Death toll higher over Fourth of July weekend

The state death toll rose dramatically for the July Fourth holiday, according to the Kentucky State Police.

Preliminary statistics show that 16 people were killed in 11 traffic related accidents, compared to just five in the same period last year.

The Indepedence Day holiday weekend was the deadliest on Kentucky's roadways since 1996, when 17 people were killed. The holiday weekend was five days in comparison to the usual four-day week-

Of the 11 fatal crashes the KSP reports that five were alcohol-related, contributing seven deaths, nearly half of the fatalities recorded. Eight of the victims were not wearing seatbelts. Two of the crashes and fatalities involved motorcycles. The victims were wearing helmets.

Seven of the fatalities involved six single vehicle crashes. Four two-vehicle crashes resulted in six fatalities and a fourvehicle crash resulted in three deaths.

The rise in aviator fuel costs has caused recreational aviators to reduce their time in the air, resulting in a loss of fuel sales, said Calhoun.

Combined with the folding of Branham and Baker Coal, which reserved rental space for aircraft at the airport, and the selling off of two airplanes and a helicopter by Marshall Leasing, the airport is feeling a financial pinch.

Bob Morrison, former operator of the airport, recently submitted his resignation, citing a lack of finances to keep operations going. The board was left to run activities at the airport until another operator was found in the person of Gary Cox of Warfield.

According to Crum, the board of directors was able to calling system. Called "The Communicator," the system will allow disaster services. EMS workers, law enforcement agencies and fire service personnel to send an emergency alert to residents of impending danger.

The system stores a database of residential and business numbers that can be instantly accessed by the touch of a button should an emergency situation exist.

A computer speedily dials through a database delivering a recorded message to residents or even emergency service personal. The system will save time and reduce human error in a quick calling system that can be used to access residential and business phones, personal pagers, handheld radios, and even cell phones.

Chemical spills, tornado alerts or other natural disaster warnings can be transmitted in a hurry. May explained the system can also be used to transmit school closings and boil water advisories.

The system will use existing phone lines and receive inbound calls while transmitting outbound calls. It can also record who has been contacted and the calls that have been responded to.

The Communicator is made by Dialogic Communications and is being provided free by the state to Floyd County and counties throughout Area 9 of the state's Emergency Management offices. The computer, software, printer, and five years of on-site service are included in the package. May said Area 9 is the first in the state to receive the technology, which puts the region at the forefront of emergency communications. Area 9 includes the counties of Floyd, Greenup, Boyd, Elliott, Lawrence, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and

The program can be used in various ways from pinpointing a geographical region of the county to specifically calling residents with school-age children to alert them school has been canceled.

the runway in any kind of weather.

Both Pike County and Big Sandy are currently using Global Satellite Positioning and a VOR system that allow aircraft to home in on the airport and land, but pilots must still rely heavily on their sense of sight, hampering airport traffic in overcast or rainy weather.

Pike County has also begun work on a new access road to the airport that Crum said will cost $12 million to $14 million.

"That's twice more than our entire airport cost," Crum said.

Pike County is home to Sykes Enterprises Inc. a multi-million dollar company new to the region. The new access road to the Pike County airport will be adjacent to the road

The new ILS will allow air traffic to land in Pikeville that would have probably landed at Big Sandy. Crum said. The Pike County Airport reports that 10 to 12 planes frequent the airport daily.

The airport boasts a recently extended runway that is 5,500 feet in length but the tarmac cannot handle heavyweight planes.

Big Sandy currently accompanies planes at 30,000 pounds in weight and is scheduled to double that capacity soon if it can match government funds.

The strengthening of the runway is expected to cost $1.1 million to overlay. Ninety-five percent of the funding will be appropriated by the federal government while the remaining 10 percent is equally split by state and local governments. Crum reported the project has been in planning for the last five

Johnson County member Duell Sturgill said the advantage Big Sandy has over Pikeville is room to expand. While Pikeville has reached or is at its runway expansion limits, Sturgill said the ridge Big Sandy is on could allow a runway growth to 7,000 feet if needed.

"The best thing we have going for us is that there is more than enough property," Sturgill said.

The existing runway is 5,000 feet in length the airport is a frequent landing area for Hustler pubner and Magoffin County native Stream jet. A project to expand the Sturgill.

runway by 1,500 feet in length was previously on the agenda.

Big Sandy Airport officials are hoping to gain further traffic with the influx of future prison traffic but Sturgill said further industrial development in the area would help. "We are working with the Big

Area fire departments, law enforcement agencies, and rescue squads can add to the speed and efficiency of the program by adding phone lines dedicated to the program.

"The more lines available the quicker the notification," said May. One line makes the system three times faster than manual dialing said May. Ten lines make it 30 times faster. The system will free up personnel so they may be used for more specific duties.

May expects the system to go online in August. E-911 can provide the system with a complete database of the county. May will take a request to use the database before the county's E-911 Executive Board. If approved, the transfer of the database will take less than a day.

The use of private lines by the system would be illegal without the residents permission. Dotson said a 3 x 5 card would be sent out to private line customers explaining the system and asking residents if they want to be put in the database. In the process of improving communications at the DES office, May said DES would also be purchasing a ham radio. The ham radio system could be used in the case of emergencies that would shut down telephone lines.

Ham radios where used in the North Carolina floods and hurricane disasters in the past few years. The radios have proven vital in getting aid to people.

Dr. James Riley, who is the coach and a wonderful friend, kept us motivated and did not let us give up or get down on ourselves. We kept swinging away, getting better and better.

Priority on children

While Democrats and Republicans fall all over themselves promising to sweeten and protect the pot for Americans in their golden years, the needs of millions of Americans in their formative years are still being given short shrift.

That's the conclusion of the Children's Defense Fund Action Council, and it's hard to argue with.

In a new report, the council rated members of Congress on 15 votes last year on children's issues - everything from education and media violence to juvenile crime and gun control.

With just 32.6 percent of "right" votes overall, Kentucky's * delegation had one of the lowest ratings — 46th out of the 50

(Sens. Bunning and McConnell voted "right" 13 percent and 20 percent of the time, respectively. In the House, Reps. Ernie Fletcher and Ron Lewis had the lowest score, 40 percent each, and Reps. Anne Northup and Ken Lucas had the highest, at 60 percent.)

Such scorecards, of course, are anything but objective. They are advocacy and fund-raising tools. Though usually labeled non-partisan, they're obviously intended to push an agenda and call voters to the phones, faxes and voting booths.

Still, the poor showing of Kentucky lawmakers on children's issues is beyond dispute, and should be a major concern. Kentucky, after all, has 253,000 children in poverty.

If not now, when the Congressional Budget Office projects huge surpluses over the next 10 years, then when will be the right time for lawmakers to make a priority of improving the prospects of the nation's 13.5 million poor kids?

That budget surplus is the result of an economic boom whose blessings have not been distributed equally. The poor have gotten poorer, and the number of children being raised in poverty has increased. In Jefferson County, for instance, the fastest growing category of students is homeless ones.

Putting more welfare mothers to work, putting more children in adult jails, and putting more breaks in the tax code for the middle class are not going to reverse those trends.

The political emphasis on "saving Social Security" needs to be matched by a similar urgency to save our real social security by investing in and protecting our children.

Supreme Court made right decision about prayer

Our Supreme Court was right on target in shooting down prayer at school sports games. No one should be allowed to use any school function as an excuse to spread his or her religious views. Public money pays for school sports, from the goalposts to the bleacher seats, for the benefit of all children, not only for the Christian faithful. Apparently, some people can't help but try to take advantage of any public gathering to express their personal religious views and are either oblivious or uncaring as to whether or not doing so tramples on the religious freedoms of those in the crowd.

The easy way to think about this is to turn it upside down. Would Christians object to an atheist commandeering the mike at their kid's ball game to explain to the hundreds gathered to complete lack of evidence of a supreme being? Would they object to a prayer to Allah, or to Satan? Would they object to a prayer to the Goddess Mother?

Of course, they would. But because the majority is so used to bullying the minority, they don't think of it in those terms. Purely selfish behavior coming from a group whose main tenet is "Do unto others as vou would have others do unto you." If you wouldn't want you children subjected to a prayer you find offensive, why subject the children of others to that sort of behavior? Especially in a forum paid for by money from people of all faiths, not only your own.

Suggests AIDS data incorrect

Editor:

As the 13th annual World AIDS Conference gets underway in Durban, South Africa, this month (July 9-14), it is important that we dwell on some cold, hard facts

Before we do, however, it is necessary for us to realize that AIDS, as defined by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), is not a single disease, as you might think. There are at least 29 diseases that fall under the term "AIDS," each caused by a different organism.

If a person has one of these diseases and is tested HIV-positive, then he or she is said to have AIDS. But, without HIV antibodies in the blood, it is not AIDS. Confusing, isn't it?

The first fact is that, despite everything we hear to scare us into believing "anyone can get AIDS," the majority (78 percent) of those who get it in this country still fall within the same risk group as 17 years ago, i.e., homosexual men and/or intravenous drug

Only 10 percent of all American AIDS cases over this time have been among heterosexuals.

Secondly, AIDS is not epidemic in the US, nor has it ever been. Over the past 17 years, 733,374 people here have been reported to have AIDS. That is about 43,000 cases per year.

In a country with more than 250 million people, such figures cannot be considered epidemic in pro-

To bring the issue closer to home, over the same 17 years, Kentucky has had about 3,000 cases of AIDS. That averages to about 176 cases per year in a state with about four million people.

In the Big Sandy region, from 1983 to 1997 (a 14year span), Johnson County had four cases, Floyd County had eight, Pike County had 15, Magoffin County had one, Martin County had one, and Lawrence County had one case of AIDS.

Think about it. Does this sound like an epidemic to you? And, if you doubt these figures, just look at Kentucky's annual HIV/AIDS report, available through your local health department.

For the national figures, get the December 1999 HIV/AIDS Surveillance Report from the CDC in Atlanta, Georgia 30333, or log in at www.edc.gov/hiv/stats/hasr1102.htm.

The third fact is that, in spite of the billions of dollars spent on AIDS research every year (millions more than on cancer or heart disease, both of which are far more common than AIDS), we are no closer to a cure than we were 17 years ago.

Nor is there any treatment for it, which is not very dangerous (e.g., AZT and various lethal "cocktails"). Could it be that our researchers are looking in the wrong places?

Given that many people (tens of thousands) have tested positive for HIV antibodies and never developed AIDS is one indication that maybe - just maybe - something else is responsible for this

Ten years ago or so, one virologist insisted that HIV had harmlessly existed in the human for, perhaps, centuries. A group of scientists from Australia, after extensive work, believes that HIV may not exist at all, that it is just an artifact in electron microscopy.

There is a school of thought that attributes AIDS to a combination of factors, such as excessive drug use (not only intravenous, but others, like recreational drugs and antibiotics), poor diet, squalid living conditions, multiple major surgeries, the presence of parasites such as worms (e.g., tapeworms, roundworms), etc., which together or separately, they say, can compromise the immune system.

Look at Africa, for instance, A lot of press has been given the AIDS "epidemic" there, but we must remember that several diseases which weaken the immune system have been historically rampant there for several decades, due to some of the above factors (i.e., malnutrition, parasites, unsanitary living condi-

All of us are familiar with malaria, African sleeping sickness, river blindness, STDs, etc. They were occurring on that continent long before HIV had even been talked about.

So, why the sudden concentration on Africa? Could it be that it is an ideal "testing ground" for experimental, not-yet-FDA-approved pharmaceutical vaccines? Or, is it truly an effort to cure Africans

Miss America is right

Sometimes, I have to see a story from another perspective before I see its relation to me. When I attended the Pike County Chamber of Commerce Annual Awards Banquet, I felt blessed to hear the message of Miss America 2000 Heather French.

The genuine concern of her platform gave me something to think about. Since the advent of this frustrated nation, we have made ourselves a people who dwell on the moment. We rush through the day seeking instant gratification and rarely do we look back to see how we got here.

I am sure that soon after the Revolutionary War, the veterans of that war were soon forgotten. They reentered the agrarian society and took their place beside their families to restart their postponed lives.

Those that were lost were memories, mere moments in time that could only be dwelt on at night or in minutes of solitude as families busied themselves trying

Very soon, 29 years later, another generation would fight again. This time against the British in the War of 1812. As in all wars, many young people were wiped from existence as a still youthful America fought for its sovereignty.

Our veterans returned to work immediately after providing for the enormous families that kept our nation growing in prosperity.

The Mexican War followed 31 years later and a new generation of American veterans took the place in the annals of America's Civil War took place just 13 years later and created the nation's most living veterans.

Within 43 years America was at war again fighting in the Spanish-American War. World War I would follow in 16 years, World War II was 21 years after

The men and women who waged the battle for America's freedom were soon forgotten because they were weaved back into society. The Korean War was began just five years after WWII and Vietnam four years after that. Just 16 years after that we entered the Gulf War.

In 225 years our nation has averaged a war every 22 years. That means not one generation has passed without an American veteran in it. With the advent of drugs and better nutrition to prolong life, no other era in time has had so many generations surviving. No other time has had so many American veterans alive at

In no other moment in our history have so many people been forgotten. Most of the veterans in our history came home to victory parades and were awarded the best of the jobs available.

It is only in the past few generations that we have tossed them aside. Until recently, it didn't matter if you were a private or a general in the war. When you came home you were a hero. But today one in three homeless Americans are vet-prevent burn injuries, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) urges parents to make sure their children's sleepwear is either flame-resistant or snug-fitting. Loose-fitting Tshirts and other loose-fitting clothblends should not be used for children's sleepwear. These garments can catch fire easily, burn rapidly, and are associated with nearly 300 burn emergency-room-treated injuries to children each year. Children are most at risk from burn injuries that result from playing with fire (matches, lighters, candles, burners on stoves) just before bedtime and just after rising in the morning.

As of June 28, 2000, CPSC will require hangtags and permanent labels on snug-fitting children's sleepwear, made of cotton or cotton blends, to remind consumers that because the garment is not flame- resistant, it must fit snugly for safety. The new yellow hangtag for snug-fitting garments says: "For child's safety, garment should fit snugly. This garment is not flame resistant. Loose-fitting garment is more likely to eatch fire." The permanent label says "Wear snug- fitting. Not flame resistant" and is sewn into the neck of the garment. Parents

In 1992, several brilliant, wellrespected scientists (some Nobel laureates), concerned professionals, and private citizens formed a group protesting the unilateral path AIDS research was taking. They call themselves the Group for the Scientific Reappraisal of AIDS (also referred to as the Rethinking AIDS Group).

Their belief is that too much attention has been focused on the hypothesis that HIV causes AIDS, since there is no study in the scientific literature that proves it. (Scientific procedure deems that methods by which scientific find-

Depending on the state, used mattresses may contain a tag, sometimes red or yellow in color, that warns that the mattress contains used materials. Federal law requires that any mattress that contains used stuffing bear a tag or label with that information.

Not all states have labeling requirements for the sale of used mattresses, and for those that do, the requirements can vary.

For example, in many places, old mattresses that have been recovered with new ticking (strong, tightly woven cotton or linen fabric) can be sold as long as they are sanitized or disinfected in some way before sale.

Two more guilty pleas in drug pipeline

The total of guilty pleas in the Mexican marijuana ring has now reached nine, after Rondal Endicott and Bill Chapman both entered pleas on June 27 in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

Like the seven others involved in the $34 million fouryear venture, Endicott reached a plea agreement on Count 1 of the 18-count indictment, while Chapman copped a guilty plea on Count 17.

Endicott, who was named in seven counts, negotiated a deal for pleading guilty to Count 1, as did James Wellman, David Wellman, Ermil Hinkle, Thomas Muncy and Mark Wilson.

U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood went over the plea agreements, stating Endicott conspired with other defendants to purchase, transport and distribute large quantities of marijuana from Texas to eastern Kentucky on (or about) January 1, 1996, through (or about) April 19, 2000.-Mountain Citizen

Blaine fire department saved from closure

A Lawrence County fire department on the verge of collapse has gotten a reprieve from its members, who have decided to keep it opened it long as possible.

But how long the Blaine Volunteer Fire Department will remain in operation is unclear, especially if it fails to recruit the manpower needed to fight fires and respond to other emergencies.

The Blaine department was set to close its , doors next Monday because its communications tower was shut down in March. Those problems have included the loss of more than half its volunteers and unsuccessful efforts to get its tower up and running again.

The department's problems began in August 1999, when Blaine resident Danny and Rhonda Ramey, who owned the property on which the communications tower and repeater were located, filed suit claiming the fire station had "repeatedly and continually" violated its lease agreement it had with them.

Drought eases grip as area receives heavy rain amount

Down came the rains and washed the drought out.

Heavy rains have fallen frequently across Magoffin County and eastern Kentucky the past two weeks, bringing an end to most of the visible effects last year's severe drought created.

However, due to low ground water levels and Magoffin low water levels in lakes and other reserve sources, officially most of the area remains in the mild drought category.

> Most of Kentucky slipped into the extreme drought level last summer when the state continuously ran short of average rainfall.

A drier than usual winter, coupled with a notno-wet spring allowed many of the drought conditions to continue, threatening plant and animal life throughout the eastern Kentucky area into late spring and early summer. —The Salyersville Independent

The suit claims the company failed to "exercise ordinary and reasonable care," which allegedly caused the death of Harry Delong, an Excel Mining mechanic.

Fiscal court debates employee insurance In the first of two special meetings last week, the Knott County Fiscal Court held a lively discussion on health insurance for county employees. Judge-Executive Donnie Newsome and Treasurer Turner E. Campbell presented a resolution for the county to change insurance providers from Premier Insurance (Blue Cross) to Provider Benefit Plans. However, after a lengthy question and answer session, all four magistrates voted to remain with the current insurance company, Premier.

Judge Newsome began by asking the court to approve the change in companies, saying details of employee deductions were still being discussed with a representative of the new insurance firm. A crowd of employees from several county offices attended the meeting to challenge the need for a change in A representative of Provider Benefit Plans was at the

The article, "Reaping Marijuana in Hills Emptied of Stills," appeared in the New York Times, June 3, 2000, issue. Times reporter Francis X. Clines traveled from his office in Washington D.C. and spent an afternoon interviewing Sheriff Jacobs.

Clines wrote, "The back road yield of illegal Knott marijuana has so compounded that federal officials, alarmed at a $4 billion cash crop surpassing legal tobacco in some areas, have designated 64 Appalachian counties here and in West Virginia and Tennessee in a special High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area."-Troublesome Creek Times

Jones and Ratliff race produces early heat

In the eyes of some observers, the race for the 31st District state Senate seat being vacated by Gary C. Johnson is one of the most important in the state this year and could become one of the costliest.

Given revelations this week that included the filing of post-primary election finance reports, that clearly appears to be the case in the eyes of. the state Republican Party.

According to those reports, the state Republican Party donated $200,000 to seven state Senate candidates deemed to be in close races, having $50,000 added to (Ratliff's) campaign coffers.

$75 million project is months behind schedule

Since the beginning of the year, advertisements on local television and radio stations have touted the construction of a new $50 million patient tower at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital as being "97 percent complete."

That revelation also was stated in a February cover story in "The Lane Report," a statewide business and economic magazine which also cited a hospital-commissioned project study projecting dollars generated by the area medical community within five years of the 11-story tower opening to exceed the hundreds of millions earned by the coal industry.

While recent rancor between the Atlanta-based construction company in charge of nearly all work on the tower and hospital administrators over the quality of the work done so far has forced the project to lumber into July still unfinished, new agreements reached Friday evening could speed progress consider-County ably. PHM President and CEO Walter May said completion could come in October. -Appalachian News-Express

Man guilty in 1971 Pike killing still free

Nearly two months after a man pleaded guilty in Pike Circuit Court to the 1971 killing of a Meta woman, he remains free on bond, and appeals to be filed by his attorney may keep him out of prison indefinitely.

Late last month, a notice of appeal was filed in the case of Willard "Woody" Christian, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in May for the murder-for-hire of Gladys Deskins and was subsequently sentenced to 20 years in prison.—Appalachian News-Express

Arson charge dropped in fire at jail

Felony charges against a woman who is allegedly responsible for a jail fire that sent a deputy jailer to a local hospital's intensive care unit, were amended this week to lesser offense and then dismissed.

Assistant county attorney Kevin Holbrook explained, though, that the action was a "procedural," matter and may only temporarily delay the prosecution of Carol S. Gottleid.

Gottleid, 57, of Meally, who also goes by the alias Priscilla Fitzpatrick, was charged last week with first-degree arson for allegedly setting her clothes on fire inside her jail cell in the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center.

As a result, Henry "Butch" Williams, the jail's assistant administrator, suffered from smoke inhalation and remained in the ICU at Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center for two days. He returned to work later the same week.

Crime does pay, for sheriff

Sheriff Bill Witten is experiencing financial difficulties, but these money problems aren't typical by any stretch of the imagination.

In fact, the dilemma Witten is experiencing now is not where the sheriff can find money to operate his department, but how to spend an expected windfall of cash that may be coming his way via a drug trafficking forfeiture procedure.

With guidance from FBI officials, Witten began the process this week for securing his share of more than $100,000 in cash seized from a Sparks Branch man in May after deputies completed their probe of an alleged drug operation. In addition to the cash, officers confiscated a number of vehicles and real estate thought to be connected to the alleged marijuana trafficking operation

State releases control of health department

The Independence Day holiday had special significance for the Johnson County Health Department, which regained local control of the facility this week, one year after a state takeover.

State Public Health Commissioner Dr. Rice Leach confirmed Monday that an order issued June 18, 1999, turning management of the health department over to health cabinet officials had been rescinded.

'We are back to where we are with all other health departments," Dr. Leach said, indicating that the year-long state management process had ended.

Edwards

by STEVE LeMASTER SPORTS WRITER

Marshall Edwards of Prestonsburg won the first-ever Bluegrass 10,000 "hand crank" wheelchair race Tuesday in Lexington with a speedy time of Going into the Bluegrass 10,000, Edwards had made it a personal goal of his to break the record of 23:55 set for traditional wheelchairs. He had set a goal of 23:20 going into the race, some 25 seconds ahead of the Bluegrass 10,000 record.

"I had made it a personal goal to break the record going into the race," said Edwards. "I feel pleased with my performance in breaking the record."

Edwards commented that the interest in the hand crank division of wheelchair racing is growing.

Lexington said he would be switching over from the traditional wheelchair," said Edwards. "I feel that the interest will continue to grow.'

The hand crank division of the wheelchair portion of Tueday's race was added Thurday, June 29, just five days before the race. Edwards felt that the history of the race along with the potential of the new division had something to do with the racing committee deciding to add hand crank wheelchair racing to the race.

Edwards now has his sights set on the Bluegrass State Games in Lexington. He will be taking part in a mance in the Bluegrass 10,000 defi-5K there on July 26.

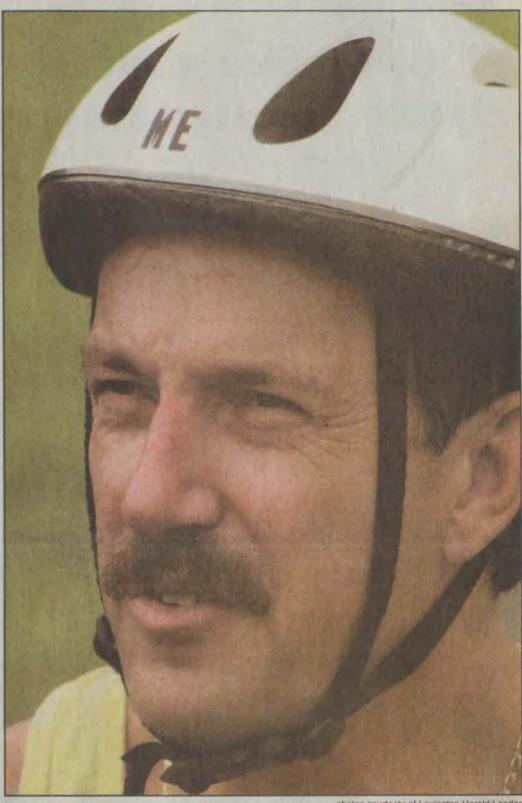

After that race, Edwards will head off to West Virginia, competing in Charleston September 2. The 15K race "One of the racers at the race in 2,000 foot-racers. A hilly course division.

Wheelchair racers are accepted based on their past racing credentials. Edwards will know if he has been accepted sometime late this summer. The New York City Marathon will take place Sunday, November 5.

Tuesday's record-breaking perfornitely helped to boost Edwards' racing credentials. Beaver South advances

Osborne's single in sixth gives Beaver South win

by ED TAYLOR SPORTS EDITOR

Beaver South All-Star manager Dale McKinney probably made the best move of the District 7, Area 2 All-Star tournament and the move proved to be positive in a 3-2 win over Magoffin County last Monday evening.

The win also kept South's hopes alive in the lower bracket and a chance to play another day.

The hero of this one was Ed Osborne, But Osborne had been struggling at the plate in his first six at-bats but made up for it with a big hit in his last at-bat Tuesday.

With the bases loaded and the game tied at 2, Osborne stood at the plate with two out. After waving at a pitch from the right hand side of the plate, McKinney called for a time out. He walked over to the batting rack and picked up a smaller bat and handed it to Osborne.

"He was using a 19 and it was too big," said McKinney of the change.

The result was just what the doctor, er, manager ordered. Osborne picked on the next pitch and dumped it into left field for the game-winning hit that sent Bobby Hughes scampering home with the winning run.

Beaver trailed Magoffin County 2-1 entering the bottom of the sixth inning. Magoffin starter Shane Howard walked the first three batters he faced to load the bases. Catcher Brock Kidd then launched a fly ball to center field where Eric Gibson gathered the ball in. On the catch, Josh McKinney tagged at third but forgot to slide at home plate as the throw from Gibson nailed McKinney for a double play.

Beaver did manage to tie the game on an RBI single by Justin Reffitt, pinch hitting in the sixth. Reffitt's single scored Andrew Lafferty with the tying run. Isaiah Hall worked Howard for a walk to reload the bases for South. bringing Osborne to the plate. Osborne's single was his first hit of the tournament.

"He has hit six or seven home runs during the regular season," said McKinney, "but just hadn't hit in the tournament. He went into a slump before the regular season

High school football gets the green light to begin practice this Monday. Our county teams will be looking to improve from last season. Only South Floyd had a winning season as far as county teams went.

However, even the Raiders may be hardpressed to repeat the last three seasons where they made the state playoffs. New head football coach Nathan Jones, from

Allen Central's Rebel football team was denied an opportunity to rejoin district competition when Pikeville cast the deciding te not to let the Rebels compete.

However, the Rebels will be back into the eight-man game this year with an excellent shot at a state title.

School athletic director Johnny Martin said the Rebs' schedule looks like they are competing for a district title.

Paintsville survives Beaver South scare

Little League all-star team was supposed to be the "weak" team of the two the Beaver Creek Little League put in the District 7, Area 2 All-Star tournament at Paintsville, but you will never convince them of that.

In fact, they have looked very impressive and took defending champion Paintsville to the limits in dropping a 3-2 game last Saturday.

Beaver South held a 2-1 lead heading into the top of the fifth inning when two errors proved costly in allowing Paintsville to score two unearned runs and take the lead,

Pikeville Bears football signee arrested for assault

by STEVE LeMASTER SPORTS WRITER

All too often in today's sports world, star athletes somehow find themselves in situations where they get the type of publicity they would never ask for.

Professional athletes aren't the only athletes who make wrong decisions that will ultimately affect the rest of their lives. Unfortunately sometimes these bad decisions hit home, often affecting coaches or athletes here in our area.

The Pikeville College football program is less than a month away from its first practice and already a recruit is in trouble with the law. With the opener against Georgetown College less than two months away, a Bears player from South Carolina finds himself accused of two crimes, both felonies.

Pikeville College signee Michael Wannemaker and fellow Spartanburg (S.C.) High School athlete Kevin Lee have been accused of kidnapping and sexually assaulting a 13-year-old girl.

Wannamaker 18, was arrested Monday night and charged with kidnapping and criminal sexual conduct of Prestonsburg

Pikeville College Coach Zak Willis was out of his office and unavailable for comment on the matter.

Assistant Coach Mac Bryan said, "We are aware of the situation, and we are monitoring the situation."

Wannemaker is one of 30 of the team's 80 recruits coming in to play football for Pikeville College who hail from outside of Kentucky or West Virginia.

Wannemaker was a star football player at Spartanburg High in Spartanburg, S.C., playing running back on offense and several positions on defense. Wannemaker signed with the Bears shortly after Coach Zak Willis took over the first year program.

The Pikeville College Bears will field their first football squad this fall, playing a seven-game schedule

The recent arrest of Wannemaker could affect his scholarship, but there has been word on if the arrest alone will push Coach Willis and Pikeville College to pull the scholarship.

If Wannemaker is convicted of the charges he's facing. Pikeville College will likely revoke the scholarship they awarded to him.

The Pikeville College football team is set to begin practice on August 6.

"The new bleachers are beautiful," said an excited Maynard. "We put chair backs on the top three rows of each side.

Back three rows? Well, it makes a lot of sense when you think about it. As she said, it is difficult to see from the bottom three rows, especially on the side the teams sit on.

Also, the end zone bleachers were replaced with motorized bleachers. Things are looking up at Allen Central.

No coaches have been hired

"All positions are still open and there could be others who will apply for the jobs," she said. "We will have a meeting and go over the list of applicants.'

Maynard said she expected all the coaches to return to where they were last year.

By HENRY MILLER

HEN a golfer is knocking down birdie after birdie, or a basketball player is swishing every shot, it's generally called being in "the zone." That zone is a mysterious realm where athletes' abilities surpass even their own expectations.

Clearly, Jeff Green is in that zone. At the moment, it doesn't look as if he's going to let anyone else join him.

Through the first 17 races of the 2000 Busch Grand National season, Green, driver of the No. 10 NesQuik Chevrolet Monte Carlo, holds a mammoth 250plus-point lead over second-place driver Todd Bodine. The scary thing is that Green, who just ended a streak of eight straight top-five finishes - and 11 topfives in 12 events - with a 10th-place finish at Watkins Glen, is convinced that his lead can increase - especially over the next four or five races

"There are some races coming up that we have an advantage on the rest of the field and that we can add to our point lead," said Green, who had three wins (Richmond, Va.; South Boston, Va.; and Myrtle Beach, S.C.) heading into the race last weekend at Milwaukee. "We think we can get two or three wins and, overall, come out with some real good finishes.

Don't think, however, that Green believes the season is wrapped up. There's still plenty of racing left. But the way the confidence is oozing from Green, you'd think the championship is his to lose. Then again, it probably is.

After losing 26 points to Bodine with his 10th-place finish at Watkins Glen's road course, an ultra-confident Green said simply: "We lost a few points to Todd, but 26 points on one given weekend isn't the end of the world.

There's little doubt that Green, who finished second to Dale Earnhardt Jr. last year in the BGN points race, is living up to the predictions of most preseason prognosticators. After an seasonopening 42nd-place finish at Daytona, Green hasn't finished lower than 13th and has only been out of the top 10 twice in the first 17 races. Not only is his average finish impressive (about 6.8), but his average start is higher than 10th, meaning he's usually starting and finishing in the same place - up front.

"You can feel the confidence every-where, no doubt," Green said. "Every week we leave the shop knowing we have a top-five car, that we can sit on the pole, and we can win the race. It's a great thing to leave with that mentality spread throughout the team.

"Sure, you know you still have a job to do when you get to the track, and that job might change each weekend throughout the season at different tracks. You just hope to be prepared for every situation.

The biggest thing Green and Co. had to prepare for in 2000 was the new body of the Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

Nobody knew what the brand-new body would offer," Green said. "The 2000 Monte Carlo has been a change in a good way. We've had to change setups to make it comparable to make it drive as good as last year. But right now it's all intact - same chassis, same Roush motors. So overall, things are tremendously better.

Another thing that is better is the fact that Green is the hunted as opposed to the hunter, a role he hasn't held before in the Busch Series. So far, he likes it.

"It's definitely different. Everybody keys off what you do in garage area, Green said. "Others really watch what

"I've never had this opportunity before. I've been behind all my career in BGN as far as points. It's good and I'd rather be in front than behind, no doubt. Now we even want to add more

"It would be different if we were running blind. But we're not, and we're the team that can add to it. We have a pretty great amount of a points lead, but we feel we have that much more of a chance this year to keep adding to it so we can be relaxed at the end of the

And that's when Green may finally let some others join him in the world he's created galaxies away from the rest of the Busch Grand National competition.

Biffle battles to hold onto the Craftsman Truck Series lead

By HENRY MILLER

REG Biffle is baffling everyone once again. Last year as a super sophomore on the Craftsman Truck Series, the driver of Jack Roush's No. 50 Grainger Ford exploded for a series-record nine wins but fell short of the points championship by eight points when Jack Sprague clinched the title by winning the last race of the season.

This year, Sprague and Biffle are battling once again. And, just like last year, Biffle is driving into victory lane on a regular basis. Through the first 14 races of the season, the 30-year-old Vancouver, Wash., native had four wins all coming in a five-race span.

"About six weeks ago we were running the best we could run and we were losing points," Biffle said, "Now the tables have turned a little bit. With our team, nothing has really changed. We are just having a little better luck now and getting closer on the setup and adjustments, which really puts us in a good position to win races

Biffle has 13 career wins in the Craftsman Truck Series, fourth among all drivers in the series' short history. The only drivers ahead of him - Ron Hornaday (25 wins), Sprague (19) and Mike Skinner (16) - are all past series champions.

Biffle said there have been plenty of subtle changes that have taken place since early in the season, among them a greater focus on shocks, springs and "All of these guys out there know how tough it is to race in this series," Biffle said. "[Crew chief] Randy Gross. and the whole Grainger team have had our skin turn to alligator skin. We have really just become more focused and buckled down to drive ourselves to be 100 percent-plus at these races, to be

"We just searched and searched until we found what was working best for us. Sometimes we get on to something where everything falls into place like it is now, where we find some setups that are working good for us. We just keep digging and digging until we are the best we can be

Right now that whole team may be the best it can be. Whether or not they can match last season's win number, however, is another matter.

"Nine races is a lot to win in one season," Biffle said. "We may end up winning a couple more races before the season is over, but I don't really think that, with the level of competition that is there this year, nine is really going to happen.'

Whatever happens, Biffle is still thinking championship. "I really feel like we were going to be much stronger than we were up until this point," Biffle said. "Now, I feel like we are where we should have [been to start] the season, and I think that we can carry our momentum right on through California and the championship.'

HER NAME HAS BECOME PART OF OUR LANGUAGE-JEZEBEL!

IT HAS BEEN A CUSTOM, IN MODERN TIMES, WHEN A WOMAN ATTRACTS AND SEEMS TO EXERT UNDUE INFLUENCE OVER A MAN OR MANY MEN, FOR PEOPLE TO CALL HER A JEZEBEL. HOWEVER, NO MODERN COUNTERPART COULD EVER COMPETE WITH THE ORIGINAL JEZEBEL FOR DOWNRIGHT EVIL AND MURDEROUS ACTS! BORN A PHOENICIAN PRINCESS, DAUGHTER OF KING ETHBAAL, SHE MARRIED KING AHAB OF ISRAEL (CIRCA 865 B.C.) AND, IN SHORT ORDER, COMPLETELY DOMINATED THIS WEAK WILLED RULER. ONCE AHAB WAS UNDER HER CONTROL, JEZEBEL IMMEDIATELY SET ABOUT DESTROYING ISRAEL'S RELIGION AND REPLACING IT WITH THE WORSHIP OF BAAL AND ASTARTE, PHOENICIAN DIETIES OF HER HOMELAND ...

It's a Cyrus Sunday

It's a given that eastern Kentucky is a mother lode of musical talent, particularly along the US 23 corridor.

And one regional star who remains close to his roots is Billy Ray Cyrus, who paid his dues in the Ashland-Huntington bar band district before making it big with the monster hit "Achy Breaky Heart" in the early 1990s.

Cyrus frequently returns to the Ashland area to visit, to perform, and to do charity work, but July 16 will mark his first performance at the Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg.

Cyrus is scheduled to do two shows — at 7 p.m. and at 9:15 p.m.

Discovered by Mercury talent scouts while opening a Reba McEntire concert in Louisville in 1990, Cyrus struck gold with his international hit two

His debut album, "Some Gave All," which carried the mega-hit, topped the Billboard pop and country charts for an unprecedented 17 weeks. The album was one of the 10 biggest selling albums of the 1990s, regardless of genre.

Cyrus' first four albums for Mercury Nashville have sold more than 13 million copies.

After "Achy Breaky Heart," Cyrus has recorded more serious tunes that reflect the lives of everyday people. "Busy Man" is addressed to fathers who neglect their families in pursuit of financial success. "Give My Heart To You" is the story of a hardworking man with little to show for his life except a loving soul.

"The American Dream," Cyrus' first recording with a string section, is an anthem for the nation, a plea that we never stop striving for peace and pros-

The Oak Ridge Boys to appear in Renfro Valley

They have one of the most distinct and recognizable sounds in the music industry. The four-part harmony and upbeat songs of The Oak Ridge Boys, Duane Allen, Richard Sterban, Joe Bonsall and William Lee Golden, have spawned dozens of hits and earned them Grammy, Dove, CMA, and ACM awards.

The Oaks bring 15 years of hits and 50 years of tradition to the stage every time they step before an audience. The Oaks represent a tradition that extends back to 1945, before Hank Williams had a career.

The original group, based in Knoxville, Tennessee, began performing country and gospel music in nearby Oak Ridge, where the atomic bomb was being developed. They called themselves "The Oak Ridge Quartet' and began regular Grand Ole Opry appearances in the fall of 1945. By the mid '50's they were featured in Time magazine as one of the top groups in the nation.

By the late '60s, more than 30 members had come and gone, and the line-up included Duane Allen, William Lee Golden, Noel Fox and Willie Wynn. Among their many acquaintances in the gospel field were Bonsall and Sterban. The four became friends and when the Oaks needed a bass and tenor in '72 and '73 respectively, Sterban and Bonsall got the calls.

Their sound is as powerful today as it was then, and concert-goers at Renfro Valley Entertainment Center will enjoy the pleasure of hearing them perform such hits as "Elvira," "Thank God for Kids" and a host of others when they give two concerts on Saturday, July 29, in Renfro Valley's New Barn Theater.

Tickets are $23 and $25. Show times are 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m.

For information, call 800-765-7464 or 606/256-2638. Experience Renfro Valley "Kentucky's Country Music Capital" located just off I-75 at exit 62. Visit Renfro Valley's website at www.renfrovalley.com.

KET Reel Time features works by independents

It's creativity. It's originality. It's everything that Hollywood isn't. It's Reel Time on KET.

Airing Saturdays at 11 p.m., beginning July 15, Reel Time showcases short films and videos by independent producers. Each episode presents a variety of film/video formats, including animation, experimental works, fiction and documentaries.

Designed to promote the production of independent films and videos in Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan and Ohio, all of the works presented in the program are recipients of an INDY, an award given annually to Midwest filmmakers by the Indiana Film Society.

The works presented on Reel Time cover a wide range of topics, including historical events, culture and food, first dates, friendship and life in general.

Kentucky author Ed McClanahan's "Congress of Wonders" is featured on the seventh episode, airing August 26. Set in World War II, it is the story of a young boy who one night follows his older brother, a sailor, to a traveling freak show.

Reel Time is produced by Spellbound Productions. Viewers can find out more about programming on KET by visiting the KET Web site at http://www.ket.org, a Kentucky.com affiliate.

Things I never learned in high school

When I was in high school Home Economics was a waste of time because I was never going to get married and have

Thirty-two years, three marriages, two children, and three grandchildren later, I should have been more prepared because according to a 1950s Home Economics textbook, I might have avoided some of the pitfalls which read as follows:

I. Have dinner ready: Plan ahead, even the night before, to have a delicious meal - on time. This is a way of letting him know that you have been thinking about him, and are concerned about his needs. Most men are hungry when they come home and the prospects of a good meal are part of the warm welcome needed.

2. Prepare yourself: Take 15 minutes to rest so you will be refreshed when he arrives. Touch up your makeup, put a ribbon in your hair and be fresh looking. He has just been with a lot of work-weary people. Be a little gay and a little more interesting. His boring day may need a lift.

3. Clear away the clutter: Make one last trip through the main part of the house just before your husband arrives, gathering up school books, toys, paper, etc. Then run a dust cloth over the tables. Your husband will feel he has reached a haven of rest and order, and it will give you a lift, too.

4. Prepare the children: Take a few minutes to wash the children's hands and faces if they are small, comb their hair, and if necessary, change their clothes. They are little treasures and he would like to see them playing the part.

5. Minimize the noise: At the time of his arrival, eliminate all noise of washer, dryer, dishwasher, or vacuum. Try to encourage the children to be quiet. Be happy to see him. Greet him with a warm smile and be glad to see him.

6. Some DON'TS: Don't greet him with problems or complaints. Don't complain if he's late for dinner. Count this as minor compared with what he might have gone through that day.

7. Make him comfortable: Have him lean back in a comfortable chair or suggest he lie down in the bedroom. Have a cool or warm drink ready for him. Arrange his pillow and offer to take off his shoes. Speak in a low, soft, soothing and pleasant voice. Allow him to relax and unwind.

8. Listen to him: You may have a dozen things to tell him, but the moment of his arrival is not the time. Let him talk first.

9. Make the evening his: Never complain if he does not take you out to dinner or to other places of entertainment; instead try to understand his world of strain and pressure and his need to be home and

10. The Goal: Try to make your home a place of peace and order where your husband can relax.

Yeah! Now an updated version for the

1. Have dinner ready: Make reservations ahead of time. If your day becomes too hectic just leave him a voice mail message regarding where you'd like to eat and what time. This lets him know that your day has been crappy and gives him an opportunity to change your mood.

2. Prepare yourself: A quick stop at the Lancome counter on your way home will do wonders for your outlook and will keep you from becoming irritated every time he belches at the table.

3. Clear away the clutter: Call the housekeeper and let her know you'll need her an extra day this week. Tell her that any miscellaneous items left on the floor by the children can be placed in the Goodwill box in the garage.

4. Prepare the children: Drop them off at Grandma's.

5. Minimize the noise; When he arrives at home, remind him that the washer and garbage disposal are still not working properly and the noise is driving you crazy (but do this in a nice way and greet him with a warm smile ... this way he might fix it faster).

6. Some DON'TS: Don't greet him with your problems and complaints. Let him speak first, and then your complaints will get more attention and remain fresh in his mind throughout dinner. Don't complain if he's late for dinner. Simply remind him that the last one home does the cooking and the cleanup.

7. Make him comfortable: Remind him where he can find a warm fuzzy blanket if he's cold. This will really show you care.

8. Listen to him: But don't ever let him get the last word.

9. Make the evening his: A chance to get the washer and garbage disposal fixed.

10. The Goal: To try to keep things amicable without reminding him that you make more money than he does.

Can our public schools be saved?

Few public issues are more important to the future health and prosperity of the United States than the condition of our public schools.

However, it is impossible to deny that those schools are in desperate shape, failing in their mission as often as they succeed.

Hosted by former presidential advisor and NewsHour regular David Gergen, "A Public Voice 2000: Public Schools" looks at the decline of public schools and examines ways to improve them.

The program airs Tuesday, July 18, at 10 p.m., on KET2.

Beginning with the question, "Is there a way to fix them?" the focus of the program is encouraging constructive dialogue. From giving parents a choice of schools, to raising standards by stressing basics, to making education a community effort, to providing adequate funding to all schools, the program thoroughly explores solutions to the problems facing schools.

Now celebrating its 10th anniversary, A Public Voice continues to demonstrate that civil and educational political dialogue is necessary to find workable solutions to the nation's problems.

A Public Voice 2000: Public Schools" is produced by Milton B. Hoffman Productions via Connecticut Public Television.

OF THE WEIRD

by CHUCK SHEPHERD

Accomplished toy inventor Brian Walker, 44, told the Newhouse News Service in June that he would, by next summer, launch himself on the world's first homemade space shot (blasting off at 4,000 mph, to a height of 30 miles, using 10 tanks containing 7,000 pounds of hydrogen peroxide as fuel, at an overall expense of $250,000). The spacecraft he built is 9 feet tall, will be propelled from a 30-foot-long trailer, and has a capsule that will return him to earth via parachutes. A jet-propulsion engineer at Cal Tech said Walker's plan was actually pretty sound, in theory.

Lean Times for La Cosa Nostra: Despite a massive federal, state and local lawenforcement operation against organizedcrime gambling and loan-sharking in south Florida, capped by a six-count federal indictment in June, the evidence actually revealed rather dismal business prospects for the Colombo crime family in the area. According to the indictment, Colombo muscleman "Joey Flowers" Rotunno and his crew earned gambling income of less than $2,000 a day.

O.R. Surprises

Orthopedic surgeon Nicholas Cappello had his license lifted in April by the Arkansas Medical Board for as many as 20 botched surgeries featuring such errors as metal plates screwed to the wrong bones or screws missing the bone altogether. And patient Robert Banks sued the Earl K. Long Medical Center in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, in March, complaining that he went in for a heart bypass in 1995 but came out merely circumcised (which doctors said was a necessary antecedent to the surgery because he required kidney-monitoring equipment). (For unrelated reasons, the surgeons decided, after setting Banks up, not to do the

Compelling Explanations

In March, in the heat of a battle in the Mexican legislature over adopting daylight savings time, opponent Sen. Felix Salgado put forth his strongest argument: Advancing the clocks an hour will reduce daylight time in the morning, curtailing many "mananeros," or couples' morning sex. "(N)ow when you wake up," said Salgado, "your partner is no longer there because she had to take the kids to school."

In a Norfolk County, Massachusetts, court in March, Andrew Clary, 36, pleaded not guilty to murdering his girlfriend, a death that occurred when his car rammed hers twice after an argument and forced her into the path of an oncoming car. However, Clary told the judge that he really only "tapped" the woman's car in order to get her to turn around and head to a hospital so she could be treated for having ingested illegal

In 1999, James Weber of Calgary. Alberta, paid his tax bill (equivalent to about $75,000 U.S.) dollar-for-dollar with Colombian pesos (worth about $50 U.S.), arguing that the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency failed to print its dollar signs with two bars through the "S." A dollar sign with only one bar through the S, he said, is used only by several South American currencies, and thus he is now paid in full. (In March 2000, an appeals court ruled against him, despite his having produced several favorable historical banking documents from as far back as 1910.)

In April, after her arrest for robbing a Springfield, Missouri, Bank of America, Joyce Lingle told police that she had not read the note that she had handed a teller (and for which she received a bag in exchange) and only began to suspect there had been a bank robbery after she walked

(NAPSA)-Every region in the U.S. has its own history of the supernatural, but for otherworldly experiences few can compete with

The Hawaiians have long had a strong bond with nature and personified this respect for the land and sea through demi-gods like Pele, the goddess of volcanoes. According to the travel company, Pleasant Hawaiian Holidays, tales of Pele and her mysterious appearances fascinate vacationers.

Whenever Kilauea Volcano, Pele's home, erupts in a fiery display of lava that mirrors her flaming red hair, the young firebrand is seen hitchhiking with a white dog on roads on the Big Island.

Hawaii's rocks are said to have "mana" or spirit and woe befall anyone who moves a rock without asking its permission first. Many people have sent rocks back to Hawaii because bad luck befell them when they took the rocks home.

Finally, the "night marchers" have been seen on all the major islands, usually at night, walking slowly, carrying torches and chanting ancient songs known as "meles."

When does History begin?

by KELLI SUMMERS
KENTUCKY HISTORY CENTER

When does history begin? Does it begin the instant an event is over? Our generation has become accustomed to watching history "happen," to watching people "make" history.

But isn't that a contradiction in terms? Has our world gotten so small, our sense of time so laser-specific that we have narrowed the divide between current events and the past into the splitting of a hair or the splitting of an atom?

Taking this definition into account, we can see two things. History is defined as being a chronology and the explanation of that chronology. Or as we say in the museum world, the interpretation of the chronology. And it is the interpretation or the stories that make history mean so much.

Let me tell you how this thought process started. I was driving down the Georgetown by-pass when I heard a song I had never heard before. The singer was Susan Warner and the lyrics to the song, or the part that grabbed my heart and threw it up against the wall were "the grave-yard of St. Mary's of regret."

What an incredibly poignant image.

We all have left pieces of ourselves behind in that graveyard, sections of our hearts that we weren't ready to be separated from, and yet, because of circumstances beyond our control, we had no other choice. The present becomes the past when we must leave those pieces of our hearts behind.

Last week, I watched the funeral procession of a young man who died tragically, way, way too soon. As the hundreds of police cars, fire engines and private automobiles passed by the Old Capitol, I thought of all the funeral processions that have passed by for governors and statesmen, pioneers and politicians, mothers and sons.

In our, oh, so human hearts we cry, "Too fast, too fast. It's over way to fast." For all of us who have ever regretted losing, it is always too soon when all we are left with are memories of the heart. And sometimes we bury those memories so deep that it takes the evocative pull of music or an unexpectedly familiar turn of phrase or discovering something, an artifact, that can make those memories come achingly, wonderfully rushing back.

The artifacts that we display and collect here at the Historical Society sometimes seem to have been sterilized by time and separation from their provenance. But they all have a story to tell, and they all have a lesson to teach.

That's where the accession files come in. Back in the Registrar's office are the files that tell us where each artifact or painting originated, who donated it and what the story behind it is. Occasionally, I go back to look up something and I am constantly amazed at the wealth and variety of those files. In a set of innocuous looking filing cabinets are some of the real treasures of the Kentucky Historical Society.

So what is the moral to this story? It's the age old moral that our ancestors, our grandparents and parents have told us over and over again. Take a deep breath and listen to the people around you talking. Really hear what they are saying. Slow down. Hug your kids. Tell the people around you that you appreciate them. Life IS too short and there's not one thing we can do to extend the days we've been allotted.

By association with the events of our lives, the artifacts, the things we save remind us of the stories. To our children and their children those artifacts will represent the things that we thought were important and worth preserving. Our world, our days are moving quickly.

Perhaps they always have and it is just my advancing age that makes things seem to go rushing past. But yesterday is gone, we are not permitted tomorrow, we only have today. That's why it's called the present.

Powerful duo fronts hot blues band on Jubilee

Hailing from just across the river in Indiana, Stillwell-Rodenberg & Co. light up the stage with shades of blue on the next Jubilee, airing Thursday, July 13, at 10 p.m. on KET.

Stillwell-Rodenberg & Co., a four-piece band based in Evansville, first came together in July of 1997 when Tommy Stillwell and Carl Rodenberg found themselves working on the same recording project.

Considered two of the city's most prominent bluesmen, Stillwell and Rodenberg joined forces, and their separate styles have seamlessly coalesced into a fresh and contemporary blues sound.

Their performance for the program is an exciting combination of engaging originals and the band's arrangements of popular blues standards.

The concert was taped at last summer's W. C. Handy Blues Festival in Henderson.

Jubilee, a KET production in its fifth season, is produced and directed by H. Russell Farmer. The show is closed-captioned for the deaf and hard-ofhearing.

Forum series encores on KET2

KET2 encores in July the popular series "Kentucky Author Forum Presents," which brings some of the brightest poets, novelists, playwrights, activists and thinkers to Kentucky to talk about their life and writings.

The programs air on Mondays at 8 p.m.

On July 10, legendary playwright Neil Simon, who has authored 30 plays, 27 screenplays and one memoir and has won a Pulitzer Prize and four Tony Awards, talks about his prolific career.

Novelist John Updike is the featured author on July 17. Updike has published more than 40 books, including novels and collections of poetry. He has also earned two Pulitzer Prizes and the Howells Medal, given by the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

On July 24, Katherine Graham, former publisher of the Washington Post, talks about her autobiography, "Personal History," which tells the story of her disapproving parents, a difficult marriage and the experience of becoming an icon.

The final program in July, airing July 31, features a conversation with first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. Clinton discusses her book "It Takes a Village: And Other Lessons Children Teach Us."

Kentucky Author Forum Presents is a KET production, produced and directed by Duncan Hart. Nancy Carpenter is executive producer.

The authors' appearances in Louisville were produced by the Kentucky Author Forum (Mary Moss Greenebaum, producer) and sponsored by the University of Louisville in cooperation with Hawley Cooke Booksellers and the Kentucky Center for the

KET takes viewers on scenic tour of South

By way of the American Orient Express, a private luxury train, KET takes viewers on a tour of our nation's southern states.

"The American South by Rail," airing Wednesday, July 12 at 8 p.m. on KET, features a scenic train ride that begins along the Mississippi River Delta in New Orleans, quickly moves into the tidal lowlands of Louisiana and Mississippi and makes its final stop on the East Coast.

The tour takes viewers through some of the South's most interesting cities.

One of the stops along the way is Savannah, Georgia, a city steeped in southern tradition and culture. Here, John Berendt, author of "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil," describes the city as "seductively beautiful." The popularity of his book, which is set in Savannah, has transformed the city into a tourist hotspot.

Other stops include Charleston, South Carolina, where viewers are treated to a horse-drawn carriage tour of the historic city, and the antebellum plantation mansions along the Ashley River, including Drayton Hall, considered one of the most architecturally significant buildings in the United States. The ride ends in Washington, D.C.

"The American South by Rail," produced by Driftwood Productions Inc. and Oregon Public Broadcasting, is closed-captioned for the deaf and hard-of-hearing. Viewers can find out more about programming on KET by visiting the KET Web site at http://www.ket.org, a Kentucky.com affiliate.

A Kentucky Master: John James Audubon

A new exhibit, "A Kentucky Master," which focuses on the works of famed artist and naturalist John James Audubon (1785-1851), runs July 15-September 24, at the Kentucky History Center.

Audubon is best known for producing colorful, lifelike illustrations of birds for his "Birds of America" folio. During his time in Kentucky (1807-1819), Audubon worked as a storekeeper, but his avocation was drawing birds.

The 27 chromolithographs in the exhibit are from the 1858-60 Julius

A new exhibit, "A Kentucky Bien edition of "Birds of America" aster," which focuses on the works which consists of 106 double-ele-famed artist and naturalist John phant folio prints.

Complemented by 10 bird mounts from the Cincinnati Museum Center, the chromolithographs portray birds found in Kentucky in the first quarter of the 19th century.

Enhancing the exhibit will be visitor-activated sound components, labels that address common misconceptions about Kentucky bird life and a children's souvenir booklet with activities for both the exhibit gallery and at home. Running concurrently with this exhibit will be "The Weapon As Art," Hours for the exhibits and museums of the Kentucky Historical Society are: Monday, Closed; Tuesday and Wednesday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Thursday, 10 a.m.-8 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sunday, 1-5 p.m.

Tracy Byrd at Renfro Valley, July 22

Tracy Byrd has a voice that can virtually own any type of song. No style of country music is beyond his grasp. From an up-tempo tune to a ballad or waltz, his audiences are always impressed with the caliber of his music and it's always real, no gimmicks.

Byrd still lives in his home state of Texas, where he is a devoted husband and father to his wife Michelle and young daughter Evee. He still hangs out with his old high school buddies and goes hunting and fishing every chance he gets.

An avid outdoorsman, Byrd has developed five Bass Fishing/Country Music Festivals benefiting Special Olympics.

He was only 20 years old when, after a standing ovation, he realized for the first time what an effect his voice could have on an audience. "As soon as they stood up and started clapping, I knew what I wanted to do," Byrd says, and he's been doing it ever since.

To the delight of his fans, Renfro Valley Entertainment Center will feature two concerts by Tracy Byrd on Saturday, July 22.

The shows will be at 7 and 9:15 p.m. Tickets are $20 and $22. Call 800-765-7464 or 606/256-2638 for reservations or information.

Kovels: Antiques and Collectibles

by RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Radio broadcasting as we know it today started in 1920, probably with the report by KDKA of Pittsburgh on the Harding-Cox presidential election returns. The first receiving radios were made under an agreement with Howard Armstrong, who held patents related to the new technology. The early battery-operated radios were large and unattractive. By 1928, radios were being offered in attractive cabinets made to resemble the furniture of the day. The first figural radio was "Monte Blue," a 1920s crystal set showing a man in an overstuffed chair. Vacuum-tube radio sets were also made in novelty shapes by the 1930s. Mickey Mouse was one of the earliest. But the era of novelty radios favored by today's collector started with the transistor radios of the 1950s. Today's radios use the newest electronic methods and often have added features, like headphones.

Q: I collect lithographed tin sand pails. I only have a few, and I never even thought about who drew the designs on them. A local dealer has some pails designed by Elaine Ends Hileman. He doesn't know much about her. Do you?

A: Elaine Ends was born in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1919. She did freelance drawings for Children's Playmate magazine and American Greetings before she married George Hileman in 1944. From 1945 to 1951, she worked freelance for Ohio Art Co. of Bryan, Ohio. She drew cute designs that were used on lithographed tin tops, watering cans, tea sets, drums, shovels, sand pails and more. Most of her drawings feature children playing. Her sand pails sell for $65 to $100.

Make this year the summer of Star Trek

(NUE) - This summer, instead of bothering with the regular blockbuster mega-movies, there's great news for movie fans everywhere: Paramount Home Entertainment is releasing a whole host of Star Trek flicks on DVD and

The original series is being released bimonthly on DVD and is now past volume 12. These DVDs, which are digitally enhanced and remastered, sell for $29.99.

Then watch "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan," the second installment of the hugely popular Star Trek film series, in which Admiral Kirk (William Shatner) falls prey to the evil genius of Khan (Ricardo Montalban).

This installment, which is also $29.99, is the sequel to a first-season episode of the original series, in which Captain Kirk banishes Khan and his superhuman henchman to life on a remote planet.

And see the VHS release of "Star Trek Voyager," Volumes 12 -; 16, for $14.95 per volume. Subsequent volumes will be released chronologically throughout the rest of the

If you think you know everything there is to know about the franchise, you'll want to test your knowledge on the subject. So don't miss "Ultimate Trek: Star Trek's Greatest Moments," which features a remarkable assortment of favorite Star Trek scenes.

This video, which is only $14.95, contains segments with the most memorable villains and sexiest moments, along with the best dialog, one-liners and last-minute heroics from the most successful series in entertainment

Look for "Trekkies," which takes a look at the universe's most fun-loving fans. Hosted by Denise Crosby, who starred in "Star Trek II: The Next Generation," this documentary seeks out the absurd extremes of the Star Trek experience. It also explores the very lively debate about the terms "trekkie" and "trekker," and the differences within.

So spend your summer in the company of the whole crew. Log on to Paramount Home Entertainment at www.paramount.com and get beamed up.

NEWPORTRAITS, by Eileen Warburton, Judith Sobel & Cora Lee Gibbs (University Press of New England: $50).

There is a fascinating subtlety about "Newportraits" that is slow to impact but eventually overwhelms. What the reader is presented with is presumably what the volume purports to be: A catalog of some three centuries of citizenry of the Rhode Island seaport as assembled in the Newport Art Museum. (The reproduction quality of the art is superb.)

Yet the superficiality of that surmise evaporates when the realization strikes that these are not just any Newporters; they are the elite. Here are the captains and traders who founded and made Newport a commercial center and their successors who turned it into one of the nation's most fashionable and exclusive resorts for the Art, society and culture meld together in the history of what essayist Warburton calls "a place out of American legend. Carved out of the colonial coastal wilderness by religious rebels in 1639, the town became quickly notorious for its liberty of conscience and as quickly famous for its even bolder liberty of commerce." Ironically, the Revolution destroyed the commercial predominance Newport once enjoyed.

Equally eye-opening are the varied forms of art employed: oil on canvas and paper, sculpture, silhouette, watercolor, pastel, oil on photograph. Here, too, is an annotated gallery of many of society's famous with mini-sketches of the famed artists who captured them for posterity. Writer Warburton and former museum directors Sobel and Gibbs deserves high praise for this delightful album of and for Americans.

the ABC film, "Ice," airing July 22. They play two of the very few survivors of a cataclysmic event that ushers in a new ice age.

That was Joshua Jackson (Pacey, "Dawson's Creek") who was a burglary victim last month, not Jonathan Jackson (ex Lucky, "General Hospital") as one report had it. Joshua lost his journal, camera and a scrapbook filled with childhood photos he planned to bring home to his mom in Vancouver, British Columbia.

It was family time on the set of "Y&R" a few weeks ago when Elizabeth Scott, daughter of Melody Thomas Scott (Nikki) and executive producer Edward Scott, did a turn on the show. She was joined by Amy Shaughnessy, the daughter of producer David Shaughnessy. And, yes, Charles Shaughnessy (ex "Days of Our Lives" and, most recently, "The Nanny") is her uncle.

The Finest Hour recounts horrors, triumphs of British during WWII

In 1940, Hitler had Europe at his mercy, and Britain stood alone.

From Spitfire pilots to teenage evacuees, from Coventry firemen to women and children caught up in the horror of the Blitz, "The Finest Hour: The Battle of Britain" recalls in personal and vivid detail the story of that dark and dramatic time when the destiny of the world hung in the balance.

The two-part series, airing Mondays, July 10 and 17, at 9 p.m. on KET, focuses on the personal experiences and the political intrigue behind the scenes of one of the most critical periods of World War II.

The series brings to life an epoch of world history unlike any other through fresh archival footage, still photographs, dramatic recreations and vivid personal accounts.

The stories run the gamut of the British experience, from soldiers who went to aid in the resistance of Hitler's advance, to seamen who braved bombs and torpedoes to evacuate 350,000 men from the beaches of Dunkirk, to pilots of the Royal Air Force who were inexperienced but determined.

The series also examines America's involvement in the war. President Franklin D. Roosevelt, a passionate anti-Nazi who wanted to aid his friend Winston Churchill, needed a great commitment from the United States.

At the time, however, isolationism was a powerful force in American society, and Roosevelt was not receiving the support he hoped for. Through the testimony of Americans who were in Britain in 1940, the series shows how American opinion began to turn from isolationism toward active involvement in the war.

'The Finest Hour: The Battle of Britain,' produced by WGBH/Boston and Brook Lapping Productions in association with the BBC, is closed-captioned for the deaf and hard-of-hearing. Viewers can find out more about programming on KET by visiting the KET Web site at http://www.ket.org, a Kentucky.com affiliate.

KET airs filmmaker's look at murder of journalist

In 1967 Canadian filmmaker Hugh O'Connor traveled to Jeremiah, Kentucky, to document the Appalachian region's long struggle with poverty.

Before he could complete the filming, however, he was shot and killed by Hobart Ison, a local who resented such national media exposure of eastern Kentucky's poor.

Now, Kentucky filmmaker Elizabeth Barret examines the clashing perspectives at the root of this controversial murder in "Stranger with a Camera," a P.O.V. documentary airing Tuesday, July 11, at 10 p.m. on KET and Saturday, July 15 at 8 p.m. on KET2.

Both a filmmaker and an eastern Kentucky native, Barret finds herself uniquely positioned to explore the often tenuous line between media's dual responsibilities to public knowledge and to private dignity.

She describes her film as "a story both about the intrusion of cameras and the importance of cameras in our lives."

Barret's skillful combination of eyewitness accounts, interviews with residents and with family members of both killer and victim, and archival news footage documenting the O'Connor murder has earned her film widespread critical acclaim.

David Whisnant, professor of English and American studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, praises the documentary as being "way beyond everything that has ever been done on the issue of where images come from and how they are perceived from different perspectives."

P.O.V. "Stranger with a Camera" is produced by Elizabeth

Barret and is a co-presentation of Appalshop and KET in association with the Independent Television Service (ITVS).

It is believed in some cultures that lightning will not strike an elder bush.

out the door and saw employees lock it behind her. Lingle is married to a jailed murder suspect, was in the company of a second man during her bank transaction, and implied to police that the two men were just using her.

So Much for the Revolution in Corsica

The guerilla separatist movement in Corsica was dealt a severe blow in June when its leader for the last 20 years, Marcel Lorenzoni, 50, and his son, Pierre, 21, stabbed each other to death during an argument in their hometown of Bastelica.

Update

News of the Weird reported in 1994 that then-recent government figures showed the death toll of young women in India killed by their mothers-in-law for insufficient dowries had risen to 4,700 per year. In May 2000, Canada's Southam news service reported that a jail in Delhi, India, is seriously overcrowded with such mothers-in-law (including also those who merely have threatened, assaulted or imprisoned their sons' wives) and that the death toll is now 6,300 per year.

Least Competent Criminals

Bad Decisions: Ernest Michaelson, 45, was arrested in Bridgeport, Connecticut, in January, just after allegedly robbing a United Bank; he was discovered around back, where he had interrupted his getaway in order to count the money ($857). And two women were arrested near Carlsbad, New Mexico, in January, where their car had run out of gas; acting on a hunch, a patrolman found that the gas tank held surprisingly little gasoline because the inside of the tank was taken up with packages containing about 80 pounds of marijuana.

Also, in the Last Month ...

A Leesburg, Virginia, Safeway employee of 30 years' standing won a $27,500 settlement for being fired for buying a few blemished, discounted fruit without management authorization. One female guest bit off part of another's nose in a wedding-party brawl (Prince Albert, Saskatchewan). Police finally caught the man they suspect in the nine-month exhibitionist spree of the "Big Bonnet"

(previously in News of the Weird), who dresses in oversized baby clothes (North Platte, Nebraska). A judge reduced a statutory rapist's sentence because of the 14-year-old victim's "advanced" "maturity" at 5 feet 11 inches, 200 pounds (Spartanburg, South Carolina). A man lunging to kill a housefly fell 59 feet out of a window onto two roofs and into a river (but suffered only minor injuries) (Ennetbaden, Switzerland).

Travel tips for parents of young kids

(NUE) - Traveling with kids can be an adventure in itself. That's why parents need to be prepared when it comes to keeping children occupied during the trip.

Whether driving, flying or taking another type of transportation, children must be amused. It's important for babies and toddlers to have colorful, music-making toys and busy boxes, for example. And pre-schoolers to second-graders should have finger puppets, pop-up books, stickers and activity books with crayons.

Keeping kids occupied isn't something to consider only enroute to a destination. Making sure they are busy in the hotel is just as important. Sometimes television just won't do it. One lodging chain geared to fit children's needs is Comfort Inn and Comfort Suites brand hotels. Through August 31 while supplies last, all guests at Comfort Inn and Comfort Suites hotels will receive a free "Pokemon the Movie 2000" activity book, developed exclusively for Comfort brand hotels.

Pokemon, created in Japan, made its debut in the United States in late 1998 and quickly became a national obsession.

Comfort brand hotels' 52-page activity book is designed by Nintendo Power Magazine. Nintendo of America developed the promotion in partnership with Comfort brand hotels and Kids' WB! Presents.

"Pokemon the Movie 2000," the latest animated adventure from the Pokemon universe and a widely anticipated summer blockbuster, will be released nationwide on July 21.

The Pokemon activity book will be available to all guests who check in to one of 1,500 Comfort Inn or Comfort Suites brand hotels throughout the United States this summer.

The book includes a range of activities featuring the popular Pokemon characters, many of which are making their debut in the new movie.

From Pikachu mazes to Blastoise crosswords, from Togepie picture puzzles to Hoothoot connect-the-dots, the activity book will keep kids busy throughout their summer travels.

At Comfort brand hotels, the largest of seven hotel brands franchised by Choice Hotels International (NYSE: CHH), kids stay free when traveling with parents or grandparents. A deluxe continental breakfast is included in the price of a room. All offer 100 percent satisfaction guaranteed.

Trover Clinic, pint-sized dream house on KY Life

Kentucky Life serves up a smorgasbord of stories when a look at rural health care is presented, alongside a little girl's dream house, a hummingbird-lover's fantasy and the beauty of Carter Caves State Park.

The program, hosted by Dave Shuffett, airs on KET Saturday, July 15 at 8:30 p.m..

First, the program shows how the vision of one man, Dr. Loman Trover, became a reality. He saw the challenge of providing health care to rural Western Kentucky and met it by creating what has been called "Kentucky's Mayo Clinic" in Madisonville.

Kentucky Life pauses to reflect with Dr. Trover on how health care has changed over the years, while also glimpsing the personal life of a true Kentucky vision-

Next, viewers travel to Paintsville, where indulgent grandparents have constructed a playhouse that most homeowners would envy. Rosa Lee Pack explains how she and her husband built the cottage and set about furnishing it with all the amenities of a real home.

Kentucky Life then visits Jeanine Brady of St. Joe, who has been attracting hummingbirds to her back yard for many years.

Finally, viewers can drink in yet another of Kentucky's beautiful outdoor wonderlands in a visit to Carter Caves State Park. Located in Olive Hill, it is home to more than 20 caverns, some explored and some not yet charted. This segment also looks at the park's many other charms.

Kentucky Life is produced and directed by Joy Flynn. Series writer is Ellen Ballard, Segment producers for this program are Joy Flynn, Ernie Martin and Gale Worth. Craig Cornwell is executive producer.

KENTUCKY HISTORY CENTER

I often discuss what the Kentucky Historical Society and History Center have to offer the visitors who come here to see the artifacts or do research in the library. But, what must visitors bring to the History Center?

Like any other museum, there is a laundry list of the things that you must not bring: food, drink, bubble gum, weapons, dynamite and cigarettes—just a few things that are potentially damaging to the artifacts and other treasures that we have here.

But that wasn't what I meant.

The most important thing that you bring to the History Center is yourself. Each of our visitors brings a unique perspective and personal history through the doors of the History Center, the Old Capitol and the Military History Museum. It is what you bring to the experience that makes it so special.

For example, as I have taken travel writers and media people through the permanent exhibit, "A Kentucky Journey," they, without fail, stop at the wall in the Civil War display. They point out a face or a picture and say "Doesn't that look like my friend Bill?" or "Look at that guy, I bet he was something else!"

That area is titled "Houses Divided" and on that deep red wall are hung many images from our collection of photographs and negatives. In most instances, we don't know who those people are.

There is a picture of a young, tough man with his matching six-shooters stuck in his belt. There is an image of an African-American nursemaid with her young white charge on her lap. Hanging on that wall is a portrait of a young soldier; his eyes don't reflect the bravado of the time. He wears a quizzical look, as if he is wondering "What am I doing here?"

Each of those faces has a story to tell. Even though they are far removed from us in time, they are closer to us in spirit than we usually imagine. The boys who went off to war for the Blue and the Gray were not so different from the boys who are growing up in our own homes and in our classrooms.

An artifact that always piques my imagination is also in the Civil War area. It is a pair of knitting needles carved from a fence rail. When I first saw them, I had a mental image of a man waiting for battle, crouched down behind a split-rail fence, sitting though endless hours of hot sun and cold night air waiting for the other side to attack. His mind wandered to the womenfolk at home and he spent his time whittling. Whittling and waiting.

The histories of the artifacts we have are in the accession files. These files tell from whence the artifact came and whatever of its history that we know. The accession file for those knitting needles is not nearly as romantic as I first imagined, but I like my version better and Γm sticking to it.

The amazing thing to consider is that we have many hundreds of artifacts, manuscripts, photographs and other signposts of how people lived in the generations that have preceded ours. Every one tells a story if we will only take the time to listen. We cannot just listen with ear and brain, we must also listen with our hearts. We must take the time to hear and to learn, or else what we are doing here is for naught.

I'm baaaack! I apologize for the absence of the column for the last few weeks, but I slipped a disc over Memorial Day weekend. This resulted in my first-ever ambulance pital and surgery. Since I am still under doctor's orders to spend as little time sitting upright as possible, I am writing this while reclining in a chaise lawn rides, nearly two weeks in the hos-chair pushed under my desk, with the keyboard in my lap.

It beats lying on the sofa at home, worrying about how much dust is on the ceiling fan.

I will do an article later about Gunner's adventures in becoming an assistance dog. Since I have some nerve damage in one leg, he is learning to help me go up and down steps and how to steady me as I walk.

I know I just did an article on dog bite prevention, but I think it bears a follow-up, in light of recent events. I caught a couple of news reports about dog attacks in the last couple of weeks.

I honestly don't know the details of either of these incidents, since both of them occurred while I was hospitalized. I either heard only partial news stories and/or was in a Demerol haze at the time, but they got my attention.

One story was about a young girl who was attacked while riding her bicycle, and the other was an older lady who apparently died as a result of an attack by a pack of dogs. I don't think they were sure at the time whether the dogs actually had killed her or whether she had died from a head injury resulting from falling or being knocked down, or from a heart attack during the incident.

What strikes me about both of these incidents is that they both involved packs of dogs. I can't help but see the similarity between these incidents and the assaults on women in Central Park. Whether dogs or people, the behavior of a group can be radically different from the behavior of an individual. Owners seldom think about their pet dogs being the predators that

The predatory drive is not a bad thing, in and of itself. It has allowed us to develop good hunting, herding and tracking breeds.

stalking, holding, killing and devouring of prey. The entire sequence is seldom seen in domestic dogs, except for the occasional rogue sheep- or chicken-killer. Even these dogs seldom devour their victims.

Examples of positive use of predatory instincts include the training of search and rescue dogs, which emphasizes the very early portion of the prey drive. Herding dogs use the stalk and sometimes the hold bite; protection training of police dogs involves fine control of the entire sequence up to the hold bite and threat of further aggres-

It is when this very basic instinct is expressed in an inappropriate manner that we have problems. Although dogs occasionally hunt alone, they are much more effective as a group and may go after prey they would not attempt on their own.

Not all dog bites are the result of a predatory mindset, but there are aspects of both the previously mentioned attacks that make me suspect that these two were.

In the case of the child on the bicycle, there would obviously be fairly rapid movement that would trigger the chase instinct. The elderly lady, I would venture to guess, also tried to run and probably also screamed, adding the high-pitched vocalizations of a prey animal to the equation.

Could either of these incidents have been prevented? From the standpoint of responsible dog ownership, probably so. Roaming dog packs result from failure to adequately confine pet animals and from the existence of semi-feral dogs, which are all too often the offspring of pets that were not spayed or neutered. Since packs of dogs do exist, could the victims have done anything to avoid or minimize damage these from attacks? Maybe. When > confronted with a group of dogs, the worst possible things to do are to flee and/or scream. This sounds good in theory, but it is a very difficult thing to do, especially for a terrified child or older adult.

This is why it is important to talk to children about dog bite prevention, just as you would stage home fire drills or caution them about what to do if approached by a stranger. It has made me think that we may need to take our dog safety talks to senior citizens centers, as well as schools.

Instead of just dwelling on "don't run, don't scream," important to give children a positive action to take. I think that "Be a tree, be a rock" - stand or lie still and protect your face and fingers should be as familiar advice as 'Stop, Drop and Roll.'

In emergencies, kids (and the rest of us) remember short sayings that prompt what you should do much better than a long list of what not to do. This won't stop injuries from dog attacks any more than "Stop,

Drop and Roll" eliminates burn injuries, but it could go a long way toward preventing many bad situations becoming from tragedies.

We also need to realize that free-roaming dogs are not the only ones who form packs. Those of us with multiples pets see pack behavior in action every day. I heard a saying once that with dogs, "two's company, three's a pack." In one way, that's true, but even one dog perceives the human family in terms of a pack structure.

The more dogs you have, the more important it is to make sure you are viewed as the "alpha" pack member, the ultimate leader to whom everyone must defer.

Good leaders are rarely, if every, violent, and often are not even particularly physical. They set the rules and enforce them fairly in a way that all pack members understand.

This is where obedience training is invaluable for both you and your dog(s). It establishes the communication lines necessary to maintain good pack order.

Don't wait for a tragedy. Make sure your dogs don't roam free, and confine them any time children or other vulnerable people are present, if strict supervision is impossible. Get some basic training for both you and your dogs, and include dog bite prevention in the routine safety precautions you teach your chil-
