Twister was a family affair for P'burg siblings

John Evans

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Three months have passed since a former Prestonsburg brother and sister witnessed Mother Nature's fury, firsthand, but that has not been time enough to forget their ordeals or their good fortune for having survived them.

"Today could have been my three-month death anniversary," Karen Evans Stanfield, daughter of Patsy and John Evans of Prestonsburg, said Friday, August 18.

On May 18, a tornado ripped through Jessamine County High School where Karen Stanfield kept a grip on life by clinging to a door sill. The tornado then hurled down the road to lash an attack against Karen's brother, David Evans.

When the tornado hit the high school around 7:25 a.m., Karen was student passing by the room stopped to tell her that maybe everyone should go downstairs because a tornado could be brewing outside.

"You always hear about the pos-

Alarmed, she stepped into the hallway to investigate. A teacher and a student near the stairwell at the end of the hallway hailed Karen and told her they should head downstairs. Karen started to walk down the hall to follow them downstairs when the lights suddenly went out and she heard an explosion.

She looked up and saw the sky where the roof of her classroom had once been. She grabbed a door frame near where she stood and held on for her life as strong, cold winds blew around her, beating her with debris from the roof.

Collision in Knott kills Ivel resident

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

An Ivel woman was killed Wednesday on Route 80 in Knott County when her vehicle slammed into the back of a coal truck.

Around 4:05 p.m. Wednesday, Mary Lois Hale was headed east on Route 80 when she drove her Dodge Caravan into the back of a coal truck that was traveling in the slow-traffic lane.

The truck, fully loaded, was moving very slowly and was about halfway up a steep hill on the road, Ken Gayheart, Knott County Coroner said. The truck had its emergency hazard lights flashing when the accident occurred, Gayheart said.

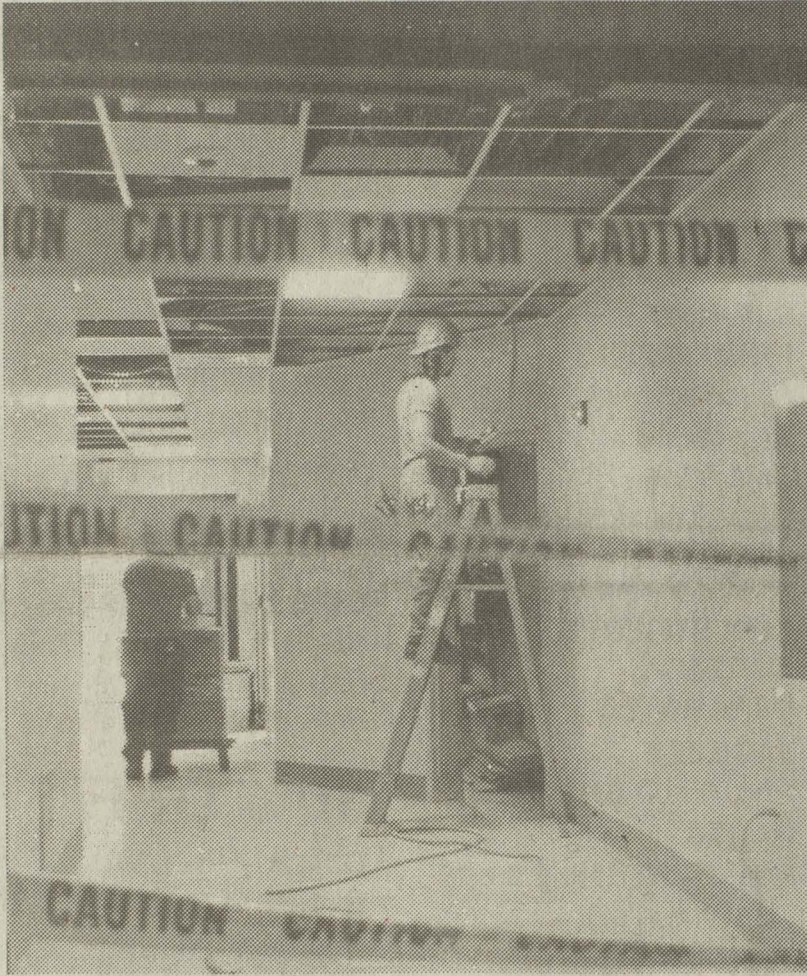

The truck's driver, Mardy Terry, 36, of Hindman, was forewarned that the accident would happen.

A friend who was driving a truck in the westbound lane of the four-lane highway, was talking to Terry on a Citizen's Band radio when he saw the Hale vehicle approaching Terry's truck. Terry's friend yelled into the CB, "Hey, you're going to get hit," and the car ran under Terry's truck, Gayheart said.

Investigators said there was no apparent reason for the accident. No alcohol use was suspected, Gayheart said. "It's just one of those things that happen that we don't understand."

The accident is being investigated by detective John Pratt with the Hazard Post of the Kentucky State Police.

Funeral services for Hale will be held Saturday, August 26, at the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home.

Martin City Council will study options before buying park site

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Martin City Council nixed an offer Wednesday by former Mayor Raymond Griffith to purchase property where the city park is located and voted to negotiate with Griffith and adjacent property owners.

For the past several months, council has been searching for answers concerning who owns the equipment in the city's park, which is on land owned by Griffith. Earlier this year while Griffith was still mayor, he informed council that he would sell the city the property and that any recreational equipment on the land belonged to him.

In a letter dated August 15 to Mayor Alan Whicker, Griffith said that the property is assessed at $15,000 and that he would "donate one third of that amount" and is asking $10,000 for the remainder.

At Wednesday's meeting, council felt that Griffith's asking price was too high and asked Whicker to talk with the former mayor about his offer.

Council also decided, on the advice of city attorney Tim Parker, to look at a deed for the property prior to taking any formal action to acquire the land. Council directed the mayor to also talk with Rose

Man with "no county" has one here, clerk says

An East Point couple said a recent Kentucky Supreme Court decision has left them a family without a home county.

The high court Wednesday, August 16, denied a discretionary review of a state Court of Appeals ruling that concluded that Bill and Malta Arms are residents of Floyd County, not Johnson County as they have long contended.

But Bill Arms claims the Supreme Court ruling and recent action by Floyd County officials make his wife and him residents of neither county.

"Floyd County officials told me I own no property in Floyd County," Arms said Monday. "Are they going to tax all my property in Johnson County and then refuse to allow me to vote in Johnson County?"

"This creates a new county." The Arms case dates back to 1992 when the couple filed a federal lawsuit against Johnson County election officials. They claimed their civil rights had been violated because they were not allowed to vote in Johnson County.

A settlement in the case allowed the couple to vote in Johnson County until a circuit court ruling was rendered determining their residency.

Johnson Circuit Judge Stephen N. Frazier, acting on a petition filed by the Johnson County Board of Elections, ruled in May 1993 that the Armses' Bear Hollow home is located 497 feet inside Floyd County. He based his decision, in part, on a survey by Bocoock Engineering of Paintsville.

Following his ruling, Frazier denied a request by the couple to establish the boundary line between Johnson and Floyd counties. Frazier said he was "not under an obligation" to determine the line for the entire East Point precinct as requested by the Armses.

The Court of Appeals ruled earlier this year that Frazier's findings "were not clearly erroneous."

The appellate court dismissed arguments by the Armses that the judge failed to follow the federal

Adams, PHS pass "make-up" tests

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Two Floyd County schools that had been put on notice by the Floyd County Health Department to fix it or close it received top ratings during inspections this week.

In June, Adams Middle School and Prestonsburg High School barely passed a building inspection by Floyd County Health Department environmentalist John L. Bailey.

Bailey rated Adams 78 and closed its eighth grade boys' bathroom and deemed it unsafe for use. Steel closures had been ripped off doors in the bathroom. Lighting fixtures had been pulled out of the walls, leaving exposed electrical wires dangling. Every faucet handle in the bathroom had also been broken, Bailey reported. Ceiling tiles were also missing in the bathroom and Bailey had received reports that the boys had been climbing into the ceiling and crawling over to the area above the girls' restroom next door.

Bailey had also noticed a crack in the wall due to structural damage that was so big "you could see the daylight shining through."

At Prestonsburg High School,

Bailey's inspection indicated the school needed to make major repairs. He rated the school 67, just seven points above a failing score which would have led to immediate closure.

Bailey also reported that urine had been trapped under tile in the boys' bathroom and recommended the school replace the tile with a concrete floor.

The new school year began at the two schools Friday and Bailey began his inspections on Monday at Prestonsburg High School. The school improved its rating to 91, and had made major repairs to the building, including installing a suf-

Bench warrant for Floyd woman nixed

From the Paintsville Herald

A judge has set aside a bench warrant he issued for a Prestonsburg woman charged with theft.

Johnson Circuit Judge Stephen N. Frazier had earlier ordered that Michelle "Mickey" Woods, a former Johnson County sheriff's clerk, be arrested and held without bond for failing to appear at a pretrial conference on August 4. He reversed the order last week.

Frazier sustained a motion by Woods' attorney, Jerry Patton, who claimed his client's absence at the hearing had been worked out with Commonwealth's Attorney Anna Deskins Melvin.

Patton, who was also absent from the conference, said he could not attend because of a "medical emergency" in Lexington. Patton said he called Melvin, whom he said "agreed that she would communicate the basis for my absence to the court."

Patton also said he contacted Woods and told her not to attend the hearing.

Dingus, who owns property adjacent to the park, about selling the land to the city for a park.

Councilwoman Hazel Dingus said that Rose Dingus currently lets the city use a portion of that land for park facilities and that she would be willing to sell the parcel to the town.

Also Wednesday, city officials received some bad news from the Christian Appalachian Project that the city's youth center would be closing at the end of September because of budgetary problems.

In a letter to the mayor from assistant director Rose Price, Price said that the organization decided to close the center because of the budget cuts and due to the opening of a family resource center at Martin Elementary.

"In addition, we operate according to our own mission statement, which makes it incumbent that we not compete with or duplicate a service being provided by the community," Price said. "With the development of family resource centers and specifically the new one at Martin Elementary, we want to offer our full support, both technical and material, to the successful functioning of that program."

Price said that it cost CAP approximately $84,000 per year to operate the center.

Mayor Whicker said that he became upset when he was informed of the closing, but that efforts to keep the center open were unsuccessful.

"Rose Price explained it to me and it's like anything else," Whicker said. "With no money, things fold. What can you do?"

In other business Wednesday: Council met in closed session to discuss potential legal action concerning the vandalism of the city's water tank last year. No action was taken on the issue.

Second reading was held on an ordinance changing the monthly meeting date to the fourth Tuesday of each month.

Council agreed to participate in City Government Week which is September 11-15, by holding a mock council meeting at Martin Elementary; initiating a city-wide art contest; and having an open house at city hall.

Councilwoman Sherry Ratliff reported that Kathy Isaac had approached her about having a city-wide cleanup prior to the Martin Homecoming to be held during Labor Day weekend and before the Red, White and Blue celebration in October. Council agreed to assist Isaac with the request.

Council directed fire chief William Petry to begin the process to declare an abandoned building owned by Peachie Collins as a safety hazard.

Councilman Earritt Hayes was absent from Wednesday's meeting.

Arms

court's directive, noting that the election board's suit requested Frazier to establish the boundary line between the two counties in relationship to the couple's residence.

In addition, the appeals court ruled that Frazier did not err in his failure to add more parties — including Floyd County — to the suit.

Arms said Monday that the issue is not over.

"As the Court of Appeals ruling stated," Arms said, "there is more litigation on the horizon."

He was referring to a dissenting opinion by Judge A.M. Wilhoit, who said the failure to add Floyd County as a party to the issue could result in future legal problems.

"The officials of Floyd County are still free to take the position that (the Armses) are not residents of that county, leading to an absurd situation and further litigation," Wilhoit wrote.

Arms claimed Floyd County officials took that position when they sent a certified letter saying that he and his wife own no property in the county.

However, Floyd County Court Clerk Carla Boyd Robinson said she has checked the maps at the Floyd County PVA office and the property is in both counties.

"I believe the biggest portion of the property, including the house, is on the Floyd County side," Robinson said Thursday.

Arms also claims, that the Floyd County Board of Elections has said that he and his wife will be prosecuted if they vote in Floyd County.

"We (clerk's office) have no problem registering him (Bill Arms) to vote in Floyd County," Robinson said. "If he walked through the door right now and asked to register to vote, I'd let him."

"I'd be happy to mail him a voter registration card, if he wanted."

Arms said he intends to show up in the East Point precinct in Johnson County on Election Day, although he expects his vote will be challenged.

"My neighbors down the road pay taxes in Johnson County, and they vote in Johnson County," Arms said.

The issue could end up in federal court again, Arms added.

"I will fight anyone, anytime, anyplace in a court of law to uphold my constitutional rights."

attorney in Floyd County, said he "obviously should have contacted" Frazier himself.

"The defendant ... is not in any way at fault for her failure to appear," Patton wrote in his motion, "and the undersigned will bear whatever sanctions the court desires to impose against him although his actions were taken in good faith."

Frazier did not issue sanctions against Patton in his order setting aside the bench warrant.

Woods, 24, was indicted in May on 27 counts of theft by failure to make required disposition of property. The indictment claims she stole more than $12,000 in tax money when she worked in the sheriff's office.

No trial date has been set in the case.

Jones disappointed with plans to allow FDA to regulate cigarettes

Governor Brereton C. Jones says he is disappointed that President Bill Clinton is proceeding with plans to allow the Food and Drug Administration to regulate cigarettes.

Recently, Jones twice talked with President Clinton, and both times expressed his opposition to such a plan.

"I spoke with him on Friday and told him although we don't want young people to have access to tobacco products, I think it was a colossal mistake to bring the FDA into the equation. We must do more to keep tobacco out of the hands of children, but we don't need the bureaucracy of the FDA to do this. I believe the FDA needs to focus on narcotics and other issues. Last night (Wednesday), the President called me back and told me of his decision. I again asked him to reconsider, saying it would hurt family farms in Kentucky."

On Monday of this week, Jones sent the President a letter, reiterating his opposition, and also asking him to consider a proposal designed to send a portion of the existing tax on cigarettes back to tobacco farmers in the form of allotment buyouts, low interest farm loans, agricultural research and appropriate agricultural enhancements.

"Tobacco farmers currently earn less than 5 cents on each pack of cigarettes sold," said Jones. "With the cost of cigarettes averaging $1.60 per pack, it is easy to see that the farmer is getting the short end of the stick."

According to the Jones proposal, 10 cents of the existing excise tax on a pack of cigarettes (no tax increase is proposed) would be devoted to a special fund to aid agriculture. Based on 1993 figures, this would generate a $2.4 billion fund.

Fifty percent of this fund should be placed into a tobacco base buyout pool to be administered by ASCS offices. Each year the local ASCS office would announce how much money is available in their buyout pool (money would be distributed evenly among tobacco producing states according to amount of tobacco grown).

All farmers who own tobacco allotments who want to sell all or part of their allotment would bid by sealed bid as to how much they would sell and at what price.

"In tornado drills, they always tell you to get down. You can't. (The tornado) hit so fast all I could do was hold on."

She was repeatedly pounded by chunks of wood and metal, receiving blows to the back of her head and jagged metal left cuts on her skin. She lost about a pint of blood through external and internal bleeding caused by the blows.

The whirling winds created a vacuum that sucked out the life-giving air and Karen struggled to breathe.

"I thought it was probably the end. I held on hard and prayed," she said.

The wind must have lifted Karen and tried to wrest her from her hold on life because the bottom of her feet were badly bruised from blows by the swirling debris.

As the world twisted around her, Karen remained calm. "It's part of being a Christian," she said. "I thought it was my time to go. I had peace. I knew that whatever happened — whether I lived or whether I died — I would be all right."

Suddenly, the winds stopped. "It was deadly quiet. No soul was around," Karen said.

She stood alone, surrounded by devastation. There was no ceiling, no roof. Twisted metal and twisted wires hung down around her. Large piles of metal and debris seemed to block any way out.

She surveyed the mess, seeking a way to escape. Finally, she saw a very small opening in the debris. She crawled into it and then up and over stacks through the tunnel she was clearing. The tunnel was so narrow it scraped her back and her legs.

When she cleared her way through to the other end of the pile of debris, she found a janitor who had come upstairs to look at the damage. He helped her downstairs where chaos reigned.

After about two hours Karen, and about 18 students and two teachers were transported to the hospital for treatment.

cient number of water fountains and replaced old urinals, Bailey said.

Although some broken tiles remained in the bathroom, tiles around urinals had been removed, eliminating the problem of urine odor, Bailey said.

The school had also installed facilities for the handicapped, he reported.

"It was altogether a different place," Bailey said. "I have to brag on them a little bit. They really did a great job."

Tuesday, during an inspection at Adams Middle School, repairs were evident in the eighth grade boys' bathroom. Ceiling tiles in the boys' bathroom had been replaced by a plywood, sheet rock and plaster ceiling. Concrete dividers had also been installed between stalls.

The large crack in the wall in a sixth grade classroom had also been repaired. Bailey said the wall fissure had been caused by problems with settling when the school was built.

Bailey rated the school 93, and recommended that the boys' bathroom be monitored every half hour to stop the vandalism that destroyed the facility last year.

Kentucky's unemployment rate remained at 5 percent from June to July 1995. The state's chief labor market analyst comments on Kentucky's continuing low rates.

its havoc at the high school, it continued on a path of destruction. A few miles down the road from the school, Karen's brother David was on his way to teach at Brookside Elementary in Nicholasville.

David, usually punctual, was five minutes late. He had just dropped off his daughter at her school and noticed the sky looked funny. It had been raining since he left home, but the closer he got to Nicholasville, the harder the rain fell.

Just outside the city limits, the sky seemed to open up. David said it was the hardest rainfall he had ever seen. Driving visibility was at a minimum.

From his Thunderbird's car radio, a broadcaster kept warning drivers to watch for tornadoes because the weather was so severe. David kept driving. Suddenly, "the sky dropped to the ground and everything disappeared."

The voice from the car radio was silenced as the radio went dead. Then David heard an "incredible sound," a low moaning that got louder in intensity. The car started rocking.

The rain was heavier and heavier and David could hear objects striking his car.

He looked up. He could see swirling. The patterns reminded him of the various colored leaves that are often picked up by the wind and swirled gently around.

This was not gentle and these were not leaves. The tornado had ripped apart a nearby apartment and the colorful objects inside the swirl were lumber and debris.

The tornado began its hateful rage against David.

His car rocked violently and he tightly gripped the steering wheel. His windshield imploded and glass was hurled everywhere. Wood was thrown into the car.

A rafter hit his car and David knew if it had struck from another angle, it would have killed him.

"I just sat there terrified," David said. "It seemed like forever. I thought 'this is what it feels like to die,' and 'I wonder where they'll find my body.'"

"I'll never forget the sound coming at me — so much rage, so much fury, so much anger," he said. "It was just lashing out and I happened to be in the way."

When the winds moved on, David looked around and could see the path of destruction the wind had taken. He was in shock.

"When I got my senses together, I realized I couldn't do anything..." he said. He didn't go to the hospital; instead, he drove to school.

When he got out of his car at school, the students and teachers were amazed. The roof of the car was collapsed almost on top of David's head. He brushed glass and wood from his hair and his clothing. When he put his hand into his pocket, a piece of glass that had somehow been whirled into the pocket, cut it.

"No one can imagine the fury of the wind," David said. His brush with death has made him realize how fragile life is.

"One second everything is okay. The next second, something like this can happen. People need to be thankful when they wake up every day. I thank God it wasn't my time (to die)," he said. "People need to heed those warnings (of tornadoes) and students shouldn't take it as a joke. Schools should take them seriously. If (drills) are planned well, and a tornado hits, they'll come through okay. I was just lucky."

Karen and David are the children of Patsy and John Evans of Prestonsburg. Both Karen and David will continue their teaching careers next week. David will return to Brookside Elementary. Karen's job at Jessamine County High School ended when the tenured teacher she was replacing returned to work. Instead, Karen, who completed her master's degree requirements this summer, will teach in Fayette County.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Lessons from a small town

by Scott Perry

The folks at Wheelwright have frequently served up a refreshing dose of what democratic rule is all about, and now they're proposing to teach us a lesson in community spirit.

City commission meetings have a tradition of being lively, to the point that a casual observer may believe that chaos rules.

But what happens there is really government of, by and for the people at its roots.

Audience members often participate in those commission meetings as much as the elected commissioners themselves, giving the sessions more of a town meeting atmosphere than the customary, structured and often tedious meetings conducted by most other public agencies.

That approach to openness might not lend itself well to larger communities, but it seems to work well for Wheelwright, and that's all that really matters.

Now the folks down Left Beaver are proposing to educate us again in the finer points of community togetherness.

At the commission's last meeting an idea was circulated concerning the refurbishing, renovation and reopening of the city's library.

There's a worthy project, for sure.

What's most worthy about the project, though, is the fact that the folks at Wheelwright aren't asking for a handout from the taxpayers to get it going.

Nope, they're offering to do it themselves, as a community.

Just like an old fashioned barn raising.

Mayor David Marlee Sammons offered to drywall the building for "free" and he "bet everybody would throw in a helping hand."

From what we've seen of Wheelwright, its togetherness and its spirit, we'd be willing to make the same bet.

And, we think we could all learn a lesson from the people in this small town.

A home is what you make it. That's the way to do it.

Info needed

Editor:
I am trying to locate any information concerning my great-grandfather, Joseph Elias Mitchell (1854?-1929). He was married three times--his second wife Catharine (?) Ousley, and third wife Elizabeth (Prater) Click, were both from Floyd County.

He had six children: Andrew, Hiram, Mary, William Sherman, Lena and Charles H. Mitchell (my grandfather). Mary Mitchell married George Pennington and lived in Greenup County; Hiram lived in Illinois; the others lived in Ashland.

I would be interested in hearing from anyone who may know some of the family history. Who was Catharine Ousley? Did Joseph marry Elizabeth in Floyd County? If so, when? Are any Mitchell relatives still in Floyd County?

Who needs 911?

Editor:
September 20, at 4:50 p.m., I went on the front porch to tell John, my husband, it was time for his support and insulin shot. At 5 p.m., I came on in the kitchen to fix his shot and get his soup he said he wanted.

When I went into the room to give his shot I could not wake him to give him his insulin. I called 886-1010 and said I can't get John awake to give him his shot. They were here at five after five and Ritchie Price said I'm sorry Mrs. Rodebaugh, John is gone. I said, no he can't be. But John had gone to be with our Lord. They were fast and efficient since they were here when needed.

Last Thursday at 12:30 I fixed tacos for my grandchildren and one got choked on something in the food. I tried the heimlich hold on her and I hollered for Trevor Ratliff to come and help cause she was choked. He called 1010, they came in the front door, but by the time I got in the house from the outside through the back door here came our faithful police officer Sue Blackburn and I said Sue, everything is all right and I thanked her for coming. It could have been a lot worse. Thank you all for being there. There were about four of them. What I'm trying to say is that we already have the 911 services in our local fire and police department and they were here fast and with efficient service. When I called they came immediately and I sure do thank them for their really fine and fast service. Thanks gang for a job well done.

Who needs a new courthouse? Our present one is just 30 years old. I like to read the 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, and 60 years in our paper and I see our schools are a lot older and much more in need of repair. This present courthouse is very efficient and looks real nice and has all the offices we need for our public officials who are to serve our people. I say put the money in a much needed new school for the Prestonsburg area for our children. I raised six children in the old school and I'll soon have seven grandchildren attending our present school. Take a look at the courthouse and take a look at the school. I attended in 1940. Which is more needed? Think about it Prestonsburg.

Maytown Homecoming to be held in 2000

Editor:
On July 28 and 29, I had the good fortune of being among the approximately 300 registrants attending the Maytown Homecoming. It was indeed a joyous pleasure to see and visit with friends and classmates, residents and non-residents. It seemed we reminisced about everyone and everything we could recall: fellow students, teachers, coaches, World War II, family tree information, etc.

It was obvious the community and churches worked hard to make this homecoming the success it was!

Unfortunately some left thinking this might have been the last homecoming because of the ultimate closing and razing of the school facilities.

I've since learned this definitely wasn't the last homecoming and I've mailed my contribution to the Maytown Homecoming Association, Lackey, KY, 41645, for the year 2000.

I've heard all sorts of homecoming and related discussions; possibly having homecoming every two years rather than every five years; to one day include a crafts show; and to possibly acquiring some of the schools facilities for community use.

I also learned about the Langley League which made and installed the community sign, planted trees and other community beautification projects, etc. I've forwarded my contribution to the Langley League, Langley, KY, 41645, too.

I'm looking forward to seeing everyone in the year 2000 or sooner!

LEPC seeks community involvement

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

Members of the Local Emergency Planning Committee (LEPC) are continuing their efforts to bring area organizations into compliance with state regulations regarding the storage of hazardous chemicals, such as chlorine.

Organizations storing these chemicals are supposed to have plans on file with the LEPC and the state regarding clean-up efforts in worse case scenarios.

At a meeting of the LEPC on Tuesday, August 22, Marcia Salyer, Region 9 DES coordinator, reported that about three-fourths of the organizations needed to update their plans. Among the organizations that store chlorine were Beaver-Elkhorn Water Company, Wheelwright Sewage and Water, Prestonsburg Water and Sewage, Jenny Wiley State Park Swimming Pool, Jenny Wiley State Park Maintenance Shop, and Martin City Water.

A representative of the Martin water organization said that the city buys its water from Prestonsburg Utilities and the water is already chlorinated. Salyer said Martin would not have to file that particular report, but the city needed to send a memo to the LEPC that it no longer stored chlorine.

Salyer also said she has a sample copy of a plan that the organizations could use as a guideline. She also said she would be willing to explain the forms to representatives of the organizations if they will call her at 886-9157.

Lon May, vice chairman of the LEPC, told members that the plans are available for public inspection and will be stored at the 911 office when it is established.

"Part of the (committee's) function is the community's right to know," May said. Anyone wishing to view the documents can call him at 886-8060 and set up an appointment.

May stressed that local fire departments be aware of the hazardous chemicals stored and used in their areas in case of a spill. Fred Rife, chairman of the committee, said he planned to get in contact with the fire departments and encourage their members to become actively involved in the LEPC.

In other business at the meeting:

- Members set the fourth Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Army Corps of Engineers Maintenance building near the Dewey Dam recreation area as the meeting date and site;
- Members agreed to pay outstanding debts; and
- May praised former chairman Robert McAninch for laying the groundwork for the LEPC;
- The committee approved switching the LEPC funds from an interest-bearing account that was actually depleting funds due to a service charge to a NOW account that only charges 40 cents per check.

In addition to Rife, May and Salyer, representatives of local facilities attending the meeting were Russell Wallace, Floyd County Health Department environmentalist; Ronnie Burke, Prestonsburg Fire Department; Bob Hackworth, Beaver-Elkhorn Water Company; Patti Williams Jarrell, Corps of Engineers; Russell Music Jr., Prestonsburg City Utilities; David M. Ellis, Prestonsburg Utilities; and Robert McAninch, a member of the LEPC.

ARH emergency room facilities are expanded

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Medical services for residents in the Left Beaver and Mud Creek areas of Floyd County will soon be improving with the expansion of emergency room facilities at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital.

In about three weeks, construction is expected to be finished on new 3,000 square-foot emergency room (ER) addition at the McDowell hospital, which will upgrade emergency medical services at the facility.

McDowell hospital has a unique atmosphere concerning patient care because it is a small community hospital where most of the workers are friends and neighbors of the patients and their families.

For years, the hospital has had only two small, cramped ER treatment rooms to provide emergency care to patients and, approximately 9,000 people were treated in McDowell's ER last year, administrator Jerry Haynes said Thursday.

The new addition at the hospital will have six ER treatment rooms, a decontamination room, a trauma treatment room, a nurses station and an office/lounge for physicians. The new ER facilities are part of a $1 million renovation at the hospital, Haynes said. "We want to make the hospital services more convenient to patients," Haynes said. "We are upgrading our facility to improve the services provided and to offer more services to the people that live in the area. We have a personal touch here and our people look out after you. When you're feeling bad, that makes a difference."

The McDowell hospital improvements are part of an overall long-term plan to refurbish facilities in the ARH chain, Haynes said. The health care company operates 11 hospitals in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia. Haynes said that $5 million in improvements at the McDowell hospital are planned to take place over the next five years.

In addition to the hospital, ARH offers home health, physicians clinics and support services throughout the communities that are served, Haynes said. Plans are in the works to also build a physicians clinic on the hospital grounds.

The hospital serves patients from southern Floyd County, western Pike County and a large portion of Knott County, Haynes said, which has a population of about 15,000. A home health satellite office will be opening soon in Elkhorn City, he added.

"We reach out to all areas," Haynes said. "The (design) of the ER was created out of a group of people, which included hospital employees, the hospital advisory council members and emergency medical technicians. We asked them what we need now and what we will need in the future. I'm very pleased with what we have. I feel it will really make a difference in what we do in the community."

Haynes said that staff at the hospital visits area schools and senior citizens centers to offer workshops on topics such as proper hand washing techniques and appropriate dietary requirements.

As for the economic impact of the addition, Haynes said that he hoped the addition would create new jobs in the area.

"We want to keep jobs in the Appalachian mountains," Haynes said. "It is very important to keep jobs and resources in the area. When you have the facilities to offer the services here, it keeps the money in the community. Also, it is very important to do things for the health of the community. We don't just take care of people sick in the community, we are very environmentally (conscientious)."

Once work is finished on the ER addition, renovation of the admissions area, medical records and gift shop portions in the hospital will begin.

Environmentalist's order declaring trailer park is illegal rescinded

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

An order declaring that a Stanville woman operated an illegal mobile home park was rescinded this week.

Floyd County Health Environmentalist Russell Wallace Tuesday rescinded an order issued on August 18 that said Glendale Akers of Stanville operated an illegal mobile home park.

Responding to a complaint that Akers had opened a mobile home park without a permit, Wallace inspected the property on August 18 and discovered that Akers had moved a mobile home beside another rented trailer on her property, which constitutes a mobile home park.

Before individuals or businesses can establish a trailer park, they must go through proper procedures, including an inspection of septic systems. Akers had not applied for a permit with the Floyd County Health Department, Wallace said.

Akers was not at home at the time of the inspection and Wallace issued the notice to a member of her family. When Akers received the notice, she contacted Wallace and told him she was using the trailer for storage and had not hooked it up to water or sewer lines.

Wallace rescinded the order and explained to Akers that if water and sewer lines were hooked to the trailer, then it would fall under the guidelines for a trailer park because of the two mobile homes. If, however, a member of Akers' immediate family moved into the trailer, it would not be considered a trailer park, but the owner would still have to apply for a sewage permit.

AAA and police say school's back in session, drive carefully

Prestonsburg Police Chief Darrell Conley and the Blue Grass Auto Club Safety Foundation want to remind all motorists to adjust your driving and help protect children against the biggest threat of the school year — a traffic related accident.

Parents are often misinformed about the likely sources of danger to their children. A recent study indicated that 80 percent of parents believe kidnapping and drugs are the leading causes of harm to children. In actuality, these two represent less than three percent of the dangers youngsters face.

The harsh reality is that approximately 41,000 child pedestrians and bicyclists under the age of 15 are injured or killed by motor vehicles each year. Many of these children suffered permanent disabilities as a result of their injuries.

Even if parents perceive traffic as a high risk, they often do not know what to teach or falsely assume someone else is teaching traffic safety. In the state that conducted this study, the average child receives about $1 worth of traffic safety skills education between birth and age 15 versus $45,000 in basic schooling.

Some youngsters, especially those venturing away from home for the first time, may never have learned traffic safety.

"Youngsters in the lower grades are especially at risk," said Lilla Mason, director of the foundation. "Dartouts — children darting into traffic, often from between parked cars — are a typical problem."

"Fifty-one percent of pedestrian deaths and injuries among children five to nine years of age occur in attempts to cross or enter streets between intersections."

AAA offers the following tips for motorists:

- Slow down around schools and in residential areas.
- Be alert for late students running to catch the school bus.
- Obey school bus stop laws. When the stop arm is extended and the flashers are on cars must stop unless they are traveling in the opposite direction on a four or more lane highway.
- While driving scan low along your path of travel in areas where parked cars or trees and shrubs might block your view of a youngster about to dart into the roadway.

The AAA Safety Foundation is a non-profit organization that serves as an educational resource for schools and communities interested in promoting traffic safety awareness. Posters, bumper stickers, table tents and envelope stuffers with the "School's Open, Drive Carefully" message are available free from the foundation. To order, call 1-800-568-5222.

Caba: "South Floyd is much improved from last year"

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

"We know what they are going to do," said South Floyd coach Donnie Daniels. "It's finding ways to stop them that matters."

So it goes as the South Floyd Raiders set to host the Magoffin County Hornets in the start of the high school football season tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Brackett Field in Wheelwright.

Coach James "Mick" Caba will head up his swarm of Hornets and will try to find a way to sting the Raiders in their opening game tonight. his offensive tactics are no secret to anyone because he loves to throw out of the shotgun.

And with a quarterback like his son Mike Caba, who can blame him. Caba is one of the top quarterbacks in the state, but he hasn't received the recognition that he rightly deserves.

He throws a very accurate arm and causes any opposition to think when on the field.

"We are just about ready to play," said Coach Caba earlier. "We're not satisfied with our defense just yet, but as far as that goes we're ready to play."

The Magoffin County coach pronounced his team healthy after some earlier injuries. "We're got everyone healthy and ready to play," he said.

COACH CABA'S SCOUTING REPORT...

Caba caught the Raiders in their two scrimmage games this season and came away impressed with the improvement he saw in the program.

"They are a much improved team from last year," he said. "They are a big team with those big tackles.

"I was very impressed with Ketrin Mays (sophomore, 5-10, 155). He has very good quickness and speed. Their game plan is around him."

While Coach Caba hasn't seen much of Raider quarterback Nick Compton, he likes the way he handles himself.

"I didn't get to see too much of him last year," he said. "Adam Wright was the quarterback against us last year. But I saw this kid in the summer passing camps and he throws well."

KEYS TO A COUGAR WIN...

It's the running game of the Raiders that Coach Caba is concerned with, especially that of Mays.

"We have to keep him bottled up," he said. "That's going to be a key here. We can't afford to let him get loose and kill us. Also, number 20 (Chet McCarty) will pop up the middle on us if we're not aware of him."

Defensively, Caba is hoping that his team's speed will offset the Raiders' defense.

"We're hoping that our speed on offense will overcome their defense," he said. "It will be a factor in the game. They like to run a 4-3 or 5-3. On defense they run different zones. We have to attack that zone and make things happen.

"The way they run the zones could cause us some confusion early, but we're hoping that we can pick up on it as the game goes on."

A LOOK AT THE HORNETS...

The Hornets are reporting no injuries, and Coach Caba says there will be no surprises offensively from his team.

Prestonsburg faces Rockcastle County in Rec Bowl

Rockcastle County to keep eye on Morris tomorrow

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg High School Blackcat football team will travel to Mount Sterling this Saturday night and will be one of four teams in the Recreation Bowl played at Montgomery County High School.

Coach Bill Letton's Blackcats will face a strong opponent in Rockcastle County (Region 3, District 2) in the bowl's first game scheduled to kick-off at 6:30 p.m.

Both squads were playoff teams last season and both fell in the second round -- Rockcastle to Danville and Prestonsburg to Russell. The Rockets finished 8-4 last season with a 7-3 regular season record.

Even though it will be the season opener for both teams, still they both know about each other's tradition. After trading scrimmage films, Rockcastle County Coach Tom Larkey thinks the two teams resemble each other in several areas.

"Yeah, we traded films of our scrimmages, but those teams don't show you everthing," said Coach Larkey. "I expect them to do a lot more than I saw on film, especially on offense."

The Rockets' mentor said that both teams are close in three areas.

"We're both comparable in depth. We have as good a depth as they do. Then we match well in size, on the line that is, and then we both have good speed," he said. "We're about as close to one another as you can get."

Coach Larkey said that while there is that comparison between the two teams, Jon Morris strikes fear in the Rockets' game.

"He is a strong runner," he said. "He's a hard runner and is hard to bring down. We are very much concerned with their offense. Morris is hard to bring down and if he gets loose on us, he could cause us some problems."

Larkey said that as far as speed goes, his fastest player is out for a while and will miss the game. Jason Brown, who started at safety, will miss the first three weeks of the season with an injury.

"He is no doubt our fastest player," said Larkey. "We really need him in there, but those things happen."

The Rocket coach said that the Prestonsburg defense could be a problem as well.

"Their defense is very good," he stated. "They are very hard to block. We have a strong line as well and probably as big as any team in these parts."

"Prestonsburg just plays hard-nosed football. We definitely need to control the offense. Prestonsburg does so many good things on offense," he said.

KEYS TO A WIN...

Coach Larkey said that while both

Size a concern for Blackcats as they open tomorrow night

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

While the rest of the county will open their '95 football schedule tonight, coach Bill Letton's Prestonsburg Blackcats will wait until tomorrow night to inaugurate the new season.

Prestonsburg will travel to Mount Sterling to play in the Recreation Bowl at Montgomery County High School. The Cats are scheduled to kick it off at 6:30 p.m. in the first game. Montgomery County will face Pulaski County in the second game.

As tradition has always had it, the Blackcats' opening opponent is not an easy one, but that is status quo for Coach Letton, who believes in playing the tougher schedules.

Rockcastle County finished 8-4 last season, losing to Danville in the playoffs. Prestonsburg fell to Russell in the second round last year.

COACH LETTON'S SCOUTING REPORT...

According to Coach Letton, the Rockets are going to be a big ballclub.

"The first thing you will see when you look at Rockcastle County is their size. They're real big up front. They're big in the backfield. They're just a good looking football team," he said.

The success of the past three seasons for Prestonsburg came because of the experienced veteran players that graced the roster. But the Prestonsburg coach said this year's team will have to learn to adapt and handle the experience of the Rockets.

"We're a young team," he stated, "and we have to be able to handle that maturity end of it. We can't let them come at us. We can't let them rile us on offense."

Rockcastle County, according to Letton, is a physical team that likes to push their weight around.

"They line up in a three-back set," he said. "They try and push you around and bully you. They will run the ball right at you."

"Defensively, they are the same way. They will line up a couple of different fronts. The whole key is they are going to try and pressure you. Force you into mistakes."

Rockcastle is not known for throwing the football because of the excellent running game they possess. But Coach Letton said they will go to the air.

"They don't throw that much but, when they do throw, they are pretty effective," he said. "They only run one or two routes but they run them really well. The play-option pass they throw is pretty deceptive. And I think they do it pretty good."

Size wise, the Rockets are averaging around 250 to 260 pounds.

"But, they are big. They are tall and big. They have seven or eight players who look basically the same. They just interchange them in and out. He will try and keep some fresh people in there early," said Letton. "Basically, we will be able to do the

Pike Central lacks experience, has size

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Pike Central head football coach Paul May hopes his Hawks will be able to compete with the other 3A schools around the area.

The Hawks will help the Betsy Layne Bobcats open the football season and launch their first bowl game. Betsy Layne will host the Unisign Bowl at the Lloyd Hamilton Athletic Complex tonight when the two teams square off at 7:30 p.m.

May and Pike Central will be entering their third season of high school football, and playing in Class 3A has been a struggle for the young institution.

"It hasn't been easy for us," he said. "We're hopeful that in a couple of years we'll be able to compete in our class."

The Hawks are coming off a 1-9 season and that lone win was by forfeit. Coach May said that the numbers were up at Pike Central from last year as 50 players have joined the team.

"But while the numbers are up, we're still a very inexperienced football team," he said. "We have some good size, but just lack experience."

Good size. How about this? Jason Justice, freshman, 6-0, 306-pounds; Terrance Rice, junior, 6-9, 332 pounds; Steve Stone, senior, 6-3, 292 pounds.

"Jason is our nose guard, but he has been injured," said May. "But he

Elkhorn must contain Jenkins, Tackett

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Glen Reeves' Allen Central Rebels will open their football season tonight on the road as they head to Pike County to face coach Derek Potter's Elkhorn City Cougars and in hopes of improving after a drastic season last year.

The Rebels will be a dominant junior class this year and expectations are high for the coming season. Allen Central finished 2-8 last year.

Elkhorn City had a 3-8 record last season, but still managed to make the playoffs with three district wins. But Coach Potter returns 16 seniors this season and he is expecting some good things from them.

"They have all worked hard this season," he said. "They have shown good leadership and they are just a great bunch of kids."

Potter said that last year was a learning year for him and he expects that this season will prove the same. But he thinks that the game of football is both physical and mental.

"We have tried to emphasize to our kids that they not only have to be physically tough, but mentally as well," he said. "They need to be mentally tough to win ballgames."

COACH POTTER'S SCOUTING REPORT...

The Elkhorn City coach likes the makeup of this Allen Central team and their size could pose a problem.

"They are a big team," he said.

Conflict not hers...new Blackcat coach coming soon....

New Allen Central High School principal Mrs. Lorena Hall was not, repeat, was not responsible for the scheduling conflict pitting the country music show against the Rebels' home game with Breathitt County.

The decision for the show was made long before Mrs. Hall came in as the school's new principal. In fact, she has made efforts to correct the mistake, but to no avail.

"I called Breathitt County and tried to change the game but they refused to do so," said Mrs. Hall. "I have tried everything to change it. It has really messed things up. I have been getting phone calls blaming me."

Stop those calls — she is not to blame! She had nothing whatsoever to do with it.

"We'll just have to go on with the way things are and try and make the best of it," she said.

Welcome to Allen Central, Mrs. Hall.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL HAS ARRIVED...

The 1995 high school football season kicks off tonight with three of the four county teams in action. Prestonsburg will wait until tomorrow night to open.

All teams are optimistic this time of the season, and I like some of the young players who will be playing the next two years.

Our football pullout, a preview and photographs of the four teams in the county, will be in the Times on Friday, September 1.

We would like to add the grade school football schedules as well, but have received only South Floyd's. If you want your schedule printed in the preview, I must have it no later than Monday morning.

The grade school season starts on Thursday, August 31. RUMOR....

Could the rumor about Tiger basketball be true?

CONFIRMED....

Rocky Newsome is at Betsy Layne.... Matt Crawford has gone to June Buchanan to join the Osborne twins (Jason and Jeremy).... I saw the two giants at a baseball game and they have grown. Buchanan will have another strong team this season.... Jason Bevins returned to Allen Central just to finish his senior year. Right now, he does not plan to play basketball. But?

Allen Central boys will hold a holiday invitational basketball tournament this season. Coach Johnny Martin's ballclub will play in four tournaments this season.

Their opening regular season game -- Paintsville.

AROUND THE SCHOOL...AND BACK...

I was at Betsy Layne waiting to take some football pictures earlier in the week and jogging around the high school was former basketball coach Keith Henry. He was getting ready for the upcoming football season where he works as an official.

PRESTONSBURG COACH...

If all goes well, a new coach should be named by August 31 at 7:30 p.m.

According to Ron Hampton, school athletic director, a screening committee was supposed to be selected last night and a chairman named.

The chairman will ask the prospective candidates questions in a 30-minute interview session on Thursday, August 31.

It is thought that there are three applications for the position created when Gordon Parido resigned.

The committee will formulate a list of questions for the chairman to ask. The parents will have a vote in the selection process.

Until, Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports. Take your kids to Sunday School this Sunday.

Pike Central

is going to be a good one. He moves real well for his size.

"Up front we are big, have very good size, but you just don't know how they are going to play. Rice has shown a lot of improvement from last year."

COACH MAY'S SCOUTING REPORT...

Betsy Layne will be coming off a 5-5 season and has hopes of having an impressive season since returning to district competition.

The Bobcats will be deeper in the backfield, up from where they had been last season. Coach May has been impressed with the Bobcat program.

"They are a very aggressive football team," he said. "They have hard backs that can run the football. I admire the way they play the game. They will come at you and make you play hard."

"They will come out and be all fired up and will play aggressive football. We have to be ready to play. We have to come to play."

KEYS TO A HAWK WIN...

Coach May said that his team must not get down early and must learn to be patient on offense.

"We have to come out and be patient," he said. "Betsy Layne is a very aggressive football team and no matter what the score gets to be, we have to play hard. We have to come and be just as aggressive as they are, if not more."

"While we have the numbers this year, some of our new players just don't understand. But we're building."

A LOOK AT THE HAWKS...

Pike Central will pin their hopes on the calling of young quarterback Jason Anderson (sophomore, 5-10, 160). "He's a second year starter for us," said Coach May. "He started as a freshman and we're looking for good things from him. He's an intelligent kid and very competitive. He doesn't have good size, but he will battle you."

Coach May said it would be a relearning season for the sophomore. "We changed our offense this year from the wishbone to the wing T, so it's going to be a learning year all over again for him. But everyone will have to learn it as well."

Mike Gillispie (junior, 6-1, 152) will be the Hawks' feature back at the tailback position. Alternating at the same spot will be Tommy Stewart (sophomore, 5-10, 165) and Jeremy Eplin (senior, 5-9, 165), a first year player.

"Eplin can really run the football," said Coach May. "He will handle the football on kickoffs and we expect him to do real well. He's a senior who has never played before. We have to wait and see how he handles getting hit."

Brandon Hobson (senior, 5-8, 150) will hold down the fullback spot with Donnie Nichols (junior, 5-11, 150) alternating at the spot. Shawn Hunt (junior, 5-10, 150) will run at the wingback position.

"Brandon is not a big kid, but he is quick and plays hard," said Coach May.

Shawn Murphy (sophomore, 6-0, 266) will hold down the center spot on the offensive line. Josh Preece (sophomore, 6-1, 250) and Jamie Law (senior, 6-2, 225) will also make their presence known at the guard slots.

"If we have any strengths at all it will be in the secondary," said May. "Law and Preece will be at the line-backer's position. Rice and Stone will be at tackle."

All the bowl festivities will get underway at Betsy Layne tonight at 5:30 p.m. with a live band and cook-out.

Fast pitch clinic set for August 26

Pikeville College will be the host site of a scheduled fast pitch softball clinic set for Saturday, August 26 at Pikeville College.

The clinic will run from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. with emphasis on the art of fast-pitching. The clinic is open to all players and coaches. Fee is $20 per player and $5 per coach.

Taking care of ball vital against Magoffin County

Deep down field, out in the flats, the football will be flying around as the South Floyd Raiders entertain the Magoffin County Hornets tonight at Brackett Field in the season opener for both ballclubs. Kick-off time is set for 7:30 p.m.

Coach Mick Caba has turned the Magoffin County program around in the past three seasons and they are a legitimate contender, even in 3A.

"Mick has done a great job of turning things around at Magoffin County," said Raiders head coach Donnie Daniels. "He went into a situation where he had 22 kids and now he's got the numbers up to about 50. Having a son come in with you and throw the ball the way he does is always a big help."

COACH DANIELS' SCOUTING REPORT...

"He's got some skilled people. Regardless of bringing his son in, he has some skilled people like (Jason) Wages, (Jason) Robinette and (Grayson) Smith.

"They can play on anybody's ballclub. They have good speed, good hands. They tackle well. He's got a fine ballclub. He's done a lot with defense and is trying to make himself better. I have a lot of respect for Coach Caba."

The reason for the ball being in the air so much is because of the act of Mike Caba, quarterback for the Hornets. Magoffin County will throw the football 70 percent of the time out of the shotgun.

South Floyd head coach Donnie Daniels said that his team could not permit Caba to have his way in tonight's matchup.

"We're not going to let him get into a routine," said Coach Daniels. "If he gets into a routine, he's tough to handle."

Caba has the receivers, four of them, to whom he can throw, but it is Jason Wages that concerns Daniels.

"We're going to try and do some things to slow down Wages," he said. "Try double covering him. Try and bring some pressure on Caba. We saw Grundy (Va.) bring a lot of pressure on him (scrimmage game) and he didn't like that too well."

While it is no secret what Magoffin County will do, Daniels said their work is still cut out for them.

"They are going to throw the ball," he said. "They're going to try to get 60 or 70 snaps in and throw the ball on 40 of them."

"I'd like to throw the ball. I think we can throw the ball on them. We need to control the ball. A controlled passing game would be just as good to me going down the field as getting one for 30 yards."

Daniels said that he didn't perceive his team coming in and getting in a shootout with Magoffin County.

"That's not our type of game," he said. "Our running game is going real good right now. We need to just concentrate on it a little more this first game."

KEYS TO A RAIDERS' WIN...

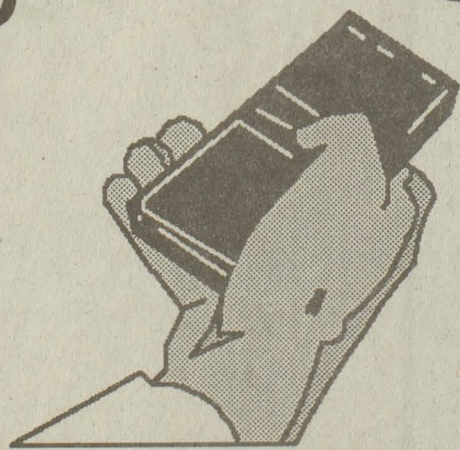

"We will have to take the ball out of their hands," said the Raiders' coach. "We have to have to 60 snaps. We need to hang on to it and move it up and down the field. When we get it inside the 10 we need to make it count."

Daniels recalled last year when his team would move inside the 20 and give the ball up. "We can't do that this year," he said. "We have to take advantage of those situations."

The Raider mentor said that caring for the football is also a big key.

"We've got to have one or less turnovers. We have to be exceptional open field tacklers. When they catch the ball, and you can't shut Caba down, you have to be able to tackle the ball right there. Controlling the football is imperative. We need to take care of it."

"They are an agile team and play hard. The (Thomas) Jenkins kid is a very good football player. He does a tremendous job over there.

"I like the (Beau) Tackett kid as well. He's shown excellent speed and is a very strong runner. Their offensive line is big and agile, as well. They have good size there. It will be tough for us.

"The (Brad) Blackburn kid was quarterback for them earlier last year until (Adam) Coleman came on. He seems to have a strong arm and likes to throw the football. Allen Central will be a strong team."

KEYS TO A COUGAR WIN...

Containing. That is the key Coach Potter thinks will bring the Cougars an opening game win. Containing the running game of the Rebels.

"We have to contain both Jenkins and Tackett," he said. "Both are quick and their fullback, (Josh) Reeves is a strong runner up the middle. We need to watch him.

"We definitely have to contain their running game," he said. "If we can contain their running game, then they will have to put it in the air. That makes it better that way."

A LOOK AT THE COUGARS...

Isaac Swiney (senior, 6-0, 160) will quarterback the Cougars tonight. His targets will include Tommy Belcher (junior, 6-0, 155) at the right end.

"He started for us last year," said Coach Potter. "He has good hands and caught some big passes for us last year. A tough kid who can go up and get the football."

Shawn May (junior, 6-1, 200) will be at the other end slot, alternating with Jason Dorton (senior, 6-0, 180).

"Both players are excellent receivers," said the Cougar coach. "Both have worked hard this year."

The backfield for the Cougars will be minus Jason Smith who started at fullback for them last year. Smith suffered an injury in an automobile accident and won't return to the team until September, according to Potter.

According to the Elkhorn coach, Kenny O'Quinn (sophomore, 5-10, 220) will replace Smith at the fullback slot. Another sophomore will be at tailback in Chad Cure (5-10, 175).

"We think Chad is going to do us a real good job at tailback," said Coach Potter.

Matt Epling, a 6-2, 205-pound sophomore, will be at center this season. Epling got some work there last season as a freshman and showed a lot of promise.

Kam Kiser (senior, 6-0, 226) and Tim Rose (junior, 5-11, 185) will play the guard slots on offense. Brad Cure (senior, 6-0, 210) and Bobby Taylor (senior, 6-0, 195) will be at the tackle slots.

Chad Green (senior, 6-4, 288) would be on the defensive line for the Cougars, but: "Chad has had a stomach virus this summer and hasn't seen a lot of practice time," said Coach Potter. "He may not play tonight against Allen Central."

Anchoring the defensive side of the football will fall on J.R. Swiney, a 6-4, 225 pound sophomore. "He's a solid player," said Potter.

Potter, who played at the University of Kentucky and for Charlie Bradshaw from 1965-69, likes to have a team that runs the football. Look for the Cougars to keep the ball on the ground and outside.

teams do match up well, he feels the weather will be the deciding factor in his game against the Blackcats.

"When you consider the weather and the fact both teams match so closely, the weather will definitely be a factor," he said. "The team that can sub the most and rest their regulars will have the advantage. It will come down to conditioning."

"Another key to winning will be the turnovers. I feel turnovers will play a big part as well. The team that can take care of the football will also have an advantage."

Larkey said it was imperative that his team hang around after the first quarter. "I feel if we can hang in there after the first quarter we'll be all right," he said. "We are in good condition. We need a good start."

A LOOK AT THE ROCKETS...

Senior Jamie Linville (6-3, 185) will return as the Rockets' signal caller. "We didn't throw the ball that much last year," said the Rockets' coach. "But we can throw it and probably will more this season."

Linville completed 54 percent of his passes last season and threw for just over 800 yards.

Jon Cromer (junior, 5-11, 179) will be at the tailback slot where he rushed for 1,000 yards last year. Coach Larkey alternates the halfback spot with Jarrod Singleton (senior, 5-9, 166) and Dallas Rigby (senior, 5-10, 180). Neil Sparks (senior, 5-11, 181) will fill the slot at fullback.

Larkey figures that he has capable receivers in Chris Bullock (junior, 6-2, 195) and Jason Childress (senior, 5-11, 180).

Jason Brock (senior, 5-11, 235) will play at center on the offensive line. Adam Browning (senior, 5-11, 233) will run the right guard with Jason Weaver (senior, 6-1, 285) holding the right tackle spot.

At left guard will be Stevie Owens (senior, 5-9, 220) while Eddie Todd (senior, 6-0, 255) will be at the left tackle position. Slade Calhoun (junior, 6-2, 235) will rotate in and out, according to Coach Larkey.

"We try to give our kids a break as often as we can," he said. "We have about seven players who go both ways."

Blackcats

same thing — try and win the tradition of the heat. I agree with him there."

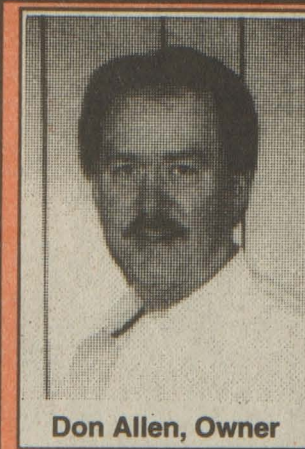

KEYS TO A BLACKCAT WIN...

"We can't get in the situation where we turn the ball over," said Letton. "We have to hold on to the ball. We'll have to tackle well on defense. Just keep our heads. Be mentally sharp. Stay focused. That's going to be the whole key for us."

Injuries have been plenty for the Blackcats in preseason. Neil Hamilton will be lost to the team for an extended period of time.

"He had surgery the other day," said Letton. "He had a heart abnormality. Rusty Young banged a knee up. He practiced a little bit Tuesday. We're hoping that he will be able to go."

"Waylon Bevins injured his ankle. But I think he will be ready to go Saturday. Chad Spurlock had a shoulder injury. Jon Estep had an ankle hurt. Keith Marsillett hurt his shoulder. A lot of little things but nothing major. It just knocks us out of practice time. Hopefully, they will all be ready to go."

Pike judge enters guilty plea

A Pike County judge pleaded guilty Tuesday to extorting painkillers from a woman in exchange for promising her a lighter sentence.

Former Pike District Judge Charles Huffman III was charged in a one-count information filed in U.S. District Court at Frankfort with demanding Loracet and Loratab pills from Vivian Adams, 26, of Pikeville, starting last December.

Adams was charged with first-offense driving under the influence and speeding in July 1994.

Huffman, 40, faces up to 20 years in prison and a $250,000 fine; however, sentencing has been postponed indefinitely because of his cooperation in an ongoing investigation.

Under Kentucky Supreme Court rules, Huffman's law license was automatically suspended Wednesday.

Huffman, who was appointed to the bench in 1988, resigned on August 16 after being on medical leave since at least April 24.

The resignation came amid allegations from another ex-judge that Huffman was in a New York rehabilitation center.

Huffman's lawyer, Burl McCoy of Lexington said Huffman had been at the renowned Hazelden clinic in Minnesota and that he would return to a halfway house until at least October.

"You're looking at a gentleman that has accepted responsibility for what he did wrong," McCoy told WTVQ-TV. "He's really a fine man that's just had a great deal of problems with substance abuse."

McCoy said Huffman was trying to recover from his addiction, which started after he was injured several years ago in an automobile accident.

Former Pike District Judge

Howard Randall Starnes said in federal court last month that Huffman was a confidential informant against him in a drug-trafficking case. Starnes, who was removed from the bench in 1984 for drug abuse and neglect of duty, is charged with selling Loracet and cocaine.

Prosecutors have declined to say whether Huffman helped with Starnes' case.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Wohlander indicated Tuesday that he would file a motion for leniency based on Huffman's cooperation.

Starnes said Tuesday that he could not comment on the case.

Wohlander declined to discuss what direction the probe would now take.

"We're going to keep looking at all of the avenues that have been opened up as of the investigation to date," he said.

Pike District Judge Howard "Keith" Hall, who has been handling Huffman's caseload during his absence, said he was surprised to hear about the guilty plea. However, he said Huffman took a leave of absence in 1991, apparently for the same problem.

"I know he went to a facility a few years ago," he said. "My understanding was that any problem he had was behind him. I'm shocked to even hear that ... he's related in any way to any type of activity that could be considered criminal."

One of the cases that fell to Hall was Adams' DUI case.

Adams was charged July 9, 1994, after a breath test recorded a .108 percent blood-alcohol level, just above the point at which someone is considered legally drunk in Kentucky. Her license was suspended for 90 days.

Court records indicate that she pleaded guilty on November 7, and that Huffman deferred sentencing until January.

Hall waived fines and court costs totaling $507.50 in June after Adams' public defender submitted an affidavit claiming she was indigent.

The divorced mother of one could not be reached for comment. But court records indicate that she has not participated in a counseling program and that her license is still suspended.

The criminal information alleged that Huffman promised to "take care" of Adams, and that her sentence "would be no greater than community service." Hall said Adams' was a "winnable" case, and that she needn't have even pleaded guilty.

"Whoever helped her didn't do a good job," Hall said. "If someone was helping her, I wonder how she got convicted and how she had her license suspended for a year."

McNeeley claims attorneys erred

by Tony Fyffe
Paintsville Herald editor

A Martin County man convicted in Johnson County of murdering a 2-year-old boy has asked a judge to set aside his conviction.

William James McNeeley, in a motion filed last week in Johnson Circuit Court, claims he wasn't represented properly and that the prosecution made serious errors during his September 1992 trial.

Some of McNeeley's arguments are also the focus of a civil suit he filed earlier against his former attorney, Ed Spencer of Paintsville.

The motion — which McNeeley prepared in the Eastern Kentucky Correctional Complex in West Liberty, where he is serving a life sentence — claims he was "denied the effective assistance of counsel to which he was entitled" in his Johnson Circuit Court trial.

McNeeley also claims that former Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney John R. Triplett committed "prosecutorial misconduct and fraud."

Although the Kentucky Supreme Court has upheld his conviction, McNeeley noted that the panel criticized Triplett's performance during the trial.

McNeeley was convicted of murder in September 1992 in the death of 2-year-old Sherman Newsome in Martin County. Triplett said the boy died of internal injuries in January of that year after McNeeley stomped on his back and stomach for marking in a book.

The case was moved to Johnson County after an impartial jury could not be seated in Martin County.

The Supreme court upheld McNeeley's conviction in April 1994, but claimed Triplett "over-ruled" the case, saying "his comments and his conduct may well have required a reversal."

McNeeley has asked Johnson Circuit Judge James A. Knight to schedule an evidentiary hearing in the case.

No out-of-state tuition collected in Pike County

by Linda H. Breed
Appalachian News-Express
Editor

With the second day of classes at an end, no out-of-state students had chosen to pay the $3,800 in tuition Pike County is charging this year.

Communications Director Bruce Hopkins said Thursday, August 17 that there had been inquiries but no students had plunked down the tuition, required upon enrollment.

Earlier this week, the state and school district agreed that it would be improper to charge back tuition for out-of-state students, since no policy was implemented until 1992 and was never enforced.

In June, the board adopted a policy to charge the back tuition to about 30 West Virginia students who attended Belfry High and its feeder schools. The board took the action under a threat of charges by Penney Sanders, director of the state Office of Education Accountability.

Hopkins said attorneys agreed that the former students were not told of the tuition requirement, and did not enter an agreement to pay.

"You can't make somebody agree to an agreement that they didn't agree to before," Hopkins said.

"The school system did not ask these students or inform them fully that tuition was required."

Belfry reported no outside students from 1986, while none were reported districtwide after 1992.

The district has lost about $90,000 in state money for failing to report out-of-state students during the past two years. It could lose more money for 19 more students who attended portions of past school years.

Hopkins said he and Pupil Personnel Director Lester Collins met with the OEA and Department of Education Friday, August 11 to go over issues regarding out-of-state students and matters of concern relating to Belfry High School. He said questions posed earlier by OEA were answered, but additional information would probably be requested.

Hopkins said he could not comment further on the meeting because the investigation was ongoing.

The board has since decided to allow those already enrolled to stay and pay, but to bar any future outsiders — except those who come from Kentucky counties that have reciprocity agreements with Pike county.

Their newest album, People Get Ready has brought three #1 songs to date, including "This One's with Me," "My Heart's Already There," and "When I'm with You." The group in October 1992 performed for the Billy Graham Pacific Northwest Crusade and in 1994 performed during ISSA International trip to the Ukraine. NewSong was also Dove Award nominee for Group of the Year in 1994 and the Dove Award nomination for Album of the Year for Light Your World in 1990. The concert is free to the public and is sponsored by Perry County Ministerial Fellowship.

Donation keeps daycare open

by Linda H. Breed
Appalachian News-Express

A $60,000 donation to Pikeville College will allow the facility to continue its daycare program for another year.

"(It came from) an individual who wants to remain anonymous," said Gerri Kinder, director of External Affairs at the college. "He's a real caring individual who cares about the region."

Kinder noted that the contributor, who is not a Pike County resident, had often donated to the college but never to its daycare program.

The program was all but ended this year because of the lack of funding. Some of the 30 students it averages assisting said it made the difference between whether they could attend college.

No notification was sent to the recipients of the daycare services, mainly because officials were hoping a donation would come through at the last minute, according to Kinder. That confused some who called the business office and specifically asked about the program because they were told there would be no daycare program this year.

"At a private institution, it's always a struggle," said Kinder, "because we receive no direct tax dollars."

Kinder heads up fund raising at the college and said about $1.6 million in funds were solicited just to keep the doors open this year.

"Students think that when they pay that $3,000 in tuition each semester that that's all we need," she said. "That covers only half of what it takes to keep the doors open."

With construction and improvements to the college campus on a rampage these days, Kinder said it's easy for people to get the idea that the institution is made of money. Nothing could be further from the truth, she said.

Alumni and other contributors do donate money frequently, but Kinder said the funding is usually earmarked for particular projects. For example, she said someone had recently made a donation that was to fund students' study trips to Europe.

"We could no more take that money and use it on this construction than we could the daycare program," she said. "It doesn't work that way."

Apparently unique to Pikeville College, the daycare program was started in 1986. Kinder said it all began when Bill Owens, college president, saw a woman on campus with her child.

The program assists anyone who is in need of daycare by paying for a certain number of hours of child care based on the number of credit hours a student is taking, with some time built in for study.

"Bill should get a lot of credit," said Kinder of the program. "The daycare program is very dear to his

BOE supports proposed athletic complex

The Magoffin County Board of Education voted to accept the donation of a building which is to be part of a dressing room/conditioning complex, that will be located adjacent to the Magoffin County High School football stadium.

This complex will feature a weight room, public restrooms, bathrooms, showers and locker rooms for both home and visiting teams, and coaches' offices.

Action Petroleum of Prestonsburg, through the efforts of its CEO Paul Whitt, has offered to donate the metal building.

The donation of the building will actually be made to the Magoffin Athletic Complex Supporters, Inc., who will finance construction of the complex through local bank loans, and deed the property back to the school board upon its completion.

M.A.C.S., Inc. will also administer construction of the complex under the supervision of the school system's architect, Randy Burchett.

Young said Stacy is not originally from Martin County but is married to Kathy Mollett Stacy who is from Martin County. Stacy had been living at Johnson Bottom for at least two weeks.

The alleged murder took place in July of this year, Young said. Stacy was taken to the Big Sandy Detention Center in Paintsville where he is being held pending an extradition hearing which was to be held August 21.

Body in Tug River

The body of Martin County resident was found in the Tug River on Saturday, August 19, by members of the Martin County Rescue Squad.

Robert Eugene Moore, 40, was reported missing by family members on Wednesday, August 16, according to Martin County Coroner Rex Endicott. Endicott said Tuesday that Moore's body has been positively identified by his mother, Louise Jude Moore.

Rescue Squad members Jimmy Endicott and Sherman Fletcher found Moore's body about an hour after dragging operations began early Saturday afternoon.

The Kentucky State Police have opened an investigation into Moore's death. Endicott said the cause of death was drowning, but foul play has not been ruled out.

Man's death investigated

James Spencer, 39, of Spring Branch of Hurricane Creek, was found dead on a bulldozer around 12:30 p.m. Monday with a tree across his shoulders, but officials are unsure whether the tree hit him before or after his death.

An autopsy was ordered because Pike County Deputy Coroner Russell Roberts did not believe the tree killed Spencer. Roberts said the dozer had rolled down an embankment and hit the tree, but Spencer may have died before he even wrecked.

Kentucky State Police were also investigating the death.

Preston said he also found marijuana cigarettes in the ashtray inside the vehicle, and that Hembree admitted to drinking and smoking pot.

The Indiana woman was charged with possession of marijuana, possession and use of drug paraphernalia, alcohol intoxication and possession of alcohol by a Elizabethtown and one or two from West Virginia." One of the five reenactors from Floyd County will be Owen Wright of Abbott Creek. Wright, who is a member of the Battle of Middle Creek Preservation Society, will be portraying a Confederate soldier. The role is a natural for him since nine of his ancestors fought for the Confederacy during the Civil War. Wright said that the reenactment, "will be something positive and will help educate the public about our own history and area, especially about the Civil War in the Big Sandy."

The soldiers will be at their respective camps at the HomePlace throughout the day. Then at approximately 5 p.m., the two sides will meet in a confrontation at the log homestead at the farm. "The Union soldiers will be a foraging party, stealing hams at the McKenzie House," Jayne said. "They will be run off by Confederate soldiers." The dramatization will be just one of the living history activities taking place at the farm on Saturday. Jayne said that the demonstrations will be like an authentic "Appalachian farm being run."

At the McKenzie Branch one-room school, a former teacher who taught in a one-room school will be on hand to answer questions. At the Fishtrap Church, a volunteer will demonstrate the singing style of the period. Quilting, cooking and soap making will take place in the McKenzie House and a blacksmith will be working in the blacksmith shop.

Throughout the day a pair of oxen will be worked in the fields. Then from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m., visitors will be treated to live 'mountain music' from the period of 1850-70s. Local musicians will perform on period instruments such as the "dulcimer, mandolin, banjo, doghouse bass and maybe vocals," Jayne said. The interpreter added that the Mountain HomePlace was created as a tourist attraction and as an educational institution "to educate the public about Eastern Kentucky." Touring fees are $5 for adults; $3 for children 6-17; and $4 for senior citizens. Children five years old and younger are admitted free. For more information, call the Mountain HomePlace at (606) 297-1850.

The Blue and the Gray will be clashing in a skirmish this Saturday at the Mountain HomePlace, the living history farm at Paintsville Lake. Civil War reenactors will play the roles of Union and Confederate troops during a full day of Civil War dramatizations, according to John Jayne, chief interpreter and land manager of the Mountain HomePlace. "There will be North and South encampments and soldiers in full uniform dress marching, drilling, shooting and portraying a Civil War confrontation," said Jayne. "There will be 20 to 30 reenactors here from all over Eastern Kentucky, Frankfort, Shepherdsville,

Wal-Mart Foundation makes donation to Magoffin County's recycling program

Contributed by the Salyersville Independent

The Paintsville Wal-Mart Store has donated $9,700 through the Wal-Mart Foundation to the Magoffin County Recycling Program. Matt Belcher, store manager of the Paintsville Wal-Mart Store, made the presentation of the check Friday to Magoffin County Judge-Executive Dr. Charles Hardin. This represents the first commercial donation received by the county since the recycling program officially opened a recycling center in Salyersville in March. The recycling center is operated primarily by volunteers and since its opening has reported a significant reduction in the amount of solid waste sent to landfills. In its application for the assistance from the Wal-Mart Foundation, it was stressed that expansion plans for the county's recycling center call for increased public education, a move toward regionalization and a waste audit program. In a press release announcing Wal-Mart's contribution, Belcher said, "It is the goal of Wal-Mart to help establish recycling and environmental programs in the communities where our stores are located. Our customers have told us how important recycling is to them and we are committed to do what we can to help provide this much needed service." In 1990, Wal-Mart began funding community recycling efforts in Wal-Mart communities. Wal-Mart's long-term goal is to be involved and support recycling in the community. Last year, over $1 million was granted to Wal-Mart community recycling and environmental programs. Wal-Mart's on-going environmental efforts include working with their vendor partners on improving the manufacturing of products and producing new, environmentally improved products; providing information to their associates and customers with updates, environmental facts and product improvements; to continue to support and promote participation in local community activities concerning the environment; and, to continue to look for ways to improve the way of doing business with respect to the environment.

"Being able to provide daycare assistance to parents struggling to further their education is just one more way Pikeville College continues to help our students accomplish their career goals."

ARC grant funding will be topic of forum to be held Thursday by Big Sandy ADD

The Kentucky Department of Local Government will accept preliminary grant applications for Appalachian Regional Commission funds through Monday, October 2. Big Sandy Area Development District staff will provide technical assistance, project development and grantsmanship to agencies wishing to apply for funds, according to Roger Recktenwald, executive director. Big Sandy ADD will hold a public forum to discuss potential projects with applicants from 6 to 8 p.m., Thursday, August 31, at its offices in Prestonsburg. For directions or additional information, contact Anne Chaney, projects developer, 886-2374, extension 307. Local governments, public utilities and some non-profit organizations may apply for funds. Eligible areas of strategic economic development include physical infrastructure, job training, health care, education, leadership development and telecommunication. Under ARC criteria, 38 of the state's 49 Appalachian counties are designated as distressed, including Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin. The distressed counties program was begun to provide basic water, sewer and solid waste treatment facilities for underdeveloped counties. The program has since been expanded to include education and other human resources programs, housing and transportation under the general area development objective. Funds allocated for the distressed counties program can only be expended in the designated counties.

Martin County woman injured during DUI arrest

Julie Jude, 22, of Wolf Creek was severely injured Friday, August 18, during a scuffle with police who were in the process of arresting her for DUI. Martin County Sheriff Darriel Young said Saturday that Jude was arrested by Deputy Clinton "Porky" Raines who brought her to the Martin County courthouse for a breathalyzer test. Apparently after Jude took the test she told Raines that she was leaving. Young added

Young said when Jude was subdued and handcuffed she kicked the plate glass door of the courtroom, shattering it upon contact. Jude suffered severe wounds to her lower leg and was rushed to Paul B. Hall Medical Center in Paintsville where she underwent surgery Friday. Jude was allowed to fill an unsecured bond while in the hospital, Young said. He said he has not been able to find out her condition.

News of the Weird

by Chuck Shepherd

In July, U.S. Rep. Jack Metcalf of Washington revealed that the U.S. Forest Service and a state agency had planned to spend $18,000 to dye rocks gray and brown along a scenic highway in the Cascade Mountains -- because the rocks otherwise would not look sufficiently natural for tourists. According to Metcalf, colorization projects have been undertaken in the past because rocks, newly exposed after construction, do not achieve a weathered look rapidly enough. (Later in the month, the project was postponed.)

WEIRD SCIENCE

-- The Wall Street Journal reported in May that Dutch farmers can now purchase machines to allow cows self-service milking. A cow desiring to be milked approaches the milking machine's robot, which is activated by a computer chip in the cow's collar. A typical farmer saves about four hours a day, and, said one, "The cows tend to like it."

-- In a March issue of New England Journal of Medicine, a 45-year-old Houston plastic surgeon described how, when feeling dizzy after receiving an electrical shock, he hooked himself up to the office defibrillator and gave himself two massive jolts to slow-down his heart, thus saving his life.

OOPS!

-- In June, Troy Harding, 19, was released from a Portland, Ore., hospital three weeks after he turned around abruptly when talking to friends and walked into the radio antenna of his car. The antenna went up his nose almost four inches, pierced his sinus, and entered his brain, coming to rest in his pituitary gland.

-- In May, Edmond Scrivens, 48, an inspector-at the "solid waste transfer station" near Rockville, Md., was buried under a truckload of hospital refuse dumped by a driver who did not see him. Unable to move except to operate his radio, he called out, gave instructions as to his location, and waited about 20 minutes until rescue workers dug him out.

-- In June, police in Clearwater, Fla., were called to the apartment shared by Kenneth Anderson, 23, and Lisa Moses, who were having a domestic quarrel. As one of the officers counseled Moses in a bedroom, he happened to see three duffel bags on the bed at about the same time that he began to smell marijuana. Three thick plastic bags of $20 and $50 bills were also on the bed. Inside the duffel bags, officers found about $23,000 worth of marijuana.

-- Missouri coroner William Gum told reporters in May that Emmitt Foster, who had just been executed by lethal injection, had remained alive for 30 minutes because the leather straps binding him to the table actually prevented the flow of drugs through his veins. After officials noticed the straps' tightness and loosened them, Foster died quickly.

-- The 9-foot-tall, 800-pound statue of Babe Ruth unveiled at the entrance to the Baltimore Orioles' stadium in May is a model of the artist Susan Luey's lavish attention to detail, down to the size of the Babe's belt loops. However, the Babe is shown holding a glove to be worn on the left hand, when actually he was a lifelong left-handed thrower.

-- In June, a couple in their 30s revealed to newspapers in the Netherlands their partially successful 1993 in-vitro fertilization experience in one of the country's most prestigious clinics. The process was successful in that the mother had twins; however, GLE apparently to a test-tube cleaning error, the University Hospital at Utrecht admitted that the mother's eggs had been fertilized not only with her husband's sperm but also with that of another man. The couple is white, the other man is black, and the resulting twins are one of each color.

-- Near Kansas City, Mo., in June, 30,000 pounds of Jif peanut butter glopped onto I-70 from an 18-wheeler that overturned after hitting another truck.

THE WEIRDO-AMERICAN COMMUNITY

In May in the Bronx, N.Y., former Boy Scout leader David Weiser, 31, was charged with assault in connection with a private club he ran whose induction ceremony seemed to be the severe paddling of boys' buttocks. About 40 boys and young men were members, and police seized photographs and wooden paddles from the club, as well as club records and copies of its by-laws. Unexplained in news reports was why Weiser called the club the "CB Mafia" and what the club did, other than recruit new members.

NO ROOM IN THE WOMB OR OUT

Kelly, my friend Jean's daughter, is having a baby. Although the baby is not due for a couple of weeks, the little one has already experienced its first prenatal disappointment. He was refused admittance into the daycare program because of over enrollment.

"It's heartbreaking, Surie," Kelly lamented to me over the telephone. "The next thing you know they'll be trying to keep him from playing T-ball."

"Oh, Kelly," I reassured her. "This isn't as bad as it seems. A spot might become available when you're ready to go back to work. It's not the worst thing that could happen."

"No, the worst thing that could happen would be that they didn't accept him because he isn't toilet trained."

"They wouldn't expect a newborn to be toilet trained, would they?" I asked.

"Who knows!" Kelly shrieked. "They expected him to know that he had to pre-enroll. I know he'll be intelligent, but I don't expect him to be psychic. At least not until he is older. In fact, if I'd known he was coming nine months ago, I'd have reserved him a space. I was as shocked as anyone when my urine turned blue. I didn't know that I should have made reservations then."

"It must be an extremely good daycare for them to have babies pre-enroll," I stated.

"Oh, it is good. It's so good, rumor has it, that they only take babies whose sonograms are perfect profile."

"Think of the bright side, Kelly. Maybe one of the little tikes won't make the cut. Throw him out on his ear the first day for sucking his thumb or crying off key. Anyway, I think they're going overboard. Shouldn't they accept your child if you enroll early?"

"We thought it would work that way, Surie. That's what I've been trying to tell you. They've rejected him without knowing him. They could have at least waited until he got here. I'm afraid it might give him a prenatal complex."

"Is that anything like the post-nasal drip?" I asked.

"Surie, this is serious. They could be doing permanent emotional damage to my child; Jean's grandson, your friend."

This last statement fired me up. I could hear the sounds of fife's playing patriotic music in the recesses of what little mind I still possessed.

"Kelly, give me the telephone number and the name of the person in charge of this obviously highly-overrated institution so that I can discuss the baby's future with them."

"Surie, it won't help. We've tried everything."

"Have you told them how this could affect the child? Have you explained that by denying him admittance now they could do irreparable damage to him later in life? Aren't they afraid they might be held accountable for any feelings of inadequacy he might experience if he ever fails at anything? And they could be liable for any mood swings during his teenage years if he ever has a flashback about being rejected in the womb. I can see it all now. It won't be a pretty sight. And I'd like to be the one to tell this elitist, unisightful bunch about it."

Call waiting interrupted our conversation. When Kelly clicked back I was still trying to figure out how to get the baby into the uncaring, insensitive, prejudgmental, snooty daycare when Kelly informed me that the school had called to tell her that the baby would be admitted in December.

"Well, isn't that wonderful. I knew they would come to their senses as soon as they had time to think about it."

Sometimes I think too much. Other times, not enough.

The hottest ticket in Hazard

Mark Chesnutt, whose electrifying performances and hits like "Almost Goodbye" have made him one of country's hottest acts, will be performing in Hazard, at the Black Gold Festival on Saturday, September 16, at 9 p.m. Tickets are $5 and are available at the festival gate.

"Down in Tennessee," the follow up single to his recent number 1 hit "Gonna Get A Life" is the fourth release from his current album, "What A Way To Live." It follows, "Going Through The Big D," "She Dreams," "Almost Goodbye," "Sure Is Monday" and "I'll Think Of Something" which were all chart toppers.

Mark's versatile baritone and roots-country outlook have made him a consistent favorite among fans across the country. His shows are two-stepping, honky-tonk extravaganzas, filled with high energy and world-class singing and picking.

The Beaumont, Texas native burst onto the national scene three years ago with "Too Cold At Home" from the album of the same name, and has spent the time since near the top of the charts. Singles like "Blame It On Texas," "Broken Promise Land," "Your Love Is A Miracle" and "Brother Jukebox" propelled the album to gold status and helped establish him as one of country's hottest concert draws.

Along the way, he has earned the respect of his peers and the friendship and guidance of the last generation's acknowledged master, George Jones.

Mark's platinum album, "Almost Goodbye," saw him come into his own as a maturing artist, displaying his case with a range of country stylings, and his concerts have drawn wildly enthusiastic responses across the country, proving Chesnutt is the hottest ticket in town.

Critic's Corner

WATERWORLD

Unless you've been in a coma, you probably know about all the problems associated with the making of this movie, the most expensive in cinematic history. The most cynical in the business declared it dead in the water, as it were, and predicted nothing but doom and gloom for this flick. Were they right? Let's put it this way. They were more wrong than right, but we can safely split the difference.

Kevin Costner, who took over directing duties after a spat with the credited director, Kevin Reynolds, stars (and co-produced) as the Mariner, a sort of merman, who has evolved webbed feet and gills because of the melting of the polar ice caps. Naturally, this all takes place in the future.

As we first meet him, the Mariner has come to a settlement in order to trade for some drinking water. When the community in that settlement discovers the Mariner's mutant features, they decide he must be killed. Before the hapless man/fish can be killed, a howling tribe of smokers (named for their method of travel on oil-burning boats) cause a distraction allowing him to escape. He takes a woman named Helen (Jeanne Tripplehorn) and her young daughter, Enola (Tina Majorino) along with him in his special boat. The little girl sports a tattoo which is supposed to be the map to a place called Dryland.

The chase is on. The smokers want the little girl (for her map) and the rest of the film is nothing but a series of spectacular altercations, special effects, etc., etc. In short, the main body of the film owes its fascination to gismos, smoke and mirrors. The script itself is a real bomb.

Tina Majorino ("Andre") is a charmer. She has it all over the adult actors and makes the trip to the theater ultimately worth it. Dennis Hopper plays the Deacon, leader of the smokers. He is right on the edge (as usual) with this one and delivers an untouchable performance. Bravo!

Ultimately, this movie is elevated from a so-so rating to a stellar one because of the innovative effects. You won't be disappointed in it should you decide to make that trip to the local bijou.

Wait To See: Ally's plan for revenge against Danny takes a curious turn.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Luna underwent surgery after being shot by Antonio. Later, she realized the tarot card was meant to indicate her death. Blair asked for her forgiveness. Anxious to accelerate the pace of his recovery, Paul learned he could get penile injections, but the results wouldn't last. Meanwhile, Danny planned for a life with Chris after he divorces Phyllis. Everybody's happy and it's a nice way to beautify, recycle and perhaps make new gardening friends who in turn may share with you. Tina K., New Windsor, N.Y.

NUKE IT—Because so many things cooked in the microwave oven seem to leave their odor for many hours, I now keep a pretty cup of baking soda handy.

I put it in the oven as soon as I remove cooked food. The pretty cup looks attractive on the counter while food is in the oven, and the oven stays fresh-smelling. Rita O., Ft. Myers, Fla.

HOME TIPS

EASY TOTIN'—With two children, I can only shop once weekly, so I try to purchase everything I need at that one time.

Diapers take up so much room in the shopping cart, there is hardly any room for other items, so I bring a tie-down (an elastic band sold for car carriers). I strap the diapers to the front of the shopping cart with the rubber strap with two S-hooks clipped to the cart.

It works great and draws a lot of attention and conversation. Gina B., Chicago, Ill.

BUTCHERING TIP—When I am making a chicken recipe, I freeze the chicken slightly so it's easier to cut up. I usually do this with boneless chicken breasts. Andrea W., Monroe, La.

NOT JUST GARBAGE—Never throw away that worn shower-curtain liner. It makes a great dropcloth for painting jobs and refinishing furniture. Even after repeated use, it still holds up; just let it dry flat. Wilma P., Fayetteville, N.C.

GIVE 'EM AWAY—My mother told me about this. She was busy thinning out strawberry plants and didn't want to just throw them away.

She bagged them in old grocery sacks and set them on the curb with a sign saying "free strawberry plants."

They all disappeared. I did the same with 20 bags of wood ferns.

COUNTRY CHATTER

Mark September 26th on your calendar as "The Mavericks" release their third album for the MCA label. The title of this new venture is "Music For All Occasions," and it has a little of everything from Tex-Mex to a salute to the country stars of the 1950s and 1960s ... If you're looking for a new credit card, and who isn't nowadays, check out Visa's "Cool Country Card." The new card boasts photos of such stars as Travis Tritt, Brooks and Dunn, and Reba McEntire ... Never knew that when Garth Brooks first came to Nashville looking for stardom, he only lasted one day and then went home. He realized at the time, nobody wanted him. I bet those folks are regretting that decision. In fact, it wasn't until 1987 when Garth and his wife, Sandy, came back and the rest is C&W history ... Country music is definitely in these days and not only down south. In fact, it is the growing trend nationwide. Additionally, such cities as Chicago and New York where C&W music is booming are going to have their city buses emblazoned with the TNN logo featuring such stars as Reba McEntire, Vince Gill, Alan Jackson and Mary Chapin Carpenter ... Terri Clark has a wonderful self-titled debut album out on the Mercury label. Not bad for a woman who, when she came to Nashville, waited tables at "Gilley's." Check it out as you will not be disappointed.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

On The Lever—Adjustable Temperature Limits For Faucets

(NAPS)—A growing number of homeowners are getting a handle on bathroom beauty as well as safety in a single stroke. A streamlined collection of single handle lever faucets has recently been introduced that especially meets the needs of children, the elderly and the physically challenged. The pivot-action design, from Moen, allows users to select the desired water volume and temperature in one smooth move.

Available in durable chrome, glacier white or polished brass finishes, Moen's new lever handle faucets have a simplified design with fewer parts and are easy to install and maintain. As an added safety feature, both tub/shower and lavatory lever handle faucets feature an easily adjustable temperature limit stop, which allows homeowners to pre-set a maximum hot water temperature. This is especially important because it lessens the chance of a child or elderly person accidentally getting scalded. In addition, the majority of the new tub/shower lever handle valves are available with pressure balancing capability which automatically adjusts to changes in water line pressure to prevent hot or cold water surges.

With a design based on extensive consumer research, the added safety of the temperature limit stop and a competitive price, the lever handle collection is sure to be a popular choice with builders, plumbers and homeowners alike.

An informative booklet about the new lever handle collection is available free by calling Moen at 1-800-553-6636.

Maintaining Control Of Mealy Bugs (NAPS)—If you are perplexed by the appearance of small, white cottony tufts on your houseplants or the crops in your vegetable garden, you've probably just met your first mealy bug. These tiny, sap-sucking pests literally drain the life out of your plants, causing them to lose leaves, stop growing, and sometimes die.

Mealy bugs usually attach themselves to the undersides of leaves and will often multiply to very destructive levels before they are noticed. Each female is capable of laying several hundred eggs grouped in little clusters that are covered by a white, waxy coating. In addition to draining plant juices, mealy bugs also excrete a sticky "honeydew" substance that attracts ants and can cause the growth of dark sooty mold. To control mealy bugs, apply SEVIN® brand carbaryl insecticide. SEVIN® has been used by homeowners for over 30 years, and controls more than 500 insect pests. As with any insect pest problem, early treatment of mealy bugs is crucial to prevent them from causing further damage and spreading to neighboring plants.
