Project money woes talked in closed session

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A closed session discussion by Floyd County School Board members Monday concerning financing for school construction projects currently underway may have violated the Kentucky Open Meeting Laws.

School superintendent Steve Towler announced that the board was going into a closed session to discuss land acquisition and litigation, acceptable provisions under the law for a closed-door session.

After a 45-minute closed session, it was revealed that the board apparently discussed the district's ability to finance the Prestonsburg High School renovation and Betsy Layne Middle School projects, and the construction of athletic fields at South Floyd and Prestonsburg High Schools.

There is no provision under open meeting laws for discussing financial planning in private.

Information supplied to board members indicates that the state Department of Education has put a hold on the financing plan for the Prestonsburg renovation project. The board needs to raise an additional $500,000 in cash for the Prestonsburg project to reduce the amount of local bonding required for the $5.5 million renovation.

One option proposed by the district administration to get the additional monies is to take $100,000 from the district's capital construction account; use a $47,000 reimbursement from Lexington Fire Protection for the Duff Elementary project; $40,500 in proceeds from the sale of the old Wayland School; an estimated $205,000 in extra funds in the Duff Elementary project; and an estimated $363,500 balance in the Adams Middle School project account.

Only part of the funds in the Duff and Adams accounts may be available to be used to raise the additional half-million dollars needed. An audit of the construction accounts must be done first to determine what part of any remaining funds have been obligated.

Local school officials must get approval from the state's School Facility Construction Commission and the Department of Facilities Management to use any excess funds in the Adams and Duff projects.

Discussion may have crossed law on personnel

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Two Floyd County school board members may have violated their oaths of office regarding personnel issues Monday during a discussion on school secretaries.

Board member Eddie Patton and chairman Ray Brackett mentioned that an individual secretary has done an excellent job and should be moved into an office manager's position.

Patton opened the discussion saying that a secretary employed for at least 15 years at a school should be "grandfathered" into the office manager position.

Board member Dolores Smith commented to Patton that she thought the board had agreed to let schools with councils fill the office manager positions.

Patton replied that the board should make the decision "to do this for somebody who has got 15 years experience this one time and then let councils decide."

Smith asked why the board should take the action now and Patton responded, "because some people are being done dirty and someone ought to stand up for them."

Chairman Brackett said that he would go along with Patton's motion if it didn't call for the board to rescind a previous order that school councils fill those positions.

"I know a lady involved that has done an outstanding job," Brackett said. "I tried to express that feeling when we voted on it last month."

Patton then made a motion for the action to apply only to Martin Elementary.

Martin school secretary Mary Baldrige addressed the board earlier Monday during the public com-

Four killed, trucker injured in crash

Four die when car, truck hit on Rt. 23

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Four elderly people from Adair County were killed Monday afternoon in a two-vehicle crash at the intersection of U.S. 23 and KY 1428 at the entrance to Cliff near Prestonsburg.

A vehicle driven by Marvin E. Appleby, 69, of Glens Fork, apparently pulled into the path of a coal truck driven by Terry Johnson, 40, of Kite in Knott County.

Appleby, his wife, Rosalyn Appleby, 68, and Calvin Grant, 70, and his wife, Clarice, 68, also of Glens Fork, were pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County deputy coroner Buford Smith.

Johnson, who was ejected from his truck which plunged down a steep embankment, was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center and was later flown to the U.K. Medical Center in Lexington. Johnson was listed in fair condition Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the Prestonsburg Fire Department administered first aid to Johnson and transported him up the embankment.

Prestonsburg policeman Mack Stewart reported that Appleby's vehicle was attempting to turn left from KY 1428 onto U.S. 23 when the accident occurred. Johnson was traveling northbound.

Prestonsburg police sergeant Sue Blackburn reported that glare from the sun may have contributed to the accident.

Monday's accident was the second fatal crash at that intersection within the last three weeks.

All four of the victims had to be extricated from the Appleby vehicle by the Prestonsburg Fire Department using the Jaws of Life. Occupants of both vehicles were wearing seat belts.

The southbound lane of U.S. 23 was closed for approximately six hours Monday and reopened just before midnight. The wreck happened at approximately 5:45 p.m.

Agreement with state may erase $4.5 million in fines

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Floyd County Solid Waste Inc. ratified an agreement Monday night that could keep it from sinking $4.5 million deeper in debt and help resolve legal action against it by the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet.

The state filed the legal action in October 1993 and listed numerous violations against the Floyd County Waste System, including failure to maintain the holding area of the landfill; failure to pay a $10,000 performance penalty; and failure to submit a closure plan.

Fines and penalties on the violations ranged from $5,000 to $10,000 for each violation. Since the filing, the fines and violations have grown to tally about $4.5 million, said Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond.

If the county complies with the agreement it ratified Monday, it will not have to pay the fines, Hammond said.

"The Fiscal Court and the newly-appointed solid waste board need to be applauded (for resolving this issue)," Hammond said. "They have done an excellent job."

"[W]e're not out of the financial woods yet but at least we have one less attack on the county's budget and general fund to deprive the citizens of Floyd County of tax dollars and service," the county attorney said.

In its agreed order with the state, Floyd County Solid Waste Inc. resolved to comply with remedial measures recommended by the state. The county waste system completed two of the required measures, the removal of all waste from a temporary wasting site and the grading and reseeding of the site.

The remedial measures also stipulate that the county waste system must complete installation of groundwater monitoring wells and submit a closure plan for the Phase I (old) landfill. At Monday night's meeting,

Jail may await non-payers under trash law proposal

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Floyd Countians could serve jail time and pay a fine for nonpayment of their garbage bill if a proposed ordinance approved by Floyd County Solid Waste Inc. is passed by the Floyd County Fiscal Court.

Members of the Floyd County Solid Waste Board at its meeting Friday directed county attorney Jim Hammond to include in a proposed ordinance wording that will aid Rumpke in its collection of delinquent garbage bills by penalizing customers who fail to pay their bills.

Board members agreed to make failure to comply with payment of the mandatory garbage collection punishable by a jail term and a fine. Those customers who don't pay their bills can be incarcerated in the county jail for up to 90 days and pay up to $500 in fines. The judge or jury who presides on the case can suspend the fine if the customer pays their bill and keeps it up to date, Hammond explained to the board members.

"The judge has the final say so," board member Darrell Patton said. "I feel good about that."

"You can burn it; you can throw it in the creek, but you're still going to pay the bill," Hammond said. "Failure to pay the bill is a failure to participate in the collection system. It's a crime against the citizens of Floyd County and it's a crime against the environment."

Ron Henke, an employee of Rumpke, the garbage collection company under contract with the county,

Trick or treat on Halloween

Safe Trick or Trick night will be held Sunday, October 30, at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn.

The event, which is sponsored by the Prestonsburg Rotary Club and the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn, begins at 3 p.m.

Trick or Treat in the county and the city of Prestonsburg will be observed on October 31, between the hours of 6 and 8 p.m.

No one age 12 and older will be permitted to wear a mask in public.

Stats say girls performing better on performance tests

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Test scores were up this year in Floyd County schools, but officials are looking for clues to explain why female students outscored their male counterparts.

At Monday's school board meeting, Phil Paige, director of assessment for the district, reported that over a three-year testing period females' scores exceeded male students scores by 18 percent in writing skills.

Paige reported that efforts will be made to determine why male students scored lower and if the same academic expectations exist for both sexes.

Board member Eddie Patton said he was concerned that male students may not be getting the same academic opportunities as female students.

Paige commented that improvements need to be made in writing conferencing between students and teachers, particularly with fourth grade male students.

Patton also asked Paige if he agreed with recent comments by state school board member Tom Gish of Whitesburg, that Kentucky's Education Reform Act was not helping Eastern Kentucky students catch up academically with other areas of the state. Patton particularly wanted to know how Floyd County's test scores compared with scores in other areas of the state.

Paige said that he disagreed with Gish's statement in relation to improvements across the state. Paige added that he would agree with Gish if Floyd County was compared to Woodford County "in terms of absolutes."

A comparison of Floyd County's scores will be made with other schools in the region and Paige will present that report to the board in November.

In other action Monday:
• The board voted to keep the 1994 motor vehicle tax rate the same as last year, which is 55.4 cents per $100 valuation.

• Operations Chief Jim Osborne reported that both the South Floyd Gym and the Betsy Layne classroom

Money

If the board commits the additional $500,000 to the Prestonsburg renovation, the district will be limited on the amount of land that can be purchased for additional projects.

On the Betsy Layne Middle School project, which was reportedly discussed in Monday's closed session, the board has sent a cost estimate for the site purchase to state officials.

The board should only get land parcels under contract at this point and should not make any immediate purchase of sites since the district is not ready to proceed with any construction on the projects, according to information provided to the board.

The board could also seek to obtain one-year purchase options from landowners for property being considered in order to raise the additional money.

Another route the board could take, if options cannot be obtained, is to start condemnation proceedings.

The Betsy Layne Middle School site, which has previously been identified as the "Y Site," could cost more than $400,000 to acquire. Since the acquisition costs are expected to exceed 10 percent of the total project cost, the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education must approve the site purchase.

Because the Betsy Layne site has been identified and a cost estimate has been submitted, it appears that it does not meet the criteria for a closed session discussion.

Under the provisions for conducting a closed session in relation to site acquisitions, KRS 61.810 (b) says "deliberations on the future acquisition or sale of real property by a public agency, but only when publicity would be likely to affect the value of a specific piece of property to be acquired for public use or sold by a public agency."

Prior to going into closed session, members of the media asked the board to clarify if the Betsy Layne Middle School project would be discussed.

Board chairman Ray Brackett replied, "I don't know what we'll discuss."

The Open Meetings Law requires that a public agency announce the general nature of business to be discussed behind closed doors and no other matters than those announced can be discussed.

No action was taken in open session on the closed-door discussions.

ment session asking that school bookkeepers/secretaries be given salary increases because they perform a host of duties at a school. She said that entry level clerks in the central office were paid more than school bookkeepers.

Brackett did not say if he was referring to the same individual that Patton mentioned.

Patton's first motion died for lack of a second. Patton then revised his motion that all secretaries with 15 years experience be grandfathered in as office managers.

Brackett seconded Patton's motion, but the issue failed in a 2-2 tie with board member Brent Clark abstaining from voting. Board members Smith and Phyllis Honshell voted against it.

KRS 160.170, the oath for school board members, says in part that a board member "will not in any way influence the hiring or appointment of district employees..."

When contacted Tuesday, board attorney Cliff Latta would not elaborate on the issue.

At Monday's meeting, Honshell asked superintendent Steve Towler to prepare a report on the hourly wages of all the people affected by the issue to see if the board needs to make an adjustment for equity.

Towler is expected to present the report at the November board meeting.

Last week we talked about my 20 years of experience practicing law before I became a Circuit Judge. I mentioned three outstanding lawyers that I worked with in the early years (7 years before my opponent became a lawyer). Those three men taught me about practicing law, but more than that they taught me about people. We never represented companies, we always represented working people, mostly those who had suffered some type of injury and needed help with their benefits. When you represent a man who has been hurt in the mines or has black lung, you watch him suffer through the legal process, sometimes barely feeding his family while he waits.

You learn two lessons from these men. The first is that justice delayed is justice denied. Every man is entitled to a fair and speedy trial, without long court delays. I am working hard as your Circuit Judge to keep our court system moving so that every man and woman can have their day in court.

The second lesson was maybe the most important, and that was to have compassion for your fellow man. Every person who comes to court has some type of trouble in his or her life. A good Judge will listen to their problems and try to help solve them within the limits of the law.

As your Circuit Judge, I will treat you with dignity and respect when you are in the courtroom, no matter what walk of life you come from and it doesn't matter how many votes are in your family or who you voted for.

In my first ad several months ago I invited you to come to the court room and see for yourself how I treat people, the invitation is still open.

Local family doctor attends medical meeting in Boston

Dr. Ira B. Potter attended the 46th Annual Scientific Assembly of the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP) in Boston, Massachusetts. The meeting was held September 22-25. More than 5,000 family physicians from around the country attended the continuing medical education meeting.

The local physician heard renowned speakers discuss up-to-the-minute health care topics. Dr. Potter also had an opportunity to attend 20 separate educational forums covering hundreds of health care topics designed to keep family physicians abreast of the latest advances in medicine. More than 84,000 seats were available making this the largest medical educational meeting ever held for family physicians.

Subjects covered in this four-day scientific session were of immediate interest to family doctors both in their everyday practices and in their continual endeavors to provide optimum health care for their patients. Some of this year's topics included: domestic violence, respiratory infections in children, hormone replacement therapy and breast cancer, urgent eye problems, chemical dependency and many others.

Headquartered in Kansas City, Missouri, the AAFP is the national association of family doctors representing more than 79,000 family physicians, family practice residents and medical students. It was the pioneer among medical organizations to require its members to complete 150 hours of mandatory continuing medical education every three years.

Mr. Rogers' neighborhood

by Scott Perry

Welcome to Mr. Rogers' neighborhood.

Can you say "vote Republican?"

Didn't think so.

Such words aren't spoken in polite company in Floyd County.

Whether you can say them or not, we can think of a few million reasons for using them when election time rolls around.

And just about every reason has a dollar sign attached.

Mr. Rogers is, in this case, Congressman Rogers.

You probably know him as "Hal."

He's a Republican, and he's running for re-election in Kentucky's 5th Congressional District.

That district includes Floyd County, which is, to put it mildly, predominantly Democratic in voter registration.

We don't need to tell you that.

You know it.

But so does Hal Rogers.

Despite that fact and the historical precedence which suggests his candidacy has a snowball's chance in H-E-double toothpicks of earning a plurality among Floyd voters, Hal has been a pal to Floyd County.

He has secured three million bucks for the development of the Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg and is currently looking at ways to restore the pool at Wheelwright.

He has listened to and acted on the needs of Floyd County constituents without regard to their political affiliation.

He is also an influential member of the U.S. House of Representative's Appropriations Committee, which is arguably the most powerful committee of them all.

The most difficult question we can ask about Rogers' candidacy is: Why not?

He's intelligent, he's influential, and he's effective.

And, he's earned our support. Vote for Hal.

He's our pal.

Property rights need to be recognized

Editor:

We are in an age of people not respecting the property of others and it just seems to be a game.

Those who fail to recognize the property rights of others deserve to be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. This certainly holds true for those persons responsible for removing the locks on gates and causing damage to my property.

I do not know the ages of those doing this, but surely the cost of the all-terrain vehicles are borne by someone. Whomever you are can look forward to being caught and not only bearing the responsibility of illegal acts, but also you are responsible for damage you are doing to my property.

I certainly do not pay taxes on my property to provide recreation for a bunch of criminals. The area is very dangerous and someone could be hurt, so I intend to pursue you're capture to the utmost with the resources I may have.

It is not a game; there are no rules and I will stop you, whoever you are. I will not do as you are doing and break the law, but I will use the law to break you.

The hollow I live on at Printer has been damaged by mining companies and gas companies who are trying to both reclaim the property and safeguard the regrowth of vegetation and this cannot be done if rogues continue to endanger its existence on land that is fully posted.

Credit where credit is due!

Editor:

I'm writing in response to an article entitled "Dewey Lake: Reflections of the Past." This article appeared in the June 29th, 1994 issue of your paper. This article was listed as being written by Ron Vanover, recreation director at Jenny Wiley State Park.

This article might appear familiar to any of your readers who purchased a Floyd County History Book during the Bicentennial year of our state in 1992.

You see, while I was employed by the Commonwealth as the Recreation Supervisor at Jenny Wiley State Park.

I compiled a history of Jenny Wiley State Park to be published in this history book.

The article, that appeared in your paper which had Mr. Vanover listed as the author, is basically the same story I compiled for the history book. There have been some minor changes in the text, a few words changed here and there, but basically, verbatim wise, it is the same article I compiled.

Notice I said I compiled the article, unlike Mr. Vanover who seems to have no problem plagiarizing some one else's work, I did not name my article as being "by me," I had the common courtesy to name my article as being compiled by me.

Even though I did the research and put it all together and created some of the text myself (including some Mr. Vanover used), I felt it fair to list mine in a proper manner.

Any of your readers who purchased a Floyd County History Book can look up the History of Jenny Wiley State Park and compare it to the June 29th article and judge for themselves.

When I left my position at Jenny Wiley for a position with a local Federal agency, I left Mr. Vanover a copy of my article in the files. I did not mind him using it for park purposes, but I never dreamed he would plagiarize it and publish it as his own.

When Mr. Vanover took the position, I helped him anyway I could by answering questions on the telephone and going over, on my own time or my new agencies, (they were good enough to allow me to do this) to the state park and helping him with questions and concerns he had about his new position. It just goes to show you that you never really know, do you? To borrow a quote from that classic song of the past, "they're smiling in your face."

Editor's note: In his Works Cited list, Ron Vanover listed Johnny Martin's compilation that was printed in the History of Floyd County, 1991. He also listed as his sources, Spindletop Research, The Kentucky Encyclopedia, and an overview of The Story of Jenny Wiley. Due to editorial space, the Floyd County Times does not print Works Cited lists.

Kim explains her comments

Editor:
Today, October 17, I received a telephone call from the publisher/ editor of this newspaper.

It seems he had received several telephone calls from Pike County citizens over last week's column, regarding the dirt-throwing incident at the AMS football game.

I was told these callers were refuting my column and that they also had a film of the game to prove it.

I asked which part they refuted, and I was told quote, unquote, "All of it!" However, after further investigation, it appears that no one—even the disgruntled callers, is disputing the ultimate fact—that a Pikeville player deliberately threw dirt into the eyes of an AMS player. The controversy stems from what occurred after this reprehensible act.

I learned after the column hit the streets that a fifteen yard penalty was apparently called. I did not see either team, Adams or Pikeville, move 15 yards in any direction after the incident.

If I had, I would have written so. I did not see it. I was also told that the team member who threw dirt in our team member's eyes was indeed, removed from the game.

Again, if he was removed, I did not see it. However, I saw his number on his jersey still playing later in the game.

I made several attempts to contact those who objected to my column as requested. All I got was a busy signal.

I was also told a call of improper conduct was made, but that the offending team member was allowed to continue to play.

So, I hereby correct those portions of last week's column, which stated that no punishment was given. But, I stand by my first impression which was what I saw and still do not believe what was done was appropriately reprimanded.

To those who saw the 15-yard penalty called, and the improper conduct call, I do apologize—I did not see those calls!

I do not write lies and have been taught to try and make my wrongs right, which is why I'm writing this letter to the editor. Like I said, I did not see those calls made by the refs but I did hear they were called. For that I do apologize. This column, as all of my columns, contains my opinions and viewpoints and I stand behind my personal opinion that the blatant behavior of the Pikeville player was not sufficiently punished.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Ol' Ma Nature is putting on her annual fall spectacular, giving us "hillbillies" rare but extra special bragging rights.

The once-a-year explosion of color gives new meaning to the idiom suggesting "you can't see the forest for the trees."

Can't beat the timing, either.

The trees are reaching their color-change peak just ahead of October 30, the date that marks the end of Daylight Savings Time and the beginning of the "dark ages," when nightfall and lunch-time aren't too far separated.

Enjoy the show while it lasts.

There is, of course, another show coming soon since November is nearly upon us.

Election day approaches.

Odds are that fewer than half of the people entitled to vote will exercise their rights, making a mockery once again of the constitutional mandate of majority rule.

If you can't think of any good reason to go to the polls November 8, here's one you may use free of charge.

If you don't vote, you have no right to gripe about the government you get.

Now if there's one talent all Americans share, it's the ability to belt out the "chin music" when they're so inclined.

Why risk losing your seat in the choir?

Got an eye-opening course on how to make a difference in a highly competitive business world over the weekend while visiting Kansas City, Missouri, where they put real emphasis on service with a smile.

Everywhere we ventured during our trip...from the hotels to the restaurants and shops...folks made us feel as if our satisfaction was the most important service they could provide.

Sure, they took our money, but darned if they didn't make you feel good about spending it with them.

Take our wallet...please.

Maybe they were all infected with some new strain of virus that causes uncontrollable friendliness.

Wonder if it's catching?

Progress has its price and as we've seen in the last few weeks the cost can be tragic.

In the past week, six people have died in mishaps on relatively new sections of Route 23 in Floyd and Lawrence counties. Another death was recorded at the same Floyd County intersection just three weeks ago, and more than a half dozen others have died in Lawrence County since the Route 23 Louisa bypass opened a few years back. We've lost count of the fatalities recorded at the Floyd County intersection of new Route 23 and old Route 23 near East Point.

We can't say why these accidents happened but we can assume they won't be the last.

Another segment of new Route 23, with more new intersections, will open in the near future in Johnson County.

Road construction in the Eastern Kentucky mountains has always been expensive.

Who could have imagined, though, that the price tag would include so many lives?

told the board that about 37 percent of 14,000 accounts is delinquent.

"If Rumpke is losing 37 percent of collection, something's got to give," board member Darrell Patton said.

"If we don't get in compliance with Rumpke in our contract, then Rumpke is not going to be here to pick it (the garbage) up for us," Hammond said.

Hammond explained that the 14,000 figure were households that had been identified as usable structures in Floyd County by the 911 system.

Henke said Rumpke was only going to bill occupied structures. He also asked the board to consider making landlords/property owners responsible for renters who had not paid their garbage bills, and to classify rental property as a business.

Board members disagreed with the proposal and several discussions ensued that caused the chairman to bang his hand on the table and call the meeting back to order.

"Is it right, if I charge a guy $200 for rent and he beats me out of it, to make me pay for his garbage bill too?" board member David Layne, who owns rental property asked Henke.

Property owner Ron Frasure also expressed his disapproval of the Henke's request at the meeting. "What if John Doe rents my trailer. He stays two weeks. I'm stuck with his garbage bill and no way to collect it," he said.

"I'm not for paying somebody else's garbage bill," Layne said.

Henke explained that one customer who pays her rent through HUD doesn't have a job and she told him she didn't know how she could pay her garbage bill.

"She could get out and get a job," Layne said. "A lot of people on HUD can work."

Hammond advised the members to leave the responsibility of the bill in the hands of the occupant of the building.

"We don't have to be everything now. We have to solve some problems now. We can come back and add things," Hammond said.

Board member Darrell Patton made a motion to set up a line of communication between landlords/property owners and Rumpke. Landlords must submit in writing an up-to-date address of the renter, a general description of the property location and the complete mailing address of the renter to Rumpke within 15 days of change in the renter, coming and going. The motion will be drafted into the ordinance.

In other business at the meeting, board members told representatives of Floyd Countians In Action that it would take no action on a request by Medisin at its last meeting to change an ordinance that limits burning of medical waste by Medisin.

Board members had asked Medisin to bring statistics backing up its request for the increased tonnage limit to the October meeting, but Medisin representatives did not comply with the request. Board members also told Floyd Countians In Action that any action to increase Medisin's limit must first come through the Floyd County Solid Waste Inc. and then to the Floyd County Fiscal Court.

Also at the meeting, the members discussed a letter from Kenvirons regarding outstanding invoices totaling approximately $122,000. Kenvirons told the board in the letter that $105,033.34 of that amount represented out-of-pocket costs and was the least amount the company could accept for the work it had done to develop a groundwater monitoring plan, the installation and development of the monitoring wells and the sampling and analyses of the wells.

Also discussed at the meeting was the staffing the Floyd County Solid Waste office. Board chairman Mike Vance will present the proposal to the Floyd County Fiscal Court Friday.

Other business included the employment termination of secretary Debbie Hamilton on October 31 and a special meeting that will be held October 24 at 6 p.m.

addition construction projects were progressing ahead of schedule. Superintendent Steve Towler said that from December 9-11, a dedication ceremony and open house will be held at South Floyd High School.

Board members expressed concern over the lack of detailed information in individual school planning documents. The board asked that several schools be asked to resubmit plans with additional information.

The board agreed to increase the price of the Floyd County yearbook from $14 to $15.

The board nixed a proposal to share the cost of a primary program resource teacher with the Department of Education. Board members said that there has been too much dipping into the district's contingency fund, which is how the district would pay their part of the cost.

The board voted to hire the firm of Adams, Frazier and Anderson as consulting engineers on the Allen Central heat/air conditioning repair project. Towler told board members that the heating and cooling system at the high school has not worked properly since it was installed about 20 years ago.

The board approved bid specifications for science equipment to be bought for the district's four high schools.

Certified personnel hirings-Phyllis Grace Scott, early childhood specialist and Tonia Mullins, sixth grade language arts at Adams Middle School.

Classified personnel hirings-Stephanie Jackson, cafeteria manager at South Floyd High School; Tonja Little, part-time teacher aide at Allen Elementary; Linda Music, data entry clerk; Ralph Goble, general maintenance; Brenda Shepherd, special education aide at Clark Elementary; and Sandra Akers, special education aide at South Floyd High School.

Transfers-Priscilla Chaffins from teacher aide at Clark Elementary to library aide at Clark and Teresa Crager from special education aide at Clark to primary aide at Clark.

Leaves of absence-Deborah G. Stumbo, home economics teacher at Adams Middle School.

Higher cost estimates pose no problems for Mt. Arts Center

Kit Childers
Contributing Writer

Each meeting of the Prestonsburg-Floyd County Public Properties Corporation brings the vision of a Mountain Arts Center and entertainment complex closer to reality.

At Tuesday's meeting of the property corporation, Tim Murphy, the architectural partner of Sherman-Carter-Barnhart in charge of the project, presented the board with an estimation of construction costs for the center. The estimation is around $5.2 million and is based upon the current construction market.

With this estimation the approximate figure of the complex rises to near $7 million including land costs, off-site development and interest on loans. That figure exceeds the amount of funds raised by the Kentucky Opry Board.

Paul P. Hughes, chairman of the Kentucky Opry Board of Directors, reported that only $6.3 million has been raised. Hughes said he does not foresee a problem with raising $700,000 as long as costs don't continue rising above $7 million.

Before the bidding process can begin, approval of the plan must be received from the Farmer Home Administration (FHA). The FHA will supply a $2 million loan to the project upon approval which is expected soon. The board hopes the bidding process will begin the first week of November with all bids being received and opened during the last week of the month. A contractor should be selected after a five-day review.

Progress is still being made as bids were opened at the meeting for landscaping and drainage of the complex site. Board chairman O. Sam Blankenship opened the five bids which had met the deadline. The bids ranged from $449,000 to $202,300 with Ooten Coal Company delivering the lowest. The board then authorized Blankenship to begin negotiations with the company.

Also on hand at the meeting was Porter Dailey, representing Morehead State University. Morehead is building a new Big Sandy Campus next to the arts center. There was concern last week over MSU's involvement because they lost 3/10 of an acre when the art center had to be moved farther from the Mountain Parkway which plans to expand to four lanes. Dailey confirmed that there is no problem and that MSU is as enthusiastic as ever. The university is working on funding and has projected that the new campus will open in the Fall of 1996.

Leukemia Society's residential campaign is now in progress

The Kentucky Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America, Inc.'s residential campaign is in progress.

Callers from the Leukemia Society office have been calling to recruit marchers who will raise funds in their neighborhood. Funds from this march go directly into research that have produced significant results. In 1960 a child with leukemia had a 4 percent chance to live, but now, a child stricken with this disease has a 73 percent chance to survive.

The funds collected are helping save lives. The campaign is in progress now and the society urgently needs help from all the marchers who have agreed to collect funds in their neighborhood. If the society is able to reach its campaign goal, it will be able to continue the fight against leukemia and all malignant blood diseases. Take time out from your busy schedule to give the Leukemia Society and the over 500 patients in the state of Kentucky that it serves a helping hand. If you have any questions, contact the society at 1-800-955-2566.

the solid waste board accepted an estimate by Kenvirons to prepare a closure plan for the Floyd County landfill. The engineering estimate, which includes aerial photography required by the state, totals $15,900.

The county has 120 days from the effective date of the agreed order to submit the closure plan. If the county receives a Notice of Deficiency from the cabinet regarding the closure plan, the Floyd County waste board must respond within 30 days. If the county receives more than three notices, it must pay a performance penalty of $500 for each day exceeding 30 days of its receipt of the notice.

If the closure plan is approved by the state, the county must begin implementation of the closure plan within 21 days of the cabinet approval.

Under the remedial measures, the county must also begin cleanup of seven open dumps by December and implement a program to prevent open dumps. The waste board must also implement an education program within six months of the signed order and also distribute litter bags and litter books to all children, grades kindergarten through twelfth grade in all Floyd County public schools.

The Floyd County waste board must also develop a recycling and waste reduction program that meets the cabinet's approval within 60 days of the signed agreed order.

If Floyd County does not comply with requirements in the agreed order, it must pay a $25,000 penalty within 15 days of mailing of written notice from the cabinet and reinstatement of its $4.5 million in fines.

Floyd County Solid Waste Inc. will ask the county to ratify the agreement at the fiscal court meeting Friday. The agreement goes into effect when it is signed by Phillip Shepherd, secretary of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet or representative.

WalkAmerica nets $31,000

The March of Dimes held its most successful Pikeville WalkAmerica on October 8, raising $31,481.68 for the Eastern Kentucky Goldenrod Division.

Nearly 400 people from Pike and surrounding counties joined forces by forming teams of family members, friends and coworkers to raise money for healthier babies.

Judy Robinson formed a team with five of her coworkers from the offices of Drs. R. V. and Jyothi Mettu and personally raised $1,335. "I had a personal experience with losing a child, so I decided I would do something to help other children," she said.

Judy Jenkins, March of Dimes Goldenrod Division director said that the amount raised represents the generosity of the citizens of Pike County. She also said that the great outcome is due to the wonderful committee that worked on the Pikeville event.

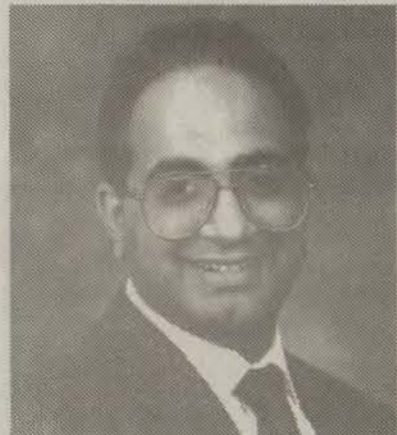

Funds from WalkAmerica will be used to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects and infant mortality. The March of Dimes accomplishes this mission through programs of community service, advocacy, research, education and direct grants.

Last year, the event raised $20,000.

This year, 35 teams from area businesses and community organizations participated in the event. Top money-raising teams were Pikeville Wal-Mart raising $3,713, Pikeville Methodist Hospital raising $3,040, Drs. R.V. and Jyothi Mettu office raising $2,849, Prestonsburg Wal-Mart raising $2,745 and Big Sandy Board of Realtors raising $2,191.

Prizes were awarded to persons based on the amount of money they raised individually. Walkers were invited to a celebration picnic after the walk at Pikeville National Bank and door prizes were awarded.

EKU schedules "open house" in Prestonsburg October 27

Prospective college students and their parents in Floyd County will have a chance to learn more about college life at Eastern Kentucky University on Thursday, October 27, during EKV's Open House in Prestonsburg.

The informal event, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, will give students and their parents an opportunity to talk to representatives from all nine academic colleges and staff members from EKV's admissions, housing and financial aid offices.

"In seeking information upon which to base such an important decision, high school students are naturally concerned about requirements, course of study, social and recreational opportunities, living and study facilities, costs and career decisions," said Les Grigsby, director of admissions. "Our open house will answer many of those questions."

As of last fall, 142 students from

Floyd County were enrolled at EKV, and 344 Floyd County residents were EKV alumni.

Grigsby said that many prospective students and their parents are surprised to learn that about 75 percent of EKV students receive some type of financial assistance. The average annual award is about $2,600.

"Students tell us this information is important in helping them make a college choice," Grigsby said.

For more information about EKV's Open House in Prestonsburg, contact EKV's Division of Admissions at (606) 622-2106.

The United Methodist Church of Wheelwright will celebrate the 70th anniversary of the dedication of the church on October 23, 1994.

The church would like to invite everyone to special services on that day. If you are a former resident of Wheelwright or attended the church at any time, we especially welcome you. After morning service, we will have a "dinner on the ground."

Known originally as the "Son Bowe Chapel," the church was built in 1922 and used for two years before its formal dedication. The church was furnished by several firms doing business with Elkhorn Coal Company at that time. In later years, the church was also known as the Community Church.

While the church is not an old one, as many are, it does have a glorious heritage and figured closely in the development of Wheelwright.

Red, White and Blue car show: best ever

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Seventh Annual Trans Financial Red, White and Blue Car Show (formerly First Guaranty Bank) had the most cars ever, the largest crowd ever, the best cars ever and the best weather ever.

That being so, then this past Saturday's show, part of the patriotic celebration that takes place in Martin annually, had to be termed "the best show ever."

The bank's parking lot was full to capacity to the point where no more show cars could be parked. The cars from all over had been driven by their owners to Martin, and the crowd started gathering early at the show to take advantage of the excellent weather.

"Everything went well," said show director Tina Mills. "We had perfect weather and it was just a good show."

Cars entering the show numbered 130, the most for the show in the seven years. Last year's winner of the Best of Show, David Smith, had sold his prize-winning car and, thus, did not enter the show.

The Best of Show this year went to Carroll Rowsey of Harrodsburg for his 1957 Chevy. Rowsey took home a $1,000 savings bond for his effort.

Best Modified went to Joe Salyers of Bear Branch for his 1968 Chevy Camaro. His son, Joey Salyers, won the Best Model Car contest with his model of a 1965 Chevy Corvette.

Buddy Adkins of Eastern took home the award for Best Chevy. Adkins entered his 1970 Chevy Chevelle that was in top-notch condition. The Best Ford award was won by Prestonsburg's Travis Miller for his 1965 Mustang.

A car that was everyone's favorite was a 1936 Chevy Coupe, which won Best Interior, owned by Glennis Combs of Jackson.

A boat engine owned by Larry Jones of McDowell won the Best Engine Award for the second year in a row.

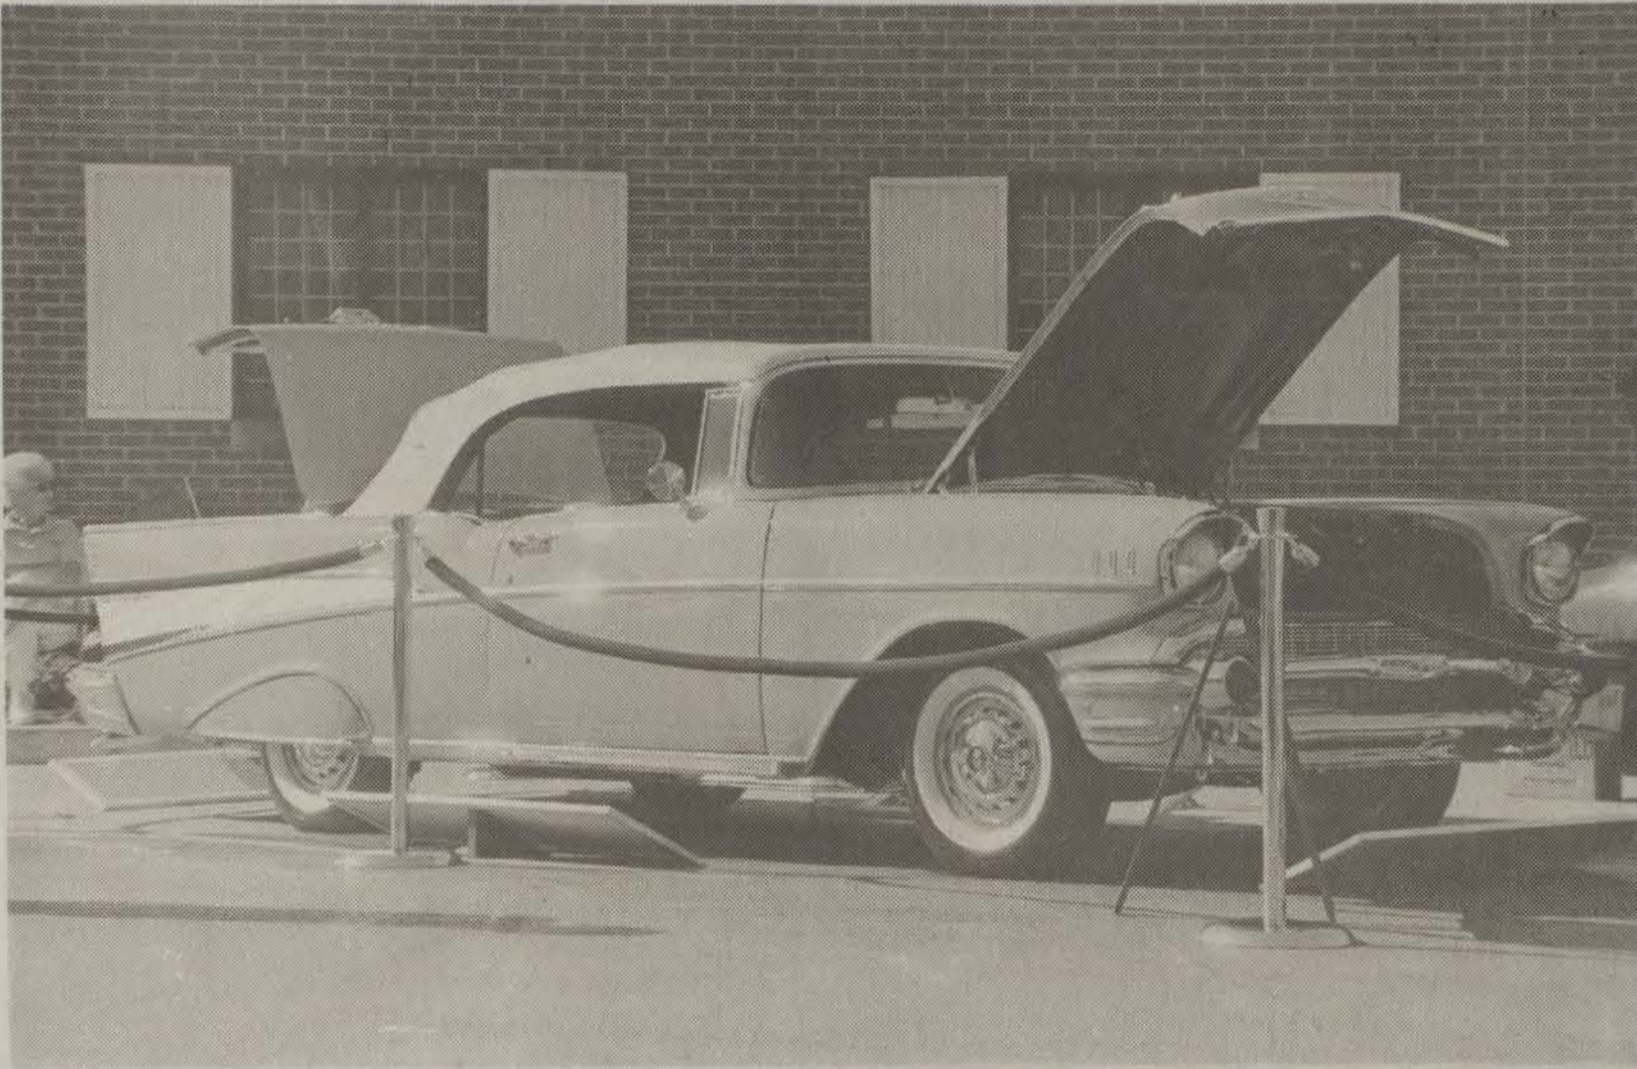

When it came to best paint, the judges had to have a difficult time making their decision. But when it was all done, "Papa" Joe Sandlin of Manchester took home the Best Paint with his 1933 Chevy four-door Master. And it was super.

Brad Goble of Inez found his trip to Martin worthwhile. His 1981 Chevy truck took home the Best Truck award.

The Best Display also went back

Best of Show!

This 1957 Chevy, owned by Carroll Rowsey of Harrodsburg, took home the top award at the Trans Financial Bank Red, White and Blue car show this past Saturday. The '57 Chevy has long been a popular car with car enthusiasts. Over 130 cars were entered in this year's show, the largest number of entries since the event was first held seven years ago. ## Prestonsburg edges Sheldon Clark 28-25 as Cardinals miss field goal in final 12 seconds

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Halloween!
It's just on the horizon but already the Sheldon Clark Cardinals will be haunted by a field goal attempt that missed (?) against Prestonsburg last Friday night.

It was a very sober Jim Matney, Cardinals head coach, who could not believe what he had just witnessed.

When you talk of momentum shifts, you have to mention the last 1:54 of the first half and the entire second half to explain why the Cardinals were upset when their field goal attempt was ruled wide left.

Second place in the district standings was on the line for both ballclubs.

Sheldon Clark was pumped up when the momentum swung from Prestonsburg to the Cardinals. Prestonsburg had built what appeared to be a very comfortable 25-6 lead as the first half came to a close.

But the momentum turned when Mike Farron took a Prestonsburg kickoff and returned it untouched 80 yards for a touchdown. The score came 11 seconds after Jon Morris had scored on a 15-yard run to give the Blackcats a 25-6 lead. Farron's TD made it a 25-12 game at the half.

The Cardinals maintained the momentum in the second half as Prestonsburg struggled offensively. Jon Morris was sensational in the first half. The sophomore running back scored three touchdowns and rushed for 90 yards.

However, in the second half, Morris was denied the end zone and shut down for 10 yards rushing. Prestonsburg's only score in the second half was Thomas Ratliff's 23 yard field goal, which proved to be the winning points.

The Cardinals fought back throughout the second half as they came back on the field pumped up to start the second half.

Sheldon Clark brought their fans to their feet and the Prestonsburg

Playoff picture to clear up this weekend

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It is hard to believe that only two weeks remain in the regular season of high school football.

But here we are, finding ourselves facing the completion of yet another season, and the second season is just around the corner.

Officially, for most schools in the state, the season comes to an end on October 28 when the final regular season games will be played. After that, the four top teams in each district will advance to a playoff berth in their respective regions.

For some of the fourth-place teams, it means just one more game. But there have been upsets and they could happen, and probably will happen, again this year.

Class AA, Region IV, District 2
Whitesburg has a lock on first place in Region 4, District 2, regardless of how the Yellowjackets fare against Magoffin County in their final district game of the year on October 28.

Just as predicted, the Yellowjackets won the district title with a thrilling 10-7 win over Prestonsburg on the Blackcats' home turf.

Whitesburg's two remaining games are against Class A Jenkins and Magoffin County. A loss to the Hornets would still give the Yellowjackets a 5-1 district mark and first place.

Another banner car show for Mills...basketball practice begins

HAPPY BIRTHDAY WISHES TO... Allen

Central's Beau Tackett, who turned 16 this past Saturday. Beau plays football, as well as basketball, for the Rebels. He is also a member of the Kentucky Junior Oproy and Billie Jean Osborne presented him with a birthday cake at Red, White and Blue Day this past weekend.

Happy birthday, Beau! Also, birthday wishes are extended to South Floyd's Billy Mitchell Little, who will turn 17 on October 27. We wish our good buddy, Billy, a happy birthday.

Thirdly, to Allen Central's John Patton, who had a heck of a defensive game against South Floyd last Friday night. John, happy birthday, and you played a great game.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE CAR SHOW...

What a crowd of people who gathered at the Trans Financial Bank's parking lot in Martin this past Saturday!

Tina Mills

I mean, it was the best, biggest and finest car show that the bank has had so far. If it gets any bigger, the show is going to have to be held in a bigger parking lot across the road.

I wouldn't have wanted to judge the show. The cars that were in camp this year were magnificent. You could just spend hours on hours looking (but not touching) the cars from the past.

Now before the show could take place and the cars showcased, there had to be someone behind it that made it go.

For the seventh-consecutive year, Tina Mills has been organizing the car show and she has done an excellent job.

Car fans from all around should just tell Tina how much they appreciate all her efforts in getting the show together. And, as the event gets bigger, she is going to need all the help she can get.

Time, energy and a lot of hard work goes into making a show like this a success. She has put all three factors into it, and that is why the Trans Financial Bank RWB Car Show is one of Kentucky's best.

From this desk I say, "A great big well done, Tina. We appreciate all your efforts."

BASKETBALL PRACTICE...

Roundball fever is striking Floyd County and basketball fans are ready to move inside for some basketball action.

Basketball practice officially got underway this past Saturday, but most of the high schools waited until Monday to start their practice.

Look for special profiles on county players in coming editions.

Until Friday, good sports everyone, and be good sports.

Bassin with the Pros

SWIMMING WORMS WORK WELL FOR BASS IN LATE SUMMER

Whenever they're fishing shallow, brushy cover or vegetation, bass tournament pros Cliff Craft and Tom Mann Jr. don't have any problems choosing their lures.

For both, it will be a swimming worm, and one look at their tournament records proves it's a good choice.

"It's one of the most natural ways to present a plastic worm," explains Craft, who, with Mann is a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff. "It looks just like a small eel or snake swimming through the water and presents an opportune target."

"I've been using a swimming worm for years," adds Mann, "and I can't begin to count the number of fish I've caught with it. It's an easy lure to use, and until recently, the bass probably hadn't seen very many of them."

"Normally, I like to fish a swimming worm in the same places other anglers use a spinnerbait."

To rig a swimming worm, both Craft and Mann prefer seven-inch, straight-tail worms. They rig them Texas-style with the hook imbedded to make them weedless, but they omit the sliding sinker. The worm is fished on 10 to 14 pound test line, and retrieved with short twitches of the rod.

"When you cast, the worm will start slowly sinking," says Mann, "but each time you twitch your rod, the worm will dart and jump and come back to the surface."

"It's really erratic, but it's completely weedless so you can literally fish it anywhere."

Both Evinrude pros admit two of their favorite places to fish the swimming worm are through lily pad fields, and along thick, brush-filled banks.

"One of the advantages of using a swimming worm around thick cover is that it often locates bass for you even if you don't catch them," explains Craft. "A swimming worm will sometimes draw bass out of cover when they come to see what the worm is, and if they don't actually strike, you may be able to flip a jig back to the same spot and catch them that way."

Occasionally, Mann will fish the swimming worm on a short 12 to 15 inch leader behind a swivel, but again omitting the sinker. This "mini-Carolina rig" has proven especially effective when fishing thick grass and shoreline weeds.

"It gives the worm even more action," he explains. "The swivel allows it to spin and turn more freely."

Surprisingly, three of the most productive colors of swimming worms for Craft and Mann have been pink, orange, and white, colors rarely used in Texas rigs or Carolina rigs.

"We use those colors simply so we can see the worms better," laughs Craft. "It doesn't have a thing to do with color preference of the bass. We know they like the lure, regardless of the color."

Not a game of tag, but tackle!

OUTDOORS TRACKER BOATS FISHIN' TIPS

When wood structure is present and walleyes scatter over the flats during summer, try "stump jumping" to catch big fish.

Logs almost horizontal are attractive as a shade providing cover for fish and as productive spots for anglers.

Aluminum boats are the best for stump jumping. After moving to the end of the log, position the boat perpendicular to the log and "walk" the boat down the log.

Keep the baits about 6 inches off the bottom and the lines right next to each side of the log. Spend extra time at the base of the log where the roots protrude. Fish each log thoroughly before moving to the next one.

Before long there will be a limit of fish in the cooler and more fish to catch in the same spots next time.

Peak walleye spawning activity occurs when water temperature reaches the high 40's.

One of the top 50!

Buddy Adkins' 1950 Ford F1 pickup truck was recognized as one of the top 50 cars at the Trans Financial Bank Car Show this past Saturday in Martin. The show featured 130 cars, making it the biggest show ever in seven years. (photo by Ed Taylor) to Inez as Dale Hamilton won the award for the best display with his 1946 two-door sedan.

Best Graphics was won by Eddie Caudill with his 1968 Chevy Nova. Lonnie Fugate of Hazard won the Best Competition award with his modified dragster.

Hueysville's Randy Allen won the Best Motorcycle award with his 1993 Harley.

The judges recognized the top 50 cars in this year's show. Martin's George Barnette made the top 50 twice with his 1931 Ford Model A. His 1958 Hudson Hornet also made the top 50.

Buddy Adkins' 1950 Ford F1 truck drew a lot of viewers and it made the top 50. Assistant Superintendent Gary Frazier, who enjoys the shows, placed his 1957 Chevy Belair in the top 50 cars.

Sally Adkins had the old-timers thinking of the '50s and early '60s with her 1960 Pontiac Catalina, also a top 50 car.

A 1966 Ford Mustang, owned by Robyn Williams of Martin, was a top 50 car. Mom, Gwen Williams, placed her 1957 Chevy Belair in the top cars, and dad, Tom Williams, made it a family affair by getting his 1949 Ford pickup into the top numbers.

Numerous prizes were given away during the show as master of ceremonies Rick Caudill (WMDJ) so adequately handled that duty.

The Kentucky Junior Opry was a definite big hit with the car show fans who gathered around to listen to some entertaining music. The Rhinestone Cowboys dance team cut a few steps for the folks.

The Red, White and Blue 5K run returned this year with over 30 runners taking part. Prestonsburg's Stewart Robertson came away with the win.

Allen Central track and field coach Dewey Jamerson handled the event.

"They did an excellent job with it," said Mills.

The big winner of the day was Jeff Carroll of Martin who won a new bicycle.

"He was real pleased with it," said Mills. "He was going around town showing it off."

Transylvania to host 13th annual coaches clinic

High school basketball coaches from across the state will sharpen their coaching skills at Transylvania's 13th Annual Basketball Coaching Clinic to be held October 21 and 22 on campus.

Coaches on this year's staff include Tim Davis, head coach at Marion County High School; Nolan Barger, head coach at Tates Creek High School; and Transylvania head coach Don Lane.

Davis led the 1992-93 Marion County team to a state championship and was named Fifth Region Coach of the Year in 1992 and again in 1993. Barger, a coach at Tates Creek for 24 years, has 456 wins and has led his team to five district titles. Lane, who is beginning his 20th season as head coach and athletic director at Transylvania, is among the top 20 active basketball coaches in the NAIA and was one of 12 coaches chosen to participate in the Olympic Festival in San Antonio, Texas, in 1993.

The clinic, sponsored by the Transylvania University Men's Basketball Program, costs $15 per person and includes lunch on Saturday. For more information and a brochure, call Ron Whitson, assistant coach for the Transylvania men's basketball team, at (606) 233-8232.

Playoff

Prestonsburg must face two district foes in completing their season. The Blackcats will host Morgan County this Friday night and then travel to M.C. Napier to close out their regular season.

finish second in the district and earn a home field advantage in the playoffs. However, they must win Friday night to clinch at least a tie with Sheldon Clark for second place.

If the two clubs tie (4-2), then Prestonsburg will earn second place

Prestonsburg has a good chance to by virtue of their win over the Cardinals this past Friday night.

Sheldon Clark (3-2) has a tough road trip to Shelby Valley this Friday night. The Cards must win to stay close to Prestonsburg and hope for a third place finish. The worst the Cards can do is 3-3 and the best is 4-2.

The best Shelby Valley (2-3) can hope for is a 3-3 mark and could finish 2-4. They have Sheldon Clark at home and then will face 1A Pikeville on the road.

But threatening for the fourth playoff spot is Napier (2-3). Like Shelby Valley, the worst the Navajos could finish is 2-4. But they also, with a win over Prestonsburg, would close out at 3-3 and a tie for third place with Sheldon Clark. But the Cards would get the third spot after defeating the Navajos earlier.

Magoffin County (1-4), hoping for their first ever playoff berth, is finding that goal an impossibility this year.

Even if the Hornets should upset the Yellowjackets in their final game, four losses will not get them in the playoffs. Likewise, Morgan County (1-4) finds themselves out of the playoff picture as well.

In District 1, Russell (5-0) appears to be the top team with only Fleming County (2-3) as the remaining district game for the Red Devils. Russell closes the season against Greenup County.

Russell will face the four seed in District 2 (Shelby Valley, Sheldon Clark, Napier) and will have the first two playoff games on their home turf.

Lawrence County (4-1) and East Carter (4-1) are currently tied for the second spot and won't be decided until the final game when the two clubs are scheduled to meet at Lawrence County on October 28.

Meanwhile, Lawrence County has Mason County (1-5) on the road this Friday night. East Carter will face West Carter Friday evening.

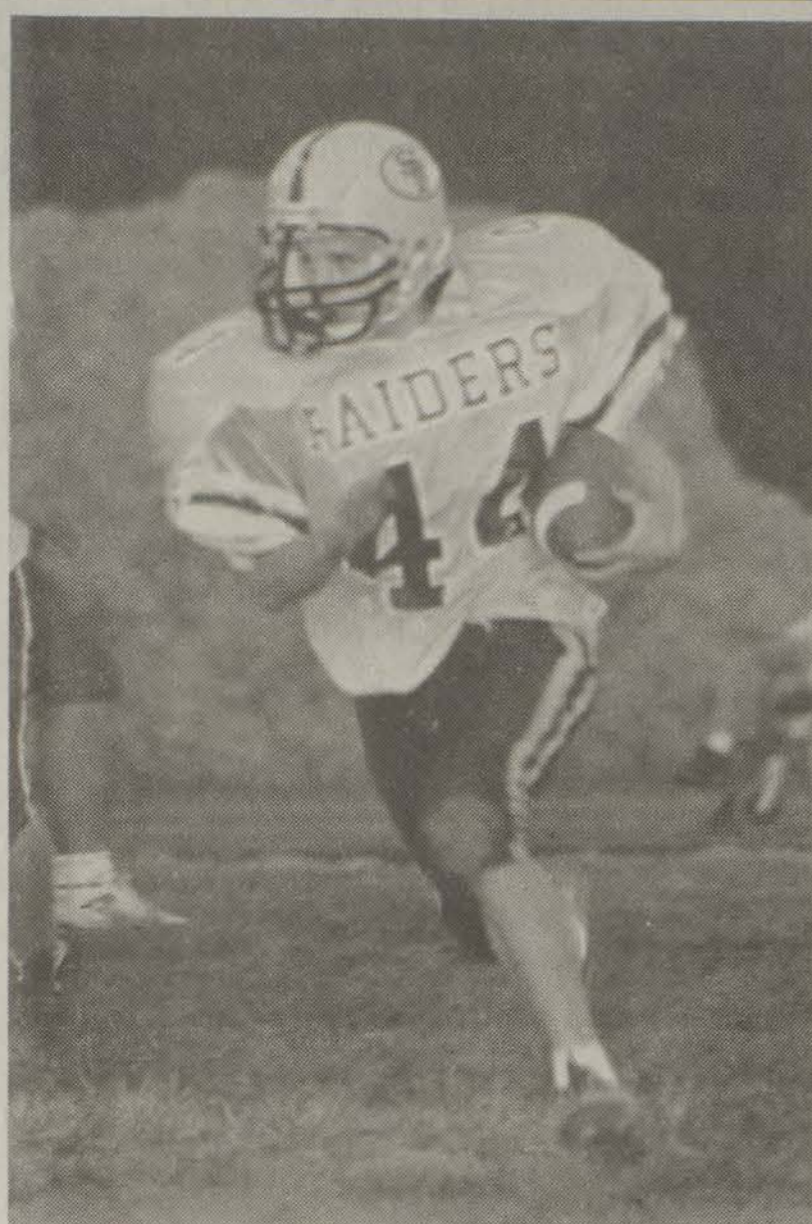

Prestonsburg could play either Lawrence County or East Carter at home on November 4 when the playoffs begin.

The battle for fourth place in District 1 will be between West Carter and Fleming County. Whoever finishes there will face Whitesburg in the first round at Whitesburg.

Class A, Region IV, District 2
Pikeville is in! With a perfect 6-0 district record the Panthers have two non-district games remaining. Second place Jenkins will once again have a home field advantage in the playoffs for the second time in the school's history.

Fleming-Neon, Elkhorn City and Phelps will battle for the third and fourth spots.

Allen Central and South Floyd will miss the playoffs once again. The Raiders have Elkhorn City at home in the final game, while Allen Central will host Phelps.

A big runner!

Heath Hall of South Floyd may not be big in stature, but he plays with a big heart. He carried the football against Allen Central in a junior varsity game last Monday night. Hall rushed for 42 yards. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Allen Central stops South Floyd in flag-happy game

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Working without official referees, the Allen Central junior varsity entertained South Floyd's JV team this past Monday night in an extension of their meeting last Friday night at Brackett Field.

The absence of the regular officials was evident as 22 penalties were called in Allen Central's 18-0 win over South Floyd.

Allen Central was flagged 14 times for 150 yards while South Floyd received eight penalties for 90 yards. The game was getting rough toward the end and the officials called the game off with 23 seconds left to play.

Matt Varney rushed for 38 yards to lead the ground attack for the Rebels. Heath Hall had 42 yards on five carries to top the Raiders.

Allen Central took a 6-0 lead on a 3-yard run by Mike Goble. The touchdown was set up when Johnny Case recovered a Raider fumble. Allen Central quarterback Shane Blackburn hit tight end Gary Webb with a 14-yard completion just before Goble scored.

Throughout the game, flags were flying as the game was getting rough. Both teams had problems holding onto the football as each team fumbled the ball away five times.

The Rebels took their 6-0 lead to the locker room at halftime. They made it a 12-0 in the fourth quarter as Blackburn hit Webb with a 20-yard touchdown pass.

Allen Central scored their final TD with just 23 seconds left on the clock when Paul Varney scored from 13 yards out to make the score 18-0. Two Raider players were ejected just before the touchdown and the game was called without Allen Central running the conversion play.

The Raiders threatened in the second period when they moved the football to the Allen Central 11. However, the Raiders failed to take care of the football and fumbled it away with Case coming up with the recovery.

Allen Central returned the favor and fumbled the football back to the Raiders at their own 30-yard line. South Floyd moved to the Allen Central 18 before the half ended.

In the third period, the Raiders were knocking at the door deep in Allen Central territory when they fumbled the football away.

Fishing with Scott Patton

Spinnerbait fishing in the fall can be extremely productive as the shad begin to migrate to the back end of the creeks. The shad migration is a movement that happens year after year and will continue to happen as long as there are creeks for the fish to move into.

Fish such as shad have seasonal movements just as all other species of fish. Seasonal movements are necessary for survival. This is the same for birds, and even the Indians had seasonal movements for survival reasons.

In the water world of fish, they will have a migration and, if you learn these migration routes and when they happen, you can capitalize on them. As the water temperature begins to reverse its way and the days are shorter, you will notice shad in the mouths of creeks. Although sometimes you can't see them, you can find them on your locator. That is why I will always have my Hummingbird Wide Eye units on while running or idling into these creeks.

Where I locate the shad is the area to begin fishing. I move to the nearest structure and begin part two of my search. Try to match your spinnerbait to the size of the shad. Also this time of year, most shad will begin to get a blue tint to them. That is when I'll throw a white spinnerbait with a touch of blue on it. I've been doing this for years in the fall and it works.

When fishing a spinnerbait, be sure to target your cast so you won't spook the fish, and try to predict where the fish may be so that you can bring the bait directly at him. A lot of

Fall color means fall hunting season

As rapidly as Kentucky's fall colors are arriving, so are the autumn hunting seasons.

The Bluegrass State's squirrel season and archery deer season are already in full swing, and coming up fast on the heels of those seasons will be the muzzle-loading deer season. Hunters should remember to wear hunter orange apparel on the head, chest and back while participating in this season.

On November 1, rabbit and quail seasons will open. The November 1 opening is a change for Kentucky small game hunters. In years past, these seasons didn't begin until after the deer gun season and didn't conclude until mid-to-late February.

Biologists with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources say that research indicates a better season framework includes opening and closing the rabbit and quail season sooner.

Regardless of what type of hunting you do, it is important to observe the proper respect for others. In early November, small game hunters need to be mindful that archery deer hunters will be in the woods, too. The most important group hunters must be respectful of is the landowner or farmer. Many crop fields are not harvested by November 1, and hunters should avoid those areas until later. Hunters should always treat the lands upon which they hunt with the utmost care. Hunt only where the landowner tells you and take care of all the landowner's property. All hunters must obtain permission from the landowner or tenant before entering private lands.

During the Thanksgiving weekend, waterfowl hunters will also get a chance for some early hunting throughout the state. The first part of duck season is open November 24-27 statewide. Snow goose and brant season also opens statewide on November 24. All small game seasons are open beginning November 22.

Complete waterfowl hunting dates include: Canada Goose-Western Zone, December 10 through January 31; Pennyroyal Coalfield Zone, December 17 through January 20; and Eastern Zone, December 13 through January 31. Duck hunting in the Western Duck Zone, will be open November 24-27 and December 10 through January 14, and in the Eastern Duck Zone November 24-27 and December 16 through January 20.

Kentucky's modern gun deer season is slated for November 12-21. All persons, unless license exempt, born after January 1, 1975 must complete a hunter education course offered by the KDFWR before going hunting during any season.

For more information on hunting in Kentucky, call or write KDFWR I & E Division, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601; phone (502) 564-4336. Hours are weekdays 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

times this will create what is known as a reflex strike. A bass is a predator and they hide against structures so that they may ambush their prey.

The shad will continue to move to the back of the creeks as long as the water cools. Then as winter approaches, they will reverse the movements. Just follow the shad this fall and fish a spinnerbait and you should catch your share of fish.

Remember to release what fish you can alive and always leave our land and water cleaner than you found it. A rundown of the equipment I would choose for this would be a 7' St. Croix pro glass rod, a 15 to 20 pound camouflage Triple Fish line, and a 3/8 ounce white and blue Andy's terminator spinnerbait. If you need any info on these products, you can contact me at (502) 957-6766, or write to me at: 4912 Jerry Drive, Shepherdsville, Ky. 40165

Keep a positive attitude, Keep casting, and Keep FISHING!!!

UK is preseason number 3, but three top teams are on schedule

Oh Kentucky and things. Yes, that's Rick Pitino's Kentucky Wildcats ranked number 3 in a preseason college basketball poll by The Sporting News. But that's Arkansas, number 1, UCLA number 6, and Indiana number 10, on UK's schedule too. All away from Rupp Arena.

Where is Louisville? With a roster of four juniors, five sophomores and five freshmen, it doesn't matter early on.

By January however, if the Cardinals have a dozen victories, Dick Vitale and the herd will be slobbering over Denny Crum, touting him for coach of the year.

Other rankings? TSN has North Carolina overrated (again) at number 2 while Vitale says Massachusetts belongs there. Vitale is right on this one. UMass is a Final Four contender. Coach John Calipari has a roster that looks remarkably like Pitino's.

Dark horse teams to watch: Iowa State and St. John's.

RALPH WILLARD

For good reason Pittsburgh coach Ralph Willard isn't burning any bridges to the Bluegrass. "I really loved Kentucky," the former Western Kentucky coach tells Basketball Times in its November issue.

"The people were great and we had a tremendous following. The thing that made me look to move on was the league situation. I don't know if we could sustain what we had done at Western Kentucky."

The not burning any bridges part? When Rick Pitino leaves UK, one of the leading candidates to replace him will be Ralph Willard. And, says here, another name on the short list will be Dan Issel.

Willard's next remarks are not lost on Louisville's Denny Crum. "The trend now is toward superconferences," he says. "To get the television exposure and to be able to recruit nationally you need to be able to be at a school where you can win the national championship."

DENNY CRUM

Denny Crum reluctantly agreed last week that UofL ought to go with the flow and join a new league.

The idea flies because the superconference creep promises to leave some programs out of the (television) picture.

Crum's reluctance is understandable since UofL's record for attracting TV networks to cover the Cards is as much a tradition here as the Cardinal bird mascot.

The painstaking pitch by Dick Shultz and Chuck Neinas was really about smoothing Howard Schnellenberger's feathers, nothing else.

C.M. NEWTON

UK's director of athletics C.M. Newton predicted to Sports in Kentucky two years ago that the superconferences were on the way.

Paraphrasing: "At some point the larger Division I member schools are going to want to have their own way deciding how to share revenues."

Translation: Jettison mid-majors like Western Kentucky, and I-AA schools from sharing the revenue pie.

UK-SOUTH CAROLINA GAME MOVED

For schedule watchers moving the Kentucky-South Carolina game from Freedom Hall in Louisville to Rupp Arena February 1 looks like a good tactical decision...on its face.

In fact, traditionally Kentucky plays as well or better in Freedom Hall. Thus, the shrug by Gamecocks coach Eddie Fogler.

For the Wildcats, the South Carolina game will be a nice 'welcome back home' after UK loses to Arkansas in Fayetteville, January 29 in what, by that time, could be a battle between America's 1-2 ranked teams.

But UK's Carolina game will be a good opportunity to re-tool after the Hogs just in time for a February 5 Sunday, national TV date against Syracuse in Rupp. Then comes a road trip the following week to Tennessee and Notre Dame.

HOOPS RESCHEDULING

Marking another step toward broadening its schedule, play games in metro areas that can attract television networks and aid recruiting, UK officials announced last week that the Wildcats will play Maryland in the Tip-Off Classic November 24 or 25 in Springfield, Mass.

History on this one is a bitter pill.

Last time Kentucky played the Terps, they beat them 90-81 in the 1988 NCAAAs, the victory was wiped from the books because of NCAA sanctions.

Last time UK played in the Tip-Off Classic was the following spring, 1989. On probation and shamed on the cover of Sports Illustrated, the Wildcats suffered humiliation to Duke, 80-55.

fans to the edge of their seats. The Cardinals' Rusty Fletcher scored on a 7-yard run and the PAT was good with 8:09 left in the ball game as the Cardinals trimmed what was a 19 point Blackcat lead to only three points, 28-25.

Late in the game, the Blackcats were forced to punt the football away and Sheldon Clark moved the football in a hurry as they entered Prestonsburg territory.

With time running out, the Cardinals, deep in Prestonsburg territory, elected to go for the tie with a 34-yard field goal attempt with just 12 seconds left.

The kick sailed toward the goal post with the Cardinal faithful cheering the ball through the air. But the kick was ruled wide to the left to the disbelief of the fans, players and coaches.

Prestonsburg took control of the football and ran out the clock for the victory.

The Blackcats were sharp offensively and defensively as they took control of the game early.

Led by Jason Spencer, Paul Collins, Larry Morris, Tim Layne and Waylon Bevins, the Blackcats' front line stopped the Cardinals on their first possession.

Mike Shepherd came away with a strong punt return, 39 yards, and gave Prestonsburg good field position at the Cardinals' 48. On first play from scrimmage, Morris avoided tackles, twisted and turned his way to the end zone for a 48-yard touchdown run and Ratliff added the PAT for a 7-0 Prestonsburg lead.

A reverse run and double pass play, resulted in the Cardinals' first score. Scotty Damron hit Christian Damron with a 35-yard pass completion and Fletcher had a run of 22 yards that was a part of a drive which covered 80 yards.

A double-pass play from Aaron Marcum to his brother Eric Marcum made it a 7-6 game at the 6:03 mark.

But Prestonsburg took complete control and dominated the lines against the Cardinals. Morris scored his second touchdown with 2:36 left in the first quarter which gave the Blackcats a 13-6 lead.

Sheldon Clark put together a strong drive at the end of the first quarter and beginning of the second. They moved the football to the Prestonsburg 28 only to see it stall out on a strong defensive performance by Spencer,

WINNINGEST PROGRAMS

For those interested in college basketball's winningest Top 5 programs.

North Carolina -- 1,598 in 84 seasons.

Kansas -- 1,541 in 96.

MR. FOOTBALL UPDATE

Chris Redman is a shoo-in for Mr. Football, right?

Not so fast. Unbeaten Male High's star quarterback is having a dream season all right -- new state record for touchdown passes in a career, first QB in state to ever pass for 2,000-plus yards, and 34 touchdowns. National recognition (USA Today).

There are regional rivals to Redman's candidacy however. In the north, Boone County's Shaun Alexander has rushed for 1,563 yards and scored 27 touchdowns in seven games. In the west, pride of Webster County (6-1) Ryan Hill has 1,496 and 19 touchdowns in seven games.

On the would-be-top-candidate-any-other-year -- quarterbacks Brandon Egan of Bullitt East and Greg Hergott, Beechwood.

Redman a shoo-in? Three weeks ago Sports Illustrated was ready to hand over the Heisman Trophy to one QB, then another -- Alcorn State's Steven McNair, then Tommy Frazier of Nebraska. Injuries turned the screen dark on both.

Mr. Football is in the hands of (some) Kentucky sports media.

CURRY STEP UPSTAIRS?

What residual effect did the death threat on Bill Curry's wife take on him? Kentucky's coach is no quitter, but this episode could mark the first signs of this proud and decent man walking away from college coaching. Who could blame him? Who would try and talk him out of it?

Possible scenario: Curry moves up to assistant director of athletics and heir-apparent to C.M. Newton. New head coach: Buddy Ryan. Just kidding. Mike Archer.

New offensive coordinator? Whoever Lavelle Edwards or Bill Walsh recommends.

UofL BOWL BID TALK? C'MON

Louisville's win string is impressive if we consider only the defense. An element of football grown so rare here as to be exclusive to Jefferson County.

But bowl bid consideration? C'mon. The Cards are 3-2 and even a 6-2 record by Halloween makes a bowl invite wait-and-see at best. With two losses independent UofL has to beat somebody -- Boston College November 3 and Texas A&M a week later.

How much respect is Louisville getting these sunny days? The Howard Schnellenbergers' shelled NC State by 21 and coaches still voted the Wolfpack 24th in the USA Today/CNN poll last week and the Cards nowhere.

November 3 is UofL's date for respectability -- UofL-Boston College (ESPN).

On November 10, if Texas A&M comes to Louisville unbeaten and the Cards are 7-2 at kickoff time, then a bowl bid will be in the Cards.

DIS 'N DATA

...Almost-Kentucky Wildcat Shawn Kemp is a sulking Seattle Supersonic these days because of, what else, money. Kemp wants w-a-y more than his current 800 grand a season. Could be Kemp will be the first (sooth the savage beast) project for new Sonics assistant Dwayne Casey who recruited Kemp to UK in 1989.

...Another example of the ills of pro sports in 1994 -- Philadelphia 76er Clarence Witherspoon refuses to report to his NBA employer until club officials agree to increase his contract to one dollar more than Shawn Bradley makes.

...Won't headline writers have a good time when Male's Chris Redman becomes a Louisville Cardinal? Not a done deal, Redman signing to play for Howard Schnellenberger you say? Right.

PARTING SHOT

Impressive, 9-year-old Whitney Wade's arrival on Kentucky's sports map this month as a member of Glasgow High's girls golf team. But a 4th grader doing newspaper and television interviews is a bad idea.

Couple of words of advice from a dad to Whitney's parents: Jennifer Capriati.

And so it goes. Have a point of view you would like to share? Write Bob Watkins, Sports in Ky., P.O. Box 124, Glendale, Ky. 42740.

Brad Blackburn
Senior, Allen Central

The Allen Central receiver pulled in a 43-yard pass from quarterback Adam Coleman to score a touchdown that gave the Rebels a 22-14 lead en route to a 34-14 win over the Raiders Friday night in the Red, White and Blue Bowl.

Blackburn was a standout on defense as well

Blake Leslie
Senior, Prestonsburg

The senior running back brought the Blackcats out of a big hole with a 20-yard pickup when the Blackcats were pushed deep in their own territory. The long gainer allowed the Blackcats to move to the 41 and eventually into Sheldon Clark territory. The play came after the Cardinals had pulled to within three points, 28-25. Prestonsburg held off the Cards for their fourth consecutive win.

3-5 on the season

While Betsy Layne had the week off in football, they will return to action this Friday night against the Elkhorn City Cougars.

Chad Slone
Senior, South Floyd

Slone went deep into the Allen Central end zone to pull in an interception that stopped a Rebel drive on the 18-yard line that would have given Allen Central a half time lead. Slone went high in the air in front of the intended receiver and grasped the ball, returning it 10 yards.

SURVIVING PEREGRINES LEAVE LEXINGTON

Five of 10 peregrine falcons released in downtown Lexington this summer survived to leave the city. All birds released in 1993 lived to scatter.

Thus the first chapter of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' (KDFWR) peregrine falcon restoration program successfully closes.

"Fifteen birds surviving out of 20 isn't bad," says KDFWR biologist and program coordinator David Yancy. "Other states have experienced higher losses in similar city releases," he adds.

Teresa Anderson, KDFWR wildlife biologist who worked at the Lexington site, gives another comparison. She says only one wild peregrine of four survives to its first year and then faces a 20 percent annual mortality rate.

Clusters of tall buildings with ledges resemble the birds' former cliff habitat. But city living presents several hazards to inexperienced birds learning to fly.

Lexington's 1994 peregrine releases occurred in late June and early July. One of the birds disappeared a couple of days after the second release. The male never returned to the hack box (artificial nest) and is presumed dead.

Later in the month a female peregrine was hit by a car and died. Another female bird died 12 hours after colliding with a building.

A fourth bird, a male, died a few hours after being found in the basement of a downtown building. The falcon apparently flew into an elevator shaft. Death is attributed to malnutrition.

The fifth bird, a female, was found dead at the hack box in late August. Cause of death is unknown.

The surviving falcons encountered some problems, too. A couple of male peregrines were sent to Minnesota for rehabilitation and returned to Lexington for release. The smallest male in the younger group of peregrines sustained feather damage from the characteristic "pecking order" practiced by birds. (Flight feathers and flying ability are extremely important for peregrines' survival since they snatch other birds from the sky.) The damaged feathers were replaced in a pin-and-glue process called imping. The bird flew on release and became a strong flier.

Rehabilitation experts found nothing wrong with the other bird. Site attendants believe the bird collided with a window, was bruised and sore, but had recovered by the time it was examined. The peregrine flew immediately on release and returned to the former strong-flier status it had achieved earlier.

One female and four male peregrines began moving out of the city after Labor Day.

There's no guarantee any of Lexington's released birds will return. Peregrines are wandering birds. They tend to follow other birds — their prey — migrating south. Some peregrines in North America travel as far as South America. While no one can predict where Lexington's falcons will spend the winter, they'll likely stay fairly close to Kentucky.

Normally, peregrines return each spring to within 100 miles of their fledging site. April is the time to start looking skyward for returning peregrines.

The KDFWR expects to release more peregrine falcons over the next two summers in the Herrington Lake area.

Hunting and fishing license fees and checkoff donations to the Nature and Wildlife Fund are paying for the peregrine falcon restoration program.

If you would like to learn more about these birds that once nested in Kentucky, you may request a free fact sheet and pamphlet by writing Peregrine Falcon, KDFWR, I&E Div., #1 Game Farm Rd., Frankfort, KY 40601, or call (502) 564-4336.

Donations to the Nature and Wildlife Fund are welcome any time of year.

Once upon a time, people were functioning at a normal rate. Using a steady diet of various fruits and vegetables, the little community had, over the years, produced doctors, lawyers, teachers: all sorts of professional people who were successfully competing on a national scale. Most importantly, however, a whole lot of good, productive, taxpaying citizens were being developed.

The sun shone brightly on our old Kentucky home.

Then one day, no one seems to know exactly when nor why, things changed. Suddenly the little community was under siege by a group known as Kids Eat Red Apples (KERA, for short).

"You're doing it all wrong," KERA shouted. "From now on, only red apples will be acceptable diet for our young people."

"Who says?" questioned an unsuspecting dissident. "Who's in charge of this KERA, anyway? Is it Tarzan's son, Boy?"

"No!" shouted KERA. "It's Boy's son, Thomas." "But why red apples, only?" someone asked.

"What's wrong with an orange now and then? Or a pear? Or even an occasional peach?"

"No! Boy's son, insists that Kids Eat Red Apples (KERA, for short)," yelled a high-salaried spokesman.

"I've been working with kids for 20 years. I can't believe we've been doing it wrong all this time," the dissident answered.

Nevertheless, the next day, while the dissident browsed through the green pasture upon which he'd been turned to wile away his days, KERA took over.

Amid much fanfare, the dog and pony show moved into town and taxpayers dollars were spent on brightly colored trucks with which to tote the apples, and a test was given to 100 unsuspecting children.

"How many of you eat absolutely nothing but red apples?" the proctor asked.

Twelve raised their hands.

"Look how dumb our kids are," yelled Boy's son, Thomas. "Only 12 percent passed. This is unacceptable."

So, KERA spent bigger bucks trying to reeducate those in charge of the children's diet.

"Look," KERA said, "we're going to give money to those of you whose kids switch from pears and stuff."

More of the taxpayers money was spent polishing the apples and bribing the adults, and then another test was given.

"Okay boys and girls, how many of you now eat nothing but red apples?"

Thirteen raised their hands.

"Wow! We've improved," yelled Boy's son. So time passed and more of the expensive red apples were brought in.

"The other fruits and vegetables only cost a fraction of what the red apples do," commented a logical-thinking adult.

A Seuss-A-Bration National Family Literacy Day

Families across the United States are invited to celebrate this day sponsored by the National Center for Family Literacy.

Family literacy is a movement that builds on the strength of families, bringing children and parents together to learn. Once the school is connected to the home, parents send a consistent, positive message about education to their children. Ultimately, family literacy breaks down barriers and helps families develop the power to reach new levels of achievement, self-esteem, self-sufficiency and strength as a family.

In November, Turner Network Television (TNT) will present a Seuss-A-Bration, honoring Dr. Seuss. TNT will present a spectacular television program featuring the November 6 Premiere of "In Search of Dr. Seuss." Other Seuss favorites will also be presented during the month.

The Floyd County Adult Literacy Council encourages you to join the celebration. Vivian Whitehead, Vista volunteer and coordinator of Family Literacy for Floyd County suggests a few ways of calling attention to this day.

•Families can set aside time to read together as a family.

•Teachers and students can get into the spirit of the day by sponsoring various activities and/or holding a Seuss-A-Bration. (How about a green eggs and ham treat?)

•Families can watch the TNT spectacular "In Search of Dr. Seuss" on November 6.

•Families can donate new or like new children's books to be distributed to deserving children in Floyd County. (Call 886-READ)

The National Center for Family Literacy encourages every family to spend ten minutes, reading together on this special day.

By reading together as a family you can become eligible for special Dr. Seuss prizes. A drawing will be held and ten winning families will receive prizes of T-shirts and books.

The National Center for Family Literacy is interested in knowing how the people of Floyd County celebrated Family Literacy Day.

Call Vivian Whitehead at 886-READ to share any of the ways you celebrated. She will forward this information to the National Center for Family Literacy.

The National Center for Family Literacy is the primary source of information, training, and support for the family literacy movement. Since its founding, family literacy programs have been established across the nation in hundreds of communities and thousands of families are helped each year.

Close to HOME
by Joe Adams
FEELINGS FOR WILDCATS STICK WITH YOU

This is a love story. It started years before I met my wife, and it's still going strong.

The story's about being a basketball fan, a University of Kentucky basketball fan.

With the Wildcats annual "Midnight Madness" first practice at hand again, there's a lot of fuss from people like me.

And there are a lot of people like me and worse when it comes to the Cats.

You know, the guy in Iowa with 23 radios tuned into every game so he never has to miss a play.

The thousands of determined souls who will drive anywhere within 15 hours to catch away games.

The folks who, like my uncle, have been known to get so ill after a Wildcat loss that they couldn't work the next day.

For people who aren't from Kentucky, all this hoopla over a basketball team is a bit strange, maybe even weird.

I try to explain it to them this way: It started nearly 50 years ago when Kentucky basketball first personified success for a state often lacking respect from the outside world. The winning basketball team meant you could stereotype us as backwoods bubbas with Daniel Boone caps if you wished, but our basketball team would clobber yours.

And it most always did. That's just what most of us felt the high brow types deserved for thinking the way they did about us.

As many of us ventured outside Kentucky to find work, we took our pride for the team with us. The love for the Wildcats runs four generations deep in some families. That, along with the team's traditional success, is why you'll always find faithful fans wherever the team plays.

If you're like me, this Kentucky thing isn't about the school so much.

As universities go, my heart's with Morehead State. But for the sake of Wildcat fans, UK must exist and fare well enough to field a basketball team that can compete for the national title each year.

My sentiments are with the team, and they run deep.

STARTING EARLY
The team's been part of my life for almost as long as I can remember.

My brother and mother put up my first basketball goal on our barn when I was 4.

By age 7, I was watching the Wildcats play on our black and white television.

By age 13, I could name practically every all-American the Wildcats ever had and virtually every record they had set over 40 years and four national championships.

My friends and I played for hours on dirt basketball courts, pretending to be Jack Givens, Jimmy Dan Connor or other favorite Wildcat players. Like most young players my age, I dreamed of suiting up in a Kentucky uniform and taking my place among the UK legends. I practiced endlessly and became so good at basketball that I could miss shots from anywhere. Too bad you have to have talent to be a Wildcat player.

But that didn't stop me from enjoying the team. I watched every game I could on television. I listened to Cawood Ledford call every game on radio. I memorized every box score and statistic in the next day's newspaper.

And my first Kentucky game in person turned out to be a special experience.

I was 14 when an old state legislator friend of my father's offered him his choice of tickets for the season. State legislators got complimentary Kentucky tickets in those days, which explained the main reason some ran for office.

The two my father picked at random turned out to be for the dedication game of Rupp Arena, the new 23,000-seat home of the Cats. I stood with goose bumps as legendary former Kentucky coach Adolph Rupp, the nation's winningest major college coach ever, was honored at halfcourt as the namesake of the new arena.

I hadn't been to a Kentucky game in 16 years until last spring at the ThunderDome in St. Petersburg, Florida, where the Cats played in the NCAA tournament.

My wife and I took our two pre-schoolers, figuring we might as well break in the new generation of Cat fans early and right. Our boy, 4 then, wore a white Kentucky hat and a blue Kentucky T-shirt.

But something went wrong.

"I'm ready to go home," our son told us early in the second half. "I want to go outside and water our pepper plant."

We're going to have to work on that boy. Joe Adams is an Eastern Kentucky native who writes a family-oriented column. Write him at "Close to Home," 4593 Arrow Wind Lane, Jacksonville, FL 32258.

State Bound

Guess who's going to state, October 29th?

Give up? Okay — I'll tell ya, Adams Middle School's boys and girls varsity cheerleading squads.

by Kim Frasure

Yes! Yes! Yes! Both squads participated in the Central Regional Cheerleading Competition held last Saturday in Louisville Gardens. Both squads advanced to state, and I'm so proud I could bust a gut.

There were 48 squads competing in three divisions. Eleven squads competed in the middle school division.

Georgetown, Clark Moore, King Middle, Whitley County, Powell County, Mt. Washington, Roby, Glasgow, St. Martha, Hillview and Adams competed in the Middle School division.

The competition was astounding — true athletes in every sense of the word, I'll tell ya!

It was fantastic to sit back and watch.

I once saw a sweatshirt that read: "If cheerleading were any easier — they would have to call it — Football!"

Saturday's competition was anything but easy!

This week's column may be short and sweet, but how sweet it is!

Way to go A.M.S.

'Til next week.

Best of luck in the state.

Poison Oak

"Yes, that's right. Isn't it wonderful? We're now spending more money per child," boasted KERA.

Of course, when this little tid-bit was published in the paper, the public said, "Wow! Now my kid is getting more money spent on him. O Joy! O Rapture!"

Time passed. Those adults who were still around were forced by some guy named Sam Sanction to believe that the idea of Kids Eat Red Apples (KERA, for short) was indeed best for the young people, and if they expected to remain employed, for them too.

Another test was given. This time, 18 children — some of whom had been deprived of the real fruits of knowledge for so long they'd forgotten they ever existed — said they preferred red apples.

"Look," yelled KERA, "Our scores have improved by 50 percent. It's working, it's working."

As we look 12 years down the road, the little white mice have all graduated from Apple Valley High, have come to love the little red apple, and it appears, will all live happily ever after.

There's only one question: Will they really be able to compete in a world where the diet is varied and normal?

Ritchie's career as an artist began at age 40 when she enrolled in her first class at Pikeville College. Since then she has attended numerous workshops and has studied independently with artists Tom Whitaker, John Howard Sanden, William Gerhold, Tony Vann Hasselt, Bill Shultz, Ilona Royce Smithkin, Greta Matson, Ray Yoder, Carol Orr, John Byrans, Raymond Kivette, Phoebe Glory and others.

The paintings in this collection tell Ritchie's story as an expanding artist as well as the visual story of the subjects portrayed.

The exhibit will be on display in the Magoffin Learning Resource Center on the Prestonsburg Campus through October 16. Gallery hours are Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Friday 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; and Sunday 2 to 6 p.m. Ritchie's work will also be included in the "Images From the Mountains," a traveling exhibit of works by Appalachian artists which will be featured at the PCC gallery from October 17 through November 4.

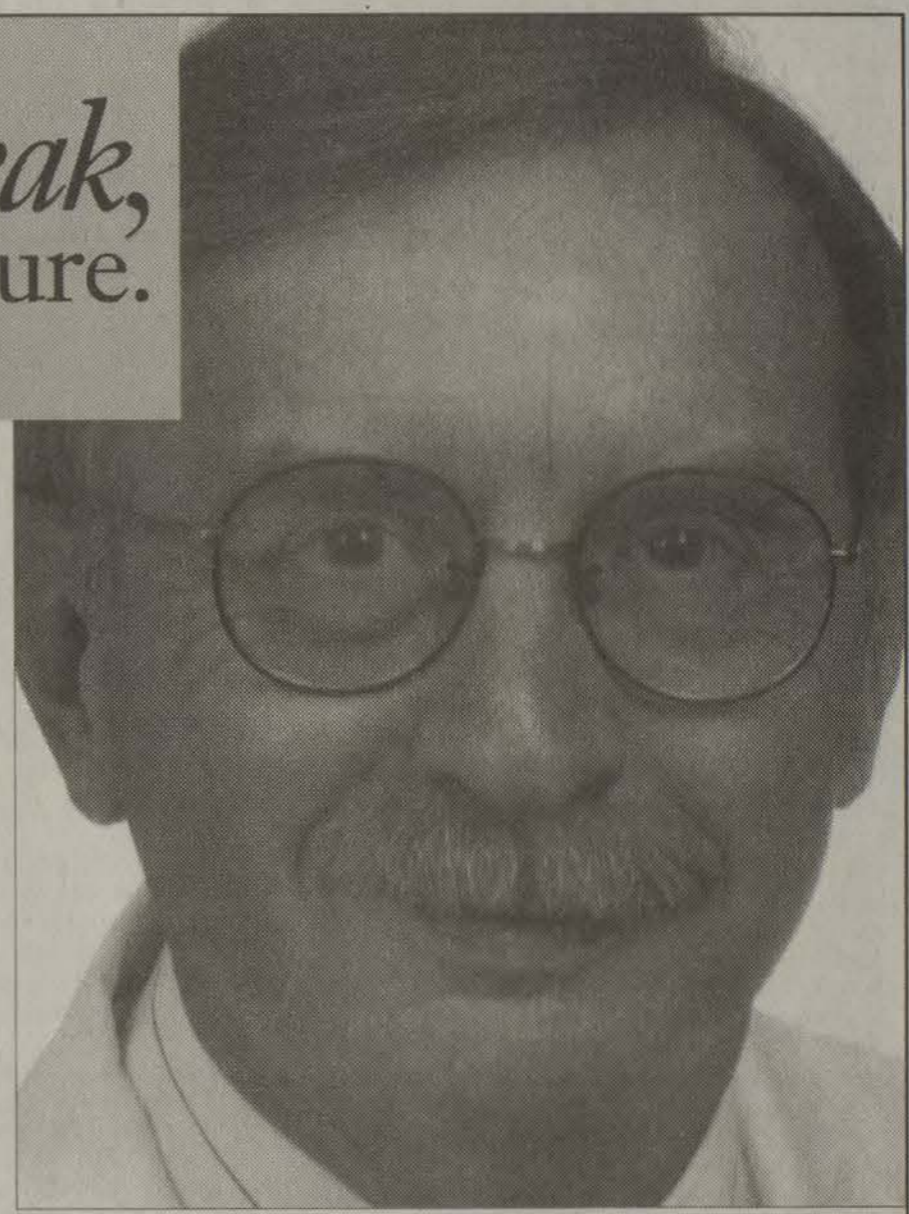

A reception will be held for the artist at the gallery on Thursday, October 13 from 6 to 8 p.m. The public is urged to attend.

Many of Ritchie's works will also be available for purchase.

FROM THE MOUNTAINS by Jadon Gibson

Coal mine tragedy at fourmile, conclusion

by Jadon Gibson

The Fourmile Mine Disaster which occurred on December 26, 1945, brings back vivid memories to Jewell Lewis Ross, of Farragut, Tennessee, and Earl Lewis, of Middlesboro.

Their father, W. E. Lewis, was the owner of the mine.

The senior Lewis was also the son of a miner, Joe Carl Lewis, from Campbell County, Tennessee, who was killed in a powder explosion in 1911 at a mine in Fourmile Hollow.

A youthful W. E. Lewis, suddenly the head of the family following his father's death, toiled hard and saved money before going to Louisville to get an education.

He returned to Bell County with a degree in business.

"Daddy didn't mind hard work," Jewell said in 1991. "After returning from college he decided to use the money he earned to buy property. He and W. E. Campbell would rise at 3 a.m. and walk to the head of Fourmile Hollow where they worked all day. He bought increments of property and was realizing his dream prior to the explosion.

"The mines were working good and the men were making a good living. Daddy was pleased with his workers and they liked him. In fact many of them called him Uncle Bill.

"It was a tragedy for many families and it was for Daddy and our family, too. He lost his health because of the heartache and pain from going through it. He also lost his best mine and his best workers that morning."

Earl Lewis, superintendent of the mine at the time, pointed out that much of the mining machinery was lost in the explosion or by being sealed up in the mountain.

"We had 51 miners and those 31 that were working that morning were probably our best," Earl said a couple years ago. "I would have been in there with them but I was on the phone with Ben Brown in Middlesboro ordering some switches.

"It about killed my daddy," Earl continued. "Things were going so smooth and the bottom just fell out. Daddy was good to all those men. He knew them all well. If they needed something they knew where they could get it. Often when one of them married, Daddy would set them up with some furniture."

The tragedy at Fourmile also affected Fourmile native Paul Ross who married Jewell Lewis, the daughter of W. E. Lewis.

Ross was an Air Force pilot in World War II before returning to Fourmile with plans to enroll in medical school at UK.

"When the tragedy happened I stayed in Fourmile to help instead of enrolling in school," Ross said. "My most vivid memory of the accident is carrying those heavy oxygen tanks up the hill on my back. Later on I was recalled into the reserves and flew in the Korean War and Vietnam War."

The jet Ross was flying was shot down over North Korea but he was rescued from the Yellow Sea. He later served as a member of the USAF Thunderbird precision flying team before retiring.

"Mr. Lewis went through a lot of stress and strain following the explosion," Ross continued. "He loved those men. The explosion and the aftermath was very difficult for him to contend with. It led to his death just a few years later."

Jewell explained that it took several years for her father to work out all the claims.

"He had to borrow money but he settled all claims regarding the miners and their families," Jewell related. "Daddy personally visited the widows and families of the men. Many people advised him to take bankruptcy but he absolutely would not. He wanted to stand by those families and did every way he could."

Jewell explained that when her father died on January 19, 1952, Ken Sulfridge, an electrician at the mine at the time of the Fourmile Tragedy, led a group of miners in a two-mile march from Fourmile Hollow to Riverside Baptist Church for his funeral.

"Ken Sulfridge had been the first person to notice the smoke from the mine fire on the morning of the explosion," Jewell explained recently. "He ran down the hill and told me and Louise Elliott. Earl (Lewis) was on the phone but he immediately began calling the necessary officials and then he and another man ran back to the mine."

Louise Elliott was the bookkeeper for Kentucky Straight Creek Coal Company and Jewell Lewis Ross assisted with the bookkeeping and issued scrip to the miners.

Joe Hatfield was the final survivor of the Fourmile mine disaster. He was among eight miners who were rescued before perilous conditions forced officials to seal the mine. It remained sealed for nearly three years before being reopened and the other miners removed and buried.

"Mr. Lewis and my husband talked about the explosion and events that followed," Eliza Hatfield, widow of Joe Hatfield, said in 1991 at the Wallsend home where she and her husband lived at the time of the accident. "Joe liked Mr. Lewis. Neither of them were pleased with the way the media covered the tragedy."

Thanks for the assistance of Jewell Lewis Ross, Paul Ross, Earl Lewis, and Eliza Hatfield in completing the series on the Fourmile Mine Disaster.

The mine where the tragedy occurred is quiet today, except for the sounds of vehicles passing nearby and youngsters swimming in a distant stream during the summers.

But for a time in late 1945 and early 1946, Fourmile Hollow gripped the attention of the entire nation.

Prepare noodles as directed on package. Meanwhile, heat until hot butter in wok or large skillet; add onion and green pepper and garlic powder. Stir fry until onion is tender crisp about 2 minutes. Reduce heat and add veggies. Continue to stir fry until tender crisp. Transfer to warm platter.

Add sausage to remaining oil in skillet, heat through. Return veggies to skillet. Heat thoroughly about 3 minutes. Add Parmesan cheese. Toss, and serve over butter noodles.—Pam Burgess

The art of snacking

by Karen Collins, M.S., R.D.
American Institute for Cancer Research

For some people, snacking is part of life: they eat more food when "grazing" than they do at mealtimes. Others view snacking as a bad habit: they are convinced that good nutrition demands a rigid three meals a day without any other eating. Actually, snacking itself is neither good nor bad. The effects of snacking depend on the choices you make and how snacking is used.

Sometimes the time between meals is just too long. You begin losing your energy and concentration, and a snack can make all the difference in being able to continue functioning at your best. When the next meal does come, you can relax and enjoy it, making reasonable choices, rather than diving into the meal like someone who hasn't seen food for three days.

The key is to choose a snack that can provide more than just a quick flash of energy. While candy may provide a short burst, your body quickly uses this energy, leaving you feeling worse than you did before. The sugar in fruit is absorbed more slowly and provides a bit more long-lasting energy, but since it is also mainly sugar, it won't provide more than an hour or so of energy for most people. If you need a snack with longer-lasting energy, in addition to or instead of fruit, choose a grain product (a bagel, dry cereal mix, low-fat crackers) or even some protein (a small amount of low-fat yogurt or cheese, for example).

Snacks can even help you meet your health and nutrition goals. For example, many Americans have trouble eating at least five servings of fruits and vegetables each day. Snacking on fruit or vegetables with salsa or fat-free salad dressing can help. Some people find that they don't eat enough grain products—especially whole grains. A snack of whole wheat bread, bagels, or low-fat crackers can give you the nutritional benefits of grains.

When aren't snacks helpful? Snacking when you're not really hungry—when you're bored, tired or feeling stressed—is trying to use food to provide something it can't. If you're not hungry, don't just snack on carrot sticks or other "healthy" food; take a look at the reason for the snacking urge and try to meet that need in a more appropriate way.

Snacking can be a definite plus for good nutrition, but not if you just graze at random from one snack to another. Choose food that can provide all that you need from a snack.

ture over apple until it is completely covered. Insert wooden stick into stem end and remove from bowl, scraping excess coating from bottom of apple. Dip bottom of caramel-coated apple in nuts if desired. Place apples on greased waxed paper and chill until set. Makes 5-6 servings.

Stove top: Wash and dry apples. In a small, heavy saucepan over low heat, melt Brach's Milk Maid Caramels with water, stirring frequently, until mixture is smooth. Continue as directed above.

*Recipe was kitchen-tested in a 500-watt microwave oven. Because ovens vary, you may need to adjust heating time.

And along came a spider

You don't have to be frightened away by every spider you see. Many different kinds of spiders live in and around buildings, said Mike Potter, extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. The majority are harmless and in fact beneficial, because they prey upon flies, crickets and other insects. Some, such as house, cellar, and garden spiders, construct webs to help entrap their prey, he said. Others, including wolf spiders, are free-roaming and make no webs. They generally will not attempt to bite humans unless held or accidentally trapped. Most spiders have fangs too small or weak to puncture human skin. "Routine, thorough house cleaning is the best way to eliminate spiders and discourage their return," he said. "A vacuum cleaner or broom effectively removes spiders, their webs, and egg sacs." Spiders prefer quiet, undisturbed areas such as closets, garages, basements, and attics, Potter added. Reducing clutter in these areas makes them less attractive to spiders. Large numbers of spiders often congregate outdoors around the perimeter of structures, he said. Migration indoors can be reduced by moving firewood, building materials, and debris away from the foundation. Shrubs, vines and tree limbs should be clipped back from the side of the building, he added. Maintaining a vegetation-free zone next to the house also lowers the moisture content of the foundation and siding, making them less attractive to termites, carpenter ants, and decay. "Also consider installing yellow or sodium vapor light bulbs at outside entrances," Potter said. "These lights are less attractive than incandescent bulbs to night-flying insects which, in turn, attract spiders."

About Animals

IGUANAS
 Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

"Now be sure and eat your veggies, you know you need them to grow up healthy!"

Sounds just like you're talking to a child, whose preference is junk food.

But you could also be talking to your iguana and if you were you were trying to head off the most common problems they develop.

Members of the reptile family, iguanas are becoming more popular as household pets. Young iguanas may be as small as four to six inches long, and adults can reach sizes of more than six and a half feet in length.

They require different kinds of care than most pets, though not necessarily care that would be beyond the reach of most folks.

For example, as reptiles they do not regulate their body temperature well and their body temperature will become the temperature of their environment. Their cage, therefore, needs to be 80 to 85 degrees with a hot spot of between 95 to 105 degrees. They also need ultraviolet lights in order to make adequate vitamin D for calcium metabolism to prevent rickets.

They need dark in which to sleep and should have a 12-14 hour day and a 10-12 hour night. Cages also need a small swimming pool and a place for the iguana to crawl into and hide.

Iguanas are vegetarians and need a variety of veggies, though they actually may tend to prefer lettuce. A lettuce-only diet, however, creates a calcium-phosphorous imbalance and may lead to rickets. Turnip, beet and carrot greens, spinach, collard, alfalfa sprouts, mustard, broccoli, green beans, lima beans, peas, corn and carrots are all ideal dietary choices fed in combination. Fruit may be used as a treat, but is not acceptable as a regular diet fare.

Iguanas one and a half to three feet in length may be fed two or three times a week. Smaller animals need to be fed daily.

Earn while you learn

Big Sandy Area Community Action Agency is taking applications for the senior training program. You must be 55 years of age or older to apply. For more information, call 874-2965.

There are commercial iguana diets which contain all necessary nutrients, but which the iguana may reject. If so, vitamins and minerals can be used to supplement the natural foods.

Veterinarians say the major problems they see with iguanas are due to poor diet.

Parasites are the second most common problem.

Iguanas should not be given the run of the house while the owner is away because they can injure themselves or eat things they shouldn't.

Significant advances have been made in treatment methods available for reptiles, and the body of knowledge has greatly expanded in recent years. Use of antibiotics, anesthesia and medication has been greatly improved.

Any licensed veterinarian in Kentucky is competent to consult with you regarding your iguana or other reptilian pet. Care of reptiles is an area in which all veterinarians are trained, and are also kept updated with continuing education.

Ten free shade trees

Ten free shade trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during October.

The free trees are part of the non-profit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The ten shade trees are Sugar Maple, Red Oak, Pin Oak, Green Ash, Thornless Honeylocust, Weeping Willow, River Birch, Tuliptree, Silver Maple, and Red Maple.

"Spectacular fall colors are among the many benefits of these beautiful shade trees," John Rosenow, the Foundation's president, said.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between November 1 and December 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six-to-twelve-inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to SHADE TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by October 31.

Bladder infection a problem in cats

Marsho, my Himalayan cat, has begun urinating in the kitchen sink, and this morning he tried to use the rug. How can I stop him from misbehaving?

Marsho might not be misbehaving. There's a good chance he's got a bladder infection called cystitis. It's common among cats, both male and female, and usually the first sign is avoiding the litter box.

Cats with cystitis typically seek out smooth surfaces like sinks and tubs, and they often use carpet as well. Other signs to look for are the cat straining to urinate without much success or blood in the urine.

With male cats, untreated bladder infections can be followed by the formation of sand in the urine. (This can also occur as a result of feeding the cat a diet that's high in magnesium.) If this urinary sand forms a blockage that obstructs urine flow, it becomes a medical emergency. Kidney failure and death can result.

Cats, of course, avoid using the litter box for other reasons, such as excessively dirty litter, refusal to share the litter box with other cats or to mark territory. You can purchase products that remove stains and deodorize carpet, which reduces the cat's tendency to urinate on the same area again and again.

To obtain a free pamphlet on feline bladder infections, call toll-free 1-800-323-4208 daily between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. CST and request Pamphlet 103.

Doctors Foster & Smith are practicing veterinarians based in Rhinelander, Wis. They also publish a catalog with information about pet medications and other products. Every Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to noon CST, they provide free telephone consultations to pet owners who call 1-715-369-2022.

Health Matters

Poor Posture Buster

by Christopher G. Fleming

Back health and posture go hand in hand. Eight out of ten Americans will develop significant back pain in their lifetime. Most back pain is preventable through proper posture and adequate back strength.

To fight posture slump and increase back strength try adding back extensions to your day. Lie on the floor on your stomach with your feet under a couch or held by a partner. Place your hands behind your head or lower back and lift your head and chest off the floor. As your head and chest leave the floor, pull your shoulders back and pinch your shoulder blades together. Pause, and return to the floor.

Start this exercise by performing it every other day and doing six to eight repetitions. If you develop pain, stop and only do as many as you can comfortably. Increase by five every other week or as many as you can tolerate. If you have had back surgery or a diagnosed back problem, contact your physician before beginning this exercise program.

Strong back muscles reduce your risk for back injury and allow you to maintain proper posture. Back health is in your hands. You can reduce your risk for back pain or reduce the risk for recurrence by performing back extensions on a regular basis. It is your choice, spend five minutes to prevent back pain or live with it.

Tip of the Week: To determine if you are performing your cardiovascular activity at a safe and effective effort level remember this saying: you should be able to talk but not able to sing while exercising.

Christopher G. Fleming is the Project Health Coordinator at Prestonsburg Community College. He has a bachelor's degree in Health and Physical Education, a master's degree in Education, and a Master's plus Thirty with emphasis in Exercise Science. Fleming is also a certified American College of Sports Medicine Health Fitness Instructor.

Sunshine Lines

by Beverly Carroll

Senior citizens, we can feel it in our bones. Cold weather is just around the corner. I've already hauled out our electric blanket. I warm the bed before I get in at night, keep the blanket on low through the night, and turn it up when the alarm goes off at 5 a.m.

By 5:30 the furnace has taken the night chill out of the house and I'm ready for my first warm cup of morning coffee.

Cold weather is coming and so are the sign-up dates for this winter's energy assistance program.

There are two major changes in the program this year. First, funding has been cut. This means that there is not as much money to help people heat their homes this winter as there has been in years past. Second, last year a household was allowed up to $5,000 in liquid assets and still be eligible. This year a household is allowed only $1,500 in liquid assets. Many of you who have a little nest egg put away for your final expenses may want to consider applying that to a burial policy. Burial insurance will not keep you from qualifying for energy assistance. Money in the bank, even if it is solely for burial purposes will, if that money is in excess of $1,500.

Application dates are based on the first letter of the head of the household's last name. In my family, my husband, Alex Carroll is head of household. Since his last name begins with the letter "C," if we qualified, our household would apply on November 14 and 15.

Beware though. Not every last name initial is allowed two sign-up days. Most initials only have one day to sign up. Sign-up days, also referred to as application days, or days to make application, are as follows based on first letter of head-of-the-household's last name:

November 7, A; November 9 and 10, B; November 14 and 15, C; November 16, D and E; November 17, F and G; November 21 and 22, H; November 23, I and J; November 28, K and L; November 29 and 30, M; December 1, N and O and P; December 2, Q and R; December 6 and 7, S; December 8, T and U and V; December 9, W; December 12, X and Y and Z.

Those who wish to apply for energy assistance are to sign-up or make application at the Community Action Program (CAP) office serving the county in which they live. The counties and their CAP office locations are as follows:

Floyd — CAP office, Allen, near the stoplight

Johnson — CAP office, Rt. 4, near the Old Cousin Clyde store

Martin — CAP office, end of Rt. 3 Magoffin — CAP office, near middle of Salyersville

Pike — Williamson Road, just outside downtown Pikeville

When you apply you must have the following information:

- Recent heating bills or verification that heat is or is not included as part of the rent

- Social Security number of all people living in the household—this includes family members and those who are not family members

- Proof of all household income—this includes family members and those who are not family members

- Proof that liquid resources do not exceed $1,500. (Senior citizens remember what I said earlier about money you may be saving for funeral expenses. If you have more than $1,500 in liquid assets you will not qualify for energy assistance even if you have money set aside solely for burial purposes.)

Senior citizens, this is a very good program designed to help people of all ages. Like all federal and state programs, there are always more needs than there are resources to meet those needs. For those who receive help this year, it may not be as substantial as what has been received in years past.

I do have concerns for senior citizens because so many of you indicated to me that you have not known about this program in the past. I want you to know about it and I want you to benefit from it. Also, I want you to know that what you might be keeping for your final expenses could automatically disqualify you. I want you to have time to consider this and make changes if you should so choose. Too, for so many of our senior citizens who qualified in years past when they had more than $1,500 in liquid assets, I want you to know this year that your liquid assets cannot exceed $1,500. I am afraid that many of you will not be aware of this and will be knocked out of the program this year. I am afraid that you will not learn about this one technicality until the time you apply and then it is too late to make changes that could benefit you. I feel that this will not be highly publicized so, therefore, I want to make you aware of it.

Senior citizens I might add, since we are talking about energy assistance, you might seriously consider getting yourself an electric blanket. Or, suggest that your kids and grandkids give you one for Christmas. The blankets are not very expensive. They are economical to operate and they will keep you warm at night when you turn down the thermostat to save energy. Too, consider weatherization. Plastic over and around windows and weather stripping around doors and windows offers tremendous assistance in cutting winter's heating bills.

For more information about energy assistance and weatherization or about the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens serving Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties, call 886-3876 or toll-free 1-800-556-3876. Ask for your Benefits Counselor. We are here to help people 60 years of age or older to get benefits to which they are rightfully and legally entitled to receive.

New Readers

Editor's Note: The following article was written by a volunteer tutor for the Floyd County Literacy Council through the David School. If you would like to help teach someone to read, or read better, will you please call the literacy council. Don't wait, someone needs your help! Call 886-READ (7323).

I would like to take time out from my busy day as a tutor to let you know how fulfilling it is to teach someone to read. If you have time to give, just think, you could be helping someone learn to read.

If you have children, do you remember when your baby took his first steps? You get the same feeling when your student learns his first words! If you have the time, please give it. It will be very rewarding.

YOUR GARDEN Making Compost The Easy Way

(NAPS)—Many years ago, gardeners discovered the benefits of composting leaves, grass clippings and weeds. They also discovered the great amount of labor required to periodically turn their compost pile to provide aeration for proper composting. Researchers at Cook College of Rutgers University have found that 1/2 inch layers of perlite for every six inches of leaves in the compost pile can substantially reduce the time and frequency of turning required to produce enhanced compost.

But the benefits don't end there. When composting is completed and the compost is put to use in the garden or in the shrub border, the perlite continues to perform for many years as it lightens and aerates the soil while increasing its water holding ability. Perlite is available from nurseries and garden centers.

Rollie's Trivia Corner

by Rollie Fingers (NAPS)—Hall of Famer Rollie Fingers, the first relief pitcher to win the Cy Young and MVP Awards in the same season, invites sports fans to his trivia corner.

Rollie, who led the Oakland A's to three consecutive World Series titles from 1972-74, has teamed with the makers of Just For Men Brush

In Color Gel for Mustache, Beard and Sideburns, the five-minute way to blend away gray.
