains incriminating evidence against several of the witnesses in the case.

Turner claims it is improper to refer to those tapes because they were not made part of the record and that, the ones he has listened to, do not implicate his client in any wrongdoing.

Belhasen countered that the tapes were made available to the court for review.

One of the issues, Belhasen said, is that the tapes reportedly contain evidence of wrongdoing during the election but that no one in a prosecutorial capacity has attempted to investigate the allegations.

"We would encourage (County Attorney) Jim Hammond or (Commonwealth's Attorney) John Earl Hunt grant immunity so this case can be aired," Belhasen said. "The people of Floyd County need to know what happened in the election."

Belhasen said that McKinney changed his mind about dropping the case because "he wanted to set the record straight."

Turner said that he was not opposed to immunity for witnesses, but the attorney general's office ruled that it was not a matter for the court to decide. He added it was up to a prosecutor to grant immunity in the case.

"The rules of engagement for this conflict are directed by Kentucky laws on evidence and procedure," Turner said. "Not their preferred format of a radio talk show. This thing has to end."

A hearing on the motion has been set for November 18 at 9 a.m. before Judge Combs in Perry Circuit Court.

on a later date, Mayor Raymond Griffith said.

Mayor Griffith left shortly after the meeting came to order, and the council voted that councilman Rodney Hutchinson act as mayor pro tem for this meeting.

One citizen who was at the meeting said she thought that the council had decided to freeze payments on all other city expenses until all water bills had been paid. Councilman Alan Whicker disagreed.

"Because the water payments were so far behind," Whicker said, "we didn't freeze payment on anything else. We just considered the water bills top priority."

Another item on Wednesday's agenda was the fiscal audit. Flo Bartrum, who administered the audit for the 1993 fiscal year, enclosed a letter addressed to the council with the copies of the audit report. The audit covers the city's payment period through June 30, 1994.

More information in the report indicated that the city was behind over $600 in banking fees.

A letter, addressed to the council, from the accountant was enclosed with fiscal 1993's report.

The letter outlined suggestions for helping the city government run more smoothly. One suggestion was for the city clerk to use the computers more extensively in civic business.

The letter also said that a list of all who were delinquent on their property taxes should be submitted in order to legitimize collection action. Thus far, $7,737 in property taxes remain uncollected.

Also mentioned in the letter was the Red, White and Blue Committee's withdrawal of all the money in their checking account to pay for expenses. Councilman Everett Akers Jr. asked if the committee still wished to be considered a city organization. Hutchinson moved that the committee submit a complete list of expenditures at the next council meeting.

Another item, which passed unanimously, was a resolution that would allow the city to establish a line of credit with their bank. These loans would be used by the city and the water and sewage department to help pay for the city sewer project. The city also agreed with the bank to make payment on the sewer program before making any payment to other outstanding sources. Charlie Johnson, president of the Martin branch of the Trans-Financial Bank, worked out the short resolution with the city in order to raise additional funds for the city's sewer expansion.

A representative of the Big Sandy Area Development District, Libby Ratcliff, who is helping to administer the waste water treatment program for Martin, presented the council with three invoices from the three companies—HMB Engineering, Charles Contracting and G&L Pipe—that are involved with the construction of the new sewer plant in Martin.

Ratcliff also said that the city cannot use the $50,000 currently in their account until all bonds going toward Farmer's Home Loan are paid.

A second reading of the ordinance budget brought a unanimous vote to amend LGEA funds of $11,000 from the city's park and recreation fund in order to repair sidewalks in the city's street program.

A representative from MCI was present to propose that the city government take advantage of a special package in order to save money on long distance calls. Council members took no action on the proposal and tabled the subject for review during their next meeting.

In other new business, Martin police chief, James Burke, requested that the city purchase new uniforms for the police force. Council passed the proposal unanimously.

In an unrelated matter, one officer of the police force requested that he be allowed to drive a police cruiser to and from the police academy, since he had no transportation of his own. That proposal was passed in a five to one vote with councilman Denzil Halbert voting against.

"I can't remember anytime that anyone was allowed to drive a cruiser to the academy," Halbert said. Hutchinson said that nothing was wrong with using the cruiser for such purposes, since the request was presented to and approved by the council.

In other new business, a city maintenance man requested a raise. Akers made the motion to raise his hourly pay by $1.25. The motion carried unanimously.

A code of ethics ordinance was presented to the council. Discussion to amend the code was tabled, however, until the next meeting.

HUD unlocks door to public housing

by Michael Lynn Huff
Staff Writer and

Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Changes in the Department of Housing and Urban Development's preference guidelines will open the doors of public housing for some Floyd Countians.

The changes were announced Tuesday, October 11, at a meeting of the Floyd County Housing Authority at the Green Acres housing office.

Modifications to the preferences include changes in involuntary displacement and standard housing guidelines. The definition of "involuntarily displaced" has been expanded to include those family members who are at risk of reprisal because they have provided information on criminal activities to a law enforcement agency and, based on a threat assessment, a law enforcement agency recommends rehousing the family.

Housing is open to applicants who have been abused by their spouse, and they have had to vacate their home as a result of actual or threatened physical violence. Those applicants must certify that the persons who engage in the violence will not reside with the applicants' families.

HUD also allows public housing to be provided for those individuals who have been displaced because of hate crimes. In the guidelines, hate crimes means "actual or threatened physical violence or intimidation that is directed against a person or his or her property and that is based on the person's race, color, religion, sex, national origin, handicap or familial status."

Families who live in substandard housing, or if the home is occupied by one or more families which result in more than two persons per bedroom, are also eligible for public housing.

Plans proceeding for MSU/Big Sandy Campus

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

The proposed Mountain Arts Center may have slid a few feet westward on the drawing board, but it won't affect the building of a new Morehead State University Big Sandy Campus, which will be built near the entertainment complex.

MSU's Big Sandy Campus Advisory Board, which has an option on property at the site, discussed the changes in the Mountain Arts Center location at its meeting Tuesday. The plot for the Big Sandy Campus had to be resized because the proposed arts center was moved back farther on the lot, said Gary Frazier, a member of the advisory board.

The art center was moved about 68 feet to the west and dropped back from the front of the lot by about 34 feet, said Paul Phillip Hughes, chairman of the Kentucky Opry Board of Directors.

In other business at the Floyd County Housing Authority meeting, the board voted to accept an amendment to its annual contributions contract for its Left Beaver Townhouse project and to write off $993 in debts.

feet, said Paul Phillip Hughes, chairman of the Kentucky Opry Board of Directors.

During the Opry Board's process of obtaining a permit to fill ditch lines, the state highway department told the board if the proposed four-lane project of the Mountain Parkway is approved, the group would have to reslope its entrance way to the site.

Hughes said he met with the MSU Advisory Board and explained to them that they would lose only about 3/10 of an acre from the parcel. Board members agreed that would not change anything for the new campus, Frazier said.

Frazier said the two endeavors will be working together and that the school plans to make the facade of the campus building compatible to the Mountain Arts Center.

Schools' credibility gap

Educators who are struggling to understand parents' misgivings about education reform now have a valuable new road map.

A just-released survey by Public Agenda, "First Things First: What Americans Expect from the Public Schools," should be required reading for everyone who wants to help reform succeed. The main message is that education experts and civic leaders need to listen carefully to the public's concerns, treat their opinions respectfully, and address their misgivings.

Most Americans believe too many schools are not providing what they see as the fundamentals of good education—a safe, well-ordered environment in which students learn the basics.

That—and a good deal more—is, of course, what the leaders of education reform expect their programs will produce, but Americans are skeptical. They question whether those "in charge" really share the public's goals. That's a serious problem.

Innovations such as using calculators to teach math, teaching composition without spelling drills, and grouping youngsters of varying skills—all these don't make intuitive sense to most Americans. Furthermore, they're skeptical of the results.

Most math educators believe, for instance, that early use of calculators strengthens children's problem-solving skills without preventing the learning of arithmetic. But that belief was shared by only 10 percent of the parents surveyed. Indeed, many believed that the inability of some children to do simple arithmetic without a calculator is "foolproof evidence" that education reform isn't working.

Another example: Most Americans reject the idea of encouraging young children to write creatively without also teaching spelling and punctuation. They're afraid that children who aren't taught the rules from the outset will never develop into good writers. They crave precision but think their children are getting fuzziness.

The public may be mistaken, but it behooves educators to listen and do what they can to make parents part of their constituency.—The Courier-Journal

The Living Memorial needs your support

Editor:
The Floyd County Living Memorial is a non-profit, tax-deductible organization that was formed in March of 1993 to establish a lasting memorial to the 26 children and bus driver, who perished in the terrible bus wreck of February 1958. The committee is composed of people from all over Floyd County who realized that many young people now reaching adulthood have no recollection of this tragedy.

Many suggestions have been made during the past thirty-six years that a memorial or marker be established at the wreck site. Maintenance and protection from vandalism at that isolated site always proved an obstacle to any undertaking. In early spring of this year, with the tremendous support of Jenny Wiley Park Manager James Kennedy, a location was approved by the Kentucky Department of Parks to build a memorial on park property near the lodge. A bronze plaque listing the names of all those who perished plus a brief history of the event has already been ordered. The plaque is approximately 24" x 56" and will be mounted on a stone base approximately 4 ft. high. The plaque, designed by Prestonsburg Art Teacher Johnny Stumbo, has 27 crosses to honor each victim. Blueprints for the plaque as well as site preparation and estimates were provided by Prestonsburg Architect Randall Burchett, whose services have proved to be invaluable.

It is our belief that the opportunities we now have—an ideal location for the plaque at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, blueprints designed by a professional architect—may never come again. In a few more years the will for this undertaking may not exist. It is our firm resolve to complete this project before winter.

Just as this terrible tragedy touched the hearts of so many thirty-six years ago, we hope that you will support us in this final tribute with a lasting memorial.

Please mail you tax-deductible donation to:

The emergency room can be a scary place

Editor:

A few weeks ago my husband and I were faced with a parental problem that none of us can predict at what time it will happen. It was on a Sunday night, and our seventeen-month-old daughter had a high fever. I had tried everything I knew to do. We finally gave her a warm bath and a dose of Motrin. We waited approximately forty minutes and the fever was going up. At this time we began to panic. It was on its way to 103 degrees. Being worried parents and seeing our child's discomfort and pain, our only choice was to go to the emergency room.

Upon our arrival (which was approximately 9:30 p.m.) we signed in and were told that it wouldn't be long until we would see a doctor because they had a new service called Emergency Express. Well, we were so relieved. We wouldn't have to wait long, we could see a doctor, get our child treated, and be on our way back home. Well, as we waited and waited, and my husband carried our little girl around and tried to keep her satisfied, our frustration began to mount and the clock just ticked on.

As it neared the hour of 11:00, I went to the window to ask when did they think it might be possible that we could see a doctor. I was told by one nurse that she didn't normally work at this window and she had no idea. (Well, by this time I believe my fever was probably close to 103 degrees, and my husband's was possibly higher). We kept saying that we would wait five more minutes.

Finally at a little past 11:00 we were called back to ER where we were made to sit and wait again. To make a long story short, we did finally see a doctor, who told us it could be this or of course it could be something else. He handed us a prescription and we were finally on our way home. We arrived back at our house around 12:30 a.m. I think this was ridiculous and I know that many of you out there have shared this same experience.

My main question is this. What do you do if you are really having an emergency; and how do they determine who really needs to receive prompt treatment? Sitting and thinking of all of this is all very scary to me.

After our little experience with the ER I was still not satisfied with my daughter's condition. Being a working parent it is often very difficult to take off work and go to the doctor's office without an appointment.

That's why I would like to say thank goodness for "Physician's After Hours Clinic." I would like to thank all of these doctors who take the time to be there in the evening from 6:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. They have been very helpful since their inception in January. You have the assurance that you can go in and see a "reliable" doctor in a reasonable amount of time, get treated and be on your way home feeling much better.

I know that this must be hard on all of these doctors who participate in this program to put in a long day at their own office and then go to the Clinic and stay until 10:00 p.m. It takes them away from their families and their free time. But this service is so needed by our community. It comes in so handy for working parents, or parents with children who get sick at school, and do not have access to a doctor after hours.

I have been in the After Hours Clinic with my child on several occasions since they went into business in January. I know these doctors and nurses must be tired, but they are always pleasant, friendly and helpful in every way. I have also seen several of the different doctors and there has never been a problem with any of them. They all seem to care and are very careful to do a complete and thorough examination.

Once again, I would like to thank all of the staff at the After Hours

Chartering a new course

As we noted in these columns on Wednesday morning, the heart of Kentucky's school reform law is a faith in the ability of parents to make schools better. With this thought still fresh in our minds, it's worth noting an idea that is spreading around the country that reflects a similar belief.

The idea centers on what are called "charter schools." At least 11 states have some version of a charter school law, which allows communities or groups of parents to set up state-chartered public schools, independent of local school districts. The schools must meet basic requirements for facilities, curriculum and instruction to get state charters. Once chartered, they are eligible for public money just like other schools. They also operate under all the laws governing public schools, including federal civil rights laws.

Critics see charter schools as a drain on the finances of existing public schools. Supporters see them as a way to put parents in control of schools without the full-fledged assault on public education that would come with a school-voucher program.

It's doubtful that charter schools are a cure-all for any state's education problems. But a couple of things suggest that Kentucky should at least look at charter schools.

The first is that such schools would seem to fit comfortably within the philosophical framework of the 1990 school reform act. The second is that in Minnesota and some other states, state charters have provided a way for communities to keep small schools open rather than see them consolidated into larger schools. Given the constant battling over school consolidations around the state, that alone makes the idea worth considering.—Lexington Herald-Leader

Seeing pain's face

History often is not pretty. It is painful to recall the wholesale slaughter of Native Americans.

It is difficult as well to be forced to admit that among our freedom-loving Founding Fathers were slave breeders and owners.

It's hardly pleasant to recall that our government during World War II interned Japanese-Americans in concentration camps, not for lack of patriotism but for their ancestry.

In the 1950s, Sen. Joseph McCarthy, using his congressional bully pulpit, drove law-abiding citizens to suicide and financial ruin with wild claims that they were traitors and Communists.

Ugly, yes. Yet these events occurred. And they are no less relevant to our understanding of contemporary problems than the pride we take in our wonderful Constitution, Bill of Rights, and system of checks and balances.

That's why critics are wrong to say that the new reenactments of slave auctions at Colonial Williamsburg in Virginia trivialize a painful period in U.S. history.

Like it or not, the auctions occurred. Black men, women and children were bred, bought and sold like cattle.

Perhaps even more than books, movies and hit TV series like Roots and The Civil War, slave auction reenactments give greater authenticity to painful events that, to many, now seem nothing more than slightly grotesque historical abstractions that have no relevance to our race-relations problems today.

Actually, there's no better testimony to the reenactments' benefit than that of a man who originally opposed them. After seeing one, he altered his view and said, "Pain had a face. Indignity had a body. Suffering had tears."—The Courier Journal

This is not about sex

The survey on sexual attitudes and practices wasn't the only eye-opening report on American society released last week. The Census Bureau weighed in with news that was...well, less sexy but just as important—and a lot less encouraging.

According to the bureau, the number of Americans living in poverty rose to 39.3 million last year, from 38 million the year before. What's more, the median family income in America declined 1 percent, to $31,241.

Falling incomes and a rising number of poor weren't supposed to happen last year. After all, the economy was into the second year of a rebound from the last recession. Production was up and the jobless rate was down (and is still dropping), and that should have helped. So what's the trouble?

In fact, the economic expansion is helping. The poverty figures surely would have been higher, and the median income lower, if the economy hadn't grown.

But one disturbing long-term trend seems to defy the business cycle. The rich in this country are getting richer, and the poor poorer. In 1968, the top one-fifth received 42.8 percent of America's total personal income, and the bottom fifth received 4.2 percent. Last year—25 years later—the top one-fifth received 48.2 percent, and the bottom fifth 3.6 percent.

It doesn't seem to matter much whether a Democrat or a Republican is in the White House. But that doesn't mean the income gap isn't a political issue.

It could become the issue.—The Courier-Journal

Nat'l Adoption Month to be celebrated

Editor:

The Department for Social Services and the Recruitment and Certification Unit in the Big Sandy area are excited to announce our plans to celebrate "National Adoption Month" in November of 1994.

On Saturday, November 5, we will be sponsoring a parade in Prestonsburg, to help promote and publicize the work being done every day for Kentucky's abused and neglected children through our adoptive families.

The parade will begin at Music-Carter-Hughes on Route 1428 (also known as South Lake Drive) at 1:30 p.m., and will continue along South Lake Drive to Court Street ending at the Floyd County Library where Social Services will sponsor a reception for adoptive families and anyone interested in adoption through the Special Needs Adoption Program. Virginia Sturgeon, Adoption Specialist with the Special Needs Adoption Program in Lexington, will be our featured speaker for the event.

Please plan to "join the parade" on November 5, at 1:30 p.m. to celebrate Adoption. Call any Recruitment and Certification Worker with Social Services or in Floyd County, you may call Norma Boyd at 886-8192 to say you plan to participate in our parade. We welcome floats, walks, etc.

Please plan to join this parade for such a worthy cause. We urge you to become involved and to show your support for a program that builds families and a positive future for the children in our area.

Reader has opinion about "Family Values"

Editor:

Sometime ago, in one of his editorials, Editor Scott Perry responded to the report that President Clinton had stated welfare reform was needed and "Family Values" should be promoted with this comment. "Isn't that what we have been saying all along" (or words to that effect). Then in the Wednesday, September 14th issue of the Floyd County Times, Mr. Perry again writes on the subject of "Family Values."

In this reference to "Family Values," it seems to Mr. Perry that one Dan Quayle, former vice president and potential future candidate for president, is father and mentor of all good things that constitutes what the term "Family Values" means. Then Mr. Perry asks the question, "What the heck is a 'Family Value'?" A very important and pertinent question, Mr. Perry, and one that deserves an answer.

Mr. Quayle's version of "Family Values" is a two-parent family with 2 or 3 children, the father is always there for them, they have no financial problems, with only the best of everything for all of them.

While this may be the ideal, as most of us can attest, this is not the norm nor the rule of thumb for most families. The true picture is one or both parents having to work to make ends meet and of many, many one-parent families existing on below poverty level income, due in a large measure more to circumstances than to ineptness and lack of desire. So then what are "Family Values?" They are anything that enhances the lives of everyday, common ordinary people.

There are laws that require employers to give time off from work so employees can be with terminally ill loved ones to the end. "Family Values" is not having our Legislators vote against this law and use the rationale (as Senator Phil Graham did) that it hurts small business, this even though it applies only to employers with 50 or more employees.

"Family Values" is making sure that 4- and 5-year-old preschoolers have at least one nourishing meal a day. It is not saying catsup is good enough as a vegetable for them, as former President Reagan did. "Family Values" is our representatives passing laws that protect the interest, health and welfare of all the citizens of this country and not for a few special interest groups only.

Many other things could be mentioned that constitute "Family Values" but I think you get the point. Mr.

Quayle has no more idea of what real family values are than he knows how to spell potato.

One Woman's Vision

Editor:

It was a beautiful day
In the heart of the mountains
The sky was as clear
As a crystallized fountain.

The Jenny Wiley Festival
In its thirteenth year
Was a huge success
With the end looming near.

The week was filled
With memories to last,
Of sports, good food,
Great music and crafts.

The streets were lined
With such happy faces
As they looked down the street
For the parade's starting paces.

The parade was led
By a beautiful woman
Whose heart and soul
Had made this all happen.

As the bands and the floats
Passed on down the street
The children all shouted
And kept up with the beat.

As the curtain fell
On another edition
We thank Maxine Bierman
For her heart-founding vision.

Pines was arrested at a different location and charged with possession of cocaine and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said Thursday that the Perry County organization was responsible for distributing approximately eight ounces to a pound of cocaine in Floyd County per month.

"We know the cocaine goes into Floyd County and all the immediate areas surrounding Perry County," Thompson said. "Nobody can say how far reaching this is or all the areas it covers."

Thompson added more federal indictments were forthcoming in connection with Thursday's raid.

Agents stormed the establishment early Thursday morning and seized the bar and building where officers found a cache of automatic weapons, explosives, a large quantity of marijuana, handguns and a pipe bomb in a safe located on the premises, Thompson said.

Also seized in the raid were two restored Harley Davidson motorcycles, 12 vehicles, including a new Lincoln Town Car and a Porsche, a houseboat and a large amount of cash.

Participating in the raid were Sheriff Thompson; Tony Eversole of the Perry County Sheriff's Department; Frank Fryman, director of the Mountain Area Drug Task Force; Hazard Police Chief Rod Maggard and officers of the Hazard Police Department; and FBI special agents.

The Mountain Area Drug Task Force was formed last year to target street level drug dealers and is made up of law enforcement officers from six counties and two city police departments. Counties and cities that are part of the drug task force are: Floyd, Perry, Knott, Magoffin, Pike and Letcher counties; and the Prestonsburg and Hazard police departments.

Sheriff Thompson said Thursday's raid is a prime example of why the task force was formed.

"The purpose of the task force is for law enforcement officers to have multi-jurisdiction to keep drugs from coming into their counties," Thompson said.

Courthouse as was her husband. She was by his side as he moved up the political ladder, serving as his receptionist, secretary and public relations person, often without pay, according to Jack Hyden, trial commissioner.

Hyden said Harold Stumbo was county attorney, a commonwealth's attorney, district judge and then circuit judge, and Pluma also took on the added responsibilities of the job change.

"She was a super nice person," Hyden said. "I never saw her lose her cool. She always had a smile. Everybody loved her."

Pluma Stumbo was also a teacher and taught in Louisville while her husband was at law school.

Born August 17, 1932 at Weeksbury, she was a daughter of the late Dewey and Magnolia Sizemore Martin.

In addition to her son, Greg, she is survived by three daughters, Marshal Kay Stumbo of Ashland, Deborah Woods of Prestonsburg and Patricia Schuppert of Lexington; one brother, Barry Martin of Prestonsburg; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday, October 15, at 11 a.m. at the Hall Funeral Home with Clergymen Arnold Turner Jr. and Mark Tackett officiating. Burial will be in the Stumbo Family Cemetery at Minnie.

Safe Sitter program offers training

Baby sitters in the area will have an opportunity to receive special training and certification in basic child care with Safe Sitter classes offered October 15 and 22 at Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

The Safe Sitter program is a medically-accurate instructional series that teaches 11 to 13 year-old girls and boys how to handle emergencies when caring for younger children. To successfully complete the program, participants have to pass a practical and written test to show that they have mastered the key concepts and have the skills necessary to handle an emergency. At the end of the two-day course, a certificate is awarded to the participants who have successfully completed the program. Dr. Patricia Keener, an Indianapolis pediatrician, developed the Safe Sitter program after a friend's toddler choked to death while in the care of a sitter who didn't know what to do. The goal of the program is to reduce the number of accidental and preventable deaths among children being cared for by baby sitters.

Nurses at Pikeville Methodist Hospital have received certification from the national Safe Sitter program to teach the course. The instructors will also provide tips to make sitters more confident caregivers and will teach safety and security precautions, such as what to do if a stranger comes to the door and when and how to call for help. They will give information on child development and suggest age-appropriate activities for children. And they will teach sitters about the business aspects of babysitting.

The Safe Sitter classes, scheduled for October 15 and 22, will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. Cost for the class is $20. To register, call Sandra Meyers at 437-3936.

WOMAN OF VISION

by Willie Elliott
Eastern Kentucky is in need of many things, but if we had a few more people with a vision similar to that of Billie Jean Osborne, we would see major improvements in our conditions. I don't mean a vision about music—Billie Jean has that covered.

When Billie Jean was teaching at Betsy Layne and turning out terrific bands year after year, I attributed it to the good music students in that community. At the same time she was training both a marching and concert band, she was putting on musicals that rivaled many professional productions. I thought to myself, "Anyone could do a good program with a bunch of kids like that." It never occurred to me that those kids were good because Billie Jean was there.

After Billie Jean retired, she came to McDowell to fill in for a semester. She took a class that I thought was quite ordinary at the time and put on a production Fabric of Freedom, that has left a lasting impression on me. When I went to that production, I became a Billie Jean fan. I couldn't believe what she got from those students, and she involved every student in the class one way or another. Billie Jean knew KERA before it became the official methodology for Kentucky teaching. Billie Jean has the same effect on business and community leaders.

It stands to reason that if there is that much talent for music in these mountains, there is talent in story telling, crafts, arts, and practical skills such as carpentry, mechanics and any number of other artistic and skill areas. Billie Jean can't ferret out these special skills and people for us. Sure, she can write songs or do musical productions about these things, but it's up to someone with a vision for these things to bring out the best in our mountain youngsters.

Some people claim to dream in color—Billie Jean dreams in details. When the Art Center was being planned and drawn up, Billie Jean seemed to see the building brick by brick. She knew where speakers had to be, how the wiring must be, and if something was left out, she went back to the business and community leaders. When they said no, Billie Jean didn't hear. She doesn't hear that word well. In the end she got what she wanted, and if Billie Jean says that what we are getting is what we need, that's good enough for me.

I always tell my students to dream the dream. I suppose Billie Jean would scold me for that, because she would say dream the dream but make it a reality. We need more Billie Jean Osbornes in this world, but the first three off the line are reserved for Eastern Kentucky. After all, we developed the mold.

HIS JOURNEY'S JUST BEGUN
*Don't think of him as gone away—his journey's just begun;
Life holds so many facets—this earth is only one.
Just think of him as resting from the sorrows and the tears,
In a place of warmth and comfort, where there are no days and years.
Think how he must be wishing that we could know today,
How nothing but our sadness can really pass away.
And think of him as living in the hearts of those he touched...
For nothing loved is ever lost...and he was loved so much.*
Forever in our hearts,

McDowell Elementary-KERA in action

by Geoff Belcher
Floyd County Schools
One of the Kentucky Education Reform Act's main goals was to get parents and the community more actively involved in their children's education. Floyd County Schools' McDowell Elementary is a proud testament to the achievement of that goal. Guided by new principal Kenneth Osborne and a dedicated school-based decision-making council made up of parents, teachers and community leaders, McDowell Elementary kicked off its comprehensive parent involvement program by hosting the Drift Woman's Club-sponsored McDowell Homecoming. More than 2,500 former McDowell High School and Elementary School alumni showed up for the event, Osborne said. Many stayed to volunteer their services.

On Monday, Osborne said, the school conducted the first in a series of parent-volunteer training programs intended to give each community member a louder voice and a chance to make the school better.

Among other programs aimed at drawing the community back to the school: periodic "community nights" with food and entertainment; a G.E.D. class offered by staff from the David School at the Drift Family Resource Center on McDowell Elementary's campus; the formation of a Boy Scout troop which encourages not only child-participation but parent-involvement as well; the construction of a new playground and basketball goals open to the public; after-school care for students; a student-produced school newspaper which will be circulated to parents once a month; and Osborne's open-door policy for parents or community members who wish to comment on the school's activities.

Osborne said he and other school staff will also be conducting periodic home visits to students who need additional academic help and to "work with parents to provide a better line of communication."

"In other words," Osborne said, "we're opening our school to the community so it can see (and participate in) all the many innovative programs we're developing... This way we hope to get the parent back in the school." So far, Osborne said, the community seems to be taking as active a role as the school staff and council. For instance, volunteer members from the McDowell Senior Citizen Center conduct bi-weekly reading sessions with primary students, and a local physician volunteers his services at the resource center two days per week.

Several parents have also volunteered to form school committees to help advise the school-based council, and the Parent/Teacher Association is meeting early success in its annual membership drive.

"Basically," Osborne said, "we've upgraded the facility and the curriculum and we're working toward making it a better place to go to school... McDowell Elementary has a proud past and a bright future... and we hope to involve everyone in that future."

FBLA officers

South Floyd Family Resource Center

by Geoff Belcher
Floyd County Schools
Since its inception, the South Floyd Family Resource Center in the heart of downtown Wheelwright has offered a number of services to the surrounding community, helping to provide food, clothing and shelter to children and their parents and playing summer and afterschool host to an average of 20 students per day.

Now, thanks to the helping hand of the Floyd County Health Department, the Family Resource Center has entered a whole new era of community service.

Registered Nurse Lucreasie Reed, representing the Floyd County Health Department, is on staff at the resource center to help provide basic medical services including required sixth grade pre-school physicals; PAPS and clinical breast exams; adult and child immunizations; and Well Child/EPSDT physicals.

"Basically," Reed, who has been an R.N. since 1987, said last week, "We're trying to offer services five days a week...A lot of people who live in the outer reaches of the county don't want to or are unable to drive all the way to Prestonsburg (for basic medical services) because it's just too far away."

Though basic, the services the center provides are necessary because of the high incidence of cancer and other life-threatening diseases in Eastern Kentucky, Reed said.

"I don't think any other health department in the state is doing this," Family Resource Center Director Eric Lawson said last week. "Instead of making the people come to the Floyd County Health Department, the Floyd County Health Department is coming to the people... Hopefully, if John M. Stumbo Elementary has a center by next year, no one in the county will have to travel more than 15 miles to get to adequate health services."

"That puts Floyd County on the cutting edge, in my opinion... It's been a monumental effort on everyone's part."

Still, Lawson said, the program is in its infancy.

"It's imperative that people use these services across the county," Lawson said, "because if the health department can't justify (the cost of the program), we'll all lose the services."

The South Floyd Family Resource Center can be contacted for either medical or child services at 452-4553 Monday through Friday.

How's your health?

THE ROAD NOT TAKEN

If you have never known the paralyzing fear that comes from not knowing where you are, you have never known "real" fear, and you've probably never been lost either.

There have been two times in my life that "being lost" has been a fearful and terrorizing experience. One incident occurred when I was in high school. The other was when a friend's child was misplaced for two agonizing hours while we were visiting in a large city. I have now heard of a third.

My friend Jean decided that she would like to enjoy the beautiful fall scenery last Sunday afternoon by taking a walk at the Paintsville Lake. With the fall foliage at the height of its color, she thought a stroll in the woods would be an energizing idea. And it was. But that was before she got out of the car. After the door shut, the rest of the afternoon was like a scene out of the Twilight Zone.

At first glance, Jean thought she knew what she was doing. She had walked at the lake many times before, but this time she found herself on unfamiliar terrain. Instead of the black-topped road, she found herself on a detour, a gravel path that winded and turned and winded some more. While the surroundings seemed strange, she knew that she wasn't far from home. So she turned up the volume on her headphones and quickened her pace.

Thirty minutes passed before Jean realized she had not passed another walker or jogger. Although this seemed odd to her, Jean thought maybe this was one of those "few walker days." After all, people don't always walk at the same time everyday. And this was Sunday, too.

When an hour had passed, Jean found herself getting tired, thirsty, and a little concerned. Not only did she not know where she was, she didn't know how she got to where she wasn't. I'm not sure, but I think it was at this stage that she clicked her heels together and started chanting, "there's no place like home."

Minutes later she found herself on the edge of Route 460. She didn't know how she had ventured out of the lake area, but she knew she had to get back to her car before the warranty expired or before dark, whichever came first. Frantically, she tried to retrace her steps. In retrospect, she says that retracing her steps seems silly because she was trying to retrace tracks that got her lost in the first place.

Before the next hour passed, Jean's resolve crumbled and she began crying. Not long, hard sobs, just little snuffles of anxiety that heightened as she gasped for breath which brought about a slight bout of hyperventilation. Naturally, this only made matters worse because she was still lost. Jean says that she still isn't sure whether or not it was a mirage, but she thought she saw the Queen of Hearts and the Mad Hatter sitting beneath a pine tree having tea. Taking a chance, she asked them for directions and they pointed to a clearing 50 yards in the distance.

By the time Jean reached her car, she had shin splits, a splitting headache and split for home. She's now confining her walks to the track. She'll still be going in circles, but at least when she stops she'll know where she is.

THE TIMES' WEEKEND Extra

Woodruff to perform Sunday at annual "Day in the Park"

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

Singer/songwriter Bob Woodruff calls his music, "Songs from the heart. It's country with a rock 'n roll attitude."

That translates into a sound that has been described by various music publications as a "fresh honky-tonk vibe" that is "country to the bone."

With the release of his debut album, "Dreams and Saturday Nights," in March, the 33-year-old former New Yorker has established himself as one of the up-and-coming stars of young country, a more earthy style of country music that relies more on substance than a slick Nashville image.

Woodruff will be performing songs from his album as one of the headliners at the 12th annual "Day In The Park" set for this Sunday, starting at noon, at Allen Park. "I'm really look forward to the show," he said in a recent telephone interview from Nashville. "I'm a fan of Marty Brown (who is also performing at the event). 'I've yet to meet Marty Brown.'"

When Woodruff was a youngster growing up in upstate New York, early 1960s rock music, starting with the Beatles, became a major musical influence that set the course for his life. "When I saw the Beatles, I thought, 'This is what I want to do,'" Woodruff said.

When the budding singer/songwriter was twenty, his focus radically changed from rock to country music when he discovered his late father's old, dusty country music record collection.

"...I began to realize just how great the singing and song writing was, how honest and direct and believable people like George Jones were," Woodruff was quoted saying in a press release from his record company Asylum Records. "Merle Haggard just hit me really hard, the same way Otis Redding or Al Green did."

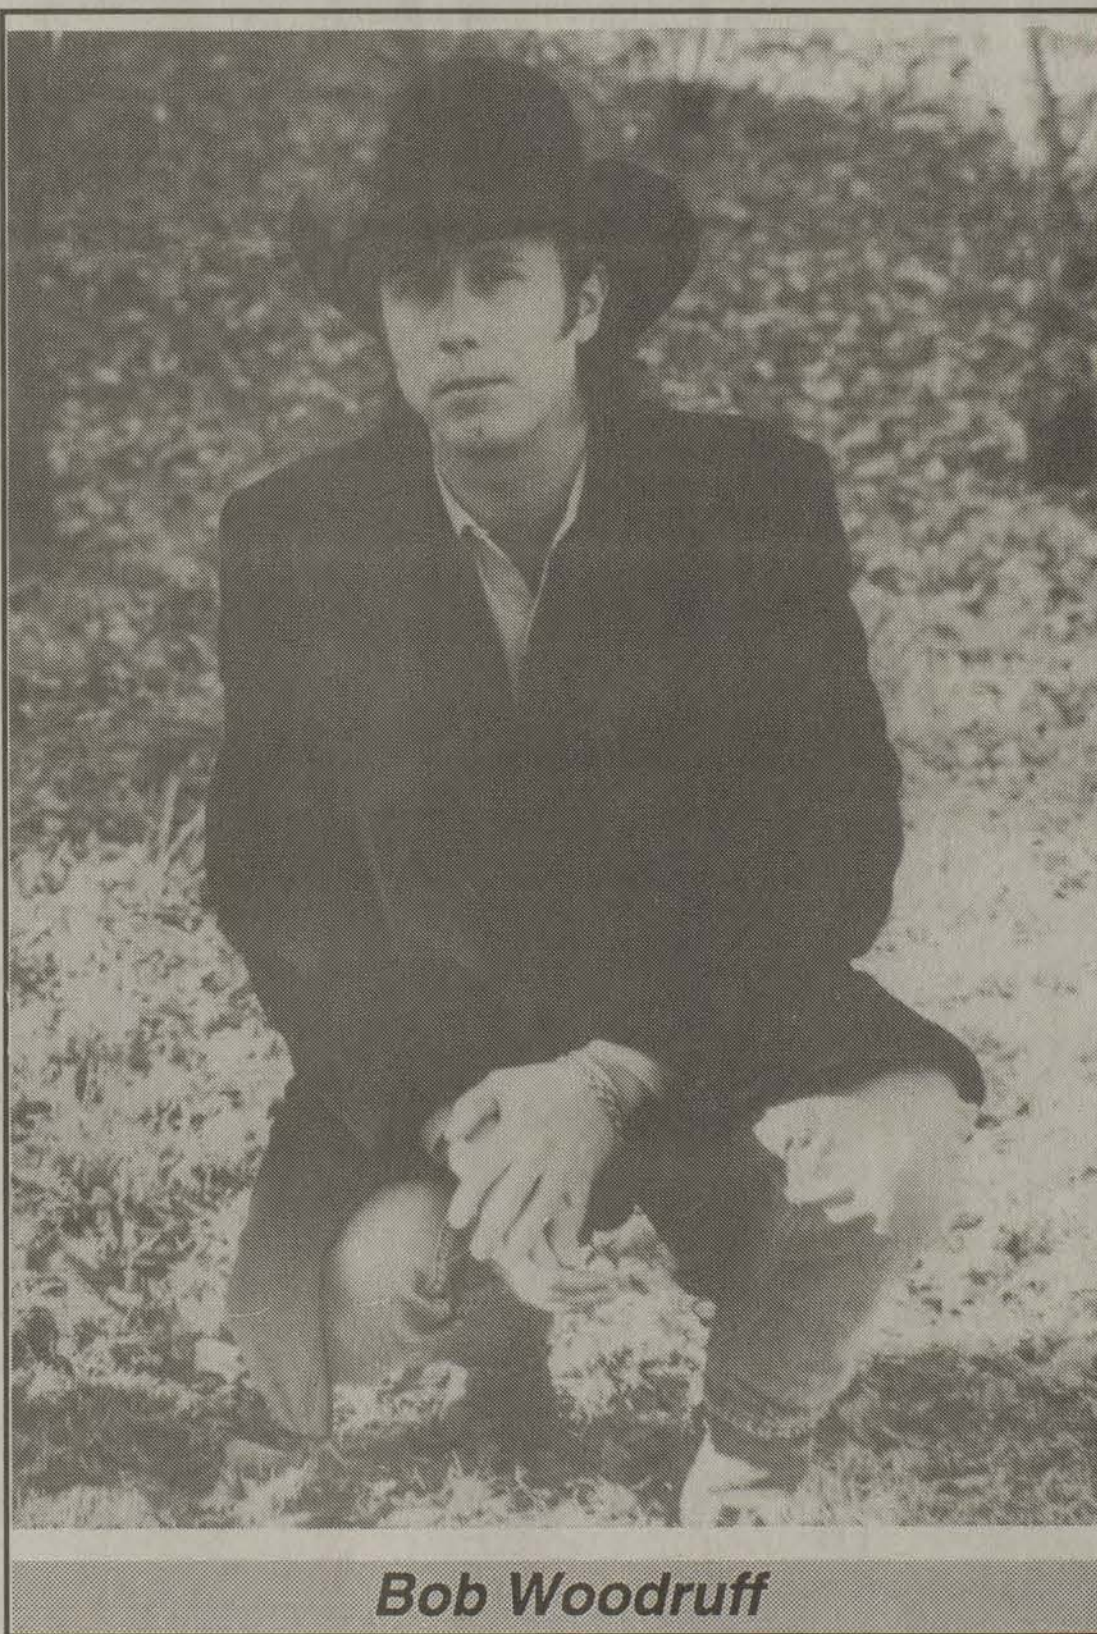

"I like a lot of old country," Woodruff maintained during the interview. "My favorite country singers are Merle Haggard, Hank Williams and Emmylou Harris. But I like a lot of the new singers, too."

Woodruff combines his rock and country music influences into a rough-and-tumble honky-tonk sound that has caught the attention of country music executives and performers. His hard-bitten, heartfelt lyrics have been compared to those written by Johnson County native Loretta Lynn. "Woodruff and Lynn share a musical landscape...Both write and sing their own heartfelt, lived in songs," declared the New Yorker Magazine in an article which profiled Woodruff in January.

"In the last two years a lot of my dreams have come true," Woodruff said. Those dreams include signing with Asylum Records, cutting a debut album that reviewers have regarded as fresh and unique, and working on his debut album with singer Emmylou Harris, and guitar legend James Burton.

The singer said that his present goals are to "continue to do music I love and build a larger audience."

Woodruff's current single and video, "Alright," was released in August. Other singles and videos from his album are "Hard Liquor, Cold Women and Warm Beer," and "Bayou Girl."

News of the weird —————By Chuck Shepherd

Among recent suggestions by municipal governments to restrict teen-age "cruising" in public places at night was one by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. To get kids off the street, The New York Times reported in August, Florida is considering installing low-pressure sodium street lamps because they render Caucasians' complexions a "sickly" color and make acne look grotesque.

LEAST COMPETENT PEOPLE

— Jackie Lynn Adams, 19, was charged with burglary in November after he allegedly broke into a home in Monterey, Tenn., and stole a VCR. Apparently to build his nerve, Adams had pulled into three driveways in the neighborhood before the break-in, thus drawing neighbors' attention. When he finally chose a house, it was the Monterey police chief's and contained two VCRs, one of which was broken. Adams took that one, then had to have it fixed to make it ready for sale. Thus, the chief got his VCR back in better shape than it was when stolen.

— In January William L. Swearingen pleaded guilty to the attempted bribery of state lottery officials in Baton Rouge, La. He had written a letter, complete with his name and address and 17 numbers that he normally plays, and suggested that if he could win two drawings, he would give most of the money in the second drawing back to the officials. He wrote that he was tired of being poor and wanted to spend more time with his family. Wrote Swearingen, "I would like to win so that I could have about $375,000 each year to live

Back in the saddle again...

Took some time off last week to do an undercover investigation of the health care industry after our appendix voted to secede from the rest of our body.

What we discovered is shocking.

First, we learned that the pain associated with appendicitis is comparable to that of giving birth and the appendix has no useful purpose other than to give us guys a chance to experience for ourselves what our wives feel in the delivery room.

Secondly, we discovered that it is practically impossible to maintain any semblance of dignity while wearing a hospital gown that has no back.

No doubt the art of "mooning" was first developed in a hospital somewhere.

Finally, we found that recovering from surgery is somewhat different from recuperating from, say, a head cold.

There's this thing called pain, which generally results from having your abdomen slashed open.

As far as we can determine, there are two ways to cope with pain.

You can grit your teeth and tough it out, or you can whine to anyone who'll listen.

Whining in the face of pain is an exclusive male thing.

Actually, it is an art form.

Uh, ouch, hold on a second...

Flash: while penning this column, the author was called back to the hospital for a second operation...

Back again.

Miss me?

Where was I?

Oh yeah, I was talking about whining.

Well, I've got a right to, haven't I?

Two major surgeries in 10 days.

If I don't feel sorry for myself, who will?

Why don't you try walking around with a big gash in your side and see how you like it?

Hurts, doesn't it?

Forget the pain pills, though. Give me sympathy.

You know where they say you can find that in the dictionary, don't you?

Wait To See: Nick and Sharon run into complications created by Nikki and Amy.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Social interests are a plus but you'll also be tackling a major unfinished project. Try to prioritize and you'll be able to accomplish everything you set out to do. Romance is favored this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You may take on a duty in connection with a group activity. An early start puts you ahead of the competition in business. However, later in the week, you'll find your energy flagging. Rest up this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) This is a major week regarding career interests you have been pursuing for some time. You'll finally see the proverbial light at the end of the tunnel. Additional responsibilities are connected to this.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A relative needs your help this week with a rather sticky problem. Do this from behind the scenes. Otherwise, you could find yourself right in the middle of a disagreement not of your making. The weekend favors quiet times.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're especially proud of a partner this week. It's a good time to reorganize debt. Refinancing just may be the ticket. Family members require special attention this week creating blissful harmony.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Additional responsibilities arise in connection with a partnership. Make sure you are not shouldering a disproportionate amount of the burden. Others could easily take advantage of your generous, helpful nature.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) At work, you're such a bundle of energy and efficiency, you'll be able to take on extra duties. Higher-ups take notice of this, which could lead to a promotion in the long run. This weekend, singles may meet new admirers.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It's a good week to settle differences and make up. Carrying petty grudges accomplishes nothing and will only serve to make you bitter and unpleasant to be around. The weekend is great for getting out and kicking up your heels.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's a good time to begin major household repairs which you've been putting off. However, approach this methodically and tackle one job at a time. A better understanding with a relative is achieved this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your mind is razor-sharp this week. Thus, you're ready to take on a difficult mental challenge. Others look to you for solutions. The weekend is good for furthering romantic togetherness. You'll both be on the same wavelength.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your personality will be an asset in career dealings this week, as you'll be especially gregarious and outgoing. Extra funds may become available to you. However, instead of rushing out to spend this, think about investing.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Even though you'll be asked to assume additional responsibilities at work this week, you'll still be in a carefree and lighthearted mood. This allows you to accomplish all you have to do with a minimum of strain and anxiety.

Annual car show to attract big crowd

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Countdown is one! Tomorrow the seventh annual Trans-Financial (formerly First Guaranty National Bank) Red, White and Blue Car Show will get underway at the bank's parking lot in Martin.

A huge crowd normally gathers for the event and tomorrow's event should be no different.

Cars from the tri-state area will be pulled and driven in to take part in what has become one of the largest shows in the area.

"We're just praying for good weather," said show director Tina Mills. "We've been blessed over the past year's. Last year we had just a sprinkle of rain and then it turned out nice."

The show gets underway at 8 a.m. with registration of cars. Judging will be held throughout the day and the awards will be presented to the winners between 2-2:30 p.m.

"We wanted to have it earlier so the cars could all get in the parade that starts at 3 p.m.," said Mills. "We have a route to where we can get the cars in front like other times."

Mills said that this year's show will have a voting box so those who enter the show can have a voice on how they would like the awards to be distributed.

"The way we are doing it this year is just a trial basis," said Mills of the show recognizing the top 50 cars. "They will have a voice in whether we return to the old way or keep it this way."

David Smith of Manchester has won the Best of Show for the past two years and will be in competition again with his 1932 coupe.

Numerous prizes will be awarded during the day as well as other activities going on.

Specialty classes include the best of: paint, engine, interior modified, competition, graphics, display, truck, Chevy, Ford and motorcycle.

The car owner that travels the longest distance will be recognized as well.

The top prize will be a $1000 savings bond to the winner of Best of Show.

The ever popular model car contest will return again this year.

Each driver will receive a bag that will feature specialty items inside.

Out of town judges will be used this year, and three front-end alignments will be given away. Saving bonds in the value of $50 and $100 will be awarded.

Entertainment! Entertainment will be going on throughout the day with the Junior Pro Opry providing live entertainment from 10:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.

The Allen Eagles held their annual football homecoming this past Saturday afternoon as the Eagles hosted the South Floyd Raiders in grade school football.

Five lovely young ladies paraded before a very large crowd in hopes of being named the school's 1994 Homecoming Football Queen.

When the candidates were all introduced, Tiffany Warrix emerged the new homecoming queen.

Henson passes for 256 yards in 42-36 Allen Central win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Allen Central Little Rebels elementary football team spotted the Allen Eagles a 14-0 lead early in the game but came back in a big way to post a 42-36 double overtime win Tuesday night at Prestonsburg.

James Seward carried the football from 10-yards out in the final overtime to give the Rebs the victory, their second of the season.

Both teams scored in the first overtime with Allen getting the football first. Seth Crisp scored on a 6-yard pass play in the first overtime with the PAT giving the Eagles a 36-28 advantage.

Allen Central, who got a strong game from quarterback Shawn Henson, tied the game at 36 when Henson hit Jackie Owens with an 11-yard pass completion. Jonathan Ellis kicked the PAT to tie it.

In the second overtime, Allen Central intercepted a pass to stall Allen's attempt to regain the lead. The Eagles had moved to the Rebels 1-yard line when they were spilled for a loss. On a fourth down play, Seward intercepted the pass.

Allen Central took over the football on the 10 and on a play to the left, Seward raced into the end zone for the winning touchdown.

Allen took an early lead on a 19-yard touchdown run by Seth Crisp. The PAT gave the Eagles the 8-0 lead.

Sports news around the county...thanks for phone calls

Thanks for the phone calls....

• Thanks for all the phone calls and faxes that have come my way in support against the letter written in the Letter's-To-The-Editor column last Wednesday.

I appreciate all of you who are fans of the kids out there. They are the reason we cover the games and sacrifice our own personal time to do so. I just enjoy being around them.

Since the letter was written, I have had two other parents complain about the same thing. But, I do appreciate all the coaches that take time to coach a team, regardless what sport it is.

I still stand up for the "little guy that hardly gets to play." I'm on his side and it doesn't matter what section of the county he comes from. He's the reason we have athletics.

I have never asked anyone to supply me with "pictures" or "stats." I have, though, asked for any information a team could send me about a game I couldn't personally attend. Just a score or whatever.

I get phone calls here at work and at home asking me to attend games. It's very hard for me to say no, but sometimes I have to because of scheduling problems.

I will continue to do the job that I have done for the past six years. The kids in Floyd County will get what coverage I can give them in this newspaper. That includes all schools and not a select few -- girls' and boys'.

• Be sure to catch the car show at the Trans-Financial Bank parking lot in Martin this Saturday. The show gets started at 8 a.m. with registration.

Tina Mills and her crew has put a lot of hard work into this year's show and we're hoping the rains stay away.

• The Prestonsburg Blackcats hung their new scoreboard this past week and it looks great. The "big sign" should be operational tonight as the Blackcats host the Sheldon Clark Cardinals.

Tuesday at the grade school football game I attended, I saw coach Bill Letton, with shovel in hand, helping out. I really admire this person. He is dedicated to the program at Prestonsburg.

• The grade school season will end with a huge gridiron classic at the Allen Central football field.

All elementaries that are in the conference will be playing their final games. We don't have the pairings or times but the classic is set for Saturday, October 29th.

• Grade school basketball practice will start November 1st with the regular season scheduled to begin around November 7th.

We hope to preview each team, boys' and girls', in the next two weeks.

I am looking forward to the grade school season. It always has a lot of fan interest.

Adams Middle School is the defending county boys champion and it looks as if the Blackcats will have another strong unit.

The Maytown girls' will defend their county championship this year.

• Sports Fan of the Week and the Players of the Week have drawn a lot of fan interest. We hope to be starting something new called the "Big Play of the Game." We want to recognize the players (from all four teams) who make the big play. A play, defensive or offensive, that perhaps turn a game around.

The first one can be found in today's sports section with others following on Wednesday's.

• What a game Shawn Henson had for the Allen Central Little Rebels Tuesday night against Allen.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone. Be good sports. Take the kids to church.

Prestonsburg finished first with 27 points. Feds Creek was second followed by Johnson Central, Paintsville and Pikeville.

The Paintsville Cross-Country meet is held each Thursday at the Paintsville Lake.

pleted a 60 yard halfback pass for a 14-0 game.

The Rebels got on the board in the second quarter as Scott Slone rushed 9-yards for a touchdown and a 14-6 game.

But the Eagles ran a pass action play and Crisp again tossed for the touchdown with the PAT making it a 22-6 affair.

The Eagles led 28-6 at the half on a pass completion, this time to Crisp, with the PAT being no good.

Henson and Seward went to work in the third quarter for Allen Central. Henson hit Seward for a 65 yard completion as Seward raced into the end zone.

In the fourth quarter, the Rebels made it a 28-20 game when Henson again connected with Seward for a 73 yard touchdown completion. Ellis nailed the PAT and it was an eight point game.

Allen Central tied the game as Henson passed for his third touchdown of the game. He hit Jackie Owens with a 67 yard pass to tie the game at 28.

Henson completed seven of 10 pass attempts for 256 yards passing. He also had an interception in the game.

"C" team game

Allen edged Prestonsburg in the third and fourth grade game 13-9 on a 88 yard touchdown run by Nick Clay. Jo Jo Harmon added the conversion with 24 seconds left in the game.

Clay scored a touchdown in the second quarter on a 67 yard run to give Allen a 6-0 lead with 1:49 left to play in the period.

A safety in the end zone put Prestonsburg on the scoreboard at 6-2.

Prestonsburg took a 9-6 lead when Zack Collins scored on a long run and the one-point conversion play gave the Blackcats the lead 9-6 after three quarters.

"B" team results

Allen's Jon Ellis scored two touchdowns and kicked two PATs to lead Allen to a 16-0 win over Allen Central in the junior varsity game.

BIG PLAYS OF THE GAME

James Osborne

Senior, Allen Central

The Rebel fullback carried three players with him as he carried the football 12-yards into the end zone to pull his team to within one point, 13-12, of McCreary Central. The Rebels went on to post a 20-13 victory. Osborne rushed for 57 yards.

Osborne

Thomas Ratliff

Senior, Prestonsburg

The senior quarterback, on a keeper, picked up the necessary yardage for a crucial first down against Magoffin County last Friday night. The Blackcats held a slim 21-20 lead over the Hornets in the fourth quarter. Ratliff picked up not only the first down but 16 yards on the carry that set up the Blackcats final touchdown for a 28-20 win.

Ratliff

Timmy Nunnemaker

Sophomore, Betsy Layne

With his team facing a third and long yardage, Nunnemaker picked himself up after being knocked down, and ran his route to pull in a 37-yard pass reception from quarterback Craig Hamilton for a first down at the Berea 16. The big play setup the Bobcats winning touchdown that sent Betsy

Nunnemaker

Layne to a 20-14 win over Berea last Saturday afternoon in their annual fall homecoming.

Nick Compton

Freshman, South Floyd

Compton got his first call as a starting quarterback for the South Floyd Raiders and responded by completing his first three passes of the game, one a 38 yard touchdown pass to Kevin Johnson. Compton completed the game with seven completion for 103 yards passing. His outing impressed his coach enough to get another start tonight against Allen Central.

Scott takes lone possession of first place as the other three faltered somewhat. But look for a strong showing from Kari, Jenny and Susan. Jimmy "Global" Goble is sinking fast. Kentucky will fall to the Bayou Tigers. Recruiting could be difficult this year for Coach Curry. Prestonsburg should take another step toward a playoff berth with a win over Sheldon Clark. Allen Central is picked to win their second straight. Cleveland will win at Houston for the first time in a long time (?). Pittsburgh will continue the Bengals slip as they hand them their sixth straight loss. Two weeks remain in the high school regular season.

Rebels, Raiders battle in second RWB Bowl

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The second annual Red, White and Blue Bowl gets underway tonight to cap off the festivities of the day as the 25th annual event is held in Martin over the weekend.

Tonight the Battle of the Beavers, Part III will unfold as Allen Central visits Brackett Field in Wheelwright to face the South Floyd Raiders. The game will also be a very important district game to both ballclubs.

Mathematically, both teams still have a chance for a playoff berth, but it would take an unblemished record the rest of the way to accomplish it.

Last year's game at Allen Central wasn't that pretty, but both coaches and players are expected to make this one trouble free.

"If we can keep the fans out of it," said Allen Central coach Glenn Reeves. "I don't think there will be any problems from our players."

Coach Donnie Daniels echoed the same.

"I don't expect any of our kids to cause any problems," he said. "We've talked to our kids and told them what we expect."

"I have instructed my players to just be good sports about it and just play football," said Coach Reeves. "The teams will be okay if we can just keep the crowd out of it."

Keeping the fans away from the sidelines will be a key for this game. Brackett Field is open and has plenty of room for fans to gather. However, during home games at South Floyd this year, new principal Alan Osborne has roped off the sidelines, not permitting fans to congregate.

Both Mr. Osborne and Allen Central principal Jody Sword were to attend the other team's practice and speak with the players. Both wanted to discourage any confrontation between the two schools.

Allen Central enters tonight's game coming off their first win of the season (a 20-13 win at McCreary Central). The Rebels are 1-6 on the year and winless in district play.

For the second straight game, the Rebels will be without the services of their top receiver, Thomas Jenkins. Jenkins missed last Friday night's game due to a pulled hamstring.

"He will probably miss the next two games," said Coach Reeves.

Last week the Rebels tried to balance their offensive attack. They had gone primarily to the air to move the football until the McCreary Central game.

Now Coach Reeves and the Rebels are planning on mixing it up on offense. In a switch, Beau Tackett lead the Rebels ground game with 145 yards rushing last week. James Osborne has been moved back into the backfield and he responded with 52 yards on 10 carries. Josh Reeves had 37 yards on eight attempts.

Coach Reeves Scouting Report...

"They (South Floyd) like to run a wing T but will switch it on us," he said. "They will hit the perimeter and mix it up on us."

"The Slone kid is a good ball player and we have to watch him. (Adam) Wright is playing very good football for them right now. We will have to mix our offense up also. We will run the football as well as pass it. We have to in order to win."

Coach Reeves said that his team has

Key for Raiders: cut down on the mistakes

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Donnie Daniels' South Floyd Raiders remains the only team in the county without a victory.

Allen Central had been winless until this past Friday night when they won their first game of the season over McCreary Central.

Tonight, the Raiders will be looking for win number one as they host coach Glenn Reeves Rebels in the second annual Red, White and Blue Bowl.

Better termed, "The Battle of the Beavers."

South Floyd has found some pleasant play from halfback Adam Wright of late, and he is expected to team with Chad Slone out of the Raiders' backfield.

Coach Daniels has made a change in his offensive lineup by putting senior quarterback Justin Ray at safety and moving untested but much heralded freshman Nick Compton at quarterback.

Compton made his varsity debut as a starter last week against Nicholas County and responded with 103 yards passing, one touchdown pass and a two point conversion pass.

"He still has a lot to learn," said Coach Daniels. "He still has to learn all the plays. But he is going to be a good for us."

Coach Reeves concurred.

"He's a good kid," he said. "Later on he will help the program. He will be a good one. It will just take time."

"It was just like feeding him to the wolves at Nicholas County," said Coach Daniels. "But he got some time and he will be ready for tonight."

Coach Daniels Scouting Report...

"Allen Central likes to throw the football," said Coach Daniels. "They have two good receivers in (Thomas) Jenkins and (Kevin) Stumbo. (Jenkins will miss tonight's game).

"I like their young quarterback (Adam Coleman). He throws the ball very well. But I did see a lot of drops at Betsy Layne. He runs good with the football.

"We certainly will not be able to put eight or nine players on the line with him in there. If we do he will just spread it out and let it fly," he said.

Wright certainly has been the man in the middle for the Raiders. Wright scored two touchdowns and rushed for 159 yards versus Nicholas County.

Terrance Mullins seems to be finding the wide out position to his liking and Coach Daniels likes him there.

"He made two heck of a catches against Nicholas County," said Daniels.

Jarrold Compton and Kevin Johnson will lead the Raiders defense.

Key to a Raider win...

"We have to shut down our mistakes," said Coach Daniels. "If we make mistakes we can't win. We will need to play with emotion but under control. We can't let them get us out of our game plan."

had good practices since winning last week and his team is ready.

"They're fired up for it," he said. "A game like this one is 95 percent mental. It's a mental game."

Key to a Rebel win...

"We definitely will have to stop Chad Slone," said Coach Reeves. "He can get out wide on you and he has good speed. We also will have to beef up our interior play."

DeVries Named Executive Assistant

Brigid DeVries has been named Executive Assistant Commissioner of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, Commissioner Louis Stout announced today.

A native of Kentucky, DeVries has been a member of the KHSAA staff since 1979. She fills the position vacated by Stout when he was promoted to Commissioner on July 1, 1994.

Currently, DeVries supervises the sports of golf, volleyball, track, swimming and tennis. She also coordinates the trophy and awards program, novelty sales and the Boys' and Girls' Sweet Sixteen ticket program. In addition, she has served the National Federation Rules Committees in the sports of swimming, diving, gymnastics and volleyball. She is currently president of "Citizens For Sports Equity."

DeVries is a graduate of the University of Kentucky where she received her bachelor's and master's degrees. Prior to working for the KHSAA, she served on the track and swimming staffs at Ohio University. She was also the head men's and women's diving coach at the University of Kentucky from 1980-90.

GOLF

State Tournament

The 1994 State Golf Championships get underway this week in Hardin County as the Kentucky High School Athletic Association kicks off its fall championship action.

The girls' tee it up Oct. 11-12 at Elizabethtown Country Club. The boys' tournament will be held Oct. 13-14 at Lincoln Trail Country Club in Vine Grove, just north of Elizabethtown. Their practice round will be Wednesday.

Sharon Park of Henry Clay and Ashley Smith of Greenwood, both seniors, lead a host of top girls' talent. Park, runner-up in '93, shot a 75 to edge out Lexington Christian's Kelly Beth Simmons by two strokes in a playoff for the regional title this past week. Smith, a senior who won her fourth consecutive regional title, finished third in '93.

But they may be underdogs to Heath sophomore Jenny Throgmorton, who shot a blistering 71 in her regional last week - while double-bogeying No. 18. She heads the state tournament field with the lowest qualifying score. Overall, an unprecedented 11 girls shot under 80 to qualify for the state championships.

In boys' action, 1993 Mr. Golf Derrick Centers of Somerset returns after finishing third last season with a 74-78-152, finishing five strokes back. But the junior will have plenty of competition with Daviess County junior Jay Knight, a likely Mr. Golf selection for '94 after winning four regular-season tournaments this fall. Both Centers and Knight, along with Jace Bugg of Henderson County, all shot 70 to qualify for the state meet.

St. Xavier's team returns as two-time defending champs. No team has ever won three consecutive state titles in boys' golf since Male accomplished the feat with five straight from 1944-1948.

FOOTBALL

Undefeated

Just one team fell from the ranks of the undefeated last week, leaving 14 teams with perfect records heading into week eight of the football season. Valley lost to DuPont Manual 35-7 to fall to 6-1 on the season.

The perfect-record teams (all 7-0) are: Class A Beechwood, Williamsburg; Class 2A-Bullitt East, Danville and Russell; Class 3A - Bowling Green, Franklin-Simpson, Harrison County and Leslie County; Class 4A - Henderson County, Male, Iroquois, Boone County and Campbell County.

The highly anticipated Bowling Green-FranklinSimpson matchup is scheduled in Franklin for this Friday night. Bowling Green is coming off a 27-6 win over Central Hardin while Franklin-Simpson routed Ft.

Campbell 50-0.

State Mark

Chris Redman surpassed the state record for TD passes thrown in a season when he threw six scoring strikes against Pleasure Ridge Park in a 57-0 win for Male Friday night.

Redman now has thrown 34 TD passes this season, breaking the state mark of 32 set in 1992 by Tommy Owen of Marion County. Redman completed 20 of 27 passes for 327 yards and no interceptions.

For his career, Redman now has 79 TD passes. According to the National High School Sports Record Book, the senior is just seven TD strikes away from breaking into the top 10. The national elite are as follows:

Clifton Davis III (Sardis, MS) 1988-91	104
Chris Meidt (Minnesota, MN) 1984-87	101
John White (Metairie Park, LA) 1982-84	97
Sol Graves (Monroe, LA) 1983-85	95
Jeff George (Indianapolis, IN) 1983-85	94
Ron Cuccia (Los Angeles, CA) 1975-77	91
Dave Bowden (Lakeland, FL) 1967-70	91
Ben Gardow (Chippewa Falls, WI) 1986-89	87
Marty Crosby (Charleston, SC) 1970-73	87

Joe Ferguson (Shreveport, LA) 1966-68 86

Egan Again

Bullitt East quarterback Brandon Egan was 27 of 39 for 346 yards and six TDs as his squad breezed past Taylor County 58-6. The senior is now 114 of 177 for 1,518 yards and 31 TDs during seven games.

Hergott's Big Night

Beechwood quarterback Greg Hergott, who announced he will sign with the University of Kentucky, was four of six for 100 yards and three TDs, covering 45, 20 and 15 yards, as the Tigers defeated Dayton 44-14. He also scored one TD rushing. The senior, last week's state leader in passing efficiency, is now 36 of 58 for 1,051 yards and nine TDs this season. He's thrown just three interceptions all year and is averaging 29.2 yards per completion, tops in the state.

Best Start

Henderson County and Coach Tom Duffy are 7-0 to start the season after finishing 1993 with a 1-9 slate. The Colonels beat Hopkinsville 44-20 Friday night. It's the best start since 1981 for the Colonels, and, according to the Colonels' crack staff, Duffy's best start as a head coach, including his stints at both Danville and Highlands.

Women are four times as likely to have shoe-related foot problems as men, and for the 13 million women who suffer from corns and the 15 million who suffer from calluses, few shoes fit comfortably. "Tight-fitting shoes are painful for corn sufferers, but shoes with lots of extra room can also cause blisters and calluses," warns Dr. Robin Ross, podiatrist and Dr. Scholl's Foot Health Council member. "Finding shoes that fit comfortably and won't cause foot problems is difficult."

Dr. Ross offers this advice for women when purchasing shoes:

- Shop for shoes either in the afternoon or after walking for several hours since feet swell during the day.
- Measure both feet and buy shoes to fit the larger foot.
- Walk around the store to be sure shoes fit properly.
- Avoid shoes that require "breaking-in."
- Avoid shoes with little/no padding.

If you have already developed foot problems from shoes that aren't a perfect fit, Ross recommends cushions and corn/callus removers like those offered by Dr. Scholl's. Dr. Scholl's new Advanced Pain Relief line features Cushlin', a revolutionary transparent material that delivers maximum comfort and safe treatment of corns and calluses.
