State concerns may be in error

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

State Education officials may be projecting a greater budget deficit for the Floyd County School System using information from the district's records that could be incomplete.

Tom Willis, associate education commissioner, said Tuesday that state officials have found what appears to be an inappropriate expenditure for mobile classroom leases which were paid from the district's capital outlay funds, which are to be used for school construction. If state officials find that the expenditure is inappropriate, it could boost the system's deficit to over $200,000 for the end of the 1996-97 school year.

But, it was reported last June that the board voted to enter into a lease purchase agreement with GE Capital for 22 mobile classrooms, which cost the district almost half a million dollars in annual rental fees. That purchase agreement may be an appropriate use of capital outlay funds.

Under the lease purchase, the district would buy the classroom units in four years and save $146,220 annually in lease payments, instead of renewing leases on the units yearly.

Willis said Tuesday afternoon that in order for the purchase to be deemed acceptable, the district would have to provide BG-1s (cost estimates for new construction projects) on each mobile unit.

When the units were first located at the schools, BG-1s were reportedly submitted to the state.

Willis said the issue will be looked at more closely and that he "wouldn't say 100 percent" that the claim will be disallowed until local auditors review the purchase agreement.

"Hopefully, we'll get some things explained," Willis said.

As for a comprehensive management audit of Floyd County School System, Willis said a team from the Kentucky Department of Education will hit the district on Monday to begin its work.

A similar management audit was conducted in 1992, detailing numerous problems.

At the August 5 Kentucky

School Board meeting, Education Commissioner Wilmer Cody ordered the audit after he was not satisfied with answers from superintendent Gene Davis and board chairman Ursal Ray Wilcox about the district's budget deficit. Cody said the issue in Floyd County was clearly one of overall management of the school system.

Cody ordered the education department to have the management audit complete on or before October 1, in time for state school board meeting, which is scheduled to be held in early October.

Suit is 'moot,' contempt plea nixed by judge

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd Circuit Judge Danny P. Caudill stopped short Friday of finding Floyd County school officials in contempt for "banishing" two central office employees, however, he called the actions a "dis-service" to the community.

Special education director Brenda Fish and director of instruction Phil Paige had asked that superintendent Gene Davis and board members be found in contempt for violating Caudill's earlier restraining order preventing their firings.

Phil Damron, who represents Paige and Fish, argued Friday that the day after Caudill issued an injunction on June 30 preventing their firings and ordering that the two remain in their positions, they were "banished" to the maintenance department at old Allen Elementary.

Damron sued Davis and the board on the administrator's behalf, claiming their jobs were eliminated at an illegal board meeting on April 4 and that the two were improperly denied due process hearings.

Caudill told Damron it appeared he had won his case by the board's action at the August 12 meeting, when the board voted to void all actions at the April 4 meeting, saying it was an illegal meeting.

Caudill added that Davis apparently violated the "spirit" of his order.

"By the same token, the board or its agent, you Mr. Davis, followed the letter of my order, but not the spirit," Caudill said. "I think that's a disservice to this community."

Damron countered that the two could not adequately perform their duties at the Allen location and superintendent Davis has not been in contact with them since their offices were moved on July 1.

"It's a blatant act to humiliate these people," Damron said.

Caudill said he would consider amending the temporary injunction and added it was his intent that the two remain in their offices.

Mike Schmitt, an attorney who was representing Davis, said the

Trooper's home is burglarized, suspect jailed

by Chris McDavid

Five people were arraigned on felony charges Monday and Tuesday in Floyd District Court, including one man accused of burglarizing the home of a state trooper.

Edwin Keith Collins, 38, of Mousie, was arrested Monday by KSP Det. David Maynard and charged with theft by unlawful taking for allegedly entering KSP trooper Mike Thorpe's residence and stealing a tent and two fishing rods and reels.

Collins is also charged with third degree criminal mischief for allegedly damaging a door when he broke into the trooper's house.

Floyd District Judge James R. Allen entered a not-guilty plea to Collins' charges, and he is being held at the Floyd County Adult Detention Center in lieu of a $2,500 cash bond.

In another preliminary hearing, an Indiana man waived an extradition

Tentative pact may settle UPS walkout

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

A tentative agreement between the Teamsters and United Parcel Service late Monday night may have ended a 15-day strike that has affected approximately 40 union members at the Floyd County branch in Emma and numerous county businesses and residents.

Teamsters president Ron Carey announced early Tuesday morning that the agreement achieves all the union members' major goals.

UPS Chairman and CEO James P. Kelley said the agreement was a "breakthrough," but additional discussions are necessary to finalize certain details.

"We have within our grasp a workable agreement," Kelley said Tuesday morning.

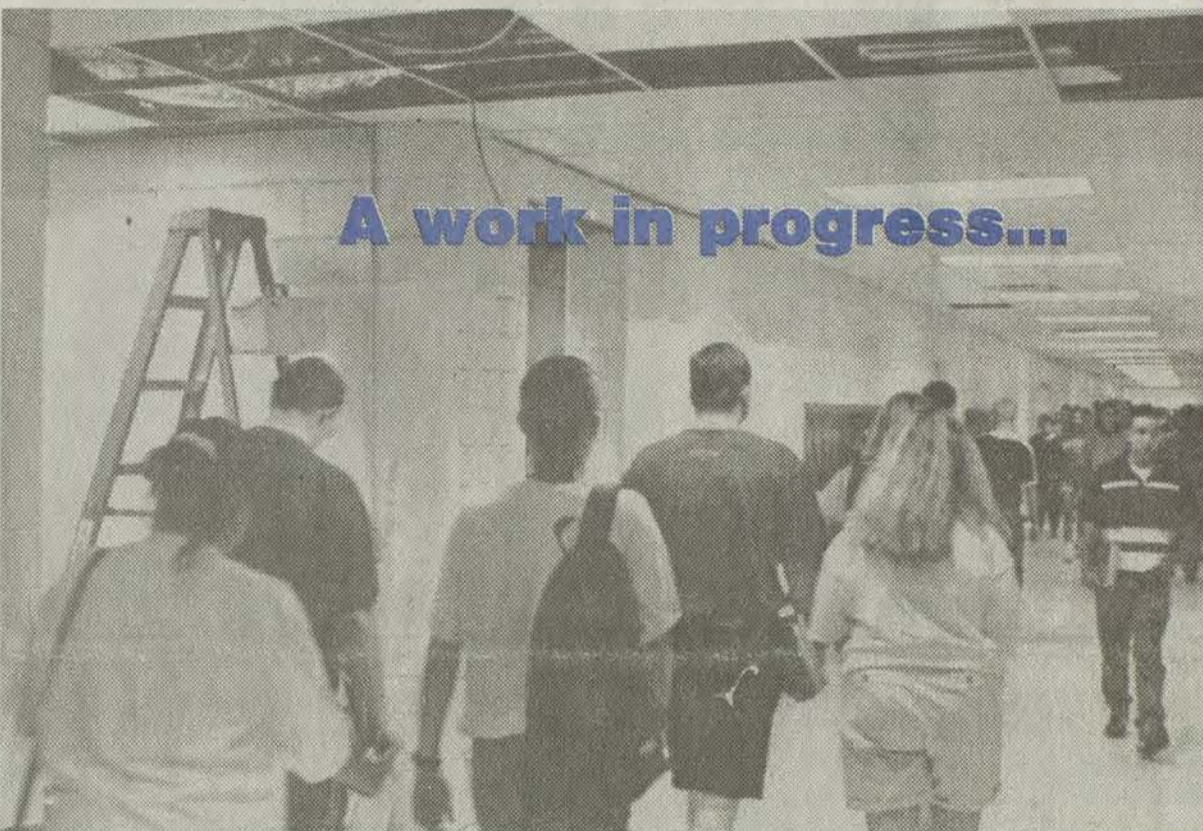

According to Carey, workers could be back on the job by Wednesday (today) and they will vote on the agreement by mail. He added that the vote could take about a month to conduct.

Approximately 185,000 Teamsters across the nation went to the picket lines on August 4 after Carey walked out of contract talks with UPS and said the talks were a waste of time.

Their contract expired on July 31.

Ten-year ordeal continues over money taken in bust

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A legal wrangle for a Floyd County woman wouldn't be termed "Show Me the Money," but more appropriately, "Where is My Money?"

Arlene Osborne, of Langley, has been trying for ten years—from the local circuit court to the state Supreme Court—to collect $6,507 seized from her purse during a drug raid at the residence where she was staying on July 3, 1987. Officers also seized Osborne's Chevy Blazer in the raid.

Osborne's companion at that time, Donald Kimberly, was charged with possession of marijuana after then Sheriff Henry C. Hale and state police found two pounds of marijuana and a set of sophisticated scales at the home.

Osborne was initially charged in the incident, but those charges were dropped. Kimberly was later convicted of possession of marijuana.

After Osborne's arrest, former Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton initiated forfeiture proceedings which overturned the decision, in part, saying the money should be returned to Osborne, but not the vehicle.

The case was remanded to Floyd Circuit Court.

In July 1993, Patton signed an agreed order to return Osborne's money and special Floyd Judge Robert Morgan ordered the party holding the money return it within ten days.

Morgan's order was reaffirmed

Industrial authority gets okay from court

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Members of the Floyd Fiscal Court entered into an interlocal agreement with three surrounding counties Friday for a newly established authority to oversee the Honey Branch Industrial Park in Martin County.

Floyd County entered into the agreement with Johnson Martin, and Pike counties to assign to the authority the right to apply for funding for the industrial park site.

The court at first balked at the agreement after Floyd County Attorney Keith Bartley questioned why there were blanks on the agreement that specified the amount of revenue each county would receive from the project.

Floyd County Judge-Executive Ben Hale explained that each county has agreed to divide any revenues equally, with 25 percent going to each county.

The court approved the agreement unanimously after the blanks were filled.

The court also approved six people — Jean Hale and Arnold Turner Jr., both of Floyd County; Mike Duncan and Jim Booth, both of Martin County; Terry Spears, of Pike County; and Bronelle Skaggs, of Johnson County, — as members of the industrial development authority.

Hale was also questioned about how those appointees were chosen.

Hale said the members were selected and agreed upon by the four judge-executives involved with the agreement during conference calls with Roger Recktenwald, of the Big Sandy Area Development District.

Accounts differ on party-night arrests

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

House Majority Floor Leader Greg Stumbo's account of the events that led to the arrests of five young men who allegedly crashed a party at his home differs from city police records.

In a published statement, Stumbo said his 15-year-old daughter had a back-to-school party before returning to Lexington Catholic. The party began Saturday night and lasted into the early hours Sunday morning.

"Some unauthorized and uninformed older people, boys, showed up and they were drinking," Stumbo reportedly said. "And some of the kids, I think, slipped some beer in...They kept me up all night long."

The Prestonsburg Democrat said he asked the older boys at the party to leave, and they were arrested at the mouth of the hollow.

According to city dispatch logs, an officer responded to a Fred's Fork residence at approximately 12:31 a.m. Sunday on a complaint of a loud party and juveniles drinking.

The responding officer advised the city dispatcher that a resident at the home said he took keys from those attending the party, called their parents, and would make sure

We can see clearly now, the clouds are gone

by Scott Perry

With apologies to Paul Harvey, we now know "the rest of the story."

After a lecture on the perils of "pork" politics; an admonishment for our "one-sidedness;" and a dissertation on who is and who isn't to blame for the mess the local school system is in, we're indebted to Brent Allen, director of pupil personnel for the Floyd County schools.

We can see clearly now, the clouds are gone.

In a report to the board last week, Mr. Allen filled us in on the rest of the story. Everybody but the current superintendent, three board members and, we assume, Mr. Allen, is guilty of screwing up the Floyd County schools.

Odd, isn't it, that such revelations should be made by the system's director of pupil personnel during the time he was allocated by the board for discussing school enrollment issues?

Particularly odd when you consider that if there is a single issue at the heart of the district's financial problems, it is declining student enrollment.

See, school systems get the lion's share of their funding on the basis of student attendance.

If a lot of kids skip school or drop out or move away, our schools lose a lot of money.

The fundamental issue behind

Floyd County's financial dilemma is that the system has not trimmed staffing costs in the past to offset declining enrollment.

And, we might add, the system has done very little to improve daily attendance rates at schools.

Every one percent improvement in those attendance rates is worth about $250,000 in additional revenues to the school system.

Likewise, every one percent drop in those rates costs the system a quarter million bucks.

Attendance issues are the primary responsibility of the system's director of pupil personnel. In fact, state law makes those concerns the only responsibility of the director of pupil personnel.

But we heard nothing last week on that from Mr. Allen during his lectures.

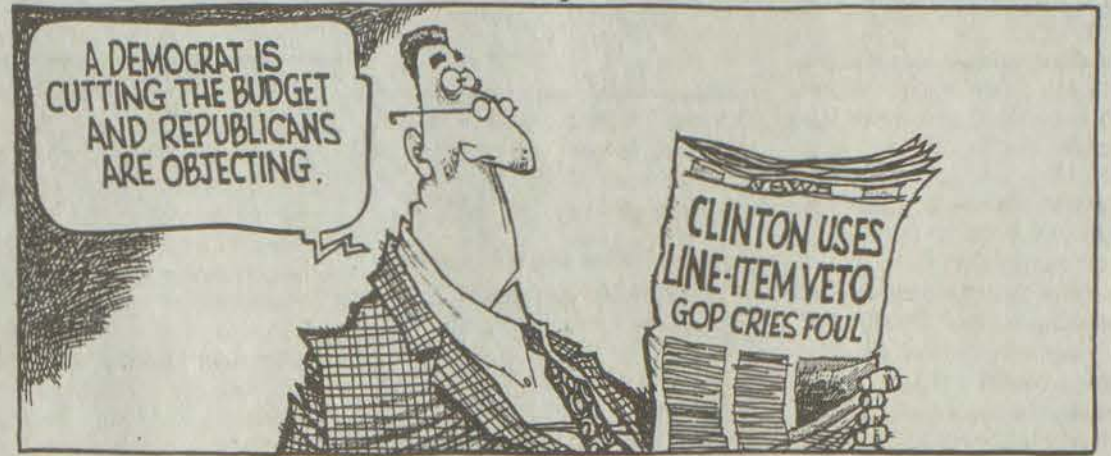

We got no information on what plans he has to stem the outflow of students from this system.

We heard no information on how he plans to improve average daily attendance and thereby enhance the financial and employment outlook for the district.

Nope. We just got chewed out. We ought to be ashamed of ourselves.

Thanks to Mr. Allen, though, we can see clearly, now.

Keep up the good work.

Writer makes search for family members

Editor:

My name is Carol Carter and I'm looking for my two nieces from the marriage and divorce of Russell Carter and Audrey L. Bently. The girls' names are Selina Danae Carter. Her birthdate is August 4th, 1977. She graduated June of 1995 at Prestonsburg High School. The youngest is Crystal Lynn Carter; birthdate, is August 28, 1978, and she dropped out of school in February of 1995.

I am the oldest living Carter of my family of five and we have recently reunited after 40 years. I'm planning a family reunion on Labor Day week-end. My dream is to bring my family together. We are all getting old and very sick, plus these children will be in on an estate that we want them to be a part of. I've recently gotten our family back together. We want these children to know that we love them and miss them, and need them in our lives. Please help me find these young ladies.

Anybody with information about these two girls should contact me at: Carol Carter, 642-28th Street, Catlettsburg, Ky. 41129; or call 1-800-216-5368, anytime.

Parent says to treat all children equally

Editor:

This is a letter of concern as a parent, for the children of our local schools.

I have always taught my children to treat all other children in our schools equally, regardless of sex, color, the clothes they wear or things they might have, and that they are no different than any other child.

But yet, the school system makes this very hard to uphold among our children. It is impossible for a child from a low-income family to participate in school activities. In some schools it is as high as $500-$900 for a child to be a cheerleader. Football and basketball players are also faced with high expenses which leave children of low-income families ruled out!

This makes it very hard for children to understand, especially if they are of young age, why they cannot participate in these activities.

Do the people need to be reminded that all children, regardless of their income, want to have fun? Which brings us to the question: Are our children really treated equally in our schools?

Praises health department, but none for fiscal court

Editor:

During the past several years I have constantly and bitterly criticized the Floyd County School Board and our fiscal court.

It is my considered opinion that these two elected bodies miserably served the people of our county. And they get worse as time goes by.

I have used television, radio, newspapers, and lectures in churches, firehouses, and even grocery store parking lots, to tell our people that we deserve better than what they dish out to us.

I constantly lash out at the "courthouse" or the "courthouse gang" and use these terms to identify the fiscal court and the people who appear to control it. But, I do want to point out that there are many good people who work in the courthouse; people who were

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

We're surprised at the lack of public feedback on the Johnson County Fiscal Court's enactment of an occupational tax, which will effectively serve as a bailout for the court's fiscal mismanagement.

The one percent levy doubles to two percent on workers within Paintsville's city limits, where a similar payroll tax has been in effect for a number of years.

Ironically, the lion's share of the burden for making up for the court's overspending ways falls primarily on the shoulders of the people least likely to see any benefit from county government.

Paintsville residents get very little in the way of county services but, since that's where most of the jobs are, that's where most of the revenues from the new tax will originate.

The tax was proposed as the only alternative to shutting down county government, which apparently was not a viable option to those whose salaries are paid with tax dollars.

Guess it's reassuring to know that if officials aren't going to lose their paychecks as a penalty for their poor management, at least they'll have to pay double taxes, too.

Lt. Guv Steve Henry will not resign from that post while he campaigns for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate, but says he will quit politics if he doesn't win Wendell Ford's seat.

In case you haven't noticed, the Lt. Governor is not a particularly relevant official, outside of being able to attract votes for his or her gubernatorial running mate.

The office is generally considered to be a political launching pad for people with higher aspirations, and Henry is apparently using it in that fashion.

Normally we would advise folks not to quit one job before they landed another. But, since

Henry has vowed to quit politics anyway, he ought to just go ahead and quit now and avoid the appearance of using his taxpayer-funded state office to gain political advantage.

Who knows, that might even boost his chances in the Senate race.

"Moonshine's not as clear as water, Guess that's why it make you hiiiiigh..."

— Goose Creek Symphony

You may not have known it, but the federal government has been in the moonshining biz for about 20 years now, spending something like $7 billion in the process.

Okay, it's not really moonshine, it's ethanol, an alcohol-based fuel made from corn.

Over the past two decades, Congress has subsidized ethanol production under the guise it could serve as an alternative to petroleum-based fuels, but we haven't seen any of the big auto manufacturers pushing corn-powered cars.

Besides, the government doesn't need to be spending our tax dollars to help big companies make a product that folks in our area perfected many moons ago.

Call off the revenooers and we'll turn ethanol production into a real money-making business...again.

Sufficient time has passed for wounded egos to heal, tactical errors to be written off and legal problems to be resolved.

Time to revive the Mountain Area Drug Task Force.

That multi-county effort to attack the street-level drug business dissolved under a cloud of suspicion more than a year ago. An investigation into the agency's methods of operation and procedures led to some embarrassing evidence of questionable practices which eventually resulted in the closing of the task force's doors.

We're supposed to learn from our mistakes, though, and the biggest one we made was throwing the baby out with the bath water.

Before it disbanded in disgrace, the Mountain Area Drug Task Force proved that it could make an impact on the illegal drug trade in this region.

The concept was sound even if the implementation of it was flawed.

So, let's lick our wounds, bury the hatchets, correct our errors and renew the cooperative effort. Dope peddlers have had a long enough vacation.

Drug trafficking has a direct relationship to other crimes, like burglaries, and instances of those crimes are on the rise.

We need to team up again, as a region, to stop them.

ected or hired to do a job, and quietly, efficiently, do it and serve our people well. I could identify these people, and I would like to do so, but I fear that it might be harmful for me to do so in a public media.

I have long held that our school board and fiscal court rank with the worst from Bangladesh or Ethiopia. But we also have the Floyd County Health Department, which I would rate as the best in the state, and would argue for top ranking in the entire nation.

These people are truly professionals, but more important, they are good people and are and have been of incalculable benefit to our people of Floyd County.

I have visited the health department in its several forms over the past half century. Always, they have been courteous, professional people who remained calm and efficient no matter how many babies were crying; how crowded it got; or how hot and muggy the place became.

This is what we so desperately need here in Floyd County, public officials that do their jobs honestly and well, and at the same time, care for our people as human beings.

Concerned family members question track actions

Editor:
This is in regard to Thunder Ridge Race Track involving the race day of August 9. My brother, Jimmy "Buck" Yates, drives a "Bomber race car" which must not be very important to the establishment, because he was involved in an accident in which he was hit in the driver's door. Another one of the drivers stopped and tried to wave the ambulance over, with no response, and the ambulance left the track as soon as the checkered flag dropped without response to the accident.

When his accident happened, the race was almost over and someone, possibly the track officials, sent the push truck onto the track to push him and the car to the center of the track so that the race could continue and "get it over with."

The fans in the stands could not believe that the ambulance did not go to my brother. His brother and sister had to insist that the ambulance be sent back to the track. His sister took him to the emergency room at Highlands, where he was treated and released. Buck was not badly hurt, thank God, but "what if?"

My brother is new to the sport of racing, but he loves it. He has had some bad experiences at Thunder Ridge but he keeps coming back. This type of racing has become very popular in Eastern Kentucky, but without the proper medical care it could become a heartbreak for one of the families of the drivers.

All drivers pay a fee to race, therefore all drivers should be treated equally with medical assistance to all drivers; if not, it is time to move on to a safer track. If it had been one of the late models, modified or super modified, would the same thing have happened? I don't think it would have. Would any of the proprietors of the race track be willing to race without the proper medical assistance? I don't think so!

Call before you dig

Re-enactment of Civil War scheduled for this weekend

Editor:
This weekend the Civil War will return to the hills and valleys of Eastern Kentucky, bringing with it, authentic Civil War flags from the Kentucky Military Museum in Frankfort and artifacts and weapons used during the Civil War. This will be the first time these flags have been in the Big Sandy Valley since the Civil War ended. (Yes, I'm sorry to tell some of you, but it did end over a hundred years ago.) Civil War historians, re-enactors, enthusiastic history buffs, school children, tourists, and curious passers-by, will experience the re-enactment of the Battle of Middle Creek (1862).

After the re-enactment, the May House Living History Museum on North Lake Drive, across from Wendy's, will be open to the public to view the original Civil War Battle Flags. Also, an exhibit will be Civil War armaments and artifacts from local collections.

Many of us who grew up in the Big Sandy Valley recall stories told by our grandparents and great-grandparents, great aunts and uncles of the Battle of Wireman Shoals, the Battle of Middle Creek, or the Battle of Ivy Mountain. As a young girl my great-aunt Martha Webb, of East Point, told me stories of her father and grandfather (my great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather) Edward and Jacob Webb who took part in the original battle of Middle Creek. It was their first day as soldiers, and their only day in battle, when the day ended they were prisoners of war. They spent the remaining years of the war fighting another type of battle, the battle to stay alive, against all odds.

My father, Virgil Webb, and my uncle Wilbur Webb, added to these stories over the years, until Edward and Jacob, "River Jake" Webb, were very real to me. Both died long before my birth, but "River Jake" and Nancy Auxier Webb are buried on a knoll overlooking what was once their cornfield, but now is the location of Porter Elementary School.

Aunt Martha left me a shoe box filled with family papers. (I was 11 year old when she died). She had entrusted me with treasures I have cared for since then, including the original deed to the Samuel Auxier Farm, first dated 1792 (he was her great-grandfather); Jacob's Bible, which he had in his possession when he was captured; two letters, one written in January 1862, after the battle, to Jacob, by his bride of a few months, Nancy Auxier Webb; a poem Jacob carried inside the Bible when he returned home after the war; and pictures and other mementos of our family.

Jacob's small Bible, served as his means to record the names of his friends and neighbors who were imprisoned with him. He recorded their names, birth and death dates, so he could, if he survived, bring the news to their families. The names are faded, and few are legible now, but it was an attempt by a young man to bring order to the confusion of his world, turned upside down by war. The following is a copy of the letter his young bride wrote to him, the day she received word of his capture:

January 1862
*My soul is sad today, my heart with sorrow rent.
I am thinking of the long, long days in sorrow I have to spend.
My grief alone I bear, the burden O how hard,
But who can this remove, none else but the O God.
My dearest one on earth is gone, my earthly joys
Have flown. Restore him back, do, do, O God
Beneath thy heavenly throne.
Some times, look for brighter days,
Blue gloome orspread the sky. O then O then
My GOD I almost wish too die.
The cottage in which we lived, how happy once
It smiled, Seems sad and lonely now, naught
Naught but a funeral pile.
How oft I list to heare your step, but O I heare
It not. Some time I almost think ah me
You have forgot. But O that cannot be
The rebbers are our foes
Untoo your home and friend they Will not let you go.*

Nancy Auxier Webb

This weekend, as we observe or take part in the re-enactment of a part of our history, we each take with us memories that have been related to us through the years, all part of our collective history. We will view the re-enactment of the battle, smell the smoke of the gun-fire and campfires, see the uniforms faithfully reproduced, and the battle plan faithfully followed, but thankfully, the pain, the grief, the dying will not be real. We will remember once again, what our ancestors endured, so we could live in our beautiful hills and valleys of Eastern Kentucky.

The May House, our own "Old Kentucky Home," which was donated to the city of Prestonsburg, through the generosity of brothers E.B. May Jr. and William May, will be opened to the public this weekend to view the collection of Civil War flags and artifacts that will be on display there, during the re-enactment. The hours of opening are as follows: Friday, August 22, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday, August 23, 12-6 p.m.; Sunday, August 24, 12-5 p.m. A reception will be held for the re-enactors and their families at the May House, Saturday, August 23, between the hours of 3-5 p.m. By the Friends of the May House.

Cundiff caught by police

Police captured a Mount Sterling man who allegedly slashed a Pikeville police officer and took his gun in June, after finding the suspect hiding in an abandoned house in Montgomery County August 12.

Daniel Ray Cundiff, 42, was indicted in Pike County for allegedly cutting police officer Paul Maynard with a knife when Maynard tried to take him into custody after an auto accident near Lowe's in Pike County.

Cundiff was involved in a traffic accident at Lowe's and when officer Maynard ran a routine crime check on Cundiff, he found the man was wanted on a parole violation.

Cundiff allegedly stole Maynard's gun during the altercation.

A preliminary hearing is set for Friday in Pike County Circuit Court.

Cundiff was working for WDOC/WQHY radio in Prestonsburg on a remodeling job when he went to Lowe's to pick up supplies.

A Kentucky/West Virginia gas employee found the truck soon after the incident on a gas well road off KY 194 at Lower Johns Creek. Maynard's weapon was in the front seat of the vehicle.

Arrests

they had a ride home.

Three hours later, two traffic stops led to a foot chase into the hills and the arrests of five young men who had apparently attended the party.

Four of those arrested on alcohol-related charges were under the legal drinking age.

Kristopher Lawson, 19, of Prestonsburg, was charged with alcohol intoxication; and Kevin Porter, 19, also of Prestonsburg, was charged with driving under the influence and attempting to elude.

Lawson and Porter were arrested by Prestonsburg patrolman Dale Morton.

Jeremy Lyons and John Lyons, both 20 of Prestonsburg; and Timothy Lee Lane, 22, of Ohio, were arrested Sunday morning by patrolman Darrell Preston.

John Lyons and Lane were charged with alcohol intoxication, and Jeremy Lyons was charged with driving under the influence. His blood-alcohol level was .119.

The legal level for adults who are at least 21 years of age is .10.

Less than two hours after they were lodged in the Floyd County Adult Detention Center, Stumbo posted bond for Porter and Lawson. Under the state's rules for criminal procedure, Stumbo, an attorney, is prohibited from posting bonds for persons accused of crimes.

During arraignments Tuesday in Floyd District Court, Porter pleaded not guilty to the charges and Jeremy Lyons waived his formal arraignment. Court trials for the two defendants are scheduled for October 28.

The other three defendants are scheduled to be arraigned on September 10.

Stumbo reportedly said he was at home the entire time but did not know that there was alcohol at the party.

Despite Stumbo's published admission that the police depart-on November 8, 1994, by then Floyd Circuit Judge Paul Burchett.

On Friday, Osborne's attorney, Tom Moak, was before Circuit Judge Danny P. Caudill, asking that the funds be returned to Osborne, plus 12 percent interest. Moak pointed out that no interest-bearing bank account with those funds in it could be found.

Judge Caudill told Moak that he would uphold the order if Moak could prove which agency was responsible for paying back those funds.

Moak argued that it was not his client's responsibility to find out who owed the funds.

"We feel that's backward," Moak told Caudill. "If someone's property is wrongly taken, it's not up to them to find out where it is."

Moak said he assumed the county was responsible for the debt since Hale was acting in his official capacity as sheriff.

Assistant county attorney Stacy Marshall told Caudill that it was a difficult case to follow because, ment went to his house early Sunday morning on a complaint, police chief Darrell Conley refused to give reporters the exact location of the party.

"I was not working and I'm not aware of what took place," the police chief said Tuesday.

Stumbo did not return phone calls Tuesday seeking his comments on the incident.

"three of the parties named in the case have either passed away or been incarcerated." He said County Attorney Keith Bartley is reviewing the matter to determine if the county or the Commonwealth Attorney's office is responsible for the funds.

Meanwhile, Moak has asked for assistance from Attorney General Ben Chandler to resolve the issue. In a February 8, 1996, letter to Chandler, Moak asks, "please investigate this matter and advise what party would be the proper party to reimburse my client for funds that were wrongfully taken."

Chandler has not responded to the request, Moak said Tuesday. Calls to Chandler's office Tuesday to determine the status of the request were unsuccessful.

Moak said he will continue the battle on behalf of his client.

"The money is not accounted for," Moak said. "We shouldn't have to prove where it went. I really don't know what to do next. She's entitled to her money back."

tion hearing Monday after he was arrested over the weekend on a fugitive's warrant charging him with numerous traffic violations.

Jeffrey L. Shepherd, 29, of Pierceton, Indiana, was arrested Sunday by Floyd deputy Randy Davis.

According to the warrant, Shepherd is charged with two counts of operating a vehicle while intoxicated; being a habitual traffic offender; and failing to appear for two court appearances in June 1996.

Shepherd is being detained at the Floyd County jail until he can be transported to Indiana to face the charges.

In other felony cases this week:

• Leslie R. Hunter, 35, of Printer, was charged with first-degree assault and violating an emergency protective order (EPO).

Floyd District Judge James R. Allen ordered that Hunter be held at the jail in lieu of a $30,000 partially-secured bond for the assault charge, and a $10,000 cash bond for violating the court's previous domestic order.

• Christopher Clark, 19, of Grethel, was arraigned on a charge of receiving stolen property, a gun. Clark was released from the jail after he posted a $10,000 partially-secured bond.

• Kenneth Collins, 22, of Pinetop, was taken back into custody Tuesday during his arraignment on a rape charge, but was released again shortly thereafter.

Collins was arrested last week on the rape charge, and released from the jail after he posted a $1,000 cash bond over the week-end.

district spokesperson Jeff Keener, the pension issue is what brought the strike "to head."

On the pension issue, UPS wants to withdraw from the 31 multi-employer Teamster-controlled pension plans.

The day after the strike began, Keener said the Teamsters' representatives should allow the members to vote on the issue.

"Teamster leaders are going to have to look in the interest of UPS employees and stop looking at their own interests," he said.

Denzil "Barney" Walker, Teamster steward at the Floyd County site, said the union had to look at the interests of all Teamsters members.

"The advantage of a multi-company plan is if one company goes belly up, others continue to pay," he said after the strike began.

Walker also contended that full and part-time employment was a major factor issue that led to the strike.

Judge Allen told the defendant Tuesday that the bond was set too low and that he would be taken back to the jail, where he would have to post an additional bond.

Collins' second bond was set at $50,000 or ten percent.

After conferring with trial commissioner Jack Hyden, Judge Allen decided that Collins did not have to post the additional bond, but a restriction on the original bond would be imposed.

Preliminary hearings for this week's felony charges will be held at 2:30 p.m. on August 27 to determine if there is probable cause to refer the cases to a grand jury.

He said some employees at the Emma branch have been employed as part-timers for 13 years.

The company's proposal indicated that the UPS contract would increase pay for employees and ensure 10,000 opportunities for part-time workers to move into full-time positions within a five-year period, plus create 1,000 new full-time jobs.

Part-time employees will also qualify for company benefits, according to the proposal.

With UPS delivering approximately 12 million packages on a normal business day, Floyd County businesses were beginning to feel an impact from the strike.

Although some area businesses said the strike wasn't affecting them, others said the strike was "killing" their businesses.

"We are elated that our employees will soon be coming back to work, restoring the high levels of service that our customers expect," Kelly said.

superintendent had complied with the judge's order and said Davis had the right to assign personnel. He added that several other administrative offices were located in the maintenance building, including coordinator of alcohol and drug prevention, director of elementary education and director of the food service. Schmitt said the central office building did not have adequate space for all the personnel.

Damron said no one had been moved into Paige's and Fish's old offices.

"This is not maintaining the status quo, this is a banishment," Damron said.

Caudill said that he would not hold the board and Davis in contempt and that it appeared that their lawsuit was now a moot issue with the board's vote to rescind actions at the April 4 meeting.

Schmitt asked that the lawsuit be dismissed, but Caudill said that would be premature and asked Damron to submit an answer to the motion within five days.

spokesperson Dave Cooley informed the court that as of August 26, a merger between United Waste and USA Waste would be finalized. "These people are going to be more in tune with the people here," Cooley told the court.

Cooley also said United Waste "people" have done some things that upset him and some court members. He added that bar-coded account numbers would be on stickers and "we can keep up with it a little more."

"We will have more control here with what we do in the county," Cooley said. The fiscal court supported the merger of the two companies.

In other action Friday, the court:

- approved a $230,000 draw down from Community Development Block Grant funds for the new head start building at McDowell;
- agreed to present the Left Beaver Rescue Squad with a $33,605 check from the emergency medical services account;
- agreed to pay the bond payment of $73,380 for the Floyd County Solid Waste revenue bonds. "We do have adequate funding from our 15 percent transfer fund franchise," Hale told the court;
- agreed to pay the detention center bond payment of $184,549.50 to the Bank Josephine;
- hired Bill Carroll as assistant janitor to assist in cleaning the Floyd County Courthouse; Kevin

C. Webb as the ecology officer; and Carl Gibson as a full-time mechanic;

- authorized Hale to advertise the sale of a backhoe and seek bids for a replacement.

"We're having to rent (one) right now," Hale told the court. "I think that's just money down the gopher hole."

- authorized Hale to advertise bids for repair projects related to damages from severe weather.

"Several of the awards were above $10,000 which according to law must be completed by way of the bid process," the court's resolution says.

During public comments, Betty Puckett questioned Hale about the employment of an assistant janitor.

"It needs it," she said. "You need somebody to clean this place up."

Hale said he wanted to make sure that somebody was on hand at all times who can perform floor work.

"We're going to put some elbow grease into it," he said.

Puckett also asked Hale about the names of the new ecology officer and one of the members on the industrial park authority.

"Are we hiring more family members?" Puckett asked, referring to Jean Hale and Webb.

"Hale serves on the Federal Reserve Board," the judge-executive said. "We are grateful to have someone of that caliber."

Appointees to the new industrial authority are not paid for their services.

Puckett said the Floyd County Jailor was a Webb, and the new ecology officer was as well.

One of the court members advised Puckett that there was no relation between the two.

Nursing homes, long-term and intermediate care facilities must report when SSI recipient admitted

by Jim Kelly
 Social Security District
 Director for the Big Sandy Area

Nursing homes and other long-term and intermediate care facilities are urged to remember to notify Social Security when a Supplemental Security Income (SSI) recipient is admitted to the facility.

The law requires the report to be submitted within two weeks of the date of admission in order to adjust the monthly payment.

If an individual enters a facility for an extended period and Medicaid pays for over 50 percent of his or her care, the recipient's benefit payment is reduced to no more than $30 per month because his or her basic needs are being covered by the Medicaid payment. Stays in the facility of 90 days or less may not require an adjustment in benefit payments.

The benefit reduction begins with the first full month of residence in the facility. If the admission is not reported promptly, a recipient may receive more benefits than he or she is eligible for in the months following admission, thus causing an over-payment.

The law requires overpayments to be repaid; generally the debt is deducted from future checks.

The Social Security office needs the following information as soon as possible after an SSI recipient is admitted to a facility:

- SSI recipient's name and Social Security number;
- Name and address of the facility;
- Date of admission; and
- Who will be paying for the recipient's care.

Social Security also would like to know when the facility's record contain a written statement from the attending physician indicating that the SSI recipient's stay is expected to last for 90 days or more.

This information will assist in deciding whether payment continuation provisions apply in each situation.

Social Security will accept reports by FAX, telephone or in writing. Administrators should send the report to the local Social Security Office no later than 14 days after the SSI recipient's admission:

Substance-abuse screening starts for welfare recipients; state to allow Medicaid to cover many treatments

Local residents who are abusing alcohol and drugs can get help through two new strategies currently being implemented by the Cabinet for Families and Children and the Cabinet for Health Services.

The first strategy is a substance-abuse screening protocol for use by welfare case managers within the Cabinet for Families and Children's Department for Social Insurance (DSI). Under a new policy that began the week of July 17, case managers ask a series of questions of welfare applicants in an attempt to identify those who may be at high risk for a substance-abuse problem. If a risk is found, the recipient is referred to qualified professionals for a more thorough substance-abuse assessment and then to treatment, if needed.

The second strategy, now in the development stage, would allow Medicaid to cover outpatient substance-abuse treatment for women of child-bearing age (18-40). The Cabinet for Health Services will seek a waiver from the U.S. Health Care Financing Administration to allow this change. The change would allow low-income people, such as welfare recipients, to eliminate substance abuse as one obstacle on the road to self-sufficiency. Because of time limits and tighter restrictions imposed by welfare reform, there is a greater need than ever for adult recipients of TANF (Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, the main federal welfare program) to find employment.

"Alcohol and drug abuse is one of the major barriers we face in moving TANF recipients into the workforce," said Mike Townsend, director of Health Services' Division of Substance Abuse. "Unless we do all we can to identify and refer TANF recipients to appropriate treatment for chemical dependency, we will pay a much higher cost through health problems, foster-care placement programs, or thorough the criminal justice system."

Townsend said staff will begin working on the waiver this month, although the federal approval process means implementation may be as much as a year away. In the meantime, Comprehensive Care Centers across the state will give welfare recipients high priority when referred to them by DSI case managers for evaluation and treatment of chemical dependency.

Just how many welfare recipients have problems with alcohol and other drugs is not known, although estimates range between five percent and 25 percent. Each year, the Comprehensive Care Centers treat about 25,000 people for substance abuse, roughly 10 percent of them welfare recipients.

The centers' treatment programs are now reimbursed wholly with state and federal Substance Abuse Block Grant dollars. If Medicaid is brought into the picture, treatment of welfare recipients would be covered by the usual mix of 70 percent federal funds and 30 percent state funds. Additional personnel will be employed and services can be expanded under the Medicaid program. This would allow other clients now awaiting services from the regional centers to have quicker access.

Another bit of good news: the Department for Social Insurance may be able to provide child care and transportation to help welfare clients who enroll in treatment services.

In late June, the University of Kentucky's Institute on Women and Substance Abuse provided special training to 580 DSI case managers from all over the state to enable them to do the screening. Screening will consist of five questions (for example, "Have you ever felt angry because someone criticized your use of alcohol or drugs?"); the case manager's observations of the client; and any other relevant information, such as history of drunken-driving arrests.

If the case manager determines that the client is at risk, the client is referred to a Comp Care center for further evaluation. Clients who are determined through the assessment to be substance abusers must either meet their work participation obligation or comply with their treatment plans. Failure to comply could result in a reduction in the client's welfare grant.

Information gathered during the assessment process will be confidential and shared only with agencies with the client's written permission. Information gathered during the assessment process will not be shared with law enforcement agencies. The goal of the new procedure is to promote healthy families and help them overcome a barrier that can keep them from supporting themselves.

In Loving Memory of EARL JUNIOR YATES

August 23, 1930 - September 6, 1990

MARGIE LOU DOVE YATES

November 15, 1932 - August 21, 1996

Earl and Margie's marriage consisted of a great deal of love. They shared a love for each other but they also shared love for children, family and friends.

Children were always a part of their lives. I was an only child, but there were children in our house every day. There are many adults and children today who should have fond memories of being at Earl and Margie's house, or receiving gifts from them, or being fed at their table. They were god-parents to many.

Family was so important to them. They cherished time with parents, siblings and extended family members. Friends were made and kept. Co-workers remained friends long after their working days were over. The love of true friends and family is a gift they passed on to many.

Their love for each other was so strong, that one could not live without the other. Daddy was buried on their wedding anniversary and Mommy was buried on Daddy's birthday. The six years between their deaths was a time of grieving and sadness for Mom. I now think of how happy they must be—being together!

EARL AND MARGIE—

How those two words seem to always go together.

SADLY MISSED BY THEIR DAUGHTER,
FAMILY AND FRIENDS.

USDA pumps $9.9 million into rural Kentucky; six local projects to receive waste water funds

Kentucky has received $9,913,000 in grants and loans from the U.S. Department of Agriculture for water and wastewater treatment projects located across the state, USDA Under Secretary for Rural Development Jill Long-Thompson announced recently.

USDA Rural Development administers a number of programs designed to strengthen rural economies and expand infrastructure in rural areas.

"USDA's water and sewer programs are an example of the Clinton/Gore Administration's priority of helping rural communities provide basic services to local citizens," Long-Thompson said. "Providing communities with necessities such as a safe and clean drinking water supply and new or upgraded sewer facilities helps improve the economic infrastructure and expand job opportunities for all who live in the region.

"Today's funding announcement for Kentucky reinforces the Clinton/Gore Administration's priority for providing basic services, such as a safe drinking water supply and environmentally sound waste treatment facilities to residents in rural communities," Thomas Fern, Kentucky State Director for USDA Rural Development, said.

"Some residents of these communities are relying on inadequate sources for their drinking water and are suffering from substandard plumbing systems. These funds should help alleviate some of these problems."

USDA's Water and Waste Water program, administered through USDA Rural Development's Rural Utilities Service, is designed to bring fresh, clean drinking water and sanitary and environmentally sound wastewater facilities to rural America. Loans and grants are available to rural communities of fewer than 10,000 residents.

A listing of the projects to be funded follows:

•$1,500,000 loan and $2,225,000 grant to the town of Albany in Clinton County for the expansion of the city's current treatment facility.

•Called the "U.S. 23 Cow Creek Project," the town of Prestonsburg is slated for a $187,000 loan and $65,200 grant for the construction of approximately four miles of water lines, two 200,000 gallon water storage tanks, and one booster pump station. Approximately 120 households and businesses in the Tram, Tom's Creek, Ivy Creek, Daniels Creek, Woods Branch and the Slick Rock Branch areas of Floyd County will be served.

•$2,421,000 loan to Hardin County Water District #2 for the expansion of the White Mills treatment plant.

•$140,000 loan and $300,000 grant to the town of Lewisburg in Logan County for the construction of one 300,000 gallon water storage tank and for the rehabilitation of an existing 100,000 gallon water tank.

•$1,700,000 loan and $777,800 grant to the town of Mt. Vernon in Rockcastle County for the expansion and renovation of the existing water treatment plant, construction of a 400,000 gallon water storage tank, replacing and repairing storage tanks, pump stations, transmission lines, and general upgrading of the water system.

•$597,000 grant to the city of White Plains in Hopkins County for the installation of approximately ten miles of eight-inch gravity sewer collection lines, approximately four miles of force main, and a gravity sewer pump station to serve 325 new users.

Master classes begin at Jenny Wiley Theatre

It's tough at times for actors and actresses to make a living — that's why JennyWiley Theatre makes a summer of work in Eastern Kentucky as educational and beneficial as possible for its company of thespians.

In addition to gaining the invaluable experience of working at one of the nation's premier outdoor theaters, actors and actresses employed by Jenny Wiley Theatre this summer have been offered the opportunity to attend the theater's master classes.

Master classes are designed to help theater employees improve their skills in a number of areas. The sessions are set up in weekly blocks and are taught by theater professionals who are nationally renowned for their abilities.

Last week marked the first block of master class activity, and sessions were taught by Mary Guaraldi of Flagstaff, Arizona. Theater employees spent the entire week under Ms. Guaraldi's tutelage, learning how to write and produce one person plays.

"Actors so frequently as they get on in years feel like they've lost control of their lives, and that they're always sitting waiting for people to hire them, or waiting on tables," Guaraldi said.

Guaraldi's solution to this dilemma is for actors to write and produce one-person historical plays in their spare time. Guaraldi says that this effort can pay great dividends during those "down times" when regular employment is scarce.

"This way they have a project that they have written that could be done at shows, festivals and all over the place. They have a way of making additional income that's in their field," Guaraldi explained. "[These shows] are a wonderful thing for an actor to have in their repertoire."

The class started the week by reading a work called Billy Bishop Goes to War. "[The story] is about a World War I flying ace from Canada," Guaraldi said. "It's a one-person show, he plays several different characters. It's got music, it's got some choreography. It's a great piece."

The class also read some historical information on Sedona Miller Schnebly. Schnebly is a historical figure in Arizona who had a town named after her (Sedona) and who led a "life full of melodrama," according to Guaraldi.

"Her father disowned her for the man she loved; she moved out west and had a pioneer's life; she had a child die; she had reversals of fortune," Guaraldi said. "There is just a wealth of material [about Schnebly] and she is a woman who has fascinated me since I found out who she was."

After extensive study, discussion of the historical material and some preliminary discussion about writing one-person plays, the students sat down to write their own one-person play based on what they had read about Sedona Miller Schnebly.

At the last class meeting, the students read their own writings aloud. "If some of [the students] choose to finish what they've started, I will try to have them produced in Sedona, Arizona," said Guaraldi. "Some of them were good enough that I think they could be a huge hit traveling to schools or being done at festivals. It would make a great one-person show for an actor in Sedona to do," she said.

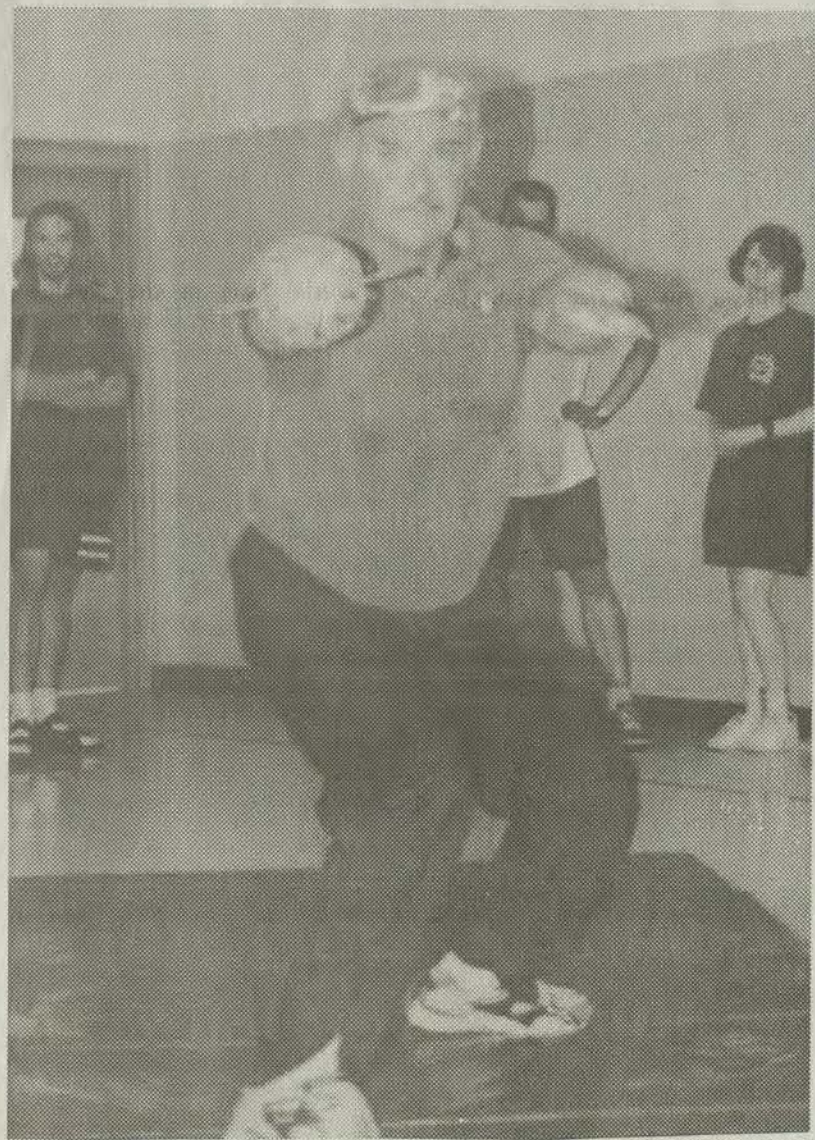

Mary Guaraldi developed a love for theater very early in life. Born in Chelmsford, Massachusetts, she began her theater career when she was only five years old. From there it was a love affair that knew no bounds. "[Theater] is really all I ever wanted to do," she said.

She started taking elocution lessons, and at sixteen she began directing, in addition to her acting. By her mid-twenties she was doing mostly directing. She began working with the Greek and Shakespearean classics and moved on to working with modern plays. She recently spent an extended engagement working as the Associate Artistic Director and Director of Playwright's Stage for Missouri Repertory Theatre. Currently, she is working independently in Arizona as an arts consultant and as a producer of new plays with Dave Wasserman (author of several works, including Trouble On the Santa Fe Trail.)

Guaraldi first developed her fascination with one-person plays when she read a one-person show about Paul Robeson, a black classical singer of the mid-twentieth century. She loved the piece and decided to produce it. "I did the show three different times with an actor I adored and it started me thinking about the potential of one-person plays," she said. "They are incredibly challenging because you have to make it just as exciting as if you had twenty people on the stage. I like difficult assignments, and that is a difficult assignment."

Patrik Baldauff, executive director of Jenny Wiley Theatre, and Mary Guaraldi met with Ashley Turner, accompanist members from Johnson County, during a recent workshop.

"[One-person plays] also let you dig deeply into a person, and I think that's fascinating," Guaraldi continued. "Paul Robeson was a historical character whose life was so rich, and I ended up reading bios of him, articles about him, seeing all his movies and listening to all his music. It was just a really rewarding experience to get to know him."

Somewhere along the way, Guaraldi developed an interest in teaching others about theater. She said teaching is a nice way to relax and get away from the hectic life of a theater professional. "I try to teach whenever I can," she said. She has applied her pedagogical talents at the University of Missouri at Kansas City and various other places throughout her life.

"I love to teach in conjunction with my professional work," she said. "I did a lot of teaching when I started out, but I came to the realization that I needed the professional work to balance the teaching, so I try to do both. That's why an opportunity like this is perfect for me. You use a whole different part of yourself [to teach], so it's very relaxing and very rewarding."

Guaraldi was brought in to teach the master class through her association with Patrik Baldauff, executive producer of Jenny Wiley Theatre. The two met while they were working on separate projects in Kansas City, Missouri, and became fast friends.

"Patrik is someone who works very hard and I appreciated that," Guaraldi said. "He would come see my shows and talk to me about them and whose opinion I respected. I worked on a few one person shows when [Patrik] was there and did a lot of new play work. So, when he came out here he called and asked me if I would do the class for him."

Mary Guaraldi's workshop at Jenny Wiley Theatre appeared to have a lasting affect on those who participated. Friday morning found a group of around twenty actors and actresses busily putting the finishing touches on their historical one-person plays, which would be read later in the afternoon.

One participant, Kate Besterman, an actress from Pennsylvania, paused from her work to say, "[The class] has been great. I had never thought about trying the writing aspect [of theater] until this week."

Space cadets

Students Amanda Arnett, Lyssa Wetz, and Josh Francis experienced some of the same training undergone by America's astronauts, when they blasted off to space camp in July.

Students get a "taste of space"

by Rita Brock
Contributing Writer

Space Camp! "Get ready to have a blast," was the feeling of two area students who got to experience a taste of space in Huntsville, Alabama, during the week of July 20-25.

Training like an astronaut means you eat and sleep like one, too. The students got first-hand training, just like NASA trains for space.

Training were Amanda Arnett, 13, daughter of Dr. Charles and Nan Arnett of Prestonsburg; Josh Francis, 12, son of Kim Reynolds of Prestonsburg; and Amanda's cousin, Lyssa Wetz, 12, daughter of Dane and Lynn Wetz of Huber Heights, Ohio.

Amanda and Lyssa graduated from Space Academy, and Josh graduated from Aviation Mach 1, on July 25, in Huntsville.

Prestonsburg Community College board of directors endorses college's strategic plan and budget request

The Prestonsburg Community College Board of Directors endorsed the college's 1997-98 budget request for additional money during a meeting held July 29, at PCC. During the same meeting, the board adopted a resolution encouraging full funding for the new Health Education/Classroom Building to be constructed on the PCC campus in a joint venture with Morehead State University.

The board unanimously adopted a resolution supporting PCC's request for additional monies to come from a pool of funds established under the provisions of the Kentucky Postsecondary Education Improvement Act of 1997. This funding would be in addition to the money contained in PCC's 1997-98 Operating Budget, which was previously adopted by the University of Kentucky Board of Trustees and was approved by the PCC Board at this meeting. During this portion of the meeting, the board also heard a report on the status of the college's scholarship funds and endowments.

In another resolution unanimously adopted at this meeting, the board urges the General Assembly to appropriate the estimated $18 million necessary to complete construction of the new classroom building to be built on the PCC campus. The new building, a joint venture of PCC and MSU, has received $5.5 million from the state for design work, which is currently in progress and partial construction. On a related subject, the board also discussed the July 21 announcement by Governor Paul Patton that PCC will share classrooms in a new $12 million Pike County Regional Technical Center to be built in the Pikeville Riverfill area.

The board also adopted a resolution of support for PCC's Annual Report, which contains the college's Strategic Plan and Progress Report. In that resolution, the board commended "the College President, leadership, faculty and staff for their dedication and work to create a climate for innovation and learning which is clearly focusing on a vision and a plan with noted remarkable achievements."

In addition, the board adopted resolutions in memory of two deceased PCC employees—Christopher G. Fleming and Claude Johnson—and a deceased Board member, Chalmer H. Frazier, as well as one accepting an offer of a complimentary one-year membership in the Association of Community College Trustees.

Before taking up resolutions, the board heard presentations by Dr. Deborah L. Floyd, PCC president, on an overview of the Kentucky Postsecondary Education Improvement Act of 1997 and on the PCC Annual Report. Floyd also introduced Dr. Douglas Herman, the faculty representative to the board, and Anita L. Williams, the student representative, who were attending their first board meeting. This was the first meeting of the board, formerly known as the PCC advisory board, since its name and duties were changed under the provisions of the new higher education reform legislation.

Before adjourning, the board appointed a committee to draw up bylaws reflecting the board's new role and duties and begin the process of an evaluation of the president, one of the duties delegated to the Board under the new higher education reform law.

Among other items to be placed on the agenda for the next board meeting, to be held on a date to be set in September, are the election of officers and recognition of four former PCC faculty members who recently retired.

Branham makes gift to Western Kentucky, Floyd County students will be given priority

Eck Branham, an area farmer and a retired teacher and coach, has made a landmark gift to Western Kentucky University athletics.

"Western has never been out of my mind since I first came to the Hill in 1933," Branham said. "Mister (Hilltopper coach E.A.) Diddle and (Western president) Dr. (Henry Hardin) Cherry were responsible for me getting a college degree. Now, I have a chance to help give someone else the kind of opportunity I had to go to college and to play ball."

Branham, who starred in football for Hilltopper teams in the mid-1930s, has donated $100,000 to Western to establish an endowment for athletic scholarship support. Athletes out of Kentucky high schools, and in particular from his home (Floyd County) will be given priority for scholarship support from the endowment. Football, and then basketball, will also be priorities in selecting recipients for support from the fund.

"This is certainly a landmark event in the history of our athletic program here at Western," said Lewis Mills, Western's director of athletics. "Eck's love of his university, his generosity and his vision for the future of athletics at his alma mater are indications of the kind of wonderful person he is. Now, he's made a statement of that loyalty in a way that will benefit countless young people in our athletic program for generations to come. We all want to extend to him our sincerest thanks and appreciation."

Branham's gift is the largest individual donation ever made to Hilltopper athletics, more than doubling the previous high.

"Eck has demonstrated, in this very substantial way, his love for Western Kentucky University and its athletics program," said Mike Simpson, WKU's director of development to University Athletics.

"He has established a new standard for giving to Hilltopper athletics and we hope others will emulate the generous actions of this true Westerner."

Branham first came to Western from Prestonsburg in 1933 and lettered in football, basketball and baseball on the Hill. He graduated in 1937 and embarked on a 31-year career in high school coaching ranks. Through the years with a break for service in World War II, Branham coached football, basketball and baseball at high schools across the state of Kentucky. His first job was a Wheatcroft in Webster County; then he went to Van Lear in Johnson County. He followed that with stints at Sturgis (also in Webster County), at home in Prestonsburg; at Flemingsburg, at Kuttawa (in Lyon County); at Bourbon County; and at Winchester.

Then, in 1957, he returned to Bowling Green where he coached at North Warren for one year before moving across town to Warren County High in 1958, where he remained until he retired to devote his time to farm in 1968.

He served as the director of Kentucky's annual East-West All-Star Games (in both football and basketball) for 21 years (from 1956-77). And, he put in 18 years as a major league baseball scout (12 with the Cincinnati Reds and six with the Cleveland Indians).

Branham, who also holds a master's degree from Western (1952), and his wife, Carol, live on his farm near Bowling Green.

The announcement of Branham's gift to Hilltopper athletics was made at the Hilltopper Athletic Foundation's regular luncheon meeting on August 18. He will also be recognized at the Hilltoppers' home opener in football (vs. Murray State — set to kick off at 7 p.m. CDT, Saturday, September 6).

Bomber champions help race at 201 Speedway

by Chris Belcher

With only two racing dates left for this season, Sitka's 201 speedway matched the hot August weather with some of the most heated battles for position during Saturday night's "201 Speedway, Claim Bomber Championship.

Claimers qualified for position for the 1st time ever, locking the top six in the big show...Borderland West Va's Willard Blair's lap time of 18.37 was quick enough to earn the 2nd year driver the pole position, with Flat Gap's Bannie Blair 2nd quickest at 18.40... Claim Bomber heat race winners were: Jerry Honeycutt; Bannie Blair; Larry Blanton, Points leader, George Meade, and Virgie's Steve Burke. Nas hog Heat races saw Mikey Wallen, Gary Jennings, and Jerry Honeycutt take checkers, while Stambaugh's Scott McCloud won the Super Bomber Heat.

West Liberty's Keith Potter gained the early advantage on the start of the 30 lap Claim Bomber

Fall co-ed softball league to begin on September 15

The Paintsville Recreation Department is now forming a co-ed softball fall league for men and women ages 16 and over. All games will be played Monday through Thursday beginning September 15. There will be 200 feet from homeplate to the fence with balls hit over the fence in the air an automatic out.

Teams should consist of 14 players (men and/or women), nine starters per team at a cost of $5.00 per person. Deadline for sign up is September 8. Call (606) 789-2612 for more information.

Championship, getting out ahead of Bannie Blair's #B-4 ride. An early battle for the 2nd spot quickly developed between Blair, Jerry Honeycutt and Willard Blair, as Honeycutt got on the move and pulled alongside Bannie, as the two veteran drivers rounded the 1/4 mile speedway door handle to door handle until Honeycutt was forced to pit on the 3rd lap, with mechanical problems which were corrected quick enough to allow him to rejoin the field at the rear of the running order.

Caution thrown for Larry Blanton's #T-1 machine on the same lap, proved to be well in Honeycutt's favor as it kept the Sitka drive still on the lead lap, with a lot of real estate to make up. Bannie Blair would be faced with the same dilemma, as he too had to make that hard left handed turn into the pits on the 5th lap, and again caution played in his favor as the Flat Gap driver returned to the rear of the running order, while Potter checked out on his closest challenger, Wendal Wright in #3-W. Lap 12 saw the leader forced to the pits under caution due to a flat tire, relinquishing the lead to a determined Jerry Honeycutt, who had picked his way back to the 2nd spot by lap 12.

Potter also changed the tire and returned to the running order, and shot back through the running order to challenge Honeycutt's lead by the 19th lap, until the 21st lap, when Potter was forced to pit with terminal mechanical failures. Martin Co. driver Kenny Preece joined 201's "Roll Over Club" in turn three on the 19th lap as he flipped his #CL-15 claimer, eliminating him from the competition.

From the 21st lap to the $500 Checkered flag, it was all Jerry Honeycutt, as he checked out on the field, and won Saturday night's Eastern Kentucky Claim Bomber championship, aboard his "Tackett's Grocery and Gameroom", Lance Comb's Garage," Green's Auto Parts" sponsored #71-J, finishing ahead of Bannie Blair's #B-4, "O & M Muffler Shop" sponsored machine, Virgie's Steve Burke finished 3rd in #11, followed by Keith Potter's #17, Bob Witten's #?, Danny Dempsey's #55, Wendal Wright, Kenny Preece, Larry Blanton, and Saturday Night's Promoter's choice entry, Tom Crabtree of Whipoorwill...Saturday Night's Super Bomber Feature saw Scott McCloud quickly take to the point, over Inez's Beadie Blackburn. Beadie Meade his bid for the lead, yet McCloud opened up a good lead of over 1/2 a straight way by the 3rd lap, Blackburn was forced pit side one lap past 1/2 way. As the points leader slowed and finally pitted for the evening.

For the duration of Saturday Night's Super Bomber feature, McCloud was simply the fastest horse on the track, winning Saturday Night's feature by a full Straight-a-way in his "McCloud's Auto Parts," Barker's Mobile Homes" sponsored #5-M. McDowell's Timmy David Hall was 2nd in His #US 23 followed by Johnny Trimble in Glenn Patton's #7-B, and Rodney Webb's #72...Saturday Night's Nas Hog Feature saw drivers stack 'em four deep in the corners early in the race, while Points leader, Scott Pennington grabbed the lead from Darren Muncy before the field completed the 1st lap, but Muncy would keep within a carlength of Pennington until he spun coming down the front stretch on the fourth lap. From there on out, it was all Scott Pennington of West Liberty, winning the Nas Hog feature in his "Phil Hayes Motors "Morgan Tire Center" sponsored #11-X, with ole glory waving out the back window. Mikey Wallen finished 2nd in his "Pa Paw Brown's Racing" #D-14, followed by Jack Clevinger's #3, Pickle Butcher's #B-5, Wesley Blair's #U-3, and Frank Blackburn's #22 Hog... Next Saturday night will see the crowning of 1997's "Boss Hog," with a special feature for the Road Hogs, and the following race on August 30th will be the big one, the 7th annual 201 Speedway Bomber Classic, worth $2000.00 to the winner.

KDFWR state fair booth offers something for everyone

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources staff will again operate a booth at the Kentucky State Fair at the

Louisville Fairgrounds. The fair runs from Thursday, August 14 through Sunday, August 24. This year the KDFWR booth, located in the South Wing, will be bigger and better than ever.

In addition to KDFWR personnel providing information about Kentucky's hunting, fishing and wildlife watching opportunities, and answering questions, the booth will also include mini exhibits featuring Kentucky's record fish, aquatic education, the Salato Wildlife Education Center, Junior Duck Stamp Contest winners, a FATS simulator and much more.

The Firearms Training System (FATS) is an interactive hunter education simulator that offers participants a wealth of knowledge about safety, ethics, laws, judgement, shooting skills, game identification and hunting techniques.

The high-tech apparatus uses an 8'x10' screen with projected laser disc video and audio that places the participant in a series of life-like hunting scenarios.

The FATS simulator uses actual firearms that have been modified to shoot lasers instead of live ammunition. The firearms have a simulated "kick" and audible "blast."

The FATS simulator will be available to the public 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. each day of the state fair. Fair-goers can also meet Tim Farmer, host of Kentucky Afield-TV at the KDFWR booth. Tim will be at the fair from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Friday, August 22.

Sport hunting and fishing licenses will also be sold at the KDFWR booth.

So, be sure to visit the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' booth at the Kentucky State Fair later this week. You're sure to find it both informational and entertaining.

MARK MARTIN COMES FROM TWO LAPS DOWN TO WIN AT MICHIGAN

Mark Martin was focused on only one thing Sunday in the Winston Cup Devilbiss 400 at Michigan International Speedway, and that was to drive into victory lane.

Martin, driver of the Roush Racing/Valvoline Thunderbird, had led 70 of the first 85 laps around the two-mile oval, when a flat left rear tire on lap 86 almost caused him to lose control. The incident occurred coming out of turn two, and Martin had to drive all the way around the track before he could reach his pit.

Once he arrived in the pits, the team discovered the outer tread of the tire had wrapped around the axle and brake housing. Crew members finally pulled it off, but Martin had to pit again, to check for other damages. In the process, he lost two laps.

Back on the track, he quickly made one of the laps up. On lap 127, NASCAR Officials put out a yellow flag due to a rain shower. Martin's teammate, Jeff Burton, who was the leader, slowed and allowed Martin to catch and pass him before he reached the start/finish line. This tactic put Martin back on the lead lap.

The next 31-laps were run under a rain-caution. When racing resumed on lap 158, Martin was running in fourth-place. It only took Martin 11 more laps before he had passed Jeff Gordon, who was running second, and Martin's other team member, Ted Musgrave, for the lead.

At the end, it was Martin's no. 6 Ford Thunderbird by almost 2 seconds.

"Oh man, I wanted to win this thing," said Martin. "I thought it had gone up in smoke when I cut that tire. I know how that 'kid' (Jeff Gordon) feels on Sunday. Today, I had the car he usually has. We're serious about this championship thing."

The three members of the Roush Racing team, Mark Martin, Jeff Burton, and Ted Musgrave led 177 of the 200 laps.

Top 20 finishers: 1. Mark Martin 2. Jeff Gordon, 3. Ted Musgrave, 4. Ernie Irvan, 5. Dale Jarrett, 6. Bobby Labonte, 7. Bill Elliott, 8. Jeff Burton, 9. Dale Earnhardt, 10. Terry Labonte, 11. Geoff Bodine, 12. Ricky Craven, 13. Rusty Wallace, 14. Ken Schrader, 15. Darrell Waltrip, 16. Derrike Cope, 17. Robby Gordon, 18. Jeff Green, 19. Jimmy Spencer, 20. David Green.

Top Five Winston Cup points leaders after 21 of 32 events: 1. Jeff Gordon-3,194, 2. Mark Martin-3,095, 3. Dale Jarrett-2,914, 4. Terry Labonte-2,884, 5. Jeff Burton-2,814.

Ford Thunderbirds have now won 12 Winston Cup events, while the Chevrolet Monte Carlo has registered eight wins.

NASCAR Connection

by Steve Mickey

IT'S STILL THE SAME OL' BRISTOL

If you didn't make it to the Food City 500 at Bristol Motor Speedway this spring and didn't get to see all of the improvements that have been made at the "World's Fastest Half Mile" track, then it would be worth the trip this weekend to see what Ol' Bruton Smith has done!

Now even if you did go to the spring race at the East Tennessee track you still will be amazed at what Ol' Bruton has got done in time for this Saturday night's Goody's Headache Powder 500. For years fans thought that the problems with parking, seating and traffic flow would be with the track just as sure as those Tennessee hills would always provide such a beautiful backdrop for some of the best racing that the sport has to offer. Even with all of the problems that the track's location produced, a ticket for either race at Bristol is one of the hardest to get your hands on. This Saturday night's Goody's Headache Powder 500 may just be the hardest ticket in all of NASCAR to get your hands on! To prove this point the track held a ticket lottery with 4,000 tickets available for the fall race. The lottery attracted 80,000 entries.

Maybe former track owner Larry Carrier thought that the problems that were associated with the track couldn't be worked out, and that the pressures that NASCAR was putting on track owners to keep their facilities updated wasn't worth it. Whatever the reason, in 1996, Carrier sold Bristol to Bruton Smith's Speedway Motorsports Inc.

Do you ever think Bruton ever saw a mountain too big to be moved or a speedway that couldn't hold another set of bleachers? No sooner than the ink was dry on the contract Bruton began to literally move mountains in order to make Bristol's beautiful East Tennessee hills and valleys more fan friendly and make it possible to increase seating from 71,000 to over 125,000 for this Saturday's race.

Let's take a look at what is new since the April race at the track. For those friends in high places there is now a total of 55 skyboxes in turns three and four now open. In April, the number was only 22. There has been an increase of 7,000 seats for Saturday night. This was accomplished by tearing down the media and suite towers in turn one and replacing them with temporary stands. These stands will be removed and along with the concrete bleachers on the front stretch will be replaced with new bleachers. When this phase of construction is completed, the track will have a bowl look with bleachers completely circling the track. The total number of seats that will be available for the spring race will be 131,000.

If you are a fan like me, the first thing I want to know is how long it takes to get to and from the track. Smith has done a fantastic job with addressing the nightmare of parking and getting in and out of the track.

There is new parking lots around the track and even a shuttle system of buses heading to and from the track. Unknown to many fans is the opening up of the beltway behind the speedway that may offer the fastest exit of any of the network of side roads around the track. The old saying of, "you can't get to the track early enough" is still true at Bristol, but with scouting around there is some hope.

If I could only go to the one race a year, it would be Bristol! Because the one thing that Bruton didn't have to try to improve was the track itself, cause it always produces the best door banging, fender rubbing racing that you will see all year!

MONARCH BUTTERFLIES ON THEIR WAY TO THE BLUEGRASS

A familiar beauty is returning to Kentucky — the monarch butterfly. Each year around late August, the greatest numbers of monarchs begin migrating south. Some of them fly as far as 2,000 miles. The longest recorded flight is 2,880 miles, from Brighton Ontario to the mountains of Mexico.

Scientific study tells us that monarchs east of the Rocky Mountains fly south to Mexico where they spend the winter. Then, they fly back in the spring. What we don't know is how they reach the same locations year after year. Not only are they very small to be traveling so far, but the ones that migrate north die shortly after they reach their destination and a whole different generation must make the return trip to a place they've never seen before!

The answers to questions surrounding monarch migration lies in old-fashioned tag and recapture studies. Monarchs are captured, tagged and released to continue on their journey. Further along their routes, the butterflies may be recaptured and their tags read to determine how far the individual butterfly has traveled, in what direction and how fast. Their progress can be influenced by wind, weather, topography and availability of flowers with nectar.

The best part of monarch studies is that they are not conducted only by professional scientists. As a matter of fact, you or a group of friends can participate in the research that helps us learn about the habitats of the mysterious and beautiful monarch butterfly. You can tag monarchs with a tagging kit available for $10 from the Kentucky Afield Gift Shop at the Salato Wildlife Education Center. Tagging kits include tags, glue and instructions for capturing butterflies and determining gender as well as a journal for recording simple migration behavior patterns.

You can order a tagging kit by sending a check for $10 to: Monarch Kitx Kentucky Afield Gift Shop, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601. Credit card orders (VISA and MasterCard) can be taken over the phone at (502) 564-7863.

NEW PERMIT FOR HUNTING DOVES AND OTHER MIGRATORY GAME BIRDS

If you hunt doves, woodcock, snipe, rails or gallinules you may be required to possess the new Kentucky Migratory Game Bird Permit. If you possess a Kentucky waterfowl permit you do not need the additional permit. If you are not required to purchase a hunting license, you do not need the permit.

You must possess a Kentucky Migratory Game Bird Permit if you are in the field taking or attempting to take migratory shore or upland game birds (doves, woodcock, snipe, rails or gallinules), are not license exempt and do not have a Kentucky waterfowl permit.

The new permit is in compliance with federal guidelines. Data collected from hunters purchasing the separate permit gives federal biologists a better idea of the numbers of nonwaterfowl game birds that are being harvested each year. The waterfowl permit exempts hunters from needing a migratory bird permit because waterfowl hunters are already giving this information when they buy a Kentucky waterfowl permit.

KDFWR COMMISSION TO MEET AUGUST 29 IN FRANKFORT

The next meeting of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) Commission will be Friday, August 29 at 8:00 a.m. This meeting will be held in the Arnold L. Mitchell Building at the Game Farm on US 60 West in Frankfort.

The KDFWR Commission recommends all hunting, fishing and boating laws for passage by the Kentucky General Assembly and approves expenditures made by the department.

Persons interested in addressing the commission must notify the KDFWR commissioner's office in writing at least 30 days in advance to be considered for placement on the meeting agenda. People who are hearing impaired and plan to attend the meeting should contact the KDFWR at least 10 days in advance and the agency will provide a translator.

To request to address the commission, write KDFWR Commissioner Tom Bennett, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

ROOKIE STEVE PARK IS BGN DETROIT GASKET WINNER

On the way to winning his second Busch Grand National event, Steve Park learned about conserving fuel.

"They kept telling me save fuel," Park said. "But this Monte Carlo was hauling, and man, was it good on fuel. When Jimmy (Spencer) wasn't pushing me I would draft with another car. But whenever he began to catch up, then I had get back in it."

When asked how much fuel his no. 3 Chevrolet Monte Carlo had in the fuel cell after the race, he replied, "Probably about a teaspoon of gas is left in it."

Top Ten Finishers: 1. Steve Park, 2. Jimmy Spencer, 3. Bobby LaBonte, 4. Jeff Burton, 5. Buckshot Jones, 6. Todd Bodine, 7. Dale Earnhardt Jr., 8. Matt Kenseth, 9. Phil Parsons, 10. Dale Shaw.

Busch Series points leader, Randy LaJoie finished 17th.

Top Five BGN points leaders after 22 of 30 events. 1. LaJoie 3,247, 2. Todd Bodine 3,135, 3. Steve Park 2,823, 4. Phil Parsons 2,798, 5. Buckshot Jones 2,706.

JACK SPRAGUE GETS THIRD TRUCK VICTORY OF 1997

Jack Sprague survived a caution with only two to go in the Federated Auto Parts 250 at Nashville Motor Speedway to get his third win of 1997.

Sprague was leading when Jimmy Hensley's Dodge lost a wheel. The accident occurred during lap 248, and since NASCAR Craftsman Truck rules say a race must end under green, there was a two-lap shootout between Sprague and 1996 Defending Champion Ron Hornaday. Sprague was able to pull away from Hornaday for a 0.417 second margin-of-victory. Top Ten Finishers: 1. Sprague, 2. Hornaday, 3. Butch Miller, 4. Dave Rezendes, 5. Stacy Compton, 6. Rich Bickle, 7. Chuck Bown, 8. Rick Crawford, 9. Mike Bliss, 10. Rick Carelli. Top Five points leaders after 18 of 26 events; 1. Jack Sprague-2,276, 2. Rich Bickle-2,691, 3. Ron Hornaday-2,632, 4.

Joe Ruttman-2,600, 5. Mike Bliss-2,399.

LAUGHING IS BETTER THAN CRYING FOR STERLING MARLIN

If it wasn't for bad luck, Sterling Marlin, driver of the no. 4 Kodak Chevrolet Monte Carlo, would be out in the cold. Just ask him or any member of the Morgan/McClure team what has happened to them in 1997, and they'll give you an earful. But the worst part about it is the racing season isn't over yet, and the team is wondering just what else might happen.

Sterling is the 10th leading money-winner in NASCAR Winston Cup history. Morgan/McClure Motorsports, which fields the Kodak Chevrolet, has been one of the leaders during the 90's on the big super speedways at Daytona and Talladega, as well as on the road courses.

Sterling has 371 career starts dating back to 1976. He has six wins, 54 Top-5s, and 134 Top-10's, plus nine Busch Poles. But 1997 has been a frustrating year for the 40-year-old driver from Columbia, Tennessee, to say the least.

Two weeks ago in the Bud at the Glen at Watkins Glen road course, pit traffic cost Marlin and the team a chance to capitalize on a sixth-place qualifying run. On their first pit stop, the Morgan McClure team turned a top time, but their car was blocked in, and they were forced to push the car backward in order to clear pit traffic. Marlin finished 13th in the race.

For the entire team, it's been that kind of year. The really bad stuff started with the legendary screwdriver that shot through the radiator just before the TranSouth Financial 400 at Darlington Raceway in March. At Pocono, in June for the running of the Pocono 500, a groundhog chose to make a walk during Marlin's second qualifying lap, causing interference with the track's electrical system. There were cut tires at Dover and Daytona, not to mention Marlin being slammed into the wall at Texas by another car, in April—all which happened within the first three laps of those races, yet, ironically, Marlin finished 10th at Dover, third at Daytona, and eighth in Texas.

Sports in Kentucky

by Bob Watkins

Another football season is near ... so why are some of us not celebrating?

Cicadas are calling. Soon enough mountain laurel color will fade. Mid-August brings us sounds of practice ... football, throbbing drums and marching bands and plan-making for tailgate parties.

An attending excitement comes with a new autumn and new words like Mumme and Governor's Cup game, and the 50th Rec Bowl.

From the get-go passing quarterbacks take the throttle at the state's two Div. I football programs; Tim Couch at Kentucky, and Chris Redman at Louisville. Lots of blues and reds.

A new coach at UK who looks a perfect fit to Carl Hurley's Huddle.

U of L will play America's No. 1 ranked team, Penn State; UK will play America's No. 1 team, Florida. Pick one.

Dennis Johnson at Harrodsburg and/or Bernard Jackson at St. Xavier may be the most promising home-grown in Kentucky since Wynonna and Naomi Judd.

Tradition. The 50th Recreation Bowl at Mt. Sterling will be a bash.

Tradition. Winningest team: Breathitt County's 30 straight is the best since Carr Creek in that other sport.

Tradition. Winningest coach in Kentucky. Joe Kelly Jagers at North Hardin is three clicks from raising the bar set by Ty Holland at Murray (249), moved by Garnis Martin at Bardstown (271), then Walter Brugh at Paintsville (279).

Having listed these sunny road-markers, it is incumbent upon me to report, sports in Kentucky is not all sunshine and katydid.

UK basketball has moved a step nearer to being the commonwealth's most profitable professional franchise.

The NCAA is still sniffing in the files of U of L basketball and volleyball.

Western Kentucky U's athletic programs are under economic review by academicians. Uh-oh.

(Some) parents of high school student-athletes are still bending rules, moving their children to proximity of the nearest sports factory hoping it might lead to whatever promised land is out there (financial or fame?).

Professional, college and high school sports figures who fast break or blitz into our living rooms via television are more and more about money and greed and macho and less about playing well or winning for the school, hometown, home state.

And, the coach deified by so many of you, turned out to be a huckster after all, who broke his word and your hearts, and moved back to the NBA.

The list goes on. And so does the beat here in Kentucky. So, why don't some of us feel the adrenaline rush we are accustomed to at this time of year?

A summation by a sports writer in the Big Apple reflects my feelings.

"...there are days now, and they come more frequently, too frequently when I feel as if sports is running me off, and I tell you, if it can happen to me, it can happen to anybody. It is more work than ever to go down to the clubhouse or locker room and listen to the players, when the players are in the mood to talk.

"It is more work than ever to listen to similar bleep in the press box, where original thought is now replaced by consensus, where ferret journalism is played out, as (sports-writers and columnists) shop around for opinions that work for them, opinions they think will get the best play, the most attention, produce the biggest headlines.

"I have written a hard column at times, I take my shots, don't worry, at people I think deserve (them). But people who think I have ripped my way into the jobs I have don't get it, and never will. I always came to this looking to celebrate sports. It's just that sports keep making it so (expletive) hard."

Yes, there it is, there seems less to celebrate these days.

Changes I would like to see?

- Coaches be more accessible instead of shielded by layers of underlings more intent on 'protecting' them as if they were pontiffs or Harrison Ford,

- Coaches willing to answer hard questions instead of "...how does it make you feel?" For instance, I don't believe fans care a hoot how Hal Mumme feels. Plain talk. You want to know why his team did this or was not able to do that.

- Student-athletes with verbal skills enough to discuss a subject and get over the idea that reporters are out to somehow do them in when we prefer to celebrate not only their athletic successes, but their focus on growing up.

- Radio call-in shows change formats. When a fan calls with some inane criticism or basketball recruiting query during football season, the host should hang up and move on.

And so, as we come to another season of Tim Couch bombs and Chris Redman scrambles and linebacker blitzes, and tacking another W onto Roy Kidd's record, maybe there will be celebrations. Lots of celebrations.

KY. BOWL GAMES

There was a time in Kentucky when the Recreation Bowl at Mt. Sterling was the best and only bowl game in high school football. This Saturday, including the 50th annual Rec Bowl, there will be five doubleheaders played across the state.

By September 5, there will have been 18 bowls played involving 27 high school teams in Kentucky and three from Ohio.

Say what you will about football versus basketball, clearly, the proliferation of bowl games is a statement about the popularity of football in the Bluegrass State.

As it should be, at the top of the list is still the Rec Bowl which was once a post-season contest to which an invitation was cause for much celebration. The Rec Bowl has lost none of its luster or prestige, but has merely been joined by 17 nephews.

The Rec Bowl is still a showcase that retains the distinction of attracting the very best teams. This Saturday, Most Valuable Players from past classics in Mt. Sterling have been invited back and will be honored and recognized.

The 50th Rec Bowl features Harrodsburg, with Mr. Football hopeful, Dennis Johnson, against Bell County at 6 p.m.; and Breathitt County (30 straight victories), led by junior quarterback Kyle Moore, against Estill County at 8:30.

Elsewhere on the bowl scene, the marquee matches, at least on paper, are — August 30:

- Com Air Classic at Ryle High School — Louisville St. Xavier vs. Cincinnati St. Xavier.

- Champions Bowl at Ft. Thomas Highlands — Cin. Moeller vs. Highlands.

- Heritage Bowl at Bowling Green — Hopkinsville vs. Bowling Green.

'ALMOST' UK WILDCATS

When high school hotshot Vince Yarbrough changed his mind and decided to attend Tennessee instead of Kentucky, the kid's decision brought the blues to lots of Big Blue fans.

It brought to mind a history question: How many basketball stars in seasons gone were thought to be UK-bound but changed their minds? Here is a starter kit of Almost Wildcats: Daryl Dawkins, Shawn Kemp and Moses Malone, to the NBA; Jeff Mullins (Duke), Ralph Sampson (Virginia), Larry Bird (Indiana State), Butch Beard and Cliff Rozier (U of L), Brett Burrow (Vanderbilt), Byron Mouton (Tulane). Can you think of others?

PARTING SHOT

University of Kansas joined Kentucky earlier this month becoming the latest NCAA Park Avenue sports franchise to sell out to Nike Corp. Four-year deal. Jayhawk sports programs get $750,000 in athletic equipment and $105,000 cash for the athletic department.

No word on who decides how the 105 grand will be spent. And no word on what Kansas' sell-out buys for Nike.

But let us be optimistic and imagine an announcement will come sooner rather than later that Nike-owned Kansas and Kentucky will begin a 6-year basketball and football series.

And so it goes.

Cultivate cultural arts at home

Art, music and creative writing do more than help children pass the time on rainy days—they give them artistic outlets for their creativity and offer great learning experiences.

The Kentucky Education Association offers these activities to help children express their artistic talents.

Give your child frequent opportunities for the expression of artistic ability—making valentines, other greeting cards and holiday decorations, performing an original skit in your living room, making puppets and putting on a show, putting on a mock television show, etc.

Proudly display your child's creations on the wall, door or bulletin board and change the exhibit frequently. Take the work to your office and let your child visit to see it there.

Encourage musical activity in the home and on family trips. Family songs are fun for everyone. Encourage everyone to make up songs and verses to melodies you already know.

Let your child be a music maker as well as a listener. A toy drum, piano, horn, bells or harmonics can help teach rhythm and tone.

If your child plays an instrument, help schedule uninterrupted practice time. Listen to those tunes the child thinks are good. Exchange your child to perform and give your child constant praise.

To encourage creative writing, jot down stories your child tells you and songs your child makes up. Show them to the child later. Suggest they be illustrated and "published" for grandparents or other relatives on special occasions.

Encourage recycling and re-using all kinds of household throw-aways by using them for all projects. Scraps of yarn, materials, old pieces of wrapping paper and old egg cartons are just a few things that can be turned into beautiful art.

Point out the differences in the intensity of colors and other subtle variations in nature. Observations and experimentation open up the doors to confidence.

Don't dismiss your child's choice in popular music as "noise" or "garbage." (Remember what your parents thought of your favorite music!) Instead, try really listening, and find something positive to say. Encourage your child to listen to your favorite music with you and try to appreciate each other's choices.

This bright-eyed kitten is one of the many at the Floyd County Animal Shelter that is in desperate need for a home. Kittens are $20.00, of which $15.00 goes toward the altering of the pet. Cats are $40.00 which includes spaying or neutering, shots, worming and a flea dip. Please stop by or call 886-3189.

About snakes and stuff

Do moth balls really repel snakes?
 Since we found a blacksnake snuggled in a pile of afghans behind a recliner in our TV room last fall, Wilma and I pretty much hope so. About two months ago we dropped moth balls a foot or so apart all around our house. We've had several good rains since then though, and they he thought he might as well use them.

If he sticks, he'll make the team because Eagles Coach Gary Keller said that his policy was to dress everybody.

Whether he plays a lick of football or not, of course, is not what's important here. What is, though, is that sometimes we need people like Barreto to remind the rest of us that we're only as old as we think we are.

Poison Oak

all dissolved. We thought little about them again until last Friday night when we stepped from the car and was greeted by a large copperhead all stretched out on our driveway.

Time for more moth balls, we decided. However, on our way to buy another box, we sort of talked ourselves out of their effectiveness. We pretty much decided moth balls as snake repellents was just another one of those local folk lore things and had no scientific evidence to back it up.

But, we also thought moth balls don't cost very much and we'd better be safe than sorry.

When we approached the salesgirl at the store and asked where the moth balls were, she said, "They're in the next aisle over...if we have any left. Those snake haters have just about bought us out."

That made us feel a little better and, effective or not, moth balls once again surround the Pack house.

By the time this sees print, Edgard Barreto may or may not still be playing college football for the Ashland (Ohio) Eagles.

Barreto, a 60-year-old retired chemistry teacher, has returned to his alma mater to work on a master's degree this fall. He played football for Ashland when he was an underclassman nearly 40 years ago and still has two years of eligibility left. So,

By now, Barreto will have taken quite a few hits from his 19-20-year-old teammates, and may already have hung it up. If that is indeed the case, he has still accomplished a good deal by just trying. If he's still out there hustling, maybe Coach Keller can stick him in near the end of a game sometime. It'd be interesting to see Barreto's name in the Guinness Book of Records. There can't have been too many 60 year olds playing college football.

In last week's, column I said that Garfield Stambaugh was my very first school principal.

The principal when I enrolled for the first time at the Muddy Branch school was Garfield Chandler. He was an easy-going type of guy but carried a big paddle. I can't recall his ever using it in a serious manner, but if you walked up beside him, "he'd swat you one behind his back and then pretend to be as surprised as you were.

Garfield Stambaugh was also a part of my youth, however. He worked in the shop for Northeast Coal Company and I saw him almost on a daily basis as I walked to and from school. He always had something to say to us kids and we thought a lot of him.

I guess I sort of got the two Garfields mixed up.

Sorry if it caused any confusion.

Auxier celebrates Sadie Hawkins Day

Auxier's annual Sadie Hawkins Day celebration was held Saturday, August 9.

Events centered around Auxier Park with such activities as a horseshoe tournament, a dunking booth and several food booths. Local talent was displayed as area youth sang to music from a Karoke. Saturday night's entertainment featured Born Country on stage in the park.

A gospel show was held Friday night and featured the Old Log Church from Daniels Creek. Church members also sold fried apple pies during the event.

Hay rides through the community were also held during Sadie Hawkins Day and, on Saturday, a parade made its way down Main Street. Parade participants included Auxier school children, the Van Lear Volunteer Fire Department, and local county officials.

The celebration is sponsored by the Auxier Historical Society and, this year, was spearheaded by Bob Castle and Linda Jefferson.

Plans are currently underway for the community's annual Halloween celebration — Fright Nite, when a hayride becomes a journey to Nightmare Mountain, according to Charlie Music, an Auxier community leader.

A report on community perceptions of mathematics, science, and technology at home, school and work

The East Kentucky Center for Science, Mathematics, and Technology recently completed a regional study of community perceptions, needs and resources related to science, mathematics, and technology.

This is important, because it addresses perceptions among all members of our communities, including businesses, parents and educators.

Forms returned from 20 counties in the region revealed high levels of agreement among all parties about the following issues:

- Parents don't understand how to help their children (97%)
- Residents don't see connections of science, math and technology to real life (81%)
- Residents don't understand how science, math and technology are used in schools (96%)
- Residents don't understand science and mathematics (90%)
- Most students don't achieve well in science and mathematics (90%)

The East Kentucky Center for Science, Mathematics, and Technology is developing programs to help overcome the barriers discovered in the study.

These include hands-on exhibits and displays, family activities in science and mathematics, and networking to assist with teacher professional development.

For example, the Center has formed a partnership with a local unit of the Civil Air Patrol to set up an interactive program on aerospace technology and exploration. It is scheduled to run in October.

The Center is also developing plans to provide family activities in science and math. Citizen's committees are being formed to help provide a mobile planetarium and other resources and information to our communities.

The Center's research indicates that there are a large number of diverse programs already in existence that facilitate learning some aspect of science, mathematics, and technology.

However, it is apparent that there is still a large gap in coordination and communication of ideas regarding science, mathematics, and technology education among the various members of our communities.

The Center will foster communication and promote ideas about how these important concepts fit into everyday life, and how they are important to our communities. Science, mathematics, and technology affect our everyday lives, whether we are repairing a motor, cleaning an oven, prescribing medication, or surfing the Internet.

We must recognize this and make use of new opportunities presented by this reality of life today.

This is an exciting time to live and work in Eastern Kentucky, and the Center welcomes all who want to participate in the efforts to promote the importance of science, mathematics and technology in our lives.

Copies of the full report are available upon request to the Center at 606-886-0205. The Center is a nonprofit corporation located in Prestonsburg.

More choices ahead for telephone customers

The Kentucky Public Service Commission, August 11, released questions-and-answers about phone competition it said had been raised by many consumers.

Q. What is the Telecommunications Act of 1996?

A. The Telecommunications Act of 1996 is a federal law which requires your local telephone company to allow competing phone companies into its local service area.

Q. What does that mean to me?

A. It means that customers will be able to choose their local telephone company, just like their long distance company. For example, already there are several phone companies other than BellSouth offering local phone service in Louisville.

Q. What are the benefits of local telephone competition?

A. There are many benefits in store for telephone customers. The telephone companies will compete with each other for your business in many different ways. Customers will now have greater choices of companies, many more types of services and prices from which to choose. The more you use the telephone, the more options you will have.

Q. Will my telephone bill change?

A. Yes. Examples of choices that could affect your phone bill include what type of phone services (including cellular) you choose, the number of phone lines to your home, how many local or long distance calls you make, and the companies you choose to provide your phone service. Depending on these choices, your total phone bill could increase or decrease.

Q. Why would my bill go up?

A. Until now, basic residential telephone services have been priced below cost in most areas of the state. Other phone services, such as long distance, have been priced well above what it costs to provide that service. The Telecommunications Act finds that services must be above cost, which could cause local residential rates to increase. However, over time, competition should cause your total phone bill to decrease, including long distance charges.

Q. Is help available for rising phone rates?

A. Yes, to qualifying consumers. A fund will be created to assist low-income consumers with their phone bills. Assistance may also be available to other customers depending upon how the fund is established. This fund is called the Universal Service Fund and is designed to help ensure affordable phone service for all Kentuckians.

Q. What if my phone company has been changed without my permission?

A. Competition in the local telephone market will have many benefits. Along with these benefits will be some drawbacks. One of the most prominent problems that has occurred as a result of competition is the changing of a customer's phone company without authorization from the customer. This practice is known in the telephone industry as "slamming."

To avoid being slammed you can:

- Ask your local telephone phone company to put a "freeze" on your telephone account. This will ensure your phone service does not get switched unless you provide written authorization.

- When approached by telemarketers ask for them to send you a copy of the agreement in writing before giving them your business. This will allow you to take your time in making your decision and avoid becoming confused under a high pressure sales call.

- Read all sweepstakes entries carefully before signing. Many times they give a phone company authorization to switch your phone service.

THE DANGERS OF DOG DAYS

The older I become, the more intelligent I find that our parents and ancestors were. I have also found that all the old proverbials or sayings are not always just old wives' tales. A case in point, the Dog Days of summer. There was a good logical reason for not going swimming and the need for extra care of cuts or wounds during this time.

In the July 9, 1997, article on "Dog Days believers" by Clyde Pack, he rightly pointed out that the name of Dog Days began, in ancient Greece when the hot, dry Greek summer would begin about the time that the dog star, Sirius, rose with the sun.

Well it's the same dog star and Dog Days right here in Coal Camp USA—beginning at the same time of year. But I would like to point out the authenticity of the problems of Dog Days. First, we have hot, humid weather. This type of weather does not promote healing of wounds or cuts. Back in the 40s and 50s, without air conditioning, sweat got into cuts. Under these conditions those cuts could easily become infected. Our nights were heavy with wet dews, and a person with a cut or sore in hot humid weather and walking barefoot you could get weed poisoning. Of course, there was not chemical poison on the weeds. But the wet dew and high temperatures promoted infections. It made for ideal growing conditions of bacteria. Now, when you had one of those cuts infected, the old standby remedies were a clean white cloth and turpentine mixed with sugar. The turpentine was for withdrawing infection and the sugar made a plaster or made the turpentine stick to the skin. This was a poltice and you tied the white cloth around the wound.

Now, as for swimming, all the conditions above were doubled or tripled in importance. The reason again was because of the hot and dry weather. The creeks were low. There was very little water movement. There were standing pools of water. These standing pools were the deep holes for swimming and were loaded with all types of bacteria. If you went swimming in these stagnant pools of water with a cut or not, you were taking a chance on every illness imaginable. The long Dog Days of summer lasted until September, when the rainy season began. Then the humidity lowered, as well as the temperature.

One last word on weed poison. Animals and human foot traffic in the wet grass left their doses of bacteria (including dogs) and a morning walk in the wet grass with a cut could cause a bacterial infection of the wound—hence, weed poisoning.

So this is another "bird's-eye view of the reason for fear of the dreaded Dog Days of summer. I believe our ancestors and early settlers were well aware of these dangers of Dog Days. Maybe, they were just a little smarter than we give them credit.

Pick the perfect melon

One of the sweetest, juiciest treats of the summer are melons. From the traditional melons of cantaloupes, honeydew and watermelon to the exotic melons of crenshaws, Persians, pepinos, casabas or the African horned melon, all you have to do is slice it for a great warm-weather pick-me-up.

Melons not only taste great, but they contain significant amounts of vitamin A and C and a minimum of calories. To pick the perfect melon every time, use the following guidelines.

Cantaloupe should be smooth and rounded with a depressed scar where the stem used to be. If part of the stem is still attached, the melon was picked too early. Cantaloupe are ready to eat when they give off a fragrance.

The honeydew melon becomes sweeter after picking. The blossom end should be slightly springy and the shell should be creamy yellow. If the melon is greenish, it will never ripen. Thanks to selective growing there are varieties available that taste slightly like a cantaloupe and have a flesh that is orange.

Watermelons are ripe when the underside is yellowish and firm. If it is white or green, the watermelon is immature.

To make a meal out of fresh melons, assemble a cheese and fruit plate with wedges of melons, wedges of blue cheese, Port Salut, Gouda, a sharp Cheddar and salami, smoked ham, smoked chicken or turkey. Add a crusty French bread with your favorite beverage and you have a simple, satisfying dinner. Try tossing in melon balls at the end of your choices or shrimp stir-fry or add inside an omelet or crepe.

A melon wedge or half, adorned with a scoop of ice cream, sorbet or frozen yogurt with a sprinkling of nuts or toasted coconut is a wonderful dessert. Another idea is to try topping a melon slice with a dollop of sour cream and finely chopped candied ginger. Make a frosty drink by blending one cup of melon with one cup of ice. Add a pinch of sugar and a little lemon juice.

For a unique soup that can be served as a first course or as a dessert with a little sugar added, try this Melon-Berry Soup. The fat content can be cut in half by using low-fat milk in place of half and half.

Melon-Berry Soup
Yield: 5 cups
3 cups melon chunks
1-1/2 cups strawberries
1/4 cup sour cream

1/4 cup strawberry preserves
1-1/2 cups half and half (or low-fat milk)

1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
Puree melon chunks and strawberries using blender or food processor. Transfer to a large bowl and stir in sour cream and preserves until well blended. Stir in half and half and nutmeg. Taste for sweetness, adding 1 to 2 tablespoons of sugar, if desired. Cover and chill several hours before serving.

Ask the CIS

The Cancer Information Service, 1-800-4-CANCER

Q: I have read about "alternative" treatments that can cure cancer with few, if any, side effects. Is there anything to these claims?

A: There has been an increase in the use of alternative medicine in the treatment of cancer, either with standard care or alone. However, many people who support these methods make claims that cannot be scientifically proven.

Traditional advances in cancer care are based on studies with patients, called "clinical trials," in which scientists thoroughly observe and document the effects of new treatments. The results of these studies are published in scientific journals and discussed by other researchers. This process helps scientists learn whether a treatment is safe and effective for patients.

The use of alternative cancer treatments that have not gone through this process may result in the loss of valuable time and the opportunity to receive accepted treatments that may be more effective. Patients and their families may wish to consider the following questions when making decisions about cancer treatments:

Has the treatment been evaluated in clinical trials? To find out, patients and families may call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-Cancer.

Do people who support a particular cancer cure claim the medical community is trying to "hide" the cure from the public? Reputable doctors and scientists would not try to keep a safe, effective cancer treatment from patients.

Does the treatment rely on diet or diet therapy as its main focus? There is no scientific evidence that diet alone can cure cancer.

Is the treatment promoted as being harmless, painless, and without side effects?

Because cancer treatments must be powerful, they frequently have side effects.

Ask the CIS is produced by the Region 9 Cancer Information Service (CIS), which serves Kentucky, Arkansas, and Tennessee. The 19 region CIS offices throughout the United States and Puerto Rico are a free public service of the National Cancer Institute.

Call the CIS between 9 a.m. and 4:30 a.m. local time at 1-800-4-Cancer.

Sunshine Lines

by Beverly Carroll

Senior citizens, for the next three weeks you might want to sit down with your spouse and your children as you read "Sunshine Lines" together. You or one of your children, might be a primary caretaker who needs assistance from other family members in caring for a loved one. The family may not fully realize how tied down you, the caretaker, are and the stress it causes.

Today, we are going to discuss the meaning of the word "respite" and its importance to the health and well-being of primary caretakers of dependent children, adults and senior citizens.

I was well-seasoned with age before I grasped the real meaning of this word. Before that, I was "book smart" in my understanding of what dictionaries conveyed, but it was only after learning about caring program such as Adult Day Centers and organizations such as Hospices that I became keenly aware of the functional meaning of "respite" and its importance to caretakers.

Webster's dictionary defines this word, as "to relieve by an interval of rest." Another definition is, "a break from one's routine." Both definitions are very good; however, it is the functional meaning of "respite" that is especially important to family members who are caretakers to handicapped or aged persons who cannot be left alone.

There are no statistics readily available, but I am of the opinion that there are hundreds of thousands of handicapped people and senior citizens in our nation, who would be in long-term care facilities today, were it not for loving family members who are willing to provide in-home care for their loved ones.

Caretakers for the severely handicapped, invalids, loved ones with Alzheimer, cancer, muscular dystrophy or one of the many other degenerative diseases common to older people, find themselves ignoring their own physical, emotional, personal and recreational needs, because they expend all of their energy caring for their ailing loved ones. To a great extent this cannot be avoided. One's love for another generates this kind of attention. Yet, the fact remains that the caretaker has needs that are oftentimes ignored.

Caretakers have told me that they are, "so tied down" that they cannot get to a doctor for their own medical needs." Others have said, "I'm so tired that I find it a chore to write out checks to pay the monthly bills." Some exclaim, "If it weren't for the neighbors willing to pick up things for us when they shop, we wouldn't have food in the house." Fatigue and lack of time for one's self and one's family are three common obstacles most long-term caretakers have to deal with, because they are "on call" twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week.

There are several ways to get "respite" or a break from one's around-the-clock responsibilities without feeling guilty. This week, let's look at one option you might want to consider.

Bring your needs as a caretaker to the attention of other supportive family members. Most know that you are the caretaker to a particular loved one and what a big responsibility you have. However, they probably have not taken the time to reflect on just how "tied down" you really are, the "cabin fever" you experience year round, or the psychological impact this around-the-clock responsibility has on you, and the energy it drains from you, they may want to help you.

Even relatives who work outside the home and/or have children in school would more likely than not volunteer one-half to a day a month. This is especially true if others in the family will volunteer some time as well, and work out a schedule that will accommodate the working family member(s). You might be surprised, that by asking other loved ones for their help, you might find the "break" you need. At the same time, other loved ones who agree to volunteer, will realize the responsibilities that you have been carrying alone, and will find that helping you in this situation enriches their lives.

Next week we'll look at other ways that you might want to consider to find the respite that you need as a long-term caretaker.

If you should have any questions about what kinds of help might be available, or if you are sixty years of age and older, I urge you to contact your Kentucky Benefits Counseling Program for Senior Citizens at 886-3876 or toll-free at 1-800-556-3876. Ask to speak with Charles Slone, your Benefits Coordinator in the Big

Garden Phil-osophy

If you're planting your garden by the phases of the moon and signs of the zodiac, here's the information you'll need for the upcoming week.

MOON IN DARK PHASE NOW

The moon is in the dark phase now, the full moon having come into force Monday at 5:55 a.m. Thus, according to the phases of the moon, until the next new moon, September 1, you should be planting only those vegetables that produce beneath the ground.

GREAT PLANTING TODAY, WEDNESDAY

According to the signs of the zodiac, today and Wednesday are great days for planting with the sign in Pisces (the feet), one of the four fruitful signs. On either of these days you may plant anything in your fall garden that produces beneath the ground.

All planting should cease Thursday and Friday when the sign moves to Aries (the head), one of the killing signs. Reserve these days for killing, deadening, cultivating—anything but planting.

Outstanding planting returns Saturday and Sunday for below-ground-producers when the sign moves to Taurus (the neck), another of the four fruitful signs. On either of these days you may also plant anything that produces beneath the ground.

Monday and next Tuesday August 25-26, find the sign in Gemini (the arms), the bean sign.

However, beans produce above the ground and the moon is in the dark phase now.

Great planting for anything that produces beneath the ground returns Wednesday-Friday, August 27-29, when the sign moves to Cancer (the breast).

TIME TO QUIT BAD HABITS

With the moon having moved to the dark phase, Monday, and the signs going out of the body, we find one of those covered periods well suited for quitting bad habits, starting good ones, weaning small children or animals, and the like.

If you have one of these to begin, do so today, or at the latest Wednesday, while the sign is in Pisces (the feet). Just be sure to get started before Thursday when the sign moves back to Aries (the head).

Home schooling: New web site course brings financial aid expertise to families

Have you ever wished a financial aid expert was right there in your living room? Someone to help you and your college-bound student wade through applications, instructions and other materials that can help make financial aid available? While it might not be feasible to have an expert next to you on the couch, if you have a computer and Internet access, you can get the next best thing—Financial Aid 101.

Financial Aid 101, Sallie Mae's new multimedia course on paying for college, is part of the company's award-winning Web site, www.salliemae.com. Financial Aid 101 is located in the College Answer Online section of the Web site, a section providing college-bound students and their families with detailed information on financing a college education.

"The features of our newly enhanced Web site are geared directly to college-bound students, their families, high school counselors, and others involved in the financial aid process," said Lydia M. Marshall, executive vice president, Sallie Mae. "Financial Aid 101 is one of the newest features designed to make the often complex subject of paying for college easier to understand."

The interactive Financial Aid 101 course contains five lessons on various issues related to paying for college, including: 1) What is financial aid? 2) How do I qualify? 3) How do I apply? 4) What happens after I apply? and 5) What do I do if I need a loan?

Each lesson expounds on its individual topic. For example, under lesson four, What happens after I apply?, users gain an understanding of the financial aid award process, such as the differences between Pell Grants, loans, and school-based aid. In lesson five, What do I do if I need a loan?, users are introduced to Stafford, PLUS and private loans and learn what to look for in a lender. Each lesson features interesting graphics, a five-question quiz and a learning reinforcement game with sound effects.

In addition to being named one of the Internet's "25 Most Incredibly Useful Sites" by Yahoo! Internet Life, Sallie Mae's Web site has received a four-star rating by Magellan and a "Choice Site" citation from Starting Point.

For more information about the new features on Sallie Mae's Web site, log-on to www.salliemae.com.

Federally chartered and stockholder-owned, Sallie Mae is the nation's chief source of financing for higher education. The corporation owns and services approximately one in every three federally guaranteed student loans outstanding.

Residents warned about possible scam involving individuals posing as AEP employees

American Electric Power (NYSE:AEP) warns customers to beware of a possible scam in which an individual poses as an AEP employee and asks for money to make utility pole repairs. AEP is aware of one attempt to scam an Ashland resident on Monday, August 4. Local police are investigating the incident.

Customers are reminded to ask for identification from any individual who claims to be an AEP employee, particularly if that individual does not have an identified company vehicle. "All of our employees carry identification indicating that they are employed by AEP and will be happy to show you that identification," said Dave Lang, AEP's Kentucky Region manager. "We urge our customers to be cautious and ask to see identification or call us if they have any questions or suspicions."

In addition to its regular employees, AEP employs contract employees and companies to read meters, trim trees and make repairs on its behalf, according to Lang. However at no time will AEP's contractors request in-person advance payment for repairs or other services. If an individual requests money on behalf of AEP and does not have AEP identification, do not pay them, do not let them in, and call the police, Lang urged.

Customers living in Kentucky can call AEP at 1-800-572-1113 any time, any day to verify if an individual is an AEP employee or contractor. Customers living in West Virginia can call 1-800-982-4237. In Ohio, former Ohio Power customers can call 1-800-672-2231. Former Columbus Southern Power customers can call 1-800-277-2177.

AEP, a global energy company, is one of the United States' largest investor-owned utilities, providing energy to 2.9 million customers in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, West Virginia, Virginia, and Tennessee. AEP has holdings in the United States, the United Kingdom and China. Wholly owned subsidiaries provide power engineering, consulting, and management services around the world. The company is based in Columbus, Ohio.

Information about AEP can be found on the World Wide Web at <http://www.aep.com>.

A.T. Massey Coal Company purchases United Coal Company

A. T. Massey Coal Company Inc. announced recently that it has acquired United Coal Company of Grundy, Virginia, for an undisclosed amount.

United Coal holds substantial reserves of premium quality, low sulfur, metallurgical coal in the Buchanan County area. The purchase includes two major mining complexes. Wellmore, near Big Rock, Virginia, and Knox Creek, near Richlands, Virginia. Annual coal sales have ranged in recent years from 5 to 5.5 million tons.

The sales office for United Coal remains based at Bristol, Virginia.

Although Massey Coal is headquartered in Richmond, Virginia, these are Massey Coal's first mining operations in Virginia. Other Massey Coal operations are located in Southern West Virginia, Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee.

United Coal Company was purchased by Massey from The United Company, a privately-held company based in Bristol, Virginia, with diverse interests in energy, financial services, golf courses, manufacturing, and mining and industrial supplies.

Local sales rep is recognized

Who says nice guys finish last? Randy Brown of Whitesburg, recently finished as the third leading Kentucky Lottery Sales Representative in the state. After several years of battling the serious economic problems of the Kentucky Lottery's Southeastern sales region, Brown reached an outstanding 105.3% of his quota in FY 1997.

Brown has been working for the Prestonsburg Regional office since it opened in 1989. Regional Sales Manager Jeff Riley said Brown's recent achievement was a culmination of eight years of hard work. "Randy is a very consistent performer," said Riley. "He makes a plan and then he sticks to it."

A large part of Brown's success can be attributed to his close relationships with the retailers he visits. According to Riley, Brown tailors and conducts numerous in-store promotions to help all his retailers sell more tickets. "The retailers love Randy because they know he'll give them what they need to succeed in the lottery," Riley said.

Brown grew up in the Whitesburg area and still lives in Little Cowan with his wife and children.

Kentucky Lottery VP of Sales Bob Little said that Brown's success shows that "hard work and a friendly disposition will eventually be rewarded."

Commerce Corner

The Chamber of Commerce office is closed this week while Executive Director, Carla S. Coburn attends the Kentucky Institute for Economic Development in Lexington. The Chamber appreciates the support of the Prestonsburg Industrial Corporation for making her participation possible in this extensive training to improve our area.

Recently, the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce hosted the regular meeting of the Floyd County Environmental Planning Committee. The committee, which is the advisory group on environmental issues in our county, discussed several upcoming projects. The group hopes to have a presence at the Jenny Wiley Festival this fall, by making recycling bins available. The group is working with the Conservation District on displaying an animal petting zoo targeted to elementary students throughout the county with the goal of emphasizing environmental issues, and will utilize the creativity of local students to assist in developing a county environmental slogan. In addition to these projects, the committee is planning the Fall Clean-Up, which will allow the citizens of our country to discard large items with all tipping fees covered by the county, much like the clean-up the committee held this past spring.

The Chamber of Commerce formed committees at the August Membership Meeting, and they will be working on specific goals to improve the business climate in Floyd County. Congratulations to the individuals selected to serve on these committees; we thank you for your dedication to our business organization and to the improvement of Floyd County. One of those committees, the Civic Committee recently held their first meeting, and are currently developing goals that they plan to accomplish this year. The Membership Committee will be scheduling a meeting prior to the next full meeting of the Chamber membership to discuss their upcoming Membership Drive.

The Chamber of Commerce web site is being developed this week by Mark Salyer of Highlands Regional Medical Center. He has been working with Executive Director, Carla S. Coburn on a layout that highlights our members by listing each member (free of charge) in both a classified and an alphabetical listing. If your business has an internet homepage, you need to contact our executive director at (606) 886-0364, and the Chamber will create a link to your homepage from our site at no charge to your business. This is a membership service that the Chamber of Commerce is proud to provide for its membership.

by Carla Coburn

The Chamber reminds members that we have been invited as guests by Comfort Suites, the new hotel next to the Mountain Arts Center, for their Grand Opening and "Business After Hours" on Thursday, August 28th, from 5:00 p.m.-7:00 p.m.

We encourage you to stop in for a few minutes during those hours to welcome the new business to our community, and to enjoy social networking with your fellow Chamber members.

Diabetes: Managed Care Must Be Preventive Care

By Stanley Feld, M.D., F.A.C.E.

(NAPS)—Our nation faces a public health challenge of enormous scope.

Most of the 16 million Americans with diabetes are not receiving recommended preventive care. As a result, we are spending more than $108 billion a year—half of it to treat preventable complications such as heart and kidney problems.

This is why physicians who specialize in diabetes have launched a national campaign called "Patients First" whose goals include persuading managed care companies through their physicians to sign "patient-physician contracts" providing access to effective preventive care.

We are urging that diabetes patients—including the 90 percent who have adult-onset (Type II) diabetes—have access to "intensive diabetes self-management," a standard of care in which a physician-led team (including a nurse educator, dietitian, pharmacist, exercise physiologist and psychologist) works with patients to teach them to keep their blood sugar levels at a near normal level.

Intensive diabetes self-management can reduce the nation's health care bill by more than $54 billion annually while, on average, giving diabetes patients 15 more years without major complications and five more years of life.

Here is an opportunity for managed care to deliver on its promise, preventing diabetes complications while saving more than $200 a year for every man, woman and child in America. For Medicare patients alone, we could save $27 billion a year with intensive diabetes self-management and help balance the federal budget.

The Patients First campaign is promoting intensive diabetes self-management through the American Association of Clinical Endocrinologists (AACE), representing more than 2,700 members across the nation who specialize in diabetes and other endocrine disorders. AACE has launched a national patient education program including a toll-free hotline (1-888-50 SUGAR) and information on its internet site: (www.aace.com).

We need a 180-degree shift in our diabetes strategy, moving from treatment of complications to prevention of complications. The patient is the key. If patients will manage their disease, guided by a physician-led team, we can achieve the promise of managed care.
