Now what? Contract With America awaits new Congress

The results of Tuesday's national elections, which gave the Republican Party control of the House and Senate for the first time since Dwight Eisenhower was President, kicks in a pledge that GOP candidates made prior to the election.

The pledge, known as a "Contract With America," promises that within the first 100 days of the start of the next session, the House will vote on the following ten pieces of legislation:

- A balanced budget amendment to the Constitution and a legislative line-item veto.
  - An anti-crime package that would include limits on death penalty appeals and more money for prisons and law enforcement.
  - Welfare reform that would limit recipients to two years of eligibility.
  - Enforcement of child support laws, tax incentives for adoption and an elderly dependent care tax credit.
  - A $500-per-child tax credit.
  - A prohibition on U.S. troops being placed under United Nations control, and a restoration of some defense spending.
  - Allowing Social Security recipients between 65 and 70 to earn $30,000 a year before any retirement benefits are lost. The current limit is $11,000 a year.
  - Cutting the tax rate on capital gains and providing regulatory relief for businesses.
  - A limit on punitive damages in lawsuits, and allowing judges to order losers to pay both sides' litigation costs.
  - Term limits for members of Congress.
- The 104th Congress, in which these actions have been promised, begins in January.

Betsy Layne youths to spruce up center

The Spruce Pine School will get some sprucing up this Saturday as students at Betsy Layne High School grab their cleaning rags and paint brushes and go to work.

The project is part of Betsy Layne High School's Jobs for Kentucky Graduates Program. The students will be bused from the high school to the Spruce Pine School at Little Mud on Honaker, and the work will begin around 9:30 a.m.

Residents are urged to lend a helping hand as the students work to repair the school, which has become a community center.

Floyd native making a big splash on country music scene :

Curry singing her way to the top

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

A former Floyd County woman is taking the country music world by storm and walking away with some of its top awards.

Jennifer Curry, daughter of Claudia Curry of Banner and the late Forrest S. Curry, won the Country Music Association's National Eagle Award of Female Entertainer of the Year in Las Vegas, Nevada, in October. Curry also won the Vocal Duo of the Year with her singing partner Joe Dougherty.

"I was crying when I got the award. I got all choked up. I was speechless," she said. "I am just happy when I've got someone to sing to."

During the ceremony, other celebrities accepted awards. Cliffie Stone received the Lifetime Achievement Award and Vince Gill's mother was named Mother of the Year, Curry said.

"(Vince Gill's mom) said her son isn't different from anybody else. He's just more popular now," Curry remembered during a telephone interview.

After the ceremony, Curry was interviewed on the California TV hit country show, Country Connection. The host praised Curry's talents and said she was a combination of Reba McEntyre, Patsy Cline and Dottie West. A deejay in Florida, where she lives, has compared her to Emmy Lou Harris, Faith Hill and Linda Ronstadt.

Sheriff may appeal order to repay money taken in 1987

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The Floyd County Sheriff's Department has been ordered by Circuit Judge Paul Burchett to return over $6,000 confiscated during a drug raid in 1987.

In an order signed Tuesday, Judge Burchett ruled that the money seized from the home of Donald Kimberly and Arlene Osborne should be returned to Osborne because the state dismissed the forfeiture action on July 27, 1993.

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said Thursday that he will ask the judge to reconsider the issue.

"We will ask for a reconsideration by Judge Burchett," Thompson said. "If not, we'll probably appeal it."

The judge's ruling said that the sheriff's department is responsible

"We intend to ask for a reconsideration by Judge Burchett," Thompson said. "If not, we'll probably appeal it."

for repaying the money.

"Since that time everyone has agreed that the defendant, Arlene Osborne, is entitled to have the confiscated money returned but all elected officials hold up their hands and say we're not the ones supposed to pay it," Judge Burchett's order said. "This court is of the opinion that the money was confiscated by the sheriff's office and that it should be the sheriff's office that is ordered to return the money."

"The court is cognizant of the fact that we now have a different sheriff than the one that conducted the raid in 1987; however, the Sheriff of Floyd County is still the Sheriff of Floyd County regardless of who the office holder is," the order said.

The raid was conducted by Sheriff Henry Hale and the Kentucky State Police in 1987. As a result of the raid, Kimberly was charged and convicted of possession of marijuana.

In October 1992, the Kentucky Supreme Court remanded the case to circuit court for taking additional evidence as to the forfeiture of the money.

Vandals spoil water supply, force shutoff

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Residents of the City of Martin are being advised not to drink or cook with water from the city's water system—even if boiled—because vandals allegedly urinated in the water tank Wednesday.

Two Floyd County men have been arrested in connection with Wednesday's incident.

John Edward Reed, 19, of Martin and Kevin Whitaker, 18, of Hueysville were arrested Wednesday evening by Martin police chief James Burke.

The two men were charged with first degree criminal mischief and first degree criminal trespassing for allegedly breaking the water meter cable and handle to the water tank. Trial Commissioner Jack Hyden placed the two under a $10,000 or 10 percent cash or property bond. A preliminary hearing will be held November 16 at 2:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, city officials are working with other agencies to secure clean drinking water for Martin residents until the water tank is cleaned.

Councilman Eugene Hutchinson said Thursday that the Kentucky Division of Water issued the water advisory.

"Due to reports of the water system in the city of Martin being contaminated as a result of vandalism, the Kentucky Division of Water has issued a consumer advisory stating that the water is not to be used for cooking or drinking," Hutchinson said. "City officials will be doing everything possible to obtain assisttance from other agencies to have clean water brought in for consumers. The water system will be cleaned as soon as possible."

Hutchinson said work began Thursday to clean and sanitize the water tank and water service will be shut off for several days until the tank is cleaned. The water tank has to be drained, cleaned, refilled, flushed and refilled again, Hutchinson said.

"We can't take any chances," Hutchinson said.

Barry Risner, who is overseeing the city's water plant, reported to city council members Wednesday that the vandals apparently urinated in the tank. Risner reported that he did not know what else the vandals may have put into the tank.

Escapees are captured in Johnson Co.

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Two inmates that escaped from the Otter Creek Correctional Facility in Wheelwright Wednesday night were apprehended in Johnson County approximately 16 hours later.

James Allen Curtis, 19, of Flatgap and David Allen Pitts, 18, of Fulton, were arrested by Kentucky State Police and members of the Johnson County Sheriff's department at approximately 4:23 p.m. near the Johnson/Lawrence County line. The two men were captured on a hillside.

After their escape, the two men went to the home of Blackey Cantrell just outside of Wheelwright and forced him to drive them to Lowmansville in Johnson County at approximately 11:30 a.m., Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said.

The two men allegedly took some money, a weapon and clothing from Cantrell's home.

Cantrell notified police of the incident and where the two men let him out in Johnson County.

Curtis was in prison on second degree burglary and receiving stolen property charges.

Pitts was in prison on theft by unlawful taking, third degree bur-

Banner tot awaits transplant

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

Fund-raisers are in full swing in Floyd and surrounding counties for baby Terri LaSha Jarvis who is in need of a lower bowel/liver transplant.

The eight-and-a-half-month old daughter of Terry and Tammy Jarvis of Banner is at Pikeville Methodist Hospital awaiting a donor. The infant, who relies on a feeding tube for nourishment, is being treated at Pikeville by Dr. Rakesh Sachdeva, a specialist in stomach and intestinal illnesses.

Without the transplant, baby Terri has a life expectancy of about three years, according to a press release from Susan Stumbo of Wayland, who is spearheading volunteer fund-raising efforts. With donor organs, chances for the baby to live a healthy life are excellent. When a donor is found, the transplant will be performed at University of Pittsburgh

Hospital which is known for its pioneering efforts in organ transplantation.

"This is a pioneer program," Stumbo said. "She is Kentucky's first double transplant patient to be accepted in the University of Pittsburgh's (Children's) Hospital."

The cost of the transplant is $576,000, and because the double transplant surgery is one of the first of its kind, it is not covered by Medicaid. The Jarvis family has no medical insurance to cover the costs. Stumbo, hoping the public will rally around the cause and join in an all-volunteer effort to raise the funds, has worked for the last few months publicizing and organizing fund-raisers.

Over the past three months, road-blocks and contributions from churches and other organizations in Floyd, Pike, Martin, Johnson and Magoffin counties, have raised approximately $10,000 for the costs of the surgery, Stumbo said.

A special account, the Terri LaSha Jarvis Transplant Fund, has been opened at the Transfinancial Bank at Martin and Prestonsburg, as well as The Farmers Bank at Somerset where Terri's maternal grandparents, Danny and Gaynell Hicks, formerly of Wayland, now reside.

In need of a transplant

Terri LaSha Jarvis, the infant daughter of Terry and Tammy Jarvis of Banner, is waiting at Pikeville Methodist Hospital for a donor, as well as funding, for a double transplant procedure. Volunteer efforts to raise the needed funds are underway in Floyd and surrounding counties.

Rogers finishes second

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

It appears that U.S. Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers isn't the history-maker we made him out to be after Tuesday's election.

Rogers was not the first Republican to carry Floyd County in a congressional election.

That distinction goes to the late John Sherman Cooper, who slipped by his Democratic opponent John Y. Brown Sr. in the 1966 general election race for U. S. Senator.

Cooper won 26 of the county's 41 precincts in 1966 to beat Brown by a 4,890 to 3,846 vote total.

The Floyd County Times noted after that vote that Cooper's win was "a first for rockbed Democratic Floyd County."

In Tuesday's vote, Rogers won 40 of the county's 41 precincts, losing to Democratic challenger Walter "Doc" Blevins at Antioch by a 127 to 105 vote count. Rogers got 72 percent of the vote Tuesday.

On the heels of a round up last week in Floyd County of suspected drug dealers, members of the Mountain Area Drug Task Force made a similar hit in Pike County on Friday.

Task force agents and members of the Floyd and Pike County Sheriff's Departments executed seven search warrants and arrested six suspected drug dealers Friday evening. Task force agents seized an amount of marijuana and cocaine; several weapons, two of which were believed to have been stolen; and over $3,800 in cash.

Floyd grand jury asks state to investigate phlebotomist

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

In their final report issued Thursday, a Floyd County Grand Jury has asked the state's Attorney General to investigate a woman who taught a certification course in phlebotomy and the company that provided the class materials.

The grand jury's report said that Vicki O'Neil or Vicki Miller advertised teaching a phlebotomy course and certified students who allegedly did not learn anything of value or who did not complete the course.

A company called Professional Paramedical Inc. provided course materials for the class.

Phlebotomy is the practice of drawing blood from an individual, presumably for medical purposes.

Students paid $420 for the class with O'Neil or Miller.

The grand jury also said that similar classes were being advertised in the Lexington area.

Also noted in the report was that the grand jury issued 79 indictments involving 222 criminal counts and that a number of other matters were considered which resulted in 52 no-tru bills.

A new grand jury panel is expected to be seated and in session by next week.

Transportation officials are scrambling to complete projects

Old Man winter is on his way and that means delays in road repairs in the county. So transportation officials are scrambling to complete as many road improvement projects as they can.

Several road improvement projects in the county have been approved and the work is expected to be completed this construction season, which ends November 15, transportation secretary Don C. Kelly said Tuesday.

"Depending on the weather and work load of the construction crews, some of these projects, especially those essential for maintaining safety standards, will be completed this year," Kelly said. "Others will be finished after April."

Floyd County projects include embankment failure repairs to the Spurlock Creek Road (KY-122), the Allen-Prestonsburg Road (KY-1428), and the Brandy Keg Road (KY-3386).

It's that time of year again...

Smoking cessation can be made easier when you have someone to join you in your efforts. On Thursday, November 17, you'll be joined by millions of other "quitters" during the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout. So don't think you are going it alone—you'll be part of a large group of smokers who've given up the habit for the day.

Please join us at Our Lady of the Way Hospital, November 17, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. as we participate in the 18th annual smokeout. We will measure your blood pressure, check the oxygen saturation of your blood and perform other health screenings free of charge.

If you are interested in further information, phone Our Lady of the Way Hospital at 285-5181, ext. 305.

Organizers of the event ask that individuals who join festivities, remember to lay their tobacco aside for just 24 hours on November 17, to preserve precious moments of their life, as every cigarette they smoke decreases their lives by 15 minutes.

Impressions of Dillard exhibition at Pikeville College

Pikeville College's Marguerite Weber Gallery presents Molly Heron's "Impressions of Annie Dillard's 'The Writing Life'" November 10-30.

This series of collages in this one-woman show is inspired by writer Annie Dillard's 'The Writing Life'. Says Heron, "...I made several pieces based on Ms. Dillard's insight. At times it was a completely new and mysterious idea and then it would remind me of something that I have known all my life."

Heron is a New York based artist with several one-woman and group exhibitions to her credit, primarily in the New York-northeast area. She has also received several awards and honors for her work. She attended the Art Students League and School of Visual Arts in New York City, and the San Francisco Art Institute.

Annie Dillard is the author of nine books, including the bestselling 'An American Childhood' and the Pulitzer Prize winning 'Pilgrim at Tinker Creek'.

Everyone is invited to visit the Gallery, located in the Armington Science/Learning Center at Pikeville College from 10-11:00 a.m. and 12-4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Curry

Curry chuckled as she discussed the comparisons. "That's a mixture of a lot of sounds, but mix them together and I hope that makes it sound like me," she said.

To win the national competition, she had to compete and win the regional and state events. She did. She won three competitions in three months.

In July, her band, the Full Moon Band, won the South Florida Fourth of July Big Cypress Battle of the Bands. A few days later, she won four awards at the Broward Florida Chapter of the Florida Country Music Association, including Best Female Vocalist, Best Vocal Duo, Best Vocal Group and Best Band of the Year. At the state competition in Florida, she won four more first place awards.

Curry is moving to Country Music City USA, Nashville, where she will record an album. A top executive at RCA Records has requested four radio-ready songs — songs that she has written.

The young singer has written over 100 songs and a publishing company in Nashville is interested in publishing some of them.

Curry said she is getting a second chance at reaching for her country music star. In 1979, she was offered a five-year contract with a recording company, but she rejected it to become a wife.

"I was young and dumb and in love," she said. "Like a fool, I turned it down for a man."

Her marriage later ended in divorce.

The country music singer was born with a song in her heart, said her mom Claudia.

"She was raised singing," her mom said. "When she was a toddler, she was trying to sing with the people in church. She would go 'ay, ay, ay,' you know the way babies sound," she said.

Curry sang in a trio with her mom and sister at the Calvary Baptist Church at Betsy Layne and at other churches in the area. Her mom was also in the church choir.

"My mom has a voice like an angel," Curry said. "I'm happy I got half her genes. She has a higher voice. Dad had a lower voice, and I've got a voice in between."

Curry, whose mom is a bookkeeper at Betsy Layne High School, attended Betsy Layne High School. She went to Breckenridge School in Morehead in her senior year. She attended Morehead State University and the University of Kentucky. She holds an associate degree in psychology.

In Lexington, Curry started singing in clubs. At that time, she was dating Les Taylor, who is now lead guitarist with the group Exile. Taylor was in a band, and he asked Curry if she could sing "Luxury Liner" by Emmy Lou Harris. Curry told him: "No, but I'll learn."

She bought the album and learned the song.

After that she entered talent contests and she and her boyfriend formed their own band. They played at clubs in Lexington, but Curry and Taylor broke up and Curry moved to Miami, Florida to attend computer classes.

In Florida, she made several demos, including one for Vince Gill. She also gained stage experience by performing at a lot of clubs.

"I've been making a lot of noise during the past two years," she said.

One evening, she went to a Karaoke show with friends. Curry played her tape. After her performance, a lady approached her and asked her for the tape.

Curry told the lady that she didn't even know what the tape sounded like and joked with the lady, saying she was just having fun with it.

The lady insisted on Curry giving her the tape, so the young singer reluctantly relinquished it.

It turned out the lady was working with RCA, and the recording company became interested in Curry after listening to the tape.

Now the only thing holding her back, Curry said, is getting her recordings done. With her energy and determination, that won't take long.

And once the album is made? Give her six months, she said and she'll be a new star on the horizon.

No party-crashers here...

by Scott Perry

One of the state dailies, in an editorial published Thursday, has suggested that Tuesday's vote is a signal that Kentucky has, at long last, become a two-party state.

Don't you believe it.

While it is true that 87 of Kentucky's 120 counties voted in the majority for Republican congressional candidates Tuesday, any suggestion that the vote is the dawn of a new day in state politics is incredibly naive.

For a variety of reasons.

First, the election this week was not the Republican vs. Democrat referendum many would have us believe it was.

Tuesday's vote was an uprising in Middle Class America among Democrats and Republicans alike against the liberalism that has influenced the country's domestic policies since the early 1970s.

The voters said Tuesday that that style of government was not working to their satisfaction and GOP candidates just happened to be in the right place at the right time to take advantage of the mood.

For another reason why the election Tuesday was no signal of the birth of a two-party state, just look at history.

Kentucky Democrats have traditionally shunned the liberal coat their national party has worn in favor of moderate, and often conservative philosophies.

Tuesday's vote, however awe-inspiring it may seem, was just a natural extension of those sentiments.

Finally, Kentucky's GOP won't suddenly transform itself into a power to be reckoned with because it is its own worst enemy.

The party can't even muster enough candidates for statewide primaries to make those elections interesting.

Those candidates we do see are most often the same old faces...and the same old losers...as always.

Until the state GOP reinvigorates itself with new blood, new faces and new ideas, it will remain obscure.

And Kentucky will be the same one-party state it has been since forever.

"We are very thankful"

Editor:
Each year during the Thanksgiving holidays, we reflect on the many things for which we are thankful. God is certainly watching over our Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch. We feel at times only a miracle has helped us remain solvent and operational. It is no secret that charitable organizational giving gets more difficult each year. Somehow, we have managed to survive and accommodate over 1000 children, ages 8 thru 12, each summer. For this, we are thankful!

On this Thanksgiving holiday, we are thankful for our dedicated members. Many have been with us since we started in 1976. We appreciate the sheriffs and deputies who help select and transport children back and forth to the Western Kentucky camp for the needy. For this we are thankful!

My wife Donna, of 43 years, and I, travel the width and breadth of the entire Commonwealth of Kentucky and work in most all of our 120 counties each year. We pride ourselves in knowing personally, more Kentuckians than most anyone, by virtue of our travels for over 16 years in our state. For this we are thankful!

Kentucky has the most outstanding people in the nation. Our state has more natural beauty than most, especially in the fall of the year. The scenery is breathtaking with so much natural landscaping. The mountain area is extremely eye opening. My wife and I value each and every Kentuckian we meet and know what the heralded and late Joe Creason meant when he said many times in his travels that Kentucky is different, unique and very special. There is much to be thankful for, such as a great parks system, good roads from all sections of Kentucky, mostly interstate, and each town or county has something significant to offer! Many folks would do well to take vacations in their own state of Kentucky. We have plenty to see and do right under our noses. For this we are thankful!

We, the staff at the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch, would like to invite all people who desire to visit our youth camp and our Kentucky Sheriffs' and Deputies' Museum that honors these unsung heroes who have been killed or wounded in the line of duty. We are real proud of our Sheriffs' Museum. Our camp is open every day from 8:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. and by special arrangements, we will open on weekends. Yes, we are very proud of what we have accomplished and hope you will visit our camp in Gilbertsville. For our camp and museum, we are very thankful!!

We want to give a big thank-you to our friends in the media who have helped us tremendously with important coverage to let all interested parties know what our children's youth camp is all about. They have helped us build interest in our underprivileged camp that builds a child's self-esteem and redirects the child's life.

These are some of the many reasons we are thankful!! Come and see us!!!

We are also thankful to have had 14 children from Floyd County at camp this summer.

Seeks information about Stephens family

Editor:
I am writing to solicit your assistance on a project that I am working on about my family who hails from your area.

1. Isaiah Stephens D.O.B. 1831? D.O.D. unknown. Place of burial believed to be Floyd County. Cemetery unknown.
2. Susan Stephens D.O.B. 1837?

D.O.D. unknown. Place of burial believed to be Floyd County. Cemetery unknown.

Last recorded history on the above is 1880 U.S. Census. Need to find where they were buried in your county and if they were buried in your county.

The reason for my search is Isaiah Stephens fought in the Civil War for the Confederacy and he was a Confederate spy for the military during the war. His family settled in your county after the war. This is one of the missing links in my search, sure hope you can help me.

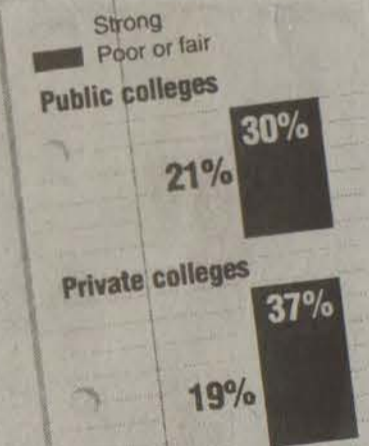

3. Willie Oliver Stephens D.O.B. 1904? D.O.D., sometime in the 1920's or 1930's. There was a fire at your local jail and Willie O. Stephens was killed in the fire. Do you have any information on this event? Willie's parents were John B. and Sarah Stephens, taken from 1920 U.S. Census Floyd County, Allen, Kentucky.

I wish to thank you in advance if you are able to help, if not I understand.

Transplant

"There are money jars all over Floyd County," Stumbo said, adding that volunteers and family members are selling "baby Terri" logotype baseball caps, T-shirts, and sweatshirts to raise money for the fund. Chances are also being sold on a new color television set at Tackett's Superstore at Martin. Businesses have been "very cooperative," Stumbo said.

Schools and senior citizens centers in Floyd County are also helping out by collecting money containers to place in local businesses. Students at Floyd County Vocational-Technical High School are providing print material, such as press releases and flyers, that volunteers are handing out to raise public awareness. Area newspapers and radio stations are also participating by publicizing various events, Stumbo said.

Upcoming events include roadblocks in Pike County from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today (Friday); the Duff Family Resource Center will have a donation table set up at the Duff Elementary Fall Festival this Saturday night. Fundraising items, such as caps and sweatshirts will also be for sale.

Also, Mountaineer Lounge, on Auxier Road, will be contributing one-half of the proceeds it collects Wednesday night, November 16; and a dance is tentatively scheduled Saturday night, November 26, at McDowell Elementary School.

On Sunday, December 4 at 2 p.m., Marlowe Tackett and his band will be hosting a benefit concert for baby Terri at Allen Central High School. Tackett is inviting all other area bands to participate.

Stumbo is also circulating fundraising flyers throughout surrounding counties. Within two weeks, two large money thermometer signs will be placed at locations near Martin and Pikeville "to show the public how much money has been raised," Stumbo said.

At the rate the fund-raising efforts are going, Stumbo said she has been told that the half-million dollars needed for the transplant surgery could be raised in a year. Time is of the essence, she said, because baby Terri's life hangs in the balance.

Stumbo thinks that the bottom line is people caring enough to give.

"There is no reason why each person in Eastern Kentucky couldn't contribute $1," she said.

To help as a volunteer, call Stumbo at (606)358-4030. Contributions can be made at Transfinancial Bank at Martin and Prestonsburg.

Crohn's and Colitis support group forming

The organization will be a sister chapter to the Kentucky Chapter located in Louisville.

The purpose of the CCFA is to support research on this disease, provide educational programs for members and offer support for patients and their families. Physicians, nutritionists, pharmacists and other healthcare professionals will be invited to hold the educational programs.

The disease afflicts approximately 20,000 people in Kentucky and between 8,000 and 9,000 in Louisville alone. The disease strikes both adults and children.

All around him his comrades were falling victim to enemy fire, but Lloyd Daniels stayed at his post and kept returning the enemy's fire during one of the bloodiest battles of the Korean War — the Battle of Pork Chop Hill. Chinese forces bombarded United Nations troops on Pork Chop Hill. "Porkchop was a shambles with many of the bunkers aflame and many dead and wounded," Walter G. Germes quoted from military reports in his book U.S. Army In The Korean War — Truce Tent and Fighting Front. Over 300 troops in the 7th Division of the forces were reported dead, wounded or missing in action. Chinese casualties were thought to be between 600-800 men. Daniels, an Airborne Ranger, was one of 12 survivors of the battle. Some of the wounded left the hill in Daniels' arms as he tried to carry them to safety, his daughter NavaJo Austin recalled. "Dad" always said he was one of the few who came off Pork Chop Hill," she said. "He always worried about hurting somebody. He always said he hoped he never killed somebody." His son Todd recalled seeing a picture his father had that showed dead bodies, stacked one on top of the other. "When one (soldier) would die, he would fall on top of the other one. They'd have to climb over (the soldiers) to get to the wounded soldiers," he said. NavaJo said her father told her he had been wounded and had received a bayonet wound in his foot. Daniels mainly kept his war experiences to himself. "Pork Chop Hill was one he didn't talk about much," son Dennis said. "He'd just shiver sometimes," Daniels' wife Joyce explained. "He had nightmares. He'd wake up in a cold sweat, but as the years went on that was better."

After serving my first tour of duty in the South Pacific during World War II aboard the destroyer U.S.S. Cotton, DD-669, I left the ship in the Philippines and was transferred back to the United States for a new assignment. When we arrived in San Francisco, I was granted a 30-day leave to go home in the summer of 1944. When I arrived in Prestonsburg around noon one Sunday, the streets were deserted. I had never seen the town this dead before. I guess I felt a little like so many Vietnam Veterans who returned home only to start the process of forgetting. I walked the quiet streets for a while thinking about the happy schoolmates and others that I used to meet and greet on every corner. Finally, I found a telephone booth where I called a cab driver and got him out of bed to drive me home, out in the country. I reported to Seattle, Washington when my leave was up to await the completion of the attack transport ship, U. S. S. Menifee (APA-202), then under construction. The Menifee was named after Menifee County, Kentucky, and was launched October 15, 1944. It was commissioned November 4, and reported to intensive amphibious training that same year. I was the only Kentucky sailor assigned to the ship during World War II. Early in January 1945 we were on our way to Hawaii with Navy and Marine personnel and cargo aboard. After unloading cargo and passengers on January 15, 1945, in Honolulu, we departed 12 days later for the South Pacific. Later we arrived at Guadalcanal and began exercises to prepare for the Okinawa campaign. This was the most intensive training that the crew had experienced while I was aboard the ship. Every morning, one hour before sunrise, we would start landing personnel, supplies, and equipment onto the beach in an orderly prescribed manner. By nightfall everything was loaded back aboard ship and made ready for the next day's performance. This monotonous routine continued day in and day out for longer than I care to remember. I thought it would never end. Guadalcanal was put to good use when we landed the Marines on Okinawa April 1, 1945. Within four days the campaign was practically over and the Menifee was out to sea again. Some of the sailors brought back souvenirs from the campaign, one had a three-string banjo and another had a photo album of the Japanese Military Academy on Okinawa. Although the resistance on Okinawa was light, I experienced one brief but scary moment. It happened at daybreak one morning as the crew was scrambling to man their battle stations. I reached the bridge ahead of my buddies and leaned back against a flag bag to catch my breath when I heard this loud roar of an aircraft engine low overhead. Thoughts ran through my mind faster than the speed of sound. First I remembered how nerve-racking was once when we were so close to an airfield at Pearl Harbor where our planes would come in over the ship on their approach landing. I kept trying to convince myself that this was one of our previous zeroing in on a target on the sea, although the sound of the engine was different from any I have previously heard. Suddenly I saw this Kamikaze burst through the fog as it was banking to the left so that the wings were near vertical as it passed over the ship. This position allowed the plane to pass through the open space between the main mast and stack without hitting the ship. I rushed over the starboard side to take a look where the plane hit the water, but I saw air bubbles coming up out of the water. As I stood there gasping down into the water and trying to regain my inner composure, I thought of an old Kentucky expression, "miss is as good as a mile." Soon the sun was out bright and our daily routine continued as though nothing happened. On May 11, 1945, we arrived in San Francisco to take on troops and cargo headed for the Philippines. The Menifee's activities were pretty much routine during the month of June and July. A lot of history was made during the spring and summer of 1945; the story in Europe was finally achieved. Franklin D. Roosevelt died, Harry Truman became our 33rd president and the A-bomb had been developed and dropped on Japan. A few days after the A-bomb was dropped on Nagasaki, August 9, 1945, the Menifee was plowing the waters of the South Pacific when the ship was dispatched to that devastated Japanese City. First, land was sighted in the distance, which was the outer islands of the mainland, and later a boat was seen approaching the Menifee. When it came alongside, a Japanese

Pork Chop Hill veteran and the "Land of the Morning Calm"

Lloyd Daniels

During one battle and after many troops had been killed, Daniels' group was relieved by another company. As Daniels' company made its way down the hill, the other company left their post and was soon on Daniels' heels. Exhausted and mad, Daniels' company had to turn around and re-take the hill the fleeing soldiers had abandoned, Dennis said his father had often recalled.

Dennis also remembered about a battle when Daniels' unit was being charged by the Chinese and didn't have the right weapons.

"They had to take a 50 caliber machine gun and set the firing rate to the lowest mode to use it for snipers," he said.

Lloyd Daniels was also part of the Red Raiders unit. The unit would go behind enemy lines to kidnap enemy officers, Dennis said.

"Their point man was a Navajo Indian. Dad talked once about when they went out and found a sleeping bag beside the trail.

"The rest of (the unit) went out looking for the enemy, except the guide. They couldn't find any and when they got back, he already had him one.

"Dad said you never knew (the Indian scout) was there unless he wanted you to," Daniels said.

Lloyd Daniels sang lullabies in the Japanese language to his children when they were babies but, as his sons grew up, he occasionally told them about Korea and the conditions the soldiers had to face during war-time. Soldiers had to carry water from the creek in their helmets. They bathed from their helmets, and then poured the water out. They'd go back to the creek to get more water and make coffee in the same helmets from which they had just bathed, son Todd Daniels said.

"The soldiers would wash their socks, roll them up and then put them under their armpits to dry," Joyce Daniels explained.

Todd Daniels recalled a story his dad told about the lack of hot food available for the soldiers.

"The hadn't eaten a hot meal in days when a Korean family asked them to eat with them. They told the family it was good and asked what it was they were eating. The Koreans kept saying 'Sopolary, Sopolary,' and pointed outside," Todd said, with a chuckle almost escaping from him as he told the story.

"It was a dog running by," he said. "They had eaten a dog."

Lloyd Daniels entered the Army on August 2, 1951. The Korean War had been underway for almost one year. When he signed up, he lied about his age. He was too young to enlist. During his training as a paratrooper, Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin were filming the movie "Jumping Jack," at the base he was stationed. Daniels was one of the paratroopers in the movie's background.

By the time he was sent overseas, he was 18. He spent his 19th and 20 birthday in Korea. He spent one year, 11 months and five days in foreign service to his country. He was awarded the United Nations Service Medal, the Korean Service Medal, two Bronze Stars for the major battles in which he had fought, the National Defense Service Medal and the Good Conduct Medal.

Daniels was offered a Purple Heart, daughter NavaJo said, but he would not accept it.

Daniels was appointed acting platoon sergeant major on the field of battle when his command officer was killed. He could not become Master Sergeant because the government had frozen the ranks, Dennis explained.

At the end of his service, Daniels was a drill sergeant at Ft. Knox. When President Eisenhower paid a visit to the base, Daniels was asked to be part of the president's honor guard. He declined.

"He was a democrat back then and didn't know it," Joyce Daniels said about her husband. "He didn't like Eisenhower."

Todd compared his dad's feelings about Korea with the Gulf War.

"He didn't approve of us going in, but he felt like we should have finished the job once we were there."

After two tours of duty, Daniels left military service on August 1, 1954, and came home to Floyd County. He and his family became residents of Lancer Bottom in Prestonsburg, and Daniels became a neon tube bender (sign maker). He worked in that capacity until around 1962 when he fell two stories after he was shocked by an electric current. He crushed three vertebrae and his spinal cord was lacerated.

"Doctors said he would never walk again," Daniels' wife said. But Daniels' fighting spirit saw him through the ordeal. Even though he couldn't walk, his wife and mom carried him to his truck and Daniels drove himself to Dewey Lake for a fishing trip. At the lake, someone would help him out of the truck and into his boat.

Daniels' survival instinct helped him to walk again and to get on with his life. Through it all, he kept his sense of humor.

His son recalled an incident that kept his family and the neighborhood chuckling. Daniels cut out a design for big feet. He then strapped the big feet to his son's feet and had his sons walk around the riverbank near his home and around the neighborhood, leaving an impression that a "Bigfoot" had been in the area.

He also created a ghost for his children, grandchildren and neighborhood kids to love. When the wind would blow open a door, Daniels would tell his children that was a ghost named Fennymore. He made the ghost such a lovable creature that the neighborhood children even began leaving gifts for Fennymore.

Another ordeal was ahead for Daniels that would test his seemingly endless sense of humor.

About three years ago, after many years of smoking cigarettes and being exposed to asbestos through his work with neon, his lungs deteriorated. He also often wondered if his exposure to the DDT the military had sprayed on the wooded areas of Korea and the soldiers underneath the foliage had affected him, his son said.

Daniels had to go on oxygen. The doctors gave him about six months to live. Then his wife saw a program on television about lung transplants. She contacted Sabrina Little, a former Floyd County woman who is the primary nurse for lung transplant patients at UK, and asked her about the program.

In 1993, Lloyd Daniels became the 13th patient to undergo a lung transplant at the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

Daniels spent most of the time in the hospital's cardiothoracic unit. He was out of the hospital about 30 days. On June 2, 1994, he came home and stayed until September 7 when he returned to his doctor for a checkup.

While he was in the doctor's office, he went into respiratory arrest and had to be put on life support. He was put in the hospital again, and he stayed there for about 15 days.

His doctors felt he was doing well, but he needed physical therapy that wasn't available locally, Daniels' wife said, so he was put in Darby Square, a rehabilitation facility.

Daniels became ill and had to be sent back to the hospital. Last week, on Tuesday, November 1, Daniels died at the University of Kentucky Medical Center. His family stressed that Daniels did not die from the lung transplant, but from pre-renal failure.

Daniels' family praised the University of Kentucky's transplant program and plan to get involved in promoting organ donation. Once Joyce Daniels gets her life back in order, she said, she may write a book about the gift of life Daniels was given when he received the donated lung.

Daniels left a gift to children in Floyd County that changed many of their lives. On behalf of his grandson Jerry and the other Floyd County children who are handicapped, Daniels got a multi-handicapped unit started in the area.

When Jerry was three, Daniels approached the Kiwanis Club and asked for their help in establishing the unit. Businessman Huck Francis and the Kiwanis helped sponsor the unit that was started by Mountain Comprehensive Care at the Methodist Church building in Prestonsburg.

Remember U.S.S. Meniffee

came aboard to navigate the ship inland through the channel to the city. As we moved slowly inland, I saw several Japanese bodies floating in the channel. Abdominal gases caused them to float "belly-up" while their arms and legs remained submerged. The salt water had bleached their skin white and they would glisten in the bright sunlight as they bobbed up and down. In places on either side of the channel, rocks had been piled on the low lying hills in a checkerboard fashion. I wondered if they had been placed this way primarily to prevent erosion or as a concealment for gun emplacements. Also, huge electrical transmission towers were located on the tops of these hills. As we entered the harbor, I could see the facilities, off to our right, where the suicide submarines were built. Several of these tiny vessels lay, side by side, along the shore. Some appeared to be ready to launch, while others were in various stages of completion. Larger ships were anchored in the bay to the left of where the Meniffee had docked. These vessels also were unequipped, some were just empty hulls.

The signal crew of the Meniffee, as far as I know, were the first Americans to view the destruction of the A-bomb on Nagasaki, Japan, from the ground level, or ship level as it were. We were not allowed off the ship but we had access to binoculars and long glasses. The streets leading down to the waterfront were filled with debris from the bombed-out buildings. The city had been evacuated. I saw fewer than a dozen Japanese during our brief stay. It appeared that the A-bomb had been dropped near the outskirts of the city, because in that vicinity the earth seemed scorched. The trees were completely defoliated and only the trunks and main branches left standing. The buildings in that area were flattened to the ground as if someone had stomped on an empty shoe box.

As we departed back through the channel, once again we passed where the rocks had been piled in geometric patterns along the hillsides. I recalled seeing rocks piled on the steep hills in Eastern Kentucky, and I wondered if there had been a time in history when the Japanese had migrated to this area, cleared the land, piled the rocks, and tilled the soil for a living in much the same way as our early settlers had done back home in Kentucky.

By late October, I had accumulated enough service points to be eligible for release from duty and I left the Meniffee at that time in San Francisco. On November 17, 1945, I received an honorable discharge from the Navy at Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

The Meniffee continued ferrying occupation troops to and from Japan until early 1946 when she was released from "Magic Carpet" duty. The ship was decommissioned July 31, and berthed at Stockton, California.

Just as I had served two tours of duty in the Pacific, so did the Meniffee. The outbreak of hostilities in Korea prompted the retrieval of the Meniffee from the "Mothball Fleet." It was recommissioned December 2, 1950, and assigned once more to the Amphibious Force, Pacific Fleet, where it served until deactivation in 1955.

From April 1951 to March 1952, it ferried troops between Japan and Korea, then took part in extensive exercises with American and Korean Marines and served as a flagship for Operation Big Lift, the transfer of neutral, Indian troops to the peace conference in Panmunjon.

Eugene Cline

The ship was decommissioned June 29, 1955, at the U.S. Naval ship yard in San Francisco after receiving one battle star for World War II service and two for Korean service.

To my good buddies and shipmates who served aboard the Meniffee, after nearly a half century, I remember and salute you. To the fine folks of Meniffee County, you can be justifiably proud of your namesake. To all, a quote from Henry Ward Beecher... "In this world it's not what we take up, but what we give up that makes us rich."

Diabetic health fair to be held at Pikeville Methodist Hospital

Celebrate National Diabetes Month with Pikeville Methodist Hospital on November 11th in the hospital's front lobby.

Nurses from Pikeville Methodist Hospital's Diabetic Management Program are organizing a diabetic health fair in the lobby from noon until 3 p.m. on November 11th. Nurses will be performing free blood sugar screenings and representatives from diabetic equipment companies and drug companies will be on hand to explain their products. Clinical Pharmacists and Registered Dietitians will also be on hand to provide information about medication, nutrition and offer recipe booklets.

The celebration is free to the public and everyone is welcome to attend. In order to make parking for this event more easily accessible, please feel free to take advantage of the hospital's free valet parking.

Diabetic education is a priority at Pikeville Methodist Hospital and 6th floor nurses have been taking the information to the public through senior citizens centers.

Sixth Floor Unit Manager Kathy Khoshreza said during July that blood sugar screenings were performed for senior citizens at the Marrowbone Senior Citizen's Center and the Pikeville Senior Citizen's Center. In June, a blood sugar screening was conducted at the Elkhorn City Senior Citizen's Center.

During the screening sessions, the nurses teach senior citizens about symptoms of diabetes, their risk factors and then show them a film about living with diabetes. Each individual is then offered the opportunity to have a free blood sugar screening. After the individuals are screened, the nurses teach the senior citizens some exercises they can do in their chairs.

Nurses Barbara Coleman, Mavis Johnson and Kathy Khoshreza perform the tests and offer educational information.

Khoshreza said that the diabetic education program treats patients through physician referrals, through referrals from other units inside the hospital or by patient request. The nurses follow the American Diabetes Association guidelines in offering general adult diabetes knowledge, health maintenance, lifestyle changes, diet control, eye care and preventative measures so patients can avoid complications.

Khoshreza said the nurses screen more than 800 people each year. Last year, she said that 246 people were educated and of those, 31 were outpatients. Also last year, the nurses performed 10 community awareness screening clinics targeting senior citizens as a high risk group. So far this year, 165 people have received the diabetes education.

Local resident member of EKV Show Choir

Mashawna Aiken, Prestonsburg, is a member of a unique musical group at Eastern Kentucky University.

Aiken performs in the EKV Show Choir, the only university show choir in the commonwealth and a popular attraction on and off campus for 15 years.

A junior psychology major, Aiken will join fellow members on stage Saturday, November 19 when the Show Choir presents its fall concert, at 7:30 p.m. in Brock Auditorium. Tickets are $1 and may be purchased at the door beginning at 7 p.m.

Under the direction of Rob Lawrence, the 20-member Show Choir will combine music and choreography in a high-energy performance. The evening of entertainment will include Billy Joel's "River of Dreams," "Chattanooga Choo Choo," "Taking Care of Business," "As If We Never Said Goodbye," plus several solo selections.

Auditions for membership in the Show Choir are open to every EKV student, and several majors are represented in the group.

"They must be versatile performers," Lawrence said. "I look for singers who can dance and dancers who can sing. There are many opportunities for individual expression, because we always incorporate solos within the group numbers."

This year, the show choir is benefiting from the assistance of "two of the top show choir choreographers in the nation," according to Lawrence. Damon Brown worked with the group at a weekend retreat this fall, and Brent Holland will do the same at another retreat in January.

In addition to their two campus concerts this year, the show choir is also performing for two area service organizations, in the Greater Hazard Area Performing Arts Series, at Colonel Country Fair, at the first-ever All-State Choir Rehearsal Workshop, and will embark on a mini-tour January 8-11.

Alumni of the show choir have gone on to performance centers in New York, Nashville and Hollywood, Lawrence noted, adding that many gain valuable experience during their college years working at theme parks such as Kings Island.

Aiken assists Billie Jean Osborne with the Kentucky Opry Junior All-Stars who perform at the Little Theatre in Prestonsburg.

For more information about the show choir, or to inquire about booking the group for an engagement, call Lawrence at (606) 622-1348.

I'm glad they gave me a flag to wave.

It is hard to imagine what it would be like to live in a country without freedom...without the right to wave a flag...assemble peaceably or speak our minds. Thanks to our nation's veterans, our freedom has been protected, but not without a price.

When called to serve, they left home and family for remote and desolate places. They put their lives on the line to preserve our precious heritage and freedom, and the freedom of countless other nations.

American veterans are special.

On this Veterans Day, 1994, we join The American Legion in paying tribute to the men and women who have honored our nation with service, sacrifice, and allegiance.

Seventh annual big blue crush

The Prestonsburg Donor Center of Central Kentucky Blood Center is teaming up with the University of Kentucky to bring home its third win in a row over Tennessee in the Seventh Annual Big Blue Crush blood drive competition, November 14-18. The yearly Battle for Blood with MEDIC Regional Blood Center and the University of Tennessee in Knoxville has become a tradition with UK fans, students, faculty and staff throughout central and Eastern Kentucky.

The blood collected during Big Blue Crush will help ensure an adequate blood supply for area hospital patients during the Thanksgiving holiday season. Donors are urged to take part in the competition to be part of the life-saving effort needed every day to provide blood when it's needed.

"Last year we beat Tennessee by collecting 2,738 pints of blood over Tennessee's 2,263 pints—a runaway victory," said CKBC spokeswoman Marsha Berry. "To remain realistic, we've set a goal of 2,200 pints for this year's drive. We want to keep the event competitive, exciting and fun for both teams. We know that UK fans will do whatever it takes to beat Tennessee as well as help their community."

Donors are eligible to give blood every 56 days. Anyone 17 or older weighing at least 100 pounds and in good general health can be a blood donor. There is no chance of getting AIDS or other infectious disease from donating blood.

Each donor will receive an "I Bleed Blue" sticker and a free, custom-designed t-shirt by artist Jerry Voigt. Voigt illustrates and is the co-creator of "Sherman's Alley," a popular cartoon strip in UK's campus newspaper The Kentucky Kernel. ## UK Community Colleges receive $800,000 NSF grant

An $800,000 Advanced Technological Education (ATE) grant from the National Science Foundation will help provide state-of-the-art, networked computer teaching laboratories on each of the University of Kentucky's 14 community college campuses, including Prestonsburg Community College.

The grant—one of the largest ATE grants awarded this year by NSF—will allow the community colleges the opportunity to teach both mathematics and computer science using the latest methods and equipment.

"This cooperative effort between the mathematics faculty at the community colleges and the Lexington Campus is an excellent example of the partnership between the two sectors," said Ben W. Carr, chancellor for the Community College System.

PCC President Deborah L. Floyd was particularly thankful for the grant award.

"At PCC we have long recognized that technology is the wave of the future and we have focused our fundraising goals on furthering technological education at both the Prestonsburg and Pike County campuses. This grant will aid us in achieving our goals," Dr. Floyd said.

Each campus will have a cooperative learning/technology (CLT) classroom with a total of six student workstations and one faculty workstation. Each of the classrooms will connect with the CLT classroom located on the Lexington Campus.

UK mathematics professor Paul Eakin will coordinate the partnership between UK mathematics faculty and the community college faculty to develop a variety of training programs, including four technology courses and graduate coursework in mathematics.

"The original idea to combine the latest computer technology and the teaching of mathematics was developed by Dr. Eakin and a dynamic group of community college mathematics faculty led by Darrell Abney at Maysville Community College and Lillie Crowley at Lexington Community College," said Antony Newberry, the System's vice-chancellor for academic affairs.

Newberry outlined five major goals to be accomplished by the fall of 1997. These include:

- Establishing a state-of-the-art, Internet-linked computing laboratory at each of the 15 major campuses of the 14 colleges in the UK system;

- Integrating these facilities into a revised mathematics curriculum;

- Developing the facilities as sources of technical expertise and innovation for their campuses and communities;

- Networking the facilities among themselves and to UK via Internet; and

- Providing program faculty access to the laboratory from offices via networked workstations or dial-up connections.

SOME COMMON SENSE WAYS TO DETECT A GAS LEAK.

Even with a system as safe and secure as your natural gas service, a leak could occur. That's why you and your family should learn some basic safety rules.

In cities, towns, or suburban areas.

Your gas company adds a special scent to the otherwise odorless natural gas that's delivered to your home. If you detect this odor:

- Don't use matches or operate electrical switches, equipment or appliances.
- Leave your home, business or building and call the gas company from another site.
- Don't return until a gas company representative arrives.

In parks or rural areas.

Outside some cities and towns, a natural gas leak may not be detectable by scent. In these areas, you may hear a blowing or hissing sound or see dirt blowing into the air; water bubbling or being blown into the air at a puddle, pond, creek or river; brown patches in vegetation on or near a gas line; or fire coming from the ground or burning above it.

If this happens:

- Leave the area and warn others to stay away.
- Call the gas company and the police and fire departments.
- Don't try to extinguish a gas fire or operate any pipeline valves.

Chances are you'll never experience a natural gas leak. But, if you do, follow your senses.

THE TRIP
(Part 2)

All of us were still speaking when our entourage pulled into Myrtle Beach around 7:30 p.m. Approximately 30 minutes later, I was almost wishing I had been an only child.

"Where's the apartment, Melinda?" I asked smugly.

"It's on the beach. Read the information the company sent."

Amanda scanned over the paper and handed it back to Melinda. "It says it's on this street," Amanda agreed.

"If it's on this street one of us is lost," Jenny laughed.

That's when mother's bloodhound nose took command. She had managed to restrain herself from blurting out directions throughout the trip but now that we couldn't find our apartment her natural instincts took over.

"If it says it's on the ocean, we need to go to the beach. I'd say all these side roads lead to the beach."

"That's the street we're on, mom," Melinda whined.

"Don't get upset, Melinda," I said impatiently.

Melinda's head didn't turn entirely around on her shoulders when she answered, but it wouldn't have been anymore upsetting if it had when she blurted out, "Why don't you shut up! I know what I'm doing!"

At 9:30 p.m., everyone was getting hungry so we stopped to eat. As soon as we were seated, Melinda took out the info she had gotten from the realty company and glanced over it again.

"What's a ya got there?" the waitress asked.

"Could you tell us how to get to this apartment building?"

The waitress proceeded to give Melinda explicit directions. So explicit that we finished our meal in relative ease, secure in the knowledge that as soon as we got back in the car, we would reach our destination in minutes. So assured were we that we left the waitress a substantial gratuity that we soon discovered was a gross overpayment.

At 11 p.m., Melinda jumped out of the car, hopped into a phone booth and jerked the phone book from its moorings. Ten minutes later she catapulted back in the car and headed to the realty company office with blood in her eye.

"I'd say just about any of these roads would lead to the beach," mother said calmly.

"Are we going back to rough up the waitress?" Amanda asked.

Melinda never replied. When she reached the office, she sprinted from the car and pulled on the locked door.

"Why don't you call one of the realtors at home," mother politely suggested. "I bet they'll tell you that most of these roads lead to the ocean."

Melinda immediately found a pay phone and started dropping quarters into like it was a slot machine before she got a reply.

"My name's Melinda Wheeler, and we need directions to our condo. We have been driving over North Myrtle Beach for four hours, and we don't have a clue where we are. In fact, nobody in North Myrtle Beach knows where we are! If it gets any later we are going to have to stay in a motel at YOUR expense," Melinda said firmly.

Seconds later the expression on Melinda's face changed dramatically. "Oh, really. Well, no I didn't, Jenny! Look on that bulletin board in front of the realty office. Is there an envelope with a key in it? There is? Well, thank you, ma'am. Sorry to have bothered you, sweetie. Have a nice evening. I'm sorry I interrupted your honeymoon."

Melinda got back in the car and fastened her seat belt before she turned and snidely asked, "Did anyone read the directions on the back side of the realty agreement?"

THE TIMES' WEEKEND

Whitney Trio to open Eastern Kentucky Concert Series

Opening night for the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series Friday, November 18, features the Whitney Trio.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Prestonsburg Community College Auditorium. The evening will include an introduction to the concert which celebrates the Bicentennial of Beethoven's career as a published composer.

The public is encouraged to subscribe to all five concerts in the series, which also includes performances by the noted pianist and J. S. Bach specialist Robert Siemers, the dazzling young Kentucky tenor Douglas Biggs, the U. K. University Choristers and President Clinton's favorite, Tower Saxophone Quartet, which will also visit schools in Prestonsburg, Paintsville and Salyersville.

The Whitney Trio, which has performed on a number of occasions in Prestonsburg and Salyersville, made its critically acclaimed debut in a live radio broadcast concert at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. in 1989. Since then, they have become one of the most sought-after chamber music ensembles in the region, with performances throughout Kentucky, Indiana and the United States. Their performances have included several live appearances on WAVE-TV in Louisville, an appearance at the Kentucky State-wide Arts Conference in Owensboro, and concerts in North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, Kansas and Colorado. The members of the Whitney Trio are pianist Stephen Wogaman, violinist Stephen Rose, and cellist Brant Taylor. Their concert this year in Prestonsburg will feature compositions by Beethoven and Mendelssohn.

Violinist Stephen Rose is the first violinist of the Everest Quartet, resident quartet of the Midland-Odesa Symphony and Chorale. In the Spring of 1994 he received a master of music degree and Performer's Certificate from the Eastman School of Music, where he was a student of William Pruccil. While at Eastman, he was named a winner of the 1993 Starling Foundation Competition for Violinists. He received a bachelor of music degree from the Cleveland Institute of Music, studying with David Cerone and David Updegraff. As winner of the school's concerto competition, he performed the Berg Violin Concerto with the CIM Symphony Orchestra. Other solo appearances with orchestra include performances with the New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Rapides, Symphonies of Louisiana, performing concertos of Beethoven, Dvorak and Mendelssohn. He is a regular performer at many summer music festivals, including the Mainly Mozart Festival in San Diego, Festival der Zukunft in Ermen, Switzerland, and the Institut de Robert Shaw in Southern France. This is Rose's first tour with the Whitney Trio.

Cellist Brant Taylor made his concerto debut at the age of 16. He has appeared frequently as recitalist and chamber musician around the U.S., and as soloist with several orchestras, including those of San Antonio, Texas and Raleigh, North Carolina. Taylor has been a participant in many music festivals, and has been a regular guest artist on the critically acclaimed Lyrica Chamber Music Series of New Jersey. He is a member of the Everest String Quartet, resident quartet of the Midland-Odesa Symphony and Chorale.

Also committed to contemporary music, he has performed and recorded numerous works by living American and Russian composers. He holds a bachelor of music degree and Performer's Certificate from the Eastman School of Music and a master of music degree from Indiana University. His teachers have included Paul Katz, Janos Starker and Eleonore Schoenfeld. Taylor joined the Whitney Trio in the spring of 1994.

Pianist Stephen Wogaman was trained at the Eastman School of Music, the University of Louisville and Indiana University, where he is completing a doctor of music degree. His teachers have included Cecile Staub Genhart, Lee Luvisi and McNameh Pressler.

He has been a prizewinner in the Chopin Kosciuszko Competition and the International Piano Recording Competition, and has appeared in solo and chamber recitals in the United States and Central America. Wogaman was a faculty member of Indiana University, Southeast campus, and is now serving as music instructor and chair of the Humanities Division at Lees College in Jackson. He is the founder and executive director of New Performing Arts Inc. of Louisville, and was the founding pianist of the Whitney Trio.

Adult subscription memberships are $25 for all five concerts, or $15 for youth 18 and under. A special family rate of $60 admits two parents or grandparents with an unlimited number of their children. Contributing memberships are also available for those who may wish to support the programs further. Single tickets are also available before each performance, and cost $6 for adults, $3 for youth 18 and under, and $15 for families. Seating will be limited, so a subscription is the only way to guarantee seating.

Subscription memberships are on sale now, and may be ordered at Prestonsburg Community College, or by sending a check payable to the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series, c/o Prestonsburg Community College, 1 Bert Combs Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653.

For further information, call the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series at 886-3863, ext. 417, or 789-5625.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

A small part of the reason for excessive mail delays around Washington, D.C., was revealed in October when thousands of pieces of undelivered mail, stacked from floor to ceiling, were found in the upscale Washington apartment of postal worker Robert William Boggs, 48. Also found in the apartment, and of more concern to his neighbors, were 58 live birds and turtles and 30 dead ones, and large deposits of human and animal waste. Neighbors had recently taken to calling Boggs, who was a loner, "Jeffrey Dahmer" because of the scent that escaped when he opened his door. Co-workers described Boggs as pleasant and well-groomed.

THE CONTINUING CRISIS

In January in Odessa, Tex., authorities decided not to prosecute a 91-year-old woman who had fatally struck her 91-year-old husband of 67 years with a cane after he had become too boisterous in demanding sex. And in Semiron, Iran, a newspaper reported in August that Mohammad Esmail al-Bahrami, age 105, asked a court to grant him a divorce from his wife, Fatemeh Razavi, age 100.

The Deutsche Presse Agentur news agency reported in March that German cemetery operators are worried about the increasing resilience of embalmed bodies. Because of the country's land shortage, burial plots are often only rented out for 15-year periods, with the hope that the bodies will have decomposed by that time and that families will not object to their disposal. Cemetery owners are now avoiding certain soils that retard air and moisture circulation, for they restrict the growth of bacteria that eat the bodies.

In Melbourne in May, Australia

Rules football player Russell Prowse was ejected from a game and severely reprimanded by the league. He had attempted to diffuse a potential brawl by grabbing opponent Scott Cameron and kissing him flush on the lips. Prowse's gambit worked: Cameron reportedly staggered back; a hush came over the players; and order was restored.

During a Republican political caucus in Grand Rapids, Mich., in August, the proceedings were slow getting underway: The participants could not recite the Pledge of Allegiance because no one had brought a flag. Party member Jack Pettit then stood on a chair in the front of the room, wearing a necktie that had a stars-and-stripes motif, while everyone placed hand on heart and recited the Pledge.

The Jones Lang Wootton company, which sells automobile parking spaces to individuals in Hong Kong, announced in June that it would begin offering spaces in Melbourne, Australia. Melbourne spaces will retail for about $14,000 to $24,000; JLW has recently sold spaces in Hong Kong for about $500,000 each.

In August, the resort city of Rarotonga in the Cook Islands recorded its first armed robbery ever. A local man who had just returned from a visit to New Zealand robbed a hotel of about $25,000 before being captured.

In February, according to Ogden, Utah, police Sgt. Gary Petersen, a man walked into the station to hand over his two rifles, asking that the police store them until a doctor certified him as calm enough to handle them. The man had just that day been evicted from his home and

by Scott Perry

When Dorothy threw the bucket of water on the Wicked Witch in the Wizard of Oz, the old hag's parting shot was: "Look what you've done!"

The folks who used to be in favor in Washington have been using that line now that the voters have thrown water on their crowd of spellbinders.

Well, well, well, they say. Looks like the dog finally caught the bus.

Now what's he gonna do with it?

Drive it, maybe?

Boy, these guys sure are unaccustomed to losing. They don't deal with it very well at all.

Here's another favorite line that we've seen in two editorials since the election, which pretty well sums up just how goofy some people can be when things don't go their way...

"...It's a lot easier to pick apart someone else's work than to do your own..."

Well, golly.

Is that profound, or what?

Hey, what if a frog had wings?

It's a lot easier to do your own work, we might add, when you've got control of both houses of Congress.

Sore losers.

What's really amazing about these editorials is that they can't see the forest for the trees.

Heck, they've got their noses shoved so far up a, um, knothole, they can't even see the tree.

Yo, guys.

A zillion voters disagree with you.

Try being a little less self-righteous.

And, please stop whining.

You've had your time on the throne.

Let somebody else have a go at it.

And, if you want to chase the bus as it rolls by, go right ahead.

Ought to give it a chance to pull out of the parking lot first, though.

Just remember that there is a simple rule that applies to politics just as well as it applies to playgrounds.

Turn about is fair play.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It's a week to exercise initiative where business interests are concerned. Guard against careless mistakes regarding money. Be careful not to misplace a credit card. Someone new and exciting comes into your life this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You couldn't find a better week for travel and self-promotion. However, if you want things done, it's best to do them yourself. Others may not be filling their obligations, causing an additional burden on you. Address this problem immediately.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be careful not to arrive at an incorrect conclusion regarding a job concern. Don't let wishful thinking mar your judgment. You profit from research and study. A close friend has some good advice for you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The week does not favor gambling or financial risk-taking. However, couples are enthusiastic about mutual interests. You'll be happily making plans together. In fact, it's a wonderful time to renew and restore romantic feelings.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your take-charge attitude this week wins the respect of superiors and brings you success in business. Don't let a jealous co-worker try to spoil this. This person has done nothing to deserve like treatment.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You're not one to procrastinate as a rule, but you could forget an important detail or appointment. Guard against being absent-minded this week. This weekend, socializing leads to happy times and interesting introductions.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Try not to be careless with money this week. It's an ideal time for beginning new domestic projects since the holidays will be here before you know it. Harmony reigns at home. This weekend, you may have to play peacemaker.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) While at home, you could misplace something of importance. Doing something new together will revitalize your relationship with a close tie. It's a good time to take some inventory and change your day-to-day routines.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Think before you speak this week or you may inadvertently let the cat out of the bag. This could lead to a betrayed confidence and hurt feelings. You'll be making important headway toward the realization of a career goal.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You may not quite understand why a friend is a bit envious today but agonizing over it will do no good. Just let this run its course and it will pass eventually. The weekend is good for paying visits to family.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) In business, you could be taking something for granted or overlooking an important detail. Accent practicality. Don't overshoot the mark. Place the accent on home life this weekend and family activities that promote togetherness.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A story making the rounds has no basis in fact, yet you have a tendency to believe it because you somehow want to believe the worst of that person. Try to be more objective and examine your own motives before passing on this lie.

feared he would shoot the lawyer of the bank that held the mortgage.

— In January, the health insurance board in Quebec finally approved the requested payment of about $2,400 to Renee Durand, 20, for breast enhancement surgery that also corrected a breast-position condition. At first, the board declined to pay, calling the surgery merely cosmetic, but Durand fought back by sending out a flood of nude photographs of herself, with her previously asymmetrical breasts — to the board's doctors, to retired Quebec premier Robert Bourassa, to a former health minister, and to several other Quebec and federal officials.

— An Associated Press report in June revealed widespread belief among Los Angeles residents that the minimal damage their city suffers during earthquakes is because many buildings are protected on the bottom by rollers. In fact, only six buildings have shock-absorbing rubber pads that might offer earthquake protection. However, one building is protected. Architecture professor David Ming-Li Lowe's $800,000 house in West Los Angeles survived the January 1994 earthquake because he built it with 17 giant springs between the house and the foundation. Said Lowe, "I'm probably one of the few people who was looking forward to an earthquake."

— According to a grievance by workers at a Mississippi poultry plant, as reported in U.S. News & World Report in July, the company does not permit workers more than three bathroom breaks a week without a doctor's note, and employees must pay 10 cents a cup for drinking water on the job.

— The New York Times reported in June on Spain's most popular TV program, "The Truth Machine," in which celebrity guests are hooked up to lie detectors, which are monitored by "experts," and quizzed on aspects of their scandals. A recent guest was John Wayne Bobbitt, who was judged "significant[ly] decept[ive]" when he denied hitting his wife Lorena and forcing her to have sex.

LEAST COMPETENT CRIMINALS

In September, a 24-year-old man being chased by a police officer from a Beverly Hills, Calif., house that he was suspected of burglarizing ran into a tree branch and knocked himself unconscious. In September, in Akron, Ohio, police said that Christopher S. Dobbins, 28, in the process of robbing Leonardo's Pizza, slipped on a streak of grease on the floor, which was the result of a dropped pizza earlier in the evening, and knocked himself out.

UNDIGNIFIED DEATHS

In St. Louis in October, according to police, Robert Puelo, 32, stole a hot dog from a 7-Eleven and left the store, cramming it into his mouth as he ran. Minutes later, Puelo choked to death on a 6-inch piece of the hot dog that lodged in his throat.

"Why would I?" I said. "It was sent to you. I thought you would have read it before you chauffeured us here, Tonto."

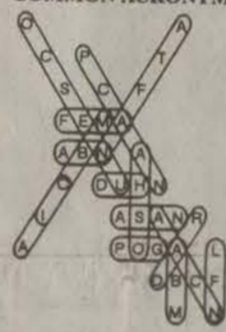

"It wouldn't have mattered. We still couldn't have gotten in without the key!" Melinda screamed. "You could have looked!"

"All I want to know is did they tell you how to get there?" mother asked. "I bet they said all the roads lead to the beach."

Melinda never replied, but she kept muttering something about how anyone should be expected to read the back side of a piece of paper. In less than ten minutes we were unloading our bags.

Stay tuned next week when Sara says, "Don't forget. I can't go back home without getting the crabs."

IF NEW TECHNOLOGY MEANS AN INVESTMENT FOR SATELLITE EQUIPMENT THAT SENDS YOU INTO ORBIT, YOU'LL SEE THE VALUE OF CABLE.

THE VALUE OF LOW-COST PROGRAMMING FROM CABLEVISION

In addition to being entertaining and informative, television that really meets the needs of our community should also be affordable. With no purchase necessary for expensive new equipment, plus only about a quarter a month for each additional TV outlet, it doesn't take a big investment to see the real value of cable.

Park manager visits Allen Central

James Kennedy, Jenny Wiley Park Manager, visited Allen Central High School and talked to hospitality and tourism classes. He told the students about the prospects of getting jobs in the field of hospitality and tourism.

He presented Jenny Wiley State Park brochures to the students and answered questions concerning the park. He encouraged the students to enter into hospitality and tourism as a career choice, due to the projected growth rate of tourism in Floyd County.

After his visit, all three of the hospitality and tourism classes visited and toured Jenny Wiley State Park and received a much greater insight into the demands and responsibilities of the career choices in this field.

The hospitality and tourism class is a pilot program that was developed to meet the demands of the school-to-work transition bill.

Tourism facts

Allen Central students learned about tourism in Floyd County during a lecture by Jenny Wiley State Park manager James Kennedy.

What's New? at AMS

THE YOUTH SERVICES CENTER: THE AMS CONNECTION

by Connie Branham

I was walking down the hall today when one of the students stopped me and asked "I've seen you a lot, what do you do here?"

I immediately responded "I'm the Youth Services Center Director."

"Yeah, I've heard of that, but what exactly is it?" she asked.

I began to tell this bright-eyed youth that the YSC is a place for students and families to come to find others and get involved in some activities like volleyball, board games, and talking with each other. In October and November there will be workshops on baby-sitting, CPR, first aid, and how to deal with conflict and community service. In a nutshell, the Youth Services Center is a place for parents and students to come or call when things get difficult or to find fun things to do together. It's a place where parents, students, teachers and community work together to make learning and being part of the school and community a little easier.

"Oh," she said, "kind've like a puzzle."

"A puzzle?" I asked.

"Yeah, you know, a place where all the pieces connect."

"Hey, she's right, the Youth Services Center is a connection, the Adams Middle School Connection!"

The Youth Services Center, a part of the Kentucky Education Reform Act, was created to help the community and the students at AMS to have the best possible opportunities for success. To find out more about the Youth Services Center, be involved in volunteering at the school, or for help call the YSC Warm Line at 886-9812. Office hours are Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Drop by and check it out!

Editor's Note: Connie Branham, a native of Floyd County, is a 1990 graduate of Berea College. She was a former educational coordinator for the Christian Appalachian Project's Teen programs and is also currently continuing to pursue her Master's Degree at Eastern Kentucky University.

Homeschool group visits Frankfort

Recently a group of Eastern Kentucky homeschoolers, the East Kentucky S.T.A.R.S. (Students Taught About Righteous Standards), visited Frankfort on a field trip. Forty-three parents and children from Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, and Perry Counties toured the Capitol, the Kentucky Historical Museum, the Governor's Mansion, the Lieutenant Governor's Mansion, and Daniel and Rebecca Boone's grave. Due to the explosive growth of homeschooling in Eastern Kentucky, leaders in the homeschool movement are planning monthly social and educational activities, including a talent show, science fair, authentic Thanksgiving feast, and possible visit with local authors. Any homeschooling families interested in participating in these events with the S.T.A.R.S. may contact Cheryl Cozort (789-3901) or Sandra Volk (437-4730) for more information.

Bowling and Brooks present workshop

In the spring of 1994 two Floyd County Home Economics teachers, Janet Bowling of Allen Central High School and Allison Brooks of Adams Middle School were selected from the Region Eleven Home Economics Teachers Association to receive training for "Planning and Implementing Performance Assessment in Home Economics." The teachers attended two, one-day workshops that gave instruction on writing performance assessment events; designing open-ended and open-response questions; and creating rubrics. The teachers were required to conduct a fall workshop for all teachers in Region Eleven.

The fall meeting of the Region Eleven Home Economics Teachers Association was held on September 10 at Pike Central High School. Bowling and Brooks presented the performance assessment workshop to the Home Economics teachers. Hands-on activities and simulations were provided in planning and writing rubrics and holistic scoring techniques.

A variety of samples were presented of open-ended and open-response questions with practice sessions to apply the knowledge gained. Lunch and a tour of the new Pike Central High School followed the workshop.

Teachers' training

Floyd County teachers who attended the session included Patricia Huffman, Charlene Sexton, Allison Brooks, Janet Bowling, and Elizabeth Jones.

Wal-Mart manager visits new class

A pilot program at Allen Central High School is bringing the world of work into the classroom. Job Skills, a course designed especially for freshman students, integrates basic employment skills with information on how to find and keep a job.

The curriculum is taught as a part of the Family and Consumer Sciences (formerly Home Economics). One of the primary objectives of the course is to bring representatives from business and industry into partnership with the school in order to assist teachers in implementing strategies for school-to-work transition skills. Students are offered opportunities to visit the workplace to view the application of job-related skills.

Paul Louella, manager of the Prestonsburg Wal-Mart store, visited the Job Skills classes on September 9. He discussed the importance of obtaining competencies in six basic employable categories: maintaining a positive mental attitude, demonstrating initiative, being productive, showing integrity and honesty, being punctual and eager to learn.

His presentation included information pertaining to job opportunities, earning potential, applying for a job, the work environment, motivating employees, and policies and procedures of companies. He invited students to visit Wal-Mart for a demonstration of voice computers and other technology used by the store.

Mr. Louella will be returning to Allen Central to assist students in completing job applications, and practicing interview skills.

Motivation

Paul Louella, Prestonsburg Wal-Mart manager, got students involved in his demonstration of technology.

Floyd County counselors hold monthly meeting

The monthly meeting of the Floyd County School Counselors was held October 18. The focus of the meeting was service providers. Guest speakers were Glenda Hughes, AHEC coordinator, Highlands Regional Medical Center and Darlene Starnes, prevention specialist, Mountain Comprehensive Care.

Also speaking at the meeting was Libbi Hall, Tech Prep-Professional Development coordinator, Floyd County Schools.

Both Hughes and Starnes discussed the different services offered by their respective programs and how these services can be utilized by school counselors in their guidance programs.

A discussion was held concerning Tech Prep initiatives and career counseling materials available at each school. Counselors also shared ideas and programs being planned and used at each school.

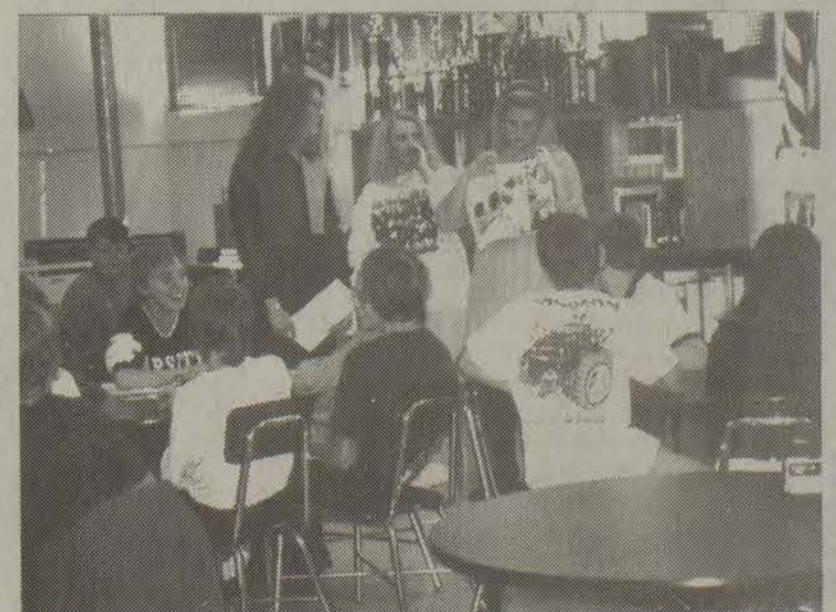

A major concern and focus of the School Counselors this year is awareness and accessibility of and for students and parents of the services which can be provided by the school counselor. All schools in the Floyd County School System have counseling services either on a full or part-time basis. Parents are urged to contact their children's school counselor for assistance in reducing barriers in education.

Counselors and their schools are as follows:

• Edgar Craft and Ron Robinson, Prestonsburg High School; • Kitty Frazier, James A. Duff Elementary; • Teresa Frazier, Betsy Layne Elementary; • Linda Holbrook, Osborne Elementary (A.M.) and Melvin Elementary (P.M.); • Laura Kidd, Allen Central High School; • Janet Lawson, South Floyd High School; • Rodney McKinney, Floyd County Technical High School and Opportunities Unlimited; • Jane Meek, McDowell Elementary; • Denver Newsome, Stumbo Elementary; • Charlene Nunn, Clark Elementary; • Debbie Paige, Martin Elementary (Mon., Tues., Thurs., Fri. A.M.) and Maytown Elementary (Wed., Fri. P.M.); • Kathy Petot, James D. Adams Middle School; • Vicky Ratliff, Betsy Layne High School; • Betty Schuster, Prestonsburg Elementary; • Jackie Stevens, Allen Elementary (Mon. & Wed.), Harold Elementary (Tues.), Prater Elementary (Thurs.) and Auxier Elementary (Fri.).

Learning to say "No"

The seventh and eighth grade students at Maytown Elementary completed a 5-week program provided by the Floyd County Health Department on postponing sexual involvement. Five students from Allen Central High School were trained as teen leaders and taught the classes with an instructor from the health department participating. The program taught students how to say "no" and the importance of saying "no" to different aspects of peer pressure. The events were sponsored by the Maytown Family Resource Center.

Adams wins big over Harold Red Devils, 69-21

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Adams Middle School Blackcats got 13 points from Kalen Harris and John Ortega netted 10 as the Blackcats rolled past the Harold Red Devils 69-21 in the second round of the Adams Middle School Invitational Tournament Tuesday night.

The game was tied only once and that was early in the game when Michael Gross hit a baseline jumper to knot the score at 2. Harris had given Adams the first lead on a basket down low.

Adams then reeled off the next 11 points and led 21-4 at the end of the fourth quarter. Josh Kidd hit a three-pointer and Gross drilled a trey in the second period for Harold, which is a very young team this season.

"We're going to be a good team next year," said Coach Roberts of Harold. "We're young, but have some good players."

The more experienced Adams team led 39-13 at the half.

Joe Campbell and Harris controlled the inside play for the Blackcats as they were just too big inside for the Red Devils.

Harold played hard and never did slow up, but just couldn't get any offense against the Adams' pressure defense.

Gross had three, three-point baskets in the game. Kidd had one.

Point guard Adam Hall, a solid player, had one three-point basket for Prestonsburg and Brandon Amburgey scored a three-pointer in the fourth quarter for Adams.

David Ousley had a good game for Adams by scoring nine points off the bench.

Campbell finished with nine points in limited playing time. Ryan "Instant Offense" Hardee tossed in eight points. Hall finished with three and Jeremy Caudill scored four.

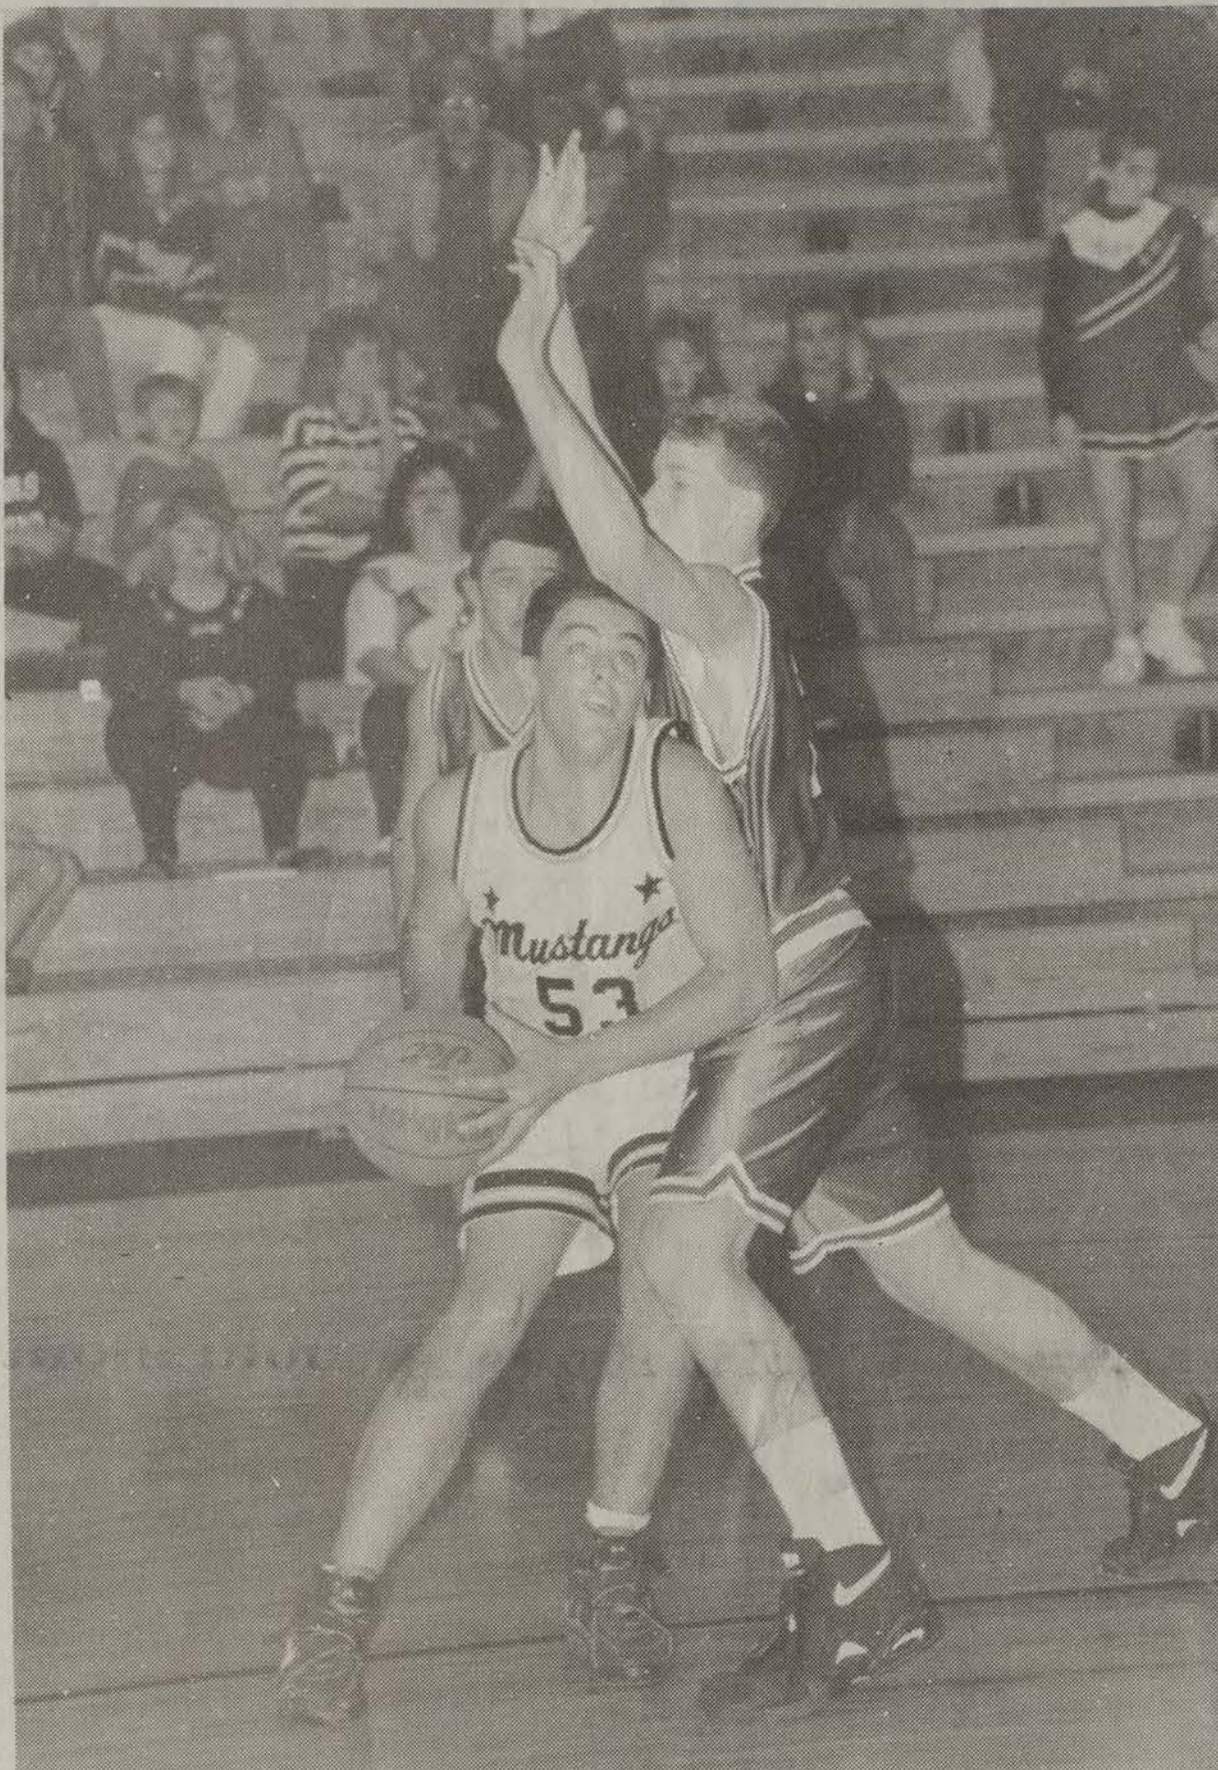

Josh Turner had two field goals in the second quarter for four points. Todd Kidd and Amburgey had three points apiece.

Eric Price and John Dixon had two and one points, respectively.

Gross' 13 points led Harold. Josh Kidd totaled six points with Scott Collins scoring two.

Adams advances to the finals of the tournament this Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

A little leaning...

John M. Stumbo's Adam Tackett (53) found the path blocked by Allen's Nathan Leslie in the second round of the Adams Middle School Invitational Tournament last Tuesday night. Tackett scored 11 points to help lead the Mustangs to a 46-44 victory over the Eagles. Stumbo will face Adams in the championship game Saturday evening. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Late free throws give Stumbo 46-44 win over Allen

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The grade school basketball season isn't a week old yet and already there have been some close battles on the hardwood.

One occurred this past Tuesday night when two excellent basketball teams met on the court. Allen and Stumbo, two traditionally strong teams, faced each other in the second round of the Adams Middle School Invitational.

Three players scored in double figures for Stumbo as they edged Allen 46-44 on some good free throw shooting down the stretch.

Anthony Tackett led the Mustangs with 12 points while Russell Hall and Adam Tackett tossed in 11 each.

The difference in the game was the foul trouble that big man Nathan Leslie found himself in. He picked up his third personal foul early in the second quarter and was brought to the bench. Leslie failed to score in the game.

Seth Crisp and Jason Keathley carried the load for the Eagles. Crisp finished with 19 for the game while Keathley scored 16. Robbie Holbrook had nine points.

The Eagles hit only eight of 19 free throws in the game.

With 1:42 to play in the game, Allen held a slim one point lead, 44-43, after Crisp slipped through the Mustang defense for an easy basket.

Stumbo took a 45-44 advantage with 46 seconds to play on two free throws by Jake Carroll.

The Eagles tried to go inside to Keathley but the pass was picked off by Stumbo and immediately Stumbo coach Hayes Hamilton called time out.

The Mustangs put the ball in the hands of Carroll to milk the clock. Hall was fouled with nine seconds to play and he connected on the first for a 46-44 Stumbo lead.

Crisp brought the ball up court for the Eagles and just missed a three-point shot as the horn sounded.

The Eagles trailed 35-30 after the third quarter and opened hot with Crisp hitting a three-pointer, Keathley connecting on two free throws and Holbrook burying a three-pointer to give the Eagles a 38-35 lead.

Stumbo grabbed a 4-0 lead on a layup by seventh-grader Adam Tackett and Anthony Tackett's short jumper. The Mustangs were able to lead by six, 10-6, in the first quarter until Crisp hit an eight-foot jumper just before the period ended.

Allen went on a 9-0 run to start the second quarter and took a 15-10 lead. Crisp drilled back-to-back three-pointers, Keathley hit a short jumper and one free throw in the spurt.

The Eagles soared out to an eight point advantage, 21-15, on two free throws by Crisp and a six-foot jumper by Holbrook.

Holbrook's second three-point basket gave the Eagles their largest lead at nine points, 24-15, before Stumbo scored the last four points of the half to trail 24-19 at the half.

The Mustangs took advantage of several Allen turnovers early in the third period and scored the first 10 points of the quarter to take a 29-24 lead.

Hall and Carroll hit the treys while Hall scored again on a short jumper and Adam Tackett got an easy basket down low.

Carroll finished with eight points for Stumbo. Jon Parsons, off the bench, scored four.

"We're still young yet," said Coach Hamilton about his team's effort. "But we'll get better."

Regional Playoffs

Prestonsburg travels to Russell for round two

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

For the second year in a row, Prestonsburg's football team will travel to Russell for a playoff game with the Red Devils.

Will revenge be much on the mind of Russell? Will the 21-0 shutout be a motivating factor the Russell coaching staff will use in an attempt to fire up the Red Devils?

Russell is one of the few unbeaten teams in the state this season. Coach Ivan McGlone's club brings a perfect 11-0 record to the game. Russell is the District 1 champions.

Prestonsburg is 8-3 on the season, having won their last seven games. Prestonsburg finished second behind Whitesburg this year with one loss.

There may be a motivating tool that Prestonsburg coach Bill Letton and his coaching staff could bring in -- a possible rematch with Whitesburg should the Blackcats win over Russell.

Russell will be coming off their big win over Shelby Valley last week. The Red Devils blistered Shelby Valley 60-16, but may have suffered a loss of their own.

Senior halfback Matt Cross broke his hand on the first play from scrimmage against the Wildcats, and there is a possibility that he could miss the remaining playoff games.

Cross was a big factor in the offensive and defensive scheme of the Red Devils. Coach McGlone may have to look to senior Jeff Frasure (5'10", 185) for that missing yardage.

Both Cross and Frasure form a "dynamic duo" for Russell out of their famed wing "T" offense.

The Red Devils do not throw the football that much, although Matt Robinson (6' 1", 170) did complete four passes for 102 yards versus Shelby Valley.

Fullback Mike Kazee (6', 175 senior) led the ground game for Russell with 72 yards against the Wildcats last Friday night.

The only common foe the two teams faced this season was East Carter. East Carter had the Red Devils on the rope back in September before Russell's second half run that netted them a 35-28 victory.

Prestonsburg defeated the Raiders this past Friday night, 35-29, in a not-so-pretty outing.

Russell finished on top in their district for the past three seasons and will be facing Prestonsburg for the third consecutive year.

Prestonsburg handed Russell a 13-3 setback at home in the 1992 semifinals. They won over the Red Devils 21-0 last year.

Russell entered 2A play in 1991 after dropping from Class 3A. They are 14-10 in playoff action since 1977.

When Russell lines up on the offensive line, they will show a line that is much bigger than what has been there the past two years.

Shelton Chaffins (6', 190) and Scott Stinnet (6', 200) will be at the guard slots on offense. Both are big and strong with some good quickness.

Dustin Hali (6', 195) and Danny Collier (6'1", 200) will work at the tight end position.

Stinnet is the only returning starter from last year's defensive line. But the Red Devils have grown up this season, pitching two shutouts. They have given up a lot of points as well.

This game could come down to who takes care of the football and that has been a problem for the Cats in 1994, even though they have improved in that area.

Coach Letton Scouting Report...

"Russell is a good solid football team," said the Prestonsburg coach. "They return an experience offensive line. (Jeff) Frasure is a good strong back. He played well against us last year.

"They are a good team. We just have to do something to make things happen and make them adjust their game."

Coach Letton said that his team was well and focused for the game.

Prestonsburg is a strong defensive team up the middle and that is the area the Red Devils like to run at. However, with the fleet-footed Cross possibly out, they may go more to the outside.

Prestonsburg has yet to put together a full four-quarter game. They either look like world-beaters in the first half or struggle big time. The past two games have been a mystery.

Against M.C. Napier to close the season, the Blackcats struggled against the Navajos in the first half and they destroyed them in the second half.

Last week against East Carter, Prestonsburg looked like it was on a mission. The Blackcats vaulted out to a 28-9 first-half lead, only to have to win the game in the final seconds.

This is a Prestonsburg team that has playoff experience and knows what it is like to go to the big show in Louisville. That alone could take them to the next level.

We've always made car loans.

Now we'll help you get a new parking space.

We're making a few changes at First Guaranty National Bank, not the least of which is our name. Now we have a new one. It's Trans Financial Bank. And along with that new name is coming a greatly expanded mortgage portfolio consisting of both fixed and adjustable rate mortgages.

What hasn't changed are the friendly people and the nice little personal touches you're used to. It's just that now, those same friendly people will have more to offer - not only more mortgage money, but many new products and services not usually found in a bank, like a full range of investment vehicles and complete travel services.

So please stop by. We can look at a loan for a new garage - many with an attached house.
