Hall says dump issue exaggerated by sheri

by Scott Perry Times Editor

Sam Hall has admitted dumping sewage from his septic tank cleaning service near an abandoned deep mine on Bill Hall Branch, but he said Thursday he had permission from the Floyd County Health Department to do it.

Hall also disputed allegations made earlier this week by Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson that hundreds of thousands of gallons of sewage had been pumped into the mine and contamination to wells in the area.

Hall confirmed that officials with the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) had been performing a clean-up operation at the mine, but said the agency had not found the volume or types of waste alleged earlier by Thompson.

"The most they pumped out was about 4,500 gallons," Hall said, "and there were no samples of any kind of industrial waste.

Sheriff Thompson indicated earlier this week that EPA officials had said samples of industrial waste, he denied responsibility for any like diesel fuel and motor oil, had been found in the mine.

Hall also contended Thursday that he had dumped sewage near the mine, not in it, under a permit he said was issued by the Floyd County Health Department. He also said reports that some area wells had tested positive for E.Coli bacteria were not related to his dumping, and he said that the bacteria existed "naturally" in well water supplies.

John Bailey, senior county environmentalist for the Floyd County Health Department, confirmed Thursday that Hall did have a per-waste in a pit, but Bailey said Hall never had permission to dump any waste in or near an open mine.

Bailey also said Hall lost his license to operate a septic tank service "14 or 15 years ago" and the license was never re-issued, suggesting that operations by his company after that time were illegal, regardless of where he disposed of waste collections.

Bailey said he had also investigated complaints that Hall was dumping waste in or near the Bill Hall Branch mine, but he was never mit in the early 1980s to dispose of able to substantiate those reports.

Hall said the installation of water lines on Frazier's Creek did not result from contamination to natural water supplies, adding that the lines were constructed to serve a housing development in the area.

Hall speculated Thursday that the dumping issue had been exaggerated by Thompson in relation to a long-standing conflict between the two men.

'We've been butting heads," Hall said, "since I helped police catch (former deputy) Larry Newsome in 1992 on drug charges. He (Thompson) said he would get me for that."

Sheriff Thompson declined to respond Thursday to Hall's allegation, saying it was "not appropriate" for him to comment further.

EPA officials, meanwhile, have not responded to repeated calls made to the agency's Atlanta office for comment on the dumping issue.

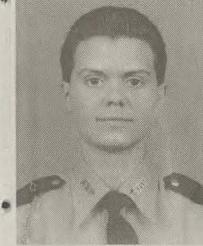

Also, a story published Wednesday, which suggested Hall had been convicted on drug-related charges was incorrect. Hall has never been charged with a drug-related offense, but he has pleaded guilty to extortion and attempted extortion

Judge plans to put DUI cases on fast track

Detective Leslie Gannon was promoted to the rank of sergeant. She is only the third woman within the KSP ranks to earn the supervisory rank.

The Harold resident has worked in Floyd County for several years. She has been reassigned to the Kentucky State Police Academy at Frankfort.

Governor Paul Patton recognized Gannon and three other officers from the Pikeville Post for their work with the KSP during a promotional ceremony in Frankfort Wednesday.

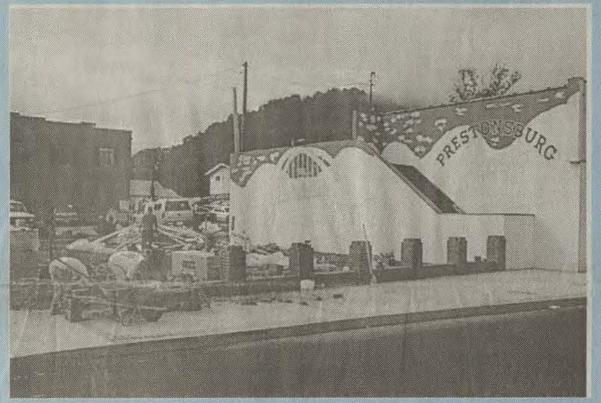

Also promoted was Detective James Booth. Booth also attained the rank of sergeant. He has been transferred from the Pikeville Post to the Dry Ridge Post.

The promotions of Gannon and Booth, of Belfry, were among 11 announced during the ceremony. Also named was a new comman-

Local employers expect little benefit from wage increases

by Janice Shepherd Managing Editor

Although the minimum wage increase will add a few dollars to the pockets of some local employees when it goes into effect in October, it will probably take away more than it adds

That opinion was the consensus of some restaurant owners and managers in a telephone survey of four restaurants Thursday about an increase in the minimum wage from $4,25 to $4.75 per hour beginning October 1. In January, minimum wages increase to $5.15 per

Jim Sparks, owner of Lee's Famous Recipe in Prestonsburg, Pikeville, and South Williamson, said he's all for workers receiving more money, but he thinks they will lose more than they gain.

"Somebody has to pay for it. Whenever there is an increase, then the pricing to the consumer goes up. The worker is getting an increase, but he's also paying more as a consumer," Sparks said.

Sue Moore, assistant manager for Jerry's Restaurant, and Tracy Horton, manager for the Prestonsburg Hardee's, agree that the wage hike will make consumer goods and services increase in cost. "People think it's going to be better, but it's going to cost more in the end. This is going to raise everything else," Horton said.

Horton said the increase will affect prices of services. Hardee's, owned by Boddie-Noell Enterprises, has already seen an increase in prices, she said.

Horton added that many businesses will have to cut back on their number of employees. Hardee's currently employs about 28 people.

Lee's owner, Jim Sparks, said the labor market, such as the restaurant and motel industries, that have minimum wage workers and can't increase their prices for goods, will be the businesses forced to cut back on their number of employees.

When that happens, businesses will expect more productivity from fewer workers.

Bob Hutchison, co-owner of McDonald's in Prestonsburg, Pikeville, Paintsville, West Liberty, South Williamson, Louisa, and the soon-to-be opened restaurant in Martin, said the wage increase will

The final four-lane portion of new U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville may be open to traffic as early as next month, state highway officials say.

(See Fast, page two)

The link, connecting U.S. 23 where it detours near Hager Hill at Paintsville to the fourlane area north of Paintsville near the junction of 460 and 23, may be open to travelers around late October, Denton Biliter, chief district engineer with the Kentucky Department of Highways office at Pikeville, said Thursday.

Although the road will be open to traffic, construction crews will continue to work on the road, he added. Construction will not be complete on the road until mid November, Biliter said

Road crews are paving and adding shoulders to the route

"There's still quite a bit of work to be done in that area," he said. "They haven't put up the safety equipment yet.

The road cannot be opened to traffic until the safety devices are in place, Biliter said, and that includes guardrails, signage and lighting in the interchange area.

"The work has progressed real well," he said, adding that inclement weather could hamper construction work on the project, but he doesn't expect that to be a major problem.

'We could beat (the November opening), depending on the weather." he said.

Arrest made in fire at Hi Hat church

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

A McDowell man was arrested Wednesday afternoon in connection with a church fire in Hi Hat early Sunday morning

John David Osborne, 30 was taken into custody about 2 p.m. and charged with second degree arson, a class B felony, for setting fire to the Emanuel Full Gospel Church in southern Floyd County.

While Kentucky State Police arson investigator Barry McKenzie and Detective David Maynard are aware of Osborn's motive for setting the fire, they would not release the details.

We do know what his motive was, but we don't usually get into the case before the trial," KSP Public Affairs Officer Mike Goble said Thursday.

He did say the officers, who are being assisted by Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms agents, say there is not evidence the case is racially motivated or that it is a hate type

The fire occurred about 2:25 a.m. Sunday morning. Reports indicate that Osborne set fire to the church by pouring accelerants onto the outside of the building and setting it on fire.

The blaze was discovered by neighbors who extinguished it before any major damage could be done to the structure.

The KSP sent a warning to other would-be arsonists in a press release issued Wednesday.

"The Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms and other state and local agencies will not tolerate the burning of churches or any other public structure or building," the release states. "These acts, no matter how minor or severe, are considered unacceptable and the offender will be sought out and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law."

A not-guilty plea was entered for Osborne during arraignments Thursday morning by Floyd District Judge James Allen.

A $15,000 or ten-percent cash bond was set with the stipulation that Osborne have no contact with the church or the pastor, Rev. Sammy Hall . A preliminary hearing will be held at 2:30 p.m. September 11.

Mine inspector pleads guilty to DUI

by Chris McDavid and Patti M. Clark Staff Writers

A federal mine inspector who was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of an alcoholic beverage pleaded guilty to the charge Wednesday morning.

But one condition of the plea was that he not be sentenced before September 20, the day he attains his 20 years with the federal mine agency and can retire.

Theodore Herrera, 59, of Van Lear, and his attorney had originally planned to use a malfunctioning breathalyzer as his defense, according to County Attorney Keith Bartley.

He said the attorney was planning to argue that the breathalyzer used after Herrera stopped at a road check near Auxier November 18, 1995 was malfunctioning.

Bartley said Herrera "rolled down his window and the officer immediately smelled alcohol.

Man with rifle eludes officers

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

A man walking on South Lake Drive carrying a rifle early Wednesday afternoon escaped officers before they could determine what he was doing.

"He outran Gerald (Clark)," Prestonsburg Police Officer Ralph Frasure said Thursday.

Frasure first spotted the man walking on the street with a gun. "I passed him and turned around. When he saw me, he took off flying," Frasure said. The incident occurred a little after 1 p.m. Wednesday.

The man ran toward the river and was not seen again.

Frasure said he didn't think the man was a hunter or that he was connected with two drive-by shootings in Martin early Wednesday morning.

"There have been no reports of break-ins or anything of that sort in Prestonsburg about that time," he said. "We get this kind of stuff from time to time, but it is kind of unusual. This is probably the first time something exactly like this has happened."

He said the case would have gone to trial if the plea had not been

"I had it set for trial," Bartley said Thursday. "They had taken every shot they had in his defense. They had challenged everything they could and lost on all their arguments."

Bartley said the case was routine except that Herrera asked for the delay in sentencing to save his job. "It was a first offense, but he said he could lose his job," Bartley said. "I think he'll have his 20 years in on September 20 and can retire if it is a problem at that point. It could be a problem because he won't have a license for 90 days after sentencing."

Herrera's sentencing has been set for October 1. In addition to the suspended license, he will be required to pay court costs, a $200 fine, and attend drug and alcohol education classes.

"We have been writing letters to proper authorities with the KSP requesting additional help for O'Neil," Daniels said. "And, as a result, O'Neil has been promised more chemists on staff who will be available for blood tests and testifying about their validity.'

"I have always thought about the problem of moving the docket to enable the court to work in a more efficient manner," Allen said, "and now I'm at the point where I can give the problem more consid-

During the ceremony, Patton praised not only the individuals in the agency but also the agency's recruiting program and its efforts to diversify its ranks.

"The agency well understands the need to be diverse in its own ranks," Patton said. "I am pleased to say the state police has made significant and substantial changes to ensure a more equitable minority and female representation. It has developed an aggressive recruitment program which includes a plan for identifying candidates in under-utilized groups by means of many different approaches."

The first, and perhaps most effective change, Patton said, has been to broaden the opportunity to take the written test for a position in minority roles in the KSP.

A few of the other recruiting endeavors include the establishment of college internships for Eastern Kentucky University and Kentucky State University students interested in law enforcement careers; a statewide program, developed by the KSP, Lexington Division of Police, and Eastern Kentucky University, geared toward minority high school students to foster interest in law enforcement as a career; and an emphasis on advertising with minority media outlets and the production of films and informational material highlighting female and

Jacobs trial reset again, to begin December 9

by Patti M. Clark Staff Writer

With the ten-year anniversary of the death of Alice Lloyd student Judy Ann Howard approaching, the retrial of her accused killer has been delayed again.

The second trial for Knott County resident Clawvern Jacobs was reset for December 9 Wednesday as a result of scheduling conflicts and because Special Circuit Judge John David Caudill is hoping for a clarification from the Kentucky Supreme Court on whether mental health testimony will be allowed.

Jacobs, 48, was convicted of murder, attempted rape, and kidnapping in the 1986 beating death of Howard, who was 18 at the time. The Supreme Court, however, overturned that conviction in 1994, saying the trial should have been moved from Knott County because of pre-trial publicity.

The next trial will be held in continuance. Warren County.

Caudill made it perfectly clear that he did not grant the continuance because defense attorney Kelly Gleason had asked for one. Gleason also filed a motion to exclude the death penalty in the case if the date of the trial wasn't changed because her co-counsel, Mike Williams, would not be able to assist her because of previous commitments.

"My belief is that I can't provide effective counsel in a capital murder case by myself," she said.

Gleason said "heightened expectations" of the case would make it "highly scrutinized" for years to come and she was trying to predict any potential appeals issues.

"If this trial goes as planned, prejudice will occur at every step of the way," she said.

Assistant Attorney General David Smith objected to the motion to preclude the death penalty. He also objected to the motion for the

"There's no rhyme or reason why the death penalty should be excluded," he said. "I've lost count of how many times a motion has been filed to preclude the death

Caudill also objected to the continuance. "This case is ten years old. It needs to go to trial," he said.

Attorneys and Caudill, earlier this year, talked about setting the trial for September 30, but picked an October 14 date because of scheduling conflicts. Caudill attempted Wednesday to move the trial back to September 30, but Gleason also objected to the earlier date saying her co-counsel would be preparing for another capital murder trial and would be unable to assist her in the preparation for the trial.

"There are two reasons why I'm going to grant the continuance," Caudill said after a ten-minute recess. "Neither has anything to do with the motions."

Caudill said he had some sched- has insisted that he does not want to uling conflicts with the October 14 date. He also said he wanted to give the Supreme Court sufficient time to answer the request from the attorney general's office for clarification of the admissibility of the mental health issues.

Jacobs' attorneys want to use an insanity defense in the case, but he do so.

Caudill has said he will allow the defense to enter evidence on mental health issues, but only outside the presence of the jury.

"All I want is a 'yes' or 'no' answer," Caudill said. "I've been asking for it for about a year and a half now, and I still don't have it."

Highway safety: A common problem in Eastern Kentucky that takes you to work every day. Take in an account the design, physical condition, and type of traffic sharing the road with you.

Now... imagine taking that road Kentucky, into Central or Western Kentucky.

How long do you think it would be before angry mobs of citizens stormed their state and local officials demanding changes?

Our type of highways exist only in Eastern Kentucky because of poor economic conditions and our reliance upon the coal industry. New roads are built for the convenience of coal traffic, with little else considered. Safety regulations are either ignored or exempted. In 1986, our state legislators created the extended weight coal haul road system. This system was developed to allow coal trucks to exceed Assembly passed Senate Bill 255 and House Bill 427bills which integrated all of the state's parkways into this coal haul road system and extended the maximum width limit of trucks under certain conditions.

While the effect of this bill may not seem too significant, it shows that today's General Assembly is no more concerned with highway safety in Eastern Kentucky than those who created this network of unsafe roads ten years ago.

This attitude which state and local officials, including some law enforcement agencies, have taken toward highway safety is hard to understand, in light of public perception toward coal traffic is our region.

Born and raised in Eastern Kentucky, I have frequently heard stories about a flagrant disregard for safety in the coal hauling industry. I have found no reason to doubt the validity of these stories,

In your mind, picture the road considering the things I see each day, on our truck-filled highways. I believe it when I am told truck drivers frequently drive 80-100 hours a week.

Of course, this is illegal and and moving it outside of Eastern dangerous, but drugs can keep them awake, and fake or additional logbooks can hide them within the law. Speed, or right of way, seems to be of no concern to a 60 ton truck, and the possibility of stopping, to avoid an accident, is not an option.

Although truck drivers will normally walk away, unhurt, from a fatal accident, they may carry emotional damage around for a

Much of the responsibility, however, should lay in the hands of those who pass such reckless legislation, those who fail to enforce the laws when they see them broken, and the company owners who encourage speedy deliver of overloaded coal trucks.

Fortunately, highway safety is a problem which can be solved. Dedicated citizen groups frequently emerge to fight irresponsible legislation or fix a dangerous stretch of highway.

In Lawrence County, the "Citizen's For a Safer Highway" amassed their frustrations and applied their talents toward pressuring the state into building an overpass at an intersection local residents named "Death Valley."

Although state officials may still renege on that promise, the group has already gotten the speed limit lowered, helped the Sheriff's office obtain radar equipment and forced the Department of Transportation to start policing the Safety regulations requiring underride guards on the back of coal trucks.

Today, someone is alive who would not have been, if he had not taken on the difficult task of making a difference.

Getting involved, even for a wonderful cause, is never easy.

The demands of a job make it hard to sacrifice the enjoyment of our free time. We owe a lot to those who are willing to make that sacrifice, possibly... our own lives.

Yates responds to Owens and Lawson need medical care

Editor:

In response to Jackie Owens and Barbara Lawson:

Jackie, Jackie, Jackie. Were you half asleep from working at the coal mines when you read my letter? You seemed to have failed to answer all my questions.

Let's start out with the question of "Why don't you have an office in the new courthouse?" In my last letter, I stated that you worked less than 80 hours a year. Again, Jackie, were you half asleep or is this really true? If I am wrong, could you please tell the taxpayers how many hours you really work

You stated in your letter that the county wasn't responsible for supplying water to the people in need. Why would the fiscal court have a business contract with Francis Water Company? Also, why does our fiscal court apply for capital grants to expand water lines in Floyd County?

You stated that our roads were yellow dirt when you took office and at times the county's sheriff's department would come along with the grader crew; did they come along to make sure you did your job and to make sure that you didn't stop your grader crew from doing their job as directed by the late John M. Stumbo (Judge-Executive)?

Yes, Jackie, I do support United We're Strong, but if you read the local newspapers, Lexington Herald, hear news on the radio or television then you should know that the commissioners are not the ones in trouble in Johnson County.

Just one more thing, Jackie. Everyone doesn't live in your delusional form of magistrate government and why are you so upset with and against the commissioner form of government? Is it because you're afraid of not being elected in a county-wide race? Also, Jackie, what about your pay decrease you promised to take? If you are a man of truth then answer my questions.

In regards to Barbara Lawson's comment:

I want to thank Mrs. Lawson for telling the truth about how our water really is and supporting my letter by doing so.

Of course they did a good job by supplying water to your household, but I don't think I would pay Francis Water Co. over $1500.00 to have run it to my home when the county gets grants for this project.

In your letter, you stated that we chose not to have the water run into our homes. Well, to set you straight and have the truth spoken to you for a change, we were told by Francis Water Company that there was not enough water pressure to supply our homes and that there would have to be a pump house to supply the water into our

If I'm not mistaken, the pressure should be in the neighborhood of 30 pounds per square inch of

Now, as for the pumphouse, we have agreed to donate our land to store the pumphouse, here in Hoover Hollow.

I think it's a shame that after paying as much money as you stated; and having done as good a job as Jackie Owens and Francis Water Co. did, then why are you still having to use your portable pump to supply water into your home?

It's a pleasure to know that you are now germ-free, but it's a shame it took 15 years. Some of us are really fortunate.

In the future if you have any comments, just yell around the corner. After all, we are next-door neighbors.

Praises rescue squad; none for rangers or sheriff's department

Editor:

I am writing in response to the story printed in Wednesday's edition of the Floyd County Times. It concerns the drowning death of the 12-year-old Van Lear girl in the spillway at Dewey Lake.

I was at the spillway th when I heard that a young boy had lost his friend he had been swimming with in the spillway. The young men who were with me were two of the first rescuers in the

I can honestly say that the sheriff's department made little, if any, effort to begin a search for the young girl. I recall seeing one man from the sheriff's department wade through the water, while the other deputy walked up and around the spillway to get to the same place, but without getting wet. The park rangers were working in the same manner.

Neither the sheriff's department nor the park rangers made an attempt to rescue the girl from the murky water.

I stayed at the spillway the whole time, and I only saw one deputy and two park rangers wade through the water to give aid to the bystanders who were diving to find the young girl.

When the girl was found by one of the younger bystanders, she was pulled ashore by the young man that accompanied my friend there that day and some of the other divers, not by the sheriff's department or the park rangers.

A woman who was on the scene began to do CPR on the girl. During the period she was administering CPR, she asked for a device to help open the air way of the young girl.

After the rescue squad had brought the device from the truck and across the spillway, the man handed it to the closest deputy. The deputy, with the life-saving device in hand, stayed talking to a man until one of the divers grabbed the device and prepared it for the woman administering CPR.

I praise the Floyd County Rescue Squad for meeting their call of duty, but I cannot say the same for the sheriff's department and the park rangers.

Out of all the trained men who were on the scene, only three seemed really concerned and determined to help find the young

I believe that if the deputy who was on the scene when they first learned of the situation had searched the area the way he should have there would not have been a drowning victim at Dewey Lake Spillway this past weekend.

There was more at stake than just getting a pair of pants dirty, there was a young girl's life. A girl who had a prom and graduation to dream of and many new friends to

This could have been my daughter or yours, that is why I think this lack of responsible men and women should stop.

It is not fair that we pay for services that will not help us in the most crucial of times.

My deepest sympathies go out to the family of this young girl. My prayers and thoughts are always with you.

Economics lesson presented by writer

Presidential candidate Bob Dole announced his tax policies; a 15 percent across the board tax cut, a 50 percent cut in capital gains taxes and a $500 per child tax credit. The tax and spend Liberal Democrats went ballistic!

Consider their position on capital gains tax cuts. They claim "the rich would get richer" while "the poor get poorer."

Now, that's a powerful message targeted directly toward class

You know something? I have yet to find the income level Liberals define as "rich." Are the rich those making millions a year; hundreds of thousands a year? What is the "rich level?"

Some people think that, by Liberal standards, anyone earning a wage is considered rich. Others debate a variety of levels of income. Here, I'll use Internal Revenue Service figures to cut through the arguments. They don't define who is rich. They merely report who files capital gains.

In 1992, the last year of Republican presidential power and the so-called "decade of greed," only three percent of those earning over $100,000 filed capital gains.

Meanwhile, 93 percent of those earning less than $75,000 filed capital gains; 83 percent earning less that $50,000 filed; 49 percent earning less than $20,000 filed, and an incredible 27 percent of those earning less than $10,000 filed capital gains!

I leave to the readers what level of income they consider "rich." Another dimension of capital gains tax cuts is tax revenues. The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) reports that in 1980 under President Carter, capital gains tax rates were at 28 percent with revenues at $11.0 billion. In 1982, President Reagan cut capital tax rates to 20 percent. By 1986, revenues from capital gains taxes had increased to $46.7 bil-

And this should come as no surprise.

In 1986 capital gains tax rates were again increased to 28 percent and the following year revenues immediately decreased to $27.7 million.

These are facts Liberal Democrats prefer to ignore as they foment class envy.

As for me, God bless those who risk their money, realize special gains and become economically successful.

In the third trial, which is scheduled for next Tuesday, September 10, Penix will again face a charge of second-degree manslaughter of the 1990 shooting death of 19-yearold Barrett Heath Endicott of Prestonsburg.

Penix's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf of Prestonsburg, filed a motion Friday, August 30, asking that the case be continued because of a scheduling conflict, but Commonwealth's Attorney Anna D. Melvin, who is prosecuting the case, said her office opposes any continuance because Pillersdorf

Prosecutors in the case argued that Penix shot Endicott after the two men were involved in a "wrestling match," at a Hager Hill trailer on May 13, 1990. However, the defense claimed the shooting was an accident that occurred from the men having had too much to drink. The defense is not disputing the fact that Penix was the one with the gun, but said he didn't pull the

The defense attorneys in the case argued that Penix didn't know the gun was loaded and claimed that it discharged accidentally.

After being convicted in the first trial in Martin County, the Kentucky Court of Appeals reversed the guilty verdict and remanded the case back to trial. Apparently, prosecutors mentioned during the closing arguments the safety mechanism on the weapon involved. The defense objected and Frazier told the jury to disregard the testimony.

"Coming as it did in the prosecutor's closing argument, the incident was surely fresh in the minds of jurors as they began their deliberations, and it certainly had a devastating effect on the defense of accident," the appeals court order reversing the decision said. "Under the circumstances, we doubt that it was possible for any juror, no matter how fair-mined he or she might be, to put out of his or her mind the 'fact' related and sought to be demonstrated by the prosecutor in closing argument that the rifle would not fire until the safety was released. Hall reprimanded by state Judicial Retirement and Removal Commission

by Linda H. Breed Appalachian News-Express

In an action he calls "hilarious," County Attorney Howard Keith Hall has been officially reprimanded by the state's judicial Retirement and Removal Commission for furnishing police with a signed, blank search warrant.

Had Hall not already resigned from his district judge's seat, the commission said it would have suspended him for 30 days for the act of misconduct.

"I was challenging it and I decided... it was a waste of time to," Hall said. "Somebody would have to know the whole situation in order to understand it.'

The order of public reprimand issued Thursday, August 29, through the Administrative Office of the Courts said Hall, 33, waived formal proof and any additional formal proceedings, and has agreed to accept the findings and disposition made in the order.

"On October 7, 1994, Mr. Hall, then Pike County District Judge, signed and furnished to a law enforcement officer a blank search warrant in without completion of the person or place to be searched or items to be seized, and without completion of the affidavit in support thereof," the order reads.

"Determination of probable of his functions with respect to warcause for a search warrant is a grave judicial duty under the United States and Kentucky Constitutions requiring the intervention of a neutral judge to protect individuals and to prevent law enforcement officers from conducting unlawful search-

Hall was appointed to the district judge's post in March 1992, by then-Gov. Brereton Jones and ran unopposed for a five-year term in 1993. He resigned from the judgeship this June, and shortly thereafter was appointed county attorney Judge-Executive Donna Damron.

The county attorney's position came open upon the resignation of Gary Johnson, who left after winning the Democratic nomination for state Senate. Hall is the only person vying for the office in the upcoming November election.

In his defense, Hall told the commission he did know the basis for the issuance of the 1994 warrant and the person and place to be searched, but did not have time to wait for completion of the affidavit and warrant.

Hall presented evidence to the commission that he was bearing an extraordinary judicial load at the time of the event in question, and that he was diligent in the exercise rants and made himself available to law enforcement officers at all times, including throughout the night. He told officials this was the only time he had engaged in such

But Hall said he doesn't think he broke any rules by signing the warrant for the Mountain Area Drug Task Force.

"I bent the rules for the police every chance I got on the war on drugs," he said. "I got in a hurry and made a mistake."

Hall said he later called the officers and told them not to execute the warrant.

"I grew up trusting police officers," Hall said. "I had no reason not to trust the Mountain Area Drug Task Force."

The Mountain Area Drug Task Force was dissolved this year after failing to apply in a timely manner for federal funding. The agency recently came under fire by the Lexington Herald-Leader for questionable ethics, alleged civil rights violations and shoddy paperwork. Hall said he was among those reporting irregularities to the FBI.

He claimed the FBI knew about the blank search warrant and told him there was no problem.

Regardless of Hall's defense, the commission found that by signing the blank search warrant without waiting for completion of the affidavit and the details in the warrant, Hall engaged in "official misconduct and violated the Code of Judicial Conduct in that he breached the high standard of conduct necessary to preserve the integrity and independence of the judiciary..."

Because Hall agreed to accept the commission's finding without formal proof, it was ordered that Hall be publicly reprimanded.

"I think I'm the only judge ever reprimanded for busting a drug dealer," Hall said, noting he appeared before the commission twice on the issue. "Both times, all they wanted to do was bad mouth Pike County and tell me how the (former District Judge) Chuck Huffman and (former District Judge) Randall Starnes thing made them look like idiots." Hall said he's happy to be accused of "cheating against the drug dealers." He called the people in Frankfort liberals.

"I knew that this reprimand would mean nothing," Hall said. "I knew the public wouldn't care. I thought it was a compliment.

"I was just a political hit," he said. "I'm man enough to take it." The Associated Press contributed to this story.

A task force working to make sure Paintsville's business community doesn't suffer when the new stretch of Highway 23 opens will look first to three things:

*Lighting of the existing Highway 23/460 intersection possibly extending all the way there from the new highway; *Signage letting motorists know what the city has to

*Seeking advice from a marketing expert or spokesman from a city that has a successful track record under similar

It's predicted that at least a portion of the new highway may be open by the end of this month.

How the highway will affect Paintsville is the question of the day. Along what is now the Highway 23 bypass, Mayor Robin Cooper believes "...when you take the coal trucks and heavy traffic off, it will be more convenient and less hazardous." He said the "overcrowded" road with its "slowmoving, back-up traffic" keeps many people...away from stores that line the bypass.

Cooper believes promotional signs should start about 30 miles away from Paintsville "to get people thinking.

Also in the works is a city-leased three-acre tract near the new 23 Paintsville intersection that can be used for promotion, "It's very visible," Cooper said. - The Paintsville

Higher court reverses Barnes conviction

By a 5-2 margin, the state Supreme Court has reversed the conviction of Jack Barnes, who had been sentenced to 198 years in prison after being found guilty in 1994 of rape, sodomy and sexual abuse.

The ruling means Barnes will be retried on the charges in Johnson Circuit Court. The 48-year-old Barnes was convicted on charges December 8, 1994, for allegedly molesting his ex-wife's niece from the time she was a toddler until she was

But the Supreme Court ruled Thursday, August 29, that several errors were made by Judge James A. Knight and prosecutors required the case to be retried.

Barnes attorney in the appeal, Prestonsburg lawyer Ned, declined to comment on the court's reversal. - The Paintsville Herald

Supreme Court to rule on validity of EKR's contract

Members of Magoffin Countians for a Better Environment, and other interested local residents, including several elected officials, traveled to Frankfort recently to witness the latest round of a court battle with a landfill developer trying to construct a 300-acre landfill near Royalton.

The Florida-based developer, Bill Polan has been given another chance to save a controversial contract with Magoffin County.

An attorney for Eastern Kentucky Resources asked the Kentucky Supreme Court to reverse two lower court rulings that the contract is an illegally-granted franchise. But a Salyersville attorney representing the local citizens' group, said the contract was an illicit agreement, conceived in

A contract was negotiated without bidding or public notice in 1991 by then judge-executive, the late Charles Allen, who submitted it to the state for approval. The Magoffin Countians for a Better Environment filed suit to force Allen and the fiscal court to take a public vote. In June 1993, a special circuit judge ruled that the fiscal court broke the law by not advertising for bids. The Court of Appeals upheld the ruling last September.

The proposed landfill would have been one of the busiest landfills in Kentucky, handling 4,000 tons a day.

The justices did not indicate when a ruling would be made. - The Salyersville Independent

BOE ignores recommendations

During a special board meeting in August, the Magoffin

County Board of Education approved every staffing request that was included on the agenda, despite the superintendent's admonitions to stay within budget recommendations.

The action agenda for the meeting included requests from four principals for a total of seven teaching positions, two security monitors, an instructional assistant, and a clerk.

Superintendent Howard Wallace recommended two fulltime teaching positions, and two half-time positions, and a clerk, and a security monitor.

When asked by the board if they could afford to approve all the requests beyond those Wallace recommended, the superintendent said, "... We don't have funding for even one more teacher."

As his admonitions were continuously ignored and the board approved the funding, Wallace again warned, "You're putting yourselves in the red tonight...'

By creating the five extra teaching positions, the board spent in the area of $224,000. That is $156,000 more than was recommended by the superintendent. - The Salyersville Independent

According to Martin County Sheriff Darriel Young, Stepp was attempting to turn in the road so that she would be able to enter her driveway easier, when Dials hit her

When paramedics first arrived, they attempted to revive Stepp, but their efforts were futile. Martin County Deputy Coroner Maurice Mills pronounced Stepp dead at the Rescue crews were hampered in their efforts. Stepp's car was pinned against an embankment by the truck, and rescue workers couldn't extricate Stepp's body until the truck could be moved nearly two hours later. Another serious accident took place two days before this wreck just about two miles down the road.

High speed pursuit ends with arrest of two Martin County men

An ordinary road check conducted by the Martin County Sheriff's Department and Inez City Police became quite extraordinary when, at 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning, September 1, a man who was later charged with drunk driving, failed to stop.

Tracy Fannin, 24, of Johnson Bottom, who was driving a 1989 Dodge Daytona, was apprehended after leading police on a ten mile chase through some of Martin County's most treacherous roadways.

Sheriff's deputies chased Fannin from Inez, across Turkey Mountain, down KY. Rt. 292 to the mouth of Calf Creek in Martin County. During the pursuit, at least four unsuspecting motorists were run off the roadway, narrowly escaping a collision with the speeding driver.

Fannin struck the guardrail numerous times after crossing the lane being used by oncoming traffic. Fannin was taken into custody after abandoning the vehicle and leading police on a short foot race. Timmy Joe Hinkle, 29, of Columbus, Ohio, formerly of Calf Creek, was with Fannin. Both men were arrested and charged with public intoxication and disorderly conduct. Fannin received 12 citations for his involvement in the pursuit. - The Martin County

Former college financial officer sentenced for fraud

Bobby Price, 44, a former Pikeville College financial aid director, received a sentence Tuesday, September 3, to a year in prison and was ordered to pay back $220,000 in student loans he obtained by fraud.

Price, of Pikeville, admitted that he collected student loans from May 1991 to January 1996 through the use of fictitious names. Judge Joseph Hood will recommend that Price, due to a medical condition, serve his time at the Federal Medical Center in Lexington. -Appalachian News-Express

YMCA, city sign lease for skate park

With a five-year lease between the Pikeville City Commission and the Pikeville Area Family YMCA to be used for a skate park, Pikeville will be the state's first city to have such a park.

Commissioners voted Monday night, September 2, to grant an earlier request by the YMCA to lease the property where batting cages are currently located at the YMCA for a skate park and to be granted a longterm lease on the property.

The park will consist of an 140-square-foot slab of concrete with ramps, concession stand and a 1,000-foot track around it for beginner and novice skater. The park would provide a supervised environment for youth to participate in skate sports, such as in-line skating, skateboarding and BMX biking.

Construction will take about two months. The focus for the present will be raising $40,000 to $50,000, according to Dennis Roher, chairman of the YMCA board. The park would be under the management of the YMCA. — Appalachian News-Express

CARS SPEAK FOR THEMS

News of the Weird by Chuck Shepherd

— Sex offender registration laws, which permit towns to learn when a sex offender has been released from jail into their communities, have been criticized recently as interfering with offenders' ability to start new lives, but the main shortcoming of the laws in several states appears to be their ineffectiveness. Said an Illinois State Police spokesman in June, of the many bogus addresses on his state's register, "It's the responsibility of the offender to provide [accurate] information." In Arkansas, a state with at least 1,000 sex offenders behind bars at any one time, the register contains only 50 names, but a state police spokesman in June said the fault was the sex offenders' for not being responsible enough to register.

— 'Roid Rage: In July, police in Brooklyn, N.Y., accused Gail Murphy, 47, bedridden on her stomach while recovering from hemorrhoid surgery, of shooting her husband to death because he had gone on a six-hour fishing trip. Said a police investigator, "She felt that her husband didn't demonstrate that he cared for her on that particular day."

— Hillsborough County (Fla.) sheriff's deputies charged Jeffrey Alan McLeod, 29, with robbing a Chevron gas station in August, then fleeing. He was caught after a brief chase when his car ran out of gas. Said a sheriff's spokesman, "When you're going to rob a gas station ... you're supposed to fill up the tank before you rob the clerk."

COURTROOM ANTICS

— During a Tirana, Albania, divorce hearing in July, in which a man was contending that his wife beat him regularly over the course of their two-year union, the wife suddenly leaped at the man and beat him unconscious before she was restrained. The judge quickly granted the divorce.

— In June, a California appeals court ruled against defendant Thomas Keister, who had been charged with attempted lewd acts against two underage girls in San Bernardino County. The court made the ruling even though the victims and the defendant do not exist. The "victims" were fictional (part of a police sting to entice pedophiles), and Mr. Keister died last year.

— In July, Rhode Island Workers' Compensation Court Judge Debra Olsson awarded convicted murderer Antonino Cucinotta $18,500 in benefits. Cucinotta, a former Mafioso serving 60 years at an undisclosed prison as part of the federal Witness Protection Program, injured his head at a construction site in 1988 but was improperly cut off from benefits on the date of his arrest in 1994, rather than on the date of his conviction in 1995.

THINNING THE HERD

In June, a heavily suntan-oiled, 19-year-old man fell 10 stories to his death while "crabbing" (climbing from balcony to balcony) on a beachfront condominium in Panama City Beach, Fla. Two weeks later, in Barnstable, Mass., an 18-year-old man fell to his death while "car surfing" (standing atop a moving car). Also in June, at least 15 people dancing on the roofs of two buses enroute to an election rally near Dhaka, Bangladesh, were killed when the buses passed underneath high-voltage wires.

UPDATE

More Italian Justice: In August, Germano Maccari, freshly convicted of the 1978 murder of former Italian prime minister Aldo Moro, was released from jail pending his appeal, as is customary under Italian law. In March, the man who murdered an American during the Achille Lauro hijacking failed to return to his Italian prison following a 12-day furlough for good behavior. Last year, The Washington Post reported that members of a traveling prisoners' theatrical group in Italy used their performance disguises in bank robberies they pulled off while they were free between shows. And last

Seventeenth Annual Floyd County Slone Mountain Squirrel Festival

Many folks will be making their annual trek to the top of Slone Mountain near McDowell, on Sunday, September 8th, to attend the Floyd County Slone Mountain Squirrel Festival now in its seventeenth year.

The usual down-to-earth hospitality combined with the pleasant park-like atmosphere provides a perfect setting where people can gather to spend a day of old-fashioned family fun.

Lunchtime is probably the highlight of the day, but the arduous task of food preparation begins on Saturday afternoon. Many dedicated cooks work throughout the night, and when it is time to eat on Sunday at noon, there is plenty of home-cooked food for every one. The country cuisine consists of roast pig, roast beef, ribs, chicken and gravy, potatoes, green beans, soup beans, mustard greens, black-eyed peas, corn, sauerkraut, bread and Kool-Aid. Anyone who does not wish to brave the food line or does not like the menu, may choose to bring a picnic lunch to enjoy on the premises.

In addition to the food, there is always a varied program of entertainment. Several music groups play all day long, and the hillside makes a natural amphitheater where music lovers can sit on blankets or in folding chairs in front of one of the stages to enjoy their favorite country, Bluegrass, or gospel music.

The favorite among the children is the traditional games such as tug of war, greasy pole climb, greasy pig chase, hopscotch, egg catching, caver's crazy crawl, squirrel hunting safety game and the newly-added squirrel golf, squirrel-in-the-tree game, squirrel pilot relay, the squirrel sack race, and the traveling squirrels fasten-your-seatbelt game. Adults, on the other hand, have found the horseshoe pitching contest to be an important event, and many a former champion is given an opportunity to defend his/her title.

The craft area at the festival has become a relaxing place to browse and meet area craftsmen. Anyone who is interested in a handmade dulcimer, primitive chair, doll, quilt, hat, wooden figurines, a bar of old-fashioned lye soap, or a host of other handcrafted items can find it there.

The origin of the festival was the Slone-Cassell reunion approximately thirty-six years ago. It was then that Virginia Slone and her husband the late Helton Slone met with their families and several friends atop a mountain on their farm to enjoy a day of food and fellowship. As more people became interested in the yearly event, the couple decided to include the public in the celebration. Today, the old-fashioned family atmosphere remains, but the original small group has increased to thousands of folks throughout Kentucky and bor-

Oooh! that smarts

Forget everything you ever read about one gender being smarter than the other.

However, if you thank boys are smarter, you can think their mothers. According to a leading scientific journal, male children get their intelligence genes from their mothers while girls get one gene from each parent.

My sisters and I always suspected if we'd had more of Mom's genes and fewer of Dad's, we might have had higher IQs (Mom was an excellent student, while Dad attended school only to play sports and socialize.) But since our parents only had girls, we'll never know how smart a "brother" would have been.

On the other hand, Jean, my friend, can identify with this discovery. People have always told Jean that her son is exactly like her. Now we have scientific evidence to prove that this is true.

"Surie, you know how much Vann is like me," Jean announced. "Well, now I know why. It says in this magazine that boys get their intelligence from their

"What medical journal are you reading from, Jean?" I asked.

Smile

Awhile

Sara Hopson

"It's the Journal of American Medical Association, Enquirer Edition," Jean laughed. "But, Surie, the medical stuff is usually factual. Just wait and see. In a couple of days the news will be on the first page of the Star, too. Don't discount it. It does explain a lot about Vann."

"How's that?"

"Do you remember me telling you about being dance partners with Pat Riley when I was in college?"

"Do I! It really impressed me because I love Coach Riley. But what on earth does that have to do with Vann's intelligence? We don't have to discuss it if it's embarrassing or anything."

"Oh, Surie. It's nothing like that. It has to do with the time I told Vann about knowing Pat Riley and a little while later he said, "Mom, if you had married Pat Riley, Dad and I could have gotten tickets to the Lakers' games," Jean said, laughing hysterically. "Isn't that the funniest thing you ever heard?"

It took me a second to hone in on a couple of Mom's genes before I completely understood what Jean was talking about, and the implication that she was making. "Oh, yeah! It's really funny, but why can't you still get tickets to the Lakers' games anyway? I mean, if you know Pat Riley, and can't you just ask?"

"Earth to Sara. That's not the point. If I had married Pat Riley, Owen wouldn't have been his father. See?" "No, Pat Riley would have been his father, and you wouldn't have had to ask for tickets anyway. Right?"

"Surie, if I didn't know better, I'd think I was your mother, too," Jean laughed.

Just to humor Jean, I laughed along with her. But deep in my heart I knew that she was confused about a couple of things. First, the Enquirer is not one of your leading authorities on anything except for Jean Dixon's predictions. And, secondly, someone needs to tell her that Pat Riley is coaching the Knicks now.

One potato, two potato, three potato, four.

FBI is knockin' on your door.

The big news around these parts isn't about who might win the presidential election or even about who might win all those Powerball millions.

Nope, inquiring minds want to know where the G-men are going to light next.

They've already busted a county official in Floyd County; a county judge, two road workers and a used car salesman in Johnson County; and a couple of dopers in Pike County who also happened to be judges of criminals.

And to think, we went all those years with barely a glance from the feds, except all those revenours looking for moonshine stills.

Can't deny it, though, the U.S. government has established a presence in Eastern Kentucky that has them dishing out subpoenas as well as distributing food stamps.

The feds' obvious goal is to make a full frontal assault on public corruption...sometimes confused in our neck of the woods with public service...and everybody we know is waiting for the next shoe to drop and to see whose foot is in it.

The scary thing...at least for those who find themselves on the wrong side of the FBI's prying eyes...is that the Gmen are batting a thousand, so far, on their ratio of convictions to indictments in Eastern Kentucky.

Compare that to the state's average of .250 in Floyd County alone, and it wouldn't surprise us to see a whole bunch of crooks lining up to confess to Attorney General Ben Chandler, hoping they'll get a walk...or at least hit by a pitch...before they have to face the fed's ace relievers.

Hey, if Marge Schott had a staff like that, she wouldn't need to dig up Adolph Hitler to help fill up the blue seats at Riverfront.

Anyway, we're glad we're just a fan in the stands in this game. Those guys circled around playing one potato, two potato have to be getting real nervous about right now.

Critic's Corner

Jack

The word is, Robin Williams, this flick's headliner, is set to hang up his comedy shoes for good after this outing. I say, that's a shame. While there's no question that Williams is a brilliant actor, no matter what the genre, comedy is where he made his name and I don't believe he should give it up entirely. This very movie is testament to just what a loss this would be should Williams really eschew comedy forever. Be that as it may, let me tell you about this wonderful film.

Williams portrays Jack Powell, a 10-year-old kid with a very rare disorder which makes him age four times the normal rate of other kids. At 10, he looks 40. (Don't worry, folks, this is strictly a fictional disease.) Jack's parents, portrayed by Diane Lane and Brian Kerwin, are so concerned about their boy and how others would react to him, they keep him totally isolated, schooling him through a home tutor.

Eventually the Powells realize that Jack really does need to interact with other children so that he can learn how to deal with the real world. They enroll him in the fifth grade in a public school. Naturally, he doesn't fare well at the start. The girls in the class are particularly cruel. However, things start to change when classmate Louis (Adam Zolotin) picks Jack to be on his team for a basketball game during recess. Due to his size, Jack shines and finds he can use this to his advantage—finally.

Jack really enjoys the fifth grade and he gets to do things, such as buy his pals dirty magazines, or impersonate the principal on the phone to get one kid out of hot water, that endear him to his friends. All the same, you really believe that this is a 10-year-old kid trapped in a middle-aged body. Williams is simply phenomenal that way. He makes the incredible truly credible.

Ultimately, Jack suffers a bout of angina when he develops a crush on a teacher who, naturally, doesn't return his affections. While he once again withdraws from the world, he reaches the very mature conclusion that he can't hide from life altogether.

With a PG-13 rating, not all the kiddies in the family can go along. However, for the older ones, and for the adults, this flick is truly a romp!

But this time, the character is animated, and for the first time, the Hulk will actually speak. Ordinarily, this would not be a remarkable event. But it is remarkable when we consider that he'll be speaking—and also growling when the script calls for it—in Lou's voice.

Danny Stumbo featured in Truckin' magazine

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

While attending and showcasing his 1955 Chevy truck in a Tennessee car show last year, Martin's Danny Stumbo was surprised when Brian McCormick of Truckin' magazine approached him about featuring his unusual Chevy truck in the West Coast magazine.

"I just went to the show, and he came up to me and asked if he could take some pictures of the truck and do a story for his magazine," explained Stumbo, "That was last Stumbo was pictured as the "Super Trooper" in the October issue because he is also a Kentucky State Trooper.

"At the time he took the pictures, he didn't know I was a state trooper," Stumbo said. "When he went and looked at the registration form, he found out then I was a trooper."

Stumbo has been active in car shows for several years now and has been mostly involved in restoring street rods. He sold off his one street rod, but more than four years ago he decided to try his hand at building a '55 Chevy Truck that has become the talk of the shows.

"I haven't completely quit building the street rods," said Stumbo. "In fact I am looking now for a '36 or something in the '30s.'

Stumbo's Cream Red truck is not

Under the intense Cream Red The truck is a thing of beauty color Stumbo's wife, Ann, picked out, several modifications took place to make it a unique truck.

Stumbo said he shaved all the emblems and trim, smoothing the front and rear bumpers, and grafting wheel tubs and a metal bed floor inside the confines of the original steel bed sides.

"This truck had a wooden floor in it when I bought it," said Stumbo. "It was all but rotted out, so I put the steel floor in its place."

Stumbo placed a third brake light in the back of the truck's cab. "That didn't come that way," he pointed out. "I put it there for

The truck's original dash instruments gave way to a collection of VDO gauges installed into an aluminum panel.

According to Stumbo, a lot of work and a lot of help from several people went into rebuilding the truck.

"May Metal in Allen let me use their sandblasting equipment," he said. "The inside of the cab was painted by Herb Goble, and Dennis Osborne painted the frame. Jimmy "Fudd' Parsons did some welding for me, also. So several different people were involved in building this truck."

Prestonsburg returns to gridiron against Sheldon Clark

Sports Editor

Coach John Derossett's Prestonsburg Blackcats had a week to rest, come together and let some of their wounded heal. But the Blackcats will return to the football wars tonight when they travel to Sheldon Clark to face a Cardinal team that pulled off a stunning 14-12 win over East Carter last Friday

"They're off to a good start," said Coach Derossett about the Cardinals' victory. "We looked at some tapes, and they are a lot better team up front than last year. I'm impressed with their offense and numbers but they are a good football team.'

Grant Castle continues to be the lone wounded Blackcat as Jon Morris could return to the Blackcat backfield tonight.

"He has been working out in pads and taking some hits," said the Prestonsburg coach. "But it is doubtful if Jon will play against then we will play him. But we don't want to rush things.

Coach Derossett said he is hop-Prestonsburg hosts Whitesburg next Friday night.

Gary Fletcher (5'9", 170) will be at fullback. John Stafford (5'9", 150) will carry the football for Sheldon Clark. Stafford scored both touchdowns for the Cardinals last week versus East Carter. The Cardinals have a good one in Jason Jewell (5'10", 180).

The Prestonsburg coach thinks Sheldon Clark. If we need him, the wrestling program at Sheldon Clark has made a difference in the strength of the Cards. "They have a traditionally ing Castle will be able to return strong wrestling program over there," said the Blackcat mentor. "They are going to be tough to play against. If you look at the last five toughest opponents for Prestonsburg."

In '92 the game came down to who had the ball last in a Prestonsburg win. The '93 team, led by Seth Hyden, had problems in subduing the Cards with the Cats prevailing. In '94 the controversial field goal defeated Sheldon Clark and, last year, coach John Matney's team defeated the Blackcats. "Now it is not going to be an easy game," Derossett stated.

> KEYS TO A BLACKCAT WIN

"We have to contain them," said Coach Derossett. "We can't afford ing rain Friday night and, if that is true, then the football is going to be wet. That may favor us. But if it is on a dry track and, with their speed, it will be in their favor.

'They have Stafford, Jewel and Fletcher and all three come from football families. We know what the others did in the past." Just as in the Leslie County game, Derossett said the specialty teams become important.

"You know how I feel about our special teams," he said. "What kind of field position we leave them in depends on our coverage on punts and kickoffs."

Derossett said he doesn't expect Back doing the play-by-play.

Sheldon Clark to throw the football that much.

"We watched last week against East Carter and they ran 46 plays and passed once and lost the snap on another," said Derossett. "I think this will be a good matchup for our line. We don't have great speed but up front we can get the job done."

It will be a young Sheldon Clark team that takes the field against Prestonsburg tonight. The Cards have but seven seniors and 16 freshmen on a roster of 39 players.

Game time is set for 7:30 p.m., and the game will be aired over WQHY with Jim Allen and Joe

Strong South Floyd defense to test Betsy Layne's young offensive line

Sports Editor

The South Floyd Raiders and Betsy Layne Bobcats will not be close in similarities when coach Randall Hager's team travels to Brackett Field in Wheelwright for a big county matchup. The Raiders have more depth than the Betsy Layne club, but Coach Donnie Daniels is not taking all that lightly because he has been on the other side of the spectrum as

"Betsy Layne is not that bad of a football team," he said. "They have got some good players."

Betsy Layne is coming off a poor offensive night against Magoffin County last Friday night where the only bright spot was a 67-yard touchdown run by Craig Hamilton. The Bobcats had trouble moving the football against the front line of the Hornets.

However, the defense had some bright spots, and the 26-8 final score would have been more respectable had there not been a breakdown in the defense at the end of the second quarter and midway of the third period.

"Our defense looked good at times," said Coach Hager. "We did have trouble moving the football against them."

Coach Daniels said it is a matter of making an adjustment to a new coach at Betsy Layne before the Bobcats start to jell. Maybe it is a good thing the Raiders are facing the Bobcats in only the second game of the season. He said he has instructed his team not to take them

"Tackle to tackle, they are a better group of linemen than what we saw last Friday against Shelby Valley," said the South Floyd coach. "(Craig) Hamilton is an excellent runner. He runs the football hard and when he gets the ball, he finds the hole.' South Floyd is coming off an impressive defensive game in the Family Bank Bowl at Shelby Valley last week. Ketrin Mays made it look easy with 225 yards rushing and two touchdowns. The Raiders' longest drive was a 99-yard jour-

"We have a group of kids that doesn't know the word quit," said the South Floyd coach. "They are ready to play football every game."

Coach Daniels said the Raiders must keep the Bobcats inside and let their pursuit take over. "Our defense at Shelby Valley was really good," said the Raider mentor, but he had a warning for his "I told them not to go out there and think they have it won," he said. "Anything can happen, and they need to be ready. They can't go out there overconfident.

Coach Daniels said that though his defense is where he expected it to be, the offense is still struggling.

"That will come," he said. "Our offense is not polished real good. But we are going to get better."

Daniels said that his team is not a big club, and the size of Betsy Layne could cause them some

"When we line up Friday night, they could give us some problems,' said the Raider mentor.

Bruce Herdman returns to (re)take helm at Morgan County

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Remember "The Return of the Pink Panther?" Or how about "Batman Returns?" Well here is a new one -"Herdman Returns" and it's not a sequel.

Former Morgan County coach Bruce Herdman has returned to head up the Cougars' football program that had fallen on hard times under former coach Terry Chinn.

The Cougars finished a dismal 1-9 last year and their only win came against winless Powell County in last year's final game.

Herdman is the only coach to take the Cougars to the playoffs, and he may have to wait a couple of years before making a return trip.

The Cougars have the numbers out this year with the return of Herdman as 62 players dot the team's roster, probably requiring four buses to transport the students. However, the Cougars have only seven seniors on this season's squad, and inexperienced players could be a problem.

Last week, Morgan County was forced to forfeit its opening game nurse a broken hand and Mark against Lawrence County on the road. The reason was the change of coaches and only 19 players on the team at the time. The contract between the two schools would have expired after this season and, after last year's 72-6 beating to the Bulldogs, the game was forfeited this season.

Allen Central comes off a 16-0 win over Elkhorn City last week and the Rebels' defense was outstanding, forcing seven Cougar turnovers. But Allen Central coach Glenn Reeves is cautiously approaching the competition.

'They are not going to be a push over," he said. "They have some good possibilities. They like to run the reverse (Herdman trademark), and it is going to be a tough game."

The game may be a battle, but Coach Reeves realizes the importance of coming home with a win.

"This is a game we have to have," he said. "It's a district game, and we need to put it in the win column. Morgan County likes to do a lot of stuff."

Back Beau Tackett continues to Varney is still on the mend from knee surgery, but the rest of the Rebel pack seems ready to play.

"We had some hit with the flu bug," said the Allen Central coach. "We've got (Thomas) Jenkins, (Eric) Moore and (Steve) Hamilton sick, but all three are expected to play Friday night."

Allen Central will go with the same backfield that opened against Elkhorn City, Gordon Reeves, who rushed for 190 yards last Friday, will be at tailback, while Josh Reeves runs at the fullback position. Mike Goble will be the other Rebel back.

Quarterback Shane Blackburn learned to be patient against the rush, and had a good second half against Elkhorn City passing for close to 100 yards. Jenkins, Hamilton and Goble will be the targets for Blackburn.

saw of them in a scrimmage," said Coach Reeves. "They will play straight up on defense. They will throw the ball. They are not afraid

Chris Daniels (6', 165, junior) will be under center for the Cougars. Coach Herdman has not decided on a backfield and says it will not be decided until game time tonight. However, senior Shawn Ison (5'11", 160) and Jon Lykins (6'2", 195) will be the first picks to carry the ball.

The Allen Central coach liked the way his defense performed last week and hopes they play with the same intensity.

"We wanted to win last week." he said. "We had a lot of heart. The turnovers Elkhorn City had were forced turnovers, and I hope our kids can repeat that performance."

Taking care of the football will be a must for the young Cougar backfield against a veteran and experienced line such as Allen

Joint Commission standards deal with organiza-Such request should be addressed to:

Organization Liaison Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations

> One Renaissance Boulevard Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181

The Joint Commission will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform the organization of the request for any interview. The organization will, in turn, notify the interviewee of the date, time, and place of the meeting.

If no answer, please leave message.

The Joint Commission of Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations will conduct an accreditation survey of this organization on September 24th and 25th, 1996. The purpose of the survey will be to evaluate the organization's compliance with nationally established Joint Commission standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether, and the conditions under which accreditation should be awarded the orga-tional quality of care issues and the safety of the environment in which care is provided. Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about such matters may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representatives at the time of the survey. Information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance to the accreditation process. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing and should be sent to the Joint Commission no later than five (5) working days before the survey begins. The request must also indicate the nature of the information to be provided at the interview.

How To Get Rid Of Your

Wrinkles

by Steven B. Snyder, M.D., P.A., Dermatology Laser Center, Owings Mills, Maryland

(NAPS)-You have probably been bombarded with "solutions" to your "wrinkle" problem. What are we to believe? Of course, because we all are different, no one treatment form is going to work the same for everyone. Here are some points to consid-

THE SUN First, and foremost, the sun is your skin's worst en-emy. No matter how good you feel basking under the rays, repeated exposures to the sun cause up to 80 percent of the aging changes in the skin. Make sure you're protected by sunscreen SPF#30 when you leave your house.

SKIN CARE PROD-UCTS Forget about antiaging cosmetic products that claim to feed your skin collagen or elastin fibers. The collagen and elastin molecules are just too big to penetrate and bond with the skin.

One much talked-about product is Ethocyn, which claims to enhance the body's natural ability to produce elastin fibers. Clinical studies with skin biopsies and computer imaging analyses have shown a dramatic 100 percent increase in elastic tissue after just two months of daily use. My patients report smoother, firmer and less wrinkled skin, especially around eyes and lips. No problem with sun sensitivity or use in combination with other skin products, but you have to keep using it to maintain the benefit. Available without a prescription at drug stores, dermatologist offices or by phone order (800) 254-

CHEMICAL PEELS Over-the-counter Alphahydroxyacids (AHA's), used daily, may help decrease fine wrinkling by reducing the thickness of the outer dead layer of the skin. Higher concentrations of AHA's used in treatments by your physiimprove tone and texture. But don't expect deeper lines, prominent skin folds or sagging to benefit significantly by AHA's. Some will experience irritation. Caution should be used by persons with sen-MEDICINE Clearly, some people are experiencing benefits in reducing fine wrinkling, improving skin roughness and mottled pigmentation with Renova (a formulation of Retin-A). At least four to six months of daily use of Renova is needed before results become Because noticeable. Renova produces a thinning of the very outer layer of your skin, the skin becomes more sensitive to the sun and to irritation. Pregnant women and persons taking medications that may increase sun sensitivity should avoid this product. Available by prescription only. SURGERY resurfacing (Ultrapulse CO2 laser) has become and important part of my practice for patients who want dramatic results quickly. It can remove many fine and deep wrinkles while tightening the skin and stimulating collagen production. Ask to see "before and after" photos and talk to patients your laser surgeon has treated before deciding.

Plastic surgery with face-lifts can dramatically improve sagging jowls, excess skin and wrinkled cheeks, but doesn't really help the vertical lip lines which are best treated by laser resurfacing.

When considering your skin care choices, ask questions to feel confident of your doctor or pharmacist's recommendations. Be fully aware of any side cian may also stimulate effects and have realistic the production of collagen expectations. Let your in your skin and help to common sense be your ultimate guide.
