Bond money gone, county stuck with bill

Racetrack's woes continue to add up

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Over $85,000 will have to come out of Floyd County's general fund to pay for improvements at Thunder Ridge racetrack because a $2.7 million bond issue for the project has been depleted.

At Friday's court meeting, Judge-Executive Bob Meyer told

'Bundle' is lost by panel's inactivity

by Janice Shepherd Managing Editor

Floyd County lost a "pretty good bundle" of federal funding last year because its Local Emergency Planning Committee (LEPC) failed to meet at least twice during the year.

"Other counties have been getting Floyd County's money because Floyd County's LEPC did not meet twice a year," David Chaffin, Area 9 coordinator for Disaster and Emergency Services, told members of the LEPC at a meeting Thursday evening.

Recently elected LEPC vice chairman Lon May explained that the planning committee is in the process of restructuring. May had hoped to begin implementing changes, including the election of a new chairperson to replace chairman Bob McAninch, at Thursday's meeting.

The election was delayed because a potential candidate for the chair, Fred Rife, was unable to attend the meeting. No official action could be taken on passing bylaws or conducting business because only five members of an

Station's best friend ends 12-year 'career'

by Alisa Goodwill Staff Writer

After 12 years of dedicated service, one of Prestonsburg Fire Department's finest passed away Monday afternoon.

Susie, the department's Dalmatian, at the age of 12 died of a heart attack Monday, according to her veterinarian, Dr. Mark Greene.

"We noticed she was breathing funny and she would lose her balance when she tried to get up," said Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn.

Blackburn said at first they were afraid Susie had gotten into some poison, but Greene said she wasn't vomiting, which is a sign of poison intake.

Susie

Susie also hadn't been eating very well for the past two or three weeks.

Susie became a member of the department 12 years ago when she was bought for $50 from a lady in Magoffin County.

She was spoiled from that day on. She got the best of everything.

Blackburn said the city didn't pay for any of her upkeep. The department had a special fund that paid for all of Susie's needs.

Susie was the department's watchdog and, of course, their mascot. Blackburn said there was nothing like her, and everyone agreed she was a super watchdog.

In fact, Monday evening was the first night since Susie joined the Scaled-back courthouse to house only judicial offices

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

An obvious rift between Floyd County-Executive Bob Meyer and County Attorney Jim Hammond grew wider at Friday's fiscal court meeting during discussions relating to building a new courthouse facility.

In the past, Hammond has urged the court to approve building a new $17 million facility which would house the county's circuit and district courtrooms, plus county offices.

Previously, the court has been somewhat hesitant to approve building the multi-million dollar facility because of financial concerns, but at one time the court gave the nod to the project.

In April, Meyer told the court that the county could not afford to build a $17 million facility and magistrates voted to put the project on hold.

At Friday's court meeting, Meyer recommended that the court hold first reading of an ordinance authorizing the construction of an $8.7 million two-story facility to be located on the site of Prestonsburg's municipal parking lot. The judge-executive explained that "virtually all the costs" associated with the project would be paid by the state's Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC). No county offices would be located in the new facility.

Harry Hoffman, with AOC, explained to the court Friday that the project has been down-sized and that the building would consist of two floors to be used for court facilities. Also, the square footage of building has been reduced by 9,000 square feet.

"We're making (the building) smaller to fit the money available to reduce any expenditure to the county," Hoffman said.

Meyer told magistrates that he was concerned that the funds allocated by the legislature for the courthouse project could be lost if the county chose not to proceed with the project.

Hammond disagreed, saying he ussions with P & B about the delinquent taxes, but those talks failed to resolve the dispute.

According to the suit, P & B has allegedly failed to pay taxes of 1.5 percent on the business's net profits from 1990 through 1994 and 1.5 percent on all employees' gross wages from 1990 through 1995.

The 1.5 percent net profit tax and gross wages tax is required by a city ordinance. The ordinance also calls for a penalty of ten percent for nonpayment and an interest of six percent from the time the taxes were due until the taxes are paid.

The suit also claims that P & B

Service cuts to begin July 1

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

A cut in services in the criminal division of the Floyd County Attorney's Office is being blamed on county budget cuts, but a portion of that funding for personnel in that division comes from state revenues.

In a letter dated Tuesday from County Attorney Jim Hammond to District Judge James Allen, Hammond said that his office will no longer prepare or recommend criminal warrants and summons for the judge's consideration.

Hammond's letter says that budget cuts by Floyd Judge-Executive Bob Meyer has forced him to consolidate job duties and reorganize personnel in his office.

Meyer said Tuesday that he does not understand the move because the county attorney's office receives separate state funding for that division.

Meyer added that he has not seen a breakdown of the state funding formula for those positions and it is unknown if staff positions in the county attorney's office are fully funded by the state.

In the county's proposed 1995-96 budget, six positions were eliminated from the county attorney's office and the amount contributed by the court for an assistant county attorney was reduced to $6,000 per year.

According to the publication by the state's Legislative Research Commission, Kentucky Revised Statute 15.770 (2) and 15.770 (5) provides for "the number of assistant county attorneys, stenographic, secretarial, clerical and other personnel positions is determined with the advice and

Schools will share rebates in settlement of milk suit

Floyd County will get some extra milk money this school year. The county's school system will share in an $11.2 million civil recovery stemming from an alleged bid-rigging conspiracy that "milked" 65 Kentucky school districts.

In 1990, the state filed a lawsuit against 15 milk suppliers, who allegedly conspired to circumvent the competitive bidding process and, in effect, overcharged the school districts by millions of dollars.

In a settlement agreement announced Thursday by Attorney General Chris Gorman, Floyd County will receive an initial lump sum of $110,029 and an annual distribution of $24,581 for three years.

Gorman said the settlement is believed to be the largest civil recovery of its type ever obtained in Kentucky.

The highest initial amount, nearly $320,000, will go to Harlan County, while Pike County will receive $313,000.

The agreement concerns the section of the case which was assigned to federal court in London and involves Pet/Land-O-Sun, Flav-O-Rich and Southern Belle dairies. The agreement also contains assurances that the disputed practices will not take place in the future.

Wheelwright residents angered by city policy to cite ATV riders

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Some people say that all-terrain-vehicles are not safe, but Wheelwright City Commissioners found out Monday that the danger with the vehicles could lay with citing residents for riding them on the highway.

One person was removed by a city police officer from Monday's city commission meeting for shouting at the commission concerning a crackdown on riding ATV's on city streets.

Mike Tackett was escorted from city hall by officer David Little when he refused to quit shouting at the commission. The meeting hall was filled Monday with residents who were there to protest the citing of ATV operators and the impoundment of those vehicles by city police officers.

Mayor David Marlee Sammons tried to explain to the angry residents that there is a state law that prohibits persons from operating certain types of motorized vehicles on city or state highways. Sammons said city officials were concerned that some juveniles may be injured or killed while riding the vehicles on city streets.

Many of the residents on hand were not disputing the law, but claimed that some residents were getting preferential treatment from the officers. Some residents accused the commissioners of holding a secret meeting with police chief Tommy Engle to give the order to crackdown on those riding ATVs.

Sammons denied that commissioners held a secret meeting and said that he and commissioner David Boyd were talking with Engle when an "ATV went flying down the road."

Boyd confirmed Sammons' account of the event and said they were at Commissioner Andy Akers' house when the incident happened.

"Tommy asked us what he should do and we told him to 'enforce the law.'"

Jimmy Little told commissioners that Engle said he had been directed by commissioners to cite the ATV drivers and impound the vehicles.

Engle was not present at Monday's meeting and Mayor Sammons called a halt to that part of the discussion until Engle could be present.

Little complained that commissioners had said in the past that they would allow residents to ride their ATV's in the city without being cited.

One issue residents complained about was the lack of an access not on a state roadway to an area where ATV owners can ride their vehicles. Some said that they travel maybe 200 yards on a state road in order to get to a field to ride the vehicles.

Sammons said that the commission could not tell residents to ride on the highway, but he would talk with Engle about the situation.

In other business Monday:

- commissioners held first reading of the 1995-96 budget;
- commissioners agreed to give $200 for the city's Senior Citizens Day to be held July 14;
- an agenda item regarding the resignation of commissioner David Hall and the appointment of a new commissioner was deleted and there was no discussion on that issue; and
- commissioners agreed to contact Big Sandy Area Development director Roger Recktenwald about the status of a grant to repair the city swimming pool.

A special meeting will be called before the end of June to have second reading on the city's 1995-96 budget ordinance. The date for that meeting has not been set.

Wayland to hold public hearing to discuss city sewage project

Wayland City Council will hold a public hearing about the proposed sewer system project on Thursday, June 22, at 6 p.m. at the Wayland Senior Citizen Center.

Council has been working on getting a sewage treatment plant for Wayland with Big Sandy Area Development District for the past several months. In conjunction with the project, council annexed Shop Fork and Stamper Branch.

Council will meet in regular session following the public hearing.

Clarification

An article about Prestonsburg City Council in the June 14 issue had a mistake about the garbage ordinance. It should have read that Senior Citizens (62 years-old or older) and the handicapped will receive a 20 percent discount on the new garbage rate. With the garbage rate increase, those who qualify for a discount will pay eight dollars instead of $10.00 per month. This does not include the two dollar fee for roll carts.

consent of the Prosecutors Advisory Council on the basis of "real need."

All staff positions are paid for by the state treasury to the extent that they assist in state prosecutorial duties, according to the LRC publication entitled, "Duties of Elected County Officials."

Hammond's letter said his office will perform his statutory duties, which include attending district court proceedings and the prosecution of criminal cases.

"KRS 15.725 (2) sets out the duties of the county attorney and limits his duties to attending district court in his county and prosecuting all violations of criminal and penal laws within the jurisdiction of the district," Hammond's letter said. "Therefore, commencing on July 1, 1995, the Floyd County Attorney and/or his assistant will attend the criminal division of the Floyd District Court and participate in arraignments with recommendations for disposition at that time of the charges that are placed against the defendants and/or bond recommendations."

The letter also noted that law enforcement officers should seek criminal warrants or summons directly from the district judge and/or the trial commissioner "without any assistance from the Floyd County Attorney's office based upon their statutory duty to investigate criminal complaints. . ."

District Judge James Allen could not be reached Tuesday afternoon to comment on Hammond's letter.

Hammond's actions came the day before a federal grand jury is to be seated in Ashland to hear evidence concerning Hammond's personal financial dealings.

does not have a business license for 1995 and is operating unlawfully within the city of Prestonsburg.

The city is asking for the taxes due, a 10 percent penalty, six percent till judgment and 12 percent thereafter and an injunction preventing the illegal activity.

"Ninety-eight percent of businesses and residents pay taxes," Burchett said. "It is not fair to them to let those who don't pay, not pay."

Burchett said P & B is not the only business that has not paid taxes.

"We've been in the process for some time to collect delinquent taxes," Burchett said. "There are three or four other businesses that if something does not happen we plan to file suit."

Burchett said the city of Prestonsburg did not start with P & B, there were at least two other businesses that paid delinquent taxes with out the city having to file suit.

Burchett also said the suit against P & B has nothing to do with the dispute over ambulance services.

Burchett said it is coincidence that the suit was filed after the hearing. He said the city had been working on this before the hearing even came up.

On April 22, the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, in conjunction with the Floyd County Health Department, sponsored the first in a series of woman's health screening events. ## A time and place for everything

by Scott Perry

We hope Kentucky's General Assembly meets sometime soon to reform the state's archaic tax system.

But not too soon.

Legislators should at least wait until a special task force, appointed by the governor, has time to finish studying the current tax structure and develops recommendations for overhauling the system, totally and completely.

Governor Brereton Jones may have other designs, though.

He has suggested that a special session of the general assembly, proposed for sometime this summer, may include on its agenda a plan to cut taxes.

That suggestion has prompted the governor's appointed co-chairman of the tax reform task force to threaten to resign.

Who could blame him?

After all, the task force has been working for months to develop a comprehensive tax reform plan, and their recommendations won't even be presented until November 15 which, coincidentally, is a week after the gubernatorial election.

Addressing taxes in a special session prior to the election might give the impression that the governor and lawmakers are interested in the issue only for political gain and not necessarily because tax reform is necessary.

Of course Kentucky lawmakers aren't total strangers to putting their political carts before their constituents' horse.

A goodly portion of their massive and historic tax hike in 1990 was spent to ensure votes, while the education reform it was supposed to finance didn't get all the money it required.

If legislators do address tax cuts before the task force finishes its report, they'll be sending us another clear signal that they consider their first job to be keeping their jobs.

And, despite the obvious attraction of lower taxes, we should respond by sending them to look for new ones.

Fiscal court should tell how money spent

Editor:
Concerning the taxpayers of Floyd County!

I have been attending the fiscal court meetings the last few months. I would like to know why our county officials go to another county to buy bridge material, when it could be bought from someone living in Floyd County and employing Floyd County men who spend their money in the county and pay taxes.

I could understand if they were saving the taxpayers money, but they're not, as far as I can see. One of the local mill owners bid $400 per thousand on the bridge lumber; a company from West Liberty bid $395 per thousand. It will cost the taxpayers $100 or more a load if they hauled 1,000 feet or more.

Instead of our elected officials who talk so much about economic development, let them put (our) the taxpayer's money where their mouth is.

If the taxpayers of Floyd County are going to pay the county's debts, they should know how their money is being spent.

I am asking the fiscal court to publish a full disclosure of all debts in the Floyd County Times so the people can see how their money is being spent.

Opposes legislation

Editor:

I am writing regarding Senate Bill 343 which passed the House of Representatives in early spring and is now being considered by the US Senate. This bill would directly affect safety in the workplace and the environment by making it nearly impossible to pass needed regulations.

My life and the lives of fellow employees are being protected by federal regulations under the Occupational Health and Safety Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency. These protections, won by years and years of labor and effort, could be stripped away by this proposed legislation.

I encourage everyone to contact our Senators McConnell (202/224-2541) and Ford (202/224-4343) asking them to oppose S. Bill 343 and other bills aimed at destroying workplace protections and protection of the environment. Letters should be sent care of US Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Thank you!

Editor:

Thank you, thank you, thank you to the Academic and Business Communities of Prestonsburg and the surrounding areas who generously supported Project Prom at Prestonsburg High School on May 19-20. This response builds a far-reaching value in our students and community that no amount of money or prestige could ever match.

I hope this type of action will continue for generations to come.

Shriners say thanks

Editor:

International Shrine Hospital Day 1995 at the Lexington Unit, Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children was a huge success thanks to people like yourself and the company you represent. The contribution you made in preparing, scheduling and (or) printing our Hospital Day ads played a significant part in publicizing our event.

Even though the weather didn't cooperate, the crowd was one of our largest ever. It was a wonderful opportunity for each guest to see firsthand how our hospital works, meet some of our patients and see the program our patients put together for our visitors to see.

Please accept this note as a sincere statement of our deep appreciation for your efforts in making our Hospital Day a success.

Has Armageddon arrived for Floyd politicians?

Editor:

Aaah...but it is an interesting time in Floyd County.

A federal grand jury is investigating our elected officials. Our state attorney general has called a special grand jury to investigate the same people. FBI agents are everywhere. The KSP Special Investigations Units are everywhere else. The state auditors office has been checking the books and records on everything but the meter maid. Almost fifty subpoenas have been served for the first phase of the grand juries. The word on the street is that hundreds more will be served during the course of the two juries.

For the first time in living memory an investigation of the Floyd County Courthouse seems to be real, to be serious, and to have some meaning. But best of all, good meaty rumors and more rumors rise from the place like vapors from a swamp.

As mountain people, we love gossip and rumors. And rumors are everywhere of imminent arrests, of secret testimony from people seeking immunity in exchange for information. Rumors of wives finking on husbands, secretaries on bosses, bosses on associates, until the list of immunity-seekers reads like a who's who in Floyd County.

The street gossip has largely settled, who will walk the primrose path first. The questions now is who will be next?

There is a bit of drama, a bit of soap opera, in all this. Does one play the stoic hero role, the good sailor and go down with the ship, or does one trade a bit of information for a place on the life raft—before things get carved in stone?

This dilemma is also faced by those summoned before the grand jury. If you are guilty, do you lie and chance that someone has already finked on you. Then you risk the original charge, plus perhaps an additional ten or so years for perjury and conspiracy.

It is said that federal judge Joseph Hood gets wilder than Marrying Sam at a $4 wedding when he has a convicted politician before him for sentencing. And this for the ordinary things politicians do—such as stealing. Add perjury, conspiracy, or ob-

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

The Democratic Party, whose candidates have spent about a zillion dollars in the past few races for governor, is suggesting that the candidates this year limit fund raising from party sources.

Despite campaign finance laws that limit each candidate to $1.8 million in spending in the gubernatorial contest, political parties can spend whatever they like as long as the candidate is not personally involved in the process.

So, the Democrats want party money kept out of the November contest, earning a not-so-subtle "take a hike" from the GOP, which thinks it can take advantage of national political winds to sail into the governor's mansion this year.

Odds are, then, that we'll be swamped this fall with television advertising extolling the virtues of this party or that, with less concentration on the candidates themselves.

Once the "partying" is done, though, we'll have to live with the person for at least four years. And, as we have seen from the past, fund raising abilities don't necessarily translate into statesmanship.

In Kentucky politics, money talks.

Quite often out of both sides of its mouth.

While the courts are debating the state Department of Education's right to take over school systems without first taking legal steps to oust local authorities, we have another question worthy of discussion...

Who needs 'em.

From what we've seen so far, state intervention isn't all it's cracked up to be and, it may be more trouble than the trouble it aims to fix.

These folks in Frankfort aren't the cavalry, after all, they're bureaucrats, many of whom, no doubt, are just as confused as the rest of us by education reform.

While state management teams may be sincere in their efforts to beat down the enemies and obstacles to reform, we should remember that Custer was a devoted soldier, too.

Had old George done his homework (and a little reconnaissance), he might have been better prepared to accomplish his task.

If you want another example of good intentions gone bad, look at the state's efforts to bring parity to the property tax structure in Eastern Kentucky.

The state Revenue Cabinet, following directions laid out in state law, ordered all of our counties to reassess property in a set amount of time. Then they provided too little assistance and devoted too few resources to the effort, leaving us in a mess and some counties in financial straits because they can't bill for or collect taxes.

The old system may have, indeed, been unfair, but at least counties had some money to operate on.

To paraphrase Cicero, they do more harm by their poor example than we do by our actual sin.

Whether or not four Wayne County social workers are convicted of complicity to murder for allegedly failing to adequately protect a youth killed by abusive parents, the case opens a debate on some interesting parallels.

If a rock falls on a car along Route 23, where rocks have been falling on cars for 30 years, will the state Transportation Cabinet be charged with assault (or worse) for their negligence in maintaining roadway safety?

When a driver with a long rap sheet of drunken driving convictions maims or kills someone else, will the authorities who allowed him back behind the wheel of a car be charged as an accessory?

Will parole board members who release a murderer to kill again be held as accomplices?

The Wayne County trial, by virtue of the fact that it is being held at all, makes these concerns relevant.

This trial is a referendum of sorts on responsibility and it is a no-win situation for the state.

If the social workers are acquitted, the courts and jury will have found that their agency is not the sanctuary it was meant to be.

If they are convicted, the lid comes off Pandora's Box.

struction of justice and the time can equal that of the first mortgage.

Can all of this be true? Even half of it? Has the day of Armageddon finally arrived for our good old boys. Kentucky people have learned through bitter experience to look at grand juries with a jaundiced eye, even state ones, as all too often the tail wags the dog. But for the people, the consensus from the creeks and hollows says yes, they went to the well once too often.

The well was the 911 fund, and the lies, the empty promises that sustained that bit of fraud for five years. Perhaps nothing in Floyd County's 203-year history caused more rage than the fiscal court's statement, "Not to worry folks, we replaced your missing 911 money with your tax money, so you haven't really lost anything."

Virtually to a man and woman, Floyd County people have turned against them. There is hatred and contempt, a bitter quality to their voice, like a Frenchman speaking of "de bosch" or Germans in 1945.

Yet it is also becoming more difficult to remain serious, to keep a straight face, as the courthouse drama take on an O.J. Simpson atmosphere—albeit with less gruesome jokes. One wag suggests changing our name to Canaryville, as there are more canaries here than in the Canary Islands. Another gave his opinion that they were building the opera house too late, because everybody in Prestonsburg was already singing. But, the most knowing remark came from a gnarled old creeker who said that, if convicted, the courthouse gang would get out on shock probation because there wasn't anything to steal in the big house.

This is the most hopeful sign of all that our people may have turned a corner, drawn a line in the dust and said, "enough!" You cannot rule people through fear if they refuse to be afraid of you. It is worse when they ridicule you and crack irreverent jokes about you.

This is the Armageddon our officials face—a terribly aroused and bitter group of citizens.

Will they ever march on the courthouse like they did in the old Frankenstein movies? Perhaps when they empty the 911 fund, again!

A dollar here... A dollar there... But is it legal?

Editor:

Recently, the lawyers of Kentucky and the Kentucky Bar Association have been recipients of much negative press and public criticism over the opposition to House Bill 36, passed by the 1994 General Assembly. This legislation includes a provision that each physician and attorney licensed to practice in Kentucky must pay a one dollar "fee" upon renewal of their license.

Proceeds from this assessment were to pay medical professional liability insurance premiums for physicians while they are providing medical care at a few localized charitable health care facilities.

While the Kentucky Bar Association (KBA) and its Board of Governors maintain that support of such a charitable cause is worthy of funding, there was a legitimate legal question as to whether any part of House Bill 36 violated any provisions of the Kentucky Constitution. House Bill 36 was initiated by several lobbyist groups.

The Kentucky Bar Association is an agency of the Supreme Court governing all attorneys licensed to practice in the Commonwealth, and as such, engages in no lobbyist activities. Furthermore, we were not consulted prior to the passage of this bill.

Among the concerns of the KBA Board of Governors were whether or not it was Constitutional to single out physicians and attorneys to solely bear the financial burden of such charitable endeavors, and if so, can the General Assembly dictate to whom we make our charitable contributions?

The Office of the Attorney General has replied with a resounding NO, there is no "rational basis for the singling out of physicians and attorneys to pay for medical malpractice insurance for charitable health care facilities..."

I'd like to reiterate that the issue was not about a dollar. We applaud what Reverend Gerald Baker is attempting to do in Hopkinsville. However, we also feel that it should be up to the individual citizen, whether it be a doctor, a lawyer, a salesperson, or any person to choose the charity to which they contribute.

If the Legislature finds such a charity worthy of mandatory public support, then why is this not being supported through the General Fund? At last count, the General Fund has more than $100 million in surplus, and the cost of this malpractice coverage is approximately $5,000 per year.

I would further point out that the biennial budget of the Commonwealth is in excess of $10 billion, so $10,000 out of that two year budget is minuscule, or less than .0001% of the entire budget. The Legislature did not believe it was important enough to fund medical malpractice insurance for physicians working at a free clinic in Hopkinsville out of the General Fund and tax all Kentuckians. They laid this burden on a small segment of the taxpayers of Kentucky, that being the doctors and lawyers—and no one else.

Our Kentucky Bar Foundation alone has contributed more than 1.8 million dollars in the last seven years for legal projects that assist all Kentuckians.

Additionally, the citizens of the Commonwealth and the press need to be reminded of the many acts of charity which the lawyers of Kentucky do on a daily basis. Not only do we give of ourselves as little league coaches, members of civic clubs and organizations and community action boards, every charitable or nonprofit board of which I'm aware has an attorney serving as a member, frequently in a leadership position. We also give of our legal training.

On June 8, 1995, more than 600 lawyers in Kentucky received awards for donating a minimum of 50 hours of legal representation to the poor. That is over 30,000 hours of donated legal services to Kentuckians in one year. Thousands more lawyers donate their time to assist the poor but have not asked for recognition.

The issue here is not a dollar. The issue is special legislation which is prohibited by the Kentucky Constitution, and whether the General Assembly has the right to mandate what charities a lawyer or any citizen must support.

The bar would be remiss if they did not challenge an improper act of the legislature. Every citizen has that right whether they are a lawyer, an engineer, or a newspaper editor. Any newspaper (editor) suggesting otherwise is a hypocrite.

four equal monthly payments to retire the debt, the judge-executive said.

The court agreed to pay the debt, but they are concerned about the financial condition of Mountain Racing, which is operating the track under bankruptcy protection.

In related issues Friday, Thunder Ridge owners are asking the fiscal court to deter roadside spectators at car racing events in order to up the revenue at the facility.

In a letter to Judge-Executive Bob Meyer from Steve Baker, president of Thunder Ridge, Baker asks the court to request that state officials erect "No standing or Parking" signs on the shoulder of the road at the complex.

"...I convey to you and the Floyd County Fiscal Court members that your assistance is required in order that we may improve the financial condition at Thunder Ridge," Baker's letter said. "As you are now aware, the track's location on Kentucky Route 3 allows unlimited 'free' viewing from the public roadway. During our Saturday evening stock car race meets, you can usually find 100 or more cars parked on the roadside and 300-500 pedestrians watching the race meet without paying."

"You and the court should be 1.) concerned that these persons are not paying to attend the events, thereby resulting in lower attendance which only enhances the possible lack of revenue in the future to continue to make the county's lease payments; and 2.) the safety of these people is very serious and the situation being posed is 'an accident waiting to happen,'" Baker's letter said.

Magistrate Owens said that the people on the roadside were racing fans that could not afford to pay the $15 per person admission to the races.

"I took my two boys to the races and it was $15 a head to get in," Owens said. "That's $45 and that's a lot of money. If you can't afford to get in and you love racing, you get as close as you can. If the people are off the road and not in danger, I don't see how the track people can come out and say get off."

Meyer said that it was in the county's best interest to support any attempt to increase revenue at the track.

"Whether we like it or not, the court is liable for a $2.7 million department that the firefighters needed to lock doors at night.

As a watchdog no one, except the firefighters, was safe from Susie.

Susie has pinned people inside bathrooms, against walls and in rooms if they happened to come through the wrong door or made the mistake of moving off the couch.

Susie never discriminated who she would pin up either, she has pinned a city manager, representatives from the Job Corps, the media and the police department.

Susie also never bit, she would only pin her victims. She was a great fire dog because she hated fires.

The department can only remember one time when she helped the police with an arrest. The assailant made the mistake of running past her turf. Susie pinned the man in the bushes.

In the beginning she was taken on runs, but Blackburn said, they bond issue and we are a guarantor on an additional bank loan," Meyer said. "A loss of revenue at Thunder Ridge is a concern and it is significant to us, the county as the owner, their financial situation."

Meyer said that he would contact state officials regarding the posting of the signs.

Floyd Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson told the court that he would enforce the law if the signs are erected, but added that it was something he did not want to do.

"If the signs are up, I have no choice," Thompson said.

Annual Dewey Lake trash bash a success

by Johnny B. Martin Park Ranger

On April 29, 1995 the 6th annual Dewey Lake Trash Bash was held. Coordinated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Dewey Lake, the event was sponsored by Dairy Queen, Days Bakery, Flowers Bakery, Food City, Food Land, Lee's, McDonalds, Pic-Pac, and Wal-Mart of Prestonsburg. Other sponsors include Eastern Kentucky Beverage, Food Lyon, and Wal-Mart of Paintsville, Cash Saver of Martin, Equitable Resources Exploration, and KY-WV Gas Company.

Approximately 38 volunteers participated this year. Participants registered as Corps volunteers during the morning and were assigned areas to clean up. Two groups, one from Alice

Lloyd College and the other from the Otter Creek Correctional Facility, cleaned up the Johns Creek area near German Bridge. This was the first time we were able to clean this area during a Trash Bash. Soon the Corps dump truck was filled to capacity with trash from this area alone. Other volunteers cleaned up the shoreline around the dam, the roadway, and pull-outs from the dam to U.S. 23 at Hager Gap. The Independent Order of Odd Fellows also cleaned up the area around their youth camp. At the end of the day over 200 bags of trash were picked up. This was as much as in years past with fewer volunteers.

A cookout was held in the afternoon at the Dewey Downstream Recreation Area for all the volunteers. This seemed to top off a wonderful day. For the first time in the history of this event there was no rain, so everyone enjoyed the fun, food, fellowship, and good weather. The event was a total success.

The Trash Bash helps to get rid of trash around Dewey Lake, but there is more to be picked up. That's why we ask everyone to do their part in helping to pick up trash all year. If anyone would be interested in any volunteer work with the Corps you can call the office at (606) 886-6709 or (606) 789-4521 or write to us at Dewey Lake, HC 70, Box 540, Van Lear, KY 41256. Plans are being made to make the 1996 Dewey Lake Trash Bash even better than ever!

Annual National Cancer Survivors Day held June 4

Nationwide, more than 600 registered events honored 8,000,000 cancer survivors in a celebration of life during the 8th Annual National Cancer Survivors Days, Sunday, June 4, at 3 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church, Prestonsburg.

Dr. William Cook, chairman of Big Sandy District Cancer Council, spoke to the group about advances in cancer therapy and the value of a positive outlook. He advised everyone to "carpe diem—seize the day" and enjoy the opportunities each day brings.

Several cancer survivors shared their stories and provided inspiration through poetry and music. Special music was provided by the Presbyterian Church choir.

The program, attended by more than 50 people, was organized by the local CAN SURVIVE breast cancer support group led by Denise Queen and Shirley Davis. Other sponsors were Big Sandy District Cancer Council, First Presbyterian Church, The American Cancer Society, The Kentucky Cancer Program, and US TOO.

Reid-Cieslak exchange vows

On January 14, 1995 Wendy Jeanna Cieslak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Len Cieslak, and Eric Allen Reid, son of Birchel Reid and Toni Boyd, exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony at the First Baptist Church of McDowell. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Harry Hargis, pastor of the church.

The bride wore a fitted mermaid style gown of ivory satin with poet illusion netted sleeves and embroidered lace with lace and pearl appliques. The four-foot train with bow was edged in embroidered lace and scattered pearl appliques. The veil was two-tiered, pencil-edged with a double folded pouf.

Courtney Cieslak, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and Kelly Lawson, cousin of the bride served as bridesmaid. Gary Mullins served as best man, and Mike Allen, Anthony Hall, and Brandon Bartlett as ushers. Lauren DeShea Ward, and Dewey Thomas Meade, cousins of the bride, served as flower girl and ring bearer. Music was provided by Joan Chaffins and Libby Hall. The registry was attended by Laura Beth Meade and Whitney Bartlett.

Mr. Reid is a student at Alice Lloyd College majoring in Biology/Pre Med and Mrs. Reid is attending Prestonsburg Community College majoring in Education. The couple resides in Langley, Kentucky.

Allen Central's JROTC Exhibition Drill Team under the command of Corporal Mary Johnson (in center), performed under the watchful eyes of Duff students.

JROTC at Duff Elementary

Friday, May 5, the Allen Central JROTC visited Duff Elementary. There Color Guard, Precision Drill Team, and Exhibition Drill Team performed in Duff's gym.

The Color Guard did an outstanding job under the command of Cadet Captain Willie Crase. They gave the same performance that won them first place at Pikeville.

The Precision Drill Team, under the command of Staff Sergeant Clyde Lee also gave the same first place performance they gave at the Pikeville competition.

Then the most dedicated crew of all took the floor, the Exhibition Drill Team. Under the command of Corporal Mary Johnson, the team showed an outstanding performance twirling rifles. Most of the credit for the Exhibition Drill Team's performance goes to Sergeant Hardy's son, Jerry Hardy. He taught the drill team how to twirl those rifles.

Then two of the most dedicated cadets took the floor to do an Exhibition Drill Duet. Cadet Captain Willie Crase and Cadet Major Kevin Allen put on an excellent duet performance.

After the performance, the exhibition team members passed around three rifles so all the students could hold the rifles and feel how much they weighed.

Scaled-back

had spoken with State Senator Kelsey Friend and State Representative Greg Stumbo and was assured those monies would not go to another project. Previously, Hammond had told the court that if they did not go forward with the new courthouse project, those monies would be lost to Fayette County.

"Someone has mistakenly convinced the judge those funds will be lost," Hammond said.

Hammond also appeared to be offended that he was not consulted about the revisions to the project.

"For some reason you have elected not to involve me in the progress," Hammond told Meyer and Hoffman. "Has any investigation been done on the renovation of the courthouse? If you take the parking facility out, you'll have to contract for parking in town."

Hoffman said that Prestonsburg officials have said additional land would be purchased by the city for parking. Hammond disagreed that the project would be at no cost to the county and said that the county will lose revenue because AOC would move its offices out of the county courthouse, eliminating the rental income.

"We'll lose revenue and have to maintain (the current courthouse)," Hammond said. "What are we going to use it for, Easter egg hunts?"

AOC and the county had the option to let the City of Prestonsburg float the $9 million bond issue for the project and Magistrate Jackie Owens suggested they do so.

"Let Prestonsburg build it and let Prestonsburg go in debt instead of us," Owens said.

Hammond added that the court could change its mind after November when a special election will be held to fill the judge-executive's and District Three magistrate's seats on the court.

"A new court could come in in November and reverse all this," Hammond said.

The county attorney added that there were plans to move the judge-executive's office to the tourism building, owned by the court, in Prestonsburg. Hammond said the chamber of commerce and Prestonsburg's tourism office, which are located in the tourism building, would be "put out" of those offices.

"I didn't realize there was a proposal on that," Meyer told Hammond.

The court approved first reading of the ordinance proceeding with the scaled-down plan and Magistrate Eralm Tackett asked that information on the renovation of the current courthouse be given to magistrates before the July court meeting.

Magistrate Owens voted against the project.

In other business Friday, the court held a second first reading of the 1995-96 county budget. Meyer noted several changes in the budget, which included adding $132,030 to cover a bond payment for Mountain Racing.

Meyer told the court that Mountain Racing had committed to paying half that amount, but the company would not guarantee paying the entire $132,000 bond payment.

Other changes included an increase in the salary for a full-time deputy judge-executive. Pauline Stumbo, the widow of John M. Stumbo, will resign her position as deputy judge at the end of June due to health reasons, Meyer told the court.

Meyer also pointed out that $9,000 had been added to the budget for the purchase of a vehicle to transport prisoners; $10,000 was added to buy a dump truck to be used in District Two; and a $70,000 decrease in state revenues in the jail fund. Meyer said that a special meeting will have to be called before the end of June to hold second reading of the budget ordinance.

Other business Friday included: The appointment of John Rosenberg, Carol Stumbo, Jerry Fultz, Estill Lee Carter, Doris Osborne, Bobby Joe Akers and John Richard Porter to the county's ethics commission.

The court awarded the bid for liability insurance to KACo, but not without some reservations. Insurance agent Tommy Lafferty, who was outbid by KACo, asked the court if it may be a conflict of interest to award the bid to KACo because the local agent for the company, Denzil Allen, is also a county employee. The county attorney told Lafferty that he could take the issue before the county's ethics commission. Magistrate Owens told the KACo representatives "if you don't get the lead out, I'll stand up and fight against you and dig out everything I can on you." Meyer said he had been frustrated with the way KACo had handled some claims.

The court authorized hiring Gary Duran Newsome as director at Allen Park; Cassandra Conn as full-time cook and Zettie Stumbo as matron for the jail; and Jenny Morrison and Jamie M. Ward as lifeguards at the Allen pool.

Magistrates authorized Meyer and Hammond to negotiate a new contract with the City of Wheelwright for the purchase of reddog.

The court received a report from the E-911 board concerning the status of implementing the service and no action was taken on the issue.

Solid Waste director Mike Vance reported that the county's transfer station should be open by July 1 and a countywide clean up has been rescheduled for mid-July.

Magistrate Gerald DeRossett was absent from Friday's meeting.

18-member committee attended Thursday's meeting.

May and Chaffin outlined the goals of the LEPC and also discussed problems within the committee itself. Chaffin explained that he had encountered problems having a computer, records and checkbook returned to the LEPC from McAninch. Chaffin said the computer had finally been returned after he made several requests to McAninch and was ready to file a complaint with the Attorney General's office. Tuesday, May said he was still waiting for the return of the checkbook.

Other problems that need to be rectified involve aiding agencies with filling out proper paperwork regarding emergency planning and dealing with hazardous waste and making sure emergency responders are properly trained.

Chaffin said one company was fined $48,000 because it had not completed four pages of paperwork.

Chaffin and May encouraged local emergency responders to become part of the planning process and attend the monthly meetings planned this year.

Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said that the LEPC "had turned off every fire chief in the county."

"Bob McAninch was the wrong fellow to do business with. He was the reason we didn't come back."

Blackburn also said he thought the LEPC could help local fire departments "get out from under the rock" of OSHA regulations.

"I ran my department for too many years for someone else to tell me what to do," Blackburn said. "But in the last year, I've learned a lot. We're eaten up by OSHA regulations. They've regulated us until we can't breathe."

Chaffin said that LEPC guidelines could help local fire departments write their standard operating procedures if the departments did not have any in place or could help them adjust the procedures to meet state guidelines.

In addition to Chaffin, May and Blackburn, members attending the meeting were Russell Wallace, health environmentalist with the Floyd County Health Department; Randy Gearheart, Deputy DES director; Doug Wells, Prestonsburg fire and police dispatcher; and Doug Rice, Left Beaver Rescue Squad.

Teaberry store banned from WIC program

A Teaberry store has been disqualified by the state Department for Health Services from participating in the Supplemental Food Program for women, infants and children (WIC).

Hamilton and Sons at Teaberry was disqualified from the program after the store charged for foods not received by an undercover investigator at the time of purchase.

Retailers who violate state WIC regulations lose the right to accept WIC checks for periods ranging from three months to three years, Fran Hawkins, vendor management supervisor for the state program, said. The Teaberry store has been disqualified for at least one year.

WIC is a federally funded program that provides nutrition counseling and specific foods high in protein, iron and vitamin C to low-income pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children through age 4. With vouchers from local health departments, women can obtain food from authorized stores.

The state action against the Teaberry store became effective May 27. To regain authorization, the store must reapply and be accepted.

Floyd residents accepted into teaching program

Two Floyd County residents have been accepted into the teacher education program at Eastern Kentucky University.

Among the latest additions to the program are Donna S. Ward and Cathy Stapleton.

Students are accepted into the program their junior year only after meeting stringent ECU College of Education standards. They must display above-average academic ability, demonstrate proficient computer and communication skills (including a satisfactory performance on the University writing exam), perform satisfactorily in an individual interview and receive positive recommendations from four ECU faculty members.

When students graduate from ECU's program they will be prepared to lead a contemporary classroom; in the commonwealth, that means a classroom changed by educational reform.

All-State Concert to reair on KET

More than 600 Kentucky high school students from 125 different schools gathered earlier this year at the Kentucky Center for the Arts for the annual Kentucky All-State Concert. We Gather to Make Music, reairing on KET at 7 p.m. Saturday, June 24, features the state's finest young musicians in highlights from the event.

Through regional auditions, students were selected to perform in one of seven groups—three choruses, an orchestra, a concert band, a symphonic band, and a jazz ensemble. No student could be in more than one group.

The ensembles were led by university-level professionals from outside Kentucky. The concerts were part of the annual Kentucky Music Educators Association conference.

Blood work

Brenda Miller, left, office assistant in the Humanities Department at Prestonsburg Community College, has blood drawn by Leslie Stamatis of the University of Kentucky Wellness Program, during Wellness Day, held recently at PCC for employees of the college.

Wellness Day held at PCC Wellness Center

Prestonsburg Community College employees with concerns about their weight, blood pressure, cholesterol level or risk of developing some form of cancer had an opportunity to do something about those concerns recently at the PCC Wellness Center.

Staff members from the PCC Student Health Clinic and the Wellness Program at the University of Kentucky performed various tests and dispensed a variety of health information during Wellness Day, which was held at the Wellness Center.

Employees and their spouses began flocking to the Wellness Center at 9 a.m. and stood in line for most of the morning to be measured, weighed, have their blood pressure taken and have blood drawn for a battery of tests.

Also drawing a crowd during the morning was a table covered with literature about all forms of cancer set up by the Kentucky Cancer Program at the University of Kentucky. Pat Tyson, RN, with the Kentucky Cancer Program, said, "I think people are concerned (about cancer). You've had several staff people here who have had cancer. I think that makes people more aware of their risk for it."

In addition to dispensing various leaflets and brochures about different types of cancer, Tyson said she was asking visitors to her table to fill out a risk assessment form. Based upon their responses to this questionnaire, she said, visitors to the Cancer Program staff could be referred for further diagnosis, if necessary.

Ladan Mahmoodian, a PCC computer science instructor, said she was visiting the Cancer Program table

"just for my health."

Brenda Miller, an office assistant in the PCC Humanities Department, said she was participating in the Wellness Day program for "just an overall check-up." She said she participates in the campus Wellness Program and came to Wellness Day to get a feel for the "overall success or failure" of her wellness program.

When Christians lose their faith

Most of us have heard people say such phrases as: "I used to be a Christian, but it was too hard," or "I used to be a Christian, but then I backslid, so what's the use of turning back now; it's too late." My question is: "What was your response to these statements?" Was it one of saying "that's too bad, but it's your decision," or was it one of inviting that person to repentance and then back to church where they belong?

St. John tells us: "Little children, let us not love in word or speech but in deed and in truth (1 John 3:18)." The sincere, active faith and charity which St. John demanded of the first and second generation of Christians in Asia Minor is still demanded of all of us today. Nineteen centuries have elapsed since John wrote his letter, but the essence of the Christian faith has not changed in all those years. If anything, the need today for a living Christian faith, that is, a faith lived daily, and an active charity, is greater than it was in the first century. Opponents of the Christian faith are far more numerous now than they were then. What the enemies keep throwing in our faces is not rhetoric or apologetics or logical arguments, but the living example of sincere Christians. There is far too much counterfeit Christianity in the world today, with people giving only nominal adherence to Christ while denying in practice everything that Jesus has taught us. Perhaps, therefore, unbelievers have an excuse today for despising our precious faith.

But what they despise is the counterfeit, the false currency, which is sometimes passed off as actual Christianity. It is true that some of them will not accept the real faith if it were put before them in the lives of true Christians, but many will, and we have, therefore, a grave obligation to put it before them. Instead of denouncing atheistic communism, humanism, and all the other substitutes for the truth which men have invented, let us show them the truth by living it to the full. Let us convince them that the future life which God planned for us, and made available to us through his divine Son, Jesus, is a fact of which we are certain and for which we are ready to sacrifice every earthly power, pleasure and gain. If we are true Christians we must desire and hope that ALL our fellowmen will become obedient to God, for this is God's desire. That is why his divine Son became man. But, it is not enough to desire and hope for this blessing for all our neighbors, we must show our true desire "in deed and in truth."

We shall do this only if we ourselves live up to our Christian faith. There are many reasons for the loss of our faith in many of the once Christian nations of the world, but the basic cause is the lack of a living, active faith and charity in those who by their position, education and influence were the leaders of the people.

We owe a debt of reparation to all lapsed Christians. We have a grave obligation to bring those back who have been led astray by lax and false Christians, back on the true road to heaven. Let us begin today to put our own house in order. Let us see to it that our conscience is right with God and resolve to keep it so. Then we can hope to exercise a quiet but effective influence on our neighbors who have wandered off the highway. Christ told his followers to let their light (of faith and good works) shine before men. If we have not been doing so let us begin today. There are millions groping in the darkness of spiritual despair; we can light their way to God. It all begins with an invitation. In God's name, let us do so!

Racine Miller of Prestonsburg, has just had original poetry published in After the Storm, a treasury of today's poetry compiled by The National Library of Poetry. The poem is entitled "Love is Enough."

Teen theatre opens doors to educational opportunities

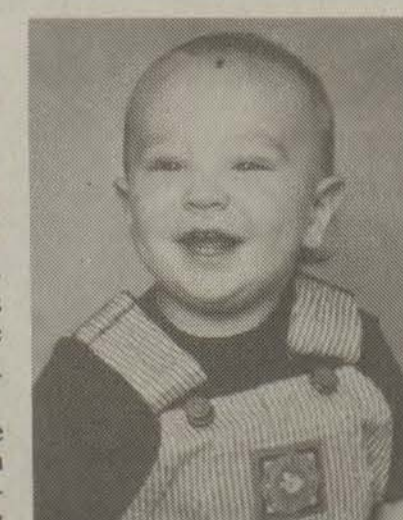

With educational opportunities for local youth already available through the Children and Teen Theatres, Jenny Wiley Theatre is now offering the chance to young area performers to expand their musical performance knowledge and ability through its Apprentice Musician program.

Last season marked the program's inaugural campaign and three young area musicians took part in this educational opportunity. This season, the Apprentice Musician program will serve five area performers who will be extended the opportunity to rehearse with the Jenny Wiley orchestra and perform during selected shows throughout the summer, under the direction of musical director and Prestonsburg native Scott Bradley.

Included in this year's Apprentice Musician line-up will be Kristina Hicks and Jeanie Branham, both playing clarinet, Heather Brown playing flute, Ashley Whitaker on trumpet and Jason Collins performing on guitar.

In addition to expanding to a five-member format, the Apprentice Musician program has also been enriched by the addition of two scholarships for the 1995 season. The Jenny Wiley Theatre Board of Trustees will sponsor two Apprentice Musician Scholarships, which will cover the program's participation fee for the two selected performers. This season's recipients will be chosen from the five performers currently enrolled in the program.

Parents too involved in LL; Stephens named honored

After one full week back from vacation I learned upon my return of the things that I missed in the county.

On vacation I spent some time with my brothers and sisters as we journeyed to the gate way to the west, the St. Louis area (actually Alton, Illinois).

It was a relaxing time for me (mentally), and I enjoyed seeing my nieces (my brother had five daughters). I haven't seen them in several years.

Upon returning to work last week, I received a telephone call informing me about the ruckus at Archer Park after a Little League baseball game. Then I read the Letter to the Editor (written by Ed Goble from Pikeville) and I also talked with the mother who was defending her son.

The problems that occurred that evening proved what I have been saying for so many years — parents are just too involved in the game of Little League baseball. If a solution is not discovered, an ordinary game of Little League baseball could become a tragedy.

The adult who threatened the 16-year-old umpire in the parking lot should not be feeling macho but should be feeling shame. When is a game of baseball worth threatening to beat up a kid?

This individual should feel very fortunate that the mother of this umpire did not take the legal action against him that she had the right to do.

I talked to some of the fans who were present at the game and several of them expressed neutrality on the issue, although they thought the kids did a decent job of calling the ballgame.

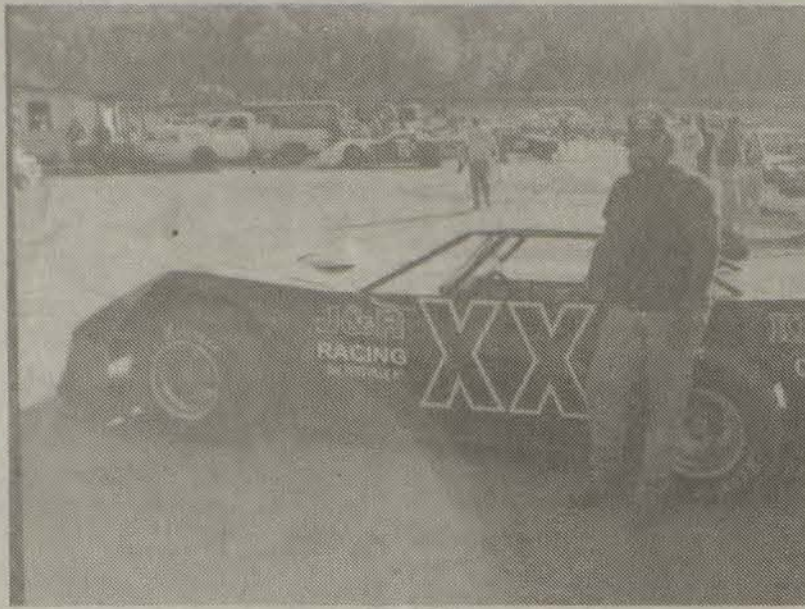

Little League umpires are not required (during regular season play) to be registered and I think that is a mistake. When monetary compensation is given for services performed as an umpire, then the umpires should be required to be registered.

In this case, these two 16-year-olds, said "I will do it" because no other umpires could be found. Both of them are knowledgeable about the game of baseball because they played it for so many years. If they were not knowledgeable — granted they should not have been back there if they weren't — it did not call for the kind of action or scene displayed in the parking lot.

Again, I have advocated (three years ago) that each Little League franchise has an elected president. That president would be responsible for overseeing the running of the league and would be accountable to the area president, who must answer to the people in St. Petersburg, Florida.

The league director of the Prestonsburg Little League (Steve Stephens) passed away a week before all this happened. I don't know if an interim president had

Branham wins first-ever AMRA modified race

by Chris Belcher
Track Writer

Dirt track racing was fast and at times furious as three new members joined the "Rollover Club" this past Saturday night at the 201 Speedway.

Martin's Harry Branham took advantage of Mike Osborne's misfortunes and outlasted the field in winning the ARMA Modified feature at the Speedway.

Paintsville attorney Mike Osborne led the field for the first 12 laps and then tangled with Robbie Perkins in lap 13 when Perkins' open wheel modified got under Osborne, causing him to climb the retaining burn and roll several times before coming to rest near turn three.

Perkins was designated to the tail of the field for his move and Branham took the lead and led for the remaining seven laps, winning his first-ever modified feature.

Branham collected $600 for his victory in his number 14 car. Two other Martin drivers finished strong in the race. Brad Martin took second place and Jimmy Branham fourth.

Martin's Jake Miller took a quick lead and outlasted the rest of the field in winning the late model 25 lap feature at the Speedway.

Scott McCloud presented a strong challenge to Miller the first 22 trips around the oval track. McCloud stayed within six car lengths of Miller when a caution flag put his car in the pit area with front end damage. (See Branham, B 3)

Harris overheats as Dixon wins feature

Martin's Paul Harris got caught in lapped traffic and experienced heating problems at Thunder Ridge Saturday night, and Carcassone driver David Dixon took over the front spot and held on to win the 25 lap late model feature worth $1,200.

It was only the fourth start of the season for Dixon, who had to overcome a spinning lapped car late in the race.

"We've had to work out a few bugs in this car but it was running great tonight," said Dixon following the win. "We haven't had a lot of lap time but each night out we've been near the front and keep learning more and more to make it faster."

On the second attempt at starting the race, Dixon was able to grab the lead from Harris, who was the inside front row starter, as the field entered turn one. The two ran nose-to-tail through the opening laps before Dixon was able to put some distance between himself and the rest of the 17 car field.

It appeared as though Harris might be able to get a run going in the middle stages of the race. The Martin driver closed up some of the leader's advantage before getting caught in lapped traffic which allowed Gene Ferrell to take second place. Harris attempted to retake second before overheating problems forced him to the sidelines.

The late charging Ferrell began closing in on Dixon late in the race and appeared to be getting his break when Dixon ran up on a pack of lapped cars.

As Dixon came off turn one with less than two laps to go, Al Madden

Spriggs fans 15 as Astros roll 8-4 over Garrett Pirates

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Drift Astros improved to 10-3 on the season after posting a 8-4 win over the Garrett Pirates in the opening round of the Beaver Creek Little League tournament at Minnie Monday evening.

Jason Spriggs went the distance for the Astros, securing the win with 15 strikeouts.

Joe Skeens had three hits for Drift, including a triple, and he picked up three RBIs. Teammate Robbie Stumbo collected a double and triple while driving in two runs.

Both teams scored in the first inning with the Pirates taking their only lead at 2-0 lead. Both runs were unearned.

Drift tied the game in the bottom of the inning on a single by Skeens, Stumbo's triple and Adam Ward's RBI single.

Garrett reclaimed the lead with a lone third inning run. Cowley reached on a base hit, stole second and scored on Jason Scott's single.

But the Astros took the lead for good with three in the bottom of the third. Joe Spriggs and Jason Spriggs drew consecutive walks and rode home on Skeens' triple to center. Skeens scored on a passed ball to give the Astros a 5-3 lead.

Drift scored a run in the fourth on singles by John Thornsberry and Skeens. They added two runs in the fifth. Stumbo singled and Ward tripled him home. Ward then stole home for a 8-3 game.

The Pirates pushed home their final run in the sixth when Scott singled and stole his way around the bases and home.

"We left a lot of runners on base," said Astros coach Clinis Hall. "We didn't hit the ball very well either."

Justin Taylor ran the outfield like a deer against the Pirates, making some outstanding catches. "He just played a super game for us defensively in centerfield," said Coach Hall. "He made several catches diving for the ball and sliding on his belly."

Good slide!

Garrett Cubs Paul Francis slid safely into third base as Duff third baseman Anthony Hall searched for the baseball. The Orioles posted a 14-9 win over Garrett to finish second in the Beaver Creek Little League South Division. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Timely hitting gives Betsy Layne 4-3 win over Pikeville

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Tom Holbrook got some timely hitting from his 16-18 year old Babe Ruth team and posted a 4-3 win over Pikeville this past Saturday at Pikeville.

Brandon Castle hurled eight strong innings for Betsy Layne in picking up the win.

"Brandon pitched a very good game for us," said Coach Holbrook. "I went out and asked him if he was tired and he said that he wanted to stay in if he had to pitch 10 innings."

"He was a little upset. He came through and they couldn't touch him after the first inning," he said.

Some late inning play brought Betsy Layne back from a 2-0 deficit to lead 3-2.

With the score tied at 3-3 in the eighth, Betsy Layne got a bases-loaded walk to force home what proved to be the winning run.

Josh Lynch relieved Casto in the eighth and, after retiring the first two batters, issued four consecutive walks to send Castle home with the go ahead and winning run.

"Greg (Hunter) was at the plate and had a full count on him," said Holbrook. "He took one up under the chin for ball four."

In the first inning, Castle made some mistakes with a couple of pitches that resulted in two Pikeville runs. He allowed a lead off single to Casey Deskins and a base hit to Casto.

Betsy Layne catcher Greg Hunter made a throwing error and Deskins scored on the error. Castle got Ross Childers on strikes before giving up an RBI single to Josh Lynch. Hunter's throw to third got Lynch in a steal attempt for the third out.

Casto kept Betsy Layne off the scoreboard through the first five innings as Betsy Layne only had a first inning single by Castle.

"Power Ranger" Slone powers Rangers past Reds

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

There were no lightning flashes emanating from the body of Prestonsburg Rangers' Josh Slone but plenty of power flowed from his bat as he muscled the Rangers to a 16-15 win over a good Prestonsburg Reds Little League team.

The two teams met in the final game of the regular season in the Prestonsburg Little League.

The Reds alternated playing "take-a-lead" and "lose-a-lead." Twice they held comfortable margins only to see the Rangers tie the game.

The Reds held 12-0 and 15-5 leads at various points in the game. Both times the leads were temporary as the Rangers fought back behind Slone.

All Slone did was collect five hits in five plate appearances. He drove in seven runs, including the game-winner.

In the bottom of the sixth, after

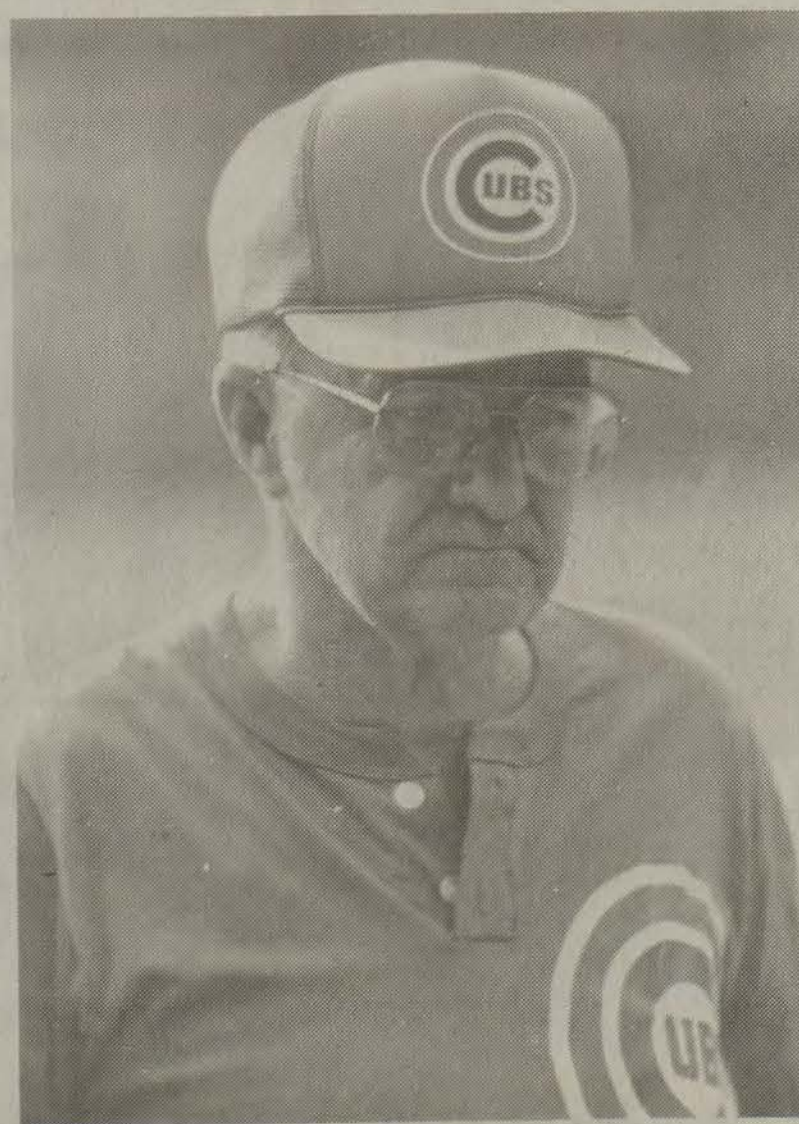

Zach Bradshaw had shut out the Reds over the final two innings, Zack Slone scored the winning run from third base when Josh Slone collected his fifth hit.

Craig Blackburn started for the Reds and Chad Wallen for the Rangers. The two looked like they would hook up in a pitchers duel after both teams failed to score in the first inning.

But the Reds erased those visions as they pushed home nine runs in the second inning to lead 9-0. Craig Blackburn and J.T. Abshire had RBI singles and Matt Slone collected a ground rule double to drive in the Reds runs.

The Rangers could get no offense going in the bottom of the second and the Reds went up 12-0 with three in the third. Greg Arnett's double scored Craig Prince and and Blackburn tripled home Arnett.

(See Rangers, B 2)

Final year?

Garrett Cub manager Dave Conley has said that he plans to step down after this season of Little League baseball. But the veteran coach has been echoing those thoughts for several seasons. "I'm here for the kids," Conley said. He recently had surgery and has just returned to coaching his team. Next year he will be vice-president of the Beaver Creek Little League. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Rangers

The Rangers finally got the bats out of the bag with a vengeance in the bottom of the third inning. The Rangers collected five consecutive hits with an RBI single from Matt Setser, a single by Josh Slone, a two-run triple from Wallen and a two-run homer over the right centerfield fence by Josh Meade to cap off the inning and make the score 12-5. The Reds came right back against Wallen as three more runs crossed for a 15-5 game. Robert Abshire and Sturgill were on base when Matt Slone laced a triple to right center. Slone came home on a passed ball. Blackburn, who was cruising for the Reds, ran into a buzzsaw in the Rangers' half of the fourth. The Rangers tied the game with 10 runs against Blackburn and Matt Slone, who came on in relief. Jeff Allen and Matt Setser reached for the Rangers in the fourth and both runners scored on Josh Slone's triple. Slone, in trying to stretch the hit into an inside-the-park homerun, was nailed at the plate. Three straight hits by Wallen, Meade and Bradshaw put the Rangers right back into the game. Back-to-back walks loaded the bases for the Rangers and Zack Slone was hit by a pitch to force home Bradshaw. Jeff Allen got perhaps his biggest hit of the season when he doubled to right field and scored Jeff Shepherd and Joey Meadows. Slone, Allen and Setser later scored to tie the game at 15 on Josh Slone's triple. Bradshaw vowed that the Reds were through scoring. He kept his promise by shutting down the Reds over the fifth and sixth innings. He struck out the side in the sixth. Josh Slone then delivered the game-winning hit in the bottom of the inning. Matt Slone collected four runs batted in for the Reds. He had two hits in the game. Greg Arnett finished with two hits, as did Blackburn. Wallen and Meade each had two runs batted in with their two hits. The Rangers stranded five base runners while the Reds left six on base. Matt Slone was the losing pitcher in relief and Bradshaw picked up the win in relief.

A Look at Sports

been selected, but someone had to be in charge of the league.

Whoever was in charge should have been at the games played that night just in case something like this would take place. Fans, especially parents, in this day and time are very vocal and at times threatening toward umpires.

That is one reason that good quality umpires are not to be found. They have quit and it is because of the fans. (This is true in many of the sporting events around Floyd County).

Parents and other fans don't seem to care about the example they are setting for our young people and about the embarrassment they cause the kids on the field.

Prestonsburg Little League, like the Harold-Allen-Prater Little League (Allen Park), is fortunate that they play all their games at one location, Archer Park. That makes it easier to oversee the events.

The league director should be required to be at all the games or to send an appointed representative who would be in charge.

When a parent or fan is BEGINNING to get out of hand, the league director (not the umpire, although he has the authority to do so) should approach the individual or individuals and ask that they refrain from their actions.

If those parents or fans persist in making themselves look foolish and disrupting things on the field, they should be asked to depart the confines and not just to the parking lot area.

If that doesn't work, law enforcement officers need to be summoned. A violation by a parent/fan should carry a warning that any future outbursts will cause them to be banned from all Little League games.

Now some will say, it should never come to something like that at a Little League baseball game. You're right. It shouldn't. And it wouldn't if parents/fans would just remember that Little League baseball is for the kids to enjoy and to learn the great game of baseball.

Some of the kids, although they will never tell their moms or dads, are ashamed of the actions of their parents at games. Three years ago, I will never forget it, a Little Leaguer told me those very same words and his head was not held high when he said it.

Mom, Dad, Leave the game to the kids. Leave the umpires alone and let everyone enjoy the season.

All-Star time is coming up and the different leagues (5) around the county will be picking their all-star teams. If Johnny or Judy doesn't make the team, don't become bitter. Set the right example for the kids and go ahead and take your much-needed vacation.

PRESTONSBURG LL HONORS STEPHENS...

As planned, the Prestonsburg Little League and Archer Park officially named the Senior League diamond the "Steve Stephens Memorial Field" in honor of the former Little League director who passed away around two weeks ago.

Those people who have been working so hard for so many years in the league are to be commended for this move. It is very fitting to recognize an individual who made such an impact on Little League baseball. The naming of the field in Steve's honor will keep his name in front of fans and will serve as a reminder of the contributions that he made to the program.

The Prestonsburg Little League is one of the quality Little League programs in Eastern Kentucky. It's because of the hard work that has gone into it by moms and dads who care for the kids.

SPORTS FANS IN NORTH CAROLINA....

I have received phone calls and been told about how much people enjoyed the article (photo) that I wrote two weeks ago (etc.) on the 1954 church basketball team.

Phil Osborne, Mims, Florida, sent the photo and I thought it would be good to just reflect back.

Many people asked who was the lady on the front row in the middle of the photograph. Bert Layne, said he was told that it was Judy Salisbury. But I don't think it was Judy. I went to school with her and I don't believe it was her. Some people have named the mystery lady as Francis Brackett (maiden name unknown). But, again, I just don't know.

Today, Monday, I received a letter from High Point, North Carolina from Mary Belle (Dingus) Hackworth, who wanted to inform me that the Floyd County Times sports section was "read in North Carolina."

Her mother, Sissie Dingus, sent her a copy of the article and she wrote to tell me how much she enjoyed it.

She wrote about her dad, Gardez, who ran the hardware store in Martin for so many years and she also mentioned my mother, who ran a restaurant in my hometown.

Mary Belle says that, although she lives in North Carolina, she still bleeds "Blue and White."

It's good to hear from readers and fans. Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Only one leg to stand on!

Garrett Cub pitcher Josh Bentley spun around, but his hat stayed put as he pitched against the Duff Orioles last Friday at Garrett. Bentley was the losing pitcher as Duff posted a 14-9 win. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Michigan heat stirs up plenty of action

Boy, do we have a lot of tasty stuff to talk about this week. I don't really know where to start. Last Sunday's Miller Genuine Draft 400 packed a boat-load of action which has spurred a great deal of discussion among both fans and drivers.

Let's kick things off with a look at Bobby Labonte's highly impressive victory. The 31-year old driver from Texas has served notice that he is for real.

In only his first season with Joe Gibbs Racing, Labonte has captured two wins, six top-fives, and seven top-tens. And it's the prediction of this ol' die-hard that Bobby Labonte will be a frequent visitor to victory lane throughout the remainder of the '95 season.

Another team that has stepped up to meet the challenge is the number 4 Kodak Racing team and driver Sterling Marlin.

He has now assumed the lead in the series point standings. It's the first time we have had a change in the points leader since the second race of the season when Dale Earnhardt snagged the lead from Marlin at Rockingham.

Pikeville humbles Prestonsburg in a 17-3 win at Pikeville

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Pikeville 16-17 year-old Babe Ruth team wasn't too kind to the Prestonsburg team as they squared off at Pikeville this past Sunday afternoon.

Pikeville scored nine times in the third inning to take a 17-3 win over coach Paul Foley's ballclub.

Jason Hackworth started for Prestonsburg and went the first two innings before running into trouble in the third. Thomas Ratliff came on to pitch the final three.

Deskins went the distance for Pikeville in picking up the win. He allowed just the three runs while scattering six hits.

Deskins shut out Prestonsburg through the first three innings. A double by Donnie Combs to start the Prestonsburg fourth led to the first run. Combs scored on a sacrifice fly off the bat of Matt Trusty.

Brandon Hicks, who was hit by a pitch, scored the second run on a sacrifice fly by Jeremy Shepherd.

Pikeville dented the plate for three runs in the first and came back with nine in the third to lead 12-0. Pikeville mercied Prestonsburg with five in the fifth inning.

Prestonsburg scored their final run in the fifth inning on a two-out walk to Ryan Ortega and a hit batsman. Ortega stole third and came home on a catcher's error.

Branham

Miller held off Hazard driver Benny Feltner for the final three laps to collect the checkered flag and $1,000 in prize money.

Feltner finished second behind Miller. Richard Chaney took third place.

Steve Burke quickly put distance between him and the rest of the field as he rode his number 11 car out to a eight car-length lead and outdistanced the other 11 cars in capturing the Claim Bomber race.

Homer Mills Jr. took over second place on lap number three but he had to head to the pit area while Albert Butcher moved into the second spot.

The race remained caution-free from lap seven to the checkered flag. Burke went on to capture the event holding the lead for the full 12 laps. Butcher finished second and G.T. Norman third.

Nine super bombers made up the field for the 15 lap feature. When the green flag went down, Benny Butcher quickly established the pace. Johnny Trimble kept his racer within inches of Butcher in the early laps.

Trimble's bad luck from previous races changed in the feature event when he made the seventh lap just the opposite of what happened a week before. Trimble was able to outpower Butcher coming out of turn two.

With nothing but open track in front of him, Trimble quickly extended his lead to over 10 car-lengths for the remaining eight laps.

It was the first super bomber feature win of the season for Trimble. Butcher finished second. The win netted Trimble $350.

Unlike a year ago, Marlin has been able to build upon his Daytona 500 victory. And the mild-mannered Tennessee native has to be smiling because the series will visit Daytona again in a little more than a week to do battle in the Pepsi 400.

Marlin's engine builder, Shelton "Runtz" Pitman is a master of the restrictor-plate engine and Marlin could possibly make it a complete sweep at the sport's most famous track.

What else happened at Michigan?

Oh yeah, what about that deal where Michael Waltrip punched fellow driver Lake Speed right in the ol' kisser following the race?

Now I don't know how you feel, but it's my opinion that Waltrip was just a bit out of line. First of all, violence is never the answer. But heck, if you're going to punch someone, at least give them the chance to retaliate. Poor ol' Lake Speed was still behind the wheel strapped in his seat when he was on the receiving end of a Michael Waltrip knuckle-sandwich.

Now fighting amongst drivers is nothing new, but come on fellas, was anything really accomplished? Shame on you, Mr. Waltrip. After all, Waltrip finished 12th, only one spot behind Speed, and it amounted to a grand total of three Winston Cup points. Was it worth it?

Now, Michigan was supposed to tell the tale of whether or not all the modifications NASCAR has allowed the Ford teams to make on their cars were going to pay off.

Did it? Hard to say. Rusty Wallace was the highest finishing Ford driver and in a post-race interview, he was quick to say that the Chevys still had the upper-hand.

The bottom line is, we have heard enough! In a story that is as old as NASCAR itself, car makes will continually change. The advantage will shift from make to make just as it always has. It just happens to be that at this given time, the red bow-tie gang is in front. Let it go!

And finally, it sure was good to see Dale Jarrett and the Texaco Ford running among the leaders. Up to this point, the '95 season has been mired in bad luck for the Robert Yates-owned team. Maybe the top-ten performance has brought about a turnaround.

Last Sunday's race has definitely given us a lot to talk about. But make sure that you stay tuned, because before all is said and done, it's going to get pretty interesting as the series edges toward the half-way mark in the warm summer heat.

Richland nostalgic on the outside, contemporary inside

by Associated Designs

A wide covered porch wraps around the front of the Richland, conjuring up images of porch swings and rocking chairs. Gables, shuttered windows and wood siding add to the nostalgic image.

Inside, the floor plan is completely contemporary—low on formality and high on livability.

A long bench in the vaulted entry hall is handy for removing muddy footgear. Boots and shoes are stored underneath. The front room could be a living room, dining room or even a home office, if that's preferable.

The vaulted great room is bright and spacious. It has a built-in entertainment center, and a corner fireplace. The nook, too, has a vaulted ceiling. Studded with skylights and windowed on three sides, this area is exceptionally bright. Sliding glass doors access a dining deck.

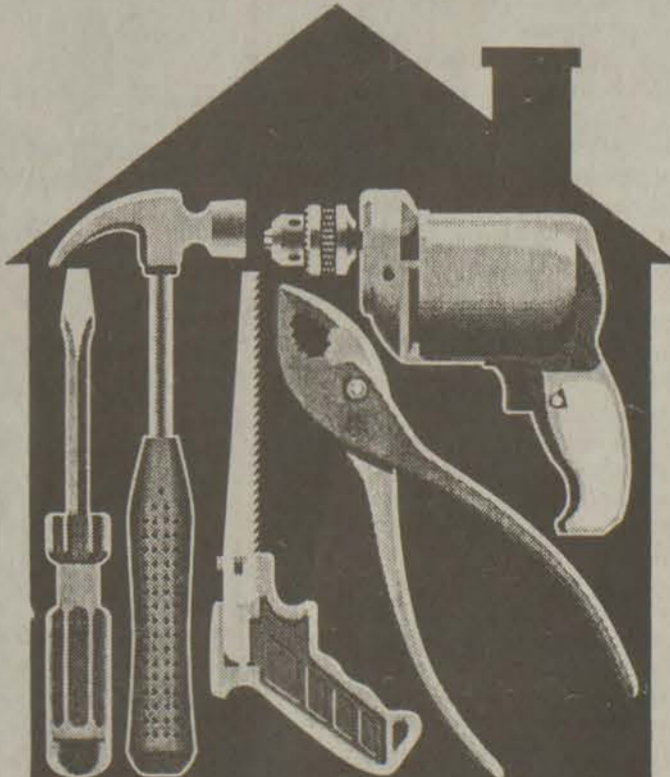

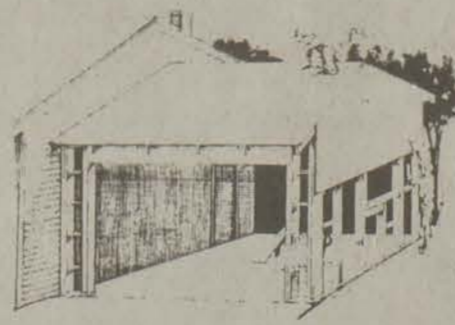

Standing at the kitchen range, you can gaze across the angled eating bar into the nook and great room, or out the windows to the deck and rear yard. A garden window illuminates the corner sink. The walk-in pantry adds storage space, and utilities are only a few steps away.

A small powder room and a large master suite fill out the remainder of the lower level. Master suite luxuries include a walk-in closet and a skylit bathroom with twin lavs, spa or soaking tub, shower and private toilet.

On the Richland's upper level, a loft overlooks the entry and great room. The upper bedrooms have window seats and share a dual-compartment bathroom. A long bonus room nestles under the gable that caps the garage, and there's also a long, narrow storage closet at the top of the stairs.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $15 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, Ore. 97402.

Please specify the Richland 10-256 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring over 170 home plans is available for $12. For more information call (800) 634-0123.

Prestonsburg posts 6-3 win over Johns Creek

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Donnie Combs, who signed to play baseball with Lee's College this fall, took a perfect game into the top of the seventh inning only to see his no-hit bid as well as the shutout disappear.

Johns Creek scored all three of their runs in the top of the seventh after not collecting a hit over the first six.

Combs, in picking up the win, fanned 12 batters and issued three walks, all in the seventh inning.

Johns Creek sent nine batters to the plate in the seventh -- scoring three times for the 6-3 final.

Prestonsburg scored single runs in each of the first three innings and plated three in the fifth to lead 6-0.

Combs streak ended when he walked Wheeler to start the seventh. He stole second and Ben Hunt then doubled him home to ruin the shut-out.

Combs got Howell on strikes before issuing a walk to Jason Hunt.

Greathouses hit for cycle in Expos 31-15 win

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Not one, but two Greathouses swung heavy bats for the Prestonsburg Expos girls softball team as they handed the Reds a 31-5 setback in four innings. Shelly Greathouse and sister Jennifer hit for the cycle in the victory.

Allison Caudill just missed hitting for the cycle, needing only a single. She had three doubles along with a triple and home run in the contest.

Jessica Clark drove in three runs with a second inning double. She had four hits in the game and scored five runs. Tiffany Warrix and Shawna Taylor collected four hits each.

Shelly Greathouse led off the Expos' third with a home run and Jennifer Greathouse, batting for the second time in the inning, blasted her roundtripper, a three-run shot.

Jennifer Greathouse was intentionally walked in the first inning to load the bases but Jessica Clark made the Reds pay by doubling in all three runs.

Brandi Slone collected four hits, including a third inning double. Ginger Thornsberry had a fourth inning single and Ashleigh Frasure had a two-hit game and collected one run batted in.

Warrix was the winning pitcher, going the first two innings. Jessica Clark hurled the final two for the Expos.

Elliott collected two hits for the Reds, both doubles. She had a two-base hit in the first and second innings. Stewart and Vaughn had the only other two hits.

The Expos completed their regular season at 12-0.

Tackett's 7 RBIs lead Harold past Garrett, 16-15

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Adam Tackett collected five hits and drove in seven runs as the Harold Hurricanes posted a 16-15 win over the Garrett Yankees in Babe Ruth baseball at Allen Park.

Jerry Johnson had a two-hit night for Harold and Ryan Hall picked up two RBIs.

Byron Patton hit safely three times for the Yankees and had two runs batted in. Wes Howard had a two-run single.

Harold scored seven times in the third inning to take a 9-4 lead. Johnson doubled home two runs in the inning.

Garrett pushed across three runs in the fourth for a 9-7 game and tied it at 9-9 with two in the fifth.

But Harold batted around in the fifth inning, scoring four times to lead 13-9.

A four-run sixth for the Yankees knotted the game at 13-13 in the top of the inning. But Harold dented the plate for three in the sixth and led 16-13.

In the bottom of the seventh, Garrett scored twice to pull to within a run. Patton and Howard had RBI's in the inning.

Charles then singled home Ben Hunt and Jason Hunt scored on a bases-loaded walk to Smith. The final Johns Creek run scored on a bases-loaded walk to Harris before Combs got Ratliff on strikes to end the game.

Nathan Slone doubled home Brandon Hicks in the first inning to give Prestonsburg a 1-0 lead. Prestonsburg added their second run, which was unearned, in the second when Steven Hamilton reached on an error and Jason Hackworth singled him home. Matt Crawford lined into a double play to end the inning.

Hicks singled to start the second, moved to second on a passed ball and scored on a sacrifice fly by Combs to give Prestonsburg a 3-0 lead.

In the fifth, Hicks one-out single started a three-run rally with one out. Slone reached on an error at third and Combs walked to load the bases. Thomas Ratliff delivered a sacrifice fly, scoring Hicks. Charles couldn't handle the throw to first off the bat of Robbie Risner and two runs scored on the errant play.

Hicks finished with three hits in the game for Prestonsburg. Ortega

CHARLES BENTLEY

Bentley excels in football, lacrosse at Ohio school

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Charles Bentley, son of Tommy G. and Sandra Bentley, formerly of McDowell, and currently residing in Hilliard, Ohio, will take his athletic talent to Delaware and play for Ohio Wesleyan this coming fall.

Bentley was a standout football player for Hilliard High School where he helped lead his team to a playoff berth with a 10-0 regular season record his junior season. The Wildcats fell to Cincinnati Moeller in the state semifinals.

Bentley and his teammates repeated the feat last football season when they posted an identical 10-0 record and another state playoff berth.

Bentley was honored by being named to the Second Team OCC in offense.

When the football season ended, Bentley took up the lacrosse stick and played on the defensive end for the varsity lacrosse team.

Bentley saw a dream come true for a lacrosse defender. Against Xavier of Cincinnati, he scored two goals. The special game came on a special night--Senior Parents Recognition Night.

Bentley was instrumental in helping his lacrosse team to the State Championship in the B Bracket by defeating Hudson and University School from Cleveland.

Bentley was recruited by several colleges but decided on Ohio Wesleyan. He will continue his football career as a Battling Bishop in late August.

Bentley played right guard, right tackle and center for the Wildcats.

got sideways in front of the leader. A quick move of getting off the gas and moving to the high side of the speedway allowed Dixon to hold on to first as Ferrell pulled alongside going down the backstretch.

On the final lap Dixon was able to pull out to a two car length lead at the finish.

Following Dixon and Ferrell were Henry Hornsby, Ernie Davis and David Powers rounding out the top five.

Junior Banks, Bryan Jude, Barney Back, Randy Fields and Kenny Compton rounded out the top ten.

Carrier returns to victory lane

After being sidelined the previous night with mechanical problems, Eddie Carrier, Jr. returned to victory lane in the AMRA modified feature. Carrier held off current Thunder Ridge Modified points leader Brandon Kinzer in the 20 lap race to score the win. Keith Grey, Ronnie Vance and Kevin Clarke rounded out the top five.

Stumbo's care disqualified

For the second week in a row the winner of the Thunder 'N Lightning division was not determined until a post race inspection. Following his drive from the back of the field four times to take the win, German Stumbo's car came up light at the scales and was disqualified. The victory was then awarded to Hazard driver Richard Brewer.

Spurlock repeats in bomber series

After a wild series of heat races that saw three and four wide racing, Tandy Spurlock pulled off his second bomber division win in as many weeks.

Spurlock's victory came ahead of Freddy Brock, Kevin Griffey, Jerry Fannin and Mike Walters in their final tune-up before this weekend's $500 to win 25 lap bomber special. This Saturday night Thunder Ridge kicks off its Super Summer Savings Specials with discount ticker and concession prices in addition to racing in Late Model, Thunder 'N Lightn', Modified and the $500 to win Bomber feature.

Sports in Kentucky

Bob Watkins

Sports are packed with high-minded preachers who low-bridge heroes

From the halls of Sports Illustrated to the shores of Gotham City, for the last five years media-types have sung in chorus the praises of Pat Riley, genius, master motivator, Mr. Suave, cool dude with slick hair and Italian suits. No hint of human frailty.

But last week when the former UK All-American quit the Knicks coaching job, the new imaging began. Sportswriter George Vecsey decided Riley "is terribly somber"... "working out some conflict with his late father"... "is a chain smoker"... "is the guy in the thousand-dollar suit sucking smoke into his lungs."

Ah, heroes. They must be brought low. Seems to me Vecsey's venom could have been better invested on George Steinbrenner's rehabbing Darryl Strawberry.

Vecsey has further decided Phil Jackson or Mike Fratello ought to coach the Knicks. Or, Rick Pitino. "He says he's not a candidate. I don't believe him."

Next, taking his cue from Sports Illustrated's Alex Wolff who wants Miami U to abolish its football program, Atlanta Constitution sports columnist Mark Bradley (Maysville, Ky. native) decided last week that Vince Dooley ought to save coach Ray Goff the humiliation of coaching the Georgia Bulldogs another season. Go ahead and fire Goff now, Bradley said. Try and imagine the crucifixion Bradley would recommend for Bill Curry.

Using the same logic, certainly it won't be long until Bradley pens another pinhead piece. Perhaps the Constitution ought to spare Bradley the same embarrassment he would save Goff from and fire him now.

Because the Bradley's lunacy gets attention, sells newspapers to disgruntled Georgia alums and outraged Goff loyalists.

Close to home, an ounce of candor can be hard to find in hallowed places here too. Last Friday, a UK media relations person was asked about speculation that Rodrick Rhodes has decided to forgo the NBA Draft and return to UK's basketball program next season.

"Haven't heard anything about that," he said, but agreed to check the inner sanctums of the basketball office for late word. A few hours later, "As far as I know Rhodes is still making himself available for the NBA Draft."

Less than 12 hours later, Rick Pitino told a Lexington television station Rhodes "more than likely" will return to UK and is being considered for a redshirt next season.

SCUTTLEBUTT

If Rodrick Rhodes returns to UK, redshirts a year, gets his college degree, then plays the 1996-97 season for the Wildcats, it will be the best sequence of decisions he will make in his life.

Recruiting note. Tim Thomas, a 6-9 forward from Paterson Catholic High School, NJ, projected as the top rated high school prospect next season, said this week he is considering 13 colleges and will sign next spring. Among them: Georgia Tech, North Carolina, Virginia and Florida State, Rutgers, Seton Hall, Connecticut, Syracuse and Villanova, along with Kentucky, Massachusetts, California and Xavier of Ohio.

As a junior, Thomas averaged 25.3 points, 14.5 rebounds and 3.7 blocks a game. He shot 64 percent from the field, and 73 percent from the free throw line. Thomas made 55 percent of his three point shots last season.

FISTFUL OF DOLLARS

If you're keeping score, it was a 'Fistful of Dollars week'. Pat Riley resigned, turning down $15 million from the New York Knicks. The University of Kentucky hastily issued a statement: "Rick Pitino is not interested in an NBA job, including Boston and New York."

Next, Dick Vitale was sued for $10 million by (ready for this) a college coach for something he did not say. But the defaming remarks appeared in a basketball magazine bearing his name.... Closer to home, UK's Basketball Players Reunion weekend raised $315,000 in pledges for the Wildcats museum.

Now for your go-figure arithmetic pop quiz: During an ACC Tournament game (on television) North Carolina's Dean Smith got into a shoving and profanity-laced shouting match with Clemson's Rick Barnes. Bad form. Cost the coaches $2,500 each. Last week Bob Knight got word from the NCAA saying his after-game tirade at a tournament official will cost him $30,000.

Lemme see if I have this straight. Da General, actually IU, gets docked enough loot to pay for UK students to get into a month's worth of Wildcat games in Rupp Arena and the ACC tags Michelangelo for cigarette money. Hmmm.

Postscript: Since Dean Smith got off light, wonder if he would consider a pledge toward UK's basketball museum?

UK HALL OF FAME

"We raised roughly $315,000. Now we'll rest a few days and decide what to do next," Jim LeMaster, prime mover behind the proposed UK Basketball Museum, said at week's end.

"We need to have $1.5 to $1.8 million to break ground. And we're still shooting for the fall of '96 to be up and running."

Total price tag on the museum is $3 million. "That's $2.4 million on design and construction and $600,000 to operate it," LeMaster explained, adding, "If we could get as many UK basketball fans as there are out there to donate $10 apiece, we would have $3 million easy."

If you are interested in making a donation or want more information about the museum, phone 606-225-5670.

KHSAA HALL OF FAME

The KHSAA announced 17 inductees for entry to its Hall of Fame March 12 next year, including three ladies.

Among them are a handful of personal favorites.

Julius Berry, a basketball star at Lexington Dunbar in the late 1950s was a special player. And no basketball hall of fame in the Bluegrass would be complete without Al Prewitt. He played on a state championship team at Henry Clay in 1952, then coached the Blue Devils to a title in 1983.

As Prewitt was to basketball, coach Ken Barrett has been to football in our state. Establishing Russellville as a Class A power, Barrett coached the Panthers to state crowns in 1980, 1983, and 1990.

Finally, kudos to the Hall selectors for choosing Jack Goodman, one of the finest gentlemen in all of Kentucky sports. Goodman coached Glendale High to the Sweet 16 in 1956, then took East Hardin High back in 1964 after consolidation.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE

Chuck Spataro, Elizabethtown: About community college (level) sports, Spataro, an administrator at Elizabethtown Community College, said (E-Mail): "At ECC, as with most Kentucky Community Colleges, there are not any intercollegiate sports. It is mostly a matter of budget, I think. But I was wondering how you felt about the philosophy of a K-12 system which values sports so highly that much time, energy and effort goes into this area, then the same society sends these recent high school grads off to a local community college and suddenly sports no longer has a high enough priority to gain a budget."

"I will see dozens of high school athletes, young men and young women who played sports with love and passion for their K-12 careers who suddenly come to their tax-supported community college and their opportunity for intercollegiate play is over. I'm saying this situation is wrong, I'm wondering what message this sends?"

COMMENT: Thank you for writing.

IDEAS DEPT.

-- Excellent, Crittenden County High's idea of celebrating the tenth anniversary of the school's football championship in 1985. On September 22, former Rocket players, coaches and fans will kindle a few shiny memories of the season of '85.

This kind of commemorative approach showcases high school football in the Bluegrass at its best.

-- Since Indiana University picked up Bob Knight's NCAA tab for 30 grand, wouldn't it be gracious if Rick Pitino and C.M. Newton paid UK students $5-a-head ticket to watch the Wildcats in Rupp Arena next winter?

-- Since Indiana U. adores a forceful personality in its basketball coaches office, even if he costs an extra 30 grand now-and-then...and since Pat Riley is looking for work....Naw.

CHEERS 'N JEERS

CHEERS. To Crittenden Co. High football coach Al Starnes for changing the date his school will celebrate the tenth anniversary of the school winning a state football championship. Starnes changed the date so then-coach Pat Gates (now at Caldwell Co.) could attend.

JEERS. PRP's Michael Lockhart, a 6-10 junior-to-be was a no-show at last week's exhibition against the Kentucky all-stars.

CHEERS. To Lawrence County High baseball coach Randy Keeton who suspended himself from the Bulldogs' sectional final against Johnson Central. Keeton had been ejected from two regular season baseball games and discovered before tournament play that a second ejection requires a second one-game suspension. He telephoned the KHSAA to confirm, then suspended himself.

JEERS. Indiana U's director of athletics Clarence Doninger saying IU will pay Knight's $30,000 fine to the NCAA.

CHEERS. To University of Cincinnati basketball coach Bob Huggins said no to the Miami Heat's coaching job. "If I never have another chance to coach in the NBA, I can live with it," he told reporters.

PARTING SHOTS

Ah, sports writers on baseball...
• Mike Lupica on Barry Bonds: "He still has these days when he acts as if he developed his skills as a people person at the Rodman Institute."

• Comparing baseball players to... "Kentucky Derby horses are like ballplayers -- they don't talk to the media, they go hard for only two minutes and a lot of horses behinds are involved."

• Red Smith once said of Mickey Mantle's fiery sidekick Billy Martin. "He's a mouse studying to be a rat."

And so it goes.

ballgame against us," said Holbrook. "He's a solid pitcher. He went seven innings before they took him out."

Betsy Layne came knocking in the sixth as they pushed home three runs to take a 3-2 lead. Doug Keathley belted a solo homer to start the rally. Sammy Nelson followed with a base hit and Joseph Risner singled. Both runners moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Jason Burke and Castle was intentionally walked to load the bases.

James Jarrell made Pikeville pay with a two-run single, scoring Nelson and Risner.

Pikeville tied the game in the bottom of the third at 3-3. Deskins singled to start the Pikeville sixth. Casto moved him to second with a bunt and with two out, Lynch lined a single, scoring Deskins.

Both teams went out in order in the seventh and Betsy Layne then put together the winning rally.

Pikeville missed a golden chance to tie the game in the bottom of the eighth. However, Castle got Childers to ground to second and got Lynch to look at a called third strike to end the inning. The tying run was left stranded at second base.

Betsy Layne got some outstanding defensive play as well as timely hitting. Shortstop Jason Burke was remarkable in the field as his diving stops anchored the Betsy Layne defense.

In the second inning, Burke made a diving stop and turned it into a 6-4-3 double play.

"He played a very good game for us," said Coach Holbrook. "He made some diving plays that you don't normally see at this level."

"Joseph (Risner) was playing at second base and he normally doesn't play there. He made some very good plays for us as well," he said.

Burke made two dazzling plays in the second and turned in another jewel in the fourth.

Betsy Layne continues to lead the league with an unblemished 6-0 record. The two teams entered play tied for first place with identical 5-0 marks. Pikeville falls to 5-1 on the year.

Betsy Layne wins over Reds...

In a game played this past Sunday afternoon at Allen Park, Betsy Layne posted an 8-1 win over the Beaver Creek Reds to improve to 7-0 on the season.

The Reds scored their only run in the first inning on a single by Mike Sexton and an RBI single by Eric Cook.

Betsy Layne scored one in the first to tie the game and plated two in the second for a 3-1 lead.

Jerry Lafferty had three hits for Betsy Layne. Sexton finished with two hits for the Reds.

Mountain Parkway barn conjures up memories

There's an old barn that sits over in a field just off the Mountain Parkway. From the looks of it, it's been there for a long time but the first time I noticed it, it looked strangely familiar.

Suddenly it came to me that this dilapidated old building was a dead ringer to the old dairy barn in which we used to play as youngsters growing up in Muddy Branch back in the 1940s.

Of course, our barn isn't there anymore, but it sat in the head of Society Row on a little slope just above Claude VanHoose's house. Since—especially in the summertime—we pretty well roamed the neighborhood like a band of wandering Gypsies, we had a habit of staking our claim on such properties. Thus, the barn became still another one of our secret places where we'd meet and play.

The old weather-worn structure had been built in the far distant past (probably not as far distant as it seemed at the time) by the Northeast Coal Company for the express purpose of feeding and milking the cows the company owned.

By the late forties, however, there were probably no more than three or four cows still being milked there; ours and maybe Claude VanHoose's and Milt Ratliff's.

So, eight or ten of the boys in the neighborhood sort of felt like the barn was our own personal property and that the adults who still used it were doing so with our permission. In order to feed what livestock that did frequent the place—somebody would occasionally have a horse or mule there, too—there were usually several bales of hay and piles of corn and fodder stacked in the loft.

That was good, because the hay bales made an excellent fort and the corn (or at least the cobs) made great ammunition for the war games we'd sometimes play. We'd choose up sides, fort up, and have at it. There's definitely something memorable about peeping over a bale of hay and catching a corn-cob slap between the eyes.

Fortunately, if the going got too tough, there were a couple of escape hatches handy. One was in the form of a big, perhaps four-foot square, hole in the middle of the loft's floor, no doubt used at one time for throwing fodder to the cattle on the ground level. The only problem was that the floor beneath was concrete and it was probably a seven or eight feet drop. Another option for escape was to bail out the only unboarded upstairs window. However, it was over the manure pile—which wasn't so bad unless it was fresh.

Our education was enhanced a good deal, too, in that old barn loft, especially if any of the older boys happened to be among our number. I can remember us all laughing heartily at the Liza and Rastus stories. I was probably the only one there who didn't understand them or know why they were supposed to be funny.

What is funny, though, is how the sight of an old barn sitting in a field along the Mountain Parkway can make a grown man 10 years old again.

Little Switzerland—where progress was planned with the past in mind

Fifty years ago, about the time Blue Ridge Parkway engineers rolled up the last blueprint and headed out to the blasting site, a group of remarkable visionaries were planning the preservation of one of Mother Nature's best creations.

A group of investors who called themselves The Switzerland Corporation wisely inserted covenants into legal documents of the Switzerland properties that would limit progress and preserve the beauty of the community.

This thoughtful futuristic planning was revolutionary thinking at the time. As a result Little Switzerland can only expand in harmony with nature. Spectacular scenery and clear mountain air are guaranteed in Little Switzerland, North Carolina. It's no wonder people like Brenda Allen, Jake Messer, John Heinze and the late Barbara Allen Heinze were attracted to the unspoiled mountains of McDowell County, North Carolina.

If you should decide to take a quick vacation this summer you could not beat Little Switzerland, North Carolina. You won't want to miss breakfast or lunch at the Little Switzerland Cafe, General Store and Gift Shop, partnership of Brenda Allen and Jake Messer, former Floyd Countians. Brenda's homemade soups and upscale sandwiches have become the excuse used by a lot of Asheville, North Carolina residents to drive fifty miles for lunch.

Brenda also makes light as a feather biscuits every morning from April till the snows fly. With an elevation of over 6,000 feet, snow can be depended on shortly after the spectacular fall foliage disappears. Brenda has also opened a gift shop one door down from a quaint book store so compact it allows only one browser at a time. The gift shop is filled with everything you won't see at all the other gift shops. Brenda is the daughter of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Ray, a former resident of Abbott Creek.

Last fall Jake Messer, the other half of the dynamic duo, carpenter and wood specialist decided to replace the floor in the cafe and ended up tearing the whole building down. The trees used in flooring the new building were cut from the surrounding hills and finished by Jake and a friend, the local sawmill owner. The only thing missing from this picture was the absence of friendly Waltons who just dropped in to help. In any case the result is just plain beautiful and must be a great source of accomplishment to a fellow with respect for old ways and preservation.

Now the cafe is two stories and twice as large as the original building. With the second floor complete the cafe will be able to accommodate larger groups this summer. New barbecue menu selections from an outback grill promise to satisfy those who have decided not to worry about fat content while on vacation.

A touch of Eastern Kentucky is found above the entrance to the Switzerland Cafe. There hangs a print of the Mother Goose Market, located in Perry County. Beside that print is a familiar scene of a Floyd County cemetery memorial church service ritual attended by friends and family of the departed.

It is very clear that these people still have strong ties to the mountains of Kentucky. Like most mountain people forced to leave home to find work or those whose wanderlust led them to see the other side of the mountain, these Floyd Countians have taken their memories and traditions with them.

It is easy to see that the mountains are twice as high as ours but the folks are pretty much from the same bolt. Jake Messer, quoted in a Mitchell News Journal article recently remarked that he wanted to preserve the friendly country store atmosphere he knew as a child growing up in Floyd County Kentucky.

Apparently his desire has been met with a good deal of approval from the number of cars parked in front of the Switzerland Cafe and General Store. Jake's Mother, Delores Messer lives in Garrett.

If by chance you are looking for peace and beauty, Little Switzerland, North Carolina is just a skip off the Blue Ridge Parkway. Look for the Blue Ridge Parkway on your map and Route 226.

For all the rock hounds in the family, the Museum of North Carolina Minerals is located at the junction of the parkway and N.C. 226. The Little Switzerland Cafe complex is just around the hill where diners are always greeted by two Floyd County golden retrievers, Sibo and Tucker.

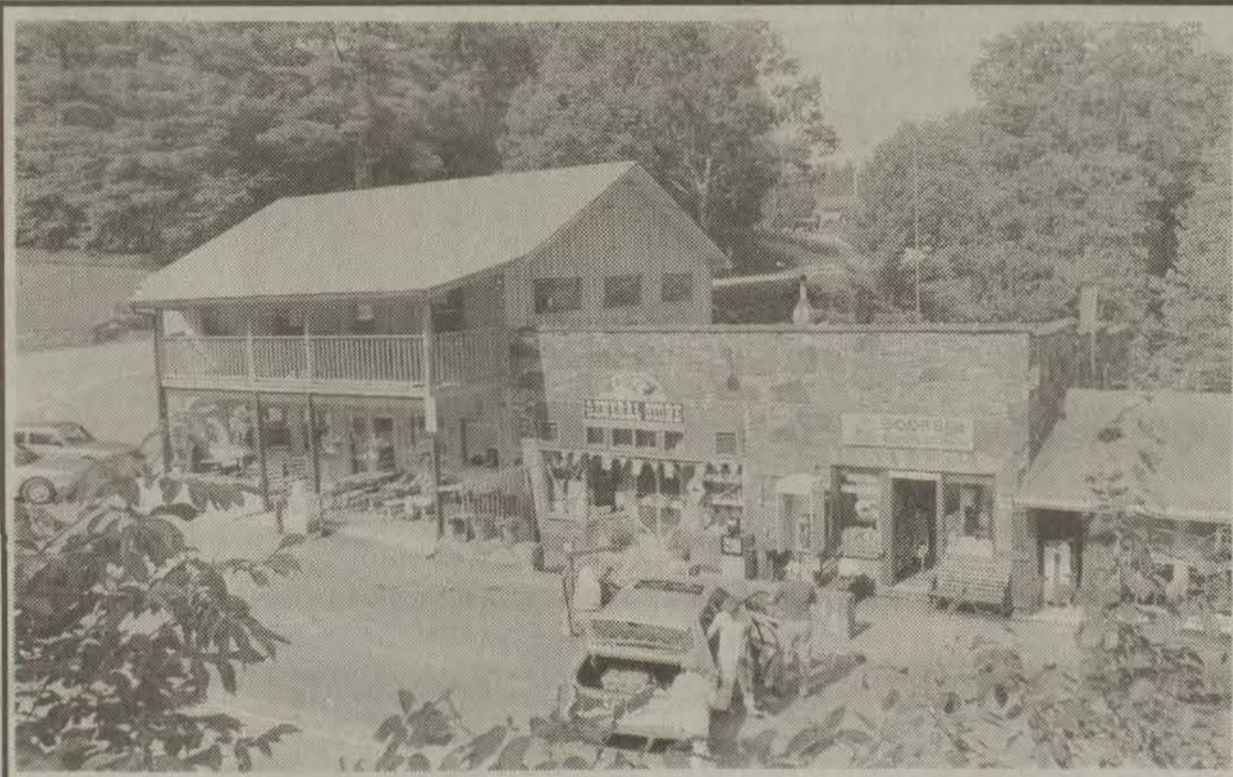

If you are real fortunate and happen by when a wine and cheese tasting event is in progress, you might witness the work of talented wood carvers or hear a live nostalgic rendition of "Mr. Bojangles" guaranteed to bring back those lost in the sixties feelings.

Lodging is available in several privately owned nearby mountain hotels. A huge chalet style hotel just up the hill from the Switzerland Cafe is surrounded by quaint shops and a panoramic view so Swiss it's hard to suppress a yodel. Fog shrouded green mountains overlook peaceful valley scenes—and all with in spitting distance of the beautiful Blue Ridge Parkway.

Little Switzerland isn't the place for people who need to be entertained. It is a wonderful place to play golf, read a good book, unwind, eat healthy food, shop a little and think about nothing for a day or two. In the words of John Heinze, a part-time resident, and full time golfer, "It just don't get no better than this." John lives around the ridge above the Cafe on Osborne Knob.

Looking out his back door one can almost see forever. The view changes constantly, not only with the seasons but with every sunrise and sunset. Johnny told a tourist at the cafe the other day that he couldn't live long enough to play all the courses within a fifty mile radius of Little Switzerland, but he was sure going to give it his best shot.

Mountain charm

The Switzerland Cafe, General Store, bookstore and gift shop offer a unique charm that attracts tourists and, yet, keeps its community spirit alive. Brenda Allen, co-owner, said neighbors regularly bring in fresh flowers and produce to her cafe. (photo by John Heinze)

The mountains seem to flow from John Heinze's backyard. This breathtaking scene is the view out Heinze's sliding glass doors situated on both sides of a wood-burning fireplace constructed of local stone. (photo by John Heinze)

The Green Allen Brooks story

Lee County Sheriff Robert F. Giles locked the elderly Green Allen Brooks in the Jonesville, VA, jail in April of 1935 after arresting him for the manufacture of illegal liquor. Lee County is the westernmost county in Virginia.

Brooks, who had worked as a teacher, circuit riding preacher, postmaster and store owner, was widely known and respected in the mountain area. News of his arrest brought person after person to Jonesville calling on Lee County officials to intercede in behalf of the "prophet of the hills" as Richard Zanger called him in An Eye For An Eye. Brooks was a member of Hopewell Baptist Church where he was a deacon for over 35 years.

Circuit Court Judge Ezra T. Carter's courtroom was filled to capacity when Green Allen, six feet one inch in height, stood to address the court.

"Judge, I've made moonshine," Brooks, who had several years of legal experience while Claiborne County judge, told the court. "But I made from corn on my own land. Every man in these hills has a right to do that. It's the code of the mountain."

"It was done before the Constitution of these United States and it'll be done a hundred years from now and then another hundred. They can't say I can't use my own corn on my own land to do with as I please. The missus makes apple butter from apples, pies outta blackberries. Judge, I use corn."

Judge Carter coughed into a handkerchief to hide a noticeable smile of appreciation for Brooks' contention. Carter met Brooks in Jonesville many years before and had a deep respect for his knowledge and many accomplishments in life. Carter had remarked on previous occasions that Brooks was an outstanding example for disadvantaged young people.

"Green Allen, I admit there is a code that mountaineers have lived by for many years," Judge Carter said reverently. "But there is a law of the land and I'm bound by that law. I find you guilty of the offense by your own admission. Because of your outstanding record and since this is your first offense—I sentence you to 90 days in jail. Green Allen, I also expect this to be your last offense. Sheriff Giles, take Mr. Brooks to the jail."

Judge Carter checked on Brooks regularly and after sixty days he asked that he be returned to the court.

"Green Allen, I know that your wife is ailing," Carter said. "The summer is coming on and you've got things to do. I trust you've served enough of your time to learn your lesson. I'm gonna see you home today if you promise me you'll not be brought back before me again."

"Judge Carter, I do want to get back to the missus and to the farm," Brooks smiled as he said. "Thank you, judge."

Green Allen reached out his hand and the judge shook it heartily as he said, "Take care of yourself old-timer!"

Sheriff Giles visited with Brooks outside the courtroom.

"I don't want to hear about you breaking the law," the sheriff said. "If you do I'm coming after you myself."

"If you ever want me Sheriff you'd better come after me yourself," Brooks said pointedly. "If you send Redmond or Bailey you'll never see them again."

Green Allen's words made Sheriff Giles uneasy. He awoke very early the following morning thinking of Brooks and what he said. He had difficulty getting back to sleep. He found some peace when he thought, at Brooks' age, there would most likely be no reason to call on him again.

"If he does start up moonshining again then I'll call on him myself," he said to himself. "Or have someone besides Redmond and Bailey go."

With that settled Sheriff Giles went back to sleep. Meanwhile there was a problem at the Brooks farm in the Piney Spur section on the Virginia road on the western edge of Lee County.

Brooks' son-in-law, Luther Poore, had run into problems and lost his job as traveling salesman on the Harlan County route for the Warren P. Rasch Company in Middlesboro. A warrant for embezzlement was issued against the 30-year old Poore and he was holed up at the Brooks residence.

The Middlesboro police learned where he was hiding and sent a fugitive warrant to Jonesville for assistance. Redmond and Bailey, who were residents of western Lee County, were at the sheriff's office when the papers arrived on the morning of July 18, 1935.

The two officers would have second thoughts if it was Green Allen they were going after but it was his son-in-law. Had Sheriff Giles been present he would have told Redmond and Bailey to let one of the other offices go after Poore. Giles was elsewhere on county business.

As the two officers parked on the highway near the Brooks farm they saw three men working on an automobile and at first thought Luther Poore was one of

Attend Prater/May reunion

Among those persons from Prestonsburg attending the fourth annual Prater/May reunion at the Lucasville, Ohio Fairgrounds on Sunday, June 11, were Rev. and Mrs. Jack DeRossett, James E. and Marie Goble, Malta Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Burchett and Kim Lewis. There were about 85 in attendance.

Memorial service held for deceased Floyd teachers

The Floyd County Retired Teachers Association held its regular quarterly meeting Thursday, June 8, at the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center at Jenny Wiley State Park. The meeting was devoted to a special Memorial Service honoring many of Floyd County's deceased retired teachers. By proclamation, song, eulogy and ritual those assembled paid tribute to the hundreds who gave generously of their time and talent to advance the cause of education in Floyd County Schools.

Registration of those in attendance preceded the commemorative event. Assisting with the registration in a special memorial book ordered for the occasion were Danese Amburgey and Emogene Caldwell. Annis Clark directed the seating.

All persons present were welcomed to the meeting and service by Roberta Fugate, president of FCRTA who presided at the gathering.

Music and songs for the occasion were provided by Libby Hall, Joan Chaffins and Patricia Cieslak, a trio from the First Baptist Church at McDowell. Their selections were presented at timely intervals during the service and included "I Need You More," "Lazarus, Come Forth," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Beulah Land," and a medley of popular hymns.

The invocation was given by Virginia Goble who read "Crossing the Bar" and other moving selections. She also led the group in praying The Lord's Prayer. Alice Martin led the Salute to the Flag.

Speaker for the Memorial Service was Ray Brackett, retired superintendent of Floyd County Schools. Mr. Brackett prefaced his remarks with a tribute to all teachers; active, retired and deceased. He praised their generous contribution of both time and talent to bring about a better quality of life for the county, state and nation. He noted the dedication, devotion and effort expended by those charged with the responsibility of guiding our youth.

Mr. Brackett also assisted with the candle-lighting ceremony which was effected in four phases. He eulogized those in whose honor the candles were lit and called the names of those persons as the memorial ritual was performed.

The first phase of the candle-lighting ceremony was dedicated to the memory of all deceased retired teachers prior to inception of the Floyd County Retired Teachers Association in 1971. Lighting a candle in their honor was Alice O. Martin. A full accounting of these persons was impossible to obtain.

The second phase was dedicated to the memory of all the charter members of the organization. Mr. Brackett gave a brief history of the association at this point and named the persons responsible for its inception. The twelve charter members include Carmel Akers, Martha H. Allen, Margaret Collins, Grace Conley, Alice Harris, Josephine Hill, Opal S. May, Lucy Regan, Mae Kay Roberts, Josephine Spradlin, Norma Stepp and Minnie Grace Sutherland. It was noted that several of these members still survive.

Lighting a candle in honor of the charter members was Ruby Akers.

The third and perhaps most touching phase of the candle-lighting service was dedicated to deceased retired teachers who had belonged to FCRTA. As Brackett called the name of each individual, a close friend or relative would step forward and light a candle on that deceased member's behalf.

Assisting with this phase of the ceremony were Ruby Akers and Alice O. Martin. Participating representatives were Marjorie Watson for Neil Watson and Eugene Conley; Annis Clark for Charles Clark; Danese Amburgey for Lewis Campbell; William Hughes for Alton Crisp and Robert Barnett; Sarah Laven for Mildred Hall, Elizabeth Bailey and Grace Conley; Phyllis Ranier for Ruth Worland; Arthur Haywood for Carlos Haywood and Mae Kay Roberts; Gary Frazier for Sherrill and Gladys Frazier; Ken Gayheart for Charles Martin; Mike Cooley for Lema Cooley.

Virginia Jamerson for Wilbur Jamerson; Dewey Jamerson for Genell and May Sue Campbell; Joyce Johnson for Billie Little and Hattie Reedy; Mazie Tackett for Edna Keathley, Edgar Bingham, Jo Allyn Howell and O.E. Stanley; Goldie E. Hamilton for Forrest Curry; Virginia Goble for Opal May and Frankie Best; Norma Stepp for Gladys Stepp and Leatha Wells; Vivian Tackett for Ruth Akers; Vicki Ratliff for Docia Woods; Mary Alice Bush for Oscar Bush, Margaret Compton, Sally Bush and Verdine Bush; Coney Conn for Kelsia and Jessie Elliott.

Ralph Barnett for Lexie Allen; Wecie Allen for Oliver Allen; Alice O. Award recipient

George Archer, Consolidated Health Systems Medicare Benefits Counselor and Senior Advantage Coordinator, and Kentucky winner of the 1995 HCFA Merit Award.

Archer receives HCFA merit award

George Archer, Medicare Benefits Counselor and Senior Advantage Program Coordinator for Consolidated Health Systems in Prestonsburg, has been selected as a recipient of the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) Merit Award for 1995. The award was presented on May 25 in Baltimore, Maryland, by Bruce C. Vladeck, administrator of HCFA. Locally, Archer was nominated by Donna Morton, professional relations representative, Beneficiary Outreach for Administrator of Kentucky, the organization responsible for processing Medicare claims in Kentucky. Administar is located in Louisville.

Nationwide, there were 100 award nominations. From that group, 35 awardees were selected. Archer was the only award recipient from Kentucky.

Archer was honored for his work in implementing the Medicare Benefits Program developed by Consolidated Health Systems (parent company of Highlands Regional Medical Center) approximately four years ago.

At that time, Consolidated identified the need for a service to act as a resource for Medicare beneficiaries and various health care providers. Archer was hired to counsel patients with Medicare billing concerns, and immediately began to receive requests to speak at various Senior Citizens Centers concerning Medicare counseling. Consolidated, realizing the extent of interest in the information Archer was presenting, initiated plans to increase the scope of the program and offer a Seniors Program with additional benefits. Archer was selected to serve as Coordinator for both the Medicare Benefits Counseling Program and the Senior Advantage Program.

Through these programs, sponsored by Consolidated, Archer provides extensive counseling throughout the region at Senior Citizens Centers, at Senior Advantage meetings, and at other community meetings. During the past three years, Archer has provided one-to-one counseling for over 2,000 seniors.

Myth spot reduction

Many people believe that doing sit ups will help them trim their stomach. Television ads are loaded with products claiming to help people reduce their stomachs. These products sell because the public wants to believe that spot reduction works.

Spot reduction is the belief that a particular calisthenic exercise will reduce fat on a particular part of the body. This is a very appealing myth. Unfortunately, it is not true. Muscle and fat have little to do with one another, and it is possible to have both in the same spot. A study comparing tennis players' right and left arms found that the arms did not differ in amount of fat but did differ in the amount of muscle. If spot reduction did work you would expect the arm used to hold the racquet to contain less fat.

Reduction can occur in some spots more readily than others, however. When weight is lost, both fat and muscle tissue are depleted. If a person exercises during weight reduction, muscle tissue is built, for a net gain of muscle and a net loss of fat. This can appear to be spot reduction, since fat tends to be lost from the places in which it is most abundant. Therefore, hips, thighs, or stomach may reduce more quickly than other spots because of diet and exercise, but this effect is not due to spot reduction exercises. Body fat distribution is under genetic control, so some spots may never look like the ideal.

The belief in spot reduction can have its hazards, both physical and financial. Certain calisthenics that have been promoted as spot-reducing aids can cause injuries. These include straight leg situps, hyperextension of the back, deep knee bends, and any exercise involving bouncing stretches. Such exercises should be avoided, for spot reducing or any other purpose. The financial hazards come from the purchase of exercise equipment and enrollment in expensive health clubs that promote spot reduction. No exercise can cause a loss of fat in a particular spot, so advertising that promises such a loss is deceptive. As the old saying goes, "If it sounds too good to be true then it probably is." In conclusion, diet and aerobic exercise for at least 30 minutes a day will reduce fat in a genetically determined way.

Tip of the Week: Walking one mile will use approximately 100 calories.

Christopher G. Fleming is the Project Health Coordinator at Prestonsburg Community College. He has a bachelor's degree in Health and Physical Education, a master's degree in Education, and a Master's plus Thirty with emphasis in Exercise Science. Fleming is also a certified American College of Sports Medicine Health Fitness Instructor.

Last week was proclaimed National Men's Health Week

County Judge Executive Bob Meyer proclaimed June 12-18 as Men's Health Week in Floyd County. Traditionally, Men's Health is the most neglected of all health care. This is especially true of preventive health measures.

The Health Department has recently started a program for adult health physicals. These are available to men as well as women and involve screening assessments for chronic diseases such as cancer, diabetes and hypertension. Also, men may not be aware that the family planning program of the health department has services for them. There are a limited number of vasectomies offered to men who qualify by income, there is also contraceptives and counseling offered to men.

Any man wishing to have a physical assessment should call the health department at 886-2788 for an appointment.

PCC president named to Higher Education Task Force

Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, president of Prestonsburg Community College, has been appointed to a special Task Force for a Comprehensive Study of Higher Education. The Task Force, established by the state Legislative Research Commission, is scheduled to begin meeting late this month.

Floyd was notified of her appointment to the Task Force in a letter signed by state Senate President John "Eck" Rose and Jody Richards, Speaker of the state House of Representatives.

According to the letter, this Task Force was created out of a concern that "higher education be prepared to meet the challenges of the next century."

"An excellent system of higher education is critical to the educational and economic well-being of the Commonwealth," the letter says.

According to the letter, the Task Force will be composed of 10 legislators, eight representatives of higher education and three citizens-at-large. Floyd was invited to be a citizen member of the Task Force "that will review the higher education governance structure, identify ways to use tax funds more efficiently, review the tuition-setting process, and make other recommendations to improve the system."

The letter says Rose and Richards expect the Task Force to meet monthly and complete its work prior to the 1996 session of the General Assembly. According to the letter, the Task Force's first meeting will be Wednesday, June 14, at 10 a.m. in Room 149 of the Capitol Annex in Frankfort.

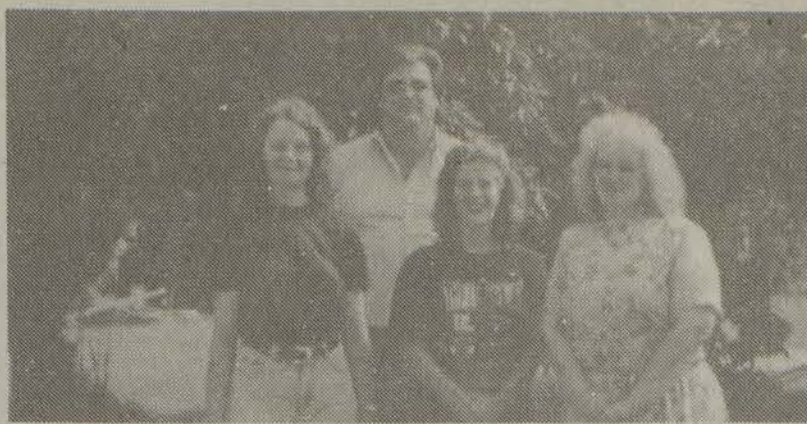

To prepare for the group's first meeting, Floyd said, she intends to listen to the concerns of students, faculty and administrators at PCC, as well as those of members of the community-at-large.

Rose and Richards will co-chair the Task Force. Other legislative members include Charlie Borders, Senate Minority Whip; David Karem, Senate Majority Floor Leader; Dan Kelly, a minority party member of the Senate appointed by Rose, and Joseph U. Meyer, Chairman of the Senate Education Committee, as well as Freed Curd, Chairman of the House Education Committee; Danny Ford, House Minority Whip; Greg Stumbo, House Majority Floor Leader, and Ernest Fletcher, a minority party member of the House appointed by Richards.

University presidents on the task force include Dr. S. Kern Alexander of Murray State University, Dr. Leon E. Boothe of Northern Kentucky University, Dr. Ronald G. Eaglin of Morehead State University, Dr. Hanly Funderburk of Eastern Kentucky University, Dr. Thomas C. Meredith of Western Kentucky University, Dr. John Shumaker of the University of Louisville, Dr. Mary L. Smith of Kentucky State University and Dr. Charles Wethington of the University of Kentucky.

In addition to Floyd, the other citizen-at-large members are Beverly Keepers, principal of DuPont Manual High School in Louisville, and Dr. James Way of Richmond, retired professor of Industrial and Vocational Technology at Eastern Kentucky University.

Dental Health Today

by Michael K. McKinney, D.M.D.

Periodontal disease—early diagnosis

You have just completed your regular dental checkup. You breathe a deep sigh of relief. "No cavities, but your gums are in poor shape." You are mistakenly relieved. The sad fact is that more teeth are lost because of periodontal disease (gum disease) than from any other factor, including cavities.

Fortunately, it can be treated successfully if it is diagnosed early. Unfortunately, you have no way of knowing of its onset other than by dental examination because there is normally no pain or other symptoms in its early stages.

Once this silent disorder advances, though, the gums and even the jawbone may become inflamed and eventually break down. But this extreme can be avoided if the dentist regularly examines your mouth both visually and with x-rays. He can determine whether there have been any changes in the mouth tissues or the bone around your teeth. He will also look for early tooth decay, impacted teeth, tumors in the jaw area and abscesses in tooth roots. To insure healthy gums and teeth, you must combine regular dental examinations with effective brushing and flossing. It is recommended that you have a check-up every 6 months.

BEEF AND VEGETABLES IN MUSTARD SAUCE

4 medium potatoes, peeled, washed and cut into large chunks
 1 medium or large onion, quartered
 1 tsp. tarragon
 1 large carrot, thickly sliced
 3 cups low-fat beef broth or low-sodium beef bouillon
 3/4 lb. very lean beef (top round or flank)
 1 10-oz. package frozen cauliflower
 5 oz. evaporated skim milk
 1 1/2 Tbsps. coarse-grained mustard

Place potatoes, onion, tarragon, carrot and broth in a large pot. Simmer gently for 25 minutes. Meanwhile, trim all exterior fat off meat and cut across the grain into thick slices. When the vegetables are nearly cooked, add the beef and frozen cauliflower for five minutes (for well-done beef, simmer for seven minutes). Stir in the evaporated milk and the mustard, and heat for two more minutes.

MEXICAN PIE

1 cup onions, chopped
 15-1/2 oz. can kidney beans, rinsed and drained
 16-oz. can whole tomatoes with no salt added
 2 cups frozen corn
 2 cups sweet green pepper, chopped
 2-3 tsps. chili powder
 1 tsp. ground cumin
 1 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
 8 corn tortillas
 1/4 to 1/2 cup tomato salsa
 1/4 to 1/2 cup plain non-fat or low-fat yogurt (or non-fat sour cream)

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Place the chopped onion in a small bowl and cover with water while chopping the remaining vegetables. Combine the remaining vegetables in a large mixing bowl, slicing the tomatoes as they are added; add the chili powder, cumin, and Worcestershire sauce. Drain the onions and add them to the mixture.

Place two tortillas in the bottom of a two-quart casserole. Top with about one-fifth of vegetable mixture. Repeat alternating layers of tortillas and vegetables, ending with vegetables on top.

Cover and bake at 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Top each serving with a tablespoon or two of salsa and yogurt or non-fat sour cream.

PEROGIES

Dough:
 2 eggs
 4 tablespoons vegetable oil (optional)
 5 cups of flour
 1 pinch of salt
 Warm water
 ***
 Crab Tomato Filling:
 1 tablespoon butter
 1 medium onion chopped
 1 ripe tomato seeded & chopped
 3/4 lb. crabmeat
 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
 1/4 tablespoon capers
 1 tablespoon rice wine vinegar
 1/2 tablespoon fresh thyme

Salt and pepper to taste
 White bread cut in circle

DOUGH: In large bowl put the eggs, salt and vegetable oil. Swish around and add warm water. Add the 5 cups of flour (or more depending on quantity you want). Mix well adding flour or water until you get a smooth non-sticky dough. When dough is the right consistency put in a clean bowl and cover with a plate. Let it rest until you make your fillings.

FILLING: Heat butter, sauté onion and tomato 6 to 8 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Cook 5 minutes. Put 1 tablespoon filling in center of bread or dough. Crimp and fry in butter or brown in toaster oven.

STRAWBERRY MERINGUES

Here is a dessert full of contrasts in tastes and textures: crunchy sweet meringues, billowy whipped cream and refreshing juicy berries.

You will need a pastry bag to pipe out the meringue shells.

Serves 8
 3 large egg whites, at room temperature

Pinch of cream of tartar
 Pinch of salt
 1 cup sugar
 1/2 of a vanilla bean, split
 2 pints strawberries
 1 1/2 cups heavy cream, chilled
 1/4 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
 2 tablespoons coarsely crushed amaretti cookies

1. Preheat the oven to 200°. Butter and flour a large baking sheet and using a glass or can as a template, mark eight 4-inch circles on the sheet.

2. Rinse a large bowl with hot water and dry it. Place the egg whites in the bowl and, using a hand-held electric mixer, beat until foamy. Add the cream of tartar and salt and beat until soft peaks form. Then beat in 9 tablespoons of the sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, until the whites hold stiff peaks.

3. Using the tip of a knife, scrape the seeds from the vanilla bean into 3 tablespoons of the sugar and stir well. Fold the vanilla sugar into the egg whites with a rubber spatula until evenly incorporated.

4. Scoop the meringue into a pastry bag fitted with a 1/4-inch fluted tip. Pipe the meringue in spirals to fill in the circles marked on the baking sheet; then build up the sides to give each a rim about 1/2 inch high. Bake for about 1 1/2 hours, until crisp and very lightly colored. (The meringues can be made up to 2 days ahead; store carefully in an airtight container.)

5. Rinse and dry the strawberries. Using a small sharp knife, hull the berries and thinly slice lengthwise. Place the berries in a bowl and toss them with 3 tablespoons of the sugar. Refrigerate until cold, 1 to 2 hours.

6. In a medium bowl, using the electric mixer, whip the chilled heavy cream with the remaining 1 tablespoon sugar and the vanilla extract until it forms soft peaks.

7. To serve, place the meringue shells on plates. Spoon the whipped cream into the shells. Spoon the strawberries and their juice over the whipped cream and sprinkle the amaretti crumbs over all. Serve at once.

LIGHTER CHOCOLATE DECADENCE

1 1/4 cups sugar, divided
 2/3 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
 2 tablespoons flour
 3/4 cup non-fat milk
 5 ounces semisweet chocolate (about 3/4 cup semisweet chocolate pieces)

1/4 cup prune puree
 1 whole egg
 1 egg yolk
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 2 egg whites
 1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
 Raspberry sauce**
 1 1/2 cups light whipped topping
 Fresh raspberries, optional

Preheat oven to 350F. Line bottom of 9-inch round layer cake pan or 9-inch spring-form pan with baking parchment; coat pan with vegetable cooking spray. In saucepan, combine 1 cup of the sugar, the cocoa powder and flour. Gradually whisk in milk to blend. Bring to simmer over low heat, stirring. Place chocolate in large bowl; pour hot milk mixture over chocolate, stirring to melt. Whisk in prune puree, whole egg, egg yolk and vanilla to blend; set aside to cool. In mixer bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar until foamy. Gradually beat in remaining sugar until mixture is stiff but not dry. With rubber spatula, fold half the egg white mixture into cooled chocolate mixture, then fold in remaining egg white mixture. Pour into pan. Bake in center of oven 30 to 35 minutes until puffy and center is set but still moist (do not overbake). Cool completely on rack. Loosen edges and invert onto plastic wrap or aluminum foil; wrap and invert again. (If using spring-form, remove side of pan; wrap and refrigerate cake.) Chill 24 hours before serving. (Cake can be frozen). Cut into wedges; serve with Raspberry sauce (recipe follows) and whipped topping. Garnish with fresh raspberries. Makes 12 servings.

**Raspberry sauce: Thaw 1 package (12 ounces) frozen raspberries. Puree in blender; strain to remove seeds. Sweeten to taste with sugar. Makes about 1 cup.

CORN ON THE GRILL

12 ears fresh corn in husks
 1/2 cup butter
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

• Pull back husks from corn (do not remove). Remove silks.
 • Rub corn with butter; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Pull husk over corn, and tie top with heavy string.
 • Cook, covered with grill lid, over medium-hot coals (350° to 400°) 15 to 20 minutes, turning occasionally.
 • Remove strings, and serve immediately. Yield: 12 servings.

BARBECUE SAUCE

1 cup maple syrup
 1 cup ketchup
 1 cup finely chopped onion
 1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 1/4 cup apple cider vinegar
 1/4 cup lemon juice
 1/4 cup water
 2 tablespoons olive oil

2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

2 teaspoons finely chopped garlic
 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon hot sauce

• Combine all ingredients in a saucepan.

• Bring to a boil; reduce heat, and simmer 20 minutes. Cool.

• Pour mixture into container of a blender; process until smooth.
 • Remove 1 cup sauce, and brush over chicken the last 30 minutes of cooking time. Serve chicken with remaining sauce. Refrigerate sauce up to 1 month.

SUNTEA

4 tea bags, preferably a blend of Orange Pekoe and Pekoe-cut black tea

6 cups springwater or filtered water

6 fresh spearmint sprigs plus additional sprigs, for serving

Ice, lemon wedges and sugar, for serving

1. In a 2-quart clear glass jar or pitcher, combine the tea bags with the water and the 6 spearmint sprigs. Cover and set in a sunny window or on the back porch until the tea is strong, about 5 hours.

2. Discard the tea bags. Pour the tea into glasses filled with ice, garnish with lemon wedges and mint sprigs and serve, adding sugar as needed.

Jason has been in Junior High Band for two years and has played with South Floyd High School's band for two years. He has attended All-County Band for three years. He ranked second for two consecutive years and ranked 1st Chair trumpet this year. Jason has auditioned for All-District Band for two years placing fourth last year and second this year. # Sunshine Lines

by Beverly Carroll

I bought many of the items she suggested. The total bill for this shopping spree came to about $200. In less than a month I would be going back to college. I knew there was no way I could pay her back before school started.

In the fall I returned to the same part-time job I always had during the school months. When I saw my aunt over Thanksgiving, I still had not accumulated enough "chicken feed" to pay her. However, my goal was to be able to pay her in full when I returned at Christmas. More than anything else, that was the gift I wanted to give to myself.

Before I knew it the holidays approached. I was homeward bound—back to my parents, to St. Louis, and to my aunt's. One evening, while she was busily preparing yummy, festive food, I approached her. "Close your eyes and hold out your hand," I said. A smile came over her face as she obeyed my wish. I felt so good as I put a wad of twenty dollar bills in her outstretched hand, closed her fingers around them, gave her a peck on the cheek and said, "Thank you." As she opened her eyes and looked into her hand, I said, "That's for the clothes I charged last summer." I really think I offended her.

She said, "You take this back. I don't need it right now. Some day you will be able to help somebody. When you do you will be repaying me."

Through the years there have been times when I have been able to help people. It feels so good. When I do, I take a moment to look up and say, silently, "Aunt Melba, I'm just repaying a loan." I see her smiling, but sadly, she doesn't answer back. She lives on though through the lesson she taught me about the job of sharing.

Sunshine Lines is brought to you through the efforts of the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. This column is exclusively for our area's mature readers—our beloved senior citizens.

Next week we'll return to the more serious side of current issues concerning people 60 years of age and over. We'll discuss the "Medigap Special One-Time Window." But if you turned 65 between November 5, 1991, and December 31, 1994, don't wait until next week's article to find out more about it. Call your local Medicare office today. To take advantage of this "Special Window" one must apply before June 30.

Senior citizens, today's article will be the last in this series dedicated to honoring older Americans. It has been fun sharing precious memories with you, the past four weeks, as I wrote about special older people who have been instrumental in my life.

Through the years, you too, have touched the lives of people. You may never know it, but someday there will be somebody, somewhere, who will be grateful for the lesson you taught. As a finale to this series, allow me to share with you how a beloved aunt, long deceased, lives on through a lesson she taught me 30 years ago.

As a teenager I liked to spend as much time as possible in St. Louis with Aunt Melba. When I went to college, I returned to St. Louis to work during the summers at the same place I worked the summer between high school and college. You've got it! I stayed with Aunt Melba.

It seemed we always worked conflicting schedules. She worked days. I worked afternoons and evenings. She had the weekends free. I worked weekends. Much of our communication, during those days, was in the form of handwritten notes left on the dining room table.

One day, lying under a note she had written, was an ad she had torn from the newspaper. Beside it lay a credit card. She had written that she wanted me to take her credit card, go to Famous-Barr, and buy clothes for school. "It's a good sale." She had written. Listed in the note were several items she felt I should purchase.
