Commonwealth Attorney files suit in wake of Supreme Court ruling :

Ouster of Stumbo, Boyd sought

by Scott Perry
Times Editor and

Staff Writer

Commonwealth Attorney John Earl Hunt dropped a bombshell Thursday on Floyd County's political landscape, filing civil actions that seek the ouster of County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and County Court Clerk Carla Boyd.

The suits caught both Stumbo and Boyd by surprise Thursday, with both indicating they learned of the ouster effort from the media, before they had been served with Hunt's complaint. That complaint relates to a recent decision by Kentucky's Supreme Court, which held that a state law concerning bonds for county officials requires strict compliance.

The issues facing Stumbo and Boyd are similar to those originating in a civil action in Breathitt County, where Commonwealth Attorney Randy Stidham sued for the removal of County Judge-Executive Nim Henson, claiming Henson had failed to meet bonding requirements.

Stidham lost that case in circuit court, but Henson's ouster was endorsed by the Kentucky Court of Appeals and confirmed by the Kentucky Supreme Court, which declined last week to rehear the case.

The filing of the civil suits Thursday by Hunt against Stumbo and Boyd were doubly surprising in that they were filed just days after the federal court in Pikeville had been asked to block the ouster of the Breathitt County Judge.

Commonwealth Attorney John Earl Hunt was unavailable Thursday to discuss the timing of his suit, but a news release, apparently prepared by Hunt, indicated that the recent Supreme Court decision "dictates that I file suit."

Hunt's complaint against Stumbo alleges that the county judge failed to post the required bond prior to his being sworn into office on January 3, adding that Stumbo did not meet the bonding requirement until March 2.

The allegations against Boyd contend she did not post the required bond until January 21, nearly three weeks after taking her oath of office.

Kentucky law relating to bonds requires officials to post those bonds with the circuit court clerk prior to their assuming office. The penalty for failing to meet the bond requirements is stiff. According to the law, "If any person violates (the statutory provisions), his office shall be considered vacant, and he shall not be eligible for the same office for two

TB cases up in area but down in Floyd

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

The American Lung Association last week noted that the Big Sandy Region, including Floyd County, had recorded the highest regional rate for tuberculosis in the state in 1993, but in Floyd County this year, those cases have dwindled to one.

A panel of health experts from the South Carolina TB Control Division released its findings last Friday from a review of TB cases in Kentucky. According to the study, geographically, the Big Sandy counties of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, and Pike, had recorded 18.2 TB cases per 100,000 population. Kentucky averaged 10.7 cases per 100,000 people, exceeding the 1993 national TB case rate by 10 percent, studies showed.

The American Lung Association said reports indicated local health departments needed to improve their treatment of tuberculosis by making "directly observed therapy," making sure patients complete their six-month medication schedule, a priority.

But that's what the Floyd County Health Department has been doing all along, and the number of TB cases here has been slowly declining, Carrie Branham, an LPN with the Floyd County Health Department, said Thursday.

The health department stresses that TB patients return for follow-up visits, Branham, whose patients call her the TB nurse, said. She explained that the health department also asks

Coroner presents the facts

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson, standing, explained to jurors at an inquest Thursday the facts surrounding the death last August of a Wheelwright man. Inquest rules bizarre death was a suicide

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

After weighing a bizarre set of circumstances, a Floyd County coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that an Otter Creek man who died in a house fire in August committed suicide.

At a coroner's inquest Wednesday, Coroner Roger Nelson told jurors that Glen Randall Johnson, 48, of Wheelwright, was found in his burned home on August 17 with a screwdriver-type implement protruding from the top of his head.

Nelson explained that Johnson had died from smoke inhalation and it appeared that his clothing had been saturated with gasoline. The coroner said that he did not feel comfortable making a ruling on whether Johnson's death was a homicide; a suicide; or accidental.

Kentucky State Police arson investigator Barry McKenzie testified that from the evidence at the home it was his opinion that Johnson had set the house and himself on fire and plunged the four-inch implement, which was later identified as a screwdriver used in working with leather, into his head.

McKenzie found a partially filled plastic jug of gasoline in a back bedroom where the fire is believed to have been started and found gasoline residue in two other places in the home. There was also gasoline found on Johnson's clothing, McKenzie said.

From McKenzie's testimony, after Johnson had set himself on fire, the victim ran through his house, sat in a chair in another room and then ran back through the home before collapsing in a hallway.

State police detective Joel Newsome testified that he agreed with McKenzie's theory relating to Johnson's actions during the fire and he felt that the victim had committed suicide.

Nelson explained to the jurors that Johnson had had an aneurysm removed from his brain in the 1970s and that another growth was present in his brain that could not be removed. Johnson's physicians had removed a portion of his skull on the top of his head because of the second

Martin council wants city traffic out of the fast lane

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

When driving through the city limits of Martin, you never know who is going to be pointing a gun at you—a radar gun, that is.

Martin City Council decided Wednesday to get tough on drivers who speed through their town.

Resident Bobby Griffith opened the discussion on the issue by asking what could be done to slow traffic through the downtown portion of the city.

"There are a lot of old ladies that cross the street and it's dangerous," Griffith said. "When I have to cross the street, I run."

Councilman Alan Whicker said that he didn't know how to cure the problem, but that the city police department has been somewhat successful using a radar gun borrowed from the City of Allen to ticket speeders.

Councilman Eugene Hutchinson suggested that council lobby state officials to install a traffic light in an effort to slow traffic through the city.

Mayor Raymond Griffith said that council has asked state highway official for a traffic light, but state officials have refused and "they won't budge."

At that point, councilwoman Hazel Robinson proudly announced that she had received a Christmas card from Governor Brereton Jones and that her grandson was "right there with" the governor.

"Well, use that card, Hazel (to get a traffic light installed)," Mayor Griffith remarked.

Robinson said that it would be better to get an appointment with

More restrictions coming for state Medicaid program

Continuing his efforts to trim the Medicaid budget, Human Resources Secretary Masten Childers II has proposed a new policy that he estimates could save the Medicaid program millions of dollars.

Wednesday, Childers announced changes in Medicaid reimbursements that will impact hospitals. The new policy will require hospitals and other cost-based institutional providers such as nursing homes and hospices to itemize expenses billed to Medicaid as administrative costs.

Allegations that a hospital in Bell County had billed Medicaid for the use of an airplane to recruit doctors prompted Childers Wednesday to ask for a review by the Office of the Inspector General of administrative and general costs reported to Medicaid for reimbursement.

Beginning in January, Medicaid will only reimburse those expenses if hospitals or nursing homes can show they are directly related to patient care, he said.

Giving gifts

Three staff members at Otter Creek Correctional Center delivered gifts this month to the twenty headstart children at Osborne that the center's staff adopted through the Adopt-A-Child headstart Christmas program. Michael Cooper, deputy warden, gave out presents while Robin Fannin, nurse at the center, talked to the children. Kim Triplett, business manager at the center, also visited with the children.

Clerk's office reopens after jail leaks fixed

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

The Floyd County Circuit Court Clerk's office was back in business Wednesday after closing Tuesday due to water seeping through the ceiling from the jail above the offices.

Prestonsburg fire marshal Larry Adams had recommended the closing of the offices because the liquid was coming into contact with power lines in the ceiling, which posed a fire hazard.

Adams and Circuit Court Clerk Frank Derossert Jr. also thought the liquid posed a health hazard to employees due to past problems with sewage from clogged drain lines in the jail dripping through the ceiling onto employee's desks.

They also assumed the water coming from the ceiling Tuesday contained contaminants because sewage was coming up through the plumbing in the men's bathroom on the first floor. Water was also standing in the boiler room on the floor, Forrester Porter Jr., an employee of Porter Plumbing Company, said.

The liquid seeping into the clerk's office was regular city water coming from a service sink at the jail, Forrester Porter, owner of Porter Plumbing, years." Hunt's suits ask the Floyd Circuit Court for orders declaring both Stumbo's and Boyd's offices vacant; for injunctions enjoining the defendants from "acting or attempting to act" in their official capacities; and for the costs associated with prosecuting the suits.

A special meeting of the Floyd County Solid Waste Commission has been called for Tuesday, January 3 in the courthouse annex.

Stumbo and Boyd said they intend to fight Hunt's actions and both said they felt Hunt should have waited until the issue was settled in federal court.

Stumbo said Thursday that he filed a performance bond in Boyd's office on January 3, but conceded that he did not file the bond with the circuit court clerk until the publicity surrounding the Breathitt County case surfaced.

"I expected it to come all the time," Stumbo said. "But, I didn't expect it until after the federal case was tried. I don't know why John Earl did this this quick."

Stumbo said he will "certainly" challenge Hunt's ouster attempt.

Boyd said Thursday that she was not required to post a bond with the circuit clerk's office and that her performance bond ran on a three-year cycle.

"My bond is a continuous bond,"

Boyd said. "It doesn't run with the terms of office. I feel I was covered legally, anyway."

Floyd County officials have customarily filed performance bonds with the county court clerk's office, Boyd said, and she wasn't aware the bonds had to be filed with the circuit clerk.

Neither Stumbo nor Boyd said that they had plans to join in the action pending in federal court.

"We'll wait and see what happens," Boyd said. "I feel that (my bond) was done sufficiently."

Prestonsburg attorney Ned Pillersdorf, who represents the Breathitt County Judge-Executive and filed the motion for an injunction in federal court, could not be reached Thursday to determine how or if Hunt's actions would affect the issue pending in federal court.

Reversal of Supreme Court decision won't affect Floyd

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Drunk drivers in Floyd County won't be affected by the Kentucky Supreme Court's reversal last Thursday of its September ruling that the court system can't consider DUI convictions before 1991 when issuing a sentence for DUI offenders.

Last Thursday, Supreme Court justices said that previous convictions for drunk driving accumulated before a 1991 change in law could be considered by the courts when determining punishment for the offense.

In September, the justices had ruled that it was unconstitutional for the court to consider convictions before 1991 in inflicting harsher sentences on DUI offenders.

In 1991, DUI laws stipulated that anyone found to have driven with a blood-alcohol content of .10 percent or more is guilty of driving while intoxicated. The Supreme Court said that was a new law, therefore, people tried under the new law must be considered first-time offenders.

After lawyers with the state attorney general's office protested the ruling, the Supreme Court reconsidered and issued its reversal of that opinion. The December opinion will not become final until after a 20-day period.

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond said the ruling won't affect the prosecution of cases in Floyd County because his office, which handles about 800 DUI cases a year, had continued to consider previous DUI offenses.

Hammond said representatives of the attorney general's office at a Prosecutors' Advisory Council meeting had advised county attorneys to wait until the ruling became final before complying with the ruling.

Hammond said the major metropolitan areas in Jefferson and Fayette counties began to comply with the ruling because they handle around 4,000 cases a year.

"The number is so great, they can't wait," he said.

Hammond said that about 90 percent of DUI cases in Floyd County are first-offense cases, and that his office is seeing fewer repeat offender cases.

Hammond said last year, Floyd County was the only county in the state that was current in disposition of DUI cases within the 90-day period. He praised former district judge Danny Caudill and said Caudill was ranked as the second most proficient judge in the state based on disposition of cases in criminal court, including DUI cases.

James Allen was appointed to fill Caudill's place on the district bench when Caudill was elected circuit judge.

Hammond said the county should have a second district judge in the new courthouse in 1996.

KSP receive certification for DARE

The Kentucky State Police has been accredited as the Kentucky training center for D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) instructors.

Linda Lang, director of the Midwest Regional D.A.R.E. Training Center, presented Kentucky State Police Commissioner Jerry Lovitt with the accreditation plaque during a ceremony at KSP headquarters. One agency in each state is accredited to coordinate state training.

Sgt. Jimmy Richerson, who is the state D.A.R.E. coordinator, said evaluators from the Midwest regional center evaluated the State Police for about a year, observing such things as their D.A.R.E. instructor training sessions.

About 530 state and local officers have been trained as D.A.R.E. instructors in Kentucky.

inoperable aneurysm. The screw-starter did not penetrate the skull.

The instrument had penetrated the soft part of Johnson's head and had pierced the aneurysm, Nelson said.

Sheriff's department detective Jim Riederick testified that he spoke with pathologist Barbara Jones, who performed an autopsy on Johnson, and Jones reported that the insertion of the implement would not have been a fatal wound.

Riederick also testified that there was no evidence that the home had been broken into.

Attorney Keith Bartley, who is representing Johnson's estate, asked detective Newsome if he "honestly believed" that Johnson would have set himself on fire, stuck the screw-starter in his head, run through the house, taken the time to sit in a chair and then run all the way back through the house before collapsing in the hallway.

"In my opinion, he did," Newsome said.

Jurors asked Newsome about what appeared in a picture to be a spot of blood on a porch at the home.

Newsome said that he noticed the blood spot the day of the fire and he went back the next day and got a sample of it. He said that no tests had been performed on the sample and he felt that Johnson could have made his way to the porch while on fire before going back inside.

Newsome played a taped statement from Johnson's mother, Flossie, in which Johnson's mother said she spoke with her son three times on the day he died. Flossie Johnson said that the last time she talked to her son, apparently just prior to the fire, he spoke a few words to her and then just stopped talking. She said the phone line did not go dead, but that her son would not talk to her.

Members of the Southeast Volunteer Fire Department testified that Mike Tackett, Bruce Johnson and Mike Cooper were at the scene when they arrived. Firefighter David Boyd said the men were using a garden hose to spray water in the rear bedroom and told firemen they had heard screams from inside.

Boyd said that he and another fireman went inside the residence and found Johnson's body.

Johnson's wife, Linda, testified that she was at the hospital with their daughter when the fire broke out and that her husband had seemed "real happy" when he phoned her at the hospital prior to the fire.

Jurors asked her what she thought had happened and she said, "I don't know what happened. At first, I thought he went to sleep with a cigarette in his hand. I didn't have no idea the (police) thought it was anything else until I heard it on the news."

Thomas Rainey, who is married to Johnson's daughter, testified that he had been at the residence about 6 p.m. the day of the fire and he thought no one was at home. He said he stopped to pick up some items to take to the hospital and no one answered when he was in the residence. He said the front door was locked and the back door was ajar.

Fireman Boyd testified that the front door was unlocked when the firefighters arrived at the residence.

The jury deliberated for approximately 15 minutes before returning a verdict of arson/suicide. One of the five jurors determined that Johnson's death was accidental.

that patients who have tested positive on TB skin tests undergo x-rays and sputum AFB (Acid Fast Bacilli) testing by the state to diagnose the disease.

Testing positive on a TB skin test does not mean the patient has the disease, Branham said, but they could develop it and must take medication, which the health department provides.

Once patients test positive on the skin tests, the x-rays and sputum analyses, then they are treated for TB and counseled about the contagious aspect of the disease.

Family and friends of the patients are also contacted and tested for the disease, Branham said.

Branham said TB can recur in patients who have recovered from the disease, and she urged them to return to the health department for re-evaluation if they showed any of the warning signs of TB, including shortness of breath, chest pain, productive coughs (which produce phlegm), night sweats or general fatigue.

To bring the disease to a halt, the health department also conducts in-service training for people who work in high risk areas, including hospitals, doctors' offices, ambulance services, and health clinics, Branham said.

"TB is airborne and can be transmitted through coughing and sneezing," she said. "The people who work in (health fields) are the ones who are at risk."

The Floyd County Health Department's TB program is coordinated by Peggy Gibson. For more information about tuberculosis, contact Gibson or Branham at the health department.

For more information about the study, contact the American Lung Association of Kentucky at 1-800-LUNG-USA.

Leaks

said his employees discovered.

A drain line from the sink which is used for mopping and is located between two cells had a leak and water had dripped through a crack in the floor, Porter said. The water went down into containers located into a storage area between the floors and, after accumulating, flowed down through the ceiling below.

The plumbing company employees changed a water valve under the mop sink and used a roto-rooter to unclog the downstairs' drains. The drains were probably clogged by someone at the jail, Mike Clifton, who works for the plumbing company said, because he pulled out a pair of socks from the clogged drain.

"Somebody at the jail didn't like their Christmas present," he said with a chuckle.

Repairs to the plumbing were completed Tuesday and employees returned to work Wednesday. The ceiling tiles, though, had not been replaced Thursday.

officials in Frankfort to discuss the issue, rather than writing a letter.

Hutchinson offered to go to Frankfort and meet with officials to discuss the need for a traffic light.

In the meantime, council agreed that city police officers would be conducting more patrols in the downtown area and would ticket drivers breaking the speed limit.

In other business:

- Clerk Johnnie B. Stephens read council's investment resolution;

- Joe Simpson asked that council buy a live Christmas tree to be planted on the hill near the entrance to the city, instead of buying a live tree each year;

- Councilwoman Sherry Ratliff asked that council receive price quotes on new Christmas decorations for downtown and commented that the City of Allen had the best looking Christmas lights in the county;

- Ratliff also asked that the mayor work with the Department for Employment Services in order to get trainees to perform duties in city hall, the maintenance department and the sanitation department;

- Council held a closed session to discuss pending litigation over rights of way obtained for the new sewer plant;

- Council approved car repair requests for the police department from officer Jeff Powell; and

- Councilman Hutchinson requested that the mayor begin making the appointments of five members to the city's ethics commission, which needs to be in place by January 15, and the mayor said he would attempt to do so.

Councilmen Denzil Hoss Halbert and Everett Akers Jr. were absent from Wednesday's meeting.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

To plan the future, judge the past

by Scott Perry

Governor Brereton Jones had to know he was going to catch some flak for dialing up a radio station's live, call-in psychic hotline this week.

So we won't disappoint him.

Can't blame the Guv for having a bit of fun as his administration winds down. Got to admit that the first three years didn't offer much in the way of hilarity, though there was plenty of fun and games.

If we gazed into our own crystal ball to see how history will judge Jones' as governor, we'll probably get a split screen.

On one, we'll get an endless rerun of how Jones spent most of his first year or two governing fund raisers for paying off his personal debts from running for Lt. Governor in 1988.

On the other we'll see the governor applying one of those "ouchless" Band Aids® to health care reform while ignoring the biggest ripoff of them all in the health care/insurance field...

Worker's Compensation.

'Make that Lawyer's Compensation.

Floyd County did about as well under Jones as any of his predecessors.

We got a prison at Wheelwright, some blacktop here and there, and a lot of thank-you notes for giving Jones the highest percentage of votes in his election.

We still don't have full funding for a revised coal severance tax rebate formula; we didn't get much of anything in the job development department; and our quality of life is about the same in Eastern Kentucky as it was before the FBI put the state's General Assembly on its Most-Wanted list.

But that's all hindsight, water under the bridge. Jones wants to know what his future holds.

Well, we don't need a psychic or a crystal ball to help him out.

To predict his future, we suggest he just look to the past.

November 8, 1994 ought to be far enough back.

Christianity compatible with military service

Editor:

I am a native of Floyd County and currently attend the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland. I usually look forward to reading my hometown newspaper, however, I was terribly disappointed when I saw the front page of the Wednesday edition on December 28.

There was a picture of two advertisements, one for the Marines and the other about Christianity. The caption below read, "Conflicting Interests?" This is not merely stereotypical, but ignorant.

St. Joan of Arc is only one example of many great warriors who were also great Christians. Although I plan a career of naval service, I was baptized at St. Martha's Church on Christmas Day. Father David Powers, who formerly served in the U.S. Army, administered my baptism.

Anyone familiar with the church should understand that, despite the Fifth Commandment, both military service and total war are justified under certain conditions. In fact, those conditions sound like an outline of our current international situation.

In May 1983, U.S. bishops published The Challenge of Peace: God's Promise and Our Response, which states the seven principles of "just war," along with conditions for military drafts and nuclear deterrence.

The first principle states that "war is permissible to confront a real and certain danger, including the protection of innocent people, basic human rights, and decent human existence." This can easily apply to our purposes in Bosnia, Haiti, Korea and all other states embroiled in war. The troops and sailors serving in such places are not simply carrying out political objectives, but are also supported by the Christian Church.

Before entering the Naval Academy, I spent four years on Purpose Road while attending the June Buchanan School. I fully understand the meaning of duty and service, both to my God and my country. The fire department and Christmas Eve

Editor:

I am writing this letter to show my appreciation to a very special group of people in Prestonsburg. The Prestonsburg Fire Department and Volunteer Fire Department always does an outstanding job on Christmas Eve making Christmas brighter for hundreds of children.

Christmas was always very special and exciting at my house; waiting for Santa to drive by on the fire truck was always part of our tradition. I have very clear memories of my sister and I (and Mom and Dad, as well as other relatives) standing in front of my home and watching the bright red fire truck as it moved slowly down the street. Red lights flashed, music played, sirens screamed, and Santa waved as he cheered, "HO! HO! HO!" I am now 26 years old and I still get chills when Santa comes down my street. It meant the world to me as a child to watch Santa on the fire truck and now it means the world to my four-year-old daughter. I watch her eyes light up as an excited smile appears on her face. I want each and every member of the Prestonsburg Fire Department and volunteers to know that they truly work magic in the eyes of our children. I want to urge everyone to support this organization; they hold a roadblock every year to raise money to buy candy, which they give out to the children. This is a very good cause; please help these men and women make Christmas come alive.

I have never taken the time to thank Santa and the helpers for making my 26 Christmases and my daughter's four Christmases special. I want to thank each and every one of you. You have no idea the feeling of excitement you bring children on Christmas Eve. Keep up the good work! You are appreciated!

Ethics on trial

Kentucky's legislative ethics law survived its first legal test last week. But don't be surprised if more court cases follow. Franklin Circuit Judge William Graham's decision did not answer some key questions raised in two suits challenging the law.

Graham's ruling did uphold the law's requirement that lobbyists register, pay fees and file spending reports. His reasoning was that any possible abridgment of free speech or assembly was justified because of the public and legislative interest in curtailing political corruption.

Left unanswered were questions about the constitutionality of the law as a whole or the constitutionality of prohibiting lobbyists from making campaign contributions to legislative candidates — issues also raised in separate lawsuits filed by Associated Industries of Kentucky and by state Sen. Kelsey Friend.

Graham's explanation for declining to address these questions indicated that only someone under investigation for ethics violations could challenge the law as a whole and that only a lobbyist could challenge the campaign contribution provision.

Although Graham's reasoning on these points cannot be faulted; it's unfortunate that this case didn't result in a more far-reaching ruling. That would have speeded up the process leading to a state Supreme Court decision on the law as a whole.

When and if that occurs, it must be remembered that this law doesn't prohibit a lobbyist from freely assembling with or speaking to a legislator. What it prohibits are certain practices — such as winning, dining and junketeering — that can corrupt the legislative process. And when was there ever a constitutional right to freedom of corruption? — Lexington Herald-Leader

Ripping regulation

The cost and complexity of federal regulation are easy targets for politicians of all political persuasions. Nothing brings a crowd of business folks to its feet faster than a promise to stomp on meddling bureaucrats.

For all the alarmist rhetoric on both sides of the debate, Washington and to a lesser degree state and local governments remain the first line of defense against threats to public health and safety, environmental degradation and predatory business practices.

Judging from a bill that will turn up in Congress early next year, the bumptious Republicans brought to power in November have no interest in attacking the regulatory establishment along its margins. They want to squash the whole system.

Under the new approach, proposed rules would be subject to all manner of "expert" cost and technical analysis, foiled by inevitable court challenges, even before the public knows they're in the works. Not many are likely to survive, which is of course the purpose.

But that's child's play compared to the other part of the proposal — a regulatory "budget" that would attempt to put an upper limit on the cost of complying with all federal regulation. The goal is not just to contain the cost, but to push the ceiling steadily down until, well, there's not much left.

Anyone tempted to cheer the prospect of "relief" should remember this:

Among the regulations at risk are those that limit air pollution; prevent needless deaths in coal mine accidents; make highway travel ever safer; protect consumers from countless rip-offs.

[R]egulation often needs to be streamlined and made more cost effective. But some Republicans want to throw out the good with the bad — and the public safety be damned.

Clearly it's more important for Congress to thwart Speaker Gingrich and his gang than a few overreaching civil servants. — The Courier-Journal

Bad timing on taxes

As matters now stand, Governor Jones will call the Kentucky General Assembly into special session on January 17 to cut taxes and increase spending. Call it a belated Christmas present — or perhaps a very premature one that should be deferred until next Christmas.

The governor hasn't announced yet which taxes he wants cut, and by how much. But it's likely that private pensions already are. Legislative and business leaders would also like to see the state tax on intangible property repealed and inheritance taxes reduced.

As for spending, the governor favors bond issues to expand the Commonwealth Convention Center in Louisville and to build a new convention center in Northern Kentucky and a state history center in Frankfort.

You can make a pretty good case for most of these proposals. The convention centers, for instance, should generate economic activity, and local and state tax revenues. Similarly, cutting the intangibles and inheritance taxes should make Kentucky more attractive to new businesses — and help keep folks here who have become financially successful.

But this is a state with a lot of unmet needs... Kentucky and other states will face bigger burdens once Congress begins slashing federal programs.

If we're going to cut some state taxes, we'd better be prepared to raise others. — The Courier-Journal

Floyd County forms science, math coalition with 28 members

A group of Floyd County leaders and educators who hope to establish a science museum with a planetarium in the Floyd County area have formed a science and math coalition.

Approximately 28 people met on Wednesday, November 30, to hear reports about various science projects throughout the county.

Jenny Bottoms, director of both the nursing program and the Nature Center at Prestonsburg Community College, gave an overall review of activities at the center.

She pointed out that since it began, 2,037 students from 32 schools in seven counties had toured the Nature Center. The center offers hands-on experience to students in the region, Bottoms said. Tours are held on Fridays when laboratories at the college are not in use and have been scheduled through March.

Bottoms reported that the center will help develop window displays to be used in downtown Prestonsburg as soon as she receives final approval from the administration at PCC.

She also said the center had plans for expansion if PCC builds a new Wellness Center because additional space will be available to the center.

Fred James, administrator of the Prestonsburg Main Street Program, applauded the use of store window displays for the Nature Center and school science projects. He also noted pending efforts to develop a program highlighting the river and its importance to the community historically, as well as environmentally.

Carol Stumbo, director of the Region 8 Service Center, and Nancy Sutton, who is in charge of curriculum at the center, described the resources available at the center and their efforts to bring more training to teachers in the region.

Teachers attending the meeting stressed the need for more training of teachers in the area of science. Patty Elliott, who was attending the meeting, noted that she would be conducting a workshop for high school and middle school teachers.

Johnny Ross, who works for the Department of Natural Resources and is a member of the Soil Conservation Board, told the group that he had a variety of educational materials produced by the state specifically in regard to air and water pollution that he would make available to area educators. Ross can be contacted at 1-800-928-2391.

Gary Frazier, deputy superintendent of Floyd County Schools, reported that the Floyd County Board had allocated $100,000 for science equipment this year; $10,000 was allocated to South Floyd which already had acquired a substantial amount of science equipment. Three of the other high schools were awarded $30,000 each, Frazier said.

He also described how the Coal Education Development and Resource (CEDAR) projects were developing. CEDAR is a non-profit corporation formed through the joint efforts of the North Carolina Coal Institute and Coal Operators and Associates of Pikeville to form a partnership between the coal industry and education.

Pike and Floyd counties are currently involved in the project and will compete for cash prizes in an exposition to be held in Pikeville this spring.

John Rosenberg, director of Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, reported that Bill Harvey Howard, with Prestonsburg Utilities, had agreed to survey the Prestonsburg High School gas supply lines to see whether gas could be restored to the chemistry lab at the school.

Joyce Watson, a Floyd County educator, noted that Eastern Kentucky math teachers had formed a new organization devoted to promoting math in the schools.

The group hopes to expand its membership base to include individuals in the community who are involved in the areas of technology, science and medicine.

The group will meet again at 5 p.m., Wednesday, January 18, in Room J-132 of Prestonsburg Community College.

Second annual Christmas concert

The music department at McDowell Elementary School held two performances of its Christmas concert this year. Both performances were held in the auditorium. The first performance on December 21 was for grades K-4 and the second performance on December 22 was for grades 5-8.

The performance that was scheduled for December 22 at 7 p.m. had to be cancelled due to an unforeseen schedule conflict.

Shane Mosley did the artwork for the programs for the concerts.

The first group to perform was the McDowell Honor Choir. The choir put on the musical, "Santa's Holiday Hoedown." The following students were chosen for the main characters: Santa, Casey Brown; Mrs. Claus, Jo Pack; Donner, Sheena Allen; Dolly, Morgan Hall; and Yoakam, Lance Sparkman.

The following were also selected to participate as Kentucky Opry All-Stars in the county-wide performance of "Santa's Holiday Hoedown": Jo Pack, Mrs. Claus; Brandi Allen, McIntyre; Lance Sparkman, Cyrus; Scottie Stumbo, Gill; Morgan Hall, Leslie Compton, Samantha Mitchell, Matthew Caldwell, and Wendi Moore.

The second group to perform was the fourth grade select recorder group. The top 50 percent of each class was chosen to participate in the concert. "Baaadd Groove" and "Twilight Snowfall" were the two selections performed by the Recorder Group.

"Baaadd Groove" was the group's favorite selection because they performed it to a taped accompaniment.

The third group to perform was the Beginning Band which is made up of fifth grade students. The band performed "Good King Wenceslas" and "Jingle Bells." This year's Beginning band consists of eight clarinets, two saxophones, six trumpets, one alto horn, and four drummers.

The last group to perform was the McDowell Junior High Band, which played "Go Big Blue," "Jeopardy," "Three Blind Mice," "O Come All Ye Faithful," and "We Three Kings." The band has had a very busy year so far. Members have marched to a third place finish in the Jenny Wiley Festival Parade. Next, they played at the annual open house held at McDowell Elementary. They were also honored to play for Governor Jones when he was in Minnie. The last performances for the year prior to the Christmas Concert, included two home basketball games.

The band now is getting ready for a spring concert and the All-County and All-District Band tryouts. The band consists of 10 clarinets, one flute, two saxophones, three trumpets, two trombones, one baritone, seven drummers, one keyboard and one guitar.

Cosmetology school

Heather Lafferty, left, a JOBS participant, has successfully completed 1800 hours of Cosmetology at The Regency School of Hair Design in Prestonsburg. She was presented with a Certificate of Achievement by her JOBS case manager, Imelda B. Wright.

Class registration for spring

Registration for spring 1995 classes at Morehead State University's Big Sandy Extended Campus Center is scheduled for Thursday and Friday, January 12-13. Students may register from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on January 12 and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the following day. Classes begin on Tuesday, January 17.

More than 60 undergraduate and graduate courses will be offered this spring in a variety of fields, according to Dr. Margaret Lewis, director of the extended campus center. Among the areas represented are education, business, English and paralegal studies as well as courses designed for registered nurses seeking their B.S.N. degree.

The cost per credit hour is $80 at the undergraduate level and $115 at the graduate level for all students taking classes at MSU's regional locations—whether they reside within or outside of Kentucky.

Employment facts

Stanuel Mullins, representing Holiday Inn, stressed why it is so important to fill out job applications correctly and write resumes properly.

Stanuel Mullins visits Allen Central

Stanuel Mullins, guest service manager from the Holiday Inn, Prestonsburg, visited Allen Central High School and gave a presentation to the hospitality and tourism classes taught by Charlene Sexton.

His presentation included the importance of establishing good work habits needed for the world of work.

Mullins described the different types of motels and the major concerns of the motel properties. He stated the main goal of any property was to offer good service to the customer. He discussed the personal qualifications and the educational requirements needed to become a manager of any motel.

After his visit to the school, all of the hospitality and tourism classes toured the Holiday Inn property to observe how each department works together to make a successful business.

Osborne PTO news

The PTO has worked very hard for the school. Up to this point they have purchased a Jungle Gym, sliding board, an 8-person swing set, replaced the chains on the older swings, a bench, and several yard games. The ground out and around the playground was leveled for our new equipment. Sand was placed around the playground equipment. As of December 20, all classrooms were given televisions. The PTO raised the money by having several dances and a haunted house. We want to thank everyone who worked so hard to help our school.

We really appreciate each and every one of you.

Words of life

"This could be your best year"
Wayne Burch, Pastor
 Little Paint First Church of God
 Dr. Robert Schuller, of "Crystal Cathedral" fame attempted to introduce Pat Boone, of "white buckshoes" fame, to sing on his national TV program. Dr. Schuller attempted to make his introduction with a joke, by saying, "Pat sometimes gets tired of his all-American-boy image. Once each year Pat checks into a motel under an assumed name, closes the drapes, goes into the closet, and guess what he does? He puts on black shoes!"

Pat was invited back to the Crystal Cathedral a second time. So he proceeded to rebutt the previous story that Dr. Schuller had related. Pat told the congregation that "Dr. Schuller gets tired of his image sometimes, too. So once a year, he checks into a motel under an assumed name, goes to his room, pulls the drapes closed, goes into the closet, shuts the door and shouts it is impossible! I can't do it!" Robert Schuller, as you may well know, is known for having cut the word "impossible" out of his dictionary.

I commission this article to assist you to explore the possibility of 1995 becoming the best year you have ever had. I realize that for some this might sound flippant and trite. You are facing mountains, mountains you are not real certain you can climb. However, please note, I am not saying this will be the easiest year you have ever faced. But rather, that it can be the best year!

Success cannot always be measured in either accomplishment or accumulation. If the coming year brings you closer to God, closer to your friends; if it helps you value more highly the things that really matter and causes you to appreciate more deeply the gift of simply being alive, it will be a great year regardless of outer circumstances.

I realize you are reading this article while saying to yourself, "I'm too old for fantasies. I am too cynical for fairy tales of better days ahead. I see no evidence, absolutely none, of any delivering hand." Nonetheless, may I be permitted to offer some items into evidence that just might help guide your thinking toward a more positive future?

1. WE MUST KNOW WHO WE ARE. Isn't that simple? But isn't it also profound? In reading Isaiah 60:1-

6 we see the great man of God reminding Israel just who they were! They were no ordinary run-of-the-mill-ragtag-outfit! They were God's anointed! They were His chosen! They had a guide, a guard, and a goal!

"That sounds great pastor, but where do I fit in?" You are a person for whom Christ died. He has a place for you in His Family. Have you found it? You can belong to the greatest family in all of Floyd County, God's Family! There is a certain power in family names. Kennedy, Rockefeller, and Roosevelt carry considerable political power. I would like to offer the suggestion, however, that there is a greater advantage to those who know themselves to be a part of the family of God!

So my friend, if you know who you are, you can be on your way to having the best year you have ever had. If you don't know who you are;

if you don't care who you are; or if you don't want to change who you are, then you will flounder, stagger, reel and rock through another year. You can continue to be a prisoner, or you can become a pioneer.

2. WE MUST KNOW WHERE WE ARE GOING. Hear this word of wisdom. "People who arrive are those who know where they are going." Keep your ideals high enough to inspire you, but low enough to encourage you. I heard of a Chinese national soldier who became separated from his army company in Louisiana while on maneuvers. He decided to stand at the crossroads and hitch a ride. However, when the convoys came along he used his index finger instead of his thumb to hitch a ride. Consequently, the drivers thought the soldier was directing traffic. That young man sent vehicles in every direction throughout the countryside, no where in particular and every where in general!

Some folk spend their life going down first one wrong road and then another. May I suggest you write down a description of the things you really wish to accomplish. Who travels in a strange countryside without using a road map? The following are suggestions: (a) spend more time with family; (b) project yourself more forcefully on the job; (c) devote more time and effort to the service of God; (d) could your attendance to God's house be more consistent?; (e) how can I make myself more available for the important tasks?; (f) I wish to share more love and bring more sunshine into the lives of others. Believe it, you will travel more accurately and effectively in 1995 if you know where you are going.

I went down in a gold mine while in Colorado on vacation a number of years ago. The tour guide pointed out the various minerals to us. He pointed to "calcite," and "boxcite," and "Leaver-rite" (his joke name for pyrite or fools gold), and he said "we just leaver-rite here!" Please don't spend 1995 piling up "fools gold!" Worthless effort, and endless energy soon drain you of desire. Know where you are going. Chart your course.

3. WE MUST KNOW WHO GOES WITH US. Isaiah understood that any glory that came to his people was not their own doing. Their hope was in God and God alone! So it is with you and me.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Martin was visiting with their friends the Doolittles in Elmira, New York. The Doolittles were both physically handicapped. Their souls were yet very alive and vibrant. This couple radiated such joy that the Martins inquired of them about the source of their spiritual strength. Mrs. Doolittle responded with pride, "His eye is on the sparrow, and I know He watches me!" Mrs. Martin was so taken by the response she went home and that same day arranged those touching words into a lovely gospel hymn that has been sung around the world. Ethel Walters immortalized it!

How can this be any other than a great year? We know who we are; we know where we are going; and we know who goes with us! 1995 is a clean sheet, the still to be, the not yet here, time unborn, to become what you are not yet, to travel with intense intent!

Improving downtown

The Prestonsburg Woman's Club presented attorney Clifford B. Latta with a certificate for community improvement at the December club meeting for the establishment of this landscaped courtyard at Latta and Brown Law Offices on Arnold Avenue. "We liked the idea they (Latta and attorney Larry Brown) were trying to improve the appearance of downtown," said Boots Adams, a member of the club. "They made the courtyard attractive over the summer with shrubs and flowers and at Christmas with lighting and decorations." (photo by Polly Ward)

Sue Wilkerson visits Allen Central

Sue Wilkerson, director of nutrition, dietetics, and foods from Highlands Regional Medical Center, Prestonsburg, visited the hospitality and tourism classes of Charlene Sexton at Allen Central High School.

She shared with the classes the different types of careers available in food service today.

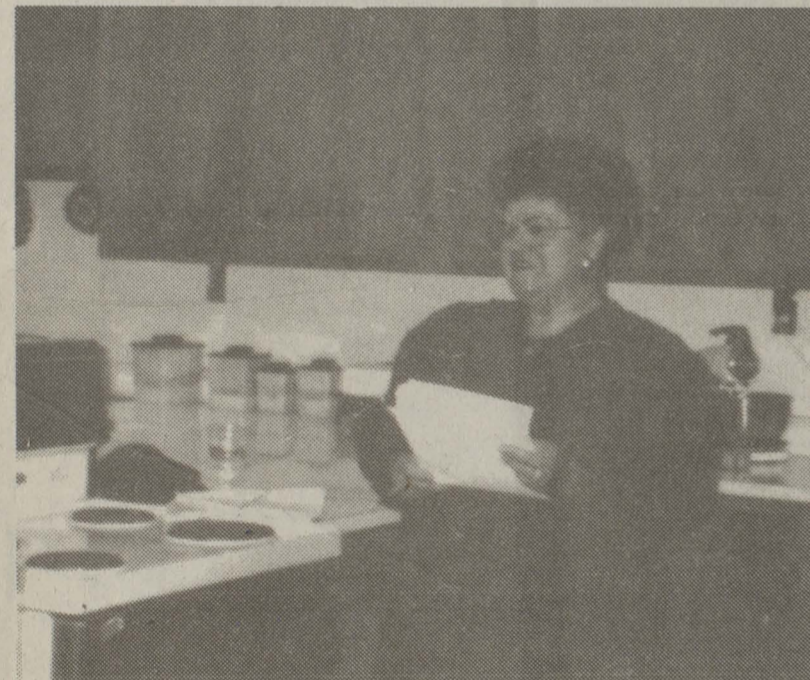

She talked to the students about beginning a catering business and how it was a very good way to make money in the food service industry.

She discussed various requirements one must have to become successful in the food service industry. Some of those requirements ranged from learning to control food and energy costs, to advertising a catering business.

She gave information students would need concerning legal matters in setting up a food service business. She told about the two different types of catering: On premise, which means that food is served from the job area, and off premise, which means that food is delivered where the client has requested the event to be held.

A precaution Wilkerson emphasized was that every food service property must be familiar with the health, zoning and legal laws required in setting up a business.

Nutritional advice

Sue Wilkerson, director of nutrition at HRMC, will be visiting the classes at Allen Central again in the spring to give more information concerning interests in choosing food service and catering as a career.

Jenny Wiley employees visit Allen Central High School

Judy Goble, sales and catering coordinator, and Jim Stennet, Park Chef, from Jenny Wiley State Park visited Allen Central High School and gave presentations to the hospitality and tourism classes taught by Charlene Sexton.

Goble, showed the classes a video that had recently been made to promote the recreation and resort parks in the state of Kentucky. She shared with the students the responsibilities of being a sales and catering coordinator and that she works primarily with group and family-oriented sales.

She stressed to the class how hospitality and tourism would be a very good profession to choose as a career, because of the growth rate in the tourism business.

Stennet's presentation involved the entire class by having each student "paint a plate" using pudding, chocolate syrup and ice cream. He demonstrated how to prepare a tomato rose and how to carve a swan from an apple. He brought knives (chef's tools) and described the function of each knife. He shared with the students the requirements needed to become a chef and that culinary arts is a good profession to enter into as a career choice. He will be coming back to visit the hospitality and tourism classes and help the students plan foods that can be prepared in a catering business.

Creativity at work

Judy Goble and Jim Stennet presented a program about food catering to Allen Central students.

In Memory of Ada Osborne

Most merciful God, our loving Father, we come to thee, weak and discouraged and at times afraid to walk the long, hard road ahead of us. The way is stony and rough.

And yet, our Father, we thank thee, for the hard things of life, for struggle, for discouragement, and even for loneliness and seeming defeat.

For it is only in weakness that we can feel thy strength, it is only in struggle that we need thy help, it is only in discouragement that we receive courage and confidence in thee, it is only in loneliness that we know fully thy companionship, it is only in seeming defeat that we experience the greatest triumph.

So wilt thou blot out from our sight our frustrations, our deep hurts and heartaches in the loss of dear and precious sister, "Ada" and help us to rest our faith deep in thee that we may face life bravely and the sorrow with confidence and hope, and follow the road unafraid, for we do not walk alone.

Help us to lose ourselves in the needs of others and find thee there.

A dear, precious loved one so sadly missed from our family today,
 Ora Mae Allen—sister

STARTING THE NEW YEAR OFF WITH A BANG

During our visit to Northern Kentucky over the Christmas holidays I was asked by a native Northern Kentuckian, who considers himself to be from Cincinnati, how Eastern Kentuckians celebrated New Year's Eve. My first reaction was to be defensive. Yet when I considered the source, I tried to reply to his question as politely as possible.

"How do you think we celebrate New Years?" I asked.

"I don't have the foggiest idea. Do you have parties?"

"Some people do."

"Do you have the parties in barns?"

This is where I started to get suspicious of his perception of us so I decided to play along with his ignorance.

"Are you speaking of barns as in animal barns or tobacco barns?"

"Is there a difference?"

"Of course there's a difference. When we have our New Year's party in an animal barn it's informal so we wear blue jeans. But if we have it in a tobacco barn we wear our dressier jeans."

"Really?"

"Oh, yes!" I exclaimed. "Tobacco barn parties are big at New Year's in Eastern Kentucky because you don't have to wipe cow dung off of your shoes on your way home. But the regular barn parties are usually the most fun if you're not allergic to feathers."

"What feathers?" he asked curiously.

"From the cock fights. You can't imagine how many feathers those cocks lose in one little ruckus."

"That's interesting," he mused. "What type of hors d'oeuvres do they serve at these parties?"

"My personal favorite is souse," I said as I licked my lips.

"Is that some type of exotic dish?"

"Exotic? Julia Child would kill for the recipe. It's the finest culinary treat east of Winchester."

"Is it good for you or is it high in fat?" he asked.

"Well, let's just say you couldn't eat any higher on the hog," I replied.

"Do you have music at these parties?"

"Sometimes someone will bring a harmonica and a set of spoons. I've got a first cousin who can play the spoons like they're going out of style. I was so impressed that I married him."

At this point I knew I had him going when a look of horror spread across his face, so I continued with the charade.

"I'd like to extend an invitation to you to attend one of our New Year's parties. You'd have a great time."

"We always celebrate by going to a play and out to dinner at one of the four star restaurants in Cincinnati. We then go to the Omni Netherlands to see the New Year in," he replied snottily. "We toast the New Year in with the finest brandy money can buy."

"Isn't the Netherlands a long way to go to see the New Year?"

"The OMNI Netherlands. It's a hotel."

"Oh," I replied innocently.

"What type of liquor do you serve?"

"Whatever ferments first," I answered. "We're not particular. You get the same buzz from hooch as you do from champagne if you're looking to get plowed under. You really ought to consider coming to one of our parties this year. Just be sure you carry a gun."

"A gun? Why would I need a gun?" he asked fearfully. "Does everyone carry a gun?"

"Not everyone. Only those who want to protect themselves from dangerous critters."

"Are there dangerous animals roaming around in the mountains?" he gasped.

"There will be if you accept my invitation," I laughed.

Maybe the rest of the state will view us in a different light in 1995. And if they don't, we won't invite them back to any more parties.

THE TIMES' WEEKEND Extra

Reed shows how it's done

by Sandra Osborne
PCC Public Relations Coordinator

From overweight, two-pack-a-day smoker to marathon runner, 44-year-old Andrew Reed of Martin should be an inspiration to us all.

Like many Eastern Kentuckians, Reed had never been much of an athlete. He would have liked to play sports in high school but, during his teenage years, Martin High School did not have a track or football team. He had started smoking at an early age and the habit slowly increased until he was inhaling two packs a day. His life might have continued in that manner until he suffered a massive heart attack or other serious illness, but a bout with pneumonia in 1983 had a life-changing effect.

"My lungs were so inflamed I couldn't stand to breathe, much less smoke," Reed says, remembering the pain. He went to visit his family doctor anticipating a diagnosis of cancer. While still a serious illness, the diagnosis of pneumonia was a relief.

"I was so glad to learn I wasn't going to die of cancer. It was like a millstone was lifted off of you," Reed said. Since he had already given up smoking for the three days prior to the doctor's appointment, he decided to quit completely even though he had been smoking for over 20 years.

While his pneumonia got better and his lungs began clearing up, his weight started to climb. In the next five to six years, he would reach a peak weight of 240+ pounds and expand to a 42 inch waist. "I was personally unhappy with it," he admits, "and I decided to get in shape."

Reed's wife, Loretta, was already walking at Allen Park and she encouraged him to join her. "I would walk one lap and run half a lap," Reed remembers. "I got out of breath at first and then my wind improved but my legs gave out."

Nevertheless, Reed persevered until running became a part of his life. Today he runs 30 to 45 minutes, six days a week at the River Walk at Prestonsburg Community College and participates in weight training. His running goals recently got a boost when he met Chris Fleming, Project Health Coordinator at the college, who just moved here at the beginning of the fall semester. Chris teaches nutrition and fitness courses at the college. He also practices what he preaches, regularly training for and participating in area running contests, including marathons.

In mid-November both Reed and Fleming were participating in the John F. Kennedy Memorial Race in Paintsville. Fleming won the three kilometer race, setting a new course record. At the race he told Reed about a Kanawha Valley Roadrunners Marathon scheduled for December 4 in Charleston, West Virginia. The following Monday, Reed stopped by Fleming's office to express his interest. Fleming helped Reed devise a training schedule for the three weeks remaining before the race.

Reed continued his running program, taking scheduled days off. One time he increased his run to two hours. His personal goal was first, to finish the race, and second, to beat Oprah Winfrey's marathon time of 4 hours and 26 minutes. "If Oprah can do it, I can do it," he remembers telling himself. "I was pretty sure I could finish the race, but I wasn't sure I'd make it in under four-and-a-half hours."

The day of the race dawned. It was cool and drizzly. Reed was facing a course of 26.2 miles. He ran most of the way, slowing to a walk only at the water stations to get down some liquids. His finishing time—4 hours, 19 minutes and 44 seconds!

"Exhausted," was how he described his condition after the marathon. "My legs were sore for the next four days," he admits.

Reed was appreciative of Fleming's contribution to his success.

"Chris (Fleming) has been real supportive and goes out of his way to help you," Reed said. "I would advise anyone if they want to improve physical fitness-wise to come in here and see Chris. Others here have been very helpful as well," Reed added, mentioning student worker and body builder Warren Halbert.

When asked what had motivated him to exercise on such a consistent basis through the years, Reed explained that it simply makes you feel better, both mentally and physically.

"Exercise is the only effective thing you can do for stress," he explained. "It's the only effective way of dealing with it."

Reed, a surface coal mine inspector with the Mine Safety and Health Administration, said that exercising also offers physical benefits. "I enjoy running because I know I'm going to feel better afterwards than I did before, and it's the same way in working out in the gym."

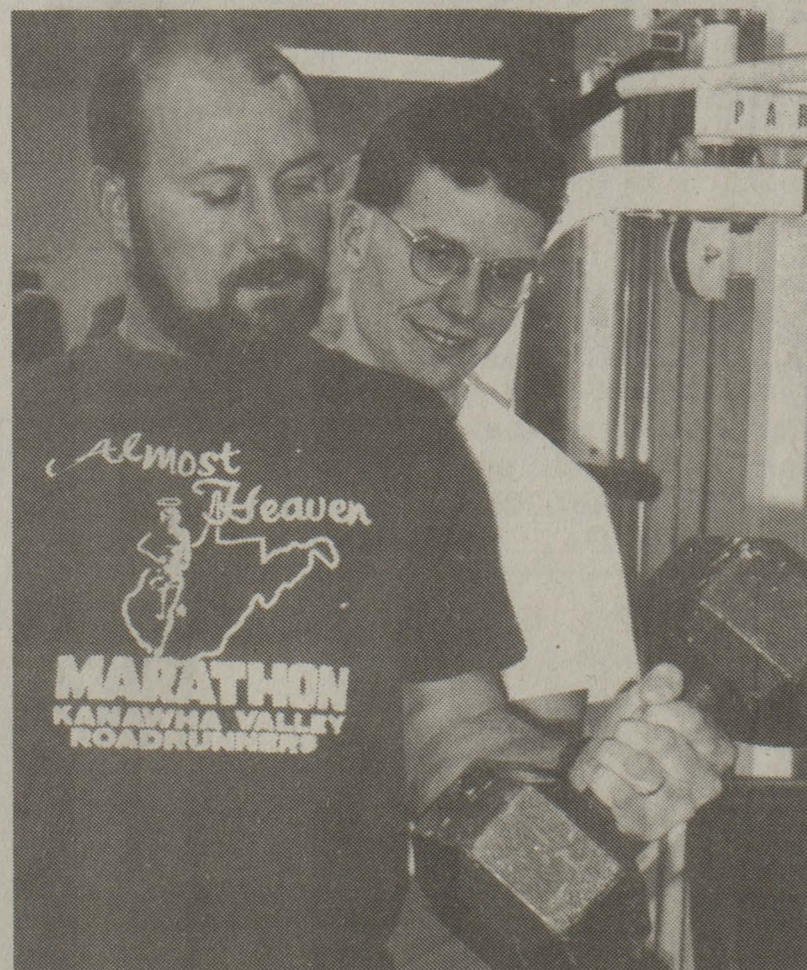

"Let's put it this way," he said, "I've never felt worse after exercising. Now, the more I do, the more I feel like doing."

"Another thing I've noticed over the years," Reed said, "is that it seems like these people who are out exercising, whether its walking, lifting weights, or running, are happier and more friendly than the people who don't exercise."

In fact, Reed thinks more businesses should change their health emphasis. "Instead of drug-testing employees," Reed proposed, "offer wellness programs." He theorized that only a few people use drugs but most people could benefit from a wellness program.

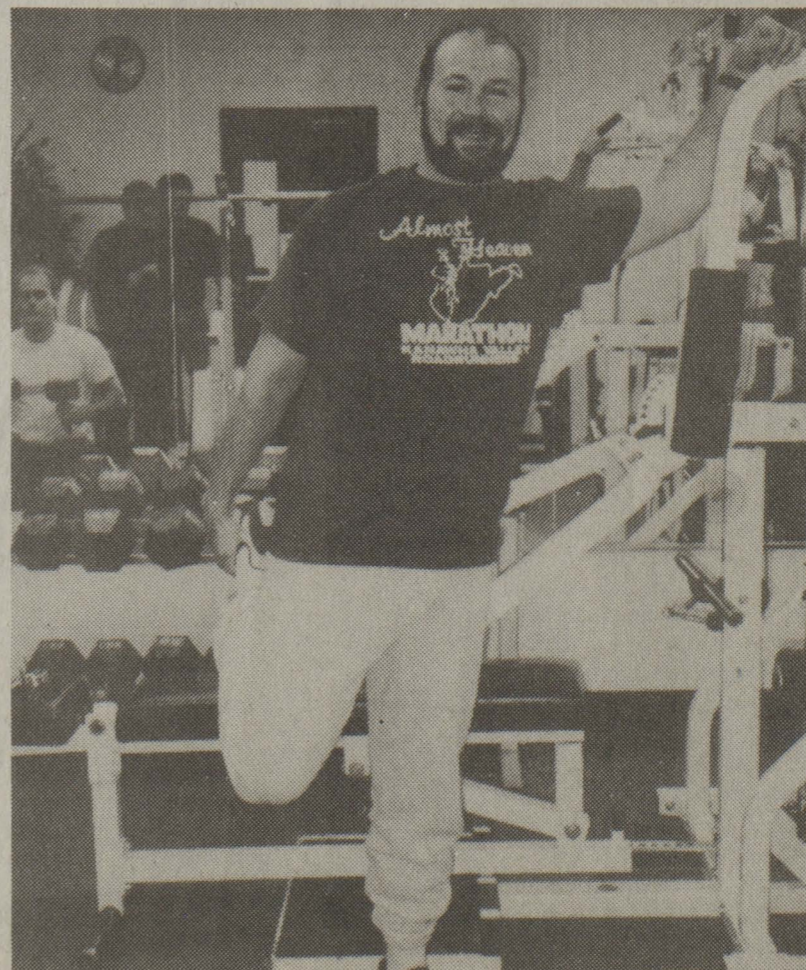

In addition to his running program, Reed has also been involved in lumberjack competitions and exhibitions. He got involved in the sport after watching a contest at Morehead in the spring of 1989. Reed thought he could compete in the sport since he had done many similar activities while hunting, camping and fishing.

Like running, success came quickly. Reed is currently ranked second in the state, behind state champion Billy Joe Kerr of Campbellsville. Most recently he won first place in the Handicap Springboard Chop at an international competition held in Webster Springs, West Virginia. In August he also participated in the Central Canadian Exhibition in Ottawa, Canada.

There's something about the coming of a new year that just sends a shiver down our spine.

For reasons other than the obvious...that the new year arrives in the middle of winter, when it's usually colder than a well digger's butt in the Klondike.

Nope, it's more of a shiver from the trepidation of not knowing what's ahead.

Will we be healthy?

Will we be wealthy?

Will we be wise?

Will there be a World Series?

These are important things to consider, and it's only natural to worry about them.

Worry, in fact, is one of our most remarkable human traits.

Hey, you don't see dogs and cats worrying, do you?

Unless, of course, the latter is being pursued by the former.

Anyway, we're a bunch of worrywarts and that's just that.

Why worry about it?

Because that's what we do best.

We worry so much about the weather, for example, that we have an entire industry devoted to spending millions and millions of dollars trying to figure it out.

What are we going to do if we ever do figure it out?

Can't change it.

We've got zillions of dollars worth of technology for determining what the weather's gonna be when all we really need to do is look out the window.

"Hey, honey, the dog is frozen to the hubcap. Better wear a warm coat."

We humans have even developed a profession where we can hire someone to worry for us.

It's called psychiatry.

You go in, lie down on the couch, and dump all your worries on some guy for a hundred bucks an hour.

After you've unloaded all your troubles and run up a bill of a couple of thousand bucks, the shrink asks:

"How does zat make you feeel?" (Psychiatrists always speak with a German accent, even if they're from the next holler over.)

It probably makes you feel like you've just wasted a couple thousand bucks and you'd have been better off flushing your wallet down the toilet.

But then that would be something else to worry about.

It's probably a good thing people worry so much.

Most of the big-time ad agencies on Madison Avenue would go broke if we didn't worry about hemorrhoids, fresh breath or B-O.

And, if we didn't worry about how we looked, we might all be running around in ripped-up blue jeans, shaggy denim shirts, with peace signs hanging around our necks and with hair down to the cr...oops, flashback attack.

Oh well, guess our advice for shaking the new year jitters is, don't worry about worrying.

It's what makes us happy.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Negotiations involving a financial concern may break down, which may be for the best, as you need to do additional research. Seek the advice of an expert on this matter. Socializing is iffy this weekend, so stick close to home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A business delay or setback may leave you temporarily uncertain as to your next move. The best course of action right now is to simply wait this out. This weekend, couples enjoy visits with friends.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Though long-range career prospects turn for the better, you may have difficulty this week with current assignments not to your liking. Look upon this as a test of your character and you prevail.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Leisure entertainment and educational interests are favored this week. However, a certain family member who is cantankerous may cause you some concern. Be judicious in your use of credit as you may overspend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your financial prospects in business are good this week, but extra expenses could arise in connection with a family matter. While you must tend to this, don't be tempted to spend too much or get in over your head with the credit card people.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You may feel that a relative doesn't understand what you have to say. This lack of communication may tempt you into surliness. Try to keep things in perspective. This weekend, happiness comes through recreation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Mix-ups in communications are likely. Don't overreact to a real or imagined slight. You would be wise to keep a low profile this week and derive your pleasure from family and home-based activities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You needn't let concern about a money matter keep you from enjoying social interests this week, especially since you will receive some intriguing invitations. However, avoid mixing business with pleasure.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Though business opportunities are likely to arise, you may be inclined to self-doubt. This insecurity is unusual for you. Do your best to shake these feelings in order to take advantage of this.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

Police in Kewanee, Ill., charged "model citizen" Roger Harlow in October with 81 counts of burglary. The insurance agent and part-time Sunday-school teacher was accused of entering the homes of friends and townspeople over a 10-year period when he knew they would be away and stealing about 1,000 valuables. According to police, Harlow once was late to a golfing foursome because he stopped off to burglarize the homes of the other golfers, and once he excused himself midway during a lunch date, allegedly dashed away to burglarize his companion's home, and returned as the main course was being served. He also allegedly stole from hospitalized friends' homes during hospital visiting hours.

-- In October, before a meeting of "alternative" physicians in Greensboro, N.C., Dr. Robert Willner, who believes that AIDS is not caused by HIV but rather by the drug AZT (a widely prescribed AIDS retardant), twice defiantly drew blood from an HIV-infected man and injected it into his own hand.

-- In Holland, Mich., in August, a 16-year-old girl was hit by a ricocheting .38-caliber bullet from a nearby gang fight but suffered only a bruise on her sternum because the bullet bounced off of a metal clasp on the front of her brassiere.

-- In September, as a response to the Irish Republican Army's cease-fire in Northern Ireland, British Prime Minister John Major suspended a long-standing anti-IRA media policy. Since 1969, voices of IRA leaders have not been permitted on British radio and television -- even on newscasts. Thus, for nearly 25 years, the British Broadcasting Corp. has shown news films of IRA leaders but had to hire actors to supply the voices.

-- In September, research supported by a British juice company found that 50,000 people in Great Britain seek hospital treatment every year from injuries incurred while struggling to open milk and juice cartons.

-- In September, Brian Bucz, 29, told police in Chicago that he had stolen $272,000 from his employer so far in 1994 and that $261,000 of it had already been spent -- entirely on private "table dances" and other services at the strip club The Dollhouse. He said he visited the club an average of three times a week, which meant that he would have had to drop about $3,000 per visit on liquor and entertainment.

-- In June the crematorium at the Meadow Lawn Memorial Park in San Antonio, Texas, was destroyed by a fire that broke out when workers began cremating a body that weighed more than 300 pounds. -- In October in Rio de Janeiro, student Jose Costa brawled with the owner of a pit bull, Alexandre de Andrade, before police broke up the fight. Prestonsburg triumphs; Bobcats fall to Leslie County

Parido hopes win sign of better things to come for Cats in New Year

Robinson scores 27 to lead Blackcats past Hornets, 83-71

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Prestonsburg head coach Gordon Parido liked what he saw from his Blackcats against Magoffin County Tuesday night in the first round of the Shelby Valley Holiday Invitational.

Prestonsburg posted an 83-71 win over the Hornets in avenging an earlier loss to coach Danny Adams' team.

Not only did the coach like what he saw, but is hopeful it is a sign of what fans can expect of his team as they enter a new year.

"I'm hoping these young men are realizing what it takes to play the game of basketball," he said. "It's a long season and we have plenty of time to get our heads together on some things. I'm hoping that this win is a start of something good for the coming year."

The Blackcats posted the win by putting together four full quarters -- something they haven't done this season.

"Yes, we did put together four full quarters," said the Prestonsburg coach. "That's something we haven't been able to do this season through nine games."

Senior Toby Robinson tossed in a game high 27 points to lead the offensive scoring for the Blackcats. Clint Shutts, who finished with 13 points, was a stalwart on defense as well as the boards.

"I told Clint before the game that I wasn't going to be satisfied with less than 10 rebounds," said Parido. Shutts pulled down (unofficially) 13 rebounds.

Shutts was also the point man off the tenacious full court pressure defense of the Blackcats, coming up with some loose balls.

"I thought that Clint played exceptionally well," said Coach Parido. "He led our defense while Toby led our offense. That was two good keys by two good seniors right there. They are both showing some good leadership."

Magoffin County led early and then stayed close to the Blackcats by getting behind their full court pressure for some easy lay-ups.

Magoffin County led 2-0, 10-9 and 14-13 before Prestonsburg took control of the game, holding a 20-16 lead at the end of the first quarter. The game was tied twice, at two and 16.

Both teams looked unsure of themselves on offense and committed several early turnovers.

"I thought it was a sloppy game both ways," said the Blackcats coach. "I thought the referee's called it loose the first half and in the second half tightened up some. Both teams were rusty as far as ball handling goes."

Coach Parido surprised the Blackcat faithful by starting freshman point guard Wes Samons, who responded with a solid game. Samons scored 12 points in the game.

"It was a new look for some of the people. It was his first game to start. In fact, it was the most playing time he has gotten this year," said Parido.

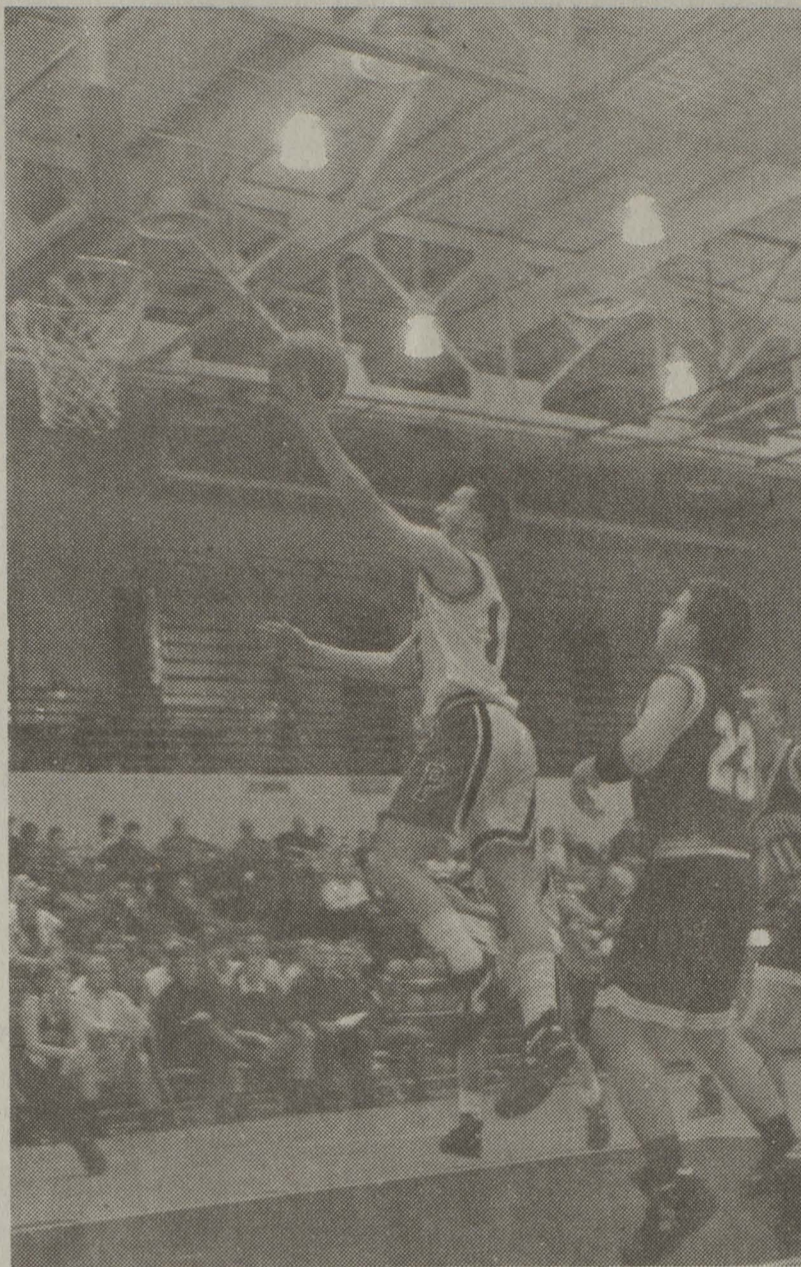

Samons made an immediate impact by hitting a short jumper in the lane to tie the game at two. He then buried a three-pointer from the right corner to give Prestonsburg a 5-2 lead.

Prestonsburg had a balanced scoring attack with four players hitting in double figures.

Ryan Ortega, upon his return after a six game suspension, showed that he was ready to play and tossed in 15 points. Shutts had 13 and Samons added 12 to go with Robinson's 27.

Couch scores 45 points as Leslie County Eagles roll past Betsy Layne

Lack of boards, sloppy ball handling costly to Bobcats in 90-65 setback

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

In the final four minutes and 15 seconds of their ball game against Leslie County, the Betsy Layne Bobcats could do nothing right and everything wrong.

It was a disastrous adventure for the Bobcats as they fell to the Leslie County Eagles 90-65 in the first round of the Shelby Valley Invitational Wednesday night.

Junior Tim Couch showed that he could do more than just throw for touchdowns as he poured in 45 points for the Eagles.

Couch was scoring from all different angles. He would stop and bury a NBA three, a little fancy lay-in, a thunderous dunk or just a simple put back.

Hunter, Owens combine for 35 as Duff Bulldogs roll past Cordia

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Ronnie Patton's Duff Bulldogs improved to 11-2 on the season as they were part of a triple header at Allen Central Tuesday night.

The Bulldogs faced Cordia in the first of the three games. The Allen Central freshmen and junior varsity also faced similar teams from Cordia.

Gary Hunter and Ryan Owens combined for 35 points to lead Duff over Cordia. Hunter led all scorers with 22 points while Owens finished with 13. Rodney Bentley added nine points.

Tony Elam led Cordia with 17 points. Josh Hurt scored 11 for the losers.

Duff appeared to be well in control after the first quarter when it blitzed Cordia to take a 16-3 lead. Hunter had five points in the initial period with Corbett Howell scoring four.

Cordia could only get a field goal from Elam and a Chris Allen free throw in the opening quarter.

The scoring was just the opposite in the second period when Cordia

(See Duff, B 4)

Betsy Layne had their hands full in trying to contain the high scoring 6'5" guard.

But the game only got out of hand in the final four plus minutes. Betsy Layne was in the game and trailed by only six points, 71-65 after Derrick Newsome's three-pointer and Stevie Johnson's lay-in narrowed an 11 point lead to six.

Following a Leslie County timeout, the Eagles scored the final 19 points of the game to make it appear a rout.

The Bobcats were just trying anyway to score and failed to stop the Eagles on the other end as they appeared confused on defense.

Betsy Layne committed seven turnovers in the final four minutes with some sloppy ball handling against the Eagles pressure defense.

The game was a nip and tuck affair with Betsy Layne leading most of the first half. Ryan Newsome's rebound basket gave Betsy Layne a six point cushion, 34-28 in the second period. But the Bobcats could not stand prosperity and saw Couch hit four free throws and a lay-up to tie the game at 34.

Zadis Tackett hit the back end of a two shot foul to send Betsy Layne in front 35-34 but Shannon Napier went down the middle uncontested for a lay-up that put Leslie County in front 36-35.

But Derrick Newsome tossed in an off balanced shot with five seconds left in the half to give Betsy Layne a 37-36 advantage as they headed to the locker room.

Leslie County led 38-37 to start the third period on a lay-up by Chris Allen. Derrick Newsome's free throw tied the game at 38, the final time it would be knotted.

Betsy Layne then went cold from the field as they started to force their shots against the Eagles defense.

Steven Hoskins tip-in and a basket by Couch gave the Eagles a 42-40 lead. Johnson scored on a lay-up to narrow the lead back to two.

Then it happened.

The Bobcats appeared impatient and the Eagles went on a 17-0 run that netted them a 53-40 lead. Leslie County controlled both ends of the boards, getting two and three shots at the basket.

Derrick Newsome broke the long Betsy Layne drought with a three-point basket from the corner to start a Betsy Layne comeback. A 13-7 Betsy Layne spurt brought the Bobcats to within six, 71-65 before they faltered.

Johnson led Betsy Layne in scoring with 21 points. Derrick Newsome finished with 19 and Willie Meade tossed in 11. Ryan Newsome, in a strong outing, added 10 points. Mike Howard netted two and Tackett finished with one.

Allen totaled 18 for Leslie County. Napier scored 13.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor, Sports Editor

Will there be a baseball season this year...who really cares?

ARE YOU CONCERNED ABOUT BASEBALL?

A new year is in front of us and 1995 will mean a whole new season of baseball -- or will it.

I'm sure that we will have baseball in one concept or another, but my concern is for what they are doing to the game.

Oh, baseball will always be baseball. That will never change. The Little League, high school and college seasons will be the same.

But what about the major leagues?

Now, I for one don't like the amount of money that is being paid to the spoiled baseball players that we have today. I don't think that anyone is worth that much money to play the game.

And, I thought I was one of those who didn't care if they ever played again. And as far as the present day player goes, I still don't. But I sure hope that we have a major league season.

I would like to see some of the minor league players get a chance to play on a higher level. That would give fans a chance to see some of the players we normally may never see.

I think we would be surprised at the talent that is in the minor leagues. Think what a boost to their confidence and the improvement in their game just to get on a major league team.

Well, the owners did what they set out to do and the players have done what they said they would do.

There doesn't appear to be a settlement in site, or is there one in the back of the owners' minds.

I find it hard to conceive that the owners, who have millions invested, will just idly sit back and let the better ball players stay home.

If they did not have a plan to go ahead with the season with last year's players, why in the world sign all the players that have been signed so far?

Why in the world start making trades? They have a time table and we will find out what it is come spring training.

Who is at fault in all of this?

The blame has to start with the owners. They are the ones who created the monsters in the first place. Now they are saying the small market clubs cannot survive. That should have been taken under consideration long, long ago.

But the players are at fault equally. They are spoiled and think the baseball world cannot evolve without them. Neither did the flight controller's of long, long ago.

It may take a couple of seasons, after that, someone will be asking, "wonder whatever happen to Brett Butler or John Franco?"

On the subject of Cal Ripken Jr. He would be an idiot not to play this season. I mean he has a chance to break a record that no one thought would ever be broken -- Lou Gehrig's consecutive-game record of 2,130. Ripken needs only 122 games to break the record. He can then be named "Ironman II."

He says "thanks, but no thanks," to the union's okay to play with scab players this season. Bet if it were another player, they would jump at the chance. Come on, Cal!

Well, the umpires have been the only ones who have been quite while the strike was going on. Now that has come to an end. The owners have locked out the umpires and the pay checks have stopped.

Does anyone wonder why so many people are getting turned off with professional sports?

Greedy, dishonesty and just a rotten attitude has infiltrated the sports scene and I don't think either side realizes that the game is played for the fan who foots the bill anyway.

Until Wednesday, good sports and be good sports.

Blackcats

some room between them and the Hornets in the second quarter as they went on a 10-0 run for a 30-16 lead. Shutts started the run by completing a three-point play and Ortega hit a trey and a rebound basket to complete the spurt.

Magoffin County cut the lead back to nine before Prestonsburg extended the lead to 15 points, 38-23 on a rebound basket by Thomas Ratliff.

The Hornets continued to swarm by scoring the final four points of the half to trail 42-31 at the half.

Magoffin County struggled at the free throw line, missing several front-ends of bonus shots.

The variety of defenses that Prestonsburg showed confused the Hornets all night.

"We played three or four different defenses," Parido stated. "We played our full court pressure and fell back in our 11 defense, which is our 1-1-3 match up zone. Then we played a 2-3 zone and threw some man in there both at the front of the game and end of the game."

"They were trying to get back in the game toward the end by shooting the three's, so we wanted to put more pressure out front."

Prestonsburg lived at the free throw line in the fourth quarter where it attempted 27 shots, hitting 19.

The Prestonsburg coach felt the success his team enjoyed at the charity stripe was the difference in its first meeting.

"Free throw shooting was the big difference this game compared to the first game of the year," he said. "The first game we hit only 11 of 31 and lose in overtime. Tonight we come out and hit the free throws. It's really good to see a bunch of guys get in there and hit those clutch ones in the end."

For the game, Prestonsburg connected on 27 of 36 attempts. Magoffin County shot poorly at the stripe, hitting only eight of 20 attempts.

"We did some good things tonight," said Parido in summing up his team's effort. "I thought Clint played well. The thing that I've been worried about this team all year long is we have some kind of offensive let down somewhere in the game."

"But we kept our cuts up. We made good cuts. We found people open to the basket. We did some things like that and we finally put together a full game, which is something we have been worried about this year."

Allen Skaggs and Johnny Humphrey shared scoring honors for the Hornets finishing with 14 points each. Anthony Wireman netted 13 points with Jason Wages adding 11. Jason Robinette totaled 10 points.

Prestonsburg (3-6) will compete in its third consecutive tournament next Wednesday night in Winchester.

Coach Parido's Blackcats will face Bourbon County in the opening game on Wednesday night. Tip off time is set for 6 p.m.

The game will be played at the George Rogers Clark High School. The finals will be played Saturday evening.

Prestonsburg competed in the tournament two years ago.

The Cats played Pike County Central in the semifinals of the Shelby Valley Invitational last night (Thursday) and, if they won, would be in tonight's (Friday) championship game.

Duff

came out blazing, outscoring the Bulldogs 25-10 to take a 28-26 half time lead.

Elam pumped in 10 points in the quarter with Nicholas Combs hitting two three-point baskets and Allen drilling one.

Duff went cold from the floor with Hunter scoring six points and Owens four for Duff.

On its return trip to the court to start the second half, Duff pulled off a first quarter feat and outscored Cordia 21-5 to take complete control of the game. It led 47-33 after three quarters.

Hunter scored eight in the period with Bentley getting involved with the offense with seven points.

Shawn Henson scored six points for the Bulldogs. Howell, Barry Conley, Brent Slone and Heath Scott each finished with four apiece.

Combs and Allen each tossed in six for Cordia. Adam Brewer scored four and David Stacy netted two.

Duff will resume its regular season schedule by traveling to McDowell Wednesday to take on Henry Webb's Daredevils.

Help Break The Cycle Of Child Abuse

(NAPS)—The best way to help break the cycle of child abuse is to start by treating your own children with love and respect. You'll be setting a great example for your children to follow.

Extend a helping hand to families in trouble. Reaching out to them may diffuse a potentially abusive situation. If you suspect that a child is being abused or neglected, but are not in a position to personally reach out to the family, you can get them help by reporting your suspicion to a local child protection agency. You do not have to prove that abuse took place, or identify yourself.

An informative brochure on how you can make a difference in helping to break the cycle of child abuse is available free by calling IOF Foresters toll free at 1-800-922-4-IOF.
