Otter Creek to keep minimum security status

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

In an effort to quell rumors that the prison at Wheelwright is to be upgraded to a medium security facility, Otter Creek officials say such a move is definitely not in the works.

owners cannot make such a change even if they wanted to. Mike Bradley, with the Corrections Cabinet, said Thursday that under state law, operators of a private prison are only allowed to house minimum security inmates. "The General Assembly passed a law that private prison companies can only operate minimum security prisons," Bradley said. Mike Cooper, deputy director at the Otter Creek Correctional Facility, said Monday that there are no plans to turn the facility into a medium security prison. In response to recent discussions at a Wheelwright City Commission meeting and letters to editor in the Times from Otter Creek inmates,

Cooper explained the classification of inmates housed at the prison. With the installation of a barrier fence around the prison, the facility became eligible to house restricted minimum security inmates. Restricted inmates require a higher level of supervision, Cooper said, for security reasons. Inmates classified as restricted minimum are inmates who have more than four years and less than five remaining on their sentences or before they become eligible for parole. The restricted inmates are not allowed to work on community service projects in the area. As for the prison being turned into a medium security facility, Cooper added that he "didn't see it happening." Security upgrades at the Otter Creek facility are in place, but were done so only to enhance security at the facility, Cooper said. "We like a prison to be secure as possible, but still maintain the minimum security environment," Cooper

Grand jury to review case of assault on cop

A Floyd County Grand Jury will hear a case against a Hunter man who is charged with 21 offenses after a Kentucky State Police trooper was allegedly dragged under the suspect's car.

had a .191 blood alcohol content. Peppi testified that the breath tester at the Floyd County Jail was not working and that Salisbury refused to take a blood test. Salisbury also gave the trooper an incorrect Social Security number twice, Peppi said.

In a preliminary hearing Wednesday in Floyd District Court, trooper Ron Peppi testified against Anthony Salisbury, 20, of Hunter. According to Peppi, on January 27 the trooper was enroute to an accident at Melvin when he came upon Salisbury's vehicle at Minnie.

Public defender Kristi Gray commented to the trooper that Salisbury did not have control of the vehicle when it was in reverse because Salisbury and the trooper had fallen to the ground. Peppi replied, "he put the vehicle in reverse."

Peppi said he observed Salisbury driving erratically, but he turned on his blue lights in an effort to pass the vehicle to get to the accident scene at Melvin.

Gray also asked trooper Peppi if he felt his actions were necessary given the circumstances. "I felt if he got back on the road, he would kill somebody," Peppi said. "I took the actions necessary so that no one else would get hurt."

When Peppi attempted to pass Salisbury's vehicle, Salisbury began driving in the middle of the road and was almost hit head-on when he attempted to pass a truck on Rt. 122.

Judge James Allen ruled that the prosecution established probable cause and waived the case to the grand jury.

Just after passing McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, Salisbury lost control of his vehicle which ran into an unoccupied house, Peppi testified.

Judge Allen also refused to consider reducing Salisbury's $20,000 cash bond, saying, "this is a very serious matter and I'm not inclined to reduce bond at this time."

Peppi asked Salisbury to come out of the vehicle, but Salisbury put the car into reverse. "I tried to break the windshield, but I couldn't," Peppi said. "I got the door open and (Salisbury) slapped my hand away as I was trying to get it out of gear. I pulled the subject from the vehicle and we fell to the ground."

Salisbury is charged with first degree wanton endangerment, endangering a police officer; driving under the influence; failure to wear a seat belt; disorderly conduct; disregarding a traffic control device; possession of alcohol by a minor; improper passing; reckless driving; resisting arrest; attempt to elude; two counts of third degree criminal mischief; criminal littering; speeding, 26 miles over the speed limit; cutting in traffic from side to side; (too many) passengers in the front seat; driving on the wrong side of the road; following too close; failure to produce an insurance card; and making an unsworn falsification to a police officer.

Peppi said that part of his body went under the vehicle and he felt that his hand-held radio prevented him from going all the way under. The vehicle continued backward until the rear end went into a ditch, Peppi said.

Peppi was not seriously injured in the incident, nor were the passengers in Salisbury's vehicle.

Salisbury told the trooper that he was not drinking, but he smelled of alcohol and failed several field sobriety tests, the trooper testified. A portable breath test showed that Salisbury

Terri, the daughter of Terry and Tammy Jarvis of Banner, is a patient at Pikeville Methodist Hospital where she is awaiting a donor and funds to pay for complicated transplant surgery that will cost approximately $576,000. The state Medicaid program will cover fifty percent of Terri's medical bills. Volunteer fundraising efforts in Floyd and other counties have garnered about $20,000 toward the remainder of the surgery costs.

Floyd County will be among at least 22 counties in Kentucky that will be observing Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week February 13 through 18 in honor of Terri LaSha Jarvis, who turns Terri is listed on the National Donor Bank Hotline, but Susan Stumbo of Wayland, who is spearheading a fundraising drive for Terri's surgery, thinks the general public needs to be more aware of the need for donors.

New loan will pay off old loan so new loan can help offset lack of tax dollars

Operations won't be back to normal for a while, but Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson has secured a loan so that he can obtain another loan to get his office back on track.

Although the loan through First Commonwealth paves the way to borrow extra money, the sheriff's department isn't rolling in the dough.

A $115,000 check from the First Commonwealth Bank was deposited Thursday in the sheriff's account so that a $115,000 loan from the state's Finance Cabinet can be repaid. Now, Sheriff Thompson can secure another loan from the Finance Cabinet to finance his office operations until property tax revenues are collected. The sheriff's department has been practically a one-man show for the past two weeks because Thompson had to lay off office personnel and all of his deputies because property tax bills are late being mailed.

Thompson said Thursday that he hopes to be able to hire back two employees by February 15 and three more by March 1. "It's going to take time to go through the process and getting back in the system in Frankfort," Thompson said.

Floyd Fiscal Court met Wednesday in special session to acknowledge Thompson's loan and that the sheriff's department will be responsible for repaying the debt.

Property tax collections have been delayed because of a state mandated reassessment of property in the county. The reassessment is part of Kentucky's Education Reform Act in order to assure that property is assessed at the proper value.

Property tax bills are expected to be mailed sometime in March.

Martin businessman dies

by Alisa Goodwill

Clyde Preston Allen, of Hazard, formerly of Martin, died Monday, at the Hazard Appalachian Regional Medical Center following a long illness. He was 88.

Allen operated the Jewell Hardware Store in Martin for 54 years; the store closed for good in 1992.

When Allen first opened the hardware store he had $200 in merchandise. He also worked for the Martin Water Works during the day and the Martin Theater at night.

"It was a mom and pop store," said his daughter, Rosemary Ewen of Hazard. "He couldn't have done it without mom's help."

Ewen said her father thought so much of his wife that he named the store after her. Jewell is her middle name.

Allen was born in Langley to Urban Allen and Hattie Preston Allen Osborne. His father died when Allen was five. His mother didn't remarry until he was 13.

"He had a tough childhood," said Ewen. "He took care of what he had, because he didn't have a lot to start with."

Allen's grandfather, Joseph Newt Allen, insisted Allen go to school. Allen graduated from Berea Academy. He earned a degree in history and political science in 1932 from Berea College.

"He was a firm believer in education," said Ewen. "From his influence I now work for a college."

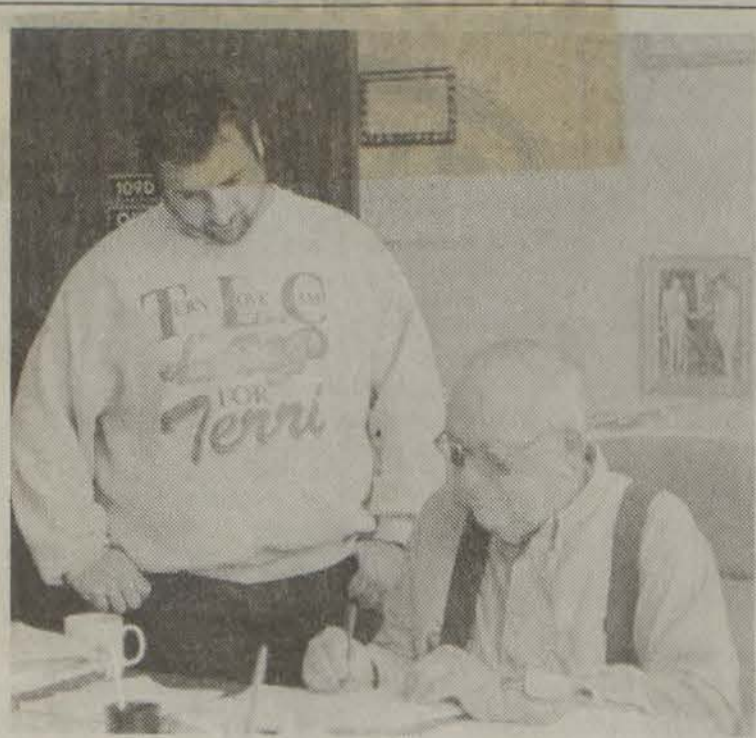

Ewen said Allen was also interested in politics though he never ran for office. He was idealistic and influenced other people.

Allen was a member of the Kentucky Historical Society; the Sandy Valley Historical Society; a member of Second Century club and was a Kentucky Colonel.

Allen was also a member of the Maytown United Methodist Church, which was founded by his great grandfather.

Allen is survived by his wife, Tina Conner Allen; by one daughter, and son-in-law, Rosemary and B.J. Ewen, Hazard; one brother, A.B. Osborne, Jr., Quakertown, Pennsylvania; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services for Allen were Wednesday, February 8, at 1 p.m., at the Hall Funeral Home Chapel, Martin, with the clergymen Troy Poff and Jim Wade officiating. Burial was in Davidson Memorial Gardens, Ivel, with the Hall Funeral Home, Martin, caring for those arrangements.

Donor awareness week

Ronnie Hicks watched as Judge/Executive John M. Stumbo signed a proclamation Wednesday that declares the week of February 13th through the 18th "Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week" in Floyd County. The proclamation was designed to raise the public's awareness of toddler Terri LaSha Jarvis of Banner, and others who need life-saving transplants. (photo by Susan Allen)

Accordingly, Stumbo has led a successful drive the last few weeks to have judge/executives throughout Kentucky sign donor awareness week proclamations. Ninety percent of the judge/executives in Eastern Kentucky, including Floyd County, and judge/executives in Carter, Fayette, Hardin and Jefferson counties, have promised to sign the proclamation. "We've had a tremendous response from all these counties," she said.

Stumbo, the mother of four young children, isn't satisfied with just proclamations. She wants the public to get in on the act, as well.

"If all the businesses would put a purple bow on their door and everyone wore a purple ribbon, it would raise awareness of all the transplants needed," she said.

Individuals can tie a purple ribbon on a mailbox or gatepost. "This one simple act will raise awareness," she said.

Businesses that wish to display a picture of Baby Terri can call Stumbo at 358-4030.

Contributions for Terri's medical bills can be sent to: Terri Jarvis Transplant Fund, Trans Financial Bank, P.O. Box 541, Martin, Kentucky 41649.

PCC program may help answer financial questions

Information on how to maneuver through the red tape of college financial aid applications will be available when Prestonsburg Community College hosts its annual Financial Aid Awareness Day on Wednesday, February 15.

The event will take place from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. in room 102 of the Johnson Building on the Prestonsburg campus.

The purpose of the event is to create an awareness of financial aid programs available to prospective college students and to encourage students to apply for aid before the April 1 priority date.

To apply for any type of financial assistance, a student must complete a federal financial aid form, which can be "a very challenging task," according to Brenda Music, acting dean of student affairs and director of financial aid at PCC.

PCC's financial aid staff will be available to assist with the completion of forms and checking for accuracy. Applicants are urged to bring copies of their 1994 tax returns if possible.

Music said the processing of financial aid applications normally takes four to six weeks, and some students may have to confirm or correct information and return it for re-processing, which takes another two to three weeks.

Judy Lewis, classification branch manager for the Corrections Cabinet, said Thursday that there are many factors related to the classification of prisoners. Included in the assessment are: type of offense; number of felony convictions; escape records; and seriousness of the offense.

"Basically, if an inmate scores 10 points or less (on the classification process), they are classified as a minimum custody inmate," Lewis said. "A lot of different factors are looked into."

Lewis added that restricted minimum inmates can be housed in facilities with a barrier fence.

Patience could pay off for parents of premature infants

Babies born prematurely tend to mature more slowly than those carried full-term. But parents should be patient; most kids catch up, says University of Louisville pediatrician Shirley Wilkerson.

Wilkerson says parents should look at a child's "corrected age," which is determined by using the child's original due date instead of the actual date of birth. For instance, a child born two months premature would, on his or her first birthday, have a corrected age of 10 months.

The corrected age will give parents a better idea of their child's progress. The correction is routinely used until age 2.

Labor secretary aims to end black lung

Secretary of Labor Robert B. Reich Tuesday announced his intention to appoint an advisory committee to make recommendations for the elimination of black lung and silicosis among coal miners.

"In the 25 years that the federal government has regulated dust levels in coal mines, coal miners' dust exposure and the devastating toll of lung disease have declined sharply," Reich said. "However, despite the knowledge and technology now available to control this hazard, too many miners still run a risk of developing occupational lung disease. The time is right for industry, labor and government to join in a combined effort to bring this disease to an end."

Reich said he will select seven individuals for the committee: one representing labor, one representing industry, and five persons—including the chairman—with no economic interest in the mining industry. Once appointed, the advisory committee is expected to convene early this year and deliver its recommendations within 180 days.

"The committee will provide a collective expertise to address the complex issues involved in ending occupational lung disease among coal miners," Reich said.

Since the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 set limits for respirable dust in coal mines, average dust levels in underground coal mines have declined from 8.0 milligrams per cubic meter to the current standard of 2.0 milligrams per cubic meter.

However, recent medical evidence indicates that miners continue to develop the debilitating effects of black lung and silicosis. Black lung is a commonly used term for lung disease resulting from excessive exposure to respirable coal mine dust while silicosis results specifically from quartz dust (respirable crystalline silica). In severe cases, both black lung and silicosis can be disabling.

"We will be asking the advisory committee to address the full range of respirable dust issues," said Davitt McAteer, assistant secretary of labor for mine safety and health. "That includes the available means to control the dust, improved dust monitoring, the exposure limits necessary to prevent disease, the role of the miner in dust monitoring and the adequacy of the programs under which mine operators take samples to determine the dust levels to which miners are exposed."

Under existing Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) rules, mine operators are required to control the amount of dust in the mine atmosphere, to obtain MSHA approval of those measures, and to monitor through sampling the amount of hazardous coal mine dust in areas where miners work or travel. If samples by either the mine operator or MSHA show noncompliance with the dust standard, MSHA issues a citation and requires the mine operator to correct the problem.

The 1969 law also established a black lung disability benefits program to compensate coal miners and the dependents of miners who have been disabled by occupational dust exposure. In the 25 years since the program was established, federal black lung benefit payments have totaled more than $30 billion.

Currently, the annual cost to the federal government of black lung disability benefits exceeds $1.3 billion, with 75,000 former miners receiving benefits.

The U.S. coal mining industry today employs roughly 140,000 miners, of whom more than 50,000 work underground. In recent years, U.S. coal production has reached record levels, with the value of coal mined totaling nearly $19 billion in 1993. Coal provides over half of U.S. electric power nationwide.

Notice of the Secretary's intent to establish an advisory committee is in Tuesday's Federal Register. Comments from interested members of the public are requested by February 15. Copies of the Federal Register notice may be obtained from MSHA's Office of Standards, Regulations, and Variances, telephone (703)235-1910.

162 Floyd countians attending EKU this year

Eastern Kentucky University is the home to 162 students from Floyd County this year, up from 142 in 1993-94.

Just over 16,000 students enrolled at EKU this past fall, and are attending classes on the Richmond campus or at one of the University's educational centers in Corbin, Manchester and Danville. And it's a diverse population, representing 119 Kentucky counties, most U.S. states and 46 foreign countries.

According to a recent Accountability Report prepared for the Kentucky Council on Higher Education (CHE), 88 percent of EKU's baccalaureate students rated their overall educational experiences as good or excellent. More than two-thirds of Eastern's four-year, degree-seeking students rated non-instructional services as good or excellent, and 94 percent of baccalaureate students indicated a willingness to recommend EKU to other students seeking a college education.

Also, 348 EKU alumni reside in Floyd County.

According to the same CHE Accountability report, 91 percent of EKU graduates rated their education as good or excellent. More than three-fourths of EKU alumni said they were adequately prepared for the world of work, and 85 percent of EKU alumni reported being employed full-time, the highest percentage in Kentucky.

Harsh Winter weather brings special hazards for the elderly

Almost by definition, home is where you feel safe and warm. That's not the case for many elderly people, especially during very harsh winter weather, said Peggy Wallace, commissioner of Kentucky's Department for Social Services.

Cold, icy weather can bring about heart attacks, frostbite, asthma, broken bones and hypothermia for people of any age, but can be especially deadly for the elderly, Wallace said.

Many elderly Kentuckians live alone and may be unable to seek help if they fall or become ill. While shut in, they risk running out of such necessities as food, medications or heating fuel.

"Elderly people may even become disoriented when very cold," said Carol Rawlings, R.N., nurse consultant with DSS. "They may be too confused to recognize a serious problem and to seek help." Outdoors, they may even become lost or lock themselves out of the house, she added.

It's especially important for the elderly to stay warm because they're so susceptible to hypothermia, Rawlings said.

Hypothermia is a drop in body temperature that can result in death if not promptly recognized and treated. It can be triggered in some by even mildly cool temperatures of 60-65 degrees Fahrenheit according to health officials.

Rawlings said many elderly have less of a cushion against getting into trouble with the cold because they already have a lowered ability to adapt to changes in temperature. She also said many medications interfere with the way heat and cold are perceived.

"For example, many who take blood pressure medications never feel warm," Rawlings said. "Their extremities—hands and feet—are always uncomfortably cold."

Rawlings recommends staying warm indoors and outdoors by dressing in "lots of layers," not one heavy layer, so clothing can easily be removed or added as needed. She also recommends always wearing a hat outdoors because so much body heat is lost through the head.

Mary Bradley, family protection specialist in DSS, says that elderly people who heat with fireplaces, wood stoves or space heaters need to take special precautions to prevent fires.

House fires can be caused by dirty chimneys, storing flammable fluids or stacks of papers near a heat source, or improper use of space heaters.

Cooking appliances used as a heat source can overheat and start a fire. Any type of open flames used for heat, such as gas stove-top burners, can easily catch clothing on fire.

Bradley advises the elderly to not only take precautions to avoid fire, but to prepare an exit plan in the event there is a fire.

Rawlings asks anyone with elderly family members or neighbors to check on them frequently during cold weather, either in person or by phone.

She urges checking immediately if there's any sign of trouble, such as mail not being picked up, no lights or lights left on all night. Call a local service agency or law enforcement officials for help, if necessary.

"Everyone should become familiar with services available locally, such as senior centers or community ministries, before finding themselves, a neighbor or a family member in a weather-related crisis," said Bradley.

Call the local Department of Social Services office for information and referrals.

Let Floyd County answer the calls

by Scott Perry

After listening to most of the debates over cost effectiveness and operational efficiency, we're convinced that the best place to headquarter Floyd County's 911 system is...Floyd County.

We've nothing against the Kentucky State Police, mind you, but we're not certain they're all that enthused about managing the program, anyway.

It may turn out in the end to be more expensive to locate the 911 base in Floyd County, but we suspect the benefits will outweigh those costs.

The jobs associated with manning the system will most certainly go to Floyd Countians and Floyd Countians will have a say in how the system is run.

It's a curiosity, in fact, as to why we're having this debate over location at all.

Floyd County is the natural location for an emergency service that is to service Floyd Countians and which is financed by Floyd Countians.

The final call on siting the 911 system apparently will be made by a panel of individuals appointed recently by Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo.

Without casting aspersions on the character or commitment of any of the members, we're a bit bewildered by their selections to the advisory board.

We don't doubt that each of the advisors, which include a principal, a school board member, a librarian and a relative of the county judge, has a keen interest in doing what's best for Floyd County, but the planning and implementation of an emergency service like 911 ought to be carried out by those who will be called on to make it work.

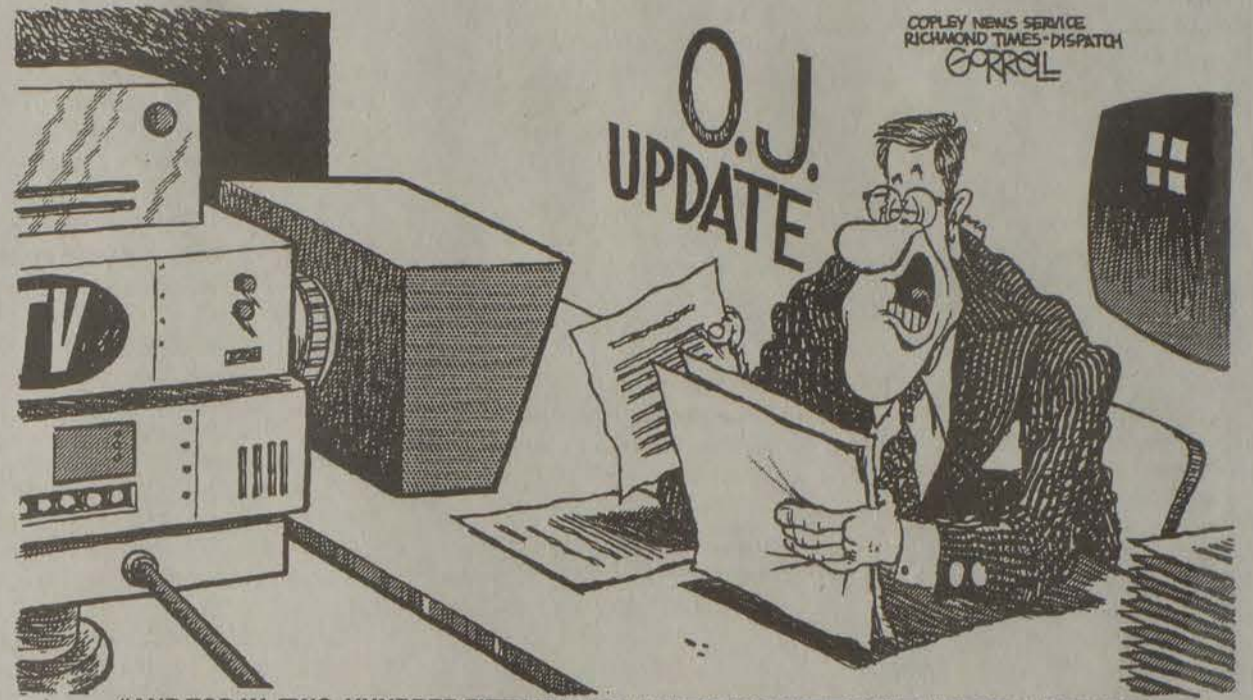

A decision as important as where and who will operate the system should be made by the guys and gals in the trenches... the police officers, deputies, firefighters, emergency medical technicians and ambulance drivers.

They'll be the ones to answer the calls, regardless of where the dispatchers are centered.

We can't imagine how any 911 program can be discussed or implemented without input from the corps of volunteers and paid staffers who answer the calls for help.

After all, the system can only be as good as the folks who make it happen.

And, we've got the best right here at home.

"AND TODAY, TWO HUNDRED FIFTY MILLION AMERICANS PETITIONED JUDGE LANCE ITO TO SEQUESTER THEM FROM ANY FURTHER EXPOSURE TO THE O.J. SIMPSON TRIAL!"

Old enough to care

Editor:
We hear a lot about not caring for our older people. That's not true anymore.

A lot of people are helping to fix a home for an elderly woman who can't see or hear, and recently fell and broke her hip.

Two young people, Erica Allen and Adam Thompson, took time to help make Dusty Bailey's homecoming worth coming home to.

We don't give young people credit for caring. We also appreciate the offer from Liz Carroll to help, but she's old herself, and the young people took her place.

I know one thing for sure, I would never attempt to go to Kroger and make decisions as to how their store should or should not be run. By the way, I have worked in a discount store and have walked in those shoes. To my knowledge, Risner has not taught a day in his life. Therefore, I feel there should definitely be more teacher representation than parent representation on all school decisions affecting our work place. We are talking about our work place, and who knows better what affects our students than we, the teachers?

I'm afraid defiance of laws is not what I, as a teacher, am trying to teach my students. There are many laws that one could argue are unfair; however, I am sorry, this is just not one of them. Although, I would love to see members of my own family be on the school councils throughout Floyd County, I know it is a conflict of interest. We all know politics, and I feel sure that this law is fair—especially for Floyd County.

Last, but not least, let us not forget about those parents who found out about the law after the fact and chose to step aside. Is it fair to them to allow other parents of the same situation to serve? Also, we as teachers have to accept site-based decisions concerning our employment. When a decision is made, we have no choice as to whether or not to accept the decision. Sometimes these decisions may even be illegal, but we must abide immediately. In other words, we do not have the opportunity to wait and see our cases come to court.

SBDM council member should observe law

Editor:
It seems like every time I buy a Floyd County Times lately, I see something about Clarence Risner resisting and refusing to accept the law for SBDM council members. Please spare us all of the embarrassment. Hasn't Floyd County already been through enough embarrassment without all this bickering as to whether or not Risner has a right to serve as a member of School Based Decision Making.

Roadside special served up on KET

What makes diners so comfortable and delicious? Is it strong coffee and homemade pie? Or a big juicy hamburger served by a saucy waitress? Maybe it's today's blue-plate special with gravy-over-everything. Is it the stainless-steel building? Or just the informal atmosphere that makes you feel at home?

KET takes a good long look at diners and the people who work in them in Pennsylvania Diners and Other Roadside Restaurants, an award-winning special airing on KET 8 p.m. Monday, February 13. Produced and narrated by Rick Sebak, this 60-minute program is a celebration of some of Pennsylvania's most interesting and unusual restaurants. In the age of omnipresent fast-food franchises, Pennsylvania Diners and Other Roadside Restaurants tries to show why these pre-fabricated, individualistic little restaurants are still popular spots to grab a bite to eat.

"We had to spend a couple weeks traveling around the state, checking out roadside eateries," says Emmy-Award-winning producer Sebak. "It was hard work, but someone had to do it. We only regret that we couldn't include all the diners in the state."

Pennsylvania Diners and Other Roadside Restaurants is a production of WQED/Pittsburgh in association with the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania.

Words of life

by Wayne Burch

Little Paint Church of God
I read sometime ago that a group of folk in Massachusetts organized what they called an "Apathy Club." The club has no dues, holds no meetings, elects no officers, takes no stand on any issue, and makes no contributions of any kind to anything. Does that sound like something you would like? Forget it! If you are interested, that shows you are not qualified for membership!

Some people lead a life worthy of an organization like this. But the "Apathy Club" is not a viable choice for the Christian. Those who are willing to put their hand in the hand of the Man from Galilee must also be willing to get involved in the Father's World.

The message of Jesus was profoundly simple. If you have two coats and meet a chap with none, give him one of them. Consider first your own faults before trying to change the other fellow's shortcomings. If someone asks you to give him a hand with something, do twice as much as is expected of you. Say a prayer for those you find difficult to love. Jesus was different!

Christianity is an action word! The Christian has no choice but to get involved with another's suffering. You must not be like Charlie Brown of the "Peanuts" cartoon, who concludes, "There's no problem so big that you can't run away from it." Instead, realize that your neighbor's misery just might need your company.

In his novel, Alan Paton begins with the painful words, "Perhaps I could have saved him, with only a word, or two words, out of my mouth. Perhaps I could have saved us all, but I never spoke them." Such a commentary should never be written about the Christian. We too must be different! However, we must correctly interpret the meaning of the word "different." There is little profit in being just another oddball standing on the street corner holding up another lamp post, just a "ne'er-do-well," "piddling, twiddling, and whittling! Be a positive difference!

It was quite enlightening to me when I discovered that Strongs Concordance does not list "lazy" as appearing in the Bible, though I must say I was not at all surprised! It is a word that has nothing in common with serving the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Master was forever leaving one community, finishing one task, getting into another boat and heading for another shore to continue the work His heavenly Father gave Him to do!

The word "slothful" comes as close as any to lining up alongside of "apathy" or "lazy" in our modern-day usage, and it is found in the Bible several times. Paul states in Rom. 12:11 "Not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord." If this statement says anything it says we must not be sluggish in zeal! It implies there is a certain intensity in the Christian life. There is no room for lethargy. This is evidenced in the attitude of many toward attending the

Only one year has passed since you went away, We can see your face and hear your voice every day.

We were so close and you were always so near, It's terribly hard not having you here.

We'll never know why you had to depart, But our love for you will always be in our hearts.

Kids have the right idea on Valentine's Day

Adults think of valentine cards as only for their sole sweethearts. Children cut and paste valentines or buy packs of cards for all their friends.

Adults should start thinking like kids, say University of Louisville psychologists Michael Cunningham and Anita Barbee.

They say sending thoughtful remembrances such as cards and messages is a simple way to help maintain friendships.

They also say society better tolerates expressive behavior by women, so they are more likely to maintain friendships with cards.

Appalachian Healthcare announces two appointments

Appalachian Regional Healthcare announces the appointment of Jennifer Grimm, R.N., B.S.N., as home services representative, and Russell C. McGuire, R.N., B.S.N., as director of Home Health Nursing Services for the corporation's Division of Home Services. Grimm will serve as liaison between area health care facilities and ARH Home Services. Grimm will serve as a liaison between area health care facilities and ARH Home Services, ensuring patients a smooth transition from Lexington hospitals to their homes in central Appalachia. McGuire, who will be based at the Home Services main office in Hazard, will be responsible for clinical services for the corporation's home health care operation.

Prior to joining ARH, Grimm was a home infusion nurse for Caretenders, a home health organization based in Lexington. Her six years of nursing experience include serving home health, oncology, stroke rehabilitative care, and medical/surgical patients. Grimm has also served as an infusion educator.

In addition to his experience as an emergency medical technician and a nurse, McGuire has 7 years of experience in supervising hospital surgical services. He most recently served as director of Surgical Services at Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

Grimm, a native of Ashland, graduated from Berea College in Berea, with a bachelor's degree in nursing. She has completed six hours of post-baccalaureate courses at the University of Kentucky Graduate School. Grimm resides in Lexington.

McGuire, an Alabama native, earned a bachelor's degree in Nursing at Delta State University in Cleveland, Mississippi, and completed graduate work in Nursing Administration at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg. He is currently pursuing a master's degree in Nursing at the University of Kentucky. McGuire, his wife, Teresa, and their two daughters, Heather and Mary, reside in Pikeville.

ARH is a not-for-profit corporation that operates hospitals, clinics, and other health care facilities and services in Kentucky, West Virginia, and Virginia.

Grand Opening planned

Debbie Hackworth, Randall Hatfield and Paula Peters are just some of the friendly folk at Matewan Bank who are preparing for the bank's Grand Opening Celebration.

Matewan Bancshares plans grand opening celebration

Matewan BancShares' new full-service banking office in Paintsville is hosting its Grand Opening Celebration February 12-14, according to Randall Hatfield, manager of the office.

The new office is located at 300 North Mayo Trail in the Mayo Plaza. The Paintsville office is the second office of Matewan Bank, FSB, a Federal Savings Bank. The first office was opened in Pikeville in January of 1994.

The Grand Opening Celebration starts with an Open House at the Paintsville office 2 p.m. Sunday, February 12. "We'd like to invite the community to celebrate with us. There will be tours, refreshments and registration for prizes, including a five-day cruise to the Bahamas," said Hatfield.

Celebration activities include a special Ribbon Cutting Ceremony Tuesday, February 14, at 8:30 a.m.

Also on hand to greet guests will be all staff members including Paula Peters, teller supervisor, and Debra Hackworth, loan officer, each with more than 20 years banking experience in the Paintsville community.

Prizes to be awarded include a five-day cruise to the Bahamas on the Carnival Cruise Line, with airfare plus $500 in cash; a 25-inch television; a $200 Savings Bond; and a $100 Savings Bond. The drawing is February 14, at 3 p.m. at the Paintsville office.

Ron Williamson, president and chief executive officer of Matewan Bank, FSB in Pikeville, said the bank's reception in Kentucky has been exceptional.

"We see many positive trends occurring in Eastern Kentucky and are proud to be a part of them," Williamson emphasized. "We look forward to becoming part of the economic development in the Paintsville area."

Dan Moore, chairman and chief executive officer of Matewan BancShares said "Our business strategy is built around providing unequalled customer service. This is demonstrated by our competitive pricing as part of our ValueBanking philosophy. Additionally, our customer service hours, including drive-in hours of 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., demonstrate our commitment to our customers and ValueBanking."

Matewan BancShares, a $350 million regional holding company, maintains Kentucky offices in Pikeville as well as Paintsville and eight full-service banking offices throughout Southern West Virginia.

Two Floyd countians graduate from Kentucky School of Banking

Two Floyd Countians were among the 65 students graduating on Friday, November 18, from the Kentucky Schools of Banking GBS Year I.

Della D. Clark and Tommie Lynn Layne graduated from the banking school. Both are employees of First Commonwealth Bank.

The School is a one-week-residential-basic banking program administered by the Kentucky Bankers Association. It was held at the Holiday Inn, Lexington, in conjunction with the University of Kentucky.

In its sixth year, the school strives to provide students with a fundamental banking education, including a broad understanding of the banking business and its environment from a balance sheet perspective. Students complete over 40 hours of classroom instruction and a computer simulation.

Year I graduates are now eligible for the nationally accredited Kentucky Schools of Banking General Banking School Years II & III, a program that convenes each summer in Louisville.

UK economic study points to problems in Kentucky tax system

A shrinking tax base spells problems for Kentucky's tax system, but tax rate increases can be avoided in tax reform efforts, according to the University of Kentucky's Center for Business and Economic Research 1995 Kentucky Annual Economic Report.

Kentucky's tax system is the subject of the report's lead article, written by William H. Hoyt, associate professor of economics at UK.

The article says the state's tax base is shrinking because of economic and demographic changes, reducing the tax base for the sales tax—Kentucky's second largest, and most stable, source of revenue.

The shrinking tax base for sales tax means a decrease of state revenues and an increase in instability in revenue, particularly coal and corporate income taxes. "Because of the instability of these taxes, we don't want to rely on them as a stable source of revenue," Hoyt said.

Instead of major increases in sales or individual income tax rates to meet the revenue needs, Hoyt recommends these tax reforms:

—Tax public pensions to eliminate the inequitable treatment of private and public pensioners, while broadening the tax base and enabling Kentucky to have lower tax rates for all taxpayers.

—Broaden the base of Kentucky's sales tax so that more services are subject to the sales and use tax.

The sales tax base has decreased dramatically in the past 20 years, because, the report states, people are spending smaller percentages of their income for tangible goods and greater percentages for services.

In the report, Hoyt concludes that an expansion of the tax base would mean a tax rate of approximately 4 percent would generate the same amount of revenue as the current rate of 6 percent on the existing base.

—To eliminate or reduce problems with the service tax, all services provided to business would be untaxed, with only services to consumers facing taxation. Hoyt said that would ensure Kentucky businesses remain competitive, while still raising significant revenue.

—Tax mail-order purchases to broaden and stabilize the sales tax base.

Current federal interstate commerce laws would have to be changed to make such a tax collectable, but a tax on mail-order purchases could produce significant revenue for the state.

In researching Kentucky's tax system, Hoyt said he looked at its design, including whether it is equitable and efficient. Hoyt studied whether Kentuckians in similar situations pay similar taxes and how taxes are affecting people's behavior, such as saving and work effort.

The scope of his study did not include the question of whether Kentuckians are taxed too much or too little.

The article is one of eight, most written by UK economists, addressing such issues as environmental protection, health care reform, the rise and fall of the coal industry, and regional trends in economic growth in Kentucky.

The center's purpose is to disseminate economic information and provide economic and policy analysis to assist decision makers in Kentucky's public and private sectors.

Fertilizers used for de-icing can pollute drinking water supplies

Winter has arrived and with it the sort of weather that includes snow and ice.

During extremely cold weather, especially when there is ice on the ground, many people resort to unusual solutions to clear sidewalks, parking lots, and roads. Unfortunately, one of those solutions is to use fertilizer as a de-icer.

As the ice melts and runs off paved areas, the water, now loaded with fertilizers containing nitrates, winds up in storm sewer systems and streams. That water then continues downstream to the water intakes for drinking water systems.

Drinking water systems do not routinely treat water for nitrates. When it is detected, nitrates must receive extra treatment, which is generally more difficult for small systems than for large systems that have their own labs and can monitor levels constantly.

The amount of water in rivers and streams can help to dilute the nitrate that runs off from melted snow and ice, and the additional water from the snow and ice adds further dilution. However, springs, especially karst springs, are particularly susceptible to nitrate contamination.

Excessive levels of nitrate in drinking water have caused serious illness and sometimes death in infants under six months of age. In the body, nitrate is converted to nitrite, which interferes with the oxygen-carrying capacity of a small child's blood. Symptoms, including shortness of breath and blueness of the skin (the "blue baby" syndrome), can develop rapidly in infants. In most cases, health deteriorates over a period of days.

The Kentucky Division of Water urges citizens across the commonwealth to consider other solutions to ice problems. Salt (sodium chloride), calcium chloride, and potassium chloride, while hazardous to grass and other plants when used in heavy concentrations, will pose fewer problems for streams or human health in the amounts generally used for de-icing. Cat litter and sand will offer traction for both feet and wheels. Neither will dissolve in water, so what is left after warm weather returns and melts the ice can be swept up for reuse.

Proper steps can help ease the holiday credit card woes

The holidays are over, but their effects are just showing up in credit card bills. If you overcharged, University of Louisville economist Russ Ray has a couple of tips to ease the burden.

Ray says one option is to take out a home equity loan to pay off the credit cards. Home equity loan rates usually are lower, and the interest is tax deductible. Another option is to transfer large balances from high-rate cards to ones with lower rates.

Still in over your head? Call the credit card company. Often, companies will set up a payment plan both of you can live with.

Celebrate Your Love

To My Special Someone on Valentine's Day:
More and more, it seems we share a language all our own, a bond, an understanding, meant for you and me alone. More and more, I'm finding out how joyful love can be, for each day we grow closer. And you mean still more to me. Happy Valentine's Day, Baby!

Margie

To my Valentine, Glendale
We've shared many precious memories through the years. What would I do without your sympathetic heart, and in sickness your sincere pep talks? You've stuck by me at times when I know it couldn't have been easy for you. You're one in a million and I love you for it. Happy Valentine's Day, Sweetheart.

Beatrice Conn

To my Valentine, Mike
I gave you my heart. You made me your wife; you're the man I love, the love of my life. So to my best friend, I wanted to say, I hope you have a Happy Valentine's Day. I love you for all eternity!

Haley Akers

To my Valentine, Donovan
I hope that we stay together forever. I love you with all of my heart, and I always will. Happy Valentine's Day, Sweetheart.

Krista Hamilton

To my Valentine, Robert, Jr.
As I look back over the past 12 years of our marriage, I wonder why God blessed me to have you in my life. You're not only my husband, you're my best friend. I love you with all my heart and soul. Thank you, God for sending "me" Rob!

Brenda Hughes

To my Valentine, Tim
I love you more than words can say. You brighten my life day by day. I love you with all my heart, and I never want us to be apart.

Love always,
Kim

To my Valentine, Kevin
I never knew what life was all about until I met you. You have made the last year of my life wonderful. You will always be my cupid. I love you very much. Happy Valentine's Day.

Lesia Robinson

To my Valentine, Margie
I lost your love in 62, and for 32 years I was lonely and blue. I found you again in 94, and now our love is greater than before. I'm thankful for your love so true, you're my Margie, and I'll always love you.

Your Special Someone!

To my Valentine, Tim
With each passing year, you make me realize why I enjoy spending my life with you. I love you very much. Happy Valentine's Day.

Angel Diddle

To my Valentine, Ken
Thanks for all you do to make our life together so special. Thanks for your warmth and understanding. Thanks for being all you are to me—my husband, my friend, my love.

With all my love to the wonderful man I'm so proud to call "my husband." Happy Valentine's Day.

Margie Spurlock

To my Valentine, Billie
Billie, you're the sunshine of my day, the peace of my night, the rose in my life, thank God you're my wife. Words will never say, nor flowers ever show, how much you truly mean to me—I truly love you so. Happy Birthday, Honey and Valentine's Day, also.

Love always, Me.
Benjamin Bowling

To my Valentine, Maudie
Honey, I may not always say that I love you, or I may not show it. But I want you to know that you are very special to me. And that I love you very much.

Tim Lazar

To my Valentine, Hershell
This is to my Sweetheart, who I love more than anything in this whole world, and you know I always will. And thanks for putting up with me this past year, it's been great. Happy Valentine's Day.

Love always,
Ronnie

Mark,
If ever there was a love that's true, it has to be me and you. The years of many ups and downs has only helped our love abound! So here's to our future, may it always be bright, and may you always be the love of my life.

Forever yours,
Pam

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

BASEBALL, PRO BASKETBALL IN THE NEWS

Tuesday night was a busy sports night around our nation.

I'm not talking about the upset of number one North Carolina, the beating of Kansas the night before or the way Florida took care of Georgia.

How about our president? He gave it the good old college try in trying to solve the major league baseball strike. But he struck out.

The owners don't want to settle it and the players have too much pride to give in after vowing to fight to the end. Well, for some of them, the end may be closer than they want to realize.

Replacement players, better known as "scabs," are still being considered by the owners.

I think it would be interesting to see just how the season would go with replacement players. I'm sure that some of the major league players would cross the picket line and play.

Not all players make the big bucks the Tom Glavine's, Barry Larkin's and Brett Butler's make. Those players can get in front of news cameras and talk big all they want to, but some of the lesser paid players need to return to the game.

The owners really don't want a settlement with the players. They seem ready to sacrifice the 1995 season and play with replacement players, knowing that one year will be the most a major league player can hold out.

When the souvenir money dries up (goes into the strike fund) and the strike fund is gone, then they will have to work or play baseball.

The owners seem bent on breaking the players' union.

Let's have a season without the money players and see how it goes. There may be some good talent that hasn't been discovered yet.

MAXELL PUNCHES FAN...

Ever wonder why high school basketball is getting so out of line? Just watch a professional game and you will see that our younger players are getting all the junk they try and pass out.

Vernon Maxell, who just couldn't stand the taunting from the fans, marched up 10 rows into the stands and punched the daylight out of a fan.

Now the NBA is pondering what to do with the hot-tempered Maxell. How about sending him home for the rest of the season without pay?

In front of so many witnesses, you know a lawsuit is forthcoming.

Changes.

Mark them down.

The Floyd County Elementary Tournament is full of changes.

The tournament, that has been put on hold will resume, weather permitting, tomorrow (Saturday) morning and eight games will be played.

The Melvin/Stumbo girls game will commence at 10 a.m. as the first game of the county classic gets underway. Melvin was the winner in Section 2 while Stumbo finished as the runner-up in Section 3.

At 11:30 a.m. Section 3 winner, Betsy Layne's girls will face McDowell, runners-up in Section 2.

Auxier's Lady Hornets, winners of Section 4, will face a good Martin team, runners-up in Section 1 at 1 p.m.

Play continues in the afternoon with Henry Webb's McDowell Dare-devils, winners of Section 3, taking on Doug Derossett's Martin Purple Flash. Tip-off time is set for 2:30 p.m.

The girls will resume play at 4 p.m. when Maytown, winners of Section 1, squares off against the Lady Eagles of Allen. Allen was runners-up in Section 4.

At 5:30 p.m. the Duff Bulldogs will meet a good Allen team. Duff won the Section 1 title and Allen was runner-up in Section 4.

Defending county champions Adams Middle School, winners of Section 4, face Betsy Layne at 7 p.m. Betsy Layne was runners-up in Section 3.

The final contest of the day will pit John M. Stumbo, winners of Section 3, against Osborne at 8:30 p.m. Osborne finished second in Section 3.

If the eight games are completed, then the tournament schedule will be up to date with the semifinal round played on Thursday (Feb. 16) and Friday (Feb. 17). The championship games will be held on Saturday, February 18.

Ten minute halves will be observed and 20 minutes allowed between games.

Radio station WKKZ will be airing the entire tournament over 105.5. Jeff Meek will do the play-by-play.

Allen Central's McKinney named to Class A state all-tournament team

For Allen Central's Veronica McKinney, having her team advancing further in the just completed All 'A' Classic state tournament in Richmond last week would have been gratifying, but the senior forward found some pleasure after being named to the state all-tournament team this past Sunday afternoon.

McKinney has been a driving force in the Lady Rebels' lineup the past four seasons and is the team's leading scorer this year, averaging just under 18 points per game.

But the 5' 7" McKinney is pulling down a team-high 10 rebounds a game as well. Her deceiving quickness to the basket keeps the defense back on their heels and her quick move to the basket helps her in scoring.

McKinney scored 26 points in the Lady Rebels first state tournament game, a 66-45 win over quietly goes about her business of playing basketball and has become one of the most respected female players in the 15th Region.

Teams that know her also know that to stop Allen Central they must stop McKinney.

McKinney became the second Allen Central player to ever be named to the squad. Marsha Brown was on the team last year.

The tournament all-star team was named by the media and tournament officials.

Others named to the squad included: Hali Webb, Monticello; Brittany Haney, Lexington Catholic; Carolyn Alexander, Hazard; Stephanie Hutchcraft, Mercy Academy; Stephanie Desmond, Newport Central Catholic; January Taylor, Louisville Holy Cross; Veronica Carter, Monroe County; Christi Hester, Louisville Holy Cross; Stephanie Vessels, Lexington Catholic; Haley Upchurch, Monticello; Michelle Pruitt, Monroe County.

Lexington Catholic's Rita Wilson, 5' 6" junior, was the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

Congratulations, Veronica!

Ratcliff, Layne combine for 40 in 75-49 win

by Ed Taylor

Senior Jamie Ratcliff and sophomore guard Crystal Layne combined for 40 points to lead the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats to a 75-49 win over the South Floyd Raiders.

Prestonsburg (10-6) improved to 3-2 in the Floyd County Conference, tying Betsy Layne for second place. The Lady Raiders are winless on the season and 0-5 in conference play.

Ratcliff tossed in a game-high 25 points and Layne added 15. Layne buried two three-point baskets.

Tiffany Compton led South Floyd with 18 points and Crystal Newsome finished with 11.

Prestonsburg raced to a 22-8 first quarter lead behind Ratcliff, who scored 10 points in the first quarter. Newsome and Layne knocked in a three-pointer each with sophomore Heather Collins, back from an injury, scoring the four first-period points.

The Lady Raiders couldn't get anything going on offense against the Prestonsburg press. Compton, Lori Tackett and Jenny Meade had a field goal each in the first quarter.

Prestonsburg got four points from freshman Ladonna Slone in the second quarter and Ratcliff had four points in the stanza as the Lady Blackcats ran out to a 35-16 halftime lead.

Compton had the only two field goals South Floyd could score in the second period.

Ratcliff added seven points in the third period and Layne scored six as Prestonsburg began to put distance between them and South Floyd.

Compton got more involved in the offense in the fourth quarter for South Floyd as she put in 10 points. Newsome had a trey, two free throws and two field goals for nine points. Tina Newman and Jackie Gibson had two points each in the period.

Lori Tackett added seven points for South Floyd with Meade finishing with five.

Slone netted eight points for Prestonsburg. Newsome and Collins each scored seven points with Jessie Burke totaling four.

South Floyd (0-13) was only 16 of 36 from the free throw line. Prestonsburg hit only 13 of 25 attempts.

South Floyd is scheduled to play at Pikeville tomorrow night (Saturday) and they will host Johnson Central Monday night.

Prestonsburg (10-6) travels to Elkhorn City Monday night.

Slone leads junior Lady Blackcats past South Floyd

by Ed Taylor

Eighth-grader Crystal Slone scored eight points, four each in the third and fourth quarters, to lead the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats past South Floyd's junior varsity 39-17 Monday night.

Shelly Greathouse and Kelli Hansel added six each in the win.

Crystal Tackett and Misty Berger, an eighth-grader at Melvin, led the Lady Raiders with five each. Tina Newman added four.

Prestonsburg led 10-7 after the first quarter as Jenna Fannin and Greathouse scored four each in the opening quarter.

Tackett gave South Floyd the early lead at 2-0. Baskets by Greathouse and Fannin gave Prestonsburg a 4-2 lead. Shawna Hall hit one of two free throws for a 4-3 game. Fannin scored and Greathouse for an 8-3 game.

Two free throws by Tackett made it 8-5 and Tina Newman brought her team to within one, 8-7, before two free throws by Burke gave the three-point lead to Prestonsburg.

Berger had the only field goal for South Floyd in the second quarter. The Lady Raiders missed six charity tosses in the second stanza — three being front end of bonus shots.

Prestonsburg led at the half 17-11.

South Floyd could only manage three points in each of the third and fourth periods while Prestonsburg outscored them 14-3 in the final stanza.

Fannin and Camille Robinson had four points each in the game for Prestonsburg. Amber Leslie scored three.

58th District Tournament: 19 days and counting

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It is hard to believe that the 1994-95 high school basketball season has gone by so quickly.

Here we are in February and only 19 days remain until the start of the 58th District Basketball Tournament.

The tournament is expected to tip-off on March 1 unless a Thursday through Saturday date is used.

With only four teams in the district, the tournament will take only three nights to complete.

Last year it began on a Wednesday night and concluded Friday night. The extra night free (Saturday) gives coaches in the district a chance to scout the other districts.

While the boys' district looks to favor defending champion Allen Central, the girls race will be different.

The Betsy Layne Lady Cats are the defending district champs as well as regional champions. However, there is are new kids on the block -- the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats -- who have been pushing their way around this year.

Coach Harold Tackett has certainly put together a strong ballclub that has been a surprise to most people (but not him) in the district.

He felt all along that his club could be very competitive this season. The Lady Blackcats had powerful Allen Central down by 19 points on the Lady Rebels' home court, only to let them wiggle off.

He took his team to Betsy Layne and posted a win over a club that is hard to beat at home.

The Lady Blackcats have had some impressive regional wins as well.

Betsy Layne has all the ingredients to repeat as district champions. Good speed, height, the ability to shoot the basketball and a good inside defense.

But the Lady Cats seem to lack the killer instinct that most clubs seem to have this season. They can build a good lead only to see the other team sneak back into it.

Allen Central is no doubt one of the region's best team and is currently ranked number one by the local media.

The Lady Rebels are already tournament experienced, winning the Class A regional for the third straight year and posting a win in the All 'A' Classic in Richmond.

South Floyd has had a very disappointing season and is winless in five conference games. The possibility is there that they will face the number one seed in the first round of the district tournament.

Coach Johnny Martin's Allen Central Rebels have been through a lot this season and are currently at the top of the conference standings with a 4-0 mark.

The tournament-tested Rebels are always a strong tournament team and it appears that a return to the Sweet Sixteen is much on their mind again this season.

The inside, outside game is there and there is not team in the district as quick as the Rebels. Prestonsburg will come awfully close.

While getting off to a strong start, the Rebels' defensive game seems to have let down some. Their match-up zone has caused many teams problems of late.

Prestonsburg is a team of inconsistency. They look horrible one night and then look like world-beaters the next.

They too have a strong team concept and are very quick also. A good outside shooting team, Prestonsburg has surprised many people with their inside play as well.

The Blackcats have one of the top shooting guards in the state and all starters can jump.

If Prestonsburg gets a complete four quarters out of their players, they could bring home their first district title in several years.

You have to like their chances. They trailed the Rebels by one game in the conference standings and have a date with Allen Central Tuesday night on the road. The Rebs edged the Blackcats 89-87 two weeks ago at Prestonsburg.

Betsy Layne is really a better team (See Tourney, A 11)

Morris inks with UK :

PHS standout to trade Blackcat red for UK blue backer slot that he was so accustomed to playing at Prestonsburg.

Prestonsburg coach Bill Letton said Morris played a major role in the success his teams enjoyed over the past four seasons.

"He was a big part of it," said the Prestonsburg coach. "We had a lot of good players to come through our system. Larry was one of them.

"He's big, strong and fast. But his best quality, I think, was his ability to find the football and make a play.

"I could say that we did an outstanding job of coaching Larry and that is why he was a success, but I would be lying if I said that.

"He has such great ability to play the game that he can just get to the football. It's as though he has a sixth sense out there," he said.

Morris said he was satisfied with his decision to ink with UK.

"I liked the facilities at UK," Morris said. "Most of them were state of the art and that impressed me. So, after visiting there, I decided to sign with UK."

After making his decision, Morris cancelled his scheduled visits to other schools.

His uncle, Bobby Joe Spencer, said that is what Morris' mother, Goldie, would have wanted.

"You could ask her for his top three schools and she would have said UK, UK, UK. That's where she wanted him to go," he said.

Morris, when asked why he chose UK, said: "That's what mom would have wanted."

"I made my official visit down there and visited with coaches Curry, (Mike) Archer and (Ray) Dorr, the one who recruited me," said Morris. "I was really impressed with their professionalism. They showed how dedicated they were in turning the program around."

Coach Letton said that Morris' knowledge of the game will help him go a long way.

"He just works hard all the time. He has a good understanding of the game. UK will use him at the linebacker slot, like we did, in the middle," he said. As far as Morris' being red shirted his freshman year, Letton said it depended on several things.

"They won't decide that until he gets down there. If there are a lot of people in front of him, and I don't know who they have recruited, they won't want him to waste a year, so they may red shirt him.

"A lot of factors come in when making a decision such as that — the experience of those playing in front of him," said the Prestonsburg mentor.

But Coach Letton said that Morris' physical strength will be a plus for him in the UK camp this season.

"I look for him to be one of the stronger kids they have signed," he said. "Larry has a lot of physical ability."

Morris' uncle Spencer said that he doesn't think UK will red shirt his nephew.

"He'll make the team," he said. "Larry is a good player and high school has helped him a lot. He will be all right in college football."

Spencer said that Morris is a dedicated young man and that he just doesn't quit when it comes to playing the game.

"Larry had very good speed and is better than most his size. He is dedicated and won't quit on the Lord or football," Spencer said.

Other schools that recruited Morris included Eastern Kentucky University, Morehead University, Pitt, Penn State and others.

"In all there were about 15 schools that wanted him," said Spencer. "His mom (when she was ill) would sit in bed and say that she had to call C.M. Newton because Kentucky wasn't recruiting heavy enough.

"She always wanted him to play for a Division I school and UK was it," he said.

Morris was outstanding in the Danville game, and the Blackcats upset the then-undefeated Admirals 13-12 on a memorable play when Tim

Lewis stopped Danville's quarterback at the 2-yard line to preserve the win in overtime.

But Morris had 12 tackles in the game, showing team leadership that caught the UK coaches' eyes.

"We celebrated after the Danville game," said Morris, who felt very close to his teammates.

"The greatest memories that I have, was not beating Danville, but (being with) my friends. We were so happy. We were shouting, praising the Lord. I walked into the locker room and everyone was just thanking God." "That's the closest I have ever been to anybody outside my family or the good Lord above. That was right after we beat Danville," he said.

Morris said that teaching and coaching football is in his plans.

"I will major in history more than likely," he stated.

"I want to get my degree in four years. My long range plans include teaching and coaching football.

"I want to give back to the game what the game of football has given me," he said.

Morris scored a 22 on his ACT exam and carried a 3.5 grade point average in school.

"Larry has a real good memory," said Coach Letton. "I feel that helped him not only in the classroom but on the football field as well."

"He's a real mannerly young man and I never had a bad report from any of his teachers. He was a pleasure to coach," Letton said.

Asked if he had any final comments, Morris showed his true colors when he replied, "Go Big Blue!"

"He was always mannerly. I never had any bad reports from any of his teachers....he has such a great ability to play the game...it's as though he has a sixth sense."

Morris inks letter-of-intent with UK

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Prestonsburg's middle linebacker Larry Morris (6' 1", 220) will be trading his Blackcat red for the Kentucky blue after he recently inked a letter-of-intent to play football for Bill Curry's University of Kentucky Wildcats this coming fall.

It is believed that Morris is the first Floyd Countain to sign with UK since James Allen signed in the early 60's.

Morris was instrumental in leading the Blackcats to their only state finals in 1994.

Morris caught the eye of running back coach Ray Dorr, who was primarily responsible in recruiting Morris, when he attended UK football camp in the summer of 1994.

"When Larry attended our football camp," said Dorr, "he was an intense competitor and we felt without a doubt he would be a successful college football player. That, his competitiveness, carried on through his senior year."

Morris will find himself playing the middle line-

Grade school tournament set for Saturday; AC gets good news

The on-again, off-again Floyd County Grade School Basketball Tournament is on again if the weather remains favorable.

According to Betsy Layne Elementary principal Karen Allen, the tournament, which was to have started this past Thursday, will play first round games tomorrow (Saturday). "We thought about playing all day Saturday, much like the state tournament is played," she said.

Allen said the conditions of secondary roads in the county prompted cancellation of games Thursday night.

"Some county roads are still bad and we didn't want to take a chance," the Betsy Layne principal stated.

Format for Saturday's games are not known at this time. The school principal said they were taking it one day at a time.

Martin under the weather, but...

Allen Central coach Johnny Martin and several of his ball players are a bit under the weather, but the coach found something to smile about when the KHSAA ruled that 6' 6" Matt Baker was immediately eligible to play for the Runnin' Rebels.

Baker will suit up when the Rebels face Betsy Layne tonight and travel to Dunbar tomorrow night.

Julian Tackett, from the KHSAA, spent some time in the area investigating, which is a routine matter, the transfer of Baker from Shelby Valley to Allen Central.

Rescheduled game...
For your information, the Betsy Layne/South Floyd boys' basketball game may be played Wednesday, February 15.

The Allen Central/Betsy Layne

doubleheader set for tonight will be start at 5:30 p.m. with the girls playing first.

Coach Gordon Parido is hoping that his team will be able to get back on the hardwood with their scheduled visit to South Floyd tonight.

With all the bad weather, the regular season is quickly coming to a close and cancellation of games is making scheduling tight.

The forecast for the early part of next week doesn't look too promising. Stay tuned

Compton: almost pneumonia...

Bonita Compton, Allen Central girls head coach, has been out of commission all week after returning from Richmond.

Compton was told by her doctor to stay indoors because she had pneumonia.

Must be that time of year when the old bug starts biting.

More signings possible...

Two Floyd County football players have signed with major colleges, and there could be more signed later.

Several Prestonsburg players are still being courted and announcements could come soon.

Bobby Joe Spencer tells me that his son Jason will be looking at Union and will make a visit there this weekend.

Others who may latch on are Tim Lewis, Clint Shuts, Robbie Risner and Thomas Ratliff.

"Thomas is waiting to see what happens after baseball season," said Coach Bill Letton. "He definitely can play for someone."

Around the court, gridiron or diamond, we will be there to report Floyd County sports!

the floor in a sit-down strike against the remarks the president said.

Although the university president's remarks were out of line, the students should not have been allowed to dictate the circumstances and deprive those who paid for a ticket to watch the two teams play.

Many fans went home without getting what they paid for.

WILL COUCH PULL DOUBLE DUTY AT UK?

Leslie County's all-anything, Tim Couch, has an opportunity, if he wants it, to fill two positions at UK after his senior year.

The junior quarterback and shooting guard in basketball, recently attended a UK basketball game and got the blessing from Coach Bill Curry and Coach Rick Pitino to try out both sports.

Says Couch, "Basketball is my favorite sport but my future is in football."

Well, Tim is thinking of the future and, if it is in football, then UK is not the place to be. He needs to hook up with a national power that will get the television exposure.

I saw Couch play in the Shelby Valley Invitational.

He is a bona fide basketball player — good range, quickness — and he can jump. A very gifted athlete, he could play somewhere on the hardwood.

But I also saw him play football and he is something else. He definitely has a great future in the sport.

The Allen Central/Leslie County game was cancelled Tuesday night and I am hoping that Coach Johnny Martin can find a place to reschedule the event.

I would love to see him play one more time this season.

THE WEATHER....

It has played havoc on the basketball schedule this week. Several games had to be cancelled and outside the conference games, time may not be found to reschedule them.

Floyd County Conference games will have priority over all other games.

The district coaches' meeting is set for Wednesday at noon for the pairings in the 58th District Tournament to be played at South Floyd this year.

At the moment, the conference still plans to seed this year, even though there are just four teams.

EAGLES TO HOLD BASEBALL CLINIC...

Alice Lloyd baseball coach Scott Cornette will conduct a baseball clinic on February 18 at the Alice Lloyd College gym.

The clinic will be for ages 13-19 and will begin at 10 a.m., ending at 4 p.m.

Fundamentals in hitting, pitching, fielding and base running will be stressed.

The clinic will provide a small lunch for each player. Players should bring their gloves, tennis shoes and bat if they wish. Parents, as well as coaches, are encouraged to attend.

The cost is $10 per player. For more information, contact Scott Cornette at (606) 368-2101, ext. 7102.

than their 3-14 mark would indicate. Coach Keith Henry's ballclub has spent the year trying to find themselves and is looking to use the remaining two and half weeks to get better.

The Bobcats (3-14) are riding a 10-game losing streak and will host the Allen Central Rebels tonight.

More point production must come from the forward spots for Betsy Layne. This is a young and really untested team. Coach Henry believes in these kids and he thinks they will surprise someone in the tournament.

South Floyd is no doubt underrated. This is a good basketball team with the ability to knock off anyone in the district.

This team plays very, very hard all the time. While just 4-13, they are the best 4-13 team around. A solid ballclub that coach Jim Rose suited up, the Raiders are going to be heard from somewhere the rest of the way.

A tough conference game remains at home against Prestonsburg and one on the road at Betsy Layne. The Raiders are 1-3 in the conference and dual victories would give them a 3-3 mark and possibly a tie for second place.

All coaches will get together this coming Wednesday at noon and seed the teams as they prepare for the upcoming tournament to be played at South Floyd's spacious Raider Arena.

What a super facility it is and it should be a packed house each night.

What A Draw
District draws have begun in different areas of the state and the most significant matchup in a first round game will take place in the 34th District between two Ninth Region powers. Covington Holy Cross and Covington Catholic, who battled earlier this season to a terrific final at the Famous Recipe Classic, will square off in the first round. The winner advances, the loser is out. The game will take place Feb. 28 at 7:15 p.m. at Thomas More College. Holy Cross also owns a five-game win streak over the Colonels.

Knox Central
After falling to the Australian Nationals two years ago and halting a home win streak at 119 games, Clay County kept part of that record intact. But last weekend, that mark fell too, as Clay County lost at home to a Kentucky team for the first time since 1984. Knox Central snapped the 146-game streak, scoring a 75-57 win behind star Allen Sharpe's 33 points.

Pulaski County Falls
Pulaski County, the last boys' undefeated basketball team in the state, had its unblemished record halted by Mercer County 66-63 last Friday. Mercer County, 9-11 overall, went in front 65-63 on a basket by Mitch Crump with 20 seconds left and held on after Pulaski's Bryan Crozier missed a three inside the final five seconds. Crozier's three with 49 seconds left had tied the score at 63. Pulaski is now 18-1.

Third Region Battle
Breckinridge County shot a blistering 77 percent from the field to halt host Muhlenberg North's 18-game win streak 58-48. North, now 19-2, suffered its only other defeat to University Heights early in the season and is currently the top defensive team in the state, allowing just 44 points per game this season. Breckinridge County, which won the state title in 1965, is hoping to return to the state tournament for the first time since then. The Fighting Tigers are now 15-1.

Tomcat Turnovers
A big reason for South Hopkins' 16-3 start through the end of January is due to their turnovers. The Tomcats are averaging just 11.7 turnovers per game, as opposed to their opponents, who they have forced into an average of 22.2 per game. In scoring, the Tomcats are led by Brian Hopper who's averaging 27.0 points per game, seventh in the state.

Unique Milestone
Fairdale Bulldog Anthony Wales will be honored at his school on Feb. 17 for an achievement few can claim. Wales now has 1,000 career points, 500 assists and 400 steals.

Super Johnson
Freshman Dennis Johnson carried Harrodsburg to the All "A" regional crown. The 6-6 center, who's the son of National Federation president Alvis Johnson and also a standout football player, scored 34 points and grabbed 12 boards in a semifinal win over Monticello. In the finals against Garrard County, he scored 36 points and had 16 boards in an 86-68 win.

Assist Man
Jeremy Story, a 6-1 senior at Marshall County, became the Marshals career assist leader last week when he registered seven in a 61-54 win over Graves County. Story now has 510, breaking the mark held by Aaron Beth of 503.

1,000-Point Club
• Bullitt East's Tim Couch joined his school's 1,000-point club last week. The 6-2 senior guard presently has 1,088 points.
• Cavema's Patrick Claycomb scored his 1,000th point in his career when he poured in 33 against Adair County.
• Paul Dunbar's Travis Byars scored his 1,000th point in his career last month. The 6-4 senior, who's also a standout in soccer and track, became the Bulldogs third-leading scorer last week after he poured in 27 points against Lafayette, surpassing Lumie Travis' mark of 1,051 points.

2,000 Points
Covington Holy Cross guard Joe Hamey scored his 2,000th career point against Lexington Catholic during the All "A" Classic.

GIRLS

A Tompkinsville Title
Freshman Veronic Carter scored a layup at the buzzer as Monroe County sent Lexington Catholic to defeat in the finals of the All "A" Classic on Sunday. The drive by Carter ended a furious rally inside the final minutes. Catholic led 51-44 with 4:30 left, but Monroe County went on an 8-0 run to finish the game to raise its record to 20-4.

Record Night

• Sophomore Karen Flannery of Garrard County scored nearly two-thirds of her team's points in leading her squad to a 60-51 win over Casey County. Flannery tied a school record with 39 points and also pulled down 24 rebounds, also tying a school record.

• Carla Kersey, a senior guard at Williamsburg, set a new school record of 39 points in a win over Oneida Baptist late last month. Kersey broke the mark held by Debbie Combs of 36 set in 1987.

Outstanding young Pike Countians

The Pikeville Junior Chamber of Commerce has announced the development of the Outstanding Young Pike Countians Program. Beginning this year, the Pikeville Jaycees will select several Outstanding Young Pike Countians whose achievements have been significant to their profession and also to the general welfare of the people.

A winner will be named in each of the following categories: Outstanding Young Educator, Outstanding Young Leader, Outstanding Young Firefighter/EMT, Outstanding Young Police Officer and Outstanding Young Coal Industrialist. All nominees must be at least 21 years of age and not yet forty.

The formal reception and awards program will be held on March 25. If you would like more information or would like a nomination form, contact Chairpersons at 433-1037; or the Pike County Chamber of Commerce at 432-5504.

Guest recital is set for Valentine's Day

Morehead State University's Department of Music will present three accomplished Lexington musicians in a guest recital on Tuesday, February 14, on the MSU campus.

The recital will feature David G. Elliott, an associate professor at the University of Kentucky, on horn, and Transylvania University faculty members Merrilee Elliott, on flute, and Loren Tice, on piano. The performance will begin at 8 p.m. in Duncan Recital Hall.

The program, which is free and open to the public, will include works by Johann Joachim Quantz, Vladimir Ziring, Gary Schocker, Jan Bach and Knud Jeppesen.

Additional information is available from MSU's Department of Music at (606) 783-2473.

Conference

Local educators will take part in a presentation during the annual Kentucky Council of Teachers of English/Language Arts Conference to be held at the Galt House in Louisville on February 17-18.

John Williamson, Jenny Robinson and Winnie Gardner of Johnson Central High School will present "An American Odyssey: Studying Our Culture Through The Arts."

Tickets on sale

Tickets are on sale now for a concert by singer/songwriter Billy Dean at the Paramount Arts Center in Ashland. The show will be on February 17 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $17.50, and can be purchased at the Paramount Box Office. For more information, call (606) 324-3175.

Paintsville Lake project will take visitors back in time this spring

by Clyde Pack
Paintsville-Herald Features

It's not exactly like the time machine H.G. Wells dreamed up, but if all goes as planned, visitors to the Mountain HomePlace at Paintsville Lake, scheduled to open this spring, just might find themselves transported back in time by about 150 years.

"When they step out into the village, we want visitors to feel as if they're back in the 1850s," said Jim Williams, executive director of the Paintsville Tourism Commission.

"The power lines will be gone, and there'll be a six-foot high, landscaped mound constructed near the road so that people can't see outside. Our visitors will see nothing modern, except themselves."

The Mountain HomePlace will portray for visitors a living history of farm life in Johnson County during the mid 1800s. Guests can see, among other things, the old McKenzie farmstead, a double-crib barn, the old Fishtrap church, the McKenzie one-room school, a horse-powered grist mill and a blacksmith shop.

"All these are original buildings from that period, not copies," Williams said. "They've been disassembled from sites throughout Eastern Kentucky, transported here and put together again, exactly like they were. The only new structure on the site will be the visitor center."

However, even the visitor center will have the look of the period as the entrance has been designed to resemble the front of the Old Wiley Rice home on Asa's Creek. This building will feature a gift shop, a room of local and regional artifacts and a 100-seat theatre with a 15 minute video presentation regarding the history of the village to be narrated by actor Richard Thomas.

"What we're doing," Williams explained, "is telling the story of the settlement in this area by our Scotch-Irish and northern European ancestry who settled too late to get agricultural land to the east of the Appalachian and Cumberland Mountains and chose to live in the rugged hill country."

He said that various community civic groups will be volunteering to wear authentic costumes, do the farming, churn the butter, and all the activities that one would expect to have seen back then.

"It will be a very educational experience," Williams said, "and will be within a two-and-a-half hour drive of more than 40,000 students in grades four through six, where Kentucky history is taught. We plan to work with all the school systems throughout the area and hopefully they will want to take advantage of what we

Lowest paid state workers to get hike

Governor Brereton C. Jones has announced that he is raising the salaries of all permanent state employees who currently fall below the federal poverty level guidelines for a family of two.

Currently, the lowest annual starting salary in state government is $8,860. Federal poverty level guidelines set the poverty level for a family of two at $9,840. Under the Jones plan, the lowest annual salary for permanent employees in state government would be $10,788. Salaries of seasonal or part-time employees will not necessarily be affected by this plan.

"I find it intolerable that some state workers who help Kentuckians apply for food stamps are themselves eligible for food stamps because they fall below the poverty level," said governor Jones. "This same situation exists in several areas of state government, and it must be corrected."

More than 4,700 state workers will get pay increases under the plan, including more than 1,000 in the Transportation Cabinet and 1,300 in Human Resources. The increases will come through raising the minimum rates on the salary schedule for state employees who fall in grades 4 through 9, and by raising those permanent employees currently in grade 3 up to grade 4 status.

The salary upgrading will cost nearly $3.8 million, and will come from existing Cabinet funds.

"This is an issue of fairness," said Jones. "Because we have downsized government, we are asking our employees to do more. The least we can do is to ensure that their salaries are above the federal poverty level."

The change will become effective February 16.

Identity of burned body not yet known

State medical officials are conducting a forensic examination to identify the charred remains of a male body found last week near the Magoffin-Morgan County line.

Trooper Ralph Lockard public affairs officer for KSP Post Eight in Morehead said police, following a two-day search, found the burned remains in a garbage dump, situated in a wooded area at the head of Big Spring Branch the morning of Friday, January 27.

Bone fragments were discovered and sent to the state medical examiner's office in Frankfort for forensic testing. Tests confirmed that the bones found were from a human, said Lockard.

Lockard said Kentucky State Police Detective Lee Weddington, of the KSP Post Nine in Pikeville, is investigating the case's possible connection with Johnny Simpkins, a Magoffin County man who has been missing since September.

Simpkins was reported to be last seen on the evening of September 24 with a long-time friend at his mobile home, located about one mile west of Salyersville near the junction of Routes 460 and 30.

Law enforcement officials are hopeful that forensic tests will confirm the identity of the victim.

"I have already picked up the dental records of Johnny Simpkins and sent them to the state medical examiner's office," Weddington said Tuesday, January 31. "We have no way of knowing yet if the remains are of Simpkins."

There have been no further updates in the investigation.

Pike guardrail contractor under state investigation

The state's dealings with an Eastern Kentucky guardrail contractor have drawn the attention of federal investigators as part of a broadening probe of the Transportation Cabinet, according to a published report.

The Pikeville-based contractor — AnPat Inc. — has received about $2.7 million in contracts through a state program for disadvantaged firms, The Courier-Journal reported Saturday, February 4.

A subpoena issued December 27 and served on the cabinet's internal auditor sought records including an "audit file" relating to the cabinet's certification of AnPat as a "disadvantaged business enterprise," the newspaper reported.

State and federal highway officials began examining the company's certification in December to determine whether it met guidelines for the enterprise program, which is designed to help firms headed by minorities or women.

Maurice Sweeney, the transportation cabinet's director of minority affairs, said Friday, February 3, that the review may be finished next week.

AnPat is owned by Barbara Adams Deskins of Pikeville, but leases office space and equipment from companies controlled by her father, Stuart Adams, a former highway contractor who now works in home construction.

West Virginia refused to let AnPat participate in its enterprise program, saying the company was too dependent on the Stuart Adams companies.

Adams, however, has said that his daughter was in total control of AnPat. Deskins has not responded to repeated telephone calls.

Deskins bought AnPat in 1993 from Lt. Gov. Paul Patton and his wife, Judi, who needed to sell it after they moved to Frankfort from Pike County.

Under the Pattons' ownership,

AnPat Development Corp. had been a landscaping business, with side-lines in interior design and wedding consulting, records show.

Deskins expanded the product line and applied for state certification as a disadvantaged business to supply guardrails and landscaping for state projects. By June 1993, she received that certification, records show.

Deskins bought the company with a check signed by her father in January 1993, records show. The Pattons were paid $150,000; the sales agreement indicates that was for AnPat's equipment, inventory, accounts, cash on hand and name. Patton said his family made no profit on the deal.

Paul Patton said Friday, February 3, that he had been unaware of any federal investigation of the business. He said that he had played no role in the company after he sold it, that he never intervened on its behalf with state officials and that he was sure the federal investigation had nothing to do with him.

He said he assumed the grand jury's interest revolved around AnPat's participation in the enterprise program.

Paintsville med school employs dean, coordinator

Although plans are in the preliminary stage for a medical school in Paintsville, two top officials have already been named for the facility.

The board of trustees for the Southern College of Osteopathic Medicine, Inc., recently chose Dr. O.J. Bailes as the school's dean. Bailes was a founder and administration member of a similar school in West Virginia.

The board also named Dr. James K. Clary as clinical coordinator. Clary will coordinate the rotation of students among doctor offices and hospitals.

The school isn't scheduled to open until August 1996, but Paintsville attorney Chad Perry, who is spearheading efforts to build the facility, said Monday the board needed to name a dean early in order for the project to be approved. "He won't officially be on the payroll until January 1996," Perry said.

Final jury was expected Wednesday in murder trial

Individual questioning of jurors ended Tuesday in the double murder trial of 19-year-old Scott Pennington, and the second phase of the selection process—group questioning of the panel—began Wednesday morning in Johnson Circuit Court.

The panel will be questioned as a group and reduced to 32 before a final jury is selected.

The first phase of jury selection began last Thursday with prosecution and defense attorneys asking jurors if they had read or heard anything about the case and what their feelings were on the death penalty. Group questioning will consist of general issues.

Numerous jurors were excused from sitting on the case Tuesday. Special judge Samuel Long said Tuesday that the trial would last two to three weeks.

Daniels working to locate funding for school programs

Johnson County Schools Grant Writing coordinator Debbie Daniels is involved, as one of her many district responsibilities, in locating funding opportunities for school programs.

Daniels is currently working with Middle School administrator Steve Whitaker on a grant proposal to fund a Youth Service Center for his school.

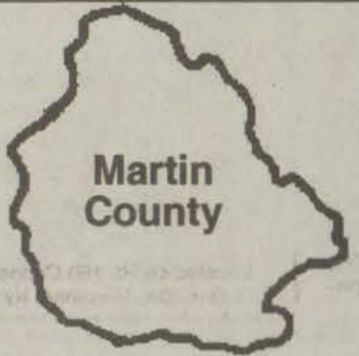

Daniels says that announcements for grants come to districts weekly, but gathering data and finding time to write the proposals is a big undertaking.

Death under investigation

Officials are investigating a fire that killed a Williamsport woman last Saturday afternoon.

State police said Linda Sue Ward Litteral's body was found in the bedroom of her home after members of the Williamsport Volunteer Fire Department extinguished the blaze, which was reported at 2:30 p.m.

Litteral, 40, was pronounced dead by Coroner J.R. Frisby. No foul play is expected.

Martin County

Flood project on track

Martin County officials met with state officials Monday to discuss the proposed $70 million flood project for the Tug Valley area, a project that will affect an estimated 700 homes.

The project would be conducted on a voluntary basis. Residents who live in the affected areas would have three options: to allow the government to purchase their property at a fair market value, to allow their structures to be elevated out of the flood plain, or to refuse to participate in the project at all.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is currently conducting a survey of the area which will be ready by mid-March.

and Chief Deputy Pete Fitzpatrick were both notified by U.S. Congressman Harold Rogers that the City of Inez and the Martin County Sheriff's office qualify for federal grant money for additional law enforcement.

The grants, $38,250 for Inez and $58,662 for the County sheriff's department, were funded through the U.S. Department of Justice's Community Policing Program, which was designed to help provide law enforcement for areas with fewer than 50,000 people.

The grant money can be used to pay 75 percent of additional police officers' salaries and training costs for three years. With the grant money, the city may hire one additional officer and the sheriff may hire an additional deputy.

The county currently pays the salary of two full-time deputies.

Cops bust flyboy

Martin County Sheriff Darrel Young arrested a former candidate for Martin County sheriff for allegedly beating and threatening his wife.

James Mineer Sr., manager of the Big Sandy Regional Airport, surrendered to Young and three Kentucky State Police officers after being persuaded to do so by Chief Deputy Pete Fitzpatrick.

Mineer was charged with first degree wanton endangerment, carrying a concealed deadly weapon (police found a .357 magnum handgun inside Mineer's pickup truck), violation of a domestic violence order and terroristic threatening. He was lodged in the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center.

The project will make two "cut-through" channels, ranging from 50 feet to 220 feet deep, will be more than a half-mile apart and serve as overflow channels for the Licking River during high water.

Land acquisition is expected to begin in March. Construction is expected to start in March 1996 and be completed by April 1998.

PSI, self assertiveness courses in second year at local school

The PSI (Postponing Sexual Involvement) Program, now in its second year in Magoffin County schools, utilizes Magoffin County High School juniors and seniors as teen leaders to work with students at Herald Whitaker Middle School.

The teen leaders receive training and they are always accompanied by an adult facilitator in the classroom.

The goal of PSI is to assist adolescents in postponing the initiation of sexual pressures which influence adolescent behavior and to deal with the peer pressure through the use of assertive responses.

For more information about the PSI program, call Peggi Jordan at the Health Department at 349-6212.

Pike school board member's ouster sought

Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen asked the state Board of Education Wednesday to oust veteran Pike County school board member Carl Biliter for allegedly interfering with hiring practices.

Biliter, 68, of Majestic, served four terms on the board until he lost in 1988. He regained the post in 1992.

Head-on collision kills one

A head-on collision on U.S. 460 near Daniels Creek claimed the life of an Elkhorn City woman and sent three other people to the hospital Monday morning.

Police said Tammy Estep of Elkhorn City was traveling westbound on U.S. 460 in a pickup truck and Vinson Johnson of Rockhouse was traveling eastbound when both vehicles collided. Jeanna Coleman, 24, a passenger in Johnson's vehicle was pronounced dead on the scene by Pike County Coroner Charles Morris.

Both drivers and one other passenger were taken to Pikeville Methodist Hospital. The accident is still under investigation by the KSP.

PSG expenses questioned

Pikeville City Commission will audit PSG Inc., its utility service contractor, because of some bills it considers questionable. Questions about PSG's spending practices surfaced last month when commissioners met in regular session on January 23.

Discrepancies in the bills include a car rental paid for out of the parts budget and repairs on a company-leased vehicle. PSG officials have said they would be willing to check any questioned expenses and report back to the commission.

Ret. Colonel remembered

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

He was a former editor of a Floyd County newspaper, a writer and a historian, but Retired Colonel James Darwin Stephens will be best remembered for his achievements as a career army officer.

The Prestonsburg native died Tuesday, January 31, at his home in Georgetown, leaving behind a list of military achievements and medals that earned him the rank of Colonel.

After retiring from the military in 1976, the Colonel wrote a history about his alma mater titled Reflections: A Portrait-Biography of the Kentucky Military Institute (1845-1971), Vol. 1. He was also a member of several veterans organizations, as well as the Kentucky and Filson Club Historical societies.

James, a high achiever who accomplished much in his 78 years, came from a long line of achievers. His father, Henry Clay Stephens, was born in a log cabin on Caney Fork of Middle Creek, where his Virginian ancestors settled. He would become a prominent Floyd County politician in the 1940s through 60s. His mother, Julia Beatrice (Conley) Stephens, was born at Bonanza on Abbott Creek. Her maternal grandmother, Agnes Poe Hackworth, was a relative of U.S. Supreme Court Justice John Marshall.

Henry and Julia met in 1909 at the Kentucky Normal School at Louisa where they were training to become teachers. One of their classmates was Frederick Moore Vinson, future Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

The couple married in 1912 and taught in a one-room log school on Spurlock Fork on Middle Creek. After three years of teaching, Henry was elected to the office of circuit court clerk for two terms. He then served as deputy clerk for two terms under Oliver Hanson Stumbo. A later bid for county judge was unsuccessful.

In 1939, Henry was elected Circuit Judge of the 31st Kentucky Judicial District, comprised of Floyd and Knott counties. He served as judge throughout the World War II years.

Earlier, Julia left her teaching position at Spurlock to teach at Pres-tonsburg where she taught until her sons entered military school in 1927.

In 1948, Henry and Julia, who lived in Prestonsburg, divorced after 36 years of marriage. Julia moved to Georgetown and taught elementary school in Owen County. At age 65, she received her bachelor's degree from Georgetown College. She taught in schools in Indiana until her retirement at age 78. She died in 1978 at the age of 87 and is buried at the Conley family cemetery at Bonanza.

A few years after Henry and Julia divorced, he married Katherine Leake. The couple built a house on the corner of Graham and Maple in Prestonsburg. Later, he was re-elected as circuit court clerk.

Henry died in 1974 and was buried at Richmond Cemetery on South Lake Drive.

James and his older brother Edgar attended Prestonsburg Elementary through the sixth grade, then enrolled at Kentucky Military Institute. Both graduated from the military school in 1933. James pursued a journalism degree at the University of Kentucky, graduating with an A.B. degree in 1938. He earned an M.A. degree in history in 1973. Edgar graduated from UK with a degree in commerce and worked as a teller at First National Bank (now Commonwealth) of Prestonsburg. After being called for active service in the army in 1941, Edgar was honorably discharged due to physical disability. He worked in Oak Ridge, Tennessee for the Tennessee-Eastman Company, which was under contract with the "Top Secret" Manhattan Project to produce the United States' first atomic bomb. Later, he worked for an automobile manufacturer in Michigan. He returned to Floyd County where he worked as an accountant until his death in 1983.

After college, James was hired as editor of the Floyd County Independent newspaper until the paper was sold to the Floyd County Times. Then he, too, worked as a teller at First National Bank. As a reserve officer in the United States Army, James was ordered into active duty on April 10, 1941. Thus began his military career.

At least three of James' ancestors served in the military. His maternal great-great-great-grandfather Thomas Connelly served under General Edward Braddock in the French and Indian War. Thomas' grandson, Captain Henry Connelly, was a cavalry officer under Colonel Billy Washington and General Nathaniel Greene during the American Revolution. James' paternal great-grandfather, George Washington Stephens, of Caney Fork, served in the 13th Cavalry of the Confederate States Army.

James' illustrious military career spanned 23 years, one-fourth of which was spent overseas. He was a veteran of World War II, the Korea and Vietnam Wars. He served under flags of three nations: United States, Britain and France. During World War II, he was a member of the British Civil Affairs Group that landed on Normandy beaches on D-Day, June 6, 1944. Later, he was a member of the 12th Armored Division attached to the French First Army that saw action in two major campaigns.

In Germany in 1945, the Colonel's division discovered a Nazi concentration camp at Kaufering. There were 12 survivors among 4,000 people who died. At Unter-Finngang he was among the liberators of 1,100 Royal Army Troops; at Mumau, he set free the entire officer staff and remnant defenders of the Polish army, who had been held prisoner by the Nazis since October 1939.

For his military exploits, James received recommendations for 23 awards, decorations and service medals, including three medals from France and one from Britain. He was also a founding member of the American Air Force Museum in Britain. He retired from the U.S. army in 1976 and made his home at Georgetown. Over the years the Colonel kept in touch with his hometown by writing letters to the editor of the Floyd County Times. He also delivered the eulogy at his brother Edgar's funeral held on December 9, 1983 in Prestonsburg.

After his funeral on February 3, the Colonel was paid tribute with full military rites. He was buried in Lexington Cemetery, leaving behind his widow Glenda Cannon Stephens, three sons and four grandsons.

also is focusing on a state program that sends money to counties for improvements on certain roads. The probe came to light last November when the FBI began reviewing equipment rental contracts let through the cabinet's district office in Manchester.

Subpoenas served on state transportation officials during the past two months demanded records related to AnPat as well as the Rural and Secondary Road Program, the newspaper said. A third subpoena sought still more information on equipment rental contracts — from the Somerset district office as well as the Manchester office.

A subpoena issued December 22 sought records on road projects funded through the state's Rural and Secondary Road Program in the cabinet's Somerset office, the newspaper said. The subpoena provided no indication why the grand jury is interested in the program.

The program sends 22.2 percent of state gas-tax revenues to counties for work on roads that are not within major cities and not part of the federal highway system.

This fiscal year, it will distribute about $85 million to the counties. The money is distributed under a formula that accounts for a county's rural road mileage, the size of its rural population and its total land area.

YMCA to offer summer day camp

When both parents work outside the home, children need a fun yet educational place to spend the dog days of summer. The YMCA Summer Day Camp provides such a place. It is an indoor/outdoor child program, offered June through August, at two locations—The Hambley Community Center in Pikeville, and the Virgie School. Both Summer Day Camps, offered by the Pikeville Area Family YMCA, feature weekly field trips and daily swimming activities.

have to offer. We think they will want to incorporate us into their curriculum."

Williams also cited a 1993 traffic survey which indicated that 14,300 cars per day go south and 12,000 cars per day go north through Paintsville.

"That means that on an average of 3.2 people per car, we have 80,000 people per day passing through this city," Williams said. "We developed this project in an attempt to find something unique to get people to want to stop here."

The 40-acre site was donated by the Corps of Engineers as the result of a cooperative agreement among the Corps, Paintsville Tourism, the Paintsville Lake Historical Association and the city of Paintsville, through which funding for the project was made possible via a $1.5 million bond.

The University of Kentucky will also assist in presenting an accurate portrait of the past by offering assistance in determining exactly what crops are to be planted on the site.

"We want to make sure that the crops grown are the same varieties as those grown back then," said Jerry

Little, Johnson County extension agent. "Whether it be Indian corn or oats, we want absolutely everything to be as authentic as possible."

Although Williams emphasized that the Mountain HomePlace has come together as a result of many hours spent by the volunteer tourism commission, as well as "countless other individuals," the hiring of Bronelle Skaggs as the project consultant last November is the reason the project is so near a reality.

"Bronelle has been able to procure at least half a dozen original buildings for us, and it's through his efforts that we're where we are today," Williams said.

In addition to the permanent displays, Williams said that plans also called for utilizing local craftsmen in the quest for authenticity.

"We'll have people come out and actually show how folks back then did things," he said. "If we have someone make lye soap, then we'll sell that soap in our shop. Whatever we do at the village will deal with the period of time we're attempting to depict. We won't be selling any rubber tomahawks."

- FEBRUARY 20, 1792 - George Washington signed the Postal Act. This created the per-mile rate, and originated the Federal Postal System. If a letter went 30 miles, it cost 6 cents. Then the farther it went, the more it cost.
- FEBRUARY 21, 1885 - The Washington Monument was dedicated by President Chester Arthur. It was 555' 5-1/8" tall, and took 102 years to complete! Work had to be stopped several times because of money problems.
- FEBRUARY 22, 1732 - George Washington was born in Fredericksburg, VA. His salary after he became president was $25,000, and he really gave a short inaugural speech - 90 seconds long!
- FEBRUARY 23, 1885 - English officials tried to hang a murderer, John Lee. Everytime they tried to release the trap door - it stuck! Then they changed his sentence to life in prison.
- FEBRUARY 24, 1937 - Famous New York Yankee baseball star, Lou Gehrig was given a screen test for the role of Tarzan.
- FEBRUARY 25, 1836 - Inventor Samuel Colt patented his revolver.

News of the Weird

by Chuck Shepherd

Among the recent uses of DNA genetic "fingerprinting": Scientists at Oxford University are using it to determine the gender of the world's rarest bird, the Brazilian blue Spix macaw, whose males ostensibly completely resemble females. Authorities in Cocoa, Fla., filed cattle rustling charges against two men in November after matching the DNA of a calf that was the offspring of a purebred, slaughtered cow with the DNA in an uncooked slab of pot roast the men allegedly sold after cutting it from the cow.

THE CONTINUING CRISIS

-- Gordon Davey, 30, was named in November by a TV show in London as Britain's most boring man, after he waxed rhapsodic about his extensive collection of brown paper, which he said has fascinated him ever since he was an art student. Said Davey, "I shall obviously have to try to be more interesting and less obsessive."

-- Police in Washington, D.C., and its Maryland and Virginia suburbs conducted a three-week campaign in November to increase motorist awareness of traffic signals, including the mass distribution of "I Stop for Red Lights" bumper stickers.

-- California's January 1994 earthquake officially killed 58 people, but within six months, the state had received almost 400 requests for the $6,000 burial grants from federal disaster funds, by people claiming their dead relatives perished because of the quake.

-- According to a Thanksgiving press release from the Butterball company, the highlight of calls to the company's emergency hotline occurred in 1993 when a woman reported that her pet Chihuahua had jumped into the cavity of the family's turkey and was stuck.

-- In November, Japan's Economic Planning Agency, in an annual report, called on Japanese husbands to participate more in family activities. Agency surveys estimated that 85 percent of husbands "never" help their wives with household chores, and that younger women, knowing this, are increasingly declining marriage, resulting in a falling birth rate that alarms the agency.

-- In October, William Soule, 71, on probation on DUI charges in Dubuque, Iowa, turned himself in and said he'd rather go to jail. Said Soule, "I can't take another year of probation." And in September, Kansas prisoner Joe Carr, 77, convicted of murder in 1941, passed up his parole-board hearing for the 15th consecutive time. But another Kansas inmate, murderer Marvin D. Brockett, 64, is vying for parole. Since age 7, Brockett has been free of correctional facilities for a total of only three years.

WHAT GOES AROUND, COMES AROUND

-- In July, Robert Minahan, a chef who specializes in crocodile cuisine at a resort in the Kakadu National Park in Australia, was attacked by a 6-foot crocodile while swimming at Barramundi Gorge. Said Minahan, "It feels strange to be on the other end of the food chain."

-- In Grand Junction, Colo., in September, retired Chicago police officer Arthur R. Smith, 56, allegedly a hit man who fired several gunshots at Rita Quam, but missed, had a heart attack and died when police officers arrived to arrest him.

-- In September, four women, using a chemical spray, allegedly attacked another woman who had beaten them to a parking space at the Galleria mall in Glendale, Calif., sending the woman to the hospital.

Popperri

by Scott Perry

Some whacko editorial writer had the gall this week to suggest that President Clinton had better things to do than stick his nose into Major League baseball, where owners and players are rounding third and heading for another non-season.

Such babblings are further evidence that most editorial writers haven't a clue about what is important to the American people and they probably couldn't catch an infield fly if their ball and glove were fashioned out of Velcro®.

Let's get one thing straight.

Baseball isn't a game, it's an institution.

Baseball is history.

If you asked the average 40-year-old kid on the street to list the most recognizable figures in U.S. history, chances are that four out of the top five would be baseball players like Ruth, Gehrig, DiMaggio and Mays.

The fifth would probably be a toss up between John Wayne and John Bobbitt.

Baseball is bigger than the whinning, overpaid, under-skilled, jewelry-clad clowns who parade as players these days.

And it's bigger than the greedy, grubbing geeks who happen to own the franchises.

Baseball is the diversion that helped us get through some pretty bleak times, including a depression, four wars, and Jimmy Carter's presidency.

So if Bill Clinton wants to help get the game back on track, more power to him.

Hey, he can even suit up if he wants to.

But let's not be led astray by pencil-pushing dopes who think ERA is a women's issue and a pop-up is something you toast for breakfast.

These are the same guys who believe that government ought to regulate our every move and protect us from our poor misguided selves.

Hmmp.

LEGENDS OF THE FALL

This is a sweeping film of such magnitude, I believe it is destined to be an American classic.

Directed by Edward Zwick ("Glory"), it is the tale of three brothers, Samuel (Henry Thomas), Alfred (Aidan Quinn) and Tristan (Brad Pitt). Their father, Col. Ludlow (Anthony Hopkins), served in the Army during the Army-Indian wars. Sick of the carnage, Ludlow fled to Montana with his oh-so-proper Eastern wife where they built a ranch. Ultimately, the wife can't take the isolation and hard life, so she leaves her husband and the boys.

Left to rear his sons alone, his American Indian friend, One Stab, whom Ludlow had brought with him to Montana, helps out with the boys. The youngest, Tristan, in particular, is fascinated by tales of Indian life. In fact, he feels much more comfortable with Indian ways than in so-called "polite" society.

When Samuel comes back from college with a fiancée in tow (Susannah portrayed by Julia Ormond), Alfred is immediately attracted to her. However, he doesn't act on it out of loyalty to his brother. Susannah, in turn, is turned on by Tristan and his wildness.

Samuel announces he is going to Europe to fight in World War I and defeats the Kaiser. Alfred and Tristan enlist as well. Once there, Tristan fails to save his oldest brother, Samuel, from a German soldier. He returns to Montana to bring back his brother's remains and immediately falls into a wild affair with Susannah.

Ultimately, Tristan can't deal with the guilt he's feeling, and leaves to "find himself" by living alone in the mountains. Enter Alfred, fresh from the war. He wins the prize by successfully convincing Susannah to marry him.

The film continues for another two decades in much the same manner with offspring being born, etc., etc., However, it is never boring and is, for lack of a better word, grandiose.

There is so much to this movie, I highly recommend you see it. It is allegorical and enlightening and shouldn't be missed.

The Weekend

WYLLA

Outlaw sound of Waylon

The Troubadour Concert Series, now in its third year, is bringing some of the hottest names in country to the stage of the Paramount Arts Center.

One of those entertainers has achieved legendary status in the world of country music. Country music star, singer and songwriter Waylon Jennings, who started the famed Outlaw movement in country music with partners Willie Nelson, Johnny Cash and Kris Kristofferson, will perform a rare solo concert at the Paramount Arts Center in Ashland on Friday, April 7, at 8 p.m.

Jennings is one of a handful of towering figures behind country music's current phenomenal success.

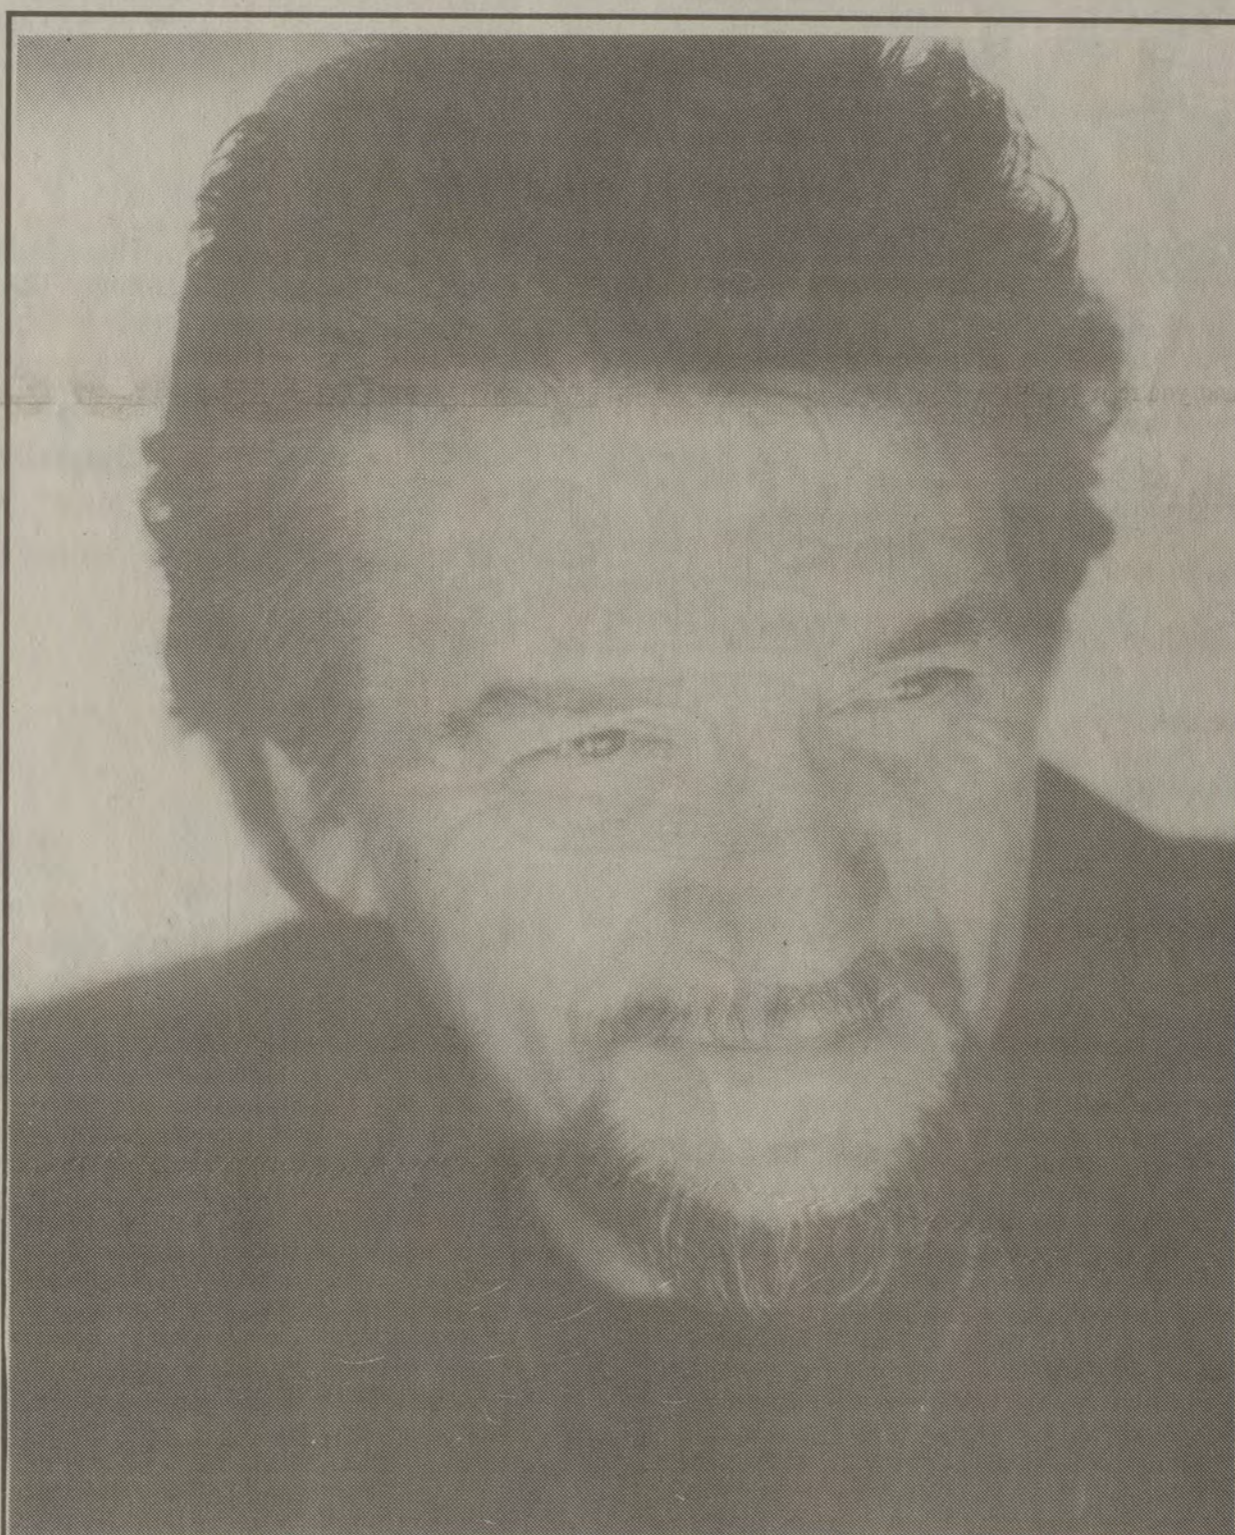

At a time when country's audience easily embraces diversity and when platinum albums are getting to be more and more common, Waylon stands as a true forerunner, a pioneer who was among the first to pull north and south, rural and city, college kids and blue collar workers into a unified movement and who was the first, both as a solo artist and on the collaboration Wanted: The Outlaws, to go platinum as a country artist.

Modern country music owes much of its broad-based appeal and rugged individualism to Waylon, a man whose career stretches from the mid-'50s, when he was a protégé of Buddy Holly, through four decades whose music he has helped shape. He has influenced instrumental and vocal styles, shaped attitudes and launched major trends, all by staying true to himself and his vision.

Along the way, he has won Grammys and CMA awards while connecting with his audience in a way that few have, becoming one of the industry's true all-time legends in the process.

Born in 1937 in Littlefield, Texas, he grew up listening to folk songs and the music of seminal artists like Jimmie Rodgers, and later, to singers that ranged from Hank Williams, Ernest Tubb and Webb Pierce to B.B. King and Bobbie "Blue" Bland. He was a disc jockey at 12, and he formed his own band not long afterward, making guest appearances on local station KLLL's "Sunday Dance Party," where he met Holly in

The legendary outlaw

The public can expect a close intimate performance by the multi-Grammy award winner and movie star Waylon Jennings when he performs in concert at the Paramount Arts Center in Ashland. Jennings has had 16 number one hit records, 14 gold and platinum albums and has appeared in over 12 movies, recently with Mel Gibson in Maverick. Tickets are available now at the Paramount Arts Center Box Office at (606) 324-3175.

OFF LIMITS

It's amazing how many seemingly healthy motorists you see pattering around in vehicles with physically challenged stickers dangling from their rearview mirrors like baby booties or mortarboard tassels. This is not to say that they don't deserve this designated status, but for a one-eyed driver whose only physically challenged rank is a restriction to a left rearview mirror, I feel cheated.

Truthfully, I think physically challenged parking spaces were long overdue. There were many times when I watched physically challenged persons struggle to find parking places in crowded parking lots which made it difficult for them to get access into stores. That's why I was elated when physically challenged stickers were issued. But now that having a physically challenged sticker has obviously become a status symbol, everybody has gotten into the act.

If physically challenged stickers had been in vogue when my father was alive we could have avoided many embarrassing moments. One such incident occurred while in the parking lot at Churchill Downs race track in Louisville. Dad, who suffered from crippling rheumatoid arthritis in his hands and shoulders, feared he was going to miss the Daily Double so he coerced mother to pull into the "Physically Challenged Parking" lane.

"I'm sorry, but this is physically challenged parking only," the attendant told him.

examine his swollen knuckles, a trolley that transported patrons to the main gate pulled up near our car. Daddy immediately sprung from the car leaving the door ajar and sprinted to the trolley like Carl Lewis on steroids. The attendant's mouth gaped open in amazement as mother's face turned crimson. At that moment, a physically challenged sticker would have made things easier on everybody concerned.

Personally, I don't park in designated physically challenged parking spaces. Not even for a second and not even if the parking space is in front of a certain store and the owner tells me to park there. This is all due to experience, which by the way, is the best teacher. I once parked in a physically challenged space, but I got cured. The cure? Twenty-five dollars. It was painful, but it cured the disease. At least it put it in remission and it has never reappeared.

What really scares me though is if there are as many physically challenged persons driving around as there appears to be, there will soon be a shortage of parking spaces. Maybe we should put several physically challenged parking areas in more remote areas of parking lots. Maybe then some of the people with the physically challenged stickers could improve their health by being forced to walk longer distances. But in all probability the persons with the most severe physical challenges would be the ones forced into this undesirable position.

The day will probably arrive when I am in need of a "special sticker," denoting my limited ability, but until then I hope someone abolishes "parallel" parking because at the present time that's as strenuous as it gets for me.

Waylon

1955. "Mainly what I learned from Buddy," Waylon says, "was an attitude. He loved music, and he taught me that it shouldn't have any barriers to it."

Holly produced Waylon's first record and used him as a bass player — it was Waylon who gave up his seat to the big bopper on the plane that would crash, killing Holly and Ritchie Valens as well. By the early-to mid-'60s, Waylon was headlining a club called JD's in Phoenix, putting out a sound that combined his "chicken-pickin'" Telecaster guitar style, his rough-edged, soulful vocal style and an eclectic repertoire that often borrowed from rock and rockabilly.

In 1975, Waylon was named the Country Music Association's Male Vocalist of the Year and, in 1976, he helped found a movement that would change the face of country.

In that year, Waylon, Willie, Jessi Colter (who had married Waylon in '69) and Tompall Glaser teamed up for Wanted: The Outlaws, became the first platinum (one million units) album ever recorded in Nashville. It also helped Waylon and Willie sweep that year's CMA Awards, winning Best Album, Best Single and Best Vocal Duo (for "Good-Hearted Woman").

This period found Waylon hitting Billboard's Number-One singles spot with song after song, from 1974's "This Time" through "Are You Sure Hank Done It This Way," "Amanda," "Ain't Living Long Like This" and "Just to Satisfy You," among others. In 1978, he would win his second Grammy for Best Country Vocal Performance by a Duo or Group for "Mammas, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up To Be Cowboys," with Willie Nelson.

His albums were great chart and sales successes as well, with eight consecutive LPs going gold (there have been 13 altogether). Ol' Waylon, released in 1977, became the first country album by a solo artist to go platinum, and Greatest Hits, two years later, entered uncharted territory by going quadruple platinum.

Since the mid-'80s he has been part of another superstar foursome: The Highwaymen (Waylon and Willie, Johnny Cash and Kris Kristofferson) have turned their four-way collaboration into hit records and highly successful tours.

Other highlights of this year include appearances on Fox-TV's "Married With Children," where he played a wizened mountain prophet named Ironhead Haynes; and a cameo part in the Maverick movie, for which he also contributed "You Don't Mess Around With Me" to the soundtrack. He has toured Australia, appeared at Fan Fair '94, recorded duets with Travis Tritt & Hank, Jr., and most recently, re-recorded his 70's hit, "Rainy Day Woman" with Mark Chesnutt for Mark's September '94 release on MCA Records. He has also begun work on his authorized autobiography with writer-musician Lenny Kaye, scheduled for release by Warner Books this fall.

Waylon's contributions to the country music industry he helped shape continue unabated. The man who has done so much to define the edge and the attitudes that are part of the current parameters of country continues, through his records and performances, to add to his status as one of the giants of the business.

NATASHA'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A time in which you'll be reassessing the recent past begins this week. Be sure to take advantage of social opportunities which come your way. Later in the week, you're in a reflective mood.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You'll be re-evaluating the role friendships and club activities play in your life in the coming months. However, this particular week doesn't especially favor any social interests.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A turning point will soon be reached in your attitude about your career in general. Get things straight in your own mind before presenting new ideas to others. Some things need polishing.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) In coming months, you could feel the need for furthering your education. One field of interest in particular appeals to you. A small difference could occur about a financial concern now.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You will soon have a new attitude about the best way to insure long-range financial security. It's a good idea to make plans to restructure your debt. However, after you consolidate everything, don't run up those charge cards again.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You could be exaggerating the importance of a small slip-up on your part. Don't be so hard on yourself. It's not exactly an earth-shattering event. The coming months will bring major relationship decisions.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You soon could be asked to assume greater responsibilities in connection with work. Make sure, however, that you are compensated for this. Later in the week, get some chores out of the way before inviting people over.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A casual relationship could turn into something more serious during the next few months for the single folks among you. Much is on your mind now and you're not exactly in the mood for much weekend socializing.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your attention will be turning to home improvements and repairs in the coming months. Your powers of communication suffer now and it's not the best time for getting others interested in your ideas.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A desire for self-improvement could send you back to school in the coming months. You are champing at the bit to master a new skill. A travel plan could be put on hold this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll soon begin a systematic savings plan and could institute some budgeting as part of your financial planning. Allow yourself some flexibility in this. A rigid, unrealistic plan could cause problems rather than solve them.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The world will be seeing a more serious and practical you in the coming months. You'll be taking steps to insure the realization of your dreams and goals. Loved ones approve.

Grant broke off with Lorna, sending her back to drinking. Amanda finally learned of Grant's affair with Lorna and demanded a divorce from him. A protective Carl took Amanda home and threatened Grant's life. Frankie filled Joe in on the investigation of Bailey Thompson. Wait To See: The Millers find themselves in an expected dilemma.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Damian was tortured by images of Holden and Lily's affair. As Damian arrived home to find Lily gone, Holden was rushing to the farm to free Lily and Emma from Hans. Sam rejected Lucinda's bid to work things out. Lisa was puzzled by a strange phone call. Later, Lisa anticipated a romantic evening with Eduardo, unaware of the chaos that would engulf her. Margo and Hal closed in on Hans. Holden and Caleb cared for Lily, who was unaware that Damian never left Oakdale. Wait To See: Explosive emotions erupt.

BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: James called Taylor to tell her Jack had had a heart attack and was seriously ill. Reminded by Mike that she could be in danger if James and Lauren compared notes on what they knew about her, Sheila tried to call Lauren, but was rebuffed. Taylor got to the hospital and into her father's room where she prayed for him. Furious that Sally refused to give him 50 percent of her company, Anthony vowed to stop Macy from marrying a home, whom he blamed for ruining his chances with Macy. Wait To See: Taylor must make a decision about her future, while Sheila worries about her past coming back to haunt her.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Tony and Kristen were shocked to find John would officiate at their wedding vow renewal. Meanwhile, a possessed Marlena set a fire trapping Tony, Kristen, and John inside. Seeing Marlena's indifference to her friends' possible fate, Stefano realized something had happened to her. Jennifer was injured when the car hit a snowbank, and Jack cared for her until Peter turned up. Gabe visited John. Later, to John's horror, the desecrator who fell for his trap turned out to be Marlena. Wait To See: The Devil will still want his due.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Felicia returned home and discussed responsible sex with Robin, who had already had her first experience with Stone. Joe's arrival stirred suspicion among Mike, Luke, and Mac, but Sonny was happy to have his mentor around. Lily and Miguel returned to Puerto Rico to confront their baby's adoptive parents with the truth. Wait To See: Miguel and Lily get a shocking response.

GUIDING LIGHT: A jealous Roger seethed at the idea of Fletcher being with Holly. Apologizing for their disastrous date, Annie asked Josh for a raincheck. As Eleni tried to get to Christo's Island, Frank tried to cough up airfare to Greece. Alexandra was upset about Alan checking up on Tangie's return flight, but was pleased that Roger and Holly hadn't reconciled. Nick was upset about the lies he and Mindy told during the adoption interview. Wait To See: Roger acts on a dangerous impulse.

LOVING: As Dinah Lee and Trucker got close to finding Jeff and Trisha, they were detained by the police. Cooper asked Ally for the engagement ring she was to hold for him. But Casey had already pawned the ring for cash to buy drugs. Jeremy and Ava officially dissolved the Burnell's partnership Gilbert had started. Wait To See: Casey gets into deeper trouble, while Clay schemes about Deborah.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Blair told her mother, Addie, she planned to marry Todd. Later, she told Todd she was pregnant with their child, hoping the news would prompt him to marry her. Tina was stunned when David revealed Todd is her real brother. Viki's alter personality, Jean, ordered Dorian to write a letter to Joey saying she's in Spain with David. Wait To See: Dorian realizes her situation could literally become one of life and death.

YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Detective Morgan told Chris

they planned a chemical analysis on paint chips from the vehicle that ran her and Paul down. Phyllis told Danny she'll grant him a divorce, but only if he agrees to spend four months with her and their baby first. After learning Kay planned to testify for John, Jill went after her. John, meanwhile, sensed victory and sent Mamie off to get vacation resort brochures and a resort wear wardrobe with his credit card. Nikki threw Jack out when he came by to invite her to his wedding to Luan. Dr. Randall tried to get Sharon to tell her story of the rape to the police. Unaware that Matt was eavesdropping, Sharon later tried to warn Amy about dating Matt. Wait To See: Luan faces a desperate health crisis.

Police went to the parking lot, looking for the women, and found them having an argument outside their car because the keys were locked inside. After finding the chemical spray, police charged the women with assault, then helped open the car -- and found shoplifted clothing in the back seat.

-- The Chicago Tribune, reporting in July on the trial of a marriage matchmaker in Guangzhou Province, related the testimony of a barber who agreed to offer his unwilling wife to the matchmaker for a scam in which they would sell the woman to a farmer, collect the fee, then immediately retrieve her. The barber was first cheated out of the promised reward and now faces life in prison for selling his wife. Furthermore, the wife preferred the farmer, anyway, and will not be returning to the barber.

I DON'T THINK SO

-- In November, acting on a tip, Juneau, Alaska, police raided the hotel room of an Oregon man and found cocaine and $10,000 in cash, which the man later relinquished in his haste to leave the state before charges were filed. When police asked him why he had such a large amount of cash, he said it was given to him by a woman (whose name he could not recall) as a reward for great sex.

-- Ener Arcilla Henson, 34, was arrested in Glendale, Calif., in January and charged with stealing a "humvee" military vehicle from the local National Guard armory. Police said Henson was driving the vehicle at night without lights, refused to acknowledge them when they signaled him to pull over, and said, when finally stopped, that President Clinton had given him the humvee.

COUNTRY CHATTER

Q. Is it true that Tracy Lawrence was once almost murdered? Donna H.

A. Well, a few years ago, our beloved Mr. L. was indeed shot four times at the Shoney's Inn located in Demonbreau down in Dixie. The shots injured his hip, knee, arm and finger.

However, there is a happy ending to this tragedy. After many prestigious awards, in 1993, Tracy courted and married the beautiful Frances Weatherford.

And, is he down to earth? Oh, yeah! Tracy takes care of his dog when he makes "mistakes" in the Lawrence household. He also takes the garbage out so the Missus doesn't have to. Whatta guy!

TRAGEDY—My deepest sorrow and prayers of love for Vic Willis. Mr. Willis, 72, passed away last month in an auto accident. Vic was the last of the legendary Willis Brothers who came to fame in Opry in 1946.

For the record, the Willis Brothers backed legendary star, Hank Williams, in his first recording session.

RHONDA RECOMMENDS: Neal McCoy, "You Gotta Love That," (Atlantic)—his best effort to date. With great cuts such as "No Doubt About It," "For A Change," and "If I Was A Drinkin' Man," McCoy is sure to be a future superstar—BUY IT!

Getting Organized At Tax Time

(NAPS)—You can save time and money—and find tax time a lot less taxing—if the receipts, bank records and other important papers you need to prepare your tax returns are neatly organized, experts agree.

Getting—and staying—organized begins by sorting through your papers. Set aside time every week to divide those papers into two piles: items needed for record-keeping or that hold interest for you, and items you do not need or want. Throw away the second pile immediately.

For the papers you are keeping, the best storage is in an Underwriters Laboratories (UL) classified fire-resistant storage container. Sentry offers a full line of UL-classified products, ranging from inexpensive shoebox-sized Fire-Safe security chests, to office-style Fire-Safe filing cabinets, to full-size fire-resistant safes.

What should you put in your fire-protective container—and how long should it stay there? Here are some guidelines for some of the most common documents:

- Birth certificates: Indefinitely
- Contracts: Seven years after contract expires
- Deeds: Indefinitely
- Tax records: Most for at least six years. Some you should keep indefinitely include Form 2119 for reporting the sale of a home, Form 8606 for non-deductible IRA contributions and Form 942 for paying Social Security and unemployment insurance for household employees.

- Bank and credit card records: Six years.
- Health records: Indefinitely
- Mortgage, loan papers: Three years after loan paid off
- Insurance policies: Four years from expiration date
- Home and property inventory: Indefinitely
- Marriage certificate, divorce, custody, adoption papers: Indefinitely
- Passport: Indefinitely
- Stock and bond certificates: Four years after sold
- Owner's manuals, warranties: As long as you own the item
- Wills: Indefinitely

It's also a good idea to store important computer diskettes and tapes in a fire-resistant media safe, as these are even more vulnerable to damage from fire than is paper.
