Feds begin grand jury investigations

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

A federal grand jury in Ashland began hearing testimony Wednesday into a federal probe involving Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond.

Seven witnesses appeared before the grand jury Wednesday, including two employees from the county attorney's office and workers in Hammond's private law firm.

From those witnesses who testified Wednesday, the probe apparently involves issues related to the child support enforcement department administered through the county attorney's office.

Sandra Belcher, whose work for Hammond involves child support cases, testified before the grand jury for about 30 minutes Wednesday.

Also appearing were case worker Chris Waugh; assistant county attorney Bob Bishop; and four employees who work in Hammond's law office.

Witnesses declined to comment on their testimony Wednesday.

Grand jurors recessed at about 4:30 Wednesday afternoon and are scheduled to meet again on July 19.

A clerk in the federal district court office said Wednesday that grand jurors usually are in session one day a month.

Assistant United States Attorney Ken Taylor presided over the proceedings.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agent Steve Stacy declined to comment on Wednesday's proceedings. Prior to the grand jury convening Wednesday morning, Stacy carried in boxes of what appeared to be documents.

FBI agents issued about 30 subpoenas last month and a portion of those subpoenas were reportedly for records. Some of those subpoenas were delivered to banks, court reporters and Floyd Judge-Executive Bob Meyer.

The federal probe reportedly is related to Hammond's personal finances and it appears now that it could involve child support issues.

Federal officials have declined to offer any comments related to the investigation.

Earlier this month, Hammond's attorney, Bernard Pafunda of Pikeville, confirmed that Hammond was a target of the federal probe.

Bishop quits co. attorney's office

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Floyd County assistant county attorney Bob Bishop has resigned from his post, a day after testifying before a federal grand jury in Ashland investigating county attorney Jim Hammond.

Bishop declined to say Thursday if his resignation is related to his grand jury appearance on Wednesday.

Bishop and Hammond, apparently had a verbal altercation Thursday morning in the county attorney's office, according to witnesses. It is not known if that confrontation was related to Bishop's grand jury appearance.

There have been several shake-ups this week in the county attorney's office, including Hammond's announcement Tuesday that his office will no longer prepare or recommend criminal warrants and summons for the judge's consideration.

Floyd District Judge James Allen said Thursday that he disagrees with Hammond's opinion that that is not the county attorney's responsibility.

There is no statutory provision outlining whose responsibility it is to prepare warrants, but Judge Allen pointed out a 1983 opinion from the attorney general's office which says that it is the duty of the county attorney to prepare complaints and warrants of arrest, search warrants and subpoenas for witnesses.

Floyd Commonwealth Attorney John Earl Hunt's office has taken over those duties until the issue can be resolved, Judge Allen said.

"It's a big problem right now."

Eastern Kentucky woodworkers craft marketing coalition

Eastern Kentucky Woodworkers are coming out of the woodwork! Artists, crafters, furniture makers, manufacturers and even carpenters are uniting to market their goods as well as preserve the environment.

"Together we can develop products that are environmentally compatible as well as feature a cultural forté of the area," said Brenda Cockerham, University of Kentucky Extension agent who is coordinating the program.

"We find that nearly everyone who makes things out of wood fits into certain categories," Cockerham said.

Art is usually one of a kind pieces and usually tends to be expensive.

Crafts are usually made following a pattern, lower priced and often functional.

Furniture and cabinet makers fit into a category referred to as "craftsmen" because they make things the old-fashioned way and don't really fit into other categories, she said.

Manufacturers typically specialize in certain products, make large quantities and usually use high-tech equipment to manufacture the products.

Carpenters tend to have extensive skills that are versatile, enabling them to travel from category to category, she said.

"Our goal," said Cockerham, "is to identify as many woodworkers per county as possible. We then hope to pinpoint their interests."

"We have put together profiles, specifying what category (categories) they work in, price ranges, how to reach them, and just how interested they are in selling. After each county is surveyed, the top eight to 10 interested per county will receive assistance with photography, marketing strategies, and relevant training in specific skills," she said.

The group will unite in an effort to begin flexible networking, where several of the members work cooperatively to fulfill large orders, she said.

Cockerham said that others are welcome to join the team later on, but assistance can only be provided within certain time frames. For more information feel free to call the Johnson County Extension Office at 606-789-8108, or the extension office nearest you.

Dental work in progress at UK dental van

A University of Kentucky van is bridging the gap to dental care for some Floyd County children, age 2 through 12.

The UK Dental School, in conjunction with the Floyd County Health Department, will offer dental services to children who qualify according to income standards. The UK Dental Van is located beside the health department, in the parking lot behind the Floyd County Board of Education.

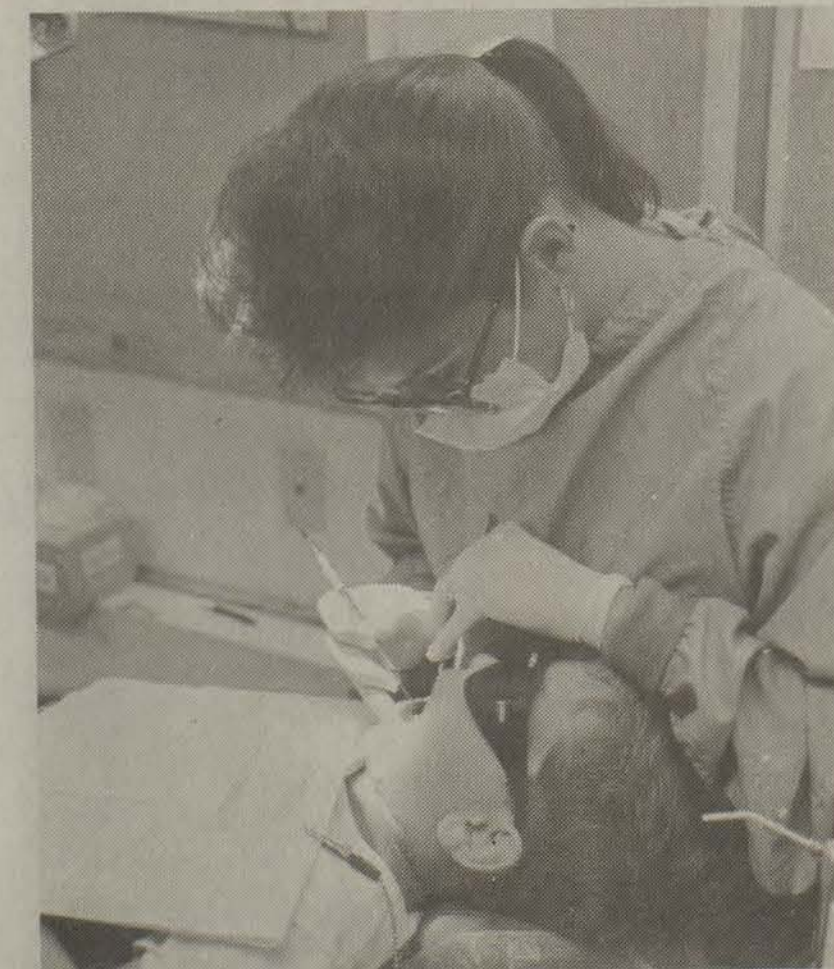

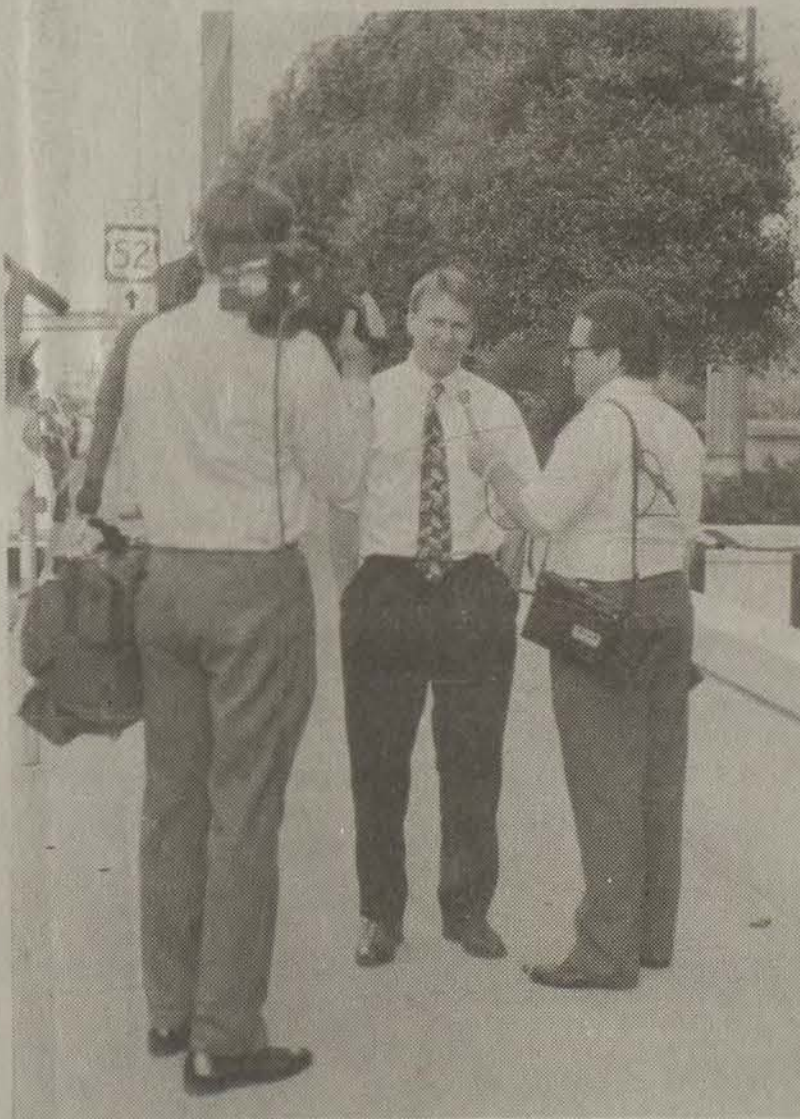

Through a grant, dental services are provided free to children whose parents meet the eligibility requirements. For instance, dental service is free for the children of a family of four whose income averages $28,028

Evidence presented to federal grand jury in Ashland

A federal grand jury investigating Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond began hearing evidence Wednesday in Ashland. Prior to Wednesday's proceedings, FBI agent Steve Stacy, pictured at top, carried in boxes of what appeared to be documents. Chris Waugh, at right, a case worker in the county attorney's office, declined to comment to reporters before his grand jury appearance. Also called as witnesses Wednesday were assistant county attorney Bob Bishop, child support enforcement worker Sandra Belcher and four other of Hammond's employees. The grand jury issued no findings Wednesday and is scheduled to meet again on July 19. The federal probe reportedly concerns Hammond's personnel finances and apparently issues related to child support enforcement. (photos by Susan Allen)

Jacobs trial is moved again

by Susan Allen Staff Writer

Citing pretrial publicity and location, a change of venue was ordered Thursday in the case of accused murderer Clawvern Jacobs.

Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill ordered that the trial be moved to Warren County in Western Kentucky.

Jacobs is charged with murder, kidnapping and attempted rape in connection with the 1987 murder of Alice Lloyd College student Judy Ann Howard.

Judge Caudill also granted a continuance and set a November 6 trial date because assistant attorney general Barbara Whaley has withdrawn as prosecutor in the case.

Whaley, who has been the prosecutor in the Jacobs case since it began in 1987, is leaving the attorney general's office in September to enter a seminary. Whaley commented that she plans to enter the ministry.

Regarding his decision to move the trial, Judge Caudill pointed to an April 28 editorial in The Floyd County Times by publisher Scott Perry relating to Judge Caudill's ruling that Jacobs was competent to stand trial and participate in his own defense.

Perry's editorial said that "a person competent enough to commit a crime is competent enough to be tried for it on the evidence, and competent enough to be punished."

Perry declined to comment Thursday on the judge's ruling.

Judge Caudill said at Thursday's hearing that Perry's editorial was part of his decision for the change of venue and other factors, such as Floyd County's close proximity to Knott County, where the crime occurred, and to Martin County, where the victim lived, also contributed to the change. The judge said those issues could make it difficult to secure an impartial jury in Floyd County.

Also Thursday, defense attorney Kelly Gleason asked the judge to exclude the death penalty from the case.

Judge Caudill overruled the motion.

Also, Gleason asked the judge to reconsider his decision in April that Jacobs is competent to stand trial and aid in his own defense. Gleason also asked that Jacobs be declared mentally ill because he suffers from an organic brain disease which causes delusions.

Judge Caudill overruled those motions, also.

Jacobs was convicted in the case and sentenced to death in 1988, but the state Supreme Court reversed the conviction, saying Jacobs should not have been tried in Knott County.

Layne House addition opens facility to women

Floyd County area women will have a place to live in Prestonsburg while recovering from substance abuse, due to a $10,000 grant to Mountain Comprehensive Care Center from the Housing Foundation Inc.

The Housing Foundation's grant will help pay for the $43,300 in construction work to renovate 13 new rooms at the Layne House, a residential treatment center for victims of substance abuse operated by Mountain Comprehensive Care.

Floyd County students honored by University of Kentucky deans

Twenty students from Floyd County have been honored by the University of Kentucky for outstanding academic work.

The UK students were named to the dean's list of their respective colleges for the spring semester and are among the top five percent of all undergraduate students enrolled at UK.

"We are proud of the ever-increasing academic quality of our students," said UK President Charles T. Wethington Jr. "Students who are being honored for achievement in their studies deserve our recognition and appreciation for their hard work and efforts."

The Floyd County students and their majors are Ashley Grey Bailey of Prestonsburg, senior, management; Joe Arthur Burchett Jr. of Prestonsburg, senior, civil engineering; Michael Thomas Cecil of Harold, senior, pharmacy; and Stephanie Nichole DeRossett of Lexington, senior, sociology.

Also, Anthony Ray Griffith of Lexington, senior, computer science;

This summer marks the third summer for the project. Dr. John Mink and Dr. Angela Templeton, pediatric dentists from the UK staff, and dental students will offer a variety of dental services to the children, including dental x-rays.

More than 146 children have been scheduled to see the dentists. Because this has been going on for three years, many of these children are seen through follow-up visits from previous years.

The dental van will be at the health department until the end of July. For more information about the program, or to schedule an appointment, call Brenda Auxier at the health department at 886-2788.

The Layne House grant is one of 13 awards made by The Housing Foundation's Board of Directors June 14. Foundation grants and loans totaling $291,500 will make possible $3.3 million in affordable housing efforts by community-based organizations around the state.

Bishop

Judge Allen said. "We had a good system with those three people in the county attorney's office. We had no problems at all."

In a letter Tuesday to Judge Allen, Hammond cited recent budget cuts by Floyd Judge-Executive Bob Meyer for his decision to no longer prepare warrants and summons. A portion of the employees' salaries in the county attorney's criminal division is paid for with state revenues.

The positions in the county attorney's office held by Chris Waugh and Peggy Newsome were not funded in the county's 1995-96 budget and Bishop's salary paid by county funds was reduced.

Hammond's letter suggested that law enforcement officials seek warrants from the county's trial commissioner or the district judge.

Judge Allen said Thursday that it would be a conflict for him to prepare warrants and he knows of no other district judge who does.

"I feel it is a conflict for me to write a warrant and be impartial when I hear the case," Judge Allen said. "Based upon the opinion of people I've called, they agree it's that way, including the attorney general's office. I talked to surrounding counties and I can't find any county where the district judge writes warrants."

Judge Allen said that he hoped the fiscal court or the county attorney can find the funding to keep Hammond's office staffed.

"It needs to get resolved," Judge Allen said. "In all honesty, in my view the fiscal court should fund the county attorney's office as it should be. We had a good working relationship with those people that have been here. They did an efficient and good job. It's a sad thing because the public will suffer. People that have problems need to be able to get a warrant. We need to do the job we're elected and paid to do to serve the public the way they should be served."

Judge Allen said he did not know what portion of those employees' salaries are funded through the state. As for Bishop, Judge Allen said,

"I'm not happy with losing him. If he's gone, it's gonna hurt us."

The state's Administrative Office of the Courts has been informed of the situation, Judge Allen said.

This summer, the Kentucky Opry is entering its fifth season of home-grown entertainment. The Opry opens its summer performances on June 26 at the Jenny Wiley State Resort Park Amphitheatre in Prestonsburg.

Fans of all ages have come to know and love the special blend of comedy, dance, and music which includes songs from the '50s and '60s, country, pop, gospel, and jazz.

The Opry is a consistent source of pride for the area. It highlights the outstanding talent in Eastern Kentucky and draws tourists from all around the country.

"We've got a great line-up of shows this year," says founder Billie Jean Osborne. "All of our talented Opry cast will be back, plus there will be a lot of new faces and new material."

Among the familiar faces returning this year are the Whited brothers—Tony, not only the lead singer, but a very capable musician, comfortable not only on keyboards but also an excellent percussionist; James, on guitar, sax, mandolin (or almost any other instrument he picks up). Also band member Ray Salyer will bring to the stage his unique style on bass guitar along with backup vocals. Keeping the band always in the right beat is one of Eastern Kentucky's finest drummers, Dwayne Benge. Chris Lafferty returns on keyboards and vocals. Rounding out this outstanding group of musicians is one of the country's top fiddle players, David Morris, who never fails to get hands clapping and toes tapping.

Misty Daniels, Raetta Damron, and Dannette James will also be returning to the Opry family with new songs, dance numbers, and their famous eye-catching costumes.

The Opry wouldn't be complete, of course, without Munroe Birdshot whose original comedy is beyond compare. On occasion, he has also been known to treat the audiences with his talents as a musician and singer.

One of the Opry's most requested acts, the Blues Brothers (Allen James and Craig Collins), will take the stage again this year, keeping alive Jake and Elwood as you have never seen them before! Jonathan Estep will be back with his own style of song and dance to dazzle audiences on a regular basis. Jonathan was once a member of the Opry's Jr. Pros. The Jr. Pros are the original young performance group started by Miss Billie Jean to work with and give stage experience to talented young people who are still in school. There are at present seven Jr. Pro groups consisting of students from Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Knott, and Perry counties.

Opry goers should look for these outstanding young talents as they will be featured throughout the season. In fact, some of the younger groups will have the opportunity to open for the Opry during its regular performances.

"That's what the Opry and the Mountain Arts Center is all about," says Miss Billie Jean. "We have so much talent in our schools, and with the opportunity to learn, improve, and get real stage experience, there will always be new young faces moving up into the spotlight."

"And, who knows, one of them may turn out to be the next Eastern Kentucky star who joins the ranks of Dwight Yoakam, Loretta Lynn, Crystal Gayle, Billy Ray Cyrus, The Judds, Patty Loveless and Ricky Skaggs."

The Opry's Monday night performances this year are scheduled June 26 (opening night), July 3, 10, 17, 24, and 31, August 7 and 14. The Opry will also present its Gospel Night on August 26. The Opry will also carry under its wing the Kentucky Highland Folk Festival show on Labor Day weekend.

The Opry is looking forward to next season when it will gain a new home in the $7 million Mountain Arts Center.

"We'll be progressing toward larger casts, more specialty numbers, and a wider variety of music and performers on the larger stage of the Arts Center's 1,000-seat theatre," Billie Jean commented.

As for this season, General Manager Greg Crum said: "Reservations for all performances can be made now by calling the box office at (606) 886-2623. Ticket prices are unchanged; $10 for adults, $8 for seniors (60 and over), and $6 for students (18 and under). The Opry will accept VISA and MasterCard. Special rates are also available for groups of 20 or more. Call the box office for more information."

Another prescription for growing pains

by Scott Perry

The latest proposal for building a new Floyd County courthouse calls for the development only of a judicial complex, which would presumably house offices for district and circuit judges and include space for courtrooms.

County offices would stay put, and the costs associated with the new building would be picked up by the state's Administrative Office of the Courts and at no direct cost to the county's taxpayers.

It's a reasonable and fiscally sound approach to our expansion needs, but there are some concerns that the county will lose revenues from the rent the AOC is paying now for judicial space.

There is, though, another alternative which might be considered.

The third floor of the courthouse will be vacated in the near future, when the new county jail is completed, and there could be enough room there to create new space for courtrooms and judicial offices.

Renovating the third floor would likely cost less than building a new building, and it would continue to provide rental revenues to the county.

Moving the judicial complex up a flight would leave the space used now for circuit court on the second floor open for county offices, including sizable meeting room for the fiscal court.

By reallocating and renovating existing space at the courthouse, the municipal parking lot would still be available and there would be no need to search for new, downtown parking facilities.

We should add, that whatever project is finally approved will cost the taxpayers money. The AOC gets its money from us, in a round about way, just like the county.

The least costly, most efficient way to go seems to be available by utilizing existing space.

We would urge all parties concerned to explore that option.

Future of America could resemble past

Editor:
Republicans are saying America needs to look back at its past and return to simpler times. Through their "Contract with America," Republicans have decided that 1929 seems like a good place to start.

Last fall's election has been defined by Newt Gingrich as a mandate to wage war on "big government." Strange, that only the government which ensures clean air and water, protects us from unsafe workplaces, inspects the food we eat, the products we use, and the airplanes on which we fly, as well as helping to ease the suffering and hardships our parents face during retirement years, is too big.

The government which hands over public forests and lands for commercial exploitation, gives thousands of dollars in tax refunds to millionaires, and funds an expanding war machine in peacetime, is perfectly fine with Republicans. So, too, is the government which tells you what you can and cannot do in your bedroom and determines which books and movies are "acceptable."

Republicans say underprivileged children don't have a right at a head start on their educational opportunities—that hungry children shouldn't eat breakfast at school at government expense; but wealthy parents ought to be able to send their kids to private school at taxpayers' expense.

It is the Republicans who counsel us that hard work is the key to prosperity—while fighting any increase in the minimum wage and offering tax breaks to corporations which move their factories to foreign countries in order to hire slave labor.

Republicans favor a government that "compensates" landowners whose use of their land has been restricted in some way for a greater public good. In Florida alone, the federal government would have to pay 28 billion dollars to the state's top nine landowners, who just happen to be corporations. Republicans feel that such national treasures as the Everglades need no protection.

Here in Kentucky, millions of dollars would be paid to "compensate" coal companies for land they own but never intended to mine.

And how will we honestly call our courts the justice system when funding for legal services is reduced and a person's ability to seek redress for grievances is determined, not by the worthiness of his case, but by the vastness of his wealth?

How dare Republicans claim that this country is suffering because the poor make too much money and the rich don't make enough. Why are Republicans attacking public welfare programs but not corporate welfare benefits? Why have they declared not a war on poverty but on the poor themselves?

The issue is not about deficits, as Republicans claim, but about dismantling a government which they despise because it sets limits on those who have tremendous power and who have demonstrated the ability and willingness to abuse it. Remember how the savings and loan industry renounced when it was "freed from cumbersome regulations?"

Republicans need to be held accountable for their "breach of contract." Or the future of America could look too much like its darkest past.

$1.3 million for a ballfield for Betsy Layne?

Editor:
$1.3 million for a ballfield you ask? Yes. How can this be? The Floyd County Board of Education at Brent Clark's urging cut $1.3 million from the Betsy Layne Elementary project. What did Brent Clark get in exchange for cutting this huge amount of money from the Betsy Layne project? Maybe a ballfield? Maybe not?

The $1.3 million cut from the Betsy

Layne Elementary project would have: 1) protected the kids from the rain and elements by installing canopies between the buildings; 2) provided needed renovation to repair the existing old buildings which have problems such as inadequate electrical systems that should be upgraded; 3) upgraded plumbing and lighting in the old buildings that is inadequate in classrooms; 4) replaced doors that are dilapidated and windows that are broken in the old buildings; and 5) replaced roofing that leaks on the existing two-story building.

The two old buildings need the repairs that were once planned as they will continue to be fully utilized even with the completion of the new addition.

In addition to the repairs on the old buildings and canopies between the buildings, a portion of the $1.3 million would have gone to renovate the gym. This renovation would have removed asbestos, upgraded restrooms, replaced dilapidated bleachers, repaired the roof which allows water to leak onto the playing floor.

Many safety and health hazards that the children will now have to continue to live with, would have been eliminated by the $1.3 million.

A ballfield for Betsy Layne High School would be a very welcome addition. But is it worth giving up $1.3 million to obtain? Giving up $1.3 million so you can spend more than $200,000 to buy a ballfield doesn't seem to add up. I would encourage Brent to explain his actions in giving this money up without correcting the problems and safety hazards at Betsy Layne Elementary. A letter in this paper would be a good place to do that.

PCC's Phi Theta Kappa wins top regional honors

The PCC chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, international honor society, brought home four of the top awards from the organization's Kentucky Regional Convention, which the chapter hosted.

The Alpha Nu Zeta Chapter of PTK received the Kentucky Regional Convention Host award for 1995 at the convention held recently at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn. The night before, the local chapter held induction ceremonies for 62 new members.

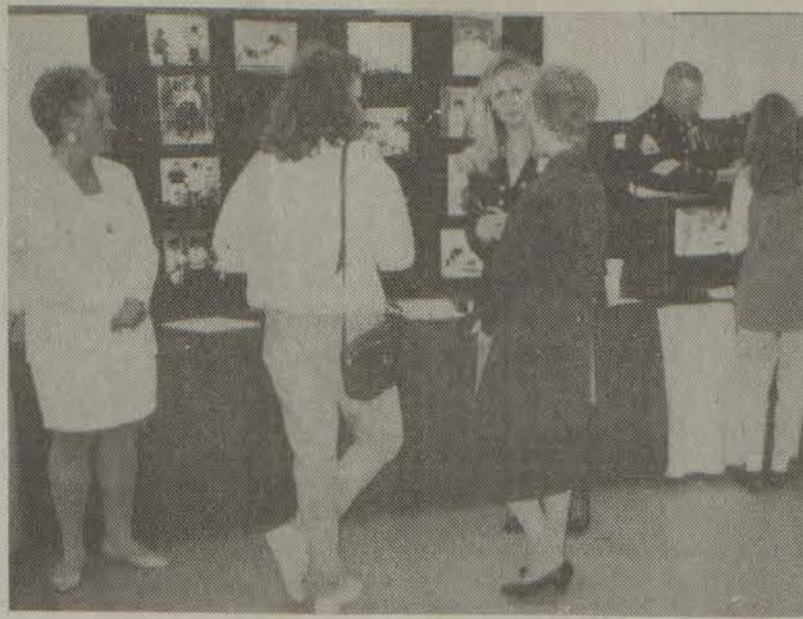

Other awards presented to the local chapter during the regional convention include one to Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, PCC president, as 1994-95 Outstanding College Administrator; one to Dr. Bill Loftus as 1994-95 Outstanding Advisor; and one to Lora Jordan as 1994-95 Outstanding Officer.

The regional convention, which was attended by about 30 people, is one of Phi Theta Kappa's top three annual statewide events, Loftus said. During the convention, he said, officers and advisors from PTK chapters across Kentucky review the accomplishments of the past year and plan and organize for the coming year.

He said he thinks the local chapter deserves recognition for "giving of their time under intense pressure and despite bad weather immediately before the convention."

Loftus also expressed his appreciation for "all of the administration and faculty support" the local chapter received during the past year.

Recruitment

Recruiters from Pikeville Methodist Hospital, left, and the U.S. Marine Corps were among representatives from several area employers attending the recent Job Fair at Prestonsburg Community College.

PCC job fair helps students find jobs

Some of the employers at the recent Job Fair hosted by PCC weren't hiring, but that didn't dampen the enthusiasm of most of the students and others who lined up to submit their resumes, pick up or fill out applications or just get more information about a particular company or career field.

The employers represented at the fair spanned the spectrum from the military services and fast-food restaurants to health-care providers.

Among the employers who are always hiring was the Marine Corps. Gunnery Sgt. F. W. Ratliff, a Marine recruiter from Pikeville, said he appreciated the "great hospitality" he received from everyone at PCC.

"I've talked to a lot of young people who think it's great, but they just don't want to commit to anything at this time," the recruiter said. "We're just out here looking for people who want to be Marines."

He said job fairs are good places for the Marines to get exposure to the kind of people they are looking for. He described the ideal potential recruit as "mentally, morally and physically fit."

Another employer who is almost always hiring is Wal-Mart. The Pres-tonsburg Wal-Mart was represented at the Job Fair by Christa Hall of the personnel department and Shelly Graves, a member of the management team.

"We've gotten a few inquiries," they said. Both women said they had given out applications for positions as cashiers and in the garden center at Wal-Mart.

Highlands Regional Medical Center didn't have any openings at the time, but still had representatives at a table at the Job Fair, recruiting to build a pool of applicants.

Sabrina Holbrook, a supervisor in the Human Resources Department at Highlands Regional, said she had "talked to a lot of people." She said visitors to the Highlands Regional table had been interested in a variety of careers, ranging from RNs and LPNs to physical therapy, radiology, and positions in clerical, administrative and volunteer services.

Ms. Holbrook also said she found job fairs to be useful recruiting tools.

"They're places where people can approach potential employers in an informal setting and get the information they need without making any kind of a commitment," she said.

Phi Theta Kappa awards

4-H camp: Some things change some things remain the same

4-H camp has sure changed over the years, according to Charles E. Stamper, Floyd County 4-H/Youth Educator with the Floyd County Extension Service.

Stamper recently came across a letter that was sent out to 4-H'ers in 1937 to get students prepared for camp. Here's an excerpt:

1937 camp time is here...If you arrive before noon Monday, bring your lunch. Club members who have their projects and record books up to date and are twelve years old may go.

All well-planned baggage should include:

- A cot or straw tick.
- A roll of bedding (two blankets).
- Wash pan.
- Eating equipment — knife, fork, spoon and a tin cup.
- Warm sleeping garments.
- Enough clothing for a change each day.
- A kit or box of toilet articles. The minimum for this is a comb, soap, wash cloth, two towels, and talcum powder.

Boys and girls should dress to suit the activities of camp. For lecture periods, handcraft, and nature study, simple, modest cotton dresses and culottes are appropriate for the girls. The boys are suitably dressed in cotton shorts and cotton trousers. This year, don't we all vote that no girl should be seen in halter blouses and no boy appear in classes garbed in an undershirt.

Camp fee is $1. Also remember to bring your food supply or the cost will be $2.50 for food.

Although today's Floyd County 4-H'ers don't have to worry about bringing all the extra baggage to camp, one thing hasn't changed, according to Stamper.

"We all have fun," he said. Floyd County 4-H students will be camping this year from July 24 until July 28 at the Diederich 4-H Center in Rush.

For more information about the camp, call 886-2668.

Second Bluegrass State Games deadline July 1

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Deadlines for gymnastics, adult soccer and volleyball are fast approaching for entries into this year's Bluegrass State Games in Lexington July 28-30.

Deadline for the three events is July 1 and the deadline for the remaining games will be July 7.

Floyd Countians have been very much a part of the Bluegrass State Games in previous years and that number is expected to increase.

Softball is one of the top events for drawing Floyd Countians but good participation is seen in track and field, archery, swimming and karate.

In the 10 year history of the Bluegrass State Games, participants have suffered their share of bruises, sprains and even bee stings. Bandages, ice packs and aspirin have been dispensed aplenty by the Games' medical staff over the past 10 years.

Al Green, sports medicine director for the Games, coordinates the event's athletic trainers and medical staff. When the Games get underway in late July, Green and his well-trained and experienced staff will be ready to handle everything from splinters to heat strokes.

"I've maintained the title and the job over the last ten years," Green said. "The medical coverage has primarily become a function of the Kentucky Athletic Trainers' Society, which utilizes every athletic trainer in the state and many from the region."

Green is the head athletic trainer at the University of Kentucky and is responsible for all sports, primarily football.

Since the inception of the Bluegrass State Games, Green and his crew have been an important component in the behind-the-scenes operation.

"The first year the Games were held it was almost primarily a University of Kentucky event," said Green. "while there were quite a few people involved, the majority of the staff were UK trainers."

More than 19,000 people participated in the Bluegrass State Games in 1994. Green's staff has grown along with the event.

"Last year we utilized 205 medical people to cover all the Games. When we started with the Games in 1985, there were about 25 of us. This year, because of the expansion of the sites, we're looking again at a minimum of 200 people," said Green.

In addition to athletic trainers from throughout the state and region, volunteer physicians, paramedics, and EMT's from area hospitals and emergency services will be on hand to provide immediate medical assistance.

To prepare for the Games, Green and his staff begin work six months prior to the first event. An estimated 20 hours of preparation a week are put in before the Games start. Each site must be evaluated from a medical assistance standpoint, and needed supplies must be gathered. Most trainers bring their own first-aid kits, stretchers and coolers. Community hospitals donate materials as well.

Martin Marlins upset division champ Reds

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Martin Reds clinched the championship of the North Division of the Beaver Creek Little League before the completion of the regular season schedule.

However, someone forgot to inform the Martin Marlins they were playing the champs as they shocked the Reds with a 5-4 victory in the first round of the league tournament at Martin last Tuesday night.

Justin Martin was the game's hero, drilling a bases-loaded triple in the bottom of the fifth inning to erase a 4-1 Reds lead.

Jonathan Hall, who had three hits in the game, picked up the win in going the distance for the Marlins. He struck out four batters in the six innings he pitched while walking two batters.

Larry Mullins suffered the loss as he failed to protect the lead in the fifth. He fanned 10 batters and walked an uncharacteristic six batters.

Mullins pinpoint control deserted him in the fifth as he walked two batters, Alex Patton and Josh Ferrell, with one out in the fifth. He got Steven Goble on strikes before walking the two Marlins.

Mullins appeared out of the inning when he got Brian Chaffins to force Patton at second base for the second out. But Jonathan Hall lined a base hit to right field, scoring Ferrell.

Freddie Samons cued a grounder toward second base but the ball was coughed up by second baseman Chad Samons, loading the bases for the Marlins.

Marlins clean-up hitter Justin Martin, who had fanned in his only other plate appearance, lined a solid hit to center that rolled to the fence, clearing the bases and giving the Marlins a 5-4 lead. Evan Isaac grounded to short for the final out, but the damage was done.

Josh Conley singled with one out in the top of the sixth for the Reds but was forced at second by Tristan Keathley. Keathley was left stranded when Hall struck out Justin Hall to end the game.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first on a one out single by Mullins, an error and Henry Napier's sacrifice fly.

A great defensive play by Shannon Sizemore spelled the Marlins of any other damage in the inning. Sizemore, looking like a major leaguer, faded back on a drive off the bat of Napier, and leaped to spear the sure two-base hit.

The Marlins tied the game in the bottom of the inning on a leadoff single by Chaffins and two Reds errors.

Jason Fields led off the Reds second with a base hit but was left stranded as neither team dented the plate in the second.

The Reds got some home run power from Patrick Martin in the second inning to lead 3-1. Mullins collected his second hit of the game with a one-out single and rode home on Martin's blast over the left centerfield fence.

Mullins was rolling along, having struck out the side in the second and third innings. In the top of the fifth, the Reds gave him an extra run to work with.

Samons walked with one out and scored an unearned run when Martin's hard hit ball was dropped in left field by Justin Martin. Samons, who moved to third on Mullins third hit of the game, scored on the play.

The Reds put runners on base in every inning except the fourth when Hall retired the side in order. They stranded seven runners in the game.

The Marlins left five runners on base and committed three errors. The Reds had two errors in the contest.

Hall allowed the Reds only five hits -- three came off Mullins' bat. The Marlins collected five off Mullins for the game.

The big difference was the quiet bat of Henry Napier. Napier had hard luck as he not only had his drive to left center hauled in by Sizemore but hit two screamers that were picked off at second and short.

Prestonsburg football Boosters Club to hold meeting Tuesday

Pirates score seven in 2nd to hand Duff 7-6 loss

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach D.I. Henson could do nothing but watch as the Garrett Pirates sent 13 batters to the plate and score seven times to post a 7-6 upset win over the Duff Orioles in Beaver Creek Little League tournament play at Minnie last Wednesday afternoon.

Actually, the game began Monday evening and was halted in the bottom of the fifth inning. The game resumed Tuesday at 4 p.m. with the Pirates holding on for the win.

Sabo had a two-run triple in the Pirates' half of the second inning. Four straight Pirate batters received walks, forcing home two runs.

With one out, two batters were plunked with pitches before the inning ended.

Duff scored two runs in the bottom of the second for a 7-4 game. Jerrel Elkins had an RBI single.

Duff pushed home a run in the bottom of the third to make it 7-5. John Ousley doubled and stole third before scoring on Wesley Hyden's base hit.

Duff pulled to within one with a run in the fourth. Hamilton singled

Stern lecture turns Drift Astros around in 9-4 win over Jaguars

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Clinis Hall didn't deliver a campaign speech to his team but delivered as stern lecture and it came at just the right time.

The result of the lashing was a 9-4 win over the Wayland Jaguars in the Beaver Creek Little League Tour-namment at Martin Tuesday evening.

"I had to preach to them," said Hall. "The way they took to the field in the second inning, I was worried."

The "little talk" woke up the booming bats of the Astros, that has been silent, in the fourth inning when they scored seven runs to erase a 4-1 Wayland lead.

"I told them if they hadn't showed me time after time what kind of players they were I wouldn't say anything to them," the Astros coach said. "and I told them they were going have to be more aggressive and get their uniforms dirty."

According to Hall, the team appeared ready to play in the fourth.

Jason Spriggs started the fourth inning rally with a walk and Joe Skeens singled behind him. Both runners scored to make it a 4-3 game when Bub Goins drilled a liner to the fence for a double.

Goins came in to score on Adam Ward's RBI single. Wayland starter Neal Allen walked Justin Taylor to load the bases and after J.J. Hall struck out, John Thornsberry got the big hit with a bases-clearing triple.

"It was the biggest hit of the day," said Hall of the three-bagger.

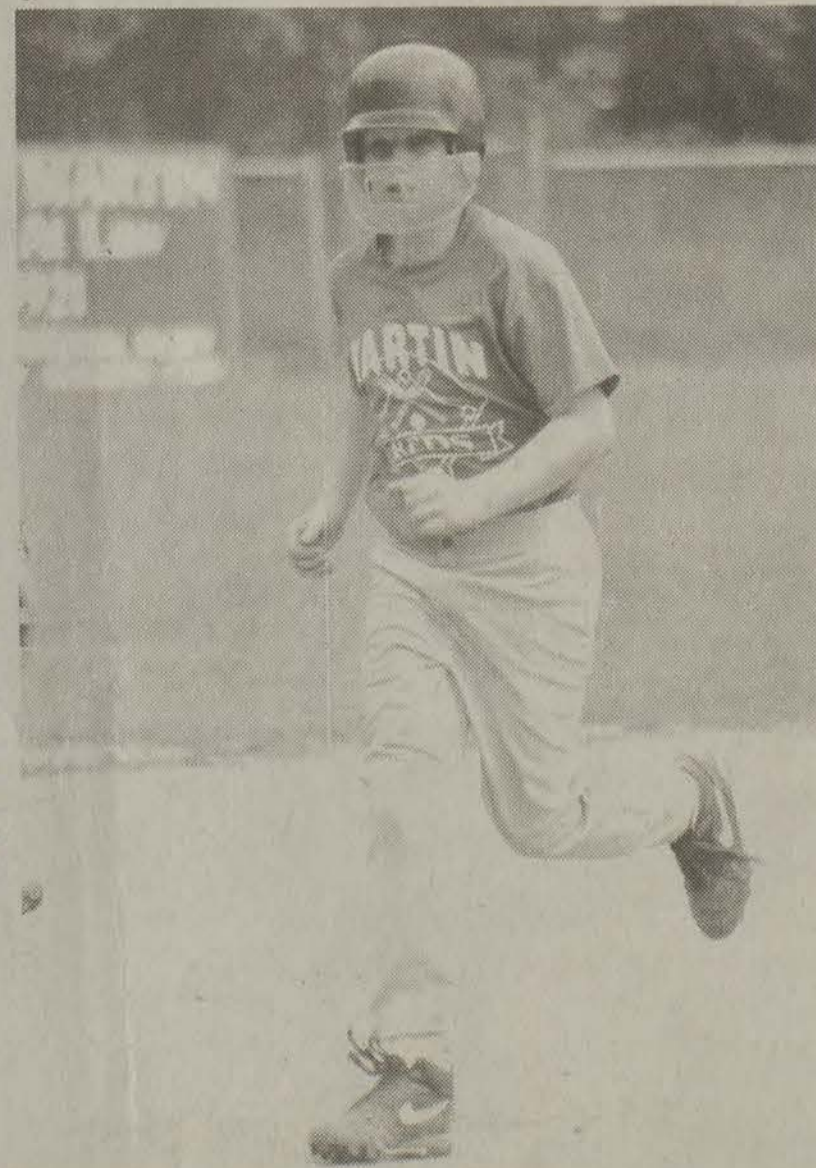

Thornsberry scored the seventh run of the inning on a single by Shane Allen.

Goins, who relieved Skeens in the third, was all business the rest of the way as he did not allow the Jaguars anything but a lone single over the final four innings.

"The Jaguars area good little ball team," said Hall. "They are young and they play great defense. If you hit one at them you're out."

After Drift had taken a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning when Skeens walked and stole his way home, Wayland plated two runs in the bottom of the inning to lead 2-1.

$1,000 prize money goes to winning foursome

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The foursome of Steven Halbert, Wesley Halbert, Cam Short and Stewart Hall divided $1,000 after shooting a 15-under-par 53 to win the Prestonsburg Basketball Golf Scramble last weekend at the Beaver Valley Golf Course at Stumbo Park.

A playoff round was required to decide the winners with the foursome winning in sudden death.

The team of Larry Woods, Clyde Woods, Rob Tackett and Ed Clark finished second after losing the play-off round on the second hole. Second place was worth $300.

Eddie Billips, Freddy James, Doug Hall and Gordon Parido took the third place prize money of $200 with a 13-under-par 55.

"We had 64 golfers take part in the tournament," said Coach Gordon Parido. "We would also like to thank Bob Meyers (County-Judge Executive) for the use of the park."

Larry Woods won a driver donated by Johns Clubhouse for the longest drive of the tournament. A putter, donated by Wilburn Samons, was taken home by Doug Hall for sinking the longest putt. Duran Newsome came closest to the pin and will enjoy a four night vacation, compliments of Pepsi.

Action Petroleum Inc., Naim Inc., Carter-Hughes Toyota, Easter Ky. Cardiology Services, Big Sandy Railroad Contracting, Kinzer Drilling, Kentucky Lottery, Pepsi Cola of Pikeville and Johns Clubhouse helped sponsor the tournament.

"We're thankful to those business places that helped us with contributing to the tournament," Coach Parido said.

Proceeds from the tournament will be used to send the Prestonsburg basketball team to camp at Georgetown College this summer and help with expenses when the team travels to Florida in December for the Martin County Hall of Fame Classic.

Expos first and Shawna Taylor drew a one-out walk, setting up Jennifer Greathouse's two-run single.

A walk to Ashleigh Frasure forced home Allison Caudill and left the bases loaded for Shelly Greathouse's first home run of the game.

The Cubs tied the game with four runs in the second inning on a two-run single by Kristin Ousley. Lewis had a base hit in the inning.

It was 15-9 after the Expos scored six times in the second. Jamie Gullett drove home two runs with a single and Shelly Greathouse hit a three-run home run, her second of the game, to give the Expos the six-run lead.

The Cubs could only score single runs in the fourth and fifth while the Expos plated one in the third and five in the fourth.

Moore was hit by a pitch and Stumbo delivered a RBI double scoring Moore. Stumbo came home on Tackett's single.

Wayland plated two more runs in the bottom of the third to lead 4-1. Whitaker walked to start the inning and Goins hit John Bailey and Tackett back-to-back to load the bases.

Because of hitting two batters, Skeens, who started for the Astros, was forced to leave the mound and Goins relieved him.

Goins promptly issued a walk to Bailey to force in a run and the second came home when Goins plunked Slone.

Drift added their final run in the sixth inning when J.J. Hall singled, stole second and scored on Shane Allen's RBI single, his second of the game.

"I was worried now, I'll not deny it," said Hall. "We started playing ball after the third inning. Now, I was more upset than I have ever been. It was a closer game than the final score would indicate."

Betsy Layne got an RBI double from Johnson in the seventh inning to add their final run. Johnson and Chad Case each had two RBIs. Justin Bartley drove in two runs with a base hit in the fourth inning.

The Phillies continue to lead the Floyd County Babe Ruth standings with an unblemished 8-0 record.

"Many volunteer trainers from other states consider the Bluegrass State Games to be among the best run anywhere," Green said.

For Green and his crew, the Games are a healthy combination of work and play. He likens the preparation time to planning a wedding: "There's a lot of work involved but in the end it makes it all worthwhile."

Booklets and registration forms for the upcoming games may be obtained at the Floyd County Times offices during normal business hours.

In a game played last week, Shannon Potter had a perfect game from the plate with four hits including a fourth inning home run as the Phillies powered their way past the Martin Mets 21-0.

Potter had hits in the first three innings. Craig Johnson collected three hits and doubled in the fourth.

Brad Reynolds had a first inning single and an RBI double in the fourth when the Phillies scored six times.

Dwayne Hughes had three hits and Shawn Deskins collected three. Chad Case doubled in the first and second inning. Case batted twice in the second, singling the first time up.

Pike schools penalized after audit

After an attendance audit by state officials, the Pike County School System was notified that it will be penalized next year for giving free education to West Virginia students this year.

The Department of Education notified the school system that Pike County's allotment for the 1995-96 year will be reduced by $34,335 to reimburse the state for this year.

The district's calculated aid for next year will drop about $56,000 based on this year's out-of-state attendance figures, agency spokesman Jim Parks said Monday. The penalty is about $90,000 in all, he said.

The state performed an audit June

8 after learning that some West Virginia students were attending Belfry High School without paying tuition. The issue arose after one of those students, Caroline Slater of Williamson, West Virginia, sued over not being named class valedictorian.

The audit found that 17 West Virginians were enrolled at the school during the last school year and 13 the year before. There was also a Mountain State student at Turkey Creek Elementary School last year.

The district's 1994-95 state aid was overstated by 11.1 students from the previous year, the auditor determined. Parks said the 11.1 indicates that not all the students studied in Pike County during the entire 1993-94 school year.

The school district has a policy that calls for charging out-of-state students $2,800 a year, so the county can reimburse the state. But the district has reported no outside students since that policy was enacted in 1992, and Belfry claimed none as far back as 1986.

Despite those facts, Parks said he did not expect a further audit.

"We have limited staff to do attendance audits," he said. "The longer you go back, the more difficult it is to reconstruct the attendance records."

Pike County has other schools that border West Virginia and Virginia, including Majestic, Phelps, Feds Creek and Elkhorn City. After an internal audit just prior to the state probe, District Communications Director Bruce Hopkins estimated that there could be as many as 90 out-of-state students who attended county schools last year. But Parks said none of them will be audited unless a formal complaint is filed.

"I don't think we have any reason to look anywhere else," he said. "The message has been sent."

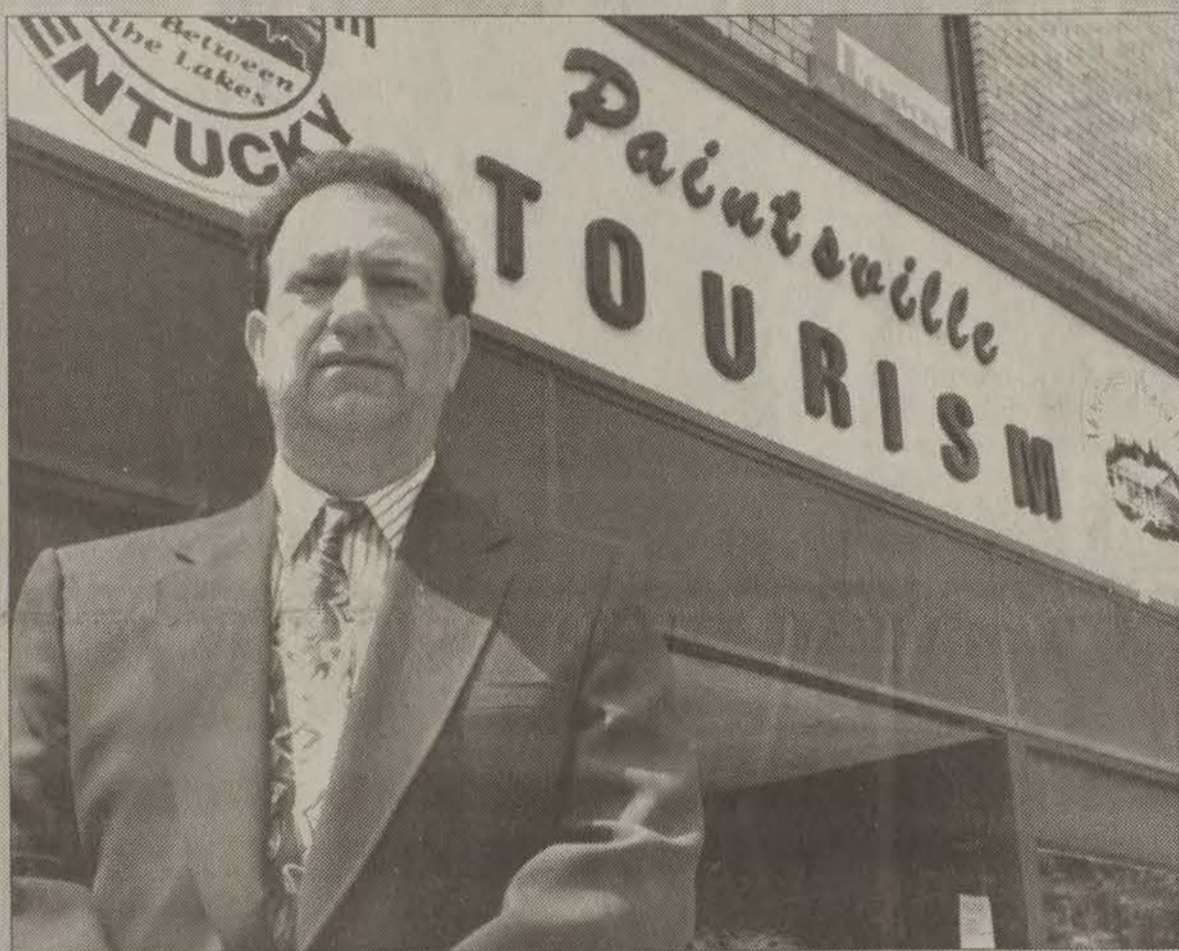

Last week, Superintendent Reo Johns proposed banning all out-of-state students to avoid future problems. The school board tabled the matter until next month.

Board members discussed the matter at length and seemed to lean toward "grandfathering" in the out-of-state students who now attend Pike County schools. New high school students would be excluded under their proposal, but no mention was made of elementary students.

Whatever the new policy, board members said they expected administrators to follow up with enforcement and reporting. Board members Karen Sue Ratliff said she believed any administrator not following board policy should be considered insubordinate and dismissed immediately.

Floyd County man named HomePlace business director

A 'Little' help

Bill Little says the Mountain HomePlace will play a vital role in Eastern Kentucky's growing tourism industry. The facility, located at Paintsville Lake, is scheduled to open in July. (photo provided by The Paintsville Herald)

by Tony Fyffe
Editor
Paintsville Herald

A Floyd County man has been named director of business operations for the soon-to-be-opened Mountain HomePlace at Paintsville Lake.

William R. "Bill" Little of Drift was hired to the position by the Paintsville Lake Historical Association, the governing board of the HomePlace.

Little, one of 50 people to apply for the job, has already begun his duties.

Little said Tuesday that he believes the 1850s living history farm, the first of its kind in Eastern Kentucky, will be a success.

"I truly would not be here if I didn't think it would be successful," he said.

An Eastern Kentucky native, Little comes to the Mountain HomePlace after several years in business administration, higher education and public relations in Johnson, Pike and Floyd counties.

A 1969 graduate of Morehead State University,

Little began his career as county supervisor for the Rural Child Care Project, a pre-school program in Floyd County.

From 1973 to 1976, he was employed as a vocational rehabilitation counselor and supervisor at the Carl D. Perkins Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center at Theima.

Self-employment and his duties as dean of admissions and financial aid at Pikeville College round out his career from 1977 until his recent appointment at the HomePlace.

Little said he is "most pleased to be in on the ground floor of such an innovative and exciting undertaking" as the Mountain HomePlace.

"Tourism in Eastern Kentucky is continuing to grow each year," he said, "and the Mountain HomePlace will certainly play a vital role in this growth."

The HomePlace is scheduled to open in July. Among the things that need to be finished before the facility can open is the visitors center, which he said is "just about completed."

MSHA inspector sues Virginia coal operator

An inspector at the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration's Phelps office has sued a Virginia coal operator, who alleged the inspector took bribes.

Ronald Hayes, filed suit on June 9 in the Pike Circuit Court against John Stapleton of Abingdon, Virginia.

Stapleton accused Hayes of taking a $100 bribe to overlook safety violations at Pike County Burning Ridge Coal Company.

Hayes said he inspected Burning Ridge once in the six years he's been with MSHA. Hayes said he was with another inspector the day Stapleton claimed the bribe was paid.

Hayes cannot remember the date of the alleged bribe.

Hayes said the FBI approached him about the allegation and asked him to take a lie-detector test. He and his attorney, Larry Webster, said he passed.

"They told me if I failed they'd take me to McDonald's and talk a deal," Hayes said. "I told them that when I passed it, they would take me to the steak house, and they did."

Stapleton also accused Phelps inspector Gary McClanahan of taking $500 in bribes. McClanahan pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court to falsifying an inspection report on Burning Ridge but steadfastly denies taking a bribe.

The bribery charges are to be dropped against McClanahan. His attorney, John West, said investigators had only Stapleton's word that his client took the money.

Hayes is seeking unspecified compensatory and punitive damages for emotional pain and suffering.

Stapleton has an unlisted phone number and could not be reached.

Six employees in MSHA's Pike County operations have been indicted on bribery and other charges since last year. Four have pleaded guilty, one was convicted and the sixth is awaiting trial.

Clifford Crum was the inspector convicted of taking a bribe and sentenced to 13 months in prison. Hayes said he looked at Crum's case and feared the same would happen to him.

"Clifford was innocent," he said. "Look what happened to him. This was going through my mind. If it hadn't have been for God, I would have lost."

Hayes said anyone who knows him would realize that the charge was false.

"As many violations as I write," he said. "If they're paying me off, they're going in the hole."

Pike County workers to get facts on UMWA

by Lucy Holman
Appalachian News-Express

If they're going to join a labor union, Pike Judge-Executive Donna Damron said county employees should have a clear understanding of what that union has to offer.

Her comments follow a request last month that the United Mine Workers of America be recognized as the bargaining agent for the county's hourly employees.

"I'm not certain that our employees understand what their relationship with the UMWA would be," said Damron.

Employees have questions regarding the UMWA pension fund and health insurance benefits, according to Damron, who recommended the county and UMWA officials schedule a joint meeting with employees next month to address those issues.

After that, Damron said if employees still want UMWA representation, "then that's what I want."

UMWA representative Charles "Hawkeye" Dixon appeared before Pike Fiscal Court members Monday.

Dixon said the union has made "no promises or commitments to employees with respect to wages and benefits," and has been "up front and honest with the court from the get-go."

"We've told them (employees) that all wages and benefits have to be negotiated with the county."

The labor union's contract with workers would be a "separate contract," according to Dixon, one that doesn't fall under the UMWA.

Damron said she was concerned that employees would be treated like "stepchildren of the union."

Dixon quickly refuted the suggestion, saying employees would be represented "to the best of our ability" and "never be treated as a stepchild of our organization."

Dixon explained that if employees established a local union they would be a "self-governed body" represented by the UMWA with respect to grievances and disputes.

"So what would preclude employees from representing themselves?" Damron asked.

Dixon said the union has 103 years of experience in representing Pike County workers.

The miners' union began representing workers outside the coal industry six or seven years ago, but has yet to represent other industries in Eastern Kentucky.

County workers have waited several weeks for fiscal court approval of their request to allow UMWA to act as a bargaining agent.

Fiscal court members received a petition signed by employees during the May 15 meeting.

Acting on the advice of the county attorney, Damron said the court would have to "verify the accuracy" of a UMWA petition signed by more than 75 hourly employees before putting the issue up for a vote of the court.

Closer examination of the petition revealed at least 12 discrepancies, according to Damron.

Union officials recently notified the court that at least 10 of the employees who signed the petition were not regular hourly employees so their signatures would be disqualified.

Damron said two names on the petition were "misspelled," leading her to the conclusion that someone else had signed the names.

In light of the discrepancies, Damron requested the union circulate another petition and have someone attest the employees' signatures.

The employees' meeting has been scheduled for July 9 at 3 p.m. in the fiscal courtroom.

Isaac to face sex-related charges in trial

by Jerry Pennington
Editor
Big Sandy News

Lawrence pastor Gallie Isaac will stand trial next month on 17 of the sex-related charges against him.

The order still leaves 12 of the 29 counts against Isaac to be tried at a later date.

Isaac, 78, will be tried on July 20 on two counts of first degree sodomy, seven counts of second degree sod-omy, one count of criminal attempt to commit sodomy, one count of first degree sexual abuse and six counts of second degree sexual abuse.

The charges to be tried cover four of the eight alleged victims—all of which were young boys who attended the Isaac Park Free Baptist Church where Isaac is pastor.

Isaac was indicted in September 1994 on 88 counts against him in eight separate indictments. In December, the indictments were merged into one, and several of the misdemeanor charges were dropped because the one year statute of limitations had run out on them.

Judge Stephen "Nick" Frazier scheduled a status conference for July 13 to resolve any questions attorneys may have before the trial begins.

Prosecutor Luke Morgan said there will be more motions that pertain to the trial itself, but the judge has ruled on all the motions required to set the frame work.

the law firm had received no money from the cabinet since the January 26 agreement. He asks that Knight enforce the settlement and order the cabinet to pay the fees plus 12 percent interest until paid, and costs for preparing and filing the motion.

The Revenue Cabinet has not responded to the motion. (Information provided by the Paintsville Herald)

Ex-principal wants charges dismissed

Former Johnson Central High School Principal Steve Butcher is trying for a third time to get theft charges dropped.

With his trial scheduled for November, Butcher has asked Johnson Circuit Judge James A. Knight to dismiss the 17-count theft by unlawful taking indictment returned against him in May 1994.

Two previous attempts by Butcher to have the charges dismissed failed.

Butcher is charged with theft by unlawful taking involving a sporting goods store in Pikeville.

A hearing on the motion is scheduled in July. Trial for Butcher and the sporting goods store owners, David and Sherry Collier of Pikeville, is set for November 6. (Information provided by the Paintsville Herald)

18-year-old charged with breaking nose of 14-year-old at pool

Assault charges have been filed against Charles Hurt, 18, of Paintsville, who allegedly broke the nose of a 14-year-old during an altercation at the city pool, records show.

Hurt was arrested Monday, June 12, at his Bridge Street apartment by city patrolman P.D. Witten.

According to the criminal complaint filed by the 14-year-old's mother, Linda Wood of U.S. 23 south, Hurt beat up her son and broke his nose in two places June 10.

Bond was set at $2,500. A preliminary hearing was scheduled Wednesday morning before Judge Dan Sparks. (Information provided by the Paintsville Herald)

Attorneys say cabinet owes them money

A motion filed last week asks Johnson Circuit Judge James A. Knight to order the Revenue Cabinet to pay $5,000 and other costs to the Paintsville law firm of Wells, Porter, Schmitt & Jones as part of an agreement reached earlier this year in former Johnson County PVA Custer Picklesimer's case.

As part of an agreed order in the case, Picklesimer resigned as PVA in exchange for pay he lost when the cabinet removed him from office.

The Revenue Cabinet also agreed to pay $5,000 in attorney fees for Picklesimer.

But in a motion filed last Tuesday in Johnson Circuit Court, Brian Cumbo, one of Picklesimer's lawyers, said

Man indicted in DUI death

Larry M. Johnson, 41, of Oil Springs, was indicted Friday in connection with a June 5 DUI-related traffic accident that killed a Boons Camp woman.

In its final report of the term, the Johnson County Grand Jury charged Johnson with murder. The panel did not return a DUI indictment in the case, but that charge is pending in Johnson District Court.

The indictment claims Johnson operated a motor vehicle which created a grave risk of death to another and caused 35-year-old Debbie Webb's death on Route 40 near Paintsville.

Johnson is the second person to be indicted for murder in a DUI-related death in Johnson County. (Information provided by the Paintsville Herald)

Jordan.

Both fires were responded to by the Pigeon Roost Volunteer Fire Department and Warfield Fire Department acted as a backup.

Inez mayor and HRMC to meet about 24-hour med center

The city of Inez has asked Highlands Regional Medical Center (HRMC) to look into the possibility of staffing an after-hours medical facility in Inez that would serve Martin County.

Russell Briggs, chief operating officer of HRMC, proposed a meeting between representatives of Inez and HRMC to discuss costs associated with the project as well as the staffing needs of the clinic.

The meeting with HRMC will probably be set in mid July.

City commissioners voted three months ago to seek funding for such a facility and several options are currently being explored.

Witten said Meade, on September 30, 1994, had control of a 1992 Pontiac Grand Prix that was reported stolen. Meade operated the vehicle while intoxicated and intentionally tried to injure Witten with the vehicle, the complaint said.

A preliminary hearing is set June 28. (Information provided by the Paintsville Herald)

Drunken driver enters plea agreement in vehicle death

Ollie J. Holbrook, of Magoffin County, agreed to an amended plea of second degree manslaughter Tuesday in connection with the vehicle death of Edwin Paul Lyon III, 20, of Salyersville, on February 4, 1994.

Prosecuting attorney's recommended a sentence of 10 years for Holbrook. Official sentencing will take place under Circuit Judge Robert Morgan on July 20. (Information provided by the Salyersville Independent)

Steve Owens could continue to represent Eugene Holt, a former civil penalty specialists for the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration in Pikeville, even though one of Owens' former clients could testify against Holt.

Bruce Hurley, of Prestonsburg, told investigators that he paid off Holt in the mid-1980s, when Holt was an inspector.

However, Owens represented Hurley on charges that Hurley violated safety laws at a Martin County mine. Hurley was convicted in November, but was only given home detention and probation because he is providing evidence in other cases. (Information provided by the Appalachian News-Express)

Man gets 19 years on drug-related charges

Tommy Hall, 42, of Buckfield, has been sentenced to 19 years in prison on drug-related charges.

Hall had been charged with five counts of trafficking or complicity to traffic in marijuana, and one count of conspiracy to traffic in marijuana, over five pounds. However, he was convicted on four of the trafficking charges and sentenced to three years in prison on each charge, to be served consecutively, for a total of 12 years. Hall will be eligible for parole after serving 20 percent of his sentence. (Information provided by the Appalachian News-Express)

Need is great for county's foster care families.

by Alice Brooks Jones
Contributing Writer

The foster care process begins most commonly with a report of abuse, neglect or abandonment of a child to the Office of Social Services. In cases in which the child is not in immediate danger, an investigation is conducted by a social worker assigned from the Social Services office. If the social worker feels there is sufficient cause to remove the child from the home, a petition is filed calling it to the court's attention.

The petition is heard at the next scheduled court hearing. At that time the court determines if there is enough evidence that the child should be removed from the home or if the parents can work with the Cabinet for Human Resources while the child remains in the home.

If the situation is life threatening an emergency custody order is requested from a judge. With that granted, the police can then proceed to remove the child from the home.

"Most people think social workers take children out of homes," says Norma Boyd, who is family services clinician for Department of Social Services in Floyd County. "But we can't. The police have to do that."

Usually, however, a social worker does accompany the police officers in order to receive the child. If this is not possible then the child is delivered to the office of Social Services or some other safe place where social workers are waiting.

Whenever an emergency custody order is issued, a temporary custody hearing must be held within 72 hours. If it is determined that the child cannot be returned to the home then some alternative placement must be found.

First the social worker tries to place the child with relatives. "The least restrictive placement is what we want," says Boyd. "Everything is done in the best interest of the child."

If this is not possible, then placement is sought in a Kentucky Approved Foster Home. "Currently Floyd County has only five certified homes," says Boyd. "Of those, two are for respite care and one is a relative placement. The remaining two accept open placement but the homes are always full."

Respite care is a unique system by which foster parents can have a "day off" once a month or children can be placed in alternate homes when their foster families are dealing with emergency or illness.

If placement within the county cannot be made then homes in other counties must be considered. "We've taken children to Boyd County, Ashland, Greenup County," says Boyd. The problem with such placement is that it is more disruptive to the child, forcing a change in schools as well as living arrangements. It also makes meetings with the social workers, parents and children more difficult to arrange.

"In the last year we've lost two homes to people moving out of state and two to couples adopting and now their homes are full," says Boyd. "There is such a desperate need for foster homes in Floyd County."

When a child is put in the foster care system a Foster Care Case Conference is held within five days of placement. This is attended by the parents, the child (if appropriate), the social worker and the foster parents.

"It's a planning conference for the parents," says Boyd. "It's to let them know what they need to do to get the child back in the home. It's all geared toward getting the child back in the home, if possible." At the meeting the child's needs and the needs of the family are discussed and a written plan with time frames is drafted.

Another conference is held in six months, or sooner if requested. At these conferences, plans are reviewed and revised. It is also determined if any progress has been made. If none can be determined then conferences continue to be scheduled every six months thereafter or, if necessary, permanent placement is sought.

For reasons of confidentiality the exact number of reports the Floyd County Social Services Office receives cannot be given but Boyd says the number is large. Often the parents are seemingly unaware of there being any problem in the home "Some parents are genuinely distressed when their children are removed," says Boyd. "and begin immediately to reorganize their lives."

Others can take some time before they even realize the problems that exist or the needs of the child that are not being met. "I truly believe every parent cares for their child," says Boyd. "It's just a matter of them recognizing needs."

Sadly, some never do. And yet,

Boyd says even parents who agree to terminate their parental rights still love their children. "They just realize they can't meet their child's needs."

If the child is successfully reunited with the parents then the Office of Social Services monitors the home. Regular evaluations continue until the social worker is certain a permanent change has taken place.

The decision to become foster parents is one that requires careful consideration. "It requires time and commitment," says Boyd, "but the results are very rewarding."

Boyd's office in the Social Services building is filled with evidence of her commitment to the cause. Along with the towering piles of paper common to every government enterprise, there are photos, drawings, a large jar of animal crackers and a small table and chairs in pink and blue for young visitors. On a file cabinet are a stack of stickers which say "Superman had Foster Parents."

"I hope this promotes people's interest in foster care" says Boyd. "There's such a tremendous need in this area."

When asked about the first steps toward entering the Foster Parent Program, Boyd's enthusiasm is evident. "Anyone interested at all would call me at Social Services," said Boyd. "If I'm not here, leave a message and I promise I'll get back to you as soon as possible."

After taking a name and address, Boyd will send a packet of information which includes many common questions and answers about foster parenting. "It's meant to enlighten them about the Foster Program," says Boyd.

Boyd will continue to provide informational updates until such time as GPS classes can be held. The GPS (Group Preparation and Selection) process gives detailed information about the program as well as assessing the capabilities of the prospective foster parents.

The classes run for 10 weeks with one meeting each week. Both parents are required to attend. The Social Services office tries to be accommodating about arranging classes so that they are convenient to the participants. For instance they can be scheduled for either the day or the evening.

"The first meeting is one of the most important," says Boyd. It is during this meeting that couples are introduced to the "Twelve Skills for Successful Fostering and Adopting," a set of criteria upon which the entire course is based. Some of the skills discussed are effective communication, building self-esteem and working in partnership with birth families.

It is also at this time that families are given "profiles" to fill out and return the next month. "The family can use the profile to assess their strengths and needs," says Boyd. "It's for them to describe themselves in their own words."

In the following nine weeks, all aspects of foster parenting are discussed including helping the child or children deal with removal from their home, managing negative behaviors and, ultimately, leaving foster care and reuniting with their birth family, if possible.

Also discussed are the foster parents feelings after the child leaves their care. "There is usually some feeling of loss," says Boyd. "But with every ending there is a beginning. And there's a real knowledge of having accomplished something."

During the 10-week GPS course the social worker will visit the prospective foster parent's home on two occasions. The first visit is scheduled after the second meeting, with the final visit coming after the ten-week course is completed.

The purpose of these visits is to help establish the relationship between the social worker and the foster family and also to access the suitability of the home environment. A complete background check is also run to assure children of a safe and healthful placement.

In addition to training, prospective foster parents must have income sufficient to support themselves. When a foster child is in the home they do receive a small stipend but Boyd stresses it is not substantial. "It's not about money," she says. "It's all about the welfare of the child."

Also, the child must have a bed of his or her own. "Some of these children come from abuse situations that make this requirement very important," says Boyd. A foster child can share a room with a birth child or children if they are of the same sex or if they are very young.

After the completion of the GPS course, approval of the family as a Kentucky Approved Foster Home generally comes within two to four weeks. In some cases, when placement is urgently needed and there are no homes available, a home awaiting approval can receive it verbally from the Cabinet.

Once a home is approved, the foster parents are asked to keep a "Life Book" for each child placed in their care. "It's like a scrapbook that bridges the gap while they are absent from their own homes," says Boyd. "It helps make a link between leaving and returning or going somewhere else."

At any time foster parents feel a need for specific additional training, such as CPR or dealing with sexually abused children, they can request it. "We can train them in any category for which they feel a need," says Boyd. Additionally, the foster families in Floyd County meet monthly to discuss concerns and share ideas.

"We try to make sure there is adequate support for the foster families," says Boyd. "We have videos available, books, training, anything that's needed."

Boyd realizes the most important element of the foster care system. "These families are our most valuable resource," she says. "Without them, none of this would be possible."

Counseling service

Doug Fraley and Rev. George Aichel discussed plans for the Samaritan Center East.

Campaign for Samaritan Center East

A new counseling service is being launched in the Kentucky River/Big Sandy development districts of Eastern Kentucky.

The Samaritan Center East will provide pastoral counseling for individuals or families in emotional or spiritual distress.

The center will also provide guidance to individuals and families facing important life decisions.

Counselors will utilize the insights of the behavioral sciences in their work, but will bring to the counseling experience their commitment to Christian faith and values.

Initial services will be provided at an office located on properties of Hazard Community College. Future plans call for satellite offices to be located in other counties of Eastern Kentucky.

The Samaritan Center East is accredited by the Samaritan Institute of Denver, Colorado. Samaritan Centers are located throughout the U.S.

There are more than 200 centers affiliated with the Samaritan Institute across the nation.

The Samaritan Center East will provide counseling in the following areas: marriage and family problems; anxiety or depression; grief and loss; stress management; abilities and interests assessment, and substance abuse.

Individual, family and group counseling will be generally offered, as needed.

George Aichel, president of the Samaritan Center East Board of Directors, announced this week that a major funding campaign drive will be started to secure the first year operating funds for the center. The center already has secured contributions to fund the preliminary planning of the center. The goal of the campaign will be to raise $100,000 to cover the first year operating costs. Continuing sources of revenues will come from client fees, grants and contributions.

The center will initially employ a certified counselor/director and an office assistant. Additional counselors and staff will be added as needed. The target date for opening the center is January 1996.

Aichel indicated that "Professional counseling services are in short supply in Eastern Kentucky. This is especially true regarding private counseling services and those grounded in religious conviction."

He also said, "Having services close to home, will solve transportation problems associated with traveling to the Lexington area to receive them."

Anyone interested in contributing to the Samaritan Center East may send their tax deductible contribution to the Samaritan Center, P.O. Box 2083, Hazard, Ky. 41702.

News of the Weird by Chuck Shepherd

In May police in Prince William County, Va., and Clearwater, Fla., dejectedly perused law books to find crimes with which to charge men whom they believed to be peeping Toms. Police in Virginia said James Harrison Burdick, 23, had rigged a ladder to look into a high school girls' locker room, but state law makes it illegal only to peep into a dwelling, not a public building. Police in Florida said that Fred J. Dohring, 50, held a video camera under a stall in a coed beach changing room but that the only surreptitious taping that is illegal is audiotaping.

LEAST COMPETENT PEOPLE

-- One of China's most-discussed stories of 1994, according to a November New York Times report, was an account originally in the official Legal Daily paper about a couple who had failed for months to conceive a child. A doctor examining the woman found her still to be a virgin and possessing the belief that a couple's merely sleeping in the same bed constituted a reproductive act.

-- A May Associated Press story summarized several schemes in which scoundrels managed to take advantage of rabid anti-government and militia types with fraudulent fund-raising pitches. Perhaps the most gullible victims were those of Scott Hildebrand and three others, who were convicted in Michigan after somehow convincing several people to pay a $300 filing fee so that they could share in the pot of "$600 trillion." Hildebrand claimed he had just won in his lawsuit against the federal government for abandoning the gold standard in 1933.

-- Time magazine reported in March that, four months after he lost the election and two months after he left office, former Illinois congressman Dan Rostenkowski was still getting phone calls at his Chicago office from constituents demanding that he do them the usual favors. A former aide speculated that voters only wanted to scare Rostenkowski in November: "I don't think anyone thought he'd really lose."

-- Jormel F. Williams, 20, was arrested in St. Louis in April on several charges, including using a stolen credit card. Williams was detected when, after using a Dillard's card belonging to John Einspanier, he was asked what his last name was. According to police, Williams did not even come close, either to pronouncing "Einspanier" or spelling it.

-- In incidents in February in Virginia Beach, Va., and Springfield, Mo., bank robbers had their capers foiled because, in each case, the robber had visited the respective bank only minutes before and filled out paperwork using his own name and address, in one case for a loan and in the other for a bank credit card.

-- In Toronto, Ontario, in December, two men were arrested for burglary by officers responding to a 911 call. The suspects' getaway ended abruptly when, as they leaped off of a porch, the 17-year-old landed on top of the 22-year-old and suffered a badly sprained ankle, while leaving his colleague with a fractured skull, broken ribs, a broken collarbone and a collapsed lung.

Mr. Mom: The Umpire Strikes Back. Now there's a movie title for you.

We'd probably pick Mel Gibson to play the title role, probably just because of the remarkable physical similarities between us.

Anyway, we're wrapping up the final days of our two-week, one-man show where we've been both mom and dad to our son, whose real mom and sister have been galavanting on the continent during a school-sponsored trip.

It has been an experience to remember, and we no doubt will be reminded of it constantly, or at least as long as it takes for somebody to come over and dynamite all those dirty dishes out of the sink.

If we have learned anything during this excursion through single parenthood, it's that paper plates are the greatest invention since canned beer, and that's an exceptional admission for a guy who believes Mr. Anheiser and Mr. Busch are the real fathers of our country.

Have to say, though, that this has been a pleasant adventure, thanks to our mother-in-law and a covey of friends, who have shared child-rearing duties while we worked.

We've learned a few things about ourselves, too, like how to manage on two pairs of blue jeans for 14 days and how to remain cool, calm and collected in the face of adversity...which brings us back to our suggested movie title.

We've been coaching our son's minor league baseball team this season and, admittedly, we've done our share of berating the umps, a couple of high school kids working their way through the summer.

As outlined in the two volume manual of instructions left behind by mother and daughter, our top priority during their absence was to watch over the family dog who, we learned, is fond of chasing cars.

Perhaps by coincidence, or by dastardly design, the car she finally caught happened to be piloted by one of the umpires we singled out during the baseball season for frequent ribbing.

The dog came away with a slightly broken leg (is there such a thing?), and the boy and I have gone into hiding, fearful of the wrath certain to befall us when mother and daughter find out.

We will, of course, employ the standard alibi for the accident...IT WASN'T OUR FAULT!!!...but from a safe distance, to be sure.

The boy and I are off to Florida, leaving the girls behind, where another week of male bonding will be had by all.

Hopefully, by the time we return we'll be out of the doghouse, with all of our legs intact. If not, well, there could be quite a few more sequels to our story...

Johnny Mnemonic

It should come as no surprise that I am a confirmed Trekker. From the original "Star Trek" series down through the latest, "Star Trek: Voyager," I have thrilled to the world as it's portrayed to be in the 23rd and 24th centuries.

Apropos of that, one of my favorite characters in the "Star Trek" stable is Data, the android whose computer circuitry and ability to process information almost put Mr. Spock to shame. (You remember: "Captain, the odds of successfully completing this venture are approximately 1,345,678 to one.")

I give you this preface as a lead-in to this since I must report that the premise of this flick is sort of "Star-Trekish," to coin a phrase. Keanu Reeves is Johnny, the title character.

He is a courier in the 21st century, but he holds his information in a special computer chip implanted into his brain. This chip can safely hold 160 gigabytes of data. Any more than that and the brain explodes in a matter of a few days.

In order to accommodate this special chip, Johnny has sacrificed his childhood memories. He wants them back and this is to be his last mission.

However, it's a dangerous one. He has been downloaded with double the amount of gigabytes he can safely hold and he must get rid of them immediately.

Unfortunately, the bad guys are hot on his trail and he finds he can trust no one. He spends a good deal of time during this movie just outrunning them and desperately trying to find a place to unload the data.

It sounds better than it is. I got the feeling that this film would have more comfortably been executed in a shorter setting—such as a one-hour TV show or even a short story. Unlike Reeves' hit of last summer, "Speed," this film is a short fizzle. You'd be better off waiting for it to come out on video.

Early renovations have Jenny Wiley Theatre on track to successful season

Renovations that promise to improve comfort for audience members and add to the already high-quality of performances are now being completed for the June 23 opening of Jenny Wiley Theatre's 1995 summer season.

The changes to the theatre have become a reality as a result of the efforts of the theatre and the administration of Jenny Wiley State Park, and with the 1995 lineup of My Fair Lady, The Fantasticks, Annie and Steel Magnolias coupled with these new improvements, Jenny Wiley Theatre is 31 years-old, and growing.

Among the renovations that will be immediately apparent to Jenny Wiley's 1995 theatre-goers is the new seating in the lower middle section of the amphitheatre.

Currently being installed to replace seats that had become damaged through exposure to harsh weather conditions throughout the years, the new seats are currently being installed and will be ready to better accommodate our region's theatre enthusiasts.

A newly added computer system in the box office is a second improvement currently underway and should make transactions between the theatre and its patrons much smoother.

With the computerized set-up, the box office staff will now be able to more accurately and easily track every aspect involved with keeping attendance records.

From totaling daily and yearly ticket revenues, to making note of where audience members are from, to noting the medium in which the ticket-buyer first heard of Jenny Wiley Theatre, the computers will ease the process of reserving tickets for both the theatre and its perspective audience.

Repairs to the amphitheatre's rain shelter is one renovation that will hopefully not have to be utilized, but in the case of foul weather during an outdoor performance, an improved roof on the rain shelter should ensure dry conditions for the audience while waiting for the rain to break.

For improvements in the quality of the visual presentation of the amphitheatre productions, Jenny Wiley Theatre has purchased $15,000 in new lighting equipment, including a state of the art lighting control board and two new follow spotlights.

No show is complete without both the visual and audio orientations being well-paired, however, so measures geared toward improving sound quality have also been taken.

Nearly $10,000 in new sound equipment should enhance each performance throughout the season, especially the presentations of The Fantasticks, which is only being performed indoors at the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center.

In the convention center is an entirely new sound system that will upgrade from the previous underdeveloped set-up and will improve rained out performances that have to be moved indoors.

Also included in the new equipment are a mixing console, speakers and floor monitors. Both the audio and lighting additions are the product of efforts from the theatre to keep pace with changing technologies.

Although Jenny Wiley Theatre's renovations are greatly diversified, they all have been installed with one purpose in mind— to improve the theatre experience for all of our region. To view the improvements first hand, call (606) 886-9274 for more information or for reservations.

It's just a thriller

Several years ago when my husband and my son attended Michael Jackson's World Tour Concert, they returned home praising his performance saying that they thought he was a fabulous entertainer.

They now admit that although he was slender, he was slightly heavier than he is today, his nose and lips were fuller and his skin was darker.

Rumor and fact now suggest—and one look confirms—that Jackson borders on anorexia, has had his face reconstructed on numerous occasions, and bleaches his skin.

Last week television viewers had the opportunity to discern for themselves what Michael Jackson looks like and how his life has changed since he married Lisa Marie Presley, the King of Rock and Roll's daughter, and sole heir to the legend's fortune. A lot of bad press has followed Michael in the past few years, but he finally is trying to put his past to rest and get on with his life. During the taped interview, Michael exhibited how much he has matured since the marriage by holding up two fingers behind Lisa Marie's head in an attempt to make her look as if she had fake rabbit ears; a gesture my nine year-old grandson refuses to engage in because he finds it too infantile.

While the interview was in progress, I called my sister and we watched parts of it together as we talked.

"They act as if they get along well together," I commented. "Sharing make-up secrets is a bonding process," Jenny laughed.

"They probably have the same hair dresser, too," I stated. "At least their hair color is the same."

"Look at her, Sara," Jenny exclaimed. "She looks exactly like her father. Even her expressions are the same. I keep expecting her to break out in one for the money, two for the show any minute now."

"I know," I answered just as call-waiting alerted me to another call. Clicking over, I heard my friend Jean yeel, "Sara, is it Michael or is it Diana Ross!"

"Jenny thinks Lisa Marie looks like Elvis," I replied.

"I thought she was Elvis except she was too thin!" When I got back on the line with Jenny, I told her what Jean had said.

"He does look like Diana Ross except that his eyes and eyebrows are identical to Elizabeth Taylor's."

"You're right," I agreed. "Isn't it amazing how far medical science has come? Not only can you change your skin color, you can change your gender with a slash of a knife."

"Think about it, Sara," Jenny stated. "They've implied that they might have a baby. What a genealogy! Years from now someone will come up to their child and say, 'Who's your father?' And the child will reply, 'Michael Jackson.'"

Then they'll ask, "Who's your grandfather?" And the child will say, "Elvis Presley." More than likely, the inquirer will sarcastically shoot back, "Yeah? And I'm Santa Claus."

If Michael and Lisa Marie's marriage survives, it will be a fairy tale right out of Neverland.

SOAP SCRAPS

EMMY TALK: It's been over a month since the Daytime Emmy Awards were presented. Since that time, several letters have come in from viewers who have both nice things and less positive things to say about the show:

Grace W. of New York says: "A couple of months ago I read in magazines and in columns like yours that the soaps will present themselves in a better light this year... (Although) the show was better than last year, it still has a long way to go before it can even approach the nighttime Emmys..."

Natalie from Brookline, Massachusetts writes: "I get embarrassed by all the gushing.... Come on, people, grow up."

On another note, I received a complaint from a longtime soap fan about her treatment by the daytime Emmy people. It seems she sent in her check for her tickets early, as she does every year, and every year, the tickets either come very late, or not at all. This means having to wait for hours to pick them up in person on the day of the event.

She wonders whether the Academy really wants the fans at these awards dinners, or whether it means to make the event just for the industry.

If you were at the Awards this

"I just came in for a little fresh air."

Nothing is so good as it seems beforehand.

— Jorge Rodriguez, 22, went before a Kenosha, Wis., municipal judge in November on a charge that he had hit a parked car while driving drunk. Rodriguez earnestly handed the judge a Monopoly-like "Get out of jail free" card that had been distributed by a candidate for sheriff as a gimmick during the just-ended campaign. Said the prosecutor, "Clearly, the defendant had the impression it was legitimate." Rodriguez received a fine and probation.

— William Edward Woods, 49, was arrested in Tampa, Fla., in May on fraud charges after he had gone to a Paine Webber office and asked for a $50 billion line of credit. As collateral, Woods offered the brokerage firm a $1 billion bond allegedly issued by the city of Moscow, Russia, and a $625 million certificate of deposit allegedly issued by a bank in Croatia, plus a receipt for $66 million in gold that was supposedly waiting for him in the warehouse of treasure hunter Mel Fisher. A state official called Woods' alleged scheme "the preposterous, raised to the 10th power.... [I'm] amazed [the Paine Webber people] didn't break out laughing."

— Inmate Frederick McGowan, 26, who had walked away from the Blue Ridge Community work-release facility in Taylors, S.C., on March 10, was recaptured a week later when he returned to the center to pick up his paycheck. (Officials, aware of the way Mr. McGowan's mind works, were waiting for him.)

— Police in Howland, Ohio, arrested a 17-year-old man in January and charged him with breaking into Gilmore's Greenhouse Florist and carrying out seven hanging plants. Police arrived at the man's home by following a trail of petals.

— In January, police in Edmonton, Alberta, charged Kevin Krishna Niranjani, 30, with mischief after they tracked him down from a failed bank robbery. Police said Niranjani, unarmed, entered the Bank of Nova Scotia and yelled, "Freeze! This is a holdup!" However, because he remained in the doorway and gave no other instruction, people in the bank merely stared at him, bewildered. According to the bank manager, Niranjani finally yelled something to the effect that he didn't think the staring was funny and ran out of the bank.

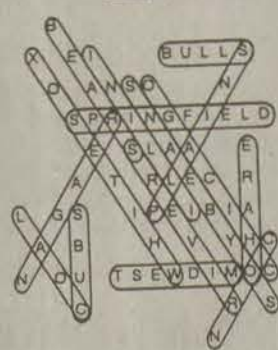

— In February, Mayor Burhanettin Ozfatura of Izmir, Turkey, who was upset at an attempt by Sen. Bob Dole to block U.S. aid to Turkey, banned the sale of Dole bananas in his city. (Sen. Dole has no connection to Dole bananas.)

The students were in Washington visiting landmarks, meeting with Congressman Rogers, as well as many other students from around the nation.

After meeting with the students on the steps of the Capitol, Rogers pointed out landmarks and discussed some of the history of the Capitol with the students. After that, the group watched Congress complete its daily schedule from a special visitors' gallery.

During the tour of the Capitol, the group also ran into Senate Majority Leader and Presidential Candidate Bob Dole. Dole, a good friend of Rogers, briefly spoke to the group and posed for pictures with the Floyd County students.

Captured by KIRIS

KIRIS round-up at Martin Elementary prepares students for stress-free testing

by Shawn Justice, Elementary Resource Teacher Floyd County Schools

The students and faculty of Martin Elementary in Floyd County participated in a KIRIS round-up. The goal of the round-up was to motivate the students and teachers for the upcoming two weeks of KIRIS testing. Carole Combs, principal defined the purpose for the roundup in this way; "so much emphasis has been placed on the need to do well in testing. Our students, staff members and our parents all feel the strain. We thought it would be fun to take a step back in time to learn what life was like in the Old West."

The week kicked off with an open house on Monday evening for all parents and students. The visitors were able to view the Young Author's publications that the students had been working on all year; and also walk through and visit the various businesses in a wild west town. Each classroom was transformed into an authentic wild west business. As you wandered past the tumbleweed and tombstones in the hall you were swept back in time.

Besides just fun and games the students were all engaged in an in-depth of study of our American heritage and culture by researching the wild west within their classes.

Cooking Tips For Your Gas Grill

by TV Chef George Hirsch

(NAPS)—Ahhh! The sizzle...the aroma! There's nothing like a backyard barbecue to set off hunger alarms. Today's gas grills can go way beyond burgers to cook creative foods that appeal to any appetite. The experts at Char-Broil, America's oldest manufacturer of grills, got together with Chef George Hirsch, host of the public television series Grilling With Chef George Hirsch, to provide these cooking tips plus a uniquely savory recipe.

add time on a cool or breezy day.

SWORDFISH WITH OLIVE RELISH (from the Gather Round the Grill cookbook published by Hearst Books ©1995 by George Hirsch)
Grill temperature: High-Medium. Makes 4 servings
1 cup ripe tomatoes, seeded and finely chopped
Juice of 2 lemons
2 tablespoons olive oil
Puree from 6 cloves Caramelized Garlic*
1 tablespoon dried thyme
1 tablespoon dried mint
1/2 teaspoon Tabasco
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
Four 6-ounce swordfish steaks, cut 1/2 inch thick
2 tablespoons butter
Olive Relish (recipe follows)

In a shallow, non-reactive bowl combine first eight ingredients and mix well. Marinate the swordfish in this mixture, refrigerated, for one hour. Preheat the grill. Remove the swordfish from the marinade and place on grill for 4 to 5 minutes. Turn and cook an additional 4 to 5 minutes. Brush fish occasionally with marinade. To use marinade as a sauce, bring it to a boil and stir in the butter. Serve with the relish.

OLIVE RELISH
1 cup pitted ripe black olives, chopped
1/2 cup grilled and chopped red onion
1/2 cup grilled and chopped red bell pepper
1/4 cup chopped scallions
1/4 cup pecans or walnuts, chopped
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
Puree from 4 cloves Caramelized Garlic*
Freshly ground black pepper to taste

Combine all in a medium bowl and mix well. Allow flavors to blend, unrefrigerated, for one hour. Makes about 2 1/2 cups.

*Caramelized Garlic: cut 1/4 off bottom of root end of each head of garlic. Brush with olive oil and place on cool edge of grill for 20-30 minutes. Cover garlic with foil and grill for another 20-30 minutes until cloves are soft and creamy.

Tougher Drunk Driving Laws Needed

(NAPS)—Continuing progress in fighting drunk driving requires adopting stronger anti-drunk driving laws in the states, according to experts at the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States (DISCUS). The spirits industry is proud of the progress America has made in reducing drunk driving over the past decade, but more must be done. To ensure that drunk driving keeps declining, DISCUS is drafting model legislation for every state legislature to consider: "The Drunk Driving Prevention Act."

"The Drunk Driving Prevention Act" includes five key provisions. First, mandatory alcohol education for drivers. Second, bans on open containers in motor vehicles. Third, Administrative License Revocation. Fourth, tough laws against underage drinking. And fifth, mandatory chemical tests of suspected drivers and in fatal crashes. These five key points are all proven methods. Where they have been used, these provisions work because they target the abuser, not the responsible user. To stop abusive behavior, the only way to do it is to hold the drunk driver directly responsible for his actions. Effectively fighting drunk driving requires working from a mindset that is anti-abuse, not anti-alcohol.
