New ecology officer hopes education will replace enforcement some day

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

People dumping or burning trash in Floyd County illegally had better look over their shoulders because Floyd County's new ecology officer may be dogging their heels.

Lon May, who was sworn in Tuesday as the ecology officer, said he plans to clean up the county and hopes to change some attitudes about dumping trash.

"Citizens in Floyd County need to know that open dumping and illegal burning is not going to be tolerated," he said in an interview Tuesday. "People in Floyd County ought to think about future generations and what we're leaving behind."

May is concerned about what is being left behind for his children, Mandy, 8, and Jared, 4, and he thinks the way to change that is to start by educating the public.

May plans to visit students in kindergarten through the fourth grade in each school in the county to make children aware of how keeping the environment clean will improve their living conditions. He plans to show films about clean-up efforts in the county. He also hopes to get students involved in projects.

"Today (November 1) is a new era in Floyd County Solid Waste," Mike Vance, director of the Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc., said.

Vance explained that all permanent, full-time employees of the county waste program had been terminated as of October 31. The employment of the last county solid waste worker, secretary Kathy Hamilton, ended October 31.

The ecology officer is an employee of the Floyd County Fiscal Court, Vance said, and not the solid waste office.

November 1 also marked Vance's first day as head of the solid waste office. He was hired on a part-time basis and had previously served as chairman of the solid waste board.

A part-time secretary will also be hired to man the office. The secretary will work about 24-30 hours per week, Vance said.

Money woes may put PHS plan on hold

by Susan Allen

Renovation of Prestonsburg High School and other future school construction projects in Floyd County are on hold because state finance officials feel the school district should not dip into the general fund to bankroll new facilities.

Declining enrollment and non-recurring expenses in the district have finance officials worried that there is not enough money to finish the Prestonsburg project, Mark Ryles, director of facilities for the state Department of Education, told board members Tuesday.

"The issue of finances is a very grave issue," Ryles told the board. "Floyd County's debt service... is really tight—tighter than presented (by Floyd County). I want you to know the temperature of the water."

Ryles told the board that the district could face some type of emergency in the system which could require the expenditure of a substantial amount of money. He advised the board to consider that and decide "not to spend every nickel you have."

Ryles added that financial officials were hesitant in approving the funding plan for a new Martin/Maytown Elementary, but decided to approve it so the district would not lose a portion of School Facility Construction Commission funds.

Board chairman Ray Brackett asked Ryles if any excess funds from completed school projects could go toward new projects.

Ryles said that the SFCC recommends that any leftover monies be used toward retiring the debt service for the project or to make other improvements on the project.

If the SFCC gives approval for excess funds to be used elsewhere, the money must go to the next priority on the district's facility plan, Ryles said. The next priority, after Martin/Maytown, is the Prestonsburg High School renovation.

Floyd officials have been looking at buying additional properties for athletic fields at South Floyd and Prestonsburg High Schools and a site for a Betsy Layne Middle School.

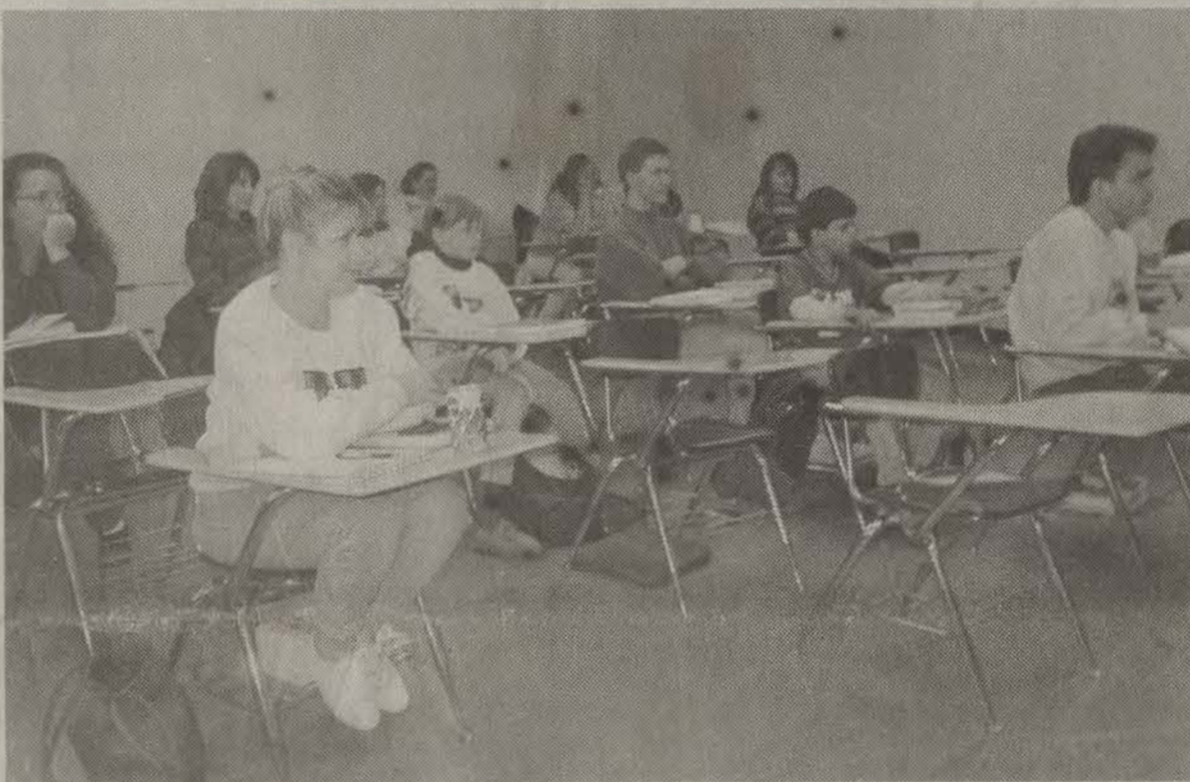

But Floyd school officials are confident that they can convince finance officials to approve the first phase of the Prestonsburg project.

Jim Osborne, operations chief for Floyd County, said after Tuesday's special board meeting that they expect to get approval for Phase I of Prestonsburg within two weeks.

5th-graders find college to be a "foreign" affair

For the last six weeks, two fifth graders from Prestonsburg Elementary have been going to college.

Stephanie Dye and Jason Goble, both ten years old, have been taking the 101 Spanish class three times a week at Prestonsburg Community College as a language enrichment experience in a unique partnership between the Floyd County Schools Talented and Gifted program (TAG) and PCC.

"We have never had any (elementary) kids from this area going to college, as far as we know," said Tammy Francis, one of three TAG coordinators for Floyd County Schools. "This is our first experience doing this."

According to test scores, Stephanie, the daughter of Michael and Patricia Dye, and Jason, the son of Kenny and Wilma Goble, are gifted in reading and language. "They scored the highest they can go... at the sophomore and junior high school level," Francis said.

The TAG coordinator consulted with Ken Slone, chair of the Humanities Division and associate professor of English and Spanish at the college, about enrichment activities for Stephanie and Jason. "I talked with Mr. Slone and he thought about putting them into foreign language study," Francis said.

Slone was already familiar with the TAG program. This semester Slone has been teaching a basic Spanish class for fifth and sixth grade TAG students. During the one-hour class held on Fridays at PCC, "we sing songs, do story translations—more fun type of things—have simple conversations," Slone said.

Towler to initiate removal processes

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Although few agree it should be done but realize that it must be done, Floyd County school superintendent Steve Towler will begin the process for removing two parent representatives on separate school councils.

Clarence Risner, who serves on Prestonsburg High School's council, and Joe Tussey, who is on the Adams Middle School council, are ineligible to serve on those councils because their wives are employed elsewhere in the school district.

Towler said at Tuesday's special board meeting that he did not agree with a state law that makes the two members ineligible to serve, but he realized that he had to notify state officials of the situation.

"I do not agree with the law, I think it's overkill on nepotism," Towler said. "I feel it is an unfair part of the law, however, it is part of the law. We have to try to enforce it. These men are two good examples of what council members ought to be. I have a lot of reluctance and regret... to write to the commissioner."

Board attorney Cliff Latta reported that it was his opinion that board members could face removal from office themselves if they did not comply with the law.

In 1992, lawmakers changed the statute governing parent members on school councils which disqualifies a parent if they have a relative employed anywhere in the district. That provision does not apply to the teacher and administrative members of school councils.

In 1994, state legislators gave the responsibility for removing ineligible school council members to local boards of education.

Board chairman Ray Brackett said he didn't think any of his fellow board members agreed that the law was fair.

Board member Dolores Smith agreed and said that the same restrictions should apply to teachers and District One school board candidate Dolores Smith believes all children can learn at a high level which is one of the major components of Kentucky's Education Reform Act.

"Among other things KERA teaches children to use knowledge they gain and to apply it, rather than just memorization," Smith said. "KERA is confusing and a big change. I don't think enough has been done to explain to parents what KERA is about. I think it is crucial to bring parents into the loop by way of KERA because it emphasizes a partnership with parents."

The Floyd County school system should give parents what they want for their children, Smith said, "a quality education."

The size of a school does not determine whether it is a good school, Smith said.

In her first bid for a political office, District Two school board candidate Janie Bailey-Bamer hopes that she can get parents more involved in the school system.

"If I'm elected, I want to volunteer my time and efforts as a parental involvement coordinator for the whole school system," Bamer said. "I want to get out there and know how parents feel and how teachers feel. I want to help communicate information from parents to the board and the school system."

Bamer agrees with most of the

philosophies in Kentucky's Education Reform Act, but she feels that the ungraded primary program and training for school council members needs to be looked at closer.

But the key to a good school system, Bamer feels, is communication.

District Five school board candidate Paul Branham wants to take politics out of the school system and to see that Kentucky's Education Reform Act stays in.

"Most parents I've talked to are for KERA," Branham said. "The big thing is taking the political part out of it to a certain extent."

Branham compares school councils to the home rule and says that each council has to deal with a different set of circumstances at each school.

He feels that restrictions imposed on who can serve on councils are a good measure.

Branham said he agrees with the ideas in Kentucky's Education Reform Act but did not elaborate on the issue.

Floyd Fiscal Court to reveal ethics code for county officials

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County's Fiscal Court will meet in special session today (Friday) to discuss solid waste issues, options for building a new courthouse and to hold first reading on a proposed code of ethics.

Issues concerning solid waste include second reading of an ordinance requiring mandatory participation in the county's solid waste program.

Last month, court members held first reading of the ordinance which includes levying criminal charges and possible jail terms against residents who do not pay their monthly garbage bills and for landlords who do not report occupancy changes in rental properties.

Other solid waste discussions today include a financial report from the solid waste commission; hiring three employees for the solid waste department; and an emergency transfer of funds to solid waste.

Also, the court is expected to decide whether to pursue plans for a new courthouse facility. Court members decided at a special meeting Monday to review the issue further to determine if the county can afford to proceed with the proposed $15 million project.

Another item on today's agenda is first reading of a code of ethics ordinance. There have been no public discussions at fiscal court meetings on an ethics code, but last month county officials said that public comments would be received on the ordinance.

Under a new state law, county and city officials must have an ethics ordinance in place by January 1995.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. in the conference room at the courthouse annex. The meeting is open to the public.

Phase I of the project, the construction, includes renovating all the classrooms, administrative offices and family resource center. The estimated cost for the first phase is $4.9 million. Phase II include constructing band and vocal music rooms; renovation of the gym; and building a kitchen and cafeteria. The estimated cost for Phase II is just over $2 million.

The district is approximately $1,280,000 short in bonding potential for Phase I of the project. Bonding agent Terrell Ross reported to the board that there is $8.7 available in bonding potential for the district. To finance the Martin/Maytown and Phase I of Prestonsburg projects, the district needs $10 million in bonding potential.

If the district cannot get the extra bonding potential needed, Phase I of the Prestonsburg project will have to be scaled back to $4.3 million and Phase II will have to be increased to make up for the cutback.

Osborne said Phase II for Prestonsburg and other projects will be on hold until additional SFCC monies are allotted to the district.

Ryles commended board members for their oversight on the South Floyd gym and Betsy Layne Elementary classroom addition projects. The two projects have proceeded ahead of the construction schedule and have had virtually no cost overruns.

principals who serve on school councils.

Risner and Tussey attended Tuesday's meeting and said they were concerned about what grounds Towler would cite for their removal.

Grounds for removal outlined in the law are: immorality; misconduct in office; incompetence; willful neglect of duty; or nonfeasance.

Towler told the two men that their ineligibility to be council members would be categorized as nonfeasance.

Risner and Tussey disagreed.

"I made numerous inquiries and was assured I met the Floyd County School Board's policy," Tussey told the board. "I don't feel I have done anything wrong. Nonfeasance makes me feel like I've not done my job. I have done my job. I'm concerned (about the charge). I disagree with the law."

"I went in to sit on the council with honest intentions of helping kids," Risner said. "I'm not blaming anyone. Sometimes I feel like I've done something wrong. If trying to help kids and see that they get a good education is wrong, I'll admit I'm wrong."

Towler told the board that no action needed to be taken on the issue at this time.

In other business:

• the board agreed to share the cost of hiring a primary resource teacher with the state Department of Education; and

• the board approved the 1994-95 Head Start contract.

Two Carl D. Perkins Job Corps students arrested in theft of vehicle

Two students of the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps were arrested Wednesday and charged with receiving stolen property after a joint investigation by the Prestonsburg Police Department and several law enforcement agencies tracked down vehicles allegedly stolen by the juveniles.

The Prestonsburg Police Department received a complaint Wednesday, November 2, that a vehicle had been stolen in Prestonsburg. Information about the vehicle was typed into the National Crime Information Center (N.C.I.C.) law enforcement computer.

Meanwhile, in Mason County, a Mason County resident discovered his vehicle had been stolen, but discovered the Floyd County vehicle abandoned. The resident alerted the Mason County Sheriff's office, which obtained information about the Floyd vehicle from the computer network.

About three hours after the Prestonsburg officers had entered the missing vehicle's information into the computer, they were notified by the Mason County Sheriff's office that the vehicle had been found.

The missing Mason County vehicle was recovered about one hour later by the Kentucky State Police.

Through a joint investigation by Prestonsburg police, Kentucky State Police, Mason County authorities, and the Paris Police Department, law enforcement officials discovered the two juveniles had stolen the vehicle from Prestonsburg. One juvenile eventually returned to the Job Corps and the other drove the vehicle to Mason County. The first vehicle was abandoned, police reports said, and the other vehicle was stolen.

The Kentucky State Police stopped the Mason County vehicle near Paris. The juvenile driver was arrested and lodged in the Woodford County Detention Center, charged with receiving stolen property over $300, a Class D felony.

The second juvenile was lodged in the Floyd County Detention Center and charged with receiving stolen property and possession of a weapon on school property.

Prestonsburg police had discovered that a .25 caliber pistol and a knife were missing from the stolen Prestonsburg vehicle. They notified security personnel at the Job Corps Center. The weapons were discovered hidden in the ceiling in the student's room.

Under state law, possessing a weapon on school property is a Class D felony.

Blue River woman is seriously injured in accident on U.S. 23

Ann Hall, 69, of Blue River is in the intensive care unit at Cabell-Huntington Hospital after she pulled her vehicle into the path of oncoming traffic at the junction of U.S. 23 and KY 1428 Tuesday evening.

Hall, who was driving a 1991 Pontiac Sunbird, apparently pulled into the path of a 1987 Chevrolet Spectrum driven by Huey Hutchinson, 29, of Wise, Virginia, Prestonsburg police reports show.

Hall was attempting to make a left turn from Rt. 1428 onto U.S. 23 when the accident occurred. Her vehicle was struck in the driver's side by the Hutchinson vehicle, which was traveling north on U.S. 23.

Hall had to be removed from her vehicle by the Prestonsburg Police Department and the Floyd County Rescue Squad by using the "Jaws of Life."

Hutchinson's father, Curtis Boggs, 65, of Coburn, Virginia, was a passenger in his vehicle. All three occupants of the vehicles were transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center for treatment.

Hutchinson and Boggs were treated and released. Hall was transported by helicopter to Cable-Huntington Hospital.

Hall was cited for operating a vehicle without a license and negligence in an accident. The accident is under investigation by officer Rick Conn with the Prestonsburg Police Department.

Assisting the Prestonsburg police and the Floyd County Rescue Squad at the scene were members of the Kentucky State Police and the Prestonsburg Fire Department.

Changes in absentee ballots cost county

Floyd County taxpayers will have to reach a little deeper into their pockets to pay for a change in one of this year's election laws.

The change, regarding absentee ballots, will add two temporary employees to the county payrolls for a 12-day period.

The law requires that a representative of the Republican and Democratic parties be on hand in the Floyd County Clerk's office to register voters to cast absentee ballots.

Previously, Floyd County Court Clerk Carla Boyd or one of her clerks could register voters for absentee ballots. Boyd said the county must pay $60 per person per day for the 12-day period.

Republican Jody Collins and Democrat Jessica Shepherd will be working in the clerk's office Monday through Saturday until Monday, November 7.

As of Wednesday, November 2, they had signed up 34 voters for absentee ballots.

Park's attorney, Wolodymyr Cybriwsky, asked Stephens if the test result would be inconsistent with the girl's claim that she only had sex with Park because his client showed no sign of the disease.

Stephens said no because if Park had received treatment prior to the test it would not have shown up in the test results.

Hyden denied Cybriwsky's motion to dismiss the charge and ruled that the case be bound over to the grand jury.

Although the state says Floyd County is on target with its current 25 percent reduction in waste, Vance said, he hopes to do more. He and May plan to begin, or revive, several programs in the county, including a recycling program and the Adopt-A-Highway program.

"We want to bring citizens back into the program," he explained. He also wants to get businesses involved in clean-up efforts.

He also plans to conduct recycling workshops and said that Rumpke officials are interested in helping sponsor the seminars.

"People don't understand about tires and oil," he said. "You can't pour oil in the creek or beside the road. You've got to dispose of it properly."

White goods, such as refrigerators, must be disposed of properly too. May estimated that it will cost the county $50 for each refrigerator it must remove from open dumps.

Vance thinks the proposal to make individuals and businesses responsible for paying their waste bills will help clean up the county.

"As solid waste people, we don't want to put anybody in jail for a debt. We think people have to be responsible. It is a crime against the environment," he said.

May concurs.

"It is a crime against the environment. It is a crime against us," May said.

Vance suggested that judges, in lieu of a fine, could assign public service tasks such as helping to clean up a dump or along the road to those people who don't pay their bills or those caught dumping illegally.

Or, he said, those individuals could be made to attend a school to educate them about the destructive aspects of open dumps. He compared the school to DUI school where drunk drivers are educated about the hazards of drug abuse.

"If you burn something or dump something, you are committing a crime against your fellow citizens. The very least you should be made to do is help with the cleanup," Vance said.

Vance thinks that May has the right idea about educating the public.

"In two years time, I hope that (the office) can be viewed, not as an enforcement office, but as an education and information program."

May, who is married to the former Denise Ousley, is a 1981 graduate of Prestonsburg High School. He is the son of Connie and Ron Cooley of Mays Branch and grandson of Delphia Patton of Prestonsburg and the late Buster Patton.

He attended Pikeville College for two years. As ecology officer, he will continue his training in efforts to keep Floyd County clean.

After Tuesday's interview, he was ready to hit the roads to investigate complaints about open dumping.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Too little, too late?

by Scott Perry

All the folks associated with the two most current school construction projects in Floyd County--the South Floyd gym and Betsy Layne Elementary addition--are just pleased as punch that those projects are under budget and ahead of schedule.

We're happy, too.

But that news makes us just as curious as ever about why it took so long and so much money to get the building program under control.

Now that the money is almost gone...with so many needs left unaddressed...we imagine the late move toward financial accountability will seem somewhat anticlimactic.

Proponents of a new Prestonsburg High School...rebuilt, renovated or whatever...certainly aren't jumping for joy over the news that ongoing projects are meeting budgets.

Neither are the parents of children who attend a number of county elementary schools which have not and may not see their renovation needs addressed.

Those projects will have to wait on new or improved sources of revenues because so much was spent elsewhere.

There is no guarantee that Floyd County will ever again have access to the funding resources like those which paid for four new schools.

No guarantees at all. While it is certainly good news that construction costs are being brought under control, that news comes too late to prompt any sort of celebration.

And the funds remaining are too little to pay for what's left to do.

Could be we've finally stopped the bleeding only to find that we've been bled dry.

Patients have access to medical records

Editor:

There has been much confusion in the past few months about how the new Kentucky Health Care Reform Bill of 1994 will affect the public. One excellent, but little known, consumer protection provision was adopted as part of House Bill 250. Part 16 of the bill relates to patient access to medical records and many consumers are still unaware of their rights under this new law.

The statute, KRS 422.317 now provides that:

"Upon a patient's written request, a hospital licensed under KRS Chapter 216B, or a health care provider shall provide, without charge to the patient, a copy of the patient's medical record. A copying fee, not to exceed one dollar ($1) per page, may be charged by the health care provider for furnishing a second copy of the patient's medical record upon request either by the patient or the patient's attorney or the patient's authorized representative."

Prior to this law, hospitals and doctors were sometimes known to deny patients copies of their own records, or charge exorbitant amounts for the copies. Unfortunately, it has come to our attention that some health care providers are still refusing to comply.

The Kentucky Academy of Trial

Attorneys strongly supports a patient's right to have access to their own medical records. We encourage all hospitals and physicians to respect their patient's rights by following the spirit, as well as the letter of this public interest law.

Akers honored for supporting Mountain Christian Academy

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

Contractor Ervin Akers was honored Monday in an informal ceremony at his home at Dana by representatives of Mountain Christian Academy, a private Christian school located at Martin.

With his wife, Doris, and two daughters and a son-in-law gathered about him, Akers listened as representatives of MCA, Terry Dotson, chairman of the board; Ralph Beiting, member of the board; and Dr. Parker Tiller, dean of the school, expressed their appreciation for the retired contractor's generosity to the school. Tina McFarland, the school's director of development, was also present.

In the early 1980s, Akers' building firm Akers and Akers Incorporated at Dana, was hired by the school's board of directors to construct a combination gymnasium and classroom building on the school campus. When the building was completed, the school was struggling financially. In 1985, Akers agreed to accept partial payment on the building which cost over a quarter of a million dollars. He later forgave $65,000 of the remaining debt to the school, which makes him one of the largest contributors to MCA. The school continues to make monthly payments on the debt for which Akers has never charged interest.

Beiting, who was chairman of the board of the school at that time, said to Akers, "The money you waited for, for so long without interest, meant life and death to the school. Without your patience and generosity, we wouldn't be here today."

Beiting read a letter of appreciation from the school, and presented Akers with a framed certificate of appreciation.

Dotson told Akers, "We appreciate the work you've done at the school.

There is never anything that could touch people's lives more than what you've done..."

In Dean Tiller's remarks, he thanked Akers "on behalf of the students who have passed through the school and future students...The school provides an environment where God's word can be studied and shared. We are grateful."

The 71-year-old Akers, who has struggled with illness in the past year, replied, "Ever since I worked on the school, I've had my heart set on it." The contractor added that he "observed the school a lot while working the gym and I was pleased with the way the students were treated."

The highlight of the presentation was when Akers was shown a framed 16" x 20" oil portrait of himself that was commissioned by the board of directors. The portrait will be the first painting to be hung in the school's newly established Wall of Fame.

After the ceremony, an overwhelmed Akers said, "I feel grateful and honored to be presented with a certificate and to have my portrait placed in the school. The school will always be in my heart."

Smith said. "I don't feel real strong about the size of the building," Smith said. "It's what goes on in the building. We can document that small schools do well and we can document that large schools do well. In small community schools, students feel a closeness. Each can be effective. A crucial thing is to have good communication with parents. Parents need to get involved with schools at the instructional level."

School councils are an important component of KERA because parents, teachers and administrators are involved in making decisions that affect their schools, Smith said. Councils accept the responsibility for the learning level of students at their schools and can let everyone become involved at their school, Smith said. Eligibility requirements for a seat on a school council are not fair and should be addressed in the future by state lawmakers, Smith said.

"From the beginning, I had a problem that there are three teachers and two parents on a council," Smith said. "I've always felt it should be equal. If they have regulations, everybody who serves should fall under the same regulation. I do not agree with that part of the law. I hope the legislature will take another look at it."

Smith, however, does agree that some type of criteria should be used to oversee the selection process for council members.

"I've never felt that nepotism has been the problem, it's political patronage," Smith said. "Nepotism was easy to get at. Doling out jobs based on votes is still a problem in a lot of areas. People should be put in positions because of their own qualifications."

Smith feels progress has been made in the school system, but admits there is still a lot of work to be done.

"We haven't done any planning—short-term or long range," Smith said. "We need to know where we are going, not just in facilities, but in finances."

"Uppermost, it's quality, just like a business," Smith said. "It's not different. Businesses want to produce a quality product and want it to be the best. Where we are, where we live, and who we are is the final statistic. If we want to do it and we know how to do it, we can do it."

Athletics are an integral part of a student's education, Smith said, because it helps children develop social skills. But, the same emphasis must be placed on academics.

District One school board candidate Ursal Ray Wilcox declined to be interviewed for this article.

Four more charged in drug sting

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Four Floyd Countians were arrested Wednesday and charged in connection with Tuesday's roundup of suspected drug dealers by the Mountain Area Drug Task Force.

Peggy Ousley, 34, of Ashland, formerly of David, was charged Wednesday with trafficking in a substance that simulated a controlled substance. Ousley was arraigned Wednesday in Floyd District Court.

Also charged was Arnold Mosley Jr., 31, of Auxier, who turned himself in Wednesday at the Floyd County Sheriff's Office. Mosley was charged with trafficking in a controlled substance.

Johnathan Crider, 21, and Maria Crider, 29, both of Auxier were arrested Wednesday and each was charged with first degree trafficking in a controlled substance, cocaine.

Fifteen people were arrested Tuesday in the task force roundup and the investigation in Floyd County is continuing.

Jason was apprehensive about "competing with college kids who know much more than you."

Slone said that the class is composed of college freshmen and sophomores, ranging in age from 18 years old and up. The average age is 34.

"To me, it was a challenge to see if I could keep the two (elementary and college) together," Slone said. "Also, I was excited to see competition on the part of the college students. They didn't want to be shown up by fifth graders."

Jason and Stephanie did the same work as their college classmates, including homework assignments and taking tests. "The mid-term was the hardest," Stephanie said.

Jason said that the hardest part was "the writing," or taking notes in class.

"They got behind when I wrote notes on the board. The others in class were faster in taking notes," Slone said. "When giving notes, I used the overhead projector. Then I gave them the note sheets when I was finished. Something I found is that when they actually spoke, they could compete with the college students. They loved the speaking part."

The fifth graders both agreed that their favorite class activity was speaking the language. The two can speak simple Spanish sentences.

Last Friday was Stephanie and Jason's last day in the class. Both said that taking part in the Spanish class has been worthwhile.

"It's good to be taking a college class that will help me when I get into college," Jason said.

Stephanie and Jason will now join the TAG Spanish class on Fridays. Stephanie summed up their college experience. "We love Spanish. It's fun. We'd love to do it again. All the college students really helped us."

"It's been real good experience for the kids," Francis said. "Hopefully, next year we can have more advanced placements for TAG students."

"There's not enough communication going on with parents," Bamer said. "There were no community meetings to educate parents about KERA. We can't just say, 'this is the way it is and this is how it's going to be.'"

"Parents want a quality education for their children," Bamer continued. "They want to know their children can read, write and have the skills to carry on through the rest of their life."

Bigger schools are not better schools and small community schools should remain open if it is economically feasible for the school system, Bamer said.

Restrictions placed on parent members of school councils are not quite fair and the whole process needs a closer look, Bamer said. School councils are much like individual school boards, but members must receive more training before assuming their roles, Bamer said.

"Everybody needs to know what their roles are," Bamer said. "I'd like to see each classroom elect a representative to be like a Congress to the site based committees. I feel that's the democratic way."

The school system has made strides to place a greater emphasis on academics instead of athletics, Bamer said, but parents need to realize the importance of a good education.

"Academics stay with children for the rest of their lives," Bamer said. "Very few athletes in Floyd County go on to earn millions of dollars. We need to change parents' minds about the value of an education. Academics is priority number one. We need to get parents involved in the academic side at the grass roots level."

Incumbent District Two school board member Ray Brackett feels the Floyd County school system has made a lot of progress lately and he wants to continue that trend.

"We made a lot of strides, but there's a lot of work to do," Brackett said. "We need to remind children that they can be a success and to be better. They shouldn't be satisfied with mediocrity or the average. Their goal should be success and to do the best they can do."

Parental involvement with the school system is a weakness in the district, Brackett said, and school officials should work toward helping parents understand Kentucky's Education Reform Act.

"It's still a strange animal to them," Brackett said. "Some parents have that wait and see attitude. KERA has made some changes in the school system, not a lot. There is some concern about the primary program. Parents are dissatisfied with it in Floyd County and other parts of the state."

"Parents want the best educational program that serves their children well," Brackett said. "They want clean buildings and safe buildings. They also want all the people paid to do a job, to do it well. They need to feel the schools are theirs and they belong to them."

Brackett agrees with the concept of KERA, but feels that the reform act does not address the needs of gifted students.

"It eliminates the concept that someone can be number one and strives for all students to be equal," Brackett said. "It is not giving enough to the gifted students. It holds the youngsters back to a degree."

Athletics does not overshadow academics in the Floyd system, Brackett said, and extra curricular activities are important to all students.

"It's part of growing up in America," Brackett said. "We have the required hours of instruction and when that's done, there's extra curricular activities."

Site based councils are serving the needs they were intended to serve, Brackett said, and so far, he sees no major problems with councils in Floyd County.

"They seem to be doing their jobs," Brackett said. "I hear no dissatisfaction from parents. I've heard no complaints as a board member about school councils."

A law setting out requirements for parent members of school councils is very unfair, Brackett said. He added that classified school employees should also be allowed to serve on school councils.

A community school gives children and parents a sense of identity, Brackett said, and he is in favor of maintaining smaller schools although he has been involved in consolidation of schools.

"It's more common sense not to get schools too big," Brackett said. "Sometimes consolidation is necessary to get schools out of the flood plain."

May House to become city property

A historic home in Prestonsburg will become the property of the City of Prestonsburg Monday, November 7.

Owners of the May House, William and E. B. May, and their wives, Lucille and Allie May, will sign a five-year temporary lease with the city. The Mays have agreed to deed the house to the city later, contingent on the awarding of the ISTEIA (Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act) grant.

With the signing, the Friends of May House can begin renovations on the house, which is thought by historians to be the oldest brick house in the Big Sandy Valley, with funds it has received through donations and a grant from the Kentucky Historical Society.

Lt. Governor Paul Patton plans to attend the ceremony, which will be held on the May House lawn Monday, at 1:30 p.m. If the weather won't cooperate, the ceremony will move indoors to the parlor of the house, said Robert Perry, president of the Friends of May House.

Q.

WHAT RELIABLE, OLD FRIEND LIVES IN YOUR BASEMENT, MAKES YOU FEEL COMFORTABLE, AND NEEDS YOUR ATTENTION NOW?

YOUR FURNACE.

You can avoid the Fall rush by having your heating equipment checked now before cold weather hits. It takes just a phone call to your local heating dealer and as little as thirty minutes to make sure your system is operating safely and at peak, money-saving efficiency. And by calling early, you also have the time to shop for a new furnace should your old unit need replacing.

A furnace checkup is just one of many ways to save energy. You can also add insulation to your attic, crawl space and water heater as well as weather-stripping and caulking around doors and windows. Making your home as efficient as possible will keep your family more comfortable while your heating bills stay low. So, please don't wait. Call your heating dealer for a furnace checkup now. You'll be glad you did all winter long.

Eighth graders at James A. Duff Elementary School recently had an opportunity to visit Breaks Interstate Park. This trip was in conjunction with a writing activity in their Language Arts class. Students visited the museum and viewed some of the overlooks at the park. Their tour guide, Scott Ferrell, pointed out many interesting facts about the park. The beautiful fall foliage served as a glorious setting for a picnic at the recreation area. The trip was coordinated by Connie Scott, Chapter 1 teacher, Kitty Frazier, guidance counselor, and Shellah Ratliff, school writing coordinator.

Showcase extravaganza at Adams Middle School

"This was a wonderful idea! The staff did a great job."

"I really like the way the parent-teacher meeting went. It helps me with all the work my child has done and will be doing."

"Great showcase. Very informative."

"I feel very comfortable with the teachers my children have at AMS. As a teacher myself, I understand the criticism a teacher can receive. HATS OFF to each of their teachers!"

"Excellent Program—We were very, very impressed—and so glad that our child is attending AMS."

"As my son would say, 'This School is Super!'"

These are just a few of the comments offered by parents in response to the first annual Showcase Extravaganza held on September 22nd at James D. Adams Middle School.

More than 350 parents, students, and friends came out to get a first-hand glimpse of the middle school concept in action. The evening began with an AMS Pep Rally. Spectators were treated to an exhibition of tumbling skills and cheers by the varsity cheerleaders, and several lively musical numbers by the AMS band. Everyone was welcomed by AMS principal, Janice B. Allen, who introduced staff and faculty, and outlined the events for the remainder of the evening.

Visitors were escorted to the various homerooms by the teachers. Everyone followed a typical student schedule for the next hour, spending 15 minutes in each of the four academic areas (communications, social studies, math/science and the core classes). Explanations of curriculum and assessment were offered by each teacher in his/her class.

Adams offers a broad range of opportunities for students in its Encore curriculum. Students rotate through classes such as music, art, physical education, home economics, educational technology, library, and computers. Teachers of these classes produced a brief, video presentation to give viewers an introduction to their programs.

At the end of the final class, visitors were treated to a sample production of "News First at AMS" on the closed circuit television system. This program is written and produced twice a week by STLP (Student Technology Leadership Program), and gives updates on co-curricular activities, sporting events, lunch menus, and current items of interest to students and faculty. Mrs. Allen appeared as a special guest to thank those attending for their support, and to extend an invitation for them to visit the Youth Services Center and co-curricular booths set up in the hallways.

To close the evening's activities, door prizes were awarded and refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Allen Central wins first-place awards in regional art show

In the recently held Regional Kentucky Federation of Woman's Club Art Exhibit, Allen Central High School won three first-place ribbons and one second-place. The show was held at the Landmark Inn in Pikeville where students from various schools in the region competed.

Winning first place in two categories was Chad Lyons. Chad is a senior enrolled in Visual Art IV and the son of Eugene and Estillene Lyons of Garrett. He placed first in both painting and watercolor. The painting was of a small girl while the watercolor was a portrait of his twin brother. Lyons plans to major in art when he graduates this year.

In the area of Drawing, Brad Allen also won first place. His entry was a portrait done in pastels. Brad is the son of Ricky and Teresa Allen of Garrett. He is a Junior enrolled in Visual Art III.

Placing second in Watercolor was Ginger Griffith. Her landscape showed the floral clock at the capitol building in Frankfort. Ginger is a Junior enrolled in Visual Art III. She is the daughter of Arnold and Ollie Griffith of Wayland.

All three students are members of the Talented and Gifted Program at Allen Central. Their work was submitted by Mrs. Carlita O'Quinn and the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club.

Year of the parent

School Blast-Off at Maytown celebrates year of the parent

On Thursday, September 28th, Maytown Elementary School officially kicked off a school project called "The Year of the Parent."

In a collaborative effort the faculty, staff, Family Resource Center, and PTA held a "Blast-Off" to encourage parents to return to their child's school as often as possible.

The Blast-Off festival was a huge success with over 300 in attendance. Maytown students, their parents and families enjoyed an evening of good, clean fun and fellowship.

The school campus was festively decorated and an outdoor stage provided live music. Performing were: The Howard Family's Bluegrass Band with Kentucky Opry's David Morris; The Maytown Methodist Quintet; and the new group GRACE-Denice and Randy Porter and Phillip

Hunt.

In the gymnasium all were treated to free hot dogs, popcorn and soft drinks. Live entertainment was provided by Larry Johnson's Line Dancers. Throughout the early evening a selection of games was enjoyed by young and old alike.

The atmosphere was festive as all renewed old acquaintances and made new friends. The goal for the celebration was to draw out as many parents as possible in the hope that they will pay regular visits to Maytown School in the future. Invitations for "open hour" were passed out.

The finale of the evening was the lighting of a huge bonfire which provided light and warmth on this chilly fall night. The fire complemented the warm friendly atmosphere of all present.

Fred James, Prestonsburg Tourism director, lectured students at Allen Central about hospitality and tourism. James got a taste of hospitality at Allen Central.

Fred James visits Allen Central

Fred James, director of tourism in Prestonsburg, visited students in the hospitality, tourism and job skills classes at Allen Central High School. James informed students about the vast opportunities available in career areas of tourism.

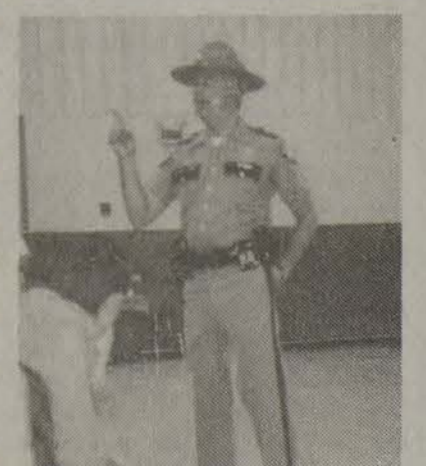

Information was presented on specific jobs that are currently available; jobs of careers that would be in demand in the future; potential earnings for various job classifications and the impact of tourism on the community and schools, as well as the people of Eastern Kentucky.

He stressed to the students that strong employability skills in the area of public relations were essential for job success in tourism careers.

The job skills and principles of hospitality and tourism classes are new curriculums written and implemented by Janet Bowling and Charlene Sexton, as a part of the coursework in family and consumer sciences (formerly home economics).

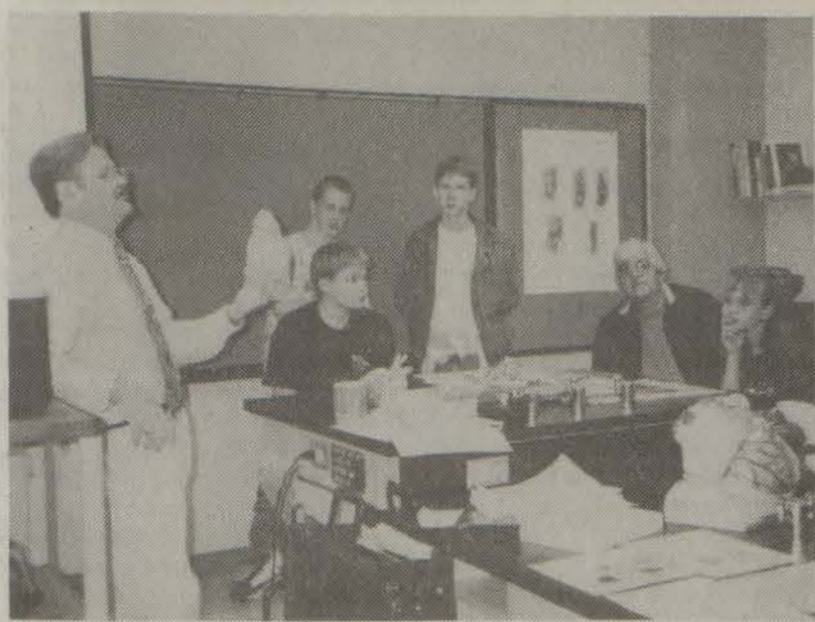

These are pilot programs that teach basic employment skills and specific job competencies that will result in the placement of students into job shadowing and cooperative work experiences. The classes were created in alignment with KERA reforms and the requirements of the school-to-work transition bill.

Grandparents' day

Mrs. Shepherd's kindergarten class at Prestonsburg Elementary recently worked on a unit about the five senses and to emphasize the letter "B" and the sense of taste. The class made banana splits. Mrs. Shepherd's students will use their experience to make a "How-To-Book" about making banana splits. What do parents want from the Floyd County school system?

"Parents want an education for their kids," Branham said.

Those involved in the Floyd County school system need to reach an accord and to work together," Branham said.

"There should be more tranquility," Branham said. "Employees should enjoy themselves more and there shouldn't be so much pressure put on them. There are so many pressures in the system. You can't change from day to night overnight. Things have been going on for 25 years and you can't change it in one or two years. We should help our teachers. The system needs to get its spirit back."

Academics has taken a back seat to athletics in years past, Branham said, but that appears to be changing.

"The emphasis has been more on academics in Floyd County," Branham said. "We need to show more people to think about academics. It's going to take some time. A small percentage of students benefit from sports. There are a lot more scholarships for academics than sports if we go for them."

"I want people from Eastern Kentucky to be as smart as anybody in the world," Branham said. "We have to do better. It will take everybody working together and that's the biggest thing (that needs to be done)."

School board member Phyllis Honshell hopes to hang on to her District Five board seat so that she can work toward providing students with what they need for a quality education.

"I want to make sure we provide the tools students need to learn and perform in the classroom," Honshell said. "We also need to improve the hiring practices to be sure we get quality people from teachers to administrators."

"I also want to work very hard to reduce the dropout rate and emphasize to parents and students the importance of staying in school," Honshell added. "We need to raise the expectations of parents and students."

Honshell is caught in the middle on the issue of the quality of smaller schools versus bigger schools.

"Sometimes I think larger schools compound the problems," Honshell said. "But, I'm not sure smaller schools will solve the problem either."

Honshell agrees with the concept of the state's education reform act, but feels it may have some flaws that need to be worked out as time goes by.

"A lot of parents are concerned about some parts of KERA and I share those same concerns," Honshell said. "They feel their children are not getting the basics they need in the primary program. They feel students are not reading as well as they should; not getting basic grammar skills; basic math; and the basic principles of science. That's one of the major concerns parents have."

Parents want their children to come out of the Floyd County school system prepared for the transition from high school to a post-secondary school or the work force, Honshell said. The school system should have a broad curriculum so students can be very well rounded for college, technical school or the work force, she added.

The theory behind school councils "is great," but care should be taken that councils are not used to abuse the powers they possess.

"I'm not suggesting that is happening, but there is room for abuse," Honshell said. "I'm very much for councils. Governance of schools should come from teachers, administrators and parents who are directly involved with the students."

"I think we have to be very careful with nepotism laws (and councils)," Honshell said. "However, the law (for eligibility to serve on a council) should be more consistent in governing all members of a council, not just parental members. Under the law, the same rules do not apply to principals and teachers."

Honshell hopes to continue working toward planning in schools and making sure schools stay close to those plans. She also wants to make sure that the system is reaching every student because she believes all students can learn.

Honshell feels that there is a place for both academics and athletics in the school system and it has been proven that there is a direct correlation between the dropout rate and extracurricular activities.

"It has been shown that 96 percent of high school students that dropout of school were not involved in extracurricular activities," Honshell said. "It takes extracurricular activities to sweeten academics, so be it."

"I don't think we should ever place a high emphasis on athletics or any other extracurricular activity than academics," Honshell said. "Academics has to be the first priority."

Sara Hopson

THE TRIP
(Part I)

According to Amanda, everything was a plethora of beauty. As we traveled over the Smokey Mountain range, the hills, the trees, the scenery plethora was everywhere. (Our grandmother learned a new word once and for one solid month all we heard was negligence, negligence, negligence.) But when you are confined to one vehicle for over 12 hours, hearing plethora over and over again is not a word of beauty.

Coming from Amanda's plethora lips, my mother and sisters thought the word was great. If moi had said it more than once I would have been chastised for trying to appear smart. And Heaven forbid I ever try to appear intelligent in front of four know-it-alls.

"Where did you learn that word, Amanda?" I asked casually.

"I know a lot of words, Sara. You didn't teach me everything I know. I've learned a lot of things since I moved away from Paintsville."

"And it's a good thing, too. Because if you hadn't you would never have known that there's a big gob of food caught between your two front teeth, smarty."

"THE HILLS ARE ALIVE WITH THE SOUND OF MUSIC! WITH SONGS I HAVE HEARD FOR A MILLION YEARS! LA, LA, LA, LA, LA, LA! WITH THE SOUND OF MUSIC! LA, LA, LA, LA, LA, LA! THE HILLS ARE GORGEOUS!" Melinda trilled as she drove us through the plethora landscape. "I wish I knew the rest of that song."

"Personally, I'm glad you don't," Jenny laughed.

"Have you eaten, Amanda?" I asked as I chomped on pretzels.

"Is that all you think about?" she questioned.

"No, sometimes I contemplate my navel," I intoned.

"Well, I don't contemplate mine. In fact, mine looks like a pigs tail."

"So does mine," Melinda agreed.

"Why are our navels so tiny, Mom?" Amanda asked.

"How should I know," Mother replied red-faced.

"It's hard to clean my navel it's so tiny," I said.

"Yeah, I know," Amanda said.

"Sometimes I find material in mine."

"Material?" Jenny asked. "It wouldn't be my silk skirt that I left at your house last summer would it?"

We lost it. All of us lost it and our breath except for Melinda who couldn't lose it because she was driving. But it was all she could do to stay on the curvy road as we laughed at Jenny's remark.

"What is Sara writing down?" Amanda asked.

"Nothing," I lied.

"That better not come out in your article. Isn't anything sacred?"

"Yup. A fatted calf an oaths," Jenny replied solemnly.

"Sara, you're not supposed to tell everything."

"It's all right, Amanda. People don't believe this stuff anyway. Hey, Melinda could you stop in minute, I have to go to the bathroom."

"You just went to the bathroom 30 minutes ago," all four of them screamed in unison.

"I know, but I have to drink eight glasses of water."

"You've got all day to do that," Mother stated flatly.

"Mom I really like your purse," Amanda said. Mercifully changing the subject from my bladder.

"Thank you. It's just a cheap, inexpensive thing I picked up."

"Gee, thanks, Mom!" Amanda cried. "I got you that purse."

Stay tuned next week when Melinda sings: NOTHING COULD BE FINER THAN TO BE IN CAROLINER IN THE MOR-OR-OR-NING. LA, LA, LA, LA, LA, LA, IN THE MOR-OR-OR-NING!

THE TIMES' WEEKEND Extra

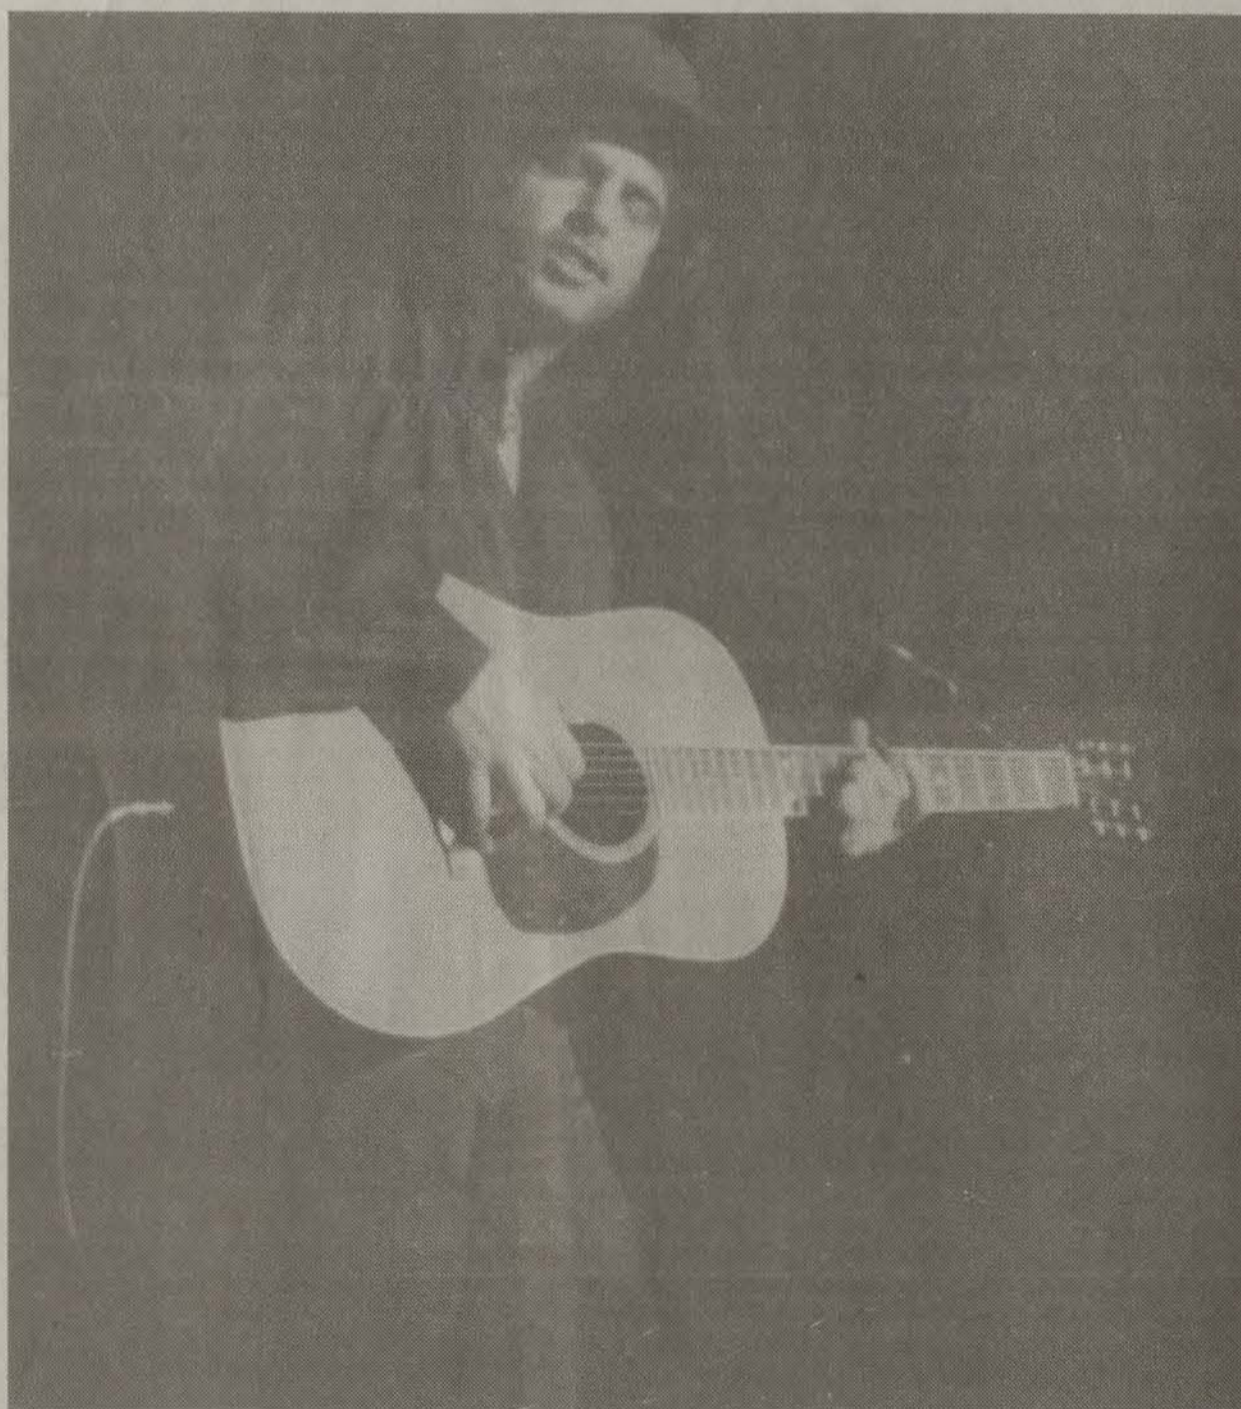

Michael Johnathon ain't your father's folksinger...

Imagine an artist who grows up in New York and starts his musical career by roaming the Appalachian mountains singing about the environment, the homeless and farm families... having the mayor of a major US city hear one of his songs and being moved to sleep on the streets with the homeless because of it... to bring no less than four governors into recording studios... to assemble several thousand youngsters together to make records about the earth... to organize a concert series about teenage suicide attended by over 250,000 young people ... to film five music videos and have them all go into rotation on CMT and TNN...

And then, without the muscle of a major label, bring the finest musicians in the nation, several of whom are Grammy winners, plus a full symphony into the recording studio to record a concept album that brings the feel of "folk" to Arena Level ... then, cap it all off by taking a Pete Seeger inspired song called Techno-Folk, add a rock band and symphony together with a banjo, turn the state capitol into a movie set with 1,482 extras and complete a full scale folk music epic for MTV ... And who says folk can't be exciting!

To experience this singer/songwriter in concert, catch his show Saturday, November 5, at Appalshop, 306 Madison Street, Whitesburg, as Michael Johnathon comes to town in support of the release of his "Dreams of Fire" album, in stores nationally.

Tickets for the show are $5 per person and are available at the door or may be reserved by calling (606) 633-5708.

Coming home

Singer/songwriter Michael Johnathon will make his first concert appearance in East Kentucky since 1989 at the Appalshop Theatre, Saturday, November 5, at 7:30 p.m. A Lexington resident, he lived in the Knott County hamlet of Mousie for three years and has just concluded a national tour in support of the PoetMan Records USA release "Dreams of Fire."

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

Former hostage Terry Anderson, who was kidnapped by terrorists in Beirut in 1985 and held for nearly seven years, filed a lawsuit against 13 federal agencies in September because they refused to release U.S. government documents pertaining to the kidnapping. Among the agencies' rejection letters was one from the Drug Enforcement Administration, which said it would not release records unless Anderson provided an "original notarized authorization" from his captors waiving their privacy rights.

POLICE BLOTTER

As part of an ongoing feud, according to police in Fairfield, Iowa, Ronald Warren Switzer, 39, flew a small paraplane over the home of Mike Parsons in July and fired several rifle shots — perhaps the nation's first fly-by shooting. And in March, the FBI charged that James A. McClelland, 48, of Spokane, Wash., hired a man to murder his wife with a poisonous needle in a skate-by-pricking.

According to Durham, N.C., convenience store clerk Sandra Lewis, who was held up by a man in February, the robber almost could not stop apologizing. He said he was sorry when he began the holdup, then again when he rejected her plea to think it over, then again just as he fled. A few seconds after leaving, he returned and said, "I'm sorry, really, I'm sorry," but nevertheless kept the money. By contrast, in March, the robber of a tobacco shop in Mesa, Ariz., not only returned the next night to rob the clerk again but chastised her for having been rude to him the night before.

Reuters news service reported last fall that a bank robbery in a suburb of Sydney, Australia, was thwarted when three men, aged 69, 70 and 85, plied the 18-year-old robber to the ground and held him until police arrived.

In August, Cindy Hartman, 26, started a burglar when, upon encountering him in her home in Conway, Ark., she dropped to her knees and began to pray for him. The man apologized and called to his partner outside, "We've got to [give back] all of this. This is a Christian home. We can't do this." The two burglars brought back the items they had stolen and even left their gun with her.

Paul Bivens, 28, was charged with attempted burglary of a liquor store in Greenville, Miss., in May after police matched fingerprints. The prints on Bivens' fingers matched the print on a severed finger that police found on the floor of the store, the result of the burglar's having slammed a door on his hand.

A 27-year-old man in Salt Lake City reported in September that a burglar had taken $50 and a bottle of Rogaine, and that the thief had probably entered through an open bathroom window in his apartment. The victim said he usually leaves the bathroom window open so that he can come and go freely, without neighbors' knowledge, while dressed as a woman.

Recent uses of food as a weapon: Laurie Remillard was pelted with doughnuts in May in a drive-by attack in Biddeford, Maine; Gary Boyington, 23, was charged last winter with a robbery in Olathe, Kan., in Scientists have concluded, after about 200 million years of research, that women are, in fact, smarter than men.

The news of that finding comes on the heels of a report suggesting there are more women than men inhabiting the planet and that men had just better admit women are smarter or they can all go sleep on the couch.

The first conclusive evidence of higher intelligence among females dates back to the origin of our species, when Eve ate the apple, forcing Adam to go out and look for work.

Seems she was tired of him lounging about all day in nothing but his fig leaves, waiting for someone to invent Monday Night Football.

Lately we've seen statistics that suggest girls are doing better in school than boys and many educational officials are scratching their heads in wonder.

Most of the men administrators are scratching somewhere else, of course.

So, why are girls doing better than boys?

Well, because they're smarter.

In case you haven't noticed, there are some physiological differences between men and women which explain a few things.

While men and women do have the same sized brains, women are known to be capable of using more of theirs for thinking.

The male brain is made up mostly of inert material, with small pockets utilized for specific functions, like memorizing baseball stats and other mathematical figures such as those provided by the Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Edition.

Critical thinking is predominantly a female thing.

Women use their reasoning powers so well, in fact, that they can drive a car without ever sitting behind the wheel and they can make men apologize for wrongs they never committed.

Men, on the other hand, are more apt to apply the full force of their brainpower to the choices offered in the TV Guide.

Yep, no doubt about it.

Women have always been smarter and they always will be.

If you don't believe it, just ask one.

CRITIC'S CORNER

THE SPECIALIST

A few years back, after some very public, failed forays into comedy, Sly Stallone proclaimed that it was obvious the public only wished to see him in action films. He vowed that he would deliver on that. However, despite all the action flicks that followed, only "Cliffhanger" was a hit. Unfortunately for him, this latest is embarrassingly bad, despite doing some boffo box office when it debuted.

Stallone stars as Ray Quick, a former explosives expert for the CIA, who spends his time hanging around Miami, hoping someone will hire him out as a hit man, provided both the money and the cause are good enough. Sharon Stone portrays May Munro, a gorgeous, obviously wealthy (although you really never know what her profession actually is) woman who wants Quick to do in Tomas Leon (Eric Roberts) and his father, Joe Leon (Rod Steiger). It seems father and son are drug kingpins who executed May's parents when she was a kid. Horrified and helpless, the poor dear had to watch while hiding in a closet.

Taking on a Mata Hari role, May romances Tomas, as well as his head of security, Ned Trent (James Woods). As coincidence would have it, Trent happens to be Ray's ex-partner from the CIA and the two can't hate each other enough. It is obvious, though, that May's real love interest is her hit man, Quick, and the two are soon consummating their relationship in the requisite (these days) sex scene. Sadly, nothing is really sizzling between these two at all. There's absolutely no chemistry whatsoever.

Despite the fact that there's a pretty decent cast assembled here, both the script and the directing are so pitiful, it's enough to almost make you scream. As it was, I found it very difficult to sit through this turkey until the end. Thus, I recommend you spare yourself a tortuous two hours and pass on this one.

which, though he claimed he had a gun, he was armed only with a chili dog he had just purchased; McDonald's restaurant employee Greg Dean stopped a robber in Oklahoma City in August by hitting the man in the chest with a Quarter-Pounder, startling him and causing him to flee; Teresa Ann Johnson, 27, was arrested in Wilmington, N.C., in August and charged with tossing a vat of hot crabs on the police officer who had come to break up a fight at her home; film producer Donald P. Borchers claimed in July that one of his actors, Hunter Von Leer, had hurled a bowl of green Jell-O at him in Goldfield, Nev., during a break in making the movie, "The Stranger."

—Recent uses of live animals as weapons: Two people in Camden, N.J., in August, and the owner of a store in Columbia, S.C., in May, said they were robbed by men brandishing only large, black snakes; Roland Wood, 31, said in July that he was assaulted by a man in Austin, Texas, who threw a Mexican freetail bat at him; a woman in Coraopolis, Pa., decided not to press charges against her former boyfriend, whom she had accused in June of chasing her with a snapping turtle in a fight over their breakup.

The Sumter (S.C.) Item newspaper reported in September that state Rep. Said Brown, "A person is not going to vote for you for that reason."

Sports overview...

After rocky start, Prestonsburg rights itself

Morris outstanding in final six games

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When the Prestonsburg Blackcats started their 1994 football season, fond memories were still in the hearts and minds of the Blackcat faithful after a sparkling campaign in 1993.

A state final berth and within inches of a state championship, the team returned home that year to a hometown hero's welcome.

The '93 team was loaded with talent, both on the defensive side of the football as well as on offense. College scouts were drooling over the prospects the Blackcats were sending their way.

Coach Bill Letton and his coaching staff knew that the road into the 1994 season, especially the beginning, was going to be a rocky one. But, yet, they felt that the team could have a successful season.

It would be rough the first four games for Letton's ballclub, with three of the four on the road against quality opponents.

The season got started on the right foot when the Blackcats faced traditionally strong Pikeville in the Pike County Bowl on the Panthers' home turf.

The youth and greenness of the Blackcats showed in the early going of the game. But two breaks allowed the Blackcats to pull out a very large win as they ambushed the Panthers 26-21 on senior quarterback Thomas Ratliff's 1-yard plunge with just two seconds left on the clock.

It was Ratliff who took over the leadership role as he spearheaded a drive that went from the Blackcats' own 36 to pay dirt. Ratliff completed a 13-yard pass to Ryan Ortega and rushed for 19 yards on six carries.

Mike Shepherd, on a third-and-seven, busted the Panthers' defense for a 30-yard pickup and the Panthers were called for a face masking. Three plays later, Ratliff scored what proved to be the winning touchdown to erase a 21-20 Pikeville lead. He was chosen as the Most Valuable Offensive Player.

Coach Letton added always tough

Lexington Lafayette to his schedule for the 1994 season. The Generals were coming off an open game loss to Henderson County and Terry Clark was worried about facing the Blackcats.

But Prestonsburg failed to move the football and fumbled the football 10 times in the game and dropped an unusual 13-0 loss to the Generals.

The ground game of the Blackcats struggled big time against Lafayette as Ratliff was the team's leading rusher with only 48 yards.

The loss to Lafayette would be the first of a three-game losing streak as the Blackcats fell 10-7 to Whitesburg in what turned out to be a big district loss. On the road at Belfry, Prestonsburg started to get their legs but dropped a 21-14 decision to Phillip Haywood's Pirates.

Coach Letton's team entered the first of six consecutive district games and he knew he needed some running Leadership!

Eyes on Morris!

Prestonsburg's Larry Morris carried the football after seeing some time in the backfield for Prestonsburg this season. But the eyes of the college folks are not on Morris for his running ability, but for his defensive play. Morris will lead the defensive Blackcats when the regional playoffs begin tonight. Fifteen teams gather for annual Martin Elementary Panorama

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It will be basketball galore at the "Hoss" Halbert Gymnasium at Martin Elementary this Saturday as the Purple Flash host their annual grade school shootout.

Fifteen teams will gather at the Martin gym as boys and girls teams from across the county and beyond congregate.

The day-long action begins at 9 a.m. with a girls game that will pit the Betsy Layne Elementary Lady Cats against the Duff Lady Bulldogs, who are rated high as one of the top county teams.

At 9:45 a.m. the Duff Bulldogs will face the Bobcats of Betsy Layne in the second game of the morning schedule. The McDowell girls will match up against the Allen Lady Eagles in a 10:30 a.m. tip-off time.

Mountain Christian Academy will face Harold in a boys game at 11:15 as the noon hour nears. At noon, the Allen Eagles will meet Millard in what should be a good matchup.

The Adams Middle School girls will take on the Lady Red Devils of Harold at 12:45 p.m., while the Martin Purple Flash team meets Mullins at 1:30 p.m.

The defending county champions, Adams Middle School, will meet Millard at 2:15 p.m. Another defending county champion, J.M. Stumbo, who won the girls' title, will face Melvin at 3 p.m.

Beaver faces the Melvin Cougars at 3:45 p.m. with the Martin girls taking on Auxier at 4:30 p.m.

Melvin girls will meet Maytown at 5:15 with Martin's "B" team playing against Porter's "B" team at 6 p.m.

Auxier's boys take on Maytown at 6:45 p.m. and Martin boys will face John M. Stumbo in the evening's final game at 7:30 p.m.

Each game will consist of two ten-minute halves. The clock will run straight through except for the last two minutes of the second half.

Some of the top-ranked grade school teams will be in the panorama. Duff Elementary is expected to put strong boys' and girls' teams on the floor. The John M. Stumbo Lady Mustangs will be a top girls' team. Martin is expected to be very competitive this season.

Maytown always had a strong girls' team as well as a strong boys' class.

So, if you like grade school basketball, or just basketball in general, then the Martin gym is the place to be tomorrow morning.

There will be plenty of hot dogs, cold drinks and popcorn for those who wish to stay all day.

Admission to the bonanza will be $1 per student and $2 adults.

Scouting report...

Taking care of business means taking care of football tonight

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

East Carter will be playing their fifth playoff game when they face the Prestonsburg Blackcats tonight at the Prestonsburg stadium in the first game of regional playoff action.

The Raiders will play game five, which includes two playoff games last year. East Carter made their first appearance in the playoffs in 1980 and fell to Carroll County 36-12. After a three-year absence, the Raiders dropped a 6-0 game to Newport Catholic in the 1983 playoffs.

Last year, 10 years later, coach Gary McPeck got the Raiders back in the playoffs and they responded with an opening win over Whitesburg, 25-15, in the first round before falling to Russell 28-0 in the semifinals.

Coach McPeck's scouting report...

"Prestonsburg is an excellent team," said the Raiders' coach. "They have the best defensive player that I have ever seen in Larry Morris. He's just an excellent linebacker.

"The (Thomas) Ratliff kid is a great quarterback who does an excellent job. The whole team is a great team. They will be hard to match up against."

Coach McPeck is a former Russell Red Devil coach and he returned to Russell only to see a big lead disappear by halftime to the Red Devils.

"We were up 21-7 and, just like that, they tied us before halftime at 21," said the Raiders' mentor. "I never saw nothing like it."

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

Remembering last season...Equal time needed at BL gym

PLAY-OFFS BEGIN....

It's that time of year again, and I was just remembering last season in November. The football season had closed, and the Prestonsburg Blackcats were a hot number around the area.

What a great game against Danville! I believe that was the greatest high school football game that I had ever seen. I was standing under the goal post as Danville had just scored and went for the two point conversion. I can still see Tim Lewis stop the Danville quarterback at the two in overtime for a Prestonsburg win.

What a great game it was! Now, the ranks have changed, but the same philosophy is intact. Play hard. That has always been the coaching philosophy of coach Bill Letton -- play hard.

This year's team has seen new players stepping in to fill the void from last year's state team. While the first four games were on the rough side, they learned from the wars and won the final six games to finish 7-3.

Nothing wrong with that record. A lot of teams in the state would love to have it.

Now the Blackcats will once again see if they have it in them to repeat. This is a fine group of young men. Young men who would love to represent their school and county once again in Louisville.

Here is one fan who wishes them the best -- all the way!

LETTON CLASS ACT...

We have all seen the scores of some of the local teams in the other counties: 73-0, 68-6, 78-8 and on. Some coaches like to run the score up. But I have never seen Coach Letton pull anything like that.

Case in point. Against Morgan County, he had the Cougars beaten pretty solidly. He could have kept his varsity in the game and seen how many points they could have scored.

But instead, he went into the second half with his junior varsity team and the freshmen saw action in the fourth period. It was then that Morgan County scored twice to make it a more respectable score.

A tip of the hat to Coach Letton and his coaching staff. HALBERT DOING FINE...

As everyone knows by now, "Hoss" Halbert had surgery done on his left knee back in September and is doing great.

The former Martin coach will be inducted into the Kentucky Hall of Fame in March, the day before the start of the Sweet Sixteen.

Don Wallen, former coach at Wheelwright High School, now in Florida, was recently inducted into the Florida Hall of Fame after a very successful coaching career in the Sunshine State.

NOTE TO HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL COACHES...

I need, ASAP, the final stats of your respective teams. I am currently working on our Football Wrap-up tab as we look back at the just completed season.

If you would please forward those to me soon, I would be most appreciative.

PRACTICE TIME...

Seems there are concerned parents voicing their disapproval about the way the practice time at the Dome in Betsy Layne has been passed out.

By the practice schedule made out, Betsy Layne grade school gets 11 practice sessions while Harold Elementary gets only four.

Betsy Layne has the gym from 3 p.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until 10:30 a.m. on Saturdays. They use the gym again on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. They then come back on Saturdays from 12:30 p.m. until 3 p.m.

Business

"We have to bounce back from our loss last week to Lawrence County," said McPeck. "We will have to move the football on the ground because we don't pass the football that much."

"Turnovers. We must eliminate the turnovers. We had five against Lawrence County last week. We have to cut that down."

"Again, it will take our best effort of the season to beat Prestonsburg. This is a fabulous program that came within a holding call of being state champions," he said.

The East Carter coach knows what a win over Prestonsburg could do for his program.

that much but when we do, we usually try and be accurate," he said. "We throw enough to try and keep teams off balance."

Marshall has thrown 84 times this season, averaging around eight passes a game.

But with the backfield that the Raiders have, why pass?

"Darren (Fite) has rushed for over 1,500 yards this season (1,521) and Curtis has over 1,300 (1,331)," said McPeck.

Mistakes have hurt the Raiders this season, an area that the coach hopes will be rectified before tonight's game.

"We just make silly mistakes," he said. "Like last Friday night we had an 8-0 lead and then fumbled the football. They scored and we never recovered."

"Prestonsburg is a fine football team and they showed it last week against Napier after falling behind 6-0 at the half and winning 26-6."

Prestonsburg

"A win here would be a huge boost for our football program," he said. "We look forward to playing them there."

Injured list...

"We haven't any injuries," said McPeck. "We are healthy except for the normal 10 game bruises you have at this time of year."

Coach McPeck finds it hard to agree with the pollsters that say it will be a close encounter.

"I don't know," he said. "Prestonsburg is capable of blowing you off the field. If we can't establish our game against them then we could be in trouble."

"We don't throw the football that much although we can," he said.

David Marshall, a sophomore, has thrown for 14 touchdowns this season with tightend Donald Bender catching seven TD passes.

"You can see that we don't throw out of the backfield. The call went to sophomore Jon Morris, who was used early at a split end slot. Morris gave the Blackcats just what they needed, some solid running."

Prestonsburg reeled off victories over their next six opponents that concluded the regular season schedule this past Friday night with a 26-6 win over M.C. Napier.

Tonight, Prestonsburg will quest for a return trip to Louisville for the Class 2A championship.

While there may be yet another rocky road on the journey, this ballclub has grown up some with new people stepping up on the defensive side, people like Waylon Bevins, Tim Lane, Mike Pennington and others to join the regulars like Robbie Risner, Paul Collins, Larry Morris, Tim Lewis and Jason Spencer on defense.

The trip begins tonight when the Blackcats host the East Carter Raiders in a home playoff game. If the Cats pull off a victory at home, then there could be a trip to Russell to face the undefeated Red Devils. Or, if the Shelby Valley Wildcats could pull off a miracle win, then the Cats would host the Wildcats at home.

This is the point of the season when, with one loss, you stay home. This ballclub knows about winning and how to win. They are an excellently coached football team. A final four appearance is not out of the realm of possibilities.

All Floyd County fans should make the trip to the Prestonsburg stadium tonight and let the Blackcats know that there are those who are cheering them on.

Game time is 8 p.m. Go Cats!

The high school season has ended as far as regular season games go. But the excitement of the playoffs are here once again. Scott has a large lead and seems to be headed to the top spot this year, replacing Tim as the reigning champion. Locally, the Prestonsburg Blackcats should clear the first step toward Louisville when they face East Carter tonight. Whitesburg, Russell and Lawrence County are picked to win. Vanderbilt gets the nod over Kentucky as it doesn't appear that the Wildcats will win again this season. On the pro level, Cleveland will rebound from last week's loss to Denver and the Steelers are picked over Houston.

AMS Invitational tourney includes field of 12 teams

by Ed Taylor

The Adams Middle School Invitational Basketball Tournament will kick off the 1994-95 elementary basketball schedule when 12 teams converge on the Adams gym Monday night.

Adams, the defending Floyd County champion, is expected to be the team to beat again this season as they return a strong duo in John Ortega and Joe Campbell.

Duff Elementary, another county favorite, will open the tournament Monday night when the Lady Bulldogs face Betsy Layne in a 5:30 p.m. start.

The Lady Bulldogs are considered a team that will compete for a county title this year.

In the second game Monday night, host Adams will host the Duff Bulldogs of Ronnie Patton. The game could be a preview of the county championship this year. Duff will return a strong team also. Game time is 7 p.m. Monday night.

In the third game Monday night, the Allen Eagles will take on Betsy Layne in an 8:30 p.m. start. Allen and Betsy Layne both will challenge this year.

The tournament continues Tuesday night with two games. Harold Lady Red Devils will meet the Adams Lady Blackcats at 5:30 p.m. The John M. Stumbo Mustangs will face the winner of the Allen/Betsy Layne game at 7 p.m. At 8:30 p.m., Harold will take on either Adams or Duff in the evening's third game.

The tournament will continue Wednesday night and the championship games will be played Saturday at 5 and 6:30 p.m.

The grade school season has always been a fan's delight, showcasing good young basketball players who will one day star in the high school ranks.

The county tournament has drawn a large number of fans from around the county.

Grade school notes:

• Maytown (Section I), John M. Stumbo (Section II), Melvin (Section III) and Adams (Section IV) will host their respective sectionals this year.

• Auxier will host the county tournament with Betsy Layne hosting next year.

• Auxier will host the county tournament in the year 2007-08.

on Tuesdays (6-8 p.m.), Thursdays (6-8 p.m.), Fridays, (8-9:45 p.m.) and Saturdays (10:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.).

Betsy Layne practices 17 hours per week while Harold uses the gym for practice seven and three-quarters of an hour.

No doubt, the Betsy Layne gym is used more than any gym in the county with the high school team and freshmen teams practicing there.

Now that is at the Dome. They have a nice facility up on "The Hill" that could be used for some practice time.

I know that the boys and girls teams alternate between the two sites, but some time could be found for the grade schools.

No matter how you look at it, fair is fair. Each school should be given equal time in the gym.

The final decision lies with the Betsy Layne principal in deciding who has access to the gym and how much time they have.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports. Round up the kids this Sunday and take them to church.

East Carter invades Prestonsburg tonight...

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The road to the Final Four begins tonight for the Prestonsburg Blackcats (7-3) football team. It is a road that they have traveled before as late as last season.

Coach Bill Letton's Blackcats will be coming into tonight's high school football playoffs with a six-game winning streak and as an eight-point favorite over the East Carter Raiders (8-2).

Prestonsburg is in an unfamiliar role as the second place team in Region IV, District 2. The Blackcats finished second behind Whitesburg, which went undefeated in district play and lost only one time this season.

Last year it was a cake walk for Prestonsburg. They blew by everyone they faced in their quest for the Class 2A championship game in Louisville where they fell to Mayfield 13-12.

Looking for someone to consistently carry the football after the first four games, Coach Letton found it in sophomore Jon Morris (5'11", 170).

Morris averaged just over a 100 yards per game (unofficially 106) in the last six contests. He saw very little time in the backfield in the first four games that Prestonsburg played.

Senior quarterback Thomas Ratliff (6'2", 170) is a seasoned veteran who has been through the gridiron wars from last year and will have to continue to show senior leadership.

Ratliff has rushed for over 400 yards this season from the signal calling slot. He has passed for just over 500 yards. He is an excellent option quarterback with good knowledge who reads the defense well.

Mike Shepherd (6', 185) had an excellent first game against Pikeville, rushing for 141 yards. He continues to be a steady ball carrier, averaging 48 yards per game (481 yards).

Blake Leslie (5'10", 155), along with Chad Spurlock (5'9", 163) and Larry Morris (6'1", 220), have been used sparingly in the backfield.

Morris is an All-American linebacker, who wore number 50 until he was used at an end slot as well as in the backfield. He now wears number 41.

Morris leads the Prestonsburg defense with eight tackles per contest. He is a hard-hitting linebacker who dreams of sacking the opposition's quarterback.

It has been an up and down year physically for senior Robbie Risner (5'9", 191). Risner has suffered some injuries this season, but has been a solid defensive player for the Blackcats.

The pleasant surprise for the Blackcats has been the defensive play of Waylon Bevins (5'11", 155). Just a good hard-nosed football player. Nose guard Paul Collins is another one who has had a banner defensive season. He had a Prestonsburg must keep control of football...

The East Carter Raiders (8-2, 5-2) will be sporting two of the top backs in the state when they invade the Prestonsburg stadium tonight for the start of the regional playoffs.

Darren Fite and Curtis Mackley are among the state's elite when it comes to moving the football. Fite is the state's seventh-leading rusher, averaging 155 yards per game.

Mackley, while not piling up the rushing yards, has the tendency to find a way across the goal line and that is why he is the state's sixth leading scorer at 14.7 points per game.

By virtue of the play of the two, it is easy to see that the Raiders plan on grinding it out on the ground tonight as they face Prestonsburg (7-3, 6-1).

East Carter leads the series 1-0 over Prestonsburg. The last time the two teams met on the gridiron was back in 1978 with the Raiders coming away with a 20-17 win over the Blackcats.

Sophomore David Marshall (5'8", 145) will quarterback the Raiders ballclub. Joining Mackley and Fite in the backfield will be Clyde Jordan (5'10", 175) at the wing back slot.

The trio will line up of the wing "T" with Mackley at fullback.

Aaron Castle (6'1", 225) will be at center while Jason Somon (5'10", 180) and Carlos Duncan (5'11", 195) will play the guard slots.

Cregg Castle (6'3", 220) will play one tackle with Darren Withrow (6', 220) will be at the other side. Donald Bender (6'3", 230) and Gains Womack (6', 160) will anchor down the defensive end positions.

The winner advances on to play the winner of the Russell/Shelby Valley game next Friday.

great defensive outing against M.C. Napier and should carry over to tonight's game.

Jason Spencer (5'11", 240), Mike Pennington (6', 205), Tim Lewis (6'3", 245) and John Lyons (6', 175) give the Blackcats good size on the line.

Coach Letton's Scouting Report...

"East Carter is a very good football team," said Coach Letton. "They finished 8-2 and lost to Russell. But they played Russell tough and had a chance to win the game.

"Their two backs, Mackley and Fite, are good ball carriers. They play a lot like Russell because that is where Coach (Gary) Mcpeek went to high school.

"They like to run the wing 'T' offense and will do a lot of variations out of it. They're a great offensive team.

"On defense they gamble a lot.

They're just a good football team," he said.

Prestonsburg defense has earned the reputation of being very strong up the middle. The defensive ends for Prestonsburg may face a severe test tonight.

Keys for a Blackcat win...

"East Carter sustains a lot of drive with their defense," said Coach Letton. "They are not a big play club and so they grind it out on the ground. We have to eliminate that. We have to create something on defense.

"On the other hand, we have to do just the opposite. We have to control the football on offense and have the long drives. We need to keep the ball out of their hands," he said.

Injured list...

"We're in good shape there," said the Prestonsburg mentor.

A "High-Five" Salute To All Floyd County Teams!
