State law on nepotism says they are ineligible for posts :

Parent reps caught in school council flap

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Kentucky's Education Reform Act is supposed to encourage parental involvement in schools, but an amendment to that law is making it difficult for some parents to have a stake in their children's education.

Two parent members of separate Floyd County school councils are asking state officials to reconsider a law passed in 1992 that prohibits them from serving on councils.

Clarence Risner, who serves on the Prestonsburg High School council; and Joe Tussey, who is on the Adams Middle School council, are technically ineligible from serving because their wives are employed in the school system.

In 1992, lawmakers amended part of the education reform law which prohibits parent members of a school council from serving if they have relatives working anywhere in the school system.

Prior to the 1992 change, parent members were prohibited from serving only if they had a relative employed at the school where they would serve on the council.

Risner and Tussey are seeking an opinion from the Attorney General Chris Gorman to determine if that law is constitutional. Both their wives are employed as secretaries at Prestonsburg Elementary.

Risner also sent a letter to Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen on the issue.

Risner said Thursday that he feels the law discriminates against parents because that provision does not apply to other council members, namely teachers and principals.

"When I ran for school council, I was told I could if I didn't have a relative employed at the school," Risner said. "I don't understand how they can say that's a conflict of interest. The decisions the council makes at Prestonsburg High School do not effect Prestonsburg Grade School."

The change in the law is an oversight, Risner said, and it needs to be clarified. He added that it would be difficult to find parent representatives for councils in a county like Floyd because the school system is the county's biggest employer.

"No one's to blame," Risner said. "It's just something that needs to be clarified or changed."

Armonda Arrastia, director of public information for the Department of Education, said Thursday that the department understands Risner's concerns, but said the law is explicit.

"The law is pretty clear," Arrastia said. "It is our responsibility to abide by the law. I understand Mr. Risner's concerns and sympathize with him. We appreciate his service and his willingness to serve. There is nothing to do to change the law at this time."

Medicaid cuts stick; 2 doctors bail out

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

A Floyd County doctor and dentist have terminated their participation in the state Medicaid Program, telling the Cabinet For Human Resources they are discontented with its new Medicaid regulations.

Dr. Fred Meece, a general practitioner in dentistry, and Dr. John Boswell, with Highlands Regional Medical Center, withdrew from the Medicaid program after the state imposed a two percent provider tax on physicians and announced its intention to implement a Discount Option Program.

The General Assembly passed a continuation of the provider tax that supports the Medicaid program last winter, and the Kentucky Medical Association said doctors were told Medicaid rates would not be cut if the state legislature passed the bill.

The KMA filed a lawsuit against the provider tax and is pursuing the issue in the U. S. Supreme Court.

On Saturday, October 15, regulations went into effect for cuts in reimbursements to Medicaid providers that physicians say could force them to withdraw from the program. KMA filed a lawsuit last week challenging the reimbursement cuts.

Physicians are also protesting the Discount Option Program, which requires them to accept patients below the 200 percent federal poverty level and who have "bought" into the Medicaid program. The state had planned to begin the program on September 1, but delayed implementing the pro-

Man gets church time in place of jail time for theft

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A condition for the dismissal of a theft charge against a Floyd County man Wednesday could be described as divine intervention.

David L. Hurst, 29, of Ivel, agreed Wednesday in Floyd District Court to attend church once a week for a year as part of an agreement to dismiss a misdemeanor charge of receiving stolen property. Hurst also agreed not to be charged with any violations of law during that time and he has made restitution to the complaining witness.

Hurst was charged with taking a ring from the home of Stoney Newsome of Hi Hat on October 8. The ring was recovered by Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and returned to Newsome.

In outlining the conditions of the dismissal, Floyd District Judge Danny Caudill commented that this was the first time in his court he had heard this particular request.

"I've never had this condition before in my court," Judge Caudill told Hurst and the attorneys involved. Assistant county attorney Bob Bishop told Judge Caudill that it was the complaining witness, Newsome, who requested Hurst be required to attend church services once a week.

Floyd County sheriff's detective Jim Rederick told the court that he was in agreement with the conditions specified by the court.

Hurst told the judge that he would abide by the conditions in return for the dismissal.

"I think attending church will be good for you Mr. Hurst," Judge Caudill said.

Hurst was fined $67.50 in court costs.

Fifteen hurt when truck, bus collide

No injuries are serious, officials say

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Less than 24 hours after an outpouring of community support pushed a fund drive for a memorial to one of the nation's worst school bus mishaps past its goal, a police radio call made the memories of that 1958 tragedy all too vivid.

The call reported that a school bus with children on board had been involved in a mishap on Meade Hill, between McDowell and Wheelwright, and ambulances had been summoned to the scene.

The driver of a Disaster and Emergency Services pickup truck had lost control of the vehicle in the steep curve on top of Meade Hill and crashed into the front of the school bus. The pickup bounced off the bus and hit another DES vehicle that was following it.

There were 12 children on the bus who were headed home after attending after school tutoring services at South Floyd High School. None of the children were seriously injured but two were admitted to the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital for observation with minor abrasions and contusions.

Parents of the children crowded into the hospital emergency room to check on the condition of their children.

First on the scene of the accident was Lifeline Ambulance owner Doug Branham and he described what he saw.

"It was a scary sight," Branham said, "to see another vehicle crashed into the front of a school bus with kids in there."

Branham said he and other Lifeline personnel began evaluating the situation and checking on the condition of the children.

Lifeline emergency medical technician Diane Burke said she transported the driver of the pickup, John Arnold, to the hospital.

"He said he was not going very fast and then he slid," Burke said. "He said he knew he hit something, but he didn't know what. He complained that his left hand hurt and said it was probably from where he gripped the steering wheel."

In the vehicle with Arnold was Omar Marshall. The two DES employees were in the area installing rain gauge devices. Both men were treated and released from the hospital.

Portions of the highway, Route 122, were slick because of an afternoon thunderstorm in that area.

Following the pickup truck was local DES coordinator David Chaffins. Chaffins said that when the truck hit the bus, it bounced and struck his vehicle near the front grill. Chaffins was not injured.

Earl D. Ousley, director of transportation for the Floyd County school system, who was at the hospital, said the bus driver, Eddie Berger, told

Outpouring of support pushes memorial fund drive past goal

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

"I guess it's something in our genes that makes it hard to speak of this tragedy. We all say time is a great healer and indeed it is, but after three dozen years this one seems to heal only on the outside," Estill Lee Carter read during a radiothon Wednesday.

The radiothon, which aired on WDOC-AM and WQHY-FM, was held to raise funds to build a living memorial at Jenny Wiley State Park to honor the 26 children and a school bus driver who died in a bus accident on February 28, 1958.

The words were those of Bill Darby, who lost two children in the accident. He was unable to read what he had written and Carter read the healing message on the air.

"We've all lost loved ones, friends and family and, yes, our children. Maybe it's because this tragedy was so unusual, so unexpected, so unnecessary. So many young lives on the way to school on a Friday morning with no chance to say goodbye. I'm so pleased that so many remember and care — others too young but still care. May God bless you all," Darby had written.

And many showed that care through donations.

"So many people just drove up and dropped off $5 and $10 donations," Jim Kennedy, Jenny Wiley State Park manager and an announcer during the telethon said. "We didn't even know who they are."

"There was so much love in that $10 donation," Frances Brackett, a member of the Living Memorial Committee added. "That $10 meant as much as a $1,000 donation."

The group received $20,876 in pledges during the telethon and received about $8,000 up front. Brackett expressed relief and amazement about the amount of funds raised. She said the group would now have enough

Books left behind in school bring buyer a $2,000 bonus

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County school officials are trying to determine why $2,000 worth of textbooks were left in the old Wayland school building when it was sold this summer.

At Monday's school board meeting, superintendent Steve Towler reported that maintenance personnel had thought they had removed everything of value from the building when it was sold.

"For some reason, we overlooked the books," Towler said. "The state department (of education) wants a copy of the inventory... (of the books in the building)."

World-Wide Books in Louisa bought the books from the new owner of the property, David King.

In a report from Towler to the board, the books in the building, which was used as the district's book depository, were described as obso-

Woman arrested in courtroom

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A domestic relations hearing in Floyd County District Court last Friday took a dangerous turn when a defendant took a handgun into the courtroom.

Lekita K. Johnson was arrested by deputy sheriff Homer Neeley before her court hearing Friday. Johnson's husband, Billy Joe Johnson, had obtained an emergency protective order against his wife, Lekita Johnson.

Billy Johnson notified Neeley earlier Friday morning and told the deputy that his wife had called him Thursday night and threatened to shoot him in the courtroom, Neeley said.

Lekita Johnson and her companion, Arthur L. Preece, 36, of Tomahawk, were sitting in the front row of the courtroom prior to the start of hearing, Neeley said. The deputy asked Lekita Johnson and Preece to go into the jury room and as Neeley was doing so he reached down and took the woman's purse.

Inside the purse was a .32 caliber automatic pistol and a fully loaded clip, Neeley said. Lekita Johnson was arrested and charged with carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

Preece was arrested a short time later when he tried to approach Billy Johnson as he was being escorted into the courtroom. Neeley said that he stepped between the two men and told Preece to leave the courthouse.

After Johnson's court hearing, Preece was still in the hallway outside the courtroom, Neeley said. The officer again asked Preece to leave, but he refused to do so. Preece was arrested and charged with failure to disperse and disorderly conduct.

Billy Johnson obtained warrants against his wife and Preece charging them with terroristic threatening.

Lekita Johnson and Preece were arraigned Monday in district court and each pleaded not guilty to the charges. Bond was set at $5,000 or 10 percent cash or property.

Memorial

money to complete the memorial and also apply some money to the scholarship fund.

The memorial will be heart-shaped with the monument, listing the names of the children and bus driver who died, a history of the event and a map, at the top of the heart. A cross will be located in the center of the heart. Benches in the memorial garden will offer grieving relatives a chance to contemplate the tragedy and begin to heal the wound.

During the telethon, Norm Marcum, a radio announcer with the station donating air time for the telethon, described the memorial as an outdoor chapel. At the site of the memorial garden Thursday, Brackett called it an outdoor cathedral as she stared first at the monument and then at the surrounding hillside.

Brackett said she became involved in the project because many of her friends and neighbors had lost relatives in the accident. One of her former students at Prestonsburg High School also died when the bus plunged into the Big Sandy River.

Brackett said the accident brought many changes in school bus regulations. Because there was a small amount of snow that day, the Floyd County School board called school off when snow fell in the county, Brackett said. That practice continues.

School bus drivers also have to undergo physicals and there are more safety regulations for buses, she said.

"No one wants that kind of tragedy to happen again," she explained.

Kentucky Homeplace project brings healthcare program to Floyd County

Floyd County will be among 12 southeastern Kentucky counties participating in a state demonstration project that will key on prevention as a means of corralling runaway healthcare costs.

Called "Kentucky Homeplace," the project is based on the idea that involvement of local people at the neighborhood level is more likely to encourage the unserved and underserved to use healthcare that is available to them and to teach them when they don't need to use more expensive services like emergency rooms.

The program will serve low-income families or those eligible for Medicaid with family health care advisors who are local people trained to provide home visits, assess family health needs and help families link up with the services they need.

Training for advisors will begin in early 1995 and home visitations will begin in late January. The demonstration project, coordinated by the University of Kentucky Center for Rural Health in Hazard, will end in June 1996.

If results are positive, the services could be extended and expanded in subsequent years.

For more information, contact Dr. Karen Main or Jo Ann Myers at 606-439-3557.

Parents

A response from Boysen to Risner was mailed Thursday (yesterday), Arrastia said. He declined to discuss the contents of Boysen's letter until Risner receives it.

When asked if the department feels the law discriminates against parents because the provision does not apply to other council members, Arrastia said, "that what the law says."

The spokesman said the law is designed to avoid any conflicts of interest by councils or to prevent an undue influence on school district employees.

In their letter to Attorney General Gorman, Risner and Tussey are asking Gorman to decide if the law is constitutional.

"Is (the law change) discriminatory with respect to parents serving or who want to serve on councils?" the letter asks. "If schools A and B are within the same district and a teacher at school A wants to serve on a (council) and has a spouse at school B the situation is okay; however, if a parent at school A wants to serve and has a spouse at school B, then statutes prohibit (that)."

Minutes of an October 10 council meeting at Prestonsburg High School show that that school council voted to allow Risner to remain a member until "he is forcibly removed by the state department, Dr. Boysen or Dr. Towler."

Tussey could not be reached Thursday for comment.

Last week, education department spokesman Jim Parks said the department pushed for that provision in the law in order to prevent special interest groups from interfering with the make up of councils.

Food programs awarded funds

The Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program has awarded $16,082 to Floyd County to supplement the services of local emergency food and shelter programs in 1995.

Qualifying organizations may apply for a share of those grant funds to underwrite their efforts next year.

In the past, Floyd County has distributed emergency food and shelter funds through the Floyd County Ministerial Association; St. Vincent's Mission; the Mud Creek Clinic; the Christian Service Ministry; the Wayland United Methodist Food Pantry; the Middle Creek Fire Department Food Pantry and the Big Sandy Family Abuse Shelter.

Agencies eligible for funds should contact Gwen Hall at the Catholic Social Service Bureau Outreach office at 874-9170 for an application packet.

PCC wins ARC approval for $355,420 grant

Prestonsburg Community College was informed Tuesday by the Appalachian Regional Commission of Washington, D.C. that its application for a $355,420 grant to assist the college with its campus health service has been approved.

Prestonsburg Community College and the University of Kentucky College of Medicine will work together to provide primary care and prevention services to the community college students. These students are, generally, non-traditional. In many ways, they are representative of the communities in which they live in Eastern Kentucky. Their average age is nearly 30, and 70 percent are women, many of whom are married with children of their own. In addition to being enrolled in school, many work full-time to help support their families. This project will provide health services that are typical of services required by other community residents. It is anticipated over time the program will serve as a clinical laboratory for medical, physician assistant, nursing, dental and other health professional students. Grant funds will also be used to establish a tele-medicine component at the community college to ensure quality care and consultation for the students.

Grant monies will be divided among three special projects the college has targeted for development and implementation: $119,738 for student health services, $144,375 for student scholarships and $91,307 for technology. With additional monies of $378,749 matched by Prestonsburg Community College and UK College of Medicine, the total project cost climbs to $734,169.

"We are pleased that the ARC has chosen to support three of our top priority fund-raising projects, including health, technology and scholarships," said PCC President Deborah L. Floyd.

The University of Kentucky Board of Trustees on June 13 approved the assessment of a mandatory $82.50 student health fee to establish a student health clinic for PCC students. The clinic will be the first of its kind in the state and could serve as a national model for other community colleges.

Plans are for the student health clinic to be operational by January 1995. Initially the clinic will be lo-ated in leased space but eventually will be located in the college's proposed Regional Center for Health Education and Wellness.

Services to be offered through the PCC Health Service include: unlimited visits with the medical staff for illness or minor injury; laboratory and X-ray services; gynecology services for women; physical exams needed to complete required forms for outside agencies and activities; some medications prescribed by clinic staff; health education and primary prevention services; and mental health services.

To help offset the cost of the health fee, the ARC has tagged $144,375 in scholarship funds to help students access this health care at limited or no cost.

"I am most pleased about this scholarship provision," said Dr. Floyd. "I have been very concerned about the lack of scholarship funds to help students pay the health fee. Health care is critical for students' welfare; however, the health fee should not impede a student's access to a college education."

ARC monies in the amount of $91,307 will also enable the student health service to utilize tele-medicine to ensure quality care and consultation. Through interactive video conferencing, clinic staff and patients in this rural area will be able to consult with University Health Service staff, University Medical Center specialists, as well as other colleagues throughout the nation without having to leave the Prestonsburg campus.

The revolutionary concept of providing student health care at the community college level was the brainchild of Dr. Floyd and Dr. Emery Wilson, the Dean of the College of Medicine at the University of Kentucky, working in conjunction with Dr. Spence Turner and Dr. Jan Hurley of the University of Kentucky's Student Health Clinic in the College of Medicine, PCC Development Officer Page Estes, and PCC Nursing Program Coordinator Lynn Weddle.

The concept also received the support of Community College System Chancellor Dr. Ben W. Carr and former Chancellor of the UK Medical Center Dr. Peter Bosomworth who spoke on the college's behalf in recommending the fee to the UK Board of Trustees.

"The only mistake that is known at present is the fact that we did sell the building with old books in it that were of value to someone," the report noted. "Our school officials had been advised to go through the Wayland School...to be sure nothing remained of value. Obviously, an oversight has occurred in that the new owner sold old books for a sum of money."

Board member Eddie Patton commented at Monday's meeting that he had heard some of the books were new.

Floyd County sheriff's detective Jim Reederick said Wednesday that he is investigating the issue and, so far, has found no evidence of wrongdoing. He added that the books sold were outdated and the investigation is ongoing.

Operations chief Jim Osborne said at Monday's meeting that the books were located in a separate entrance to the school and no one had any way of knowing the books were there.

"This looks bad," board member Brent Clark commented.

King paid the board $40,500 for the property in August.

"A.I.D.S. training seminar" offered at OLW

Our Lady of the Way Hospital will be offering an "A.I.D.S. Training Seminar" on Friday, October 28, at the Seton Complex at Our Lady of the Way.

Two (2) contact hours will be awarded to participants upon completion of the workshop.

Presenters for the workshop will be Rhonda Crisp, RN and Mary Little, RN. Rhonda and Mary are both certified through the Cabinet for Human Resources as Bloodborne Pathogen trainers and are employees at Our Lady of the Way.

Pre-registration and pre-payment is required. Registration begins at 12:30 a.m. and the program will begin promptly at 1:00 p.m. and end at 3:00 p.m.

Pressure check

Tammy Minix of Salyersville got a blood pressure check from Wanda Blair of Feds Creek. PCC nursing students were just practicing on each other Thursday. However, thanks to a recent grant from the ARC, all PCC students will have access to quality health care on campus at the college's new student health center expected to be in operation by January 1995.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

It's patronage, stupid!

by Scott Perry

When the Kentucky Education Reform Act was adopted back in 1990, the legislature made a big deal over nepotism...the hiring of relatives by school officials.

Nearly five years later, nepotism is an issue again...this time in relation to ethics laws required of local governments.

While restrictions on nepotism are certainly well-intentioned, those who contend government will work better if public agencies are not filled by the families of public officials are missing the point.

Nepotism isn't the villain.

Patronage is.

Patronage is the process of rewarding political allies... usually with jobs...for their fund-raising or vote-raising prowess.

Patronage winners don't have to be qualified for the government job they get, they just have to be good at getting their boss elected.

Nepotism, on the other hand, is getting a bad rap...partly earned, but largely undeserved.

Nepotism is commonplace in the private sector where family businesses have thrived because they are, in fact, family businesses.

We hire relatives because they are loyal, dedicated, usually honest, and, more times than not, they work for less.

They also are quite often the most qualified for jobs because those jobs have always been a part of their lives.

Why should there be such a difference in public sector jobs? One answer is obvious.

Some public officials hire their relatives just because they are relatives.

The solution isn't to restrict nepotism altogether, though.

The answer is to develop a standardized method of awarding jobs on a basis of qualifications, experience and merit regardless of who the job-seeker may be kin to.

We don't need to tell a qualified teacher she can't teach at home because her husband, uncle or brother is a school administrator.

But we do need to tell an unqualified teacher that she can't have a job just because she can deliver 50 votes to a candidate.

The real problem with lousy government can be summarized by paraphrasing the battle cry from the last presidential race.

It's patronage, stupid!

Basketball conditioning starts before football season is finished

Editor:

We are writing this letter in praise and with thanks to the two head football coaches, yes Football, at Betsy Layne. John DeRossett, the head coach for the High School and Solomon Kilburn the head coach for the grade school, Sandy Valley team. Football tends to take a back seat to other sports at Betsy Layne. We think that it's a shame that the basketball "conditioning" has already started. The school board ruled last year that basketball practice would not start until football season was over. Football is not over yet! They can call it conditioning if they want to, but players know before football season starts that basketball "practice" will start in October, before football ends. They also know that they will have to "choose" between football or basketball. That is not fair to the child or to the team. Some coaches are following the rules, but if all coaches had to abide by the rules, than maybe more students would go out for football and the football program could grow. We want to give very high praise to the grade school and high school football players. You hear people making comments about our game record, but if these "tough" guys that make fun of the football team would get out there and play football, maybe we would have a better record. It is very easy to sit in the bleachers and talk about how the game should be played.

If you are not "tough" enough to play football, then you should not criticize it. John DeRossett and Solomon Kilburn have been working through the hot summer months and they stand in the rain practicing these boys. They have never given up and we appreciate that. They encourage team spirit, they do extras for the boys, such as cookouts and road trips. Our team may not be No. 1, but our coaches and players are. The boys are learning more than just football rules and regulations, they are learning how to be the underdog, but to keep pushing on and never quit!

"Recognizing a legend"

Editor:

We hear a lot about Magic Johnson, Michael Jordan and Michael Jackson but there's one J. they forgot to mention.

Mr. Jamerson. He's done more for the Wheelwright school and football field than anyone. I used to think he lived at the school. He was a coach, teacher, principal but most of all a friend. I think the football field should have been named after him because he cut grass and took care of it like it was his. He always made you feel important and helped you when you needed a friend, either in school or outside of school. I always could tell when he was mad—he'd walk fast, smile and stare straight ahead. You knew someone had crossed the line. He didn't care about sexual harassment or taking back talk from any mean students because he became your parent at school. We need more like him, someone not afraid to let you tell him your problems or put you in your place. If anyone should have an award it should be him and it should be "The best human being of all times."

Minister pleads not guilty to 87 counts of sexual abuse charges

by Jerry Pennington
Managing editor
Big Sandy News
Rev. Gallie Isaac pleaded not guilty Thursday to 87 counts of various sex charges against him.

Isaac, 77, appeared in Lawrence Circuit Court to answer to the eight indictments issued against him on September 8 charging him with 21 counts of sodomy, 65 counts of sexual abuse and one count of criminal attempt to commit sodomy. All but nine counts of the sexual abuse charges are misdemeanors.

Judge Stephen "Nick" Frazier did not set a tentative trial date, but scheduled a pre-trial conference for January 12. The purpose of the conference is to hear any motions filed by the attorneys in the case.

Frazier told the attorneys that he wants to call in the jury early in May. After the hearing, Isaac and his attorney, Eldrod "Bud" Adams, said they had no comment about the case.

Commonwealth Attorney Anna Melvin asked to be relieved from the case due to her political ties with Isaac. She was replaced by Luke Morgan, a special prosecutor from the Attorney General's office in Frankfort.

Community support still seems to remain high for Isaac. He entered the courtroom Thursday to handshakes and hugs from those who believe the indictments are not true.

During a recess, Isaac sat calmly and told stories to those around him. After the hearing, he left the courtroom surrounded by supporters singing religious hymns.

In an interview with The Big Sandy News, one of the alleged victims said Isaac had sexually abused him over 10 years ago.

The alleged victim said Isaac took him and four other boys to his house to spend the night because Isaac told them he had some work they could do. He said Isaac took him to a bedroom, and told him to take off his clothes and get into bed.

"I didn't think anything about it," the alleged victim said. "He's a preacher."

Sometime in the middle of the night, the alleged victim said he woke up when he heard noises. Then he said he was hit over the head with a cane by Isaac.

"That was when he began to do the abuse," he said.

Isaac is a preacher at the Free Baptist Church and former county court clerk. He was elected clerk in 1961, and served until 1977.

gram until March 1995.

Forty-two Kentucky physicians have stopped seeing Medicaid patients since the changes were announced. Twenty-four physicians told Cabinet for Human Resources officials they were discontented with the Medicaid program. Eighteen physicians did not give a reason for their withdrawal from the program.

Dr. Fred Meece, Prestonsburg dentist, said Thursday he has withdrawn from the Medicaid program because he does not think the state should have so much control that it can tell physicians whom to treat.

"When the state gets to the point that I have to see patients for any reason, its gone too far. The state government is getting too involved," he explained. "The reason I withdrew had nothing to do with fees or taxes. It had to do with the fact that I am mandated to see patients. Under this Discount Option Program, I can't refuse to see a patient."

"Individual practitioners should have the ability to say 'I can't treat you,'" Meece said.

He explained that he should be able to terminate treatment of a patient who is belligerent, one who consistently doesn't show up for an appointment, or one who won't pay a bill. "I reserve the right to not treat them," Meece said.

Meece sent his letter to the state terminating his acceptance of Medicaid patients after he received a letter from the state explaining the new Medicaid changes.

"I told them the changes made to the program were detrimental to the entire program," he said.

Meece doesn't expect his withdrawal from the Medicaid program to have much of an impact on his practice.

"I haven't made money on Medicaid in the 25 years I've been in practice," he said.

When he sent letters to his approximately 200 patients, explaining to them he would no longer accept Medicaid, most wanted to remain a patient on a private pay basis. In the letter, he offered to refer his patients to another dentist or treat them on a private pay basis. He also indicated he would treat them in an emergency.

The dentist, who formerly served as chairman of the Dental Association's technical advisory committee for the Cabinet for Human Resources, said the committee was not consulted about the changes.

Meece said the committee often advised the cabinet on what services could be cut out of the Medicaid program to help the program save money.

Meece expressed his regret at the changes in Medicaid and said that physicians whose incomes depend on Medicaid reimbursements will suffer from the changes. He called the provider tax a "sick person's tax," and said that patients usually wind up paying for it.

"Physicians get their money from sick people," he said, explaining that the government then gets its money from the physicians.

Dr. John Boswell could not be reached for comment at presstime Thursday.

Berger was treated and released.

School board member Eddie Patton, who also arrived at the hospital, said he was relieved there were no significant injuries.

"I'm glad no one was hurt seriously or killed," Patton said. "I think transportation director Mr. Ousley will do a thorough investigation."

Kentucky State Police Trooper Les Stapleton said the accident happened at approximately 4:35 p.m. Thursday. He said officials were not certain how the accident happened, but he added that the roadway was wet.

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said that state transportation officials have ignored his efforts to make that section of the highway safer.

"It's a dangerous curve," Thompson said. "I've called Transportation Secretary Jerry Anglin twice to discuss starting a project to do something with that curve. He has never returned my calls."

Responding to the scene were members of the Left Beaver Rescue Squad; Wheelwright fire and police departments; the Floyd County Sheriff's Department and Kentucky State Police troopers Byron Hansford and John Slone.

P & B Ambulance personnel were in route to the scene to provide mutual aide, but were called back.

Stapleton said the investigation is continuing.

Think About It

By: Sheldon Compton

Little Instruction Book of Life

Most people spend their entire lives trying to find the right way to live. They monitor their every action, striving to put right the order of their days and nights. This applies to everyone, not just to a select few. We are all the same, whether we like to admit it or not. Though some tend to worry about how they handle things more than others, they still maintain their own personality and method.

This was all brought to my attention about a week ago when I was at my girlfriend's house. Her parents had ordered a potty for their granddaughter Felicia, one of those kinds that plays music each time the child decides to make use of it. Carrie and I were being our usual nosy selves and going through the box. We weren't looking for anything in particular but did run upon something during our idle pilfering.

"What's this little book?" Carrie had said.

We both looked at the book's cover which was about as big as a CD case and written along the top was, "Life's Little Instruction Book."

"Must be a book for babies," I said. "It's probably just pictures of dogs and balloons, you know, baby stuff."

Soon we had discarded the little book and went on to bigger and better things. They were testing the musically inclined potty under the kitchen sink.

Later, after the excitement had died down we had settled back into a TV show. Then I decided to take a closer look at the little instruction book. I grabbed it up and began flipping the pages expecting to see the Cat in the Hat giving visual, step by step instructions. But, that wasn't the case at all. I found quickly that the book was basically just a list of helpful hints to help you live a better life. This was no baby's book! This was a book that could give perfectly valid advice to anyone who might happen to pick it up. I decided to check the author. A man by the name of H. Jackson Brown Jr. had written it and I was pretty sure he had nothing in common with Dr. Seuss. I then went directly to the introduction. Here, Brown had written that this book had began as a simple list that he jotted down for his son who was leaving home to go to college.

As I continued on through the list of tips, which compiled, made up one-hundred and four, I found that this thin book was a cornucopia of invaluable advice. Here are some examples:

* Don't overlook life's small joys while searching for the big ones.

* Don't judge people by their relatives.

* When there is a hill to climb, don't think that waiting will make it smaller.

There are also tips in the book that are practical and apply to everyday life, such as:

* Never drive while holding a cup of hot coffee between your knees.

* Watch "The Andy Griffith Show" to help put things in perspective.

* Accept a breath mint if someone offers you one.

But, probably the most helpful advice in this book is the advice given about loving.

* Believe in love at first sight.

* Love deeply and passionately. You might get hurt, but it's the only way to live life completely.

I've decided to keep this book in case I have children of my own someday. I'm going to put it on my bookshelf and regard it as one of the most important books I own. I also found out that this book was Volume II so I'm now on the search for Volume I. It may take awhile, but it's a quest I must take. And if I find it, and it's a book that's somewhat out of my price range, I'll simply remember tip #77:

* When you find something you really want, don't let a few dollars keep you from getting it.

Martin Elementary—math/science grant

by Geoff Belcher
Floyd County Schools
As Kentucky's schools continue striving toward their goal of academic excellence and education reform, one Floyd County school has taken a giant leap forward.

Martin Elementary, one of Floyd County Schools' oldest existing institutions was recently awarded Morehead State University's only 1994-1995 Math and Science Alliance Mini Grant for the entire sixth educational district.

"We're thrilled that Martin Elementary has been selected to participate in the Math and Science Alliance," Martin Elementary Principal Carole Combs said Thursday. "This grant will be very beneficial in further implementing our KERA goals."

Martin Elementary teacher Coley Martin will be the school's representative to the Math and Science Alliance, Combs said, and the $800 grant will be used to purchase advanced instructional materials and to take students on educational field trips.

The school will also select a contact person from Prestonsburg Community College to help plan the best methods for expenditure of the grant.

"Caney Creek Traveling Theatre performs at Duff"

On Friday afternoon, September 23, the students, faculty, and staff of Duff Elementary were entertained and educated by Laura Lee and Michael Duncan O'Connell (and child) or better known as the "Caney Creek Traveling Theatre" from Morehead.

This "mini" theatre weaves a scrumptious serving of live, rollicking music, soaring vocal harmonies, outrageous humor, audience participation, and masterful storytelling into a one-of-a-kind, unforgettable performing arts event!

Issues and themes addressed were self-esteem, personal safety, and drug prevention.

In addition to entertainment, teachers were provided guides for academic expectations of KERA learner goals and outcomes. Written directly from KERA's curriculum planning map, the teacher guides were used as pre- and post-learning objectives.

Sponsoring this event were Kitty Frazier, guidance counselor and Judy Handshoe, director of the Family Resource Center.

Making music

Michael Duncan O'Connell sang while Duff student Samantha Slone played the tambourine.

A little help from friends

Laura Lee O'Connell had a little help from her friends, Duff students Gary Hunter and Ryan Owens, during a performance at Duff Elementary.

Rock message

AM/PM, a Christian Rock group, delivered its message through music to students at Duff Elementary.

Duff Elementary "Rocks" in the new school year

The James A. Duff Elementary School students, faculty, and staff were welcomed back to school on Wednesday, August 31, with a performance by the Christian Rock group "AM/PM" from Florida. This group is affiliated with Southeastern Showtime Assemblies.

"AM/PM" was invited back by popular demand not only because of great entertainment, but also because of a message against drugs, violence, and disrespect to each other.

Cindy Gibson was chosen to receive a free T-Shirt from the band! Cindy, an eighth grader, is the daughter of Janet Frazier and Tommy Gibson.

Sponsoring this event were Judy Handshoe, director of the Duff Family Resource Center and Kitty H. Frazier, guidance counselor.

Harold academic team at it again

The Harold Academic Team began a new season Saturday, September 10th with an Eastern Kentucky League competition at Pikeville High School.

The Harold team had its work cut out for them to maintain its excellent record from last year. The day began with quick recall matches against three extremely difficult teams. In the first game, Harold came away with an overwhelming victory against Phelps. The final score was 20-3.

Unfortunately, Harold's extreme efforts were not enough to overcome Pikeville and Paintsville. Harold also had a very good day in the written assessment part of the competition, with J.R. Conn placing second in mathematics and all other team members placing in the top ten.

Harold's latest competition was on Saturday, September 24. It was also held at Pikeville High School. Harold had even greater success at this competition. Harold won four out of four quick recall games. In the first match against Millard, Harold came away with an overwhelming victory of 25-11.

Harold completed the day with three more victories. These were against Dorton (21-6), Runyon (18-1), and Mullins (24-5).

In the written assessment area, Harold also did a marvelous job. In Social Studies, Beth Lawson and Ryan Lawson both placed fifth.

In Language Arts, Kristy Stevens placed fifth, Brandis Bradley placed tenth, and J.R. Conn placed eleventh. In Science, Brian Parker placed sixth and Ryan Lawson placed eighth.

In Mathematics, Kristy Stevens placed eighth. In General Knowledge, Beth Lawson placed third highest.

Touching the subject

Glenda Hughes, student coordinator from Southeast Area Health Education Center did presentations on "Good Touch, Bad Touch" for the primary grades at Maytown Elementary. The programs were sponsored by the Maytown Family Resource Center.

Band

The band worked very hard to get ready for the Jenny Wiley Festival parade on October 8. The band has never marched without the help of the high school but did very well in the parade.

This year the band has about 30 members which include: 3 trumpets, 1 flute, 12 clarinets, 2 saxophones, 3 trombones, 1 baritone, 1 tuba and 8 drummers.

The band practiced during 6th period on Mondays, 3rd period on Thursdays and 2nd period on Fridays. The band also practiced every Friday after school until 4:30.

Later on this year, the band hopes to play at the home basketball games and they will be putting on their second annual Christmas concert in December.

The beginning band is off to a great start with a tentative 30 fifth grade members strong. The band also has about 10 junior high students that want to get started in band. These older beginners practice after school on Tuesdays from 4:30-5:30.

Band Boosters

The Band Boosters met for the first time this year on Tuesday, September 20, at 7 p.m. in the band room. There were six band parents present.

The group began the year with about $50 in their account and with many plans to raise money which will include a fruit sale, dances, etc. Items that were discussed included the Jenny Wiley Festival parade, use of the band uniforms and scheduling of our monthly booster meetings.

The band wore uniforms in the Jenny Wiley Festival parade. Thanks goes out to Mr. Osborne for agreeing to have the school pay to have our uniforms cleaned.

The SBDM and PTA will meet on the third Monday evening of every month while the Band Boosters will meet on the third Tuesday of every month at 7 p.m. in the band room. Everyone is encouraged to attend especially band parents. Election of officers will occur at our next meeting on October 18.

Honor Choir

The McDowell Honor Choir is made up of 30 of the top singers from grades 6-8. At the beginning of the year, 80 students auditioned and the top 30 were selected. There were also 12 alternates selected to possibly participate at a later time.

Billie Jean Osborne helps the choir during their practices on Tuesdays. Ms. Osborne coordinates the county-wide choir program, in which the top students from each school participate.

Guitar Class

David Morris from the Kentucky Opry is guitar teacher at McDowell Elementary. Approximately 10-12 junior high students have decided to take guitar lessons this year. Mr. Morris teaches guitar students on Thursdays for 30 minutes.

Academic Team

The 1994-95 McDowell Academic Team consists of 4 eighth graders, 8 seventh graders and 5 sixth graders. The team has high hopes of doing their best against 13 other teams in the Jenny Wiley Academic Conference. Practices are on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2:35-4:30.

Community Methodist Church - Wheelwright, Kentucky

The United Methodist Church of Wheelwright will celebrate the 70th anniversary of the dedication of the church on October 23, 1994.

The church would like to invite everyone to special services on that day. If you are a former resident of Wheelwright or attended the church at any time, we especially welcome you. After morning service, we will have a "dinner on the ground."

Known originally as the "Son Bowe Chapel," the church was built in 1922 and used for two years before its formal dedication. The church was furnished by several firms doing business with Elkhorn Coal Company at that time. In later years, the church was also known as the Community Church.

While the church is not an old one, as many are, it does have a glorious heritage and figured closely in the development of Wheelwright.

THIS, THAT AND THOSE

Out of the three persons living in our household, I am one of the dumbest. My husband comes in a very close second. If you don't believe us, you can verify the density of our stupidity by asking our son, who of course is the smartest person living under our roof.

This isn't a snap evaluation on our part. Our son has been significantly smarter than us since he received that piece of laminated plastic with his mug shot on it. This not only gave him the ability to become a seasoned driver after a month of intense road handling and sign deciphering, it also gave him the temerity to think that we are brainless nitwits who are out to destroy his good time and ruin his life forever.

"J. R. have you been driving fast?" I asked one evening after I saw him driving through a fast-food drive-thru at warp speed.

"No, Mom. Geez! You always think I'm driving fast."

"I saw you," I intoned.

"It wasn't me."

Duh. When I think about it, what was he supposed to have said? "Yeah, Mom, I was a blur. I almost blew the apron off the waitress when I blew by." Most kids aren't going to admit they've done something that might make life in their households harder on them.

Maybe the reason we get stupid answers is because we ask stupid questions. We're the adults and they're the children, supposedly, then why don't we just quit asking questions and say, "J. R., you have been driving entirely too fast. Please give me the keys to your car. Your driving privileges will be reinstated when you can prove to me that you are responsible enough to drive."

"If I can't drive how can I show you I can be a responsible driver?"

I replied, "Don't get smart with me, wise guy."

A friend of mine told me that she once asked her son if he had ever lied to her. She now says that the question was so stupid because he replied, "Lie to you! My own mom! I'd never lie to you, Mom." Two weeks later he played hooky from school and when confronted replied, "I went to school, I just didn't stay for all the classes."

In a couple of years, we won't seem as stupid to J. R., but I'll still probably seem stupid to Jimmie.

For the Apple Day Terrapin Trots, Big Sandy Drug named their terrapin, Buzzy, after my dad. My dad would have been honored. Of course, the terrapin didn't win, but dad wouldn't have had it any other way. For dad, the fun would have been betting on the terrapins. Doc Salyers, owner and pharmacist at Big Sandy, knew my dad, so the terrapin was aptly named.

My dad and Dan's dad, Dr. Salyers, were great friends. One of my favorite stories about Dad and Doc happened about the time Dad was discharged from the Marines. Dad had a tooth that had been bothering him and he wanted Doc to look at it.

It had been a long evening for both of them when Doc looked in dad's mouth and said, "Buzzy, it won't be long before all your teeth will be bad. You're on the G.I. bill so let's pull them." Dad agreed and took another swig to further deaden the pain and said, "Go ahead."

Dad never did get used to those false teeth. But that was okay because from what I hear, Doc never got his G.I. money either.

Speaking of Big Sandy Drug, and I was, one patron of that establishment has been missing and it's time he came back. get well, J. K. Everyone misses you.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

In suburban Seattle in July, according to allegations, a 33-year-old state trooper, who had made a routine traffic stop of a 20-year-old man who was rushing his girlfriend to an abortion clinic, detained the couple for 90 minutes so they would miss their appointment, while attempting to talk them out of the abortion. They were forced to follow the trooper to a church, where a woman continued to exhort them.

NEW CIVIL RIGHTS

— The city of Buffalo, N.Y., agreed in August to pay $4,000 to two Niagara Falls men arrested in 1991 on drug charges. Police accused the men of swallowing drugs and thus forced them to vomit, which the men said violated their rights.

— Responding to a California law requiring that low-income housing be located in areas other than traditionally poor neighborhoods, the city of San Diego gave final approval in August to a 28-unit project at a seaside community in La Jolla, sandwiched between the Pacific Ocean and a ritzy golf course. The market value of the apartments, which offer panoramic ocean views, is from $300,000 to $500,000 each, but public-housing tenants will typically pay $323 a month, up to $675 a month if their income is as much as $34,000 a year.

— Ben Thomas, a Largo, Fla.,

man with muscular dystrophy, announced in January that he would file a formal complaint against next year's Walt Disney World Marathon. Thomas was denied entry in the wheelchair division because he uses a motorized wheelchair; the USA Track and Field organization specifies that only manual wheelchairs can be used by wheelchair entrants because motorized ones do not present a sufficient competitive challenge. Thomas claims that the Americans With Disabilities Act requires Disney to admit him.

— Last fall, the Utah Court of Appeals dismissed an appeal from state prison officials, who had wanted prisoner Nick Paul, 28, punished under a 1992 law designed to protect guards. Paul was charged with spitting on a guard; under the 1992 law, the court ruled, only the "throwing" of fecal matter and other bodily fluids is punishable.

— In May, a state administrative law judge ruled that University of North Carolina housekeeping employee Eric Browning, 37, must be reinstated in his job. He had been fired for threatening to kill his boss, but the judge said that punishment was too severe.

— Clara Kizer filed a lawsuit against the city of Helena, Ala., and three of her neighbors in April. She claims that because the state possesses "right of way" rights to her, and her neighbors', property close to the street, her dogs ought legally to be able to relieve themselves in that space without the neighbors harassing her.

— At a San Diego public school in February, a 17-year-old boy showed up for class one day with a handgun in his car, which was parked in the school parking lot. School rules called for his expulsion, but his lawyers successfully claimed that he suffers from Attention Deficit Disorder, which caused him to forget that the gun was in the car, and thus he could not be expelled. (School officials said the incident was the first they had heard of the boy's disability.)

LATEST BITES

— Tongues: Javier Salinas, 23, had part of his bitten off by a 35-year-old woman who was defending herself from his alleged sexual assault, in Phoenix in July; Helen Carson bit off part of her husband's in Kingsport, Tennessee, in August, as she pretended to make up after a domestic quarrel.

— Ears: A Tel Aviv, Israel, man was accused of biting off the earlobes of both his estranged wife and her mother in Petah Tikva, Israel, last fall in a family quarrel; a pastor in Libungan, Philippines, accused another pastor of biting off his ear and spitting it out during a fight last spring over which of the two would be in charge of their church.

— Lips: Walter Martell's lower lip was bitten off in a street fight in Central Falls, R.I., in May. (Police located it too late to have it surgically reattached.) California State University at Fresno fullback Chris Burk was charged with biting off the lower lip of another man in a fight in August.

I DON'T THINK SO

Testifying on behalf of a colleague in a murder trial in Hillsboro, Ore., in July, Hell's Angels' leader Ralph "Sonny" Barger said the government's theory — that Michael McClure killed four former Angels in retribution for testifying against another Angels' leader — was wrong. Barger admitted, "We really don't care for [turncoats]," but would not kill them. He was asked what typically would be turncoats' punishment. Answered Barger, "They get voted out of the club."

LEAST JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE

In December, Curtis Shields, 29, was convicted of stabbing a 20-year-old neighbor in Chicago after the two men argued over who had the greater knowledge of black history.

Uh oh. Our spider sense is tingling. And, just like the masked marvel of comic book fame, that can mean just one thing.

Danger. We're not talking about another war in Iraq or a nuclear assault from North Korea.

We're talking about a threat to the very fabric of American democracy; an assault on the one thing which propels us to the forefront of productivity and prods us to greatness.

We're talking about coffee.

Hold the cream.

Hold the sugar.

We remained silent in the past when the Health Conspiracy blackballed cigarettes and lectured us on Good Cholesterol And Bad Cholesterol.

We didn't even make much of a fuss when they told us that overexposure to Bugs Bunny cartoons could drive us all to murder or mayhem.

But this is it.

The last straw.

It's time we stood our ground and rallied 'round Juan Valdez and his donkey, Leroy, the symbolic leaders of our side in this war, and the guys who single-handedly pick every coffee bean in Colombia.

Some nut in Washington...who probably drinks prune juice for his morning pick-me-up...has decided that coffee is an addictive drug that ought to be classified as a controlled substance.

Heck, if they have their way, you'll have to get a prescription for a can of Folgers or hook up with your own neighborhood pusher in a dark alley for a fix.

For crying out loud. Mrs. Olsen--a dope dealer.

Is it any wonder now why there is such a push to outlaw the private possession of firearms?

First they take our guns; then they take our coffee.

Do that in reverse, and the Civil War will look like a game of Twister.

Take our cheeseburgers.

Take our cigarettes. Take our sex lives and strap us in seatbelts.

Touch our coffee cups, though, and die.

That's a promise that's good to the last drop.

HOUSEHOLD HELP

Q. I've been having intermittent problems with my front doorbell for the last several weeks. At times, it will work perfectly. Other times, there seems to be a humming sound coming from the box on my wall. I also have a side entry bell and it works just fine. Can you try to determine what may be causing this kind of problem?

A. There are several things that you will need to check before we can resolve the actual problem. In practically all homes, the doorbell is powered with low voltage that is fed from a transformer that converts your household current to a 12- to 14-volt range.

Some possible causes for occasional failure can be the wiring, transformer, a faulty switch or even the bell itself. You mentioned that your side entry doorbell works fine, so the odds are that the switch on your front doorbell is defective. Most bells have very small screws that secure them to the wall, so start by removing them. After removing the push button, check to see that the wires are making good contact to the two screws behind the switch. If the connections appear to be good, just remove each wire and touch them together. Keep in mind that this is very low voltage and not your ordinary household current. If the doorbell rings, you have found your problem in the push button. Alternatively, if there is no bell, try cleaning the terminals with a very fine sandpaper. If that is a no-go, your local hardware dealer will carry a replacement switch or you may just want to change the entire bell.

If the cleaning doesn't work, I suspect a wiring defect or possibly a burned-out transformer. You must locate the transformer by tracing the wires from the bell. See if the wires that lead to the transformer are making good contact. If you are skeptical about cleaning the wires from the transformer itself, turn off the master electric switch before disconnecting. If that still doesn't work, remove the transformer and have it tested at an electrical supply dealer before you purchase a replacement.

Is grade school conditioning part of practice time?

It took a long time to get the Floyd County School Board to pass a policy that would govern the athletics on the grade school level.

On July 14, 1992, the Board implemented policies that would set seasons for football and basketball in Floyd County.

Football was allowed to begin practice on the opening day of school and would run to the last Thursday of October.

With the football season being defined, the grade school basketball season was not allowed to begin until the final Friday in October.

The problem was that if basketball was allowed to start sooner, it caused the players to make a choice between football and basketball, thus taking players out of the football program toward the end of the season.

With the policy in place, the intention was to help the student-athlete in making that decision. If there was no basketball practice, then the student-athlete could concentrate solely on football.

In the policy drawn up by then assistant superintendent Pete Grigsby Jr. and then athletic director Frankie Francis, the Board inserted that a school that did not have football could start basketball practice the final 10 days of the football season.

Now, that was in 1992. Last year we had an athletic council to oversee the program and this year we have gone back to a "elementary athletic director" of sorts.

Brent Allen is the new overseer of the grade school program and he said that this year's council ruled that no grade school basketball team could practice before the football season ended.

"When I came into it," said Allen, "I wanted to just start from scratch. We met with the coaches and this is one of the issues we talked about."

"The coaches voted that basketball practice would not start until after the football season had ended," he said.

In a meeting held on October 10 of this year, the Elementary School Athletics Committee voted 13-0 that the start of boys' basketball in the county will be the first Monday after the last football game (October 31). The last football game is scheduled for October 29. The motion at the meeting was made by Duff coach Ronnie Patton and seconded by Betsy Layne's Dwight Newsome.

Allen said he understands how a kid playing football might be afraid of getting behind the rest of his team if they have already started basketball conditioning.

That would cause him to leave the football program early in order to take part in the conditioning exercises.

"We don't want the coaches breaking the rules," said Allen. "If they take a basketball and start shooting that constitutes practice. I don't feel that conditioning is practice."

"The problem we have is that we don't have the NCAA-type investigators to find out who is breaking the rules. I have told all the coaches that if there is a problem to bring it to me and say who's doing what. Mention their names."

Both football and basketball coaches at each elementary program should work together.

"That's the bottom line," said Allen. "Both coaches working together."

A basketball coach should discourage a football player from leaving the program just to take part in his conditioning exercises. He should encourage the player to finish out the football season before reporting to practice.

Pass versus pass as Rebels visit Magoffin Co.

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

One thing is for sure when the Allen Central Rebels visit Magoffin County tonight. The footballs will be flying and there will be no need for either coach to put eight men on the line, but rather hope their secondary doesn't tire out.

Both Allen Central and the Hornets love to air it out and tonight's matchup may take a while to play.

Magoffin County has the third best passer in the state in Mike Caba (6', 161) and he is a legitimate quarterback. An accurate thrower, Caba has passed for over 1,600 yards this season.

But like all quarterbacks, there must be good receivers and the Hornets have three, with the best one sitting out the season with an injury.

Jason Wages, who was injured earlier, has yet to play a down, but the "strike force" of Jason Robinette (5' 10", 138), Brian Risner (6' 3", 181) and running back Grayson Smith (6' 2", 217) make the Hornets dangerous.

Downfield coverage for the Rebels is a must as Robinette likes to go deep. Smith will run out of the backfield and into the flats for the short yardage. Risner is just a super receiver for the 15-20 yard pickup.

The Hornets are 4-4 on the season overall and have had a disappointing 1-4 district record. Coach Mitch Caba was hoping for a playoff berth, the first ever, for his squad this year.

Allen Central is coming in with a two game winning streak after a 34-14 win over South Floyd last Friday night.

Coach Glenn Reeves has gone back to the run-and-shoot offense after first abandoning his running game after two games, and now his passing game in the last two.

The Rebels will throw the football 60 percent of the time. No longer can the secondary just sit back and wait. But quarterback Adam Coleman may run the football on one possession and then come out throwing the next.

The Rebels' backfield has come a long way since the first of the season and the new offensive mixture has put some points on the scoreboard for the Rebels.

The emergence of Beau Tackett out of the backfield and the insertion of James Osborne into the backfield has helped improve the Rebels' running game.

Tackett, a sophomore, has been hard for the opposition to stop of late and has racked up some yardage. He rushed for over 150 yards at McCreary Central two weeks ago and grounded out 97 against South Floyd last week.

Osborne is the big third-and-short

Magoffin County rolls past Little Rebels 30-8

The Magoffin County Middle School Hornets recorded their first win of the season with a 30-8 win over the Allen Central Little Rebels last Tuesday night at Allen Central.

Ricky Arnett scored three touchdowns and kicked three PATs to lead the Hornets. Jeremy Risner ran one touchdown in for the Hornets.

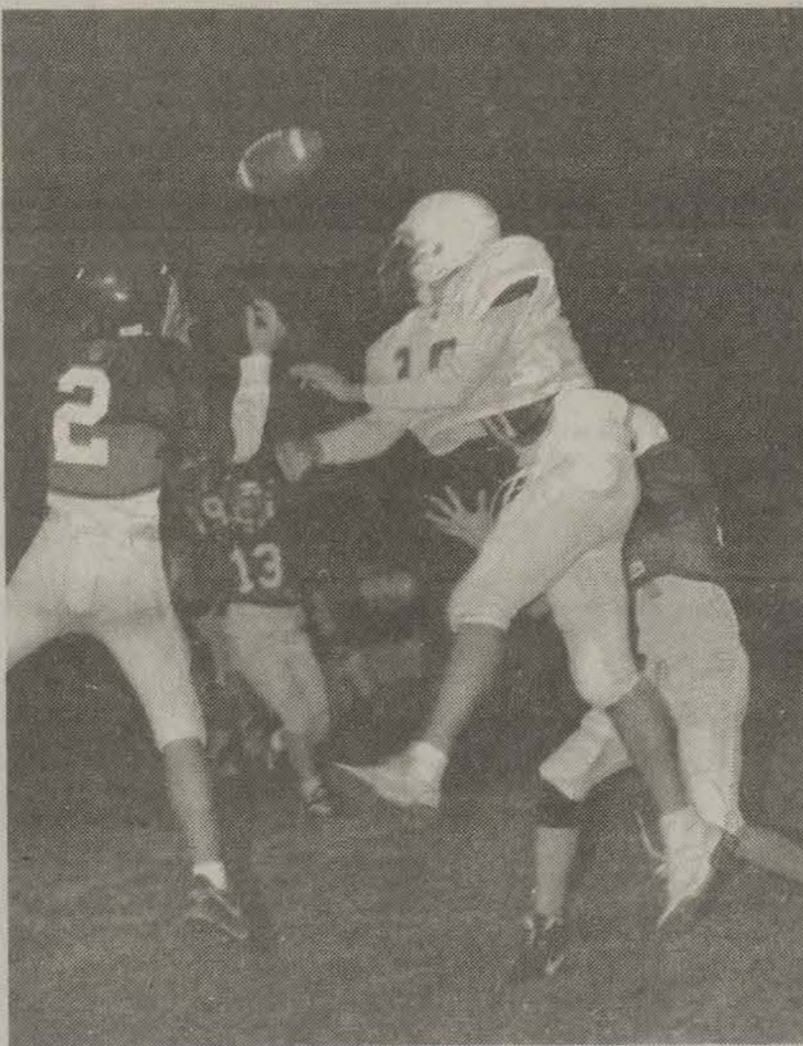

Arnett gave the Hornets a 8-0 lead in the first quarter when he ran into the end zone from 5-yards out. He added the PAT.

In the second period, Arnett scored on a 5-yard run and again kicked the extra points to send Magoffin County out to a 16-0 lead.

In the same quarter, Jeremy Risner, on a sweep, avoided three would-be tacklers and ran 12 yards for the third TD for Magoffin County. Arnett nailed the PAT and it was 24-0.

Arnett then scored in the third period on a 4-yard run and missed the extra points. Magoffin led 30-0

Allen Central avoided the shutout when Rodney Bentley scored on a 24-yard run with time running out. Jonathan Ellis kicked the PAT for the final 30-8 score.

Paige, Hamilton win Jenny Wiley Festival tennis tournament

by Willie Elliott
Contributing Writer

To add to the list of festivities and activities that go with the Jenny Wiley Festival, the first annual Jenny Wiley Festival tennis tournament was held the weekend of October 7-9.

In a tense three-set match, Butch Paige and Wes Hamilton defeated Greg Ratliff and Chris Waugh in the championship round.

Down one set and losing 5-2 in the second set, Paige and Hamilton fought back. The tandem saved a match point in the second set and went on to win the second set in a tie-breaker. This propelled them to a 6-3 score in the third set to close out the match.

This tournament closes out the tennis season for the Prestonsburg area.

McCreary Central visits as...

South Floyd still searching for initial win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The South Floyd Raiders are about to close their second season of football and are still looking for their initial win as the McCreary Central Raiders (3-5) visit tonight.

McCreary has dropped their last two games, including one to Allen Central two weeks ago. They fell to Eminence last week 27-0, as South Floyd was defeated by Allen Central 34-14.

Both teams, nicknamed Raiders, will engage in battle at Brackett Field.

South Floyd may be without their starting quarterback, freshman Nick Compton, who was injured earlier in a junior varsity game at Allen Central last Monday night.

This South Floyd team has played hard all season. They are out of the never give up mold. But the Raiders must get more offensive production out of Chad Stone, who started the season on a tear.

Adam Wright has shouldered the offensive load for coach Donnie Daniels' team. Wright has rushed for 159 and 116 yards in his last two games.

They are getting a look at some promising freshmen. Ketrin Mays is one of those standouts. Mays has good speed, but needs more experience in carrying the football.

Terrance Mullins has shown much improvement at his split end position. He has good hands and runs the routes well.

Kevin Johnson is another receiver

Combs listed among state's top 10 prospects

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Betsy Layne High School, nestled in the hills of Eastern Kentucky, has never had a reputation for having a dominating high school football team.

In fact, the Bobcats have never had a player go on and make it big in the college ranks.

The Bobcat program seemed to be changing coaches as often as the leaves changed which was every season.

But now, John Derossett has taken the helm of the Bobcats and is currently in his third season at the school.

Having a name player with such a little known program is unusual. But Brandon "Bubba" Combs (6'3", 280) has been tagged for the next level ever since he was in the eighth grade at Betsy Layne. As a freshman he was labeled as a "can't miss" candidate.

Combs is a senior at Betsy Layne this season and his reputation as a defensive player has dwindled.

He continues to be the Bobcats' leading defensive player and has caught the eye of some of the nation's leading new periodicals.

Pigskin Preps recently placed Combs as one of the top 10 prospects in the state of Kentucky to move to the next level next season.

Combs was picked All-Sandy Valley, All-Mountain as he plays offensive tackle at Betsy Layne. Scouts will tell you that he will be a guard on a college team next season.

Pigskin Prep says of Combs: "an extremely good drive blocker and is among the state's top 10 prospects."

Combs can bench press 300 pounds and squat lift 425. He has a 3.1 GPA and has already scored an 18 on his ACT. Several colleges are looking at Combs.

After week off...

Betsy Layne to host Elkhorn City tonight

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Bobcats are hoping for a repeat of last year's football season when they finished 5-5 for the first time in several years.

Tonight the Bobcats host the Elkhorn City Cougars in a 7:30 p.m. start.

They will conclude their season with a road game at Knott County Central October 28.

The Cougars are coming off a disappointing 26-14 loss to Phelps last week which might have knocked them out of a playoff berth.

Betsy Layne's last win was two weeks ago when they handed Berea a 20-14 setback.

Elkhorn City is 2-6 overall but has a 2-3 record in the district. They trail Phelps and Fleming-Neon by a game, having played one game more. The Cougars close their season next Friday at South Floyd.

Coach Derrick Potter, sixth coach for the Cougars in six years, says that the game, although not a district game, is important to his team.

"It's going to be a momentum builder for us going into the last game of the season," he said.

The Cougars are still alive for a playoff berth if they can pull out a win over South Floyd. But the Betsy Layne game is a catapult into that game.

"We have to win at South Floyd next week," said Coach Potter. "It's just another game that we have to win."

A loss to Betsy Layne would have no effect on the district standings but the Elkhorn coach is not only looking for a momentum builder but a program builder as well.

"One thing this program needs, and it hasn't had over the past six years, is continuity," said Coach Potter. "We are trying to rebuild the program and find that continuity and each win goes toward doing that. That makes this game a big one for us."

Isaac Swiney will quarterback the Cougars. Coach Potter describes him opening the holes. "The line makes the holes, I just run through them," said Lyons. Willie Meade, Wes Collins and Jarred Newsome scored touchdowns for the Bobcats. On defense the Bobcats were led by Jarred Newsome, Stewart Hall and Rich Newsome. Timmy Nunnemaker and Willie Meade came up with some key receptions for Betsy Layne. Betsy Layne will close out their JV schedule this Monday against Belfry.

Whitley County Penalties

After an extensive investigation by the KHSAA of Whitley County High School, Commissioner Louis Stout has found the following violations - (Bylaw 1) the use of an ineligible player and (Bylaw 2) responsibility for eligibility by the member school.

The violations occurred after Eugene Smith participated in football this season. Smith, a sophomore, was declared ineligible after transferring from Williamsburg to Whitley County by Stout and the ruling was upheld in July after its appeal to the KHAA Board of Control.

In summary, the following penalties have now been assessed by Commissioner Stout:

- Whitley County will forfeit any and all games that were won while permitting Eugene Smith to participate. (Smith participated in the school's opening game, a 55-0 win over Pike County Central.)

- Whitley County will not be permitted to participate in preseason scrimmages in football for the 1995 and 1996 football seasons, with the exception of participation in the panorama required for conference eligibility.

- Whitley County will make restitution to the KHSAA for all legal fees incurred in connection with this matter and shall enter into an agreement to seek no further administrative or legal remedy in this matter and to immediately withdraw all pending matters in this case.

- Whitley County will not be eligible for district and regional financial shares from football structured by its respective district and region for games in which Whitley County does not participate.

- Whitley County will report, in writing, for the remaining football season and for the 1995 and '96 seasons, its football schedules and schedule of all football activities and a weekly eligibility status of all football players.

- The football program at Whitley County will remain on probation for the remainder of the 1994-95 school year and through the 1995 football season. Any further violations by Whitley County during this probationary period will result in the school being given the "death penalty," an indefinite suspension from the KHSAA.

- Whitley County must now fully cooperate in the investigation into the transfer of Smith from Williamsburg to Whitley County.

Lincoln County Probation

On Sept. 29, 1994, KHSAA Commissioner Louis Stout placed the entire Lincoln County High School athletic department on probation through the 1994-95 basketball season due to violations of Bylaw 8. After an internal investigation by Lincoln County High School, it was found that three student-athletes — Joey Clausen, Jason Mullins and Andy Getter participated on a non-school sponsored basketball team in a three-on-three tournament earlier in September. The three student-athletes were also placed on probation through the upcoming basketball season.

Lincoln County has since removed Jack Upchurch as coach of the basketball team and declared all three student-athletes ineligible for the first three regular season games.

After a request to the KHSAA by Lincoln County Superintendent Bruce Johnson to reconsider the imposed sanctions due to internal actions taken by Lincoln County High School, Stout has amended the sanctions and placed the Lincoln County High School basketball program on probation for the 1994-95 school year. As a result, probation for the entire athletic program and the three student-athletes will be discontinued.

Any subsequent violations by the Patriots' basketball program this school year could result in a more severe penalty.

VOLLEYBALL

Regional Week

Regional tournament action gets underway across the state this week in volleyball. The winner and runner-up from each region will advance to the state tournament next week at Ryle High School. The championship will be held Oct. 28-29, 1994.

The tournament has been expanded from 12 teams to 16 teams this year. First round action gets underway at 6 p.m. on Oct. 28. The quarterfinals will be played on Oct. 29 beginning at 9 a.m. with the semifinals to follow at 2 and 3:30 p.m. The championship match will begin at 7:30 p.m.

FOOTBALL

Undefeated Teams

Two more teams suffered their first loss of the season this past weekend as the number of undefeated teams statewide falls to 12. Falling from the ranks include Bowling Green, who was defeated by district foe Franklin-Simpson 16-14. Bowling Green led 14-3 in the fourth quarter, but Dee Spencer scored on a 1-yard sneak to cut the lead to 14-10. Franklin

Simpson got the ball back inside the final five minutes and nine plays later, Dee Spencer hit Chad Spencer for a 15-yard scoring pass to give Franklin-Simpson the win.

Also suffering its first loss was Campbell County, which allowed Bryan Station quarterback Traye Moore to hit Mike Clayborne on a 5-yard scoring pass with 22 seconds remaining to steal the win 34-29.

So the Dandy Dozen with undefeated records (all 8-0) are: Class A - Beechwood, Williamsburg; Class 2A — Bullitt East, Danville and Russell; Class 3A - Franklin-Simpson, Harrison County and Leslie County; Class 4A - Henderson County, Male, Iroquois and Boone County.

Scoring

Offensive statistics in Kentucky are on the rise. After a decline the last two years in points scored by the winning team of a Kentucky high school regular season game, the state is on pace to experience a record number of points scored in 1994.

The winning team this season is averaging 31.5 points per game. Even the losing team in each game is averaging 10.8 points per game, the first time in state history losing teams have averaged in double figures. This is quite a contrast to the 1988 season, where winning teams averaged only 25.9 points per game and losing teams averaged 7.6 points per game.

In 1991, the state saw its previous high average of 30.7 points per game scored by the winning team. In both 1992 and 1993, losing teams scored a previous state high of 9.5 points per game.

Over the last seven years, point margin between winning and losing teams increased until 1991, and has since decreased. In 1991, the average winning margin was 21.6 points per game, while the last two years, that figure has dropped to 20.7 points per game. In 1989, the state experienced its closest games with the average winning margin at 17.7 points per game.

These stats have been compiled since 1988.

New Colonels

The Henderson County Colonels, 1-9 a year ago, are currently unbeaten at 8-0, their best start since the merger of the city and county schools in 1976. That team started 14-0 before losing to Louisville Trinity in the state championship game. Last week, Henderson County defeated Apollo 42-15.

Beechwood's Scare

Beechwood had a different star this week in its 20-14 win over Lloyd. Brett Brockhoeft, a senior tailback, scored all three TDs for the Tigers plus a two-point conversion. He scored on runs of 80 and 2 yards and added a 23-yard TD pass from quarterback Greg Hergott. But his biggest play came as time ran out when he stopped Lloyd's Shaun Abney with a tackle on second down and goal from Beechwood's four-yard line.

Future football at Betsy Layne looks bright after the Bobcats junior varsity squad remained undefeated, posting a 30-26 win over Prestonsburg this past Monday night.

Ray Lyons rushed for over 100 yards to help lead the Bobcats to a perfect 4-0 record.

The offensive line of Brad Kimbler, Clifton Boyd, Stewart Hall, Shawn Keathley and Darrin Reynolds had a big impact on the game in

The Bobcats are looking for an even season while Prestonsburg looks to solidify their hold on second place. Sheldon Clark will win over Shelby Valley. On the pro circuit, the Browns are expected to reap continued woes upon the Bengals.

Protecting quarterback job for Pirates tonight

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Morgan County Pirates will provide the opposition for Prestonsburg Homecoming '94 game tonight and Coach Terry Chinn's ballclub would like nothing more than to pull off a major upset. But even the veteran coach knows that the Blackcats are tough at home.

"They are awful hard to beat on their home field," said Chinn. "It is a difficult place to play. We have played well in the last two games."

Morgan County will bring their 3-5 record into the Prestonsburg stadium and the Pirates are tied with Magoffin County for last place in their district with a 1-4 mark.

If there is anyone on this team to be concerned about, it would be junior quarterback Danny Deborde.

Deborde has established himself as one of the promising signal callers in the district.

Deborde has tossed for just over 850 yards this season and tossed for six touchdowns. He has been intercepted 11 times and most of those came in the first half of the season.

While the Pirates don't throw the football that much, Deborde is capable of finding his receivers.

One of those receivers is senior back Damon Ballinger (6'2", 190). Also senior Wade O'Connor (5'10", 160) is a favorite target of Deborde.

Aaron Cummins is the feature back for the Pirates in a backfield that is rather thin after him. O'Connor joins Cummins and Ballinger in the backfield as well as freshman Travis Stacy (5'7", 135).

The Pirates struggled on the ground at the start of the season and was minus yardage through the first two games.

Ballinger, Cummins and O'Connor began to get their game together and the Pirates went on to post their first win over Betsy Layne.

They are coming off a 24-6 win over Pike County Central this past Friday night.

Coach Chinn's Scouting Report....

"They are a team that runs the football extremely well," said Coach Terry Chinn, Pirates head coach. "I am very impressed with the (Thomas) Ratliff kid. He runs the offense very well and is a good option quarterback.

"But they are not the team they were last year. (Jon) Morris is doing a great job for them out of the backfield. He has some good moves and will be a problem for us," he said.

Keys to a Pirate win...

Coach Chinn said that his ballclub has solved one problem which they had earlier in the year and that was taking care of the football.

"We have improved there since the first of the year," he said. "We're on the plus side in that area. But that is going to be a big key to beating Prestonsburg."

Coach Chinn said that a victory lays in three phases of the game:

- Taking care of the football. "That's a must," he said. "We can't afford many turnovers."

- Stopping Prestonsburg's running game. "We have to play good defense against them."

- Protecting the Pirates' quarterback. "We know they are going to be blitzing with (Larry) Morris. We have to give Deborde some protection."

Coach Chinn hopes to be able to capitalize on the Prestonsburg secondary and "hopefully get one going."

Prestonsburg can clinch tie for second tonight

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Homecoming 1994!

The Prestonsburg Blackcats (5-3, 3-1) will host their annual fall homecoming tonight at the Prestonsburg stadium as some very lovely young ladies via for homecoming queen.

The stage is set for the festivities as well as for the the opposition.

The Morgan County Pirates (3-5, 1-4) will invade the stadium in a district game that is very important to Prestonsburg.

Morgan County, eliminated from a playoff berth, will come into tonight's game looking to be a spoiler.

The Blackcats could sew up at least a tie for second place with Sheldon Clark (4-4, 3-2) with a victory. The Cards must win at Shelby Valley (4-4, 2-3) tonight to stay close to Prestonsburg.

A Prestonsburg win, along with a Sheldon Clark loss, would give the second-place slot to the Blackcats. The second-place club will enjoy the first playoff game at home.

Prestonsburg is coming off a very emotional high after nipping the Cardinals last Friday night, 28-25. Sheldon Clark missed a field goal attempt with 12 seconds left in an effort to tie the game.

The Blackcats have been unpredictable this season compared to when they approached the playoffs last season. But this is a team that could very well be a surprise when the second begins in three weeks.

Sophomore Jon Morris has been nothing short of sensational in the past four weeks. Morris has rushed for 373 yards in the last four games and has scored eight touchdowns.

Senior quarterback Thomas Ratliff is right behind Morris in rushing. The signal caller has rushed for 301 yards in the last four outings. He has scored four touchdowns.

Mike Shepherd had a strong outing against Sheldon Clark last Friday night. While the stats show that he only picked up 43 yards, they fail to show that he picked up some valuable real estate on third down plays.

Clint Shutts and Ryan Ortega continue to flag down the Ratliff passes.

Defensively, the Blackcats are set behind the leadership of senior linebacker Larry Morris. Morris is averaging just over six tackles per game. The emergence of Waylon Bevins and the return of Tim Layne will beef up the middle game for Prestonsburg.

Paul Collins is a hard nose guard and has showed his defensive skills in the past four weeks. A strong offensive lineman, Collins runs the blocks.

Homecoming activities will take place before the game.

Prestonsburg will close out their regular season on the road against M.C. Napier. With a victory, they will host the playoffs in three weeks.

A "High-Five" Salute To All Floyd County Teams!

Paintsville captures NEKC Cross-Country meet

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Paintsville boys' and girls' cross-country teams captured the NEKC Cross-Country Meet at the Paintsville Lake this past Tuesday evening by outscoring both Raceland and Fairview.

It was a repeat performance for the girls' team as they captured the event last year.

Paintsville placed six runners in the top 10 of the girls event giving them 28 points for the meet.

After Raceland claimed the top two spots, Paintsville took six of the final eight to win it all.

Jessica Damron of Raceland had a time of 18:34 for first place. Teammate Melissa Wilson was 10 seconds behind her for second place.

But Paintsville, who has been strong all season, had Kim Osborne and Ashley Roe in the third and fourth positions.

Fairview's Jamie Day placed fifth, but Paintsville claimed the next three positions as Nora Ellen Lusk, Cassie Cooper and Martha Kelly placed sixth through eighth.

Jana Hancock of Raceland finished ninth and Paintsville's Jennifer Russell rounded out the top ten.

Placing 11 through 13 were three Paintsville runners: Breanna Patton, Kristie Philpott and Carla McKenzie.

It was a much closer finish for the boys as Paintsville edged out Fairview by a score of 35-34.

Jon Meadows placed first at 20:26 over Raceland's Chad Gabbard at 20:42. Travis Bell of Paintsville was a third place finisher.

The Tigers dominated the final seven positions in edging Fairview. Jeremy Watkins, Klinton Blair and Erik Addington finished sixth through eighth and Mark Grim took the 10th position for Paintsville.

Owens dislocates hip against Magoffin County

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Football is a rough sport and you will get an amen from Allen Central Little Rebels' Jackie Owens.

Owens suffered a dislocated hip, similar to what happen to Bo Jackson, in Tuesday night's elementary game with Magoffin County at Allen Central.

The injury occurred during the second quarter after Owens had taken a pass from quarterback Shawn Henson for a 32-yard pick up. Owens was hit hard down the sidelines.

The injury was diagnosed as not being broken and surgery would not be necessary.

However, the injury will cause Owens to sit the next three months without any contact sports. He could return in January for the final month of the grade school basketball season.

Owens' father, Jackie Edford Owens, said that his son was "a very determined person."

"He is very determined to get back in school," he said. "He has a lot of guts. I don't know if I could handle it like he is."

Owens said that they had to find a doctor that would handle the injury like his son had.

"We found one at St. Joe's," said Owens. "We had so many friends that followed us all the way to Lexington. You don't just know how many friends you do have until something like this happens."

"They ran a scan on him when we first got him there. They were waiting for him. The doctor was pleased with the scan and surgery wasn't needed."

"He told Jackie that next morning that he would have to stay away from contact sports for about three months. He has a lot of will power."

Owens said that this son wanted to prove the doctors wrong and that he could come back sooner.

"He had me up at 2:30 in the morning walking on those crutches. But he also hurt his shoulder in the game and has a hard time using the crutches," he said.

more as a running quarterback.

"He will run the option for us," he said. "He will run the football more than pass it. Isaac does a good job for us."

Jamie Rose will be at the tailback slot and is the team's leading ground gainer. "Jamie has been very consistent for us. He runs the ball very well."

Joe Leathers carries the football for the Cougars, but his coach says it's not his best position.

"Joe plays a real strong game on defense at cornerback," said the Cougar mentor. We realize that we have to stop number 10 (Timmy Nunnemaker) of Betsy Layne, and Joe will be the one we put on him."

Coach Potter's scouting report...

"Betsy Layne is a big team. We're not. They are physical and have a veteran team back from last year," said Coach Potter. "We have just seven seniors and it is going to be a challenge for us."

"We will have to play the best game that we are capable of playing in order to win. They are a well coached ballclub. Coach (John) Derosssett has done an excellent job."

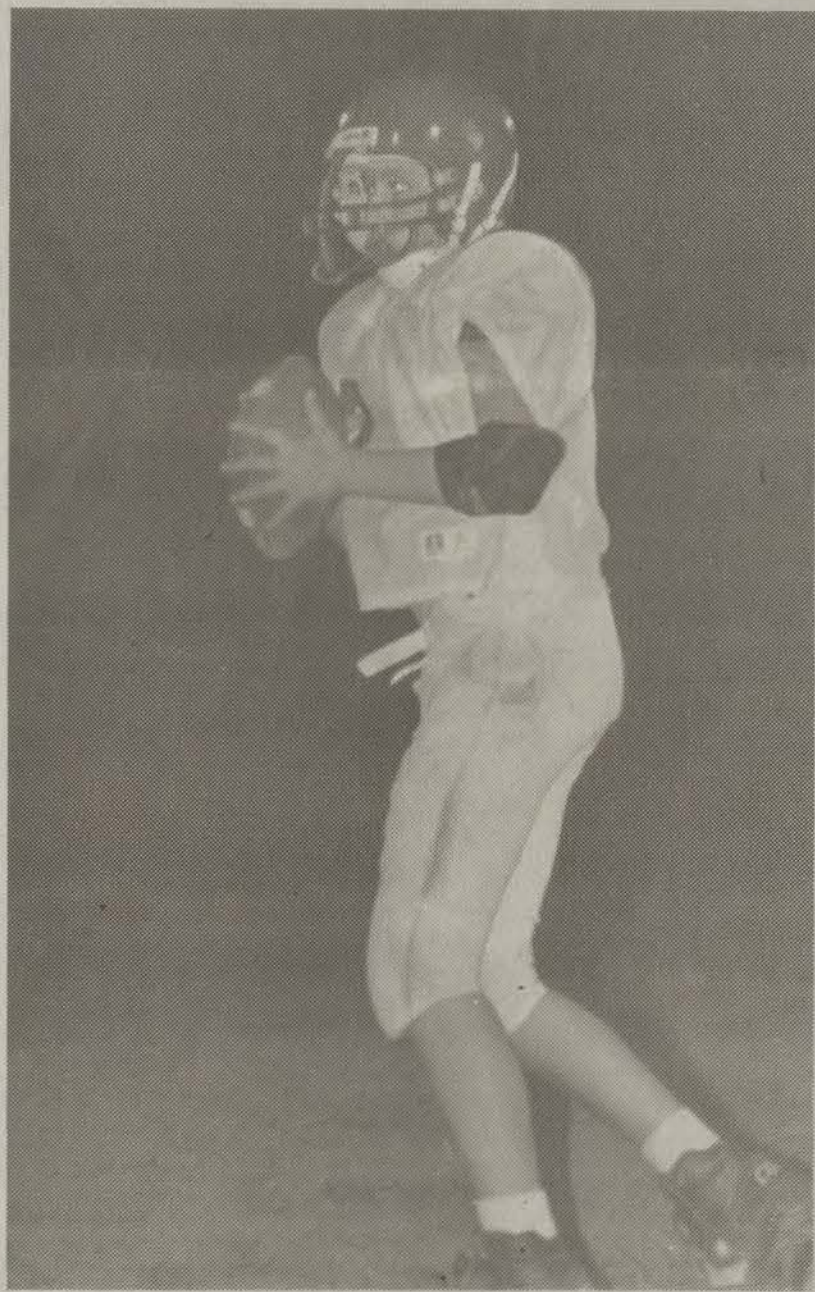

One area of concern for Coach Potter is the running of Rocky Hamilton.

"We are concerned about him," said Potter. "He's a strong runner. I like number 10. He's a good receiver. They're both good."

"In order for us to win we will have to stop both of them. I feel that it will be a good game," he said.

Injured list...

"We have Bobby Taylor out," said the Cougar coach. "He will miss tonight's game."

A Look At Sports

In a letter-to-the-editor (this issue) Debra Hayes and Sandra Brooks (Sandy Valley Bobcats) stated that "it was a shame that the basketball 'conditioning' has already started."

They cited the fact that the policy was set last year that basketball practice would not start until football season was over. "It's not over," they stated. And they are right!

The question that needs to be answered: "Is conditioning part of basketball practice?"

Allen says he personally doesn't consider it to be. However, he doesn't want any of the kids to be taken away from football because of it.

Some of the county elementary football players have been told that it is too late to sign up for basketball because the school has already conducted their sign ups. If that be true, then the basketball coaches are wrong. No kid should be told that it is too late to sign up.

This has been an on going problem in the county and rules that were inserted in 1992 should stand today.

If a team's conditioning program is causing players to defect from the football team, then conditioning should not be allowed to start until football season is finished.

So it goes!
GET WELL SOON
JACKIE...

We want to take this space to wish Jackie Owens a speedy recovery from a hip injury suffered during last Tuesday night's football game.

We understand he is home and determined to be back sooner than expected.

You keep your head up Jackie, you'll be back.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

runner that just barrels his way through the line.

Finesse and heart belong to Josh Reeves, the third runner in the backfield.

Good hands belong to a trio of receivers. Thomas Jenkins, Estill Stumbo and Kevin Stumbo give Coleman three large targets. All three are strong and can go high for the football.

Coleman is also an excellent option quarterback that gives the Rebels added depth in the backfield.

However, this one may not even involve the backfield. It certainly won't on the Magoffin County side. Caba knows his job and does it well.

Allen Central will be up for this one and the Hornets reputation as a passing team will definitely challenge the likes of Brad Blackburn, Jenkins, and Kevin Stumbo.

The Rebels front line has improved and the defense of Shawn Robinson, Eric Moore and James Osborne should be presented with the challenge of reaching Caba.

Game time is 7:30 p.m.

South Floyd

that has had a good season.

Aaron Hall, what can you say about a kid that plays wherever the coach puts him and never complains..

Hall, who was the starting quarterback last year, has been on the line, in the backfield, at linebacker and on special teams.

Jarrod Compton leads the defensive line for the Raiders. He moved from a linebacker slot to the front line. Compton has led the team in tackles the last four games.

Justin Ray is the last line of defense at safety.

Understand your auto insurance policy and save

Understand your auto insurance policy and save money

Most people know what they get when they pay their mortgage, utility and grocery bills. But few consumers understand exactly what their auto insurance premium pays for. More importantly, many policyholders don't know if their coverage limits are adequate to pay their medical bills and repair costs in the event of an accident.

"Basically, auto insurance pays for two things—repairing people and repairing cars," said Lowell R. Beck, president of the National Association of Independent Insurers (NAII). "Investing a little time to better understand your auto insurance policy can pay off in terms of increased coverage and lower insurance premiums." Below are descriptions of the components that generally make up an auto insurance policy.

BODILY INJURY LIABILITY

Bodily injury liability pays the medical bills of those injured in an auto accident in which you are at fault. For example, if you hit another vehicle and the driver suffered a broken leg, the bodily injury coverage of your insurance policy would cover the other driver's medical and rehabilitation expenses. Likewise, if you were injured in an accident that was not your fault, you would collect from the other driver's bodily injury coverage.

In states with no-fault insurance laws, policyholders' claims are paid by their own insurance company, no matter who is at fault in an accident. No-fault coverage typically pays for your medical expenses, lost wages and incidental replacement costs. By limiting lawsuits to only those accidents in which there are serious injuries, no-fault laws speed delivery of claims payments to policyholders and reduce the number of frivolous lawsuits.

Most states have set minimum "financial responsibility limits" or minimum amounts of liability coverage that each person must carry in case of a car accident. Typical amounts of financial responsibility for bodily injury liability range from $10,000 to $100,000 and will cover one or more people depending on the situation.

UNINSURED AND UNDERINSURED MOTORIST COVERAGE

Even though auto insurance is mandatory in most states, chances are one in seven that if you are in an accident it will be with a driver who is uninsured or underinsured. Uninsured motorist coverage will protect you in the event that the other guy can't pay your medical bills. Underinsured motorist coverage fills the gap when someone doesn't have enough insurance to pay all your medical bills. For example, if a person who is responsible for your injuries has bodily injury liability insurance of only $20,000, but your medical losses total $50,000 underinsured motorist coverage can help pay the difference between your injury costs and the other person's insurance coverage.

COLLISION AND COMPREHENSIVE COVERAGE

Collision coverage pays for damage to your car as a result of a collision with another vehicle or object. Comprehensive coverage pays for other types of non-collision damage such as vandalism, theft, hail and fire.

TOWING AND RENTAL CAR COVERAGE

If you have an older car, buying towing insurance is important. Many people like the security it provides. If you have a newer car, and want to save money, towing coverage may not be needed. Auto clubs often provide towing services to their members. Even some car manufacturers provide this service to new car buyers. Check to see if you have it before you buy duplicate coverage. Rental car coverage, which is fairly inexpensive, provides a rental car, up to a certain dollar amount, while your car is in the shop.

MONEY SAVING TIPS

There are many ways to control the cost of auto insurance. First, shop around. Investigate the coverage options and premiums available to you from a number of companies. Second, see if any of the many discounts available are applicable to you, such as the good student discount; the good driving record discount; multiple policies discount; anti-theft devices discount; senior citizen discount; anti-lock brake discount and air bag discount.

You can also save money by increasing your deductible. The higher the deductible, the lower your premium will be. A note of caution—it's important to calculate the amount you can afford to pay when faced with an unexpected claim. A lower premium may look good when it's time to pay the premium, but if there is a claim, make sure you're able to afford the deductible.

Call to find out car's value

How much is the old buggy worth? That's a question many new car buyers ponder when it comes to the value of their trade-ins.

The Auto Priceline, founded in 1987, offers information 24 hours a day, seven days a week. You can reach the Priceline by dialing 1-900-884-3300 on a Touch-Tone phone and following the instructions. The fee is $2 per minute.

In addition to accessibility, Auto Priceline offers information unavailable elsewhere, Bill Kingsbury says, founder of National Automotive Data Service.

For example, when the Audi had its brake problem, the value of the car plunged drastically. "We can change prices instantly, instead of waiting to print a book," Kingsbury adds.

Eight cold-weather car care checks

Record-breaking winter temperatures can leave you with enough car repairs to break your bank account. That's why it's no time to let simple, preventive car maintenance procedures fly south with the birds. Consider these tips for a smooth ride this winter.

Shocks and Struts — Alternate freezing and thawing can produce hazardous driving conditions — such as potholes. Even the most precise drivers can barely escape a whole winter without a single damaged tire or broken spring, but sometimes the jolt from the one you couldn't dodge can be very expensive. The loss of a muffler and sometimes the pipes that go with it can be prevented by regularly inspecting the undercarriage. If you survive a pothole, let an expert do an alignment check to assess any damage that may have occurred to shock absorbers, struts and other suspension parts.

Tires — When outside temperatures begin to drop, tires should be checked at least once a month, since cold weather reduces your tire's inflation pressure. Driving under inflated tires causes tire tread to wear faster and unevenly, and it can reduce ride performance, affect vehicle handling and decrease your vehicle's fuel efficiency.

Another good habit to continue throughout the season is to check your tires for uneven wear patterns. Uneven wear may signal improper inflation pressure, misalignment, tire and wheel imbalance or suspension problems.

If your vehicle becomes stuck on ice, you should avoid spinning the tires, as the force created from this action can literally rip tires apart.

Brakes — Don't gamble with your brakes; they could save your life. Your braking system, probably the most critical safety system on your car, should be checked periodically this winter. It'll be like buying yourself some peace of mind!

Engine — A severe winter could mean millions of cars failing to start. Excessive exhaust emissions and a polluted atmosphere can dull a picturesque snowfall, and misfiring, knocking and ping-ing is never pretty. Before a "no-start" ruins your day, start out this fall with a well-tuned car.

Oil — Change your engine oil and filter every 3,000 miles (or as specified in your owner's manual) if you do lots of stop-and-go driving, carry heavy loads or drive long distances this fall and winter.

Belts and Hoses — When one needs replacing, you're likely to find more in marginal condition. Rubber components under the hood, exist in a hostile environment, surviving sub-zero temperatures in the winter.

Hoses circulate as much as 7,500 gallons of coolant per hour at up to 18 pounds of pressure — and warrant periodic attention. Failure to maintain your cooling system by flushing and refilling every 24 months with fresh antifreeze can cause freeze-up, overheating and rust and corrosion buildup.

Batteries — Batteries lose their charge over time, especially in cold weather, and cable connections can corrode. A certified technician can test the strength of your battery's charge.

Paint Job — Don't ignore bumps, scrapes, scratches and dings this fall. As winter sub-zero freezes set in, the damage is likely to get worse as rusting sets in.

Don't delay! Fall's already here and winter's on its way!

Put used oil in its place

More than half of all motorists change their own oil and, according to the U.S. EPA, these "do-it-yourselfers" (DIYers) generate more than 200 million gallons of used motor oil annually. Unfortunately, EPA estimates that only about one-third of this oil is properly collected and recycled. Instead, many DIYers simply dump this valuable resource in their backyards or into the sewer drain. As you might guess, this practice is damaging to our groundwater and our streams and rivers.

For example, it only takes one quart of used motor oil to foul 250,000 gallons of drinking water. It also wastes a valuable resource. A local power plant can provide enough energy to run the average household for 24 hours by burning just 2 gallons of used oil. Used oil can also be re-refined into new lubricating oils. The American Petroleum Institute (API) and its members have set up a used motor oil recycling program designed to provide convenient used-oil collection centers for the public. API's members provide almost 8,000 service stations and quick lubes nationwide for these DIYers to bring their used motor oil for recycling.

API members have also crafted model used-oil collection legislation, which has been adopted by 13 states thus far. Another 14 states are currently reviewing the legislation and considering its adoption. The bill sets up a state used-oil fund to provide grants to local governments that want to set up used-oil collection centers for DIYers. The fund can also be applied to public education efforts to prevent the improper disposal of used oil. The financing mechanism for the bill is typically a small fee of 2 to 5 cents per quart of motor oil. The API has also prepared a myriad of publications available to assist state and local governments in establishing used-oil collection and recycling programs.

If you are one of the many do-it-yourselfers who change their own oil, please take your used motor oil to a used-oil collection center. Check with your state or local government recycling office for a list of area collection centers. Or you can check with area service stations or quick-lube oil change shops to see if they will accept your used motor oil.

Pot holes and ruts cost car care dollars

When money is tight our highways suffer. Neglected ruts and pot holes ultimately hit motorists directly in their pocketbooks. According to The Road Information Program (TRIP) Americans wasted over $17 billion driving on roads rated poor to fair by the Federal Highway Administration. That amounts to an annual $105.70 per driver due to extra vehicle repairs, excess tire wear and wasted gas.

One way to protect your vehicle from the ravages of ruts and potholes, other than avoiding them, is to keep tires properly inflated and steering and suspension components in good condition. Especially critical are the shock absorbers or struts, which prevent excessive rebound or bottoming out on severe bumps.

Shocks and struts are the subject of a free pamphlet just off the press from the Car Care Council. Written in layman's important components and how they affect a vehicle's safety.

Vehicle owners traditionally have related shock absorbers to riding comfort. The pamphlet shows vehicle owners how these components also affect other aspects of the vehicle's handling characteristics.

"During that brief period your wheels are skittering and hopping as you make a turn on a rough road," says Council President Don Midgley, "you've lost contact with the road surface. This affects your steering and braking and could take you into a ditch or an oncoming vehicle."

In addition to riding comfort and control, there's wear and tear on other parts of the vehicle. The exaggerated motion can cause accelerated wear of steering and suspension parts.

"The jar from a rut or chuck hole or road obstruction can break radiator mounts or exhaust system support brackets," according to Midgley.

"This kind of wear or damage, all or partly due to weak shock absorbers, adds to the cost of having procrastinated on maintenance."

The Council offers its informative pamphlet free of charge. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Department RC, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

The professional word on tune-up

When you take your car into the shop for a "complete tune-up," a service generally required every 30,000 miles or every two or three years, what services should be included? This question, often controversial even among the automotive service trade, is addressed in a recent newsletter of the Professional Master Technician's Association. The facts are provided by a "CD-ROM" repair information database, used by technicians to access current and accurate diagnostic and repair information.

Electronic ignition, computerized engine controls and electronic fuel injection have eliminated many of the adjustments that once were part of a traditional tune-up. So most technicians probably would say a tune-up on most cars today is a preventive maintenance service or an engine performance check.

One of the main reasons people bring their vehicles into their mechanics for a tune-up is because they are experiencing some kind of "driveability" problem: starting, stalling, hesitation on acceleration, poor gas mileage or lack of power. These symptoms seldom are cured with a new set of spark plugs or a few turns of the screwdriver. On today's complex engines a comprehensive performance check is in order.

Another item that should be included is an emissions check, now mandatory in 35 states. Most mechanics check the operation of basic emissions control components, but an actual emissions check at the tailpipe is essential to accurate diagnosis.

The following are 21 items that should be included in a complete tune-up, according to the professionals. The list may vary according to vehicle and/or shop providing the service, but it's a handy reference for owners seeking quality service.

1. Replace spark plugs
2. Replace distributor rotor
3. Check the distributor cap and replace if necessary
4. Check ignition timing and adjust if necessary
5. Check ignition performance (firing voltage/ignition patterns)
6. Check ignition wires and replace if necessary
7. Check ignition idle speed and adjust if necessary
8. Check the choke mechanism (on engines with carburetors)
9. Clean fuel injectors

10. Check compression and/or power balance (to identify bad injectors as well as compression problems)

11. Check manifold intake vacuum to reveal exhaust restrictions

12. Check battery and charging voltage

13. Check exhaust emissions, to verify fuel mixture.

ignition performance and emission controls performance

14. Check the vehicle computer for presence of any trouble codes

15. Install a new air filter

16. Replace the fuel filter(s)

17. Replace the PCV (positive crankcase ventilation)

valve
18. Check all emissions control components

19. Check all vital fluids, including engine oil, transmission fluid, coolant, brake and power steering fluid.

20. Check all belts and hoses

21. Check safety items such as lights, windshield wipers, tires, horn, etc.

Save money with lower auto insurance rates

Many people don't realize it, but automobile insurance rates can vary dramatically depending on the insurance company, agent or broker; coverages requested; and type of car driven. Here are several tips that can help lower everyone's insurance costs.

• Comparison shop. Prices for the same coverage can vary by hundreds of dollars, so it pays to shop around. To get an idea of price ranges, ask friends, check the yellow pages for insurance agents, call the state insurance department and check consumer guides.

However, don't shop by price alone. An insurer should offer both fair prices and excellent service. Quality personal service may cost a bit more, but it provides added conveniences. So, talk to several insurers to get a feeling for the quality of their service. Ask them what they would do to lower your costs. Check the financial ratings of the companies, too. After narrowing the field to three insurers, get price quotes.

• Ask for higher deductibles. Deductibles represent the amount of money paid before making a claim. By requesting higher deductibles on collision and comprehensive (fire and theft) coverage, people can lower their costs substantially.

• Drop collision and/or comprehensive coverages on older cars. It may not be cost-effective to have collision or comprehensive coverages on cars worth less than $1,000, since any claim made would not substantially exceed annual cost and deductible amounts. Auto dealers and banks can tell what a car is worth.

medical coverages. Those who have adequate health coverage may be paying for duplicate medical coverage in their auto policies. In some states, eliminating this coverage could lower personal injury protection (PIP) cost by up to 40 percent.

• Buy a "low-profile" car. Before buying a new or used car, check into insurance costs. Cars that are expensive to repair or that are favorite targets of thieves have much higher insurance costs.

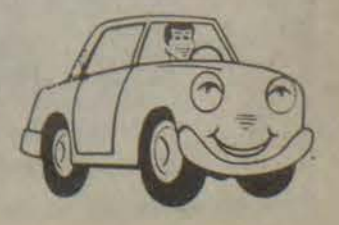

• Consider area insurance cost if moving. Costs tend to be lowest in rural communities and highest in center cities where there is more traffic congestion.

• Take advantage of low mileage discounts. Some companies offer discounts to motorists who drive fewer than a predetermined number of miles a year.

• Find out about automatic seat belt or air bag discounts. People may be able to take advantage of discounts on some coverages if they have automatic seat belts and/or air bags.

• Inquire about other discounts. Some insurers offer discounts for more than one car, no accidents in three years, drivers older than 50, driver training courses, anti-theft devices, anti-lock brakes and good grades for students.

Remember these tips when changing insurance agents or altering policies. Saving money could be just a phone call away.

• Eliminate duplicate

Buying a used car doesn't have to be a risky business

Millions of Americans will buy used cars this year, and many of them may not know what to consider before making a purchase. The Federal Trade Commission offers the following suggestions to potential used-car buyers.

Before looking at used cars, people need to think about what car models and options they want and how much they are able or willing to spend. To learn about car models, options and prices, read newspaper advertisements and automobile magazines. By calling the U.S. Department of Transportation Auto Safety Hotline (800-424-9393), people can learn if a car model has ever been recalled and, if so, obtain information about that recall.

• Costs. Remember, the real cost of a car includes more than the purchase price. It includes loan terms, such as interest rates and the length of the loan. Those planning to finance a car need to know how much money they can put down and how much they can pay monthly. Dealers and lending institutions offer a variety of interest rates and payment schedules, so people will need to shop for terms.

• Reliability. People can learn how reliable a model is by checking in publications for the frequency-of-repair records. They should find out what models have repair facilities in locations convenient to them and if parts are readily available at the repair facility.

• Dealer reputation. Find out from respected, experienced people which dealers have good reputations for sales and service. People may wish to call their local consumer protection office and the Better Business Bureau to find out if there are any complaints against particular dealers.

When buying a used car from a dealer, people should look for a Buyers Guide sticker on the window of each car. The Buyers Guide, required by the Federal Trade Commission's Used Car Rule, gives important information and suggestions to consider, including:

• Whether the vehicle comes with a warranty and, if so, what specific protection the dealer will provide.

• Whether the vehicle comes with no warranty ("as is") or with implied warranties only.

• That people should ask to have the car inspected by an independent mechanic before buying.

• That they should get all promises in writing.

• What some of the major problems are that may occur in any car.

Many cars are available privately, such as through newspaper classified ads. Those people shopping for a car from an individual should understand several differences between sales made by individuals and those made by dealers.

Private sellers generally are not covered by the Used Car Rule and, therefore, do not have to use the Buyers Guide. However, consumers still can follow the guide's suggestions. They can ask the seller whether they may have the vehicle inspected by their own mechanics and whether they may take it on a test drive.

Private sales usually are not covered by the "implied warranties" of state law. So, a private sale probably will be on an "as is" basis, unless the contract with the seller specifically provides otherwise. If there is a written contract, the seller must live up to the promises stated on the contract.

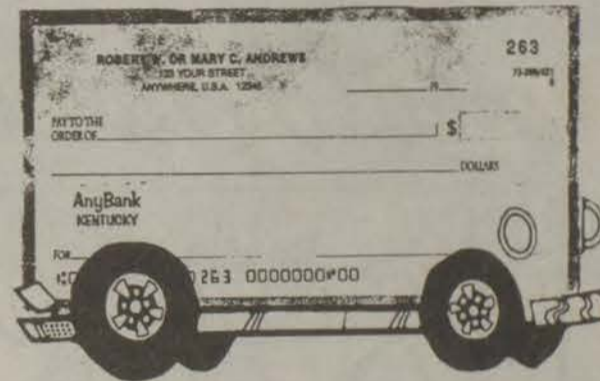

Many states require that dealers, but not individuals, ensure that their vehicles will pass state inspections or carry a minimum warranty before they offer them for sale.

Remember these suggestions when looking for used cars, and avoid being taken for a ride.

FOR ALL YOUR WINTER CAR CARE NEEDS!

Have you checked your dipstick lately?

Are you one of the growing number of car owners who seldom checks your oil between changes? If so, you could be in danger of engine trouble.

Low oil levels cause increased wear of internal engine parts, reduced fuel efficiency and lower horsepower. These problems occur because, over time, oil viscosity increases, which means the oil becomes thick and sticky. Kendall Motor Oil researchers have found that, if a car is one quart low on oil, viscosity increases dramatically, and oil has trouble flowing to engine parts.

Because this sludgy oil flows less easily, the engine can become starved for oil, increasing friction, corrosion and wear. This can eventually lead to engine failure.

"If you were to check the oil levels in cars on the road today, you would find that more than half of them would be at least one quart low—amazingly, some even two quarts," says Keith Bator, a Kendall Motor Oil engineer.

REASONS FOR LOW OIL LEVELS

There are several reasons for these low oil levels. One reason is that new cars use less oil than older models. People will usually check the oil several times after purchasing a car, and then cease checking when they notice that oil levels are consistent.

These new car owners fail to realize that, as time goes on, their engines will consume more oil, increasing chances for engine failure. Kendall engineers remind motorists that, as a car ages, it is even more important to check the oil level with each gas fill-up.

"The more miles that are put on an oil, the more consumption you will experience," says a Kendall engineer. Your engine may also develop an oil leak, so it is important to monitor oil levels closely.

Another reason that today's automobiles are low on oil is the disappearance of full-service gas stations. There are few stations that still check your oil when you pull in for gas. Consequently, there is no constant reminder of the importance of maintaining a proper oil level.

Checking your oil is a quick and simple procedure. You will need only an old cloth or a paper towel, and motor oil to add if the level is low. Make sure the car is on level ground and has been turned off for at least 15 minutes. This will allow all oil to drain into the oil pan for an accurate reading.

HOW TO CHECK OIL

Step One: Locate the dipstick (a thin metal rod with a circular, ring-like handle showing, usually near the middle-front of the motor.)

Step Two: Pull the dipstick out completely and wipe off the oil-coated end with the cloth. Re-insert the dipstick so that it is all the way back in place.

Step Three: Remove the dipstick again and read the oil level according to the marks indicating the proper fill range.

If the level is low, you will need to add oil by pouring the amount needed into a separate filler tube or opening, often with a cap marked "oil" (check your owner's manual for the exact location). Kendall engineers recommend a premium SAE 5W-30, 10W-30 or 10W-40, such as Kendall Superb® 100, because these multi-grade oils are made for year-round use. They easily adapt to a wide range of temperatures.

Costly engine repairs are less likely with proper care. So remember, check your oil level frequently, add more oil if the level is low, and change your oil every 3,000 miles. These simple steps will prolong the life of your engine.

Now, put down the paper, go outside, and check your oil!

Beauty treatment for your car can pay off

Keeping your car looking nice does more than make you feel good. It helps your wallet as well. A well maintained vehicle may be worth twice as much as a neglected one at trade-in time.

Dealers like a car that requires minimum repairs before being put on the market. One of the first places an appraiser will look, for example, is under the floor mats to check the condition of the carpeting. Take care of the interior fabrics. And, to prevent rust, repair minor dings and scratches as soon as possible.

At an average price of more than $18,000, today's cars represent a major expenditure for most families, an investment which deserves better care than most vehicles ever receive.

Now, during National Car Care Month, make a special effort to protect that investment. It will pay off not only at trade-in time but during the years you're enjoying your vehicle.

For a free illustrated pamphlet on appearance maintenance, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. N, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.
