Hood pleads guilty

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Wheelwright man pleaded guilty Monday to trafficking in crack cocaine and could be sentenced to 20 years prison.

Bobby Hood, 25, entered an Alford plea Monday, the day his trial was set to begin on a charge of first degree trafficking in a controlled substance. An Alford plea means that the defendant admits no guilt, but concedes there is enough evidence to obtain a conviction.

Hood was indicted last fall by a Floyd County Grand Jury after he allegedly sold two "rocks" of crack cocaine to a confidential informant for the Floyd County Sheriff's Department. The indictment said Hood made the sale on October 3, 1996.

The commonwealth attorney's office made no recommendation regarding the plea, but did say that if Hood is sentenced to a 10-year prison term, probation would not be opposed after Hood served five years, Brett Davis, assistant commonwealth attorney, said.

Board to give Frazier due process hearing

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

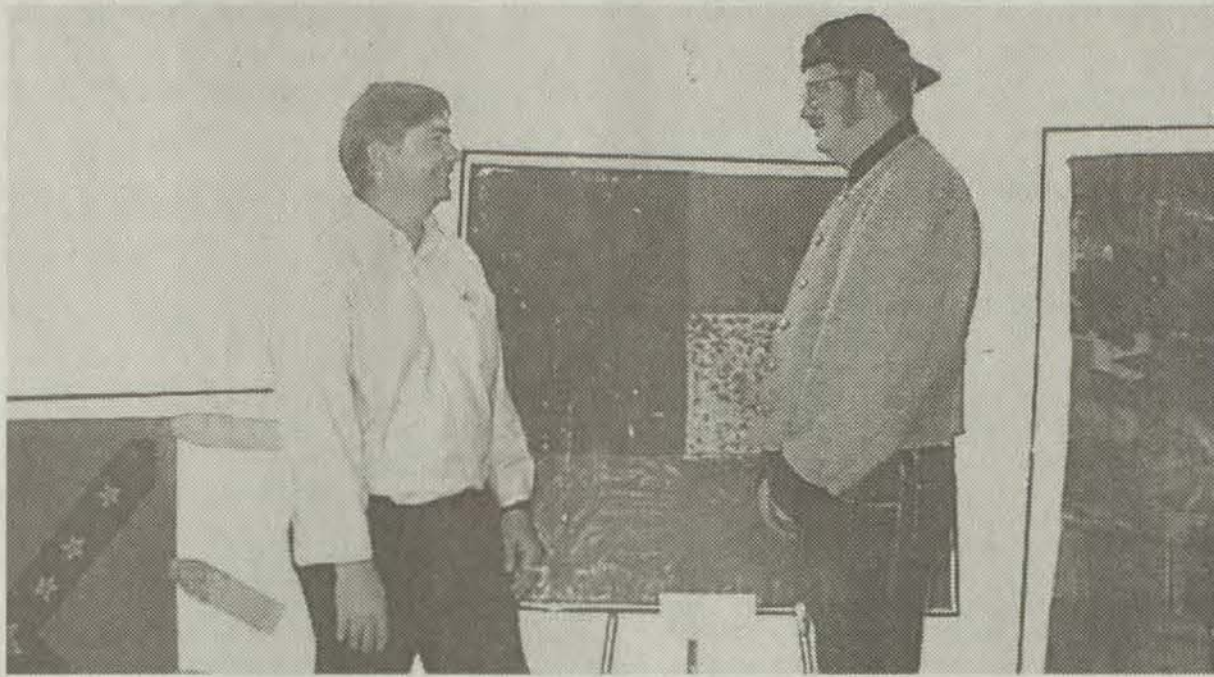

A special meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education has been called for Tuesday, August 26, at 5 p.m. at the central office.

Agenda items are a due process hearing of teacher Kitty Frazier and a closed session to discuss litigation.

Frazier was a guidance counselor at Duff Elementary and was demoted in May to a Title I teacher at Martin Middle School.

Frazier sued the board of education.

Tom Fugate, curator for the Kentucky Historical Society's Military History Museum, and Don Johnson, a member of the 5th Kentucky CSA re-enactment unit, discussed the history of the Civil War flags on display at the Samuel May House in Prestonsburg this weekend during the re-enactment of the Civil War Battle of Middle Creek. Directly behind them is the 1st National flag carried by Diamonds 10th Kentucky Cavalry, a unit joined by many Floyd Countians. Also on display is a flag carried by the 39th Kentucky Mounted Infantry, a unit made up of men from the Big Sandy Valley. This is the first time the flag has been in Eastern Kentucky since it was flown during the Civil War. The flag exhibit is open to the public.

Couple jailed on child sex abuse charges

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Floyd County couple indicted for sexually abusing a small child have been arrested and arraigned on the charges.

Raymond Lee Hall, 47, of Melvin, and Sherri Leigh Hall, 24, of Hi Hat, were named in sealed indictments issued July 29, and each were charged with three counts of first degree sodomy; three counts of incest; and one count of first degree sexual abuse.

The pair are accused of engaging in deviate sexual conduct with a child less than 12-years-old.

The two entered not guilty pleas to the charges. Raymond Hall was placed under a $20,000 full cash bond and Sherri Hall is under a $10,000 cash bond.

A pre-trial conference is set for September 24 at 9 a.m.

Also, an Auxier man named in a sealed indictment handed down July 29 has been arrested.

Patrick Todd Mayo, 27, is charged with first degree sexual abuse for allegedly having sexual contact in June 1996 with a child less than 12-years-old.

He has pleaded not guilty to the charge and is under a $10,000 or 10 percent property bond and ordered to have no contact with the victim or the victim's family.

An October 17 pre-trial conference has been set.

The indictments were sealed when returned July 29 pending the arrests of those accused.

Note: The Floyd County Times does not identify alleged victims of sexual abuse.

Lack of defender leads to court jam

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

Floyd District Court has the fourth highest caseload in the state, and the court's docket is likely to increase in the next month or so because of an "anticipated backlog" due to the court not having a public defender.

Assistant county attorney Lance Daniels said Thursday that for several weeks a public defender has not been available at court proceedings, and many cases have been rescheduled for September. A public defender has not been available to attend the court because two attorneys have recently left the Department of Justice-Public Advocacy office in Pikeville.

"We simply don't have an attorney in (Floyd District) Court," Harolyn Howard, the supervising attorney at the Pikeville office, said.

"We have a large district docket anyway," Daniels said, adding that it would take some time to work through the backlog cases once a public defender is assigned to the court.

The majority of defendants who appear in the district courtroom are assigned public defenders, and court officials anticipate that the court's docket will continue to grow until about three months after an attorney is appointed to the Floyd court.

According to a list of statistics compiled by the Floyd Circuit Clerk's office earlier this year, there are 8,397 filings annually in the district court. The two circuit courts have 7,216 fewer annual filings than the district court.

'A director has got to be able to care, to share, and to listen'

Sharing memories

As she turned the pages of her "book of Treasured Memories," Patsy Evans was surrounded by some of the friends she has made during her 27 years as director of the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center. Looking at Evans' assortment of news clippings and photos of events at the center were Avanel Hicks, Minnie James, Lucy Hunter, and Orbie Vaughn. (photo by Janice Shepherd)

by Janice Shepherd
Managing Editor

As Patsy Evans turned the pages of her "Book of Treasured Memories" on July 25, members of the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center ambled over to her table and gave her hugs of farewell.

Evans and many of the senior citizens wiped away tears as she spent her last official day as director of the center. Evans retired after serving as center director for 21 years.

The Prestonsburg resident built the organization into one of the state's most respected senior citizens centers, winning the state's first Senior Center of the Year Award in 1990.

When the center was first established by Mayor George P. Archer, it was housed in an old recreational facility that had concrete floors, rafters for ceilings and booths for organizations that routinely met there. The building was largely built from lumber from an old courthouse. It did not have a refrigerator or a stove.

Over the years, the facility was renovated and, under Evans' direction, became a "home away from home." Although it's interior is one large open area, it is sectioned off into conversation areas, dining room, kitchen, and game and craft spots. It is tastefully decorated with overstuffed couches, comfortable chairs, and seasonal curtains, tablecloths and centerpieces. The atmosphere is relaxed as seniors gather in social groups for conversation, a game of pool, or a turn on the exercise bikes.

But it wasn't always that way. When Patsy took over as director, just four or five senior citizens used the facility. Now, 40 to 50 seniors attend activities at the center daily. On special days, such as holiday celebrations, more than 70 people are at the center. More than 40 hot meals are delivered daily through the center's homebound program.

It is a multi-purpose center that offers home care, referrals, telephone reassurance, health promotion, recreation, meals at the center and home-delivered, and transportation programs.

Evans attributes the center's popularity, in part, to numerous activities and special programs it offers.

"I try to have interesting things going on to try to get them here," she said.

One of the first things she did when she became director was to survey the area's senior citizens about the types of programs they wanted to see at the center.

"I'm a pusher and a go-getter. I want it done yesterday — not today. When I want something, I go after it."

"I spent a lot of time on the telephone to let them know that this was not a place for down and outers, but for people who have sat at home, lonely, or just don't have transportation. This is a place program."

High-speed chase takes authorities across county lines

by Chris McDavid
Staff Writer

The case of a Winchester man who led authorities on a high-speed chase for approximately 75 miles and tried to run police cruisers off the road was waived to a grand jury Wednesday during a preliminary hearing.

Eric Tapp, 30, was arrested near Hazard on April 20 by the Kentucky State Police after the chase came to a halt when his car apparently ran out of gas.

Tapp was charged with attempting to elude, three counts of first degree wanton endangerment, and numerous other traffic violations.

According to Prestonsburg patrolman William Petry, the chase began after Tapp approached three city officers and told them they needed to be doing some work, and then exited a parking lot at a high speed.

The officer said Tapp made a remark in reference to killing everyone...piling bodies, and then burning them all.

Petry said Tapp's vehicle went onto the road sideways as he left the parking lot.

Petry also said that when officers attempted to pass Tapp to get him to slow down, he tried to run them off the road, adding that a Martin Police Department cruiser was damaged during the pursuit.

Tapp's attorney, Kristi Gray, asked the officer if he witnessed the beating of the client when he was arrested.

"I didn't see it," Petry said. "I saw (Tapp) at the hospital and he had a cut on his head."

Gray said a KSP trooper had previously admitted that he hit her defendant with his flashlight.

Floyd District Judge James R. Allen found probable cause to refer Tapp's felony case to a grand jury.

In other preliminary hearings Wednesday:

• the case of a Floyd County man charged with a fourth offense driving-under-the-influence was also waived to a grand jury.

Larry Collins, no age available, was arrested on August 31, 1996 in the Grethel area after a trooper found him passed out in a parked car.

Collins was also charged with operating on a suspended license, having no insurance coverage, and drinking alcohol in public.

During the hearing, KSP trooper Mike Thorpe testified that he found Collins passed out behind the wheel of the car on Branham's Creek.

Gray, Collins' attorney, asked the trooper if he knew her client drank before he parked the vehicle.

"It appeared he wrecked his car," Thorpe said. "He stated he was driving the vehicle."

The trooper also said there was an open container in Collins' vehicle.

• Judge Allen found probable cause to refer the case of a Dwale man accused of stealing his neighbor's truck.

Robert Lafferty is charged with theft by unlawful taking for allegedly stealing a 1985 GMC Jimmy, owned by Ray Edwin Lafferty.

Ray Edwin Lafferty said on the witness stand Wednesday that there was no family relationship between himself and the defendant.

Ray Edwin Lafferty testified that after Robert Lafferty was in his home about six weeks before the theft occurred, his keys turned up missing.

"I changed the lock on the gate," he said.

Ray Edwin Lafferty said that he saw Robert Lafferty and two other men come to his gate on April 18 and try to use the keys to open the lock.

He also testified that the men appeared to be intoxicated.

That same evening, Ray Edwin Lafferty said he saw the defendant backing out of his driveway with the vehicle.

"I saw him plain as day," he said.

Ray Edwin Lafferty showed the lock which had apparently been pried off.

The complaining witness said Robert Lafferty reportedly took the vehicle to a Rice Branch residence and backed into the creek.

"He backed up, got stuck, and blew the motor up," he said.

Director

where we become a family," Evans said.

She also attributes the center's success to the staff and to the seniors themselves. Evans said the staff and the seniors were a great comfort to her when she lost her mother.

"They're real friends. They made me able to go through this terrible time in my life."

Her motto, which she kept hanging over her desk at the center is: "I searched the world for a happy thought, and gave up in despair until I climbed a mountain and found a bluebird there."

She climbed her mountain and found her bluebird of happiness at Prestonsburg Community Center where she brightened up the lives of many area residents and showed them that senior citizens can have a good time.

She has taken them on many trips, including Nashville and Hawaii.

Ninety senior citizens, including members of the Martin Center, spent eight days in Hawaii, where they took cruises and visited the world's largest shopping center.

"All of us bought muumuus. We enjoyed going to the luau. It was so relaxing. It was good for us to sit back, and I certainly think this place made me feel young working with the elderly."

The first trip she spearheaded was a brief stop in Renfro Valley.

"Many of the seniors had never been on a trip before. They wore plaid shirts and blue jeans. It was such a thrill for them to dress up and go."

She said Prestonsburg senior citizens have visited every amphitheater in the state. They have visited the northeast, been out west, and visited the Smokey Mountains and the Kentucky State Fair.

The government once provided enough funds for the trips.

"But then funds were cut and more time is spent now trying to come up with money just to keep things going," Evans said. "Without the support of the city and the county governments and local businesses, we couldn't operate."

She hopes the money crunch will ease and, though she won't admit it, that may be part of the reason she's leaving. She has been involved in various fund-raising projects to continue to provide meals and activities for the seniors, and that hard work has taken its toll.

"The reason I'm resigning is I'm tired and stressed out. I want to rest. I've been offered to keep the job by just working three days, but I feel like if you can't do your job and do it with enthusiasm, you shouldn't do it. I feel like a director should be here five days a week."

"A director has got to be able to care, to share, and to listen — to listen most of all. We've become family here. I've received more than I've given. They've made my life happier. In times of trouble, they've always been there to encourage me."

She's also received encouragement from her husband, John Evans.

"I cannot give thanks and praise enough for my husband, who has stood by me and has been a real comfort and help to me and to the center. He has given many, many hours of volunteer service in this field," Patsy Evans said.

She also praised her board of directors who have supported her efforts. Members of the board include Darrell Patton, Jim Carter, Brad Hughes, Eleanor Robinson, Keith Akers, Mike Vance, Orville Cooley, and Shirley Branham.

Evans said as soon as she's had her rest, she won't remain inactive.

"I'm a workaholic. I can't sit down. I'll get involved in something else soon."

Evans is already involved in various organizations. She is a volunteer at the Mountain Arts Center and one of her duties is to greet visitors at the center during the shows. She meets them with a smile, a "Good evening, do you folks need some help," and then leads them to where they need to go.

For her leadership at the Prestonsburg Center, Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin awarded a key to the city at a dinner held in her honor at May Lodge.

Court

Howard said the remaining attorneys at the public defenders office are handling their own cases, plus trying to deal with some of the cases of the two previous attorneys.

Howard said the Floyd court's previous public defender, Jonathan Newman, abruptly left his position, and other attorneys are having to handle his cases and their own.

She said that within a four-month period, Newman had opened approximately 165 cases, and each public defender averages about 450 cases per year.

Howard said the public defender's office is always overloaded, but the lack of staffing has multiplied the problem.

"We have seven courts in session most of the year," she said, "and six attorneys — when we have a full staff. Now we have four attorneys carrying the caseload of six attorneys."

Attorneys with the Pikeville advocacy office handle cases in Floyd and Pike counties.

Kristi Gray, one of the remaining public defenders, said her caseload has been affected by contacting clients and informing them of the situation.

She said she and other attorneys have also been trying to attend some court proceedings, such as preliminary and juvenile hearings.

Howard said she anticipates that the biggest impact from the lack of a public defender in the district courtroom will be felt in October.

"We are doing the best we can," she said. "Really all we can do is focus on time-sensitive cases."

Howard said she is currently interviewing attorneys to fill the tion, superintendent Gene Davis and members of Duff's site-based council claiming that she was demoted at an illegal board meeting, was denied a due process hearing and that school council members had created the position of school counselor.

Also named were council members Elizabeth Conley, Craig Hicks, Jad Deaton, Libby Riley, Karen Hall and Ronnie Patton.

In a court hearing earlier this month, Circuit Judge Danny P. Caudill declined to levy a temporary injunction prohibiting Frazier's demotion saying Frazier's attorney had provided several dates for a hearing.

Frazier also alleges that superintendent Gene Davis renegeed on an agreement to place her at May Valley and Martin Middle School as a part-time counselor at each school.

vacancies, however, it is "hard to recruit attorneys to come to eastern Kentucky."

She explained that the heavy caseloads, the daily travel demands, and the salary make it difficult to get public defenders into the area.

"We're not very popular with the public," she said Thursday, "because it doesn't understand how critical we are to the court system."

Howard said the department's lack of popularity affects its funding.

"We are providing equal access to everyone who needs an attorney," she said.

Although some attorneys for the position are scheduled to be interviewed as late as September 16, Howard said the department would "move quickly" if a candidate is found to fulfill the position.

Battle

A ball will be held at the Mountain Arts Center Saturday, from 8 p.m. to midnight. Period music will play in the background as re-enactors, dressed in costumes, perform the intricate dance steps of the Civil War era. The event will be open to the public, but a donation will be asked at the door.

The main battle will be held Sunday, beginning at 2 p.m. on the battlefield site at Middle Creek, and spectators should see lots of action with the number of troops on the field, Wright said. Battle maneuvers are being formed by Mike Sheets, overall commander for the Confederate troops this weekend, and Chuck Warnick, Union commander.

A donation is required from spectators for entry onto the battlefield site for Sunday's re-enactment of the battle. The donation request is a stipulation of the state Civil War Sites Commission, Wright said, and must be implemented for the Middle Creek event to participate in the state's new plan to rotate re-enactments around the state.

By participating in the state's plan, Middle Creek's re-enactment — which will be held once every three years — benefits through the state's promotion of its event and through guaranteed participation from other re-enactment units, according to Wright.

"If people want to see a good-sized re-enactment in Eastern Kentucky, this is their chance. A battle this size won't be held again until the year 2,000," Wright said.

The Allen Central ROTC cadets will assist visitors with parking and crowd control. They will also guard the camps and the perimeters, Wright said.

Meals, cooked over an open fire, will be available to the public at the sutlery of the "Widow Barfield" of Florida. Supper with the re-enactors is Saturday at 6 p.m. The menu consists of roasted pork, potatoes and cornbread and costs $5.50. The supper is free to re-enactors.

Mayor presents Evans with key to city

Patsy Evans, who retired after 20 years as director of the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center, was honored during the Big Sandy Aging Advisory Council meeting at Jenny Wiley Lodge, July 29. Fellow Senior Center directors from the 15 centers in the Big Sandy were on hand to share in the event.

Bonnie Hale, the director of Human Service Programs at Big Sandy Area Development District, thanked Evans for her years of service to the older residents in the Prestonsburg area.

Hale reminisced about the last 13 years that she has been affiliated with Evans. She included comments relative to Evans' dedication to services not only to participants who came to the center, but also to the frail homebound clients as well. She also referred to how homey the center was and how the director always planned fun activities for the participants.

George Archer, director of Consolidated Health's Senior Advantage Program, presented Evans with a large plant on behalf of Consolidated Health, Highlands Regional Hospital and Senior Advantage. He said that "nobody can replace Patsy" as an advocate for seniors.

Mayor Jerry Fannin presented Mrs. Evans with the key to the city, and praised the work that she had done over the past 20 years. He pointed out that when it came to getting resources for the seniors that she was never hesitant to ask for help, usually very persuasively!

Judge Executive Ben Hale thanked Evans for being available for the seniors to rely on and for being a leader in the community.

Roger Recktenwald, executive director of Big Sandy ADD, presented Ms. Evans with a plaque recognizing the 20 years of dedicated service to seniors. He referenced the level of commitment that all of senior citizens center directors in the Big Sandy area exhibit and that Ms. Evans had been a leader. He noted that the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center had won the first annual Kentucky Senior Center of the Year Award in 1990. He reassured Ms. Evans that the people who knew her had no doubts that she would win the award from the time she applied.

Ellen Brown, director of McDowell Senior Citizens Center, presented Ms. Evans with a decorated home-baked cake, which was shared with all those in attendance.

Patsy Evans, Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center, was presented a key to the city from Jerry Fannin, mayor of Prestonsburg, during a retirement dinner, August 4, at Jenny Wiley State Park.

50th wedding anniversary

Merlin and Mary Goble will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday, August 23. They were united in marriage in Prestonsburg by Judge Alex Davidson in 1947. Their children and grandchildren will host an anniversary dinner at the Katy Friend Freewill Baptist Church on Abbott Road. The dinner will be held August 23 from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m.

Participants are named for the parent leadership program

Ninety-six people have been chosen for the first sessions of the Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership, a program aimed at increasing parent involvement in Kentucky schools.

The Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers (PTA), and the Association of Older Kentuckians are sponsoring the institute.

The Commonwealth Institute will be held this year in four locations: Midway College; Kentucky Wesleyan University in Owensboro; the Hindman Settlement School, and the Pritchard Community Center in Elizabethtown. The institute will start August 22 and 23, with a session at Midway College. The first institute sessions in Elizabethtown and Owensboro will be held September 12-13; the session in Hindman kicks off September 19-20.

In all, the participants will attend three 2-day sessions as well as a statewide conference next November. The 1998 and 1999 Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership will involve 200 participants each.

The Political 'Party'

Third party payment system equals rising health costs

by Dave Porter

The following is part one of a two part article on health care and government.

A part of the process which decides major policy reforms in Kentucky is the effort to hold the issue up to the light for public viewing as if it were an emergency which justifies radical change when, in fact, some simple, well planned tinkering could solve the problem: "Higher Education in Kentucky is in a shambles, so we must dramatically restructure the system!", "Worker's Compensation costs are destroying the state's economy, so we have to turn the system upside down to fix it."

But even when there is a definite need for reform, it is very rare that a system needs urgent and comprehensive change. Sweeping reforms are almost always revisited and placed closer to moderation by the legislature in less than a few years, as the momentum dies down.

David Porter

The rare exception just might be health care. All over the country cries for quick, comprehensive reform are growing louder, as the cost of health care keeps rising, boundless and out of control—yet medical coverage and the overall health of Americans has actually declined.

Since 1990 in Kentucky total spending on Medicaid has increased at a rate of roughly 10% a year, as lawmakers began to look with uncertainty toward funds earmarked for other vital areas, such as education and economic development.

Business and the economy also continue to suffer due to increased labor costs (health insurance) inhibiting capital which would otherwise be used for growth. In turn, the worker has become familiar with the lingering fear of losing medical coverage by losing a job, while families struggle with elderly members who need care, all along hoping luck will prevent a catastrophic illness or injury.

The rising cost of health care has one root cause—third party coverage—and several subcauses stemming from the main one. The third party payment system generally includes insurance companies and government "insurance" (Medicare and Medicaid). What is often forgotten when considering the third party concept is, who is actually paying and what are they paying for? We all pay the costs, whether in higher insurance premiums or higher taxes. And what we are paying for is not exactly "insurance," but "assurance."

Insurance financially protects us from accidents, in case something unforeseen happens. Medical "insurance" only assures that our costs will be limited whenever we need medical attention.

A popular analogy denotes that if car insurance were handled like health insurance, it would pay for our gas, new tires of change, and so on. In this case, we would be seeing our mechanic regularly for repairs—regardless of whether our car needed them or not—and no expense would be spared even if their existed only a slight chance that the repair (or mechanical test) might help.

The car repair shop would gladly make these repairs and would slowly begin raising their prices because they know they will be paid. Competition would be based on who had the most high-tech gadgets instead of price—thus driving costs up further.

Eventually, no one without car insurance could afford new tires or an oil change. The insurance premiums would start to rise and, sooner or later, the government would step in to provide car insurance for those who could not afford it, and the car repair industry itself would be in the same situation as the health care industry.

Studies on the health care industry have conclusively proven that families with "free care" insurance plans (no deductibles and virtually no limit on coverage) spend much more on health costs than those with cost-sharing plan.

The problem with the car insurance analogy is that we, as a society, would question an out of control car repair industry, but we are reluctant to question the health care industry. The physician is too respected, the hospital is too vital, the science (medicine) is too far over our heads, and last but not most importantly, we believe that each of us, rich or poor, deserves the best care available.

So, we tolerate extensive government involvement and high insurance costs. But what exactly is the role of (state) government in health care?

Part 2 of this article will follow next week.

New system will increase education and training options; KCTCS to respond quickly to community, industry needs

by Governor Paul E. Patton

In the past, we have depended on single institutions to solve problems. But we now live in a world where our challenges exceed the capacity and jurisdiction of a single organization, and must be addressed through partnerships that bring together the various agencies needed to get things done.

Kentuckians are witnessing the birth of a system that applies this concept to postsecondary education. The new Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS) is a partnership between the state's community colleges and postsecondary technical schools and, when combined with other higher education initiatives, will significantly improve postsecondary education in our state.

When all the components of this new college system are in place on July 1, 1998, it will be the largest postsecondary institution in Kentucky and have the third largest budget, after the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville. The KCTCS will increase education and training opportunities for individuals, and quicken response time for meeting the training requirements of businesses and industries.

This new college system will not be encumbered by the bureaucracy of state government. With its independent Board of Regents, the KCTCS will have the flexibility to respond quickly to regional and community needs.

Local companies will receive the best services from both KCTCS branches, as technical education and the community colleges combine their strengths to provide customized education and training programs.

The KCTCS will positively impact the state and students in other ways: the income of Kentuckians, which is only about 83 percent of those living in neighboring states, will increase as better education attracts new and better jobs; the legislation that created KCTCS provides critically needed funding to the community colleges, four-year colleges and technical schools; students will be able to more easily transfer credits among technical institutions, community colleges and four-year colleges and universities; and students will benefit from increased flexibility in the system such as easier entry, more exit points and more degree options.

Although the KCTCS will not be totally in place until July, there has been substantial progress in establishing the new college. Last month, I appointed eight individuals to the KCTCS Board of Regents after a meticulous selection process. I personally interviewed all 24 nominees.

Every person interviewed was an outstanding candidate, and the eight selected were the best of the best.

The new board members represent such major industries as Ashland Oil, Toyota and United Parcel Service. The board also represents small businesses and organized labor.

Postsecondary technical education and the community college system will each elect a faculty representative, staff representative and student representative to the board in the next few weeks.

A KCTCS transition team has been working for approximately two months and is addressing such issues as budget, personnel and accreditation. The transition team also is assisting the Board of Regents in the search for the first KCTCS president, and is working with each community college and technical education institution to determine the most effective allocation of the new funding approved by the General Assembly.

Outstanding progress has been made during the past several weeks, thanks to a cooperative effort by representatives of the Cabinet for Workforce Development, University of Kentucky and other members of the transition team. Many are sacrificing their personal allegiances and interests to do what is best for Kentucky. Members of the Board of Regents have pledged to do the same.

These are exciting times for postsecondary education in our state, times that will be chronicled in Kentucky's history. We're laying the foundation for a new college, KCTCS, and we're belonging other initiatives that will improve our four-year colleges and universities.

Change is coming, and change is necessary. We are firmly committed to constructing a responsive, flexible, and efficient postsecondary education system that produces well educated and highly trained Kentuckians. We can afford to do no less.

The writer, the 59th governor of Kentucky, has made higher education improvement a priority of his administration. The Kentucky Community and Technical College System was created when Governor Patton signed Kentucky's 1997 Postsecondary Education Improvement Act into law on May 30.

A show of support for children's health

by U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman

Families and the younger Americans have good reason to celebrate these days. President Clinton and Congress recently agreed to the first balanced budget in a generation. In it, working families will get a $500 per child tax credit, and as many as five million children without health insurance will soon be covered.

We at the U.S. Department of Agriculture are proud of the role we play in ensuring America's children grow up healthy. Most folks are familiar with the school lunch and breakfast programs which we run. But USDA actually has a hand in children's health from the very start. We do this through our Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program.

WIC serves as a 'guardian angel' for nearly half the babies born in our country. Through this program, America ensures that millions of new moms and their babies get a balanced diet, medical referrals and answers to their questions about how to give their children a healthy start in life.

WIC works, too. Studies show that for every dollar America invests in the program, the public saves more than three dollars in medical costs down the road.

Many of us know the importance of immunizations and a balanced diet, but another critical piece of advice our WIC folks offer new moms is the importance of breastfeeding. In fact, the health benefits are so positive that many pediatricians today call mother's milk 'baby's first immunization.' Now, in cooperation with state and local WIC agencies, the American Academy of Pediatrics and other partners, USDA is launching a year-long campaign to raise awareness and support for breastfeeding.

Before I tell you what I've learned, I thought I would

defer to an expert—a fan of the local WIC folks in North Bergen, New Jersey:

"Hello! My name is Michelle Alejandra Lopez. I consider myself the healthiest baby in North Bergen. Although I was born in mid-winter, I have yet to learn what a cold is, never had a cough, never had a fever or any stomach problems. Why? Would you like a clue? All the staff of the North Hudson Community Action Health Center advised my mother to breastfeed me."

Apparently that decision made her highly literate, too!

Little Michelle's experience reflects what the most advanced science now proves. Not only is mother's milk nutritionally adequate, it offers numerous added health benefits, too. Studies show that breastfed babies get all the nutrients they need for the first four to six months. They get a stronger immune system, and added protection against disease. New research also indicates that breastmilk may improve cognitive development as well.

There is good news for mom, too. Doctors says that breastfeeding mothers recover faster from pregnancy, have an easier time losing weight and tend to develop stronger bonds with their children. New research also shows that breastfeeding may help prevent breast cancer.

Unfortunately, while moms are generally aware of these health benefits and the number of breastfed babies is on the rise, too many women are discouraged from making this choice because their loved ones are not supportive or the family doctor they trust doesn't speak up on the issue.

Whether you work in health care or not, whether you are a parent or just a concerned citizen, we can all support moms who want to give their children the healthiest possible start in life.

If we take this stand today, a stronger, healthier America can thank us later.

So He put His arms around her and whispered, come with Me.
With tearful eyes we watched her suffer
And saw her fade away.
Although we loved her dearly,
We could not make her stay.
A golden heart stopped beating,
Hard working hands to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

Doctor is fired for hitting child

A temporary physician at Pikeville Methodist Hospital was relieved of his duties last weekend after he assaulted a young child he was treating in the emergency room, authorities said.

According to a Pikeville City Police report, Dr. Allen Finley struck the two-year-old child in the face with the back of his hand, after the child knocked Finley's eyeglasses off his face.

Finley, who was the physician-on-call that night, was immediately released from his position at the hospital and escorted by hospital police to the city limits, the report said.

Martha O'Regan Chill, hospital administrator, said Finley was not a regular staff physician but was hired to fill in for vacationing doctors.

Chill declined to comment further on the case on the basis of maintaining patient confidentiality.

Pikeville police officer Richard Harris, who is investigating the case, said Finley was hired by the hospital through a medical group in Georgia and is originally from Canada.

Harris said the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Stupart of Ashcamp, file fourth-degree assault charges with the county attorney's office after the incident occurred.

The Stupart do not have a telephone listing and could not be reached for comment.

Police would not release the child's name.

However, Harris said police department had been unable to obtain an address for Finley from the hospital, and a subpoena has been issued to the hospital by the city police to obtain that information.

The hospital refused to release any information regarding the subpoena to the News-Express, except to say the hospital's legal service was handling the matter.

Although the incident occurred Saturday night, the News-Express did not receive a press release on the incident from the city police department until last Thursday afternoon.

The incident is still under investigation by the Pikeville Police Department. —Appalachian News-Express

Million dollar 'imposter' may have been found

According to Mars candy representatives, the contest, in which the finder of a gray M&M is eligible for $1 million, is open to everyone, and the deadline for the contest is May 13, 1998. After that date, a winners list will be available upon request.

Second Goble sex trial ends in a mistrial

by Ralph B. Davis and Charles Longton
The Paintsville Herald

Having beat one set of charges that he raped, sodomized, and sexually abused his daughter back in March, well-known Inez businessman Kelly Goble walked out of court again Tuesday, this time after his trial on 20 counts of rape, sodomy and sexual abuse was declared a mistrial.

Circuit Judge Stephens N. Frazier decided to throw out the case during the second day of individual questioning to seat a jury after it was learned one potential juror may have been talking about the case with others for several days, perhaps tainting the jury's objectivity.

Goble will still face trial on the charges at a later date, but no new date has been set.

Frazier said he was reluctant to throw the case out after having spent two days trying to seat a jury, but added that he had no other choice.

"This is the only remedy under the law," Frazier told jurors as he announced his decision.

The woman, who asked not to be identified, said she wasn't positive hers was the winning piece of candy, but that she has sent everything in to be verified.

"I have sent in the M&M, but I have not received a response. I still don't know if I have won, because if there is more than one winner, there will be a drawing," she said.

Pat Damato, spokesperson for the candy maker said, "The offer was out there since January, but we didn't officially notify anyone about the contest until April. We actually had one winner in March, but since it was before the official announcement, we added one more million dollar winner, and it still has not been given away. We also have other prizes available, one year's supply of M&Ms and one half a year's supply of M&Ms. We have not yet verified whether this is a winner, but if it is, there will be paperwork to sign. We have already given out 12,000 prizes, and there is more out there, but there is only one million dollar prize."

Pike joins four-county industrial park plan to build federal prison

by Kim Stacy
Appalachian News-Express

Pike County is only one of four counties in Eastern Kentucky that will benefit from the construction of a $100 million federal prison that would provide about 400 jobs and consist of phase one of the three-phase development of a regional industrial park.

On that note, the Pike County Fiscal Court approved a resolution Monday authorizing the creation of Honey Branch Industrial Authority, a four-county cooperative and regional industrial park in Martin County.

The authority would be financially supported solely by funds from the Cabinet for Economic Development.

Monday's action was another step toward the counties' recent application for a $3.4 million grant from the cabinet which would be used toward the development of the site.

During the first phase of development, a 1,000-capacity prison would be constructed by the Federal Bureau of Corrections.

According to Roger Recktenwald, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, the facility would create between 300 and 400 jobs.

However, he pointed out about one-third of those jobs would be filled by employees brought in from other facilities as part of the bureau's security measures.

The remainder of the employees would be hired from across the region.

The average salary of the facility's employees would be around $32,000 a year, with entry level positions starting at $18,000 to $20,000.

Recktenwald said it would take about 24 months to complete construction of the facility, once officials receive the final go-ahead. It is not known when construction is expected to begin.

The high-security facility will be located about one mile from the Martin County Airport and one-to-two miles from the nearest residence.

The second phase of development for the industrial park would be 100 acres used by the authority for marketing purposes.

The third phase would include 300 acres which would be available for purchase on a parcel-by-parcel basis.

The motion to approve the resolution was made by Stirl Eddie Harris, seconded by Jerry Senter and unanimously approved.

Following that action, the court also voted to appoint six members to serve on the Honey Branch Industrial Authority, appointments which must be approved by all four counties.

Woman murdered, daughter injured

An Owenton woman who was murdered last Tuesday, and whose eight-year-old daughter survived a slashed throat, was the former wife of a Magoffin County man who died from a self-inflicted wound last month.

The Lexington Herald-Leader reported last Wednesday that Timothy K. Smith, 22, of Owenton, was identified by the little girl, Alisha, as the man who killed her mother, Betty Williams, 27.

Alisha Williams was reportedly improving from the slashing attacks, but remained in serious condition at the University of Kentucky Medical Center as of last Wednesday.

Smith is being held without bond in the Owen County Jail pending a preliminary hearing to be held today, August 22.

Smith had known Williams for several years and was a friend of the family, said state police Detective Wayne Heightchew.

Police are not releasing information about a possible motive or weapons. But it was reported that they do have evidence that Smith was under the influence of drugs at the time of the killing.

Family members found Williams and her daughter in their mobile home in the rural Owen County community of Jonesville.

Both had slashes to their throats, but an autopsy determined Williams died of a severe blow to the head. She had been dead about 16 hours, police said.

Alisha suffered multiple external and internal wounds and had to undergo surgery, said UK Hospital spokesman Doug Bruce.

Tragedy had surrounded the Williams family in recent months. Williams had given birth to a stillborn son on February 13.

She left her husband in April to move in with her boyfriend who was later sent to jail in May for possession of a handgun by a felon.

On July 14, Williams' estranged husband was found shot to death in an apparent suicide, and more recently, a male friend was found dead with a self-inflicted gunshot wound to his chest. —The Salyersville Independent

Knott Court creates industrial authority

by Karen Jones
Troublesome Creek Times

The fiscal court concentrated on the future of Knott County last week, adopting an ordinance to create an industrial development authority, as well as discussing their joint application with the city of Hindman for state funding in a community initiative program. The tax rates for 1997 were set as well, remaining at last year's mark.

The second reading of a local industrial development authority ordinance was held, and final adoption of the ordinance approved by court members.

The ordinance, which appeared in the August 6 edition of the Times, establishes the creation of a six-member group to be appointed by the county judge-executive. This Industrial Authority will work to obtain the basics needed to attract industry.

Phelps man indicted for murder of ex-wife

A Phelps man who allegedly fatally shot his ex-wife in a drug-store in January and held police at bay for more than four hours has been charged with several crimes on indictments returned this week by the Pike County Grand Jury.

Steven R. Estep, 31, was indicted on the following charges:

- Murder (Capital Offense), for allegedly shooting and causing the death of Kathy Bowling Estep.
- Kidnapping (Class A felony), for allegedly restraining the victim with intent to accomplish or advance the commission of a felony or to inflict bodily injury or terrorize her or to use her as a shield or hostage.

- First-degree wanton endangerment (Class D felony), for allegedly pointing a gun at or in the direction of Jane Dotson and subjecting her to a substantial danger of death or serious physical injury.
- First-degree burglary (Class A felony), for allegedly entering or remaining in the Value Rite Drug Store at Phelps while armed with a deadly weapon and for the purpose of committing a crime.

Estep allegedly entered the drugstore with a weapon and shot the victim, according to police. He then forced his ex-wife into a restroom and held police off for more than four hours.

At the time of the shooting, the two were separated and the victim had obtained a domestic violence protective order against Estep several months before the incident. —Appalachian News-Express

Rescue squad being rebuilt from ground up

Asked to return to his position of four years ago as rescue squad chief, Keithen McKenzie, has taken on the challenge of rebuilding the Johnson County Rescue Squad to what it once was.

Going into the second week at a standstill, the rescue squad, which responds to emergencies and aids fire departments, survives solely on donations and has fallen into a state of ill repair.

Since McKenzie stepped down four years ago, the squad has seen a number of chiefs. McKenzie has one thing in mind for the rescue squad, getting it running safely again.

Since its shut down last week, Paintsville and W.R. Castle Fire Departments have mutually taken up extra ground to cover areas where the rescue squad usually responds to calls. —The Paintsville Herald

Route 40 wreck claims life

A Wittensville woman is dead following a one-car accident in Magoffin County.

Juanita Dempsey, 53, was riding in a vehicle with Katrina Mitchell last Friday when the accident occurred. According to police reports, Mitchell was traveling on Route 40 when she lost control of her car, left the road and traveled 80 feet in a ditch before striking a tree.

Dempsey was pronounced dead at the scene. Police say alcohol was not a factor in the accident, but no seatbelts were in use.

KSP trooper Phill McFaddin is investigating the accident. —The Paintsville Herald

Two seriously injured in separate ATV accidents

Two separate all-terrain vehicle accidents earlier this month caused serious injury to two riders.

At approximately 10 p.m. on Friday, August 8, Ricky "Hoss" Allen lost control of his ATV on Puncheon Creek Road after he apparently turned a curve too sharply. The ATV went over an embankment and Allen was thrown from the four-wheeler.

The accident occurred approximately one-half mile past the end of the black top road, on a small gravel road used by coal company vehicles.

The second accident involved an ATV and a car Sunday evening between 6 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Emma Hall, 33, of Waylon received serious injuries in the accident. Her left leg received major damage and was nearly severed.

Hall was reportedly a passenger on the ATV. The driver, an unidentified male, left the scene of the accident before authorities arrived. Three children were also passengers on the vehicle. —The Salyersville Independent

Fire department responds to two early morning fires

The Salyersville Volunteer Fire Department answered two fire calls that were placed within 20 minutes of each other last Wednesday.

At 2:46 a.m., firemen responded to the property known as the Green Carpenter Farm, located above Swampton at the foot of Half Mountain, where they found the six-room farmhouse in flames.

Mutual aid was received from the David Volunteer Fire Department mainly because the Salyersville VFD had to split its force when a second call was placed at 3:05 a.m., beckoning firefighters to a vehicle fire on Limestone Branch of Burning Fork. The fire reportedly spread from the vehicle to a garage. —The Salyersville Independent

Businessmen buy old MAPCO site

Eden comes to Martin County once again. One of the biggest hurdles to the Martin County future economic development has apparently been overcome by local businessmen John Crum and Derle Walker as a 230-acre site has been purchased for housing development.

Walker and Crum signed a 30-day intent to purchase the site, worth hundreds of thousands of dollars which was at one time owned by MAPCO. The site has been partially developed by Martiki Coal Corporation. "If we don't do any dozer work at all, there are 90 lots ready (for building) today," Crum said.

The site will be capable of providing homes for residents of different income levels. Crum and Walker have been working with members of the revitalized Martin County Development Corporation, which has access to grant funds to develop a portion of the 230-acre site for moderate income homes. —The Martin County Sun

Inez police officer resigns under fire

In a two-hour meeting of the Inez Town Council, members accepted the resignation of newly-hired city policeman Shawn Todd—barely one month after he was hired for the position.

Todd, 24, of Tomahawk, said that "personal reasons" influenced his decision to resign as police officer. He was hired on to the force after the town was awarded $38,000 in COPS grant funding.

Todd and the council's decision came immediately after the council voted to spend about $8,000 on a new cruiser for the city.

Council members would not say when they would begin the process of finding another person to fill the vacant position. —The Martin County Sun

Center board goes to court

Members of the Warfield Community Center Board went to court last week to try and figure out just who should be able to serve on the volunteer organization.

Attorney Bud Adams, of Louisa, represented the Warfield Community Center, while attorney Brian Cumbo, of Inez, represented former board members Tom and Peggy Evans.

Adams presented Judge Nick Frazier with a memorandum brief outlining the questionable issues to be brought before the court.

The issue of who is on the board was originally brought to the attention of the attorney general several weeks ago, but a ruling has not been made. The AG said that the organization's bylaws were vague and inconsistent. —The Martin County Sun

Hardy home burns after children start blaze

A house located in Hardy burned last Wednesday morning as the result of two small children playing with matches, fire department officials said last week.

When firefighters arrived on the scene, the house was already engulfed in flames. Fire Chief Rexel Jackson said the blaze started with the children of Linda and John Springer used matches to set fire to an old set of box springs the couple had taken off a bed and left inside the house. —Appalachian News-Express

Council threatens to sue mayor

Elkhorn City Mayor Richard "Hank" Salyer and the city council haven't exactly seen eye to eye since five new council members took office in January.

Salyer and the council have disagreed over many issues, from the use of city vehicles to the city's proposed budget to a Fourth of July fireworks display.

Battle liens were drawn further at last Tuesday's city council meeting when some council members threatened to file a lawsuit against Salyer.

The threatened lawsuit centered around a motion passed by the council in March to have all city vehicles parked at city hall after every shift.

Council member Johnny Stewart said he was upset over personal use of the vehicles by some city employees. He asked the council to bring suit against the mayor until he parks his vehicles. —Appalachian News-Express

Runaway garbage truck crashes into mobile home

A Pike County Solid Waste garbage truck rolled down a steep driveway and slammed into the mobile home of 86-year-old Evelyn Trout and her daughter Carol.

The women were on the other side of the trailer when the truck crashed into the home. Evelyn Trout's son-in-law, Danny Williamson, said that had either of the women been in the kitchen at the time the truck came crashing through, the situation could have been much worse. The women were visibly shaken by the incident but escaped injury.

The driver of the garbage truck said he set the parking brake just shortly after he left the truck to collect a neighbor's trash, but the brake failed. The driver fell trying to get back into the runaway truck. —Appalachian News-Express

Diamond Rio in free concert

Diamond Rio, the multiple award winning and platinum-selling group, currently on tour throughout the U.S., will perform at the grand opening of a new Wal-Mart store in Morehead as part of the CMT sponsored Wal-Mart Country Music Across America Tour on Thursday, August 28, at 7 p.m.

In addition to performing this free concert, Diamond Rio will meet fans and sign autographs following their performance.

Seven years ago the members of Diamond Rio were just faces in the crowd — six guys who'd wandered into Nashville with big dreams like thousands of others. Today, those six guys now make up Diamond Rio and they have so many hits they can hardly squeeze them all into one show.

They won't all fit on a single Greatest Hits package either. But some of them will; and that's the album that you hold in your hand. Here are nine tunes that raised the bar for country musicians everywhere, two that send a bolt of new electricity through the band and a sentimental favorite that has been pleasing the act's audiences for years.

"We've had so many dreams come true," agrees lead singer Marty Roe. "It wasn't that long ago that we were doing club dates and didn't have enough songs to fill up a set. Now we have a wonderful problem: Too many hits to fit in an hour show. That's what makes playing live such a blast."

"I've got a roll call of emotions when I look back at these songs," continues bassist and low harmony vocalist Dana Williams. "When I hear these things, I think back to the beginning of this trip. It's been a wild ride - it still is! I have more fun performing now than I ever have in my life."

These are sounds that helped to define the whole "young country" movement of the 1990s. More than that, they are ear melting demonstrations of the unbelievable vocal and instrumental skills that these six men "brought to the table" when they came to Music Row. Diamond Rio is a group so accomplished that it's almost too good to be true.

The six guys who make such beautiful noise straggled into Nashville from all points on the compass. All six paid their dues on the lowest rungs on country music's ladder before they got to bask in the sunshine of eight Group-of-the-Year honors, five Grammy nominations, four million-selling albums and adoring multitudes of concert attendees.

"I used to dream while I was sitting on that tractor back in Ohio," recalls Marty, "singing at the top of my lungs, and imagining myself saying thank-you speeches for awards. I was going to come to Nashville and change the world."

The reality was somewhat less glamorous. Marty chugged into town from the Buckeye State in a 1972 green Pinto he bought with $320. He lived in a bug-infested basement apartment and was once so hard up for cash he had to scrape spare change together to make the $70 rent.

Drummer Brian Prout was behind the wheel of a 1975 Buick with 130,000 miles on its odometer and a hole in the floor so big that his heel poked through every time he put on the brakes. He roomed with his four fellow members of Heartbreak Mountain in a two-bedroom duplex with rental furniture. The other four got the beds, Brian got the couch. It was a far cry from the lucrative Florida club scene and even farther from his New York State boyhood home.

Mandolinist and high harmony vocalist Gene Johnson motored into Music City in a 1972 Ford pick-up that was packed - "Beverly Hillbillies" style — with everything he and his family owned. Sentimental Gene has since completely restored the vehicle and still drives it.

Keyboardist Dan Truman limped into town from Utah in a Volkswagen Rabbit that he drove until it literally fell apart under him. When it was on its last legs, he took it to a repair shop and left it there permanently. For a time, home was the apartment Marty had with his new wife Robin (paid for with her salary). Dan couldn't afford to help with the rent, but he'd leave jars of jelly on their kitchen table as thank-you gestures.

Lead guitarist Jimmy Olander had made a good living teaching banjo back home in California. He came to Nashville in style in a fully restored 1953 Chevy. Within months of his arrival, the car was totally in a wreck.

Dana was waiting for the other five, because he'd been living in Music City since childhood. He was riding around town in style in a 1960 Pontiac LeMans he'd bought with the $625 he'd made entertaining tourists at the Music Valley Drive campgrounds.

None of the six knew their way around the Hot flash!

There have been many clinical studies that explain the changes women experience when undergoing menopause. However, many doctors continue to believe that women are overreacting.

Obviously, these doctors had never personally seen anyone experience a hot flash.

"Want to help me fix dinner, mother?" I asked.

I assumed she was mad when I saw fire blazing in her eyes. "What's wrong?"

Smile Awhile

Sara Hopson

"I'm having a hot flash." "I heard that hot flashes are sometimes caused from the trauma associated with going through the change," I said, as I watched her pour a pitcher of ice water down her blouse. "I'm talking psychosomatic, imaginary..."

"You little idiot! I'm talking hotter than a barbecue in hell!"

I thought she was overreacting when I saw her coming at me with a butcher knife.

"Mom, don't!" I yelled.

"How much ham do you want sliced?" she asked innocently. "Why are you crouching down in that corner?"

"Don't you remember?"

"All I remember is a little prickly heat."

"Mom, you almost stabbed me."

"I'm worried about you, Sara."

Before I could tell her that there was nothing wrong with me, I felt the heat emanating from her eyes. Smoke streamed from her nostrils, her face turned red, and her breath ignited the tablecloth. I ran to the garage and returned with the fire extinguisher.

"You're going to have to quit smoking," mother said. "It sure is hot in here."

"I don't smoke, mother," I answered. "When did you start the change?"

"It was so insignificant I didn't even have any symptoms except for a hotty every once in a while. It's been so long since I had one. I can't even remember."

"Obviously," I said.

"Are you afraid you're going through the change, Sara? Really, it's no big deal!"

"Don't you have other symptoms?"

"Phew! It sure is hot in here," she said, as beads of perspiration popped out on her forehead. "No wonder you have such high heating bills. It must be turned up to 500."

"The air-conditioner is on," I said, coolly.

I watched in disbelief as she ripped the clothes from her body, tore open the freezer door, and stood naked in front of the pepperoni pizza Hot Pockets.

"If those things lasted very long I'd kill everybody," Mom said as she redressed.

"Hormones must be powerful. If only they could be harnessed for nuclear energy. By the way, when's the last time you cleaned out your freezer?"

"Mom, why don't you go on hormone therapy?"

"Those pills cause hair to grow on your upper lip."

"You already have hair on your upper lip. The pills might get rid of it."

I watched in horror as she ripped the fuzz from her upper lip while steam billowed from her hair follicles.

I don't know what doctors used to tell women about menopause, but I suspect that the ones who have told their patients that it's all in their heads, won't live long enough to write out a prescription.

News of the Weird by Chuck Shepherd

— In July, a St. Paul, Minn., jury acquitted the well-to-do Gerald and Judy Dick and an adult daughter of all but one of the shoplifting counts brought against them by Roseville, Minn., police, who had charged that family members had engaged the services of a personal shoplifter to steal them expensive items from Dayton's department store. Though police testified that their sting operation was successful, and even had Mrs. Dick uttering, "You caught us red-handed," jurors said the police work was sloppy. The allegedly stolen items were not admitted into evidence because there was no search warrant, and the audiotape of the sting was first withheld by police and then revealed to have been doctored. Mrs. Dick was convicted on one count of attempting to receive stolen goods.

— The New York Post reported in June that New York state has provided about 25 free organ-transplant operations (costing taxpayers about $1 million) for illegal aliens during the 18 months since Gov. Pataki promised to end the practice. State officials cited by the Post said they knew of "dozens" of cases over the years in which foreigners flew into the city, applied for Medicaid, received the expensive transplant surgery (including sex changes), and then flew home.

— Life Imitates a Simon & Garfunkel Song: In May, according to a call taken by a Madison, Wis., police officer, a 26-year-old man phoned 911 to report that when he returned from a bathroom visit in the middle of the night, a stranger wearing only boxer shorts had taken his place in bed. The man turned out to be a very intoxicated 22-year-old student from DePere, Wis.

RECENT PROTESTS

— In December, at least 2,000 workers at a Sanyo Universal Electric Company plant in Bangkok burned down the eight-story headquarters building along with the factory, warehouse, and inventory of refrigerators and TV sets. The workers were upset that they would receive a bonus of only three months' wages, which is generous by Thai standards but still only about half of last year's bonus.

— In June, three environmental activists from Greenpeace set up a 12-foot-by-6-foot survival station atop a narrow, barren, 65-foot-high rock called Rockall, 290 miles off the coast of Scotland, and vowed to remain there until the British government stops oil exploration in the Atlantic Ocean. In Rockall-area storms, waves often reach heights of 90 feet and more.

— Items Recently Thrown in Protest: A live pig, thrown into the office of the Massachusetts Bar Association in Boston in February to protest the legal profession; rotting bison entrails at Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman in March in Gardiner, Mont., by a man protesting the thinning of the bison herd; about $4,000 worth of money by a man in front of city hall in Seoul, South Korea, in May, to protest corrupt politicians; and bags of excrement and rocks, hurled by Ultra-Orthodox Jews at other Jews in Jerusalem in June, to protest mixed-gender praying.

CULTURAL DIVERSITY

— A January New York Times story reported on the limited success so far in eliminating, in some parts of Ghana, the practice of giving a virgin daughter to a priest in order to atone for some sin of the girl's family. One example cited was a 12-year-old girl, the product of a rape, given to the local priest by the rapist as a slave (sexual and otherwise) in order to appease spirits who otherwise would treat the rapist and his family harshly. If the sin is severe, the family must provide girls for several generations.

— In April, Premier Lien Chan of Taiwan ordered a crackdown on the national craze of public betel-nut chewing, which he said was responsible for mouth cancer, slimy sidewalks when they are spit out, and immorality, in that they are mostly sold by young, underdressed women at sidewalk stands. The betel nut is reportedly a mild stimulant and is slightly more expensive than a cigarette.

Adam challenged Liza to prove he's the father of her unborn baby. Skye took Edmund to the crash site where she found her note (about the paternity test) in the sand. Trevor told Jack how he feels about Janet. Wait To See: Liza admits she loves Adam.

ANOTHER WORLD: Nick was found guilty of raping Toni. Amanda conspired with Alexander against Carl. Rusty elaborated on the sexual harassment charge he brought against Donna. Grant bought Cindy's loyalty with a string of pearls longer than those he gave to Lila. Josie reviewed the rape testimony with particular interest in the belt buckle the rapist wore. Wait To See: Carl gets disturbing news.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Lily left a note for Holden at the motel, but Molly threw it away before he could see it. Margo urged Camille to stay away from Lew and tell Ben the truth. Later, Camille was stunned when Lew told her he's staying in Oakdale. John held Barbara's hand as the doctor said there may be serious problems with her pregnancy. Wait To See: Emily acts on her suspicions about David.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAU-TIFUL: To Brooke's dismay, Ridge suggested she remarry Grant since she seemed so happy with him. Eric told Lauren to stop pursuing him since he's committed to marrying Stephanie. Mike questioned Sheila's reasons for helping Amber get the baby-sitting job with James and Maggie. Taylor told Eric she decided between Ridge and Thorne. Wait To See: Taylor tells Thorne her stunning news.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Bo found Billie in Rome, but she refused to return to Salem with him. Jack was ordered to return to jail. Meanwhile, Stefano refused to tell Kristen if a cure for Roman really exists, but instead that if she follows his plan, she might yet reunite with John. Later, Celeste told John and Abe that Stefano will be freed by one of his enemies. Austin proposed to Sami as Kate fumed that she had allowed Sami to blackmail her. Wait To See: Kate makes a decision that could affect many lives.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Stefan admitted to Alexis that Katherine's mother resembled Mikkos' mistress. Elizabeth plotted to get closer to Lucky. Carly felt miserable about leaving an apparently intoxicated A.J. outside their apartment. Charges against Sonny, Brenda, and Jax were dropped. Sonny had an emotional reunion with Mike. Sonny proposed to Brenda. Wait To See: Elizabeth gets disturbing news.

GUIDING LIGHT: Michelle "told" her dead mother, Maureen, she's in love with Jesse. Annie blamed Reva for her new problems, but it was Amanda who was responsible. Stunned by what Reva told her, Cassie tried to get out of her deal with Alan, but he reminded her about her daughter, Tammy. Josh noted similarities between Reva and Cassie. Wait To See: Annie has a new plan of "vengeance."

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Mel found a Rodi's matchbook at the warehouse and questioned a nervous Max about Asa. Nora learned she's starting menopause. Later, Mel got drunk and missed the plane to New York where he planned to meet his daughter, Dorothy. Dorian later managed to send him off, but the father/daughter meeting didn't go well. Tea was suspicious of Blair's seemingly nice demeanor during her visit to Starr. Wait To See: Max must face more questioning about the warehouse fire.

PORT CHARLES: Danielle refused to get out of Jake's life because she was aware of what Rex could do. Chris caused another rift between Julie and Frank. Lee had bad news for Ellen about Cooper's lawsuit. Cooper made a call to Dr. Bennett Devlin. Lucy found Danielle going through her desk drawers while, at the same, Kevin caught Jake going through Victor's files. Wait To See: Danielle faces a terrible possibility involving Rex.

SUNSET BEACH: Annie taunted Meg about Ben not remembering that he'd made love to her. Olivia told Gregory about Caitlin's pregnancy. Eddie tried to tell Ricardo that Gabi was behind Paula being assigned to Sacramento. Olivia panicked when Gregory said he hired someone to find Cole's mystery woman. Meg caught Annie sneaking into her bedroom and realized she had planted the journal. After finding a new entry in it, Meg confronted Annie and punched her. Wait To See: Cole faces a new problem with Caitlin.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nick responded to Sharon's concern that Grace was the cause of his moodiness. Victor's

"business trip" with Diane turned out to be a flight to Nevada for their wedding, followed by a flight to Greece for their honeymoon. Back in Genoa City, Jack was concerned that he wasn't able to contact Diane. Nick was jolted when he found a note from Sharon saying she had taken Noah and Cassie on a trip because she and Nick needed some time apart. Wait To See: Veronica makes a decision.

HOME TIPS

GOT A MATCH? — When buying dining-room drapes, I buy an additional pair to recover the seats of my dining-room chairs. No more fabric hunting for the seat cushions and I have a perfect match! Belinda M., Batesville, Ark.

ACCESSIBLE PASTE — When I use tomato paste, I open both ends and remove one end and then push the rest through with the one lid. All the tomato paste goes through without having to use a spoon or knife to get it all out. Jeannie C., Portland, Ore.

MAKE IT LAST — Those of us who are lucky enough to have husbands who give us fresh flowers from a florist wish we could keep them beautiful longer. I do the next best thing. While the bouquet is fresh and beautiful, I take a close-up picture of it. Then when I get the picture back, I place the sweet little card with the picture of the bouquet, and I can keep it forever. Kellianne V., Memphis, Tenn.

EASY FIND — I've solved the problem in our home of the lost remote control. It was usually kept on the arm of an easy chair, but being odd-shaped, it was forever falling to the floor and getting placed somewhere else. I took a headband, the kind that has hard plastic inside that fits over the top of the head ear-to-ear, put some double-sided sticky fabric tape on the band and on the back of the remote and put this over the arm of the chair.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Turbulence early in the week on the home front clears up later on. Some look into redecorating or painting projects. Communication is the key to happiness this week-end.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Long-distance romances are a no-no. Be smart and stick with your career and/or studies in school. You must concentrate on your future and the long-term repercussions.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your concern for the children in your family is a bit overdone. However, this resolves itself by week's end. Guard against oversteering this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Monetary success is on the horizon. Gambling is not the answer. Your creativity is. Avoid risky ventures and think things through.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It is not a good time to consider a career change. Instead, focus on friends and family. Be sure to tend to any unfinished business this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your creative skills could be a tad off. However, by midweek, your instinctive creative juices lead to an absolutely stunning revelation. Share this with others.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You are somewhat shy about getting a very important point across to a close friend. However, do speak up. This will enhance that lifelong friendship.

— The Washington Post reported in May that some tribes in Yemen routinely kidnap tourists and hold them for days, though treating them well, regaling them with propaganda, and ultimately offering them to the government in exchange for political concessions, such as new road construction. Said the speaker of the Yemen parliament, "Kidnapping is part of tourism. [The] tourist will end up learning about the customs of the tribes, as well as their good hospitality."

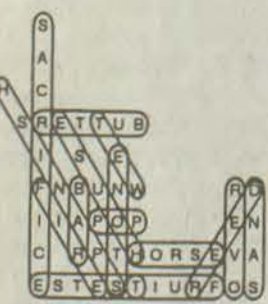

— A May report in the Jakarta Post described the daily rush of ill people to the home of Cecilia Subini and her husband Florentinus Suparmo in Yogyakarta, Indonesia, in order to be therapeutically licked and nuzzled by their bull Joko Andhini. Thousands believe in the power of Joko's body, saliva and urine (which some rub on their skin and others drink) to cure such maladies as incontinence, arthritis, strokes, rashes, diabetes and cancer. And an Associated Press dispatch from Hyderabad, India, in June touted the success of the sardine-and-herb asthma treatment that hundreds of thousands travel for, to the Goud family home, on the one astrologically auspicious day of the year for swallowing the fish.

LEAST COMPETENT CRIMINALS

— According to New York City police in May, Sidonia Williams tried to open a Lord & Taylor charge account by flashing a piece of U.S. currency in the amount of $1 million. There is no such denomination. Hers was created by pasting 0's onto a $1 bill and running it through a color copier. She cheerfully pointed out that she had 194 more just like it in her bag and insisted to the federal magistrate that she had committed no crime.

— Steven Richard King, 22, was arrested in April for trying to hold up a Bank of America branch in Modesto, Calif., without a weapon. He used his thumb and finger to simulate a gun, but unlike most robbers who use this tactic, he failed to keep his hand in his pocket while doing it. The teller, realizing he had nothing to fear, merely walked

According to police, after the first robbery, Jackson couldn't get his getaway car started and so apologized to the clerk and gave the money back in exchange for a jump-start. The clerk started the car, then called police, who were in the area looking for Jackson when he allegedly pulled the second job.

music industry as they filtered onto the Nashville scene in the mid 1980s. Jimmy enrolled in Belmont University's music program; Marty attended David Lipscomb University to study business management. Dana worked as a side-man for country stars Jimmy C. Newman, Jearme Pruett and Carl Smith. Brian stayed with Heartbreak Mountain until it dissolved and its lead singer Marty Raybon formed Shenandoah. Dan played keyboards in church.

As a summer job, Marty began operating rides at the Opryland theme park. In 1984 he joined the park's resident country group The Tennessee River boys. Jimmy auditioned for the same band and met Marty when he joined in 1984. Dan came on board in 1985. All three dreamed of far bigger things than singing country oldies summer after summer.

"I was on a time table," Marty recalls. "I was going to have a recording contract by the time I was 30 or I was going to let go of the dream completely. I made a commitment to go for it all or not do it, period." He, Jimmy and Dan quit the park in 1986 determined to attract the attention of Music Row with the sound they were developing.

"I never lost my focus either," says Brian. "I never wanted to become a studio musician or any of that. I mean, I love making records with this band; but, when it gets right down to it, I am still a take-it-to-the-people kind of guy. He became the fourth member of the band in 1987. Gene brought the country expertise he'd acquired with Keith Whitley in J. D. Crowe's New South to the emerging group later that same year. After Dana rounded out the lineup in 1989, the act officially changed its name to Diamond Rio.

They were operating purely on faith and musicianship in those days. At one point, Jimmy was mowing lawns to make ends meet. When Dana joined the band, they had only one performance date booked on its calendar. But a showcase for Arista Records changed everything. In 1990 Diamond Rio signed with the label and recorded its debut CD.

In 1991 "Meet in the Middle" became its first No. 1 hit. "Mirror Mirror," "Mama Don't Forget to Pray for Me," "Nowhere Bound" and "Norma Jean Riley" all followed it to the top of the charts from that first album. By 1992 Diamond Rio was Gold and a year after that it went Platinum.

Their lives turned utterly upside down. Life became a blur of media interviews, award shows, photo sessions, video productions and 200 concerts a year. The pressures were intense, but the boys proved they were made of tough stuff. They had the character, the strength and the humor to weather whatever came along. Seven years down the road, Diamond Rio has never bickered, never faltered and never failed to deliver flawless music. Close to the Edge (1992), Love a Little Stronger (1994) and IV (1996) have made them one the best-selling country bands of their generation.

"In those early years, it was never ending, grueling," Dana recalls. "But here it is, 1997, and we've been through all this and never hardly had a spat. I've heard horror stories of other bands fighting. I don't know why. All we ever fight about is leaving the TV set on in the bus.

"It's because everyone in this band is so into it for the music," Marty suggests. "'Mama Don't Forget to Pray for Me' still does something to me. It just always hits home. When 'Love a Little Stronger' came out, people just screamed for it. Then they started requesting 'Bubba Hyde' months before it was a single. I was beginning to think we'd get our tires slashed if we didn't put it out soon.

"People have sent us wedding videos where they used 'Meet in the Middle' as their wedding march, walking down along fence posts and everything. And you know what? We watch 'em."

"For me, 'Walkin' Away' was the top," adds Dana. "We did everything right on that. Musically, it just soars. I like every aspect of that one. Nobody fought harder than me not to record 'Norma Jean Riley.' But, from the day we started doing it live, that song had a life of its own. People started yelling like it was a hit or something. I turned to Dan and said, 'You know how I feel about this song, but you know what? It's really fun to play live.'"

"'In a Week or Two' and 'It's All in Your Head' can still get me going," Brian remarks. "And both of them continue to get such strong crowd response.

"Every new song that comes out makes me feel like I'm going into the World Series," says Dana. "When we get done with that music in the studio and we hear it played back, man, there ain't nothing that pumps you up any more.

"I'm the same way," adds Marty. "I'll lie in bed with the headphones on, just blaring the new stuff."

In this case, the "new stuff" is some of the freshest sounding materials that Diamond Rio has ever recorded. "How Your Love Makes Me Feel" is a rocking rampage of sound that is more aggressive than anything the band has done before. "Imagine That" snaps with a taut vibrance that is practically whiplash-inducing. And the return to the tender sentiment of "She Misses Him on Sunday the Most" reminds us that Diamond Rio can whisper as well as it can crow.

"We still have a whole lot of drive," says Marty. "I think that's what helps us to continue to put out fresh music, do different things and experiment with our sound. Let me tell you, the acts that have been around for as long as we have and longer, they're not in it for the money. They're in it because they're doing something that they love."

That's what brought six unknowns to Music City in the first place. And that's what keeps them at the forefront of country music today.

Mumme era at UK should be interesting

by Cliff Smith

The pre-season theme of Bill Curry's last edition of the U. K. football Wildcats was "Putting It All Together."

That theme came unraveled in the very first game when special team breakdowns led to two blocked punts and two Louisville scores.

The pre-season theme of Hal Humme's first edition of the U. K. Wildcats is "It's a Whole New Ballgame."

With a new head coach, an entirely new staff of on-the-field assistant coaches, and a new offensive system, there is truth in this theme. The Mumme era will be interesting!

What largely isn't new is the roster of player personnel with whom the coaches are working for this, the 1996 season.

So, before you get your expectations up too high, somebody should tell you it's likely to take at least 2-3 years, if not 4-5 years, before the score of Hal Humme's new ballgame can be accurately assessed.

The most promising early indication is that he is clearly motivated to actively improve U.K.'s football recruiting and has already scored some early successes in his regard. Mumme apparently knows that he must do well in this respect nationwide but especially in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas if he is to succeed at U. K. where so many others have failed.

So remember as this season starts that this fall the new coaching staff is working primarily with players that:

—left QB Billy Jack Haskins scrambling to avoid onrushing tacklers much of last season;

—departed offensive coordinator Eliot Uzelac described as "not good pass blockers"; —ranked 12th of 12 in the SEC in passing offense and next to last in total offense, as well as 12th of 12 in scoring defense.

Florida scored 68 points, Tennessee 56, LSU 41, Louisville 38, Alabama 35, South Carolina 25, and Cincinnati 24 against U.K.'s players last year.

Such statistics help explain why U.K. is ranked last or next-to-last in the SEC in virtually all pre-season publications.

So what does this U.K. football fan see as the outlook for this fall? More excitement, more fun, but probably another 4-7 or worse won-lost record. Florida, Alabama, LSU, and Tennessee are 4 very likely losses. South Carolina and Georgia are likely losses. And although I hope that I'm wrong, I think Louisville will prevail in the opener.

Wins could come against Mississippi State, Indiana, Northeast Louisiana, and Vanderbilt.

Nevertheless, a QB with the exceptional talent of Tim Couch could produce some surprises, and he has some good receivers in Kio Sanford, Jimmy Haley, Anthony White, Kevin Coleman, Craig Yeast (if academically eligible), and others.

What are some things to look for besides Tim Couch's aerial fireworks?

1. Pure freshman Derek Homer, who might be the best running back at UK since the now departed Derrick Logan, Moe Williams, or even Mark Higgs, whose high school rushing record Homer eclipsed. Maybe not a Moe Williams type power runner, but he can scoot and is elusive.

2. Deli Ali, converted from linebacker to defensive end, using his speed and quickness to rush opposing passers. This Ali might make observers forget that he is only 213 lbs.

3. Jeff Snedegar at one outside linebacker position could prove to be better than expected.

4. And, of course, Kio Sanford, if he gets any kind of blocking, and Craig Yeast, if he survives academically, could create big roars from home fans when they return kick-offs and punts. Either is capable of going the distance anytime.

So pull for the new coaches and their first UK team, but remember last year's stats and be realistic and patient in your expectations.

PHS Varsity Cheerleader squad ready for upcoming season

The Prestonsburg High School boys' varsity cheerleading squad is ready for an exciting year of cheering, dancing, jumping and tumbling.

In preparation for this year, the squad attended the Universal Cheerleaders' Camp held at the University of Kentucky during the month of July.

While at the camp, the squad received blue-ribbon superior ratings at the evening evaluations. The also received spirit sticks for their pep and enthusiasm every day.

On the final day of camp, the squad placed third behind last year's national champion Dunbar High, and state KAPOs finalist Russell High School in sideline competition.

They were also awarded a superior trophy for overall camp performance.

This year's squad is made up of nine freshmen, four sophomores, two juniors and one senior. Their coaches are April Brown and Kara Huffman.

Annual Pike County Bowl preview

Most high school football coaches would like to open the season with a team that their squad can defeat and get that season-opening win.

However, 12 years ago that was changed in Pike County.

That's when the Pike County Bowl was formed, and since then, Pikeville High School and Belfry have both played some of the most football tradition-rich teams. And Saturday night during the 13th Pike County Bowl, that continues.

The Belfry Pirates will face Male High School in the opener at 6 o'clock, and in the nightcap Ashland will tangle with Pikeville.

BELFRY VS. MALE

This is believed to be the first trip for a Louisville team in the mountains Eastern Kentucky. If it is not, it is the first trip in a long, long time.

Male High School is the winningest program in Kentucky High School history. Last year, the Bulldogs finished with a 7-5 record. Male lost 13-7 to Trinity High School in the second round of the 4-A playoffs.

"They have a lot of talent, year in and year out. It's one of the best programs in the state. We'll have our work cut out for us," Belfry coach Phillip Haywood said. "Our kids really get up for the Pike County Bowl, and they'll have to be prepared Saturday."

Haywood returns two of the area's best running backs in Micah Caudill, who averaged 10-yards per carry last season; and Chris Wallace.

Caudill has break-away speed. As a junior, he rushed for 1,684 yards and scored 20 touchdowns.

The Pirates ended the 1996 season, 11-2, losing to Bell County, 33-14 in round three of the 3-A post season.

"We have a lot of players back but we lost a lot of depth," said Haywood, who is 121-42 in his 14 years at Belfry. "Coach (Bobby) Redman is an excellent coach and has a lot of fine athletes and talent. "What we need to do is not give up the big play. This is a bowl with some great teams and we're thankful to be involved in it."

PIKEVILLE VS. ASHLAND

Royce Mayo begins his second season with Pikeville. Mayo led the Panthers to an 11-2 record last season, but lost to Beechwood in the Class A semifinals.

"This game will be a big challenge for us," Mayo said. "Ashland has a lot of speed. They like to run the option and we are going to have to keep our defensive assignments to handle their offense."

Pikeville lost 12 seniors, which included Brent Coleman — the school's all-time rusher.

"We're young in a lot of places. We lost those seniors, but we did have a chance last season to get a lot of kids playing time. We still have a lot of room to improve and we do hope to do that week-by-week."

Ashland has a new coach of the sidelines this season. After three uneventful seasons, the Tomcats lured Vic Marsh to come back. Marsh had a successful tenure at Ashland before retiring from coaching. His team won the 1990 3-A state championship.

"I know Vic Marsh is an excellent coach," Mayo said. "He will have his team ready when Saturday rolls around."

Chad Newsome returns for Pikeville at fullback. The senior is the team's leading returning rushers, with around 700 yards.

Ben Howard will move into the quarterback slot. Howard, son of former Panther coach Hillary Howard, has earned the praise of his mentor.

"Ben works really hard. What may surprise some people is that he bench presses 250-pounds, and that is not bad for a quarterback," Mayo said.

The Panthers will use the normal wishbone offense, but will spread to the field more this year to open up their offense. The major change is on the defensive side as Pikeville will use a 4-3. One of the reasons for the different defense is, according to Mayo, because the teams have some excellent linebackers to be reckoned with.

BRUGH TO BE HONORED

The Pike County Bowl last year honored Floyd County native Garnis Martin as its "Legends Coach." This season the man who passes Martin to become the all-time winningest coach, former Paintsville coach Walter Brugh, will have that distinction.

Brugh will be honored before the game and also participate in an honorary coin toss prior to the first contest.

"It's a big honor," Brugh said. "This is not only me but it represents all the kids that I have coached. Not a lot of people coach 39 years at one school. The wins were important but not as much as the players that I had."

Brugh retired in 1994 with a record of 280-136-5. North Hardin's Joe Jagers is only two wins shy of tying Brugh and should break the mark sometime this season.

FOOTBALL SEASON BEGINS THIS WEEKEND

The 1997 football season gets underway this weekend with 10 bowl games slated for Saturday. Beginning this year, schools are allowed an 11-week time frame to play their 10 games. Although it is the traditional "Bowl week," it is now officially week number one of the football season. The 11th week was added to the beginning of the season, thus not affecting the postseason corresponding schedule.

John Charles breaks golf record at Stumbo Park

On August 13th, 15-year-old John Charles of Pike County scored a double eagle on the John M. Stumbo/Beaver Valley Golf Course at Allen on the number eight, 490-yard par 5 hole.

John's feat was accomplished with a metal driver and a metal five-wood from the white tees at Stumbo Park.

Witnessing the event were Walter Frazure, retired UK professor; Brad Warrick, retired employee of Columbia Gas Company; and Rabon Reed, John's grandfather who is retired from the United States Navy.

This "testy" hole has trees running on both sides of the fairway with a large ravine running diagonally across the fairway and running parallel to the CSX Railroad for the entire 490 yards.

The young 6'3" Charles will be enrolling at Pikeville High School as a sophomore this fall, where he plans to try out for the golf team.

John is the grandson of Rabon and Anna Reed of Cow Pen Road.

FROM LAST WEEK

WINSTON CUP: Mark Martin came from two laps behind to win the DeVilbiss 400 at Michigan Speedway. It was Martin's third career victory on the 2-mile track in the Irish Hills. Jeff Gordon finished second, keeping his points lead over Martin intact. Ted Musgrave was the big mover in the points race, leaping to eighth place after finishing third in Sunday's race.

BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL: Steve Park used superior fuel mileage to track down Mark Martin and win for the second time in the Chevrolet owned by Dale and Teresa Earnhardt. Dale Earnhardt Jr. drove another of the family cars to a seventh-place finish in only his fourth start. Randy LaJoie continues to lead Todd Bodine in the points race, while Park moved up to third place.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCK SERIES: Jack Sprague put a stop to fellow Chevy driver Ron Hornaday Jr.'s hot streak, winning on the 596-mile track in Nashville, Tenn. The win kept Sprague in first place in the points standings ahead of Rich Bickle and Hornaday.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Dale Earnhardt vs. NASCAR

An increasingly frustrated Earnhardt complained loudly after Fords took four of the first five places at Michigan.

"Those Fords have more horsepower and more downforce," said Earnhardt, whose winless streak reached 48 races.

"It's time for it to stop. I'm tired of it. It's so damn unfair, I don't know what it is. I'm driving my butt off, hung out loose, sideways and I still can't keep up with them Fords." NASCAR This Week Motorsports Writer Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "NASCAR seems to be taking the stance that, before other Chevy drivers can complain, they need to catch up with the one Chevy that battles the Fords on an even basis: the one driven by Jeff Gordon."

FROM THE ARCHIVES:

Old photos of what is now known as Bristol Motor Speedway look nothing like the present facility. As recently as 15 years ago, the high-banked Tennessee track had only two small concrete grandstands, each traversing one of the track's two straights, and seated no more than 25,000. Today the track seats 100,000 more than that, with modern double-decked stands that practically ring the oval. By next April, the track's capacity should exceed 131,000.

AROUND: Roush puts investment

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week
BROOKLYN, Mich. — Jack Roush finally announced what had been rumored for weeks, namely, that he is "acquiring an interest" in Mark Rypien Motorsports, the Pontiac team of Chad Little.

Little also signed a multi-year extension in his driver's contract with the team. Greg Pollex, who had co-owned the team with Rypien, will remain as a shareholder and team executive.

"When we were approached by Rypien Motorsports, we first had to consider what our role could be or would be, without disrupting other objectives regarding our current Winston Cup teams, sponsors and affiliations," said Roush. "When we looked at their program, we found that we could participate not only on a supplier level as their engine builder, but we also felt that we could help their motorsports program as a whole. Ultimately, those discussions led to an investment in the

Rick Mast is still searching

NASCAR This Week
One thing that must be said for Rick Mast is that he never gives up on his elusive quest for Winston Cup victory.

The personable Mast has worked his way up from the bottom of the racing ladder. He raised the money for his first race by selling a Black Angus cow he had raised from birth. In 1973, he scored his first victories in that car, a 1957 Chevy, in the Hobby division at Natural Bridge and Eastside, a pair of Virginia tracks.

While Mast has come close to a Winston Cup victory on several occasions, he is a nine-time winner in the Busch Grand National series.

THE WINSTON CUP CIRCUIT

ALMOST HOME COOKING

No trip to Bristol would be complete without a visit to the famous Peerless Steak House in Johnson City. In addition to fine steaks, the restaurant offers an impressive wine list and an almost unparalleled variety of appetizers.

Terry Labonte and Gordon give Chevy an excellent shot.
THREE WHO COULD SURPRISE: Steve Grissom once swept the Busch Grand National races here. Sterling Marlin will mix it up at Morgan-McClure's home track. Rookie Mike Skinner could make his mark.
KEY TO THE RACE: Out-of-shape drivers hate Bristol, the most physically taxing track in racing.

THE BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL SERIES COMING UP: Aug. 22, Food City 25, Bristol
DEFENDING CHAMPION: Jeff Fuller
THE FAVORITES: Mark Martin and Todd Bodine each have two Bristol victories. Dale Jarrett, Bobby Labonte and Michael Waltrip are former winners.
THREE WHO COULD SURPRISE: Stevie Reeves is a former pole winner. Randy LaJoie has won most everywhere else. Tim Fedewa has run well here before.
THE CRAFTSMAN TRUCK SERIES COMING UP: Aug. 24, Watkins Glen International, Watkins Glen, N.Y.
DEFENDING CHAMPION: Ron Hornaday Jr.
THE FAVORITES: Jack Sprague and Rich Bickle were both in the top five last year. Joe Ruttman has a road-course victory this year.
THREE WHO COULD SURPRISE: Boris Said knows this course well. Bryan Reffner is due for some luck. A veteran such as Butch Miller could prosper.

PROFILE

Rick Mast

John Clark/NASCAR This Week

...for his first Winston Cup win.

WHY I LIKE ...

Tell us in 100 words or less why Rick Mast is your favorite driver. One letter will be drawn from the entries and the winner will receive a copy of NASCAR This Week hat. Send your entry to: NASCAR This Week/Why I Like; c/o The Gaston Gazette, 2500 E. Franklin Blvd., Gastonia, N.C. 28054.

Last week's winner was Russell L. Stone of Huntsville, Ala. Mast, Va., resides in Rockbridge Baths, Va.
RECORD: 232 starts, 0 wins, 3 poles, 7 top fives, 29 top 10s, about $4.5 million in career earnings.
LAST RACE: Finished 38th in the DeVilbiss 400
WHAT PUT YOU ON THE ROAD TO THE WINSTON CUP SERIES? "We were going to a Busch Grand National race at Hickory (N.C.) Motor Speedway for the first time (in 1983) and our tow truck broke down.

Franklin County Speedway wasn't far away, so that's where we ended up racing. We didn't know it at the time, but the promoter had a deal going that if you won three 100-lap events in a row, he would pay you $25,000. We won that night and again the following month. In the third and final race, we wrecked. The promoter told the crowd he decided to give me another chance. Fortunately we won the next 100-lapper. I used that money to buy my first (super)speedway car and ran a Grand National race at Charlotte."

YOU HAD A GREAT RUN AT THE DAYTONA 500, DRIVING AN UNSPONSORED CAR, IN 1989, BUT YOU HAD TO WAIT UNTIL 1990 TO GET A FULL-TIME RIDE. "Getting a full-time Winston Cup ride was what I'd worked for and longed for throughout my career. Now my priority is winning. I really want to win a race in the worst way."

YOUR TURN

READERS ASK THE QUESTIONS

Dear NASCAR This Week, I am interested in the rules for Fantasy NASCAR.

Would you possibly have a copy of these rules that you could send to me?

If not, can you please give me a name and address where I could write to find out about them?

I would sure appreciate your help and assistance in this request.

Raymond Earl Hensley
 Carlisle, Ind.

Dear NASCAR fan, Assuming that Fantasy NASCAR is some sort of privately run rotisserie league, you would have to contact whatever organization or business runs the individual game, as there is no one standard set of rules.

As for rules that govern competition, rule books are not available to the general public and, in fact, are not even distributed to the news media.

The only way to obtain a rule book for the Winston Cup Series is to become a member of NASCAR and pay annual dues.

Dear Your Turn, What do the NASCAR teams use to inflate their tires—normal atmosphere or an inert gas?

Stephen E. Laliberte
 Waterville, Maine

Dear NASCAR fan, NASCAR race tires are inflated with compressed air, just like passenger cars.

If you've got a question or a comment, write: NASCAR This Week Your Turn, c/o The Gaston Gazette, 2500 E. Franklin Blvd., Gastonia, N.C. 28054

Crew of the Week

Jimmy Fennig and the rest of the Valvoline No. 6 crew repaired significant damage to Mark Martin's Ford when a tire went down. Martin went on to win his third race of the season in the DeVilbiss 400 at Michigan Speedway.

RACING ON THE WEB

goringing!
 Web address: www.goracing.com
Overview: Plenty of information about virtually every American series, from World of Outlaws to Goody's Dash.
Strong points: Notes and opinions from columnists and affiliated publications. A balance between basic facts (results, point standings) and interesting information.
Weak points: The line between notes of interest and opinion columns is blurred. Practically everything that comes in the mail is somewhere here, with little to direct visitors as to what is important and what is not.

team."
MAKING IT OFFICIAL: Jim Mattei and John Porter were introduced officially as the businessmen who have bought into Geoff Bodine's Winston Cup team. What formerly was known as Geoff Bodine Racing will now become Mattei Motorsports. Amid assurances that Bodine will have the resources necessary to be competitive again, veteran crew chief Tim Brewer was introduced as the team's newest member. Brewer, one of the winningest crew chiefs in the sport's history, will assist Pat Tryson, who will continue in the crew chief's capacity.

CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK: After qualifying at Michigan, Sterling Marlin flew to Nashville (Tenn.) Speedway USA to watch 16-year-old son Steadman race in the Late Model Stock division. "It's like old times," said Marlin, who grew up watching his father, Coo Coo, race. "(Steadman's) got about a 10-year-old car, and it isn't that good."

The American College of Rheumatology, which represents the medical specialty that focuses on OA, led the call for managing OA pain by setting guidelines for the medical management of OA. These guidelines are based on a new understanding that OA results primarily from wear and tear on joints and cartilage, rather than from inflammation of the joints. Consequently, the goals of

Food and Fiber System

(NAPS)—Farmers and ranchers do more than put food on America's tables. They also fuel a large part of the U.S. economy. While farming employs less than 1.4 percent of the nation's work force, agricultural production, processing, manufacturing, transportation, and retailing account for nearly 23 million jobs, more than 17.3 percent of the civilian labor force.

The food and fiber system, including those businesses providing inputs to agriculture, contributes almost $983 billion to the nation's economy, or 13.5 percent of the value of all goods and services produced in the United States.

The industries that provide inputs for American agricultural production contribute almost $319 billion to our nation's Gross Domestic Product, the value of goods and services produced in the United States, and provide jobs for 4.4 million workers. The nation's 1.6 million farmers and ranchers generate another $63 billion of economic activity.

Processing and handling of farm production provide the bulk of the food and fiber system's impact on the economy. Manufacturing, distribution, and marketing of farm products contribute $601 billion to our Gross Domestic Product and employ more than 16.8 million workers. These workers include people who hold jobs in processing, transportation, wholesale and retail trade, and food service firms such as restaurants and grocery stores.

Agriculture reaches far beyond the farm gate. It is a basic fuel of the American economy.

See Your Doctor

(NAPS)—One reason many people put up with more pain than they have to is that they hesitate to "bother" the doctor with questions, or are embarrassed to ask about points they don't understand. Leading experts say these feelings are very common among people with osteoarthritis (OA). Patients should ask questions. In addition to helping your doctor monitor how well you are doing, open and honest communication allows both of you to identify problems and make changes.

The old saying "two heads are better than one" holds true in the treatment of any chronic disease, particularly OA. When you work as a partner with your doctor in developing the treatment plan, you can gain power over the potentially debilitating pain of OA.

Many of the 16 million people with OA think the disease is a natural part of the aging process. They may feel there is nothing they can do about their condition because there is no cure. Fortunately, there are treatments available to improve the quality of patients' lives, particularly when physicians and patients work as partners in the treatment plan.

The American College of Rheumatology, which represents the medical specialty that focuses on OA, led the call for managing OA pain by setting guidelines for the medical management of OA. These guidelines are based on a new understanding that OA results primarily from wear and tear on joints and cartilage, rather than from inflammation of the joints. Consequently, the goals of the guidelines are to control pain and other symptoms like aches and stiffness to minimize disability, and to educate patients and their family members about the disease and treatment options. Key recommendations for tackling OA pain are:

- exercise
- weight control
- pain management with acetaminophen (brand names include Tylenol®, Bayer® Free and Anacin® 3)

To learn more about OA, talk to your health care provider about how both of you can work together in establishing the treatment plan.

Kid-Friendly Closets...As Easy As 1-2-3

(NAPS)—Parents beware the bite of the fashion bug! Most children begin to form opinions about their personal style between the ages of 2 and 3, says Dr. Marian Krauskopf, a family psychologist. "At that point, it's time to spend some quality time with your pint-sized style setter and begin to organize a kid-friendly closet."

In fact, Anne Garvey, fashion director at Healthtex, a children's playwear manufacturer, recommends creating a closet that works for the child and the parent. "Organizing the closet presents an opportunity for fun and togetherness, as well as some valuable learning," suggests Garvey.

Garvey recommends the following tips to parents on the quest for an organized, kid-friendly closet:

Box It—Begin the process of creating a user-friendly closet by sorting the items of clothing your child no longer wears. Give those garments to a child or relative that can use them, or donate to charity. Pieces that appear gently worn should be boxed up and stored away from everyday playwear, or placed on a separate shelf in the closet for summer camp.

Color Coordinate—Most children do not understand the concept of matching, so it's essential to hang coordinating looks together, in an effort to teach them. Additionally, when buying children's playwear, look for mix-and-match separates and clothing brands like Healthtex that provide head-to-toe looks, including socks and shoes, for easier shopping and easy dressing. This head-to-toe concept helps children build confidence as they begin to dress themselves.

Within Reach and Ready to Wear—Continue creating your kid-friendly closet by hanging or placing clothing on rods/shelves that provide easy access for your child. Separate shirts, pants, etc. by category and by color; you may want to add shelves for items like shoes, hats and other accessories. T-shirts, socks and underwear are best assigned to a chest of drawers nearby.

Split the Seasons—Separate seasonal apparel. For example, if you're preparing the closet for Fall and back-to-school, be sure to hang all cool weather garments together and vice versa, when you're preparing the closet for spring. This separation will help your child become familiar with the textures, weights and colors of the season.

Take 10—Children can feel anxious about dressing in the morning. To reduce anxiety, take ten minutes with your child before bedtime to select the next day's outfit, and be sure to let them remain involved in the morning dressing process. Together, dressing for the day can be as easy as 1-2-3.
