County sees 27 percent drop in teen births

Floyd County, following a trend found throughout Kentucky, is seeing a decline in teen birth rates. Historically, Kentucky has been above the national average in teen birth rates, but has declined significantly over the last several years, according to a report released by the Kentucky Cabinet for Health Services. From the period 1992-94 to the period 1996-98, Floyd County saw a 27.2-percent decrease in births. That translates into a reduction from 158 births in the earlier period to 114 in the 1996-98 reporting period. "Our most recent report, which compares three-year periods during the 1990s, indicates that we have seen a nearly 14-percent reduction in statewide birth rates for teens ages 15-17," said Dr. Steve Davis, director of the Cabinet's Division of Adult and Child Health. "We are as close as we have ever been to the national rate. In fact, Kentucky is one of the top 10 states in the country to show such a significant decline for this age group." The most dramatic decreases occurred in Eastern Kentucky, where there were reductions in the teen birth rate of approximately 30 percent in some areas. Neighboring counties showed similar declines to Hard work is what Arnold Brent Turner attributes to his victory in the race for commonwealth's attorney. Turner won the election with 68 percent of the vote, dominating almost every precinct by a better than 2-to-1 margin. Turner received 7,141 votes to Patton's 3,397. Reached at a victory celebration at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park Tuesday night, the new prosecutor said his campaign had received a positive response and positive feedback from almost everywhere. Turner said that he expected to have a strong win "but you just never know," he said. With the landslide victory, Turner will be busy preparing for his new job. "As you know, it is going to be a full-time position so my immediate plans right now are to give some attention back to my private practice," he said. "to begin work to conclude some cases there and hopefully close that out by the end of the year, which would be necessary to go full time." Turner will also continue his role as assistant commonwealth's attorney. "I hope to be back in court on a regular basis and handling the grand jury again," Turner said.

Coach comes from behind to win state Senate job

by RANDELL RENO
STAFF WRITER

As expected, Floyd County decided the outcome of the 29th District state Senate race, putting a 20-year incumbent out of office and giving the job to a political newcomer. Johnson Central basketball coach and Drift resident Johnny Ray Turner unseated incumbent Sen. Benny Ray Bailey by sweeping Floyd County by 1,776 votes. The Floyd County vote allowed Turner to overcome marginal victories in Knott and Breathitt County by Bailey and a narrower-than-expected win for Turner in Johnson County. Although the number of Floyd County voters is slightly fewer than the number of voters in the other three counties combined, a higher turnout in Floyd County sent Floyd County voters for the most part followed the rest of the state when casting ballots for president and congressman. Local voters gave Democratic Vice President Al Gore and Republican Texas Gov.

George W. Bush decisive margins of victory, reflecting similar margins across the state. Although the two candidates have already secured their parties' nominations for the job, each was listed with other candidates who met ballot access requirements earlier in the year.

In addition to losing his race for commonwealth's attorney Tuesday night, Prestonsburg attorney Jerry Patton received more bad news the day before when the chairman of the local school board filed a $110,000 defamation suit against him. "They have defamed the reputation of the plaintiff" states a civil suit filed Monday in Floyd Circuit Court against defendant Jerry Patton. Terry L. Dotson claims that, through statements and innuendoes used in an ad campaign run in conjunction with Patton's

Meningitis scare strikes schools again

by WILLIE ELLIOTT
STAFF WRITER

For the third time in the last two years, parents in the Betsy Layne area are going through a meningitis scare. Betsy Layne Elementary began sending students home after receiving confirmation that a first-grader there had contracted an early stage of the disease. That student was sent to Pikeville Methodist Hospital, where he was said to be doing well. On Monday, principal Karen Allen and school nurse Debra Hayes, sent a letter to parents home with students. The letter reads as follows:

"Dear Parents,
"There has been a reported case of Neisseria Meningitis in Rebecca Watts' primary classroom.
"The Floyd County Health Department, Betsy Layne Branch, will provide service for any student that has been in close contact with this student in the last 14 days. A list of students is being compiled for notification.
"Any child in Rebecca Watts', Sherry Tackett's, Katrina Davis' or Sandra Travis's room should seek treatment immediately.
"Please contact the school, health department or family physician for further information."

Also on Monday, Dr. Paul Fanning, superintendent of Floyd County Schools released an announcement about the situation: "Due to the determination of an infectious illness by the Floyd County Health Department that has affected a Betsy Layne Elementary School student, the school will be closed from Tuesday, May 23, through Monday, May 29. The school will reopen on May 30."
According to Carol Holbrook with the Floyd County Health Department, the student had a positive culture of neisseria meningi-

Prosecutor

Turner said that his current boss, retiring Commonwealth's Attorney John Earl Hunt, has helped him train for his new position. "The biggest thing," Turner said of his training, "is probably to just do it. You get in there and you have to handle different duties. He has always been good about letting me do things that not everybody else got to do, while I was there as far as handling grand jury and handling court on a regular basis."

Turner gave Hunt credit for the hands-on experience he has gained in the office.

"He's always been good to give me guidance where I needed it and show me the right way to do things," Turner said. "But he's always been smart enough to sometimes let you go and figure it out on your own. He's not a heavy-handed type person when it comes to training his prosecutors. Obviously I have learned a lot from him."

Both Hunt and Turner have a meticulous personality as far as keeping their cases to a point of near perfectionism.

"That's one thing that anybody that works with John Earl will tell you," Turner said. "There is probably not a better lawyer or better person anywhere when it comes to administrating records and organizing everything and keeping it in the shape it needs to be in."

The work involved outside the courtroom is the most demanding.

"That's one thing a lot of people don't see, you see what goes on sometimes in the paper every now and then but the behind-the-scenes stuff and things that had to be done to clean up those files, the backlog of files that was left when John Earl went in, to get it in the shape that he's got it in today is nothing short of a miracle," Turner said.

"He's done a tremendous job not only as a prosecutor but as an administrator in that office. He's always quick to tell me that's not his office, that's the people's office. He's really done more than most people will ever know to get it back into the shape it needs to be in. Certainly in a good position for me to come in and take over."

Turner said he has not yet thought about assistants because of unknown factors in the funding for the office.

"We'll start looking that over in the next few months," Turner said.

Turner attributed his win to the public's desire for a fresh face in the office.

"We were able to communicate to people this was going to be a different office," he said. "This vote total confirms the sentiment that I've seen when I've gone out in the county. There is no better way to find out what people are thinking than to get out and drive up a hollow and sit and talk to some people. And overwhelmingly what I saw was that they wanted something new."

Turner said it is time that the people of his generation asserted themselves to become leaders of the county because the people are ready for a fresh approach.

"You hear a lot of talk about new blood and fresh faces, those kinds of things," said Turner about his youth as a factor. "Most people thought it was a great thing."

Turner went further by saying, "It is time for people my age to stand up and be counted and to seek elected offices and to get into government because I think there are a lot of things we can do that are different. I hope that the outcome of this election will encourage other people of my generation to become more politically active and involved."

In the Democratic primary, Gore received 6,391 votes, overshadowing New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley's 1,230 and Lyndon LaRouche Jr.'s 141. In addition, there were 16 uncommitted votes cast.

On the Republican side of the ballot, Bush received nearly 10 times as many votes as his nearest rival, Arizona Sen. John McCain, 250-27. Others receiving votes included Alan Keyes with 17, Kentucky native Gary Bauer with 10, Steve Forbes with 7 and uncommitted with 6.

Statewide, results ran pretty much the same, with the only difference being uncommitted votes outnumbered votes cast for LaRouche and Forbes.

With 99 percent of the vote counted, Gore led the way with 154,925 votes, representing 71.8 percent of the total. Bradley received 32,031, uncommitted gathered 23,903 and LaRouche finished far behind with 4,878.

Bush garnered a commanding 82.2 percent tally in a five-man race with 74,347 votes. McCain received the next best with 5,721, Keyes racked up 5,103, Bauer totaled 2,371, 1,697 uncommitted votes were cast and Forbes brought up the rear with 1,181 votes.

In the Democratic primary for 5th District U.S. House of Representatives, second-time candidate Sidney Jane Bailey of Langley had an easy time both locally and districtwide in putting away Michael Vincent Vacca Jr. of Shelbiana.

Bailey, a long-shot candidate who has said she is running primarily to call attention to the need for a children's hospital in Eastern Kentucky, outpolled Vacca by a 2-to-1 margin districtwide, 20,716-10,586, with all but one of the district's 671 precincts reporting.

In Floyd County, the results were about the same with Bailey picking up 4,501 votes to Vacca's 2,334.

Voter turnout was light across the state, although Democrats did show up at the polls in greater numbers in Floyd County.

Statewide, 14.2 percent of Democrats voted, while 11 percent of Republicans did the same.

In Floyd County, two local races drove up Democratic participation to 38.26 percent, while only 12.5 percent of Republicans went to the polls.

people to the polls than voted in all of Johnson, Knott and Breathitt counties.

Bailey edged out Turner in Knott and Breathitt counties, winning by 178 votes in Knott County and 266 votes in Breathitt. Combined with a 135-vote win for Turner in Johnson County, Bailey came into Floyd County with a 309-vote lead.

But Turner turned it around with a decisive win in Floyd, polling 6,123 votes to Bailey's 4,347.

Districtwide, Turner received 10,565 votes to Bailey's 9,098.

Turner's win sent shockwaves through the state as Bailey, the self-described mastermind behind the ouster of former Senate President John "Eck" Rose, was himself ousted.

Turner has been a teacher and basketball coach in Floyd, Magoffin and now Johnson counties. Turner said his experience from those jobs has given him good qualifications to be in the office.

In a recent interview with Times Sports Editor Ed Taylor, Turner said, "I may not be the smartest person out there but I feel like I have a lot of common sense. I have always worked hard and I am going to work hard for the people."

He hopes to pay particular attention to jobs, education, city water and sewage while in the office.

"I think there's a lot of comparisons between the two arenas," Turner said of the sports and political realms. "When I went into basketball, of course, I played basketball all my life, but I wasn't a coach at that time. It was a learning process. Because I wasn't schooled in it, it made me work harder to advance to the level of competition we go to at this time. In this political arena, I have been out there on the trail for four months now. When it comes time for me to take office, if I win the election, I will have learned enough about it so I can take the ball and go with it."

MAC in the black in March, April

STAFF WRITER

The Mountain Arts Center is "turning the cash flow around" said Director Kevin Shannon Monday evening in reporting to the Prestonsburg City Council. Shannon and Councilman Estill Carter told the council a lot of hard work has been done at the MAC in the past few months to turn things around.

Shannon told the council that while the months of January and February saw the MAC working in the red, March and April were operated in the black.

Carter said many things are going on at the MAC besides making money. Most people are not aware of the many things that are going on at the MAC, Carter said. A recent show drew 12,000 students to the MAC through several performances, he said. A recent performance was also given by Dance Etc.

Television stations and newspapers from Louisville and Lexington recently covered what Carter considered a historic event for the MAC — a session of the state Supreme Court.

"We are not just hillbillies here the mountains," Councilman Hansel Cooley added after seeing the show by Dance Etc. "It (the MAC) isn't a place where someone is making money. It is a place where we are building the east Kentucky of tomorrow, today."

Those who have worked as volunteers there have been a source of much needed help. The MAC is in need of more volunteers to help with the shows.

"We really need and appreciate any volunteers over there," said Carter.

In other issues before the council:

■ An additional $32,000 will be paid by the city of Prestonsburg for increased insurance premiums in the coming fiscal year. Some of the city's workers have the benefit of health insurance provided for them.

The city pays $609.66 a month for workers on the family plan, $400 for an employee and spouse, and $159.52 for single coverage. The council approved the contract for the following year, cementing continuing coverage for the employees.

■ A first reading of the city budget was given for the coming fiscal year. Expected revenues for the coming year are projected at $15,253,144 with the city utilities, the Mountain Arts Center and licenses and permits heading up the major incomes.

The dominant expenditures for the coming year are the golf course at $7 million and the MAC at $1,107,937.

New guidelines issued for WIC

FRANKFORT — New income guidelines have been established for the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC).

The guidelines, which take effect April 1 each year, are used to determine income eligibility for the WIC program.

WIC provides supplemental foods, health care referrals and nutrition education at no cost to low-income pregnant women and new mothers, infants and children up to five years of age who are found to be at nutritional risk.

A family with income under 185 percent of the federal poverty level is eligible.

WIC serves about 113,000 clients a month in Kentucky. The infant food package averages $96 a month and the woman and child food package averages $34 a month.

Under the new guidelines, a family of two people with income of $20,813 a year (or $1,735 a month) or less is eligible for WIC. People who receive Medicaid or food stamp benefits are automatically eligible for WIC.

WIC foods include iron-fortified infant formula and cereal, iron-fortified adult cereal, vitamin C rich fruit juice, eggs, milk, cheese and peanut butter or dried beans and peas. The WIC foods provide five target nutrients — protein, calcium, iron and vitamins A and C.

Pregnant, breastfeeding or postpartum women, infants and children are eligible for WIC. They must meet income guidelines, a state residency requirement and be determined to be at nutritional risk by a health professional.

Every dollar spent on pregnant women in WIC produces $1.92 to $4.21 in Medicaid savings for newborns and their mothers.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture funds WIC. In Kentucky, the WIC Program is administered by the Department for Public Health, Division of Adult and Child Health, Nutrition Services Branch. The program is operated by county health departments in all 120 counties and by two independent health agencies.

Contact the local health department for more information about the program.

Call-in program on skin cancer set for KET

The sun shines down, and people can't resist soaking up its bright, warm rays. But is it safe?

Skin cancer, which is most often linked to exposure to the sun, attacks one in seven Americans each year. Furthermore, two of the three forms of skin cancer have the potential to be deadly.

"Partners in Hope: Preventing Skin Cancer," airing live Tuesday,

May 30, at 8 p.m. on KET, looks at ways people can protect themselves from the dreaded disease and provides a forum for viewers' questions.

Hosted by Carla Craycraft, director of agricultural communication services at the University of Kentucky, Partners in Hope provides a toll-free phone number for viewers to call in with their questions.

A panel of specialists as well as a phone bank manned by knowledgeable staff will offer viewers the chance to voice their questions and get answers and advice. The program also features inspiring stories from skin cancer survivors.

"Partners in Hope: Preventing Skin Cancer," is a KET production, produced by Duncan Hart.

candidacy, the board chairman was defamed and thereby "subjected to hatred, ridicule, contempt, shame and disgrace."

Dotson claims radio, television and newspaper advertisements run by the Patton campaign contained false and malicious statements concerning him.

At issue in the dispute are statements in Patton's ads which Dotson says associate him with corruption.

"Terry Dotson faces a money judgment..." and Terry Dotson's "cronies in Frankfort, who appointed him, took control of the school district and then failed to defend the Board in court" are two of the statements Dotson says unfairly characterize him.

Dotson further contends that Patton insinuates Dotson was connected to or associated with Randy Kimbrough, a former associate commissioner of Kentucky Department of Education who pleaded guilty to embezzling hundreds of thousands of dollars.

A statement used in the ad says Kimbrough "is now under indictment for stealing over one-half million dollars of our school children's money."

Dotson claims that in that statement Patton intended that any reasonable person viewing, hearing, or reading the ad would draw the conclusion that Dotson was connected to Kimbrough.

The suit says Patton's ads were placed with malice against the board chairman and out of a sense of "hatred, spite or ill will" against Dotson.

Dotson is asking for $10,000 in compensatory damages and $100,000 in punitive damages.

Repeated attempts to obtain a reaction from Patton were unsuccessful.

A lawsuit only represents one side of a dispute.

Pro and con: Genetic food labeling

Pro: FDA taking right approach

Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Jane Henney was unequivocal: "Scientific review continues to show that all bioengineered foods sold here in the United States are as safe as their non-bioengineered counterparts."

She said the FDA will not mandate labels on all biotech foods as Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., and others have urged the Clinton administration to do.

But the FDA does recognize the need to reassure the American public that genetically improved crops and foods are safe. The need for consumer reassurances is especially acute because of the alarmist warnings by biotech foes that genetically-modified foods are harmful to human health.

Henney announced that the FDA will tighten its review of biotech crops and foods, requiring biotech companies to notify the regulatory agency at least four months in advance of releasing new bioengineered crops and food ingredients. Biotech companies also will be required to provide the FDA with their research data. In addition, the FDA will set standards for food processors who want to label products voluntarily made with or without the use of bioengineered ingredients.

The FDA's new review process is a balanced approach to regulating biotech crops and food. It should do much to build public confidence in the safety of these products.

—Copley News Service

Con: Consumers have right to know

Honesty is the best policy. That's the maxim parents have taught their children for time immemorial.

It's also a policy the FDA should become more familiar with.

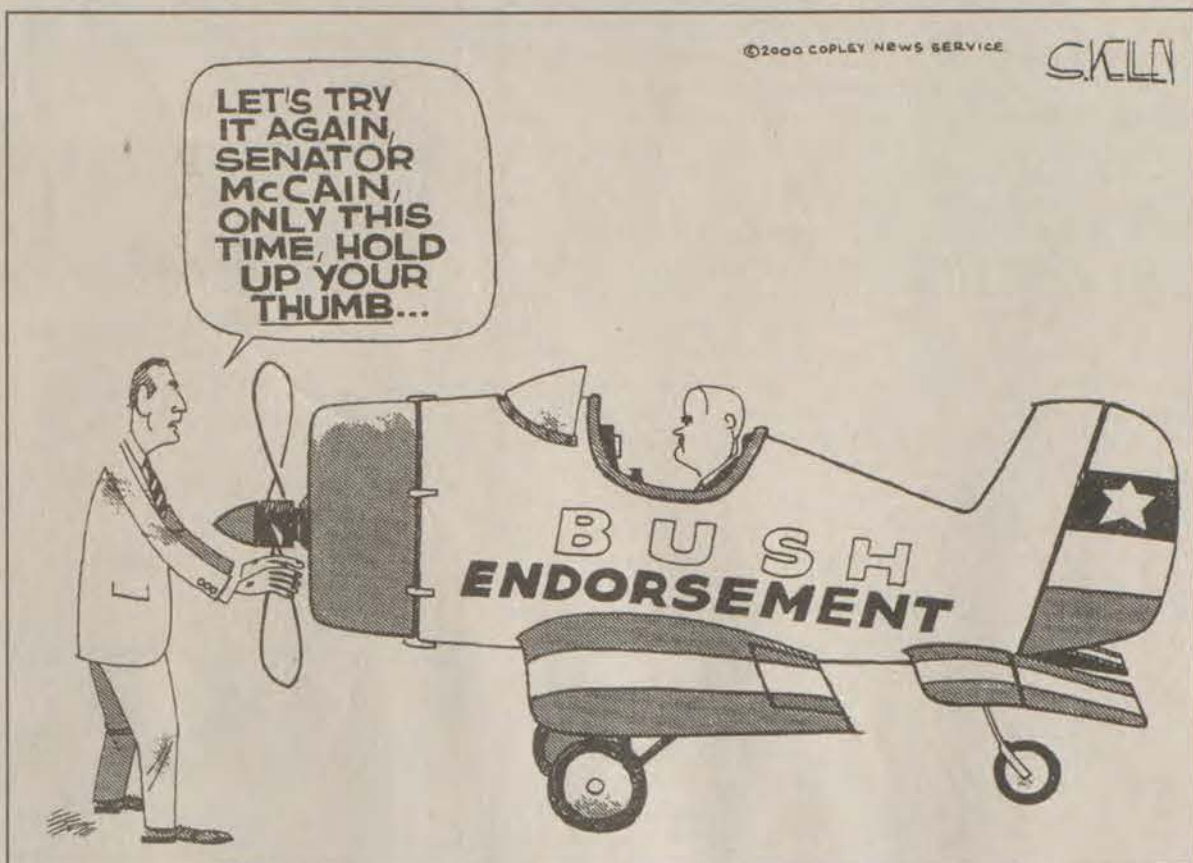

In recent years, the FDA has steered a bit wide of its mission to protect the public from dangerous foods and drugs, to now taking upon itself the role of determining what information the public has a right to know.

As a result, we're allowed to know the fat content of the milk we buy from the grocery, but not whether that same milk was produced by cattle injected with bovine growth hormone. The meat we buy comes with safe handling instructions, but not labels which would tell us whether it is also full of antibiotics.

Now the FDA has determined the public shall remain blissfully ignorant of whether or not the foods we buy have been genetically altered. That is wrong, particularly when some among us demand that very information.

The FDA contends such labeling would harm growers employing bio-engineering techniques. Such a claim, however,

Choir commended

Editor:

The students in the Prestonsburg High School Honor Choir and the Select Girls Chorus are to be commended for continuing their tradition of excellence that began 20 years ago with the founding of the first Honor Choir by its director, Elizabeth Lynn Frazier.

The Spring Concert at the Mountain Arts Center, on May 13, was a wonderful tribute to her memory. The students, with the help of several Choir alumni and teachers from PHS, worked extremely hard to ensure a first class concert. We greatly appreciate their efforts.

Teachers express gratitude

Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank Charlie Collins (from the Martin area) for making our trip to Frankfort a safe one. We encountered terrible rain as well as a flat tire, both of which he handled like a pro. He also was very courteous and polite, helping at every opportunity.

Knowing that our children are in such safe hands certainly makes our trips less stressful.

Thanks again, Charlie.

Pays tribute to DAV

Editor:

I have spent the biggest part of my life trying to understand my older brother, Jackie Lewis Estep, how he lived and why. Recently, we laid him to rest beside our mother and father.

Now, this is not just about my brother, but for all the brothers, fathers and children who went to war and came back someone different. The only people who can know these boys are the one who have been through the same things.

When we needed them to defend our homeland and to keep our land free from war, they went. When they came back, we told them to snap out of it. Just try a little harder, you can forget.

We forgot, it seems like. Anyway, what I would like to say is thank you to everyone who gave us our freedom and allowed us to bring our children up in a free society.

When one of their own passes away, so many still are answering our needs. These boys are the Disabled American Veterans. They are a non-profit organization. They all try to come out, even still when called upon.

I spoke with some of these boys before the funeral service, to thank them for coming out. The day was very cold and rainy. I suppose some of them had jobs to do or lots of other things they would rather be doing.

Again, they were called, and so they came.

I hope when their time comes, someone will be there for them. They are the Monroe Vanderpool Memorial Chapter 128, DAV, 70 Cemetery Rd., Martin, Kentucky.

They include Cecil Hicks, 77, World War II; Jason Moore, Vietnam; Alexander Kidd, 82, World War II; Claude Mullins, 60, Vietnam; Carlton Mullins, 60, Korea, Vietnam; Marcillous Stacy, 64, Korea; Richard Moore, 60, Vietnam; Bill Hall, 56, Vietnam; Corbett Taylor, 74, World War II; Edward Martin, 69, Korea; Ted Burke, 50, Vietnam.

Thank you, also, to everyone who came by, sat with us and helped us in any way. We always miss home more when we have to leave, but it is with a full heart that I say I am so proud of my childhood and my family and our hometown.

Please remember our veterans.

May their sacrifices never be in vain

by Bishop David R. Brown
Chaplain, American Legion

More than one million men and women have lost their lives fighting for freedom in the U.S. armed forces. We can never reimburse the price they paid. We can summon no words to allay the pain of their loved ones. We can, and we should, honor America's war dead on Memorial Day.

We, as beneficiaries of America's departed heroes, should make three pledges on Memorial Day to ensure that the supreme sacrifice of our nation's war dead never will be in vain.

The first pledge we should make is to fly the U.S.

flag and to participate in our community's commemorative events. America's patriots shed their blood in defense of our nation's core values of freedom, justice and equality, as well as the U.S. flag that symbolizes our values.

Memorial Day should unify all Americans in solemn tribute to those who did not come marching home, and to consecrate the principles for which they fought.

The second pledge we should make is to teach our children and grandchildren that the freedoms they may take for granted were purchased by incredible

Who Wants to be a Millionaire, Redneck Style

In order to make the game available to all, Regis and I have concocted a game for the rednecks of this world. Now before you get your shorts in a wad, know that Regis and I did these questions with tongue in cheek — well, Regis had his tongue in his cheek, but mine was flapping like a jackhammer on concrete.

Let's play the game. Put these events in correct order starting with the earliest to the most recent: A. The creation of the world B. The Ice Age C. The 2000 state basketball tournament D. Today

We have a winner for the hot seat. Little Bertha (not to be confused with Big Bertha) had the correct answer in the fewest tries — 22. Bertha, here is your question for $100 or a pink flamingo for your front yard:

Jenny Wiley State Resort Park was named after A. Loretta Lynn, B. Billy Ray Cyrus, C. Fats Domino, D. Jenny Wiley. Bertha says Jenny Wiley and selects the pink flamingo. Bertha do you want to double your earning?

"No I want to go for $200 or two flamingos." She is going for it folks. Here is your question. Who is the superintendent of the Floyd County Schools. A. Fidel Castro B. Col. Sanders C. Paul Fanning D. Randy Kimbrough. Bertha is not sure of this question but thinks it is either Fidel Castro or Paul Fanning. Who do you want to call Bertha?

"I want to call Big Bubba."

What is his last name?
"Bubba."

OK, Woodsticks Lines, get Bubba on the phone. Bubba, what is the answer to this question? Who is superintendent of Floyd County schools?

"Sergeant Carter."
No, Bubba, Sgt. Carter is not one of the answers. You have to choose from Fidel Castro, Col. Sanders, Paul Fanning or Randy Kimbrough.

"Well, it is one of those military types so I would say Col. Sanders."

What do you say Bertha?

"Bubba never knows what he is talking about so I will guess C, Paul Fanning because I like the sound of that name."

Is that your final answer, Bertha?

"Look, Buster I told you I wanted C so get on with it."

You have just won $200 . . .

"Yeah, yeah, I know or two flamingos. Show me the money this time."

Bertha we have to take a break and let our greedy sponsors try to sell their wares in the unlikely event of your winning something on our show.

sacrifice. When we lead by example, by bringing our children and grandchildren with us to Memorial Day public observations, we teach the leaders of tomorrow that freedom is not free.

The third pledge is to participate in our democracy in order to get patriots-present the best opportunity to triumph against evil. Today's troops form the light of hope that pierces the darkness of tyranny, but that light is growing dim due to inadequate military spending and foolhardy defense policy.

Safeguarding the bounty of one million war dead is a military that is smarting from a 300 percent increase in deployments and a one-third decrease in active-duty strength since 1987. This is a military receiving fewer tax dollars, as a percentage of gross domestic product, than the military that suffered the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941.

We must act as if Memorial Day 2000 is December 6, 1941: as if "We the People" have an opportunity to deter aggression, save lives, and give our men and women in uniform a fighting chance. We must demand that our congressional representatives and our president reverse the declining readiness of the armed forces.

Our telephone calls, e-mails, faxes and letters to Congress and to the White House can reverse the neglect that erodes our military, threatens national security, and endangers the values for which Americans gave their lives.

These contemporary pledges flow from the earliest traditions of Memorial Day. Southern women in the spring of 1865 planted flowers on the graves of Confederate war dead. Gen. John Logan, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, an organization of Union veterans, ordered his group to decorate the graves of Union troops on a uniform date in 1868.

These and other commemorations would give rise to the first national Memorial Day observance on May 30, 1868, at Arlington National Cemetery. Gen. James Garfield, keynote speaker for the observance, said those who lost their lives fighting for freedom, engaged in the ultimate expression of humanity's "highest virtues." The general was right.

More than one million men and women, preponderantly of modest means and infinite courage, sacrificed all of their tomorrows while fighting for America's unifying "virtues." Surely we can honor their sacrifice, transmit the values for which they fought, and preserve the "common defense" that is liberty's backbone. By our vigilance, the sacrifices of America's departed heroes shall never be in vain.

SEALED AND DELIVERED

Many wood projects benefit from the use of sealer. When applied before staining, sealer primes the wood, ensuring that the stain will be absorbed uniformly. Sealing after staining and filling, but before final finishing decreases the number of finish coats required. The sealer penetrates the wood and keeps the subsequent finish coats on top of the wood. Sealing the end grain prevents over-absorption of the stain, which leads to darker coloration than elsewhere on the piece. With oily woods, sealer prevents resins from bleeding through the finish. Otherwise, these oils can contaminate the finish and prevent it from drying. Thinned shellac is a good all-purpose sealer. Use orange shellac for dark woods and white shellac for light woods.

Wood finishing can sometimes be very confusing. Come on into our store where you will find our staff very helpful and always anxious to answer your questions. Do-it-yourselfers know that here at HINDMAN PROMART they can depend on finding all the tools and other supplies they need to properly complete just about any project. We're nearby at #1 Pro St., Hindman (785-3151). Most major credit cards accepted. Among the many lines we carry are the outstanding finishes by Sikks.

HINT: Without sealer, softwoods tend to absorb stain unevenly.

able at finer redneck stores across the country (but not the city)." Bertha, the questions get harder as we go up. Are you ready? "Does a bear . . ."

For the FDA to outright refuse to mandate such disclosure only gives the public more reason to be skeptical and gives the wide-eyed conspiracy theorists among us more ammunition.

It also calls into question whether the FDA's mission is to protect the safety of Americans, or to protect the profit margins of biotech corporations.

Blood drive this week

This Memorial Day weekend nearly 600 pints of blood will be needed by patients in central and eastern Kentucky.

To prepare, the Central Kentucky Blood Center is sponsoring the Great American Blood Drive through Friday at the Prestonsburg Donor Center on North Lake Drive.

"This drive is a wonderful time to remember those who gave of themselves to make America a great place to live," said Dawn Wheeler, CKBC donor resources consultant.

"Those individuals believed in the spirit of volunteerism, which is the same spirit of giving found in volunteer blood donors."

Donors will have the chance to win a picnic gift basket, and all donors will receive a gift.

Blood drive hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, call Wheeler at 886-1557.

Board discusses personnel during marathon meeting

by WILLIE ELLIOTT
STAFF WRITER

With a larger than usual number of people speaking during the public comment session, recognition of several students and a large agenda, Monday's night Floyd County Board of Education meeting adjourned as the clock was nearing midnight.

In addition, an executive session which presumably was to deal with abolishing positions, establishing positions and reviewing an organizational chart ended with no announcement about the outcome.

Jody Mullins did ask why classified employees had not received their letters assuring them about next year's employment. Board attorney Mike Schmitt said those letters were no longer necessary, adding that if employees had not been informed about dismissal by April 30, they would be hired for next year.

McDowell principal Jerri Turner came to the meeting with a plan to help with the special education situation at her school but opted to go with the one members of the central office had worked out.

That plan calls for having a consultant at the school and moving some of the students closer to their homes. Broad Chairman Terry Dotson said he has visited the school and found an instance where one child is being transported 35 miles one way to get to his class.

When board members looked at the financial report, Carol Stumbo again insisted that the method of reporting school accounts be consistent. She said Allen Central High School and Betsy Layne High School used different codes for like expenditures.

Superintendent Paul Fanning said a plan would be drawn up that would ensure more consistent reporting of school accounts.

Stumbo also questioned the practice of paying the Kentucky Educational Development Cooperative (KEDC) and then not taking advantage of its services. The question arose when another item on the agenda asked for approval of maintenance and custodial supply bids without going through KEDC for next school year. Fanning is to bring more information on the KEDC issue to the next board meeting. The bids for maintenance and custodial supplies were approved.

The board approved 10 end-of-the-year trips for middle school students. Even though the Allen Elementary trip to King's Island required waiver of board policy that states that students may not take trips during the last instructional days of the year, the trip is for a Saturday and will not affect attendance or transportation. Adams Middle School requested similar permission to visit Paramount Kings Island on June 3. Trips added to the agenda included trips or programs for the DARE Program, May Valley Junior Beta Club trip to Kings Island, KIDS Project for Allen Central Middle School and McDowell Elementary, and field trips for Betsy Layne High School and South Floyd High School.

State manager Woodrow Carter said end-of-the-year trips are getting out of hand, saying one week there were 96 trips. He said the policy on trips would need to be studied closely next year. He said the trips put a hardship on the transportation system and added, "Students and teachers should be getting ready for final exams at this time."

Duff Elementary asked for waiver of the policy to participate in an academic meet (multiplication contest) at McDowell Elementary.

The June 1 trip to the Dewey Lake spillway by South Floyd Middle School seventh graders required a waiver as the trip will be on a school day. The trip is supposed to tie in with topics and concepts studied during the school year.

At Johnnie Ross' request, the board delayed the dissolution of the Floyd County Administration Association until board attorney Mike Schmitt had time to look at the issue. The organization is down to four members and has accounts of $3,865.57 plus any money that may be held by the Floyd County superintendent. The four members, Pete Grigsby Jr., Susan Compton, David Turner (retired) and Dan Collins have agreed to disburse the remaining funds into four equal scholarships, with one going to each high school.

Several people came before the board, with a large percentage commending the board for the improvements that have been made in the last year.

Sidney Jane Bailey of Langley, who was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for 5th District congressman in yesterday's primary election, had praise for the local board but said the Kentucky Department of Education was not being very helpful.

When Bailey started a tirade against former associate commission Randy Kimbrough, board chairman Terry Dotson said, "Let's not go there." He also said the whole state department should not be condemned because one person made a mistake.

Bailey made several suggestions she said would help Floyd County students, especially special needs students. Dotson asked her to put those suggestions in writing and present them to the board and they would go through the process of all other actions.

John M. Stumbo Elementary continues to push for improvements at their school as a student, principal and two parents spoke to the board about the conditions. All three noted the improvements that have already been made.

Donna Collins, from the Floyd County Educators Association, requested that the board discontinue the Young Authors Program. Board members told her the program was not mandated and it would be wrong to drop a program if some schools wanted to continue. Stumbo challenged Collins to convince FCEA members the merits of the program. FCEA members voted 88 to 74 in favor of discontinuing the program.

Dick Murphy, sales representative with IBM, showed the board a software package called Learning Village. He showed the board how a teacher could go the site and find lesson plans on all subjects that would be aligned with Kentucky and national standards. At the end of the presentation, the board voted to purchase the software.

In other action, the board approved:

- The summer feeding program, a program designed by the federal government to feed children who may otherwise go hungry when school is not in session.

- The disposal of various items including computer equipment, classroom supplies and buses as surplus items by utilizing an auction.

- The renovation of the swimming pool at Allen Central High School to be used for a practice floor, general purpose area and other uses.

- The board elected Gwen Hammonds as treasurer for the remainder of the current school year and 2000-2001 and approved to amend the treasurer's bond for the remainder of this school year.

- A shortened day for a Betsy Layne High School student as outlined in the student's Individual Education Program.

- The Meade property at Hi Hat to be used by local fire departments for firefighting practice.

- The sale of surplus properties via an auction.

- The summer youth work program.

- Graduation dates for the four high schools and the alternative school. The times and dates are 7 p.m., June 8, for Allen Central High School and Opportunities Unlimited; 7 p.m., June 9, for Prestonsburg High School and South Floyd High School; and 7:30 p.m., June 9, for Betsy Layne High School.

- Don Roberts was not at the meeting.

Setting financial ground rules for "Boomerang" kids

Thomas Wolfe wrote "You Can't Go Home Again," but try telling that to the millions of young adults who have returned to the family nest.

According to the Kentucky Society of CPAs, more and more parents are facing the financial challenges that surface when adult children come back home. These temporary arrangements could become a long-term drain on your finances. The best advice for parents of "boomerang" kids is to establish a clear understanding of financial ground rules.

COMMUNICATE

EXPECTATIONS CLEARLY

Parents and children should work together to negotiate a cost-sharing arrangement that takes into account the needs and expectations of both parties. Determine from the start the approximate length of stay and what contribution — financial and otherwise — the young adult will be expected to make.

Resist the temptation to offer your adult child a "free ride." Your child's contribution can help to build his or her self-esteem, create a sense of responsibility, and develop independence.

AN OUNCE OF PROTECTION

Most health insurance policies discontinue coverage when the dependent is no longer a full-time student or reaches the age of 23 to 25. After that, your adult child may qualify to remain on your policy under COBRA benefits, but the premiums can be costly.

One option may be an individual short-term policy, most of which are renewable for up to a year. As long as your adult child is healthy, he or she can save money by selecting a high deductible of $1,000 or more.

Auto and homeowner insurance are important issues as well. If your adult child will be driving the family car, you need to add an extra driver to your policy. In the event that your child already has his or her own car and insurance, joining your policy may result in lower payments.

In terms of homeowner's insurance, check with your carrier to see if you need extra coverage, especially if your child has expensive computer or stereo equipment.

THERE'S NO SUCH THING AS A FREE BREAKFAST, LUNCH, AND DINNER

Most financial experts recommend that you charge your child at least a nominal amount for room and board. Establish a figure in proportion to how much your child earns. You might agree to later refund a portion to your child to help meet the security deposit or first month's rent on a new place to live.

If your child does not have a job and can't afford to help out financially, he or she could substitute with yard work, household help, or repair work in exchange for room and board.

IOU OR I THANK YOU

If you plan to give your child money, be sure that you both understand whether it's a loan or a gift. When offering a loan, you may want to make it official by drawing up a written agreement that outlines the details, including repayment terms.

Credit card debt is a common problem for recent college grads. However, rather than bailing out your adult child, help him or her set up a budget and work out a repayment plan. You can also suggest that your child meet with someone at a credit counseling service. If your adult child is job hunting and has student loan debt, he or she may be able to request a deferment of payment until gainfully employed.

GETTING THE DEDUCTION YOU DESERVE

You may qualify for a tax deduction for your boomerang kid as long as you provide more than half of your child's support and the child earns less than $2,800 in 2000, or is a full-time student under age 24.

Divorced or widowed parents may be able to get some extra help. If you were a single at the end of last year and paid more than half the cost of maintaining a home where you lived with your unmarried child, you may be able to file as head of household rather than as a single taxpayer. This gets you a bigger standard deduction and lower tax rates.

If you have any questions about the tax implications of your child returning home, you may want to consult a CPA. Your CPA can also act as an independent third party in helping you and your adult child work out the financial details of this new, albeit temporary, living arrangement.

Price returns from six month deployment to Mediterranean

Navy Fireman Christopher A. Price, son of Diana K. Owens of Prestonsburg, recently returned from a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea and Arabian Gulf while assigned to the guided missile destroyer USS Carney, home ported in Mayport, Florida.

While on deployment, Price's ship participated in numerous international exercises, including one with the Bulgarian, Italian and Turkish navies. The exercise included multi-warfare training, seamanship practice, live surface warfare training and maneuvering, ship handling and communication drills.

While in Turkey, USS Carney assisted in an earthquake recovery effort with Commander, Transportation Force Japan and three ships from the Japan Maritime Self-Defense Force.

Price's ship also participated in an exercise off the coast of Sardinia, Italy, designed to enhance training and interoperability between NATO Forces.

During the deployment, USS Carney received the Arizona Memorial Trophy for being the most combat-ready ship in the Navy for 1997-1998.

Additionally, Price had the opportunity to visit several ports of call, including Croatia, Cyprus, Israel, Italy, Malta and Spain. During these visits, sailors participated in community relations projects.

USS Carney is one of the most powerful warships ever put to sea. The computer-based AEGIS weapons system is the heart of the ship's war-fighting capability. It centers around a powerful radar that enables the crew to detect, track and fire on more than 100 targets at a time.

Price, a 1997 graduate of Johnson Central High School, Paintsville, joined the Navy in August 1998.

KET telecourses help students earn credit over summer break

KET college credit telecourses allow students to study at home over summer break, even though distance and time might separate them from higher education institutions.

Registration is now in progress at most participating Kentucky colleges and universities for KET's summer 2000 telecourses, which begin airing Sunday, June 11. To date, more than 100,000 enrollees have participated in KET's telecourse program.

Telecourses offer flexibility and convenience to people who are home with children or have schedule conflicts. Course assignments can be completed at the students' own pace because they have the option to record the televised programs for viewing whenever and wherever it is convenient for them.

These fully accredited telecourses are facilitated by campus instructors who may or may not require a few on-campus sessions. Textbooks and telecourse study guides can be purchased at campus bookstores.

Students may choose from four undergraduate telecourse and one graduate education telecourse in KET's summer lineup.

Discovering Psychology covers the fundamental principles and major concepts of psychology and introduces students to leading researchers in working laboratories.

Literary Visions brings literature to life with dramatizations of individual works and readings of literary passages from a short fiction, poetry and drama.

Living with Health encourages students to take a proactive stance toward maintaining health and promoting wellness.

And finally, The Sociological Imagination advances students from the experiential to the intellectual, provoking them to think creatively and critically about themselves and their social worlds.

On the graduate level, Educating Able Learners describes and models how teachers can enhance the potential of gifted students in the regular classroom, in pull-out settings and in individualized development programs.

The following colleges and universities are offering credit for some or all of the summer 2000 KET telecourses: Eastern Kentucky University, Kentucky State University, Morehead State University, Murray State University, Northern Kentucky University, University of Louisville, Western Kentucky University, Elizabethtown Community College, Jefferson Community College, Madisonville Community College, Maysville Community College, Paducah Community College, Prestonsburg Community College, Somerset Community College, Southeast Community College and Cumberland College.

To receive a telecourse schedule guide with each institution's registration dates and location, call KET at (800) 432-0970. More information about telecourses can also be obtained on-line at <http://www.ket.org/telecourses>.

Unemployment rates fall in 112 Kentucky counties in March

FRANKFORT — Unemployment rates decreased in 112 Kentucky counties between February and March, rose in six and remained the same in two counties, according to the Department for Employment Services, a Cabinet for Workforce Development agency.

From March 1999 to March 2000, jobless rates fell in 99 counties, went up in 17, and stayed the same in Bell, Franklin, Jessamine and Meade counties.

In March 2000, six counties had jobless rates at or above 10 percent. Ten counties recorded double-digit rates in February 2000 and 14 in March 1999.

Jessamine County's 1.5 percent jobless rate was the lowest in the commonwealth. Other low rates were recorded in Woodford County, 1.6 percent; Fayette County, 1.7 percent; Scott and Shelby counties, 2.1 percent each; Oldham County, 2.2 percent; Bourbon and Trimble counties, 2.3 percent each; Campbell, Madison and Mason counties, 2.4 percent each.

Lewis County recorded the state's highest unemployment rate - 17.1 percent. It was followed by Magoffin County, 13.3 percent; Monroe County, 12.8 percent; Nicholas County, 11.7 percent; Harlan County, 11.3 percent; Letcher County, 10.9 percent; Russell County, 9.5 percent; Elliott County, 9.4 percent; Knott County, 8.5 percent; Carter and Martin counties, 8.4 percent each.

Decline reported in teen birth rates

Kentucky's rate of teen births, historically well over the national average, has declined significantly during the last several years, according to a report issued today by the Kentucky Cabinet for Health Services.

"Our most recent report, which compares three-year periods during the 1990s, indicates that we have seen a nearly 14 percent reduction in statewide birth rates for teens ages 15-17 since 1992," said Dr. Steve Davis, director of the Cabinet's Division of Adult and Child Health.

"We are as close as we ever have been to the national rate. In fact, Kentucky is one of the top 10 states in the country to show such a significant decline for this age group."

A comparison of birth rates for 1992-94 and 1996-98 shows that 93 of the state's 120 counties had decreased levels of teen births.

The most dramatic decreases occurred in eastern Kentucky where there were reductions in the teen birth rate of about 30 percent in some areas. (Three-year groupings were used to take into account the small numbers of births in some counties.)

The ins and outs of college tuition savings plans

The word is out. There's a new way to save for college and it's quickly gaining in popularity. It seems that a little-noticed tax law change in the 1997 Taxpayer Relief Act has led to a flurry of tuition savings plans.

These plans, called Section 529 Plans, are named after the section of the Internal Revenue Service tax code that authorized them. According to the Kentucky Society of CPAs, Section 529 Plans are state-sponsored investment programs designed for parents and grandparents who want to save for a child's college education.

HOW SECTION 529 PLANS WORK

A Section 529 Plan allows parents or grandparents to contribute money to an account of which the child is the beneficiary. Deposits can be made in a lump sum or through monthly payments. And while you don't get a federal income tax deduction on the contribution, the savings grow tax-deferred until money is withdrawn to pay for college expenses.

The funds can be used to pay for tuition, room, board, books, and other related expenses at any accredited college or university, regardless of where the school is located.

When you withdraw the funds in your Section 529 account to pay for qualified college-related expenses, the federal government taxes the gains as ordinary income. But the money is taxed at the child's tax rate, which is usually considerably lower than the parent's rate.

Unlike most other tax breaks, including the Education IRA, these state tuition plans are available to everyone, regardless of income. In fact, under a special provision in the gift tax rules governing Section 529 Plans, a parent or grandparent can give up to $50,000 to a plan account in a single year ($100,000 for a married couple) with no gift tax implications. That special treatment makes state tuition plans appealing to high-income grandparents looking for ways to transfer wealth to their grandchildren.

STATE BY STATE

Each state develops and names its own program. The main differences among the plans typically center on state income tax benefits, costs and fees, and how the funds are invested. Most plans have open residency requirements which means savers can comparison shop to find the best plan.

With growing competition among the states for Section 529 dollars, many states provide special tax benefits to in-state residents. Investing in a plan outside of your home state might rob you of the opportunity to take a state tax deduction for your Section 529 contribution and/or a chance to either avoid or defer taxes on plan earnings.

CHANGING YOUR MIND

What if your son decides not to go to college and your daughter wins a full scholarship? The money invested in your Section 529 Plan can be transferred to another college-bound relative without penalty. If there are no other siblings, you can always cash out the money. The earnings portion of the refund is taxed at the parents' or grandparents' rate, and they will be required to pay a penalty, typically amounting to about 10 percent of earnings.

WHAT'S NOT TO LIKE?

The primary downside to Section 529 Plans is that all state plans require that fund managers — and not account holders — manage the Plan's investments. Unlike IRAs and 401(k) plans, which give you the flexibility to be as aggressive or as conservative as you please based on the investments you select, neither you nor your child has any choice in how your money is invested in a Section 529 Plan.

Some funds are run by the states themselves, others by large financial firms. There is no guaranteed rate of return.

When applying for financial aid, the money invested in a Section 529 Plan will be treated as if it belongs to the parents. This is more favorable, since colleges, when determining financial need, assume that students can contribute more of their assets each year to education than their parents can.

SHOULD YOU OR SHOULDN'T YOU?

CPAs point out that numerous factors must be considered in determining whether or not you should invest in Section 529 Plan. Your tax bracket, the investment firm's track record, your tolerance for risk, your child's chances of qualifying for financial aid, and the plan's state tax benefits are just a few of them.

Kentucky Virtual High School to offer summer term

Kentucky high school students can register, now through June 13, for an online summer school program taught by certified Kentucky teachers. Fifteen courses in eight subjects will be offered by the Kentucky Virtual High School in its first summer session, which begins June 12, and ends August 20.

The online courses include health, oceanography, English literature, English as a second language, chemistry, study skills, Spanish and geometry.

Linda Pittenger, director of the KVHS, said the online summer school session appeals to a wide range of students.

"Online summer school is an excellent opportunity for students who work, for those who want to get ahead, or makeup missed credits, and students who want to take an enrichment class," explained Pittenger.

The benefit of online summer school over traditional summer schools is that a student can study anytime of day from anywhere they can get internet access, and also proceed through the course at their own pace. This means that students can take courses without giving up a summer job or a vacation.

Pittenger said that the online courses are high in quality and will be taught by exceptional Kentucky teachers who have received special training to teach online.

For instance, KVHS faculty teaching in the current spring term average 16 years' teaching experience, all have master's degrees, seven hold Rank One certification and two have completed doctorate work, she said.

"Students need to realize that online courses are every bit as challenging as courses taught in a traditional classroom," cautioned Pittenger. "They should expect plenty of traditional assignments, class discussions, quizzes, tests and lots of interaction with the teacher and other students by e-mail."

Students interested in taking a KVHS course must first consult with their school counselors for permission, and to learn whether their high school will award credit for the online class. The State Board of Education has ruled that high schools may award credit for online classes offered by KVHS.

KVHS partners with local districts to provide students with access to courses that may not be taught in their own high school, or may not be taught at a time when the student is available. The partnership between KVHS and the local schools benefits the students academically. It also allows the schools to expand the choices they offer.

"We also find that many parents want their children to have the experience of taking an online course before they get to college or go into the world of work," added Pittenger.

To view a list of courses and course descriptions for the KVHS summer season, click on "Course Schedule" at the KVHS web site, www.kvhs.org. The site also provides general information, answers to frequently asked questions, and a demonstration course to help give students a taste of what online learn-

Cuomo announces major protections for FHA homebuyers

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Andrew Cuomo has announced a major consumer protection initiative to prevent millions of families who get new FHA-insured mortgages from being victimized by predatory lending practices that can cost individual homeowners thousands of dollars in unnecessary costs.

The Fraud Protection Plan is also designed to compensate homeowners who already have mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration for past predatory lending abuses. FHA, which is part of HUD, insured 1.3 million home mortgages last year.

Based on the work of HUD's Baltimore Task Force on Predatory Lending, formed at the request of U.S. Senate Barbara A. Mikulski, the new protections include: restructuring inflated mortgages, default counseling for FHA borrowers, denying FHA insurance to FHA homes that have been "flipped" at inflated prices, placing caps on the points and fees charged FHA borrowers, deploying special teams to pursue unscrupulous appraisers and lenders, removing appraisers involved with large numbers of foreclosures, and imposing tighter FHA downpayment rules.

HUD's stepped-up protections for FHA borrowers were announced at a joint forum with the Treasury Department on Predatory Lending in Baltimore. Forums previously have been held in Atlanta, Los Angeles and New York, with the fifth and final one to be held in Chicago next week. This summer, Cuomo and Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers will issue a joint report with recommendations on how to further protect borrowers from predatory lenders.

Many of the protections build on existing FHA efforts to streamline operations and eliminate abusive practices. The existing efforts include Credit Watch, the Homebuyer Protection Plan, and a variety of reforms of the FHA property disposition program, such as the new Marketing and Management Contractors, the Good Neighbor Sales Program, and the Teacher and Officer Next Door Programs.

In some instances, HUD's new Fraud Protection Plan will be immediately available on a national basis. In other instances, FHA will launch pilots in Baltimore and other selected "hot spot" cities—defined as those with excessively high default and claim rates—to further at test and refine the concept before moving to national implementation.

HUD'S FRAUD PROTECTION PLAN WILL:

- Restructure Inflated Mortgages. Once FHA identifies a mortgage-based on a fraudulent appraisal, FHA will move to force the lender to write the mortgage down to a level consistent with true market value. If a lender refuses, FHA will intervene directly, cancel the insurance, take possession of the deed, and resell the property with FHA insurance to the family for the fair market price.

- Counsel Borrowers in Default. HUD has a network of more than 1,200 approved counseling agencies nationwide. However, the availability of counseling services is geographically uneven and not all agencies are able to provide specialized foreclosure avoidance counseling to borrowers in default. With funding from its insurance fund, FHA will provide borrowers at risk of default with a certificate that will pay for the cost of counseling at a HUD-approved agency.

- Restrict Loan Fees. HUD's Baltimore Task Force identified some cases in which FHA borrowed were charged unreasonably high points, closing costs and fees. FHA will cap on the total amount of points and fees charged FHA borrowers.

- Repair Credit of Abused Borrowers. In cases of default or foreclosure linked to fraudulent appraisals or underwriting, FHA will instruct the lender to issue a "credit repair letter" to the borrower and notify the credit reporting agencies of this action.

- Deny FHA Insurance to "Flipped" Properties. "Flipping" occurs when an investor purchases a property at a relatively low price, then re-sells or "flips" it for a much higher, inflated price, even though few improvements have been made to the property. Where "flipping" is suspected, FHA insurance will be denied, pending further investigation. FHA also will monitor future applications for FHA insurance to prevent former FHA foreclosed properties from being "flipped" and returned to the portfolio at an inflated price.

- Pursue Unscrupulous Appraisers and Predatory Lenders. In Baltimore, FHA sent a SWAT team to review all foreclosures taking place from January through March of 2000. Based on this review, FHA identified a number of apparently fraudulent practices on the part of FHA appraisers and lenders who will be referred for further investigation and possible action. Similar teams will be deployed to assess potential fraudulent activities in other cities now experiencing high numbers of FHA defaults and foreclosure.

- Suspend Bad Appraisers and Lenders. HUD's Baltimore Task Force identified fraudulent appraisals as a key contributor to subsequent default and foreclosure. Just five appraisers, for example, were associated with 38 percent of all FHA foreclosures in Baltimore in the first three months of 2000.

Building on the FHA's Lenders Credit Watch, FHA will create an automated Appraisers Watch to rate appraisers on the performance of the loans linked to their appraisals. Those associated with high numbers of foreclosures will be targeted for further review and, if appropriate, removed from the FHA rosters.

- Track Mortgage Brokers. With a growing number of FHA-insured loans originated with the significant involvement of mortgage brokers, FHA will require that Tax Identification of any mortgage broker participating in the transaction be reported, so that brokers associated with a high loan default and claim rate can be identified and, where appropriate, disciplined.

- Suspend Abusive Brokers. Through listing of properties on Multiple Listing Services (MLS) and the Internet, FHA's new management and marketing procedures have streamlined the sale of FHA foreclosed properties, and expanded the number of participating real estate agents. Working with the Baltimore Task force, FHA will review the list of participating real estate brokers and terminate unscrupulous brokers from future participation in FHA programs.

- Tighten Use of Gifts for Downpayment. HUD's Baltimore Task Force identified the fraudulent use of gift letters as another practice used by unscrupulous lenders to qualify borrowers for inflated mortgages. FHA will release new and clearer guidance on FHA gift letters and enhance monitoring of these provisions.

- Expand Loss Mitigation Efforts. In "Hot Zone" areas with high default and foreclosure rates, FHA, will establish teams of loss mitigation specialists to work with lenders and borrowers to ensure that every effort is made to help families remain in their homes.

- Approve New Software to Empower Default Counselors. FHA already has approved the first software package—"BackInTheBlack"—to assist default counselors in examining FHA foreclosure avoidance options and advise clients as to the best course of action. It is available at no charge to housing counseling agencies. FHA is reviewing additional software programs to assist its counselors.

HUD study shows public housing stock improving

While significant progress has been made in reducing modernization and rehabilitation needs in public housing, a new Department of Housing and Urban Development study finds that $22.5 billion in funding was needed in 1998 to meet existing modernization needs.

The report — Capital Needs of the Public Housing Stock in 1998: Capital Formula Study — shows there was a backlog of existing modernization and accrual needs in public housing despite a sharp reduction from the last study of capital needs in 1990. In that year, the total existing unfunded need was $33 billion (in 1998 dollars).

HUD's 2001 budget proposal requests $2.95 billion for the Public Housing Capital Fund, which housing authorities use to develop, modernize and rehabilitate units. The budget request also seeks $650 million for HOPE VI, which housing authorities use to demolish and replaces severely distressed public housing and to revitalize affected communities.

Existing modernization needs are the cost of repairs and replacements for plumbing, heating/air and electrical systems to keep them in working condition. These costs include adding, upgrading or replacing systems that are old and outdated, but not routine maintenance.

The study also found that about $2 billion is needed on an ongoing basis for accrual needs. These needs are the cost needed annually to cover expected ongoing repairs and replacements beyond ordinary maintenance, assuming existing modernization needs are met.

The needs estimates in the study are based on physical inspections of a sample of 684 public housing developments containing 229,973 units in 219 public housing authorities. This representative sample covered the majority of public housing units nationwide.

In addition to estimating the capital needs for public housing as of 1998, this study was also developed to help HUD revise the allocation rules for distributing funds by formula to public housing authorities under the new Capital Fund. After negotiating a new formula with representatives of housing authorities, residents, and other public housing experts, HUD published a new formula this past March.

Copies of the study are available from the Public and Indian Housing Information and Resource Center, P.O. Box 8577, Silver Spring, MD 20907 (telephone 1-800-955-2232; fax 301-585-6271).

'Community action' in the spotlight

Floyd County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson and Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin recently signed a joint proclamation, declaring May as Community Action Month.

The proclamation is in line with National Community Action Month, which celebrates the work community action agencies do at the local level.

The proclamation was encouraged locally by personnel with the Big Sandy Area Community Action Program (BSACAP), a private, non-profit organization that offers comprehensive education, job training, self-sufficiency and enrichment programs to low-income residents of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

In attendance at the signing of the proclamation were Tammy Jervis, Floyd County Community Action coordinator; staff members Rosetta Collins, Catherine Hall and Christa Bentley; and board members Eula Hall and Irene Cooley Hester. Also on the board are Pete Wilson and Larry Kidd.

Community action agencies arose out of the Economic Opportunity Act, a part of the War on Poverty, begun in the 1960s. The agencies were created to develop and administer programs to address the needs of poor people.

Programs in education, employment, job training and self-sufficiency were started, and many, such as Head Start and Job Corps still exist.

The BSACAP was incorporated in 1965. It is one of 23 community action agencies in Kentucky and one of more than 1,000 in the United States.

Among programs operated by BSACAP are

- Workforce Investment Act (formerly JTPA);
- Head Start, delegated with local boards of education;
- Child Care Assistance;
- Emergency Food and Shelter;
- Family Preservation and Family Reunification;
- Low Income Home Energy Assistance;
- Section 8;
- Senior Community Services Employment;
- Social Security/SSI Representative Payee;
- Tenant Based Rental Assistance;
- Weatherization;
- Wintercare.

Summer tour of Europe planned

An intergenerational community group will be traveling through Europe June 10-22.

Organized and led by Dr. Donald Barlow, associate professor of history at Prestonsburg Community College, this group will visit Paris, the D-Day beaches of Normandy, and Verdun where they will tour both the WWI battleground and the Maginot Line.

Military sites are only one aspect of this tour. Castles in Germany, such as the one at Heidelberg, will provide another focus for the tour. After driving through the Black Forest to Lucerne, Switzerland, the Alps will dominate the skyline and invade the senses of these people as they ascend Mt. Pilatus by cable car, drive to Innsbruck and then Munich, Germany.

Using Munich as their base of operations, they will visit Berchtesgden, Hitler's Alpine retreat, and the concentration camp at Dachau.

This trip will end with a visit to Mozart's home in Salzburg, Austria and a tour of Vienna.

If you are interested in joining this group for a high quality educational tour (you may even earn college credit for European History), contact Barlow at 606/886-3863, extension 211, or send him an email at donald.barlow@kctcs.net.

You may also inquire about this tour at the Enchanted World Travel Agency in Paintsville 606/789-5547 or Pikeville 606/437-4080.

CHIROPRACTIC OUTLOOK

Dr. Phillip R. Simpson

OH, MY ACHING FEET!

Like any part of your body, your feet can develop problems due to the stress and strain they endure every day—standing, walking and running. You can suffer foot pain from cramps, sprains that stretch or tear ligaments between the bones, accidents from sports, exercise that causes fractures, and even wearing the wrong pair of shoes. These foot problems may cause difficulties in other parts of the body as well. For example, if you limp because of a sore foot, you may compensate by putting extra strain on another part of your body.

See your chiropractor if you have a foot ailment. He or she can relieve any additional problems in other parts of your body such as your legs, hips and back. To identify your problem, your chiropractor will run several diagnostic tests and determine any issues with range of motion. Your chiropractor will then assess the best course of treatment.

A Look At Sports

Red Bullet, Southall, and Hawkins news

There definitely was no upset, as many predicted, in the running of the Preakness Stakes in Baltimore this past weekend. Red Bullet, who hadn't run for more than a month, pulled the upset in the world of sports by beating Kentucky Derby winner Fusaichi Pegasus and by a large margin.

Even in the world of horse racing there are those upsets that go unnoticed.

■ The University of Kentucky and Coach Tubby Smith have still not decided what to do with Michael Southall's scholarship. Smith and the rest of the UK athletic department are still waiting to see how the hearing that is scheduled for May 30 will turn out.

Southall, a UK recruit, was formally charged with possession of marijuana and charged with selling the drug.

Southall could face some jail time for his crimes if found guilty.

UK continues to have problems with recruiting. While Southall is considered a "project" for any college, still he stands at 6-10 and has some raw talents. Of course, we remember a young man out of Chicago who was a project when he came to UK — Nazr Mohammed.

But not all was bad news over the weekend for Smith and the Cats. Point guard Cliff Hawkins was declared academically eligible to play basketball as a freshman. Hawkins passed his SAT entrance exam after several attempts.

■ We understand that Ashland Gearheart was one of five who applied for the girls' head coaching position at Prestonsburg for the upcoming school year. Last year's coach, Bobby Hamilton, was one of the quintet along with former girls' coach Harold Tackett and Gary Hopkins.

Hopkins is a former Prestonsburg coach

Thunder Ridge

Jackie Boggs continues to win at Thunder Ridge

For late model driver Jackie Boggs, Thunder Ridge Speedway has to be one of his favorite tracks if not the favorite.

Boggs, who is accustomed to battling drivers like Paul Harris, took the checkered flag this past Saturday night to capture the late model feature over — that's right — Paul Harris.

Boggs and Harris have been two of the top drivers at The Ridge and their battles on the dirt track have held the fans spell-bound over the years.

Both sat on the front row for the 25-lap feature this past weekend and when the green flag fell, it was Boggs out early over Harris.

Harris ran a strong challenge to Boggs, but the veteran driver raced all the way from the green flag to the checker and was never headed for the full 25 laps. Harris finished second followed by Randy Boggs and Butch Dowdy for fourth place. Ronnie Cole rounded out the top five finishers.

Shannon Thornsberry returned to Thunder Ridge after winning at 201 Speedway two weeks ago. However, Thornsberry finished eighth in the eight-car field.

TOP EIGHT FINISHERS:

1. Jackie Boggs
2. Paul Harris
3. Randy Boggs
4. Butch Dowdy
5. Ronnie Cole, Jr.
6. Chris Wilson
7. David Powers
8. Shannon Thornsberry

■ Prestonsburg vs Allen Central

Sizemore's bat, arm leads Allen Central Mullins, Dixon homer in 14-4 district loss

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS EDITOR

This just was not your typical Prestonsburg baseball team. Coach Russell Shepherd and the Blackcats are always around when the district championship and regional tournament are played.

But that will not be the case for the Prestonsburg team this year after dropping a 14-4 mercy game to host Allen Central in the first round of the boys 58th District baseball tournament played Monday evening at the Garrett Park.

Coach Russell started four freshmen this season and the Blackcats looked to be the team to contend with the next three seasons.

Garrett Park, better know as Homer Field, lived up to its name as six home runs were hit between the two clubs. Both teams belted three home runs each.

"Unfortunately this is or home field," said Allen Central coach Frank Martin, in his first year at the helm of the program. "Some of the teams don't like it but it is fair for both teams."

"It is sad we cannot have a nice regulation size field here for Allen Central. At one point

Walks come back to haunt Central

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS EDITOR

Nothing about the Prestonsburg 12-10 win over Allen Central in the first round of the girls' 58th District softball tournament resembled a softball game.

The score was more fitting of a football game. There was very little hitting and neither team could field the ball.

But the real problem for both teams were the walks that were issued and that did resemble softball play.

Allen Central starter, Shanna Howell, issued 11 walks and Stacy Goble, who started for Prestonsburg, also gave away 11 bases on balls.

Each team collected only four hits but both teams had problems in the field as there were a total of 12 errors in the game. Prestonsburg committed seven and Allen Central totaled five.

While most of the team stats match, the difference in the game was a thing called clutch hitting. Allen Central, which was known for quick bats, appeared to be at the plate looking for the walk. The Lady Rebels left the bases loaded in the first and third innings and stranded runners in fifth and seventh. Altogether they left 13 runners on base.

It was a drastic fifth inning for Howell and Allen Central as Prestonsburg scored six times without the benefit of a base hit. Six walks and three errors allowed the

■ Mets vs. Yankees

Mets rally for nine in sixth; defeat Yankees 13-12

Stealing some magic from their 1969 namesakes, the New York Mets, the 2000 version of the Prestonsburg Mets scored nine runs in their final at-bat to defeat the Prestonsburg Yankees 13-12 at Archer Park Friday night.

The Mets trailed by eight runs entering the sixth inning and facing what seemed to be an insurmountable Yankee lead. But the Mets scored nine times in pulling out the win over the powerful Yanks.

The rally was fueled by clutch hits from Matthew Crisp, Jason Wallen and Nathan Robinson. Robinson had the game-winning hit for the Mets.

The Mets also got outstanding base running from Zack Clark, Heather Wallen and Carmen Maines, who scampered home with the game-winning run.

The hard-hitting Yankees built their lead with home runs from Nick

Minor League... Prestonsburg Cubs edge Reds, 3-1

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS EDITOR

The Prestonsburg Minor League Cubs posted a 3-1 win over the Reds in a good played Little League game. The two teams met at Archer Park this past Monday night.

It was a scoreless game between the two teams through the first two innings until the Reds went in front 1-0 with a run in the third inning. Chase Caudill led off the inning with a base hit and scored on Megan Henderson's RBI single.

The Cubs tied the game at 1 with a run in the fourth inning. With two out, J.D. Head

Stephens perfect at the plate as Royals bury Devil Rays 12-2

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS EDITOR

Nathaniel Stephens collected four hits and Josh Rodebaugh hurled one-hit baseball as the Royals defeated the Devil Rays 12-2 in the 9- and 10-year-old league at Archer Park Thursday.

Stephens had a three-run triple in the third inning for the Royals. He singled in the first, second and fourth innings.

Rodebaugh allowed the Devil Rays but the one hit, a fourth-inning single by Alex Shepherd.

The Royals grabbed a 4-0 lead in the first inning as the first five batters reached against Charlie Rice. Rodebaugh and Austin Gearheart had RBI singles in the inning. Three walks allowed the other two runners to come home.

Two runners came home in the third inning for the Royals. All three scored on Stephens' triple.

The Royals plated five runs in the fourth inning in taking a 12-0 lead. Stephens had his fourth hit and drove in two runners.

The Devil Rays avoided the shutout with two runs in the bottom of the fourth but could not prevent the mercy rule. Stephens singled and scored while Jody Tackett scored the second run for the Devil Rays.

LEAGUE NOTES

• The Prestonsburg Little League plays each evening at Archer Park. The leagues is also playing inter-league games with other outside leagues.

• Randy Gearheart is the new Prestonsburg Youth Baseball director for the 2000 season. Gearheart has been involved with youth sports in the county for several years and has made a very positive contribution.

Sizemore

we had a much better field at Eastern but it has been taken."

The win moved Allen Central into the championship game tonight against either South Floyd or Betsy Layne.

Allen Central coach Frank Martin benched four of his starters for missing practice Sunday afternoon. His gutsy move proved to work out all right with the Allen Central win.

"It is all about principles," said Coach Martin. "We had some guys not show up for practice and we decided, as a team, it would not be right to let them go on the field and play."

"We told them at school today (Monday) how we were going to handle it and not start them. Whether they played or not depended on how the game went."

The Allen Central coach said he was not afraid to use his bench and that he had confidence in everyone he put out there.

"It worked out well for us," he said. "I did want to play the suspended players some so they could get some innings in before we play Betsy Layne or South Floyd."

Brandon Sizemore had the defensive plays of the game with two tremendous throws, one to home and the other to third to nail both runners. Sizemore had one of the three Rebel home runs.

"He has a great arm and is a super kid and a super athlete," said the Allen Central mentor. "You can't say enough about him."

Brandon Click started on the hill for Allen Central but needed third inning relief from hard throwing Jeremy Hayes. Hayes picked up the win in relief.

Kyle Shepherd suffered the setback for Prestonsburg getting late inning relief from Joey Willis, a freshman.

Allen Central made it a mercy game with seven runs in the fourth inning against Shepherd. The Rebels hit two home runs in the inning. Click hit a solo shot with one out and with two runners on base, Sizemore hit a three-run shot. The Rebels scored thrice more but all three runs were unearned against Shepherd. Willis then relieved Shepherd and retired the Rebels.

Prestonsburg scored in the top of the fifth on a home run by Dixon leading off the inning. The inning could have been worse had it not been for the arm of Sizemore in centerfield. The Blackcats had two runners on base with Hank Mullins reaching on a base hit and Seth Crisp safe on an error. Josh Shepherd singled to right center with Sizemore fielding the ball and throwing a perfect strike to the plate to nail Mullins at home. The second strong play came when Sizemore rifled a throw to third to cut down Crisp and end the inning and game.

Coach Martin said of his team, "There is a lot of potential on this team. I can't say enough about them. This is my first year and I have a lot to learn. I asked for some assistance from Jad Deaton. He decided to help me."

Prestonsburg took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on Josh Shepherd's lead off home run. Allen Central tied the game in the bottom of the inning on a base hit by Patrick Martin who scored on Hayes triple.

The Blackcats made it a 3-1 game in the top of the third on a two run home run by Hank Mullins. John Hunt singled to begin the inning and rode home on Mullins blast.

Five runs crossed the plate for Allen Central in the bottom of the third inning. Three of them on Bentley's three run shot.

Shepherd got the loss for Prestonsburg while Hayes picked up the win.

Prestonsburg

Lady Blackcats to take a 9-5 lead after five innings.

Allen Central rallied in the seventh with four runs after putting single runs on the board in the fifth and sixth.

Howell ran into early trouble and got little support from the field, allowing Prestonsburg to take a 3-0 lead. Angela Howell opened the game with a base hit and Margaret Damron reached on an error at third base before Howell walked Brooke Coleman to fill the bases.

On a nice fielding play by catcher Amanda Tackett, Amelia Conley was retired but Howell issued walks to Stacy Goble and Megan Hyden, forcing home two runners. Coleman scored on a wild pitch.

Allen Central loaded the bases against Goble in their half of the first but left all three runners stranded as she got Shannon Sizemore and Barb Prater on strikes.

Howell settled down over the next three innings as Allen Central chipped away at the 3-0 lead with single runs in the second and third innings before scoring twice in the fourth to lead 4-3.

Tiffany Turner walked and scored for Central in the second when Terri Mullins grounded to short. Howell led off the third with a walk and later scored on Kristi Howard's RBI double.

Mullins opened the Lady Rebels' fourth with a double and scored on an error off the bat of Sizemore. Howell later scored to give Allen Central a one-run lead.

In the Prestonsburg fifth, Howell could not retire a batter as the Lady Blackcats sent 12 batters to the plate in scoring six times for a 9-4 lead.

Sizemore relieved Howell in the fifth and got the side out but not until they had done the damage.

Allen Central got one run back in the bottom of the fifth to trail 9-5.

Sizemore held Prestonsburg to just one other run over the final three innings keeping her team close. Both teams scored in the sixth for a 10-6 game. Sizemore got out of the top of the seventh giving Prestonsburg just a single.

In the bottom of the seventh Allen Central just about pulled the game out but left the tying runners on base.

Angie Green opened the seventh with a walk and Mullins singled behind her. Jennifer Risner reached on an error with Green scoring. Mullins trotted home on Howell's sacrifice fly to right field. Risner came home when Howard reached on an error at second base and Sizemore, who walked, scored the final run for Allen Central. Howard and Turner were left stranded at second and third when Tackett grounded to first for the final out.

Howell took the loss for Allen Central working four and a third innings, allowing 11 runs on three hits. She walked 11 and struck out one.

Sizemore worked the final two and two-thirds inning for Allen Central. She allowed one run on one hit, walked one, hit one batter and struck out one.

Stacy Goble picked up the win going the full seven for Prestonsburg. She allowed 10 runs on four hits, walking 11 and fanning five.

Prestonsburg will meet the winner of the Betsy Layne/South Floyd game tonight at 5 p.m. for the district championship. The win was the sixth in a row for the Lady Blackcats.

with a walk and Mullins singled behind her. Jennifer Risner reached on an error with Green scoring. Mullins trotted home on Howell's sacrifice fly to right field. Risner came home when Howard reached on an error at second base and Sizemore, who walked, scored the final run for Allen Central. Howard and Turner were left stranded at second and third when Tackett grounded to first for the final out.

Sports

as well as holding the girls' position at Betsy Layne.

A decision on the girls' position at Prestonsburg should be forthcoming shortly, getting someone in place before the summer camps get underway.

■ Up at South Floyd, Aaron Stepp, from Berea, was offered the head coaching position for the football program. However, Stepp said thank you but no thank you.

"As of last Thursday we were told the was going to accept the job but now he says his wife wants to go back to school," said South Floyd Athletic Director Dan Collins.

Collins said the job opening would be reposted until May 31 and then a decision would be forthcoming from those applicants once it has been presented before the site-based council.

"I can understand his not taking the job," said Collins.

On the girls' basketball coaching position, Collins said nothing has been done on that as of yet.

Word is that veteran coach Roger Johnson has applied for the girls' basketball position at South Floyd. Roger is an experienced coach, having worked with the Allen Central program as an assistant a few years back. He had a lot of success as coach at Osborne Elementary before consolidation changed that.

■ Riverside Raceway will open this Friday night instead of the normal Saturday race day. Memorial Day racing will be on tap at the Dwale track for a trophy race.

The gates will open this Friday night at 5 p.m. and racing will get the green flag at 7 p.m.

■ A special Memorial Day race will be held at the Hatfield-McCoy Speedway in Hanover, W.Va., and will feature several well-known late model drivers vying for the $2,000 prize money on Monday, May 29.

Also, a modified/street stock feature will pay $1,000 to win.

Late models will run a 30-lap feature and the modifieds will circle the track in a 25-lap feature.

Gates open at 3 p.m., hot laps at 6 p.m. and racing scheduled at 7 p.m.

Admission is $15 for adults in general admission. Kids 6 to 11 pay only $5. Pit passes are selling for $25.

NASCAR In Kentucky

When many people think of sports in Kentucky, they probably think of horse racing or basketball. Auto racing doesn't come to mind many times when the subject is Kentucky. That's all about to change.

This year there is a new stop on the schedules of such series as the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series, ARCA and the Indy Northern Lights Racing Series — Kentucky Speedway.

"I think we're going to prove that this area is a huge market for motorsports," developer Jerry Carroll said.

Carroll hopes to cater to more than the die-hard auto racing fan. With the assistance of Bill Moss, who designed Talladega Superspeedway and the Las Vegas Motor Speedway, Carroll has constructed a track with amenities and features found only at Kentucky Speedway.

The Kentucky Speedway features a wider, longer backstretch than most tracks its size and shape. It is built into the ground in a bowl shape so that even the front row grandstand seats have a view of the entire track.

"We spent an inordinate amount of time on details, like the fans being able to see the entire track from the grandstands and being able to see into the garages," Moss said.

Garages will be angled toward the grandstands so fans will be able to watch crews work on cars before and during the race.

"It's got a little bit of everything," Carroll said. "The most unique aspect is location. We tried to make it look like a speedway within a state park, and how many other tracks are located less than a half-mile off a major interstate?"

Kentucky Speedway will open the weekend of June 16 and 17 with a grand opening featuring the NASCAR All-Pro and Craftsman Truck Series Kroger 225.

There is also an IRL open test session scheduled at the speedway July 1 and 2.

There will be an opportunity for fans to catch Indy racing action August 27 at the Belterra Resort Indy 300.

"The response has been overwhelming," Director of Sales Lisa Wilson said. "Over 16,000 season tickets have been sold and over 24,000 to the Kroger 225 Craftsman Truck race have been sold. We just began our advertising campaign this week for the Kroger 225 (April 6)."

The $152 million speedway is a 1.5 mile tri-oval track with 14 degree banking on 1,000 acres in Gallatin County, 35 miles south of Cincinnati. The speedway is also well-lit for night racing.

Phase I, which will be completed by the June grand opening, features 65,989 grandstand seats, 50 luxury suites and a 210-seat private, glass-enclosed Kentucky Club.

"We open with 65,989 seats and think we have a strong chance of selling out," Wilson said. "The enthusiasm in this market is unbelievable."

Phase II, to be completed at a later date, will add a dirt track and drag racing facilities. This phase may expand seating to accommodate up to 120,000 in addition to 120 luxury suites.

"Some people might say we're too close to Indianapolis, but every year they sell out," Carroll said. "If something is sold out, all that tells me as a marketing person is that the demand is there."

Aside from merely watching races, fans will also have the opportunity to see what it's like to round the Kentucky Speedway in a Winston Cup car when the track hosts the Fast Track Driving School June 23 and 24.

"This is a tremendous opportunity to introduce more race fans to our track," Kentucky Speedway executive vice-president and general manager Mark Cassis said of the driving school.

PC tennis team ends season in national tournament

LEXINGTON, — The Pikeville College men's tennis team ended its season on Monday after being eliminated from the NIAA championships.

Point Loma Nazarene (Calif.) University ousted the Bears by a 9-0 final in the opening round of the 49th Annual NIAA Men's Tennis National Championship.

The match marked the second straight season Pikeville has ended its tennis season with a trip to the national tournament. This year, however, the event has taken on a new look.

In past seasons, the national tournament was held in singles and doubles format, with teams accumulating points as the individuals or pairs advanced. This year, however, the field is entirely in the team style. Teams meet in three doubles matches and six singles contests, with the winner of at least five of the nine points advancing.

The tournament has 24 teams, with Pikeville being the only entrant from Region XII and one of only two from Kentucky. The other Bluegrass school, Georgetown, was in as the NIAA allows all host schools to participate. The Tigers nearly pulled the upset before falling to Embry-Riddle (Fla.) on Monday, 5-4.

The Bears got off to a rough start, dropping all three doubles contests. Doubles are played in the one-set eight-point format. Pikeville did get an outstanding performance from its No. 2 team, as Hunter Doerr and Leo Lopez gave the team of Nicklas Rohdin and Jason Kasner all it wanted before falling 8-6.

Unlike last year, when with the exception of Todd Kitchen, who advanced to the second round, Pikeville struggled to score in singles, the Bears were highly competitive this year. In fact, two of the matches went three sets.

Senior Jesse Rudd of Salyersville finished his career with a thrilling three-set match which needed a tie-breaker before the verdict was reached. In the end, Rudd lost the third set 7-6 to Joe Combs, falling 7-4 in the tie-breaker. He had taken the first set 7-5 and dropped the second 6-2.

Teammate Chad Sellers, a junior from Paintsville, lost to PLNU's Ben Roberson 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the other three-set match.

"I'm really proud of these guys. They gave it everything they had every time we played, and that's all we can ask of them," said Coach John Kitchen. "Watching them battle, especially Chad and Jesse, was amazing. We were down 7-0 when they started the third sets, and they knew we had lost. But they played with a lot of pride and determination. I hope they're as proud of themselves as I am of them."

Pikeville finished the season 18-6, easily establishing the mark for wins in a season.

"These guys have a lot to be proud of," Kitchen said. "Jesse Rudd came here when we weren't very good, and two years ago he made the whole season worthwhile when he played in the KIAC finals. Now he's helped us build this program to where he played in two national tournaments."

"And Todd (Kitchen), Chad and Clay Boone, all of them got to be in the national tournament twice. These guys have set the standard, and set it high. We'll have to work extra hard to equal what has happened these last two years."

Results:

Kentucky taxpayers to pay for Louisville downtown arena? You're up!

A downtown basketball arena in Louisville?

Good news if the city can rally deep-pockets people to open their checkbooks the way Howard Schnellenberger and University of Louisville boosters did to build Papa John's Cardinal Stadium.

But $200 million? A portion to come from state revenues? Louisvillian J. Bruce Miller and associates apparently have convinced Mayor Dave Armstrong on the feasibility of attracting an NBA franchise to River City if it can guarantee a 20,000 seat downtown arena.

This is where you come in. Louisville will not go it alone, Armstrong says. So Hizzoner and the bring-us-an-NBA-team forces will pitch the idea to Governor Paul Patton, who will be asked to help pay for the project with your tax dollars.

You're up. Time for you to step to the plate and make some noise. Do Kentucky taxpayers want to help buy a downtown arena for Louisville, making the city attractive for an NBA franchise? I don't think so.

The view here is taxpayers — not only basketball fans — across the Commonwealth ought to step up on this one. Send a clear and vigorous: "No! We will not buy this!" to state legislators.

Find your state representative to Frankfort and tell him/her what you think.

Says here, if J. Bruce Miller and associates in Kentuckiana want an NBA franchise and Jefferson County's mayor and board of aldermen go along, fine, the deep-pockets citizens should pony up $200 million the way UoL fans found a way to build Papa John's Cardinal Stadium.

Let's be candid, 70-or-more arena luxury suites and revenue gotten from seat licensing won't spare the average fan the cheapest ticket, $60-plus. Those monies, along with NBC-TV guarantees, concessions and NBA souvenir sales revenues pay salaries, mostly to over-indulged and unavailable players who will contribute little or nothing to Louisville.

Which brings us to Rick Pitino. If you can believe Da Coach about anything then maybe it is this: "Louisville is one of my favorite cities," Pitino told a TV interviewer. "But you need a city of about three million to make it (an NBA franchise) work. You have to realize an NBA (game) ticket is about $65 and that's a lot."

Miller's intentions may be honorable or not, but reality is the NBA's popularity is in decline (see Sports Illustrated cover story, May 15), and the idea of the Rockets moving to Kentucky is predicated on: 1. Holding Houston hostage until its taxpayers agree to build a new arena. They've refused once; 2. Move to a relatively tiny market, and hope it blossoms into the next Indiana Pacers, fleeing the state's largest city and region while they find out.

By pressing forward, Miller and friends believe fans in Kentuckiana will shell out roughly $250 for a family of four to see a regular season game.

SI's May 15 cover story said, of all professional sports today, the price for a family of four attending one regular season NBA game is highest, averaging $266.61.

What about the product Miller and associates want Kentuckians to buy? Quality of a game?

A Denver Nuggets former season ticket holder, after giving up his $52 tickets, told SI: "It's boring, expensive, meaningless, just an awful product. The number of expensive (home) games is 41 out of 41. The number of good games is 10 out of 41."

A downtown arena for Louisville may be a good idea for UoL, UK, the Sweet 16, the concert circuit, and sundry other affordable entertainments.

But in the grand scheme it is not a good investment. NBA franchise owners have demonstrated time and again they can and will move to another market with impunity. Leaving behind, in this case, Kentucky taxpayers holding a bank note much as Washington state citizens are still paying for a Seattle Kingdome that was imploded earlier this year.

Contact your representative to Frankfort.

WRITE IT DOWN DEPT.

Tubby Smith and Denny Crum wrapped up less than spectacular recruiting seasons last week, according to experts. Smith signs at Kentucky (5) and Crum's at Louisville (6) were rated "not in the top 100."

Not rated? Write it down for future reference. Actually, it's a good sign. And here's why.

1. No prima donnas using UK and UoL to get to the NBA in two years.

2. When UK and UoL head into the NCAA Tournament again, the experts will have moved on to the class of 2005. Fresh meat.

3. Fans will be lauding team chemistry and how so-and-so should get more playing time instead of fretting about Joe Jumpshot making himself available for the NBA Draft.

4. Even fewer in the media herd will recall which expert rated who where. Many will be busy quoting the same experts on the next crop.

5. Too few fans will praise the coach for molding the "not top 100 prospect" into a team player who loves school, talks about getting a degree, intends to stay four years. Write it down.

CLARK EDGES MAY IN MODIFIEDS

Glen May and Rick Clark took the pole positions for the start of the modified feature as both led the field of 17 cars to the starting line.

It was May to the early lead at the drop of the green flag and he led the pack on the first two circuits of the clay track.

Clark would bring his No. 12 car to the front on lap three and he never looked back in driving all the way to the winner's circle. May finished second with Tony Journey running second and Randell Lester third.

May is one of the promising young drivers in the modified class and has two feature victories already this season at Thunder Ridge.

TOP 15 FINISHERS

1. Rick Clark
2. Glen Man
3. Tony Journey
4. Randell Lester
5. Jeff Jones
6. Tim Moore
7. Allen Turner
8. Tony DeHart
9. Randy Fouts
10. Randy Boggs
11. Doug Adkins
12. Chris Prater
13. Keith Hamilton
14. Thomas Blakeman
15. Danny Cox

HENSON CAPTURES FOUR-CYLINDERS

John Henson drove his 18K four-cylinder to victory lane, bettering a field of seven four-cylinder cars for the feature race at Thunder Ridge.

Henson had to come from the back of the field as John Hall and Freddie Dee held the front row positions.

Hall raced out to an early lead as the green flag dropped. Hall held the lead through the first four laps until Patrick Morris drove his No. 00 to the front of the field at the start of lap five.

Henson got in the race and the lead after lap six as his 18K car raced to the front and he was never headed after coming to the front.

Morris placed second behind Henson while Hall finished third.

TOP SIX FINISHERS

1. John Henson
2. Patrick Morris
3. John Hall
4. Eric Hall
5. Chad Collins
6. John David Clark

FANNIN CATCHES TINCHER ON FINAL LAP

When the green flag dropped to start the bomber feature, Keith Tinchler was at the start of the pack and showed a year layoff from the track has not affected his ability to drive the dirt track.

Tinchler, along with Tandy Spurlock, led the field of bombers to the starting line at the pole positions. Tinchler had fast time in the heat races in his first race back.

Tinchler was quick to the front to lead the field all the way to the final lap, when Randy Fannin came from the rear to overtake Tinchler in taking the checkered flag and the victory.

Both ran side-by-side down the stretch but it would be Fannin taking the checkered flag and the victory.

Tinchler crossed the line second followed by Daryl Sexton for third place. Spurlock placed last in the race.

TOP SEVEN FINISHERS

1. Randy Fannin
2. Keith Tinchler
3. Daryl Sexton
4. Steve Hall
5. Barry Moore
6. Tommy McLemore
7. Tandy Spurlock

SLONE WINS SPORTSMAN

It was a sparse field of cars running the sportsman class this past Saturday night but Jamie Slone drove his No. 19 car to the winner's circle in winning the feature race.

Slone, along with Brandon Mason, held the pole positions after Mason had fast time in the heat race.

Slone grabbed the early lead over Mason when the green flag fell and he led the entire race to capture the feature. Mason placed second.

TOP FIVE FINISHERS

1. Jamie Slone

2. Brandon Mason
3. Barton Ratliff
4. Jimmy David Hall
5. Lester Mullins

ROAD HOGS RUN FOR $400

In the final feature of the evening, Keith Branham took home the $400 purse by winning the evening road hog feature over a field of five cars. While Ryan Risner was supposed to have the pole position after winning the qualifier, he was unable to come from the pit area and the front row consisted of Branham and Joe Stanley.

Early, Branham took control and led the entire race, crossing the finish line ahead of second-place finisher Joe Stanley. John Henson placed third.

TOP FIVE FINISHERS

1. Keith Branham
2. Joe Stanley
3. John Henson
4. Jared Hale
5. Bucky Collins

This Saturday night at Thunder Ridge, all six classes will be running for a trip to victory lane in their respective classes.

A light rain fell on The Ridge last Saturday but that did not stop the fans from taking in the show. The track was kept dry with the racing of the cars allowing the complete grid to be run in less than three hours.

All classes ran qualifying rounds before the feature races.

June squirrel season

After the conclusion of turkey season, most hunters clean their guns, coat them with oil and store them for the fall. In Kentucky, however, that is not the case.

Kentucky has a statewide squirrel season that opens the first Saturday in June (June 3) and runs for 14 consecutive days (June 16).

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) started the June squirrel season to take advantage of squirrel breeding chronology and to expand the hunting opportunities available in Kentucky.

The season has been very popular among Kentucky hunters since its inception in 1994 and the season that year was limited to four wildlife management areas. The season was expanded statewide in 1999.

Those who wish to hunt this season must think differently for June squirrels than they would for the traditional fall season.

"Obviously, the spring season is much different than the fall season," said Chris Garland, upland game biologist with the KDFWR. "You would be looking for more soft mast and seed producers than the typical hard mast of the fall season."

Garland said a hunter would need to target mulberry, dogwood, pine, elm, hornbeam, wild cherry and sassafras trees for successful squirrel hunting in June. The increasing temperatures during this season would make the early morning and evening periods the most productive times to hunt.

"You may consider hunting down low in the cooler hollows and draws or along river courses," Garland explained. "This would be an excellent time to boat or canoe along streams to hunt and fish in one trip."

Trees are usually full of leaves by the first weekend in June and firearm choice becomes a consideration. Using a shotgun may be more productive than using a .22 rifle.

"That will depend on individual taste and experience," Garland said.

The good thing about the full foliage is the squirrels will not be able to detect a hunter's presence as easily as in the fall when leaves are almost gone.

Also, unlike the fall, the summer season is bug season. For your own comfort and protection from disease, don't forget to apply a good bug and tick repellent.

If you plan to participate in this hunt or any small game or upland bird season, please help our upland game biologists by participating in the hunter cooperator survey. This program monitors small game populations through hunter harvest surveys and wing collection surveys.

The survey is a hunting log where the hunter records the date of the hunt, county of the hunt, hours hunted and animals seen or harvested. The log is easily kept on the refrigerator, in your hunting jacket or in the glove box.

Wing envelopes are provided for grouse and quail hunters and asks the same type of information as the hunting log. Wings of the quail and grouse and the tail feathers of grouse provide biologists with important data on population dynamics, hatch dates, age and the sex of the birds. Hunters simply follow the provided instructions and send in the logs and wing envelopes at the conclusion of the season.

The hunting logs and wing envelopes are available from a state wildlife and boating officer, private lands biologist or by contacting the KDFWR. You may also access the logs from the KDFWR website at www.kdfr.state.ky.us where they are available in a printable format. You are helping provide better hunting in the years to come by participating in the hunter cooperator program. Those participating will receive a new log for next season, the results of the survey and a small gift.

The daily limit for squirrels during the June season is six and the possession limit is 12. For more information, please write the KDFWR at #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY, 40601, or call 1-800-858-1549.

Free Fishing Weekend

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) is offering a free fishing weekend the first weekend of June (June 3-4, 2000). During this weekend, no license will be required of residents or non-residents to fish any Kentucky waters.

The free fishing weekend is part of the celebration of National Fishing Week which runs from June 3-11, 2000.

"Every year since 1979, National Fishing Week has introduced the challenges and joys of sportfishing to thousands of new enthusiasts, many of them children who become anglers for life," said Steve Pennaz, president of the National Fishing Week Steering Committee.

More than 200 community fishing events are held in Kentucky each year, many on free fishing weekend. Local groups are helping the KDFWR get more youngsters involved in this enjoyable activity.

The increasing temperatures and warming water make the first weekend of June an excellent time to fish. Bass should be off the nest and the panfish will be active.

Panfish are excellent fish to target for an inexperienced angler, especially a child.

Bluegill, redear sunfish and shellcrackers are all willing biters. Action is usually fast and furious when fishing for panfish. All you need are a cane pole or other inexpensive outfit, a few split shot sinkers, bobber, number 8 or 10 sized hooks and some worms. You don't have to go and pay for worms at a store. A flower bed or garden should yield a few dozen in just a few turns of the spade. An old coffee can is an excellent worm holder. Put in some moist soil with the worms and cover them in damp shreds of newspaper.

You will find sunfish near the edges of weed beds, in and around downed trees, under docks and piers or in a shady spot on the bank. Adjust the depth of your offering until you find the zone where the fish are holding.

Although the first weekend of June requires no license to fish, all normal fishing regulations still apply. For more information, call the KDFWR at 1-800-858-1549.

Mueller said the victory was the "greatest Little League comeback" he had seen in his storied career.

KHSAA voted to return the four class championship games to Louisville.

"First and foremost we want our coaches to have what they want," KHSAA Assistant Commissioner Julian Tackett said before the vote. "It's like a reunion for them, like the basketball coaches have. (Having the games at one site) is important to football's tradition."

Julius Yeast, a 6-4, 240-pound linebacker who starred at Harrodsburg High with UK's Dennis Johnson, has left the Ohio State football team. Yeast is the father of 1-year-old twins, and decided that his priority should be to spend more time with his children.

When next month's NBA Draft happens, Jamaal Magloire will not only not be a lottery pick, but the UK center has dropped out of the first round altogether according to an NBA Draft prognosticator.

Why? Because Magloire declined to attend NBA-sponsored tryout camps, and because so many underclassmen put their names into the draft.

Eastern Kentucky U. is fast becoming Welcome Home U., as Travis Ford added two more native Kentuckians last week when 6-4 wingman Shawn Fields, who starred at Lexington Catholic, transferred from Georgia, and 6-4 Clinton Sims from Boston College and Paris High, signed with the Colonels.

Murray State added 6-4 guard Johnny Mitchell from Montgomery, Ala., to its roster.

Dream basketball league? The Commonwealth Big Eight: Georgetown, Morehead State, Kentucky State, Cumberland, Wesleyan, Campbellsville, Lindsey-Wilson and Pikeville.

PARTING SHOT

Can it be so? Dunbar High baseball coach Skip Hanson is quitting after 22 years. A parting remark (to the Lexington Herald-Leader) was noteworthy.

"The reason most kids play high school baseball anymore is to make money, either as pros or by getting college scholarships. It's about individual success, not about being part of a group or caring about each other. There's just no loyalty to a particular school or each other. When I preach those things the kids look at me like I'm crazy."

And so it goes.

A star did shine

Sometime between the public mourning over the death of Adam Petty and the collapse of a pedestrian bridge at Lowe's Motor Speedway, NASCAR was able to run its all star event known as The Winston. The event was held with a huge shadow being cast over it by a lone flag waving in victory lane with the words "Adam Petty 1980-2000."

Everywhere that you went in Charlotte last weekend the talk centered around the death of the first fourth-generation driver and just what the Petty family had done for the sport. There was little talk of the no-holds-barred racing that had become the norm in the previous running of The Winston.

The race would take place, and even though there were no Pettys at the track, you could feel their presence when Petty Enterprises' driver John Andretti was introduced to the crowd, sometimes the best medicine for all concerned is to go on with life as normal as you can.

For 20 drivers that meant racing in the 70-lap event that would pay the winner a half-million dollars. The 70 laps were divided into three segments with two 30-lap portions being followed by what everyone in attendance had paid to see, a final 10-lap shootout.

The race is unlike any points race that makes up the schedule. During a points race you often see drivers just fall in line and race for points instead of pushing the envelope and going all out for the win. If you have been following the year that rookie driver Dale Earnhardt Jr. has put together so far, then you knew going into The Winston that this was exactly the kind of race that he would like to drive in.

Dale Jr. became the first rookie driver to ever compete in the event Saturday night by already notching a couple of wins during his first full-time campaign in the series. That wasn't good enough for the son of the only three-time winner of the event. He put another milestone on his resumé by becoming the only rookie to ever win the event.

The younger Earnhardt dodged a major bullet when he scraped the wall coming out of turn four on lap 19 of the second segment.

Instead of backing off the throttle and heading for the pits, he showed the aggressiveness that has served his father so well throughout his career. Without even a flinch, Jr. kept the throttle pinned to the floor as he continued his march to the front of the field.

With some great calls coming from his crew chief, Tony Eury Sr., "The Outlaw," as he is being tagged, began to make his march up through the field during the final 10 laps. It was only fitting that he would have to pass his dad on his way to a duel with Dale Jarrett, who had about a seven-car length lead on the field.

SHANNON SIZEMORE SLID safely into second base in the sixth inning of the girls opening softball tournament game at Garrett Park. Allen Central dropped a 12-10 decision to Prestonsburg (photo by Ed Taylor)

On lap eight of the final segment, Dale Jr. went around Jarrett and never looked back as he went on to win in a race that fits his style of driving maybe as good as any driver with the exception of his dad. To win this race you have to be aggressive and willing to put your car in places that look like it just wouldn't go. For years an Earnhardt had been doing just that and now it seems like we may continue to see the same style for many years to come.

Every fan was treated to one fantastic night of racing and was able to take their mind off the absence of the Petty family, but while Dale Jr. was celebrating in victory lane the announcement was made that a pedestrian bridge had collapsed outside the speedway and that everyone needed to just remain inside the track.

Sandwiched in between these two tragedies was a very special night of racing from a young driver who is showing the racing community that he is capable of living up to the expectations that come from having a last name of Earnhardt.

Under Hal Mumme, the Kentucky football program has made tremendous progress in a short amount of time. But the next hurdle to clear could be the toughest — beating Florida, Tennessee and Georgia, something the Wildcats will have to do to realize their goal of winning a SEC championship.

Perhaps, though, the 2000 season will provide an opportunity to knock a hole in that wall.

College Football News has produced a list of 10 teams that its editors believe will be disappointments this fall, relative to their recent success. And topping that list is Tennessee.

CFN notes the wealth of talent

the Vols lost to the NFL along with a tough schedule as the reasons for projecting a temporary slide in Knoxville (not to mention the rumors of academic misdeeds that won't seem to disappear).

"Don't be shocked if they pull a 1999 Ohio State and take a major step back," says the writer for collegefootballnews.com. "Get them this season when they're rebuilding everywhere because they'll be right back in the hunt for the national title in 2001."

As for the rest of the list of projected disappointments, Stanford is next, followed by Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, Colorado, Michigan State, West Virginia, Penn State and Hawaii.

Now before you Big Blue fans get too excited about possible slippage in Knoxville, remember that College Football News is also the outfit that forecast a 2-9 season for Kentucky last fall.

PREAKNESS RECAP

Since the first year a horse won the Triple Crown, there's never been a time when a winner of that title was not alive. Even though it had been a quarter of a century between Triple Crown winners when Secretariat made his assault on that goal in 1973, Count Fleet was still hanging on.

Affirmed and Seattle Slew are still with us, but will they live to see the next Triple Crown winner?

After three years of near misses on the Triple Crown trail, Fusaichi Pegasus sparked enthusiasm about his chances to achieve that feat as soon as he hit the wire on Kentucky Derby day. But Saturday's Preakness reminded us that there are no sure things in this game.

Trainer Wayne Lukas' pre-race analysis was right on the mark. He said horses are not the like the cars the NASCAR drivers pilot — and living, breathing creatures are subject to a lot more uncontrollable variables than those vehicles are.

Was it the two-week turnaround that did it in Pegasus? Or was it the conservative handling of the colt, leaving him short of his best at the Preakness? Or, as trainer Neil Drysdale claimed, was it the racing surface made slick by recent rains in Baltimore?

For now, I'm betting on the latter. The short turnaround time may have been a contributing factor, but I'll always bet against the notion that a horseman as astute as Drysdale ran a "short horse" in a race of this magnitude.

Asphalt doesn't vary that much for a car, but a dirt track does for a horse. And from the start of the Preakness, we never seemed to see that smooth, effortless stride in Fusaichi Pegasus. Instead, he was laboring and that was especially noticeable on the turn for home, when Red Bullet beat the favorite to a key spot.

Normally, I don't bet on heavy favorites like Fusaichi Pegasus, preferring instead to try and scope out improving horses that are being overlooked, like Red Bullet. But Pegasus' performance at the Derby was so overpowering that I jumped on the bandwagon. For me, it's too soon to admit this horse was overrated or overhyped.

Sometimes the phrase "he didn't like the track" is an excuse — and other times, it's a reason to explain a seemingly inexplicable result.

In the spring of 1972, Riva Ridge was the class of his class, but he lost the Preakness to little-known Bee Bee Bee when the track came up muddy. Three weeks later, Riva Ridge easily won the Belmont. Don't be surprised if Fusaichi Pegasus repeats that feat next month.

Sports In PERSPECTIVE

Denis Harrington

The truth of the matter is nobody's really very good.

For years former National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle pushed parity as a desirable state of affairs for his province.

With this in mind, the annual draft was arranged so that teams with losing records got first shot at the cream of the collegiate crop. Then came the salary cap so a few of the deep-pocket clubs couldn't buy up most of the talent and freeze out the lesser endowed NFL member. And the finishing touch to this marvelous piece of orchestration slipped in under the guise of expansion.

Next year there are going to be 32 teams in the NFL. Are we to believe that there is sufficient talent of major pro football status to people these squads? One very prominent critic of all this maneuvering is John Unitas.

"Let's face it," he said of late. "There is only so much talent out there. Once you get beyond the first three rounds of the draft, it's strictly a grab bag. Right now each club in the league has a dozen or so guys on the roster who shouldn't even be given a uniform. No way most of these guys could have played in my time when there were less than half as many teams as now. The hard fact is the product's badly diluted."

To make matters worse, the courts got into the mix and declared free agency as a must for the NFL. So now those players a club can't legally protect given this system, and they are a substantial number, may skip to any team that comes up with the money worthy of their talents (a personalized viewpoint, of course).

Recently erstwhile Pittsburgh Steelers head coach Chuck Noll observed, "Under the current personnel arrangement in the NFL it's like conaching in college. Each year you have to deal with the losses of a graduating class. It's nigh to impossible to keep a team together for more than a few years at most. No way we could have won four Super Bowls with all the movement there is nowadays."

Another striking reality is the inability of the prevailing NFL players to tackle anybody. The art of open field tackling has almost completely disappeared in favor of bulldozing and general rodeo techniques. About the only thing lacking is to rope three legs before the whistle blows.

Grabbing, snatching and "ride 'em cowboy" tactics are presently the norm. This particularly irks the rock-ribbed defenders of yesteryear such as Larry Wilson, a Hall of Fame safety with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I see guys today, cornerbacks and safeties who are supposed to be your most sure-handed tacklers, trying to block people down," he said, disgust evident in his voice. "Not a few times I've seen this stunt done with the result that the offensive player was knocked into the end zone for a score. They give you shoulder pads so you can plant them right on a guy and drive the legs out from under him. Did somebody decide something was wrong with that?"

Just prior to his death, Green Bay Packers great linebacker Ray Nitschke observed, "There are a lot of fundamental errors now in the pro game. The running backs are getting the ball stripped so much because they don't know how to protect it. Blocking and tackling is sloppy. This is just poor coaching. Such things should be dealt with in practice. What you don't do in practice will surface under pressure in a game."

So the sum and substance of all this is that nobody's really any good today. The Tampa Bay Buccaneers with a supposedly standout defense get laced 45-0 by the wildly inconsistent Oakland Raiders and each weekend the composite points scored in many games total in the 70s and 80s. What's more, special teams play have become practically nonexistent. Now it's not uncommon for a game to feature a kickoff return of 80 or 90 yards and several punt runbacks in the upper double digits.

Don't believe all is not cool? Just run an eyeball down the list of playoff participants. Therein reside a plethora of 8-8 and 9-7 teams. And while a few respectable records can be found — those of the St. Louis Rams, Jacksonville Jags, Indy Colts, Tennessee Titans — all their owners have displayed a glaring case of clay feet during the recently completed season.

The Week Ahead in NASCAR • May 24, 2000

Fast Fact

Jack Sprague has won a NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series race in five consecutive seasons.

Drivers attribute their successes to physical fitness

miles, either.

Mike Skinner, driver of the No. 31 Lowe's Chevrolet, said it's important to be physically prepared and to have the team mentally focused for a longer race, even though the engine takes the biggest beating.

That wasn't always the case. In the past, many teams would look for a driver from a team whose car had met some trouble and was knocked out of the race early. That driver would be used as a relief driver, taking the place of the regular driver, who may have been suffering from heat exhaustion or other strains.

With the races taking less time, there are fewer instances where a relief driver is needed today. Some thought Tony Stewart would need one last year. Stewart drove in the Indianapolis 500 early in the day, then flew into Lowe's Motor Speedway for the start of the 600-mile Winston Cup event. He didn't need any relief — other than plenty of fluids — partly because Stewart and other drivers today take care of themselves physically.

Even 24-year-old Elliott Sadler, in his second season, realizes the importance of being in the best shape possible. He didn't have that philosophy before.

"I'm young and in pretty decent shape," said Sadler, 24. "But at some of the tracks where there's a lot of manhandling going on, I didn't feel like I was able to stay on top of the wheel like I should have."

Sadler talked to veteran driver and fitness fanatic Mark Martin, who readily admits that getting physically fit changed his life.

"You really don't know how good you can feel until you really work at it," Sadler said. "This winter, I made up my mind to stick to a program. I feel so much better as a person. I feel like I'm on top of the world."

Geoffrey Bodine was a big fitness fan until he tried to own his own team and didn't have time to go to the gym. However, after selling his team in 1999, he got back into the routine. After a fiery, horrific crash at the season-opening truck race in Daytona, Bodine was glad to be fit as fit as he was.

"I'd been working out a year and a half before the accident," said Bodine, who broke his wrist and injured his back in the crash. "I started again because I knew I needed to get in better physical condition to compete the way I wanted to."

"Starting this season, I was in the best physical shape I'd enjoyed in years and years and years. I'm sure that helped me through the crash to lessen the injuries."

Jarrett said being physically fit was as important as anything else in winning last year's Winston Cup championship.

"I'm 43 years old now, so I have to make sure I don't give up anything," Jarrett said. "I enjoy doing it. It's not only going to help me year to year, but it's gonna probably lengthen my career as a driver."

Of course, being fit has another huge advantage when it comes to the Coca-Cola 600: The trophy weighs 55 pounds.

"Starting this season I was in the best physical shape I'd enjoyed in years and years and years. I'm sure that helped me through the crash to lessen the injuries."

— Geoffrey Bodine

By HENRY MILLER

BELIEVE it or not, technology does have some benefits. Consider this:

In 1960, J.L. Johnson ran his Chevrolet to victory at the first World 600 race at Charlotte Motor Speedway. His average speed was 107.752 miles per hour. That means it took just over 5 1/2 hours to complete the 600-mile event.

Turn the clock forward 35 years to 1995: Bobby Labonte wins the Coca-Cola 600 with an average speed of 151.952 miles per hour, completing the race in 3 hours, 56 minutes and 55 seconds.

If you're a driver, you gotta love that.

For machines, however, all the technology in the world can't stop the additional wear and tear that comes with a 600-mile event.

"We build our cars for 500-mile races," said Dale Jarrett, driver of the No. 88 Quality Care Ford. "When you add another hundred miles to that, it is a real strain, especially on the engine side. That last 100 miles is when you see things start happening to more cars than you see in 500-mile races."

All that technology can't make you physically ready for 600

Keep safety in mind for boating season

Memorial Day weekend is the traditional start of the summer boating season in Kentucky. The excitement generated by the longer days and warmer temperatures of May could cause boat owners to overlook important safety considerations as they put their boats in the water for the first time of the year.

Kentucky boaters must have personal flotation devices for each person on board and they need to be in reach at all times, not stowed in a compartment. A new law effective July 15, sponsored by Rep. Steven Riggs, D-Louisville, will require all persons under the age of 12 to wear a lifejacket when the boat is under power.

All boats longer than 16 feet with the exception of canoes and kayaks must have one throwable personal flotation device on board. Every boat with an engine must have a working fire extinguisher. A signaling device must be on board in the form of a boat horn or a loud whistle.

Other highly recommended, but not required, items on your boat include a first aid kit, owner's manual, tow rope, flashlight, boat paddle, spare batteries, jumper cables, an anchor, an extra shear pin for your propeller, tool kit, extra food and water and a two-way radio or cell phone. These items are indispensable, especially on larger lakes and rivers.

Before you launch your boat, a quick check of commonly overlooked aspects of your rig will make your trip a pleasurable experience instead of a nightmare.

Make sure your navigation lights are working as well as your bilge pump. Check your boat plug to make sure it seals properly and is not worn. Batteries stored all winter need to be charged before use. Nothing will ruin a trip to the lake like dead batteries.

Trailer lights must be in proper working order. Lubricate your trailer wheel bearings. A common summertime sight on Kentucky highways is a boat and trailer leaning on its side with one wheel missing. This is the result of wheel bearings seizing because of heat build-up due to a lack of lubrication. Remember to check trailer tire pressure. Trailer tires usually deflate a little during winter due to the cold weather, and don't forget to check the spare trailer tire.

Water sports such as boating and fishing grow in popularity each year. This year there will be more boats on the water with many of those boats operated by novices. Therefore, safety becomes more important with each passing year.

The most important thing you can do is pay attention at all times. Constantly watch for other boaters, especially personal watercraft such as Wave Runners. Their quick acceleration and low profile make them difficult to see.

A person must be at least 12 years old to operate a personal watercraft or motorboat greater than 10 horsepower on Kentucky waterways. Those persons operating a boat or personal watercraft between the ages of 12 and 17 must possess a safe boater's certificate.

Keep these safety considerations in mind as you launch your boating season. It is a time for enjoyment, not tragedy.

For more information, contact the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Law Enforcement Division by writing KDFWR, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY, 40601 or call 1-800-858-1549.

Earnhardt, Jr. wins Winston

Dale Earnhardt, Jr. became the first rookie to win NASCAR's all-star race by taking a scintillating victory in Saturday night's The Winston. Crossing the finish line first at the end of 70 action packed laps earned Earnhardt Jr. and the Budweiser crew a cool check for $516,410. Earnhardt Jr. Now goes into next week's Coca-Cola 600 having won the last two Winston Cup races. After finishing third in both of the two 30-lap segments, Dale Jr. took command with one lap to go in the final 10-lap dash for the big cash. He was followed at the finish by two other Dales, Jarrett in second and Earnhardt in third.

A gut wrenching decision to make a pit stop with eight laps to go proved to be the winning call from Earnhardt's crew. Running third at the time, the team decided to amble by stopping for four new tires, dropping them to 10th position when the green flag fell again. Gaining one or two positions per lap, Dale Jr. pulled close behind leader Jarrett with two laps to go, eventually nosing ahead with one lap to go and then pulling away on the final circuit to take the victory as the crowd of more than 150,000 fans erupted in cheers.

"It must be a full moon or something," said Dale Jr. "We had so many troubles and so many setbacks that it is unbelievable to me that we're standing here in the victory lane. We hit the wall, we had a left rear tire come loose on the hub after the first segment and yet despite all that we fought and fought and we ended up with such a great finish. The car was haulin' butt until I hit the wall, and then it slowed down a bit, but we made some changes and it was awesome fast those last final laps."

Earnhardt led only two laps in six weeks. However, he led the lap that counted most. His winner's purse of more than half a million dollars paid the team more than $7,377 per lap run or $4,918 per mile raced.

The overall points and rookie standings stay the same as the Winston is not a points-paying event.

FANS, SPORTS CLASH, COLLIDE

There are seemingly more and more incidents between fans and sports figures. Why are there so few problems for stock cars racers?

Several Los Angeles Dodgers got into a bench clearing tussle with Wrigley Field fans May 16, after fans stole Chad Kreuter's at and hit him in the ninth inning of Los Angeles' 6-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs. When the fight was over, several fans had been hauled out, the game had been delayed almost 10 minutes, there was litter on the field and the Dodgers were in shock at one of the more bizarre events ever at Wrigley Field.

Evens like this are repeated several times a year in most sports, but hardly ever is there an incident such as the one at Chicago in stock car events.

Shawna Robinson, driver of the Kmart Kids against Drugs Chevrolet in the ARCA Series gives her views.

"I've worked hard to get to the point, where I have a really good race team, a chance to win races, a shot to win a championship and all of that kind of stuff. Making it go is Kmart, promoting the Kmart Kids Race Against Drugs program. How can I do anything but love the fans?"

When it all comes down to it, they are the reason I have a good ride and the reason I have a good opportunity.

"I've sat and signed autographs for a long line of people before and, to tell you the truth, it's usually a pretty enjoyable experience. You end up meeting some really nice people, people who love racing and who love the drivers and who love the sponsors and appreciate the opportunity to see it whenever they can. How can you fault anybody like that? Passion is nice and I think race fans have all of the positives of that without the negatives like shooting each other or setting cars on fire after a big race or those sorts of things.

"I believe we are drawing more of a family type fan that maybe other sports are drawing, and that might be a big difference is sitting there with him. You look back and there have been some pretty hard fought races and some pretty intense deals over the years, but the fans have been really well-behaved afterwards. It says something about our sport but, you know what, it says a whole lot about the kind of people who are coming to watch us race."

Arts festival is truly 'fine'

Story and photos by Willie Elliott Staff Writer

Last Thursday night you might say the "cream came to the top" as the most talented Floyd County students in music and art convened at the Mountain Arts Center (MAC) to celebrate the Fine Arts Festival.

After being introduced by MAC Assistant Director Keith Caudill, Superintendent Paul Fanning told the families and friends that the festival was celebrating its 53rd year and it seems to him that the festival gets better each year.

After an invocation by board member Johnnie Ross, the bands began to entertain the group with a varied selection of music.

In the absence of Shandrea Jo Pack, last year's queen who traditionally crowns the new queen and was slated to sing the national anthem, Clayton Case from Betsy Layne Elementary filled in admirably.

Caudill introduced the four candidates for Fine Arts Festival Queen — Leslie Compton, Jamie LeAnn Gunnell, Greta Davidson Hicks and Alicia Renee Shell — during a break in the performance by the Junior All-County Band.

Prior to the musical selections by the Junior All-County and Senior All-County Bands, visitors had an opportunity to view the visual arts produced by high school students throughout Floyd County.

The junior band performed "Canadian Shield March," "Creepy Crawlies," "Reggae Vibrations," "Crescent Moon" and "Fire Dance," while the senior band performed "Acclamations," "Invicta," "Selection from TARZAN," and "When the Stars Began to Fall."

Between the performances by the junior and senior bands, Susan Compton and Caralita O'Quinn introduced the various winners for art.

A husband and wife team of Jennifer and Kevin Bowling, who are music instructors in Pike County, served as guest conductors. Both commented on the dedication and good work habits of the band members.

Kevin Bowling told the group that many schools systems consider the arts the "fat of the curriculum" and the first budget that is cut. He asked the parents to tell the Floyd County system, "This is not the fat; this is where it is at," referring to the importance of art and music in the school curriculum.

The program concluded with Fanning crowning Leslie Compton of South Floyd High School as this year's queen.

Angry moms and bluegrass music

"Enough is enough" was the battle cry at the Million Mom March that took place a couple of weekends ago in Washington, D.C.

Thousands of "angry" mothers rallying in support of more gun-control legislation must have been an impressive, even scary, sight.

I base that, of course, on my own experiences with mothers, and use the word "scary" because that's what my mother always was when she was "angry."

Joe and I were our parents' second family. We came along, nearly three years apart, seven years after the last of their first five kids had been born. My oldest brother Ulysses is 16 years my senior. Four other siblings followed him, two years apart.

So, by the time Mom was having to deal with Joe and me, although she had tons of experience rearing children, she had to be just a tad out of practice. I'm certain that neither of us did anything to make her job any easier.

Not that we'd have done anything deliberately to provoke her anger, but the mere fact that we were typical coal-camp kids was more than enough to strain anything resembling a peaceful parent-child relationship.

Most of the time, our punishment would consist of "Wait 'til your daddy gets home."

That threat usually fell on deaf ears because we both knew that by the time Dad got home she'd forget to tell him that we'd gotten into a scuffle and turned over the churn or that our little mud fight had ruined the freshly-washed sheet that she'd hung on the clothesline to dry.

Her method of corporal punishment for infractions that merely aggravated her, as opposed to those that made her angry, usually consisted to her tapping us repeatedly on the tops of our heads with her bony knuckles.

Our response to that was usually a well-concealed snicker from the other brother.

However, when she really decided that enough was enough, and would actually become angry enough to wrap a keen willow switch around our bare, boney legs, that was another matter altogether.

If those "angry" moms who marched in Washington had carried a keen willow switch, bet those legislators responsible for making stronger gun laws would have been a bit more attentive.

There's good news for those of us who fondly remember "real" country music.

Floyd County's Dan Carriere and his Goodyme Productions has put together what promises to be a real treat, especially for bluegrass fans.

It's being called "Traditions, a Kentucky music celebration," and is a two-day event set for the Laurel County Fairgrounds for June 2 and 3.

Ricky Skaggs, J. D. Crowe, and Blue Highway are just a few of the names on the bill. If you're interested in going, give Dan a call at 1-888-790-235. It's a free call.

The Runt

This story came to me by way of Norma Hinchman of Ivel. I don't think it was original with her, and we'll just say the author is unknown—at least to us. Norma wrote:

A farmer had some puppies he needed to sell, so he painted a sign and set about nailing it to a post on the edge of his yard. As he was driving the last nail, he felt a tug on his overalls. He looked down into the eyes of a little boy. "Mister," he said, "I want to buy one of your puppies."

"Well," said the farmer, as he rubbed sweat from the back of his neck, "these puppies come from fine parents and cost a good deal of money."

The boy dropped his head for a moment. Then reaching deep into his pocket, he pulled out a handful of change and held it up to the farmer. "I've got thirty-nine cents. Is that enough to take a look?"

"Sure," the man said, and with that he let out a whistle. "Here, Dolly," he called, and out from the doghouse and down the ramp ran the dog being followed by four little balls of fur.

The child pressed his face against the chain link fence, and his eyes danced with delight. But as the dogs made their way to the fence, he noticed something else stirring inside the doghouse.

Slowly another little ball appeared, this one noticeably smaller. Down the ramp it slid. Then in a somewhat awkward manner, the little pup began hobbling toward the others, doing its best to catch up.

"I want that one," the boy said, pointing to runt. The farmer knelt down by his side and said, "Son, you don't want that puppy. He will never be able to run and play like these other dogs."

With that the boy stepped back from the fence, knelt down and began rolling up one leg of his pants. In doing so, he revealed a steel brace running down both sides of his leg attaching itself to a special made shoe.

Looking up at the man, he said, "Sir, you see, I don't run too well myself, and he will need someone who understands."

Progress Report

In writing about a dog, I thought it might be good to give a progress report on the new little dachshund we acquired back in February. When she first came, she was this shy little thing who was startled by the slightest new move and who would bark at the sound of a falling leaf.

The first time I invited her to go with me to fill up the bird feeders, she followed me out the door. But when I turned to see where she was, she was nowhere to be found. I called and called, walked all around the house and was thinking of how I would tell Walter I'd lost his dog. But when I came back inside, she was sitting there waiting for me. She had zipped back in before the door went back together, and she made it clear she didn't want to go outside any more.

She's come a long way in the three months since she came. She now thinks she owns the whole house, and she darts in and out any time she sees the door open. She likes women more than men, and she enjoys showing her scar where she had her operation.

She had a nice little bed made of foam rubber and covered with a soft velveteen material. She learned to turn it over and chew on the bottom and we kept having to sweep up the fragments. Before we hardly knew, there was nothing left but the cover. She had eaten her bed. We got a new one that will be a little harder to demolish, but she's already trying.

When I see veterinarians Joey Collins or Rudolph Ousley again, I think I'll ask if they ever prescribe ritalin for a dog.

Area teachers to attend seminar on dance, drama

Teachers from southeast Kentucky will be the first teachers in the state to take part in a pilot program for the arts developed by the Kentucky Department of Education, the Kentucky Center for the Arts, the Kentucky Arts Council and the Region 8 Service Center.

The Academy for Theatre & Dance for Teachers, July 24 - 28, at the Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg, is designed to prepare teachers K-12 to meet KERA mandates in arts education.

Two teachers from each of the 15 Region 8 school districts have been selected to attend the Academy. Carole Mullins, language arts consultant at the Region 8 Service Center, sees this as a way to reach every corner of the region.

"Teachers are being told to incorporate the arts into every part of the curriculum," Mullins says, "but while there are certified specialists in music and the visual arts, no certification exists in dance and drama."

"The academy will train a core of teachers to go back to their districts with great ideas and techniques in these important arts."

Through hands-on performance experience, faculty members Jennifer Rose (dance) and Madeline McGeeney (drama) hope to increase the comfort level of teachers when using arts education in the classroom.

In addition, teachers will attend a field trip to demonstrate how the arts can be used to teach a wide range of subjects.

"This is about more than teaching dance and drama," Mullins adds. "It's about understanding new and engaging methods for incorporating the arts into English, social studies, even math and the sciences. It's a very comprehensive program."

The Department of Education hopes to expand the academy to serve all eight of Kentucky's Service Center Regions in coming years.

Artisan Center pre-jury workshop success

Artisans from seven area counties recently participated in a workshop hosted by the Kentucky Appalachian Artisan Center, in Hindman. The workshop was presented by Anna Marie Hayden of the Kentucky Craft Marketing Program.

During the workshop, artisans learned about the advantages of being a member of the Craft Marketing Program, the process of jurying as a member of the organization, and how to best present their work.

The Kentucky Craft Marketing Program in Frankfort is a one-of-a-kind organization for the state. It was created with the purpose of marketing quality hand-crafted wares for Kentucky citizens throughout the state, nation and world.

One of the artisans who juryed with the organization last year was Michael Ware, a pottery maker from Knott County. "Ever since my work has been labeled with the Craft Marketing logo, my sales have definitely increased, and as a result, I've been able to increase my prices," Ware said.

The Kentucky Appalachian Artisan Center, in an effort to assist artisans and preserve the heritage of eastern Kentucky, is helping artisans through the jury process.

Executive Director Carla S. Coburn stated, "We want to have as many artisans as possible in our area benefit from this prestigious state program. We have a lot of talent and quality work in our area, which is marketable."

The Kentucky Appalachian Artisan Center will be delivering artisans' work to Frankfort for jurying. The deadline to submit work to the Artisan Center is 5 p.m., June 2. For more information about submitting work, contact the Artisan Center at 606/785-9855.

Organizations Marine Corps League holds election

The Eastern Kentucky Detachment of the Marine Corps League met at the Veterans Referral Center on Sunday, May 13, to elect officers for 2000-01.

Elected were Ray Brackett, commandant and adjutant/paymaster; Joel Stumbo, senior vice commandant; Danny Francis, junior vice commandant; Clay Wells, judge advocate; Donnie Francis, chaplain; Thomas R. Burgess, sergeant-at-arms; and Scotty Francis, deputy sergeant-at-arms.

Ron Bricking, junior vice commandant of the Department of Kentucky MCL, administered the oath of membership to Scotty Francis, associate member.

The department will hold its annual conference on June 3 in Elizabethtown at the Marine House.

Any former or active Marine may contact Brackett at 606/673-4579 for information regarding membership. "We are still seeking 'The Proud, The Few Good Men - The Marines,'" Brackett said.

PLAY BALL!

by Richard H. Middleton Jr. and Penny Gold

One of the joys of this time of year is seeing girls and boys participating in community sports leagues.

Stopping to watch these young athletes run the base paths, chase down fly balls and join in football scrimmages is a delightful reminder of the carefree days of our own adolescence. One can't help but raise a voice and root them on.

Another cheer should be raised to show appreciation for America's civil justice's system, which has brought about the many advancements in sports safety that ensure our children are able to have fun and safe playing experiences.

That's just what Sports Illustrated did in its landmark piece entitled "The Safest Season," detailing the first season in years in which no high school football players died from head injuries. The reason: juries ensuring that inferior helmets have no place on the playing field.

That means that last year was the first in years in which there were no stories like James Arnold's. In 1998, James was rendered quadriplegic and respirator-dependent after a junior high football collision caused his spine to fracture. The jury found that the helmet he was wearing was defective and that the company's decision not to add extra padding to the helmet—padding the company included in other models—was the cause of his injury.

The civil justice system has had an affect on more than sports safety equipment. It was this system that opened up Little League programs to girls. That landmark case—Rappaport v. Little League issued a public statement that it would immediately permit girls to register in the League's program.

Not everyone is happy about juries' effects on youth sports. One oft-heard concern is that the threat of litigation has driven up the cost of liability insurance, threatening the survival of these leagues. But the facts do not support such allegations.

In fact, the opposite is true. A study by the Risk and Insurance Management Society reveals that liability costs are actually decreasing, with the cost of liability risk per $1000 of revenue falling to $1.93 in 1997 from $3.14 in 1992. If the cost of litigation were increasing, prices would be going up, not down.

In addition, a study released in February 2000 by two University of Georgia professors defuses the "litigation explosion" myth.

After examining more than 27,000 Georgia civil cases in several counties over eight years, the professors found that not only do tort suits—including product cases—make up only a small fraction of the overall civil caseload (about 5 percent to 7 percent) but that the rate of tort filings is actually declining when adjusted for population growth.

The fact is that Americans believe in the concept of personal responsibility. That's a valuable lesson taught in youth sports and put into action by our civil justice system.

Love: The anti-drug

(NAPSA)—Picture the scene: you take your daughter to the mall and she doesn't want to walk too close to you, or you drop off your son at practice and he leaps out of the car practically before it's come to a stop.

You love your kids and want what's best for them, but sometimes it can be hard to demonstrate how much you love them, particularly as they grow up and become more independent.

Research shows that one of the best ways you can help your kids avoid drug use is by spending time with them. Here are some helpful suggestions for knowing what's going on in your child's world when they seem to close every door to you:

Be a good role model for your kids. There is no such thing as "do as I say not as I do" when raising children. If you take drugs or abuse alcohol, your children are observing and learning from your behavior. On the other hand, if you are a living, day-to-day example of your value system, your children will learn and emulate the compassion, honesty, generosity and openness that you want your children to have.

Be involved in your children's lives. According to behavioral scientist, Tony Biglan, Ph.D., there are simple ways to be part of your child's life:

- 1) Create "together time." Start a tradition or fun, weekly routine to do something with your child, such as going out for ice cream.
- 2) Eat meals together as often as possible. Mealtime is a great opportunity to talk about the day's events, unwind, and reinforce a family bond. Studies show that kids whose families eat together at least five times a week are less likely to be involved with drugs and alcohol.
- 3) Try to be home after school. The "danger zone" for drug use and other risky behavior is between 4 and 6 p.m. If you can, arrange to have flextime if it's available at your workplace. When your child will be with friends, make sure there is adult supervision.

Hair Today

Beating hair blues

(NAPSA)—Dry, brittle strands; limp locks; and hair breakage, all call for strong solutions. You need, however, to pair strength with gentleness.

Today, hair damage comes from certain culprits, and the hair conditioning experts say three simple questions can expose them. To discover what's causing hair havoc and how to fight it, answer the following questions:

1. Where have you been spending your time lately?

If it's indoors: Dry indoor air can cause static and flyaways. You need moisturizers that counteract dryness and cuticle smoothers that replenish shine with gentle, effective emollients.

If it's outdoors: The sun's UV rays and environmental pollutants are your greatest enemies because they degrade the cuticle and the hair's inner core, encouraging breakage. Fight back with naturally formulated strengtheners and revitalizers that work from within and contain provitamins and UV filters that help protect color-treated hair from fading and natural hair from breaking.

2. What do you do to your hair most often?

If you color your hair: you've broken some important inner bonds. In addition, you've raised the cuticle, allowing moisture to escape. Re-moisturize regularly and reach for serious strengtheners at least once a week. One to try: VO5 Hot Oil Shower Works Color-Treated Hair Treatment with UV Shield.

If you blow dry daily, or use curling and pressing irons: you're sealing the cuticle after depleting moisture. Put the moisture back with a nourishing formula, then seal the cuticle and always direct air flow from your blow dryer straight down the hair shaft. Use thermal tools at the minimum heat-setting necessary. If the heat's gotten too hot, reach for a serious deep conditioner, such as VO5's Total Hair Recovery, to replenish nutrients and rebuild strength.

If you keep it as natural as you can: keep up the effort by re-hydrating weekly with a hot oil treatment or a quick conditioner.

3. What is your hair type?

If it's fine: use products that add volume and inner strength without weighing hair down or coating the cuticle.

If it's curly: Moisture leeches out at the crux of every curl and your hair reflects less light, so it's a bit duller-looking than straight hair. Use a light hairdressing such as VO5's Sheer Hairdressing anti-frizz shine creme to add smoothness and shine.

If it's color-treated: it's a truly modern type! Rely on products that protect your color's vibrancy while strengthening your hair. Look for products with a UV shield, such as VO5's spray-on Color Protection Complex, to help keep the sun's ultra-violet rays from damaging your hair.

Take a three-pronged approach toward beating your hair's blues: counteract damage, restore moisture and protect against the elements for more beautiful hair!

Psoriasis sufferer should ask doctor for a 'stronger hammer'

Question: I have recently developed a problem with my scalp. It started with a small area that itched and had dry flaky scales on it. Occasionally, one of these 'sores' makes a sticky substance.

Now the condition seems to be spreading over my entire scalp. I saw a dermatologist, who said I have psoriasis. He gave me a prescription for a special shampoo, but this doesn't seem to help very much. Can you recommend something that I can do to cure this problem?

Answer: I think most people are familiar with the name "psoriasis" but may not understand the nature of the condition. Medical scientists believe that psoriasis is due to an abnormality in the body's immune system, specifically in the helper T-cells.

In this disorder, the immune system attacks apparently healthy tissue — most commonly skin, joints or nails — and causes inflammation of it. This results in a reddish-colored skin lesion with thickened, often silver-colored areas on top that are called scales.

These psoriasis lesions can develop on any part of the body, but they are most common on the outside surfaces of the elbows and knees, on the scalp, the palms and the feet.

Psoriasis is certainly a common problem — it afflicts about 6.4 million Americans. It may first appear at any age, even in childhood, but most people don't show signs of it until they are adults.

Psoriasis also has a strong genetic component. That's why those with a family history of it have a much greater risk of developing the disorder. Specifically, the general population risk is about four percent, but if one parent has psoriasis, the risk rises to 28 percent, and if both parents suffer from the disease, the risk rises dramatically to 68 percent.

Men and women are troubled with this in equal frequency, so the disorder is not linked to the "X" chromosome. Actually, most experts think that there is more than one gene involved in the inheritance of this disorder.

Although a cure for psoriasis hasn't been found, we are fortunate to have a number of treatments that do give a "temporary clearing" of this life-long condition for most sufferers. The shampoo your dermatologist prescribed is one of these. Don't be disheartened that it didn't work.

To borrow an explanation from my carpentry experience: You don't use a sledgehammer to drive a carpet tack. Your doctor started you on the mildest medicine that was likely to give you relief — a tack hammer, if you will.

Go talk to him again. He has many other treatment options available before getting to the "sledgehammer" one.

You shouldn't limit your treatment for psoriasis to only the drugs you get from your doctor. A psoriasis attack can be brought on by emotional stress, so try to view life from a more relaxed perspective. Skin irritation from chemicals or tight clothing can do it too, so obviously you should avoid these.

One of the most effective treatments you or your doctor can prescribe is sunlight exposure, but don't overdo your first few days out in our gorgeous spring weather because sunburn can make psoriasis worse.

I'd suggest that you talk to your dermatologist again because of the medical concerns and the significant social consequences of your condition.

WEDDINGS/ENGAGEMENTS

DeBoard-Combs plans told

Dennis and Janice DeBoard of Prestonsburg announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Katrina, and Steven Combs, son of David and Mary Ann Combs of Whitesburg. The bride-elect is a 1997 graduate of Morehead State University with a degree in allied health and science. She is employed as an x-ray technologist at Lake Cumberland Regional Hospital in Somerset and is a part-time employee at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington. The prospective groom is a 1992 graduate of MSU, with a degree in health and science. He is employed as a radiology supervisor at Lake Cumberland Regional Hospital. The wedding is planned for June 10, 2000, at 1:30 p.m., at Highland Avenue Freewill Baptist Church in Prestonsburg. The custom of an open ceremony will be observed.

Avoiding household burns

(NAPSA)-More than two million Americans suffer burn injuries each year, and about 70,000 of them require admission to the hospital.

"Burns are one of the leading causes of accidental injuries in childhood, and the greatest tragedy is that many of these could have been prevented," said Dr. David Wilcox of the American College of Emergency Physicians.

"Fortunately, there are steps you can take to protect your family and avoid a trip to the emergency department."

- When cooking, keep pot handles turned toward the rear of the stove, and never leave the pans unattended.

- Do not leave hot cups of coffee on tables or counter edges.

- Do not carry hot liquids or food near your child or while holding your child.

- Always test food temperatures before serving a child, especially foods or liquids heated in a microwave.

- Keep matches and lighters out of children's reach in a locked cabinet. Use only child-resistant lighters.

- Prevent scalding by keeping your water heater set at 120° to 125°F; test bath water before putting a child in the bathtub.

- Cover unused electric outlets with safety caps, and replace damaged, frayed or brittle electrical cords.

- Keep fire extinguishers on every floor of your house, especially in the kitchen, and know how to use them.

- Do not put water on a grease fire-it can spread the fire.

- Have a working smoke detector on every floor of your home. Check batteries at least once a year.

- Know what to do in case clothing catches fire: Stop (don't run), Drop (to the floor, immediately), and Roll (cover your face and hands while rolling over to smother the flames).

"For burns and other medical emergencies, it's important to know first aid," added Dr. Wilcox. For minor burns, run cool-not cold-water over the burn or hold a clean, cold compress on it until the pain subsides. Do not use butter or other types of grease. Do not apply ice. Remove jewelry or tight clothing from around burned areas, and apply a clean, dry dressing.

For more serious burns, do not use water or break blisters. Do not remove clothing if it is stuck to the burned skin. Keep the victim warm and dry, and keep burned arms or legs raised to reduce swelling.

Get immediate medical attention if you have any of the following symptoms related to a burn:

- fever
- pus-like or foul-smelling drainage
- excessive swelling
- redness of the skin
- a blister filled with greenish or brownish fluid
- a burn that doesn't heal in 10 days to 2 weeks.

American Cancer Society honors breast cancer survivors

(NAPSA)-Like so many women her age, Liz Wolfe was looking forward to enjoying middle age with family and friends when breast cancer almost changed that. She was 44 years old, a wife and a mother. "I felt so helpless, so alone," says Liz. "I really needed someone to talk to, someone who understood."

During her recovery from surgery, Liz was visited by a trained volunteer from the American Cancer Society's Reach to Recovery program. This one-to-one national peer support program of more than 17,000 breast cancer survivors is designed to support the concerns of individuals facing a breast cancer diagnosis or treatment. Reach to Recovery matched Liz with someone who had shared a similar experience. "I realized it is alright for me to feel the way I do," said Liz. "And breast cancer is not a death sentence." Liz was so moved by her Reach to Recovery experience, she became a volunteer to help others overcome their fears.

Today, Liz volunteers with her daughter, Carol, who also is a breast cancer survivor, to help the estimated 175,000 American women who will be diagnosed with breast cancer this year.

To honor the courage and strength of its more than 17,000 Reach to Recovery volunteers, this year the American Cancer Society launched "Expressions of Courage: Celebrating the Spirit," a national public arts program. People who experienced breast cancer, either personally or through a loved one, were encouraged to submit proposals that depict the courageous spirit of those who have battled breast cancer.

The winning entry was submitted by artist Paula Temple of Oxford, Miss., who created a colorful three-paneled painting that has captured the spirit of breast cancer survivors. Her submission, which was selected by a panel of art museum curators and Reach to Recovery volunteers, is touring the country.

To learn more about the American Cancer Society's Reach to Recovery program, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

Getting a man just got easier

(NUE) - So you haven't found the perfect man yet? Singles bars and blind dates haven't been too successful, and you're tired of waiting for Mr. Right to find you. So what are your options? You can sulk, give up or take control of your dating destiny and focus on getting a life - then getting a man.

The ultimate single woman's guide is here, and author Jennifer Bawden knows what she's talking about. After all, more than 30 weddings and engagements have resulted from advice she's given to friends. "Get a Life, Then Get a Man," released earlier this year, explains how women can get the man they want without compromising their standards.

Bawden urges women to enjoy being single and focus on their own goals. By realizing their own dreams, women will unleash confidence, passion and power - major turn-ons for men.

The book encourages women to take a proactive approach to all areas of their lives and provides everything women need to know about breaking those proverbial rules. It offers tips on how to screen, approach and evaluate the men of your choice. You'll learn how to avoid the 15 things women do that turn men off, like not saying thank you, not unlocking his car door or traveling with a busload of suitcases.

Bawden also offers advice on how to read for personality clues so you can avoid wasting time with the Ferrari (an airbag ego whose personal life takes a back seat), the Fisherman (he delivers the latest lines, lures and tackles) and the Bellhop, who comes with too much baggage.

The book lists basic steps women can take to improve their lives and increase their chances of landing a man, including questioning everything, acknowledging your flaws, making a list of what you want, committing to growth and focusing on reality.

Bawden urges single women to "break out of the spinster funk" by appreciating their single status. Enjoy what you have, she says, and remember: A man is not the solution, you are.

To find out more about improving your life and how that may help lead you down the aisle, pick up a copy of "Get a Life, Then Get a Man" from JenniferBawden.com, Amazon.com or any local bookstore.

Pin Oak Plaza 'grand opening' this weekend

Story and photos by Pam Shingler Business Editor

Area residents will have less reason to drive to Lexington and Huntington to shop if Marilyn Halbert continues development of her Pin Oak Plaza, south of Prestonsburg on US 23.

Halbert's Around the Clock Waffle House opened during the winter to immediate crowds. (She has since added ribs, fish and soup beans with cornbread to the dinner menu.)

In new structures across the driveway from the restaurant, two stores have opened within the last few weeks: Mertz Home Store and Just Your Style women's fashions.

Slated for opening within the next three weeks is a "bath and body" store, Luxurious Lagoon.

Walk into Mertz and you feel like you're walking into the pages of a catalog, such as Crate & Barrel or any number of upscale home decor outlets.

Wicker and rattan living and dining room suites, large clay urns, wooden animals, garden stones, china, softly-colored throws, paintings, frames, candles and assorted candleholders, rugs, baskets of all shapes and sizes — the merchandise fills the room from wall to wall, creating a challenge to navigate through.

One section is devoted to bedding, stacks and stacks of it, matching sets containing everything that goes on the bed, as well as the sleeper, from sheets to dust ruffles to slippers and gowns.

Halbert said she can order many items custom-made from the manufacturer.

The entrepreneur has shied away from the middleman as much as possible. She went to Thailand to pick out much of her current merchandise and is planning a buying trip to Hong Kong soon.

She said she also carries items from all over the United States, including some handmade pieces from this area.

"We have different stuff all the time," said Halbert, referring to the eclectic mix that is available.

She refuses to characterize the wares in one decorative genre. "We are a little bit modern, a little bit country," she said.

The clothing store, Just Your Style, has name brand dresses and casual wear to suit a range of ages and tastes. One Way Designs, for instance, offers a mix-and-match smorgasbord of dresses, blouses, shorts, slacks and skirts.

On a recent day, "Oohs" and "Ahs" from customers Marguerita Hampton and Juanita Parsons attested to the eye-pleasing costumes.

"We are a little bit modern, a little bit country"

The popular Liz Claiborne label will be represented in a few weeks, according to Kristin Halbert, who oversees the store while looking after her five-month-old twins, Chase and Victoria. (She has plenty of help since the operation is all in the family.)

Kristin Halbert is particularly proud of the jewelry case. "We have the least expensive sterling silver in the area," she said.

In a back room of the Mertz Home Store, employee Charlie Martin is preparing for the opening of Luxurious Lagoon.

She is partial to the brilliantly-colored negligees that are ready to be displayed, and she insisted that "our prices are less than half those of Victoria's Secret."

Even though it's after the fact, Marilyn Halbert is having the official grand opening for the restaurant, home store and clothing store over Memorial Day weekend.

Marilyn Halbert, owner of Mertz Home Store, purchases merchandise, such as this elegant rattan sofa set, from across the country and in the Far East. Baskets, stuffed animals, pillows, pictures, pottery and more are available at the Pin Oak Plaza complex.

Got a yen for chicken? The Mertz Home Store on US 23, south of Prestonsburg, has a collection of chickens to suit just about anyone, from giant wooden chickens to small ceramic ones.

Business owner Halbert says framed prints were big sellers for Mother's Day. Her home store has an array of china, napkins and table dressing. The grand opening for Pin Oak Plaza, where the store is located, is this weekend.

Charlie Martin shows some of the line that will be featured in the Luxurious Lagoon "bath and body" store that will open in a few weeks at Pin Oak Plaza. Already open is a women's clothing store, Just My Style.

Independent women's action project

by Jana Novak

Throw out the pocket protectors and throw in a bra. The stereotype of technology savvy people must now be updated to include women.

Not only are women overtaking male Internet consumers, but according to the Internet research firm, Venture One, they are also making themselves comfortable in the executive ranks of the "dot-com world."

In fact, women have doubled their presence in top-tier management positions just since 1998, holding an impressive 45 percent of those jobs at Internet firms receiving venture capital funding last year—compared to only 4 percent at traditional Fortune 500 companies. Even Time magazine included five women in its 1999 "Digital 50."

Obviously, the proliferation of technology has had widespread benefits for women. But the benefits are not only in terms of their success within its executive ranks, but also in terms of the freedom and flexibility it offers to find creative solutions to juggling a professional life and a personal life.

My friend Virginia, a married mother of one and the top communications officer at a Washington, D.C.-based public relations firm, understands this pressure.

Women & technology

Fortunately, an understanding employer and technological advances have allowed her to have the best of both worlds. By telecommuting from home two days a week, she's been able to continue putting her years of experience and PR savvy to use for clients while also spending quality time with her new toddler.

In other words, the flexibility and freedom provided by technology offers perhaps the first step toward answering the age-old dilemma for women: to stay at home or not to stay at home.

Whether a woman decides to work with her employer to create the flexibility she desires or to be her own boss through a home-based business, technology is the key factor.

In fact, while home-based businesses for women have been around for centuries, technology has taken it to a new level. Today, these businesses are no longer a way to simply supplement income, they are income.

Of course, technology had not just benefited working mothers. By now the tales of the "young millionaires" created through the stock market success of Internet start-ups are hard to ignore. But even without creating millionaires, technology provides flexibility and success for the younger generations.

In fact, the so-called "digital generations" are more professionally mobile and entrepreneurial than their ancestors. Technology has allowed them to make their skills applicable across a wide range of career fields, create their own businesses, garner greater compensation and benefits from companies, attend online academic classes, as well as allowing them the choice to work from home.

It appears not just mothers like the idea of a home office.

E-business conference slated

The University of Kentucky Gatton College of Business and Economics is co-sponsoring a three-day conference in Lexington, June 5-7, highlighting electronic commerce in the Midwest and putting entrepreneurs into contact with potential financial backers and investors.

"The Silicon Central Conference" set for the Embassy Suites Hotel on Newtown Pike, offers people interested in e-business the opportunity to advance and gain exposure for their enterprises.

"While the e-business communities on the coasts have received a great deal of attention, the innovation and value being created by companies in the 'Silicon Central' region makes this a high-tech hot spot," said Rick Baker, CEO of eCorporation, a co-sponsor of the conference.

"The conference will provide local Internet ventures with an opportunity to seek financing beyond the region and offer finance players a look at fresh ideas."

Industry leaders will conduct panels on topics including emerging wireless technologies; the Midwest, or "Silicon Central," as a high-tech center; the Internet's effect on training and development; and "clicks and mortar strategy."

As an added highlight, break-out sessions and other networking opportunities will be scheduled.

In keeping with the high-tech theme, events will be video-streamed live on Yahoo. A keynote address will be given by Ralph Seferian, vice president of e-business sales and operations at Oracle, one of the Internet-commerce industry's leading innovators.

Other scheduled speakers include management guru Tom Peters; Yahoo official Tim Sanders; Bob Ryan, vice president of site operations at Knight Ridder Interactive; and Bill Glynn, partner at SouthEast Interactive Technology Fund.

Entrepreneurs seeking funding are encouraged to submit business plans for consideration by applying on-line at www.SCEconference.com. "Pitch sessions" will permit entrepreneurs seeking early-stage funding to meet with potential investors and financial backers. Only 20 companies will be invited to pitch. A committee of financiers and regional business leaders will judge entries.

Other conference sponsors include Gray Capital, the investment arm of James N. Gray Co., Jobs.com, Arthur Anderson, Kentucky.com, Goldman Sach.

Nation honors entrepreneurs during small business week

President Bill Clinton has proclaimed May 21-27 as National Small Business Week to celebrate the contribution of America's 25 million small businesses.

The U.S. Small Business Administration sponsors national Small Business Week with a three-day celebration in the nation's capital, from May 23-25.

Festivities include the naming of the SBA National Small Business Person of the Year. The national winner is selected from 53 state Small Business Persons of the Year—one from each state, plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and Guam.

The SBA Kentucky Small Business Person of the Year Award recipients are Jacqueline Smith and Deborah Dyer, owner of Central Kentucky Research Associates Inc. (CKRA), located in Lexington.

CKRA conducts research studies for major drug companies in America and for a number of drug companies in Europe and Japan.

Smith and Dyer, both RNs, began the business in 1991, with $50 each. CKRA now employs 14 people and grossed more than $1.6 million last year.

Small Business Advocates are also honored during National Small Business Week. These awards recognize individuals who have been advocates of minority-owned, women-owned and veteran-owned small businesses.

Floodplains and Wetlands Notice NOTICE OF EXPLANATION

Floyd County plans to extend sewer service into the community of Auxier. The proposed project consists of approximately 6.43 miles of collection and conveyance lines and a duplex reversible sewage pumping station. The primary beneficiaries will be approximately 303 households and 11 businesses in the Auxier Community.

Portions of this project are located in the 100-year floodplain, and project activities, by virtue of their type and scope, must be conducted in the 100-year floodplain.

The proposed construction will conform with all applicable local, state, and federal floodplain construction standards. The proposed action will not affect the floodplain elevation.

Completion of this project will provide 303 homes and 11 businesses within the Auxier community with a sanitary sewer system. It is the County's judgment that the project activities will not adversely affect the 100-year floodplain, and that benefits to be derived from the project outweigh considerations of Executive Orders 11988 and 11990.

Agencies involved in the project are the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (Kentucky Community Development Block Grant) and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Comments on the proposed project will be accepted until the close of business, June 8, 2000. Comments should be sent to County Judge-Executive Paul H. Thompson, Floyd County Courthouse, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. A more detailed description of the project and the FIA flood maps are available for citizen review by contacting Libby Ratcliff at Big Sandy Area Development District, 100 Resource Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653.

LEGAL NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Kentucky Revised Statute 337.522, I, or my authorized agent, will on June 7, 2000, commencing on or about 9:00 a.m. (SDT), at the Floyd County Courthouse, 149 South Central Avenue, Suite 4, Law Library, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, hold a hearing to consider a revision of the prevailing wage rates for laborers, workmen, and mechanics engaged in the construction of public works projects in Locality No. 29 which consists of the following counties: Breathitt, Floyd, Johnson and Knott. Evidence relating to wages paid on building, heavy, and highway construction projects will be accepted at this hearing. This office will no longer be conducting mail surveys as in the past, mailed within 14 days from the date of the hearing to the Division of Employment Standards, Apprenticeship and Training, 1047 U.S. 127 South, Suite 4, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. All interested persons desiring to present evidence or offer testimony on this date are invited to attend the hearing. Any questions concerning this hearing should be referred to the Division of Employment Standards, Apprenticeship and Training at 502-564-3070.

Joe Norsworthy,
Secretary
Kentucky Labor
Cabinet

NOTICE OF PERMIT CONFERENCE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-5381 Amendment #1

In accordance with the provisions of 405 KAR 8:010 Section 11, notice is hereby given that a permit conference is scheduled for June 6, 2000, at 10:00 a.m., at the Prestonsburg Regional Office for the Department of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, concerning the above application filed by Elk Horn Coal Corporation, 544 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. The amendment is to an existing underground coal mining operation located 1.1 miles south of Langley in Floyd County. The proposed operation will add 9.68 surface acres and will underlie no additional underground acres, making a total area of 527.06 acres within the permit boundary.

The proposed operation is approximately 0.9 miles south of KY 80's junction with KY 777 and is located 0.1 miles east of Turkey Creek. The surface area to be disturbed is owned by Harold Ray Hagans and the Elk Horn Coal Corporation. The mineral is owned by the Elk Horn Coal Corporation and the operation will underlie land owned by Harold Ray Hagans, Charles and Joyce Gibson, Lynn M. Parrish, Jerry Donald Hagans, Larry Edgar Hagans, Oakie Shepherd, Stephen D. and Deborah Bailey, Teddy Gibson, Lovel and Cendia Hall, James and Melinda Stumbo, Ellis Little, Dave and Leila Harvey, Earnest Hayes, Mable Willis, Minnie Irizarry et al., Delbert G. Goins, Marion Jr. and Claudia Hayes, Sidney Jean Hayes, Virgil and Sandra Moore, C.M. and Edith Wise, Marie Stelbasky, Gordon Neil and Belinda Carroll, Wm. B. and Debra Hagans and Leo C. Harmon, and the Elk Horn Coal Corporation. The proposed operation is located on the Martin U.S.G.S. 7-1/2 minute quadrangle map.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 3140 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653. Any person whose interests are or may be adversely affected by the issuance of the proposed permit may present information relevant to the permit, in oral or written form, at the time of the conference.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pursuant to 405 KAR 8:010, Section 16(5), the following is a summary of permitting decisions made by the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Division of Permits with respect to applications to conduct surface coal mining and reclamation operation is Floyd County. MATT/CO INCOR-

PORATED, 836-5306; ISSUED 000405

PUBLIC NOTICE REGARDING APPLICATION AVAILABILITY FOR PUBLIC COMMENT

The Kentucky Valley Educational Cooperative is developing an application for funds to be submitted to the Kentucky Department of Education. Federal Funds for this project are available through IDEA Part B of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. This application proposes an area cooperative project serving disabled children through the local school districts of Breathitt County, Floyd County, Hazard Independent, Jackson Independent, Knott County, Lee County, Leslie County, Letcher County, Magoffin County, Owsley County, Perry County, Pike County, Pikeville Independent and Wolfe County. This project covers these third level needs: (1) psychological services, (2) coordination of interagency information and planning, (3) coordination of related services: physical therapy and occupational therapy, (4) coordination of low-incidence services, (5) professional development, and (6) administration and monitoring.

This notice is being published to provide reasonable opportunities for the participation of teachers, parents, or other interested individuals, public and private agencies and organizations in the planning for the operation of the area cooperative project. Plans call for this application to be finalized and submitted to the Kentucky Department of Education by May 31, 2000. Those persons desiring to give input may obtain a copy of this application by contacting the Director of Special Education in each of the participating school districts. Comments on the application will be taken through June 30, 2000. Comments on the application should be submitted in writing to: Katherine C. Eversole, Project Director, 325 Broadway, Hazard, KY 41701.
