Civil War replay is on tap for weekend

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Blue and gray uniforms will dot the field at Middle Creek today, Friday, June 2, for the start of the annual re-enactment of the Civil War Battle of Middle Creek.

Plans for the event were finalized Wednesday night by the Battlefield Preservation Society, and re-enactors have a full slate of activities planned. They will be on the move Saturday around 10 a.m., heading for a skirmish along the Big Sandy River in Prestonsburg.

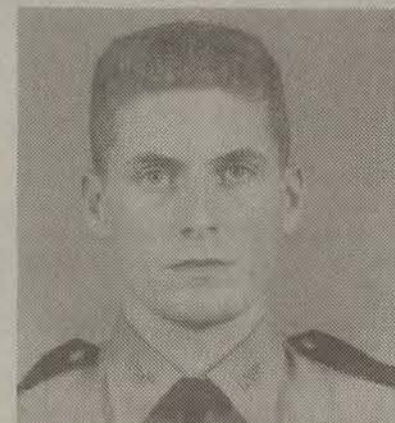

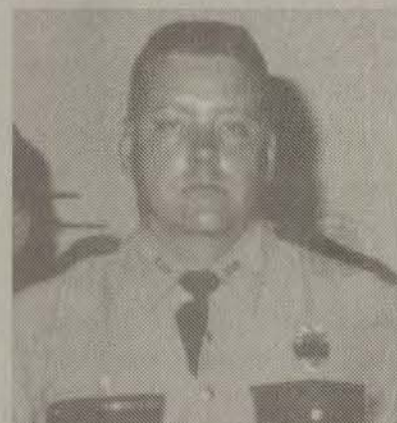

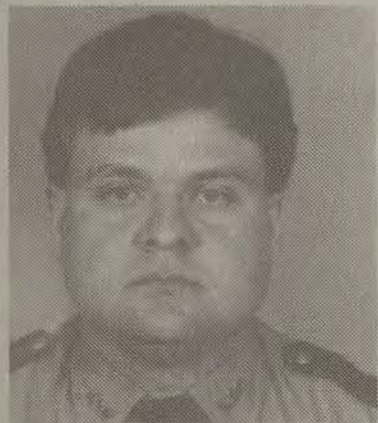

Around 2 p.m. Saturday, they return to Prestonsburg to listen to speeches of Confederate General Humphrey Marshall and Union leader James A. Garfield. The troops will also present a brief memorial service at the Confederate monument opposite Prestonsburg Post Office.

Around 4 p.m., they will be on the move again to the May House in Prestonsburg to be entertained during a reception hosted by the Friends of the May House. Paula White, a co-owner of Southern Comfort, a sutlery selling period clothing for women, will present a workshop on etiquette during the 1860s.

At 6 p.m., they'll be back on the battlefield for a pig roast and an evening of entertainment that includes a ball. The pig roast and entertainment are open to the public, at a cost of $5 per person. Although hay bales will be available for seating, participants are advised to bring lawn chairs.

The pace slows some on Sunday until 2 p.m. when North and South clash once again on the battlefield. The event should conclude around 4 p.m. Sunday.

Camps open daily to the public around 9 a.m.

Kentucky State Police troopers Lynn Cross, at left, Les Stapleton, center, and Bobby Day were honored last month in Frankfort for acts of bravery and valor in the performance of their duties. Other officers that were honored were troopers John Hunt and Tim Engle and dispatcher John Hunt.

Troopers earn citations and recognition on TV program

by Susan Allen

An incident involving a Floyd District Clerk last year has earned two local state police officers citations for bravery and valor and a spot on a nationally televised crime show.

State police sergeant Lynn Cross and trooper Les Stapleton were recognized for their actions last September while answering a complaint at the home of district clerk Sue DeRossett.

According to state police, DeRossett was threatening suicide when the two arrived at her home and had pointed a loaded gun at the two before they disarmed her.

Cross received the state police citation for bravery and Stapleton was awarded a citation for meritorious service for valor.

The incident will also be featured on the television show "Real Stories of the Highway Patrol."

Also during the May 15 awards ceremony, Cross and trooper Bobby Day received the KSP's Trooper Medal, for a lifesaving act, for the actions involving another incident in Floyd County.

The two officers were responding to a complaint of a burglary in progress and arrested the suspect at the scene. When the officers went to talk to the victim, the man was clutching his chest and then fell to the floor.

The officers called for an ambulance and treated the man for shock until emergency personnel arrived.

"After being transported to an area hospital, staff personnel said that had it not been for the actions of the two officers the man most likely would have died," according to the press release.

In another awards ceremony last month, two Floyd County state police officers and a dispatcher received commissioner commendations.

Trooper John Hunt and Day received commendations for disarming a man earlier this year who was threatening suicide; trooper Tim Engle was recognized for his efforts to rescue a man trapped in a cave in Pike County last year; and

Deputy clerk enters plea to endangerment charge

by Susan Allen

A Floyd County District Court Clerk has pleaded guilty but mentally ill to two charges of first degree wanton endangerment after an altercation with two police officers last year.

District Clerk Linda Sue DeRossett entered the plea last week before special Judge Doug Combs in Perry County.

Special prosecutor Luke Morgan, with the attorney general's office, recommended a one-year prison term for DeRossett, but Morgan said he would not oppose DeRossett being placed on probation.

DeRossett's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf, said Thursday that "from all indications, she'll be probated."

The incident occurred last September at DeRossett's home at Auxier and involved Kentucky State Police officers Lynn Cross and Les Stapleton. State police had declined to release details of the incident, but the particulars of the case were released when the two officers were cited in May for bravery in connection with the case.

A press release from state police relating to the awards received by Cross and Stapleton offered the following details of the incident.

"On September 14, 1994, Sergeant Cross was notified that a Floyd County woman was threatening suicide at her home. Cross and trooper Les Stapleton went to the woman's home where they

Grand jury is seated, to take testimony soon

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A special grand jury seated Wednesday in Floyd County to investigate allegations of government corruption will begin its probe on June 13.

The seven-man, six-woman panel met briefly with special prosecutor Larry Fentress, with the attorney general's office, after being seated Wednesday and picked the June 13 date for its first day in session.

Two previous Floyd grand juries requested investigations by the attorney general's office into allegations of government corruption; vote fraud related to the May 1993 primary race for judge-executive; monies reportedly missing from the sheriff's office; alleged criminal violations related to the solid waste department; and the alleged misuse of 911 monies.

Circuit Judges John David Caudill and Danny Caudill presided over the proceedings Wednesday and told the panel they would be meeting one or two days every two weeks. Judge John Caudill told jurors that it would take about 20 days to hear evidence in the probe.

One of the original 12 jurors seated Wednesday was excused from service because two of the juror's sisters worked for a county official. That revelation came under questioning by Fentress, who asked if any members of the panel's immediate family were employed by an elected official. Fentress also wanted to know if any family members were employed by the solid waste department and if any jurors' immediate family were related to candidates for judge-executive during the May 1993 primary election.

Fentress added that that did not mean all county officials were under investigation.

"I don't want you to get the impression every public official in Floyd County is under investigation," Fentress said, "Certainly, that is not the case."

The judges and Fentress cautioned jurors to take a close look at any evidence presented during the investigation and to look at it in "a logical way."

"There may be some close calls and you'll have to make a decision," Judge John Caudill said. "You need to look at (the evidence) closely. You do not determine the guilt or innocence of anyone. You will determine if there is probable cause that a crime has been committed and if the person being talked about committed a crime."

The special grand jurors can issue subpoenas for persons to appear before them and they can also order that documents be delivered to them for review.

LPC wants reasons before altering plan

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County school board members will have to present their reasoning for proposed changes in the system's five-year facility plan to the Local Planning Committee before that group will alter the plan.

Members of the Local Planning Committee (LPC) met Tuesday at Clark Elementary to discuss the school board's request that Harold and Auxier elementaries remain open and that a renovation of Prestonsburg High School be scrapped.

The LPC had met May 4, but that meeting was determined to be an illegal session because the group

Top ten to head the list for Prestonsburg High grads

Prestonsburg High School seniors will say good-bye to their high school alma mater during graduation ceremonies planned for Tuesday, June 6.

The graduation ceremony begins at 8 p.m. on the high school football field if weather permits.

During the ceremony, the top ten students will make their presentations.

Top students in the senior class at Prestonsburg High School were ranked as follows:

• Stewart Robertson earned the top ranking as valedictorian at the school. He is the son of Charles and Sandra Robertson of Prestonsburg.

• Mustafa Badrudduja was named salutatorian. He is the son of Dr. Syed and Meraj Badrudduja of Prestonsburg.

• Next on the list is David W. Lee, a son of George and Ann Lee of Prestonsburg.

• Ranked fourth is Kathryn Mullins. She is a daughter of Freddie and Della Mullins of Prestonsburg.

• Fifth in line is Aaron Bond, a son of Jane Bond of Prestonsburg.

• Paula Heater is ranked sixth.

She is the daughter of Kenneth and Mary Heater.

• Seventh on the list is Jessica Jarrell. She is the daughter of Arnold and Joyce Jarrell of Prestonsburg.

• Ranking eighth is Tonya Jewell Griffith. She is the daughter of Reba Ratliff Griffith of Langley.

• Ninth is Mark Chitti, son of James and Kathy Chitti of Prestonsburg.

• Tonya Miller is ranked tenth. She is the daughter of Tony and Yvonne Miller of Prestonsburg.

The class includes 148 seniors.

did not adhere to the state's Open Meeting Laws. Since the May 4 gathering was a special meeting of the group, 24-hour notice was to have been given to the local media. The media was not advised of the meeting and an objection was made by the press at the May 9 school board meeting.

Board members agreed at their May meeting that the session was illegal and declined to review a report from the LPC to the board.

On Tuesday, LPC co-chairman Jody Sword said he felt the group's May 4 meeting was legitimate because a majority of the 16-member board was present. Sword did not appear to be concerned that no notice of the meeting was given to the media.

"If we failed to adequately publicize it, I apologize," Sword said. "I feel it was a legal meeting."

During Tuesday's discussion, superintendent Steve Towler told the LPC that three criteria must be met before the plan can be changed. Those issues include a change in enrollment in the district; a change in curriculum; and a natural disaster or unforeseen occurrence.

In addressing the three reasons required before a change to the plan can be made, Towler offered options on each.

The Floyd School System is currently losing 200 students a year, Towler said, which may allow a change to the plan regarding enrollment.

As to curriculum, the superintendent said that the board has adopted the middle school concept in the county. If the board chooses to drop that concept, it could be viewed as a curriculum change.

As for an unforeseen occurrence, Towler suggested that because the make up of the school board has changed dramatically over the last three years—including having nine different board members in one year—that could be an issue.

The only current board member who voted for the original LPC plan is Eddie Patton.

Also Tuesday several Prestonsburg High School teachers told the LPC that a citizens' group, which opposes the renovation of the school, was willing to bump the project in favor of waiting for funds to become available to build a new school.

Phil Price, a teacher, said that the citizens' group understood that it could be 10-15 years before monies were available, but they were still opposed to the planned renovation.

Deputy superintendent of instruction Gary Frazier, who is on the LPC, was appalled at that notion.

"The kids at Prestonsburg are not getting the same shake being given to kids in the other three high schools," Frazier said. "I shudder to think you're willing to wait 10-15 years to improve the instructional program at the high school."

Price said the group is opposed to a piecemeal renovation project.

There has been no commitment by the board to do the entire renovation, estimated to cost $7.1 million. The board has approved phase I of the project, which is estimated to cost over $3 million.

The LPC voted to ask for a rationale from the board before making any decision on amending the facility plan.

If the board and the LPC agree to change the plan, the issue will go to the state school board for consideration. The state board must approve any amendment to the LPC plan.

Eleven of the 16 members of the LPC attended Tuesday's meeting.

learned she had shot at her husband and was still suicidal.

"Cross and Stapleton identified themselves and approached the woman who was in her bedroom. She was holding a cocked revolver to her head. The two officers were essentially exposed to danger and had no place to seek cover. Cross began to talk with the woman in an attempt to gain her trust and prevent her from harming herself.

"During the next 20 minutes, the woman alternately pointed the gun at both officers and herself numerous times. While doing this, she said her husband had abused her and that she was injured. Cross convinced her to let him examine her injuries and, when she agreed, he lunged for the gun and was able to point it toward an open window. As he grabbed the weapon, the woman fired three rounds which exited through the window. After a brief struggle, both officers subdued her and she was taken into custody..."

Formal sentencing is set for June 28.

Board agrees to expand school site

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd school board members agreed Wednesday to enlarge the building pad for a new Martin/Maytown school if a future expansion of the school is needed.

During a special meeting of the board Wednesday, superintendent Steve Towler told the board that the cost of making the pad larger would be minimal since site preparation for the new school is underway.

The elementary school is being built to accommodate 400 students from kindergarten through fifth grade, Towler said. If there is an increase in population in that area, an addition could provide space for up to 600 students.

Towler said that in the event that a change is made by a future school board or a new Local Planning Committee to go back to a kindergarten through eighth grade concept at schools, the enlarged pad would allow for an expansion at the school.

The current facility plan adopted by the board calls for four middle schools to be constructed in order to implement the middle school concept.

Towler added that there are no plans to change from the middle school concept.

The board of education and the Local Planning Committee (LPC) are currently in disagreement over the district's facility plan, which calls for the closure of Auxier and Harold elementaries and a renovation and addition at Prestonsburg High School.

The board has asked the LPC to reconsider those three issues and the LPC is asking the board for a rationale for their decision.

The board voted Wednesday to enlarge the building pad.

In other business Wednesday:

- the bid for flooring for the Martin/Maytown school was awarded to Quality Floor Service;

- the board voted to rebid the heating and cooling system for Martin/Maytown because a single bid received from Elliott Contracting exceeded the cost estimate by $100,000;

- the board voted to revise the BG-1 for Martin/Maytown to reflect a reduction in local monies to be used for the project because of an increase in state monies available due to a drop in interest rates related to the bond sale;

- a bid for two lawnmowers was awarded to Thompson Pontiac-Buick-GMC and a bid for a truck to haul the mowers was awarded to John Gray Pontiac;

- the board approved job descriptions for four positions in the maintenance department; and
- the board approved repaying a $1 million loan from Pikeville National Bank.

Board members Eddie Patton and Brent Clark were absent from Wednesday's meeting.

Storm aid sought for Floyd County

Floyd County could receive some federal aid for storm damage caused by storms last month if President Bill Clinton complies with a request by Governor Brereton C. Jones to lend a helping hand to the state.

Governor Jones asked President Clinton Wednesday to declare a major disaster and invoke federal assistance for 25 Kentucky counties, including Floyd, that were hardest hit by tornadoes, severe wind and hail storms, torrential rains and flooding from May 13 through 19.

Although final estimates of damages incurred by the storm are not yet available, the total as of May 31 was more than $49.5 million. Preliminary damage assessment surveys were conducted by joint federal/state teams on May 24-26.

Under Jones' request, Kentucky officials plan to take applications for assistance through the individual and family grant programs. Jones also asked for temporary housing assistance; U.S. Small Business Administration disaster loans; federal assistance for public property damages; U.S. Department of Agriculture disaster loans; and other related agricultural assistance.

Other Big Sandy counties included in the request are Pike and Magoffin.

Four in the race for dean

Four finalists have been selected for the vacant position of Dean of Academic Affairs at Prestonsburg Community College.

The finalists will be on campus during the weeks of June 5 and 12 for interviews with administration, faculty, staff, and an advisory committee.

Finalists selected for interviews are Dr. Hans J. Kuss, Dean of Instruction at Garden City Community College in Kansas; Dr. Lois E. Wells, Dean of the Mountain Home Campus of Arkansas State University; Dr. William E. Loflin, Director of Developmental Education and Academic Support at Catonsville Community College in Maryland; and Dr. Joan C. Lucas, Dean of Educational Services at Big Bend Community College in Washington.

The new dean will succeed Robert R. Allen, who has been on leave and has been approved for long-term disability.

The new dean is expected to report sometime between July 15 and August 1.

Assault case goes to grand jury; drug case amended

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An assault case involving a Floyd County woman was referred to a grand jury Wednesday after a preliminary hearing in Floyd District Court.

Patricia Lynn Friend, 25, of Teaberry, is accused of hitting Nancy Howell of Tinker Fork in the leg with a hammer during a property dispute on April 19. Friend is charged with second degree assault.

Howell testified Wednesday that Friend hit her in the leg with a hammer after the two disagreed on where to place a stake to mark property lines.

When Friend attempted to put the stake in the ground, Howell testified that she told the woman, "Patty, don't put the stake there." Howell grabbed the stake, she said, and then Friend hit her in the leg with a hammer.

"I started to grab her by the hair, but my husband said I couldn't do that," Howell said.

Howell said she received treatment for the wound at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital.

District Judge James Allen ruled that there was probable cause and referred the case to the grand jury.

Also Wednesday, a felony drug charge against a West Prestonsburg woman was amended to a misdemeanor.

Robin Jarrell was charged with cultivating marijuana, more than five plants, after agents with the Mountain Area Drug Task Force executed a search warrant at her home last month. Officers found over 30 marijuana plants growing in the home and a small amount of processed marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Assistant County Attorney Bob Bishop said that he had discussed the case with the county attorney and task force officers and all sides agreed to amend the charge to a misdemeanor.

A pre-trial conference was set for August 23 at 1 p.m.

E-911 board discusses how to get system on line

by Alisa Goodwill
Staff Writer

Mapping the county and getting enhanced 911 for Floyd County was the major thrust of the E911 board meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Roger Recktenwald, director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, said there were three main steps to the mapping; identification, addressing and notification.

Recktenwald said the Harold Telephone Company and South Central Bell were working with them to get all the names entered into the phone companies' databases.

"We are merging our information with South Central Bell," Recktenwald said. "However, we are primarily using their database to make corrections."

A problem with mapping is that not all county roads had official names or physical addresses, said Recktenwald. He also said that utility companies have their own physical names that differ from the 911 mapping.

Recktenwald suggested that the fiscal court pass an ordinance or declare legally what the physical addresses are for the county that everyone can use.

"We need official physical addresses that everyone uses," Recktenwald said. "I don't know about the legalities of doing that."

He did say that while the physical addresses will change, people will continue to get mail at their post office box addresses.

Before enhanced 911 can be implemented, 95 percent of the addressing has to be entered into the telephone companies' databases.

Floyd County Judge-Executive Bob Meyer said that 63 percent is complete for South Central Bell and about 75 percent is complete for Harold Telephone Company.

"Part of my frustration is I can't get a realistic date when 95 percent will be complete," Meyer said. "I can't give a date when enhanced 911 will be complete."

Meyer suggested starting with basic 911 and then, when 95 percent of the addressing is complete, move to enhanced 911 (E911).

"Everyone has assumed they've been paying for enhanced," Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson said. "If we put in basic we should authorize a cut in the rate."

Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin said the city has basic 911 now in the 1010 number.

"If the 911 goes to Pike County it won't benefit the residents because 1010 is just as good," Fannin said.

Fannin said the city and the sheriff's office will still have to have 24 hours dispatching service, if 911 is done through Kentucky State Police.

"We will be duplicating services and the residents will pay twice for the services through taxes," he added.

Fannin said the city and the sheriff's office should kick in funds to supplement 911 revenue.

Thompson agreed, saying that 80 percent of his calls are law enforcement, the same amount as KSP.

"We can have the best technology and it will pull other agencies up," Thompson said. "It (911) won't bring other departments up if it (911) is sent up the road."

Prestonsburg Fire Department Chief Tom Blackburn agreed, saying the department will lose personal contact and vital information if KSP, instead of local dispatchers, administers the program.

Blackburn said local dispatchers would eliminate turn-around time.

Meyer said the board would need to meet two more times before the next fiscal court meeting. He asked Fannin and Thompson to come up with figures to compare the cost of having 911 left in the county or dispatched through the KSP.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Legal means never having to say you're sorry

by Scott Perry

Every so often it is incumbent upon us to remind public officials and representatives of public officials of the laws that govern their meetings and records.

Some comments from a recent meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education's Local Planning Committee suggest that lecture time has arrived again.

The LPC, as it is called, is responsible for developing a plan and priorities for school construction in the district and it is, by virtue of its foundation, a public agency under the definitions provided by Kentucky law.

Because it is a public agency, the LPC must follow the guidelines set out in state Open Meetings laws, which require those agencies to notify the public and the press of regular and special meetings.

The Floyd County LPC violated the provisions of Open Meetings laws a few weeks back, when they met without notifying us and they had to redo that session this week.

The chairman of the LPC apparently misunderstood the reason his group was required to meet again, claiming that because a quorum was present at the first meeting, that session was legal.

Of course the impropriety had nothing to do with how many members were there at the first meeting, it concerned the LPC's failure to properly serve notice of the meeting.

In response to that issue, the chairman noted that if the meeting was not adequately publicized, he was sorry.

Whether that apology was sincere or sarcastic, is of no particular concern to us, though we suspect the latter is the case here. The meeting was illegal.

Public officials may sneer and scoff all they wish at laws designed to protect the public's right to know, but we take those rights very seriously.

No amount of derision aimed our way will change our attitudes, either.

Mistakes happen, too, and we try to give the benefit of doubt and a second chance to officials whose intentions are good but understanding of the law isn't.

Those who are uncomfortable conducting the public's business in the open, on the other hand, might be more comfortable getting out of the public business altogether.

Letters to the editor

Kindness remembered and acknowledged

Editor:

Over the years one loses touch with former friends and classmates. I would like your assistance in sending a message to such a person.

As I have aged I have come to appreciate what a difference in one's life small kindnesses can make. When I was twelve years old my mother moved my family to Martin, Kentucky. The family was fractured by parental separation and divorce. We had just spent two and one-half years in a Northern Ohio city where the local residents and children had often been unkind to us because of our Kentucky origins.

Feeling rejected and almost hopeless, I found friendship and kindness from students and teachers at Martin Elementary and High Schools from 1965 to my graduation in 1969.

One person in particular had a profound effect upon me, something I did not realize until many years later. An attractive, popular girl from a "well-to-do" family treated me with great respect and dignity. Being from a large family with little income placed me in a "class" often snubbed and derided by folks who came from families of higher financial status.

Having been made to feel welcome and accepted, I began to realize the potential that God had instilled in me. The encouragement I received from this girl and her friends helped propel me into a happy and fulfilling life of service to God and dedication to a loving wife and children.

Deborah Lou Hyden, I sincerely thank you for this gift!

Are we winning or losing?

Editor:

It really concerns me about our leaders we have working with our young people. What kind of morals and values do we want instilled in our young people? School leaders, such as teachers and coaches, play an important part in our kids lives. High school coaches have a choice of being "constructive" or destructive.

Little League or Junior League coaches also have young eyes watching them and young ears listening to every word they say. A coach may be the only influence a young boy has if there is no father in his life.

Young people are very smart and sometimes play the role of an adult. Use of alcohol and bad language is "not" to be tolerated around any ball field or gym by a coach and parents should take a stand.

This is abuse! The golf course is very convenient for this lifestyle, but don't allow this to be brought over to the ball fields. Coaches say their lifestyles on or off the field or gym is no concern of the people, but when they are wanting a coaching job or volunteering to work as a coach, then it is our concern. These kids know what is going on. How are they to look up to these leaders as role models? Don't you realize you are responsible for your actions on or off the field or gym and for the choices you make in life? This does not mean the man is not a likable person, but not a good influence. Most parents are afraid to speak out because of hurting their child's chances of playing or the abuse they have to take from their teammates. Don't settle for just playing time. It's not worth it. Parents need to communicate with their kids about practices. Our kids spend so much time out of the home. Their lives are so busy and the peer pressure is great.

Just remember, our youth will be our leaders, teachers, coaches and parents. Having a Christian family is wonderful and I know we can't change the world, but we can take a stand for our kids and show them what side we are on and that we want what is best for them.

Remember, it only took one lady to close prayer in our schools and to remove the most precious word. Please don't use the name Jesus Christ in a sporting event abusively.

When you read this, if you are concerned, take a stand. Appreciate and be proud of good leadership.

Duff Elementary: A wild hangout

by Jesse McKean

Duff Elementary was one of many schools in the district that competed in the conservation contest entitled "Habitat: A Wild Hangout." The contest was to create awareness and the importance of habitats in Kentucky and around the world. The contest was split into two categories. Students in grades K-6 were allowed to compete in the poster division. Grades 7 and 8 submitted essays for the contest. Duff did well overall.

The poster contest had more schools in competition than the essay. Duff Elementary's top posters were drawn by Matthew Watson, Sarah Noble and Johnna Ison, respectively. Matthew Watson went on to take first place in the district.

The essay portion of the contest placed Duff among three other schools. Top essays belonged to Chris Case, Shena Ratliff and Ryan Owens. Chris Case proceeded to win second place in the district.

The competition was a success. Winners received awards including t-shirts, checks, and other prizes. They received these awards during a banquet at Clark Elementary.

Ode to the goat

by Willie Elliott

Behold the goat that came to school
On that Friday and took us each for a fool.

We all thought it was such fun
when we saw Miss Osborne's room,
But just wait till that long awaited day when she lowers the boom.

Those male teachers will be saying, "Please,"
But Doris will turn them to goat's cheese.

We've heard that next to come is a skunk.
But we all believe this is a bunch of bunk.

Mr. Osborne asked Brenda, "Is it a ram?"

Brenda replied, Quite frankly, my dear I don't give a _____

We all had to admit it was strange to see a goat at a prom,

But Mr. Staggs and Mr. Fletcher swore they got it on CD-ROM.

Ms. Mitchell insisted she could use it in a meal.
Even she admitted it wouldn't be veal.

The cooks claimed they could use it as a mystery dish
And serve it instead of fish.

Now I ask one and all to take time from the hard life on the road
And help add to this silly little goat ode.

South Floyd students dedicate tree to teacher

by Willie Elliott

Some students give retiring teachers a party, gifts, or a hard time as a going away present. The American Studies Class at South Floyd High School went about this situation in a somewhat different manner.

The students from the American Studies Class from last year and this year decided it would be fitting to plant a tree on the campus in honor of Delores Woody's twenty-eight years as a teacher dedicated to helping students make better lives for themselves.

The students purchased the Japanese Maple and the members of the two classes met in front of the building to witness the planting of the tree. Jamie Short acted as spokesperson for the group. She related how Mrs. Woody helped her improve as a writer by making her pay attention to detail and showing her necessity of doing rewrites to improve the quality of her writing. Jamie said just as important as the lessons in writing was the advice on personal problems that Mrs. Woody offered. In the future the tree will grow and be a reminder of the dedication that Mrs. Woody had for her students.

Mrs. Woody taught twenty-six years at Wheelwright High School and finished out her career with two years of teaching at South Floyd High School. The American Studies Class, taught by Mrs. Woody and Bud Reynolds, was one of the favorite classes on campus because the students were dealing with real life situations on many occasions.

Mrs. Woody hopes to spend more time with her husband Lloyd and her son and grandson.

Retirement

Fighting back tears, Mrs. Woody expressed her appreciation for this thoughtful act and expressed her love for teaching and how she will miss the contact with the students. She went on to say there comes a time to go and for her, this was the time.

Graduate

Donald Joe Caldwell, a resident of Prestonsburg and a former graduate of Wheelwright High School, has just graduated from Hazard Community College receiving a degree of applied science in Radiography. He graduated as class valedictorian with high distinction and a gpa of 3.97. He received both the Hazard Community College Radiography award and the HCC and General Electric Certificate of Achievement for clinical and academic excellence in Radiography. He is now employed by the Radiology department at Hazard ARH.

Health board sends letters about insurance

The Kentucky Health Policy Board recently approved a letter that they will ask all health insurance carriers in the state to send to their policyholders. This effort will get information directly into the hands of insured Kentuckians about the health insurance changes which take effect in July. Insurance carriers are requested to include the letter when they send out other information about reforms to their policyholders and when soliciting policy renewals.

"This letter gives the Board an opportunity to tell Kentuckians how insurance reforms will benefit them," said Board Chairman, Jack Hall. "The insurance reforms contained in Kentucky's health reform law correct many of the problems that citizens and businesses face in today's insurance market." House Bill 250, which established Kentucky's health care reforms, was signed into law last April by Governor Jones.

The letter, which begins "Dear Insured Kentuckian," addresses many of the misconceptions about the insurance changes in H.B. 250. The letter provides a brief history of health reform, a statement about the need for insurance reforms, and some details about the five major components of insurance reform. The letter closes with an 800 number available for those with additional questions.

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor

Lost: a good friend; Ortega to play at FWBC in Nashville

Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Little League baseball and many, many folks lost a very good friend with the passing of Steve Stevens this past Tuesday evening.

It was a shock to the whole community when word came that Steve had succumbed to a heart attack.

Don and Kay Willis were devastated by the news, as many others were. Kay approached me at the Little League games Tuesday at Archer Park and told me the news. Don talked with me later, saying he had just talked with Steve around 2:30 and two hours later got a call that he had passed away.

Steve was a friend to all the youth in Floyd County. He was the Prestonsburg Little League Director for the past four seasons and served in that capacity even before that.

Under his leadership, the Prestonsburg Little League and Senior League programs were second to none in organization and in adherence to the charter rules.

Steve was a friend to all that knew him. He was instrumental in seeing improvements were made at the Little League and Senior League fields with the help of Ralph Little, park director.

With the assistance of Prestonsburg High School softball coach Bridget Clay, Steve started the Prestonsburg Little League Fast Pitch Softball League for younger girls.

Several improvements were made, including new dugouts at the Senior League field, and lights became a reality.

We don't understand why, at the age of 38, one would be taken out of our midst. But it is not ours to question why. All Little League games, as well as senior league, have been cancelled for the rest of the week.

Don was concerned that games go on as scheduled after the announcement of Steve's death came. The games did go on as scheduled and I'm glad -- because that is the way Steve would have wanted it. We'll miss him!

Funeral services will be today at 1 p.m. at the Carter Funeral Home.

ORTEGA TO BIBLE COLLEGE...

Tuesday, June 6, is a big day for Prestonsburg's Ryan Ortega. He will celebrate his 18th birthday on this date. Happy birthday, Ryan.

Ortega will take his many athletic talents to the Free-will Baptist Bible College in Nashville, Tennessee. Ryan will play basketball and baseball for the school. We wish him nothing but the best!

GEARHEART, CLARK TO MIDWAY...

Betsy Layne's Melena Gearheart and Misty Clark will sign with Midway College to play basketball next season. More later.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports. Take the kids to Sunday School this Sunday.

First Bluegrass State Games' deadline June 23

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Deadline for four Bluegrass State Games events is only three weeks away as June 23 is the first deadline for athletes to register for the Games to be held July 28-30.

Equestrian, soccer (youth division), softball (adult/youth divisions) and tennis are the first four events with early deadlines.

Gymnastics, adult soccer and volleyball have a deadline of July 1.

The philosophy behind the Bluegrass State Games is to provide Kentuckians of all ages and skill levels a wholesome avenue for positive development through sports and physical activity; to promote and develop local amateur athletics; to provide the amateur athletes an opportunity to showcase their talent and receive statewide recognition.

The games were started in 1985 under former Governor Martha Layne Collins, who received the idea from a former Olympian.

Twenty-five sporting events await amateur athletes from around Kentucky. Participants must be Kentucky residents for at least 30 days. The Games are open to college students as well as military personnel.

Two new sporting events have been added to this year's lineup of exciting events. The new events are Power tumbling and canoeing for Cub and Boy Scouts.

The Bluegrass State Games are open to everyone who is interested in good spirited competition.

Valvoline Oil has established the Founding Partner, the Valvoline Athlete Assistance Program that will help each athlete who is not financially able to participate. Valvoline believes that promoting all of the athletes in the Bluegrass State Games is what the Games are all about.

Last year a total of 1,676 events for specific age and skill groups were held that encompassed 25 sports. Over 19,000 athletes representing 119 Kentucky counties took part in last year's Games.

Ages of participants in last year's games ranged in age from 1 to 87 years old. Over 60 competition sites were used throughout a seven county span. The Games needed a staff of 750 volunteers to provide support at the sport venues and the opening ceremonies.

Floyd County had a large turnout last year for the Games and more participants expected this time around.

Archery, softball, karate, swimming and basketball were just some of the events Floyd Countians took part in.

The Games provide many hours of fun and relaxation for those who travel to Lexington. There are really no losers in the Games, as everyone tries to just do better than the past year. When that goal is accomplished, then everyone is a winner.

3-on-3 BASKETBALL is one of the favorite events of the 25 sporting events offered in the Bluegrass State Games. The Games are set for July 28-30 (photo by Ed Taylor)

Prestonsburg Big Sandy senior team opens season with win over Allen Central

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Big Sandy Babe Ruth 16-18-year-old baseball league got underway this past Wednesday night when Prestonsburg posted a 23-5 win over the Allen Central Reds.

The two teams opened the new league at the Allen Park. The league teams are made up of players who played high school ball or met other eligibility requirements.

Brandon Hicks hurled a complete game for Prestonsburg in working the seven innings. He permitted five runs while allowing only three hits.

He struck out 11 batters and walked six. The only extra base hit he allowed was a fourth inning double to Larry Hunter. Allen Hicks and Mike Sexton collected the other two Reds hits.

Donnie Owens started on the hill for the Reds and worked the first two innings, allowing 10 runs on five hits. He gave up a second inning two-run home run to Donnie Combs.

Owens was relieved by Allen Hicks in the third inning. Hicks completed the final five innings allowing 13 runs on only three hits. He fanned three batters but issued eight walks while hitting two batters.

Mullins' home run gives Braves 3-2 win over A's

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Hank Mullins had two hits in the Prestonsburg Braves game against the A's, but it was his second hit of the game that proved to be a big one.

Mullins drilled a 0-1 pitch over the fence in the fourth inning to give his ballclub a 3-1 lead over the A's.

Mullins had a first inning single and scored the second run of the game for the Braves.

The A's scored their second run in the fifth inning.

Matt Tackett picked up the win in going the distance for the Braves.

The Braves led 2-0 after the first inning. Danny Layne drew a two-out walk and scored on Mullins' hit. Mullins came on to score on a long double by Chris Spriggs. Spriggs was thrown out at third base for the final out.

The A's made it a 2-1 game with a lone second inning run. Fitzpatrick drew a one-out walk and scored on a passed ball.

Joey Willis dented the plate for the A's in the fifth inning to make it a one-run, 3-2 game. Willis had walked and scored on Perry's single.

Tackett got the A's in order in the sixth inning, striking out the side. He fanned 12 batters in the game.

Meade homers as Prestonsburg Rangers rally to beat Braves, 7-5

Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Rangers got some timely hitting from Josh Meade and, with Josh Shepherd's well-placed slow roller, battled from behind to hand the Prestonsburg Braves their second loss of the season.

The Rangers improved to 3-6 on the season while the Braves fell to 5-2.

Meade was perfect from the plate with three hits and Shepherd's lone RBI was a big one as Meade scored an insurance run for the Rangers.

Josh Slone picked up the win for the Rangers while Chris Spriggs suffered the loss. Slone struck out 10 batters in the game and did not issue a walk. He allowed five runs on five hits.

The Rangers grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first with Meade drilling a long home run over the centerfield fence. Meade also had a double in the game, picking up three RBIs.

The Braves racked Slone hard in the second inning scoring five times for a 5-2 lead. Randy Slone accounted for three of the runs with a three-run blast over the fence in right center. Spriggs also had an RBI single in the inning.

The Rangers countered with three in their half of the third inning to tie it at 5. Zack Slone doubled to start the third and later scored on Josh Slone's RBI single. Chad Wallen singled, sending Slone to second. Slone came home on Meade's long double to right center. Wallen scored on Zack Bradshaw's grounder to second base.

Slone was almost untouchable in the final three innings for the Rangers. He shut down the Braves on only six and retired the last five batters he faced.

In going the distance for the Rangers, Slone picked up his third complete game of the season.

Slone finished with two hits and three runs batted in for the Braves. Meade had three hits and three RBIs.

Gillispie's home run sparks Braves past Yankees, 8-2

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

John Gillispie drilled a three-run home run in the second inning to help power the first place Prestonsburg Braves past a good Yankees team, 8-2.

Matt Tackett was on the mound the first three innings for the Braves and picked up the win. Hank Mullins went the final three.

Tackett allowed a first inning run to the Yankees and Mullins gave up a run in the sixth.

The Braves scored four times in the first. Two of the runs were unearned. Danny Layne opened the inning with a walk and Randy Slone followed with a single. Jason Isom was plucked with a pitch to load the bases.

After Mullins and Gillispie fanned for two outs, Tackett walked to force in one run. A run scored on Heath Chaffins' double.

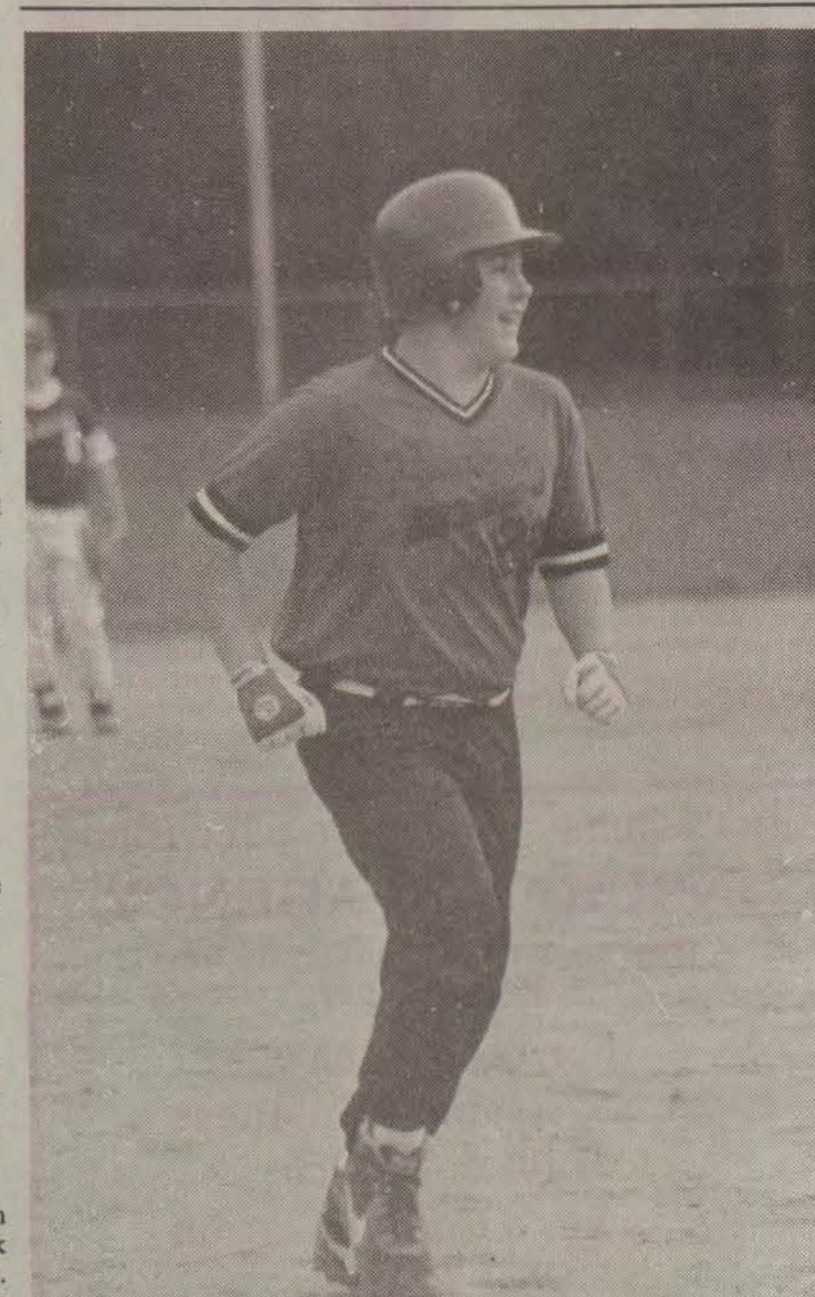

The Yankees put a run across on a two-out walk to Stephens and an error.

It was a 7-0 game after the second inning with the Braves pushing across three. All three runs scored on Gillispie's home run.

The Braves added their final run in the fifth inning on a lead off walk to Tackett and a walk to Chaffins. With two out, Slone singled home Tackett.

Stennett scored the Yankees final run in the sixth inning. He singled with two out and scored on a passed ball.

Stennett had the only hit for the Yankees and the Braves collected only two hits.

Reds, Marlins to hold try-out camps

The Cincinnati Reds and Florida Marlins will be in Eastern Kentucky next month to hold try-out camps for players who have aspirations of becoming major league players.

Several of today's major league players are now playing baseball in the big leagues because they were first seen at the type of try-out camps the two major league clubs will conduct.

If you are serious about the opportunity to try out, then you should make every effort to be at one of the camps.

The Reds will conduct their camp at the Johnson Central High School baseball field on Saturday, June 10. The camp is open to all boys 16 to 22 years of age. High school sophomores and juniors are urged to attend.

Reds scouting supervisor Robert Koontz, will be in charge of the workouts which are scheduled to start promptly at 9:30 a.m. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and all players participating in the workouts must be registered prior to the 9:30 a.m. starting time.

All eligible players are requested to bring their own uniform, glove and shoes.

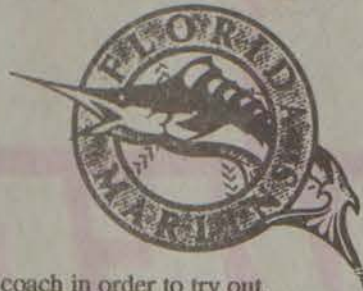

The Reds will furnish all other equipment.

In addition, each player will be responsible for his traveling and living expenses, if any, unless signed to a contract with the Cincinnati Reds organization.

Players must be 16 years of age to be eligible to participate and all American Legion players must bring with them written permission from their Post Commander or their legion

The Florida Marlins will conduct their camp later in June, setting up camp at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond on June 21.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. and, again, all players 16-22 are invited to attend. As with the Reds, all American Legion players must have permission from their Post Commander or coach in order to workout.

Players are to bring their shoes, glove and uniform. Area scout for the Marlins, Brad Del Barba, will conduct the camp.

Shepherd "gathers flock" with grand slam home run against A's

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Prestonsburg Ranger third baseman Josh Shepherd blasted a grand slam home run to highlight an eight-run sixth and gave the Rangers a 20-4 shellacking over the Prestonsburg A's.

Shepherd had two hits in the game and four runs batted in.

Josh Slone went the distance for the Rangers for the win. He struck out nine batters and walked three. He allowed four runs while scattering six hits.

The loss went to Jason Perry in relief. Fitzpatrick started for the A's and pitched two and a third innings. Hall relieved Fitzpatrick in the third to get two outs. Perry entered in the fourth inning and was tagged for 16 runs on nine hits. He issued 10 walks in the game while fanning two.

Josh Slone walked, stole second and third before scoring on a passed ball to give the Rangers a 1-0 lead.

The A's held a brief lead with two runs in the bottom of the inning. The A's grabbed the lead on a pair of solo home runs off the bats of 10-year-old Joey Willis and 12-year-old Jason Perry.

The A's made it a 3-1 game with a single run in the bottom of the second. Jarrell walked and scored on Hall's two out single.

The Rangers got untracked in the third with three runs to lead 4-3. Slone walked and scored on Chad Wallen's RBI single. Zack Bradshaw doubled to right, scoring Wallen and Josh Meade, who had walked.

Slone held the A's bat silent over the next two innings, but the Rangers plated three more in the fourth and five in the fifth before exploding for eight in the sixth.

The Rangers greeted new A's pitcher Jason Perry with three straight hits and three runs. Wallen singled and scored with Meade on Bradshaw's sacrifice fly and Phillip Allen's bunt single.

Jeff Allen laid down a bunt single to lead off the Rangers' fifth inning and was the first of nine consecutive batters who marched to the plate.

The A's added a run in the bottom of the fifth when Jarrell doubled and eventually scored on a wild pitch.

Bradshaw had two doubles for the Rangers. Shepherd doubled and Jarrell had a two-bagger for the A's. Hall finished with two hits for the A's. Bradshaw collected three hits in the game with Wallen finishing with two.

Prestonsburg sixth on only just two hits. Prestonsburg pushed across three runs in the first inning and seven in the second.

Hicks had a three-run triple in the second inning and he scored on Combs' home run. Nathan Slone drove in two runs with a triple also in the inning.

Ryan Ortega had an RBI double in the third frame.

The Reds scored in the first to take a 1-0 lead. Cecil Maggard walked and scored on Allen Hicks' RBI single.

They added a second run in the second on a one-out walk to Nathan Sexton who moved to third on Mike Sexton's single. He scored on a wild pitch.

The final two Reds' runs came in the fourth on an interference call on catcher Robbie Risner as Maggard reached. McNeil singled and both runners scored on Larry Hunter's two-out double.

Prestonsburg will face what is expected to be a strong Betsy Layne team this Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Allen Park.

Winners of five regional crowns

Petra Käck and Nikki Reid had plenty to smile about after winning five regional crowns. Both runners will travel to UK for the state high school meet this weekend.

Betsy Layne sends eight!

June is proclaimed Rivers Month

Gov. Brereton C. Jones has once again proclaimed June as Rivers Month and invites the citizens of Kentucky to help celebrate the commonwealth's rich heritage of rivers and streams.

Kentucky has approximately 89,431 miles of streams within its borders, so there are plenty of places to visit during this month-long celebration.

Events during the month include free fishing for the weekend of June 3 and 4, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in honor of National Fishing Week.

Anyone may fish on any Kentucky water without a license (normal creel and size limits still apply). The 12th annual celebration of the Rockcastle River also takes place on June 3 with a myriad of activities planned.

More special events are planned across the state, including floats, cruises, arts and crafts markets, canoe and kayak parties, occur each weekend, and some continue throughout the month at locations throughout the state.

Not every waterway event is all fun and games, though. The Ohio River Sweep takes place on June 17 to clean up the entire 664 miles of streambank bordering the river. The South Licking River Clean Sweep is planned for June 24.

A calendar of events with more information about activities during Rivers Month in Kentucky is available from Morgan Jones at the Kentucky Division of Water, 14 Reilly Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 (telephone: 502/564-3410).

Student asks for injunction:

Senior not named valedictorian

by Linda H. Breed
Editor
Appalachian News-Express

Caroline Slater will graduate this Saturday from Belfry High School, but unless the court intervenes, she will do so without the honors she thinks she is due.

Slater has asked Pike Circuit Court to issue a temporary restraining order and a permanent injunction barring the school's principal and site-based council from excluding her from the list of valedictorians.

Members of the council include Principal Frank Welch, Bessie Hunt, Rita Scott, Margarette Morris, Jimmy Caines and Darlene Cisco.

In the action filed Tuesday by her attorney Larry Webster, Slater claims that she and four others — James Carroll, Jennifer Edmiston, Christopher Elkins and Brent Lee — are qualified, eligible and entitled to be named valedictorian or co-valedictorians of Belfry High School.

Slater says she and her schoolmates followed the requirements for valedictorian as set forth in the school district's handbook, a copy of which is distributed to all students. However, Belfry has named two other students, Wesley Deskins and Shawn King, valedictorians.

The suit says the decision to name the two young men valedictorians at the exclusion of Slater and others is "based upon criteria not founded in law nor in the students handbook."

Apparently, Belfry used the students' scores from A.C.T. tests, which Slater's suit claims "are nowhere used as criteria in determining class rankings for the graduating class of 1995."

School District Administrative Assistant Jim Clay said, however, that Belfry High has used A.C.T. scores as criteria prior to this year, as has other high schools, such as Phelps and Elkhorn City.

Slater says in her suit that Kevin Nolan, chief counsel for the Kentucky Department of Education, has said Belfry High's selection process "is unlawful based upon the Kentucky Revised Statutes." She also contends that class ranking is not a matter for site-based councils to decide, but that of the county school board.

Clay, however, disagreed. "We try to stay out of it here," he said of the central office. "I don't know what we can do about it."

District spokesman Bruce Hopkins said that board policy is only a foundation.

"Individual schools can impose other unit requirements for graduation and may impose other requirements for designation of valedictorian and salutatorian," he said.

Because of discrepancies in the board's handbook, there have been quite a few problems over the past few years dealing with the selection of valedictorians and salutatorians.

Hopkins noted that requirements for the district's Gold Seal Curriculum for Valedictorian and Salutatorian were added to the handbook during Larry Burke's administration, and that he could find no board policy supporting it.

Also, the district's "weighted credit," established by this policy, is to be removed in 1996.

Recently the board increased the number of units for graduation to 28, and Hopkins said the requirements, to be effective in 1998, will have to be changed because of that.

A hearing before Circuit Judge Eddie Coleman was set Wednesday afternoon.

Because schools, by law, are not allowed to retain counsel, Hopkins said board attorney Neal Smith would represent Belfry High School at the proceedings.

UK teacher wins suit against coal company

A University of Kentucky instructor won a suit against a Martin County Coal Corporation last week in the Martin Circuit Court after two days of testimony and two and one half hours of jury deliberation.

Bonita Gail Cooper was awarded a total of $326,900 as compensation for injuries received during a field trip to a Martin County Coal Corporation (MCCC) mining operation in September 1993.

Cooper, who missed a total of eight months work after the accident, sued MCCC for damages incurred when she and two other UK community college teachers were hit by a falling piece of coal while touring a MCCC facility on a field trip.

According to testimony at the trial, a total of twelve UK instructors from various community colleges throughout the UK system took the tour sponsored by MCCC.

Cooper testified that she was apprehensive about entering the coal mine but was told by Elmer Howard, safety director at MCCC, that the chances of her being injured were "about like winning the lottery."

However, Cooper was hit on the neck and shoulders by a piece of coal that fell approximately three feet from the roof of the mine the group was touring.

Estimates about the size and weight of the piece of coal differed. Howard said he saw the piece of coal about five minutes before it fell but did not think it was a serious threat.

He said the coal was about 2'x3' and about two and one half inches thick and weighed about 50 pounds.

Two other UK instructors, both females, were injured in the incident. One was taken to a local hospital and the other refused treatment at the time of the incident. Both testified at last week's trial on behalf of the plaintiff. Martin County Coal Human Resources Manager J. Mack Preece said Saturday, May 27, that his company will appeal the verdict.

Preece issued the following press release:

"Martin County Coal Corporation is extremely disappointed with the "jury decision" regarding the claims of Mrs. Bonita Gail Cooper. We certainly disagree with the seriousness of the incident and plan to file an appeal.

"This is very unfortunate for everyone concerned. This type of award makes it difficult for companies to stay competitive and drives the cost of doing business up in this area. We plan to vigorously appeal this decision."

The breakdown of the jury award to Cooper was:

- Mental and physical suffering: $150,000
- Permanent impairment of power to earn money: $100,000
- Hospital expenses: $38,300
- Lost wages: $18,000
- Future medical expenses: $20,000

Cooper, who is back to work now, must pay back the money she drew from Kentucky Workman's Compensation and the amount her medical insurance paid for out of the award.

MCCC was represented in the case by Pikeville attorneys Baird, Baird, and Baird. Cooper was represented by John Lackey of Richmond, who was assisted in jury selection and other matters by former State Senator and Pikeville attorney Kelsey Friend.

Circuit Judge James A. Knight presided over the trial which produced one of the largest monetary awards ever given to an individual against a coal company in Martin Circuit Court.

Pike County residents honored during KSP awards ceremony

Three Pike County residents were honored during the annual Kentucky State Police Awards Ceremony in Frankfort, for their act of bravery.

Kentucky State Police Commissioner Jerry Lovitt presented Michael John Potter and Joshua Coleman, both of Ashcamp, and James Sargent, of Burdine, with the KSP Certificate for Meritorious Achievement and the honorary title of Colonel, Aide de Camp to the Commissioner, for their rescue of two men trapped in a cave.

The citation read as follows: On March 26, 1994, Trooper Tim Egle of the Pikeville Post, two civilians, Michael John Potter and Joshua Darrell Coleman, and James Sargent, a member of the Shelby Valley Rescue Squad, volunteered to enter a cave near Ashcamp where two hunters had sought refuge from a storm and became trapped.

To reach the cave, the rescuers had to climb one mile up a steep mountain in the pouring rain. Once inside, Potter and Coleman directed the group, as they were familiar with the cave and knew where the two hunters might be. Crawling on their stomachs and sometimes pushing themselves on their backs, they inched their way through narrow openings and treacherous passages for 300 feet.

They found some of the hunters' gear and, pushing on, located the two individuals in a 30-foot cavern. They tied ropes together, pulled the young men to safety and led them back out the cave. The entire rescue operation took three hours.

Without regard for their own safety, Potter, Coleman and Sargent volunteered to help in this perilous rescue. Under very dangerous conditions, they acted with great courage and judgment and, because of their efforts, two men were saved.

Workers win suit against county

by Jerry Pennington
Editor
The Big Sandy News

A federal jury ruled Wednesday, May 24, that 16 former county workers were fired for political reasons, and that the county must reimburse $370,000 in back wages and compensatory damages.

The case stems from a lawsuit filed by the 16 workers who were fired after current County Judge-executive Roger Jordan took office in January 1994.

The plaintiffs' lead attorney, Ned Pillersdorf, of Prestonsburg, successfully argued that the employees were fired because they were supporters of former County Judge-executive Clyde Johns.

Jordan's attorney, Allen Button of Louisville, said the employees were fired because of the poor financial shape Johns had left the county in. Button said this was the reason Johns wasn't re-elected in the 1993 race.

Also, Jordan testified Tuesday, May 23, that the employees firings had nothing to do with their political allegiance.

Magistrate Harold Daniels testified that Lawrence County has had a history of rewarding political supporters, but contended that the firings were not political.

"It has always been a practice in Lawrence County that you help me, I help you," Daniels said in court. "And it was done four years ago and four years ago prior to that and on down since probably the history of the county."

Pillersdorf closed his questioning of Daniels by asking him if the same policy was still practiced today.

"Yes, I reckon," was Daniels reply.

Pillersdorf also plans to ask that all of the workers be reinstated to their former positions under the Johns administration.

The judgment could throw the already-struggling county into a financial crisis, because the county's insurance carrier probably will not cover the claim.

"Anytime a federal court rules that something was done for political reasons, it's considered an intentional act and then insurance will not cover it," John Griggs, executive director of the Kentucky Association of Counties, said. "The insurance covers providing a defense and will continue to cover it if an appeal is filed, but if reinstatement is ruled, it will not cover that."

The original lawsuit was filed on January 28, 1994, and named Jordan individually and in his official capacity, as well as the Lawrence County Fiscal Court. The suit had asked for an injunction to reinstate the employees' jobs.

Button is reviewing the case to decide whether or not to file an appeal.

Appeals court upholds conviction of LeMaster

A panel of three judges for the sixth circuit Court of Appeals voted 2-1 to uphold the conviction of former state Senator David LeMaster of Paintsville in a split decision handed down Thursday, May 25.

Judges Robert E. De Mascio and Cornelia Kenney agreed with the verdict, while Judge Nathaniel R. Jones disagreed.

LeMaster was convicted of lying to FBI agents in January 1994. He was one of 21 defendants convicted in operation Boprot, a federal probe into corruption in state government.

The FBI said LeMaster received $6,000 in cash from a lobbyist in 1992, and then lied to them about it. He was sentenced to one year in prison and fined $30,000 plus $25,149.60 in costs.

The defense contended that LeMaster's answer of "no" to several questions does not constitute providing false information to the FBI.

LeMaster remains free on bond until his appeal can be heard.

No trial date has been set.

Battle of Middle Creek stamp debuts June 29

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

A unique pictorial cancellation stamp that commemorates the Battle of Middle Creek will make its debut at the Prestonsburg Post Office with a new Civil War stamp collection the U.S. Postal Service is releasing on June 29.

To whet the public's appetite for the new stamps and the cancellation mark, the Prestonsburg Post Office will be setting up a display booth at the site of the Battle of Middle Creek Civil War re-enactment this weekend.

The booth will include a display of the Civil War stamps and a special collector's sheet that will go on sale on June 29, as well as other collectible stamps that are now available, said postmaster Edith Risner.

Although the Civil War stamps cannot be sold or envelopes and post cards canceled with the special pictorial postmark until June 29, Risner said that stamp collectors can place stamp orders now.

In addition, especially printed Middle Creek Battle envelopes and post cards will be on sale at the re-enactment site by the Middle Creek Battlefield National Historic Landmark Foundation.

"We have full intentions of selling official first day cover envelopes and post cards," said

Frank Fitzpatrick of Prestonsburg, who is the founder and president of the foundation.

The cancellation stamp was sponsored by the foundation to draw attention to the significance of Eastern Kentucky's most fiercely fought Civil War battle.

The cancellation design, which pictures Civil War soldiers preparing to fire a cannon, was drawn by Cleve Shepherd of Lancer, who is a

Jenny Wiley box office officially opened Monday with four shows already sold out

With what cast member and Pike County resident Carrie Cinnamon calls "the best lineup in years" preparing to kick-off on June 23, the box office at Jenny Wiley Theatre officially opened Monday, May 29, for ticket orders for the 1995 season.

Although the box office did not fully open until Monday, advance orders have already sold-out four performances during the upcoming season. Included in those sell-outs are the June 25 performance of My Fair Lady and three presentations of Annie throughout the season.

Cinnamon, who was a member of the cast of Jenny Wiley's first musical in 1964 and currently serves as Jenny Wiley Theatre Board of Trustees, vice-president, said this year's season featuring My Fair Lady, Annie, Steel Magnolias and The Fantasticks has the chance to be the best summer of entertainment in her 31-year involvement with the theatre.

"I think this season we will really find our niche with bringing the opportunity to experience theatre to people of all ages in our community," said Cinnamon, who will be portraying Mrs. Eynsford-Hill in My Fair Lady and Clarice in Steel Magnolias.

In addition to taking orders for tickets for the three mainstage plays,

MSU enters National Student Exchange program

Morehead State University students will now have additional course options thanks to an agreement recently entered into by MSU officials.

Through the National Student Exchange, students enrolled at MSU may take classes at one of the 125 campuses in the exchange, according to Dr. Roger H. Jones, MSU professor of art and coordinator for the program. "Our students will now have the opportunity to take classes in an area not offered at our university."

While MSU is a member of the exchange now, students probably will not be participating in the program until next year, Dr. Jones said. "This will give students time to plan their program of study and decide what field they wish to pursue."

Dr. Jones recommends that students start planning toward taking classes at another campus during their junior year. "It is important to apply early in the fall," he said.

The exchange program may be one semester or one year. It is available at numerous locations in the U.S., including Hawaii, as well as the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Guam.

"Under the program, students register at MSU and pay the registration fees," Dr. Jones said. "Only room and board are paid to the host school."

When applying for financial aid, the travel and housing expenses will be taken into consideration, Dr. Jones noted.

"This new program will give us a chance to do creative curriculum or program planning," Dr. Jones said. "Its success will depend on the advising process in helping students implement their particular program."

"It is expected that other students will want to come to MSU because of the rural area, Appalachian culture, and the uniqueness of our campus," Dr. Jones said.

Additional information is available from Dr. Jones at (606) 783-2763 or Mary Jo Netherton, MSU associate professor of French and assistant coordinator for the exchange, at (606) 783-2779.

the box office is now taking reservations for the dinner theatre and luncheon matinee performances of The Fantasticks throughout the summer. These showings are in the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center located in front of the amphitheatre and include a meal and the magical charm of one of the longest running musicals in Broadway history. The Fantasticks tells the romantic story of a boy and a girl as they contrive to meet and fall in love despite their fathers' apparent rejection of the idea. Meanwhile, the two fathers have actually staged their disapproval in order to achieve a marriage between the disobedient children. Ticket prices for these performances are $21 for the luncheon matinee and $26 for the dinner theatre.

Ticket prices for the three productions in the amphitheatre and for regular showings of The Fantasticks are $13 for adult, $12 for senior citizens and $7 for students under 18. For more information or to make your reservations to avoid further sellouts, contact the box office at (606) 886-9274.

A diverse look at the Old West on KET

Some years ago, Saturday afternoon was the domain of the cowboy film at the movies. On Saturday, June 3, KET revives the tradition with diverse films that look at the old West. So get the popcorn ready!

At 1:00 p.m., Come and Get It: Chuck Wagon Cooking looks at the kitchen on wheels—a piece of American ingenuity that helped the cattle industry grow. Originated by Charles Goodnight in 1866, it fills the same role today as it did then, providing good food for cowboys. The program travels with three contemporary chuck wagon cooks, to round-ups, and cookoffs, and there is plenty of working-cowboy footage as well.

Then at 1:30, on to a different kind of ranch—Cadillac Ranch: Fame, Fins & Fantasy. Twenty years ago, an eccentric millionaire and a group of California artists half-buried ten Cadillacs on the Texas prairie.

Antique Guns of the West looks at antique American rifles and pistols in some of the country's private and public collections of Old West firearms and shows both workmanship and their place in American history. The program, airing at 2:00, includes firearms made by famous gun manufacturers such as Colt, Winchester, Smith and Wesson, and Browning, along with an explanation of the design features that made each popular.

Don Doll's Vision Quest, airing at 3:30, follows the photojournalist to North Dakota and Nebraska as he creates a book of portraits of Lakota leaders who have made a difference in the recent history of the Sioux people.

Medical school makes alliances for junior and senior rotations

Dr. O.J. Bailes, Dean of the Southern College of Osteopathic Medicine announced that letters of support and of intent to let juniors and seniors rotate in their clinics and hospitals have been received from Mountain Manor Nursing Homes of Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Pikeville, and Riverview Nursing Home; Appalachian Regional Hospitals and Clinics at all locations in Kentucky, including McDowell and West Virginia and Virginia; Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin; Salyersville Health Care Center at Salyersville; Big Sandy Health Care at Salyersville, Mud Creek and Pikeville; East Kentucky Health Service Center (Dr. Grady Stumbo) at Hindman and Wayland; and Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

The administrators of these facilities indicated that these students would be under supervision of licensed physicians and with the students being available 7 days a week 24 hours a day, the quality of health care could be very intensive and helpful to the patient as well as the learning experience of the student.

Meanwhile, the contractor indicated that the new medical school building could be completed and occupied if commenced 9 months prior to the opening of the school in August 1996 and it was announced that all the money was available to build the building now except for the last million dollars, which is being raised by local efforts to secure gifts from local people. The building, equipment, and campus will have an approximate value of 5 million dollars.

To spearhead the fund raising local businessman Paul G. Fyffe, former manager of WSIP radio, 606-789-0033, has been selected by the school.

State committee to meet in Paintsville on June 6

A public hearing about highway construction needs in Eastern Kentucky will be held June 6 at the Carriage House Inn, Paintsville at 6 p.m.

The meeting is being held by the General Assembly's interim joint transportation committee to hear local concerns about current and future highway construction projects in the area, said committee co-chair Rep. Hubert Collins, D-Wittensville.

"I want to encourage everyone to attend this meeting and let the transportation committee know about our road-construction needs in Eastern Kentucky," Collins said. "It is vitally important for state lawmakers to hear firsthand the concerns of this region of the state."

At the public hearing, panel members will also hear from area Transportation Cabinet District Engineers who are expected to update legislators on the progress of state-funded road construction projects in the area and future transportation needs as well.

On June 7, panel members will tour highway construction projects currently underway in the region, including the reconstruction of U.S. 23 near Paintsville and the Kentucky 645 bridge extension connecting Warfield and Kermit, West Virginia, he said.

The panel is also likely to discuss a project that would widen Kentucky 645 from two to four lanes from Inez to Warfield and a project that would four-lane the current two-lane portion of the Mountain Parkway, Collins said.

Collins, who jointly chairs the transportation committee with Sen. Kim Nelson, D-Madisonville, represents the 97th House District, which includes all or portions of Johnson County, Magoffin County and Martin County.

News of the Weird

by Chuck Shepherd

In April, radio station KMJ in Madera, Calif., fired weatherman Sean Boyd. The station said it had a cumulative dissatisfaction with him, but Boyd said the precipitating incident was his refusal to forecast good enough weather for the station's annual public picnic in honor of Rush Limbaugh. Boyd, an 18-year veteran, had forecast "partly cloudy," which KMJ executives wanted changed to "partly sunny" so as not to discourage attendance.

INEXPLICABLE

-- In October, the U.S. Department of Justice received a check for $5.6 million from the late Stanley S. Newberg, who died without blood relatives and who had ordered that his estate go to the government as thanks for having taken his family as immigrants from Austria in 1906. Based on the 1994 budget, the bequest will cover about two minutes' federal spending.

-- In March, President Clinton invited sidewalk protester Todd Ouellette, 27, into the Oval Office for a five-minute meeting. Ouellette had requested the meeting on Feb. 19, 1993, after returning from a seven-month walk across the U.S., picking up signatures demanding action on Vietnam War POWs and MIA's. After a five-minute chat, Ouellette announced he was satisfied, that he was ending his 25-month protest, and that he was moving on to other issues, such as the war with China, which "will be coming up around the year 2000." (In a previous interview, Ouellette said he did not know why he was so obsessed with the POW-MIA issue, in that he had no friends or relatives who served there.)

-- Syracuse, N.Y., fire chief James L. Cummings announced in March that his firefighters were injured more often in fire station accidents (28 times) last year than in putting out fires (25 times).

-- In March, in an all-white neighborhood in Columbia, Pa., vandals damaged several cars and wrote "KKK" and various racial epithets on the houses of three families.

-- In February, Odalys Toledo, 30, was sentenced to five years in prison for attempted bank robbery. Last August, she had telephoned the FBI in Newark, N.J., and told them that a woman, fitting her own description and wearing what she was wearing, would soon try to rob the City National Bank downtown. She was arrested when she later entered the bank. Asked Toledo's motive, her public-defender lawyer said, "I have no good answer."

-- In December, the town of Bexley, Ohio, adjacent to Columbus, granted a permit for a McDonald's on a main street, and construction began despite much opposition that a fast-food restaurant was not appropriate for the neighborhood. The opponents said they preferred the site's then-current occupant, an adult video store.

PEOPLE UNCLEAR ON THE CONCEPT

-- At a press conference in Beijing called in March to announce activities surrounding China's participation in the United Nations World Conference on Women, 11 of the 14 winners in the song and poster contests were male, and eight of the nine head-table conveyors of the press conference were men.

-- In December, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration office in Wilmington, N.C., made a public announcement that a valuable piece of technology had been stolen. The head of the office asked the public's help for its return, and offered a reward, but refused to identify the object except to say that it was palm-sized. Said the supervisor, "For security reasons, I can't say what it looked like."

-- Joseph Bertolino, 37, said he has been in severe pain since 1993, when his arm was pulled into a woodworking machine while he was employed at a Sierra Pacific Industries mill in Red Bluff, Calif. In April 1995, Bertolino, distraught with pain, rushed into the mill with a gun and fired 20 shots at the machine, resulting in some dents and chipped paint.

-- James Musgrow, 31, filed a lawsuit in August against the Davenport, Iowa, police department charging that he was unconstitutionally arrested earlier

In the deepest, darkest region of the male brain, which covers the area from the forehead to the base of the skull, scientists have discovered proof that our inability to ever admit we are wrong is biologically induced.

This massive mass of cranial tissue, which x-rays depict as resembling the north end of a southbound mule, thus earning the name "Ginny," is not found in the female brain.

Of course we all know that women are NEVER wrong about anything, anyway. They don't need to take up valuable brain space just to convince themselves of something they already know to be true.

But now that we know that male stubbornness is physiological, it helps to explain a lot of things.

For instance, a group of us went camping over the Memorial Day weekend, only to find that the holiday was no holiday.

Sunday morning, as it rained like pouring, uh, number one from a boot, three of us guys sat under a makeshift shelter, waiting for one or the other to admit that it just might be a good time to pack it in.

Naturally, our brains would not permit us to confess that we might have chosen a poor time to commune with nature, so every time we attempted to say "let's get the heck outta here," it came out "looks like it's about to blow over."

The wives, meanwhile, unencumbered by brain-induced bull-headedness, quickly departed for high ground, warm, dry beds, and mud-free food.

We guys stuck it out, literally.

The campground may have been a quagmire, but the beer was still cold and, as every camper guy knows, one of the first rules of the woods is you never let the weather interfere with having a cold one, even if holding the can puts you at risk of being struck by lightning.

Eventually the storm passed, and so did the weekend.

As we packed up and headed home, we complimented one another on how tough and manly we were for having weathered the weather and we scoffed at those weakling women for abandoning camp over such a little thing as a monsoon.

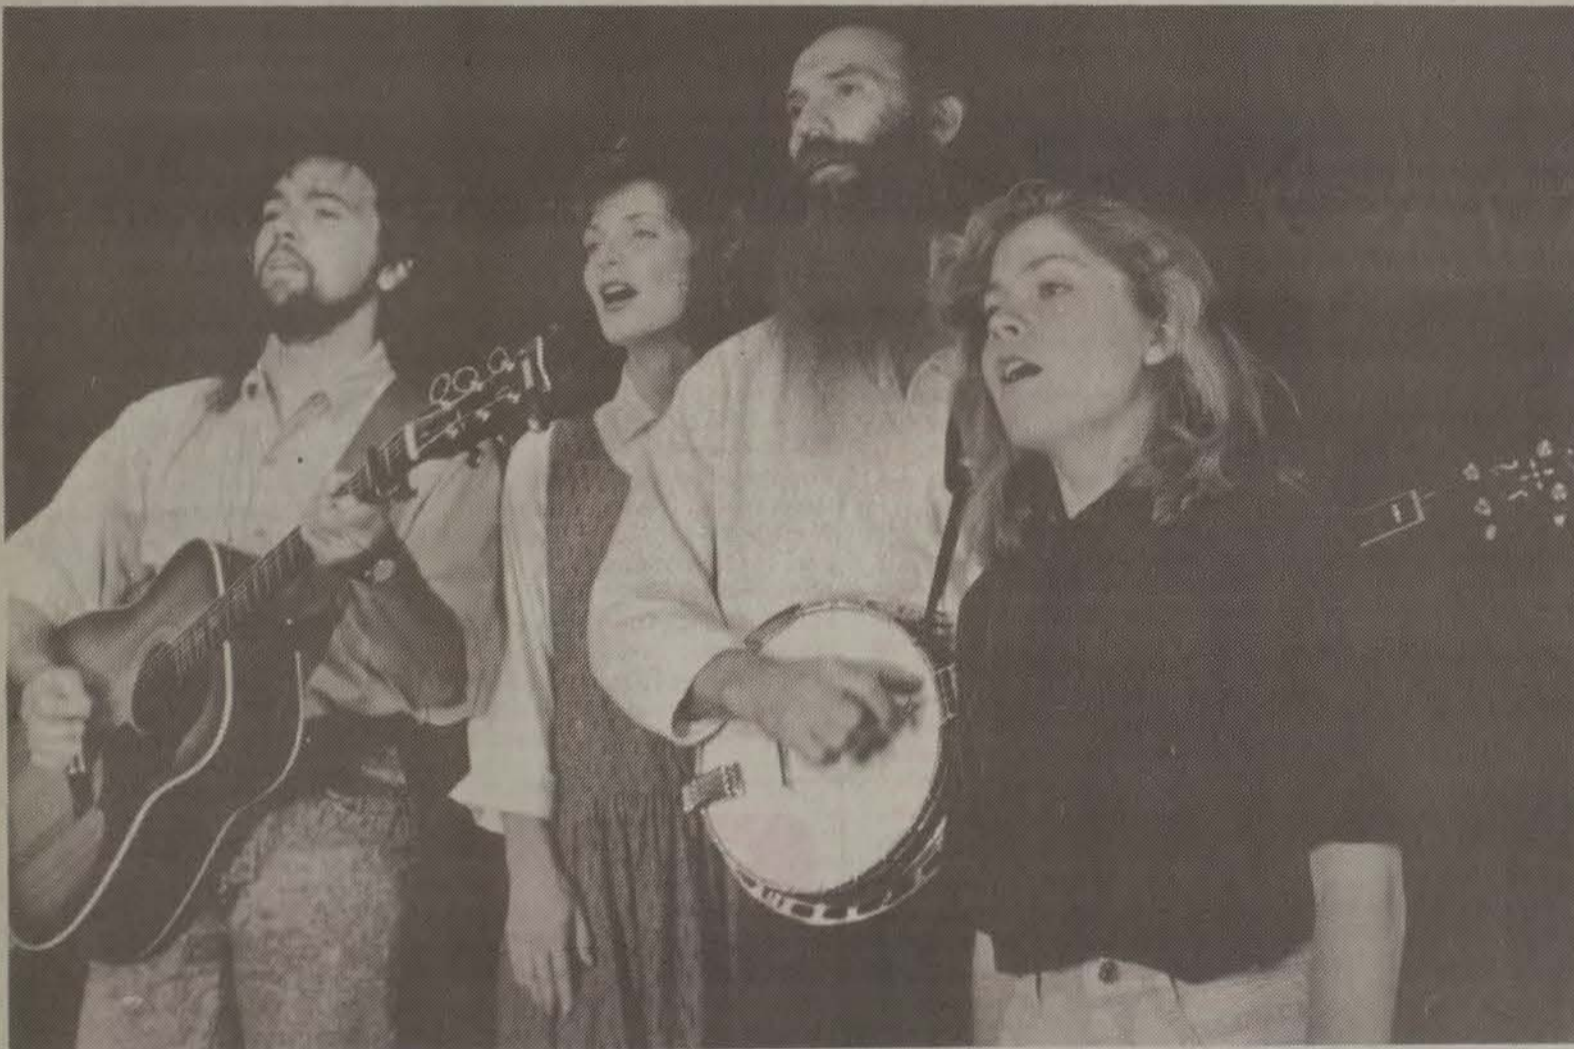

Yep, looks like we were right, again.

Never was any doubt.

Roadside Theater to perform at Appalshop

Planting seeds of Appalachia

Roadside Theatre will perform its original play, Borderline, on Saturday, June 4, at 3:30 p.m. in the Appalshop Theater in Whitesburg as part of Appalshop's Seedtime on the Cumberland. Pictured are Ben Mays, Kim Neal, Tommy Bledsoe, and Rema Keen. (photo by Jeff Whetstone)

Roadside Theater will perform its original musical history play, Borderline, on Saturday, June 3, at 3:30 p.m. in the Appalshop Theater in Whitesburg, as a part of Appalshop's Ninth Annual Seedtime on the Cumberland.

Borderline tells a history of the Appalachian Mountains, and its people through a lively blend of tales, remembrances, legends, and music.

Seven original and traditional songs, accompanied by guitar, banjo, and fiddle are woven into the rich history of the Cumberland Plateau. The music ranges from the haunting original ballad, "Living on the Borderline," to the traditional folk standard, "John Henry."

Roadside storyteller/musician Ron Short, of Big Stone Gap, Virginia, commented: "Most of our history isn't written down. It's in the memories of the people who lived it. Their stories connect us to our past and to each other."

"We have to tell these stories to each other so we can all remember them, otherwise we lose our history," Short continued. "Without knowing our history, we can't know who we are. Borderline is one way of keeping an eye on our past while moving towards our future."

Following Saturday afternoon's performance of Borderline, the audience is invited to join Roadside and Appalshop filmmakers in a discussion of the issues raised in the play and in the Appalshop films Justice in the Coalfields by Anne Lewis and Beyond Measure by Herb Smith. The two films will be shown in the theater on Saturday beginning at noon.

Roadside Theater receives major funding from the Lila Wallace Reader's Digest Theaters for New Audiences Program.

Roadside also receives funding from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, the Ford Foundation, the Ruth Mott Fund, the Kentucky Arts Council, the Kentucky Foundation for Women, Rockefeller MAP, and Alternate ROOTS. Roadside is a founding member of the Global Network for Cultural Rights, Alternate ROOTS, and the American Festival Project.

A NOTE TO MY SON

This Friday (today) my son will don a royal blue mortarboard, complete with tassel and gown, and begin the journey millions of young men and women have made into the adult world. It's amazing, because I'm not finished with him yet!

The apprehension is unbearable because, while this is an exciting time in his life, it is an exceedingly heart-wrenching occasion for me. The allure of college and life without Mom looking over his shoulder appeals to this little guy who continues to upset me by masquerading in a grown up body.

Unlike many mothers, my son was acquired through osmosis. He came into my life gradually, filling my empty heart and warming my aching arms with his mischievous grin and his spindly little body. At six years of age, he could read on a seventh grade level and decode mathematical equations like a savant. I can boast about his scholastic achievements because he did not inherit his precariousness from me. If he had, he would still be trying to conjugate the verb "to be."

After several years under my tutelage, my characteristics started to become a part of his psyche. His writing techniques began to mimic mine, full of dangling participles and wordy dialogue. And his love of developing friendships took up a large portion of his time. Some of his facial mannerisms were similar to mine and he laughed a lot—just like me. We spent countless hours together planning his day-to-day activities just like thousands of other mothers do with one slight difference, we didn't HAVE to do it. And we didn't have to love each other because it was a maternal thing to do, we loved each other because we just did.

From the beginning of our relationship, I wanted him to love me unconditionally. I wanted him to cling to me and forget that anyone else was ever a part of his life. Sometimes when he made me laugh or charmed me with his wit, I would forget that he might be taken from me. But with each passing day, filled with warm hugs and sticky kisses, he reassured me and made me believe he'd never leave me; that he'd stay with me forever. Now that he's preparing to leave of his own accord, I feel more threatened than ever by natural forces that I wasn't prepared to defend.

I'm told that the process I am going through is normal. But it's such a scary feeling. However, my son appears so fearless and all I feel is fear—for both of us. I want to protect him, and I keep wondering what he'll do without me? But more importantly, what will I do without him? My surfacing fears confirm what I always knew: I needed him more.

Now that he's older, his displays of affections aren't as demonstrative, but our bond is even stronger. In place of the sticky kisses and warm hugs, I get razzed on the cheek and poked and prodded in the ribs in a show of camaraderie.

Friday night (tonight), when my son transfers his tassel from left to right and throws his mortarboard into the air, he'll be tossing my heart into the air with it. If he misses it on the way back down, I'll be there one more time to intercept it for him.

French Kiss

That's a rather titillating title for a movie, wouldn't you say? Trust me, though. That's about all that's titillating about this particular comedy.

Meg Ryan stars as Kate, a woman whose fear of flying prevents her from joining her fiancé, Charlie (Timothy Hutton), on a business trip in Paris. However, she comes to rue her cowardice when Charlie calls to inform her that he's fallen in love with a French sexpot, played by Susan Anbeh.

Kate sets out determined to win back her man. She must first, however, take that dreaded step and get on a plane. Seated next to her is the dashing Frenchman, Luc (Kevin Kline). Thanks to his brashness and total irreverence, Kate is able to withstand the flight. However, unbeknownst to her, Luc is really a jewel thief. He has planted his latest "acquisition" of a diamond necklace on Kate in order to more easily clear customs.

Once in Paris, Kate sets out to track down Charlie and Luc goes about tracking Kate. Frankly, when all is said and done, you're left wondering why, in the name of all that's rational, does Kate want to have anything to do with either of these men! Luc, although Kline does a great job with what little he has to go on, is a spectacularly unsympathetic character. It is only toward the end of the movie that you get a glimpse of him as someone you might be able to relate to.

As for Meg Ryan, she's a capable actress but it's time she broke out in roles which differ from every character she's played. So far, from where I sit, each character is a clone of the last one.

One more thing: Kevin Kline's French accent didn't work. Why couldn't they get Gerard Depardieu for this instead?

his "good friend." Paul told Lauren it was true that he suffers from impotency because of the hit-and-run accident. Wait To See: Phyllis makes a move that could prove dangerous to Chris.

Things will never be the same back in Transylvania when word gets out that their national hero, Count Dracula, has been assumed as an alternate identity by none other than the big shot of those "Naked Gun" movies, Leslie Nielsen.

Nielsen may well be better suited than most to play the batty Count. After all, he grew up in a remote outpost in Canada's Northwest Territories where his father, a real-life Canadian Mountie, served. Leslie was lulled to sleep at night by the sounds of baying wolves—not too unlike the cries of Lugosi's beloved "children of the night" except for that occasional extra "yowp" common to wolves who suddenly sit down on an ice patch.

In any event, the new film, which is the creation of Mel Brooks, is called "Dracula, Dead and Liking It."

Director Linda Yellen ("Chantilly Lace") is planning to bring the best-selling erotic-fantasy books by Nancy Friday to the screen. Friday's works include "My Mother, Myself," "My Secret Garden," and "Women on Top."

DIAL TONES: If you missed the debut date of TNT's brilliant production, "Tecumseh," based on the life of the remarkable Native American chief, you can still catch it during the following encore showings: June 6, 10, 11, 15, and 18.

If you would love to watch the Disney Channel's world premiere of "A Special Evening with Elton John" on June 11, but you feel kind of ratty because you don't subscribe to Mickey Mouse's favorite channel, cheer up. The event is part of the Channel's Free Summer Preview. Some of the songs that will be performed are "Your Song," "The Last Song," "Daniel," "Indian Sunset," "Crocodile Rock," and the Oscar-winning "Can You Feel the Love Tonight?"

Some of our favorite television actors will be turning up in a new feature film from Orion called "Jeffrey." Among them are Patrick Stewart ("Star Trek: The Next Generation"), Stephen Weber ("Wings"), Robert Klein ("Sisters"), and Michael J. Weiss (ex "Days of Our Lives"). Other major stars in this film about gay love in the midst of the AIDS crisis are Sigourney Weaver, Christine Baranski, Olympia Dukakis, and Nathan Lane.

HELP FOR PALMER: "All My Children's" Daisy Cortlandt, Palmer Cortlandt's (James Mitchell) greatest love, is about to return to Pine Valley to help her former husband who is having domestic difficulties. Daisy, fans will recall, played Cupid for Palmer and his current wife, Opal (Jill Larson), when Palmer's pedal extremities became so cold they cracked the leather of his expensive Italian shoes.

Will Daisy be able to work her special magic for him again? We'll see.

Meanwhile, "AMC's" Walt Willey (Jackson Montgomery) and his wife, actress Marie Bartels-Willey, have a brand new son, Chance Connor Willey, who was born in New Mexico on May 8. The tyke weighed in at a hefty 9 pounds, 3 ounces; length, one inch short of two feet!

Matthew Ashford fans who lamented his departure from "Days of Our Lives" (where he played Jack) should be pleased to learn he's back on soaps. Matthew has assumed the role of Tom Hardy, newly returned to Port Charles. But will Tom be welcomed like the prodigal son, or will some people try to persuade him to leave town again, and soon?

Barbara Crampton left her role as Mindy Lewis on "Guiding Light" to be with her fiancé, actor/writer/director Kristoffer Tabori in California. But before she had time to put on a swim suit and head for Malibu for some R&R, she learned she'd been chosen to play the role of Maggie Forrester (Jessica's mother) on "The Bold and the Beautiful." Her first airdate is June 14.

T.W. King, who plays the nasty Danny on "Loving," has had his status changed from recurring to contract.

Congratulations to James Kiberd (Trevor, "AMC"), who was named National Ambassador to the United States Committee for UNICEF.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Selecting A New Front Door For Your Home

(NAPS)—One way owners can improve both the value and appearance of their home is by installing a new entry door. An attractive, well-crafted entry door can be a true showpiece, immediately attracting the attention of guests as they arrive. Simpson Door Company, a leading manufacturer of raised panel wood doors, offers the following suggestions for choosing the right door. 1. Examine your entryway. The location of your front entry can be a critical factor in door selection. If there is no overhang, the door will be exposed to the harshest of elements. Depending on how your house is situated, the door might receive full sunlight or complete shade. Care and maintenance are important considerations. Inside the entry, you'll want to consider how much light you need. That will help you decide whether you want a design that features a glass insert, or an all-panel door. 2. Determine your architectural style. Is your house contemporary? Victorian? Colonial? The front door can do much to enhance or create the character of your home. Remember, a door is a focal point, so be sure to select a design that is in keeping with the rest of the architecture. 3. Develop a long-term plan. Believe it or not, buying a new front door is not an isolated event. Eventually, you may want to replace the interior doors of your house so that they will complement your new entry. If that's a possibility, you should choose an entry door that is part of a larger line. Many manufacturers offer "collections" that include everything from bifolds to French doors in the same design. Perhaps you might also like to consider adding sidelights or a transom someday. Whatever the case, it is important to realize what your ultimate goals are, and how the door will fit into the overall picture. 4. Remember energy efficiency. Most people are looking for ways to reduce their heating bills through energy efficient building products. It may surprise you to know that many quality wood panel doors offer excellent efficiency. When energy is a concern, be sure to ask about how the door fared in laboratory testing. There are also other elements that can be indicators of efficiency. Look at the glass in the door. If it is not insulated or coated, chances are it will not be your best bet for controlling heat loss. Once you select your door, be sure to have it stained or painted by a qualified contractor or millwork craftsman. Proper care right from the start will help you maintain the value of your investment for years to come.
