Judge says nepotism law is unconstitutional

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Part of Kentucky's Education Reform Act was declared unconstitutional Tuesday by Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill, who ruled that parent members of site-based councils are discriminated against.

Clarence Risner and Ira Joe Tussey sued the Floyd County Board of Education and the Kentucky Department of Education after Education Commissioner Thomas Boysen recommended earlier this year that the two be ousted from their respective councils because they had relatives employed elsewhere in the school system.

Judge Caudill also issued a permanent injunction barring Risner's removal from the Prestonsburg High School council and Tussey's ouster from the Adams Middle School council.

A part of the reform act prohibits parent members from serving on school councils if they have a relative employed in any capacity in the school district. That provision does not apply to other members of school councils.

The law discriminates against parent representatives, Judge Caudill ruled.

"As drafted and adopted, (the law) bears no rational relationship to a legitimate state end as it specifically singles out individuals such as the petitioners and voids their eligibility as parents members of a site based decision making council simply because they have relatives who are employed at another school within the district," Judge Caudill's order said. "... The foregoing section of KERA (Kentucky's Education Reform Act) has not been drawn narrowly enough to satisfy the state's interest in the prevention of nepotism. ... Because the same criteria does not apply to teacher-members of the council, the statute discriminates against the petitioners."

Judge Caudill's order also pertains to other parent members of school councils who may be facing the same issue.

"...A permanent injunction is hereby granted to the petitioners, restraining and enjoining the respondents from inhibiting or prohibiting the petitioners or any person similarly situated, from participation on or candidacy for site based decision making councils, even though those candidates may have relatives employed by the board of education in the same county."

Risner said Tuesday that he feels it is a victory for parents across the state.

"We have proved a lot of people wrong," Risner said. "This will give a lot of other people the freedom to make choices (to seek membership on a council). They will now have the opportunity to run for councils. This is good for all parents and it will have an effect statewide."

Jim Parks, spokesman for the Kentucky Department of Education, declined to comment on the state's position Tuesday because Judge Caudill's order had not been received by the legal department.

Floyd County school board members and superintendent Steve Towler had sided with Risner and Tussey on the issue and reluctantly voted to remove them from their councils based on Boysen's recommendation.

Judge Caudill issued a temporary injunction barring Risner's and Tussey's removal earlier this year until he had received written arguments from both sides in the case.

Fire destroys Price grocery

by Alisa Goodwill
Staff Writer

Left Beaver Fire Department received three alarms, but only had two fires Monday evening.

Chief Derrick Thacker, of Left Beaver Fire Department, said the first alarm at 11:28 p.m. was a malfunctioning smoke detector at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital.

The second alarm received at 12:37 a.m. was a fully involved fire at Crum's Grocery store at Price.

Thacker said the two-story building had an apartment on the second level and the grocery store on the first level. The owner, Randy Crum, was not there at the time of the fire.

Thacker said the fire destroyed Crum's Grocery. The cafeteria of the nearby Pilgrims Rest Church received fire and water damage.

No one was injured. The fire is under investigation.

Thacker said the department received assistance from Wheelwright Fire Department, Mud Creek Fire Department and Southeast Fire Department.

The third alarm, received at 1:10 a.m., was a fire involving a double-wide mobile home at Ligon.

Thacker said the owner of the trailer is unknown at this time. The mobile home was unoccupied at the time of the fire and the electricity and water were off.

No one was injured and no other homes were in danger. The fire is under investigation.

Left Beaver was again assisted by Mud Creek Fire Department and Southeast Fire Department.

Thacker thanked the other fire departments for their mutual aid.

Wheelwright Fire Department not only gave mutual aid to Left Beaver, but had their own fire about 8 p.m. Monday, involving a mobile home.

Instructor David Boyd, of the Wheelwright Fire Department, said the fire was out, other than hot spots, by the time the firefighters arrived.

Boyd said the fire originated in the kitchen near the stove. He said neighbors used a garden hose to put the fire out.

The mobile home is owned by Eddie and Betty Little at Branham Hollow. No one was injured. The owner was next door when the fire occurred.

Jacobs trial set for July 31

A July 31 trial date has been set for accused Knott County murderer Clawvern Jacobs.

Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill set Jacobs' trial date last week after he ruled last month that Jacobs was competent to stand trial in the 1986 murder of Alice Lloyd College student Judy Ann Howard.

Jacobs, 48, was convicted and sentenced to death in 1987 for the murder, kidnapping and the attempted rape of Howard, but his conviction was overturned last year by the Kentucky Supreme Court. The supreme court ruled that Jacobs should not have been tried in Knott County.

Jacobs' attorneys maintain that their client suffers from an organic brain disease and is delusional.

Prosecutors contend that Jacobs knew what he was doing at the time of the crime and is attempting to "beat the system at every turn."

City council starts work on 95-96 budget

by Alisa Goodwill
Staff Writer

Prestonsburg City Council met Monday to discuss updates from different committees.

Estill Carter, finance and revenue committee chair, said the committee is working on a budget for fiscal year '95/'96.

Carter said the committee will meet with each department head individually to work on their budgets.

The next committee meeting is today, Wednesday, with Tom Harris for public works.

Robert Allen, administration and personnel committee chair, said that committee was unable to meet Friday because of a lack of a quorum; however, the committee was aware of some positions that needed to be filled and will meet again to review applications.

The positions to be reviewed are two part-time dispatchers, a truck driver for public works, and a safety officer for the city.

Mayor Jerry Fannin said the city's recycling program was now recycling cardboard, newspapers, aluminum and metal cans. The pick-up days and times are the same for all recyclable goods. The city asks that the trash be separated into different piles.

Fannin said a meeting for the city's golf course project that was scheduled for today, Wednesday, in Washington D.C. will be rescheduled because of funeral services for Shirley Rogers, the wife of Congressman Hal Rogers.

Fannin also recognized Shirley Rogers for her support to Rogers throughout his career.

The mayor and all council members except Danny Hamilton were present.

Rogers staff member will be at Wheelwright

A member of Congressman Hal Rogers' staff will be in Floyd County on Tuesday, May 16, to assist anyone who has a problem with the federal government.

The staff member will be at Wheelwright Senior Citizens Center at 11 a.m. to discuss problems anyone has with Social Security, Black Lung, the Veterans Administration or any other agency of the federal government.

If you have any questions about the schedule, call 1-800-632-8588.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following editorial, by former Times editor Norman Allen, first appeared on May 10, 1945, two days after Germany's surrender in World War II. It is reprinted here in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of VE-Day, Victory in Europe.

Education for disaster

Today, May 8, 1945—V-E DAY—three recently published photographs stick with us.

One shows a little German girl in a bomb-littered street clasping her doll, as little girls have done from time immemorial.

The other two show the horrors of a German prison camp: One a charred corpse with hand outstretched for a can of water; the other, the head of a young prisoner outside the inferno of that charnel chamber, his torso inside—a human being caught in the hell of a man's inhumanity to man as he sought life-giving air and freedom.

The awesome contrast between these two sets of photographs tells the story of the descent of a nation into the abyss via education for cruelty.

Basically, the German child is as other children: the child is the father of a man—therefore, Germans are basically as all other humankind. The child in the picture loves her doll. She is not old enough to have been inoculated with the Nazi virus, the deadly poison of mind and soul which created the hallucination of a super-race, the mad theory that all others were but pawns in the game of destiny, that all the humanities are the folly of weaklings.

Those other two pictures resulted from individual sadism and the brutal teachings of Nazism—sadism on a national scale. There was a time, perhaps, when many of those whose brutality has shocked the civilized world may have been normal human beings. But that was before the Golden Rule was abbreviated to Rule in Germany; before the mind of German youth was distorted by a select group of perverts with world rule their only aim in life.

The United States, this V-E Day, should thank God for the form of government which makes such things impossible. Its people should never forget the protection our civilization owes to freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

For, deprived of these, and given a dictator fired with a dream of world power and the complete subjugation of his own and all other people, there would be none to dispute whatever evil teaching might be present in boys and girls of the nation. With all our high ideals of the present, America, under such conditions, would become as Germany is today—hating, and hated by, all people.

In our own Civil War we had the disgrace of Libby's and the Andersonville prisons. England had its "Black Hole of Calcutta." Cruelty is not unknown to any nationality.

But those long-ago examples of cruelty were caused by a few individuals. They were exceptions, not the rule; elsewhere, mercy, the principles of humanity, prevailed. Entire nations had not been permeated by inhumanity. But only through the protection of democratic techniques have they escaped Germany's ignominy.

It is the doctrine of hatred and brutality, not the bullets, and bombs and shells of war, which destroys civilization.

This V-E Day, we find some satisfaction in the fact that the end of the Nazi curse, nurtured by distorted teachings of depraved teachers, was reached in the quiet hours of Monday morning in a red schoolhouse, in Reims, France.

People of Floyd are true to tradition

Editor:

The lore of our hills is rich in memories of the hurt we have inflicted on each other.

Add to that, those things we often claim are acts of a vengeful god and our mountain paths have indeed been ways of sorrow. Mine disasters, floods, bus wrecks, senseless feuds, and murders litter the trail of our past. Yet, beyond a doubt, the heaviest and most galling cross we have to bear is the ignoble people we elect to serve us.

We are beyond doubt different; perhaps even a unique people. And, now and again, some simple thing will happen or be told which defines us as the often helpless and trusting children of God that we are.

So often it has been the cruel savage greed of our own people which has produced that strange blend of humor, of pathos, and our child-like trust which is an icon of us as mountain people. This tale describes such an event for which I am indebted to Mr. Buster Harris of Corn Fork.

The year was probably 1932. Floyd County, along with the rest of Kentucky, the United States and the world, was held in the vice grips of the great depression.

People fought desperately, not just to fend off mere hunger, but actual starvation. Children worked from sun-up to sun-down for five cents; a grown man got a quarter. And, these were the lucky ones, as a quarter would buy a peck of flour.

Rabbits, squirrels, ground hogs, even crows, became scarce, bordering on extinction; as men became ever more desperate for food for their families.

Hunters, unable to buy shotgun shells, returned to hunting skills tens of thousands of years old—dead falls, snares, fire, spears and the now immortal Hoover box. Crows fell victim to fishing lines baited with corn. And they descended on the rivers also, with blasting powder, fish traps, trotlines and gill nets. On a gill net hangs this tale which so vastly describes us as a people.

A man we will call Ben Crider had a large family; which made his plight all the more desperate. Instead of looking into the gaunt face of a hungry child, poor Ben looked into the faces of a half dozen. And by this time he had gleaned the hills bare of any living thing that could be cooked, fried, roasted, or made into gravy.

Ben turned, as had countless others before him, to the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. And as it is said here in the hills, Ben started running a gill net. There was but little harvest, as the blasting powder, trotlines, and fish traps had taken their toll.

Yet, perhaps more from desperation than hope, Ben set out again in his jonboat to run the net. Perhaps Ben planned this time to raise the net from the other side of the boat.

A man in such desperate straits will pray to his God for deliverance and so will a hungry child. No doubt prayers were offered on the banks of the Big Sandy that day. The answer to those prayers does surely show that God works in mysterious ways.

As Ben's small family clustered on the riverbank, he set out upon the water again to run the net. When he reached halfway the river, the family on the bank heard a great noise from Ben; the melding of a scream, a shout, a great cry of affirmation. Then the sound of the jonboat rapidly coming to shore.

When he got near enough, even the smallest of his children could see that Ben was not the same man that had gone out from the shore. There was about him a difference; a look upon his face which caused even the larger children to clutch their mother's dress.

With trembling voice, his wife asked, "Ben, what is it that you have caught?"

In the voice of a man who has seen beyond the veil that mists our mortal eyes, Ben answered, "Praise be to God Almighty, I have caught two sides of bacon and a ham of meat,"

And in the truth, he had.

The miracle of the bacon and ham in Ben Crider's gill net unfortunately had a more tragic and sinister origin than he would want to believe that day. Yet, it explains so clearly who we are and why we face the problems which have all but destroyed us as a people.

In a desperate effort to ward off the long-term effects of chronic malnutrition in the nations children, the federal government started several free food programs. One such program used vouchers similar to the present-day food stamps, except that the vouchers were redeemed for food supplied by the government.

The program was administered by the county court. Mr. Walk Stumbo was county judge for Floyd County, and then as now, the end result was a foregone conclusion. Such a wind-fall could not be squandered on hungry children.

Curtis May, a local store manager and a host of others, was recruited to harvest this manna from heaven. Names from the stones of countless graveyards leaped to the vouchers list. Departed veterans from World War I, the Spanish-American War, the Civil War, stood muster again for mess call with the vouchers.

The voucher list of the dead soon equaled that of the living. Perishable foods such as apples, oranges, grapefruit, and lettuce went to the living; the dead got the can goods, the smoked bacon and hams and boxes of cheese. These were stored in the basements, warehouses, and grocery stores to be sold at retail. Yet, greed often grows faster than reason. Floyd County's finest soon began to unload the box cars at night; keeping everything and telling the people that no shipment of food came.

The voucher list for the dead grew longer, and when melded with the list of the living almost equaled the Borough of Manhattan, New York, in population. Which rang a bell for some nameless, faceless public servant in Washington, D.C.

Soon federal agents dressed as hobos; that drifting army of the Great Depression, wandered into Prestonsburg. Some say they actually helped unload the boxcars, getting as payment a ham or two and a few loaves of bread. And, as is the want for hobos to do, they drifted on.

But, then as now, the tentacles of Floyd County officials reached far beyond the county border. Soon word was flashed to Stumbo and May that

by Scott Perry

Thanks largely to a temperate Mother Nature, Eastern Kentucky's coal industry is headed to hell in a handbasket and our region is beginning to feel the economic heat.

Some major coal producers, who have sizable stockpiles and shrinking markets, are sending hundreds of workers home; the wheels are falling off the trucking business; and the slump is beginning to impact companies which service the coal industry and non-coal businesses alike.

We could blame all our troubles on the weather...mild winters which lessen the demand for coal...and be pretty accurate. But we must shoulder much of the blame ourselves for dragging our feet on the economic diversification we need to smooth out the peaks and valleys inherent to the coal industry.

If we continue to tie our economic fortunes to the unpredictability of the weather, the predictability of our future is what gamblers call a sure thing. There won't be one.

We have, in the past, offered a few ideas for diversifying our economy... including tourism development and agricultural enterprise... which are fairly non-controversial and reasonable for our region.

We do have some other suggestions, though, which aren't likely to be so readily acceptable.

The processing and disposal of solid waste is an industry with few friends and a rather unenviable reputation, but it is as necessary as any on earth.

Hold the tar and feathers.

We're not suggesting that we turn Eastern Kentucky into the proverbial "dumping ground" for the country.

We're proposing a realistic look at developing a pilot project to treat and dispose of our own waste in an environmentally sound and economically advantageous way that could lead to bigger and better things. And, only as big as we desire.

It may sound old hat, but if we can put a man on the moon, we can discover a way to take out the trash while respecting nature at the same time.

Disposing of our garbage is a dirty job, but somebody has to do it. Maybe we can put on our thinking caps and find a clean way to do it and make some money in the process.

What's the harm in trying?

Gubernatorial candidate Bob Babbage is trying to make political hay out of one of the more provocative issues among voters, but his idea for stirring the masses is overkill of the highest order.

Babbage has suggested placing any tax increase that will raise a certain amount of government revenues before the voters and on the ballot each and every time a measure of that sort is proposed.

While we have no particular affinity for taxes of any kind, such a system for authorizing tax increases is stretching this will-of-the-people thing a bit too far.

We live in a representative democracy which provides the means for our voices to be heard while ensuring that majority rules.

It's a good system that has weathered the test of time for well over 200 years.

If a majority of people feel their representation in government is not responsive to their wishes, then they have the means to change it at the ballot box.

There is really no need to change our system of government, but there may be the occasional need to change the leaders of that system. Those who promote themselves for leadership simply by latching onto the cause-of-the-day aren't likely to be very effective leaders. They may get the votes, but they're not likely to get anything done.

Sunday is a special day, one of the most significant of all the special days we commemorate each year.

After all, it's Mother's Day and where would we all be without mothers?

Obviously, we wouldn't be anywhere.

Mothers give us life, calm our fears, dry our tears and love us unconditionally, regardless of our blemishes and in spite of the fact that we usually take them for granted.

Happy Mother's Day to all you moms, especially ours.

Rate break deadline nears for Allen sewer project

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The time is drawing near to sign up for sewer service in the city of Allen and the longer potential customers wait, the more they could pay for a tap-on fee.

At Monday's Allen City Commission meeting, city clerk Bill Parsons told the board that 125 people have signed up for the service so far. Parsons said that 265 customers are needed before construction of the new sewer plant can begin.

Currently, the tap-on fee is set at $500, but the cost will increase to $1,500, Parsons said. He recommended that the commission set a specific date when the higher cost becomes effective.

"I'm worried about getting signers," Parsons said. "The problem is that people want to wait until (the sewer line) gets to their house. It doesn't work that way. We have to have the customers first."

Parsons added he is confident that other residents will join in the system once the project gets going.

Commissioner Virgie Woods commented that most people don't fully understand that the sewer plant has to be built and that some rumors about the project have residents confused.

"Whether they realize it or not, we have to go through with it," Woods said. "People think that their water rates will go up and their sewer (rates) will go up. They are hearing a lot of rumors."

Mayor Chris Waugh said that he has heard concerns from residents about the easement forms to install sewer lines issued by the Farmers' Home Administration (FmHA).

"Those forms scare people to death," the mayor told commissioners.

Parsons explained that FmHA officials had modified those forms, which should cause less anxiety and confusion for residents.

Commissioners took no action on the issue.

In other business Monday, Commissioner Sharon Woods said that several accidents have been caused by the parking situation at the Fields Discount Wallpaper store in the city.

Woods said that the location of the store, beside the state highway that runs through town, requires customers to park too close to the road, which obstructs the view of oncoming traffic. Woods said that there have been several accidents at the location.

Mayor Waugh said he was not sure what the commission could do to address the problem, but that he would try to have a report on the issue at the June meeting.

Also Monday:

- commissioners agreed to obtain estimates for vinyl siding for the two city hall buildings, and agreed to procure estimates for new street signs;
- Commissioner Sharon Woods joked with fellow Commissioner

Virgie Woods about flowers not being planted at city hall and Virgie Woods told her that Commissioner Ann Bentley had been ill, but the flowers should be in the ground by the weekend;

- commissioners adopted two resolutions pertaining to the sewer plant project, dealing with supporting a drug-free workplace and public access to records for the project;
- commissioners set a budget workshop for May 16 at 7 p.m. at city hall; and

- commissioners agreed to contract with the state highway department to pave a portion of the highway at a cost of approximately $6,500.

Commissioner Ann Bentley was absent from Monday's meeting.

federal agents with arrest warrants were on their way to Prestonsburg. And the miracle of Ben Crider's two sides of bacon and a smoked ham began to unfold.

There seems always to be an army of men in Floyd County eager and willing to play the role of Judas for our Pharisees. From these ranks they recruited men with wagons and mule teams; trucks, sleds, anything to clear their basements, stores, warehouses of the evidence.

Thousands of smoked hams, thousands of slabs of bacon were thrown into the river to float away, literally covering the surface of the water from sight. Truckloads of can foods, still in cartons, followed the bacon and ham into the water. It is said that the volume of food dumped into the river actually made dams at ripples and shoals.

All this effort was to no avail. Walk Stumbo and Curtis May were arrested, tried and convicted. And hundreds of Floyd County children went to bed hungry and perhaps suffer to this day from the effects of childhood malnutrition.

If there is a moral to this story it is that we do not learn hard; rather we do not learn at all. Did the people of Floyd County learn from this disaster? No... Three score years have passed and nothing has changed. We are the same meek, shy, trusting children who gathered on the banks of the Big Sandy river to watch the hams float past.

As is said in the Bible, "Our tongues cleave to our checks, and knees smote one the other..." when we see "de juge" or "de shurf." It seems alien to our frame of mind that they work for us—and we are not their servants.

Fundraiser brings in $600 for cancer society

by Scott Richardson
Contributing Writer

They raised over $600 for the American Cancer Society. That was the bottom line. But how they did it—that was the fun part.

Over 60 runners and walkers and 12 volunteers gathered at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park for the first annual Run/Walk for Life Saturday, May 6 to benefit the American Cancer Society.

First across the line was Mathew Thomas, a 20-year-old runner from Ewing, who completed the 3.1 mile course in 15 minutes, 53 seconds. Ryan Hagan of Martin finished second and Christopher Fleming of Banner was the third overall finisher.

The first female finisher, Brenda Burton of Stanton, finished with a time of 21:42.

Other notable finishers included Jane Adams, a five-year-old from Letcher County and the youngest competitor, and Eula Ferguson, the most senior finisher at 70 years of old.

If there had been a team competition, it would have gone to the Duke family of Blackey. Mable and David, the mother and father of the "team," have been competing in events for years. But, for Peyton, age 12, and Jessamyn, age 8, this was their first race.

"We thought we would start letting them compete, too," Mable said. "We used to leave the kids at the finish line to wait for us, but we thought this would be more fun for them."

Peyton finished first in the Men's 14 and under age group, while Jessamyn finished second in the Women's 14 and under division.

Just as important as those who attended were those individuals and corporations that donated time, money, and goods to the event. Family Bank and Highlands Wellness provided event t-shirts for all participants and volunteers. The staff of Jenny Wiley State Resort Park controlled traffic and provided tables, chairs and full use of their facilities.

"Our corporate sponsors really made this happen," said Charlotte Endicott, the event's founder. "The volunteers provided the energy, but the corporate sponsors gave us the tools to work with. Whenever we came up against some sort of hurdle, there was always a local corporation there to help us over it."

Joint effort in Floyd is a first in state

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Domestic violence victims in Floyd County are going to be getting top priority with the formation of a local domestic violence unit, which is believed to be the first in the state.

Representatives from local agencies have banded together to bring the issue of domestic violence out in the open, which they hope will deter further offenders and offer assistance to victims.

"This unit points to a new effort in the county (to combat domestic violence)," Judy Elder, with the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, said Tuesday. "We are bringing domestic violence to the forefront and to show that we intend to do something about it. It is more difficult to curb domestic violence when it is hidden."

Elder, along with representatives from the Floyd County Sheriff's Department, the Department of Social Services, the circuit court clerk's office, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, the Kentucky State Police, abuse center caseworker Helen Bowen and District Judge James Allen have been working for the past four months to develop the specialized unit.

By pooling their resources into a central location, agency representatives say that victims will find it easier and more convenient to get the assistance they need.

Floyd Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said Tuesday that he feels the services offered through the unit help cut down on domestic violence in the county.

"We will provide services to the victims and their children," Thompson said. "The purpose of the unit in Floyd County is to create a deterrence in domestic violence. We have had to coordinate a lot of agencies and they have enthusiastically supported it. One of the problems we have found is a lack of coordination between agencies. Everybody wanted to do something, but there was no coordination."

Each agency involved in the unit will provide specific services which will be available at the group's office located in the courthouse annex.

Sheriff Thompson explained that he has devoted a full-time officer for the unit who will be responsible for monitoring the service of emergency protection orders (EPOs) and who will follow the progress of a case through district court. The officer, Steve Toy, will attend court sessions on Friday, when domestic violence cases are heard in the district court.

Thompson said he has requested that his office serve the majority of EPOs and he hopes that those protective orders are served on alleged offenders within 12 hours after the orders are issued.

"Since we have started this unit, we have had 10 EPOs and most of them have been served within 12 hours," Thompson said. "Service has varied from 10 minutes to 10 hours."

District Judge James Allen has instituted a "no drop policy," which means that once an EPO is issued, the victim cannot drop the charge and the case will proceed through the courts.

The no drop policy is expected to cut down on the number of instances where some victims appear to be using the court system inappropriately. The policy is also expected to ease the overload in the circuit clerk's office.

Previously, if an EPO was dropped by a victim, the case was closed and, if other instances of violence occurred, a new case had to be opened.

Under the policy, an EPO can be amended to a domestic violence order, which would allow the alleged perpetrator to return to the home, but be prohibited from committing further acts of violence. The policy will also call for mandatory counseling for abusers, who will pay for those services. Child visitation will depend on the abuser's progress in treatment.

Judge Allen will decide on a case-by-case basis if it is necessary for cross complaints to be issued.

At the unit's headquarters, representatives from the spouse abuse center, Mountain Comp and social services will offer crisis counseling to victims, which will educate the victims on what services are available to them.

Victims seeking an EPO will be referred to the domestic violence unit to determine if that is the course a victim needs to take and to assist them in filling out the order. From there, if an EPO is needed, victims will go through the circuit court clerk's office to file the paperwork which will then be sent for the judge's signature.

A unique aspect of the unit, Thompson said, is that all the services will be located within "several hundred feet" of each other.

"Sometimes victims get frustrated because they are sent all over the place," Thompson said.

The Kentucky State Police will assist with the service of EPOs when needed and all child abuse cases will be referred to detective Jim Stephens.

Each agency is absorbing their own costs for participation in the unit, but Eileen Recktenwald, with Mountain Comp, said the agencies are actively seeking grant funds for the unit. Each agency is also assigning workers to be in the office daily.

Victims seeking assistance can call the unit at 889-0511 and, if they are unable to get in touch with anyone, they may call the sheriff's office at 886-6711 or the abuse center at 886-6025 or 1-800-649-6605.

State officials may get a firsthand overview of the program on May 16, when Jeff Green, co-chairman of the attorney general's domestic violence task force, will hold a domestic violence forum in Prestonsburg. The forum will be held in the conference room at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center on Front Street.

Elder said Tuesday that she feels officials are showing they are taking domestic violence seriously by the cooperation from all the agencies involved.

"I am almost overwhelmed by the concern shown throughout the county," Elder said. "There was no resistance whatsoever. It is a powerful effort that will make a difference. There is such an abundance of domestic violence throughout the county it seems there is almost a passive acceptance of it. But I see this unit putting the brakes on domestic violence in this county."

The unit was the brainchild of Elder and Thompson, who were in contact on a regular basis to discuss the issue and how to better coordinate the services.

Floyd Judge-Executive Bob Meyer provided the office space in the courthouse annex and local attorney Keith Bartley assisted the group on legal matters.

Health department director takes Floyd program to national conference

by Carolyn J. Bond
Health Educator

On May 15-19, the 29th National Immunization Conference will be held in Los Angeles, California. This conference will cover many issues regarding immunization policy, improving immunization rates, research and scientific information.

The Floyd County Health Department will be represented by Carol Holbrook, director, and Gary E. Coleman Jr., immunization field representative at this prestigious conference.

Holbrook has been asked to speak on the 17th and 18th about the Automatic Call Back System of the Floyd County Health Department. The system in Floyd County was the first one in the state of Kentucky and has become an example for the other counties. It has increased the number of persons keeping their appointments for immunizations which has in turn helped to increase the immunization rates of children in the Floyd County area.

Coleman was one of four field representatives from the state chosen to attend this conference. He will be bringing back valuable information to be shared with all the counties in the Big Sandy Area.

Homeplace project underway

A new program to help low-income families get the health care they need is underway in Floyd County.

The Kentucky Homeplace Project, based at the Mud Creek Clinic, is a resource program that offers assistance through its health care advisors. The project's purpose is to aid patients in better managing their medical conditions and to help families improve their access to health care.

Floyd County family health care providers Linda Stratton and Stacy Salisbury will work with area families to identify the families' needs and then assist families to access and use the appropriate services.

The health care providers receive 80 hours of training and are closely supervised. They provide health information, promote preventative care and serve as advocates. Priority is given to families with multiple health problems, those needing preventative care and those experiencing problems in getting care or managing chronic diseases.

The Kentucky Homeplace Project works in close coordination with local social and health services to avoid overlap and duplication. The project offers services to the southeastern region of Magoffin, Floyd and Knott/Letcher counties.

Nicholas and Korstanje to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Nicholas of Milton, West Virginia announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan, to Doug Korstanje, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Korstanje of Chesapeake, Ohio.

The wedding will take place August 26 at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Huntington, West Virginia.

Miss Nicholas is a former resident of Hazard, where she was the co-anchor of the evening news at WYMT-TV.

She is now employed at channel 13 as a weathercaster and reporter.

Korstanje is a former resident of Floyd County, where he worked as the Big Sandy bureau chief for WYMT-TV.

He now works as a reporter and photographer at Channel 13.

They will reside in Huntington, West Virginia.

Health care advisor for the Knott/Letcher county area is Aileen Hamilton, who thinks the program will be a plus for the community.

"This program can be of great benefit to our community in that it will keep our elderly folks in their homes instead of in nursing homes, our young children immunized before school age, and in getting prenatal care for our families," Hamilton said.

Rebecca Joseph, health care advisor for the Magoffin County area, agreed. "I think the best thing about this program is it gives the people a chance to have one on one contact by having a home visit and allows them to be at ease plus get the help they need."

To find out more about the program, call Brenda Hamilton, supervisor, at the Mud Creek Clinic at (606) 587-2633, or write: P.O. Box 129, Rt. 2, Grethel, KY 41631.

The Kentucky Homeplace Project is a joint effort by the University of Kentucky Center for Rural Health and the state Cabinet for Human Resources.

IF TOOTH KNOCKED OUT BY INJURY

Babbage reminds county of election day school closings

Floyd County schools will be closed on May 23. This is just one of the changes made in Kentucky election laws by the 1994 General Assembly, according to Secretary of State Bob Babbage.

The law applies to primary, runoff primary, and regular elections. It became effective in July 1994 and first applied to the November 1994 General Election.

Phi Beta Lambda spring conference

by Sabrina C. Tomblin

Alice Lloyd College's Phi Beta Lambda (PBL) Omega Alpha Tau Chapter attended the Annual Spring PBL State Leadership Conference in Louisville, March 30-April 1.

The Phi Beta Lambda organization provides additional opportunities for college students to develop professional skills in the area of business and to promote a sense of civic and personal responsibility, helping to fulfill Alice Lloyd's philosophy of educating mountain students to become leaders for the Appalachian Region.

Alice Lloyd's Business Program has proven that its students are prepared for the business world of tomorrow by bringing home significant awards from the Leadership Conference. Twenty-six members represented Alice Lloyd College enthusiastically, and won 25 chapter, team, and individual awards. Lenore Pollard, the club's primary advisor, commented, "I am very proud of this group. This is an outstanding victory for us at Alice Lloyd. Our students worked hard and handled the pressure very well. The students have made by first year as advisor very memorable." Rachel Mullinax and Dr. Kossuth Mitchell acted as assistant advisors.

Award recipients were: First Place—Marybeth Holbrook (Accounting II and Business Decision Making), Brenn Combs (Business Law), Brian Mullins (Information Management), Marybeth Holbrook, Jason Chapman and Dwaine Meadows (Decision Making Team), and Rebecca Denny (Management and Chapter Scrapbook); Second Place—Dwaine Meadows (Finance, and Chapter Community Service Award),

However, several students received more than awards. Dwaine Meadows was named to Who's Who in Kentucky Phi Beta Lambda, a first for Alice Lloyd College. Jason Chapman was elected as Kentucky State PBL Vice President. Chapman's campaign slogan was "If You Can Dream It, You Can Do It." Chapman commented, "Being elected as vice president was a dream of mine. The slogan used in my campaign says it all." Danielle Wells was also elected as treasurer for Kentucky State PBL. Wells hopes to bring new ideas and innovative activities to Kentucky State PBL to improve communication and commitment to the organization.

Alice Lloyd College will have eight students representing the college at the National Leadership Conference in Orlando, Florida, July 5-8. Those students receiving first- and second-place awards at the state competition will be going to the conference.

FLOYD COUNTIANS FOR PAUL PATTON

Anyone who has cared to notice, of late, would agree that Floyd County politics has become increasingly rough and divided. However, regardless of which of the many sides of the many local issues any of us may be on, there is one cause under which we can unite for the common good of Floyd County, PAUL PATTON FOR GOVERNOR. He is one of us.

This neighbor from Pike County has driven our roads, walked our creeks, hollows and mountains, and crawled in our coal mines. As a county judge-executive, he has worked and lingered long in our courthouses, earnestly wrestling with the problems that uniquely hinder our entire region from obtaining the jobs, services and quality of life we deserve. He knows our peculiar problems like no other candidate. More importantly, he, alone, has a heartfelt burden to lead Eastern Kentucky to a better future, to give us an equal seat at the table of prosperity so many other Kentuckians have long enjoyed. Paul Patton is the best choice for all of Kentucky, but he is the only choice for Eastern Kentucky. We, the undersigned, are only A FEW OF THE MANY who urge you to not let this opportunity pass us by—it may never come again. VOTE FOR AND ELECT PAUL PATTON FOR GOVERNOR OF KENTUCKY.

Rose, Daniels fine; district starts next week

I became very concerned upon learning of the accident that South Floyd coaches Jim Rose and Donnie Daniels were involved in last Thursday as they were en route to the district baseball drawings.

The meeting had to be cancelled because of the accident.

While not knowing the extent or seriousness of the accident, one had to be concerned just hearing about it.

But both are fine, according to school principal Al Osborne.

"Both are fortunate people," he said. "Both are all right. Jim's injury was just a reoccurrence of a previous injury he suffered 20 years ago."

Coach Rose was, at first, thought to have suffered a broken neck. But that was not the case.

Coach Daniels was experiencing headaches as a result of the accident and did not return to school until Tuesday.

"Donnie hit the dash pretty hard," explained Osborne. "Jim hit the steering wheel and then his head flipped back and hit the seat belt holder off the side."

"There was little damage to the car. Looking at it you wouldn't think it was that bad. But the other car hit the back end square," he said.

The 58th District baseball meeting was rescheduled for tomorrow (Thursday) at 12:30 p.m. Coaches will vote to either seed or draw for the tournament that gets underway next week.

According to Coach Daniels, the boys' 58th District will be held at the Drift Park.

It was first announced that the Allen Park would be the location for both boys' and girls' tournaments.

The girls' softball tournament will be held at Brackett Field (football stadium).

BASEBALL ATTENDANCE...

The boys of summer have returned to their playground and the major league season is well underway.

But the fans haven't so quickly forgotten what the owners and players (mostly the players) did to them last August.

The eight month baseball strike turned the fans off and away from the turnstiles this season.

The clubs are starting to realize that the fans are fed up with their childish actions.

Now the talk is that baseball (owners and players) needs a third representative -- to mediate baseball back into the good graces of the fans.

Major league baseball is trying desperately to entice the fans back with television commercials, half-price tickets, FREE player autographs, etc.

But the fans have continued to stay away.

Some parks are still drawing large numbers, but not what they were drawing last year at this time.

Mets hold off Braves in 6-5 LL victory

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Braves scored four times in the bottom of the sixth inning. But the Braves came away a run short in dropping a 6-5 contest to the Prestonsburg Mets in the Prestonsburg Little League Saturday afternoon at Archer Park.

Anthony Burchett doubled in three runs in the inning but was left stranded at second base, representing the tying run.

Kyle Calhoun picked up the win in a route-going performance for the Mets. He struck out 11 batters while walking four.

Matt Tackett suffered the setback, also going the distance for the Braves. He fanned 11 batters as well. He issued six walks in the game.

The Mets scored three runs in the top of the fifth to vault out to a 6-2 lead before the Braves came to bat in the bottom of the sixth.

May opened the Met fifth with a single. Neeley walked with Shepherd delivering a one-out base hit that scored May. Neeley and Shepherd scored on Holbrook's two-run double.

Chris Spriggs started the Braves four-run rally, but singled to start the bottom half of the sixth. A one-out single by Jason Isom and John Gillispie's RBI single scored Spriggs.

Nick Chaffins walked with two-out and Burchett doubled to centerfield, scoring three runs for a 6-5 game.

Calhoun got leadoff batter Randy Slone to bounce back to the mound for the final out.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the

Robinson hits for cycle in 17-5 win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Prestonsburg's Camille Robinson accomplished something that many desire to achieve but never do. She hit for the "cycle" against Pike County Central in women's high school fast pitch softball last Thursday at Archer Park.

Robinson's booming bat propelled the Lady Backcats to a 17-5 mercy win over the Lady Hawks. She singled, doubled, tripled and hit a home run to complete the offensive cycle.

Jamie Clay, who had a second inning home run, picked up the win. Clay had three hits in the contest. Jennifer Miller collected three hits and Jennifer Greathouse had two. Deanna Hall finished with two hits, as well.

Pike Central took a 4-0 lead in the first inning against Clay. A walk, single and two-run double by Music gave the Lady Hawks a 2-0 lead. Clay walked the next two batters to load the bases and a ground ball off the bat of Taylor forced in a third run. A bases loaded walk to Varney allowed the fourth run to score.

Prestonsburg made it 4-3 with three in their half of the first. Robinson tripled home Clay, who had walked and stolen second. Miller singled home Robinson and she scored when Hall walked with the bases loaded.

Clay got the Lady Hawks in order in the second and Prestonsburg went up 9-4 with a six-run second. Clay started the rally with a home run. Jenna Fannin and Robinson drew walks while Greathouse walked to load the bases with one out.

Prestonsburg takes two of three games from Allen Central

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When you lose the first game of a doubleheader, you are hopeful of winning the second to gain a split.

Well, there was no way of splitting when the Allen Central Lady Rebels and Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats got together this past Friday at Archer Park for a very rare tripleheader.

The three game (one day) series came to help boost the chances of Prestonsburg making the slo-pitch playoffs this year. The Lady Blackcats have played primarily fast pitch games this season and needed to get 10 slo-pitch games in to qualify for the tournament.

Coach Anthony Moore was ready and willing to help out a fellow county team.

He took his Lady Rebels to Archer Park to face Coach Bridget Clay's Lady Blackcats and put Veronica McKinney on the mound. McKinney, who just recently started pitching for Allen Central, had won six consecutive games as the Lady Rebels were on a six-game winning streak.

The Lady Rebels made it seven straight, as did McKinney, winning game one 15-12.

But the Lady Blackcats came to win the late afternoon session before winning the nightcap. Both games were by identical scores of 10-9.

Prestonsburg took a 4-0 lead in the first inning of game one and added two runs in the second to lead 6-0 over Allen Central.

Jamie Clay reached on an error to open the game with Denna Lafferty and Jenna Fannin collecting back-to-back singles. Clay scored on Fannin's base hit. Lafferty and Fannin came around to score on Camille Robinson's two-run double. Robinson scored the fourth run on Jennifer Greathouse's RBI single.

In the second, Clay tripled with one out and scored when Lafferty's fly ball to right was dropped. Lafferty scored on an error at shortstop.

Allen Central, who stranded two runners in the first and went out in order in the second, exploded for 11 runs in the third inning as they sent 16 batters to the plate to take a 11-6 lead.

Carolyn Jones, on the mound for Prestonsburg, walked three consecutive batters to load the bases and then made a throwing error, allowing two runs to score. Consecutive base hits by Misty Scott and Cathy Crum sent two more runners home. Melissa Mullins reached on an error in shortfield for Prestonsburg. McKinney was safe when her grounder to short was misplayed.

With two out, Prestonsburg committed another error. A single by Tish Yates and three straight walks, coupled with an error at second base, allowed the Lady Rebels to keep circling the bases.

"We beat ourselves," said Coach Clay of her team's lack of defense in the first game. "We couldn't stop one."

McKinney allowed two hits in the third inning, but got out of trouble by getting Donna Hall on strikes to end the inning.

Coach Moore's team dented the plate for three more runs in the fourth inning to take a 14-6 lead. Allen Central had only one hit in the inning, a single by Tina Gibson. Prestonsburg committed one error and there were three walks.

The Lady Blackcats scored three times in the fourth with Miller collecting two RBI's with a double and a 14-9 game.

Misty Scott tripled to start the fifth for Allen Central and she scored on a ground out to make it a 15-9 game.

The Lady Blackcats put together a threat, but fell short as they pushed home three runs in the sixth. Fannin doubled in a run and Miller collected her second two-bagger of the game. Prestonsburg left the bases loaded.

In game two, Allen Central jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first on consecutive home runs by Nikki Queen

(See Prestonsburg, B 2)

A big cut!

Jennifer Miller took a big cut at a pitch but missed against Allen Central last Friday evening at Archer Park. Miller collected six hits in the tripleheader, including three doubles and a triple. Prestonsburg dropped the first game to Allen Central 15-12 but won the next two by identical 10-9 scores. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Perfect from the mound!

Allen Central's Veronica McKinney recently went to the mound for the Lady Rebels and all she has done is win all eight of the games that she hurled. McKinney had a grand slam home run to beat East Carter last Saturday. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Calhoun got the Braves in order in the second, all on strikes, and the Mets plated two more runs in the second to lead 3-0. A walk to Fannin and an error off the bat of Calhoun set up the two runs. Tackett got Howell and May on strikes, but Neeley lined a single to center, scoring both Fannin and Calhoun. The Braves got on the scoreboard in the third inning when Slone was safe on an error at second base. He stole third and scored on a wild pitch. Tackett struck out the side in the third inning and had five consecutive K's in the second and third. Each team collected only four hits in the game. The Braves committed two errors while the Mets played error free.

and Misty Scott. The Lady Rebs made it a 5-0 game with two in the second on a two-run double by Queen. Lisa Stumbo had a hit in the inning. Prestonsburg, following a clue by Allen Central from the first game, pushed home five runs in the third inning to tie the game at 5. Lafferty had an RBI single, and two runs scored on Robinson's double. Fannin had a single ahead of Robinson. Allen Central committed four errors in the inning. Prestonsburg took a 8-5 lead with a three-run fourth. Jennifer Greathouse, Donna Hall and Tara Fitzer had consecutive singles to drive in runs. Allen Central took a 9-8 lead with three in the top of the fifth. A one-out error off the bat of Conn, and Mullins' base hit set the stages for McKinney's two-run double. She scored on Holbrook's two-bagger. But in the bottom of the inning, Prestonsburg pulled out the second game win with two runs. Both runs scored with two out. Ladonna Ousley started the inning by grounding to third for the first out. Clay singled but Michelle Clark bounced back to the mound for the second out.

Drift Astros turn back Duff Orioles 14-8 behind Goins

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Bub Goins went the distance and Adam Ward drove in three runs as the Drift Astros handed Dennis "D.I." Henson's Duff Orioles a 14-8 setback in the Beaver Creek Little League Wednesday night. Anthony Hall suffered the setback for the Orioles. Ward tripled home three runs in the Astros five run third that gave the Astros a 7-4 lead. Drift had scored in the top of the first to take a 1-0 lead. But Duff came back with four of their own in the bottom of the inning to lead 4-1. The Astros pushed across a second inning run for a 4-2 game and then blistered Duff pitching in the third for five runs. Mike Hall had a run producing double in the fifth inning for Drift as three runs scored. The final two Astros runs came in the sixth inning on a double by Joe Spriggs. Mike Colley had an RBI double for the Orioles in the first inning. Elkins had the only other hit for Duff. Ward's three RBIs gives him seven for his last two games. The Astros improved to 5-1 on the season.

Fannin immediately singled, scoring Clay. Robinson followed Fannin with a double with Fannin stopping at third. Miller walked to load the bases and Jennifer Greathouse drew a walk, forcing home Fannin with the winning run. In the nightcap, Allen Central jumped out on top 1-0 in the first on a double by Queen and Conn's sacrifice fly. McKinney led off the second for the Lady Rebels with a long triple and scored on a fielder's choice play off the bat of April Hardy. It was a 4-0 game as Allen Central scored twice in the third on a walk, a single by Queen and a base hit by Scott. Prestonsburg sent 13 batters to the plate in the third inning as they plated eight runs for an 8-4 lead. Clay hit a two-run home run and Miller had a two-run double in the inning. Allen Central came back with five runs to take a 9-8 lead in their half of the fourth inning. Prestonsburg, on their worst day of playing the field, committed five errors in the inning. The Lady Blackcats got one run back in the fourth to tie the game 9 as Fannin singled and scored on Greathouse's double. Allen Central put their leadoff batter on base in the top of the fifth as Hardy singled. But she was forced out at second. The Lady Rebel loaded the bases with two out on a single by Turner and a walk to Yates. But Queen was retired to end the inning. Prestonsburg made short work in the bottom of the sixth. With one out, Carolyn Jones walked and scored on Clay's game-winning triple. Allen Central will visit South Floyd tonight. Prestonsburg ended their regular season last evening at Johnson Central.

erased when the Prestonsburg infield turned a base hit by Taylor into a double play. Robinson, getting the tougher hits out of the way on her way to hitting for the cycle, homered in the Prestonsburg third when the Lady Blackcats scored twice. Clay, who walked, scored ahead of her. Miller had a double in the inning and Greathouse singled. Hall walked to load the bases, but Prestonsburg was unable to push home any more runs as they left the bases loaded. Robinson doubled with two out in the fourth inning, scoring Clay, who singled. Robinson scored on Greathouse's base hit. Pike Central put a run on the board in the fifth inning on a base hit by Caldwell, who stole second and third before scoring on a wild pitch. Robinson completed her milestone by collecting a single in the fifth inning when the Lady Blackcats scored four times to mercy the Lady Hawks. Miller hit a booming triple to clean the bases in the fifth.

Parents' bad attitude can "foul" them out

"It's not whether you win or lose; it's how you play the game."

Tell that to the parent who's yelling obscenities at the Little League umpire for calling a third strike on his up-and-coming Babe Ruth or to the coach berating a child because he dropped the ball and lost the "big game."

The motto of these sports fans might be "winning is the only reason to play."

When parents, children and sports become an embarrassing combination, it's time to ask whether this activity is really benefitting the child.

"The main reason parents get carried away with their children playing sports is they haven't separated their identity from that of their children," said Edward Maxwell Jr., M.D., clinical director of the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services. "They also lose sight of the purpose of children playing sports."

Maxwell, an associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Kentucky, said there are three main reasons for children to play sports: to learn how to enjoy the process of an athletic activity, to develop interactive skills with other individuals, and to develop the healthy lifestyle habit of exercise. Very few people ever play professional sports, so that should not be the main reason to be on a team, he said.

"The bad behavior we tolerate in our professional athletes, coaches and fans filters down to even recreational programs for children. When parents and coaches act this way, the socializing benefits sports can have for children is lost," Maxwell said.

If a parent or coach has lost control of his anger or excitement to the point that he doesn't care about the effect he is having on his peers and the children, then he has crossed the line of acceptable conduct, he said.

"Adults who do not display appropriate positive behavior around the playing field should not be tolerated," Maxwell said. "Under no circumstances should parents or coaches verbally abuse, much less physically abuse children. If it persists, then people have to be excluded."

Positive peer pressure from other parents may help the out-of-control parent refrain from verbal abuse of children, coaches and officials.

Parents should remember that this is their children's activity and not become too tangled up in the games. Sometimes it may be wise for the parent not to attend their children's sporting event. The parent should explain to his child that he can't handle the excitement, Maxwell said.

If a parent disagrees with the coach, Maxwell suggests talking to the coach in private, not around the children.

Parents can make playing sports more enjoyable for their children if they pick an activity their children can be reasonably successful doing and choose a coach and team with the same perspective of the game as their own, Maxwell said. Also, children should choose the sport they want to play and decide whether they prefer an individual or team activity.

Sports participation can be a good opportunity for parents and children to interact. Parents should discuss the games with their children and help them set attainable goals and learn how to cope with success and failure. Maxwell emphasized that parents should not expect their children to perform flawlessly and should support their children, even when they play poorly.

For some children sports are not fun, and they can learn positive self-image and interactive skills in a non-athletic activity. Maxwell said, "It's extremely discouraging for children who are not physically able to be forced to play a sport and then be criticized when they can't do it."

Elliott County Dragway to open with a new look

If you are a drag racing fan and you are looking for a place for some exciting races and comfortable facilities, you will want to check out the Elliott County Dragway that has opened with a new look for 1995.

Starting the '95 race season the facility will have new clean restrooms, new guardrails, an updated and delicious Mud-Hut menu and more lighting for the drag itself as well as the spectator area.

According to John Lewis, Pikeville, the new track is geared toward a successful season.

"We've dedicated ourselves to making this season the best ever," he said. "Best ever for fan accommodations."

The track will host drag races every Saturday night with time trials at 6 p.m. and elimination at 8 p.m.

"We are using a new point system to ensure a big purse for the top point-getters," said Lewis. "The computer timing system will now indicate miles per hour for each vehicle."

When race fans attend the Elliott County Dragway, they will be treated to a family oriented evening of thrills as the last three-second dragsters, cars, trucks, motorcycles and three and four-wheelers battle for top prize money, trophies and points.

The track will feature concessions as well as free camping.

The facility is located on highway 650 off Route 7 near Sandy Hook.

Be sure to check next week's paper for race results and photos of winners.

Rangers fall 9-8 to Prestonsburg Braves

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Rangers' starting pitcher Josh Slone was hit often and hard in the first two innings of his team's game against the Prestonsburg Braves in Little League baseball at Archer Park last week.

But Slone settled down after the second inning when the Braves scored seven times to take a 9-1 lead. Slone and Matt Setser shutout the Braves over the final four innings as the Rangers mounted an attempted comeback that fell a run short, losing 9-8. Setser hurled the fourth and fifth innings for the Rangers.

The Rangers, batting in the top of the sixth, had runners at first and third but could not get the tying run across the plate. Josh Meade was left standing at third base when Zack Bradshaw's fly ball to right field was hauled in by Jason Isom for the final out.

The Braves led 2-1 after the first inning and pushed across seven runs in the second to lead 9-1 after two.

Anthony Burchett doubled home a run in the Braves' second and Randy Slone scored him with a triple. He came on to dent the plate when Danny Layne singled up the middle.

The hit parade continued for the Braves when Chris Spriggs singled home a run, the Braves' fourth consecutive hit off Slone. John Gillispie walked to load the bases and Nick Hager drew a one-out walk to force in Layne.

Two runners scored when Meade couldn't handle Matt Tackett's hot grounder to first. The final run came home on Heath Chaffin's RBI single.

The Braves grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first on a double by Spriggs, an error at shortstop and Jason Isom's two-run double.

Tackett, who picked up the win for the Braves, allowed the Rangers a lone run in the first inning on a walk to Zach Slone and Josh Slone to start the game. Setser drew a two-out walk to load the bases for the Rangers and Phillip Allen worked Tackett for a base on balls, forcing in Slone from third base.

Tackett had little trouble with the Rangers in the second inning as he got three batters looking at called third strikes.

Slone, working his final inning, set the Braves down in order in the third and the Rangers began their comeback attempt.

Josh Shepherd tripled to right to start the inning for the Mets. He scored on a passed ball. Tackett issued consecutive walks to Setser and Phillip Allen. Setser later scored on a passed ball and Allen came home on Bradshaw's base hit to make it a 9-4 game.

After the Braves left two runners stranded in the third, the Rangers dented the plate for two more runs in the top of the fourth. Tackett got the first two batters, Zach Slone and Josh Slone, on strikes. But he walked Josh Shepherd and Meade doubled him home. He scored on a two base error by the Braves to make it a 9-6 game.

Setser, who came on to pitch for the Rangers in the third, struck out the side in the bottom of the fourth and the Rangers continued to draw closer.

In the fifth the Rangers pushed across two runs for a 9-8 game. A leadoff walk to Joey Meadows, who replaced an injured Phillip Meadows, started the Rangers' fifth. Meadows stole second and scored on Bradshaw's RBI single.

Chad Wallen legged out a bunt for a base hit and moved to second on Jeff Allen's sacrifice bunt. Wallen scored on a passed ball to make it a one-run game.

Setser allowed a base runner in the Braves half of the fifth, but got Hager to ground to second to end the inning.

Shepherd singled to start the Rangers' sixth inning but was caught stealing at second base. Meade drew a walk and Meadows walked with two out. Bradshaw then drilled a long drive to right field that was caught to end the game.

Slone worked three innings, allowing nine runs on eight hits. He walked seven while striking out four. Setser, in two innings of work, gave up no runs on just one hit. He walked one and struck out four.

Big stretch, but safe!

It was a close play at first base as this Ivel Reds' baserunner just beat the throw to first base in minor league baseball play at the Allen Park last Friday night. The Allen Park is in constant use as the Harold-Allen-Prater Little League keeps the fields busy. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Tagged out!

Phillip Tucker, popular basketball official in the 15th Region, showed that there was still some hits left in his bat when he singled to right field during softball tournament play at Archer Park last Saturday. Bassin' with the Pros

Start looking for pre-spawn bass in smaller feeder creeks

Depending on weather and water conditions, largemouth bass should begin moving shallow in preparation for spawning within the next few weeks, and, says former professional guide David Wharton, it can be the best or worst time of your life.

"Spring bass are not always as easy to locate as fishermen may think, especially early in the spring," notes the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler. "Water temperature is the primary key that determines what the bass will be doing, and it can vary considerably from one end of a lake to the other."

"Not all bass spawn at the same time. Some fish are moving shallow while others are still deep and still others are somewhere in between. Locating them isn't always that easy."

When Wharton begins looking for bass this time of year, he starts first by fishing smaller tributaries in the upper end of a lake. He doesn't fish major creek channels, but instead, smaller creeks that feed into the larger ones.

"Concentrate on whatever cover is available," he advises. "Get in the channel itself and fish both edges. Normally, a good starting depth will be between 10 and 15 feet, and your best lure will probably be a 1/2 or 3/4 ounce tandem willow leaf spinnerbait retrieved through the cover and over the channel edge."

Wharton's second choice when looking for early spring bass is along grasslines, providing the lake has vegetation like hydrilla or milfoil. He prefers to concentrate in places where the edge of the grass meets a creek channel.

"Most of the time this will be a very small area, but bass will move up and down the channel to the vegetation," explains the Johnson pro. "I've won two national tournaments fishing spots like this."

Wharton will also fish underwater ridges or humps that do not have any moss or vegetation growing on them. These are high spots on the lake floor that are usually only five to about seven feet deep on top.

"These places are best if they are surrounded by vegetation," says Wharton. "They're like little bare islands the bass can come to. You don't have to find humps with sharp depth changes all around, either. All they have to be is bare high spots."

In addition to spinnerbaits, Wharton suggests anglers consider jigs and crankbaits as possible lure choices. Jigs tend to produce quality bass while the diving lures can be used to cover a lot of water quickly.

McKinney's grand slam gives Allen Central sweep

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

One of the favorite sayings of Cincinnati Reds' announcer Joe Nuxhall when the Reds played a doubleheader was, "You can't win two until you win the first one."

That was true this past Saturday afternoon at the Allen Park when the Allen Central Lady Rebels hosted East Carter in a women's softball doubleheader.

But it took extra innings for Allen Central to win game one 9-5 and they came back in the nightcap and posted a 13-2 win in a sweep of the two games.

In the first game, Veronica McKinney provided the heroics as she blasted a grand slam home run in the bottom of the sixth inning to give the Lady Rebs the 9-5 first game win.

East Carter had scored a run in the top of the fourth to lead 5-3. Allen Central scored twice in the fifth to tie the game at five, sending it to extra innings (only two five-inning games are played for doubleheaders).

Two were out when McKinney hit her home run over the fence. Misty Clark had forced Nikki Queen at second after she reached on an error.

Kathy Conn singled and Melissa Mullins walked to load the bases. McKinney then hit the grand slam to win the game 9-5.

East Carter scored four times in the third inning to lead 4-0 against McKinney.

With one out, Lisa Stumbo reached on an error and Queen was safe on an error at shortstop. Both runners scored on Misty Scott's two-run triple. She came on to make it a 4-3 game when Conn singled behind her. Mullins had a hit in the inning, but was left stranded.

East Carter made it 5-3 with a lone run in the fourth frame. But in the fifth, Allen Central plated two runs to tie the game at 5.

Conn and McKinney each had two hits in the game.

McKinney was the winning pitcher, winning her eighth consecutive game.

In the second game, the Lady Rebels made it a clean sweep with a 13-2 decision.

East Carter took a 2-0 advantage in the first inning of the second game.

But Allen Central didn't let the lead last long as they scored three times in their half of the inning. Queen and Scott walked before Conn singled home Queen. McKinney then doubled in a run and Vylinda Turner doubled home Conn.

It was 9-2 after Allen Central batted in the second. Conn and Mullins had two-run doubles in the inning as they scored six times.

The Lady Rebels scored their final four runs in the third inning of the mercy win. April Hardy had a two-run double and Queen singled her home. Scott had a base hit in the inning.

A Look at Sports

Baseball has enjoyed immense popularity over the past five years and last year's new division setup created even more interest.

Ken Griffey Jr.'s pursuit of a home run title was bringing the patrons to the ball park, despite the Seattle Mariners' lackluster season.

Cal Ripken had a pursuit of his own in chasing Lou Gehrig's "ironman" consecutive game streak.

Baseball was a happy game until the player became greedy and decided they would run major league baseball.

An ensuing strike cancelled the playoffs under the new setup and then the World Series was scrubbed. Fans became enraged and even though baseball is back, the fans are staying away.

The Boston Red Sox played the Detroit Tigers in front of just over 10,000 fans. The San Francisco Giants faced the San Diego Padres as just over 12,000 fans looked on.

Some clubs are drawing slightly more, but most of the attendance posted is for tickets sold in advance, not for the actual number who came to the park.

But think of averaging nearly 50,000 per game. This year the total average is around 22,000, making the old ball park look rather empty.

The players are starting to admit that baseball is in trouble with the fans. Wow! What a revelation.

If the players go through with a boycott of this year's All-Star game, then baseball will really take a setback with the fans.

How long will it take for fans broken hearts to mend? Two seasons, for sure.

As the season progresses and the fall months start sounding football, the crowds will make up even less than half of the stadiums.

Major league baseball definitely needs something that will appeal to the fans. The players and their free (for a limited time only) autographs will not get the job done.

The two organizations (Major League Players Union and the owners) still haven't reached an agreement and appear to still be many miles apart.

The old '94 contract the players are playing under now will soon be old stuff and the lesser paid players will demand more.

So, what will be the answer for the players?

Another strike.
This past year's strike -- strike one. A boycott of the All-Star game -- strike two. Another walk out this season -- strike three, 'yer out. Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports.

Governor, Mayor kick off Bluegrass State Games

Governor Brereton C. Jones, Lexington Mayor Pam Miller and other Bluegrass State Games representatives officially opened the door for some "Serious Fun" on Tuesday, May 9, by kicking off registration for the 11th annual Bluegrass State Games.

This year the Bluegrass State Games will take place July 28-30 in Lexington and surrounding counties. Thousands of Kentucky's amateur athletes will compete to win gold, silver and bronze medals in 25 different sports.

"The Bluegrass State Games allows Kentuckians of all ages and abilities to participate in the thrilling experience of athletic competition," said Governor Jones. "I am pleased that the Commonwealth of Kentucky is able to contribute to the continuing success of the Games."

The Bluegrass State Games is one of 47 state games held in the United States and ranks towards the top as far as participation. Over 19,000 athletes representing 119 Kentucky counties participated in the 1994 Games, at which 4,256 medals were presented to the winners.

This year over 45 sites in 7 counties will be used for the Bluegrass State Games. More than 750 volunteers will provide staff support during the Opening Ceremonies and competitions throughout the weekend.

Carl Frey, Bluegrass State Games Chairman of the Board, joined Governor Jones and Mayor Miller at the state capitol in Frankfort to announce plans for the 1995 Games.

"Since its founding, the Bluegrass State Games has grown tremendously in numbers of participants, support and enthusiasm," said Frey. "We invite amateur athletes throughout the state to come to Lexington and enjoy some 'Serious Fun' at the 1995 Games."

The 1995 Bluegrass State Games will also include the exciting sport of power tumbling as its new event this year. Also new this year is a 500m and 1,000m stock race canoeing division for Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts.

"We always like to keep things exciting each year with the Bluegrass State Games," said Sam Dunn, BGSG Executive Director. "So this year we are pleased to add the increasingly popular sport of power tumbling as one of our twenty-five different sporting events."

This year's bowling competition will change a little, too. League qualifications have been eliminated and it is now registration is done on a first-come/first-serve basis.

KET, The Kentucky Network, will again be on-hand to help everyone see exactly what happened during the weekend. KET will produce a one-hour highlights package of the weekend's events that will be shown on Monday, July 31, at 8 p.m.

"KET is pleased to once again be working with the Bluegrass State Games and its staff," said Virginia Fox, Executive Director for KET.

"The shows we produced last year were successful in presenting to the state exactly what the Bluegrass State Games are all about. We are very glad we can do it once again."

Sports included in this year's Games are: archery, basketball, bowling, canoeing/kayaking, chess, croquet, cycling, diving, equestrian, fencing, golf, gymnastics, horseshoes, karate, power tumbling, racquetball, shooting, soccer, softball, swimming, table tennis, tennis, track and field, volleyball and wrestling.

The entry deadlines are June 23 for equestrian, soccer (youth divisions), softball, and tennis; July 1 for gymnastics, soccer (adult divisions) and volleyball; and July 7 for the rest of the sporting events. Each entry deadline is listed with its particular sport in the BGSG entry booklet.

On Friday, July 28, a family picnic for participants will begin at 4 p.m. which precedes the official opening of the Games. The Opening Ceremonies will begin at 8 p.m. on Friday, July 28, at the University of Kentucky's Commonwealth Stadium in Lexington. The annual parade of athletes will lead to the lighting of the Bluegrass State Game torch.

The torch will be lit in Frankfort on Friday, July 28, at 11:30 a.m. at the Old Capitol during the seniors Pacesetters event. A team of runners will then run the torch approximately 25 miles to Lexington where the Games will officially be declared open.

Entry booklets are available at any SuperAmerica store or Valvoline Instant Oil Change location throughout the state. Libraries, sporting goods stores, as well as parks and recreation departments also have booklets. Anyone interested in the Bluegrass State Games can call 1-800-722-BGSG (2474) to get an entry booklet mailed to them.

Martin Reds score three in fifth to win over Martin Cardinals, 4-1

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Henry Napier and Larry Mullins combined to strike out 12 Martin Cardinal players and the Martin Reds remained undefeated by posting a 4-1 win over the Cardinals.

Martin scored three times in the bottom of the fifth inning to break a 1-1 tie.

Napier started on the mound for the Reds and whiffed nine batters. He ran into control problems in the fifth inning and had to be relieved by Mullins.

Mullins hurled the final 11/3 innings for the save. He struck out three batters while walking one.

Napier got in a jam by issuing three walks to load the bases. Mullins came on and got McKinney on strikes before walking Owens to force in the tying run.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. Patrick Martin singled but was forced at second on Keith Crum's bounce back to the mound. Crum scored on Fields two out base hit.

The Cardinals then tied the game in the fifth inning. In the bottom of the fifth the Reds pushed home three runs to lead 4-1. All the scoring came with two out.

Jeremy Hayes, who was on the mound for the Cardinals, walked the first two batters he faced in the inning before getting Mullins on strikes. He walked Patrick Martin to load the bases and Crum singled home two runs for a 3-1 game. Martin scored on a bases loaded walk to Holbrook for the final run.

Napier allowed the lone Cardinal run in picking up the win. He gave up three hits.

Hayes was the losing pitcher for the Cardinals. He went the distance allowing four runs on five hits. He struck out 10 batters and walked eight.

Branham wins Modified Heat Race at 201 Speedway in Sitka

by Chris Belcher
Track writer

The racing season is in full swing and good racing can be found each Saturday night at the 201 Speedway in Sitka.

This past Saturday night, Martin's Jimmy Branham drove his number 44 modified racer to a first place finish in the Modified Heat Race action. Branham edged out Whitesburg's Anthony Adams who finished second. Paintsville attorney Mike Osborne, who had just finished his modified racer an hour before race time, finished third.

Jake Miller of Martin ran a close second in the Late Model Heat Race. Martin County driver Paul Davis placed third.

In the feature run, Miller led the first 12 laps of the 25 lap feature until lap 13. Pilgrim driver Paul Davis put his Swartz Chassis car in front for good in winning the feature race.

Davis collected $1,000 for the victory. Miller placed second in the late model feature and Belcher's Richard Chaney took third place. Scott McCloud and Ronnie Cole rounded out the top five.

In Super Bomber competition Robbie Perkins outlasted Gary Combs and Ronnie Conley to place first and picked up $350 in prize money.

After winning the Super Bomber, Perkins boarded his own car and and won the 20-lap feature, taking home another $600. Anthony Adams finished second and Greg Gibson ran in at third. Jimmy Branham took fourth place with brother Harry Branham placing fifth.

Albert Butcher was in victory lane after capturing the 12-lap Claim Bomber feature. It was Butcher's second consecutive win at 201 Speedway.

Roomy family home covers all the bases

By Associated Designs
A wrap-around porch gives an open welcoming look to the Artesia, a roomy 1-1/2 story family home with a three-car garage and full basement. Living environments range from the formal rooms at the front, to a relaxed family room at center, and on back to the cheery sunroom at the rear.

In fact, all of the family living areas are naturally bright. The covered porch mutes the light in the living room and vaulted dining room so drapes and furniture keep their color longer.

The ceiling in the dining room slants up from the front, vaulting to a lofty peak above the open staircase, and slanting down toward the back of the family room. This spacious high-ceilinged central area is completely open to the kitchen and breakfast room.

In the kitchen, two counter extensions add to the usable work space, as does the centrally placed work island. This kitchen is ideal for families who like to cook together. Utilities and a small bathroom are close by, convenient to the garage as well.

Luxuries abound in the master suite. It has two closets, a linen closet, and a private bathroom with a 2-person shower, raised spa tub and twin lavs.

The open stairway forms a bridge. From there, and from the open landing, you can overlook the family room and dining room. A two-section bathroom serves the Artesia's two upper bedrooms. Both rooms are basically the same size, but the front-facing bedroom, with its arched window and vaulted ceiling, is the one the kids will fight over.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $15 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, Ore. 9740'. Please specify the Artesia 10-168 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring over 150 home plans is available for $12. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

Ky. Win Lists: A labor of joy recognizing players, coaches who built Ky. traditions

Because of an enduring interest in Kentucky Win Lists, let us begin with a letter.

Russell Rice, S. Daytona, Fla. (author and former UK sports information director): "I understand you no longer keep won-loss records of high school football and basketball coaches in Kentucky. It was (is?) a valuable service. Too bad that more people don't (didn't) appreciate it."

Both features started in Sports in Kentucky in 1983, growing out of a reader's question: "Who is the winningest high school football coach in Kentucky?" At the time it was Preston Holland at Murray High School, 244.

Who is the winningest active coach, I wondered, and found it was Gamis Martin at Bardstown who, at the time, was 18 victories shy of Holland's record. Martin was oblivious to the number, but would soon be almost haunted by it when a 'win watch' ensued at Bardstown by sports media statewide. He became the subject of newspaper articles, radio and television interviews and commentaries. If memory serves correctly, it took the Tigers the better part of the three seasons to hand the old coach his 245th victory. By then he was weary of the limelight, embarrassed it had taken so long.

The Coaches Win List included such coaching luminaries as (current record holder) Walter Brugh of Paintsville, Owen Hauck at Boone County, Jack Morris of Mayfield and Joe Jagers at Fort Knox (then North Hardin). The popularity of the List caught the attention of the Lexington Herald-Leader and Louisville Courier-Journal who soon enough began updates and quietly adopted them as their own.

Naturally, the Football Win List prompted another reader to write: Who is Kentucky's winningest boys basketball coach? William Kean at Louisville Central. As it was in football, the research was a labor of love and I managed to interview many wonderful people (and some grumpy ones) along the way.

The adventure also spawned a Girls Basketball Coaches List that, if it has done nothing else, has added to interest in the girls game. All three projects were a labor of joy, recognizing players and coaches who had been forgotten or ignored.

For the record: a KHSAA report earlier this year by sports information director Brooks Downing credited the Win Lists to a gentleman in Madisonville and another in Harlan.

Two years ago, beginning with a query about Richie Farmer's point total while at Clay County High, I embarked on two (ongoing) projects -- Boys High School 2,000 Points Club, and Girls High School 1,400 Points Club.

It has been wonderful fun. Today the boys list includes 116 players who scored 2,000 or more varsity points during their high school days, and 105 girls with 1,400 or more points. I suspect names are still missing from both.

All-time leaders: 'King' Kelly Coleman (Wayland), 4,337. And Geri Grigsby (McDowell), 4,385.

However, Fort Thomas Highlands senior-to-be Jamie Waltz has 4,067 points and is only the second girl in Kentucky history to reach the 4,000 plateau. She needs 318 points to tie Grigsby.

If seeing his or her name in print made a day a little brighter for even one person, then researching and compiling Win Lists has been worth it.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE

Bill Jones, Clarksville, Tenn. "I cannot stand the sight or sound of Dick Vitale. My wife and I look forward to the first two (college) basketball games each evening during the season. But when we hear super-ego, worship-me and forget the game Vitale, we hit the off-button."

Jones has written ESPN. "But they're not interested in one person's opinion. Is there any way a poll can be taken asking if fans want Vitale back next season? Yes or no. Or, a poll asking 'Who is your favorite college basketball announcer? And who is your least favorite.' Any way I can help, let me know."

COMMENT: As it was with Howard Cosell and ABC, ESPN does not care a whit whether fans like or dislike Vitale so long as they tune in and are vocal about it. Ratings, ratings.

COMMENT II: Jones' poll questions have been placed for him at America On-Line. Stay tuned.

Dick Hudson, Louisville: "Enjoyed your nostalgic look at baseball. A few names came to mind: Mel Allen...Robin Roberts...Larry Dolby...Nellie Fox...Preacher Roe...Roy Campanella...Bobby Shantz.

Hudson adds, "Regrettably, I believe your sense (that Big Leaguers don't care about fans extends...) to basketball and football (players who generally have little grasp or real appreciation for their sport."

Todd Hamilton, Sports Director at WBGW/WBLG Radio in Bowling Green: "A bit of (baseball) trivia: In 1950 the Detroit Tigers farm team at Davenport Ia. had (on its roster) Jim Pickens (legendary baseball coach at Western Kentucky), Jim Bunning (now a Congressman and owner of no-hitters in both leagues), and Mile Hamilton, now in the Hall of Fame as a broadcaster."

COMMENT: Pickens, Bunning and Hamilton. Hmmm.

Brad Cundiff, Columbus, Georgia: (BCUKOL@aol.com) describing himself as a UK (Cats fan trapped in Ga.), had questions. "Would a redshirt year really do Jared Prickett any good? Can Derek Anderson replace Rod Rhodes as defensive stopper? Will it be fall before they know if Derek will play first semester?"

Answers: Yes, yes, and the coaches will know by the end of summer.

PUTTING KID BACK IN KY.

Excellent, the idea Kentucky Basketball Museum officials are using to drum up support and publicity for the Lexington-based project. A writing contest for youngsters six through 11 years old will produce a young face to match the theme being set forth by museum fund raisers.

Kids are invited to submit a 250-word composition explaining "What the UK basketball program means to me."

While I'm not sure children that age really know, the compositions ought to be interesting.

Entries must be postmarked May 19 and mailed to Kid Fan, P.O. Box 89, Lexington, KY 40501. Each youngster must include his/her address and telephone number.

The winner and parents will be special weekend guests of the Museum sponsors June 9-11, and attend the first Wildcat Reunion Weekend which includes a dinner where they will meet former Kentucky Wildcat players.

"We have commitments from several former players already, but the list isn't complete yet," spokesman Bruce Kabalen said last week, declining to reveal names.

Probables? Among the players will be at least some members of UK's last NCAA championship team in 1978. Perhaps Kyle Macy and Rick Roby.

Weak spot in the museum committee's idea? Judges for the composition writing contest will be sports media types.

MOELLER TO CURRY

When Michigan defensive coordinator Lloyd Carr offered a teary-eyed spin on television last week about Wolverine, coach Gary Moeller's resignation ("you have no idea what kind of pressure a coach works under," Carr said), it brought to mind the name Bill Curry.

Laszy week's hand-wringing subject: "Poor Gary Moeller. What a terrific guy. This is so unfortunate." I wondered why someone in Moeller's entourage didn't see this coming and do something to lessen the pressure? Where were these people before Moeller reached a point that lapsed into a public drunken tirade in a restaurant?

Curry? Says here, where job security is concerned, few coaches will start the 1995 season with more pressure than UK's. It could be his last. So, why not diffuse some of the pressure Curry must already feel before it becomes so excruciating as to cause a good man not to be himself?

It would be a well-invested kindness if fans around the state dropped Curry a note. "Coach Curry, we know it's gonna' be tough. But you're a good man, try your best. We support you."

Silly, right? Wonder what Gary Moeller would think?

Footnote: While everyone feels badly for Moeller let us remember he is taking a paid year's leave-of-absence ($130,000). How many professional people do you know who could go into a drunken rage in a public place and keep his salary?

TIM COUCH'S VISITOR

Bill Curry traveled to Hyden last week to visit Leslie County High football/basketball star Tim Couch. The UK football coach is prohibited from speaking about the youngster, but managed this cryptic remark: "Obviously there is a very special player out there."

Couch, a 6-5 senior-to-be, said he is considering UK, Auburn, Tennessee, Penn State and Florida State.

Footnote: Anybody want to hazard a guess on which of those five schools have offered Couch the option to play football and basketball?

BASEBALL NEEDS 'A BABE'

Baseball was in trouble after the Chicago Black Sox scandal, Buck O'Neil said in Ken Burns' epic Baseball. "Then along comes this big fella who starts hittin' home runs. Hittin' em and hittin' em."

Babe Ruth brought fans back to major league baseball at a time when its popularity was, well, where it seems to be again in 1995.

Begs the question: With attendance figures down and the fan anger factor up, is there a Babe Ruth personality out there to re-energize America's game?

I could think of only two in this generation of players who have the dynamism and star power to do for baseball what Ruth did. Both are no better than borderline. Ken Griffey Jr. and Frank Thomas.

PARTING SHOT

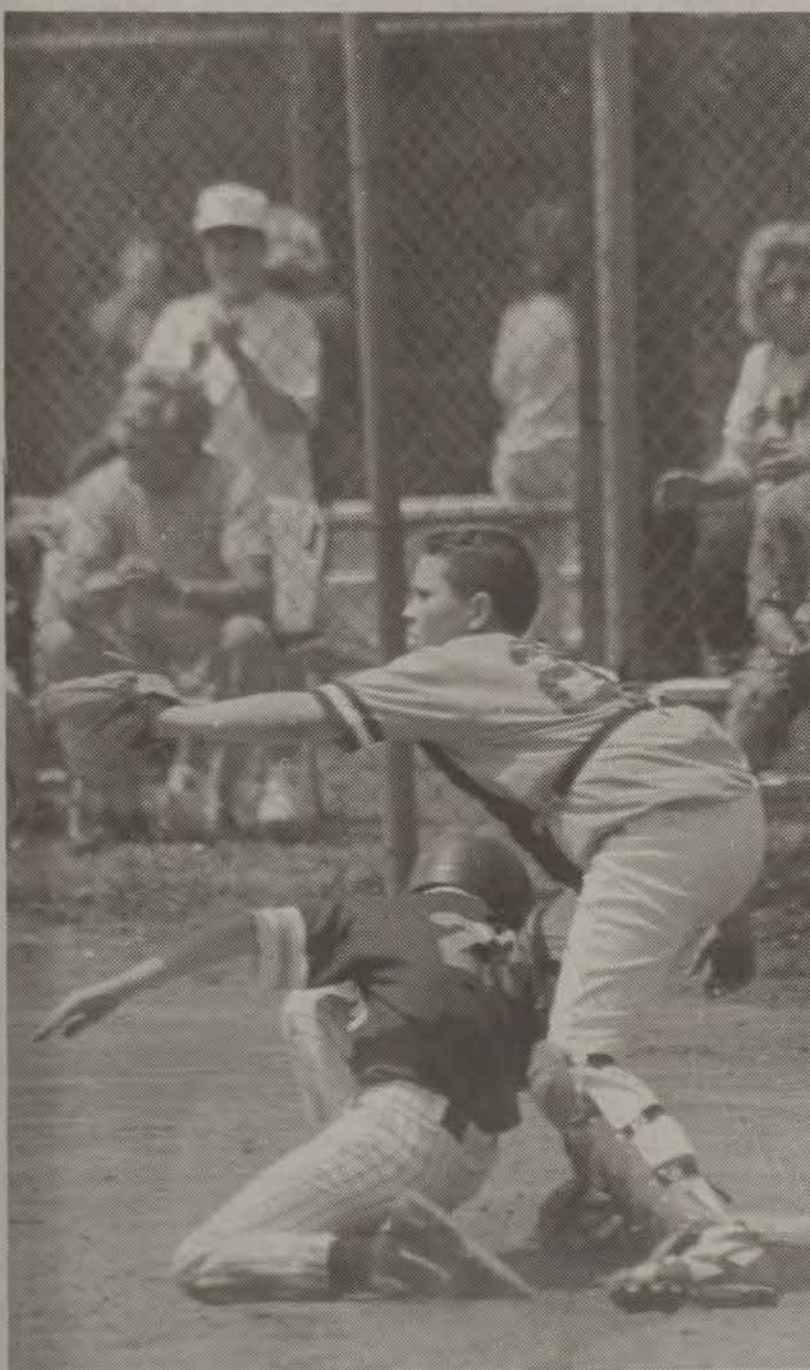

Having the age advantage of interviewing both, I find it amusing and remarkable how like Adolph Rupp, Pat Riley has become.

Quoted in Sports Illustrated's May 1, Riley, coach of the fractious New York Knicks said, "I wasn't hired to relate to these guys. I was hired to coach them. The only thing I'm going to relate to them is how important it is for us to be on the same wave length and get them to do what it takes to win."

What's that sound? Adolph Rupp laughing?

And so it goes.

Have a point of view? Write to Bob Watkins, Sports in Kentucky, P.O. Box 124, Glendale, KY 42740. Or, SptsInKy@aol.com.

"Where's the plate?"

WAKE UP, PIKE COUNTY AND EASTERN KENTUCKY!

THEN, four years ago, many of our people were saying:
Let's vote for Paul Patton for Lt. Governor. He is one of us, he will do a lot for us. So we help elect him.

NOW, four years later, what has he done for us? NOTHING!
Being Lt. Governor, he was hand in hand with Governor (Do Nothing for Eastern Kentucky) Jones. After being Lt. Governor for one (1) year, Patton was asked about the future of U.S. Highway 23 and 119. His reply was, I have been so busy, I haven't had time to find out. WHY DID WE VOTE FOR HIM?

Now, Lt. Governor Patton brags on T.V. about the 40,000 jobs he brought to Kentucky, but NONE of these to PIKE COUNTY or Eastern Kentucky.

LOOK at this.....What Lt. Governor Patton did:
• International Paper. 340 jobs, giving away $114,705 per job, these jobs going to Bowling Green.
• Douglas Autotech. 160 jobs, 1.7 million of your tax dollars going to Hopkinsville.
• Gallatin Steel. 160 jobs, costing the taxpayers $10,625 a job, going to Northern Kentucky.
• G.E. in Louisville. $19,000,000 of your tax dollars for jobs in Louisville.

Do you want four more years of all the jobs going to West Kentucky?
If you are satisfied to sit here and help Paul Patton make a name for himself in Louisville and West Kentucky, then vote for him; but I think you are as fed up as I am. So let's send him the message on election day, May 23rd, that he does not have Pike County and Eastern Kentucky in his pocket to ignore for the next four (4) years.

Tell me one job he has brought to Pike County or Eastern Kentucky as Lt. Governor and as the State Economic Development Cabinet.

We need a Governor who knows there are unemployed taxpayers east of Lexington.

Two run double!

Allen Central's Veronica McKinney lined a double to left centerfield against Prestonsburg last Friday, scoring two runs. McKinney had four hits in the tripleheader. She has been the victim of not being pitched to this season since opposing teams elect to put her on base intentionally rather than allow her to hit. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Low pitch

Prestonsburg Lady Blackcat Jennifer Greathouse looked at a pitch down and in the dirt in women's softball play at Archer Park Friday evening. Greathouse has collected five hits, including two doubles, in her last four games. Prestonsburg and Allen Central played a tripleheader last Friday night with the Lady Blackcats, winning two of the three games. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Definitely safe!

Minor league baseball play was hot and heavy at the Allen Park this past Friday evening when the Mud Creek Dodgers tangled with the Ivel Reds. This Reds' runner was safe at second base after the shortstop for the Dodgers couldn't find the ball. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Clark, Jax State enjoy successful baseball season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Although there will be no playoffs for the Jacksonville State Gamecocks, still it was one of the more successful baseball seasons they have enjoyed.

Next season the Gamecocks will move up to Division I. Because of the move, Jax State will have to sit out two seasons without playoff hopes.

But, Gamecock coach Ruby Abbott, who owns 843 victories in his tenure at Jax State, said that this year's team was special.

"I'm just as proud of this team as I am of any of the teams that went to the World Series and the ones that won national championships."

Jacksonville State finished the season with a sparkling 40-10 record, posting their second consecutive 40-win season. Last season the Gamecocks finished 40-7.

Former Prestonsburg standout John Thomas Clark was a big part of the success of this Jacksonville team.

A junior, Clark batted .313 for the season. He appeared in all 46 games the Gamecocks played.

Clark set a new all-time Jacksonville State record for walks, breaking the old mark by nine base on balls. Clark walked 48 times this season, shattering the previous record of 39.

Another record was within Clark's grasp, but he fell short by two stolen bases. The school record for stolen bases in a season was 25 and Clark finished with 23.

That could be attributed to the fact that Clark did not start two games because of an injury. He started 48 of the 50 games the Gamecocks played.

He came to bat 128 times with 40 hits, including three doubles and a home run. He had 24 RBIs and a slugging percentage of .359.

Clark walked 47 times and fanned 19 for an on-base percentage of .494.

Jacksonville State won their final two games with a doubleheader sweep of Erskine College. The Gamecocks took the first game 2-0 and won the nightcap 4-3.

The 40th win appeared in doubt as Erskine took a 3-0 lead after the first inning of game two. Realizing what was at stake, the Gamecocks' bats started ringing and sounded out their 40th victory of the season.

Clark was one for two in the opening game with an RBI. He went hitless in the second contest, playing at third base.

After graduating from Jacksonville State next year, Clark hopes to be drafted by a major league team.

Next season, Jacksonville State will be a member of the Trans-America Athletic Conference.

Stereotypes laid to rest

Although NASCAR fans love their sport tremendously, many of them will say that they do not think too highly of road course racing. I've heard many NASCAR supporters say, "If it's got more than four turns, it just ain't real stock car racing."

But regardless of how one feels about the road course, one must admit that last Sunday's Save Mart Supermarket 300 was pretty darn exciting.

Normally, I would not occupy my column with details of a particular race. But last Sunday's event merits some serious attention.

It had all the drama and competition of any race you'll find on the NASCAR Winston Cup Series' 31 race schedule.

I'll be the first to admit that I wasn't too excited about watching Sunday's race following the emotion packed event at Talladega the week before.

But after a few laps, I was totally consumed by the intense on-track competition that was developing. I guess I'm ready to lay aside my stereotypical feelings about road course racing.

What made this race so enjoyable to watch? Well definitely my hat goes off to the folks at ESPN. Their combination of in-car camera shots and intense racing action held my interest at peak level.

Watching Ricky Rudd do his dance on the clutch, brake, and accelerator definitely strengthened my appreciation and respect for how hard a Winston Cup driver has to work to navigate the snake-like turns of a road course.

And when the rear bomber-cam gave that shot of Dale Earnhardt pulling up on the back of Mark Martin, heck I felt like I was in Martin's back seat.

But that was just part of it. The racing on the track was plenty enough to keep you on the edge of your seat. Watching cars go three-wide into a turn that was built for only one car at a time, caused me to hold my breath on more than one occasion.

Then there was the on-track drama that dared you to even think about touching the remote. Believe me folks, I'm your classic channel surfer. But the thoughts of turning away from the race never entered my mind.

Case in point...Ken Schrader breaks off his "shifter" in the race's early stages. Now keep in mind that at Sears Point, the average driver has to shift gears more than 10 times per lap. Was he done for the day? Not even! He nursed his car around a few laps, and then pitted where his crew promptly attached a pair of vise-grips to what was left of the shifter. A few laps later, when the leaders pitted, Schrader found himself in the lead. He went on to finish in the ninth position.

Rusty Wallace's decision to pit in the race's final laps had huge implications. Hoping to thread his way back to the front of the field, he was caught up in an accident that regulated him to a 20th place finish and resulted in his dismissal from the top-five point leaders.

Then there was the last lap shootout between Mark Martin, and race winner, Dale Earnhardt. The driver of the GM Goodwrench Service Chevrolet was hovering over Martin like a rabid dog moving in for the kill. For Earnhardt, it was his first career win on a road course.

No, it wasn't your normal NASCAR event, but by George, it was a race in every true sense of the word. Those stereotypes about road course racing? They're history.

About dogwood blossoms, an upside down rainbow and a special coin

How long has it been since you've seen such lushness from the dogwoods as we've had this spring?

The one in our front yard was in full bloom by Easter Sunday and stayed that way until late last week when the rain finally knocked off most of the petals. Perhaps it was the mild winter we had, but for whatever reason, the abundance of white blossoms bridged the gap nicely between the ugly brown nothingness and the fresh greenery that now surrounds us.

It's little wonder that the two states, North Carolina and Virginia, have chosen the dogwood as their state flower. For a couple of weeks, at least, one might have thought it had also been adopted by Eastern Kentucky. At least from our standpoint, the beauty of the dogwood did not go unnoticed and was very much appreciated.

Since it'll be another year before we can hope for such a treat again, I thought I'd share a poem that Wilma found the other day stashed away among some notes and clippings. The poet is unknown, but it's entitled "The Legend of the Dogwood," and goes as follows:

"When Christ was on earth, the dogwood grew/To a towering size with lovely hue/Its branches were strong and interwoven/And for Christ's cross its timbers were chosen./Being distressed at the use of this wood/Christ made a promise which still holds good:/Not ever again shall the dogwood grow/To be large enough for such a tree, and so/Slender and twisted it shall always be/With cross-shaped blossoms for all to see./The petals shall have blood-stains marked in brown/and in the blossom's center a thorny crown./All who see it will think of me./Nailed to a cross from a dogwood tree./Protected and cherished this tree shall be/A reflection to all of my agony."—

I received a call the other day from Paintsville resident Anna Lee Meade who said she'd seen and photographed an upside down rainbow. She sent me a copy of the photo, and sure enough, nestled above the treetops is what appears to be as pretty a rainbow as you'd ever want to see, and it was, indeed, upside down.

However, Meade also sent the photo to Cindy Preszler, chief meteorologist at WKYT-TV in Lexington. Preszler responded, via a letter, that what Meade had photographed wasn't a rainbow after all, but was instead, part of a Sundog.

Through a quick visit to the Johnson County Public Library, I discovered that Sundogs are phenomena which are frequently observed and are produced by prismatic refraction on the alternate sides of the hexagonal ice crystals floating in the air with vertical axes of symmetry.

Boy, that sure clears it up for me. Anyway, it sure looks like an upside down rainbow.

According to an item in the paper last week, another Kennedy will be featured on a U.S. coin.

Malcolm Wilson out to break Appalachian stereotypes

The stereotype often is this: Appalachians are poor and uneducated mountain people—all the men are coal miners or still operators wearing bib overalls and straw hats, and the women are kept barefoot and pregnant.

This "Beverly Hillbilly"—like image doesn't sit well with Malcolm J. Wilson, a born-and-raised Appalachian now living in the Greater Cincinnati area. "The stereotypical image of Appalachians by many people is inaccurate and unfair," says Wilson, an award-winning photographer who spent the first 27 years of his life in the hollows of Harlan County, smack dab in the middle of Central Appalachia. Wilson is the first and only photographer to have a photographic exhibit displayed at the John F. Kennedy Center for Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

He adds, "The Appalachian culture is wide and colorful, as diverse as America itself, a cross-section of people from all walks of life—farmers, miners, artists, architects, and business professionals." Further, Wilson points out, Appalachia is not, as many people perceive, merely a backwoods area of Kentucky and Tennessee. In fact, Appalachia ranges one thousand miles from Georgia to Maine.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

Wilson thinks it's important to set the record straight, especially in Greater Cincinnati, the area where more than 250,000 displaced Appalachians call home. For the past five years, he's been a board member of the ACDA (Appalachian Community Development Association), a not-for-profit organization created to promote, preserve and educate about Appalachia heritage, arts and culture. The ACDA's biggest event each year is the Appalachian Festival, begun 26 years ago by Greater Cincinnati's Junior League, now one of the area's long-standing and popular annual events. Wilson is chairperson of this year's festival, May 12-14 at Coney Island.

Those who know Wilson are not surprised that this year's Festival, under his leadership, is "going to the next level," with new crafters, new foods and new music.

Growing up in Cumberland, Wilson's background has been one of hard work, drive and seizing opportunity. His dad a mechanic, mom a homemaker and beautician, Wilson "was bitten by the photography bug" as a senior at Cumberland High School, typically reading every book on the subject he could find to learn all he could about the art of photography. Four years later, he was teaching photography courses at Southeast Community College.

Soon he opened his own photography studio in Cumberland, shooting weddings and portraits while wife Sandra, a nurse, helped put bread on the table. In 1980, Wilson became managing editor of the weekly "Coal County Newspaper."

doing everything from writing stories and taking photographs to wrapping the papers in rubberbands and delivering them. "It was tough, tough work for not much money," Wilson says today.

The hard decision to leave the area he loved came in 1982, when he enrolled in Northern Kentucky University's noted photography curriculum. "For someone who spent the first 27 years of his life in Harlan County, the 270-mile trip north to Highland Heights, across the river from Cincinnati, was a real eye-opener," Wilson recalls. "It's funny—because of the murders in the 30s during the mining disputes in Harlan County, the area has a still-lingering violent reputation. But let me tell you, my first trip into Cincinnati's inner-city was a real shock. The slums and street life were a little scary."

During his years at Northern Kentucky University, Wilson was a photographer-intern at the popular Kings Island Theme Park, north of Cincinnati; opened his own photography studio, and collaborated on several books about Appalachia. As his reputation grew, so did his body of work, including his noted exhibit of Appalachian life in conjunction with the 6 1/2-hour play "Kentucky Cycle" in Washington, D.C. The play was written by Pulitzer Prize-winner Robert Schenkkan.

Today, Wilson's passion remains the authentic representation of Appalachians, separating myth from reality, and leadership of the "new look" Appalachian Festival, an event that has a popular quarter-century tradition in Greater Cincinnati.

NEW MUSIC FOR FESTIVAL

The most striking difference will be in the festival's music program, Wilson says, which in past years has concentrated on traditional acoustic music. "There will still be plenty of that," Wilson said, "but the 1995 festival will explore the branches of Appalachian music as well as its roots." Along with traditional artists like Piedmont bluesman Joe Thompson, Cincinnati bluegrass legend Katie Laur, and the all-female Lexington string band Reel World, there will be the powerful mountain-inflected jazz fusion of Bela Fleck and the Flecktones and the roadhouse rock and roll of the Mojo Filter Kings, plus two acoustic artists who are adept at making up traditions as they go along—Peter Rowan and the Red Clay Ramblers.

"The fact is," says Wilson, traditional mountain string music has influenced—and itself has evolved into—a wide spectrum of popular musical styles. This year's entertainment line-up reflects this evolution."

Also on display at the festival: "Women of Coal—A Changing Image," Wilson's new photographic exhibit depicting the women of Appalachia in a wide variety of roles—lawyers, surgeons, bookkeepers, professors, hand-crafters, and homemakers.

"We want the world to understand the Appalachian culture," says Wilson, "to know that Appalachians are extremely ambitious, hard-working, family and community-oriented people. But no matter where travels may take Appalachians, you can be assured that a little piece of their home is always carried with them in their hearts."

Kentucky flavor

Goose Creek Symphony will perform during the three-day Appalachian Festival, which kicks off on May 12 at Cincinnati's Coney Island.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of Goose Creek's 1969 appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show and its appearance at the Atlanta Pop Festival with Jimi Hendrix and the Allman Brothers. Goose Creek is led by founder/leader Charlie Gearheart and guitarist Paul "the Pearl" Spradlin.

The group took its name from Gearheart's birthplace of Goose Creek Hollow in eastern Kentucky's Floyd County. Goose Creek Symphony performs at 3 p.m. Sunday, May 14, at Moonlite Gardens.

Also bolstering the Appalachian Festival's entertainment schedule is the Mojo Filter Kings, a hot rock and roll band with roots deep in the hollows of southeast Kentucky. The band features six talented young musicians and song-writers, all but one from small Kentucky towns. Now based in Lexington, The Mojo Filter Kings is blessed with a large and passionate following called "Filter Butts." Diversity is the key to the group's success, playing an electric blend of bluegrass, country, blues, rock and jazz. The group plays Saturday, May 13 at 8 p.m.

The Mojo Filter Kings will perform in a benefit concert in Prestonsburg at Jenny Wiley State Park on Saturday, May 20, at 7:30 p.m. The Prestonsburg concert is to raise funds for WMMT, a public radio station.

Other Kentucky-connected entertainers on tap at the Appalachian Festival include the all-female Reel World String Band from Lexington, the Macedonia Baptist Choir from Harlan County and the Hills of Kentucky Dulcimer Society from Northern Kentucky.

Education about Appalachia and its heritage is an important part of the Festival, and the Commonwealth will be represented by speakers such as Jim Gifford, director of the Jesse Stuart Foundation in Ashland. A special workshop on "Appalachian Stereotyping" features a panel of Kentucky experts, including James B. Goode, associate director of the Appalachian Center at the University of Kentucky; Debbie Bays, formerly of Barbourville now with the Greater Cincinnati Urban Appalachian Council (UAC); Betty Jo Lykins, a public school teacher from Magoffin County; Mike Maloney, formerly of Clay County who is a founding director of the UAC, and Jack Wright, founder of June Apple Records in Whitesburg and now a faculty member of Ohio University's Film Department.

Some 40 crafters from Kentucky will also be on hand, representing towns and cities from across the Bluegrass state—from Berea, Danville, Jackson, Maysville, Pine Knot, Union and points in between. Perhaps the best known is Minnie Adkins, often called America's premiere folk artist, from Peaceful Valley, Elliott County.

Born in the Appalachian foothills of eastern Kentucky in 1934, Minnie, a tomboy and daughter of a tobacco farmer and part-time preacher, began as a child whittling slingshots, paw paw whistles and animals, working in an artistic form that was, at the time, considered solely a male domain.

Minnie's carving talent—and reputation—grew and soon she was turning out imaginative wood carvings featuring small birds, bears, foxes, possums, carved trees, delicate flowers and Noah's Ark scenes that caught the eye of collectors and galleries across the country. Today, some of Minnie's carved pieces sell for as much as $1,500. Her animal carvings are distinct in that all appendages are whittled or carved out rather than glued onto the bodies.

Appalachian Festival hours are 10 a.m.-10 p.m. Friday and Saturday (May 12 and 13)...and 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday (May 14). Featured entertainment is expected to run until about 10:30 p.m. on both Friday and Saturday nights. General admission tickets are $5...senior citizens' tickets are $3...and children under 12 get in for $1. Parking is free. The Appalachian Festival is sponsored by the Appalachian Community Development Association, a non-profit organization promoting awareness of and appreciation for the Appalachian culture. Proceeds go toward grants to organizations involved in Appalachian life.

For more information, the public may write P.O. Box 996, Cincinnati, OH 45201...or call (513) 451-3070.

FROM THE MOUNTAINS by Jadon Gibson

The Hillsville courthouse tragedy

Virginia Governor Mann refused to commute the death sentences that Floyd Allen and his son Claude received in 1912 for their part in the Carroll County, Virginia, courthouse shootout which left the judge, sheriff, commonwealth attorney and a juror dead and several people wounded.

"This was not Floyd's first offense," Governor Mann said in explaining his decision. "In 1904, before Dexter Goad was clerk, Floyd was tried for assaulting and attempting to kill a man named Combs. He was fined $100 and sentenced to jail for one hour. After the trial, several citizens told the judge that Floyd Allen stated in their presence that if he was given a jail sentence he would resist and, if necessary, shoot up the court."

"In this case, Floyd put himself and his attorney to the expense and trouble to apply to the governor for a pardon as to the one-hour jail sentence and it was granted.

"Before the March term, 1912, according to the evidence, he made threats that, if sentenced to jail, he would shoot up the court."

Governor Mann went on to say that no plan or purpose had been uncovered which would indicate that the court or its officers had attacked the Allens.

"For the first time in the history of Virginia, so far as I know, a convicted criminal openly defiled the court and commenced to get out his pistol with which to make good his defiance and threat to shoot up the court," Gov. Mann continued. "Floyd Allen brought on all the trouble that followed and became responsible for all the consequences. It cannot be put under the pleas of self defense.

"Claude Allen fired the first shot in the courthouse and Judge Bolen saw the lint fly from the right shoulder of Judge Massie and saw him sink down as he received two more shots from the Allens and collapsed. In a single minute the judge was shot three times; the sheriff was killed, having received five wounds; six bullets were shot into Commonwealth Attorney Foster, who died with the book under his arm upon which he had written the verdict; juror Fowler was killed; Juror Cane was shot twice, once in the back and once in the back of the leg, as he was trying to get out of the courthouse; Clerk Goad was shot once in the courthouse, one bullet going through his cheek and neck.

"Juror Early testified that he was shot outside the courthouse by Floyd Allen, after hearing 'I will get the damn rascal.'

"I could simply say that no reason has been shown why I would interfere with the verdicts," Gov. Mann said in summation. "But I have gone further and looked for evidence of injustice to either of the Allens. I have looked for a reason why I should exercise the high power given me by the constitution to commute their sentences.

"The gravest crime of which I have any knowledge has been committed in these cases. A court has been destroyed in its temple. The very foundation upon which society rests for its protection and safety, has been threatened. It would be weakened if I yielded to the sentiment of mercy. I must therefore decline to interfere with the regular course of law.

"In order that these unfortunate men may have time to make their peace with God, I have reprieved Floyd and Claude Allen until the 28th of March, 1913, and on that day the sentence of the court will be carried out.

"As this decision is final, I trust the good people of Virginia will refrain from further efforts to secure clemency for these unfortunate but guilty men."

In the meanwhile, Sid Allen, whom the Baldwin Felts detectives had arrested in Des Moines, Iowa, was tried, convicted and sentenced to 35 years. Wesley Edwards, who fled to Iowa with Sid and whose contact with a girlfriend led to their arrest, received a sentence of 27 years in prison.

"The evidence that came out in my trial should have resulted in the softening of Floyd's and Claude's sentences," Sid Allen wrote later. Gov. Mann refused to listen.

"I had 35 years of hard labor and confinement ahead of me. The future looked dark. I would probably never come out alive; or if I did come out alive, I would be old and broken.

"My wife and children came to the jail and told me goodbye. The sadness of this scene is beyond my descriptive powers. No one except ourselves will know the terrible agony through which we passed. We then left for the Roanoke jail before going to the penitentiary. I knew some awful days were ahead of me."

Editor's note: Floyd and Claude Allen make final statements prior to being electrocuted in Jadon's From The Mountains, next week in the Floyd County Times.

Getting Started...

There are few moments as exciting or satisfying as the "firsts" in life. And nobody knows that better than your hometown bank, The Bank Josephine.

For more than a century, we've been part of a lot of "firsts." Maybe it was the first home for a couple of newlyweds. The first car for a teenager. A first child heading off to college. Or that first sweet day of retirement.

For all the "firsts" in your family's life, The Bank Josephine is still committed to helping you reach every milestone. Hometown service from hometown people — that's The Bank Josephine.

Sunshine Lines

by Beverly Carroll

Senior Citizens, as you will recall from last week's article, I extended deep gratitude on your behalf, and mine, for the outstanding support this newspaper and Legal Services in Prestonsburg has provided on behalf of the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens (KBCP). This week I would like to extend that gratitude to include a host of others.

Recently I was privileged to attend the American Bar Association pro bono convention in Nashville. What is pro bono and what does it have to do with poor people and senior citizens? Well, you might be surprised.

I also want to talk with you, through these lines, about our volunteer program. Before you finish reading today's column you will learn that there are many, many people watching out for your welfare and fighting to protect your rights.

Pro bono is legal jargon that means, "for the good of the people."

"Well, that's nice," you say. "But it still doesn't tell me what pro bono is."

Perhaps this will explain it better. An attorney who performs pro bono service is a lawyer who represents a client who cannot afford to pay for legal representation. If it were not for private attorneys willing to do pro bono work, poor people with legal problems would not have equal access to justice.

Does it surprise you to learn that there are attorneys who will represent a deserving person without pay? I know this relatively unknown fact will surprise a lot of today's readers.

Well, believe me, there are many attorneys in this five-county area who do just that. Right here in Floyd County there are attorneys who handle cases for poor people and senior citizens free of charge.

MSU honor society inducts two students from Floyd County

Karen Vaughn

Morehead State University's Kentucky Gamma Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu international honor society recently initiated 25 new members, including two Floyd Countians.

Karen Vaughn of East Point and Terry Lee Hays of Prestonsburg, were among the students recently inducted into the honor society.

Vaughn is a junior and is majoring in social work. Hays, a senior, is also majoring in social work.

Area students also inducted into the society were:

• Malvedine Allen of Salyersville. She is a senior and the wife of Everett Allen. She is also a social work major and is a member of the social work honor society.

• Lisa Bowersock of Pikeville. A senior and wife of Barry Bowersock, she is a social work major and is a member of the Student Association for Social Workers.

• Richard Davis, Paintsville. A junior, he is the son of Charles R. and Judy Davis and is majoring in criminology and sociology. He is a member of the National Honor Society and is listed in "Who's Who Among American College Students."

Judy Keeton of Salyersville was named president of the organization. She is the daughter of Linda Hali and is a senior with a social work major.

For the most part, they don't advertise their humanitarian efforts. They can't afford to. After all, they must make a living like everyone else. But we have these caring professionals right here in Eastern Kentucky.

Now, let me take those thoughts a step further. At the convention I attended there were attorneys, paralegal, and pro bono coordinators from all over the United States. I estimate that there were between 800-1,000 professionals attending that convention — all of whom have provided legal services, in one form or another, to the poor and senior citizens free of charge. Sure, they have clients who pay for their services but they also take on cases from clients whom they know can't pay.

Why? Because the majority of the members of the American Bar Association wants our nation's poor, and our senior citizens to have equal access to justice. So know, senior citizens, attorneys do have compassion for their fellow man. They are not heartless. I wish you could have witnessed the compassion and concern of those at the convention. And, please know, as senior citizens one of the benefits available to those in need who qualify is free legal representation.

Now, since I am talking about people who are out there to help you, I must mention our many volunteers. Most every program that is dedicated to serving the needs of senior citizens depends on volunteers to help fill those needs. Our senior citizens centers have volunteers. Our hospitals have volunteers. Our home health care agencies have volunteers. Our long-term care homes have volunteers. And this program has volunteers.

Volunteers are people helping people without pay. At the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens, we need more volunteers. We have been fortunate to have some very good ones, but we need more. If you are interested in being a volunteer for the KBCP — a program dedicated to assisting senior citizens, give me a call. If you want more information about the purpose and scope of the KBCP, call. The office number is 886-3876 or, toll-free, 1-800-556-3876. We are here for you.

Senior citizens, in spite of our needs, we have so many things to be grateful for. We have so many serving us strictly from the heart. People we don't know, may never meet. People who are watching out for us. People who care.

The students, faculty, and staff were entertained by the Kentucky Opry Jr. Pros on Thursday afternoon, April 13. This concert was the Kick-off for KIRIS Testing, beginning April 18. As always, the Jr. Opry provided an enjoyable event. Students and staff were able to "chill-out" before two weeks of grueling testing. Co-sponsoring this event were the Duff Family Resource Center and the Guidance Department.

CALIFORNIA APRICOT-CHERRY CORNMEAL COBBLER

Filling:
3 c. sliced (1 pound whole) fresh California apricots
1/3 c. granulated sugar
2 c. pitted (12 oz. whole) fresh California cherries
1 Tbs. flour

Cornmeal biscuit topping:

1 c. all-purpose flour
1/2 c. yellow cornmeal
1 1/2 Tbs. granulated sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. grated orange peel
5 Tbs. unsalted butter, chilled
3/4 c. low-fat milk
1 tsp. granulated sugar

Filling: Combine apricots and 1/3 cup sugar; set aside. Combine cherries and 1 tablespoon flour; set aside.

Cornmeal biscuit topping: In a large bowl combine dry ingredients; stir in orange peel. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk; stir just to combine dry ingredients.

Combine fruit in 1 1/2 quart baking dish; spoon batter over top (don't smooth the dough — you want the top to be bumpy and rough); sprinkle with 1 teaspoon sugar. Bake in a preheated 375° oven until golden brown, 25 to 30 minutes. Serve warm or at room temperature.

SWEET AND SOUR POTATO SALAD

6 medium potatoes (about 2 1/4 lb.)
10 slices bacon, cut into 1/2-inch pieces

1 small onion, chopped
2 large eggs, beaten
2/3 c. white vinegar
1/2 c. sugar

Cook potatoes in boiling water to cover 30 minutes or until tender. Drain and cool slightly. Peel and quarter potatoes. Cook bacon and onion in a large skillet until bacon is crisp; drain. Set bacon mixture aside.

Combine eggs, vinegar, and sugar in a heavy saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and reaches 160° (about 4 minutes).

Combine potatoes and bacon mixture. Pour vinegar mixture over potato mixture, tossing gently. Serve salad immediately.

ICE BOX ROLLS

1/2 cup Crisco
6 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup boiling water
1 package dry yeast dissolved in 1/2 cup warm water
1 egg, beaten
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 to 3 1/4 cups flour

Cream Crisco and sugar, add boiling water. Cool to lukewarm and add yeast, egg and salt. Stir in enough flour to make a soft dough. Cover and place in refrigerator overnight or until needed. Make rolls in desired shape, dip in melted butter. Place in a pan and let rise 1 to 2 hours. Bake at 400° for 15 minutes.

Note: 1 cake of yeast dissolved in 1/2 cup cold water may be substituted for dry yeast mixture.

1 c. Chinese noodles, divided
1/8 tsp. ginger

1/2 c. Marzetti Slaw Dressing, Original, Light, or Fat Free
In mixing bowl, combine first five ingredients.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital appoints new vice president, CEO

Lowell Jones, chief executive officer of Our Lady of the Way Hospital, has announced the appointment of John L. Osborne as Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Our Lady of the Way.

In October of 1994, the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth Health System (SCN Health System), based in Nazareth, Kentucky, began managing Our Lady of the Way, which is owned by the Sisters of Charity Health Care System (SCHCS) of Cincinnati, Ohio. Under the management agreement, Lowell Jones, who is CEO of Marymount Center in London, also serves as CEO of Our Lady of the Way. Marymount Medical Center is owned and operated by the SCN Health System.

SCHCS and the SCN Health System entered into the management agreement to better align Our Lady of the Way's services with those of nearby health providers. Our Lady of the Way is the only church-sponsored hospital in Floyd County and has been a member of the SCHCS system since 1982.

"We are pleased to welcome John and his wife, Sandy, and their daughter, Kara, to the Martin community and to the Our Lady of the Way family," said Jones. "His extensive health care experience will be a great asset to Our Lady of the Way."

Osborne, who has considerable experience in health administration, officially assumed his position in January. He has served as the Chief Operating Officer of Marymount Medical Center in London since 1987. Previously, he was CEO of Laurel Heights, a 197-bed long term care facility in London.

Osborne received his bachelor's degree in Business Administration from Eastern Kentucky University. He is a Certified Professional in Healthcare Quality and is currently enrolled in the University of Minnesota ISP Executive Study Program in Hospital and Healthcare Administration.

An active community leader, Osborne has served as a member of the London Rotary Club, the London-Laurel County Chamber of Commerce, and Governing Board of Directors of the Laurel County United Way.

The Sisters of Charity Health Care System is comprised of 21 hospitals, four long-term care facilities and five retirement communities.

McDonald's chosen as employer of choice

Recognition. Strong leadership. Fair pay. Opportunity. These comments—from restaurant employees surveyed by "Restaurant Business" magazine—earned McDonald's Corporation the "Employer of Choice" award.

According to the March issue of the magazine, "The philosophy at McDonald's core is that a good employer is one who rewards performance, respects people and values teamwork. McDonald's employees think the company is hitting the mark. Seventy-nine percent of McDonald's employees surveyed say their employer has an outstanding reputation for quality and service—76 percent say they have a clear understanding of McDonald's mission."

"One of our main goals is to measure companies based on employee feedback and attitudes," says Ralph Raffio, editor-in-chief of "Restaurant Business." "We want to identify companies doing things right—companies that prove that being a good boss is good business."

The "Employer of Choice" award selection was based on a two-step process. McDonald's submitted information about company employment policies and practices. In addition, surveys were sent to 1,000 randomly selected restaurant employees.

Surveys focused on six areas—treatment, training, turnover, pay/benefits, recognition and employees' overall perception of the company. The employee-data survey weighed more heavily than the employer responses.

Dave Blankenship recognized for outstanding sales

Dave Blankenship of Clayton Homes, Harold, was recognized for sales excellence in 1994.

Blankenship was one of only 100 manufactured home sales representatives nationwide honored during the 1995 Awards Banquet, sponsored by CMH Homes, Inc., a division of Clayton Homes, Inc.

During the April 7 awards ceremony in Atlanta, Blankenship was recognized and presented a plaque for outstanding sales achievement.

Presenting the plaque was Jim Clayton, chief executive officer and founder of Clayton Homes, Inc., the nation's largest retailer of manufactured homes.

"As one of the world's largest employers, we're delighted that 'Restaurant Business' agrees we're among the best," says Ed Rensi, president and CEO of McDonald's U.S.A. "Our employees say that management helps them achieve their goals. We provide opportunities for our employees to succeed."

Locally, Bob and Tom Hutchison own eight McDonald's restaurants in Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Louisa, Salyersville, West Liberty, Pikeville and South Williamson. Collectively, they employ an estimated 500 people.

"We work hard to keep our employees happy," Bob Hutchison said. "We offer detailed training and unlimited opportunities for advancement at all of our restaurants in Eastern Kentucky," Tom Hutchison added.

More than half of McDonald's middle and senior managers started their careers in restaurant positions. Nearly 30 percent of McDonald's franchisees started as employees in the restaurants.

McDonald's is the only fast food company named an "Employer of Choice" by Restaurant Business magazine. Other corporate recipients include Applebee's International, Hard Rock America, Marriott Management Services, Restaurants Unlimited and T.G.I. Friday's.

McDonald's is the world's leading food service organization with more than 15,000 restaurants in 79 countries. About 80 percent of McDonald's restaurant businesses are locally owned and operated.

New, Needle-Free Injection System For Diabetics (NAPS)—There's encouraging news for many of the 14 million Americans with diabetes. A new way of putting insulin into the system is now available that doesn't use needles.

New jet injection system takes the pain out of insulin delivery.

Called Freedom Jet, this needle-free injection system uses pressure instead of needles to inject a jet stream of insulin into the skin completely without discomfort.

Developed by MII Medical Technologies, Inc., the Freedom Jet "Needle-Free Injection System" provides more efficient absorption of insulin which can even result in a reduced dosage for some patients.

This virtually pain free system is ideal for children who are fearful of needles and also features a click-counting dosage wheel making it easy to use for sight-impaired individuals.

The company provides a professional nurse to teach patients how to use the Freedom Jet, and a 24-hour help line to assist patients and answer questions. They also help process related insurance claims.

For more information on the Freedom Jet "Needle-Free Injection System," call 1-800-662-2471.

NEWS OF BOOKS

A Marriage Made In Heaven

(NAPS)—America's favorite humorist, Erma Bombeck, has turned her rapier wit on the subject of marriage. The result is A Marriage Made In Heaven...Or Too Tired For An Affair (Harper Paperbacks, $6.99).

"There are few phrases as sobering as 'I now pronounce you man and wife,'" is pure Bombeck at the top of her form.

In this entertaining portrait of an American marriage, critics report that Bombeck has created her most memorable work yet, a compendium of observations instantly recognizable to anyone who has ever tied the knot, or knows someone who has.

In the book, which was on the New York Times bestseller list for over four months in hardcover, Erma Bombeck offers observations on love, romance, family, sex and the ever-evolving art of nuptial coexistence. The hilarious and poignant book, which has touched millions of readers, is available at bookstores everywhere.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In accordance with the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act, written policies and procedures have been developed which describe the Floyd County School District's (FCSD) requirements regarding the confidentiality of personally identifiable information. Stated in this notice is a summary of your rights under the Act. These rights are passed on to the student at age eight-ten. For the purpose of this notice, the student 18 years or older will be referred to as "eligible" students. Parents, guardians, and eligible students may review and inspect all education records relating to that student by making a request to the Principal of the school where that student attends.

The FCSD will presume that the parent has the authority to review and inspect records relating to their children unless the district has been advised in writing that the parent does not have legal authority under applicable state law governing such matters as guardianship, separation, and divorce.

Personally identifiable information is not released to another party unless there is written authorization from the parent or eligible student, or there is a "Legitimate Educational Interest" as defined in the policies and procedures for confidentiality. A current list of employees' names and position who have access to personally identifiable information is on file in each school. The FCSD has described in its policies and procedures the conditions under which personally identifiable information is released to another person without written parental consent.

"Directory Information" is information contained in an educational record which would not generally be considered harmful or an invasion of privacy if disclosed. This information may be released to news media, athletic organizations, scholarship or college entrance committees, or official organizations whose need for data is connected with student help activities. "Directory Information" includes, but is not limited to the student's name, address, telephone listing, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, and the most recent previous educational agency or institution attended.

The parent, guardian, or eligible student currently enrolled, may request all or part of the directory information be withheld. The request must be in writing to the Principal of your child's school, within 30 calendar days after this notification has been distributed. The written request must specifically state what information may not be classified as directory information.

In accordance with federal regulation concerning the release of educational records, it is the policy of this school district to forward education records on request to a school in which a student seeks or intends to enroll. Parents may obtain upon request a copy of the records transferred.

The Floyd County Schools keeps child and youth records in a secure computer system and in locked files in each school and central office.

Any parent or guardian of a student, or any eligible student, may challenge the content or accuracy of any material or entries in the student's educational records on the grounds that it is inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of the privacy or other rights of the student. Requests to amend the records are submitted to the principal of your child's school.

For students who have been determined eligible for programs for children and youth with disabilities, educational records will be destroyed at the request of the parent when they are no longer needed to provide educational programs and services. The FCSD will destroy the educational records of a child or youth without a parent's request after the records have been maintained for a minimum period of seven years and are no longer needed to provide educational programs and services. Parents are advised that data contained in the records may be later needed for Social Security purposes. The FCSD retains for an indefinite period of time, a record of the student's name, address, telephone number, grades, attendance record, classes attended, grades completed, and year completed.

Children and youth determined eligible for special education include those children and youth with disabilities who have hearing impairments, vision impairments, emotional and behavior disorders, both deafness and blindness, health impairments, specific learning disabilities, mental disabilities, multiple disabilities, speech and language impairments, physical disabilities, autism, or traumatic brain injuries, and who because of these impairments need specially designed instruction and related services.

The Floyd County Schools has an ongoing Child Find system, which is designed to find any child or youth, age birth up to 22 years, who may have a disability and need special education. This includes children and youth who are not in school or those who are in school but are not receiving the special education they need to have an appropriate public education.

The Floyd County Schools will make sure any child or youth who has a disability, regardless of how severe the disability, is provided an appropriate public education at no cost to the parents of the child or youth.

Parents, relatives, public and private agency employees, and concerned citizens are urged to help the Floyd County Schools find any infant, toddler, child, or youth who may have a disability and need special education and related services. The district needs to know the name and age, or date of birth of the child or youth; the name, address, and phone of the parent or guardian; the possible disability; and other information to determine if special education is needed.

Letters and phone calls are some of the ways Floyd County Schools collect the information needed. The information the school district collects will be used to contact the parents of the child or youth and find out if the child or youth needs to be evaluated or referred for special education services.

If you know of a child or youth who lives in Floyd County, who may have a disability, and is not receiving needed services bring, telephone, or send the information to:

Any information the district collects through Child Find is maintained confidentially.

Parents, guardians, or eligible students have the right to file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education related to perceived failures by the district to comply with confidentiality requirements. Tobacco Farmer Eck Rose Stood Alone Against the Tobacco Tax

"As Governor, I'll stand up to anyone who threatens our way of life."
—Eck Rose

It's something my grandfather taught my father...and he passed it down to me. Respect. It runs deep in this soil. And through the lives of the people who work it. And to me, Kentucky — and every last family farm in it — is a place I say is worth protecting. It's a proud land where farmers are born...and not made. It's hallowed ground my father always said was tilled by God.

Five generations deep

I'm Eck Rose. My family has worked Kentucky's land for five generations, but it took me years to know when to pull that leaf off the stalk. It's not something that's taught. It's something a farmer senses. He feels it. It's a process you can't rush.

That's the respect my grandfather was talking about. Respect for the land. For God. And the crops that have given my family so much. So when big-shot Washington politicians showed up on Kentucky's doorstep with the biggest tobacco tax proposal in U.S. history, well, that was something — as a farmer — I just couldn't stand for.

Stood alone

My father used to say there's 250 major decisions that go into growing every acre of tobacco. But taking on Washington and their tobacco tax wasn't a tough decision at all. It would've cost families their farms. Husbands and wives their jobs. But it would've cost Kentucky even more...our precious way of life.

So I hopped in my pick-up and drove to Frankfort and I spoke up against that tobacco tax. And we beat it. You didn't hear a word from Patton and Babbage, so I guess you could say I stood alone. And yes, I took some heat. But to me, it was worth it. Your family is worth it. And Kentucky is worth it.
