Hammonds plead not guilty

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond and his wife, Janie, pleaded not guilty to federal conspiracy and fraud charges Monday at their arraignment in federal court at Pikeville and a March 4, 1996, trial date was set.

Bernard Pafunda, who represents Jim Hammond, 51, and John Doug Hays, who is representing Janie Hammond, 41, entered the not guilty pleas before U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood.

Hammond and his wife are each charged with one count of conspiracy to commit fraud and one count of fraud for allegedly falsifying time sheets/payroll records for the Floyd County Child Support Enforcement Division of the county attorney's office. The federal indictment, which was handed down September 20, alleges that the Hammonds "grossly inflated" the amount of hours employees worked from January 1990 until September 1995.

On Monday, assistant U.S. Attorney Pat Molloy asked that the Hammonds be allowed to remain free on a $10,000 personal recognizance bond.

"We have no reason to believe they are a flight risk or a danger to the community," Molloy told Judge Hood.

Hammond suit against state called a "moot" issue. Story inside

The Hammonds are to remain in the Eastern District of Kentucky until the trial unless special circumstances require them to travel out of the region.

Both sides agreed that the case would be a complex one and asked that the 70-day rule for trial be waived. Molloy told the judge that there are a substantial number of documents involved in the case and that numerous witnesses would be called to testify.

After their arraignment, Pafunda and Hays talked with reporters, while Hammond and his wife avoided the press by exiting the courthouse by a side door and running to their vehicle.

Pafunda said that the public perception that Hammond and his wife took child support payments was wrong and that the allegations were that the two billed the state for more time than they worked.

Frasure, Hale stress need for trust, jobs

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Ben Hale and Ron Frasure, candidates for county judge-executive, have some things in common.

They were both raised on Middle Creek. They both have several children. And they both think one of the first steps a new county judge-executive must take is to increase trust in county government.

"I will attempt to restore and ensure trust and confidence in the county government," Hale said Monday.

"Yes, there is a cloud hanging over Floyd County government," Frasure said.

But that's where the common roads diverged. Hale talked about open-door policies and new job bases while Frasure discussed a property assessment appeals board, a coal museum to increase tourism, and the need — or rather lack of need — for 911.

The two appeared before the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce Monday in a public forum. They were given a chance to voice their opinions about the office they are seeking and answer questions from the audience.

Frasure, a Republican, is a UK graduate and worked for the Sears Roebuck Company for several years. In 1967 he opened the Montgomery Ward Catalog store in Prestonsburg. He has served as president of the chamber of commerce and as vice president of the merchants' association.

He has five children and five grandchildren.

Hale, a Democrat, is a 1972 graduate of the University of Kentucky. He has worked with Brown's Food Service for the last 16 years and has traveled about 1,100 miles a week working with everything from large grocery corporations to small mom and pop operations.

He has four children, ages five to 16.

Hale, speaking first by virtue of a coin toss, said despite new roads and clean water, people are still unhappy in Floyd County. "We have a need for positive progress, aggressive change," he said.

He did not promise that all county roads would be paved, that new water lines would be installed and there would no longer be unemployment lines. "That would be a lie," he said.

Hale said he would work to "serve fairly and build trust" if elected. "People are sick and tired

Sexual abuse charges top second list of indictments

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Eighteen indictments were handed down Tuesday by a Floyd County Grand Jury, which included charges of kidnapping, sexual abuse and incest.

Columbus Quillen, 52, of Dwale, is charged with two counts of kidnapping and one count of first degree sexual abuse for allegedly abducting two teenagers September 21. Quillen allegedly lured the two teens into his vehicle and drove them to a remote area of the county and allegedly sexually abused one of them.

Also indicted Tuesday was Gary Tackett, 35, of Harold, for allegedly having sexual relations with a minor from 1988 until 1994. Tackett is charged with 43 counts of incest.

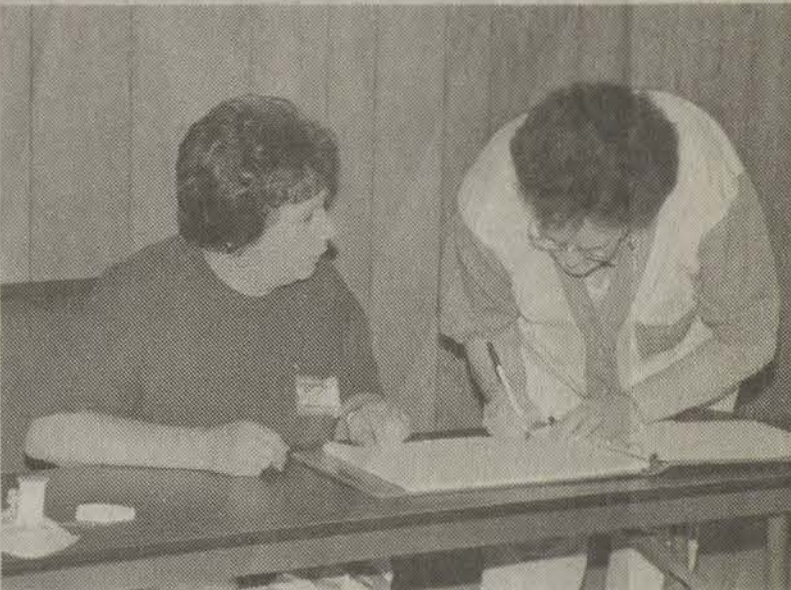

Other indictments issued Tuesday:

Ira Amick, 48, of Langley, is charged with second degree assault for allegedly crashing the vehicle he was operating into a police cruiser driven by Prestonsburg Police officer Ricky Conn on January 20. Amick is also charged with four counts of first degree wanton endangerment for allegedly leading state police officers Johnny Slone, Bryon Hansford and detective Jim Stephens and Allen City Police Chief Virgil Conn on a chase during the same incident.

Robert A. Tackett, 45, of Burdine, is charged with six counts of first degree wanton endangerment, one count of first degree criminal mischief and one count of theft by unlawful taking. On August 18, 1994, Tackett allegedly stole an ambulance belonging to Life Line Ambulance Service when emer-

Allen precinct votes to ban alcohol sales

The fourth precinct to go dry since the county voted wet in 1982 became official Tuesday evening after the city of Allen's special election.

The mouth of Beaver precinct in Allen went dry when 41 out of 66 voters, voted to prohibit the sales of alcoholic beverages.

"The city had previously been wet, but none of the businesses sold alcohol," County Clerk Carla Boyd Robinson said.

Robinson said the turnout was light — there are 370 registered voters in the precinct — but was what the clerk's office expected.

Other precincts that have voted dry since 1982 are Cliff, the East Point side, in 1989; Gearheart, in Price, in 1990; and the Allen-Dwale precinct in 1992.

The Richmond precinct, in Prestonsburg, voted dry in 1989, but went back to wet in 1992.

Library will close while technology is upgraded

The Floyd County Library is moving into the 21st century.

Librarian Homer Hall announced Tuesday the library will be closed for three weeks to complete automation of the materials.

"We're going to be getting ready to go to full automation," Ruth Daniels, library technician, said Tuesday. "We'll be putting the computers in place."

She said about 25,000 bar codes will be put on books in the library. Other books are being bar coded in groups, through what Daniels described as Share Pack, and new books will be bar coded as they arrive.

The library will be closed from October 9 through October 29. When the doors open back up, there will no longer be a card catalog.

Books will be located using a computer.

"Everything will be checked out by computer," Daniels said. "We can tell you if a book is on the shelf and how many books you have checked out."

Nine inmates moved after confrontation

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Nine inmates at the Otter Creek Correctional Facility were transferred to other prisons Tuesday for their participation in an uprising at the Wheelwright prison Monday night after an inmate died of an apparent heart attack while playing basketball.

Raoul Cunningham, director of Public Affairs for U.S. Corrections Corporation, said Tuesday afternoon that disciplinary measures were taken against the nine inmates after they refused to return to their dorms Monday when fellow inmate, William Covington, 26, of Louisville, collapsed.

"A vast majority of the prisoners" at the facility refused to return to their dorms when ordered to do so by prison officials, Cunningham said. Prison officials continue to

Caudill says child support goes to Pike

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A lawsuit filed Friday in Floyd Circuit Court by Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond seeking an injunction to keep control of child support collections became a moot issue Monday.

At a hearing Monday before Floyd Circuit Judge Danny Caudill, Hammond's attorney, Bernard Pafunda, told the judge the issue of an injunction was moot because state officials had taken action and assigned child support collections to Pike County Attorney Gary Johnson's office.

In a letter to Hammond dated September 27, Angela Ford, general counsel for the Cabinet for Human Resources, notified the county attorney that his contract was being terminated because Hammond and his wife, Janie, were indicted by a federal grand jury.

The Hammonds are accused of falsifying time sheets/payroll records for employees in the Child Support Enforcement Division. The two are each charged with one count of conspiracy to commit fraud and fraud. They pleaded not guilty to the charges Monday afternoon in federal court at Pikeville.

"Based upon the indictment and the fact that the allegations involved the inappropriate disposition of child support funds, this is to advise you of the cabinet's decision to terminate the contract with the Office of the Floyd County Attorney, pending resolution of the charges against you," Ford's letter said. "Upon your being found not guilty, the cabinet will reinstate the contract."

Hammond filed suit Friday against Masten Childers II, secretary for the Cabinet for Human Resources (CHR); Steve Veno, director of Child Support Enforcement; Bertha Daniels, regional director for Child Support Enforcement; and Pike County Attorney Gary Johnson seeking an injunction to prevent the CHR from canceling his contract for services relating to Child Support Enforcement.

Hammond's lawsuit claimed that the cabinet denied him due process related to the cancellation of his contract and that cabinet officials were "attempting to strip local government and its citizens of certain constitutionally guaranteed rights."

Pafunda told Judge Caudill that the suit was an attempt to keep child support collection offices in Floyd County.

"We wanted to try to keep operations in place in Floyd County, rather than move them out of Floyd County," Pafunda said. "Any restraining order is moot because the cabinet has taken action."

Prior to the start of Monday's hearing, Hammond distributed a copy of a letter addressed to his employees in Child Support Enforcement notifying them that their jobs were terminated.

"As you know, the secretary Masten Childers II, of the Cabinet for Human Resources, director Steve Veno of the Child Support Enforcement Division of said cabinet and Bertha Daniels, regional director of the Prestonsburg Office of the said division of the cabinet has informed me that all funding for and the contract with (the) office of the Floyd County Attorney has been suspended and/or canceled and that the office of the Pike County Attorney will assume these duties and responsibilities to be performed by said office staff of the Pike County Attorney in Child Support Enforcement for Floyd County rather than the personnel of the office of the Floyd County Attorney," Hammond's letter said.

Veno said after Monday's hearing that cabinet officials had negotiated to keep Floyd County's office staff, but that those attempts had been unsuccessful.

Pafunda said Monday afternoon that the issue of keeping the Floyd County staff had not been raised by cabinet officials during the negotiations.

At Monday's hearing, Ryan Halloran, attorney for CHR, told the judge that venue for the case should be Franklin County Circuit Court.

Judge Caudill told Halloran that he could raise the issue of venue if he chose to do so.

The case is pending, but no further action has been scheduled.

Fighters bring blazes under control

by Alisa Goodwill
Staff writer

The Prestonsburg Fire Department brought a structure fire Monday morning under control within ten minutes despite being shorthanded when the call first came through, Fire Marshall Larry Adams said.

Adams said the department responded to a fire on Graham Street with four firefighters, including himself and fire chief Tom Blackburn.

"The chief and I had to do entry because we were shorthanded," Adams said.

The home, owned by Tommy Thompson, Sr., caught fire Monday at 9:20 a.m. from a hot water heater, Adams said.

Thompson said the house looked like it was full of fog when he got out of the shower, Adams added.

The home received water and heat damage in the rear of the house, including part of the kitchen, Adams said.

A total of ten firefighters responded to the fire.

The department also had a fire Wednesday, September 27 at 6:44 p.m. at the Dixie apartments in Goble-Roberts.

The fire damaged two apartments and the families that occupied them were evacuated, fire sergeant Mike Mays said.

The families will not return to their homes until repairs are made, Mays added.

Mays said the fire was caused by a cutting torch which was used to make repairs to the metal stairs at the apartment building.

Eighteen or 19 firefighters responded.

In other areas of the county:

The Cow Creek Fire Department had not had a fire since April, but their six-month streak ended Sunday evening.

At 7:26 p.m. Sunday, six or seven firefighters responded to a small structure fire at Woods Branch, Cow Creek Fire Chief Jim Caldwell said.

The owner of the home, Robert Endicott, had the small grease fire under control by the time the fire department arrived at the scene, Caldwell added.

Caldwell said there was damage to the wall behind the stove and part of the ceiling in the kitchen.

In Martin, a Beaver, Valley Bottom home caught fire Friday evening soon after having the electricity turned on, Martin Fire Chief William Petry said.

The home, owned by Tim Salisbury, caught fire about 5 p.m. when the occupants of the home were cooking on a small camp stove atop of the oven, but did not realize the electricity had been turned on.

Petry said the people who rented the home had been living there since June without electricity. Apparently the residents had placed newspaper beneath the camp stove to catch grease, but didn't realize the oven was on.

Petry said ten firefighters responded to the fire. There was minor damage to the home.

October blazes with fall color and fire season

October 1 marked the beginning of the fall forest fire season, Mark Matuszewski, director of the Kentucky Division of Forestry, recently reminded Kentuckians

The spectacular blaze of autumn colors across our forestlands can easily be accompanied by destructive forest fires. "August, September, October and November are generally the driest months of the year in Kentucky," Matuszewski said.

Kentucky law designates October 1 through December 15 as "Fire Hazard Season." During this time, the law prohibits burning within 150 feet of the woods or burning anything capable of spreading fire to the woods except between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and midnight. This is called the 4:30 Burning Law and is intended to prevent fires. "Even after 4:30 p.m. no one should burn unless the air is calm and there is adequate moisture in the air to allow control of the fire. It is also illegal to start a fire at anytime on or near timberland without taking all reasonable precautions to prevent its spread. The law requires all outdoor fires to be attended until extinguished," Matuszewski said.

Reasonable precautions require that the ground be cleared around a fire and that tools and water be handy. The fire should be fed slowly and be attended until it is dead out. "Burning only in the late evening and taking adequate precautions will rid Kentucky of one of its leading causes of forest fires," Matuszewski said, referring to fires accidentally escaping when people burn trash and other unwanted material. Local air quality regulations should also be checked.

Woods arson continues to be a major problem in Kentucky's forests. Deliberately setting fire to the forest is punishable by fines and/or imprisonment. Forest wardens throughout Kentucky are enforcing these forest fire laws. Forest arson can be reported by calling 1-800-27-ARSON (1-800-272-7766).

"Forest fires cause multi-million dollar damage to the forest-based economy of Kentucky," Matuszewski added.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

by Scott Perry

Well, there is a killer running loose in America.

It might well be O.J. Simpson.

If it is, he won't have to pay for it...not in this lifetime, anyway.

Unless you've been stranded on a desert island for the past 24 hours, you know that Simpson was acquitted Wednesday of the murders of Nicole Brown and Ronald Goldman.

That verdict was a shocker.

We had expected a long, drawn out period of deliberations among jurors, possibly even a hung jury because of the defense's success in planting seeds of reasonable doubt.

But the jury was out just four hours before finding Simpson not guilty, suggesting that they didn't just have reasonable doubts about his guilt, they doubted it completely.

In doing so, they must have bought into the defense allegations that physical evidence linking Simpson to the crime was planted by Los Angeles police.

We found that claim to be as believable as contentions that those monolithic rock structures on Easter Island were placed there by space aliens.

It doesn't matter what we think, though.

We weren't among those twelve people who sat in the jury box all those months, listening to all that testimony and studying all that evidence.

They determined that for justice to be served, Simpson must go free.

The verdict is not the end of the story, though, it's just the beginning of a new chapter.

Who killed these people?

We think we know.

But he'll never have to pay for it... not in this lifetime, anyway.

The victims in this case will have to appeal to a higher court.

No witnesses will be necessary.

Letters to the editor policy

Letters to the Editor are welcomed by the Floyd County Times. In accordance with our editorial page policy, all letters must include the signature, address and telephone number of the author.

Letters must be received no later than 10 a.m. Tuesday for publication in Wednesday's issue and 10 a.m. Thursday for Friday's issue.

Letters may be sent to Editor, The Floyd County Times, P.O. Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653.

Letters may be edited for clarity and length.

The greatest gift— the gift of life!

Editor:
I would like to thank you for the article printed in your newspaper about my wife, Glenna Bolen. However, my greatest thanks go to the family in Kansas City for the greatest gift of all, the gift of life. Without a liver, my wife would have surely died. May God Bless them all.

I would also like to thank those who gave blood, sent flowers, cards, and the prayers of so many wonderful people.

Also for the donations which have made our stay in Louisville more tolerable. Our thanks also to those who have called to wish her well and to check on her condition.

We know her greatest birthday present was a liver; now the next greatest thing will be when she can go home, and we will be able to continue our wonderful life with our family, friends, children and grandchildren.

Because she had been in a coma for three weeks, it will take her longer to accept her new liver and recuperate. Her condition at this time remains very serious. We believe she will return home in about another month.

I would like to say to the people who read this letter, we have received the most wonderful gift of all, the gift of life. Please sign your donor card, give blood, and get yourself a good insurance policy. Without all of this, I wouldn't be able to write this letter today. Remember, this could happen to you. Believe me, this can happen!

Betsy Layne "Country Breakfast" a success

Editor:
Working together pays off.
The breakfast held on September 23, at the Betsy Layne Senior Citizens Center was a big success.

It was hectic and busy, but fun. We made close to $500 and all was profit, as everybody contributed all items needed.

One of our senior ladies, Norma Mullins, stood at the stove making gravy continuously. She lost count past 15 skillets of gravy and wouldn't take a break. She said she was fine and not tired at all.

Elizabeth Little said she thought she was going to start cackling after scrambling over 21 dozen eggs.
Over 25 carry-out breakfasts were taken to several car lots.

Ted Stumbo rolled up his sleeves, kept the sliced potatoes coming. Then he really pitched in when he started washing pots and pans. He said, "Let's do this every Saturday."

Guess what we women told him. Next time we have a breakfast, the men can do the cooking. They are ready and raring to go, they said.

We made up tickets and were selling them two weeks beforehand. We even had a couple workers trying to outdo each other with selling the most tickets. Even that was fun. The enthusiasm was unbelievable.

Nothing can be a success unless you work at it and that's what we did. Planning, organizing, and advertising, and above all everyone working together will pay off.

But, we couldn't do this without the public's support, and we thank you sincerely.

More things are coming up in the next month or two, so watch for us. We are talking about a chicken and dumpling dinner soon.

We next big event will be our Health Fair, October 20, from 10-2 p.m. at the center. Free blood pressure and blood tests will be done plus other free services.

The health department will be there to give flu shots. There will be some other various tables set up for your pleasure. Refreshments are free, too.

All of the other senior citizen centers are invited to come and participate with us. Also, the public.

We feel our center is on its feet and really coming alive, and we are very excited about it.

After all, our senior citizens are very special people and they deserve the best. Don't you think so?

Trike-a-thon to fight childhood cancer

Editor:
St. Jude Children's Research Hospital's Bring-A-Bike Day safety program will be conducted at Mountain Christian Academy on October 4th, 5th and 6th to encourage safe riding behavior among children and to raise money to fight childhood cancer.

Bicycle accidents are a major problem with American children. According to the National Safety Council, there are an estimated 1,000 fatal accidents and 40,000 injuries a year involving bicycles and cars. Bring-A-Bike Day aims at making children aware of bike safety at an early age through the use of safety stories and special coloring sheets. By asking the children to show these safety messages to their parents, we are exposing these youngsters to good habits.

Parents of children at MCA will be seeking pledges for St. Jude Hospital during this program. St. Jude Hospital is the leading center for the study of childhood cancer which, next to accidents, is the leading killer of children.

Director explains how United Way works

Editor:
Recently it has come to the attention of the board of directors of United Way of Eastern Kentucky that people in our community don't clearly understand how United Way works to help local service agencies. The purpose of this letter is to describe the way our United Way works.

A volunteer board of directors sets the direction for United Way of Eastern Kentucky. An executive director manages the day-to-day operations of the program. A committee of the board, made up of local people, decides how the money we receive is given to local agencies.

In March, local agencies are asked to submit a detailed application to United Way requesting funding for the following year. After reviewing the application, the board committee makes recommendations for funding to the total board. A goal is then set for the annual campaign, which takes place from September through December.

Depending upon the success of the campaign, monies are allocated in December to those agencies approved by the local board. The only

If more wage earners realized that they're getting the shaft under our current Social Security system, we'd bet that the program wouldn't be the sacred cow it is now in the debate over federal budget tightening.

If an entrant into the job market today was allowed to invest the amount deducted for Social Security in an interest-earning retirement fund, odds are that by age 65, that person would have three times the retirement income provided by Social Security.

Even minimum wage earners could retire comfortably if their contributions earned a bare minimum of five percent interest each year.

As it is now, though, what employees and employers pay into Social Security is paid out to retirees, almost immediately and without the benefit of earned interest.

That's a great waste of earning potential, and a risky process, at best, for planning a secure retirement.

Both candidates for governor have promised to up the return of coal severance taxes to coal producing counties, but they're both a little too iffy on the timing to suit us.

Paul Patton and Larry Forgy each said they'll up the return to 50 percent, the figure promised by state law, but both hinted that the increase would come "by the end" of their terms.

If that's the case, we could be looking at another four years before adequate funds are made available for economic diversification in the coalfields.

Not soon enough, guys.

Four more years brings us four years closer to the end of the world, as far as coal production is concerned and we need to be prepared far in advance.

Just take a look at things now. The coal business is in another one of those slumps, people are getting laid off left and right, and we have nothing to offer them but unemployment checks.

We need a specific plan and the money to finance it if we are going to grow a new, stable economy.

And, we need it now.

Now that the trial of the century is over and O.J. has been found not guilty, it's time for everyone involved with the case to get back to their normal routines which, we imagine, is figuring out a way to cash in on the deal.

No doubt the judge, the jurors, the lawyers, the witnesses and even the jailers will be hot items on the PR circuits soon, with movie deals, book projects and talk TV dishing out the dough for the inside dope.

Darned if we don't wish now that we'd kept a diary for the past eight months. Could have hit the jackpot with a recount of the life and times of an O.J. trial spectator.

Oh well, guess we'll just have to keep working for a living.

Most of the studies we've seen so far on the impact of education reform in Kentucky appear to arrive at the same, unremarkable conclusion that what you get out of the educational process is directly proportionate to what you put in.

That news is no news when you realize that philosophy applies to everything from running a lawnmower to running a country.

It would appear then that before we concentrate on fine-tuning education reform, as has been proposed in various quarters, we ought to pinpoint the programs of successful schools and pass those findings along as roadmaps for others to follow.

Nothing succeeds like success.

Share those stories before dwelling on failures.

of empty promises. It is time to get past the red dog mentality," he said.

Hale said he would like to see the county move toward the future by increasing job opportunities here.

"Today, we need to start laying the foundation to diversify Floyd County's work force," he said. "We need to make Floyd County attractive to new industry. We need to make Floyd County more economically viable."

Hale said in the first 30 days, he would implement a four-point plan, which includes, open meetings, open financial records, a 30-day road plan, and a "completely open door policy."

Frasure brought up the "T" word and said he supports the organization of an appeals board for property tax assessments. "The people of Floyd County feel they are unfairly taxed through assessments," he said.

Frasure quoted figures that show the county property values in 1992 were $364 million. A recent figure of the same property is $602 million.

"And yet the property tax rate continues to climb," he said. Frasure said the 1996 tax bills would show an increase of $14 per $1,000 of assessed property. "Is there a reason to increase it that much?"

He said attracting and keeping property owners is important. "We have 7,000 people fewer than we did several years ago," he said. "And Johnson County's assessment is as much as ours. That means there are a lot of new cars,

Hammonds

Pafunda said his client was innocent of the charge.

"Jim's position is simple. He got paid for the hours he worked," Pafunda said. "He wasn't overpaid."

Pafunda also said that Hammond's child support collection rate in Floyd County was "astronomical."

Hayes said it was a tragedy that his client was charged.

"It is a tragedy that she has to go through this," Hayes said. "The only thing she is guilty of is being a good, loving mother and a good, loving wife. She shouldn't be on trial."

Both attorneys declined to discuss specifics of the case and said they "would not try the case in the media."

new houses and new commercial buildings that they got that we didn't."

He also questioned the need for 911 service in Floyd County. "I wonder if we are ready for 911," he said. "I plan to look into this and see if we're getting more than just another number to call, to see if the people are getting their money's worth."

He said he would push for the four-laning of the Mountain Parkway from Campton to Prestonsburg and would work on getting a new road on Left Beaver, if elected.

And he stressed tourism. He said he wants to see a coal museum and more fishing opportunities in Floyd County.

"Why should people go to Gatlinburg? Let's keep them in Prestonsburg," he said.

During the question-answer session, Frasure said in his first 10 days, he would have county finances audited. "I want to find out exactly where we stand," he said.

Hale said he would push his 30-day plan of openness. "There won't be anything in my administration to hide," he said.

Both agreed the key to increasing tourism in the county begins by better cooperation from surrounding counties.

"By building trust and confidence in the county government and with the right leadership, we can break those barriers," Hale said. "If you don't have trust, you can't get things solved."

"I'd like to see Johnson County believe anything Floyd County gets (like a new road) benefits us all," Frasure said.

He also said he'd like to have "positive newscasts about Floyd County" where it looks like people "like to live there, work there."

And both agreed tourism could be the key to improving the area.

"I'd like to see the county government taking advantage and further developing clean tourism dollars," Hale said.

Frasure said one way would be a coal museum at David. "That's our heritage. That's our history," he said.

TO THE CITIZENS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

I want to talk to you about our future. When I am elected as your County Judge-Executive, my immediate goal is to restore and ensure public trust and confidence in our county government. I have already laid out a comprehensive plan to implement this goal within the first 30 days of my administration.

I have also identified some of the long-term goals we need to address on an on-going basis.

THESE LONG-TERM GOALS ARE:

- Improved infrastructure (extended water, better roads)
- Recreational facilities
- A stronger and more diversified economy
- A cleaner environment

These long-term goals cannot be achieved overnight, but must be a priority. Now, I can promise you that all these goals could be done within one year, but that wouldn't be realistic. However, there is a budget we must abide by. These goals will be achieved on a continual basis...keeping in mind that some goals have first priority...continued false promises breed only mistrust and contempt for our county government. It is time for us to get past the false promises and political favors. It's time for us to get past partisan bickering and the idea that some of us are more deserving than others.

It is time to realize that we are in this together.

We must start now working in a cooperative effort to take Floyd County into the 21st Century.

question other inmates and staff concerning the situation, Cunningham added.

Scores of police officers were called to the scene Monday, but officers did not enter the prison grounds and Otter Creek officials quashed the uprising without seeking the assistance of law enforcement, Cunningham said.

"The first attempt to get them into the dorms was at 9 p.m.," Cunningham said. "When they didn't clear, the Kentucky State Police, sheriff's office and city police were notified. Officers did not come up to the compound, they remained at the base of the road. The situation was abnormal when they refused (to return to the dorms). There was no violence involved in the situation." Cunningham said that Otter Creek warden Don Sapienza talked with inmates and gave the prisoners an extra 30 minutes before lights out in order to calm the situation.

According to the Floyd County Sheriff's Office, approximately 25 inmates wanted to talk to Sapienza about the incident and stood in the prison yard for approximately 45 minutes before going inside at 11:15 p.m. The inmates were then allowed back into the yard where a short prayer service was held for Covington.

According to the sheriff's department report, Covington collapsed at approximately 8:35 p.m. and a Left Beaver Rescue Squad ambulance was on the scene 15 minutes later.

Covington was taken to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital and was pronounced dead at 9:33 p.m. by a hospital physician.

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson responded to the hospital and ordered an autopsy to be performed in Frankfort on Tuesday.

Cunningham said that a preliminary coroner's report indicated that Covington died of a massive heart attack.

Prison officials contacted the sheriff's department at 10:05 p.m. and advised them of the situation, according to the sheriff's department report. Sixteen police officers responded to the scene, representing the sheriff's office, state police and Wheelwright City Police.

Cunningham said that an "E Team," which is a 28-member emergency squad for the Corrections Cabinet, from the Eastern Kentucky Correctional Complex in West Liberty was also called to the scene, but the situation was under control upon their arrival.

thing that has an impact on how much money an agency gets is the total amount of donations received from our community during the campaign.

As with all United Ways, we are completely independent in the way we decide how to give money to local agencies. There are people in our community who recognize the needs around them, but don't have enough money to help each and every agency which comes to them for help.

By giving to the United Way, a little donation can go a long way to help others. By limiting the number of agencies which receive donations from us, each donor gets the "most bang for the buck" for each dollar given to United Way.

The agencies which have been identified for United Way help in 1996 are: Area 19 Special Olympics, Big Sandy ADD Volunteer Program, Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, God's Pantry, Hospice of Big Sandy, Johnson County Literacy Program, Little

People of Magoffin County, Magoffin County Literacy Program, Magoffin County Rescue Squad, Martin County Literacy Program, Phelps Habitat for Humanity, Red Cross (Floyd County chapter) and the Salvation Army. Eight of these agencies serve a multi-county area.

The only "outside" agencies with which we are affiliated are the United Way of Kentucky (UWK) and United Way of America (UWA). Our link with UWK is a way for us to receive training and help with the statewide United Way campaign each fall. The link with UWA allows us access to very low cost supplies for the campaign, training and materials for our board and volunteers and use of the United Way logo, which is licensed through UWA. All other monies remain in our local communities, as United Way of Eastern Kentucky is committed to doing business locally.

Our office is located in the Big Sandy ADD building at 100 Resource Drive, Prestonsburg, and our phone number is (606) 886-8985. I am willing to speak with anyone at any time about United Way and the work we are doing.

Water extension to Frasure's Creek debated today

The debate over extending water to Frasure's Creek will get an early review from the Beaver Elkhorn Water District.

The water district will hold a special meeting today, Wednesday, at noon to discuss the different funding possibilities for Frasure's Creek.

Frasure's Creek was originally a part of an application made by Beaver Elkhorn Water District to the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, but was dropped because of a lack of funds.

In the water district's regular meeting Wednesday, September 27, the district chose to table the Frasure's Creek debate until their next regular meeting later in October to study the issue further.

OJ Show coming to close

After almost a year of constant television coverage, the O.J. Simpson Show appears ready to make its final run (Tuesday) and we can't wait for the repeats during the winter months.

The verdict now had the whole world anxiously waiting Tuesday as Judge Ito kept the world in suspense by putting off the decision Monday night. Then we were bored with all the special programming around the surprise move by the jurors. Every network tried to figure out if the verdict was guilty or not guilty.

O.J. has always been one of my favorites and I was as stunned as the rest of the world when he was accused of the murders.

Whether he is acquitted or found guilty, we will never know the real truth of it all.

Jimmy Goble said if Simpson is found guilty he will be penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness.

MAIN SPARK....

Sparky Anderson resigned Monday as manager of the Detroit Tigers. The Main Spark guided the Cincinnati Reds to some glory years at the helm of the Big Red Machine of the '80s.

Now, he is available and I think Marge Schott should settle things with Ray Knight and hire Anderson back and atone for the sin of then General Manager Dick Wagner when he hastily fired Sparky.

With the players already in the fold for next season, Sparky would fit right in with the style of baseball the Reds are capable of playing. He has the respect that managers need in this day and time and he would be just the replacement for Dave Johnson, who really should be retained by Margie.

PLAYOFFS....

The Reds will be facing, if riots don't cancel the games, a long nemesis in the Los Angeles Dodgers and it has been proven they have a hard time against Ramon Martinez and Nomo. The only team in the West that the Reds have a losing season against is the Dodgers. I look for the Dodgers to win three of the first four.

John Smiley has been a disappointment for the Reds the last half of the season. He was at one time 11-1 and finished 12-5. Pete Schourek (18-7) had an outstanding year, but when he faces the Dodgers, he comes away with a no-decision.

After the Reds have been eliminated, I will give my support to the Cleveland Indians. But deep in my heart I would love to see a Cincinnati/Cleveland World Series.

South Floyd continues to roll with win at Jenkins

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Whatever South Floyd coach Donnie Daniels delivered to his team during the halftime of their game against Jenkins last Friday night, he should make sure it becomes a regular part of his halftime pep talk.

The Raiders responded to the "chewing" and roared out of the gate to start the second half. They posted a 30-8 win over the Cavaliers.

It was the second straight win for the Raiders and third in the last four games. South Floyd improved to 3-3 on the season.

"We just had to make some big-time adjustments at half-time," Daniels said. "Neither team could score in the first two quarters and went to the locker area at 0-0."

Daniels said his game plan was to run the halfback trap, but because Jenkins put an extra man on the line, that nullified the effort.

When play resumed in the third period, the Raiders were off and running — well off and passing actually. Sophomore quarterback Nick Compton hit wideout Terrence Mullins with a 69-yard touchdown completion for a 6-0 lead.

"We started getting our passing down and getting the routes," Coach Daniels said. "Once we made the adjustments, we could move the football."

Ketran Mays made it a 12-0 game by running the football across the goal line from one-yard out.

The success of the Raiders' passing game also took the extra man off the Jenkins' line and allowed the Raiders to run the fullback trap. The result: fullback Chet McCarty found an opening and raced 51 yards for the touchdown to give South Floyd an 18-0 lead.

"Pete Dawson played a heck of a game for us," Daniels said. "He was moving his man out of the way on the trap play. The first time we ran the trap, Chet got 15 yards out of it. We waited until two or three more plays, passing plays, before we ran it again. The next time Chet ran 51 yards for the touchdown."

The Raider defense got in on the scoring when Kyle Johnson intercepted a Jenkins' pass and returned it 42 yards for a touchdown as the Raiders led 24-0 late in the game.

"The kids are feeling pretty good about themselves," the South Floyd coach said. "Unless something drastic happens, we look pretty good for the playoffs."

The Raiders weren't through as they added yet another touchdown. Mays, using his speed and quickness to get outside, ran 38 yards into the end zone for the final Raider score and a 30-0 lead.

Daniels unloaded his bench and allowed the junior varsity team to get some needed playing time.

Jenkins avoided the shutout with two minutes to go in the game when they scored against the Raiders' junior varsity team for the final 30-8 victory.

"I played my JV team the last four minutes of the game," Daniels said. "I could have kept my varsity in and run the score up, but I don't coach that way. These kids come to practice and they need to play."

Neither team could move the football in the first half and that brought the wrath of the South Floyd coach in the half-time huddle.

"I jumped on them," he said. "I was upset with the way they were playing. We just had to make some adjustments to the formations that Jenkins was running against us."

Jenkins moved the football to the Raiders' one-yard line only to be stopped by the Raiders' defense.

"They had a heck of a game plan against us," Daniels said.

Winning touchdown

Allen Central's junior quarterback Adam Coleman (11) plunged into the end zone from one-yard out to give Allen Central a 13-12 lead that held up in a huge district win over Betsy Layne last Friday night at Allen Central. Coleman scored both touchdowns for the Rebels and Mark Varney kicked an extra point as the Rebels improved to 3-1 in district play and 3-3 overall. The Rebels host McCreary Central this Friday night. Coleman sparks Rebels past 'Cats 13-12

by Ed Taylor

It wasn't a battle for some beer barrel or a horseshoe when the Allen Central Rebels (3-3) hosted the Betsy Layne Bobcats (4-2) this past Friday night.

But what was on the line was a playoff berth for possibly the fourth team in District 2. Allen Central took one more step toward the playoffs with a 13-12 win over Betsy Layne.

It appeared from the onset that the Bobcats were going to make a quick game of it as they took advantage of early turnovers from the Rebels. Allen Central turned the ball over eight times in the game and fumbled the football away seven times. They actually had eight fumbles, but recovered one.

Halfback Beau Tackett, returning and playing with a badly bruised shoulder, got the wake-up call in the fourth quarter and the Rebels held on to the football the final 8:06 of the game grinding it out on the ground and picking up seven of their ten first downs. Tackett said his team got off to a slow start.

"I fumbled the football twice," he said. "That just shows that I have been out all week with my shoulder and with no contact. It just took me a while to get in it. We made a lot of mental mistakes tonight," he said.

How is the shoulder? "It hurts!" Tackett said he would try and "go soft" on it again this week in practice.

Tackett rushed for 56 of his 116 yards in the final period. Betsy Layne looked as if they were going to get the ball back in the final stanza when the Rebels were faced with a third and 11 with just more than two minutes to play. However, a pass interference call on the Bobcats gave the Rebels a first down and they were able to expire the clock.

Salt to the wound for Betsy Layne came with just a little more than nine minutes to play when quarterback Craig Hamilton scampered into the end zone for what would have been a game leading score for Betsy Layne. But a holding call at the line of scrimmage nullified the touchdown and it was called back.

Betsy Layne moved to the Rebels' three-yard line, but Chris Hicks was spilled for a six-yard loss back to the nine bringing a fourth and goal from the nine.

The penalty sent the Bobcats back to the 19, where Hamilton hit Willie Meade for a 13-yard completion, but short of the first down with Allen Central taking over on downs and 8:06 remaining.

"That was a great stand for us," Tackett said. "Our line did what they were suppose to do. We have to give a lot of credit to Craig Grace. He blocked a punt and an extra point. He just played great defense. Our defense really stepped it up."

"It was a great stand," said Allen Central Coach Glenn Reeves. "The kids came through. The kids did the right thing. They executed correct-

Breathitt County shuts down Morris, P'burg Blackcats 44-6

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

In the past two games, it appeared that junior running back Jon Morris had shaken a two-game slump when he rushed for 231 yards two weeks ago against Betsy Layne.

But this past Friday night, Morris could find no place to go as the Prestonsburg Blackcats fell hard to the Breathitt County Bobcats in a district matchup.

It was the lowest total of the season for Prestonsburg against a front line that had them outsized. The Blackcats totaled only (unofficially) 40 yards on the ground. Morris was stopped with 25 on 13 carries. Freshman John Ortega carried the football five times for 11 yards.

Junior quarterback Mike Castle took a beating all night and appeared to be slow getting up on some occasions as the offensive line did not afford him time to spot his receivers.

However, Castle did complete four of ten pass attempts for 102 yards passing. The only Prestonsburg score came at the start of the second quarter when Castle hooked up with Jonathan Estep for a nine-yard pass reception and a touchdown.

Breathitt County rolled out to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter as they ran at will against the defensive line of Prestonsburg. Waylon Chapman, one of the state's top passers, proved it by completing 13 of 19 passes for 214 yards. It was a busy night for the defensive backs of the Blackcats.

Kenneth Combs put the first points on the scoreboard on a 68-yard touchdown run with 6:06 left in the first period. Nate Poe added the PAT and it was 7-0.

Prestonsburg, who picked up two first downs on its first possession, was consistently having to punt the football away. Ray Herald ran into the end zone with 1:04 left in the first period and Poe added the extra point for the 14-0 Breathitt County lead.

Castle directed a good Prestonsburg drive before the quarter ended with the ball resting on the Breathitt County nine-yard line. Castle connected with Keith Marsillett for a 54-yard completion and a two-yard pick up by Ortega moved the ball to the nine as the quarter ended.

On the pass play action to start the second, Castle hit Estep with a touchdown pass to make it a 14-6 game.

After that it was all Breathitt County as the team led 20-6 on a 32-yard run by Combs and made it 27-6 when Jonathan Chapman ran into the end zone from 20 yards out and Poe kicked the PAT.

The Breathitt County defense didn't give Castle enough time to think, let alone throw the football. John Rader sacked Castle for a seven-yard loss late in the second quarter and on the very next play, spilled Morris for a seven-yard loss on a halfback pass attempt.

The Blackcats suffered a big loss when Gavin Hale had to be carried off the field and taken to the hospital after an injury dislocated his elbow.

Harvey places fourth

In Paintsville cross-country meet last week

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Two weeks remain in the cross-country regular season and the Allen Central Rebels are getting fine tuned for the regional meet that will be held at Onedia Baptist this month.

Annie Harvey finished fourth last week for the girls' team in the Paintsville Cross-Country meet with a time of 19:51. Almost 50 runners took part in the meet that was won by Paintsville.

Paintsville continued to dominate the women's division and had 27 points to take first place.

Allen Central finished fifth overall in the meet finishing with 106 points. Raceland (73) took second place with Prestonsburg (89) run-

Betsy Layne hopes to end two-game skid

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Bobcats, who were breezing along earlier in the season, will look to end a modest two-game losing streak when they travel to Phelps tomorrow night in a rare Thursday night high school football game.

The game was moved to Thursday night because of no school in the state this Friday.

Coach John Derossett's ballclub has lost two heartbreakers and could very well be 6-0 at this point of the season. Winners of their first four games, Betsy Layne dropped a 14-12 overtime game to Prestonsburg on the final play of the game.

This past Friday night on the road at Allen Central, Betsy Layne let a 12-0 lead get away from them and fell to the Rebels 13-12 allowing Allen Central to control the football the final 8:06 of the game.

But that was last week. Now the Bobcats will look to get well on the road and improve their 4-2 overall record. The Bobcats are 2-2 in district play, tied with Prestonsburg for fourth place.

Moving the football and turnovers have haunted (well it is Halloween, almost) the Bobcats. Running backs Ray Lyon and Chris Hicks haven't been performing the past two games like they did in the first four outings. And the Bobcats have turned the football over more often than they did earlier.

Lyon, at one time the county's leading rusher, has dropped off in yardage the last two times out. Lyon rushed for only 21 yards against Prestonsburg after averagning in third place. South Floyd (92) was fourth.

Amanda Samons finished 13th overall for Allen Central with a time of 21:47. Pam Goble (24:43) and Mary Baldrige (24:50) ran together and finished 25th and 26th respectively.

Stephanie McKinney (29:53) placed 38th; Barb Samons (30:58) 41st and Jenny Wells (34:34) 46th.

Allen Central had to run without two of their top runners in Dreama Isaac and Crystal Martin.

"That cost us 20 points," Allen Central Coach Dewey Jamerson said. "We ran well. Some of the girls posted their fastest times of the year."

The boys' team placed seventh overall with a score of 170. First place went to Raceland (63). Paintsville (68) took second place with Feds Creek (98) taking third.

Lawrence County (119), Pikeville (156), and Sheldon Clark (162) rounded out the top six. Allen Central, Prestonsburg and South Floyd finished seven through nine.

More than 130 runners took part in the meet with Allen Central's Jesse Robertson finishing third after winning the event two weeks ago. Robertson had a time of 19:58 for third place. Jay Harvey placed tenth for the Rebels with a time of 21:26. Freshman James Seward took the 24th spot at 23:21 and Chris Damron coming in 64th at 25:23. Wade Damron (25:43) and Brian Jones (27:39) finished 69th and 90th overall.

"I thought we did well," Jamerson said. "Again, they ran their best times. Like I said earlier, we're training our way through. We're getting ready for the regionals."

"I'm not worried about their placement, but just their times right now. I think we were tired. We're not taking any time off and we have been practicing a lot."

Jamerson said his team seldom runs a three-mile day in practice and then goes home. "We've been running like four and five miles," he said.

"Competition is tough. We're having to train right through the regular meets. I know it hurts your record, but we're shooting to get most people out of the regionals," Jamerson said.

AT ONEIDA BAPTIST...

Allen Central will be running in the regionals at Oneida Baptist and got a taste of the course they will be competing on when they traveled there last Saturday in an invitational meet.

"Our times were terrible there," the Allen Central coach said. "We ran three to four minutes slower. It appeared that the course was longer than the 5,000 meters. Even the Cordia runners were talking about their times being four minutes off than normal. It's not a legal course and they're talking about moving the finish line for the regionals."

Jay Harvey placed 30th out of 70 runners. He had a time of 25:35 while James Seward took 49th at 29:04. Wade Damron was 54th and brother Chris ran in at 31:04 for 56th place. Between them was Brian Jones at 55th.

"While our times were terrible, placement-wise, it wasn't that bad," Jamerson said. "It did give us a chance to see some of the teams we will be competing against at the regionals. We did find out that Everts will not be there. They went back to single A."

"Corbin will be in our regional and they are tough. Jackson County is another one that will be there," the Allen Central coach said.

Allen Central had to run without their top runner in Jesse Robertson. "We missed Jesse," said Jamerson. "But it wasn't all that bad of a day. It was a beautiful day to run. When I look at the course, I can see that we accomplished a lot."

Eighty-two runners ran in the women's division. Annie Harvey placed 38th overall with a time of 19:22. Close behind was Dreama Isaac at 19:36 and Goble finished 57th with a time of 21:37.

Amanda Samons was 58th overall, Crystal Martin placed 66th and Barbe Samons was 79th.

"The girls ran extremely well," Jamerson said, "or the course was short. They ran their fastest times."

Jamerson said good competition brings out the best in a runner.

"I think the competition was better at Oneida than at Paintsville and you have a tendency to run better against good competition. They took about 30 seconds off their times."

The Allen Central cross-country team will run this Thursday evening at the Paintsville Lake.

NASCAR Connection

by Ben Trout

Bobby Labonte? In '95 he has picked up his first win. He also has two more to go along with that one. He is a top-ten points' chaser. He has emerged as one of the season's best in only his first year with Joe Gibbs Racing.

Dare I say Dale Earnhardt? Or have we come to expect that anything less than a championship is a poor showing for the Goodwrench driver? His four wins and second place in points definitely make him a contender.

And then there is the likes of Roush Racing stable-mates, Mark Martin and Ted Musgrave, who have both had very respectable seasons.

Remember, you must vote. Whoever ends up with the most ballots, will be declared the NASCAR Connection's Winston Cup Driver of the Year.

And before I forget, when all is said and done, I will draw the name of one lucky voter from the mailed in ballots. And that lucky voter will receive an Action Packed race card personally autographed by comeback driver of the year, Ernie Irvan.

Speaking of Irvan, it sure was great to see him back on the track last Sunday at North Wilkesboro. It's been a long road for the Texaco pilot, but his determination and hard work allowed him not only to come back, but to run at the front as well.

A big thumbs up for Irvan. Send all votes for TNC Winston Cup Driver of the Year to: The NASCAR Connection, Ben Trout, P.O. Box 504, Belfry, KY 41514.

TIME TO PICK SEASON'S BEST

It's probably a mute point, but I'm going to go ahead and do it anyway. Each year as the season winds down, I enlist all of my loyal readers to select the NASCAR Connection's Winston Cup Driver of the Year.

It's a real simple process. All you have to do is write down your choice for the season's best, explain why you voted for who you did, and slip it in the mail.

When the season is over, I'll reveal who the readers voted top dog on motorsports' most competitive circuit.

Last year's balloting was tremendous to say the least. However, now that The NASCAR Connection has blossomed to some eight newspapers strong, I expect the voting to be even more outstanding.

As the votes roll in, I'll keep you posted on who fellow readers feel deserves the honor. I'll also be glad to share your comments regarding your choice in my column. This is your chance to be heard. So without any further adieu, grab a pen and paper, and let this ol' die-hard know who you feel best deserves the driver of the year honor.

Now I don't vote. But if I did, you can bet I would cast my ballot for Jeff Gordon. Why? In only his third full season on the tour, he has posted seven wins, 16 top-fives, 21 top-tens, and eight poles. And more than that, unless the sky falls, he is going to be our new champion. But when you think about it, there could be some other drivers worthy of the title.

Who, you may ask? Why not Sterling Martin? His three wins and season-long stay in the top-five point leaders say a lot for the mild-mannered Tennessee native.

Or how about the up and coming

It could be a best seller. But it's free.

ing more than 110 yards per contest in the first five games. Against Allen Central, he carried the football 15 times for only 54 yards.

While Hicks picked up 33 yards against Prestonsburg, he managed but a meager 16 yards against the Rebels last Friday.

This is not to put the blame on the two backs because the offensive line just hasn't opened up the holes as they did earlier to give them running room.

Betsy Layne must get the running game back in gear as they visit Phelps, a team that has won twice this season at 2-4. It will be a non-district game for the Bobcats, who desperately need to get back on the winning track.

Phelps fell hard to the South Floyd Raiders 30-8 last Friday night and will be hungry to redeem themselves against yet another Floyd County team. Phelps is a hard place for anyone to win.

Betsy Layne handled South Floyd earlier in the season 28-14, but the Bobcats will not be taking the Hornets lightly.

Junior quarterback Craig Hamilton may have to become a ball carrier once again and run the boot play more often.

Dependable Willie Meade and Tim Nunnemaker will be in the flats for Hamilton to locate. Phelps likes to bring that extra man up to the line and such a move may prove difficult for Lyon or Hicks but should allow Hamilton to show his skill in throwing the football.

Billy Mitchell could be the key to getting the Bobcats untracked. Mitchell is running the football more — in the first half. The Bobcats may have to put the ball in his hands more in the second half.

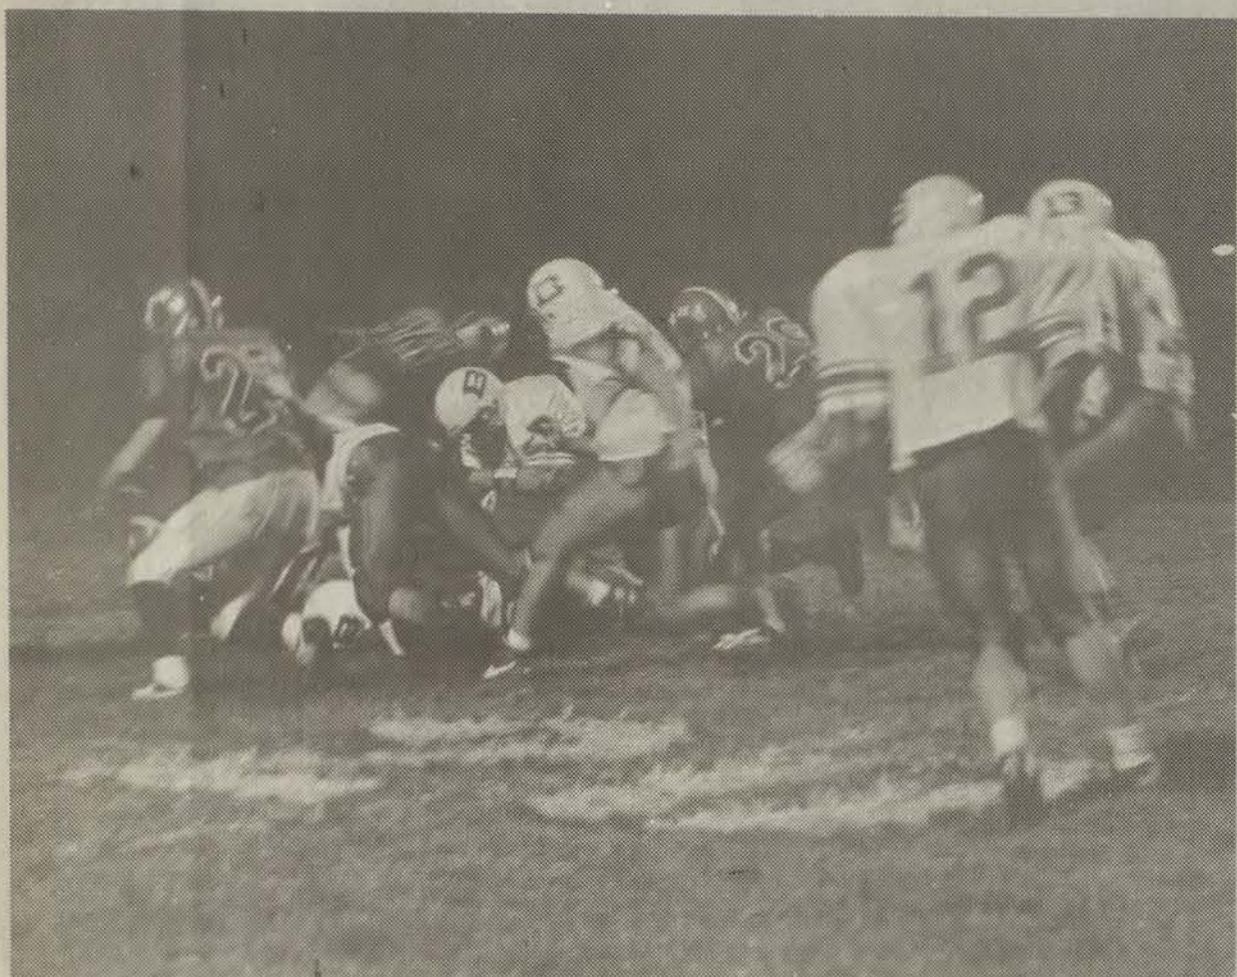

The defense for Betsy Layne has held their opponents to 14 and 13 points the last two times out. The offense must take better care of the football — especially at Phelps.

SOUTH FLOYD HIGH SCHOOL FY 1995-1996 Special School Council Election for PARENTS

Nominations for a parent member of the South Floyd High School's School Council will be accepted from September 25, 1995 through October 6, 1995, 8:00 a.m. through 3:00 p.m. Nominations shall be submitted in writing to Allan Osborne, principal, South Floyd High School. To be eligible to serve on school council an individual must have a child enrolled at South Floyd High School for the FY 1995-1996 school year and cannot have a close relative working for the Floyd County School System. An eligible parent may nominate themselves and/or another eligible parent. One parent will be elected for a two-year term, filling the seat vacated by Mrs. Sheryl Woods. The SFHS School Council parent election will be held on Monday, October 9, 1995, at 6:00 p.m., in the SFHS library. To be eligible to vote, a parent must have a child enrolled in SFHS during the current (FY 1995-1996) school year.

South Floyd

"They had a fourth-and-one and Jonathan Paige stopped their full-back on the one-yard line and we took over the football."

"When we stopped them, it seemed to give us the momentum. In the third quarter, we just aired it out."

Daniels said his ballclub seemed to wear Jenkins down while he played more people. "They hardly passed the football," he said. "I'd say he played 13 players the whole game."

Daniels said the recent success of his ballclub has brought renewed interest and things appear to be good.

"We feel good about things right now," he said. "The kids are happy. The fans are happy also."

The win over Jenkins, a game Daniels said was a must in hopes of a playoff berth, could have put the Raiders in the playoffs. The worst South Floyd could do in district play is finish 3-3 and that should be good enough for the fourth-place berth.

The last time a Left Beaver school went to the playoffs was the final year Wheelwright High School was in existence. That was only the second time in Wheelwright school history a football team made the playoffs.

"This is a big lift for these kids," Daniels said. "I'm tickled to death for them."

Mays had 17 carries for 105 yards rushing for the Raiders. McCarty finished with 74 yards on five carries. McCarty found some holes in the second half and made his move.

"In the first half, there were no holes for him to run through," Daniels said. "But the offensive line opened up for him in the second half."

It was McCarty's best ground game this season and makes the Raiders that much harder to stop on the ground.

"We've had a good mixture of players this year," Daniels said, explaining the team's success. "We've got good seniors and juniors and some good sophomores. It is a lot of kids' first year."

Daniels said his defense is starting to play better and "that is a good sign."

William Willard led the Raiders' defensive charge with eight tackles. "Willard played a very good game for us," Daniels said. "We even let him run the ball once and he ran for 25 yards. He had been begging all season to let him run it just once."

Travis Johnson had six solo hits and three assists against Jenkins. Chris Isaac had six first hits and four assists. John Paige came up with five first hits, one assist and one fumble recovery. Aaron Hall had five solos and two assists.

"We played Jenkins about as good as we can play," the South Floyd coach said. "We've tried to simplify a lot of things and run one front. I feel it will help the kids a lot in learning."

Coach Daniels said there was not pressure from his players and they knew the value of the game when they went into it.

"We tried to be honest with them and they knew it was for a playoff berth," he said. "We didn't try to keep it from them. In fact, I told them two weeks ago that if we could win against Fleming-Neon and Jenkins we could be in the playoffs. "They are a hungry bunch right now. We were embarrassed at Pikeville. I told them they just had to do what they needed to do to win and they responded. I challenged them in both games and they responded."

"Now I'll try and get them ready for Hazard," he said. "When we go there, we will play hard. I told the kids that if they win there, they could be playing a playoff game at home for the first time ever."

The South Floyd coach said confidence is growing on his team.

"We're getting there with our program," he said. "Our kids are more confident with each game. We just want to go out and play harder with each game."

Sophomore quarterback Nick Compton completed six of ten passes for 168 yards passing. But Daniels said until Compton gets stronger he needs to protect him more.

"He needs to get physically stronger. I would like to pass more than we do, but I don't want him to get hurt. He will get stronger and then we can throw more."

Terrence Mullins had three receptions for 127 yards and one touchdown. Aaron Hall had two catches for 41 yards.

South Floyd will travel to Hazard Friday night to face a strong Bulldog team in yet another important district game.

Vallandingham...time to load up the truck; UK basketball staff sets jayvee try-outs

Can it be...almost time for the Vallandingham to make their annual statement on family values? Load up and set off from home from Indiana to Lexington where the perpetual pole sitters will make camp outside Memorial Coliseum, and be let in first for Midnight Madness, October 14.

For those whose pulse quickens at the mention, there is news this week about Rick Pitino's team. Sports Illustrated, Basketball Times, Dick Vitale, Basketball Weekly, Street & Smith and all but one of the rest, will rank Kentucky number one in pre-season editions.

"The Sporting News has us number two," a UK insider said last week.

TSN's number one? Kansas. The Vallandingham and you will want to know, final plans are being made for try-outs for UK's jayvee team. Try-outs begin Wednesday morning, October 11 at 8 a.m. in Memorial Coliseum.

Those who make the jayvee team will have Cameron Mills and Jason Lathrom as teammates. Other candidates being considered for the team instead of a red shirt are 6-10, 280-pound Nazr Mohammad and 6-8, 210-pound Oliver Simmons.

Currently, plans are in the tentative stages for a ten to 12-game schedule. Opponents include a junior varsity team from Transylvania and varsity squads from Hanover College, Sullivan and St. Catherine.

What about jayvee teams from, say, North Carolina?

"Too far away," a source said. "All our games will be against teams around here. And I'm betting this is the only year you're going to see us with a jayvee team too."

Allen Edwards, despite playing well on the Italy trip, may get a red shirt, because "we have so many players at the two guard and three small forward positions," the source said. "And whoever said that Edwards was a point guard was wrong. He might have been one in high school, but not here."

Jared Prickett's redshirt candidacy is still under review and depends on Simmons' performance during pre-season workouts. If the season started this week, UK's starting lineup would be: Walter McCarty at center, Antoine Walker at power forward, Ron Mercer at small forward, Jeff Sheppard at one guard and Tony Delk at the other. Sixth man: Mark Pope.

"As explosive as he is, Derek Anderson is going to see time at small forward too," the source said.

Mercer in the starting lineup? "Rick talks about how far beyond his years Mercer is maturity-wise," he said. "The kid's just amazing."

Hunch Dept....Tony Delk will have All-American senior season. First team. Walter McCarty will be a high lottery pick....Jeff Sheppard will emerge as the team leader and best clutch performer....When UK plays Indiana at the RCA Dome December 2, Anthony Epps will be the point guard.

UK: 11TH HOUR IS HERE

Moment of truth, time to lay it on the line, two tiresome cliches that settle onto Kentucky's football team like an autumn morning fog. Beat LSU by 10 o'clock, October 14 or hand over the headlines to Rick Pitino whether he wants them or not.

It has been so long a time and the blitzkrieg of ridicule so intense, this UK football team is too young to know how to compete against an hombre like Auburn that expects to win. Bill Curry's team waits for disaster the way we eyeball our watches for the six o'clock news.

Curry's intentions to re-address and eliminate mistakes rings hollow. The Tuesday luncheon bravado laid on by a player or two is nice. Even the remarkable loyalty of 58,250 faithful isn't enough. Time the players laid it on the line. This is not a bad football team. A turnover here, a cheap touchdown there from its defense, UK could get some respect.

Coming up, count 'em the opponents UK has legitimate chances to compete against and win — LSU (3-1-1) was tied by South Carolina in Columbia last week. Georgia (2-3) was drubbed by Alabama Saturday, Mississippi State (2-3) lost to NE Louisiana. Vanderbilt (0-4) and Cincinnati (0-5).

Some promising items from UK's 42-21 train wreck against Auburn Saturday — Moe Williams, Marcus Cross, an offensive line that opened enough daylight for Williams to rush for 164 yards and two touchdowns, Billy Jack Haskins completed 13 of 21 passes (no interceptions) for 158 yards, Craig Yeast and Kio Sanford caught 151 yards worth of passes.

TIM COUCH....
More than 5,000 fans watched Hopkinsville smother Leslie County 61-0 Saturday. What about the play of leading candidate for Mr. Football, Tim Couch?

"One glaring truth is these people who think Couch is some kind of superman who's going to turn things around at Kentucky are wrong," one veteran observer who saw the game Saturday said, "Couch is a legitimate Division 1 player, but he didn't show it in this game. They were all over him."

One of those all over Couch was linebacker Miquel Merritt, a 6-0, 200-pounder who has college scouts cooing. A high school championship wrestler, he is strong, quick and fast enough to play linebacker or the secondary in college.

Unbeaten Hopkinsville, led by its own Mr. Football candidate for next season, quarterback Doente Kenner, could be to the Bluegrass State this season what Danville has been in years past. The best.

Michelle Thacker of Cumberland County wants to know if UK is recruiting any in-state high school prospects. Dayemon Fishback, Lamont Barnes, Dan Langhi, others?

COMMENT: No, according to a source at UK.

Ron Chilton of Louisville: "read with interest your reflections on Kentucky high school football records, i.e., all-time wins (by schools). I wondered if any sports-writer in Kentucky is aware of a small football power in central Kentucky with a record, the like of which we may never see again. Danville! Overall state titles six in the last 11 years, 42 consecutive wins from 1991 through '93."

"You may talk about wins piled up over the years by Highlands, Tilghman, St. X and Trinity, but as we reach the midway point of the decade, it is Danville High assuming the mantle as Commonwealth's football program of the highest and freshest esteem."

COMMENT: Actually, Louisville Male is the state's winningest football program. Thank you for writing.

J.D.L. in Lexington: "Know anything about a high school basketball star at Dawson Springs High?"

COMMENT: Phillip Cotton is a 5-8, 160-pound senior who was the state's third leading scorer last season (27 ppg). Talent scout Rick Bolus says Cotton, "can literally score from anywhere. He needs growth and better decision-making for the next level."

KY. BASEBALL...

Eighty-eight. Class AAA to independent leagues in Texas and Louisiana, there were 88 native Kentuckians playing professional baseball at minor league levels, according to a compiled list done for the Lexington Herald-Leader recently.

Frank Jacobs, (Newport) Kentucky's very first high school Mr. Football (Newport Catholic) went on to Notre Dame where he gave up football for baseball, is now with the Montreal Expos AAA team at Ottawa. He hit 13 home runs and batted .214 last season.

Chris Turner, (Bowling Green) a star at Western Kentucky University, was the starting catcher for the California Angels before the strike in 1994, played at Vancouver this summer where he hit .266.

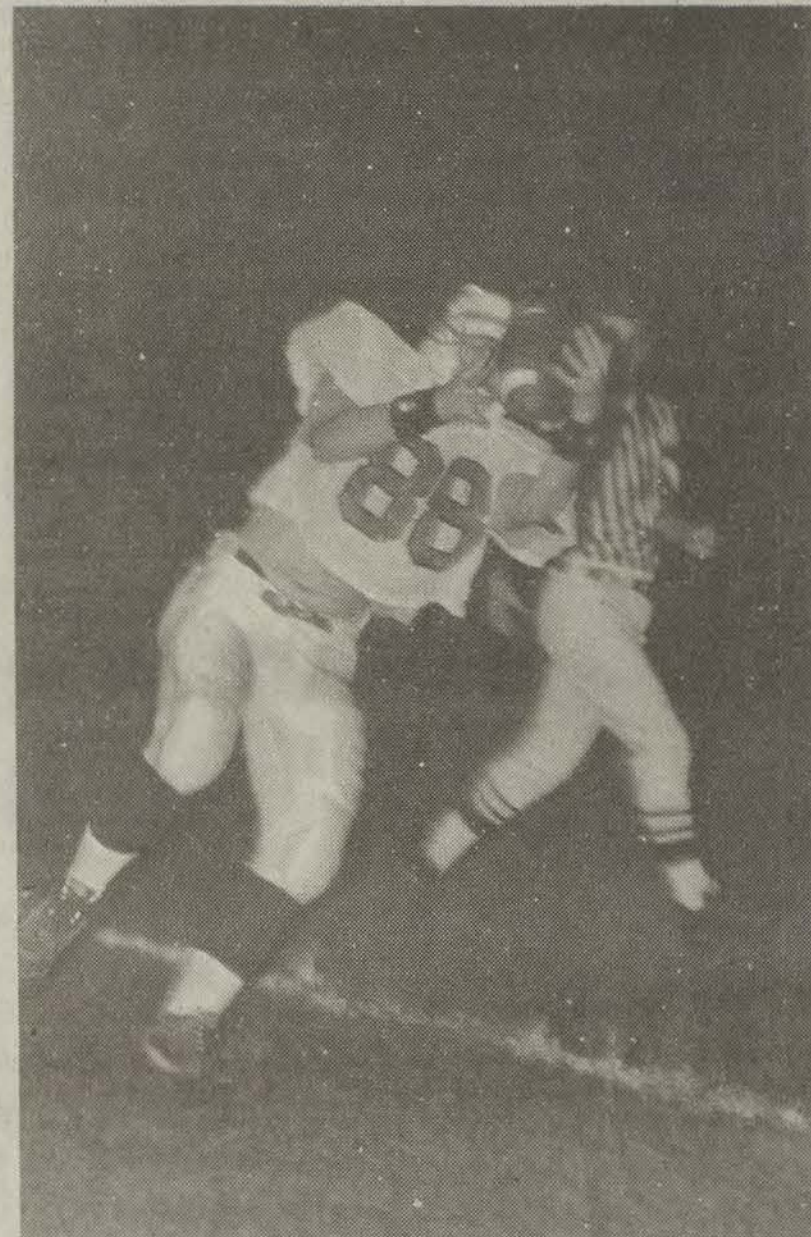

Terry Shumpert, (Paducah) a star at UK, was up briefing with the Boston Red Sox early this summer, is at AAA Pawtucket where he hit .271.

Two of the most promising, based on figures this season, could be Brandy Wilson (Owensboro) and Darren Burton (Somerset), both in the AA Southern League. Wilson hit .328 with 101 hits, nine home runs and 50 RBI for the Reds farm team at Chattanooga. Burton has climbed to the Cubs farm club at Orlando where he batted .308 this summer.

Under the heading 'Not Doing So Well' is ex-UK quarterback Pookie Jones who hit .208 in 53 at bats for the Salem Rockies in Class A. Also, in Class A is ex-UK basketball player Junior Braddy who hit .264 for the Sarasota Red Sox.

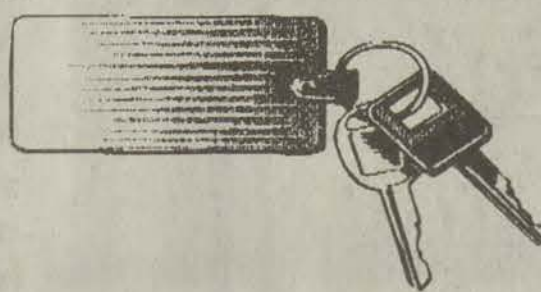

Best candidate for 'Could Be in the Bigs to stay' next spring? Rod Bolton with the White Sox. The former UK pitcher finished 14-3 for Nashville with a sterling 2.88 ERA and excellent strikeout-walk ratio 76-23.

A TD grab

Betsy Layne receiver Nick Newsome hauled in this pass from quarterback Craig Hamilton for an 18-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter that gave Betsy Layne an early 6-0 lead. Allen Central fought back and recorded a 13-12 win over the Bobcats. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Junior Opry to entertain at Car Show

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The air is cooling and haunting days of Halloween are upon us as we quickly approach the fall season with football playoffs dancing in the minds of fans.

But the fall season brings us another annual event — the Trans Financial Bank's eighth annual Red, White and Blue Car Show on Saturday, October 21 at the bank's Martin branch parking lot.

This year's show promises to be one of the best yet and there will be plenty of entertainment for those who turn out to take in the sights of the cars of by-gone years. The Junior Kentucky Opry will entertain the fans from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. The popular group has become a favorite of car show fans at the Trans Financial event.

Line dancing will be part of the entertainment as well, along with the cloggers.

Mixing entertainment with the show always brings out a large crowd, but the cars are the main attraction. The show registered more than 130 cars last year and a larger group is expected this season.

Prizes will be given away throughout the day with a $1,000 savings bond going to the Best Of Show. Top 50 cars will be honored from different classes.

There will be a special class for vehicles from 1980 and up with the top five included in the top 50.

Special categories for the top 50 include: Best of Show, Best GM, Best Mopar, Best Chevy, Best Ford, Best Paint, Best Interior, Best Engine, Longest Distance.

Special categories for the 1980 and up class include: Best Late Model, Best Mini Truck, Best Ford, Best Chevy.

Three front end alignments will be given away, along with cases of oil, T-shirts, sweat shirts and other prizes.

Out of town judges will be used as they were last year.

Door prizes will feature $50 and $100 savings bonds, four sweat shirts. The popular model car contest will be back this year as well. Security service will be provided.

The 5K run returns again under the direction of the Ridge Runners Track and Field Club. The race will begin at 7 a.m.

Entry fee for the car show is only $10 with registration beginning at 8:30 a.m. and running until 11 a.m.

To The Citizens of District 3:

My name is Jimmy Dye. I am a Democratic write-in candidate for Magistrate of District 3. I am married to Thelma (Tackett) Dye born McDowell. I have two children, Matthew and Melissa, and one grandson, Blake. I am the son of Woodrow and Monnie Dye of Printer.

For the past 28 years, I have been a coal miner. I am currently employed by RBM Enterprises, Inc.

I have been a Regular Baptist Minister for the past 26 years trying to lead the people in the right way. I would like to do the same for you citizens of District 3 and all of Floyd County by working honestly for you in our county government, and I can do this by the grace of God.

This is what we need today more than ever because our people in Floyd County and District 3 have lost all confidence in our county government.

I have talked to many of the citizens of District 3 and they say that is what we need today, honesty, and let me say that there is still hope.

This is my pledge and contract to you voters of District 3:

1. I will quit my current job and be a full-time magistrate for you.
2. I will be operating the county equipment and working along with the men every day. You don't see this today.
3. We will improve our county roads and we will keep the horseweeds cut alongside our county roads that rub our automobiles when we drive along our county roads.
4. I will work in good faith with our new county judge (to be elected) and our fiscal court system to try to get good drinking water to the citizens of Floyd County and especially all the citizens of District 3. It can be done and it is a must.
5. And we must not forget about the future of our children. We must improve our parks so that they may have a place to play and occupy their minds. We must offer them a drug and alcohol free environment.
6. I will work with our fiscal court and attempt to persuade them to purchase at least one snowplow for one truck for each district, so we can keep our roads clean and the parking lots of our many places of worship cleared.

If you wish to support me and need to know how to do a write-in vote, feel free to call me at 377-2814 and I will come out and show you how to do a write-in vote.

JR. BASKETBALL SIGNUPS...

The Prestonsburg Junior Basketball League will conduct signups for the upcoming basketball season. Signups will be held at the Adams Middle School from 2-4 p.m. on Sunday, October 8. And again on Sunday, October 15 at the same times.

Cost for registration is $35 for the first child in a family and $25 for each additional child.

Fee covers the cost of medical insurance, liability insurance, gym rentals, uniforms and basketballs. All new and former players must sign up on one of the dates.

Also on the signup dates, a brief tryout will be conducted for new players in each league to determine individual level of play.

League age is age on August 31, 1995. The signups will be for boys and girls in the training league and junior varsity league.

4 WEEKS....

Only four more weeks remain in the '95 football season and the playoff picture has three of the four Floyd County schools very much in it. We will try and break it down for you in Friday's sports section.

GAME NOTE: Betsy Layne has moved its game against Phelps from this Friday night to Thursday night. No school Friday, so they want to really have a day off.

The Bobcats are 4-2 on the season and could very well be 6-0.

HALE OUT FOR TWO WEEKS...

I hated to see Gavin Hale hurt last Friday night against Breathitt County. Hale suffered an injury to his elbow and will be sidelined for two to three weeks. He's a fine young man and the Blackcats will miss him.

BULLS GET RODMAN...

The Chicago Bulls — who else would want him — traded for misguided Dennis Rodman, the man with the hair of many colors.

CAR SHOW...

I'm looking forward to the Trans Financial Bank Car Show on October 21. I always enjoy getting there early and watching the owners shine their prize cars.

The car show fans should be very thankful for Tina Mills, car show director. She does a fantastic job of putting the show together and she will be the first to tell you that she couldn't do so without all the car show staff and bank workers. But someone has to be the leader and Tina does an outstanding job.

THIS PAST WEEK....

Asked this question three times: "How do you think (Jackie) Pack will do at Prestonsburg?"

Hey, football season is still being played. Basketball practice is only 11 days away from official starting. I saw Jenny Meade (South Floyd Lady Raiders) at Subway up at Price and she said she is ready for the roundball season.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Rebels defeat

ly. They played with heart. They wanted this ball game.

"Craig came up with two big plays for us. He got a blocked punt. Betsy Layne had been killing us all night. Driving us back in our possession starting out. We got a slow start. But Betsy Layne is a good team. They have a heck of a defensive line also.

"So Craig came through and blocked a field goal. Blocked the punt and it was just great stuff."

Eight turnovers had the Rebel coach concerned.

"I was worried you know," he said. "I knew our kids were ready to play. We fell behind. But no matter what happens, we come back out and play ball. It's not over until that last second ticks off."

Allen Central struggled big against the front line of the Bobcats in the first quarter. They had only five total yards on the ground as they found no running room outside or up the middle.

The Rebels could not handle the football as Tackett fumbled the ball away on the second play from scrimmage with the Bobcats taking over at the Rebel 18.

Betsy Layne was quick to take advantage of the miscue and on four plays found pay dirt as Hamilton hit Nick Newsome from 18 yards out for a 6-0 Betsy Layne lead. The PAT failed when Gordon Reeves blocked the extra-point attempt.

Allen Central got to run only one play after the kickoff. Hicks stepped in front of a Coleman pass and intercepted it, returning the football to the Rebel 26. But Shane Blackburn returned the favor and picked off a Hamilton pass and returned the ball to the Rebel 41.

The Rebels put together a strong first drive behind the arm of Coleman. He hit Thomas Jenkins with a pass to the Bobcats' 11-yard line only to have Jenkins flagged for an offensive pass interference call.

Betsy Layne held a 6-0 lead after the first quarter. The Bobcats had control of the football when the first period ended and on three plays in the second scored on a 12-yard run by Ray Lyon to give Betsy Layne a 12-0 lead with 10:44 left in the second period.

Allen Central got a break when Estill Stumbo took the kickoff and raced 72 yards, only to be brought down at the Betsy Layne three-yard line. Coleman, on a quarterback sneak from the one, scored and Mark Varney added the PAT for a 12-7 score with 9:11 remaining.

"That return by Estill was great," Reeves said. "He's a fantastic kid. We think a lot of Estill. He has some good speed. He came out late and hasn't played that much."

With 42 seconds left in the first half, the Rebels got the ball back and moved the football to the Bobcat 14 on a 33-yard pass completion from Coleman to Jenkins. However, the clock ran out to end the first half with the Bobcats on top 12-7.

In the first eight minutes of the third period, the Rebels could do nothing but fumble the football, but the big defensive play of the game came when Craig Crace blocked a punt attempt by Hicks and the ball bounced out of bounds at the Betsy Layne 21-yard line. Josh Reeves picked up eight yards. Coleman hit Jenkins for a nine-yard gainer to the Bobcat four. Tackett picked up three to the one where Coleman scored on the one-yard plunge to give Allen Central the 13-12 lead.

In a weird chain of plays, the ball exchanged hands three times on one play. Blackburn intercepted a Hamilton pass. He then fumbled the football with Betsy Layne picking it up. The Bobcats fumbled and Matt Varney came up with the loose ball for Allen Central.

Betsy Layne got the ball back only one other time and that resulted in the touchdown being called back.

Betsy Layne had 133 yards against Allen Central's defense. The Bobcats rushed, unofficially, for 71 yards, led by Lyon with 54 yards rushing. Hamilton completed three of nine passes for 62 yards.

Willie Meade had two receptions for 44 yards and Nick Newsome had one catch for 18 yards.

The Bobcats had ten first downs, only one in the fourth period. They were flagged nine times for 60 yards in penalties. Hamilton was intercepted twice and Betsy Layne fumbled the ball away once.

Tackett rushed for 116 yards to lead the ground attack for Allen Central, with a total of 311 yards offense. The Rebels rushed for 169 yards on the ground. Coleman showed why he is one of the top ten quarterbacks in the state by completing ten of 14 passes for 142 yards.

Allen Central picked up six first downs and was penalized three times for 35 yards. They fumbled the football away seven times and Coleman was intercepted once.

Jenkins had six catches for 86 yards with Blackburn's two catches for 29 yards. Tackett had one for 12 and Stumbo one for 15 yards.

Tackett said it wasn't a "pretty game," but it was a big win for the Rebels.

"We brought it out in the fourth quarter when we held onto the football the final eight minutes," Tackett said. "We held it when it counted and we proved we could do it. We just kept getting the first downs on the run."

"We just wanted to run out the clock in the fourth quarter," Reeves said. "We didn't want to go into our passing game with the possibility of an interception. We felt confident in our running game. Tackett felt good tonight. Josh did a good job for us as well. He got us some first downs."

The Rebels move to 3-1 in district play with two district games remaining against Breathitt County at home and Whitesburg on the road.

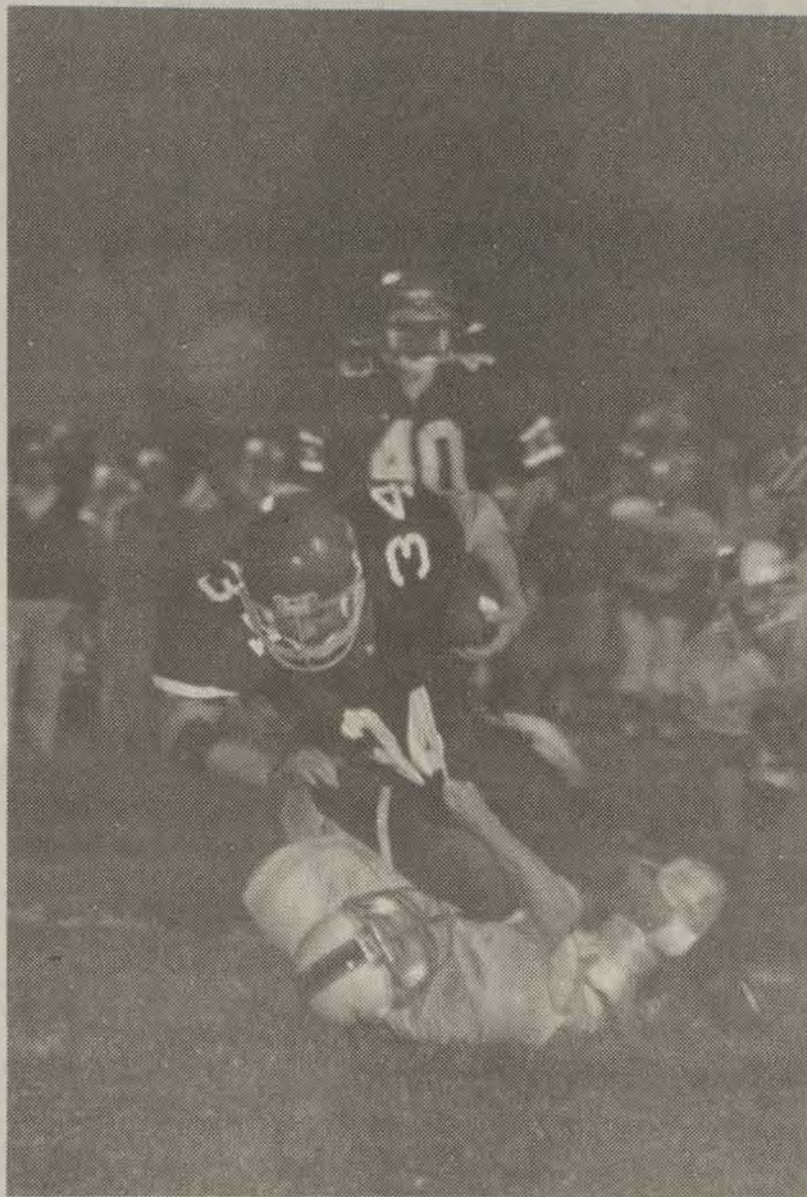

"I don't know if this win tonight guarantees us a playoff berth or not," the Allen Central mentor said. "Mathematically, it should seal up a place for us.

"We know that Breathitt County is for real. Whitesburg is one of the top defensive teams in the state. They're all quick kids. We want to play good against them.

"We feel like if we can get everything together, we can do well. We have a bunch of juniors and they've made junior mistakes so far. If we can get that straightened out, then we've got a heck of a ballclub," he said.

The win over Betsy Layne was the second consecutive win for Allen Central. The Bobcats dropped their second straight loss, both by one point.

Allen Central (3-3) will host McCreary Central Friday night in the second of four straight home games. Betsy Layne (4-2) travels to Phelps Thursday night instead of the traditional Friday night schedule.

Beau Tackett (34) of Allen Central is caught by the Jersey and stopped by a Betsy Layne defender last Friday night at the Don Daniels Athletic Complex. Tackett, who suffered a badly bruised shoulder earlier in the season, rushed for 116 yards in his team's 13-12 win. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Your Donations At Work

Captain Dwight Crider, pictured here, Chief of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad would like to take this opportunity to thank the businesses of Floyd County that donated items and those people who bid and purchased those items on our Annual Radio Auction, and a special thanks to those who gave during our Annual Labor Day Weekend Roadblock.

Crider said, "the people need to know what these donations are used for. This year the monies were spent for this new state of the art rescue equipment."

The Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad has some of the best trained personnel in the state, but trained personnel is of little use if you don't have the equipment to do the job.

This year the squad purchased two new floating, chemical resistant back boards to replace the old style wooden ones we have used for years. A new 4-wheel drive A.T.V. for rough terrain rescue and recovery of logging accident victims, hunters, and hikers. A new complete set of Holmatro Jaws of Life, spreaders, cutters, pullers and a dual operating power unit to be used in auto extrication. This boosts the squad's ability to work the outlying areas of the county even better than before. Should the squad be called to two separate accidents at the same time we will be able to respond to both calls, since the squad now has two complete sets of extrication tools.

The Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad operates solely on your donations and all of our members serve entirely on a volunteer basis. Again, thank you for your help in seeing that your Rescue Squad is and has the best so that we may better serve you in your time of need.

THANK YOU!

Bassin' with the Pros

HEAVY BOAT TRAFFIC CAN MAKE BASS EASIER TO FIND

When your favorite bass fishing lake gets crowded with skiers and pleasure boaters, don't give up in dismay. Just keep fishing.

That's the advice of Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler Mickey Bruce, who says he believes heavy pleasure boat traffic can actually make bass easier to locate on some lakes.

"I believe bass become accustomed to the traffic, the noise, and the boat wakes," Bruce says. He learned his fishing skills on Georgia's Lake Lanier, one of the most heavily visited lakes in the United States.

"One of the things I've learned is that bass in those lakes often take up residence around boat docks and piers. Heavily visited lakes tend to have a lot of docks on them, and the owners usually put out cover as well as food to attract the fish.

"Once around a dock, if the conditions are favorable, the bass stay."

When he is fishing boat docks, Bruce says he usually starts at the entrance to a creek or cove because docks there will have the closest access to deep water. Other considerations that make him fish a particular dock include the presence of fishing rods, rod holders, or lights along the railings, or brush underneath the dock itself.

"I also like to fish boat houses that are standing by themselves," acknowledges the Evinrude pro. "Sometimes a single dock provides the only cover in an area and the bass flock to it. Only trial and error fishing will determine this for you, but a solitary pier or dock is always worth fishing."

When he isn't fishing boat docks on crowded lakes, the Georgia pro looks for ditches and channels near the mouths of tributary creeks, but away from the shoreline.

"On lakes that receive a lot of traffic, the shallow water tends to get muddy very quickly," he explains, "so I look for structure away from the shoreline. The depth I work depends a lot on water clarity, but basically, I'll start fishing a channel break with a Carolina rig lizard or plastic worm, or possibly a crankbait until I locate bass."

Bruce says it's difficult to ignore boat traffic when fishing more open water like this, but he doesn't worry about it.

"I know the bass get accustomed to it," he says, "and fishermen need to accept it, too."

DON'T OVERLOOK TOP-WATER FISHING AS AUTUMN WEATHER BEGINS

As autumn begins to arrive in different areas of the country, bass tournament pro Denny Brauer makes certain he has at least one top-water lure tied on a rod.

"Many fishermen think of top-water fishing only in the spring, but the autumn months can provide exciting action, too," says the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler. "It's a good time of year to catch a lot of bass, and a big fish is always a possibility because the bass are feeding heavily."

Brauer's two favorite top-water lures are the Pop R, a small chugger-type lure, and the Zara Spook, a larger stick bait famous for bringing strikes from big bass.

"Normally, the Pop R is good for numbers of bass while the Spook is better for larger fish," he says, "but my largest bass ever on a top-water lure weighed nine pounds, four ounces and I caught it on a Pop R."

Brauer's favorite retrieve with either lure is a fairly slow stop-and-go around shallow cover. He usually works the lure up to the cover fairly quickly, then stops it and twitches the bait a time or two, before continuing the retrieve. Strikes generally come very close to the cover and right after the lure stops.

"Your retrieve has to be worked out on the water according to the mood of the bass," Brauer cautions. "Sometimes the fish may prefer a faster retrieve, and other times they want it moving extra slow. With a top-water lure, your retrieve speed is really critical, so keep experimenting until you determine what works."

The Evinrude pro prefers to use the smaller Pop R in clear, generally calm water, and he really likes to use it over or around the edges of vegetation.

"Bass will use the vegetation as both a hiding zone as well as a feeding zone," he explains, "and with a slow, noisy retrieve, a Pop R can bring bass out of that vegetation."

"A Zara Spook, on the other hand, is a good lure to try in dingy water, especially if you use the frog-colored paint scheme. Overall, any top-water lure works better in clear water, but the noise and commotion a Spook creates attracts bass in dingy water, as well.

"Because of its size and the noise it makes, a Spook will also bring bass up from deeper depths. I especially like to work the lure around boat houses and docks where the water depth changes quickly from shallow to deep because I believe it actually draws bass away from the cover of the dock."

This time of year, Brauer recommends fishing top-water lures around stumps and other visible cover near the mouths of tributary creeks, beside rip rap, and over long points.

Fleming captures Apple Day 5K run

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Allen's Chris Fleming ran 18 seconds in front of Paul Bishop of Pound, Virginia to capture the Paintsville 18th Annual Apple Day 5K run this past Sunday in Paintsville.

Fleming had a time of 17:27 for first place and Bishop finished at 17:45.

Marshall Edwards, Prestonsburg, tied Van Lear's Rick Roberts for sixth place with times of 19:41. Russ Boyd was a fifth-place finisher with his time of 18:53. Former University of Georgia runner Rich Lipscomb finished 30th overall, but third in his age group of 20-24. Lipscomb had a time of 27:24.

Lipscomb was the winner of the Steve Fontaine Award for his courage in running. Fontaine's remembered line is, "Some people run to win the race, I race to see who has the most guts."

Wesley Manns placed fourth in the 14-under group. Manns had a time of 32:30. East Point's Charles Amburgey placed second in the 25-29 age group.

Diana Bowling, East Point, finished second in the women's 20-24 age group.

Northerners are Jim Dandy friends

Hot dog and a bottle of pop! It's Jim Dandy to the rescue. Well, it may not be Jim Dandy, exactly, but at last there just might be someone willing to help us poor old Appalachians.

In case you missed it, an article in the Sunday paper a couple of weeks ago reported that Cincinnati's Urban Appalachian Council recently sponsored something called the "Down Home, Downtown: Urban Appalachians Today" conference.

I don't know about you, but I really appreciate the fact that our neighbors to the north care enough about us to hold a conference in our honor.

Apparently, what it all boiled down to is that a bunch of Ohio people got together and discussed what happens to all our friends and relatives who move to the big city.

Michael Maloney, who was identified as an "Appalachian advocate," said that such conferences were necessary because poverty, unemployment and a lack of education "still plague people whose parents or grandparents came to Northern cities looking for a better life."

Poverty? Unemployment? Ignorance? Is Maloney suggesting that the only reason anybody would live up north is because they're broke and not smart enough to know any better?

Peggy Calestro, a professor at Columbus State

Poison Oak

Clyde Pack

Community College who studies Appalachian students, whatever that means, said that kids from the mountains usually run into academic problems about the time they reach middle school.

The article listed three reasons that might cause this. One, the kids are ridiculed because of the way they talk; second, they might miss a lot of Mondays because their families go "home" on the weekends; and third, they are not as aggressive as urban children.

Aggressive? When kids are concerned, is that not sometimes a synonym for rude?

A former warden at several Ohio prisons, Norman R. Rose, said research shows that about a third of the 40,000 inmates in Ohio prisons are from Appalachia.

"There are a lot of things being done for blacks, a lot for Hispanics, but much less for Appalachians," he said.

Rose must not have been aware of Jim Dandy, aka the Cincinnati City Council.

According to the article, about three years ago they approved a human rights ordinance that outlaws discrimination in housing, employment or public accommodation on the basis of Appalachian origin.

We really ought to be grateful that we're being looked after.

I just wish the article had been a little more explicit. Like for instance, if a person lives in Cincinnati, just exactly how many dogs is he allowed to keep under his front porch?

ANOTHER ITEM in that same paper that might be worth mentioning regarded a Wal-Mart store in Miami, Florida, that pulled a T-shirt off the market because one customer complained about the slogan that was printed on it.

Wal-Mart spokeswoman Jane Bockholt said, "It was determined the T-shirt was offensive to some people and so the decision was made to pull it."

The slogan? Well, it's almost too embarrassing to print, but it read as follows: "Someday a woman will be president."

Maybe the complainer was offended because the slogan was outdated...by about three years.

FROM THE MOUNTAINS

A personal vendetta

David Colson suffered after returning to Middlesborough, Kentucky, in 1899, following his stint with the Fourth Kentucky Artillery during the Spanish American War.

Colson was seriously wounded in an exchange of gunfire in a crowded Anniston, Alabama, restaurant by Ethelbert Scott with whom he had a personal vendetta. The shooting left a bullet lodged near his spine where it would remain for the rest of his days. Although nerves were severed leaving him partially paralyzed, others were damaged causing an endless pain which robbed Colson of his energy.

Scott returned to politics with help from his uncle, William O. Bradley, who was completing a lackluster term as governor of Kentucky. A wide open race was expected at the Republican convention scheduled in Lexington where Ethelbert Scott resided.

Meanwhile, Colson was recuperating in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky before eventually returning to the practice of law. By July he was mended sufficiently to attend the state Republican convention—a decision that put him on a collision course with his nemesis, Ethelbert Scott.

Colson wore a heavy sidearm during his stay in Lexington because he knew he would likely see Scott. In an assembly of nearly a thousand Kentucky Republicans, during the nominations for governor, Colson's heartbeat quickened and pain shot through his lower spine when he spotted Scott some thirty feet away. With hundreds of innocent people around Colson thought it ill-advised to engage in any conflict, yet Scott had done just that in a crowded Alabama restaurant just months before.

When the convention was adjourned, Colson watched as Scott turned toward the aisle, noticing that his mortal enemy had a bandage covering one eye. He thought about Scott's treachery and reminded himself to give the wounded eye no mind because he knew of the man's resourcefulness.

Someone tugged at Ethelbert's sleeve. "Colson's just ahead and he's armed heavy," the acquaintance said. "If you and Tom take this other aisle, then you won't see him."

"I'm not afraid of that tin-soldier, now or never," he said for the informant and his brother Tom to hear. Tom Scott had joined him at the convention.

Tom looked ahead to catch a glimpse of David Colson whom he had heard so much about in the last few months. His eyes immediately caught Colson's gaze which was cold in hate. His arm instinctively reached toward his brother as he turned to warn him of Colson. His hand bumped against the steel of a gun barrel, held by his brother beneath his coat.

Many people knew of the conflict between the two and when the likelihood of trouble became evident people scurried to protect themselves. A longtime Republican stalwart from the mountains of Eastern Kentucky averted bloodshed by approaching Colson in a friendly way, grasping the crippled man's arm and leading him away from the situation. Colson sighed relief knowing that gunplay at that point would likely leave several people dead and wounded.

The Republicans nominated W. S. Taylor as their standard bearer while the Democrats picked William Goebel at their convention in Louisville. The campaign was a bitter one. Colson's political savvy in the mountains of Kentucky aided Taylor's candidacy and following the November 1899 election it was announced that Taylor won by just 2000 votes.

It was a shock to Colson and other Republicans when, on January 2, 1900, Goebel and J.W.C. Beckham, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, filed suit claiming irregularities in 29 Eastern Kentucky counties during the election. Ethelbert Scott was summoned as one of the witnesses. Two weeks later found both Colson and Scott en route to Frankfort.

"Boys, if I should not return, then I plan to meet you on that other shore," Scott told friends in Lexington before departing.

As Scott rode in a carriage toward his hotel he noticed a limping man with a cane, obviously pained, walking along the main part of Frankfort. As the carriage passed, he saw out of the corner of his eye that it was David Colson.

The following day found the capitol full of officials and politicians who were gathering to hear the great orator, William Jennings Bryan, four-time candidate for the U.S. presidency, who would address them that morning.

Scott walked toward the assembly and suddenly came face-to-face with David Colson. The two men stared at each other for only a few seconds but it seemed like minutes to them. Neither elected to challenge the other but Colson knew that it was just a matter of time.

A long-barrelled .44 revolver was holstered beneath his coat and he carried a new .38 calibre as a reserve. He knew Scott would also be armed and dangerous. Each painful minute of his life was a testament to that.

Editor's note: The vendetta continues when Colson meets Scott again in Judon's From The Mountains next week in the Floyd County Times.

Justice enjoys being a non-traditional student

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Wanda Justice doesn't get to see her children as much as she'd like to.

She doesn't get to spend a lot of time with her husband, either.

But that's okay with her. She's doing something for herself.

Justice has gone back to school and is attending Prestonsburg Community College.

The 39-year-old mother of five says the whole idea of getting her degree in nursing is a little "overwhelming," but worth every minute of classroom time and study time required for her to succeed.

Justice was a nurse's aide at Highlands Regional Medical Center about 16 years ago. "But I wanted more. I wasn't fulfilled. My needs hadn't been met."

But instead of going back to college then, she had children number two, three, and four. The oldest, Tonda Kay, is 20. April Dawn is 15, Rachel Rae is 13, Dustin Keith is ten and Travis Lee is three.

"The oldest one tells me I need to slow down. They've always encouraged me. My 15-year-old tells me to hang in there. She's the peacemaker," she says.

And the youngest, who came after Justice started college, is spending a lot of time with his dad. Her husband was laid off from Peter Fork Mining and has been alternately spending time with the kids and looking for work.

"Travis is flexible. He's ready with open arms when I get home," she says. "But I've also got a terrific baby-sitter who has been with him since he was about four months old."

And although her children seem to have adjusted well to mom going back to school, her parents weren't happy.

"I was the seventh of 12 children," she says. "My father was a coal miner and my mom stayed at home. They've been married 49 years and this was the first year she didn't raise a garden. That's just what she did. Dad wasn't really happy when I told him I was going back to school"

Justice, known as a non-traditional student in PCC's vocabulary, went back to school in 1991 and has been attending classes since. She says she is pushing to finish her basics this fall and hopes to get into the nursing program next spring. She will need an additional two years to finish.

Her schedule begins about 6 a.m. every day and until recently ran until about midnight. "But I've set a curfew for both me and the kids," she said. "Now, we're in bed no later than 10:30 p.m."

She has classes on Monday, Wednesday and alternate Fridays from 8 a.m. to 1:40 p.m. On Tuesday, Thursday and alternate Fridays, she's in class from 10:20 to 11:20. She also has a class at 5:30 p.m. on Friday afternoon.

"On top of that, I have to study, and work for SASSY," she says. SASSY is a group that non-traditional students formed at PCC. It is an opportunity for students to connect with each other and talk out any problems they are having.

"While it is all overwhelming, there such a sense of pride," she says. "It feels good."

She said she always knew she would go back to college, "it was just a matter of time. I took a risk, but in my heart I knew I could do it," she says.

She says her husband finds her going back to school overwhelming as well.

"There's no time for each other," she says.

"And I'm changing. He has always been the provider and I have always been home taking care of his needs, the kids' needs and the needs of his parents. We've never had any problems."

And finding time for housecleaning is next to well. So I decided the time was right for me. It was time for me to make my move."

Her first step was to apply for financial aid. "If I didn't get financial aid, I wouldn't be here," she says. "That finally fell into place. I was glad, because without an education, we'll never get off welfare."

She says many people want to cut welfare, but they are "seeing only how the system is abused," she says. "They aren't seeing how it is used. I am using it to take care of my children so I can better myself and put food on our table."

Justice then discovered that the records for the GED test she passed in 1979 had disappeared. She had to retake the test. "I was afraid I wouldn't be able to do it," she says, "But there wasn't a problem. I passed with flying colors."

Then she started taking classes.

"The first semester was a lot of adjusting," she remembers. "I was trying to form study habits and didn't have a clue." She also worked part-time.

She says she planned to have a tubal ligation during Christmas break, between semesters. "But mom got the flu and my brother was coming home so I decided to wait until May after the semester ended."

Only a few weeks after the spring semester started, Justice discovered she was pregnant with her fifth child and second son.

"It was really hard," she says. "I was tired. I should have dropped out that semester, but I didn't. I just kept pushing and finally finished."

The baby was born in August and Justice stayed out of school until the next January.

"It was really hard to leave him," she says. "I had never left my kids before except to go to the hospital to have another one, but I found a really good baby-sitter and he just loves it."

She says her son sometimes complains that she is never home or that she isn't spending time with him. When that happens, she says she closes her books and plays with Travis.

She says other students and the professors at PCC have accepted her and other non-traditional students. "I think the professors love it," she says. "They are always encouraging us and the younger students seem to respect us also."

She estimated that about 70 percent of the students attending PCC are non-traditional students. "And there's about that many receiving financial aid," she says.

Justice says she is concerned about proposed cuts in financial aid and the welfare system.

"The government needs to hear our side of the story," she says. "I want to get off welfare and live a decent life, but I need an education first, and I can't do that without financial aid."

She says cuts in aid to students would "be devastating. That would destroy a lot of family foundations. We're trying to set examples for our children."

impossible. "I was used to having a perfect house," she says. "It almost killed me to come home and my bed not be made."

But then she set up priorities and now it doesn't matter as much if the house is a little messed up," she says. "I'm doing my best and that's all anybody can ask."

She says the decision to go back to school came after Dustin went to school. "He had outgrown his allergies and his asthma. He seemed to be doing so

Attend state historical groundbreaking ceremonies

On Monday, September 25, four members of the Floyd County Historical and Genealogical Society traveled to Frankfort to attend the groundbreaking ceremony for the Kentucky History Center.

Attending the event were society president Jim Daniels and his wife, Bertha; Marshall Davidson, the society's legal advisor; and Brenda McKenzie, secretary.

Opening remarks at the ceremony were made by Dr. James C. Klotter, director of the Kentucky Historical Society, after a hearty welcome from Frankfort's Mayor Huston Wells and Franklin County Judge-Executive Bob Arnold, Dr. Thomas D. Clark, Kentucky's Historian Laureate delivered a speech expounding the far reaches of the Commonwealth of Kentucky's history.

Governor Brereton C. Jones was introduced by Sherry K. Jelsma, secretary of the state Education, Arts and Humanities Cabinet. The governor described the Kentucky History Center as a dream come true. In 1990, the General Assembly had approved $2 million to design the center and acquire a downtown site in the capital city. This year, Governor Jones recommended, and the legislature approved, $17.5 million in construction funding. An additional $3 million will be raised privately.

All speakers credited the support of First Lady Libby Jones with making the history center possible.

The center will be a classroom for Kentucky, offering hands-on activities and interactive exhibits that will bring history to life. Computer technology will put historical records, books and photos on-line with the world. An expanded research and genealogy library will help patrons document the state's past, and state-of-the-art storage facilities will protect rare collections. A formal garden showcasing native plants will serve as a centerpiece for special events or offer quiet respite from the challenges of a busy day.

Ground breakers were Governor and Mrs. Brereton C. Jones, Senator John "Eck" Rose; Secretary Sherry K. Jelsma; Secretary Crit Luallen; the KHS president, Dr. Thomas L. Riley; the KHS director, Dr. James C. Klotter; and Dr. Thomas D. Clark.

A reception was held after the ceremony.

Senior citizens, during our father's and grandfather's generation, men in Appalachia worked hard in the coal mines and cornfields. While the men worked hard to bring home the "bacon," it was the women's responsibilities to salt, can, and cook it. My! How times have changed and with it the quality of our food has deteriorated.

My grandmother had a salt cellar. My mother canned. My dad had a smokehouse. The kids churned butter weekly. And all the neighbors got together once a year to make homemade apple butter and to butcher.

I remember going with my grandmother to the salt cellar. She kept a big knife down there. When she wanted a piece of ham or some bacon she knew exactly where to start digging in the course salt to find it. With that knife, she'd cut off as much as she wanted, cover the remainder over again, wipe the knife on her apron, and place it back on the ledge from where she had taken it. (I've often wondered how many mice or perhaps even rats, ran back and forth over that knife.) But at least they didn't get to the food.

Mother canned a lot. Fruit, tomatoes, beans, corn, beets, peas, meats. I don't remember the work that went into all of that — the peeling, coring, stringing and cleaning of the fruits and vegetables. A pressure cooker blew up in her face when I was only three. Fortunately, she bore no lasting scars from the bad cuts and burns she suffered that day. Mother never canned again after her accident. And, I never got into it when I grew older. I do remember getting scolded good once for sneaking up to the attic where the canned food were stored. Family lore has it that I took the rings off as many jars as I could, and using a beer can opener, I pried the seals off the jars. (Well! That's how I saw Mama do it.)

I remember Dad's smokehouse, too. The pickling process. The wood slowly smoldering. The wonderful, unforgettable aroma. And meat hanging on large hooks from the ceiling in a dark room where heavy, brown droplets of grease oozed down the walls.

Yes! Times have changed. Mom and Pop neighborhood stores, with only basic supplies, were popular in the 40s when I was young. By the time I had reached my teens, big grocery stores were well within reach by automobiles. Today, supermarkets are everywhere. The salt cellar, gardens, and smokehouses are things of the past. Canning, though still somewhat popular in Appalachia, is a fast-fading culinary art. Today we have freezers, commercially canned food products, pre-packaged, quick-to-fix meals, microwaves — and impurities in the foods we eat.

People must get in the habit of being far more concerned about what we eat. Most every commercial food processor of every kind — canneries, meat processing plants, dehydration facilities, and beverage bottling companies, is allowed a rodent, bug, and hair content factor. And if that isn't enough to force us all into self-inflicted starvation, I have yet to mention animal growth hormones, pesticides, and chemical preservatives we ingest daily.

In today's world it is practically impossible to eat pure food. But we can get in the habit of eating more fresh fruits and vegetables. We can choose to eat less meat or no meat at all. And we can get in the habit of reading content labels on the products. I encourage you to read the labels very, very carefully. Have a good dictionary nearby to look up a word you don't understand. I guarantee that many people will be surprised to learn what they have been eating. I encourage you to write the Food and Drug Administration, and our state and national leaders to request that firmer laws be enacted to protect us.

During our fathers and grandfathers' generations, home-grown and home-canned foods were in vogue. Gardens were popular. People raised their own chicken, turkey, beef and pork. Today, few people have gardens and even fewer people raise and slaughter their own meat. Read those labels! See what's in those cans and packages before you buy them. And write! Write! Write!

If a typical delivery room was the first thing you saw, you'd react the same way.

While we don't have any scientific proof that babies born in our maternity suites won't scream their heads off, we do believe that when they start looking around for the very first time, they'll think, "Wow, this place is pretty nice. Comfortable. And quite tastefully decorated."

As a matter of fact, that's exactly the kind of responses we've been getting from expectant moms and dads who come to King's Daughters' to deliver.

They're impressed by the level of privacy (our suites are just for you and your family), the comfort, and the personal care you receive from our attentive staff of physicians and nurses. And, most important, the fact that the entire birthing process takes place in one room. You remain in the same room for labor, delivery and recovery.

If this sounds like the way you want to welcome your baby into the world, call us at (606) 327-4546 for further information about our maternity suites at King's Daughters' Medical Center. The RIGHT CARE. RIGHT HERE.

Lameness has many causes

One of the major problems on dairy farms is lameness.

It is probably the second or third leading cause of culling in most herds, and therefore has a significant effect on the economics of dairy farming.

Causes of lameness fall under five categories: genetics, environment, injury, disease and nutrition. In most instances, lameness is not caused by a single factor but a combination.

In the past century, rapid genetic change geared to higher production has caused a change in the cow's body shape. Today's cattle are more refined and are more narrow in the front and bigger in the abdominal area. The feet of cows have not changed as much as their body conformation, however. For example, though the rear foot surface area accounts for only 40% of the animal's total foot surface area, it may be supporting as much as 60% of the cow's weight.

Uneven weight distribution may account for as much as 90% of rear-foot lameness.

Environment also plays a role. Pasture-grazing cows tend to have drier feet than cows kept in confinement. A cow's feet may be constantly wet when it has to live in concrete lots or muddy corrals. The excess moisture makes the sole and wall of the foot soft, which allows stones and other small particles as well as bacteria to enter the deep foot structure more easily than if the foot was hard and dry. When the animals can find a comfortable place in which to lie down, foot problems are less common.

Injuries account for other causes of lameness, and are usually traced to poor housekeeping. Loose boards, nails, metal objects, missing or broken parlor or gutter floor grates or small stones in sand bedding or limestone are typical causes. Keeping a barn in good repair will prevent many injuries.

Infectious and contagious diseases are the most common foot problems on some farms. Hairy heel warts, infectious pododermatitis and laminitis are examples.

And nutrition sometimes plays a role. Many rations are formulated for high production and do not take into account possible health problems associated with high-energy, low-fiber diets. Too often, lactating cows are fed too much grain and not enough roughage.

Lameness and foot problems are

Sorghum growers find worms in field

Farmers: If you planted your sorghum fields after June, you probably are growing more worms than you would like.

"So far, most of the bad guys are sorghum webworms," said Doug Johnson, extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "But a few corn earworms have been seen also."

Farmers also might expect fall armyworms in their late planted sorghum, but Johnson said none have been noted so far.

Late planting, along with uneven weather, produced many fields with uneven ripening, he said. Plants with head maturity between bloom and hard dough are at risk.

"Generally, headworms are not at risk after the grain reaches the hard dough stage," Johnson said.

The light green to black corn earworm with light and dark stripes running the length of its body can severely damage late planted sorghum, Johnson said. Sorghum plants that ripen just after corn reaches the hard dough stage are most susceptible.

"Sorghum webworms are easily recognized because they have far more hairs and spines than either corn earworm or fall armyworm,"

Johnson said. The adult webworm can be identified as a small, white moth which lays eggs at night on hosts such as sorghum, Sudan grass, johnsongrass and rye. The generation which appears in September is most damaging to late planted sorghum.

Johnson said farmers should sample their fields to determine presence of the pest. They should examine at least 20 heads soon after flowering by shaking each head into a white cloth or plastic bag, then counting the worms.

An average of two or more small larvae per head is the economic threshold for both worms, he said.

SOUP SHORTCUTS

Soup goes a long way to satisfy hungry appetites. It tastes even better the day after it's made, once flavors have had a chance to blend and mellow. Make a big batch and store in small portions, just right for weekday lunches.

Freeze it

Soup keeps up to three days in the refrigerator and freezes very well for longer storage. Here are a few tips for freezing soup:

- The only ingredient to avoid when freezing soup is potatoes, as they become grainy and soft. Cook potatoes fresh to add to soup that's been frozen.

- Freeze soup in containers that hold enough for one meal, a quart for 4 to 6 servings; a pint for 2 to 3 servings.

- Use a wide-mouth container to make it easier to take out partially thawed soup. Thaw in the refrigerator and use thawed soup right away.

- Make sure there's 1/2-inch headspace in quart containers and 1/4-inch headspace in pint containers to leave enough room for soup to expand as it freezes.

- Take a minute to label container with name of recipe, number of servings and the date. That takes the guesswork out of a visit to the freezer later. Soups and stews keep 2 to 3 months.

- Some flavors intensify during freezing, but onion gradually loses flavor. Plan to add more onion or other seasoning when you're ready to serve soup.

Osborne Brothers to perform at Sipp Friday

The historic Sipp Theatre in downtown Paintsville, is offering Vol. V of its "Bluegrass at the Sipp" concert series Friday, October 6, during the Kentucky Apple Festival, with Grand Ole Opry Stars, The Osborne Brothers. Also appearing will be the Lexington-based Eastbound.

The Sipp has brought many of the top stars of Bluegrass to Eastern Kentucky in '95, including Larry Sparks, The Goins Brothers, Illrd Tyme Out, Continental Divide, Charlie Sizemore and Redwing, but the appearance of The Osborne Brothers will mark the return of Grand Ole Opry stars to the historic theater for the first time in nearly 40 years.

The Osborne Brothers were born in the mountainous coal mining region of Southeastern Kentucky in the town of Hyden. Because of a six-year difference in age, they began their careers separately.

In his early career, Bobby worked with the Lonesome Pine Fiddlers in Bluefield, West Virginia and appeared on their first recordings. He later worked with the Stanley Brothers for a short time before entering the Marine Corps.

Sonny's career began two years later. From June through September of 1952, he worked with Bill Monroe, and at age 14, was the youngest member of a band working regularly at the Grand Ole Opry. He recorded nine songs with Monroe during this period.

The brothers got together as a musical team in November 1953, on radio station WROL, in Knoxville, Tennessee. They made their mark, in 1959, as the first Bluegrass band to give a college concert. This was at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio.

The Osborne Brothers recorded for MGM records from 1956 until 1963, and they became members of the Grand Ole Opry July 31, 1964. From 1976 to date they have recorded with the CMH record company. Among their classic recordings are

Ruby, Tennessee Hound Dog, Georgia Pineywoods, Roll Muddy River, Midnight Flyer, and two official state songs: Rocky Top (Tennessee 2/15/82) and Kentucky (Ky. 3/17/92)

Rocky Top, which was released on Christmas day, 1967, has become the most popular Bluegrass song ever recorded, and one of the most performed songs in country music history.

The Osborne Brothers are the only group in history, to date, to have won the Country Vocal Group of the Year and The Bluegrass Band of the Year simultaneously. They received two Grammy nominations in 1992 for best bluegrass album (Hillbilly Fever) and best Country Instrumental (Orange Blossom Special) from the same album.

Eastbound was formed in 1986 as a Bluegrass/Gospel band evolving over the past eight years to playing a full schedule of churches, festivals and conventions throughout the east and south.

Eastbound has been the feature act on many shows while opening other shows for such legends as The Osborne Brothers, J.D. Crowe, Allison Krauss, Doyle Lawson, The Lewis Family, and the legendary Bill Monroe, with numerous appearances on radio and TV.

Ticket prices for the concert are $10 at the door $8 in advance. Tickets are available at Wilma's Restaurant, Court Street, Paintsville; The Sipp Theatre, Main Street, Paintsville, and WRLV Radio Station in Salyersville. Concert information is available at (606) 789-1293 or (606) 789-1705.

There will be two shows on October 6, so fans will be requested to specify either the 5 p.m. or the 8 p.m. show.

The Sipp Theatre is operated by the Sipp Theatre Foundation, a non-profit organization established for the purpose of restoring the historic theatre and providing quality entertainment to the citizens of Eastern Kentucky.

BEER GOES WITH EXERCISE?

by Chris Fleming

It may taste good when you are thirsty, but beer is not a good way to get the fluid you need after prolonged exercise. Alcohol is a diuretic, so rather than replenishing the water you have lost, beer can promote dehydration. Beer works by affecting the ADH hormone preventing the reabsorption of fluid in the large intestine.

Some people justify drinking beer after exercising by saying it gives them a quick shot of carbohydrates and potassium. But there's no pressing need for these nutrients immediately after a workout. And if you need to replace any mineral, it is not potassium but sodium, which you can get from your diet. In fact, most Americans consume too much sodium.

Ironically, even if you needed these nutrients, beer is not a very good source. Compare a 12-ounce can of beer to the same amount of orange juice: the beer has 13 grams of carbohydrates, versus 39 grams in orange juice. And while the beer has just 89 milligrams of potassium, the orange juice has a whopping 700 milligrams.

If you start drinking beer after exercising, you may well down two or three cans and then drive home. Despite the ads that associate hot cars, cold beer, and sweaty exercise, this is a terrible mix.

Do not think beer is a good idea before exercise either. Some marathoners believe they can "carb-load" by drinking beer. To get enough carbohydrates to run just 2.5 miles, you would have to drink five 12-ounce cans. This is enough to make you legally drunk.

Tip of the Week: If a child regularly uses a sunscreen with a Sun Protection Factor (SPF) of 15 or higher during his first 18 years, he might reduce his lifetime risk of skin cancer by more than 70 percent.

Dental Health Today

by Michael K. McKinney, D.M.D.

WISDOM TEETH

As babies, we start out with 20 primary (or baby) teeth. By the time we are adults, we shed these baby teeth and end up with a total of 32 teeth. Where do the extra 12 come from? These are our 12 permanent molar teeth. They develop behind the baby molars in three stages (of 4 each) during our youth.

The third set of molars are called wisdom teeth. They make their appearance between the age of 17 and 21. The one who invented this label equate "wisdom" (perhaps rashly) with physical maturity. Wisdom teeth often cause trouble.

The jaws may be so small that one or all of these wisdom teeth remain completely embedded in the jawbone. In other instances, only a portion of the crown may erupt and a flap of gum tissue may overlap much of the wisdom tooth enamel.

These embedded (impacted) or partially erupted teeth may become a source of trouble from pressure they produce on adjacent teeth or from infection that develops under the gum. Their surgical removal may be necessary.

THE CAUSE OF DENTAL DECAY
Dental decay is a microbial plaque disease. Bacteria require a special protected environment—dental plaque—to do their dirty work. Plaque is a sticky gelatinous substance which is nearly invisible until it has picked up stain. It is deposited on the teeth by bacteria and their products in combination with dietary and salivary components. Plaque takes only about a day to reach a sufficient thickness for bacteria to colonize. There is a wide variety of bacteria present as the plaque builds, and some of them are especially effective in using dietary sugars to form acids. The plaque concentrates these acids against tooth surface, resulting in a demineralization of enamel. This is the beginning of a cavity. Until recently, it was believed that Idemineralization was irreversible. It is now known that teeth can remineralize under certain conditions and that many early cavities can heal spontaneously—a process aided by the presence of fluoride and the absence of plaque.

McKinney named Dairy Queen's new manager

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

Dairy Queen has a new manager and customer service is the name of the game.

Johnny McKinney came back to Prestonsburg and the Dairy Queen here in late August. But he's been with the company since 1984 when he worked at the old store in town across from Pic Pac when the store was owned by Jim Carey.

"I've been around for about 12 years now and I've seen a lot of people come and go," he said. "But we still have a lot of regulars."

In those 12 years, McKinney has worked in Martin and in Paintsville, at the Dairy Queens there.

"Basically, I want to try to let people know I'm back and I'm here to help them get their problems solved," he said.

He said he enjoys being back in Prestonsburg. "I've been back since August 21 and I'm here to stay," he said. "I love it here. It is a challenge and it is different."

He said one of the things he's going to stress is community service. "If there are any non-profit organizations out there I can help, let me know," he said. "We can do anything, a car wash, whatever. They can use our facilities. We're ready for them."

He said he's really interested in community service and community appreciation, but "we can't do it overnight."

McKinney said he is trying to overcome bad management and is re-vamping the cooking style at the restaurant. "People want their food quickly and that's what we're aiming for," he said. "Before, the management took the customers for granted."

He said he also has more help in the restaurant during crunch time — breakfast and lunch. "We're trying to concentrate on those peak periods and keeping the customer happy," he said.

He said he knows customers are the heart of his business. "The best way to know your business is to know your customers. I'm always watching every face coming in that door," he said. "I'm always ready to accommodate the customer."

Named outstanding employee

Jolene Crawford of Melvin has been named an Outstanding Employee of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet. She is regional administrator in the division of field services with the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement. She is in charge of the Pikeville Regional Office, the largest and most active field office in the department. The award was presented by Phillip J. Shepherd, Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet secretary.

South Central Bell proposes new long distance call plan

South Central Bell is proposing a new plan that offers easy to understand long distance rates and volume discounts. If approved by the Kentucky Public Service Commission, long distance rates would decrease by $3.7 million. However, some optional operator surcharges would increase producing an overall rate decrease of $900,000.

Long distance calls within the SCB Kentucky LATA will be 20 cents per minute regardless of the calling distance. The current method of rounding up time of long distance calls to whole minutes will also change. The minimum calls duration will be lowered to 30 seconds with billing in six second intervals. In addition, the time-of-day discounts will be changed to Peak (7 a.m. to 7 p.m.) and Off-Peak (7 p.m. to 7 a.m. and all day on weekends). Off-Peak discounts will be 40 percent.

For example, a direct dialed call of 4 minutes and 36 seconds at 9:30 a.m. from Winchester to Pikeville would be 92 cents instead of the current charge of $1.00.

range from five percent to 30 percent depending on the usage and the option term taken."

The proposal also includes increases in the surcharge for calling card calls and the surcharge for station-to-station and person-to-person local calls. Plus, an Operator Dialed surcharge of 80 cents will apply when the customer dials "0" and requests the operator to dial the call.

Join law firm

Barkley J. Sturgill, Jr. has joined the law firm of Sturgill & Hunt for the general practice of law. Sturgill and Hunt's offices are located on South Arnold Avenue, Prestonsburg. Sturgill was formerly associated with the Law Firm of Robinson & McElwee in Lexington, and Charleston, West Virginia. Other members of the firm are Barkley J. Sturgill Sr., John Earl Hunt and Dwight Stacy Marshall.

"The new rates will be even lower if the customer is eligible for the new volume discounts," said Paul Smith, SCB regional manager. "Residence customers will automatically be given a discount if they generate over $5.00 of SCB Kentucky toll calls within their LATA monthly. The discount will range from five percent to 30 percent depending upon usage. Discounts for business customers will

Coal mining subsidiaries sold to Addington Brothers Company

Addington Resources Inc., announced September 25 that it had entered into a definitive agreement with Larry, Bruce and Robert Addington, the company's largest stockholders, for the sale to the Addington brothers of the company's coal mining subsidiaries and its mining equipment manufacturing and licensing subsidiary for an aggregate of $30 million cash and the assumption of certain liabilities related to these operations. As additional consideration, the company will retain the right to receive certain cash payments (anticipated to be $7,000,000) from BHP Australia Coal Pty. Ltd. under the company's previously announced technology sale. The company will also receive a $1.00 per ton royalty for coal delivered by Tennessee Mining Inc., one of the subsidiaries being sold, under its contract with the Tennessee Valley Authority, with a $12 million maximum royalty. The company will also retain the net working capital (if any) of the subsidiaries to be transferred after certain adjustments.

The transactions with the Addington brothers, if consummated, will enable the company to promptly sell substantially all of the company's non-environmental operations (excluding gold, lime and Wind Mountain) on attractive terms, enabling the company to focus on its key environmental operations and better exploit opportunities for those operations currently available to it. The company continues to pursue the sale of its gold, limestone and Wind Mountain operations, which are excluded from the transactions with the Addington brothers.

Real Advice

Home owning provides equity and tax savings

Q. What benefits come from owning a home?

A. The monetary value of home ownership is measured both by equity built over the years and by the tax benefits.

Less tangible benefits are privacy, pride in your home, and establishing roots in your community.

Let's face it, when you own your home and pay taxes, you are more likely to be involved in the community and its political system which uses those tax dollars.

Q. What is equity and how can I use it?

A. Equity is like a forced savings plan.

It's your dollars invested in the property minus the interest you pay on your mortgage loan.

Building up over the years, it gives you extra borrowing power for other items you need and want to purchase and more financial security for retirement years.

Q. What about mortgage interest tax deductions?

A. The mortgage interest deduction stands out on the 1040 tax form because for many people it's the only way left to reduce their tax bill. Many middle income taxpayers who rent aren't able to get past the standard deduction.

Once you begin itemizing with your mortgage interest deduction, you're on your way to listing other tax deductions.

These deductions lower the real cost of the house because you're paying less in taxes than you would if you were a renter.

WYMT celebrates tenth anniversary

Eastern Kentucky's Regional Television Station will record a milestone this October when it celebrates ten years of service. WYMT-TV in Hazard, signed on the morning of October 19, 1985, in the face of terrain and construction obstacles.

The station is a CBS affiliate and part of Gray Communications Systems Inc., which also operates a chain of newspapers and television stations throughout the South.

Ralph Gabbard, president of the Broadcast Division of Gray Communications, says WYMT was conceived as a regional station, covering more than 25 counties. His research indicated the residents of Eastern Kentucky, who had little or no broadcast communications link to the rest of the state, were hungry for local and regional news, weather and sports. Previously, their primary television fare came from outside the state. An extensive microwave path was constructed to link the station to news bureaus in the Big Sandy and Cumberland Valley Regions of the state, as well as WKYT-TV in Lexington, which is also part of the Gray chain.

The station is planning a celebration show this October to commemorate the anniversary. The celebration will be televised live, 8 p.m. to 10 p.m., on October 19th and will highlight many of the events and people that have been featured on WYMT-TV and 57 Mountain News during the decade.

Many May Breathe Easier Now
(NAPS)—There could be good news for the estimated two million Americans with emphysema and other lung conditions, and for the people who care about them.

For many people with emphysema a new laser surgery technique can be a breath of fresh air.

A doctor in California has come up with a new way to reduce the size of diseased lung tissue called bullae that expand and trap inhaled air, making breathing difficult. Using a laser, Doctor Akio Wakabayashi, Medical Director of The Wakabayashi Institute at Irvine Medical Center, shrinks the bullae through pencil-sized holes in the chest, allowing the lung to expand. The minimally-invasive procedure can enhance breathing and quality of life for emphysema sufferers. If you have emphysema, you may benefit from the procedure. There may be more ways medicine can help you than you imagine. For a free TLP videotape and patient information, please call 1-800-500-2535.

BE LESS PRODUCTIVE AT THE OFFICE.

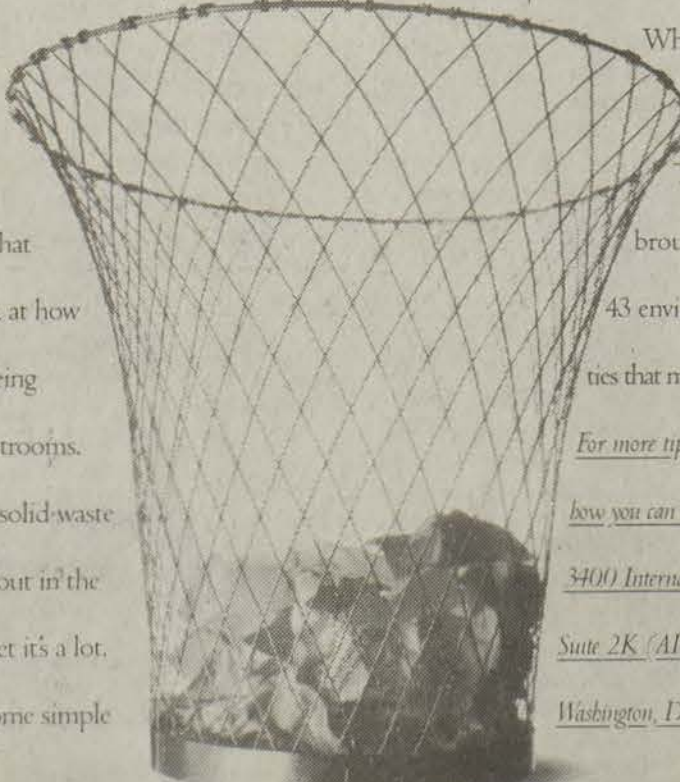

The office has always been a place to get ahead. Unfortunately, it's also a place where a lot of natural resources start to fall behind. Take a look around the next time you're at work. See how many lights are left on when people leave. See how much paper is being wasted. How much electricity is being used to run computers that are left on. Look at how much water is being wasted in the restrooms. And how much solid waste is being thrown out in the trash cans. We bet it's a lot. Now, here are some simple ways you can produce less waste at work. When you're at the copier, only make the copies you need. Use both sides of the paper when writing a memo. Turn off your light when you leave. Use a lower watt bulb in your lamps. Drink your coffee or tea out of mugs instead of throwaway cups. Set up a recycling bin for aluminum cans and one for bottles. And when you're in the bathroom brushing your teeth or washing your face, don't let the faucet run. Remember, if we use fewer resources today, we'll save more for tomorrow.

It takes 93% less energy to manufacture products from recycled materials.

Drink out of mugs instead of throwaway cups.

Which would truly be a job well done.

NOTICE TO PRESTONSBURG CITY'S UTILITIES COMMISSION NATURAL GAS CUSTOMERS THE POTENTIAL HAZARDS OF NATURAL GAS

GAS ACCIDENTS CAN BE AVOIDED IF YOU UNDERSTAND THE POTENTIAL HAZARDS.

(1) FIRE
Natural gas can be a fire hazard, if you let it. Don't let it. A very hot stove, open flame or pilot light can ignite any combustible materials that happen to be near. Keep paper, curtains, paints, solvents, etc., away from gas appliances.

(2) EXPLOSION
Natural gas can be ignited by open flames or sparks. That's why unburned natural gas should never be allowed to escape into a room. A spark, flame, lit match or cigarette, even the flick of a light switch may be enough to cause an explosion.

(3) CARBON MONOXIDE POISONING
Even though natural gas itself isn't poisonous, gas burners that aren't adjusted properly can produce deadly carbon monoxide. You can't see or smell carbon monoxide, but it's a killer. To avoid its dangers, always make sure that all natural gas appliances in your home are properly adjusted and vented to the outside, so they'll burn safely and efficiently.

(4) SUFFOCATION
Natural gas can cause suffocation if it replaces air containing oxygen. (Only air that has oxygen can sustain life.) This is another reason why natural gas should never be allowed to leak from appliances or build up in an enclosed area or room.

FOLLOW THESE COMMON SENSE SAFETY RULES... IT'S UP TO YOU TO USE SAFE GAS APPLIANCES AND TO USE GAS APPLIANCES SAFELY!!

(1) KEEP COMBUSTIBLES such as papers, fluids, paints, curtains and rags away from furnaces, water heaters and gas ranges and dryers.

(2) TEACH CHILDREN never to light or play with the controls of any gas ranges and dryers.

(3) KEEP PILOT LIGHTS of your gas range lit. If you put them out to save energy, a dangerous gas build-up can occur if someone accidentally turns on the range.

(4) KEEP GAS RANGE CLEAN—make sure burner bowls are free of used matches, grease, paper, etc.

(5) AND NEVER USE YOUR GAS RANGE to heat your home or apartment. This practice creates a serious fire hazard and puts you and your family at risk from dangerous carbon monoxide fumes.

(6) MAKE SURE APPLIANCES ARE VENTED—Natural gas needs air containing oxygen to burn safely and efficiently. Without enough air, dangerous carbon monoxide is produced. For this reason, always make sure that your gas furnace and water heater are vented to the outside of the building. If you're not sure your appliances are vented properly, have them checked by a qualified heating contractor or plumber.

(7) KEEP FLUES AND CHIMNEYS CLEAR—Have your fluepipe and chimney checked to make sure they're not blocked with debris such as nests, branches, or ivy. (Your heating contractor can inspect and clean fluepipes for you.)

(8) SIGNS OF POOR FLUE VENTILATION—Indoor wetness (condensation); unusual smell in your home that doesn't go away; sick houseplants; yellow or wavering appliance flames; soot in your home; pilot light that keeps going out.

HOW DO I KNOW IF A GAS HAZARD EXISTS?—YOUR SENSE OF SMELL SHOULD TELL YOU

(1) A GAS LEAK IS POTENTIALLY VERY DANGEROUS!—Gas may leak from faulty appliances, broken pipes or broken mains. Make sure all members of your family know what to do if they smell gas.

(A) IF THE ODOR IS STRONG:
1) Do not light matches.

2) Do not turn lights on or off.

3) Do not use the telephone.

4) If possible, notify everyone in the building or house to leave immediately.

5) Call the gas company or fire department from a nearby building or home.

6) Do not reenter your home until the gas company or fire department has told you it's safe to do so.

7) Never take chances! If your safety is threatened, get out quickly. Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission Phone Number 886-6871 Day; After 5:00 p.m., Weekends or Holidays—886-2900.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A GAS LEAK OUTSIDE HOUSE OR BUILDING—Gas leaks are uncommon, but it is a good idea to know how to recognize them. Common signs include:

1) A gas odor.

2) A blowing or hissing sound.

3) Dirt being blown or thrown into the air.

4) Water bubbling or being blown into the air at a pond, creek or river.

5) Fire coming from the ground or burning above the ground.

6) Brown patches in vegetation on or near gas pipeline.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT A GAS LEAK

If you detect any signs of a gas leak, follow these steps:

1) Shut down any motorized equipment in use.

2) If inside, open doors and windows.

3) Leave the area at once, and warn others to stay away.

4) Avoid using open flames or other ignition sources, such as motor vehicles or electric switches.

NOTICE TO ALL CONSTRUCTION AND EXCAVATION COMPANIES

In accordance with federal and state regulations governing natural gas pipeline safety, Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission is pursuing a damage prevention program to minimize accidents and/or disruptions that could involve its underground pipeline facilities. If you observe any type of construction or excavation, or if you plan to do any work requiring digging near a company pipeline, please call the Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission so that we can send qualified personnel to locate and properly mark the exact location of the pipeline. Knowing the exact location of the underground pipeline will reduce the possibility of damage and/or personal and financial loss to both parties.

Jenny Wiley was an heroic pioneer mother, captured by Indians on October 1, 1789, at Walker's Creek, Virginia. She witnessed the slaying of her brother and five children by savages and was, herself, held captive for several months on Little Paint Creek in what is now Johnson County. She eventually escaped from the Indians and crossed the Big Sandy River at East Point to Harmon Station at Block House Bottom and was shortly thereafter united in Virginia with her husband, Thomas Wiley.

Mrs. Wiley returned to Johnson County with her husband, and they reared five children. Jenny Wiley died in October of 1831 and her body lies in a cemetery at River, Kentucky.

Pigeon shoot flies in the face of decency

by Mike Capuzzo

Do you know this story of an historic Pennsylvania battlefield, a house divided and a president who took a moral stand? Wild Things has uncovered overlooked details that aren't pleasant, but which our schoolchildren should know. When the sun rose after the great battle, the field was littered with gray-uniformed corpses. The rifle shots were silent as a woman, Heidi Prescott, moved among the dead. A friend carried one of the gray-clad ones to her, miraculously alive. One leg was blown off, the other dangling by a tendon. Prescott was a northerner, but color blind. She tried to save him. All she could do, instead, was euthanize, mercifully.

"He died in my arms," Prescott remembers, "and that drives my passion for this. It was the most barbaric thing I have ever witnessed."

The Pennsylvania battlefield in this case was not Gettysburg, 1863, but Hegins, 1995. The grays were simple pigeons. The house is divided between pre-humans who think it is fun to blast into oblivion dazed pigeons like the kind Mary Poppins fed and the actual humans who see this as a harebrained, hardly challenging, barbaric and downright embarrassing act by "Keystone Killers." The president is Cleveland Amory, author and president of the Fund For Animals, which is lobbying fiercely to end the Hegins shoot. (Heidi Prescott, a trained wildlife rehabilitator, is the fund's national director).

Pigeon shoot supporters historically include Ku Klux Klan and neo-Nazi skinheads, so picking the white hats is a lot simpler, really, than it was in the Civil War.

Yes, was the season of the annual Hegins Labor Day Pigeon Shoot. If you've been too busy enjoying your end-of-summer soiree to notice, this was the event at which slack-jawed stragglers at the quadruped end of the evolutionary scale relapse stunned pigeons from boxes and shoot them from 20 yards away, which is the distance between a pitcher and batter, practically before they have had a chance to move. Whereupon "trapper boys"—a Clockwork Orange spin on the ball boys of tennis—rush onto the fields to collect the dead and wounded birds, stopping to unscrew their heads, stomp them to death or throw them into barrels to suffocate.

Over 5,000 pigeons are killed and maimed each year in Hegins alone. Animal rights activists have been protesting Hegins with rallies and lawsuits for almost a decade. On Sept. 18, the Pennsylvania state House of Representatives was scheduled to vote on a bill banning the sale of butane to minors, allowing authorities to wiretap prison inmate telephone calls—and banning pigeon shoots, an amendment tacked on to the end. Politics. Go figure. If all else fails, the Fund plans to target Pennsylvania tourism with a negative advertising campaign. You know, "You've Got a Fiend in Pennsylvania."

Some folks actually keep pet pigeons. They're gentle, intelligent birds who can recognize and respond to different family members. At the end of last year's pigeon shoot, Prescott endured some shootists taunting her, "Wanna buy some pigeons before we kill them?" She paid $900 for 200 pigeons and handed them over to a New York sanctuary, where she visited them recently. "One was named Elvis, another Priscilla," said Prescott. "They were very happy. It was worth it."

CALLING ALL MUTTS: I've received more than 100 submissions for the Wild Things Great American Mutt contest, but there's still time to get your wonderful mixed-breed Jog story and photo in the mail to me at the address below. Winners will appear in the column, the Grand Prize Mutt will appear in a book I'm writing on mutts, and I'll mention the best stories in the column long after the cut-off date, which is entirely whimsical anyway. Hey, this is Wild Things, where the only rules are "Make pet love, not war" and "Adopt, don't buy."

Send your animal and pet questions to Mike Capuzzo, "Wild Things," P.O. Box 376, Moorestown, NJ 08057.

SORGHUM

Stalks of Sorghum (cane) used to be a familiar sight in Floyd County. The stalks were used to make sorghum syrup and molasses. Farmers hitched their mule to a yoke and a thick pole to turn stone rollers that squeeze a sweet juice from the stalks of sorghum.

The juice is boiled until it thickens to produce a sweet tasting syrup.

Sorghum is a member of the grass family. There are hundreds of varieties of sorghum and it is divided into four classifications: sweet sorghum, which produces molasses and is also used as hay; grain sorghums, used to feed stock and poultry and in making pancake flour; grass sorghums, used for hay and pasture; and broomcorn, used to make brooms.

The stalk of the sorghum is similar to a corn stalk, but the flowers growing in branched clusters at the tips of the stems are more colorful than that of the corn plant.

Sorghum has been around since prehistoric times and has been a major crop in Africa since that country's earliest beginnings of civilization. Sorghum is of great agricultural importance in dry and arid lands. Approximately 68,819,000 metric tons of sorghum was cultivated in 1979.

Ground grains of sorghum are used in making flat, unleavened bread, porridge, or paste. Sorghum kernels can be popped, parched or boiled for human consumption.

SKUNK

Skunks belong to the Weasel family. They are often called polecats, but they're not. Polecats live in Europe. The polecat has a long, sleek black, furry body and looks similar to a weasel.

Skunks have black-and-white striped or spotted fur. The most common skunk has a white stripe down its back. This variety of skunk has a powerful scent gland that emits a strong, foul-smelling odor. When the skunk is threatened, it turns its back to its victim, raises its tail as a warning and then sprays the victim with an odor that won't go away.

Skunks are night creatures and roam the countryside after dark searching for food. They eat plants and small animals and make their homes in burrows.

The West Liberty area was settled in 1804 by a Baptist preacher and a miller. North Carolina native Daniel Williams, a Baptist preacher, and Virginia native Edmund Wells, a miller, settled near today's site of the town of West Liberty.

Williams reportedly first came to the area with Daniel Boone in the 1770s. Traveling with the group were Thomas Lewis, George Rogers Clark, Gardner Hopkins, and Thomas Caskey.

During the American Revolutionary War, Williams was a veteran of the Battle of Blue Licks, considered the last battle of the Revolutionary War. The battle was fought in 1782 near the Lower Blue Licks crossing of the Licking River. The site is located in today's Robertson County.

Williams must have liked the territory he explored with Boone because he returned to the site of today's West Liberty in Morgan County to raise his family.

Although Williams played a major role in settling the area, the community was first named for Edmund Wells. Around 1816, Wells built a water mill on the Licking River and the settlers called the community Wells Mills.

By 1822 the area was part of Floyd and Bath counties. The residents decided it was time to form their own county and petitioned the General Assembly. The residents also requested a change in name for the new town seat, planning to create their county seat, Liberty, on land provided by Edmund Mills.

About that time, according to tradition, another group requesting the establishment of Pike County from part of Floyd County, was also planning to name their town Liberty. The Morgan County group added West to their name and their request was granted. The Pike West Liberty buildings, including the town's courthouse. Many of the county records were lost in the blaze and town leaders were unable to replace them.

West Liberty felt the impact of three skirmishes during the Civil War. One of the first battles of the Civil War in the mountains was fought in West Liberty on October Confederate troops were killed; 40 were wounded; and 34 were taken as prisoners by the Union forces. Only one Union soldier was wounded.

A union soldier described a skirmish in September 1862. George W. Morgan and his Union troops were retreating from a battle in the Cumberland Gap area.

the Union... [We understand] that Rebel troops has been passing through West Liberty...[Behind us] was a drove of nearly a hundred beeves...[Rebel Cavalry] dashed in upon the cattle and shot and mortally wounded two drovers, turned and successfully drove off the entire herd...

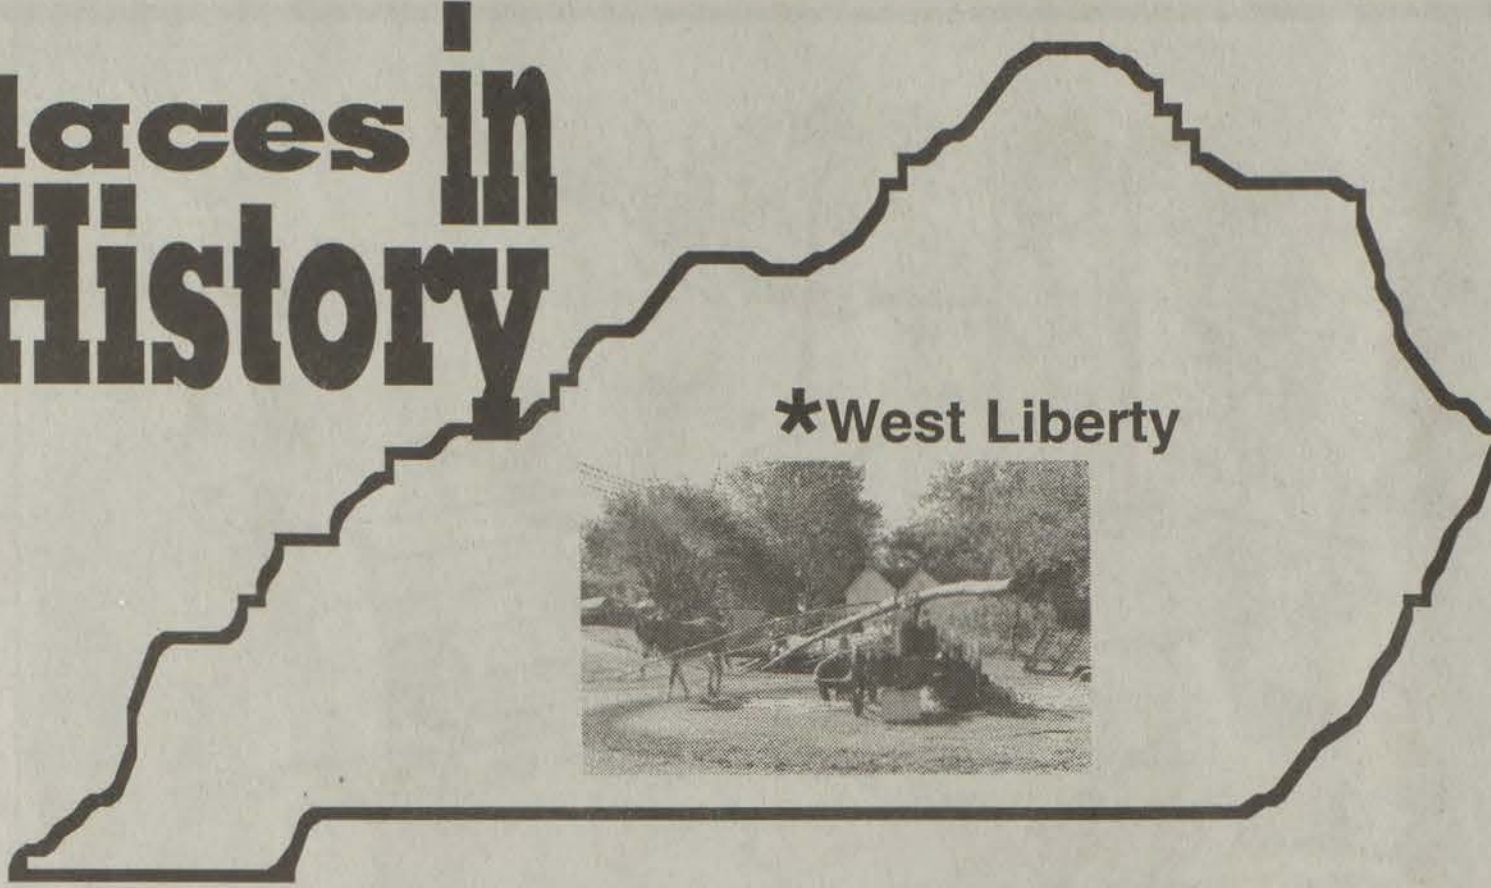

"Saturday, as we entered a very narrow valley filled with tall corn, the only opening through which was a seldom traveled cross-road leading up several valleys to the left and the right...the advance suddenly discovered a large body of the enemy's cavalry...within a few minutes, wagons made a pathway and a battery was planted and shot and shells by the battery came over our heads, whistling like fiends. All the firing was fast, precise and fine. The enemy...disappeared as mysteriously and suddenly as he had sprung up before us."

After the Civil War, the railroad made tracks through the county to haul out the area's timber and natural resources. In later years, other industries came into the area to boost the economy.

Schools were consolidated from the original 40 school districts formed in 1850. In 1930, ninety-two school districts, which had as many schools, were combined. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of former President Franklin D. Roosevelt, dedicated a stone school built by the Works Progress Administration (WPA).

West Liberty reminds its residents of the county's history each year in September when it celebrates the Sorghum Festival. During the festival, such practices as making sorghum, grinding flour, and blacksmithing metal utensils are demonstrated.

Morgan County has had only one official hanging since its formation in 1822. The hanging was carried out by Sheriff William Mynheir in 1853. Mynheir later served as a major in the Confederate Army.

A log cabin jail was built in the new county seat of West Liberty in 1825. The courthouse was completed in 1828.

The Civil War brought destruction to West Liberty. Engagements between the North and the South burned 29 major

AUSTRALIA

Australia is the only country that is also a continent. In area, it ranks as the sixth largest country and smallest continent. Australia lies between the South Pacific Ocean and the Indian Ocean. The part of the Indian Ocean south of Australia is called the Southern Ocean in the country. Australia is about 7,000 miles (11,000 kilometers) southwest of North America and about 2,000 miles (3,200 kilometers) southeast of mainland Asia. Australia is often referred to as being "down under" because it lies entirely within the Southern Hemisphere. The name Australia comes from the Latin word australis, meaning southern. The country's official name is the Commonwealth of Australia.

HOME PLACES

(Editor's note: The following is the third part of a history of Prestonsburg written by Pauline Archer Burchett in the History of Floyd County.)

In 1903, Professor Walter Byington, built a private school for $15,000, named the East Kentucky Normal School. This school was used for 37 years under different names and different managements. Its last name was the Prestonsburg Grade School. It was torn down in 1940 to make way for the present grade school.

In the Town Government Act of 1892, Prestonsburg is listed as a sixth class city with a governing body of five city trustees, a police judge, a treasurer, a clerk and a marshal. It is so listed in 1903, but some time after this date, it was changed to a government by mayor and a city council of six men.

The first mayor is unknown. The earliest complete record is the election of Arthur Carter for mayor in 1928, who served for ten years. He established the first automobile dealership in Eastern Kentucky. In 1927, he sold General Motors cars and trucks. A Cadillac cost $1,195.00. His wife, Edythe Carter, became the mayor in 1938, the first woman to be a mayor in the state of Kentucky.

About 1921, the streets in Prestonsburg were paved. Norma Spears Stepp wrote the history told to her by her husband, Jonah Stepp:

In the year of App. 1921, I, Jonah (J. G.) Stepp, born July 25, 1903, was employed as a team driver hired by the contractors, Henry Stewart and Will Mellon, to help build the first streets in latched in, Lize would slip her latch by wiggling it with her nose until she got it loose. The next morning, every stall door was open and the animals were enjoying their freedom in the big barn lot.

We were thankful she didn't do this every night. She lived to be old and I was riding her down the branch hauling logs when she fell dead from under me.

Now, Jane was quite the opposite, but could do a lot of hard work. She was so strong she would break the single tree. If we had her working in the field and she got a chance, she'd make a high dive to the barn. She lived to be old after dad sold her. She fell dead working in a wagon at Bull Creek. Together these mules were worth their weight in gold, that being 2,000 lbs. each.

At the time I was helping with the street work I never once thought I'd ever use them, but in January, 1946, since I was working for Princess Elkhorn Coal Co., David, Kentucky, bought a home in Prestonsburg so my son, John T. Stepp, could go to high school and my wife, Norma, could get to her school at Brandy Keg. Now that I am 87 years old, I am proud that I have used the streets many years and am still enjoying the "Fruits of my Labor." My wife, grandson, (John Gregory) and I now live on South Lake Drive. Prestonsburg streets today are far better than the first streets due to modern machinery and good city management.

The long-awaited railroad reached northern Floyd County in 1903. It did not reach Prestonsburg until 1904. It is said that the cause of the delay was the city's refusal to let the railroad enter the town.

Whatever the cause, it gave the business men time to erect a toll bridge in front of the Bank Josephine across the river to the train stop. No depot was built by the C and O. Andy Stephens collected the five cent toll fee. This was the only bridge across the river for the next 25 years.

Prestonsburg was 1,120.

About this time, Will Layne installed electric lights in the town.

In 1916, Grover Davis began the construction of water lines.

The disastrous fire of 1916 that destroyed The Bank Josephine and the entire block of the telephone exchange and the Western Union Telegraph Company, revealed the danger of an entire town burning down if dependent on water hauled from the river to put out a fire.

A. C. Harlow, owner of the Prestonsburg Post (1913 to 1927), featured the disastrous fire in the newspaper. Harlow urged the citizens to establish a system of water works. He said, "...we need it now, yes, hear it, NOW!"

Walter Harkins announced at the fire that the bank would be open the next morning at the usual hour in the Harkins and Harkins Law Office. He also began immediately the re-building of the bank.

The lack of roads into the town was a serious hindrance to progress.

Finally, after more than 100 years of waiting, the state passed an act in 1920 to establish a highway system which would give to each county in the state at least one main road. Project No. 6 under this act became U.S. 23.

The highway into Prestonsburg became the Mayo Trail and now is called Lake Drive. Road construction began with the required cooperation of County Judge Ed. P. Hill Sr., and other officials in the area.

In 1929 three bridges were erected to cross the river. The Cliff bridge was built by the state and provided transportation across Abbott Mountain to Paintsville. It would be many years before Auxier Road was made. In 1987, a local contractor, Joe A. Burchett, built a new Cliff bridge on the same spot.

The other two bridges erected in 1929 were reinforced concrete arch bridges built by the county and the town. The Town Branch Bridge, often called the Bull Creek Bridge, is still in use. The C and O Railroad had built a depot in West Prestonsburg. To get access across the river, they helped build the bridge located on North Arnold Avenue, still standing but no longer in use.

The next 60 years brought much progress, many churches, good schools, hotels, restaurants, businesses and the Jenny Wiley Park.

Prestonsburg, now 1991, is just nine years away from a new century and what we make of it is up to the people.

Prestonsburg

Prestonsburg. The streets at that time were just like the county roads with mud holes in places and very rough. The sidewalks were made of long planks of wood and were really dangerous to walk on. The first work we had to do was clean the streets and grade or level them. This was done with a turning plough and wheel scrapers pulled by mules and horses. No modern machinery at that time, everything done by man and horsepower. I brought my dad's (J. P. Stepp) big mules (Lize and Jane) from the Stepp farm eight miles up Johns Creek to work. Also hauled the feed from there and stored it in the livery stable on Front Street on the river bank near where the Jim Clark Hotel was later. Tom Burchett ran the stable and I kept my mules there also. We both boarded and roomed with J. D. and Ida Fraley (his wife), who were natives of Johns Creek and lived back of town on the corner lot facing Graham Street near the Highland Avenue Freewill Baptist Church now.

Each morning we walked all the way across town to feed the mules and back for our breakfast before going to harness our mules and go to work.

Now, I'd like to talk a little about how I started the day with the mules, Lize and Jane, which were too intelligent to be "just mules," especially Lize. First, I'd harness the two mules, lead Jane to her place, then Lize would automatically follow me around the wagon and get in her place. Now we go to work.

We hauled the sand from the Big Sandy River under the old bridge up the hill by the old First National Bank and across from the Josephine Bank.

The gravel was hauled from about one mile south of Prestonsburg at the Ball Alley Curve where it was crushed with a rock crusher owned by Mr. Gamble, Jim (Chigger) Lafferty with his gray mule and cart hauled the rock from the hill across the road to the rock crusher.

It was then crushed and loaded into the wagons and then taken to the streets to where it was mixed with cement and poured on the ground to make the concrete streets. This was a great improvement and made Prestonsburg a healthier, cleaner and more beautiful place to live.

At this time, I must tell a little more about my team of mules. For example, when Dad and I cut trees on the hill to make boards and piling for fence and roof covering, we'd take Lize (our mule) with us.

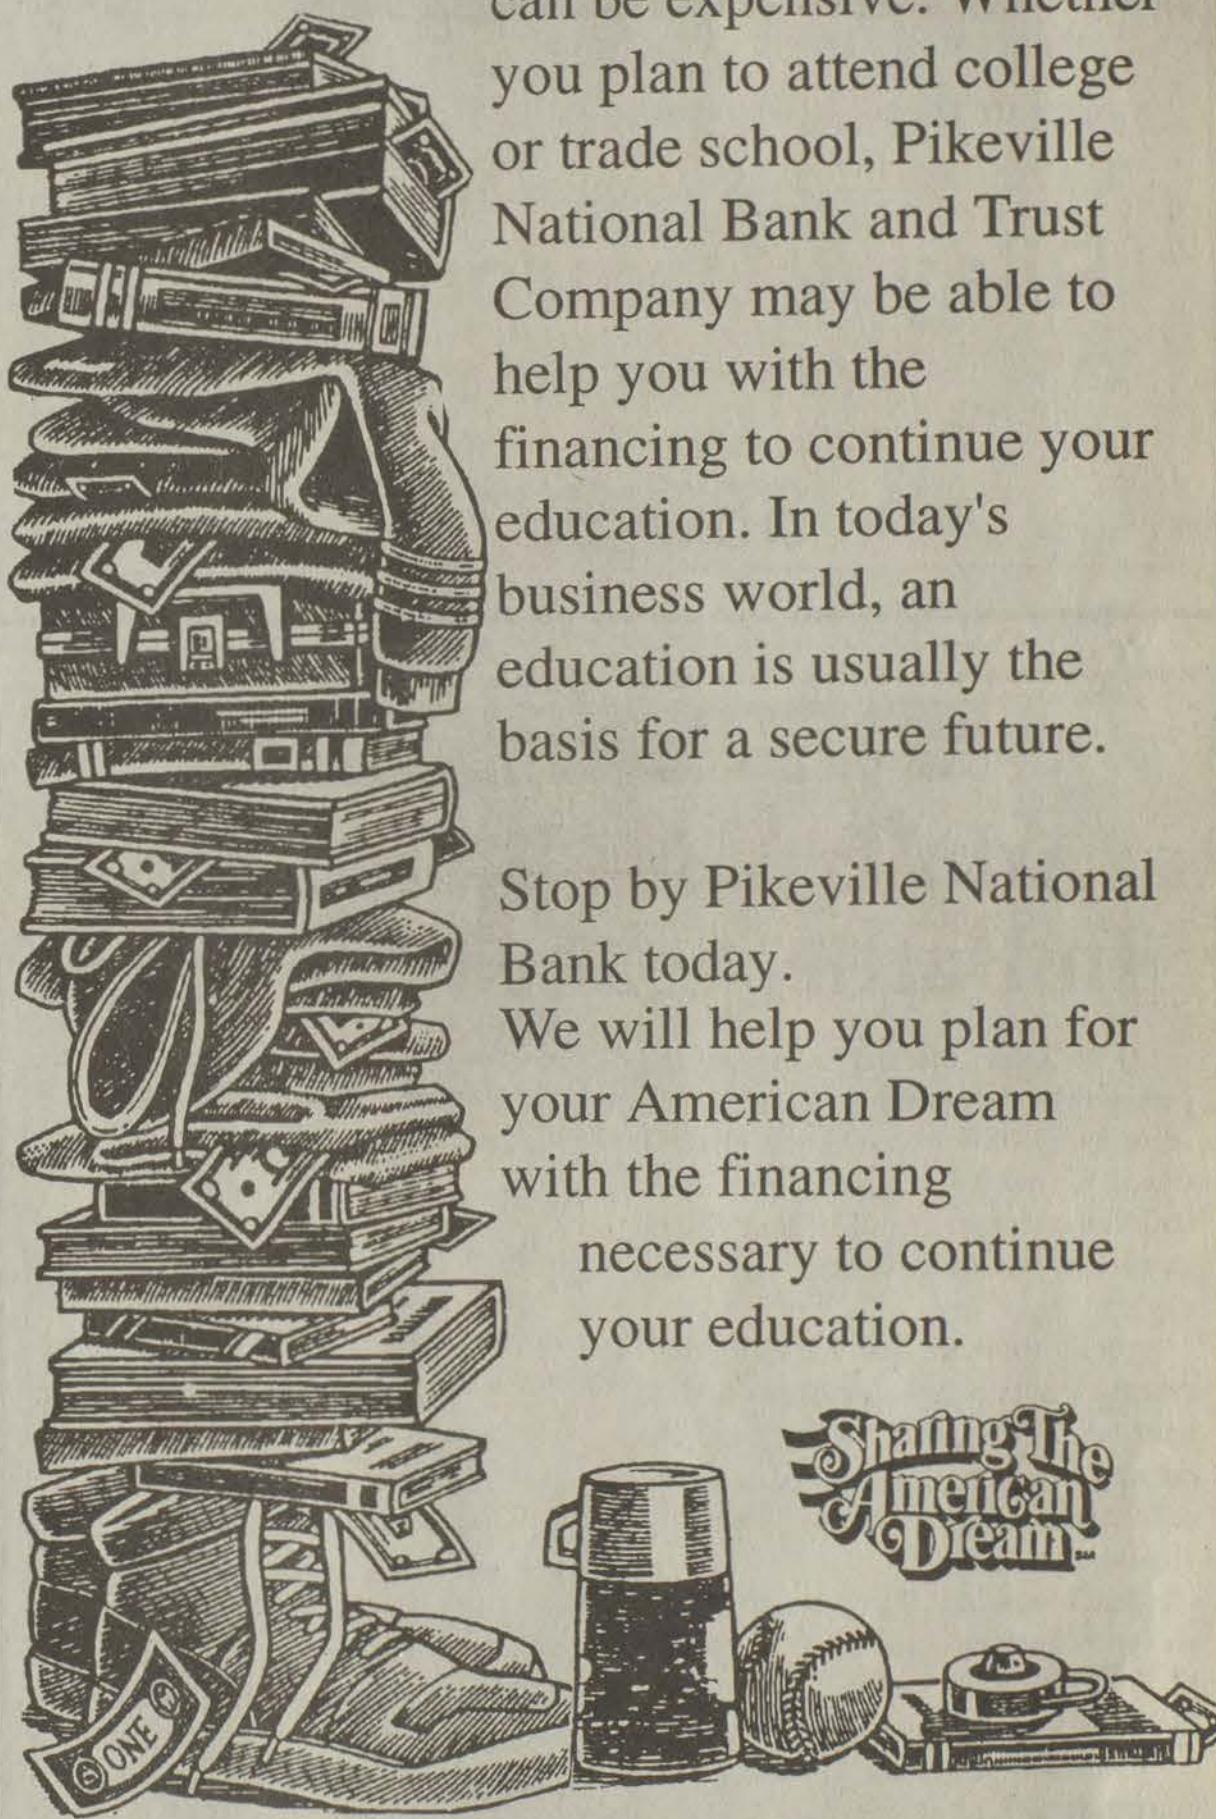

When the logs were all sawed and ready to haul, we'd hook her to one log and I'd drive her to the log yard and unhook her and fix her lines up on the harness and start her up the "log trail" by herself. She'd go straight to my dad and he'd start her back with a log. This continued until all the logs were hauled.

Both of these mules were good to use for riding purposes or any kind of work. Sometimes though, I really thought Lize was just a little too smart. Occasionally, at night after all the stock (cattle, horses) were fastened in their separate stalls and

A CHILD'S PLEDGE

Adults Must Take Lead In Battle Against Violence

On the television and in the newspapers, guns seize our attention and fuel our fears every day. According to the National Crime Prevention Council, 10 children under the age of 19 are killed by gunfire and many more are injured each day.

Experts estimate that 1.2 million elementary school-age, latchkey children have access to guns in their homes. The council is urging children, parents and school personnel take action to stop the violence.

- Teach children that guns and other weapons hurt and kill. Have them take McGruff's "Stay Away From Guns Pledge."

- Consider removing firearms from homes with children or teens.

- Keep guns unloaded and securely stored.

- Support school staff in their efforts to keep weapons out of schools.

- Encourage students to report any weapons they know about on school grounds to the police or school authorities

This information is provided as part of the National Citizens' Crime Prevention Campaign, which is substantially funded by the U.S. Department of Justice.

McGruff's Pledge to Stay Away From Guns

I agree to ...

- ✓ Never to touch a gun I find anywhere — at home, at a friend's house or on the street. I will get away fast and tell a trusted adult.

- ✓ Not take any chances if I don't know whether a gun is real or a toy. I will treat any gun as if it is real.

- ✓ Never take a gun or any other weapon to school. I will tell a teacher, principal or other trusted adult about any weapon I see at school or on the street.

- ✓ Never give in if a friend or classmate wants me to play with or use a gun. If I find a gun, I will leave and tell a trusted adult.

- ✓ Settle arguments with words, not fists, guns or other weapons. I will work it out. I will apologize if I've done something wrong.

Time Martin stu through

by Patti M. Clark
Staff Writer

It's a proven fact that students learn more if they can get their hands dirty.

So that's what students at Martin Elementary are getting to do.

Kindergarten students have been working with apples. They are learning about the parts of a tongue by tasting different varieties of the fruit that's known for keeping the doctor away. They've also made witches brew out of different ingredients in their discussion of the tongue.

And they are becoming engineers at a very young age. The group built helicopters out of paper recently and talked about how helicopters can fly and why the paper models cannot.

And middle school students have made aliens and constructed solar systems during their study of space.

The activities at Martin Elementary are made possible by a $1,500 grant from the National Alliance of Science and Mathematics and Morehead University. Coley Martin, a middle school science teacher at Martin, has worked with Dr. C. Victor Ramey of Morehead State, to secure the grant and plan more hands-on activities for the classroom.

"We're thrilled that Martin Elementary has been selected to participate in the Science and Mathematics Alliance," Martin Elementary Principal Carole Combs said. "This grant will be very beneficial to further implementing our KERA goals."

This is the second year Martin has received the grant. Last year, he received $800 for the program.

Martin said he was surprised he got the grant for a second year. "We were told this summer during workshops at Morehead that the funds would be cut," he said. "I was really surprised at the amount of the grant."

He attributed the increase in money to the fact that Martin Elementary is, according to Martin, the only school working with the program in the sixth educational district, "as far as we know," he said.

"This grant will aid in assessment, as well as in the awareness of the importance of science to our students today," Combs said.

Martin will have help from a professor at PCC when it comes to suggesting activities for primary teachers to use. "They'll be able to share information with the teachers," he said.

The money will be used for materials and supplies to make the projects happen. For instance, teachers in the kindergarten classroom received funds to help purchase the apples that were used for the tasting project.

Getting kids interested in math and science is the main reason he got the grant.

"The program is designed to get primary students interested in math and science at an early age so that when they reach middle school they want to learn more and more," he said.

Martin meets with the primary teachers at the elementary school every two weeks to discuss activities they can add to their curriculum to make learning fun for the students.

"We've asked other schools to participate, but so far they haven't," Martin said. "All primary teachers are welcome to join us."

One of the reasons for the emphasis is lower test scores in the math and science areas.

"We feel that by providing hands-on activities for students, they'll retain more when it comes to test time," Martin said. "The activities we've designed, hopefully, will make them more successful and help them feel better about themselves when they take those tests at the end of the year."

In addition to providing hands-on activities, the plans include ideas that let students make decisions, giving them more control over what happens in the classroom.

"We're addressing a lot of KERA goals," he said. "But most of all, the kids love it. The more hands-on we do, the more interested they get. And the more interested they get, the more they learn."

He compares the program with his early days in the classroom — before he was a teacher.

"There was very little hands on then," he said. "We didn't do a lot of projects."

He attributes the improvement in the classroom to the information that is now available through technology such as computers complete with CD-Roms and access to the outside world via modems.

"We're finding that students are becoming more educated through these kinds of programs," he said. "And we're increasing, most importantly, their awareness of math."

“Yes, we want their test scores to improve, but more importantly, we want learning to be more enjoyable for them. We hope that by starting in the primary level, by the time they get to middle school, the love of math and science will be ingrained.”

and science.”

And most interesting is the fact that more and more girls are getting involved in the math and science projects.

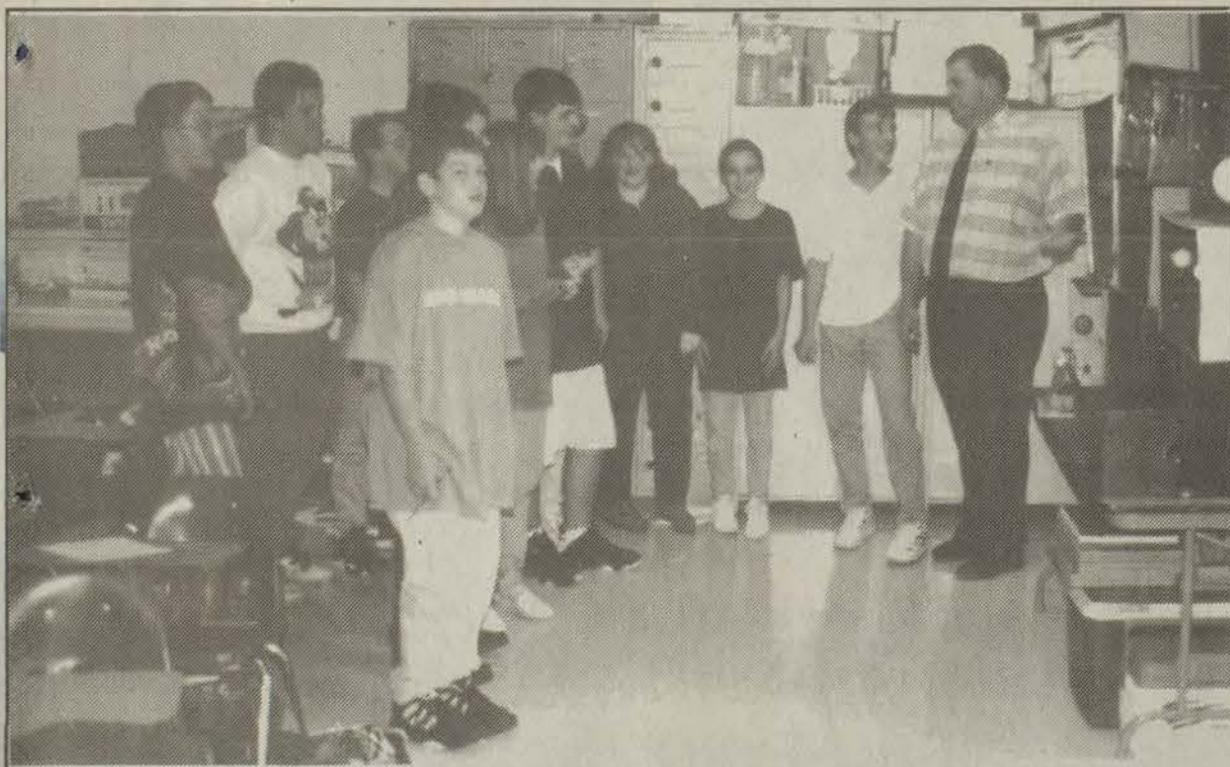

Used to be that girls were interested in the writing projects while the boys wanted to get their hands dirty doing science projects.

“We’ve been doing a unit on electricity and series and parallel circuits,” Martin said. “I’ve found that many of the kids, and especially the girls, have been working on these projects at home just for the fun of it. I can really tell a difference.”

He said the group is hoping to develop more interest in math and science by working with the students at an early age.

“Yes, we want their test scores to improve, but more importantly, we want learning to be more enjoyable for them. We hope that by starting in the primary level, by the time they get to middle school, the love of math and science will be ingrained.”

U.S. patients must monitor their own drugs

by M.R. Hiller

Q: My family and I came to the United States from Japan five years ago. Recently, my wife had to be hospitalized after she inappropriately took two drugs together. Why weren't we properly warned? This wouldn't happen in Japan.—M.Y., Los Gatos, Calif.

A: Questions about medications and complications with them are among the most common ones we receive from readers. We've recently discussed the business of drug development and the sale of generic drugs. Today we'll look at the dispensing end of the industry—the pharmacy.

Pharmacies in the United States do not work like pharmacies in Japan. Understanding how the system works here may help you understand why you need to monitor your own medications more closely. There is no research to tell us which system is better.

In most Western countries, there is a fairly clear separation between the roles of physicians and pharmacists. Physicians have responsibilities for diagnosing illness and prescribing treatments, and pharmacists largely focus on dispensing.

Within many Asian countries there is not such a clear distinction between physicians' and pharmacists' roles. Physicians commonly dispense drugs to patients. In Japan, these functions are beginning to separate, according to Masami Fujii of the Faculty of Pharmaceutical Science at Kobe-Gakuin University in Japan, but the vast majority of prescriptions are still dispensed by physicians rather than by community pharmacists.

In the United States, drug stores stock prescription drugs, non-prescription or "over-the-counter" remedies (such as pain and cold medications), and many personal-care products. In contrast, in Japan there are two sorts of drug stores: prescription-only and over-the-counter-only. Over-the-counter (OTC) pharmacies are required to have a pharmacist present if their sales exceed 8 million yen, or about $80,000, a month.

In Japan, the name "over the counter" is more appropriate than in the United States: By law, there is no self-service for OTC products. Health drinks, antacids, vitamins, cosmetics, household products and beauty aids all are handed to patients by an OTC pharmacy employee. And unlike in the United States, OTC products may not be sold in Japanese grocery stores or convenience stores.

The Japanese use a lot of prescription medications. They are second only to Americans in total drug sales. Japan also has the highest per-capita medication use in the world. Including OTC products, the average Japanese spent $322 on pharmaceuticals in 1988; the average American spent $182.

"Much of this medication use may be the result of the close link between prescribing and dispensing by physicians," writes Dr. Edward P. Armstrong, a professor of pharmacy at the University of Arizona. "Although difficult to document scientifically, Japanese medication use may be higher than necessary to manage some diseases. Armstrong compared the Japanese and American pharmaceutical systems in the February issue of The Annals of Pharmacotherapy.

In the United States, pharmacists are paid for selling drugs and offering limited advice on their use. But pharmacists in Japan are paid financial incentives for such services to encourage them to prevent drug problems. So, a Japanese community pharmacist who counsels a patient about medications, documents the counseling session and includes written information for the patient will be paid about 250 yen, or $2.50. They will be paid about 50 cents each time they counsel a patient concerning a medication lasting seven to 30 days, and $2 for counseling about a prescription lasting 30 days or longer.

Community pharmacists are also paid about $2.50 for detecting drug interactions and duplicate medications. A pharmacist who obtains a patient drug history and counsels the patient accordingly is paid about $2. And pharmacists receive about $55 a month for home pharmaceutical services, including delivering drugs, drug counseling and adverse-effect monitoring.

In the United States, studies repeatedly show that most pharmacists try to tell customers about the medicines they are buying. The federal Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 even mandates that full explanations be given with new prescriptions. But researchers have found that customer education wanes when a store is very busy, when the pharmacist does not personally hand the medication to the consumer, and especially when medications are delivered or mailed.

New consumer labels for drugs

Pepcid AC Acid Controller is one of the first products to feature new easy-to-read labeling developed by Johnson & Johnson and Merck in conjunction with the Food and Drug Administration. The new labeling system is similar to the "Nutrition Facts" labels on foods and drinks. It is intended to clarify drug uses, directions for use, and applicable warnings.

Uses: Symptoms, diseases drug is used to treat

Directions: Gives normal and maximum dosages, age or other limitations.

Warnings: Tells how long drug can be taken, gives drug interactions, handling and other advice.

Label alert: Tells patient to save packaging, read all directions and warnings.

Information summary: DO NOT USE IF THE MEDICAL ALERT UNIT IS OFF OR BLOWN. Read Consumer Label before use. Pepcid AC Acid Controller can cause drowsiness and dizziness. Significant risks by misuse.

T O R I E S

A new home

As we loaded all the luggage up in the old family volkswagon wagon, the thoughts of the new house crowded my head. What room will I have? Is the house big?

These questions ran over and over in my head like a broken record. As dad started the car, we all jumped gracefully in and buckled our seatbelts for we were now leaving our home, for the last time.

Driving down the road was pretty entertaining I thought, because we sang songs, played travel games and talked about some new ideas Mom and Dad had for our new house. Since we were moving to a new area and house I would also be going to a new school. This was a very scary thought for my brother and me, because we would be meeting new people and making new friends.

We had been driving for about 6 hours, when Dad announced "One more mile and we will be there." Excitement ran through my body, as I stared out the window in suspense, everything looked so colorful and delicate. I could already tell that I would like this new place.

"Here we are!" announced Dad in a cheerful voice.

He pulled into the driveway and parked the car. We all just sat in the car for a moment as our eyes glared at the beautiful brick house, that was now ours. Finally we opened the car door and walked out into the yard.

"It's beautiful!" Mom exclaimed, With a tear of joy gradually falling down her pale cheek.

"Let's go in!" I said trying to race my brother.

We were both determined to find a room, and I was oldest so I was going to get the biggest room. As Dad shut the door we all ran around looking at each room with curious eyes. I ran up the cherry staircase and into the first room I saw. It was mammoth! I went over to the window and looked out. What a view! I could see everything from up there. As I was daydreaming and gazing out the window Mom came in and broke my silence.

"How do you like it?" She asked with a smile on her face.

"I love it especially this room!"

"Yeh', it's pretty except it needs some paint and carpeting." She said in a concerned voice.

"Can I get some new carpet and paint for my room?"

"Sure, but if you do, you're going to have to calculate everything on your own. I think it's high time that you learn some responsibility!" She said in a harsh voice.

"I guess you're right." I quoted.

Mom left the room and shut the door as she left. I can't believe that I get to paint, border, and carpet my own room. I will calculate everything tonight so that tomorrow I can start setting up arrangements.

That night after everything had been brought in from the car. I got a piece of paper, a pen, and a tape measure so that I could measure for my paint and border. I ran up the stairs in fast motion trying to quickly get to my room. I lay everything in the floor except for the tape measure. To calculate for paint I needed to find the area of each wall. Area is units squared, since I'm dealing with two dimensions, or measurements. So therefore my answer will always be in square units. To do this I would need to measure the width x height of each separate wall. I couldn't hold both ends of the tape measure so I called for my brother to come and assist me. He stomped into my room and asked me what I needed him for. I told him that I was calculating my wall area for paint, and I needed him to hold the end of the tape measure, so that I could go ahead and calculate the wall length. I pulled the tape measure to one end of the wall while he pulled it to the other. I then discovered that the width of the wall was 16 ft. I then took the tape measure and discovered that the wall height was 8 ft. My ceiling was also in bad shape so I decided to measure it also. It had the same measurements as my wall calculations so I just multiplied my length times my width. To find the wall area I would have to multiply the width walls x height x 2, and add the length walls x height 2. I multiplied them both by two, because there are 2 walls with those same measurements. After multiplying, I will add the products together.

The total area of my room was 704 ft. I couldn't very well paint over my windows and doors, so I measured the length and width of my two windows, my door, and my closet door. My two windows were the same so I just measured one and multiplied by two. My doors were also the same, so I just multiplied them by two also.

The area of my windows and doors came to be 74 ft. I subtracted this amount from my 704 ft. This way I would not have to buy extra paint for my windows and doors.

My wall and ceiling area was now 630 ft.

I knew that my room would look bare without some border so I went ahead and calculated border also, this way we could just get both at the same time.

To calculate for border I needed Perimeter. I knew a lot about this concept from our Algebra class back at my old school. Perimeter means the length around a figure, I just had to add all sides. I just multiplied by length x 2 and my width x 2 to get a product of each dimension. I had already calculated it in my previous calculations, the length was 28 ft., and the width was 32 ft. A complete total of 60 ft. of border was needed.

The next day Mom and I drove down to Charley's Hardware where I could select the paint and border, I preferred. After looking around for a while, I finally made up my mind on which paint and border I desired. I took them both over to the counter, so that the store manager could calculate a price. He calculated paint first. (1 gallon covers 450 ft.2) I have 630 ft.2 of area in my room, so he divided my wall area of 630 ft.2 by 450 ft.2 to get the number gallons I would need.

I am going to need 1.56 gallons, of paint. Since you can't buy .56 gallons I will have to buy 2 gallons. This way if I were to mess up I would have some spare paint. The paint sold for $18.99 per gallon. Since I need two gallons he multiplied $18.99 by two to get a sub-total price.

Then he added a 6% tax fee to the sub-total. He moved the decimal two places to the left to change it to (.06). Then he multiplied the total by .06. Finally, he added tax to the price to get a total cost of the paint.

The full amount for my paint was $40.25. Then he calculated the border. There was 16 ft. per border roll, and there was 60 ft. in my room. He divided 60 ft. by 16 ft. to get the number of border rolls I needed.

For my room I will need 3 3/4 rolls, I knew that I can't purchase 3/4 of a roll, so I will buy 4 rolls of border. The paper was already prepped so I didn't need to buy any paste. The manager then calculated a total cost for the border. The cost of 1 roll was $12.94, I need 4 rolls so he multiplied $12.94 times 4.

The sub-total was $51.76. This was without tax added. He then calculated the amount of tax and added it to the total.

The total cost came to $54.87 for border. The man then added the paints total and the borders total to get the full price.

Mom then paid the bill, and then we headed home.

When we had finally reached home I ran up the stairs to my bedroom. I yelled for my Mom and Dad to hurry and get the old sheets, and some water to paste my border along the walls.

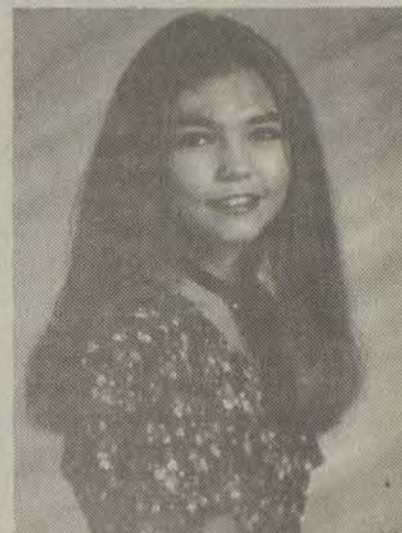

After Mom and Dad had finally reached my room we started painting and putting up border. It took just about the rest of the day, but we finally finished by night fall. After we had finished it and had put all of the supplies away, I asked Mom if I could go ahead and start calculating the measurements for my carpet. She told me that I could and that if I did, she would take me carpet shopping tomorrow. As soon as my mother had said this I immediately ran and got my paper, pencil, and tape measure. I then went into my room and then began calculating.

To measure for carpet I would have to find the length and width of each wall, I already knew what it was, because to paint and border my room I had to find length and width of each

FACTS ABOUT COAL

USES OF COAL

Electric Utilities:

Coal is burned to produce steam. High pressured steam is used to generate electricity.

Industry/Commercial:

Industry burns coal in the production of cement, paper, and textiles.

Export Market:

Kentucky ranks third in the U.S. for coal exports. Canada, Italy, Taiwan, and the Netherlands are considered to be major importers of Kentucky coal. They use coal to produce energy for utility plants and factories.

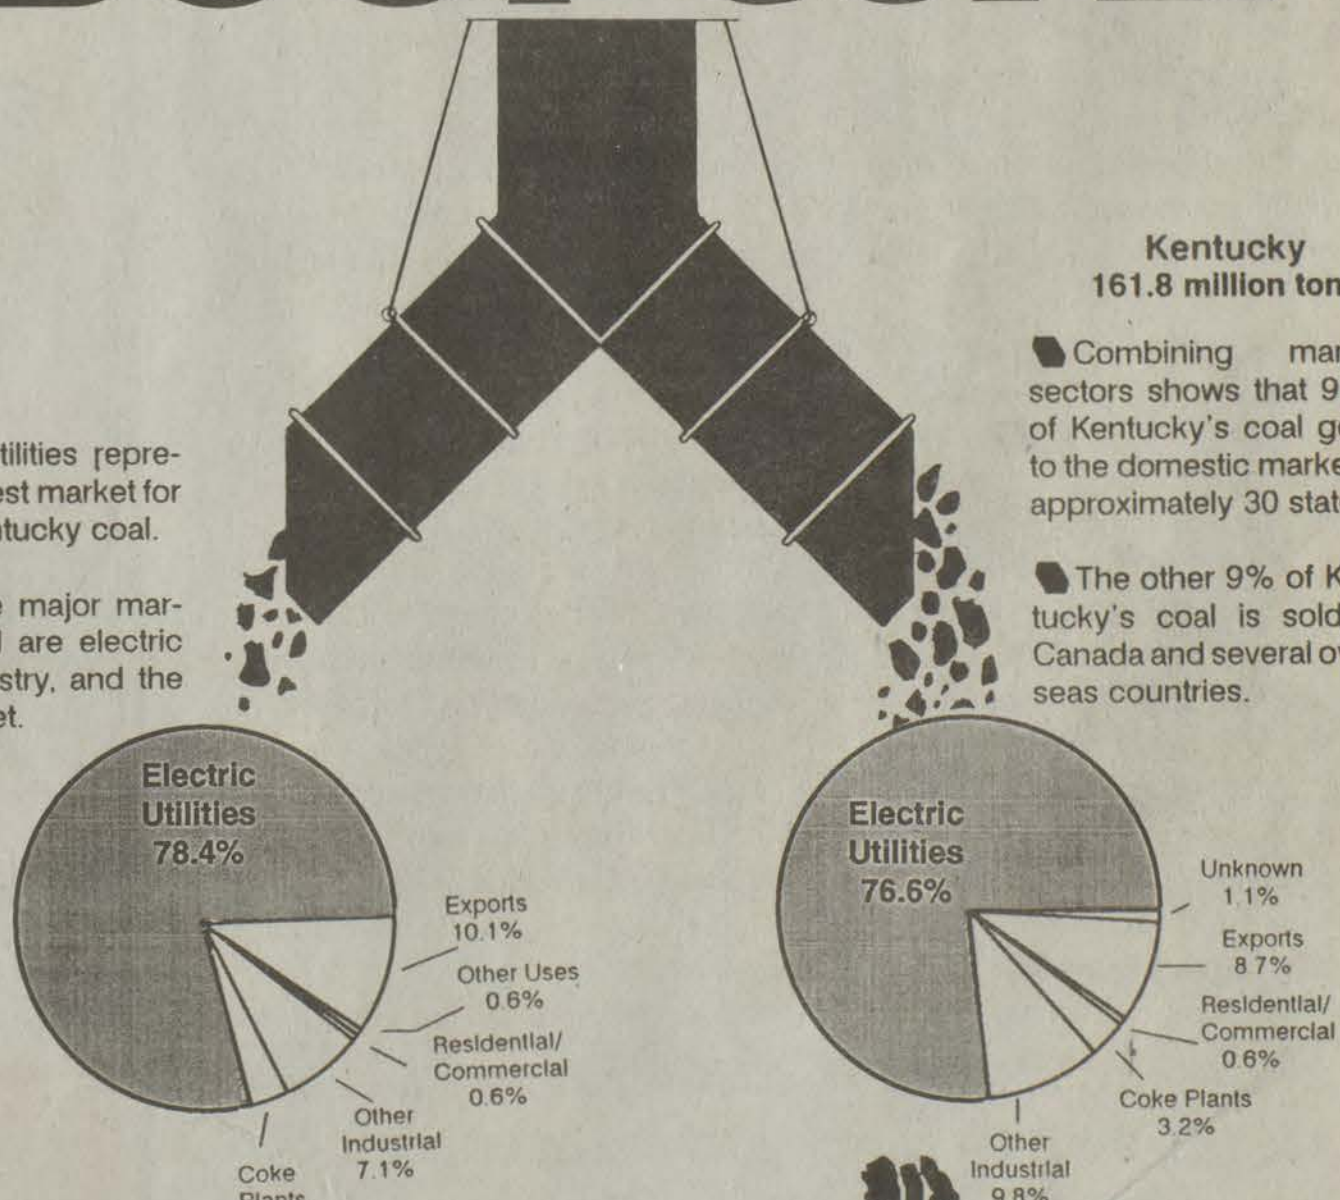

Electric utilities represent the largest market for U.S. and Kentucky coal.

The three major markets for coal are electric utilities, industry, and the export market.

Kentucky
161.8 million tons

Combining market sectors shows that 91% of Kentucky's coal goes to the domestic market in approximately 30 states.

The other 9% of Kentucky's coal is sold to Canada and several overseas countries.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS

Spring forward or Fall backward? It may sound like a hopscotch game, but it is actually a saying to remind people how to set their clocks for daylight savings.

Daylight savings is a plan in which clocks are set one hour ahead of standard time for a certain period of time. The clocks are set one hour ahead in the Spring — thus, Spring forward — and set back to standard time in the fall.

Standard time is a worldwide system of uniform time zones.

This year daylight savings will end on Sunday, October 29. As a result of the change, darkness will come one hour earlier than it has been.

Before being able to understand how daylight savings began, an explanation of time zones and standard time is needed.

Standard Time is a system that divides the world into 24 zones. Each zone is 15 degrees longitude wide and the difference in time between neighboring zones is exactly one hour. Within each zone, all clocks keep the same time, except for local variations.

Suppose clocks in various parts of the world all showed the same time — 3 p.m., for example.

At that time, people in some countries would see the sun rise and people in other lands would see it high in the sky.

In still other countries, the sun could not be seen because 3 p.m. would occur at night. Instead, clocks in all locations show 12 o'clock at midday.

Every place on the earth that is east or west of another place has noon at a different time. The time at any particular place is called the local time. The local time in one town may be noon, while the time might be 11 a.m. in another place west of the town or 1 p.m. in a place to the east.

The standard U.S. and Canadian time zones are - from east to west - Atlantic, Eastern, Central, Mountain, Pacific, Alaska, and Hawaii-Aleutian. Canada also has the Newfoundland Time Zone, but it is not a true standard time zone because it is only a half hour later than its neighboring zone to the west.

Before the adoption of standard time, each U.S. city kept the local time of its own meridian. With the growth of railroads, these differences caused difficulties because railroads that met in the same city sometimes ran on different times.

In 1883, railroad in the United States and Canada adopted a system for standard time.

A year later an international conference met in Washington D.C. to discuss a worldwide system of standard time. Sir Sandford Fleming, a Canadian civil engineer, played a prominent role in establishing standard time zones by proposing the use of the 24-hour system of keeping time.

During the conference, the meridian passing through the English town of Greenwich (now a borough of London) was chosen as the prime meridian. The prime meridian is a the starting point for the world's time zones.

Daylight savings has been used a number of times throughout history as a means to conserve energy. Great Britain first adopted daylight time as an economy measure during World War I.

The United States observed daylight time year-round from 1942 through 1945 to reduce evening use of electricity.

To conserve energy again, the U.S. observed daylight time from January 6 to October 27 in 1974, and also from February 23 to October 26 in 1975.

In the U.S., a number of states, such as Hawaii and Arizona do not observe daylight savings; therefore, during the daylight savings they will differ by an hour within their time zones.

Today nearly all nations keep standard time. Only a few small countries and some other regions keep time that differs by a fraction of an hour from standard time.

You Can with Beakman and Jax

Dear Jax,
Why do you get all dirty when you read a newspaper?
Voula Zerkacos
London, Ontario

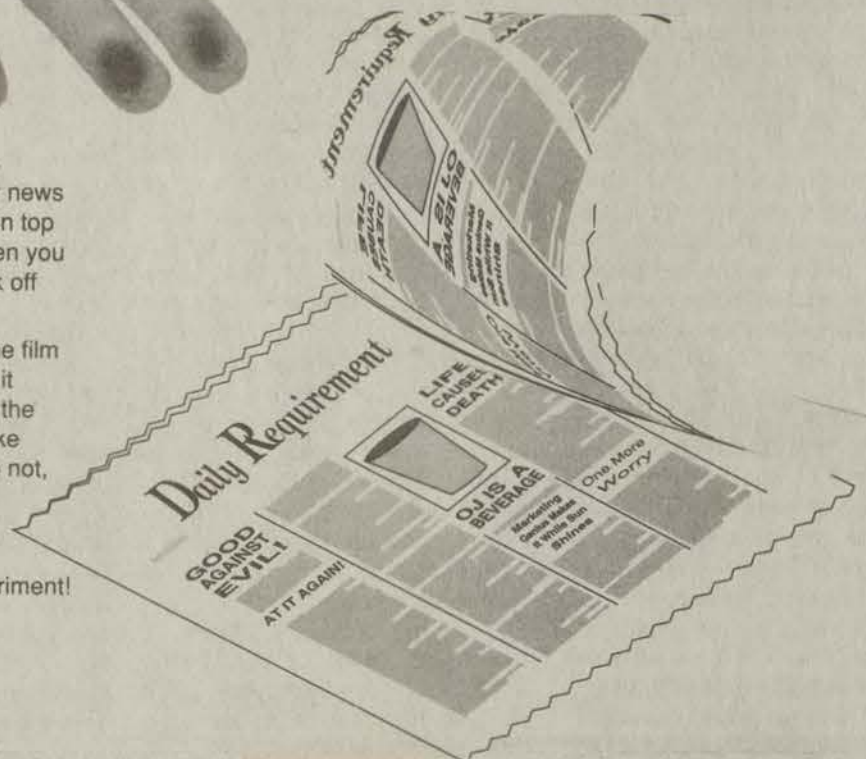

Dear Voula,
Ask any newspaper editor, and he or she will tell you newspapers are not dirty. The color in ink is called the pigment, and the pigment is carried in a liquid. In newspaper ink, the liquid is a kind of oil. The natural oils in your skin can also carry the pigment. When you brush most newspapers with your finger, you'll pick up black pigment. You Can also pick up the ink with a terrific plastic slime that You Can make!

experiment #1 make some news glue

WHAT YOU NEED: White glue - borax (from the soap section of the supermarket) - water - plastic film canister - covered jar - spoons - measuring cup - help and permission from a grown-up in your family

WHAT TO DO: Add 1 level teaspoon of borax to 1/2 cup of warm water in your jar. Close the lid and shake until it's dissolved. Clean and dry the cup. In the measuring cup, add 2 teaspoons water to 2 teaspoons white glue. Mix really well. Add 1 teaspoon of your borax solution. Keep mixing and poking the blob of putty for 3 to 5 minutes. Let this sit in your cup for a full 5 minutes. Pick up and squeeze into a ball.

You can spread your news glue into a flat blob on top of a newspaper. When you lift it off, you'll pull ink off with it.
Save your slime in the film canister. That keeps it from drying out. Use the borax solution to make more slime. If you do not, throw the borax solution away! Do not eat or drink anything in this experiment!

Dear Beakman,
How did milk get to be a white liquid?
Nyle LeBlanc
Oakland, California

Dear Nyle,
Milk is some pretty complicated stuff, but it is not a white liquid. Milk is a clear liquid with tiny little white things floating in it. When one kind of a thing floats in another kind of a thing, we call it a colloid (KAHL-oyd). You Can separate the solid stuff from the liquid stuff in milk and make a disgusting mess all at the same time. Sounds pretty good to me!

experiment #1
WHAT YOU NEED: Plastic soda or mineral water bottle (single-serving size) - milk - vinegar - measuring cup
WHAT TO DO: Put 1/2 cup of milk into the bottle. Close, shake and examine it. Add 1/2 cup of vinegar and fill with water. Shake the bottle well and You Can see that this is going to get really gross.
Put the bottle on a shelf and ignore it for 3 whole hours. Don't touch or move it. The next time you look at it, you'll see 3 layers. The middle layer will be a clear yellowish liquid. Put the bottle in your fridge and examine it the next day. It'll be lots more clear.

SO WHAT:
The top layer and the bottom layer are milk solids and fats. The solids are the stuff that instant milk is made out of. The fats are what butter is. Butter is emulsified (ee-MUL-see-fyd) into the milk we drink. That means the little bits of fat aren't allowed to touch each other. If they did, the butter fat would separate into a layer. Emulsified milk is called homogenized milk.

experiment #2
WHAT YOU NEED: Small container of whipping cream - 1 quart plastic container with a tight lid - friends - saltine crackers - appetite
WHAT TO DO: Pour the cream into the container and shake it. Count your shakes. Shake it 50 times and pass it onto your friends. Keep shaking and passing it on until lumps form (15 to 20 minutes). This is a terrific thing to do in class! Drain off the clear liquid. Examine the liquid. Spread a bit of the lumps on a cracker and taste it.
WHAT IS GOING ON:
You did something called churning. You made the fat particles touch each other, and as they joined and got bigger, the clear liquid separated. The clear liquid is called whey (way). The lumpy stuff tastes much better than regular butter because it's fresh and because it is not salted. It is called sweet butter.

P.S. from Jax: If you stop churning your butter before the lumps form, what you get is whipped cream, and whipped cream is another kind of colloid. It's air floating in a liquid!

wall. The length was 14 ft. and the width was 16 ft. To find the area of my room I had to multiply the two. Since I had already done this I didn't need to do it a second time. The area was 224 ft. Carpet is measured in square yards. To convert my area to square yards, I will need to divide by 9, because there is 9 square feet in 1 yard.

There is 24.8 yd.2 in my room. In Algebra class at school we learned a thing called rounding. When you have a digit behind the decimal (.) greater than 5 round the number in front of the decimal up 1. If the number is less than 5 you keep the number the way it is. In this situation the number is greater than 5, so I rounded to the next whole number from which is 25 Yd.2 So now my yards squared will now be 25 yd.2 instead of 24 yd.2 There was nothing else for me to do until I have found the cost of the carpet in yards. I put all my supplies away, and went to sleep, for I had a busy day tomorrow.

Morning finally arrived, and I got up and put some clothes on and ran downstairs to the kitchen, where my mom was fixing breakfast. The smell of breakfast on the stove always brightens my day. As I sat down at the table, I looked around at all of the boxes that weren't unpacked yet. Mom sat down holding a steaming cup of coffee, this is when I thought it was time to ask her about going carpet shopping today.

"Can we go look for carpet today?" I finally asked.

"I guess, but not until you have eaten your breakfast!" She stated.

After my plate was clear, Mom went and changed clothes then we went carpet shopping! After driving for about ten minutes we came to a place called "Carpet World". There was carpet everywhere! They had different colors and styles for each piece of carpet. The smell of fresh new carpet filled my nose, as Mom and I looked around. I came upon many colors, but they just weren't me. Finally I saw a shade of turquoise blue carpet sitting over in a corner with my name written all over it.

"This is it!" I yelled.

"What?" Mom asked.

"I found the carpet that I want for my room!"

When I was through talking the store manager came over to ask us if we needed any help. I told him that I had selected the turquoise carpet over in the corner for my room. He went and checked the price of the carpet, and then asked me if I had measured the length and width of my room already. I told him yes and got out the sheet of paper with all my measurements on it. He looked the sheet of paper over and told me that the carpet that I had chosen was $10.56 per sq. yd.'s. He then calculated a price for the carpet. There is 25 sq. yd.'s in my room. So he multiplied the cost by the sq. yd.'s to get an estimated total.

Without tax the cost would be $246.00, that was a little much, I thought. He then calculated the amount of tax and added it to the total. Tax is 6%, so he moved the decimal two places to the right. He then multiplied the sub-total by .06 to receive the tax. Finally he added the tax to the sub-total to get a sum of $279.84.

Since the carpet was a little expensive, Mom suggested that I might rather get tile, and maybe later on get a rug to cover it. This sounded like a good idea. So I ran over to the tile section and found a lovely turquoise checked design. I picked up a square and took it over to the manager. He told us that tile was sold in sq. ft., so one square foot of tile = 1 ft.2 Since there is 224 sq. ft. in my room, I would need 224 square blocks. To calculate for tile I just used the same measurements, except I didn't need to convert to yd.2 The store manager calculated the cost, he said that each piece of the tile was $5.00. My room area was 224 ft., so he multiplied the two, to calculate a total.

Then tax was added to the sub-total. To calculate this he multiplied by .06 and he added it on.

I decided to design a chart, to show both totals, and costs.

Buying the carpet I would save $907.36. (Subtracting the carpet total from the tiles total $1187.20-$279.84). Since the carpet was $279.84 Mom wanted to set up a monthly installment. The man told us that we could set up a loan for $279.84 at an interest rate of 8% per month for 12 months. The man then calculated a total of how much money we would have to pay each month.

It came to $45.71 per month for 12 months. Mom then made arrangements for the carpet people to come the following Saturday at 10:00 a.m. to deliver the carpet.

I added all of the totals of the carpet, paint, and border, so that I could see what the full cost of everything was.

When we reached home I showed my chart to my family. Boy! Were they impressed! They were so impressed that they said that I could do every room! Oh brother!

After the week had passed the carpet people finally arrived with my carpet. It turned out great! When they had finally got it installed mom, dad, brother, and I put all of my furniture into my room. My room was finally completed, and boy was I happy! I decided that I would design a scale drawing of my room. Showing all measurements for all dimensions. I also designed a key, to show that 1cm = 1 ft. This means that each square box was equal to 1 ft.

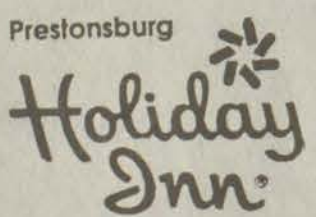

I learned a lot of things by doing this, but the best thing about it was that I learned responsibility, and how to calculate area for paint, carpet, and perimeter for border. If it weren't for my teachers I probably wouldn't have been able to calculate anything. Maybe you should try to redecorate your room you might be surprised at what how well you do. I had fun calculating everything myself, and I think that you would have fun too!

TRICK-OR-TREAT

Keep Our Children Safe: Halloween Pointers for Parents

While Halloween is fun for children, trick-or-treating can be a little tricky for parents. From the costumes they wear to the treats they eat, children can be put at risk of injury if parents don't know how to play it safe.

Here are some pointers from the National Crime Prevention Council to help make Halloween a treat for all.

- Safe Ghosts and Goblins
- Costumes should be short to prevent trips and falls, and flame-retardant.
- Make sure children wear light colors or put reflective tape on their costumes.
- Try makeup instead of masks. Masks, which can be hot and uncomfortable, also can obstruct a child's vision.
- Children should trick-or-treat in groups and stop only at familiar homes where the outside lights are on so they aren't a tempting target for real-life goblins. Parents should accompany young children.

- Map out a safe route to familiar homes for older trick-or-treaters.
- If trick-or-treating can't be done while it's light out, make sure children have flashlights and stay on well-lit streets.

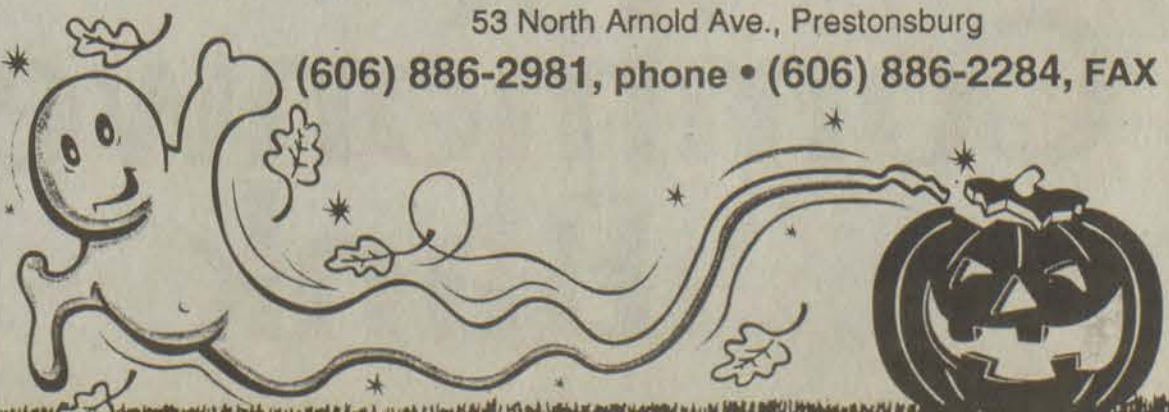

Safe Treats

- Tell children not to eat any treats until they get home. Feed them a meal or snack before they go out to keep them from digging in while they're out. Parents must inspect all treats.
- Allow children to eat only those treats that are in unopened and original wrappers. Carefully inspect fruits and homemade goodies.

"I guess, but not until you have eaten your breakfast!" She stated.

After my plate was clear, Mom went and changed clothes then we went carpet shopping! After driving for about ten minutes we came to a place called "Carpet World". There was carpet everywhere! They had different colors and styles for each piece of carpet. The smell of fresh new carpet filled my nose, as Mom and I looked around. I came upon many colors, but they just weren't me. Finally I saw a shade of turquoise blue carpet sitting over in a corner with my name written all over it.

"This is it!" I yelled.

"What?" Mom asked.

"I found the carpet that I want for my room!"

When I was through talking the store manager came over to ask us if we needed any help. I told him that I had selected the turquoise carpet over in the corner for my room. He went and checked the price of the carpet, and then asked me if I had measured the length and width of my room already. I told him yes and got out the sheet of paper with all my measurements on it. He looked the sheet of paper over and told me that the carpet that I had chosen was $10.56 per sq. yd.'s. He then calculated a price for the carpet. There is 25 sq. yd.'s in my room. So he multiplied the cost by the sq. yd.'s to get an estimated total.

Without tax the cost would be $246.00, that was a little much, I thought. He then calculated the amount of tax and added it to the total. Tax is 6%, so he moved the decimal two places to the right. He then multiplied the sub-total by .06 to receive the tax. Finally he added the tax to the sub-total to get a sum of $279.84.

Since the carpet was a little expensive, Mom suggested that I might rather get tile, and maybe later on get a rug to cover it. This sounded like a good idea. So I ran over to the tile section and found a lovely turquoise checked design. I picked up a square and took it over to the manager. He told us that tile was sold in sq. ft., so one square foot of tile = 1 ft.2 Since there is 224 sq. ft. in my room, I would need 224 square blocks. To calculate for tile I just used the same measurements, except I didn't need to convert to yd.2 The store manager calculated the cost, he said that each piece of the tile was $5.00. My room area was 224 ft., so he multiplied the two, to calculate a total.

Then tax was added to the sub-total. To calculate this he multiplied by .06 and he added it on.

I decided to design a chart, to show both totals, and costs.

Buying the carpet I would save $907.36. (Subtracting the carpet total from the tiles total $1187.20-$279.84). Since the carpet was $279.84 Mom wanted to set up a monthly installment. The man told us that we could set up a loan for $279.84 at an interest rate of 8% per month for 12 months. The man then calculated a total of how much money we would have to pay each month.

It came to $45.71 per month for 12 months. Mom then made arrangements for the carpet people to come the following Saturday at 10:00 a.m. to deliver the carpet.

I added all of the totals of the carpet, paint, and border, so that I could see what the full cost of everything was.

When we reached home I showed my chart to my family. Boy! Were they impressed! They were so impressed that they said that I could do every room! Oh brother!

After the week had passed the carpet people finally arrived with my carpet. It turned out great! When they had finally got it installed mom, dad, brother, and I put all of my furniture into my room. My room was finally completed, and boy was I happy! I decided that I would design a scale drawing of my room. Showing all measurements for all dimensions. I also designed a key, to show that 1cm = 1 ft. This means that each square box was equal to 1 ft.

I learned a lot of things by doing this, but the best thing about it was that I learned responsibility, and how to calculate area for paint, carpet, and perimeter for border. If it weren't for my teachers I probably wouldn't have been able to calculate anything. Maybe you should try to redecorate your room you might be surprised at what how well you do. I had fun calculating everything myself, and I think that you would have fun too!

TRICK-OR-TREAT

Keep Our Children Safe:

Halloween Pointers for Parents

While Halloween is fun for children, trick-or-treating can be a little tricky for parents. From the costumes they wear to the treats they eat, children can be put at risk of injury if parents don't know how to play it safe.

Here are some pointers from the National Crime Prevention Council to help make Halloween a treat for all.

Safe Ghosts and Goblins

- Costumes should be short to prevent trips and falls, and flame-retardant.
- Make sure children wear light colors or put reflective tape on their costumes.
- Try makeup instead of masks. Masks, which can be hot and uncomfortable, also can obstruct a child's vision.
- Children should trick-or-treat in groups and stop only at familiar homes where the outside lights are on so they aren't a tempt-

Parents can help their children play it safe at Halloween.

- ing target for real-life goblins. Parents should accompany young children.
- Map out a safe route to familiar homes for older trick-or-treaters.
- If trick-or-treating can't be done while it's light out, make sure children have flashlights and stay on well-lighted streets.

Safe Treats

- Tell children not to eat any treats until they get home. Feed them a meal or snack before they go out to keep them from digging in while they're out. Parents must inspect all treats.
- Allow children to eat only those treats that are in unopened and original wrappers. Carefully inspect fruits and homemade goodies.

Ratcliff getting notice at Lincoln Memorial

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The high school and college basketball season is just on the horizon and already Jamie Ratcliff, former standout with the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats, is getting raves from the Lincoln Memorial public relations.

Ratcliff signed with the Lady Railsplitters this past spring and is expected to make an immediate impact in the program. Ratcliff was the Lady Blackcats leading scorer last season and will be a backup at the point guard position.

"Jamie will see a lot of playing time this year," said Bill Porter, sports information person at Lincoln Memorial. "She may not start, but we expect her to play 15 minutes or more in a game. She has really made an impact already in her passing game."

Porter said 6-3, senior center, Denise Ackermann has benefited from the passes of Ratcliff and caught the eye of coach Roger A. Vannoy.

"She got the ball to Ackermann ten straight times," said Porter. "That is something no one has been able to do before."

Ratcliff averaged 19 points per game for the Lady

Blackcats and pulled in a surprising nine rebounds per game. She led Prestonsburg in assists last season with seven a game.

The Lady Railsplitters will be coming off a rather disappointing 16-10 season last year and expectations are high for the upcoming season that gets underway November 21 when LMU hosts Milligan College.

The reason for the high expectations is the returning players as well as three highly-touted recruits, which include Ratcliff. Last year's team was the youngest ever to take to the hardwood for Vannoy. But the coach expects with a year's experience under their belts and along with the new recruits, LMU should be in for a strong season.

"We won our first eight games last year," Porter said. "Then we just went down from there, splitting the final 16.

The other two quality recruits include highly regarded Tennille Blair from Whitesburg, who was pursued by several Division I schools. She averaged 18 points and 10 rebounds per game and had four assists a game.

Dawnya Breeding, who played for Morehead State last season, transferred to LMU and plays the center slot.

From William Blount High School in Marysville, Tennessee, comes 5-10 forward April Hutsell who averaged nine points, eight rebounds and two blocked shots a game. Vannoy said he feels Hutsell will present a strong presence in the post.

The perimeter game will be in good hands with the return of Heather Brown and sophomore Celine Cloutier. The three-point shooting will be in capable hands in Mollie Cooper, a sophomore. Senior forward Robin Cox set the Gulf South Conference single-game assist record last year and returns, along with sophomore Brandy Brown, who will provide leadership at the small forward position.

Ackermann will join Blair and Breeding at the center slot and hopes to close out her senior season successfully.

Also playing key roles this season will be freshmen Sonya Baumgardner, Lori Capps and senior Christy Smith.

Coach Vannoy will be looking to notch his 400th victory when the Lady Railsplitters face Milligan in game one.

In the season preview released by LMU, Ratcliff was cited for her quickness and strong in-passing game that will "make for a deadly combination."

Prestonsburg girls' coach Harold Tackett made the initial contact with LMU concerning Ratcliff last season. She was invited down for a look-see and was so impressive that she was offered a scholarship.

Vannoy is building a solid girls' basketball program at LMU and the Lady Railsplitters could very well see a tournament berth this season in NCAA-Division II.

RUMOR...

Site of the boys' 1995-96 regional basketball tournament? Prestonsburg Fieldhouse. Prestonsburg has not hosted the tournament since the '89 season when they took all the marbles and went to Lexington's Rupp Arena.

Allen Central was the last county to host the event and that was in '93 when the Rebels went to Louisville's Freedom Hall.

Now, if Prestonsburg hosts the regional and with the team they will be capable of putting on the floor, home court advantage will mean a lot.

The girls' Class A regional tournament will be held at South Floyd this season. It will mark the first time the Class A has been held in Floyd County. The Lady Raiders have the facility for the tournament.

This year's district tournament will come back to Allen Central.

HAPPY CAMPERS...

Word is that Allen Central standout Jeremy Hall is well satisfied with the University of Wisconsin. Hall signed last spring with the Badgers.

Justin Ray, South Floyd, is at Cumberland College and enjoying himself. He joined Crystal Isaac there, who is a sophomore this year and has already lettered in track.

Melissa Gearheart and Missy Clark are at Midway and those two girls will strengthen that program. They join Jenny Wiley, who is also at Midway.

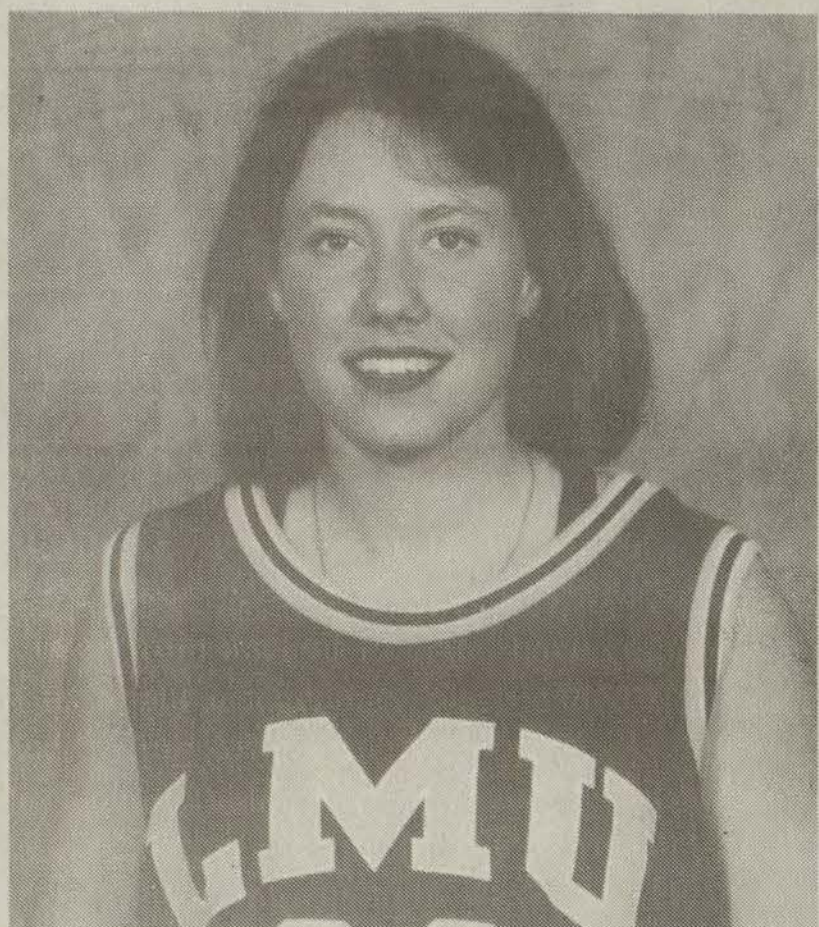

TRACK AND FIELD NOTES...

The rubberized surface has been laid at Allen Central and it looks like meets will be held this spring at the Right Beaver school. Striping is left to be done and according to track and field coach Dewey Jamerson, that will be finished in the early spring.

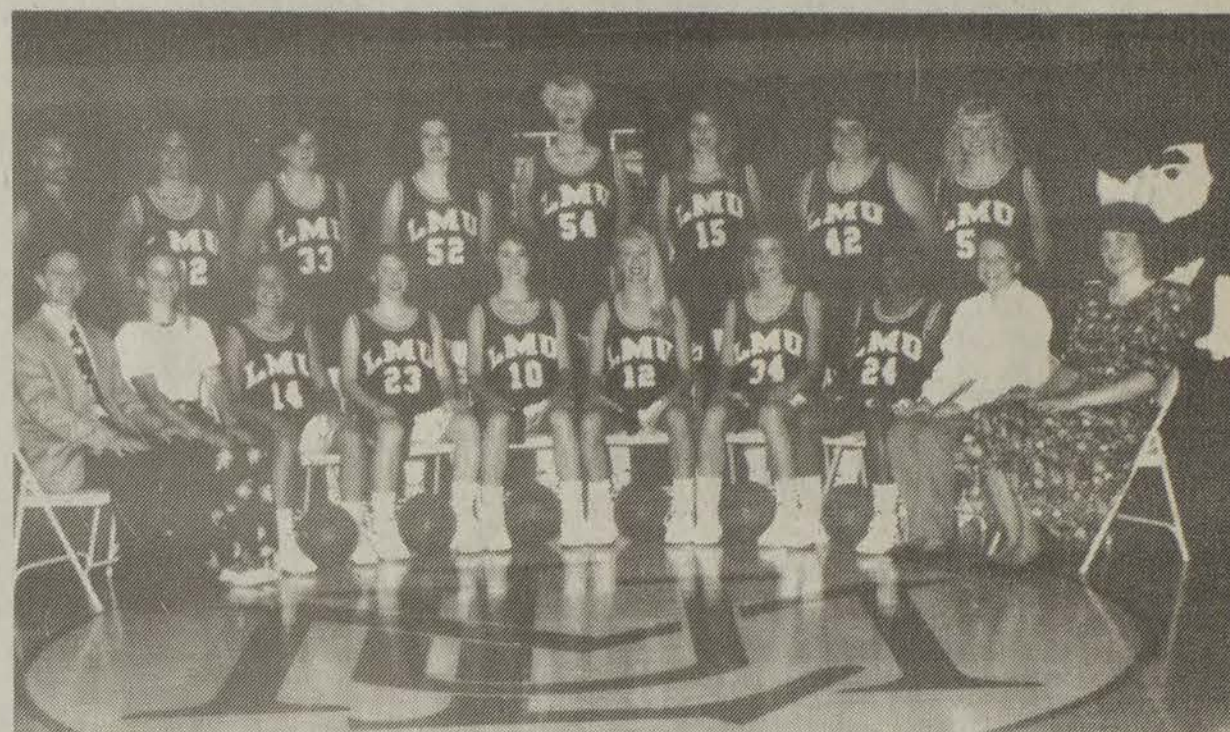

It has been a long battle — seven years — getting such a facility, but it appears that it will become a reality this spring.

The high jump area is in place as well as the long jump and triple jump pits. Also, the pole vault area has been installed. Circles for discus and shot put is yet to be in place.

Whether on the court, at the diamond or around the gridiron, we'll be there to cover it all for you.

Merlin and the Lady of the Lake

Edited by Professor E.D. Hirsch Jr.

Tales from ancient England have come down to us about a legendary place called Camelot, where King Arthur rules the famous knights of the Round Table. One of Arthur's great helpers was a mighty magician called Merlin. Even when Merlin was a child he was a seer: He could see what would happen in the future. As he grew older, he learned to change himself into different beings. The poor beggar on the street or the stallion running free by the river might turn out to be Merlin in disguise. Through his magic, Merlin protected the future King Arthur until he was ready to rule. In this story about Merlin and Vivianne, the Lady of the Lake, he fails to protect himself.—E.D. Hirsch Jr.

One day as Merlin was making his way through the forest, he came upon Vivianne, the Lady of the Lake, beside her watery home. Vivianne was an enchantress, and she wove a spell of wonder on him. Merlin fell desperately in love with her. Vivianne asked Merlin to teach her all his magic arts, which were the greatest in the world, and he taught her many. But Vivianne wasn't content and looked for a way that she might keep him by her side forever. Some say this was because she was helping a wicked princess who wanted Merlin out of the way. Others say it was because Vivianne loved Merlin and wanted him never to leave her.

Whatever the reason, Vivianne asked Merlin to use his magic to make a castle, a place so strong that it could never be destroyed, where they could live together forever. Merlin agreed, but then Vivianne said: "Show me how I can make the castle myself, so I can make it just the way I like it." And Merlin taught Vivianne the magic to conjure up the castle. And as she conjured, out of the clouds rose bright walls of stone towering in the air, with gleaming turrets. On the front of the castle was a wrought-iron gate so strong no one could break it.

"Be assured," Merlin told the Lady of the Lake, "no one can come or go except as you wish." Vivianne smiled and showered Merlin with affection. One day as they sat under a tree in the forest, Vivianne sang sweetly to Merlin and lulled him to sleep. While he slept, she circled him nine times, weaving him in her spells like a spider's silver web, until he could not escape. She brought him to the castle and bound him there forever, so that he could not leave except as she chose, while she came and went as she pleased. So Merlin was trapped by the very magic that made him great. Some say he was happy in the castle his magic helped to build, with the woman he loved, while others say he strove to escape but couldn't. Either way, he never saw Arthur again, nor was he ever seen again at Camelot.

Jack-Lantern

The Halloween jack-o'-lantern comes from an Irish legend. A man named Jack lured the devil up a tree to fetch an apple and then cut a "cross" on the bark below to keep him from climbing down.

Jack set the devil free, but made him promise never to seek his soul. When Jack died he wasn't allowed into heaven because of his nasty ways. Jack then tried to enter hell but the devil wouldn't let him in.

As Jack walked away, the devil threw hot coal at him. Jack had been eating a turnip at the time and caught the coal in his turnip. The legend claims that Jack, carrying his turnip lantern, must spend all of eternity looking for a place to rest.

In America the turnip became a pumpkin. Carving a jack-o'-lantern from a pumpkin has become a significant tradition associated with Halloween.

Quiz

Bob for apples, anyone?

When the Romans occupied Britain they added apples to the Druid feast. They bobbed for apples, featured them as centerpieces, and drank apple cider.

Fortune-telling was popular during Samhain. The Druids made predictions by looking at particular shapes of various fruits. The shape of an apple peeling, for example might reveal the name of a future mate.

THINGS

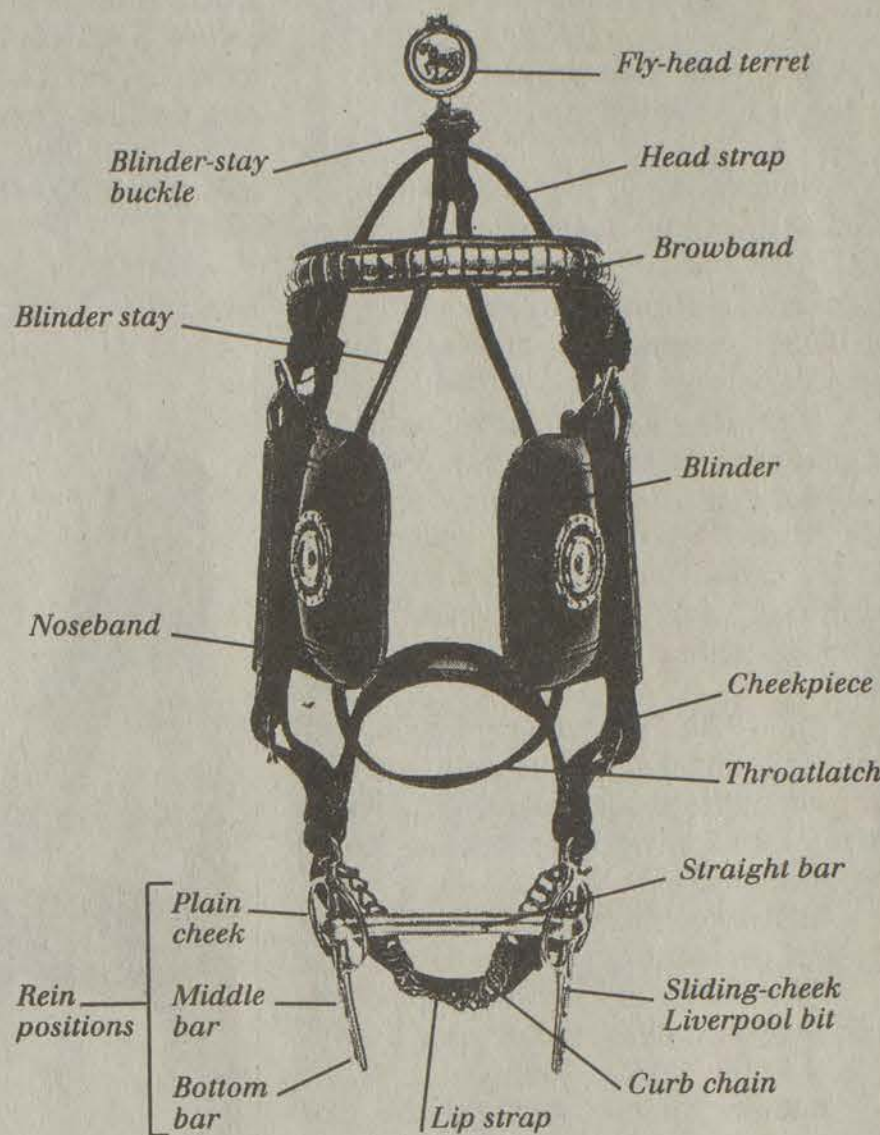

The Harness

by the editors of Dorling Kindersley

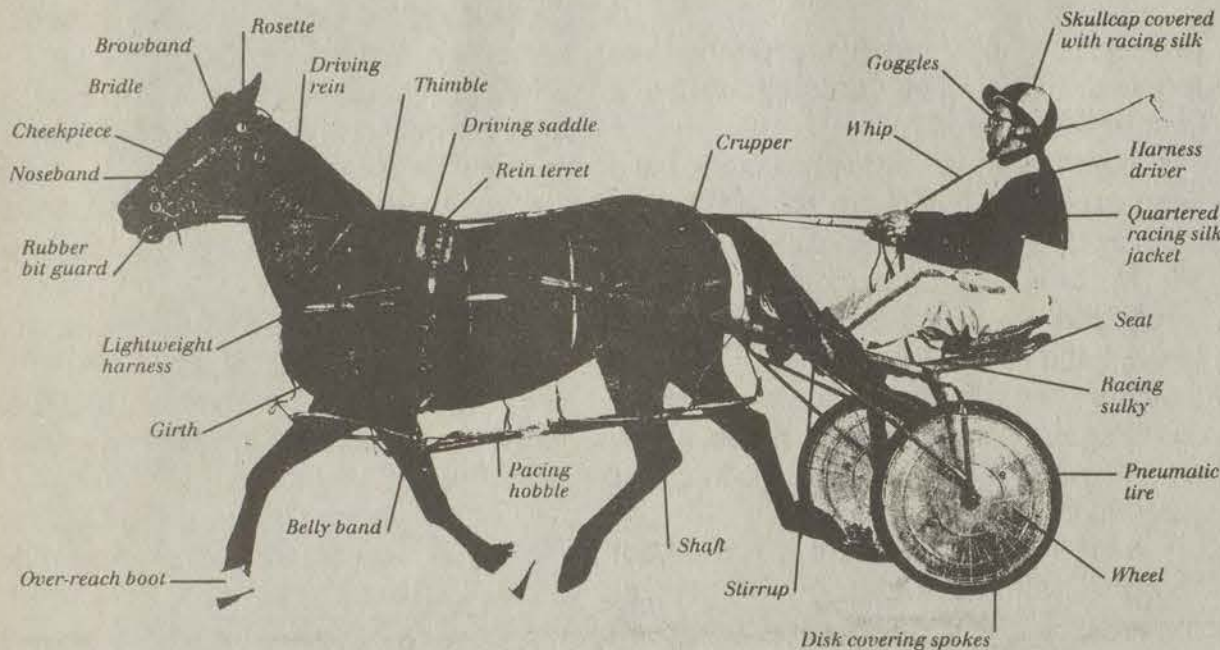

"He has his blinders on."

Have you ever heard that phrase? It means that someone is deliberately blocking out the world so that he or she can focus on a single goal. The idea of "blinders" comes from the closed horse's bridle, which has two patches that cover the eyes so that the horse can only see straight ahead. They were created so that horses pulling loads would not be spooked or distracted by anything happening on the streets.

THE CLOSED BRIDLE: Harness is the general term for the equipment that enables a horse to pull a load, such as a wagon, carriage or plow. Most harnesses have three basic components: a bridle, collar and breeching. The bridle is a set of straps that fits over the horse's head. Reins are attached to the bridle to enable the driver to control the horse. The collar is worn around the horse's neck or chest and is attached to the load by leather or chain traces. As the horse moves forward, it pushes against the collar to pull the load. The breeching is a set of one or more straps that fits on the horse's hindquarters. The most important component, called the breeching strap, fits behind the horse's hindquarters and enables it to brake or to reverse whatever it is pulling. There are many variations to these components, each adapted for a different function. For instance, bridles that are fitted with blinders—known as closed bridles—prevent horses from seeing anything approaching from behind or the sides, which could otherwise frighten them. Teams of two or more horses are harnessed in a different way from a horse working alone. For example, a pair of horses hitched to a wagon is usually positioned with one on each side of the wagon's central pole; each horse is attached by chains to the pole. However, a single horse pulling a wagon is usually hitched between two shafts, which are attached to the horse's collar by traces.

HARNESS RACING WITH A STANDARDBRED HORSE

by the editors of Dorling Kindersley

From Ancient Greek times to the present day, horse racing has been one of the most popular equine sports. Modern horse racing takes several different forms. The simplest is flat racing, in which jockeys ride horses that race against each other on a track without jumps. Races with jumps are divided into two types: steeplechases and hurdle races. In steeplechases, the fences are 4 feet 6 inches high and over. In hurdle races, the fences are 3 feet 6 inches high and over and are flexible, so that they bend if a horse hits them when jumping. In flat races, steeplechases and hurdle races, Thoroughbred horses are used. This breed has been developed to have the strength and stamina to gallop fast over courses with or without jumps. In shorter flat races, horses may reach speeds of about 40 miles per hour.

HARNESS RACING WITH STANDARD-BRED HORSE: Harness racing requires a breed of horse that can pace or trot while pulling a sulky (a lightweight, two-wheeled cart). Breeds such as the Standardbred and the French Trotter have been developed especially for this type of racing. In pacing races the horse wears hobbles to prevent it from breaking into a gallop or trot. When racing, jockeys and drivers wear a set of silks, consisting of a jacket and cap in a particular pattern and color combination. Each racehorse owner has a specific pattern and color combination for his silks, so that the horse and owner can be identified easily.
