Former bus driver indicted for rape

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A former Floyd County school bus driver was indicted Tuesday by a Floyd County grand jury for 11 sex-related crimes involving an underage female.

Fred Bingham, 48, of Prestonsburg, is charged with three counts of third degree rape; two counts of third degree sodomy; and six misdemeanor counts of distributing obscene materials to minors.

Bingham is accused of having sex with the girl from April through December 1996, and on April 7, 1996. Bingham is also accused of sending the girl sexually explicit letters on February 26, 1996; October 1, 1996; October 12, 1996; January 16, 1996; January 17, 1996; and on January 24, 1996.

After Bingham was charged in February, he was suspended from his job as bus driver and he was later fired.

Also a former Floyd County man, charged with sexually molesting a female relative almost 23 years ago, was indicted by the grand jury. The sealed indictment was issued last month.

Dickie Martin, 58, of Somerset, formerly of Garrett, is charged with first degree sexual abuse.

In a May preliminary hearing, the woman testified that Martin had sexually molested her when she was 11 years old at Garrett.

The woman said Martin promised to show her how to fish when he allegedly molested her.

That indictment was sealed pending Martin's arrest, but the arresting officer, Kentucky State Police detective Bobby Johnson, declined to seek an arrest warrant for Martin.

Other indictments issued Tuesday:

• Charles F. Hackworth, 38, of Prestonsburg, is charged with second degree assault for allegedly choking and beating Janet L. Hackworth on May 22, 1997.

• Danny Castle, 28, of Drift, is charged with first degree stalking for allegedly stalking Roberta Fugate from August 1996 through May 1997. Castle is also charged

Hearing on appeal of AG ruling is set

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An August 27 hearing has been set to hear an appeal of a state attorney general's opinion which declared three April school board meetings were illegal.

Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill set the hearing date Tuesday.

In May, school board member Eddie Patton informed board members that special meetings held on April 4, April 26 and April 28, were illegal because he was not notified of those meetings in writing, 24-hour prior, as required under the state's Open Meetings Laws.

Martin is up to its neck in sewer troubles with EPA

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Martin City Council, apparently more fearful of public protest than a state takeover, declined to vote Monday to increase city sewer rates.

City officials also have to address, by August 1, two notices of violations by state environmental officials for sewer related problems, which are likely to cost the city thousands of dollars it doesn't have.

Council members Rick Caudill, Thomasine Robinson and Hazel Robinson refused to offer a second to a motion to approve council's June meeting minutes, in which first reading of an ordinance to raise sewer rates was held.

Mayor Alan Whicker called several times for a second to Councilman Everett Akers' Jr. motion to approve the minutes. The three sat tight-lipped and the motion failed.

After second reading of the ordinance, which would raise rates 14-cents per each 2,000 gallons of water used and 30-cents for each additional 1,000 gallons of water usage, the three council members refused to second Akers' motion to adopt the rate hikes.

Thomasine Robinson and Caudill said they would like to find other ways to generate funds for the department rather than raise the rates.

Board backs off but Davis swings away

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The Floyd County Board of Education apparently has backed-off from filing formal charges against superintendent Gene Davis, but Davis seems to be waging his own war against some of its members.

At Thursday's special school board meeting, board members and Davis met behind closed doors to discuss several questions from the board, which included Davis' staffing allocations for schools; his

Suit alleges teachers were misled

Ten retired school teachers have sued the Floyd County Board of Education and superintendent Gene Davis, claiming the board misrepresented an early retirement incentive accepted by the teachers.

The plaintiffs also claimed they have been discriminated against because of their ages under an alleged board policy concerning the hiring of substitutes.

The civil complaint, filed Tuesday by Alicia Hughes, Jerry Diane Comstock, Doris Robinson, Anne L. Howard, Sandra Branham, Judy F. Slone, Mary Scinta, Joyce P. Stevens, Frank McGuire Jr. and Aleene Brown, seeks unspecified compensatory and punitive damages.

The plaintiffs allege that they were induced into early retirement in an offer from the board which promised them $25,000 over and above their normal retirement benefits.

The complaint says the teachers accepted the offer in 1996 under assurances from the board that it would never be offered again but, the plaintiffs contend a similar offer was made in April 1997.

The group suggests in the suit that, had plaintiffs known the offer would be made in ensuing years, they would not have retired so alleged failure to reduce certified staff in the district; giving central office, transportation and maintenance employees April 3 and 4 off with pay; paying employees for work not performed; why state approval was not sought prior to hirings for the 1997-98 school year; and an alleged improper disposition of board property.

The board returned to open session and made no comments on the session.

Prior to Davis joining the board in closed session, he distributed a four-page response to a list of questions by the board, which surfaced last week.

Davis read his full response and interjected a few questions of his own, aimed at board members. He said he was giving the audience his responses first because the questions had been first given to the media.

"I feel like three board members have been very unethical in handling this by putting out removal charges against me before I knew anything about it," Davis said. "I think that's a pretty dirty way to do a person."

In answering a question concerning reassignment of personnel whose jobs were abolished at Floyd County Technical High School, Davis asked, "Can school board members direct the superintendent and SBDM (site-based decision making) councils on personnel assignments?"

Davis did not elaborate on the issue during the meeting and left immediately after the meeting adjourned. The superintendent was in Frankfort on Tuesday and could not be reached for further comment.

After the meeting, board member Eddie Patton denied there has been any attempt by him to influence hirings. Other board members left the meeting after it adjourned.

Board members have implied, in the list of questions to Davis, that SBDM councils did not receive the staffing patterns requested.

Domestic violence rises with the temperature

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

When temperatures rise tempers flare, but this year things are hotter than normal on both counts.

Although caseworkers say it is not uncommon for there to be an increase in domestic violence cases during the summer because of the heat, the statistics for June and July have practically skyrocketed.

Helen Bowen, a caseworker with the Floyd County Sheriff's Domestic Violence Unit, said Monday that she has noticed an extremely heavy caseload of domestic violence complaints over the last two months.

"During the spring, we had sort of an easy caseload," Bowen said, adding that the number of complaints more than doubled in the last two months.

"It heats up and so do relationships," Linda Hutchinson, a caseworker for the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, said Monday.

Hutchinson said there has also been an increase in the number of people who seek protection at the shelter in June and July.

She said the cause for the increase in the number of victims seeking protection at the shelter is most likely because school is out and victims don't have to be concerned with removing their children from school.

Floyd District Judge James R. Allen said he has also noted a recent increase in the number of domestic violence cases in the courtroom.

(See Rises, page two)

Power outages over the weekend affected approximately 1,000 Floyd County customers and numerous motorists. The outages left some customers without electricity for more than ten hours over a three-day period, and a stop sign had to be placed at the Allen traffic lights because of the outages. An American Electric Power representative said Tuesday the outages occurred because a transformer was apparently hit by lightning Saturday. She said the transformer has been temporarily replaced by a mobile unit.

Board

days off work with pay in April. Davis' response was, "historically, precedents have been set by former superintendents, Ray Brackett, Steve Towler, etc. (giving those classified employees two days off in April)."

Davis posed the question, "should classified personnel never be entitled to a day?" He told the audience those workers had asked for the two days off to be combined, instead of being taken on two consecutive Fridays.

The board also wanted to know why former finance director Gary Parsons and operations chief Jim Osborne were not assigned any duties during their last 30 days on the job. Parsons and Osborne were not allowed to work out of the central office and were told their duties were to be performed from their homes.

Davis said the two were "assigned duties during their last month of employment." He did not elaborate on his answer.

Last week, Parsons told The Floyd County Times that he was never assigned any duties after he was told to work at home.

"I called in every day to see what needed to be done," Parsons said. "I was never given any duties."

Osborne, who attended Thursday's meeting, declined to comment on the issue, citing a pending lawsuit against the board and Davis.

Rises

"It does appear that we've had an unusually large number of domestic violence cases," Judge Allen said Monday.

The judge said although some of the cases tend to work themselves out, or the complaining witnesses don't want to prosecute, the court issues a three-year order of no unlawful contact between the two parties.

Bowen said it is not uncommon for there to be an increase in domestic violence cases during the summer and winter months and during holidays, but the increase is higher than normally.

She said the abnormal increase is not only because of the heat, but also because of the community's involvement by keeping the victims aware that there is help for them.

Deputies with the sheriff's department have been attending training sessions on how to handle domestic incidents and what information to give to the victims, Bowen said.

Bowen added that attorneys have also begun sending victims to the unit for support and information about services available.

"At last we're all trying to work together," Bowen said. "The more community awareness and the more jointly we work together — we are saving lives."

Bowen said there is still a major problem with handling domestic violence cases — getting the perpetrator served with court papers.

"The officers do try to do their jobs, but sometimes it's difficult because the perpetrators run from the law or their families hide them out," Bowen said.

For more information about services available for victims, contact the Floyd County Sheriff's Domestic Violence Unit at (606) 889-0511; or the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center at (606) 886-6025 or toll-free at 1-800-649-6605.

soon. By accepting the board's alleged assurance of a one-time incentive, the plaintiffs claim they have lost salary income, payment for extended days, sick leave, extended school services and increased retirement benefits.

In a second allegation, the teachers claim they have been denied the opportunity to substitute teach in the system, alleging the board "instituted a policy" to hire only those substitutes "under the age of forty."

All of the plaintiffs are above that age, and claim the policy violates state laws prohibiting age discrimination.

The group seeks a jury trial. Superintendent Gene Davis was in Frankfort Tuesday and unavailable for comment on the suit.

A civil suit complaint lists only the plaintiffs' cause of action

The board is also concerned because the district no longer has a personnel director and if the person acting in that position has "breached the confidentiality" of applicants because of access to those files. The board also wanted to know if it was proper to assign someone to that position since it was abolished.

The board voted, at an illegal meeting on April 28, to abolish that position, but it maintains the action was valid until a court ruling is issued on whether the meeting was valid.

Davis conceded the meeting was illegal by saying in his statement that because board member Eddie Patton obtained an attorney general's (AG's) opinion declaring the meeting illegal, the AG's ruling invalidated "this abolished position."

The superintendent contradicted himself saying, "since the position of service learning/administrative assistant was abolished in a special meeting... it only affected a small portion of this person's assigned duties." He said the position was properly filled because the Family Resource Center/Youth Service Center director position cannot be abolished under federal law.

While addressing the disposition of board property, in particular the Spradlin Branch School, which was declared surplus at the April 28 meeting which Davis admitted was illegal, Davis cited board orders to have the property appraised and sold.

The property was sold on June 30 to Gary and Sandra Branham, with a provision the old school be given to the Auxier Historical Society, whose president is board chairman Ursal Ray Wilcox. The board had discussed what to do with the old school building, but made no decision on its disposition.

Davis said state officials knew about the property sale. State officials said last week they were unaware the school building was to be given to the historical society and that Wilcox was its president.

On the issue of staffing, Davis said continuing contracts are in effect for certified personnel with tenure and that no classified personnel have been assigned at the schools. He said school councils decided the needs at each school and those jobs were posted. He said he had not created any classified positions and filled them. The superintendent added that state officials have said the superintendent can adjust staffing allocations based on student population.

Davis did point fingers at board members Patton and Ray Brackett, and former superintendent John Balentine.

"During Mr. Brackett and Eddie Patton's tenure as school board members, with superintendent Balentine in charge of personnel, it is my understanding that the following transfer of classified personnel occurred," Davis said. He said two secretaries, a bookkeeper and a receptionist had been transferred to other positions.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Trials and tribulations

by Scott Perry

This newspaper has a long-standing policy that the victims of alleged sexual crimes will not be identified.

We usually take many precautions to adhere to that policy, including close editing of news accounts, for the singular purpose of protecting victims from the obvious embarrassment associated with such cases.

But this is a small town where everyone knows everyone and often our attempts to censor ourselves prove fruitless.

In the report of a recent case, for which we have received a number of anonymous letters of criticism, we have been accused of compounding the victims' pain by publishing the testimony of the accused, who attempted to defend himself by making some embarrassing accusations of his own.

Whether that criticism is deserved or not is a matter of opinion, but we accept it.

And, we have printed one of those unsigned letters this week, despite our policy which requires signatures on letters, to demonstrate our willingness to accept the responsibility for what we print.

We aren't martyrs, but if it helps ease their suffering, those who feel aggrieved by our reporting may sound off to us as they please.

And, if it helps, we are truly and deeply hurt by some of the insinuations and accusations our critics make.

We aren't machines, we're people. We have feelings, too.

We wade through the blood of teen-agers killed in needless accidents; we cringe at the scenes of horrendous murders; we are sickened by the details of child abuse and angered by the acts of needless violence.

We see those things more than most because it is our job to shed some light on the darker side of life.

And because we must do so without letting our feelings show, you think we have none.

Each day we take your calls, read your letters and accept your claims that we are hurtful, heartless monsters who care for nothing but selling papers.

Then each night we dream of the bodies we've seen, the cries that we've heard and the anguish that we've felt...and we wish for just a moment that you were right.

Writer expresses criticism of Times news coverage

Editor's note: It is standard policy at this paper to reject any unsigned letters to the editor but, because this letter is critical of the Times' news coverage, it is being published without a signature. ASP/III

Editor:

If you print this in your paper it will sure surprise me.

You know, it's a shame in this country of ours that a criminal is given more rights than a victim. When a person comes up accused of a crime, then the paper must print that this person is alleged of that crime, but when that person is convicted of that crime or even a lesser crime, which is still associated to the original crime, the press can come back and print a lie about the victims and nothing can be done about it, just became a now convicted felon, not to mention a previously convicted felon made that accusation just to throw the jury off the suspicion of himself.

Thank God that the 12 jurors on the panel could tell the truth from a lie and gave this person what they felt was right. Your writer on the other hand, tried to make victims of victims all over again, but we have true friends also who know a truth from a lie.

I just hope you can sleep at night, because your writer showed no compassion for us and any other victims they might have did this to. If you did this to sell more papers, I think your paper really suffered a black eye from all this, and I hope you don't destroy children and their relatives from speaking out about crimes like this.

I looked at things this way, because we won at least part of the battle, the streets are now safe from one less perpetrator, and who knows, the next victim might of been your child, and I hope that never happens to you.

I guess, by now, you can figure out which story I am referring to, and if you had any conscience you would make a front page apology just like where the hurtful remarks were made. Because we have all survived as a family, regardless of the outcome, we are not survivors and not victims, and we made more people aware of a rapidly growing problem; but much more, we showed them there is no shame in speaking out about it.

Thank you.

Writer cites dislike for Thunder Ridge treatment

Editor:

I am Jimmy D. Hall from McDowell. I would like the people of Floyd County to know how the staff and management of Thunder Ridge Race Track at Prestonsburg treat people. I can prove everything I am saying in this letter. My son, Jimmy David Hall, driver of US23, and my nephew, Mikey Hall, driver of M23, are both in the Bomber division at Thunder Ridge.

In the rule book it states that if any car goes into a pit that isn't theirs and starts a fight, that driver shall be suspended for the year. A certain car came to my son's pit and hit my son's car in the rear end and knocked a woman to the ground that was just walking by. The result of this was a suspension of my son for two weeks, and the other car was supposed to be suspended for the rest of the year, but that car was permitted to return the same time we were.

The night of the Thunder Ridge 100 all of the drivers in the bomber class paid $30 per person just to get into the pits. The officials at T.R. never told the drivers in the Bomber class that they wouldn't get to qualify that night until they had already paid to get into the pits. The officials claimed that they let the computer randomly pick the order in which the cars in the Bomber would start. When the Bomber feature finally started, they were permitted to run three laps under the green flag and the checkered flag was thrown because the officials said that the time limit had expired. This was the last race of the night. The same night they put a time limit on the Bomber class is also the night they said they would start the Thunder Ridge 100 at 11 p.m. sharp, and that they "would wait on no one." This was said at 10:41 p.m. and it wasn't until 11:23 p.m. that the first lap was run. The Bombers could have used this time to qualify for the feature, or even run it.

The weekend of June 27, the track officials waited until Mikey Hall had qualified and then told him that he was illegal and couldn't race. The car that Mikey had was the same car he had raced for three weeks straight and nothing was said. After finding out he was illegal, he told the official that he would change it. But on Monday evening, Barry Profit, the promoter at Thunder Ridge, calls Jimmy David, my son, and Mikey, and said that they were both suspended for the year. Mikey, they said, was suspended because he was illegal, but their inspectors should have seen that Mikey was illegal. They suspended Jimmy David because they alleged he elbowed a security guard. When this was supposed to have happened, Jimmy David was on the track, racing. The security guards are the ones that should be suspended for their attitude toward the fans and drivers.

The person who elbowed the security guard did not come to the races with me and is not a pit crew member of my son's car. So anyone in the crowd could elbow someone and they will suspend my car for next year, also.

Delay in redistricting arouses writer suspicion

Editor:

It appears that the voters of Floyd County are being dragged down the primrose path again. Although our people overwhelmingly voted out the magistrate form of county government in November 1996, Floyd County will not be re-districted into the three commissioner districts until December 1997, just 30 days before the commissioner candidates filing date, and four short months before the May primary election.

So, anyone interested in running for the office of commissioner won't know which district he would represent until 13 months after the November 1997 election, and 30 days before he must file for office. And, of course, this gives the candidate four short months in the dead of winter to campaign, bring his name before the public for recognition, and to explore different themes and priorities for the fiscal year.

It doesn't take Sherlock Holmes to figure out who

by Scott Perry

We're back from our annual pilgrimage south, where we spend large sums of money to get our feet sunburned.

Of course our larger purpose for baring our digits was to dispel those myths that we hillbillies never wear shoes, and we accomplished that mission quite nicely with our display of ankle to toe whiteness.

After toasting our toes for a week, we can't wear shoes now but, sacrifices must be made. Pass the vinegar, please.

When worlds collide...

All jokes aside, we did manage, in an accidental tourist sort of way, to change one person's impression of Eastern Kentucky.

While fishing off a pier one evening, we struck up a conversation with a fellow fisherman, who was catching crabs with a basketful of chicken livers.

Recognizing our inimitable manner of speech, he asked from which part of Eastern Kentucky we were from, and we replied, asking if he was familiar with the area.

"Yes," he said. "I'm from Greeneville, Tennessee."

In case you didn't know, that's the town where six youths from our area are going on trial for the grisly murders of a Tennessee father, mother and child.

After talking a while longer, noting the odd coincidence of our meeting, he admitted that the murders had soured his impression of folks from our area.

Then, as he dropped his basket back into the surf he said, "you know, when you drop this thing to the bottom, you don't always pull up what you expect."

A point well made. ...And understood.

This debate over whether farmers should be allowed to grow industrial hemp as an alternative crop has sparked some pretty emotional opposition from folks who fear it will lead to an increase in the production of marijuana, hemp's intoxicating cousin.

While there may be some well-founded concerns about how to distinguish one plant from the other, it seems logical that the state agriculture department could devise a process for supervising hemp production.

It is reasonably safe to assume that hemp farmers would grow their crops in plain sight, and regulating production through permits and inspections could easily separate the good weeds from the bad.

The penalties for growing marijuana can be extreme and we just don't see dope growers exposing themselves and their property to confiscation by trying to pass their pot crops off for industrial hemp.

Maybe we're naïve about the drug culture, but those folks don't stay in business long by being stupid.

The prospects for legalizing industrial hemp should be investigated carefully and objectively.

Wise decisions are rarely made on the basis of emotion.

Some folks think we ought to go a step farther and just legalize marijuana altogether, regulate it and tax it like we do liquor, wine and beer.

We are, after all, spending billions upon billions of tax dollars every year to eradicate pot from our culture, making little headway in the process. Might even be going the other way.

Before you start writing those nasty letters, we aren't advocating legalization, we're just discussing the rationale adopted by some for proposing it.

While that rationale may be quite reasonable, the moral implications will continue to dictate the outcome of this debate.

The prevailing opinion is that the war on drugs may be a lost cause, and an expensive one, too, but it's the good fight.

And that's all that matters.

Look's like we missed a major event while we were away on vacation.

Kentucky has grown. In his welcoming address at the Bluegrass State Games, Governor Paul Patton noted the event had participants from all 122 state counties.

Before we left, there were 120 counties in Kentucky.

Okay, okay. It was probably just a slip.

Surely Patton, who has vowed to be governor for "all of Kentucky," knows how many counties all of Kentucky includes.

Given his determination to prove he's not a "regional" governor, though, he needs an occasional reminder that our counties are still part of the total, whatever the number may be.

Combs jailed after pleading guilty

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Former state Supreme Court Justice Dan Jack Combs' oldest son, Alfred Ghent Combs, was escorted to jail Tuesday after he pleaded guilty to two driving-under-the-influence charges in Floyd District Court.

Combs, 18, of Betsy Layne, was fined nearly $500 and sentenced to 8 days in the county jail for one of the charges — which was amended to a second-offense DUI because of a prior conviction in Bath County.

According to court records, Combs' blood-alcohol (BA) level was .116. Drivers are considered to be under the influence of alcohol with a .10 BA or above.

In December 1996, Combs was arrested by KSP trooper John Hunt on that charge and numerous other traffic violations. During his arraignment last year, he pleaded guilty to operating on a suspended license, no registration plates and no registration receipt.

He was fined $200 and ordered to pay court costs on those charges.

Combs also pleaded guilty Tuesday to another DUI charge under the zero-tolerance law, which applies to persons under 21 years of age.

The second DUI charge resulted from an incident on December 15, 1995 when Combs was cited by trooper Johnny Slone.

Court records indicate that Combs had a .02 BA level when he was arrested.

Assistant county attorney Lance Daniels said Tuesday that Combs' charge applied to the zero-tolerance law because of his age and low BA level. Daniels explained that regardless of a driver's age, the zero-tolerance law does not apply if the BA level is above the legal limit.

Floyd District Judge James R. Allen presided over Tuesday's court proceeding, although he recused himself from a case last year on drug-related charges against Combs' father, Dan Jack Combs Sr., and his younger brother, Dan Jack Combs Jr.

Judge Allen stepped down from the case last year after Combs Sr. alleged the charges were politically motivated. The judge denies any judicial impropriety.

Clarification

The outline for the photograph of an accident last Wednesday on Town Branch Road may have indicated to some readers the driver of a Ford Ranger caused the accident. The outline indicated the Ford Ranger collided with the vehicle and caused it to go over an embankment. The outline should have stated that the other vehicle went over the embankment after the two cars collided.

Ferrell free on bond

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

A Harold man charged with sodomy and sexual abuse of a child under 12 years of age was released from custody less than 24 hours after his arrest.

Quinley R. Ferrell, 42, was arrested by KSP detective Bobby Johnson and charged with first degree sodomy and first degree sexual abuse.

According to court records, Ferrell allegedly "subjected another person to sexual contact" and "engaged in deviate sexual intercourse (with) a person less than 12 (years of age)."

The alleged incident occurred on July 1, according to court records.

Floyd District Judge James R. Allen entered not-guilty pleas to Ferrell's felony charges Tuesday during his arraignment, and a preliminary hearing is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. August 6.

Ferrell was released Tuesday afternoon from the Floyd County Adult Detention Center after he posted a $10,000 partially-secured bond.

The incident is still under investigation by Det. Johnson.

Editor's note: The Floyd County Times does not identify the victims of alleged sexual crimes.

Appeal

Superintendent Gene Davis responded to Patton that he was not obligated to notify him in writing, and that he had attempted to contact him on those occasions. He said his secretary, Linda Wallen, had left messages on Patton's answering machine informing him of the special meetings.

Patton appealed Davis' response to the attorney general's office, which determined those meetings were illegal because 24-hour written notice was not provided to Patton prior to the meetings.

On July 9, attorney Dan Rowland, who is not the school board attorney and was hired at one of the illegal April meetings as a conflict attorney, filed an appeal in Floyd Circuit Court. Board members instructed board attorney Jerry Patton to appeal the AG's decision at a special June 30 meeting.

In the board's appeal, Rowland asks that the AG decision be reversed because it could lead to a state takeover of the school system. The decision of the Kentucky Attorney General should be reversed because the Floyd County Board of Education acted in an effort to comply with the directives and state policy of the Kentucky Department of Education, and the decision of the Attorney General, if not reversed, will work an undue hardship on the Appellants, and the decision may necessitate that the Floyd County Board of Education and the Floyd County Schools be taken over by the Kentucky Department of Education if the decision of the Attorney General is not reversed," the appeal says.

The appeal also alleges that Patton had no legal grounds to challenge actions taken at special meetings on April 4, April 26 and April 28, because he approved minutes of those meetings, and that Patton, when chairman of the board, notified members of meetings by telephone.

Former board attorney Phil Damron has said Patton did not notify members of meetings by phone. Damron said board members were called to see if they could meet on a certain date.

Whether Rowland is properly authorized to represent the board in the appeal is not clear.

Corey Bellamy, a spokesman for the AG's office has said that it would be up to the courts to decide "whether or not this attorney is a part to the appeal."

will benefit from this schedule of events. It seems simply as an attempt to keep at least three of the present magistrates on the fiscal court, and the same people in control of our county. And, of course, it seems an attempt to defeat the will of the people who voted to turn the magistrates out of office by a two-to-one majority.

Over the past months, I have asked the county judge-executive three times to re-district the county and thus give everyone in the county an opportunity to evaluate his own chance as a candidate. I attended the regular scheduled fiscal court meeting on July 18, and made the same request. I was again told that the county would not be re-districted until December 1997. At this time, it does not seem possible, legally, to force this issue and we must accept it, although it seems totally unfair to the potential candidates and a vicious slap in the face to the voters of our county. And it can get worse.

There is potentially a darker aspect to delaying the re-districting plan until December 1997. Whether or not the re-districting plan, and the resulting districts, are done legally or illegally, fair or unfair, just or unjust, the plan will control this first-time-ever election of commissioners in Floyd County. There simply will not be enough time to challenge the plan in court or to get it corrected if such is required, before the candidates must file for office and run for nomination in the May primary.

Having to wait for 13 months after the November 1996 election, and just 30 days before the filing deadline kind of arouses my suspicions on the matter. But then, as Marc Anthony said, "these are all honorable men."

Writer expresses shame for school board vote

Editor:
I saw the press conference Superintendent Davis held in his office Tuesday, July 22. I am thankful we have a leader for our children and school system with the honesty and integrity that Mr. Davis demonstrates.

I attended the board meeting Monday, July 21, and was ashamed, because I knew I contributed to what took place by voting in the last school board election.

I wonder how many board members will recognize the following:

We believe that the interests of the educational program are best served when mutual understanding, cooperation, and communication exist among the board, the administration, the instructional staff, and the citizens of the school districts.

In case you don't recognize it, it is a paragraph from the Floyd County Board's educational philosophy.

I suggest that each board member demonstrate that they really do believe their own philosophy as stated.

I hope every citizen of each school district will remember this past year when they go to the polls for the next school board election.

Former Floyd school employee recalls "McDowell Connections"

Editor:

As I read The Floyd County Times this week with the "alleged charges" against Gene Davis, I remembered once again to be thankful that I am a former employee of that school system. I can speak out now without fear of losing my job.

I worked in the Floyd County School System for five and one-half years. I was executive secretary to the director of instruction and how well I remember the politics of Left Beaver. In hushed tones, we would refer to it as the "McDowell Connection." If you weren't from McDowell, forget it, you weren't in.

From 1992 to 1995, seven people were hired from McDowell to work at central office. Now that the "McDowell Connection" has been busted, the good old boys are about to bust a gut.

I am now employed by Pikeville Independent Schools, and never regret the 66 miles a day that I have to drive to get to my job. It is a little price to pay for being out from under political pressure.

During the time I worked in Floyd County, I became well acquainted with all principals. I think that Gene Davis was one of the finest principals we had and I think he will make an excellent superintendent if he is given the chance. I saw the board meeting on TV last night and saw all the people with signs. That took a lot of guts, guys, keep up the good work!

Parents will keep fighting for children

Editor:

I'm writing this letter for all of the special children who benefit from the special education programs.

We, the parents, are sick and tired of hearing about poor ol' Brenda Fish and how her civil rights were violated. What about the children at Betsy Layne High School? They closed their class illegally. What about Tad Rayburn? His parents argued for years to see that he got a proper education. They just got fed up and moved out of state and never received his right school records.

Victor Robinson was denied an education for years. He is enrolled at Duff Elementary. First, Victor was in a room with just him and his uncle, and with no teacher or educational supplies. At the last part of the school year he was put with other classmates and a teacher.

What about Jeffrey Mullins' civil rights? Jeffrey, my son, was on the honor roll in the fourth grade. Last year Jeffrey was in the fifth grade at Harold Elementary. He had to endure verbal, emotional and physical injury. Jeffrey has a form of muscular dystrophy that confines him to a wheelchair and he is the only physically disabled child at Harold.

Personnel at Harold resented being put with my son and having to help him with his daily needs, such as getting his tray, due to the lack of space and weakness in his arms. Personnel would tell him, "That's not my job" and "you need to lose weight."

The teacher would physically turn his desk away from her and his classmates and stated that Jeffrey had a behavioral problem, but always received A's in conduct, even under her.

Last year Jeffrey was labeled mentally retarded, even though he was on the honor roll the year before. Jeffrey needs an instructional aide in order to keep up with others.

Jeffrey had four aides within four weeks. The last aide, who couldn't read or write, came from the janitorial department, due to the budget.

I will not send my child to school this year if this situation doesn't get straightened out. I will not move. I will keep on fighting for his education. I don't care if I have to fight every year. I don't care to go to jail, due to his absences from school.

I will not stand for any more abuse against my son by this school system. I don't blame Mr. Davis, I believe that he does have all the children at heart, and Floyd County's children are the top priority.

A little child shall lead them

Editor:

This letter from Ben Chaney in defense of Superintendent Gene Davis had such wisdom. Children have such good perception of adults. Ben simply stated that Mr. Davis did his best for him as his principal and wants to do his best for him as his superintendent.

We have a decent, honest, non-political man as our superintendent. Will he be given a chance or will the political board members with, in my opinion, their hidden agendas win again?

If they do, it will be the "Bens" in our Floyd County School System who will lose.

One soldier cannot win a war! This is a political war! I urge you parents, grandparents, and concerned citizens to call your radio stations, write letters to the paper and let your voices be heard. We need to support Mr. Davis and stand up for the "Bens" in our world.

You can make a difference!

Youth Knights are Good Samaritans in Floyd

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

The homes of five Floyd County families look a little newer and are a little safer this week after two Northern Kentucky church youth groups learned to be Good Samaritans.

About 44 children, teens, and adults from St. Paul's Church in Boone County and St. Henry's Church in Kenton County returned to their homes Friday after spending a week in Floyd County repairing the homes of five local residents and building walls for Sunday School rooms.

At the five work sites, the teens, called Youth Knights, tackled jobs such as building wheelchair ramps, reflooring a porch, and repairing plumbing. They worked in temperatures that passed the hundred-degree mark and continued working when rains soaked their clothing. They had a deadline. Each job must be completed in less than a week.

At St. Martha's Church, near Prestonsburg, the students built fire walls for classrooms, and bins and shelving for St. Martha's Portion.

At the home of Tannie Hamilton on Mud Creek, the teens built an 8'x8' deck with steps and they poured gravel for sidewalks. Stephen Poat, who supervised the work in Floyd County, said the terrain was so bad at the site that the homeowner, who can't walk, had extreme difficulty getting to and from vehicles.

At the home of Hazel Stevens at Allen, youths built a 4'x8' porch and put steps at the front of the house. They also removed an old coal stove, repaired and insulated a roof.

Louise Moore of Prestonsburg has a new handrail and some new plumbing. Moore had no running water in her home because "all her water lines were busted, basically," Poat said. The group replaced the plumbing in the kitchen and also put in some new fixtures in the bathroom.

At Thelma Frasure's home on Brush Creek, the youths repaired a porch by putting in new roof supports and a new floor. They also built rails around the porch. Frasure said that now she can sit on her porch with her granddaughter.

After the youths built a wheelchair ramp at her home, Rebecca Reed, 90, of Hippo, can now get to a car a lot easier. Reed's driveway is quite a distance from her back door and down a slope from her front door.

The repairs were made at the request of Rudy Little, with the Floyd County Health Department's Home Health division, and the beneficiaries are clients of the health care facility.

Little kept an eye on the work as it progressed and he couldn't keep his hands off the tools.

"I want to help," Little said last Wednesday as he watched a ramp being built at the home of Rebecca Reed. Little stepped inside Reed's home and teased her about the ramp.

"Now, I don't want you out doing back flips on it," Little said.

"That's just what I'm going to do," Reed immediately retaliated.

Reed fell and broke both arms, her hip and two ribs. She now has difficulty walking and says that when she feels like walking she can now walk safely on the ramps instead of the uneven ground.

Geneva Bailey, a family friend who assists Reed, praised the youths building the ramp.

"I looked out and they had raincoats on. It was really coming down but they were still working," Bailey said.

Little also praised the youths' perseverance through the changing weather.

"It was so hot you couldn't breathe, but they were laughing and smiling. They were motivated. They didn't complain about the rain," with violating an emergency protective order on May 18, and first degree criminal mischief for allegedly damaging a vehicle and swimming pool on August 15, 1996, owned by Fugate.

Irene Wallen, 20, of Prestonsburg, is charged with 12 counts of second degree forgery; 12 counts of second degree possession of a forged instrument; and 12 counts of theft by deception. Wallen allegedly forged the name of Ferman Wells on checks between January 31 and February 9; had in her possession those forged checks; and tried to cash those checks, which totaled $1,055.

Judy K. Haywood, 22, of Warsaw, Indiana, is charged with theft by unlawful taking for allegedly taking a 1988 Ford Mustang on June 15, which belonged to Ricky Gene Salisbury.

Gary Lee Sammons, 25, of Drift, is charged with two counts of third degree burglary; two counts of third degree criminal mischief; and one count of theft by unlawful taking for allegedly entering Steven's Tire Sales on February 4 and 13, and destroying and taking property from that business.

The grand jury also returned three indictments, which were sealed pending the arrests of those charged.

Note: An indictment is not an indication of guilt but a determination by a grand jury that the charges merit further judicial review.

The Floyd County Times does not identify the victims of alleged sexual abuse.

An act of kindness

Jay Wilson, Chris Ramage, Renee Alessandro, Kelli Centers, and Josh Koch tried to ignore the heat as they constructed a ramp for Rebecca Reed at Hippo. They were supervised by Bob Janowiecki, work site leader, and Marty Fedders, assistant crew leader.

Little said.

A member of the Youth Knights, Renee Alessandro, explained her motivation.

"There are people less fortunate than us and they need our help. Seeing people satisfied that makes us happy."

Kelli Centers concurred. "They help us more than we help them."

The humidity was so bad and the weather so hot that one of the youths working on a ramp at Reed's home showed signs of heat exhaustion. The youth had become dehydrated so he replenished the fluids in his body and lay down in a shade until he recovered.

The church teams put in full days at the worksites and then returned to the place where they ate their meals, took showers, and slept on floors.

Each evening, the group reviewed its progress and set goals for the next day's work. During the talk sessions, members of the group talked about how quiet and peaceful their worksites were, Poat said. The youths live in urban environments and are used to hearing road noises from the interstate, Poat explained.

"This gets them really in touch with God. He comes in the stillness of your heart. They learn to work with other people and they do the work how we would want it done."

Teens held fund-raisers at their churches to get the money to purchase supplies for home repairs. They also paid $80 each to come to Floyd County to work at the sites.

The building projects must meet building codes, according to Poat, so the youths must attend training workshops in their home area. The teens are taught how to use power tools safely, how to make good decisions and group decisions, how to communicate, and how to be a Good Samaritan, this year's project theme.

"I tell them if you're coming to have fun, you're going to hate it. If you come to work camp to work, you're going to love it," Poat said.

Youth groups from St. Pauls and St. Henrys have been coming to Floyd and Magoffin counties for the past eight years. They plan to return to Floyd County next year.

Lost Social Security cards can be replaced

Lost your Social Security card? Now what do you do? You could try to get along without one, but your memory isn't what it used to be and you might use the wrong Social Security number. That's not a good idea since your earnings are credited to the Social Security number you give your employer. The best plan of action is to replace your card. But how do you do that? "You can call or visit a Social Security office and apply for a duplicate Social Security card," says Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy area. "To get a duplicate card all you need to do is to prove your identity."

Kelly said to prove your identity you need one of the following documents: driver's license; U.S. passport; U.S. Government or state employee ID card; school ID card, record or report card; marriage or divorce record; health insurance card (not a Medicare card); clinic, doctor or hospital records; military records; court order for name change; adoption records; church membership or confirmation record; or life insurance policy.

If you don't have one of these documents, talk to the Social Security representative about how you can prove your identity.

If you're too busy to visit an office, call 1-800-772-1213, toll-free and a Social Security representative will help you. You'll need to provide the necessary documents proving your identity by mail.

"That's all there is to it," Kelly said. "In a few days you'll receive your duplicate Society Security card in the mail."

Remember, now you have a new Social Security card, store it in a safe place. Be careful with your Social Security number and card and protect their privacy whenever possible.

The Floyd County Animal Shelter recently held its annual roadblock. Funds were raised to buy new dog houses, pet supplies and much needed repair work around the building. Volunteers who worked the road-block included Dwight Slone (pictured) Allen Bolling, Teresa Ousley, Karen Ousley, Rhonda Castle, Maxine Hager, Bo Sturgill, Norma Centers, Rita Fleenor, John Faulkner, Anita Branham, and Carol Combs. SPIRITUAL FAITH AND LOVE

Here is a classic debate. Logically, does the new birth come before or after faith? Does it matter? Oh yes! The Bible says, "Whoever believes that Jesus is the Christ is born of God" (1 John 5:1). Read this carefully. A person who believes Jesus is the Christ, the anointed of God, is already born again. The new birth logically precedes faith. This is why Jesus says, "Unless one is born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3).

Look at it this way. To really love your neighbor, you must be born again. This is why John says, "Everyone who loves is born of God" (1 John 4:7). If you really love your neighbor, you are already born again. The new birth logically precedes this love. It's the same with faith. To fulfill God's demand to trust Christ, people must be born again. Jesus puts it like this, "Unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God" (John 3:5).

The new birth brings saving faith and selfless love into existence. The world definitely needs more faith, faithfulness and a lot more love.

This means the world needs a large dose of the special work of the Holy Spirit. We need the love of God "poured out within our hearts through the Holy Spirit" (Romans 5:5).

Directions

Director Joe Clark instructed Lakin Cheek about her role in the Children's Theatre production of Stuart Little, being performed this summer at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Ganell Branham Clark

Once in a very great while God allows us to know someone so gracious, kind and gentle as Ganell. Our own lives are changed and we are made more aware of the love of God from having witnessed her faith and her love of all things good.

Ganell Branham Clark was born February 23, 1940, a daughter of the late William Branham and Willie Edith Branham Caldwell. She died at her home in Betsy Layne, July 17, 1997. She is survived by one brother, Howard Branham of Ragland, WV, and one sister, Wanda Neese of Harold. She was preceded in death by one brother, William Branham.

She was a fifth-generation granddaughter of pioneer heroine Jenny Wiley. A Christian for 33 years, she was a member of the Betsy Layne United Methodist Church.

Ganell was married in July, 1955, to James A. "Butch" Clark who preceded her in death in December, 1994. She is survived by their three children: Cecilia Bryant, Pamela Rowe and James A. Clark II, all of Betsy Layne.

There are six grandchildren who were her special joy. They are: Wesley Brock Bryant, Hillary Paige Bryant, Jeffrey Clarke Rowe, Andrea Morgan Clark, James Logan Clark and Shanna Ragan Marie Clark.

Ganell began a 27-year career with the U.S. Postal Service at the Betsy Layne post office in March, 1968. She later transferred to the Pikeville post office where she retired in 1995 because of illness.

As a window clerk at the Betsy Layne office, her pleasant and caring manner made her a favorite of the people she served. She helped many with their money orders and mailing needs and often, when they came in on her day off, they would look around and say, "where is that black-headed girl?"

Ganell was also a favorite of the people she worked with and was never known to engage in gossip or unkind remarks toward anyone. She seemed to epitomize the teaching of the apostle Paul in I Thessalonians 4:11 & 12, "...that ye study to be quiet and do your own business and work with your own hands..."

She loved to work, and she taught her children to work. They, in turn, honored her with the most loving care a patient could have through such an illness.

Ganell's homegoing has left a great void for all of us—her family, friends, fellow workers and neighbors—for we have loved her in a very special way. But when one day God takes us, too, to that beautiful land, we'll see "that black-headed girl" again and none of us will be sad any more.

Troubles

Thomasine Robinson asked city attorney Tim Parker what were the ramifications of not voting to accept the June meeting minutes.

Parker said he thought council could hold second reading of the ordinance, but he said other actions taken in June could be in jeopardy if the minutes were not passed.

The city attorney advised council to pass the rate increase.

"The city of Prestonsburg raises our rates, but we're scared to death to raise ours," Parker said. The city buys its water from Prestonsburg and Parker said the rate increases have to be passed on in order to pay for the loans and operating costs of the department.

Bob Lewandowski, with the Big Sandy Area Development District, said the sewer rates had to be reviewed once every two years and called the increase "a bare bones" one, which is needed to cover normal operation costs.

Whicker said the sewer department was not self-sufficient financially, and state and federal officials could call in loans used to build new plants. He said no other city monies could be used to pay bills for the sewer department.

Federal disaster funds are being sought to address some of the violations noted by state officials and to repair the collection system, Whicker said. He said he does not know how long that may take. The city could face up to $25,000 a day in fines if the violations are not corrected, he said.

One violation issued concerned 15 homes on the old post office street that were not hooked onto the sewer system, but had been paying for service for years, Whicker said. The cost to run the lines for those homes would be over $30,000, the mayor said.

Running lines to the homes would not solve the problem, though, because the houses would be below the elevation of the lines, Whicker said. Residents may have to jointly pay for a lift station in order to pump the wastewater to the lines, he said.

Whicker said he can respond to the complaint and inform state officials that the city is seeking grant monies to remedy the violation.

Prior to adjourning the meeting, Whicker said he would be contacting each council member in order to receive input on which sewer department bills to pay in August.

The increase would have raised an additional $7,000 for the department. The current sewer rate is

City seeks water line grant fund

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Prestonsburg's city council took the first step Monday toward providing water service to the Buffalo Creek area near German Bridge.

Council authorized Mayor Jerry Fannin to apply for a $570,000 Community Block Grant (CDBG) for a water line extension, with the city seeking another $555,000 from Rural Development.

Council made no comment on the project, which was approved unanimously.

Also Monday, Mountain Arts Center (MAC) director Bob Meyer presented a monthly report to council. Meyer said that financially, "we're holding our own." Meyer explained that it is difficult to do a projected budget for the coming fiscal year because the center has not been in operation for a full year. He also presented a monthly financial statement to council.

Councilman Gorman Collins Jr. asked if Meyer could provide that information in a format which would show how the accounts compare to the actual budget.

Meyer said he would be happy to provide that to council.

The MAC director also reported that the Emerald Video Group produced a gospel video last week at the center.

"That was a significant event for us," Meyer said referring to the use of the center for the production of professional music videos.

Also Monday, the mayor made reappointments to the city's zoning commission and tree board.

Councilman Danny Hamilton was absent from Monday's meeting.

$10.71 for the first 2,000 gallons of usage and $5.10 per each 1,000 gallons over. The new rate would be a minimum $10.85 and $5.40 for each extra 1,000 gallons.

In other business Monday:

- Council held first reading of an occupational license fee ordinance, which would levy a one-third percent tax on the gross receipts earned by all persons employed in the city. The tax would also require self-employed persons to pay one-third percent of their net profits to the city. Council did not say how much revenue to tax is expected to generate.

- Each council member agreed to submit to the mayor a proposed annexation map to determine what areas are to be incorporated into the city limits. Whicker suggested the city annex property at Ice Plant Hollow, Warco, Cracker Bottom to McGuire Camp and down to WMDJ radio station. The mayor, in answer to a question from council, explained the annexation would not necessarily ease the sewer department's financial problems because residents could not be forced to hook onto the city's water system.

- An agreement with T.J. Compton and council was reached for an easement across Compton's property line at McDonald's, so city workers would have access to sewer lines. The city agreed to Compton's request that McDonald's pay only $300 of the $2,000 tap on fee for sewer and that he receive a free tap on the property.

- Council authorized the city attorney to try to reach a compromise with Mountain Christian Academy (MCA) to settle a long-standing dispute over sewer lines and a lift station. Whicker said MCA was willing to turn over the lines and station if the city would do the maintenance. The mayor cautioned the system was ready "to break at any time."

Council members Steve Farthing and Eugene Hutchinson were absent from Monday's meeting.

Corps to survey Martin

A survey of Martin residents whose homes or businesses were flooded by heavy rainfall in April may help bring a halt to future flood damages in that area.

The Huntington U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is asking residents living in areas of Martin who were affected by the April flood to participate in a survey to determine the impact of providing future flood protection.

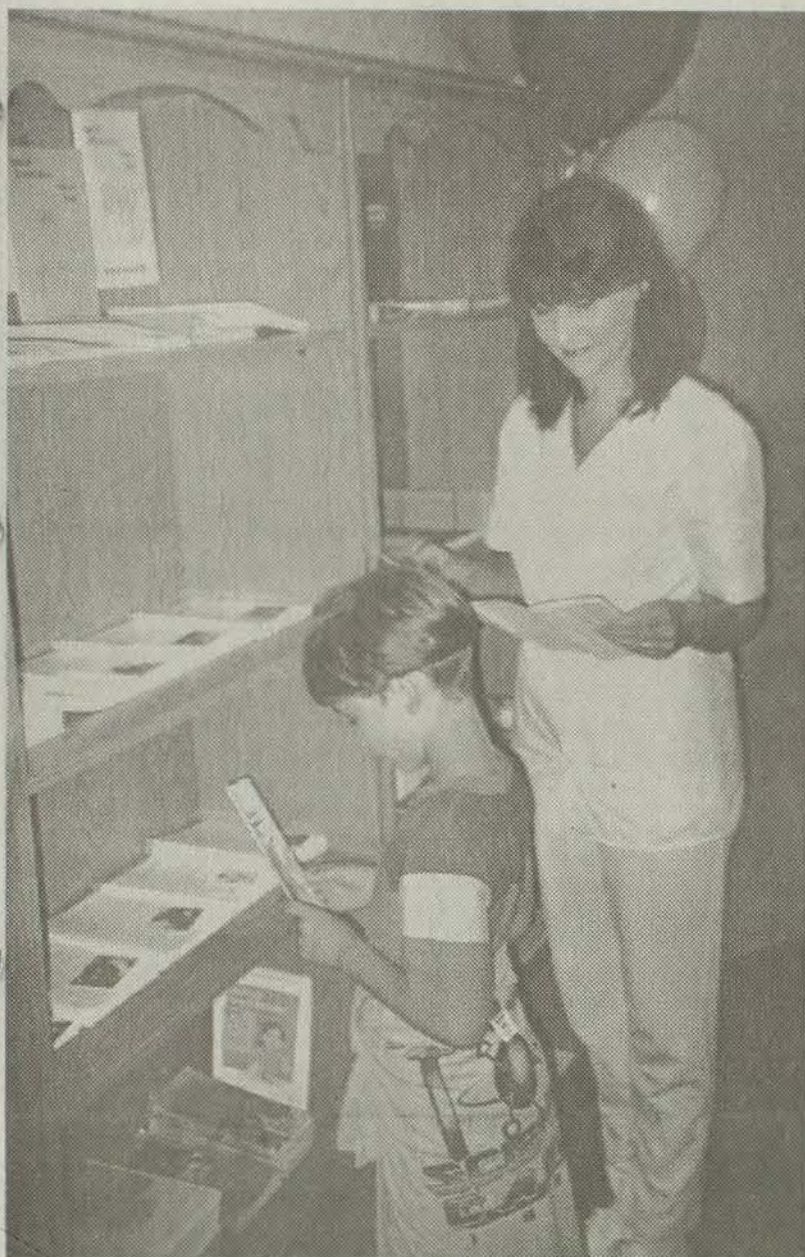

Residents of Martin will be contacted by individuals conducting the survey work for a company hired by the Corps of Engineers, Steve Wright, with the Corps of Engineers, said Monday.

The data will be analyzed in order to help the Corps come up with a plan to provide flood protection to area residents.

Participation in the survey is voluntary and participation in future flood protection measures is also voluntary, Wright said, adding that the survey responses will be valuable to the Corps of Engineers for planning flood protection measures for the city of Martin.

For more information, contact Wright at (304) 529-5452 or Steve Radcliff at (304) 529-5644.

The advanced group ages 13 years thru 18 years, also met twice weekly for the two-hour workshop.

The classes are taught by Ralph Clark, founder and director of The Children's Museum of Art program.

The classes were held at Archer Park. Clark said, "I find the most talented young artist in the elementary schools of Floyd County and most of the children stay in the program also continue to develop their artistic genius" and it is a privilege working with them."

A Look At Sports

Lexington hot and crowded for BGSF

The temperatures were hovering in the high 90s, and I believe it was more in the low 100s for the 13th Annual Bluegrass State Games held this past weekend in Lexington. I mean, it was hot. Staying in the shade, when you found it, you would break out in a sweat just standing there.

Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

I was worried about my camera equipment and the effect the heat would have on it, more than on me. I am one who remembers the cold of winter and never complains about how hot it is. I watched the 3-on-3 basketball and wondered how they were standing, and then I remembered, I'm not supposed to complain.

I dropped by the volleyball competition, and as they were volleying the ball, the sweat was forming on me from just watching and I wondered, how in the world ... then I remembered not to complain.

On my way to the track and field events, I stopped long enough to watch a pretty good tennis match. Boy, the competition was fierce and they were all over the courts, and I thought to myself, isn't it too ... but I did not complain.

At the Shively Sports Center Complex, I just about ducked into the Nutter Center to catch some handball, but I thought, if I do, they will think I came in to cool off and form the opinion that I was complaining about the heat.

At the track and field meet, I caught up with Jimbo Bailey, his wife and son Chris, who would compete in discus. "It sure is hot," said Chris, but I did not comment, because I didn't want to complain about the weather.

"Boy, Ed, it is a hot one today," said Jimbo. But, again, I prevailed and kept my "cool."

With the sweat starting to drip, I journeyed around the complex shooting pictures of the competition that was going on. I enjoyed stopping and watching some of the long jump and high jump events. Pole vaulting has always been one of my favorite events in track and field, along with the hurdles, so I watched this one athlete as he made five attempts before getting into the air. He failed to clear the bar.

In making the complete circle of events, I headed back toward the basketball, tennis and volleyball courts and paused again to watch some pretty good basketball action as well as volleyball.

I spotted a shaded area and decided, even though I enjoyed the warmer weather, not to be a complete fool and took advantage of the cooler spot. But I wasn't complaining.

Watching the game of basketball, played by the younger group, reminded me of when I was younger, growing up around Martin when hot weather was never a thought. We ignored it and went on, played baseball (well, that's

Bluegrass State Games

Nearly 20,000 athletes invade Lexington

The 13th Annual Bluegrass State Summer Games was held in split weekends this year but that did not lessen the enthusiasm and excitement in Lexington.

Just a few

Chris Bailey takes third in Bluegrass State Games

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When Chris Bailey was in high school at Allen Central, a throw of over 140-feet was considered quite an accomplishment but in this past weekend's Bluegrass State Games, the distance was good for third place and a bronze medal.

Bailey had to move up to a different age group and compete against the older discus throwers after winning the gold medal in discus the past two years.

"It's different," he said before the meet. "I'll just have to see what I can do."

Without any practice since his high school days, Bailey said he was surprised by the longer throw.

"I was surprised," he said. "I really was. No time to practice, I really didn't know how I would do this year."

Bailey had his longest throw on his third try. He scratched on his first attempt and his second throw, the discus slipped and went low traveling only 120-feet before burying in the ground. He scratched again on his last throw of the event.

"I plan to return to Lexington next year and take part again," he said after the competition. "But this time I will practice before I go down."

Bailey said he would like to see more people from Floyd County taking part in the Bluegrass State Games and is trying to encourage others to compete.

"I'm trying to get my dad (Jimbo Bailey) involved," he said. "I'm going to talk to my friends and get them there next year."

Bailey was one of the region's top discus throwers in high school and was a late bloomer in the sport. He has finished second in the state track and field meet two years ago.

Jim O'Brien, assistant Games director said he was, "extremely proud to be part of the Games."

"It brings both fans and athletes closer together," he said. "I thank all the athletes who have chosen to compete and wish each of you the best of luck during the Games."

Joe Burch, vice-president of Public Affairs, represented the University of Kentucky and echoed the same comments from the past in how, "the University of Kentucky was proud to host and be part of the Games."

"We want you to make new friends," Burch told the athletes who gathered for the opening ceremonies. "Enjoy the Games, your visit to Lexington and the UK campus."

Lexington Mayor Pam Miller said that the numbers for this year's games told the whole story.

"We have 20,000 athletes from 122 counties and it is the 13th year for the Games here in Lexington," she said. "That does tell the story."

But the mayor said there were other numbers that were equally important.

"The countless number of volunteers that have worked hard to make the game fun and safe for all as well as the number of Urban County Government employees who work hard to make the Games successful — I appreciate each one of them."

All the numbers, said the Lexington mayor, added up to success for the City of Lexington.

Kentucky Governor Paul Patton invoked some humor as he greeted the athletes.

"It has been said that if a politician had to listen to his own speeches he would not speak so long," said Governor Patton. "I just want to add my welcome to all your athletes who have come here from 122 counties across the state of Kentucky. You are a representative of the best across the state."

This year, only 114 of Kentucky's 120 counties sent representatives.

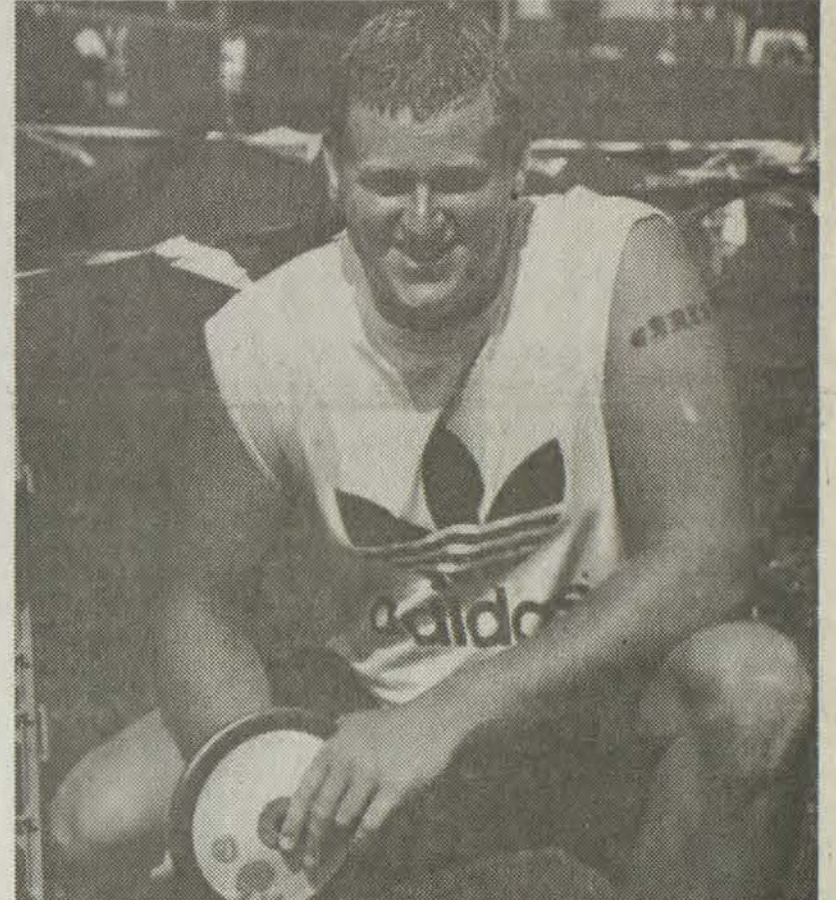

While Governor Patton was encouraging the athletes to focus on the events that lay ahead, a cheer went up from one section of athletes. He acknowledged it wasn't for him but for a television cameraman who was scanning the athletes.

Following the Governor's welcome, the Olympic flame was carried into the stadium where Governor Patton assisted in lighting the cauldron, the official Olympic flame of the Bluegrass State Games.

After the lighting of the flame, Governor Patton announced the Games were officially open.

It was a different twist when athletes and families arrived at Commonwealth Stadium. Because medal for the second consecutive year in the just-completed Bluegrass State Games this past weekend in Lexington. He also brought home a silver medal in table tennis, an event he received a gold medal in last year.

Greer credits the computer industry for helping to achieve his feat in the chess event.

"That's the way I got ready for the Games," he said. "I played on the computer to get myself back in the groove."

Greer said playing against a computer is different from playing against a person.

"The computer will wait until you make a mistake and also you have to make an equal move or better than it makes, or you're beat," explained Greer.

The Kingsport, Tennessee Table Tennis Club was a big help in preparing Greer for table tennis competition. Greer would travel to Kingsport to play because of a lack of places to play in the area.

"I would like to extend my thank you to those at the Kingsport Club for helping me get ready. Although I slipped a notch, from the gold to silver, still it was good competition."

Greer, who usually competes also in the doubles and open section, found a scheduling conflict for both events while competing in chess.

"I had to compete against players younger and higher rated than I was in the amateur event," he said. Greer won one game and had three draws.

He was tied with two other players for third place but declined the bronze medal for a chance at the gold. He was one of four players to ever play his opponent over the internet in a chess game.

The much publicized efforts of Richard Bennett, who is disabled and was unable to attend the games, became part of Greer's competition as he faced Bennett over the internet.

Greer confessed the only thing he knows about a computer is how to turn it on or off and had some help.

"I owe Terry Kinzer a big thank

Kidd wins two medals in BGSF

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It had been over three years since Gary Kidd of Prestonsburg had competed in any track and field events but that all ended this past Saturday and Sunday when Kidd was one of the nearly 20,000 people who were in Lexington for the 13th Annual Bluegrass State Games.

Kidd proved that even at his age, there was room for competing against some of the top athletes across the state of Kentucky.

Kidd won two bronze medals in the 50-59 age group and next year he expects to do even better.

"It had been a long time since I did any of this," he said. "I decided to do it this year because I enjoy it. I did it when I was in college at Bowling Green State University. I've competed in the Master's before but not in the Bluegrass State Games."

Kidd took part in four events and finished fourth overall in the javelin and shot put. He won a bronze medal in both the discus and 5K race.

"We need to get more from Floyd County down there to compete," he said. "When I look at Prestonsburg and Allen Central, they have people who could go down there and win big. They have some very good athletes at Prestonsburg, and if they worked at it, they would do very well."

Kidd, who umpires and officiates basketball games, had competed in one other state game before.

"I took part in the Ohio Games," he said. "It was fun this year, and I plan to compete again next year."

Kidd said he enjoyed developing new friendships at the Games and looks forward to going back next year and seeing how their families are doing.

Kidd has helped with the Betsy Layne football program and gave a lot of time to youth sports in the county.

"I like to give something back to the sports," said Kidd. "I feel I can do that by officiating or helping in coaching."

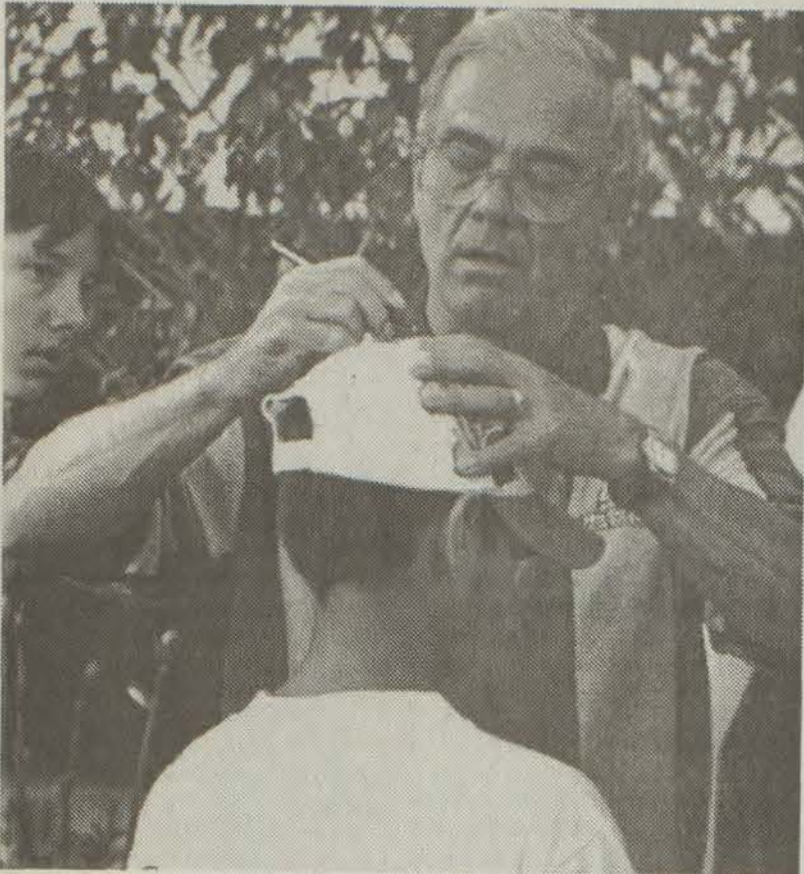

Kidd threw javelin, a sport that is not held here locally, while in college at Bowling Green University. He had a throw of 140-feet for fourth place. He says in his later years, the strategy is different.

"The young guys like to use their muscle in throwing it," he said. "The older we get, we depend on technique. You get older, you get wiser. When you use muscle, you fight the wind. The older you get, you let the wind help you."

Kidd echoed the sentiments of others in the county when he advocated beginning a track and field program on the grade school level.

"We also need more facilities here in the county," he said. "We have the one at Allen Central, where I have been going to work out, but we need one in this part of the county as well."

Kidd said he has several other races he wants to compete in yet this year.

Autograph time

you for Chess Master 2,000 program and Russell Lafferty for programming my computer for me," said Greer.

Greer said playing against people you face different styles in chess. "Some players develop a strong offensive style while others a defensive style," he said. "I had to practice a lot in order to do well at the Games."

Greer, who has won two gold medals and two silver in the two years of competing, said the air conditioner went out where he played table tennis and the crowded room made it that more difficult to stay cool.

"I lost to a player from Louisville this year," said Greer of the round robin tournament.

"I noticed there were not that many young kids playing this year."

The local table tennis player said he did not get much rest the night before the Games, because he spent the night at a friend's house.

"Next year, I think I'll just drive straight down to Lexington the day I play," he said. "I don't sleep well away from home anyway."

Greer is hopeful that he will get his two sons involved in the Games in the future.

"I would like for them to compete in some event. They may be a little too young to compete in table tennis, but they could play chess."

Greer also said he is organizing a Chess Club locally, and anyone interested in helping or joining should call him at 285-9739.

Athletes

of construction work going on, the day's events were moved across from the blue lot to a grassy field. Instead of a picnic for athletes and families, concession booths dotted the large area offering a variety of different foods.

The popcorn and soft drinks were free and the hot weather made the water barrels drain fast.

Music fans were entertained by a group who called themselves the BeatleMania Live!, resembling the famed former rock group, The Beatles.

The Bluegrass State Games continues to grow and regional sites are in the thinking of Game officials. Finding a motel was a problem for many who failed to make reservations in advance.

While the games were filled with fun and excitement, still there were those who did not fare so well as the medical staff of the Games reported more than 300 injuries to athletes. It was estimated between 40-50 cases of heat exhaustion, according to Games' Medical Director Al Green. One person had to be transported to Central Baptist Hospital with chest pains. Some blown knees and ankle sprains were treated as well.

Fayette County topped the state in medal count with 718. A total of 3,718 medals were awarded during the Games.

Commentary...

Governor not a competitor in Bluegrass Games — this year

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Last year Kentucky Governor Paul Patton became the first governor to take part in the Bluegrass State Summer Games as he accepted a challenge from the then-chairman of the board, Carl Frey. But this year the Governor had other matters to attend.

"No, I'm not going to compete in any of the Games this year," he said. "I would like to have, but I've got to go to a Governor's Conference this weekend (July 26-27)."

The Kentucky Governor was popular with the athletes who were competing in the Games and was approached at the bottom of the platform from where he spoke and assisted in lighting the Bluegrass Flame.

After he pronounced the Games officially open, he conversed with other dignitaries on the platform until he spotted a crowd of kids seeking his autograph. Without hesitating, he made his way down the steps, sat on the bottom step and began autographing hats, t-shirts, arms, hands, pieces of paper and programs.

"This is great," he said in trying to oblige every kid. "This is what the Games are all about. Kids."

Patton, who comes from Pike County, finds time to return home to Pikeville.

"I try to get home every weekend," he said. "Sometimes I can't make it, like this weekend. But I try to make it as often as I can."

Previous governors have been escorted from the platforms, but Governor Patton has been accessible in his two years at the Games. Both times he has been gracious to grant me an interview after taking care of other business.

Patton's popularity at the Games is no surprise as he seems to realize that it is a time to develop new friendships.

"That is what the Games are all about, promoting athletes in Kentucky," he said. "I really appreciate all the sponsors that helped put these Games on and the City of Lexington for hosting it each year."

Will he compete next year? We'll have to wait and see.

all we had then) and just enjoyed the outdoors.

In Martin, we had one ball field, one bat and one baseball and shared gloves with the opposing team (theirs). If the ball was fouled into the weed patch, we delayed the game long enough to search it out. Once found, the game would resume.

After covering the games on the UK campus, I visited some of the softball sites, swimming competition, archery and other events.

Arriving back at the motel, Nancy, who doesn't care the least about hot weather and complains all the time about it, asked how it went. Without thinking, I said, "It's too hot!"

I arrived Friday afternoon in Lexington and, after making my way to the motel, I headed to the UK campus and found all the activities located in a different area and with a different looking format. I caught a few of the booths and finally found the media tent where I enjoyed good fellowship with friends Darlene Easterwood and her husband "Ponch," Renee Williams, and other members of the media there to cover the Games.

In the nine years that I have covered the Games, much thanks goes to Darlene, Lynn Crawford and Renee, for all the help they provide, not just for me, but to all of us with the press. Their help is invaluable. I dropped by the Kentucky Thoroughblades booth and purchased some items for my son Greg, who has become a big hockey fan. I viewed some of the Cincinnati Bengal wares and received an invitation to come to the Bengals scrimmage game on Saturday.

I'm not supposed to have this, but I purchased a dip of ice cream and had to eat it quickly because it wasn't going to last long outside.

I tried to locate my good friend, Kenny Rice, but he was not to be found.

Congratulations to Larry Greer for winning a gold medal in Chess. Larry also brought home a silver in table tennis.

Trena Hensley's 3-on-3 basketball team was a gold medal winner. Greg Hall won two bronze medals.

In January, the Winter Games will be held and that should prove to be successful.

Tommy Murphy and Anthony Moore will take their softball team that played in the Bluegrass State Games to two more tournaments yet this year. They will play at Ashland and later in Columbus, Ohio. I agree with Murphy. Our county (high school) teams should be going against all the competition they can in the summer, because it will only make them better players.

Well, the Games are over, and it is time to start working on my football tab.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Quick Facts

Winter Games, Regional Games coming soon

The Bluegrass State Games has found tremendous success over the past 13 years but will expand to include an Olympic style winter sports festival in 1998.

Dates currently being considered for the Bluegrass Winter Games are January 17-18 or February 14-15.

Sports being considered include: basketball, volleyball, ice hockey, figure skating, bowling, racquetball, martial arts, gymnastics, indoor soccer and table tennis.

Plans are in the making also to start Regional Games in the summer of 1998.

Robertson places 15th overall in 5K Run

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When participants arose early Saturday morning for the first full day of competition in the Bluegrass State Games, Prestonsburg's Jesse Robertson was glad the event he would take part in would be early in the morning.

"We ran at 8 a.m.," said Robertson, "and it wasn't too bad." The temperatures were in the low 80s by the time the 5K Run took place in the Games, the first time for the event.

Robertson had a time of 17:17 (unofficially), and it was good enough for 15th overall (unofficially). Over 400 runners registered for the run.

Robertson, who had found much success on the local level, said he enjoyed the 5K run and plans to run it next year.

"I like the 5K run better than the track meets," he said. Robertson is more a distance runner than sprint.

"I had to push myself but I enjoyed it," he said. "I had been running in the heat to get ready for the Games. I worked three days a week on my speed and then I would run ten miles and lift weights twice a week. It was the most fun I have had in a long time in running."

GAMES SHOW GROWTH

Since the beginning of the Bluegrass States Games in 1985, the Games have grown from the few 2,000 to almost 20,000 athletes in its 13-year history.

The scale shows that the year 1995 was the biggest in numbers of athletes and a slight decline in 1996. But the numbers were back up this year.

FAMILY AFFAIR

Perry County's Cory Family all took part in the Bluegrass State Games this year, their first. All five members took part in at least one of the 27 sports offered.

CONSISTENT

Leslie Curtis of Mason County is a 13-year veteran of the Bluegrass State Games. She is 79 years of age, and competes in tennis.

AGE DIFFERENCES

The youngest participant in this year's games was Elizabeth Jamison of Fleming County, who took part in track events. Chester Jenkins of Fayette County was the oldest participant at age 87.

It was a long jump

The sun was out and the weather hot in Lexington this past weekend but that did not slow these youngsters as they took part in the long jump at Shively Sports Complex. Mom and dad were on the sideline cheering them on and with the video cameras rolling. (photo by Ed Taylor)

3-on-3 Basketball...

Luck of draw bad for P&S Welding

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

P&S Welding has always found success in the Bluegrass State Games 3-on-3 basketball events but this year it was a different story, having to move up to a different age group.

The local team did not last too long once the games were underway.

"It was two games and out for us," said Jimmy Parsons, who sponsors the team. "We really played well in the two games but just couldn't win this year."

Parsons fell in the first game 16-15 and lost game two, 16-14. "We played against some good teams," said Parsons. "It was just the luck of the draw. We had to move up in the age brackets and played against teams older than us. We were really a young team. When you get 10 years on someone else you are a step slower."

Parsons was beaten on a free throw shot in the first game and dropped the second contest when the opposition drilled a three-point shot.

"It was fun," said Parsons. "The Bluegrass Games are always fun. We just didn't do as well as we usually do."

Parsons said the lack of competing before the Games hurt his team as well.

"Next year we want to play in some games before we go down to Lexington," he said. "We just didn't get to this year."

Parsons said his team usually played in the WSAZ Channel 3 tournament in Huntington, but tempers flare there.

"It is call-your-fouls rule there," explained Parsons, "and fights break out and they argue. It's not good to play in it."

The players for the P&S team included: Parsons, Cotton Parsons, Jeff Campbell, Phillip Patton and Mike McKinney.

"We had a good team to take down there," said Parsons. "This same team has found a lot of success in the Bluegrass State Games."

Parsons said his team looks forward to competing again next year.

Sadler gets third Bush win of '97

BY GERALD HODGES

Elliott Sadler is a survivor. Sadler took the long way home to victory lane in Saturday's Inaugural Gateway 300 Busch Grand National series event. He had to drive his backup car after he wrecked his primary Phillips 66 Monte Carlo, Friday, during practice.

Temperature heat indexes rose to more than 115 degrees in the pits, and track surfaces reached 170 degrees. These high temperatures caused the asphalt surface to break and come up in chunks, and these conditions helped bring out 14 caution flags for a total of 75 caution laps.

Sadler's margin of victory was 0.223-seconds over a hard-charging Jason Keller. The win gave Sadler his second-consecutive Busch win, and their third of 1997.

TOP 20 FINISHERS: 1) Elliott Sadler, 2) Jason Keller, 3) Dale Shaw, 4) Elton Sawyer, 5) Mike McLaughlin, 6) Tim Fedewa, 7) Jeff Fuller, 8) Mark Green, 9) Joe Bessey, 10) Dennis Setzer, 11) Hermie Sadler, 12) Kevin Lepage, 13) Brad Teague, 14) Glenn Allen, 15) Steve Park, 16) Tracy Leslie, 17) Randy LaJoie, 18) Shane Hall, 19) Mike Dillon, 20) Bobby Labonte.

LAJOIE STRETCHES POINTS LEAD

With LaJoie's 17th place finish and Todd Bodine's 24th finishing spot in the Gateway 300, it allowed LaJoie to open up a 58-point lead in his second quest for the BGN championship. Top five leaders after 20 of 30 events: 1. LaJoie, 2,955, 2. Bodine, 2,897, 3. Phil Parsons, 2,581, 4. Steve Park, 2,501, 5. Mike McLaughlin, 2,447.

RUTTMAN WINS AT HEARTLAND PARK

Here are the top ten finishers in the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series, Lund Look 275, held Sunday, July 27 at the 2.1 mile Heartland Park road course, near Topeka, Kansas: 1) Joe Ruttman, 2) Ron Hornaday, 3) Dorsey Schroeder, 4) Mike Skinner, 5) Bobby Hamilton, 6) Jimmy Hensley, 7) Rick Crawford, 8) Rick Carelli, 9) Tony Raines, 10) Tammy Jo Kirk.

LONG HISTORY AT NASHVILLE

The mention of Nashville, Tennessee automatically brings to mind country music made famous by the singers who perform in clubs and on stage at The Grand Ole Opry on Saturday nights, but there's another attraction. One that fans outside the world of racing don't know much about.

It's the Nashville Motor Speedway. For over 41-years, this grand old race track has provided racing excitement to millions of fans and racers, as well as helping produce legendary drivers who have won many titles in NASCAR racing circles.

This past Saturday night, the tradition continued. Included in the lineup for the televised Chevy Twin 101s for late model were the grandsons of two of racing's most popular drivers, Coo-Coo Marlin and Richard Petty.

Neither Steadham Marlin or Adam Petty won the event, but they gave a good account of themselves on the track, and most of all, they showed the tradition that still exists at this five-eighths mile oval, as they came back to continue and carry forward their forefathers dream to an even higher level.

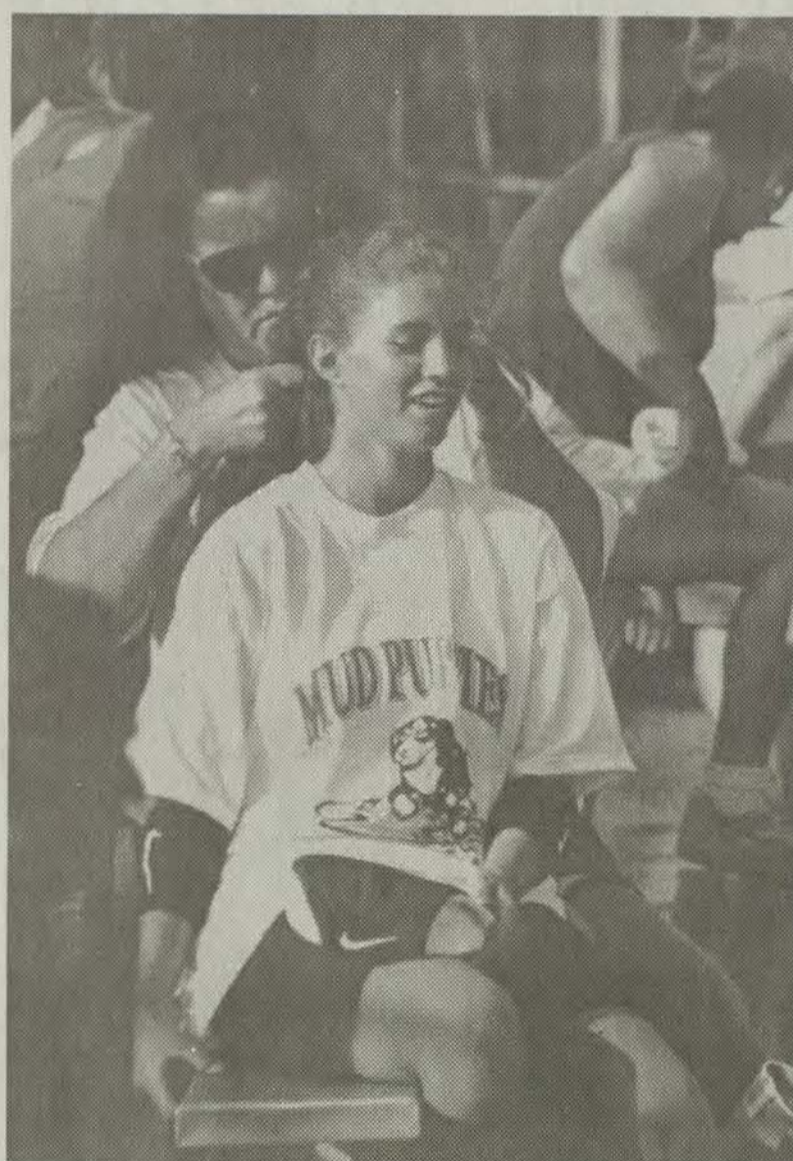

Joe Buford of Franklin, Tennessee, held off Andy Kirby of Whitehouse, Tennessee to register his sixth win of the season.

TOP TEN FINISHERS: 1) Joe Buford, 2) Andy Kirby, 3) Darryl Sage, 4) Michael Green, 5) Wade Buttrey, 6) Jerry Coble, 7) Tommy Climer, 8) Jerry Underwood, 9) Sammy Sanders, 10) Cecil Chunn.

FROM PIT ROAD

Dale Earnhardt hasn't won a race in 1997, yet he has finished all 18 events. He and Bobby Labonte are the only two drivers in the top ten who have not had a DNF. Mark Martin and Ted Musgrave have had the most with three each.

Statistics on the top ten Winston Cup points leaders: 1) Jeff Gordon, 2,669, 2) Mark Martin, 2,605, 3) Terry Labonte, 2,555, 4) Dale Jarrett, 2,517, 5) Jeff Burton, 2,468, 6) Dale Earnhardt, 2,415, 7) Bobby Labonte, 2,241, 8) Ricky Rudd, 2,129, 9) Jeremy Mayfield, 2,100, 10) Ted Musgrave, 2,095.

201 Speedway

by Chris Belcher
Track Writer

Dirt track racing continued at Sitka's 201 Speedway this past Saturday night, with the speedway's regular field of competitors plus a good crowd despite the hot and humid evening.

ROLL OVER CLUB

Sitka's Ronnie Puckett joined 201's Roll Over Club during the second Nas Hog heat race. Puckett went into turn one a little too strong on the start, hooking his front bumper to Bannie Blair's U-3 hog's rear bumper. After pulling Puckett around the quarter mile track, Blair's ride finally turned loose of Puckett out of turn two, sending Puckett on his top, just past the back pit entrance. Puckett walked away from the mishap uninjured.

MCCLLOUD RACES TO VICTORY LANE

In Saturday night's Super Bomber feature, Inez Beadie Blackburn took the checkered flag ahead of Stambaugh's Scott McCloud and ran on to victory lane.

On the first trip past the grandstand, the two were side-by-side but it would be Blackburn's advantage on the second circuit. For the first seven laps, McCloud took the shortest way around the speedway, attempting to gain the leadoff on turn four, running the inside line. A caution was displayed for the first of only two times on lap seven for a spinning Glenn Patton, which allowed the once spread out field to gather back together.

On the restart after the caution, McCloud got Blackburn out of shape down the front stretch, enough to gain the point as the two entered turn four. Blackburn, in turn, loosened up McCloud, crossing McCloud up at the end of turn four.

A caution was charged to Blackburn, sending him to the rear of the running order. The race ran caution-free to the finish as McCloud moved away from all challengers enroute to his first Super Bomber feature win of the '97 season. Rodeny Webb finished second and Gary Cunagin placed third.

CUNAGIN TOO MUCH AT THE FINISH

After winning their heat races, Hager Hill's Ronald Cunagin took the checkered flag at the finish line in claiming the 15-lap Claim Feature. Cunagin and Tim Star started the feature on the front row with Star taking the first advantage off the start. He extended his lead early to over three car lengths ahead of Cunagin.

Star's lead ended on the fourth lap as he was forced pitted with mechanical problems.

Cunagin found a new challenger in G.T. "Stormin'" Norman. Cunagin chose a little higher line through the turns as well as the straight aways, leaving an open door for Norman to move around, yet, keeping the pressure on Norman, while George Meade stayed on Potter's rear bumper as the front four drivers left the rest of the field.

On the white flag lap, Norman spun in turns three and four allowing Meade to move around for second place. At the finish line, Cunagin was too much for any challenger, collecting his first feature win of the '97 season. Meade crossed second, Potter third and Blair fourth.

BUTCHER GOES FROM GREEN TO CHECKERED

Boonescamp's Albert Butcher took the green flag and raced all the way to the checkered in winning the Claim Bomber Consolation feature. Butcher claimed the checkers in only his second race of the season. Tom Crabtree finished second.

BLACKBURN WINS ROAD HOG

In Saturday night's Nas Hog feature, Frank Blackburn was a first time winner for '97, winning the feature event over Jerry Honeycutt by only inches.

Blackburn led every lap in taking the checkered flag. Darren Muncy ended up sideways in turns three and four, with the checkers in the air.

Blackburn made it through the tight squeeze made by Muncy's hog, but was forced to eat a little bit of the front stretch guardrail for the win. Honeycutt was a just two inches behind Blackburn.

Down, but not out

Kids of all ages enjoyed their time in the ring and putting on the gloves as part of the festivities just before the opening ceremonies of the Bluegrass State Summer Games in Lexington. The gloves at times were bigger than the ones using them. It was all in fun. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Competition was strong during the track and field meet at the UK Sports Complex this past weekend in Lexington, and especially in the running of the hurdles. This young lady led the pack in the women's 300-meter hurdles. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Sports In Kentucky

'97 football season in Kentucky could be a renaissance at all levels

Football renaissance.
Football 1997 could be a season for the ages in Kentucky. Some reasons why:

✓ The Cincinnati Bengals arrived in Georgetown and jump-started interest in the sport.

✓ Kentucky has a new coach and this one apparently comes from another galaxy from the one that brought Charlie Bradshaw, John Ray, Jerry Claiborne and Bill Curry to UK. Hal Mumme promises to "throw that sucker." Bumper sticker time.

✓ UK has a quarterback who, if he isn't forced to run for his life every minute of every Saturday, promises to make it at least electric at Commonwealth Stadium where Cat heads may be screaming iiiiii-ixxxx instead of threeseeee.

✓ And if the Couch era fizzles, the University of Louisville has a QB, Chris Redman, who may be ready to bloom and make headlines of his own.

✓ High schools. Bill Clinton had a friendly Congress the last time Mike Holcomb's Breathitt County Bobcats had a bad Friday. Two perfect seasons and counting.

✓ The Bluegrass state has seldom been as fertile with Div. I prospects as it is this year (see next segment). It is a crop to attract enough big name college recruiters to make fans rubber-neck all season long.

✓ North Hardin High's Joe Kelly Jagers, irascible, cantankerous, outspoken, but good at what he does, coach high school football. Jagers will get lots of early season media spotlight as he closes in on becoming the state's winningest high school coach ever.

Football '97 ... along with a fistful of attractive high school preseason bowl games, it all starts with Louisville at Kentucky, Aug. 30.

PREP PROSPECTS KY. PROSPERITY?

Who are the most highly touted high school football prospects in Kentucky in a bumper crop season?

Among the early mentionables, along with sundry comments from state football watcher Scott Bozarth:

✓ Dennis Johnson, 6-7 250 DE/DT Harrodsburg. A top five player nationally. Notre Dame, North Carolina and Kentucky want him. With brother Derrick at UK, Kentucky's performance, style and progress this season will weigh heavily on his choice.

✓ Bernard Jackson, 6-5 250 DE/LB Louisville St. Xavier. A top 25 player nationally. UK coaches have "gotten back into the house with him" and is expected to get an official campus visit. UK has offered Jackson a scholarship.

✓ Ron Bethel, 6-4 205 WR Louisville Ballard. One of the top receivers in the nation. with 4.4 speed. Also projects as a standout defensive back. May be leaning to Kentucky, but don't count Louisville out.

✓ Chip Mattingly, 6-2 225 LB St. Xavier. Size and nose for the football could make him the next Marty

KET to broadcast highlights BGSF

KET was present when thousands of Kentuckians participated in the 13th Annual Bluegrass State Summer Games during the weekends of July 18-20 and July 25-27.

The Commonwealth's largest amateur sporting event, held in various locations throughout central Kentucky, will be documented and condensed in 1997 Bluegrass State Games, a one-hour program airing on KET at 9/8 p.m. CT Monday, August 4.

The 1997 Bluegrass State Games is a KET production in cooperation with the Lexington Fayette Urban County Government. David Gibson is producer/director.

Moore.
✓ Scott Kuhnhein, 6-5 260 OL Ft. Thomas Highlands. Some experts rate him as a 'must sign' for Kentucky. Good student, he has received scholarship offers already from UK, Indiana and Purdue.

✓ Julius Yeast, 6-5 225 DE Harrodsburg. Very athletic with vast potential to grow and improve. UK would like to package him with Dennis Johnson.

✓ Terrel Starks, 6-0 175 DB Mayfield, Ky. UK has offered scholarship. Overlooked because of his size, he could be a pleasant surprise college player probably at free safety.

✓ Chris Sheehan, 6-5 258 DL St. Xavier. Much potential here.

Among other in-staters drawing interest: Antoine Sims 6-3 265 OL Lexington (Tates Creek); Cliff Dawson 6-4 290 OL Trinity; Chris Shanks 6-3 315 OL Male; Travis Bell 6-2 225 LB Pleasure Ridge Park; Tim Wolf 6-2 230 LB Covington Catholic.

Artose Pinner 5-11 180 RB Hopkinsville; Ben Meighan 6-2 170 QB Paul Dunbar; Neal Brown 6-0 170 WR Boyle County; Adam Wulfeck 6-2 185 P Beechwood; Doug Allen 5-9 145 WR Dunbar; Stephan Anthony 6-4 235 TE Warren East; and John Wright 6-3 250 DT/FB Daviess County.

SCUTTLEBUTT DEPT.

✓ UK football has its first two verbal commitments. According to a Lexington television station report, 6-6, 280-pound defensive end Kevin Gregory of West Montreal, Canada, and 6-3, 255-pound defensive end Maurice Wells of Richmond, Va. will sign with Kentucky in February.

WORTH REPEATING

✓ About his team's woeful lack of depth and talent, UK football coach Hal Mumme told The Cats Pause Mark Coomes: "To me, it's like when you were a kid and you got out your chess set. You didn't have a pawn and you didn't have a knight, so you used a button for the pawn and a bottle cap for the knight. You just hope someday that you'll get a better chess set, with better pawns and better knights."

✓ About the proliferation of summer basketball camps for high school youngsters today, ex-Williamsburg High coach Bill Perkins told Mitch Howard of the Corbin News-Journal: "...we tend to overdo it to be honest. But if you're going to be competitive you've got to because everybody else does." To which Corbin High baseball Randall Sawyer added, "We've created a monster with basketball, football and even baseball."

DENNY CRUM'S 'GAMBLE'?

Basketball coach Denny Crum is playing a game at which his mentor John Wooden said the UofL coach was not always good. Poker.

Crum hired an agent then went public last week, telling the sports world he wants a pay hike and an extension on his contract that runs out next spring.

There are a number of intriguing facets here. First, the timing. Crum's program is on NCAA probation and under investigation. Second, UofL President John Shumaker is in no mood to feud with his basketball coach in public.

Bottom line. Since Crum has gone public in pursuit of more money for the job he has done, seems only fair for UofL to go public, and the metro media to report, the basketball program's college graduation rates and record for staying within NCAA rules during Crum's tenure.

QUESTIONS 'N ANSWERS

Sports In Kentucky readers often ask questions...

Q. Your impressions of UK football coach Hal Mumme so far?

A. Wait 'n see. Like so many, I've seen this honeymoon scene before. Count me among those who want to see what the team does on the field, not what the coach says at a cocktail party or a press conference.

Q. Who is college football's premier head football coach today?

A. If a media poll were taken, Steve Spurrier. But, if all facets of what a coach ought to be were applied, including longevity, and success to go with academics, high graduation rates, integrity and player success after college, the best coach name would be Joe 'JoPa' Paterno at Penn State.

Q. Will Jamaal Magloire leave Kentucky's basketball program?

A. Old CW (conventional wisdom): Said in this space five months ago the 6-10 Canadian should stop talking about his NBA prospects and learn a facing-the-basket shot. New CW: the 6-10 Canadian should stop talking, period. And grow up.

Q. Should Denny Crum get a pay hike and contract extension at Louisville?

A. Yes, but only after a public review of Crum's record, in particular: 1. How many student-athletes in his program have college degrees? 2. How well does UofL basketball stack up on NCAA rules compliance? 3. How does Crum's compensation package compare to his contemporaries?

Q. How much has the Cincinnati Bengals' training camp in Georgetown done for the popularity of football in the Commonwealth?

A. Too soon to measure. But the Bengals' camp has certainly fired interest in football around the state earlier than I can ever remember.

Q. What exactly do you mean by the term 'media herd'?

A. Example: Picture this: A member of the University of Kentucky's K-Men stands outside the Wildcats basketball locker room and shouts down a hallway to another K-Men type, "Okay, let 'em go," and a mob of reporters charges past him in a walking rush to get to a group of pre-programmed college-age athletes.

JUST WONDERING

Orlando 'Tubby' Smith has been nominated for membership into the Lexington Country Club, the Lexington Herald-Leader reported on page one of its sports section last Friday. Would this have been a news story if Smith's skin color was different?

PARTING SHOT

One more symptom of why Major League Baseball is losing money (owners claim $180M last year), comes to us from the mouth of Seattle Mariners' $8M-a-year man Ken Griffey Jr. Incensed for having to play in an exhibition game in North Carolina last week, Griffey said, "That's the Mariners' way. It's the same stuff every year. Instead of becoming a first class organization, which we could be, we're stuck in the '70s seeing how many things we can do for other people."

NASCAR Connection

AT LAST, THE BRICKYARD

It isn't considered one of the crown jewels that makes up The Winston Million, but ask any driver and they will be quick to tell you that Indianapolis Motor Speedway is one of the most anticipated stops on the entire schedule!

NASCAR purists still refer to the Daytona 500, The Winston 500 at Talladega, Coca-Cola at Charlotte, and the Mountain Dew Southern 500 at Darlington as the crown jewels of the schedule. At one time a team's entire year was planned around these races.

Nobody could ever question the tradition that is associated with those four races. After all, those four speedways make up the cornerstone of the schedule and have been the scene of some of the most storied racing in the history of NASCAR, but sometimes tradition must give away to the pressure of change.

Although Saturday's running of the Brickyard 400 will only be the fourth NASCAR race held at Indy, it has already secured its place as one of the premier races on the schedule. Indy was probably the only track in the U.S. that didn't need a NASCAR race to gain notoriety and acceptance.

The 2.5 mile track opened in 1909 as an automotive testing and competition facility. At first, the track was composed of crushed stone and the steady demands of racing soon found the track breaking up badly. This led to the laying of 3.2 million bricks and the famous title of "Brickyard" was born. Today most of the bricks remain, but they are under the modern asphalt track. This past May marked the 81st running of the Indianapolis 500, which is billed as "The Greatest Spectacle in Racing."

Now here are a few arguments that I would like to propose on behalf of Indy that would make it one of NASCAR's crown jewels on the schedule. What other race can boast an average purse of over $4 million over the past three years? Since we are talking about the purse, is there any other race on the schedule that pays an average of $99,600 to each entry that makes the field? That is more than some races pay the winner. In just the three years that the race has been held, Jeff Gordon has already pocketed more than a million dollars.

It will attract more fans than both Daytona races combined and each year posts some of the best TV ratings for NASCAR races.

If all of the above hasn't sold you on the fact just how important this race has become in a short time, then this final tidbit might. Seven time Winston Cup Champion Dale Earnhardt has tested this year more at Indy than any other track in recent years. In the midst of the worst slump of his career, Earnhardt was the 1995 winner of the race and is well aware of what a win could do for his team.

Toddler Olympics

One of the best things about the Bluegrass State Summer Games is that it affords all ages the opportunity to compete. Some take it serious while others, like this three-year-old tot, was just glad to be part of the largest gathering of athletes in the state of Kentucky. He was measured at just short of 6-feet in the long jump event and that was being kind. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Signups now for fall soccer season

The East Kentucky Youth Soccer League (formerly Floyd County Youth Soccer) will conduct signups for the upcoming fall season on three dates. August 1 will be the first date, from 3-6 p.m., at the Johnson Building at the Prestonsburg Community College (PCC). Signups will also be held on August 8, from 3-6 p.m. The third date will be on a Saturday, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Games will be played each Saturday beginning September 6 and will run until October 26. Practices will start the third week of August. All practices and home games will be played at PCC.

Teams are formed in three age groups, based on the child's age on August 1, 1997. Age groups include: under-9, for five through eight year olds; under-12, for ages 9-11; and under-17, for 12 through 16 year olds.

No prior experience is required, and each child will play at least half of each game. Registration fee is $20 per player and a $10 contribution for uniforms is requested from those who did not make this contribution in the spring season.

Getting your dime's worth

Who says you don't get your dime's worth when you buy the daily paper? I mean, even if you don't have a bird cage to line, look at all the good stuff you learn. It's almost enough to make you jump out of bed before daylight so you can find out all the important news those who sleep late won't know for hours.

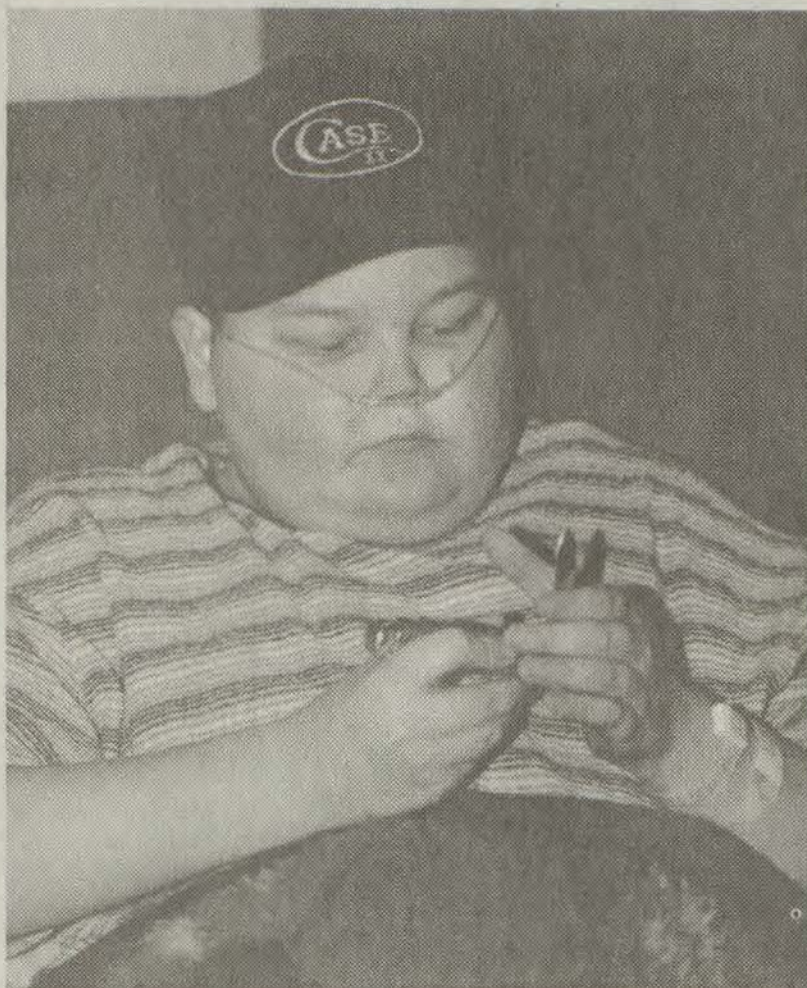

build our arks. (I refuse to take two possums on mine. And, unlike Noah, I would permit a good Rook game. It is reported that during the original flood, they couldn't play cards... because Noah sat on the deck). Only kidding of course... about the ark, not the possums.

In reality, there's no need to panic, because the report also stated that it would take up to 500 years for the ice shelves to completely melt. And when they do, the oceans won't rise because the ice already displaces its own weight in water. Or something like that.

And then there's the report out of Ithaca, N.Y., that scientists at Cornell University have made the world's smallest guitar?

How small is it? They say it's about the size of a single blood cell and is 20 times thinner than a human hair. More specifically the little feller is just 10 micrometers long. (A micrometer is one-millionth of a meter.) The strings are each about 50 manometers wide. (A manometer is a billion times smaller than a meter.) Well, I guess that clears it up for me. It sounds like this thing is even smaller than a smidgen hand no bigger than a dab. And, oh yes, those tiny strings can be plucked, but are too small to be heard. Now won't ole Chet Adkins be thrilled about that?

Am I the only one who's tickled plumb to death to read about ice melting 500 years from now and guitars too small to play on the Grand Ole Opry? Come to think of it, I bet I am.

Justin Martin held "the beast," a five-blade trapper. The Reid family, owners of Shepherd Hills, presented him with one of these knives. Only ten of these #000 knives were made for the children of the Reid family.

by Janice Shepherd
 Managing Editor

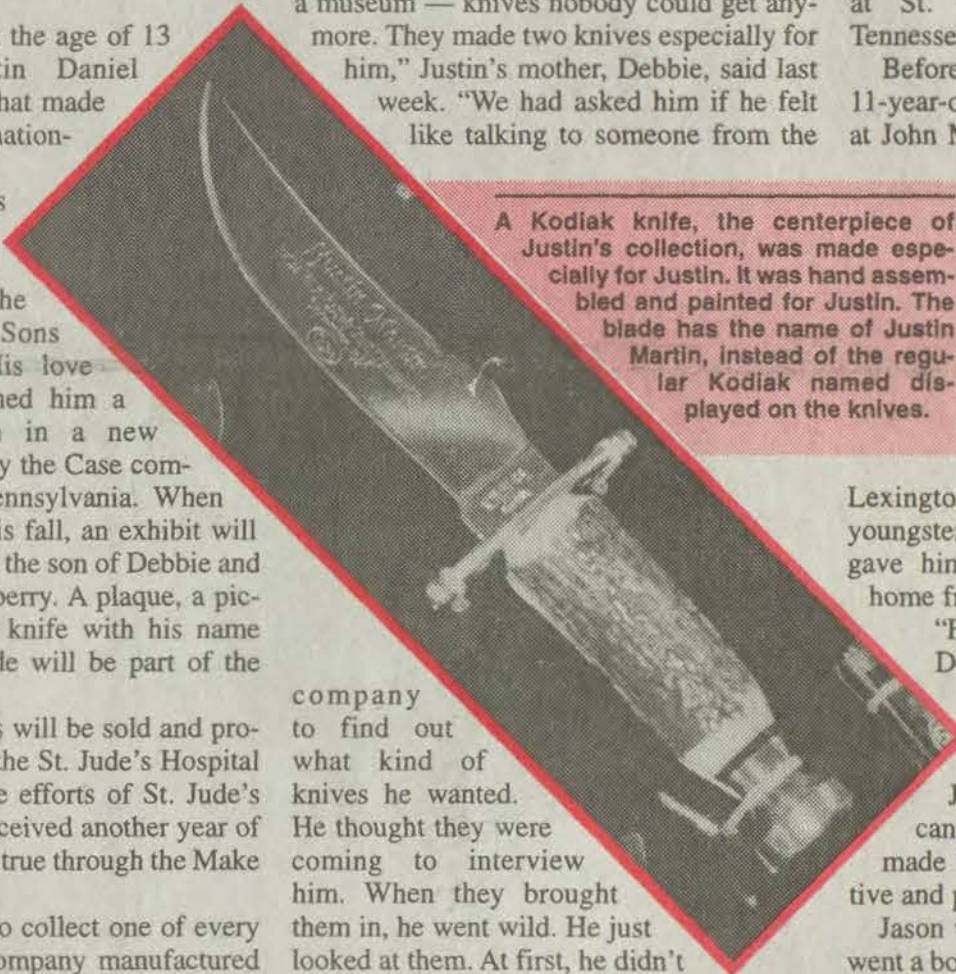

Before his death at the age of 13 in December, Justin Daniel Martin had a dream that made a major impact on a national company.

Justin's dream was to collect one of every kind of knife manufactured by the W.R. Case and Sons Cutlery Company. His love for Case knives earned him a memorial exhibition in a new museum being built by the Case company in Bradford, Pennsylvania. When the museum opens this fall, an exhibit will be dedicated to Justin, the son of Debbie and Danny Martin of Teaberry. A plaque, a picture of Justin, and a knife with his name imprinted on the blade will be part of the exhibition.

The "Justin" knives will be sold and proceeds will go toward the St. Jude's Hospital for it was through the efforts of St. Jude's Hospital that Justin received another year of life and a dream come true through the Make A Wish Foundation.

Justin's dream — to collect one of every knife that the Case company manufactured — was realized just a few weeks before he died when a representative of the company walked into his hospital room at St. Jude's with balloons, his favorite food — Papa John's Pizza — and display after display of knives. "They gave him knives they had stored in a museum — knives nobody could get anymore. They made two knives especially for him," Justin's mother, Debbie, said last week. "We had asked him if he felt like talking to someone from the company to find out what kind of knives he wanted. He thought they were coming to interview him. When they brought them in, he went wild. He just looked at them. At first, he didn't want to take them out of the display case, but then he took the one off the board with his name on it and said he just wanted to see how much it weighed." Justin received the knives just before Thanksgiving, according to his mother. A few weeks later, on December 8, Justin died at St. Jude's Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee. He had lymphoma.

Before he became ill, Justin was an active 11-year-old and was an elementary student at John M. Stumbo Elementary. Justin was an all-star basketball and baseball player. He also excelled in academics and was an honor student, a member of the Beta Club, the 4-H Club, and the academic team. He was also a young author's winner. He had perfect attendance.

Then in 1995, he became ill and physicians at a hospital in Lexington told Justin's parents that the youngster had an abscessed tumor. They gave him pain medication and sent him home from the hospital in June 1995.

"From there, everything got worse," Debbie said.

Debbie and Danny took their son to the Shriner's Hospital in September. Tests revealed that Justin had cancer, lymphoma. The cancer was in Justin's spine and that made his spinal nerves extremely sensitive and painful.

Jason went to St. Jude's where he underwent a bone marrow transplant in April 1996 and then chemo and radiation therapies.

"It took care of (the cancer) for awhile," Debbie said. "(The bone marrow transplant)

This & That

"We need only one factory"

by Bill Francis

If all the corporate offices that are extracting the coal, gas, oil, and timber resources from Eastern Kentucky would locate in Eastern Kentucky, that would be the only factory we would need. This factory would bring at least 1,000 to 2,000 of the highest paid jobs in the nation. There would be steaks on every table and two Cadillacs in every garage. Well, at least one Mercedes.

Now, let me explain myself. The City of Lexington is offering Mapco, a coal corporation, 22 million dollars in tax breaks to locate a portion of their headquarters in their fine city. They presently have 22 executive positions in Lexington. This tax break, if accepted by Mapco—that is, tax breaks for executive jobs—could bring an additional 25-170 jobs to Lexington.

I am not going to get into just where Eastern Kentucky is located. But "Big Brother," the news media, confuse many as to its dividing line, which does exist. If you live in Lexington, you are a Lexingtonian, or you live in Central Kentucky, with no pun intended. I believe Central Kentucky grows the bulk of tobacco, and I think it's only right that a tobacco company locate its corporate headquarters in Central Kentucky. No complaints with that. But when there are more listings for coal brokers, shippers, and retailers in the Lexington telephone directory (26) than there are in the counties where the mineral is extracted, well, it tells me and you something. It would be the cure, the big fix, the answer to all our problems.

Now, I would like for you to take a look with me and let's call cities such as Ashland, Pikeville, Hazard, Whitesburg, Harlan, Corbin, Prestonsburg, and Mousie, (my hometown) Eastern Kentucky.

I also want to include in this picture for you all the subsidiary companies that came with Toyota. Again, no complaints. It's the things that come with company headquarters, the icing on the cake. It does bother me when a company that sells millions of dollars in earth-moving equipment (dozers) locates its factory in Central Kentucky.

The Eastern Kentucky cities could completely do away with city taxes. Now, this would be Empowerment Cities or Zones. No more "hillbilly cabins" with hound dogs on the front porch. This would be replaced with mountain chateaus with a race horse on all the pastureland that is being provided by the mining industry.

Lear jets, helicopters, and commercial flights would be located in these cities, thus providing high-paying jobs for airplane mechanics and pilots. Just think of all the ripple effects.

We would need additional buildings and instructors to teach these individuals, provided by the state. We would have large hangers and terminals for these flying ships. This would provide carpenters and construction workers with jobs. We would have county-wide water systems to every home. Everything would be county-wide.

There would be no more haggling with the state about such trivial leisure time activities as public golf courses. We would have an abundance of Private Country Clubs, real country, and tennis courts, all the niceties.

We would have additional car dealerships, such as Mercedes, Lexus, Jaguar, and BMW. This would bring more jobs. Just think of all the television commercials on mountain tops with Tubby Smith, Rick Pitino, C.M. Newton, Joe B. Hall and the list could go on and on. We would definitely have an increase in population and banks, as the sociologist would say, reverse migration.

This reverse migration would relieve Lexington of its protesters of too much growth expansion and overpopulation.

We would have daily flights of people trying to get into Eastern Kentucky. All front row seats at the University of Kentucky Ball games would be Eastern Kentucky executives. We would have Anita Madden parties on race horse farms or mountain chateaus, again provided by all the pastureland being developed by the mining industry.

We wouldn't have just a strong voice to represent us. It would be a "hollering" voice. No need for chicken and cookie factories, and again, no pun intended. All our educational problems would be solved. No more children selling light bulbs and candy bars door to door. Maybe a little caviar. We would have the finest fire and police protection. No more road blocks for our fine volunteer fire and rescue departments to raise money for equipment.

There would be no pictures and stories about barefoot people living in shacks. We would be a garden of Eden.

You talk about a pie in the sky. Just move them in, corporate headquarters. All the icing on the cake will come. No more pore folks stories, no Dukes of Hazzard, no Daisy Maes. We would be Beverly Hills or even better Beverly Mountains Hazardians, Pikevillians, Whitesburgians, Aslanders, Corbinians, Harlanians, Prestonsburgians, and I would be a Moustonian. The Order of Kentucky Colonel, would be out-ranked by the Knight-hoods placed on individuals cities by Beverly Mountains.

I wouldn't like losing the regionalism of being from Eastern Kentucky. I guess we would be referred to as Beverly Mountaineers or just simply "Kentuckians."

The only time we would need to use the regions would be in referring to the weather around the state.

Bill R. Francis, is retired from the University of Kentucky. He lives at Mousie. He grew up at Garrett.

Justin Daniel Martin is pictured with his physician, Dr. Torey Sandland. Justin's mother Debbie said that after Justin's 14-month stay in the hospital the physician-patient relationship between the two became an uncle-nephew family tie.

was well worth it to have more time. Each day was like a year."

The cancer was aggressive, though, and was fighting the treatments. By Justin's second office visit, the cancer was back.

During Justin's illness, he became interested in collecting Case knives.

"He had a few knives before he got sick that he had gotten for gifts. He always wanted them as his gifts. After he became ill, he couldn't become active in sports. When he went to malls that's what (Case knives) he looked for," Debbie said.

When Justin's doctor, Dr. Torey Sandland, at St. Jude's learned about the youngster's dream, he contacted the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

"He was the one who pushed to make Justin's dream come true," Debbie said. "(The Make-

A-Wish Foundation) said that no person had ever wished for this before. Justin could have went anywhere in the world. He could have wished for a shopping spree. He could have wished for almost anything. His wish was to collect Case knives."

Sarah Hayden, a marketing representative for Case, learned about Justin's dream to collect Case knives on November 15, just a week before the presentation. Hayden and a Case company representative presented Justin with about 67 knives and a Case lapel pin on November 23.

"He was amazed how much people could care for him," his mom said. "(The knives) looked like they just came out of a factory."

Because doctors hoped Justin could return home for awhile, family and friends painted his room in his favorite colors, burgundy and green, and prepared a place for his knife collection.

"He didn't even get to see it," Debbie said.

Justin's condition worsened. He became allergic to morphine and a medication similar to morphine was substituted.

"His pain was unbearable. It affected every nerve from the top to the bottom of his body."

After spending 14 months in St. Jude's Hospital and with his knives close to hand, Justin Daniel Martin died.

When the W.R. Case & Sons Cutlery Company opens its new museum, they plan to make arrangements for Debbie Martin to be there for the dedication ceremonies.

Justin was the grandson of Bill and Genevieve Hall of Grethel and Edgar and Verbal Martin of Teaberry.

Garden Phil-osophy

If you're planting your garden by the phases of the moon and signs of the zodiac, here's the information you'll need for the upcoming week.

MOON IN DARK PHASE UNTIL SUNDAY

The moon is in the dark phase now, the full moon having come into force Saturday, July 19. Until the next new moon—or no moon visible in the sky—comes into force Sunday, only those vegetables that produce beneath the ground should be planted.

Then, beginning Sunday and continuing until the full moon on August 18, only those veggies that produce above the ground should be planted.

GREAT PLANTING COMING

A look at the signs of the zodiac reveals that today and Wednesday the sign is in Gemini (the arms), the bean sign.

However, beans produce above the ground and the moon, unfortunately, is in the dark phase when only below-ground producers should be planted.

Great general planting is on tap for Thursday and Friday when the sign moves to Cancer (the breast), another of the fruitful signs. On either of these days you may plant anything that produces beneath the ground.

All planting should cease Saturday, Sunday and next Monday, when the sign moves to Leo (the heart), one of the killing signs. Reserve these days for killing, deadening, cultivating—anything but planting.

Following the killing days a series of flowering days begins August 5 and continues through August 9, with the sign first in Virgo (the bowels), followed by three days under the influence of Libra (the reins).

After Thursday and Friday, the next great days for general planting won't come until August 10-11 when the sign moves to Scorpio (the secrets), one of the four fruitful signs, and the moon is in the light phase. On either of these days you may plant anything that produces above the ground—with an eye toward fall, of course.

Sunshine Lines

Senior citizens, this week we will look at the "giving" nature of attorneys in general.

You will recall in last week's column I stated, "It oftentimes surprises people to learn how gracious most attorneys really are with their money and their time."

You may not have seen them drop twenty dollar bills in containers at roadway collection sites. Likewise, you may have experienced being refused donations when you've called or stopped by their office requesting contributions for a worthy cause.

Before becoming judgmental it would be well to consider why people are turned down. One obvious reason is that attorneys are bombarded by honest people attempting to gain support for honest endeavors. There is certainly nothing wrong with this. In fact, if we were to survey attorneys in the Big Sandy area we would find that they appreciate those who are willing to freely give of their time to raise money for good causes. Attorneys know fund raising is important to the survival of many worthwhile activities and they know that raising money is not an easy task. Most attorneys would like to contribute to every worthy project in their vicinity from Pee Wee leagues to Senior Citizen Olympics. But no one can contribute to everything. Everyone understands this. Likewise, no one can give to every worthy endeavor that he/she is asked to give to even when one knows it thrives solely from private donations.

Most attorneys choose the not-for-profit organizations and community activities they want to sponsor and are usually large contributors to those. Some attorneys support some causes one year and choose to support different causes the next year. In this way, over a period of time, they are supportive of numerous projects designed to help humankind. Some are large contributors to the same organization or society year after year. Of course, whatever projects their mates or children are involved in become priorities—usually in addition to organizations like the United Way, the American Red Cross, the Auburn society, etc. Most attorneys are quite generous with their monetary resources in support of causes to which they have committed themselves.

In addition to organizations and special interest groups they help to support, many have aging parents with needs; personal and family medical expenses; kids to put braces on and to educate; extended family members with serious financial binds. Most live in towns where on occasion people lose everything they own because of fire, flood, a mud slide, or where a neighbor on a fixed income is experiencing a serious, long-term medical problem, huge medical bills, expensive medications, etc. (You're probably thinking, "Gee! I'm amazed. Attorneys are not much different than me." You're right!)

Attorneys are usually extremely generous in opening their checkbooks to help out in catastrophic situations. Most, however, prefer to give through organized endeavors like sending their donations to a banking institution where an account has been established to assist a specific cause. Or through organized food banks, etc. In addition to monetary contributions, attorneys are notorious for giving far more than their money. They are generous with their time.

Attorneys serve as legal advisors on numerous non-profit boards without charge to the organizations. But this is only the beginning. They spend countless hours in a far more personal way representing deserving, indigent people. I trust you are gaining a far greater understanding and respect for those men and women known as lawyers or attorneys. Most of them deserve it.

Last week I wrote, "...many senior citizens have been represented free of charge by numerous conscientious attorneys right here in the Big Sandy area." In fact, thousands of people of all ages, with all kinds of legal problems here in the mountains, have been represented without charge by a host of local attorneys. In legal shoptalk this is known as Pro Bono Publico. The Black's Law Dictionary defines this term, "For the public good; for the welfare of the whole."

Next week we will discuss, in more detail, what Pro Bono is and how a Pro Bono case differs from other cases attorneys handle. We will discuss Appalard's Volunteer Lawyers For Appalachian Kentucky program and its guidelines. This discussion will provide insight into the Title III program and how it is designed to help aged Americans with their legal problems.

Sunshine Lines is provided free space through the Floyd County Times because of this paper's interest in you. This paper wants senior citizens to be alerted of issues that concern you, and public and private benefits that are available to assist you. Sunshine Lines is an outreach effort for the Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens in the Big Sandy area and is sponsored by the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of KY (Legal Service).

If you are a senior citizen in need of assistance in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin or Pike counties, call your local benefits counselor coordinator, Charles Slone, at 886-3876 or toll-free at 1-800-556-3876.

He will assist you in referring you to those public, private and legal organizations that may be capable of filling your need.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital is awarded joint accreditation

Our Lady of the Way Hospital has achieved accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations after an on-site survey found Our Lady of the Way to be in compliance with the Joint Commission's national standards for clinical and pathology laboratories.

"We continually strive to improve the quality of our services, and meeting the Joint Commission's rigorous national standards is an important recognition of our efforts," says Kathy Stumbo, vice president and chief operating officer. The Joint Commission evaluated the laboratory's performance in complying with nearly 300 standards related to quality control, safety, infection control, leadership, management of human resources, management of information, ongoing performance improvement activities and other issues.

Founded in 1951, the Joint Commission is dedicated to improving the quality of the nation's health care through voluntary accreditation. "The accreditation process helps stimulate continuous, systematic and organization wide improvement in health care organizations," says Anne Belanger, M.A., M.T. (A.S.C.P.), director, Laboratory Accreditation Services, Joint Commission. "Achieving accreditation demonstrates Our Lady of the Way Hospital's commitment to providing high quality services."

Tomato diseases in the garden

by Patricia G. Spicer

Floyd County Cooperative Extension Service Agent for Agriculture and Natural Resources

Service Office, (606) 886-2668, or stop by 670 South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg.

Weather conditions have created the perfect environment for disease development in the home garden. We are beginning to see fungal leaf and fruit spots (blights) and blossom end rot in tomato plants.

Three blights cause serious spotting of tomato leaves in Kentucky. Septoria leaf spot (or blight) is the most common disease and is a serious problem in many areas. Early blight is also fairly common. These diseases usually begin after the first fruits have set. The third disease is late blight, which may occur only in unusually cool, wet weather. All are fungal diseases spread by airborne spores which require dew or rain to infect the plants. These diseases build up rapidly in wet weather and cause dark leaf spots followed by yellowing and defoliation (leaf drop). Some of these diseases also produce spots on the fruits.

To control leaf diseases in your tomatoes rotate planting areas each year. Plant tomatoes in the same place only one in three or four years. Use healthy transplants. Water at the base of plants using a hose to trickle water into a shallow trench or depression in the soil. Avoid watering with overhead sprinklers in late afternoon or evening; if the plants stay wet all night, leaf spot infections are likely to occur.

Use fungicides when needed. These diseases spread rapidly, and are difficult to control once established. Fungicides with active ingredients such as maneb, mancozeb, chlorothalonil (Ortho Multi-Purpose Fungicide) or fixed copper must be applied to the plant before the disease first appears or at the first sign of disease. Since timing is critical, it may be preferable to start a preventive spray program when the first fruits are marble-sized. Chlorothalonil can be applied up to the day of harvest. Captan fungicide is available, but should not be used because it does not control Septoria leaf spot. Check the list of ingredients to determine the active ingredients in fungicides or home garden fungicide-insecticide mixtures.

Blossom end rot first appears as a light tan water-soaked, spot on the blossom end of partially grown tomato fruits. The water-soaked area becomes sunken, leathery, and turns brown to black in color.

Changing soil moisture, especially water stress, which hinders the ability of the plant to take up calcium, causes blossom end rot. Contributing factors are the use of excessive amounts of nitrogen fertilizer (especially ammonium) and root pruning.

Prevent blossom end rot by protecting the roots from injury; don't cultivate too close to the plants. Use a fertilizer high in phosphorous such as superphosphate and containing a nitrate form of nitrogen. A fertilizer such as 4-12-4 or 5-20-5 is good for tomatoes. Keep plants uniformly supplied with water—avoid wide cycles of wet and dry. Use a plastic or organic mulch, as this helps provide a more uniform moisture supply.
