Unified utility operation

by Pam Shingler

Members of the new Floyd County Utility Service Advisory Committee danced around the issue of consolidation of county water and sewer operations for almost two hours Wednesday night, lightly dipping now and then, before jumping onto the issue.

The committee was formed in February by Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson to "advise and assist" on the "best way to provide water and sewage service throughout Floyd County."

Thompson advised the committee that the county stands a better chance of addressing its water and sewer needs if the water districts are united. Thompson said he has talked with state and federal officials, and "grants to individual water districts are a thing of the past."

He said he had been told that the current water project on Bill Hall Branch was the last "piecemeal" project that would be funded with federal money. "The federal government is not going to put any more money into individual systems."

Objection to the merger of existing water systems came from the Mud Creek Water District. "I don't see how merger with Prestonsburg (City Utility Commission) or Beaver-Elkhorn (Water District) would be better for us," said Dean Hall, whose Mud Creek system buys water from Pike County.

"We have a good water system," said Mud Creek Water District Chairman Eula Hall. "We have 1,000 customers and they're never without water. We have been on our own out there, with no help."

However, the Halls admitted that their system loses 30 to 40 percent of the water its purchases because of leaks in the lines. They also said they have been trying to secure grants for three years but without success.

"We know what we need to do," said businessman Gary Frazier of Martin, a citizen appointee to the committee. "I've been around organizations long enough to

Family intends to file suit against county over road

by Pam Shingler
Editor

Attorney Sheridan Martin said yesterday that his family intends to take action against the Floyd County Fiscal Court over a private road that was taken into the county road system last month.

Martin said his late father built the road at Drift, listed as Martin Drive Road, and permitted persons who own property on up the hollow to use the road. He emphasized a distinction between the land's "dedicated" use as a road and its "permissive" use.

"The county has no right to take the road when it falls under permissive use," Martin told members of the court, who were meeting in regular session a day earlier than usual because of another commitment on Friday.

Assistant County Attorney Stacy Marshall said state law indicates that if land has been set aside for road use for five years, then it is a public road.

County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson said there was no other access for residents who live above the Martin property. "If we have to go to court, we are prepared to do it," he said.

Martin, however, contended that an older road exists which could be cleared and made usable without taking his family's road.

Thompson countered that the alternate access goes through a creek and around gas lines, but Martin said that the gas lines were there when the old road was in use.

"The county has no right to take the road when it falls under permissive use," Martin told members of the court.

Martin also indicated that he thought a mining company was interested in mining on up the hollow and in using the road for hauling coal. Whether the road is private or public would affect the coal hauling.

Despite the county's adoption of the road in March, Martin insisted the road is still private. "It's not a question of access, but a question of ownership," he said.

With Martin was another Martin

Drive Road landowner, Ronnie Johnson, who said he is also opposed to the road being in the county system.

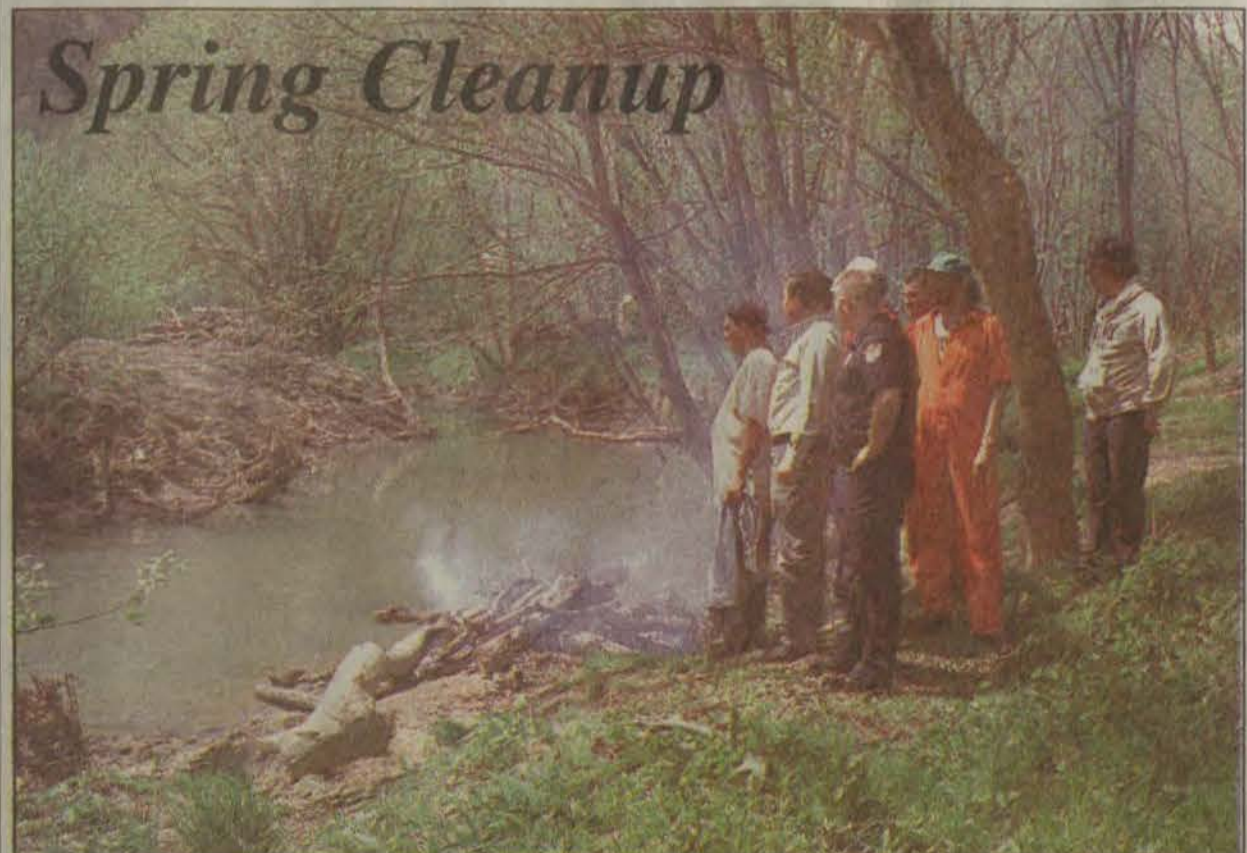

In other business, the Fiscal Court heard a report from Solid Waste Coordinator Mike Vance that more than 450 tons of garbage have been deposited at the Garth transfer station since the county cleanup began in mid-March.

Vance said that figure does not include metal products, which have been separated out, or trash that has been collected by state workers. He added that he expects the total to be as much as 1,000 tons by the time the cleanup period is over on April 24. During the five weeks of the cleanup, residents can deposit large trash items at the transfer station without a charge.

"It (the cleanup) is a bigger success than I ever thought it would be," Vance said.

Thompson commended the public on its cooperation and asked residents who qualify for county help in transferring large items to be

Jailer Roger Webb and Deputy Tony Griffith take a look at the cleanup job at Lackey done by inmates from the Floyd County Detention Center and other agencies. According to Solid Waste Coordinator Mike Vance, just during April, Floyd County residents have brought 140 tons of garbage to the transfer station at Garth, and county crews have picked up and deposited another 117 tons. From the beginning of Spring Cleanup on March 22 until the end of March, 200 tons of garbage went to the transfer station. Vance said these figures do not include metal products or what state work crews have picked up. (photo by Willie Elliott)

Boyd leaves office

by Pam Shingler

For almost 28 years, Floyd Countians who have wanted to record deeds, to purchase automobile licenses, to research documents about births, deaths and marriages, to get election data and to obtain all kinds of official information have dealt with Carla Boyd.

Boyd went to work in the County Clerk's office, part-time, in the early 1970s when her late uncle, C. Ollie Robinson, held the office. For the past 16 years, she has been elected to the job in her own right.

Yesterday, she announced her retirement, effective midnight last night. Boyd said, in a prepared statement, that "the time is right for me to pursue other interests and to make more time available for my family." She said she was leaving office "with a mixture of sadness and relief."

"The last six months have been particularly trying for me, for my family, and for the dedicated employees who work for me," she said, alluding to legal problems that have hounded her since November.

On November 17, a Floyd County Grand Jury indicted the clerk on one count of "theft by failure to make required disposition of property," a Class D felony. Boyd insists she is innocent of the charge.

The state's case alleges that she received around $26,000 intended for property taxes from a local cable company and allegedly did not deposit it in the county fund.

The pre-trial hearing in the case is scheduled for April 28 in Circuit Judge John David Caudill's court. It was previously slated for today.

Floyd County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson said yesterday he has accepted Boyd's resignation and intended to appoint his deputy judge, Chris Waugh, to the post of County Clerk, effective at Opal "Sissy" Williams, left, led supporters of Paul Tackett during Wednesday's tribunal hearing to consider Tackett's dismissal last fall as principal of W.D. Osborne Elementary School at Bevinville. Late that afternoon, the tribunal announced that Tackett had been exonerated of the charges against him. Further information will be available next week when the final order on the case is released. Former teacher challenges state, county organizations

by Pam Shingler
Editor

A teacher who was dismissed last year from Prestonsburg High School has filed lawsuits against the Floyd County Board of Education, the interim superintendent of schools, the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the Cabinet for Education, Arts and Humanities, and the Department of Education.

Jerry Lafferty, whose September firing was upheld by an educational tribunal, registered the complaint in Floyd County Circuit Court on March 26.

Lafferty, represented by Attorney Jane Fitzpatrick of Lexington, also asked the court to seal the records of the case so that they are not available to the public.

The former English teacher's dismissal over charges of immoral conduct was upheld in February by a tribunal — a hearing board made up of three educators from outside the local system, provided for by Kentucky's education reform legislation.

Lafferty contends in his complaint that he was denied due process in the hearing earlier this year because, he claims, one of the tribunal members was biased against him and another was improperly chosen.

see what happens when they're fragmented. We need to look at the greatest good for the greatest number of people."

Frazier added that he lives a mile from the Martin sewer lines, "but it might as well be a million miles because Martin is broke. When you go piecemeal, you're out there by yourself. We get too hooked up in our little narrow areas."

Thompson read a letter from Gov. Paul Patton, requesting information about existing and planned water lines throughout the county. The judge said the governor is seeking data from across the state to put together a funding proposal to present to the 2000 General Assembly.

He said he had heard that the state might float a bond issue of up to $2.5 billion for water and sewer projects statewide.

For Floyd County to get its share, Thompson said information from the various districts must be thorough and accurate. Roger Recktenwald, director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, said his staff intends to meet with every water district to get as accurate information as possible about existing lines and needs.

Information on existing water lines, tanks and their capacity, pumps, elevations, water plants, households served and unserved, source of water and costs to operate and expand was among the data to be gathered and reported to the governor for inclusion in his statewide plan.

"If we don't jump on it, it'll be gone," said C.J. McNally, chairman of the board of Prestonsburg City Utilities.

"It looks like there's going to be a window of opportunity that we haven't seen before," Recktenwald said, referring to the possibility of state funding. "This is no silver bullet. (Funding) will depend on the degree of cooperation among citizens."

"If we don't jump on it, it'll be gone," said C.J. McNally, chairman of the board of Prestonsburg City Utilities.

Recktenwald said only about 12 counties in the state have a county-wide utility system, and he said he would find out more about them and report to the committee at a later time. He also committed to checking on state statutes that relate to merger of utility systems and to regulations of the state Public Service Commission.

"If we can get a master plan together, I believe we can get the money in here," Thompson said.

"Shame on us if we don't," added Seldon Horne, superintendent of Prestonsburg City Utilities.

The county judge said the committee's number one priority now is to gather the data for Big Sandy ADD's report to the governor, which is due May 15. The second priority, he said, is "getting people to work together."

Bill Harvey Howard, who retired after 32 years with Prestonsburg City Utilities, called the possible merger a "monumental" task. "These things don't come easy," he said. "Everybody's done their own thing for so long, some of it good, some not so good."

Near the end of the meeting, Howard was asked to chair the committee, with Allen Mayor Sharon Woods, to serve as secretary.

McNally, however, insisted that the judge-executive must maintain a major role, which Thompson said he intended to do. "The county judge has to stay in the middle of (the proposed consolidation)," McNally said. "It's his horse and he's got to ride it."

County water systems include Mud Creek, Sandy Valley and Beaver-Elkhorn water districts, Prestonsburg, Wheelwright and two private operations, Auxier and Francis. They provide water to about 65 percent of households in the county.

The committee includes mayors of the county's incorporated towns, chairmen of the water districts and citizen members.

In addition to those previously mentioned, in attendance at the Wednesday meeting were Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin; Charlotte Frasure of Grethel, standing in for her husband Palmer Frasure; Thomas Westfall of Ivel; Attorney Brett Davis; Michael Webb of Sandy Valley Water District; Bob Hackworth of Beaver-Elkhorn Water District; Jim Spencer of Martin; Stanley Allen of Minnie; Hubert Halbert of Langley; Jerry Fultz of Wayland, and Doug Griffin of Kenvirons Inc.

Correction

Last week The Times reported that Floyd County had no representative at the opening of the Kentucky History Center in Frankfort. Allen Central High School sophomore Tyler Green, son of Jane Green of Hueysville, represented Floyd County by being in the parade and distributing pencils to Gov. Paul Patton and Lt. Gov. Steve Henry.

Teacher

The complaint alleges that Elizabeth Fern Pace was prejudiced against Lafferty because his attorneys had been engaged in a suit against her husband who is a school administrator in Clark County. The objection to Pace's appointment to the tribunal was overruled by a hearing officer in early January.

The complaint further claims that

Jody Gluck was improperly appointed to be the teacher representative on the tribunal because he is a former assistant principal. The hearing officer also overruled the objection to Gluck's appointment.

Lafferty's complaint also contends that he was denied the testimony of a witness who was ill at the time of the hearing. He states that he requested that the tribunal hearing be continued until his witness could testify on his behalf, but the request was denied.

In addition, the complaint challenges some of the charges made against Lafferty, as well as the credibility of the students who testified against him at the hearing.

In the primary complaint, as well as in subsequent filings, Lafferty faults the Floyd County Board of Education for releasing the final order of the tribunal to the Floyd County Times.

The dismissed teacher argues that it was his right to request a private hearing on the allegations that had been made against him — which he did receive — and that release of the tribunal's judgment on the matter should, therefore, have been private.

The school board, Lafferty contends, violated his right to a private hearing by releasing the information.

He also cites the right of the students who testified at the hearing to maintain confidentiality. Indeed, the copy of the final order that The Times obtained had the names of the student witnesses blacked out.

Lafferty's attorney asks in the complaint that the tribunal's final order be set aside and that the teacher be reinstated "without loss of pay and other benefits."

Lafferty sought and has been granted in Floyd Circuit Court that the case be sealed from public review.

Floyd Circuit Judge John David Caudill said this week that civil trials are typically open to the public.

er of the golf course at Allen Park, at an hourly wage of $6 and no benefits, effective April 15. Kay Prater was hired as a summer employee at the Pro Shop at the golf course at an hourly rate of $7.25, effective April 19.

Former road department employee David M. Sammons was reinstated following an injury and a release by his physician. His wage is $10.73 an hour with full benefits.

The commissioners put into the road fund $122,819, which the judge's office discovered had not been previously claimed from state and federal emergency management assistance funds dating to March of 1994.

Thompson told the commissioners that the Floyd County Board of Education has accepted the county's offer of $15,000 for the Wheelwright gym and is working on a lease agreement, which includes renovation of the second floor gymnasium. The county has committed to turning the first floor into living quarters for volunteers who will help build and repair low-income housing.

The commissioners authorized Thompson to execute the deed on the property and to make the payment.

The Fiscal Court had to void a check for $25,000 written on April 1 to Frank Justice for purchase of a truck with a hydraulic claw to pick up big garbage items over hillsides. "I messed up the guy's last name," Thompson said, adding that he should have instructed the treasurer to write the check to Frank Tackett.

Tackett's name was listed correctly on the resolution to purchase the vehicle.

The commissioners also agreed to participate in CenterLinks, a technological program created by the Center for Rural Development in Somerset and Computer First. The county will receive assistance on developing a free computer homepage and other on-line marketing programs.

The purchase of a Roxy Turf Five-Gang Reel Mower for maintaining the fairways at Allen Golf Course was approved. A similar mower was lost in the fire at the golf cart barn last fall, and, according to Thompson, the replacement will be covered by insurance.

Commissioners gave the go-ahead to pay Hamilton Construction Co. $17,300 for repairs to county bridges in March, under emergency provisions.

All three commissioners — Gerald DeRossett, Larry Foster Stumbo and Ermal Tackett — were present at the meeting. The next regularly scheduled meeting is May 21.

New National Arbor Day program begins

Greener horizons are inevitable with five million bare-root trees available for free distribution to the public. Starting this spring, millions of trees are being given away in observance of National Arbor Day through a special millennium program. Anyone in America can get some of the trees.

On April 22, the "Arbor Day Tree Truck" will begin a live tour to visit a number of states and give away trees to those who sign up. The metropolitan areas of New York, New Jersey, Nebraska, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin were selected to start the tour in 1999.

Fifteen other areas will finalize the distribution in 2000 including Atlanta, Denver, Los Angeles and Seattle. People outside of these areas are also eligible to receive trees.

Unlike other Arbor Day programs and tree promotions sponsored by the foundation, these plants are really free. No $10 memberships are required and there is nothing to buy. Those wanting some of the baby trees this spring have until April 30th to sign up. The program is funded through public support and other activities, while donations will be accepted they are not required.

Individuals can register for some of the young plants any of three ways: • log on to the Arbor Day website at www.arborday.com or www.freetrees.com. • call toll-free

1-877-arborday (272-6732) from 9 a.m.-5 p.m., or • send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Arbor Day 2000, Washington, DC 20044-0980.

There are four different kinds of bare-root tree seedlings currently available: • spruce, birch, maple and the tulip tree. All of these trees are of premium quality, average 10-24" tall, and all are USDA certified. The specific type of tree participants receive depends upon their climate zone. Each person gets five trees for free; those living in recovering disaster areas qualify for up to 25 trees per household. Each group of trees comes packaged with tree planting instructions and a fertilizer sample.

Homeowners living near selected distribution sites can come in person to pick-up their tree seedlings; these participants will be given distribution locations and other detailed information. Those outside of the distribution locations can have their free trees boxed up, root pruned, and mailed to them for the cost of shipping and handling which is less than five dollars. Orders placed electronically and by mail after the deadline will be processed the next planting season.

The group also has programs not limited to homeowners. Schools, youth groups, and corporations all have an opportunity to get trees. Coca-Cola, Lexmark, and the Boy Scouts are some examples of those getting trees from Arbor Day this year for their special programs.

April becomes "Autism Awareness Month"

by Kristy Stevens
Student Writer

Members of the Autism Support Group of Eastern Kentucky and the Kentucky Autism Training Center attended the signing of a proclamation for their cause on Tuesday, April 13. The group serves Floyd, Pike and Johnson counties with intentions to expand.

Those witnessing Floyd County Judge Paul Hunt Thompson sign the proclamation were support group members Scarlet King, president; Donna Thompson, secretary; Amanda King and Gerri Lee. Amanda King also serves as the Family Services Coordinator for the Kentucky Autism Training Center out of Louisville.

These ladies and more will join to host an autism information program which is set to air on WPRG three times during the month of April.

Currently, parents and friends of autistic children make up the support group, but professionals, teachers and anyone concerned are urged to join.

For more information on the Autism Support Group, contact Scarlet King at (606) 587-1976 or attend a meeting at The Pikeville Methodist Education Building. Meetings are held on the second Saturday of each month from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Also, a booth will be set up at Hillbilly Days to promote April as Autism Awareness Month.

12:01 this morning.

An election in November will determine who will continue in the post.

State auditors are expected to be in the clerk's office today to check the records before the new clerk takes over. Boyd said it is standard practice for state officials to inventory the operation between clerks.

On Monday morning officials of the vehicle enforcement office will inventory licenses and decals.

Consequently, Waugh said the county clerk's office will be closed today through Monday at noon.

Besides maintaining county records, the clerk also heads the county election board, which plans for and oversees elections. Boyd met with the election board for the final time yesterday afternoon.

Boyd said she will "greatly miss" her staff, many of whom have worked with her for 10 years or more. She called her tenure in office "personally and professionally gratifying."

"In announcing my retirement at this time, it is my sincere hope that my legacy will be one of a dedicated public servant committed to the betterment of Floyd County and serving the needs of its citizens," she said.

Thompson said he will have an announcement next week as to who will replace Waugh in the judge's office.

Donors spotlighted

The urgent need for increasing the country's organ and tissue donors is the underlying theme for the 1999 National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week (NOTDAW), scheduled for April 18-24.

The annual observation and related special events pay tribute to the generosity of those who have donated, and encourage all Americans to learn the facts about organ and tissue donation and discuss them with their families.

Each year, the gap between the supply and demand for donated organs and tissues continues to increase at an alarming rate. More than 65,000 Americans are currently listed on the national waiting list for an organ transplant, with about 19,000 transplants being performed annually. Due to the shortage of organs being donated, 10 to 12 people die daily awaiting a transplant.

During National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week, communities unite in a common goal of educating Americans about organ and tissue donation. People throughout the community are encouraged to get the facts about donation and talk about their decision to donate with their families. Because donation does not take place without the consent of the next of kin, it is vital that family members discuss in advance their wishes regarding donation.

For further information about organ and tissue donation, call the Kentucky Organ Donor Affiliates at 1-800-525-3456.

Plastic footbridge eliminates hazard

The folks in River no longer will have to risk their lives to walk to the post office. Nor will those not brave enough to journey onto a rickety wooden foot bridge have to drive 20 miles to travel the few hundred feet from their homes to church.

A walk across the Johnson County community has become less treacherous with the opening of a new 420-foot bridge across the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. After years of many promises and no action, construction on the new footbridge began last fall and was completed last week.

While metal towers and cables support the new bridge, it is unique in that its deck is made of plastic. Issam Harik, a University of Kentucky civil engineering professor, designed the deck, which he claims is lighter yet more durable than a wooden deck would be. He says the plastic will require less maintenance than the wooden span.

Maintenance was minimal on the old bridge, which was held aloft above the river by rusting cables and towers. Although residents knew the bridge was dangerous and several of the floor planks were missing, many continued to use it simply because it was the quickest way across the river that divides the community.

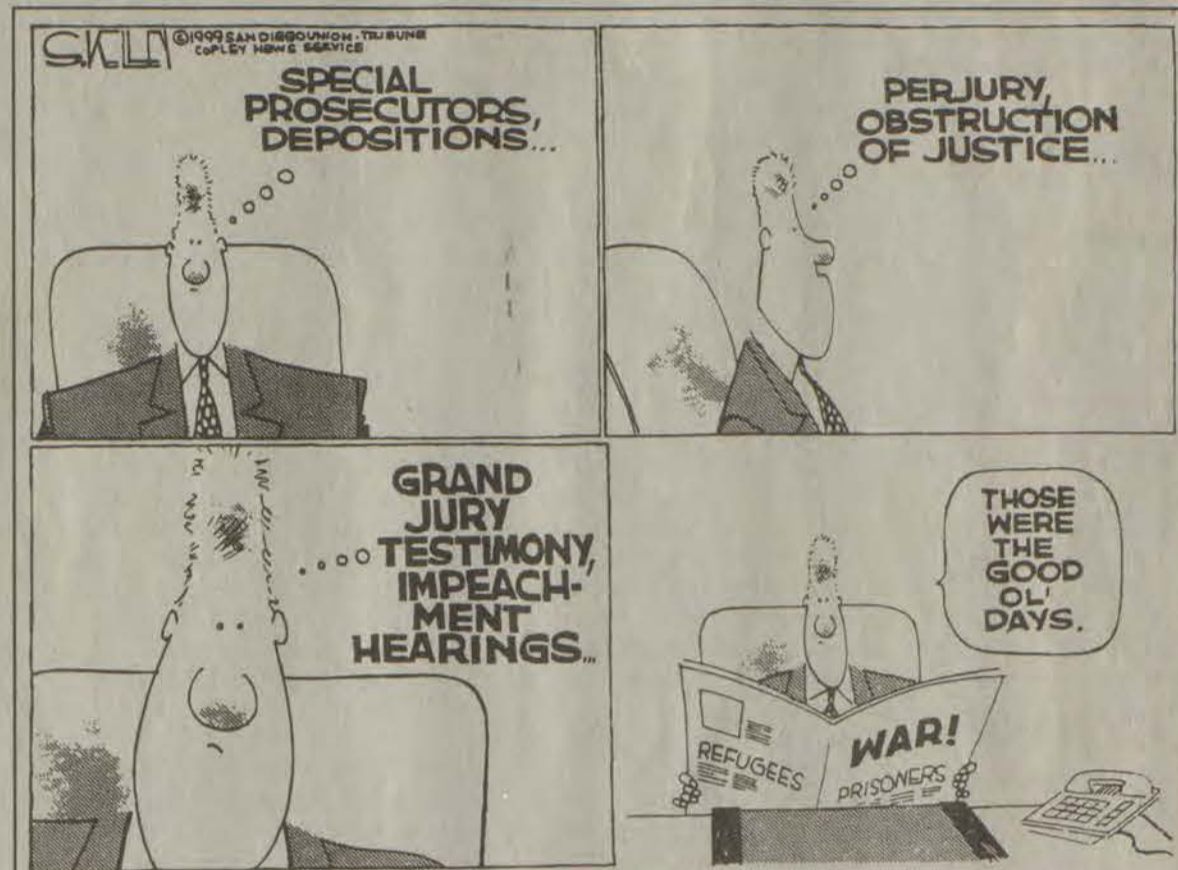

R.B. Preston of Henderson, who grew up in River, donated the first $25,000 to replace the bridge built by members of the River United Baptist Church more than 60 years ago. However, the promises of a lot of politicians went unfulfilled before the remaining money for the bridge was secured. A bridge that was only for pedestrians kept getting pushed down the list of state priorities.

Finally, an eastern Kentucky governor — Paul Patton — delivered on the promise and secured the $527,560 in state and federal highway funds for the footbridge.

The long wait is over and the old footbridge soon will be just a memory. No one will miss it.

One final thought: Isn't it amazing what is being done with plastics these days? Just a few miles from the new bridge with the plastic deck, the Christian Appalachian Project is experimenting with homes that are built with mostly plastic materials. Maybe this region will become known for its pioneering uses for plastic.

-Guest Editorial- Using the poor for politics

Although Republicans and Democrats are vying for credit for the prosperous U.S. economy, both sides may face a new challenge with respect to poverty.

Glowing reports about low unemployment rates aside, a new study released by the Educational Testing Service calls much of the current economic conventional wisdom into question. According to the study's author, Anthony Carnevale, many poor women will be unable to take advantage of the booming economy.

The reason: inadequate job training. Many of the poorest women who are able to subsist only through the welfare system may be trapped in poverty, according to Carnevale.

"All of them are employable," he added. "The issues gets to be whether you're moving them from welfare traps to poverty traps."

Carnevale's study notes that the recently overhauled welfare system provides little training or economic incentives for poor women. The study concludes that it will be very difficult to bring these women, many of whom are young unwed mothers, into the mainstream work force.

Republicans have tended to blame overly generous welfare programs for unemployment and teen-age pregnancies. Democrats have argued that the answer is an ever-increasing amount of government aid. But in the 1990s, both sides of this debate found some common ground in welfare reform efforts, emphasizing moving from welfare to work. Those policies have worked for many people and showed that liberals and conservatives actually could agree, at least in part, on this issue.

Professor Christopher Jencks agrees with Carnevale's conclusions. In his book, "Rethinking Social Policy," Jencks notes that, contrary to popular wisdom, many welfare mothers would like to work, but the economic realities of obtaining child care, transportation and decent clothes still make it very difficult.

Jencks also concludes that federal aid programs lock many of these mothers into poverty by penalizing them when they obtain employment.

The U.S. economy is booming and generating opportunities for all kinds of work. But these two researchers have identified challenges that likely will require more than the welfare reform strategies introduced thus far.

One of my favorite magazines ran a cartoon a few weeks ago that is worth sharing, at least verbally in the face of copyright laws. Two women are talking and one says, "Somehow, in all the confusion, I aged."

Boy, did that hit home! My life has been mostly confusion, and in the middle of it, to add insult to injury, I aged — am aging.

Nor do I see any of the benefits that celebrities and other highly successful people claim to experience. How often have we seen interviews with 50-something actresses who swear that they feel better about themselves than ever before?

Sure, most of us would feel better if we could afford the magical lifts these people indulge in regularly. Look at Cher, for instance. Is there any part of her body that has not been surgically altered? Aside from having the actual surgery — which I wouldn't mind — I'd just like to have the money she's spent on it.

You hear these mature men and women of note talk about their appreciation of the wisdom they've gained with their aging. I cannot take comfort even in that. It seems I have learned very little about life and its meaning. In fact, I just keep on making the same mistakes over and over with little hope of wising up.

Sharing on a brighter note, I was privileged last Saturday to hear author Gurney Norman talk about some of his river experiences during the Big Sandy Watershed Conference at Breaks Interstate Park.

Norman, who grew up at Aflex in Perry County and in Pound, Virginia, told of one of his earliest water memories. He was about three years old in the coal camp near Hazard, and his mother took her own children and some other neighbor children on a picnic.

With her arms full of goodies, she directed the children across the Kentucky River at a crossing where the water was very shallow. Normally, he said, someone would have had his little hand, but for some reason no one did on this outing.

Sure enough, the tike managed to veer over a drop-off and to be swept off his feet into a deeper and faster-moving pool. Norman said he has clear memories of a life-altering, time-stands-still feeling.

His mother, as mothers are wont to do, managed quickly to rid herself of the food and to grab her baby from the water's grip. Once on shore, everyone gathered around him and declared as to how he had been saved from an awful fate. The writer allowed as to how he, too, had a distinct sense of having been saved.

The following Sunday when his family went to church, Norman said the preacher announced the congregation would be taking communion and for everyone who had been saved to come forward for the wine and wafer.

The little boy, not taking his experience lightly, marched forward with other members of the congregation. After all, he had been saved.

Of course, the other communicants had a good chuckle, but Norman was barred from sharing in the rite.

I suppose that says something about our fascinating use of words.

This is National Library Week

by Willie Elliott
Staff Writer

The theme of this year's National Library Week is "Read! Learn! Connect! @ the Library."

"There something for everyone at the library," said Floyd County librarian Homer Hall. "Today more than ever, libraries provide a variety of resources to help people of all ages read, learn, connect with resources they need for school, work or personal fulfillment. All you need is a library card."

If you haven't been to the library for a while, this spring would be a good time to stop by and see what is available.

Many people do not have access to the internet at home. With a library card, you can get on the net at the library.

Hall says the internet is the big draw now. He emphasized, however, that it is the parent's responsibility to counsel children about the proper use of the internet. For children to use the internet, parents must sign a form that reads in part: "I... agree that any children under my care as parent or guardian shall also abide by these rules. I understand it is my responsibility to counsel my children on the appropriate use of computer resources in the library. I agree not to hold the library responsible should my children gain access to material that I have counseled them against."

Hall said the library does not filter any of the material on the world wide web.

According to the local library staff, 569 patrons have signed up for internet, and next week the library will be getting five computers from the Gates Library Foundations and two from Empower KY, a state program that promotes information and access to the information highway.

All five computers will be used by patrons. The library has other special programs such as Story Hour that with preschoolers yesterday morning. Emma Shepherd was conducting

EKU's alumni weekend scheduled April 23-24

The approximately 340 Eastern Kentucky University graduates residing in Floyd County are encouraged to visit their alma mater, April 23-24, when ECU hosts its annual Alumni Weekend.

Many graduates find Alumni Weekend an ideal time to "rekindle the spirit of Eastern" with their friends and classmates, according to Larry Bailey, ECU director of alumni relations.

This year's event features special reunions for the graduation classes of 1934, 1939, 1944, 1949, 1954, 1959, 1964, 1974 and 1979. Also, a special invitation is issued to alumni who graduated one year before or one year after the special reunion classes.

"Our graduates from any year are welcome to attend any or all of the festivities," Bailey said. "Alumni Weekend is a celebration to be enjoyed with friends and family. We hope our graduates will make a special effort to join us for what is a special day for the University community."

Graduates returning to campus are encouraged to visit ECU classrooms. Several professors have opened class sessions to alumni from 1 to 4:30 p.m., Friday, April 23. A complete list of classes is available at the Alumni Relations web site, www.alumni.eku.edu.

Returning alumni and others are encouraged to attend a free presentation on investment planning, Friday at 4 p.m. at the Arlington Center. Presenters for "Strategies for Enhancing Your Retirement" will be Fifth Third investment officers Holly P. Thompson and James Smith; Bill Abney, ECU director of development, and Dr. Lana Carnes, associate director of development.

The Friday evening schedule at the Arlington House includes a 6 p.m. faculty/alumni reception, "early bird" alumni dinner at 7:30 and a "Casino Night" from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Each Casino Night guest is given $2,000 of "Colonel Money," and winnings can be used to purchase ECU paraphernalia. The cost for the "early bird" dinner is $18 a person, and advance reservations are recommended. Admission to Casino Night is $10 a person.

The fun continues Saturday, April 24, at the Keen Johnson Building, where registration and a "Getting Reacquainted Continental Breakfast" begin at 9 a.m. The day also includes a 11:30 a.m. brunch (cost $11), class meetings and photographs, and recognition of ECU Pioneers, those who graduated from the University at least 50 years ago.

The Alumni Awards and Recognition Banquet begins at 7 p.m., in the Keen Johnson Ballroom, and will be followed by a post-banquet reception. Tickets for the awards banquet are $20 each.

Any graduate from 1949 and earlier who would like to be recognized this year as an ECU Pioneer is asked to contact the Alumni Relations office to make reservations. For more information, or to make reservations, call 606-622-2836 or, toll-free in Kentucky, 1-800-262-7493, ext. 1260.

Ouch!

Floyd County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson put up a show of bravery as Carrie Branham gave him a tetanus shot Wednesday. Branham, an LPN, and Brian Holbrook of the Kentucky Immunization Program are promoting next week as National Immunization Week. The Floyd County Health Department is sponsoring a community awareness program on Thursday, beginning at 11 a.m. at the municipal parking lot on Court Street in Prestonsburg. Branham, immunization coordinator for the department, said the special event will emphasize immunizations for children birth through five years. She reminded that tetanus vaccinations are needed every 10 years. (photo by Pam Shingler)

Students volunteer with volunteers

Times Staff Report

On Wednesday, students from the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center in Prestonsburg volunteered to work from 10 a.m. to noon with Women in Community Service (WICS) at the local God's Pantry at Resource Court on Cliff Road.

WICS coordinator Leah Vance and Carlotta Shannon, who teaches culinary arts at the center and is a WICS volunteer, brought students to help the pantry load food items that will be distributed by other area pantries, churches and agencies.

God's Pantry serves as a clearinghouse for food and household items. The items are brought in by trucks and the various organizations stop by to pick up items to replenish their pantries.

By 11:30 a.m. Joe Hornbaker from the St. James Episcopal Church in Prestonsburg and Tina Bolen and Glenna Miller from the Salt Lick Food Pantry in Hindman had selected and loaded their supplies.

God's Pantry Director Debbie Amburgey keeps a schedule of days the various pantries are open, but she said she has memorized the schedule and knows about when the various agencies will be in to get supplies.

When the volunteers were not loading or assisting agencies with the food, they stacked, swept, cleaned and did "what needed to be done."

"My students always like it when they get to get out and do something like this," said Shannon. She said her students also enjoyed visiting and doing things for the patients in the area nursing homes.

Amburgey said she always looks forward to working with the students from the Job Corps and recalls that she used to drive out and get the students who volunteered.

The Job Corps is a federally-funded educational and vocational training program for low-income youth ages 16-24. By volunteering, the youth have the chance to acquire and develop skills and knowledge related to success in the workplace such as teamwork, leadership, and community involvement.

Their volunteer experiences make a difference in both their lives and the lives of others, Shannon said.

WICS has been assisting God's Pantry with volunteer work for the last three years.

For 35 years, WICS staff and volunteers have been engaging young women and men in community service projects across the country. WICS' involvement is as a national partner of Youth Service America. National Youth Service Day is part of its commitment to America's Promise "to engage 15,000 low-income women and men youth in community service projects nationwide by the year 2000."

To learn more about this local WICS' project, contact Leah Vance, WICS transitional specialist at 606/886-1037, ext. 59.

Women in Community Service (WICS), a national non-profit organization founded in 1964, aims to reduce the number of young women living in poverty by promoting self-reliance and economic independence.

Each year, WICS volunteers and staff help more than 150,000 low-income women and young adults by providing support services, mentoring and workforce preparation programs nationwide.

For information on volunteers or funding opportunities to help WICS prepare low-income and women and youth for successful entry into the workforce, call 800/442-9427.

UK covets Caudill, but options remain open

Blackcats hold several weight lifting records

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Wednesday afforded us a beautiful sunny day, a day that most young men would want to be outside enjoying the outdoors. But a stroll into the weight room of the football Prestonsburg Blackcats indicated that Jeremy Caudill was more interested in what could happen in the weight room than outdoors as he prepared to lift 500 pounds on his broad shoulders.

Football coach John Derossett had the video camera in hand and aimed at the weight bars as Caudill prepared to demonstrate his amazing strength that "The Hulk" would envy.

After a trip to the water fountain, Caudill entered the weight room to the cheers of his teammates. They counted down the lifting process.

"One, two, three, four, five, six," was the count as Caudill handled the bar with ease.

Coach Derossett wasn't filming the happening for record purposes but to send it to the University of Tennessee at their request.

"It was kind of exciting around here this morning (Wednesday). We were sitting here cutting up football tape," explained Derossett, "when the University of Tennessee called wanting some film on Jeremy."

Coach Derossett said he had already sent tape to Michigan State, Miami, Florida State and Kentucky. The Big Blue has already responded.

"I've had a bunch of letters sent to me from different schools," Caudill said. "I've had an offer from the University of Kentucky to play there when I graduate. But right now I am mostly looking around."

Caudill, who will play his senior year this coming fall, has dominated the weight-lifting circuit this spring.

"For his age group he owns all the state records in the bench press," said Coach Derossett.

Caudill had a 405 in bench

Caudill loves all the activities he is involved in.

"Ever since I have been with Coach Derossett when I came in as a freshman, that is all we have done is lift weights and try to get stronger," Caudill said.

Caudill holds the deadlift record at the prestigious Lexington Catholic Weight-Lifting meet. At Whitesburg this year, Caudill holds all the records there.

Although the young man has achieved so much in his life, he remains a person with his head on straight and knows what he wants in life.

"He has an unblemished GPA like a 4.0," said Derossett. "He has a good ACT score. UK has already offered him a scholarship, but I like to see him play at Tennessee if I have anything to do with it."

Caudill remains optimistic about the upcoming football season.

"Some people don't think we will be a good team this year, but we surprised some people last year," he said. "I think we will surprise some people again this year."

Caudill is expected to be back at fullback on the offensive side of the football and at either defensive end or defensive tackle on the other side.

"He is really a busy young man. I think at a young age like that, it is good for him to stay busy," said the Prestonsburg coach. "He even wrestled some this year. I think that helped him. His body fat count is down lower than it ever has been. He is carrying about 280 pounds, and I would say he did not have over five or 10 percent body fat."

"He loves what he is doing. He has been at it for four years, and I push him pretty hard. He and I have butted heads now and then, but I am real proud of him. I think all this is going to accumulate into a nice senior year for him and a big scholarship down the road."

press, a 650 in squat and a record 700-pounds in deadlift, as well as a 345 plain.

"But Jeremy is not just a weight lifter," said the Prestonsburg coach. "but he is real fast; like in track, he runs the 100-meter dash and runs real well."

McCoy's return to college ranks pleases community

Turning the men's basketball program around at Pikeville College seems to me in good hands with the hiring of Elkhorn City's Randy McCoy, according to coaches around the 15th Region.

McCoy was guest on the Sports Forum over Intermountain Cable, receiving calls of congratulations on his new position.

The Pike County Central basketball coach, David Rowe, was a recruit of McCoy's when he was first an assistant at Pikeville College. Magoffin County's Danny Adams called to wish Coach McCoy well.

McCoy has been on the phone trying to make up for lost time in recruiting. He said he plans to take in the Kentucky All-Stars tryouts and other points where he might land the needed recruits.

McCoy will be reunited with point guard B.J. Ratliff, who played for McCoy two seasons ago at Elkhorn City.

"I told him he was mine again," said McCoy, laughingly. "We are going to look at the kids in the 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th regions, those are the regions that serve Pikeville College."

McCoy said if recruiting trips were warranted in other parts of the country, then Pikeville College will be there recruiting.

McCoy coached 11 seasons at Elkhorn City, in the 60th District. He referred to Todd Conley as the best player he had ever coached, in high school or college.

"Todd was a special player," said the new Pikeville coach. "I had some great players but Todd would have to be considered the top one. He did so many things well."

McCoy said his goal was to bring pride back to the Pikeville program and he felt he had the support of the community.

"We want to put the fans and students back in Pikeville College gym," he said. "It is not going to happen overnight. It will take time but that is our goal."

Greathouse collects 3-hits in 11-3 victory

Slone fans 13 as Prestonsburg upends Allen Central Lady Rebs

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Shelly Greathouse swung a big bat and Brandy Slone threw some big pitches — and it all added up to an 11-3 conference win for the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats in softball action Tuesday night at the Garrett Park.

Slone was on target in striking out 13 batters, while walking five. She allowed but two hits, a third inning double by Shannon Sizemore and a fifth inning single by Jennifer Risner.

Prestonsburg pounded out 12 hits against Becky Bryant, who started on the mound for Allen Central. Greathouse had hits in the first and second inning and singled again in the fourth. Brooke Coleman had two safeties as did Margaret Damron and Kimi Nunnery.

Slone struck out the side in the first and second innings. She retired the Lady Rebels in order in the first before issuing back-to-back walks to Shanna Howell and Amber Scott to start the second.

Bryant worked out of a bases-loaded situation in the top of the first when the Lady Blackcats left the bases filled. Angie Howell walked and Greathouse singled to start the inning. She got Nunnery looking on strikes and walked Amelia Conley to fill the bases. Damron and Slone popped out to end the inning.

Prestonsburg took a 2-0 lead with two in the top of the second. Stacey Goble walked and Coleman followed with a single. With two out, Greathouse singled home both runners for the lead. Nunnery had a single in the inning.

"The college and Mr. Smith (Harold K. Smith) have been very supportive of me. I couldn't ask any more from them," said McCoy.

The new Bears coach said he is excited about returning to the school he graduated from and was an assistant for one year. He served as an assistant at Morehead State University for nine seasons.

I wish Coach McCoy the best, and I too think he will do an excellent job at Pikeville College.

Floyd County Babe Ruth President, Harold Case, informs us that the pre-season Beaver Creek Bambino League tournament will be held at Garrett as they dedicate the field (Garrett Park) in memory of Dave "Dugger" Conley. The tournament is scheduled for later this month.

While the park is known as the Right Beaver Community Park, the Little League facility will be dedicated in memory of Dugger.

Dave was a kind person who loved kids and did everything he could to see they had a place and equipment to play the game of baseball. He thought nothing of taking cash from his own pockets to make sure some kid had a shirt or a hat to wear when they played ball.

I hope that Dave's memory will linger on and on. We need to preserve some of the memories of those who have contributed so much to the youth athletics around our county.

When we look at individuals who have made such an important contribution, why wait until they are gone? Why not honor them while still in this life? Let them know we appreciate them and their contributions.

Luke Recker left the University of Indiana because of his "development as a player." Recker has not decided on a college but I think UK would be a wonderful place. Of course, he would have to sit out next year. But....

Coach Tubby Smith is on the recruiting trail and, according to reports, could land a big junior college player before the spring signing period ends this month.

I like Elton Brand. I think he handled himself very well in announcing he will opt for the NBA draft in June, becoming the first Duke player to leave school early since Coach K has been there. Brand was not arrogant like most players who turn pro early.

This should serve as a notice to Kentucky's Jamal Magloire that he needs to stay another year at UK. Brand, and some of the other "better" players will go ahead of him and right now he is a late second round pick.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone and be good sports! Take

Crush, Monkeys win while Cobras fall in soccer

The Orange Crush Crushes crushed the Pikeville YMCA soccer team 16-3 behind some spectacular play this past weekend. Coach Wayne Taylor's team got three goals from Casey Duncan, Brooks Herrick, Nick McGuire, and Brittany Collins in the rout. Chase Brown had two goals while Austin May and Josh Holbrook scored one each.

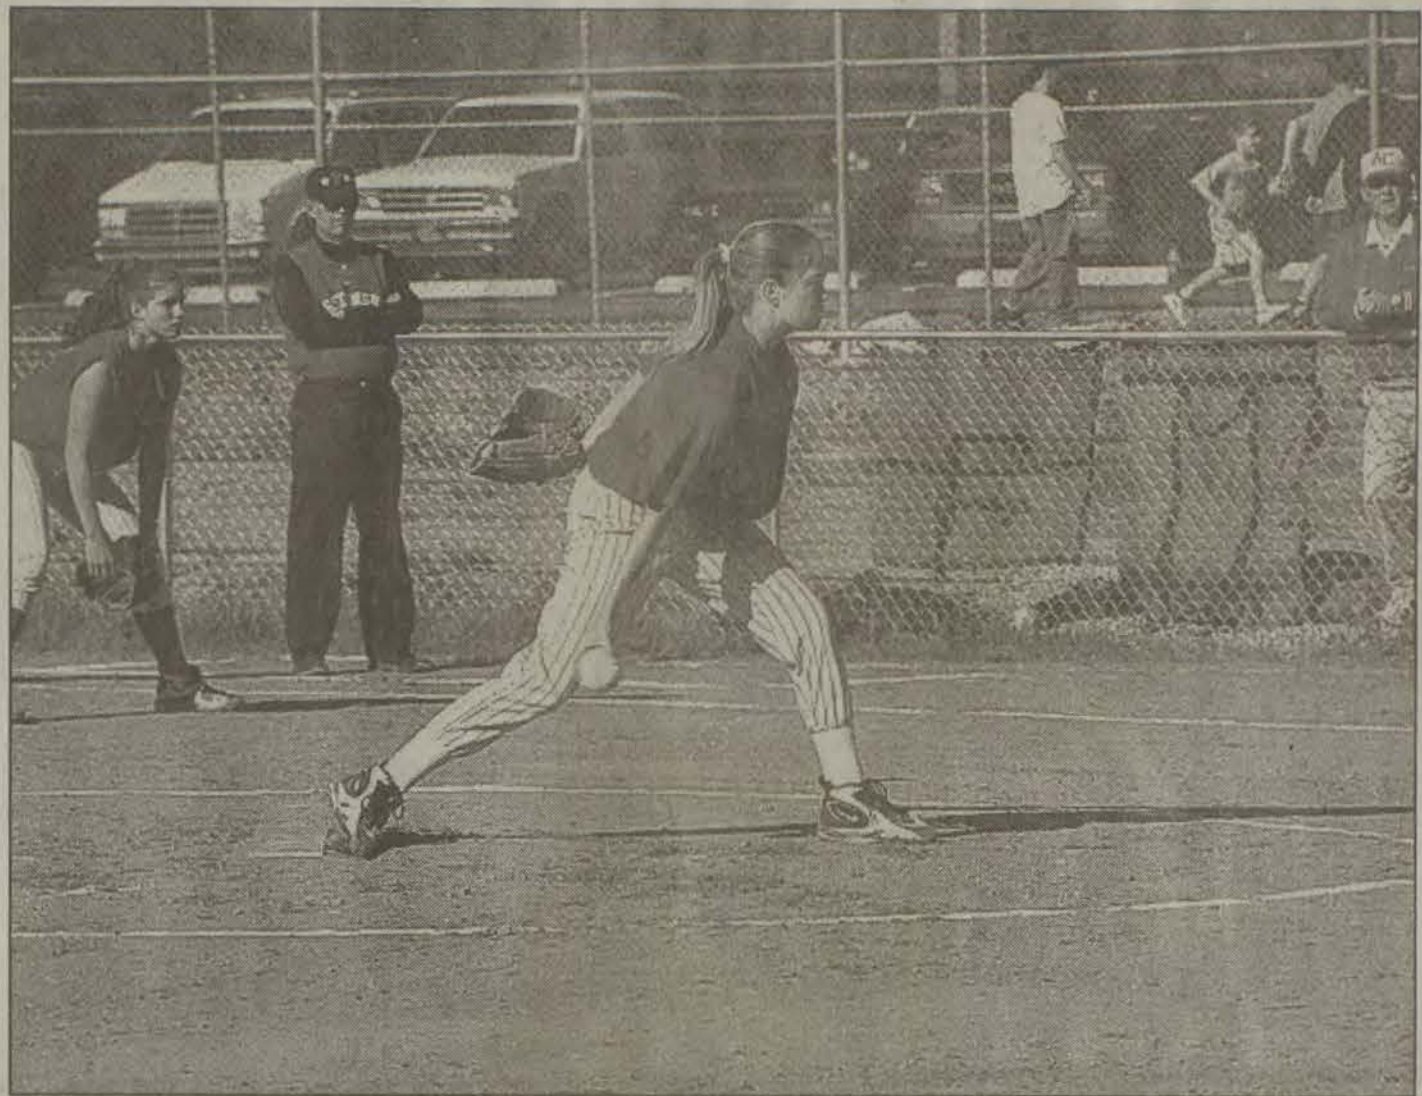

The Floyd County U-14 Holler Monkeys defeated the Pike County Romans 4-2. Midfielder Daniel Knight scored from a direct kick. Forward Heath Chaffins scored the second goal for the Monkeys in the first half.

In the second half, forward

Tyler Burke scored and Chaffins followed with his second goal of the game as he took an assist from his brother Nick Chaffins. Goal keeper Andrew Burchett was a standout in defending the Holler Monkey's goal.

The U-14 Cobras were not as fortunate as the other two Floyd County teams as they dropped a 2-1 decision to Johnson County. Matt Francis had the lone goal for the Cobras. The play was set up by Brandon Powers and Laura Barrett, mid-fielders. Defenders Jeremy Shepherd and Brian Lazar each stopped several offensive rushes by Johnson County.

Goalie Todd Volk also contributed to the game and made some important saves.

Prestonsburg sent 10 batters to the plate in the third when they scored five times to go in front 7-1. The inning unfolded with Damron doubling to left center and scoring on Slone's RBI double. Coleman's one-out single brought home Penelope Spradlin, a courtesy runner for Slone. Nunnery and Conley had run-scoring singles in the inning.

Sizemore got the first hit off Slone when she had a two-out double in the third.

Greathouse collected her third hit of the game, a two-run single, in the fourth inning when Prestonsburg scored three times.

Allen Central got a run in the fifth on a one-out singled by Prestonsburg's final tally came in the seventh inning on a lead-off walk to Megan Hyden, who later scored on a passed ball.

WINSTON CUP SERIES

Rusty Wallace took over 10th place on NASCAR's all-time victory list with his seventh victory at Bristol Motor Speedway. Wallace has won 49 times, beginning at Bristol on April 6, 1986. The victory broke a tie with one of the sport's early legends, Herb Thomas.

BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL

Greenville, S.C., native Jason Keller was spectacular in winning for the first time since 1995. Keller passed Dale Earnhardt Jr. with 18 laps to go in the Moore's Snacks 250. Salyersville man pleads guilty to federal charge

A Salyersville man entered a guilty plea recently to a federal charge of breaking and entering into a business holding a permit to sell firearms. He has been scheduled for official sentencing on July 5 by Federal Judge Joseph Hood.

Jeffrey Marshall's admission of guilt was part of a plea bargain agreement in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

Marshall, 24, and a juvenile, was charged with robbing Sportsman Unlimited in Salyersville in August 1998. The pair were nabbed after the vehicle they were driving had run into a ditch and the owner of the store they had robbed just minutes earlier came upon them while he was en route to his place of business to check out the burglar alarm that had been tripped in his store. The alarm had sounded in his home. — The Salyersville Independent

Dispute leads to one wounded, two arrested

A Magoffin County man was injured in a shooting April 5.

Roland Patrick, 36, was shot twice. His neighbor,

Darrell Wayne Howes, 26, was arrested and charged with first degree assault.

Patrick was driven to Highlands Regional Medical Center by another neighbor, Jeff Cole, who eventually was also arrested on charges that he was firing a 9mm pistol at Howes.

Sheriff Pat Montgomery said that apparently the shooting was the culmination of a feud that has been brewing between the Howes and Cole families for a period of time. — The Salyersville Independent

Woman arrested for passing bogus $100 bill

A Magoffin County woman was taken into custody at a local store recently and eventually arrested on charges stemming from attempting to pass a counterfeit $100 bill.

According to police records, Christi Risner, whose age wasn't available, was taken into custody and lodged in the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center on a charge of possession of a forged instrument.

Salyersville Patrolman Randall Patrick was summoned to the Dollar General Store on Parkway Drive after a 911 call was placed by one of the store's employees. — The Salyersville Independent

Infants' deaths still a mystery

The April 6 deaths of twin girls in Kermit is a mystery, according to Estella Mills, an aunt who was staying with the infants' mother in Kermit when the tragedy occurred.

The infants, two-month-old Johnnie Skey Fletcher and Emerald Jade Fletcher, were incorrectly identified as a boy and girl last week by the Mingo County Sheriff's Department.

Mrs. Mills said Carolina Fletcher, the twins' 19-year-old mother, discovered the girls were not breathing and had blood running from their noses shortly before midnight April 5.

The death of the twins caused many rumors of abuse or neglect, but Mrs. Mills said this is not true. — The Mountain Citizen

Audit questions checks

A question of not justifying certain checks written, as well as missing receipts, was the topic of discussion at Thursday's Inez Town Council meeting.

Although many of the "missing" funds could not be accounted for, they were explained.

Inez Mayor Rick Penix had asked for a detailed audit of the city's finances and a financial statement from the Inez Wastewater System.

Among items questioned by auditors was a counter check, written by former Inez Mayor Winnie Muncy. The check was written April 1998 for $482.34 and was cashed without the permission or knowledge of Inez City Clerk Sheila Hardin.

The auditor noted "several checks from the general fund did not have proper documentation to justify the amount of the check and the council did not approve several disbursements throughout the year... We found at least one counter check made payable to cash. Each check issued by the city should be accompanied by proper documentation," the audit said.

In an interview, Muncy said the counter check was for the purchase of Easter baskets and toys for the Easter egg hunt and the money was taken from the Easter egg fund. — The Mountain Citizen

Ethics amendment given final reading

Citing a state law and several attorney general opinions, magistrates approved the second and final reading of an amendment to Lawrence County's ethics code Monday that allows the judge-executive to hire whomever he wants for his office personnel.

For the past few months, the Lawrence County Fiscal Court and the Lawrence County Ethics Commission have been at odds over whether the county judge-executive should fall under the provisions of the code.

Members of the ethics board said they think the county judge should have to follow the code, which allows for one relative to be hired only if that relative is deemed most qualified by the ethics board.

County officials have argued that a state law provides an exemption for the judge. — The Big Sandy News

Body of missing man found in Big Sandy River Thursday

The body of a missing Prichard, West Virginia man was pulled from the Big Sandy River Thursday after a father and son spotted the body while fishing.

Sesco Watts, 75, had been missing for nearly two weeks when his body was pulled from some brush on the river bank about two miles from his home.

The last time he was seen was on March 29. Family members said Watts suffered from Alzheimer's Disease and was thought to have wandered off in the middle of the night. — The Big Sandy News

Agreement reached with Campton

Approved by the county water district board at its meeting last Thursday was an agreement with the City of Campton to purchase 750,000 gallons of water per month at a rate of $1.98 per thousand gallons to supply the KY 203 Water Line Project from Mize to the Wolfe County line.

During the meeting, West Liberty Mayor Robert Nickell expressed surprise that county officials have yet to respond to an April 2 letter which spelled out a willingness by the city to accept a lower rate than initially proposed for water the county has committed to buy from a proposed new city water plant at Cave Run Lake.

The letter, signed by Nickell, offered to split the difference between the city's original proposal of $2.50 per thousand gallons and the rate demanded by the county of $2.10 per thousand gallons. — The Licking Valley Courier

Severe school cuts made

In their regular meeting last Thursday, members of the Knott County Board of Education voted on spending cuts to balance the school system's budget for the 1999-2000 school year.

The cuts will affect the salaries of central office personnel, principals, guidance counselors and classified staff. All central office staff, except the superintendent, will have their employment days cut from 240 to 230; principals and assistance principals will have five fewer employment days; and guidance counselors will be cut from 40 to 30 days of employment.

Classified staff positions will be reduced by one-half hour per day.

The cuts include reducing the previously approved 21 teaching positions; reducing the extending employment for library/media specialist positions from 20 days to 0 and home economics positions from 20 days to 0.

Board chairman Charles Hall said the cuts will save the school system $1.2 million of the $1.6 million reduction necessary to balance the budget. A contingency fund of $400,000 will take care of the difference, according to Hall. — Troublesome Creek Times

Uncle Sol Celebration

A celebration is planned this spring to honor the 100th anniversary of an occurrence which shaped education in Knott County and the man who inspired it — Uncle Solomon Everage.

Hindman Settlement School and the Hindman Alumni Association will co-sponsor the day-long event on May 29 at the May Stone Building and on the grounds of the Settlement.

Uncle Solomon Everage was a mountain patriarch who lived near Cowtown. In 1899, he heard about Miss May Stone and Miss Katherine Petit, who were in Hazard, conducting a summer camp. Legend has it that he walked 22 miles, barefoot, to Hazard to see them, and asked them to come to the Forks of Troublesome to provide "larnin' for his grands and greats."

He is the reason they came to Knott County and, in many ways, he should be considered a co-founder of the Hindman Settlement School, Settlement Director Mike Mullins says.

The celebration will include the activities of the annual Hindman Alumni Association reunion and will be held in lieu of the group's annual banquet. The day's activities are open to everyone. — The Troublesome Creek Times

Union pickets while members face arraignment for Wal-Mart incident

About 50 members of the United Steelworkers Local 14581 gathered outside the Hall of Justice Monday to show their support for two fellow union comrades who were being arraigned in Pike District Court.

Less than two weeks ago Pike Circuit Judge Charles E. Lowe II issued a restraining order against union picketers so work could resume on the South Williamson Wal-Mart construction project.

The restraining order came about after Lowe determined acts of violence had taken place at the site during the first few days of the labor dispute between the union and the sub-contractor, Kay and Kay Contractors of London.

This week Pike District Judge Darrell Mullins conducted arraignment proceedings for two of the union's members who were accused of committing those acts of violence prior to the restraining order being issued. Ironically, Mullins also presided over an arraignment hearing for a company official who, as it turns out, is facing more serious charges for his role in the violence. — Appalachian News-Express

Pikeville man jailed for stealing hair clip from car

A drunk Pikeville man was jailed Sunday night after he broke into a car and stole a Winnie the Pooh hair clip, authorities said.

Steven D. Dye, 38, of Hill Crest Heights, was arrested by Pikeville Police Officer Paul Kimberlain on charges of third-degree criminal mischief, alcohol intoxication, possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia and theft by unlawful taking.

According to the arrest citation, when police responded to a complaint of criminal mischief in Goody's parking lot in Pikeville, the victim of the theft said someone had "busted out" her car window and stolen the clip.

Dye was located behind Lowes, which is near Goody's, the citation said. He reportedly had the hair bow, which had been described by the victim.

The citation said Dye had been drinking and had marijuana cigarettes and (rolling) papers with him. He allegedly scratched a second car. — Appalachian News-Express

Turkey Creek man jailed for standing nude on porch

A Turkey Creek man was jailed on an indecent exposure charge after police received a complaint that he was standing nude on his girlfriend's porch at Julius Avenue in Pikeville.

Proposal puts bite on nepotism

Saying he feels the ethics code currently in place for county officials is too lenient, County Judge-Executive Tucker Daniel presented the fiscal court with a new ordinance Monday night.

The new code appears tougher, with an outright ban on nepotism and gifts for county officials, and broadening the number of family members governed by the code's standard of conduct and financial disclosure.

The proposal also delves into one new area — protection from reprisals for people who file ethics complaints.

If adopted, the ethics code will apply to members of the fiscal court, as well as the offices of county attorney, county clerk, jailer, coroner, surveyor, constable and sheriff. — The Paintsville Herald

Turkey hunter is shot in case of mistaken identity

A hunter was accidentally shot Monday by a friend who mistook him for a turkey, authorities said.

Kentucky State Police would not release the name of the victim, who was listed in good condition following the incident, nor the person who accidentally shot him.

State police said the two men were turkey hunting in the Nippa area when the shooting occurred. The shooter, who reportedly was using a turkey caller, shot the victim in the face, police said. — The Paintsville Herald

State gives county a 'gift' of its own

When Governor Paul Patton came to Johnson County last fall bearing $3.7 million in "gifts," local officials lauded the funding allocation as "one of the most substantial" investments ever in tourism in Eastern Kentucky.

That was before current officials discovered that a big chunk of the windfall funding — $300,000 for the Mountain HomePlace — was no gift at all, but money that already belonged to Johnson County.

"This money wasn't given to Johnson County as the county's share of the budget surplus," Johnson County Judge-Executive Tucker Daniel said Tuesday. "They gave us our own money and told us what to spend it on." — The Paintsville Herald
