The Past is Present

It's here. "Our Yesterdays: A Pictorial History of Floyd County, Kentucky" has arrived from the publisher. The book is 128 pages of local history ... our history.

The handsome daughters of John H. and Polly Taylor Clark, a baptism in Left Beaver Creek by Old Regular Baptist Elder N.T. Hopkins, the young men of Bonanza High School in 1937, the members of the Marian Rebecca Lodge in the 1940s, Tom Blackburn plowing his garden at Endicott in 1968, a floating car at Emma during the 1957 flood, Mary Harless feeding her chickens — they're all there, plus many more.

If you have already paid for a book — or if you want to buy one now — you can stop by the office of the Floyd County Times weekdays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Out of county pre-paid orders are being mailed.

If you haven't pre-paid, the books are available, while supplies last, for $34.95 plus tax. A limited edition, deluxe copy is available for $75 plus tax.

If you submitted pictures for the book you can pick them up at the Times office. Enjoy.

School board considers roofs, classrooms

by PAM SHINGLER
SENIOR EDITOR

The Floyd County Board of Education gave the go-ahead for advertising and letting bids for new roofs at Stumbo and Osborne elementary schools at a special-called meeting Tuesday evening.

Leaks at Stumbo warrant the speeding up of the process, the board agreed, but District 4 board member Carol Stumbo expressed concern that the construction would disrupt academic classes.

Greg Adams, facilities director, said work could be scheduled around Christmas or spring break, but Carol Stumbo insisted that the stipulation be attached to the bid that instruction not be interrupted.

Supt. Paul Fanning told Adams to "get up close and personal with the contractor" to make sure that the re-roofing does not disrupt learning.

Adams was instructed to move as quickly as possible with the roof bids, particularly for Stumbo Elementary where the need is more critical. He was also advised to bid the Osborne roof exclusive of the gym.

Board members also discussed the use of mobile classrooms to alleviate overcrowding at Stumbo Elementary.

"We said we would never do this again," said board chairman Terry Dotson, referring to the school system's costly experience with mobile classrooms. "I would like to see specificity regarding leases. The last lease was so open-ended, it was scary," Dotson said.

With the mobile units expected to cost as much as $900 per month and more, the board broached the matter of purchasing rather than leasing.

"I want to make sure this is a temporary facility, even if we purchase it," said District 1 board member Johnnie Ross.

Adams recommended looking into the purchase of a 24'x64' unit, which would make two classrooms, and a 24'x32' unit. He said that if he advertised the bids right away, pending state approval, the process still requires more than 20 days.

Dotson said he might be able to get one unit donated to the system.

Pointing out the substandard conditions at the school, Carol Stumbo said, "Every day that goes by, those students are in those classrooms. We need to get them out of there."

Also in regard to facilities, the board approved the agreement with Johnson-Romanowicz Architects for the interior renovation of the "water building" at Duff Elementary School. Some discussion ensued as to what governing body is responsible for the use of the building.

District 5 member Jody Mullins said he

Educational goals approved by board

by PAM SHINGLER
SENIOR EDITOR

With an overall target of improving teaching and learning in Floyd County schools, the local board of education approved a set of goals, recommended by Supt. Paul Fanning, and added some of their own at Tuesday night's special meeting.

Board members were advised of three goals:

- To increase the district academic index by 3.5 points on the Spring 2001 Kentucky Performance Report, according to results reported by October 1, 2001.

- To reach 95 percent student attendance by June 30, 2001.

- To reach 97 percent employee attendance by June 30, 2001.

Board member Carol Stumbo requested that a goal regarding an ongoing system of accountability be added. "I would like to see us consider an accountability process... with evaluation of all staff," the District 4 member said.

Fanning informed the board that work has been done on a management audit, with "significant gains." He added that another scholastic audit by the state is coming up in the next few weeks. "We'll be assessed (as to) where we are, what we've done," the superintendent said.

State Manager Woodrow Carter said the completed audit by the Department of Education is expected by early December.

District 5 board member Jody Mullins said he would like for the board to see a report before the audit report is done. "I would hate to be blind-sided," he said.

Board members also asked Fanning to add a goal concerning an increase in parent involvement in schools.

"We've moved this meeting all over the county, and I've yet to see a roomful of parents," Mullins said.

First District board member Johnnie Ross agreed. "We can meet for months and years and talk about academic standards, but we talk about athletics and the room is filled," he said.

"I don't believe people in the community don't care," said Carol Stumbo. "We just have to find a better way to communicate."

She added that she believes many parents "feel they can't get involved" and indicated that board members "need to look at systems where par-

Mine operators charged with criminal violations

by GRETA FIELDS
SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

Three men from Floyd County who ran a mine where a scoop operator, James Sturgill, was killed last year, are scheduled to be arraigned in U.S. District Court, October 18, in Frankfort.

The men were indicted July 12 for criminal violations of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act.

The charges are against Jody Sammons, 39, of Minnie, president of J & A Coal Corp.; Matthew Hall, 44, of Grethel, the mine superintendent, day shift section foreman, and Randy Carroll, 42, Grethel, the second shift foreman.

They are accused of allowing their employees to work under an unsupported roof and numerous other violations at the No. 1 mine in Knott County. This mine, located at Lackey, employs about 34.

"The investigators determined that the accident occurred as a result of mine management's failure to adequately supervise and direct the work force, to prevent miners from traveling under unsupported roof. A practice of traveling and working under unsupported roof was found to exist which directly contributed to the death of the 35-year-old miner and injuries to three co-

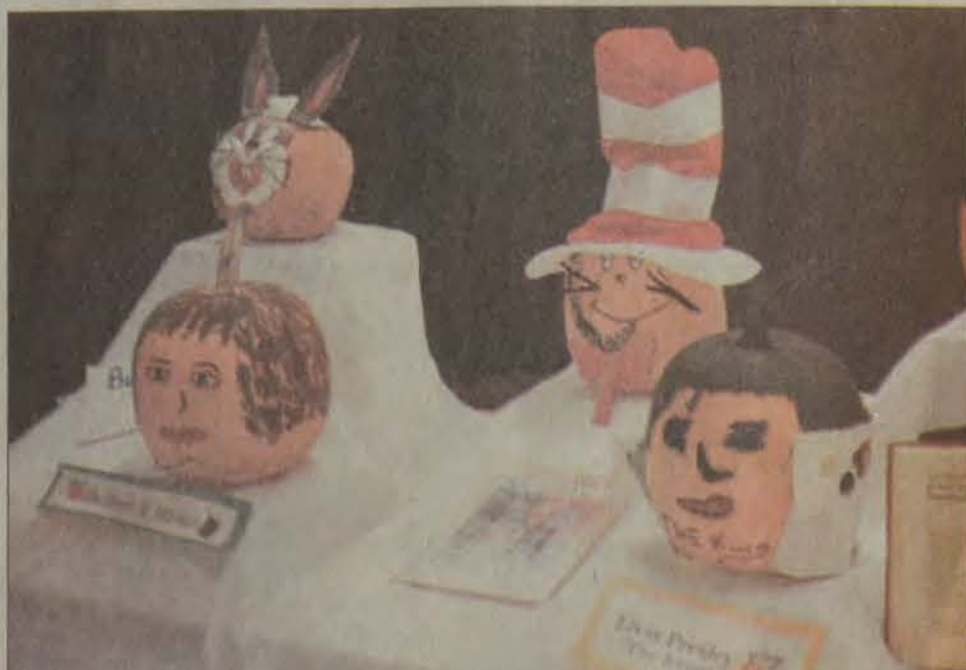

(See MINE, page two)

The criminal indictment by the U.S. Attorney accused the three officials of six safety violations:

- Allowing miners to work under unsupported roof.
- Roof bolting in areas where the roof support system would not reach.
- Failure to instruct miners in changes in the roof control plan.
- Failure to post warning signs where roof support ended.
- Failure to follow ventilation plan.
- Allowing miners to smoke in the mine, and failure to search miners for cigarettes.

If convicted, each man faces a sentence of up to one year in prison and fine of up to $100,000, on each count.

Sammons, the mine president, faces additional charges for issuing false MSHA training certificates to four miners. Sammons faces up to five years in jail for each count, and a fine up to $250,000.

Board

had been advised that if the building is to be used for Head Start, the Duff Site-Based Decision-Making Council does not have authority over it.

Cost of the renovation is estimated at $85,000.

The board also approved the standard agreement with the architectural firm to go ahead with the plan to fill in the swimming pool at Allen Central High School and convert it to other usage, at a cost of $97,503.

Ross voted against the measure, saying he remains "opposed to closing the pool."

The board learned that it would have to reconsider the 2000-2001 property tax rates. According to finance director Matt Wireman, the board received "erroneous property assessments" from the state.

Those assessments, upon which tax rates are set, resulted in a projected loss of state funding of more than $232,500. To minimize its losses, the board must adjust the property tax rate to 61.9 cents per $100 assessment.

Following the required public notices and a public hearing, the earliest the new rate could be approved by the board is October 30. Wireman said he has planned a hearing for that date at 6 p.m. at May Valley Elementary School library. A special board meeting would then follow to consider the tax rate adoption.

The notice of the new rate proposal is being published in the Public Notice section of today's newspaper.

The proposed new rate would cut the school system's losses to around $66,000.

After turning down Prestonsburg Elementary School's request to alter its primary progress report at the last regular meeting, the board approved a revised edition.

Principal Gwen Harmon explained the process followed in getting parent input for the revision. She said that a survey showed that parents are in favor of students in the primary classrooms being assigned letter grades, but not kindergarten students.

The revision removes the younger children from the letter grade assessment and adds more opportunity for teachers to provide narrative assessment on the reports.

The board discussed once again the possibility of giving parent volunteers a break on school meal prices. The issue was brought up at the last regular meeting.

"Having been a parent volunteer, I really appreciate what they do," said District 3 board member Jeff Stumbo. "Anything we can do to assist them, we should."

Food service director Brenda Fish presented charts showing the cost to the system under different options. For instance, according to the charts, if 50 full-time volunteers were offered meals at the same rate as students, the cost for the rest of the school year would be more than $13,000. At a "reduced rate," the cost would be more than $4,000.

Fish said there is a potential for 400 or so volunteers, but not all of them would spend the entire day at the schools. Many, she said, will work after school. Last year, about 50 were full-time volunteers, she said.

Carol Stumbo said that having to buy meals at full price "may be a barrier to parent participation," but Fish reminded the board that the food service would have to be reimbursed for the cost breaks.

Ross suggested that site-based councils "chip in money from vending machines toward parent lunches."

Board members appeared not to be pleased with the City of Prestonsburg's decision to annex the area around KY 114, including Clark Elementary School.

Ross, whose district encompasses the city and the school, said he believes the annexation lines were "arbitrarily drawn" to include school employees in the city's occupational tax. "I am concerned," he said, "that the employee tax will be assessed on all classified (employees), particularly bus drivers and aides."

Other board members said they still want to have a meeting with city council members. A meeting had been requested prior to Monday night's council meeting, but could not be set up because of conflicting schedules.

Chairman Dotson urged the board not to "come across as hostile" in its dealings with the city.

Also during the Tuesday meeting, the board approved policy regarding correspondence and Virtual High School courses, and it approved the use of Allen Central High School for a class to be offered by Prestonsburg Community College.

ents are involved and see what they do."

Board chairman Terry Dotson, District 2, said he had heard that Whitley County Schools had experienced an increase in parent involvement and asked Fanning to look into what is being done there.

The board adopted Fanning's recommended goals and requested that goals on accountability and parent involvement be added.

Each goal has a set of objectives for success.

Objectives for improving academic achievement include providing district technical assistance in curriculum, instruction and assessment to all schools, monitoring the implementation of the district curriculum, and providing additional support for schools in need.

Objectives for improving student attendance include recognizing exemplary attendance — 97 percent — for individual students and schools for high attendance.

Objectives for improving employee attendance include improving communication, providing constructive feedback and recognition, considering attendance incentives, providing information sessions concerning benefits and wellness and expanding opportunities to strengthen collegiality among employees.

workers," according to the accident investigation report issued by District 7 office of the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA).

The MSHA report also revealed that mine operators and workers had not been instructed to use a revised roof control plan in the area: The roof had been blasted out so high that the Automated Temporary Roof Support (ATRS) system on the roof bolting machine did not reach the roof.

MSHA's report described the incident as follows:

This "boom hole" was blasted out by the day shift, creating an unsupported area prior to the second shift entering the mine. The second shift crew, under Carroll's direction, came on duty and cleaned up the blast site and stopped to eat. After eating, the men began installing roof bolts in the unsupported area of the boom hole.

Sturgill was assisting Byron Martin and John Crisp, who were installing roof bolts. Burl Hughes, a scoop operator, was holding drill steel for Martin, who was operating a roof bolting machine. Crisp, who was operating another roof bolting machine, saw Sturgill crawl past him and enter the unsupported area — Sturgill apparently was planning to hold the drill steel for Crisp.

A section of roof fell, and Sturgill was crushed under a 7 ft. x 4 ft. x 5-in. slab. Martin was knocked unconscious momentarily; Crisp was hit on the elbow, and Hughes was knocked in the head and left hand. In spite of their injuries, some of the group helped get the rock off Sturgill. An EMT, Benjie Stewart, traveled underground to give aid.

Sturgill and Hughes were both taken to McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital, where Sturgill was pronounced dead. Hughes was treated and released.

MSHA investigators arrived that night to begin inspections and interviews.

Sturgill had been killed on his first day at work, on March 11, 1999. A scoop operator with 15 years experience, Sturgill took refresher training in 1998 and 1999. However, Sturgill had not been instructed in the revised roof control plan, or in the procedures for cleaning up the boom hole.

Parental responsibility

At Tuesday night's special meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education, goals for the school system were discussed and a goal to increase parent involvement was requested to be added.

As happens frequently, the discussion turned contentious — unnecessarily so. One board member made a statement about the lack of parental involvement and another interpreted the statement as meaning that Floyd County parents don't care. A block of time was then devoted to clarifications and the all-too-common one-up-man-ship debates.

No board member wants to admit — not in the face of political reality — that there is a real problem and that the ills of the school system cannot be cured without the backing of parents.

Let's make one thing perfectly clear before we go on — FLOYD COUNTY PARENTS MOST DEFINITELY CARE DEEPLY ABOUT THEIR CHILDREN.

They care about their health. They care about their appearance. They care about their religious upbringing. They care about their socialization. They care about the condition of their athletic fields and their recreational parks. They care about their safe transportation to and from school. They care about the quality of their children's non-parental caretakers.

What far too many parents do not concern themselves with, the evidence would seem to indicate however, is the quality of their children's education. If they did care about this aspect of their children's lives, student achievement would be much higher.

If they did care, they would literally be storming the school system's central office, they would appear in legions at board of education meetings, they would be lined up at principals' doors, they would be questioning teachers, and they would be monitoring every aspect of their children's education.

Very little of that is happening.

There are likely some excuses to be offered. First of all, education is not highly valued in our area. That is an inescapable reality. If you want proof, walk through Wal-Mart on any given school day; you'll see parents and school-age children going up and down the aisles. And if you hear many parents talk about taking their children to the doctor for a check-up or to a dentist, you'd think no medical services are available in Floyd County after 3 p.m. School is simply not important enough, to many, to make sure that children are there.

Because education is not valued, many parents feel they don't have an adequate education and they feel ill-prepared to monitor their children's progress or to discuss their children's needs with teachers and other school personnel. The cycle is perpetuated.

Historically, the way most people have made their living in this area has not required a great deal of education. But those ways are changing, and a good education is critical if

Urges breast cancer screening

Editor:
As a board-certified plastic surgeon in Pikeville, who regularly works with breast cancer survivors, I strongly urge support of October as National Breast Cancer Awareness Month by reminding the women you love to schedule regular cancer screenings.

Anna felt a lump in her breast that two mammograms did not detect. Ten to 15 percent of all tumors are not detected by mammograms. Being very concerned, as there is a history of breast cancer in her family. She had a biopsy on the lump and it was found to be cancer. She had to have chemotherapy, radiation and a mastectomy. She was extremely blessed to have the support of her husband of 24 years, her family and friends.

After the cancer treatments, when Anna started to feel better and was ready, she consulted with me. We discussed the best options for treatment specifically for Anna and went forward with a procedure to reconstruct her breast, called the TRAM flap. In this procedure, the patient does not use implants; we use their own tissue for the reconstruction. She then underwent outpatient surgery to complete the nipple areola reconstruction.

Anna says, "The results are so amazing. I'm so glad I did it." She has already served as a resource for other women who are considering reconstruction surgery.

Early detection through self-examination and medical screening are key prevention methods. For Anna and the estimated 175,000 other women diagnosed with breast cancer each year, advances in plastic surgery and break-through legislation have helped make such devastating news easier to bear.

Improvements in post-surgical therapies, including several breast reconstruction options, are helping allay the fear of disfigurement from mastectomy. Typically, plastic surgeons make recommendations based upon the patient's age, health, anatomy, tissues and goals. The most common procedures include skin expansion followed by the use of implants, or flap reconstruction.

Equally important to breast cancer survivors is the 1998 passage of the Women's Health and Cancer Rights Act (WHCRA) that mandates insurance coverage for breast reconstruction following a mastectomy. Board-certified plastic surgeons know first-hand how breast reconstruction improves a survivor's self-esteem and confidence after a mastectomy.

The American Society of Plastic Surgeons (ASPS) was a major supporter of the WHCRA and is proud to have been part of the effort to stop insurance denials for the surgery.

Now almost every woman who loses her breast to cancer can have it rebuilt through reconstructive surgery. Discussion about this can start immediately after diagnosis. Breast reconstruction following mastectomy increased 180 percent between 1992 and 1999, with 82,975 procedures performed in 1999.

My fellow members of ASPS and I are well aware of the devastating effects of breast cancer. We support all women in their fight against the disease. For all breast cancer victims, I suggest the following: talk to a board certified plastic surgeon regarding reconstruction options, and discuss the pros, cons, and realistic expectations of those options.

A thank-you from and for Max

Editor:
To Karen and Steve: You shared his hopes and dreams, and were there for him in laughter and in tears.

For all the times you drove him to school, practices, and ballgames, for the quiet times spent at home as a family and for letting him be the kind and generous boy he was, Max would like to thank you for being his mom and dad.

To Carl Ed, Jeff and Josh: You all spent quality time with him, taking him places, watching out for him and letting him hang out with the big guys. For all your support, he thanks you for being his big brothers.

To Phil: You came into his life at a most opportune time. It gave him a chance to play big brother. He fed you, played with you and helped out as much as he could. For being his little brother, Max thanks you.

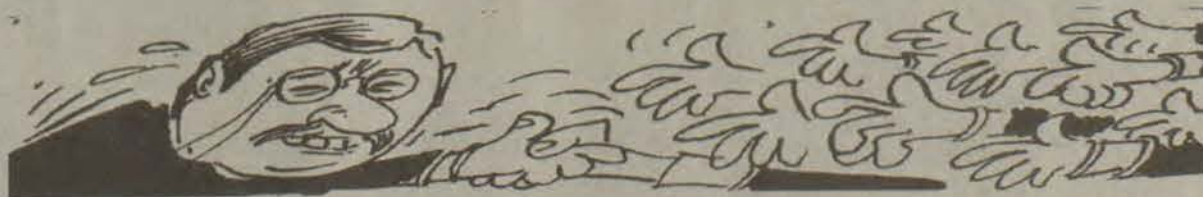

To Maxine: For your unconditional love, listening to him when he just needed to talk, or having him spend the night, you were always there for him. For all you have done, Max thanks you for being his "tu-tu."

To Sharon, Carley, Aaron, Bethany, Robin and other members of his extended family, you each in your own way gave or brought something special to his life. For your involvement, Max thanks you.

To all the people who were a part of his life in one way or another, large or small, he thanks each and every one of you.

Most important of all, everyone would like to thank Max for bringing something special to their lives, whether it was his infectious smile, his kindness, his gentleness or just being Max. You will be missed.

Through My Eyes

by Kathy Prater
Staff Writer

Doing something you love

Finally! Something I've dreamed about on many an occasion, an opportunity to write my own newspaper column. And here I sit, wondering what to write and how to follow those who have come before me. (Willie, you had me laughing out loud with that piece you did on children's thoughts concerning love and marriage; pretty astute, those kids can be, huh?)

So, I think I'll begin today by sharing some of my thoughts and experiences concerning my new career. First of all, let me say right up front that I LOVE this job! Every day is a new adventure with new challenges, and it has been so exciting for me. No being chained to an office, a desk, a telephone... I get to chase after the "news."

Sometimes I feel a little like a pest to the folks at the courthouse and the local law enforcement agencies, but everyone I have encountered has taken the time to politely answer my questions and offer advice. Thanks to each of you, I really do appreciate it.

You know, quite a few of my friends and most of my family members have chosen to leave Floyd County in search of their own personal dreams, and I have to admit, I've been guilty of a little "wanderlust" myself from time to time.

My gosh, isn't that a really cool word — "wanderlust" — you see a word like that in print and it just makes you want to dig out your most comfortable pair of shoes and a hobo stick and hit the road, you know? It evokes thoughts of "Walden Pond" and the "Road less traveled." Who can ever encounter writings of that nature and not dream of faraway places?

So, even though I understand the reasoning behind decisions to leave, I even more so understand the reasonings of those who have decided to stay. The friendliness of the people here, the willingness to help out; there just are many, many good hearts here. Not to mention the awesome natural beauty that we are blessed to witness every day. No matter where I have ever roamed, I have always had to tell the tale of the beautiful Appalachian mountains.

I have never seen a sight anywhere that comes close to rivaling what Mother Nature does with her paintbrush in autumn right here in the Sandy Valley.

But, alas! I digress. (I'm prone to doing that.)

I will continue. We were talking about my job, remember? As I said before, this is a whole new world for me. I've always enjoyed writing and have always been a little "dreamy-natured." (You know, writers are like that; it's that "marching to the beat of a different drummer" thing going on.)

But, let me tell you, writing and reporting are two very different activities. Reporting involves, of course, writing, but it also involves a lot of legwork, traveling and digging for ever more information.

As if that isn't enough, you also have to be concerned with accuracy. Get the

About our schools...
Volunteers increase achievement

from the FLOYD COUNTY SCHOOL SYSTEM

What is the single most significant contribution made by the community to public schools?

"Volunteers contribute the 'extra' personalized help that enhances our children's educational opportunities," said Nadine Hicks.

Last year, more than 400 volunteers devoted more than 19,518 hours to helping out in classrooms throughout the Floyd County School System.

Their presence in the classroom lowers the student-teacher ratio and reinforces teacher instruction.

reinforces teacher instruction. According to Nadine Hicks, "They provide strong, fundamental support for education in today's atmosphere of declining educational resources—help that is not only needed but deeply appreciated by students and staff alike."

Research indicates that the presence of volunteers in the schools sends a positive message of caring to students. Where active volunteer programs are in place, students develop the perception that school really is a place where people care, not just about education, but about the overall well-being of individual students, providing another incentive for children to succeed.

Not only do volunteers contribute to student success, their work also results in the strengthening of community-school relationships.

"Our volunteers are our strongest advocates," said Hicks. "They know exactly what we are trying to accomplish in our schools, and they can relate our goals and successes to the larger community in a highly effective way. We are proud of their contribution. It is significant."

For the most rewarding job in your life, consider volunteering a little time to the children in your community by calling 606/866-4513. Business partners are also invited to become involved in their local schools.

Tips:
• If you are a parent, contact your child's school or talk to your child's teacher about volunteering in the school.

• As a non-parent resident of the community, contact the district office to inquire about the possibility of ways to volunteer or become involved in one of the local schools.

• If you have special expertise in an area, be certain to share that information. It helps to place volunteers in the appropriate setting.

• If you have a preference for a type of volunteer work or grade level, communicate that preference, and be specific on the amount of time you can devote.

• If you are unable to fulfill your commitment, be certain to advise the school. You are missed.

information fast, get it right and get it written. Shew! And we're only doing three editions per week. I don't even want to think about the "dailies" and what sort of pace those people must have to keep up.

But, as most people here will tell you, it's exactly that fast pace and daily change that makes us love what we're doing. No time for boredom.

I've only been here a few short weeks now, but already I've run the gamut of human emotion. I've covered the tragic story of a little boy at play on a sunny day who lost his life in the happening of a moment; two stories of murder involving impassioned feelings and gross misjudgment; stories concerning drug raids and subsequent confiscations; and, oh, yeah, all those fugitives from Indiana.

But, I've also covered some really nice stories. For instance, all the area festivals and reports concerning the good work being done in caring for our elderly at Happy House and following the East Kentucky Center for Science, Mathematics, and Technology in their quest to bring a state-of-the-art science center to our area.

I've had some really great feelings of accomplishment, and I've made a few dumb mistakes. And speaking of mistakes, Coroner Nelson, if you're reading this, I swear to you I'm really NOT that stupid. Promise. I was just a "bit" rattled after that trip I took up to Daniel's Creek. That was my first encounter with a scene of that sort. So, whaddya say, can we seal a deal to NEVER talk about that faux pas again? I'd appreciate it, sir!

So, lots of happenings, the days, the weeks have flown by. I'm not sure I really need to have that happening right now at my age. I mean, seems the time is already flying. But, hey, I'm not that old yet. It's been an exciting time. It's been a really enjoyable time. I hope to continue doing it for a while longer. And I hope to continue to meet and greet all of you and to keep sharing my rambling thoughts from time to time.

And speaking of rambling thoughts, something in my brain just jiggled — I wanted to mention a little fact about Eleanor Roosevelt that I just learned a few weeks ago. She has long been a heroine of mine. I used to keep a quotation of hers on a little notecard on my desk when I was away at college. It said simply, "You must do the thing you think you cannot do." I can't tell you how many times throughout my life I have derived inspiration from those simple words and now, recently, I learn of another little way in which dear Eleanor has touched my life.

In her years as First Lady in the White House, Eleanor would hold weekly press conferences and invite only women reporters to attend. This was her effort at encouraging newspapers to hire more female reporters. Thanks, Eleanor!

And... thanks for listenin'!

Apples for students

Prestonsburg Elementary is participating in Food City's Apples for the Students Plus! program this year.

During the past years, Apples for the Students Plus! has awarded more than $250 million in needed classroom learning tools free to participating schools.

The list of awards includes computers, audio/visual equipment, calculators and sporting goods.

Prestonsburg Elementary urges all parents and community members to support this invaluable program by sending their Food City register tapes to school with their children or by dropping them off at the office.

Our goal is to save enough store receipts to receive $400,000 through Apples for the Students Plus! With the help of parents and community members, we're hoping to meet and possibly exceed our goals.

For more information about Apples for the Students Plus!, or to donate register tapes to Prestonsburg Elementary, contact Terri Hall at 886-3891.

Editorial

young people are to achieve and to earn a decent living.

And we cannot discount the fact that an educated citizenry has never been in the interest of the powerbrokers of this region, whether they be outside coal barons or home-grown tsars.

There are no easy solutions. Education reform in Floyd County must come from the board of education. It must involve the commitment of all those people who work in administration. It cannot happen without the hard work, dedication and creativity of principals, teachers, counselors, secretaries, cooks, bus drivers, aides, custodians and everyone else who works in the individual schools.

But no matter how hard these people work, no matter how many hours they put in, no matter how well trained they are, no matter how much money they are allowed to spend, Floyd County schools will not significantly improve unless parents begin to care about their children's education.

Local Dealer Recruits Expert Helps Sell Off Repossessed Cars

"Repo Joe" In Pikeville Sacrificing Bank Repossessions And Lease Terminations To Area Buyers Through Saturday

Pikeville, KY - Kentucky car, truck and S.U.V. buyers are getting ready to be exposed to an entirely new way to buy nearly new vehicles at a discount. Through Saturday, with the help of a man called "Repo Joe", Walters Toyota will offer bank repossessed vehicles for sale to the general public.

After holding a few repossessed vehicle sales in the past that generated overwhelming response, Walters Toyota knew they were on to something. When they learned there was a specialist available to find and sell off these vehicles, they knew they had to bring him to Pikeville.

"Repo Joe"'s story is simple. After nearly two decades in the car business, Joe has seen everything a dealer has to offer. Yet he noticed there were always two types of vehicles that were far and away the best bargains: repossessed vehicles and vehicles that had been leased. The problem was, they were often hard, if not impossible, to find.

Fast forward to 1998. Utilizing relationships and contacts he had made with repo men, banks, credit unions and auto auctions over the past twenty years, Joe decided he would scour the nation looking for these vehicles. Now, he criss-crosses the country looking for the best buys out there. Then he chooses locations in each region of the U.S.A. to dispose of them. For Kentucky, the exclusive location is Walters Toyota.

In addition to the initial savings, Walters Toyota has secured financing that lets qualified buyers drive home by simply making a $27 down payment, then start making the payments.

"Simply pay a transfer fee $27... and some payments are just $89 per month."
-Repo Joe

Randy Walters of Walters Toyota explained his store is prepared for the expected crowds.

"We've got a fantastic selection of not just cars, but trucks, minivans, and yes, even sport utilities," said Mr. Walters. "Plus, our sales consultants took days off earlier in the week so we'll be staffed to the fullest for this event. We just had a meeting where they were all briefed with a bit of history on each vehicle we'll offer for sale. We're ready!"

"Repo Joe will mark the payments you'll make on these vehicles right on the windshield of each vehicle Friday morning," added Walters, "you'll know right away how much the payments you'll start making will be."

"And not only will you find repos at huge savings, we've accumulated and acquired dozens of lease terminations," said Walters, "These '98 and '99 models have low miles and at least a year or two of the warranty remains. If you think Program Cars are a bargain, wait until you see these."

Repo Joe adds "The premise of this sale is simple, we're just looking for people that will make the payments on these vehicles."

Walters warned that selection is good but limited. "We want everyone to know that this is a first-come-first served sales event. At these prices, there will be a lot of great buys, but the really great buys will go fast!"

Realizing many car buyers use their current vehicle as a down payment, Walters and his team have taken steps to make the trade-in process easy. "Extra appraisers will be here each day and have been given the order to pay any and every reasonable price for local trades." Walters explained "If a customer then chooses to use that cash as a down payment, their monthly payment will be even lower than the ones we've got marked on the windshield!"

Walters Toyota is located at US 23 between K-mart and Walmart. 1407 N. Mayo Trail, Pikeville, KY. For further information call 606-432-1451. This event concludes Saturday, October 14th at 6pm.

Rebels set to take on Raiders in Red, White & Blue Bowl

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS WRITER

The Allen Central Rebels travel to South Floyd High School tonight to battle the Raiders in the 13th annual Red, White, & Blue Bowl. In previous seasons the Red, White & Blue Bowl meant a big district showdown between the South Floyd Raiders and the Allen Central Rebels. Considering the fact that the game is always played in October, playoff possibilities always hung in the balance of the outcome of the game. However, this year will be different as the Allen Central Rebels are out of the district and barring any unforeseen collapse by the Paintsville Tigers, the Raiders are out of playoff contention also.

First-year South Floyd Coach Nathan Jones saw his Raiders play well against a very good Hazard team. Despite the 20-0 loss, the Raiders could have taken some added confidence away from a crucial district loss.

Next week's home game with Paintsville will be vitally important to the Raiders. Nevertheless South Floyd players can ill-afford to look past tonight's big rivalry game with Allen Central.

The Allen Central Rebels bring in an injury-plagued team whose 2000 season has been full of should-of and could-of scenarios. Three close losses have seemingly haunted the Rebels all season long. An 18-12 season opening loss to another cross-county rival, Betsy Layne, is a game the Rebels felt they should have won. Allen Central was without the services of junior D.J. Hoover in the Betsy Layne game.

KEYS TO AN ALLEN CENTRAL WIN

- Stop the South Floyd running game. It's simple, if the Rebels can stop South Floyd senior B.J. Bryant and Joe Plankus, then the game can be held in check. If not, the Rebel defense could be in for a long night.
- Establish offense early. Allen Central needs to put points on the scoreboard early, whether it be via the air, or the ground.
- Offensive line protection. The Rebel offensive line must protect their backfield.
- Execute on special teams. Each special team play, be it a kickoff return or an extra point, must be executed properly and must be effective. Every play will be of the utmost importance.

KEYS TO A SOUTH FLOYD WIN

- Put pressure on the Allen Central offense. Teams who have put heavy pressure on the Rebel offense have had great success.
- Build on what got you here; the running game. If the Raiders get a strong running game started, it will most definitely be a long night for the Rebels.
- Play with discipline. A lackadaisical South Floyd team could find themselves being bitten by the upset bug. The Raiders must stay focused on the game at hand.

A Look At Sports

Great volleyball tournament

Coach Russell Shepherd and his staff did a great job hosting the girls 15th District Volleyball Tournament this week. The tournament concluded on Thursday night and results will be posted in Sunday's edition.

Outside of the games Prestonsburg played (runaways), there were a lot of close and exciting games.

If you have never taken in any of the matches, you should do so. You will enjoy it. There is always action on the court. In baseball you stand around. Basketball, you have free throws. In football a penalty flag will give you a brief breather. But in volleyball, you had better be on the move all the time.

One of the hardest things to do in this one is to name an all-tournament team. There are so many outstanding players. I mean, all over the region, there are some good solid volleyball players. Scholarships are available in volleyball, and it is a good way to get an education paid for.

Prestonsburg remained unbeaten through the first three rounds and was awaiting either Paintsville, Betsy Layne or Allen Central in the championship game.

Coach Shepherd has done a great job with the Volleyscats, as they are 31-0 heading into Thursday's finals.

I have learned a lot this week in watching the matches. One thing is I wish I could have taken in more games. I am telling you it is a good sport. You find yourself rooting on the local teams and applauding all good plays for either team.

Prestonsburg rolls past Sheldon Clark

The Sheldon Clark Lady Cardinals volleyball team got a first round bye in this season's Sub-District, played at Prestonsburg High School, which usually means that you have received a break somewhere along the way.

But for the Lady Cardinals, it was not much of an advantage as they had to go up against one of the stronger regional teams in the Prestonsburg Volleyscats.

Coach Russell Shepherd's Volleyscats picked up their 30th win of the season against zero losses with a two-set sweep of the Lady Cardinals this past Tuesday night.

The win allows the Volleyscats to advance in the winner's bracket. (The tournament concluded Thursday night.)

Angela Howell added an ace in the Volleyscats scoring as Prestonsburg posted a 15-3 win in match one. As usual, Stephanie Adams served up some solid serves, with Prestonsburg scoring the first six points on first-serve and going out to a 6-0 lead.

Sheldon Clark got their first point on a Tara Smith serve, but it was all Prestonsburg then. Brook Coleman, a senior, served but it was the set play of Howell and kills of Amelia Conley that made the Volleyscats so strong.

When Sheldon Clark finally gained a sideout, after Coleman's seventh serve went out, the Volleyscats had gained a 12-1 lead. Chrissy Nelson had a great save while Conley picked up six kills and Howell had six attacks (sets).

Tish Corrette picked points two and three for Sheldon Clark for a 12-3

PRESTONSBURG'S Amelia Conley was all smiles and why not. Her team sported a 31-0 record going into the finals of the girls 15th Region volleyball tournament.

an ace, kill, dig and attack were. The thing I noticed more than anything was how much the girls have improved in their game. We have some excellent coaches like Larry Maynard at Allen Central, Jackie McKinney at South Floyd, Larry Wilson at Betsy Layne and Russell Shepherd at Prestonsburg.

The nice thing about this is the sport has infiltrated the middle and grade schools, which is going to help the high school teams.

Although the Prestonsburg gym was not packed, still there were decent crowds at the matches, and I liked the way they got into the games.

Five officials were used for the tournament and I made a mistake about two of the names in Wednesday's sports. Tony Conn, Neal May, Michelle Justice, Mike Potter, and Johnny Webb did an excellent job of officiating.

I understand that Johnny went fishing after the first night.

Here is a salute to South Floyd's Tabatha Berger. She is going to be a tremendous (well, she already is) player with a future at the next level.

She is quick, goes for the kill, and blocks on the front line. I really like the way she handled herself on the floor. She is a junior and has another year.

Five of Prestonsburg's six starters are seniors but Coach Shepherd has some good talent coming back next year from a junior varsity team that finished 19-2 this season.

coach John Derossett takes his team on the gridiron, it is a big game.

Many thought last week's win over Belfry was the season's biggest one, but tonight's encounter with the Pike County Central Hawks (3-4, 2-1) looms even bigger.

The Blackcats are assured of a playoff berth come November, but the Cats have their sights a little higher — try a district title outright. Prestonsburg has not won a district title since 1993, the year they went all the way to the finals of the 2A state championship.

A win over Pike Central will guarantee Prestonsburg a first district finish, regardless what the Cats do against Shelby Valley next week (October 20) in their final district match up.

The Hawks will have their hands full in trying to contain the depth in the backfield the Blackcats can throw out there. But since week three, Prestonsburg has added another weapon in sophomore quarterback Joey Willis. Willis has been "the catalyst" for Prestonsburg of late. He gives the host team a balanced attack.

Austin Clark, Chris Spriggs, Matt Clay and Mike McDonald are targets for Willis, a southpaw.

The backfield is led by junior Matt Stone who has been impressive all season long. Stone's quickness and ability to bounce off defenders gives Prestonsburg a threat to break for a big play.

But Kevin Jervis has been as impressive, along with sophomore fullback Michael Fannin. But that is not all of the cast in the backfield. Matt Setser has excellent speed, as well as Mike McDonald, Chris Spriggs and sophomore John Hunt.

But you can rest assured that Pike Central will come in not ready to lay down because a lot rides on this game as far as playoff hopes go.

The Hawks know a win over this young Prestonsburg team would throw the race for the top spot into a three-way tie, along with Belfry. Pike Central will close their regular season with a home game against Whitesburg after their third open date next Friday night.

So, the Blackcats will have to come in focused and expect anything from Pike Central. The Hawks fell to Belfry in their only district loss to date.

A Prestonsburg win would give Prestonsburg a 4-0 district mark with one district game remaining — Shelby Valley.

Kickoff time is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Prestonsburg Stadium.

I like the makeup of Coach Wilson's team at Betsy Layne and the players who will be returning next year. Plus, the Betsy Layne Elementary team won the county championship this year and a host of good players will be heading to Bobcat country next season.

Remember the name Leslie Martin at Allen Central. She may be small, but she can play the game. She told me that she loved to play volleyball, and it is enjoyable to watch her.

Another one who is going to be a good one is Terry Mullins. Maybe a little shorter than Leslie.

NOTES:

This week I picked Prestonsburg to win. I have my reasons for not taking them in the picks, but they had better not let me down Friday night. No one wants to see them win more than I.

High school basketball practice officially opens Sunday but schools will wait until Monday to get started. The high school season gets underway in late November.

The University of Kentucky will begin their season November 9. The Cats will definitely be without the services of Jules Camarra. But Tubby says everything will be all right. Some polls don't even have the Cats ranked in the pre-season top 25.

Until Sunday, good sports everyone and be good sports! Take the kids to Sunday School and church this Sunday.

Beaver

The Rebels lost to a much-improved Cumberland team 22-16. The Redskins are 6-1 heading into tonight's game.

Last week's loss to Phelps could very possibly be the Rebels' most disappointing one of the season. Lineman ZW Chaffins, and Jared Harlow returned to the lineup last week only to join with their teammates in the disappointing loss.

A win over South Floyd tonight might not make up for any of the Rebels losses, but it could give them a great amount of confidence, as they finish up the regular season and begin to prepare for the eight-man state tournament.

The South Floyd Raiders could use the win tonight, but their big game lies ahead next week, when they entertain district-foe Paintsville. A Paintsville loss to Hazard tonight would mean the winner of the South Floyd-Paintsville game next week would make it to the playoffs.

If nothing else, bragging rights are definitely at stake in tonight's game.

Kickoff for tonight's game is set for 7:30 p.m.

October 14 thru October 20, 2000

You've had the opportunity to see and hear lots of fine music at the Mountain Arts Center. Now's your chance to experience musical theater at the MAC.

A traveling show of the Broadway musical "Anything Goes" will be presented at the MAC on Sunday, October 22, at 3 p.m. The matinee gives you the chance to plan a full day, with church, dinner out, a short drive to look at the leaves, and the matinee performance.

The musical provides a treat for fans of the venerable Cole Porter, whose sophisticated lyrics entertained millions in the 1920s, '30s, '40s and '50s and continue to bring a smile or a tear even today.

In addition to the show title, which was a hit itself, you'll hear such favorites as "I Get a Kick Out of You," "You're the Top," "Easy to Love," "Friendship," and "Delovely."

The musical is pure escape. The play was written by, among others, P.G. Wodehouse and builds on mistaken identities and shipboard shenanigans. The story is set aboard the SS Americana, a luxury liner sailing from New York to England, and is filled with laughs.

As befitting the era in which it was first produced, the musical has luxurious sets and dazzling costumes.

The show is being co-presented by Jenny Wiley Theatre and the MAC.

Call the MAC for reservations and ticket information: toll free 1-888-MAC-ARTS or locally 886-2623.

Writers conference slated

The Appalachian South Writers' Cooperative (ASWC) and Dabney S. Lancaster Community College's Literary Club are co-sponsoring ASWC's Third Annual Writers' Conference at DSLCC's Scott Hall on Saturday, October 21, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Mark Sickman, a playwright and poet from San Diego, California, will conduct two sessions, one in playwriting and one in poetry. Sickman's "Greenbrier" premiered in Lewisburg, West Virginia, at the Greenbrier Valley Theatre in June, and his "Kiss Them and Wish Them Goodbye" enjoyed a record-breaking 40 performance run at the Cornado Playhouse and Hahn Cosmopolitan Theatre in San Diego.

"Love Speak," his volume of poetry, is available on CD and is the basis for the drama and dance performance by the same name.

"The Death of Jazz," a comedy that he wrote, recently had a run off Broadway, and "Charming Billy," a serious drama, has been selected for staged readings in Kansas City, Missouri, Hollywood, Florida, and Los Angeles.

Charlotte Morgan, a novelist who is an assistant professor of English at DSLCC, will conduct sessions in novel and short story. Morgan's novel, "One August Day," was recently published, and one of her short stories won the Sherwood Anderson Short Story Contest. Another one of her short stories received a Pushcart Prize in 1999.

M. Ray Allen, a poet, journalist, and playwright who has three books of poetry to his credit along with more than two dozen poetry awards, will conduct sessions in poetry and screenplay writing. Allen's "Beyond Star Bottom and Other Poems" was released by Mountain Empire Publishing last month, and he recently received a Governor's Award nomination.

The registration fee is $40 on October 21; however, the advance registration fee is $35 when mailed by October 15, to Appalfocks of America Association (AAA), P.O. Box 613, Clifton Forge, VA 24422. The registration fee includes membership in ASWC for one year, and those who register will receive free copies of "Appalachian Legacy," AAA's literary magazine, and "Lumina."

Regional crafts on display at Center

"An Innovative Spirit: The Southern Highland Craft Guild Celebrates 70 Years," a traveling exhibition, opened at the Kentucky Folk Art Center in Morehead on Thursday, October 12. This landmark exhibition is made up of 92 works produced in Southern Appalachia during the last seven decades.

An Innovative Spirit highlights the accomplishments of the Southern Highland Craft Guild and its members, with traditional and non-traditional objects made by more than 90 different crafts men and women, between 1930 and 2000.

The exhibition demonstrates the gradual evolution of certain craft forms over this 70-year period, explores issues of tradition and innovation, and illustrates changes that have taken place in the use of materials and design.

"If there is one constant in the objects made in this region over the past 300 years, it is innovation and change," writes Robert S. Brunk, in the exhibition catalogue. "The objects made by Guild members over the past 70 years are part of a much longer continuum of cultural memory, assimilation and invention. Why are we surprised that the objects keep changing? Are we afraid that something will be lost if we don't see objects familiar to us?"

Since its founding in 1930, the guild has nurtured the creative skills and promoted the work of craftspeople from 293 mountain counties in nine southern states, and has served as a model for many similar crafts organizations formed elsewhere in the country.

The guild's mission has been to bring together the crafts and craftspeople of the Southern Highlands for the benefit of shared resources, education, marketing and conservation. The organization's education role resulted in the development of this important exhibition.

"An Innovative Spirit: The Southern Highland Craft Guild Celebrates 70 Years" will be on display at the Kentucky Folk Art Center, through December 22. The Center, located at 102 West First St. in Morehead, is open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays, 1-5 p.m.

Kentucky Folk Art Center is a cultural and educational service of Morehead State University. Additional information is available from the Center's web site at www.kyfolkart.org, or by calling 606/783-2204.

KET offers viewers look at congressional candidates

In a presidential election year, it's easy for statewide political races to be overshadowed. However, key congressional races take place in Kentucky this year, with candidates vying for seats in the U.S. House of Representatives from each of the state's six congressional districts.

KET offers Kentuckians an opportunity to make an informed decision about their representation in Washington, D.C., through its broadcast of candidate district forums from KET's studios.

"Election 2000: The Candidates" airs Friday, October 20 and 27 beginning at 9 p.m. on KET. On October 20, the 3rd

Congressional District forum airs at 9 p.m., followed by a forum featuring 4th District candidates at 10 p.m. (The 3rd District forum will repeat Tuesday, October 24 at 10 p.m. on KET2.)

On October 27, the 6th District forum airs at 9 p.m., followed by forums featuring 1st, 2nd and 5th District candidates at 10 p.m. The programs will be videostreamed and archived on KET's Web site.

All candidates who appear on the Kentucky Secretary of State's 2000 General Election Candidates list have been invited to participate in KET's televised forums. As in the past, each forum will feature journalists questioning the candidates, as well as a chance for the candidates to question one another. Each of the programs will be moderated by Kentucky Tonight's Bill Goodman.

"Election 2000: The Candidates," produced by Deidre Clark, is closed-captioned for the deaf and hard-of-hearing.

Guitarist heir apparent takes the stage

"Jubilee" spotlights Bernard Allison's trademark style of "hard drivin', real, rockin' original blues," Thursday, October 19, at 10 p.m., on KET.

Does the name sound familiar? It should. Bernard Allison is the son of the late blues guitar superstar, Luther Allison, and yes, "he inherited the goods." The younger Allison has spent the last 16 years of his life honing his skills to become a great guitarist in his own right, as well as a stellar vocalist and songwriter.

From his memorable duet with his father at the 1983 Chicago Blues Festival to his years spent with Koko Taylor's Blues Machine and Willie Dixon's band, Allison has grown into a mature, self-assured front man. This "Jubilee" performance, taped at the 1999 W. C. Handy Blues Festival in Henderson, showcases the young gun's scorching guitar licks, thick tone and mature vocals.

With the torch of blues being handed shakily from one generation to the next, Allison seems the heir apparent to his father with his mixture of traditional and new styles.

Perhaps Allison himself sums it up best in his autobiographical song, "Young Boy Blues" — "I'm not Muddy Waters. Don't mistake me for that. I'm just a young boy, who knows where it's at."

"Jubilee," a KET production in its fifth season, is produced and directed by H. Russell Farmer. The show is closed-captioned for the deaf and hard-of-hearing.

Many a tear has to fall, but it's all in the brain

As a sports enthusiast, it is extremely difficult for me to discredit any activity that not only ascribes to building strong young minds and bodies, but also assists in developing character. However, as far as I'm concerned, football is one of those physical activities (like boxing) which range from brutality to legalized assault.

Don't take my word for it. I was reading an article over the Internet last night about a study that had been done on football players. The headline read "Football Players Risk Concussions."

Well, duh!

The title was so intriguing, I had to continue reading. It seems a study was conducted by Dr. Mark Lovell of the University of Pittsburgh's Sports Medicine Concussion Program. And it stated, "Even a single concussion can be more dangerous than players think, partly because it affects their ability to think. Mental problems linger even after physical symptoms go away."

Can you imagine how fortunate this team is to have a man with this type of medical expertise and insight on their payroll? I mean, I was truly fascinated by Dr. Lovell's comments that, whether taken out of context or not, were quite enlightening. For example, he explained that football players who had experienced one concussion during the season had a higher rate of repeating another one. In fact, the statistics he gave were that 15% of the players who have concussions have another one in the same season. He also said that 86% of the players complained of headaches and 59% experienced dizziness after a concussion. He further noted that sometimes more serious side effects occurred such as amnesia and loss of consciousness. His exact quote: "That's kind of alarming."

As far as I'm concerned, that's equivalent to dousing yourself in gasoline and lighting a match.

Dr. Lovell noted that it wasn't easy trying to diagnose your patient when he was 30 feet away on the field, but that team doctors and trainers often had to examine their patients this way. I mean, can you imagine! It's hard enough to diagnose patients when they're sitting in your office, let alone when they're 10 yards away under 600 pounds of sweaty flesh. That really does present a problem, I suppose.

I think the real "kicker" came when Dr. Lovell told about having to write a letter to a teacher for one of his players who had bombed a trig exam due to a problem he had experienced after a brain concussion. It seems that Dr. Lovell intervened on behalf of the young man saying, "He's a 4.0, an excellent student; he's not a slacker." Boy, if only I'd been able to play football when I was in school. Lord, that's a better excuse than saying the dog ate your homework, or your grandmother died. I'm serious! Dr. Lovell said that students who ordinarily do well on tests may show foggy thinking for days after a concussion. Of course, that can also be said for the ones who drink a half a case of beer and smoke pot.

Now, I'm no Einstein, but let's evaluate this scenario: A young man, who weighs in at 250 pounds of hard, toned flesh, wearing a rigid, plastic helmet, goes out onto a playing field—oh, excuse me, a gridiron—and starts charging at approximately 3 to 5 mph at another similarly attired human being. (You have seen those two car crash dummies in the commercials, haven't you; the ones that hit a brick wall at 10 mph and disintegrate in front of your eyes?) Common sense tells you that someone is going to get jarred—a bunch!

And as for foggy-headed, well, try it for yourself. If you don't have a football helmet, or your grandfather's mining helmet, any construction hard hat will do. Put it on, find yourself a brick wall, step back about 50 feet and take a good run and go at it. Afterwards, try and recite your ABCs.

(Forget math tests!)

Maybe I shouldn't be so hard on Dr. Lovell and football. After all, most of my friends who don't play anymore still enjoy watching the sport. In fact, this past weekend as some of them sat watching a game on the tube, one of the old jocks stood up said, "Uh, uh...yeah...touchdown...uh, yeah."

American Playhouse features film about one Mexican family's move

Moving to a new culture is never an easy process. American Playhouse, "My Family—Mi Familia" starring Jimmy Smits, Edward James Olmos, Esai Morales and Jennifer Lopez, depicts the joys and the hardships experienced by members of one Mexican family who immigrate to America in search of a new life.

The program airs Monday, October 16, at 8 p.m., on KET2.

The Gregory Nava film charts the saga of the Sanchez family across three generations and seven decades. In the early 1920s, a teen-aged Jose Sanchez leaves his remote highland village in Mexico to search for his only remaining relative, an old man who lives in a place called Los Angeles—a place not only in another country, but in a whole different world.

"My Family—Mi Familia" follows Jose, the family's patriarch, as he settles in California and marries a young woman named Maria. The two struggle to survive in a sometimes unforgiving and unfriendly environment, where clear racial and societal boundaries exist.

After the birth of their first two children, Maria, expecting a third baby, is caught in an immigration sweep and deported to Mexico. Jose must raise the eldest children alone until Maria and the third child can make the dangerous trek back to Los Angeles nearly a year later.

Pulled between the lure of American values and their Mexican heritage, Maria and Jose's two sons grow to become rebellious and troubled young men. Only as adults—and after much tragedy—do the Sanchez children discover the comfort and importance of family.

American Playhouse, "My Family—Mi Familia," produced by Anna Thomas, is close-captioned for the deaf and hard-of-hearing.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

by CHUCK SHEPHERD

In September, driving-school owner Bharat Patel, 49, became the 31st person convicted in a driver's-license bribery scandal at a Chicago examining station. According to testimony, Patel did not even bother to teach and spent all his time with examiners. Some of Patel's students were such bad drivers that examiners, who took $300,000 in bribes in two years, actually gave Patel his money back. Some subsequently licensed drivers did not know how to start a car or engage the transmission; others turned directly into traffic during the test; and sometimes, terrified examiners halted the test mid-trip and hitchhiked back to the station.

Federal wildlife officials believe that the voracious and largely indestructible Asian swamp eel has somehow made its way to within a mile of Florida's Everglades National Park and poses an imminent threat to its balance of nature, according to a September Wall Street Journal report. The 3-foot-long eel apparently eats anything in its path, has no known enemies, survives in salt- and fresh water and on land, can change genders in order to facilitate year-round breeding, lays 1,000 eggs at a time, and is so durable that one lived in a wet towel for seven months with no food or water.

RECENT NUDE ACTIVITIES

Protesting taxes (Actress "Dziewanna" rode, Lady Godiva-style, through Krakow, Poland, in July). Bicycling for charity (Three men and a woman were arrested in Vernal, Utah, wearing only helmets, in July). Burglarizing a house (Dwight Mills, 38, set off by the receipt of divorce papers, took off his clothes and broke into a neighbor's house before being gunned down, Pensacola, Florida, July). Celebrating a soccer "victory" (In August, a nude fan joyously rushed onto the field and around the sidelines in the final moments of a 2-1 game, but he apparently also distracted his own Blackpool, England, team, because Torquay scored two quick goals to win, 3-2).

THE LITIGIOUS SOCIETY

Helene Canuel filed a lawsuit in August against the Rimouski (Quebec) Minor Hockey Association, asking about $700 (U.S.) in damages, because the coach of her 14-year-old son benched him for the playoffs. Canuel said she just wanted "justice for my son," but the coach was apparently more interested in surviving the single-elimination tournament.

In June, a school district in Orange County, California, was ordered by a jury to pay $1.4 million to Taylor Steiskal, age 10, who three years ago fell off his school's monkey bars and broke his arm, which developed further complications and has required eight surgeries. Steiskal's lawyers argued that monkey bars for children should be no higher than 72 inches off the ground (thus giving a few inches' ground-clearance for a 48-inch-high boy hanging from his hands); the one Steiskal fell from was 79 inches high.

Anne and Lucy Abolins filed a $4 million lawsuit in May against the owners of the house they formerly rented in Edmonton, Alberta, from which their 114 cats were confiscated by health inspectors, who ruled in June 1999 that the feces-laden dwelling was uninhabitable. Contrary to neighbors' claims that the Abolins had lowered their neighborhood's value, the sisters now say that their own lives were ruined by the health inspectors and that notoriety has made it impossible for them to find new living quarters. (In August 2000, a judge fined the sisters about $3,500 (U.S.) for housing code violations, and Lucy Abolins then called the SPCA "the

Ghost Walks haunt Clay Family

With the approach of Halloween, it is only fitting that the spirits of one of Kentucky's most colorful families return to tell the story of their lives.

The Clay family, whose home, White Hall is now a state historic site, cut a wide swath through Kentucky history. Green Clay was a pioneer surveyor who came to own thousands of acres of land in Madison County.

Among his children was Cassius Clay, a fiery abolitionist and political figure known for frequent dueling and his service to Abraham Lincoln as U.S. minister to Russia.

His political courage rubbed off on one of his daughters, Laura Clay, who became an outspoken women's rights leader in the late 19th century. Add to the colorful mix a cousin, none other than Henry Clay.

White Hall State Historic Site and the Eastern Kentucky University theatre department have teamed up to sponsor a series of "ghost walks" that feature scenes from the lives of Clay family.

Visitors will be escorted from room to room in the expansive White Hall mansion and its grounds to witness the final moments of Green Clay's life, watch Cassius fight a duel, and enjoy other fascinating moments from the past. Acting students from EKV will portray the historical characters in period costumes.

The ghost walks will be conducted October 20-21 and October 27-31, beginning nightly at 7 p.m. Admission is $8 per adult. Reservations are required. For more information or to make reservations, call the park at 1-859-623-9178.

White Hall is located off exit 95 of I-75 north of Richmond.

News of the Weird

Antichrist' for taking her cats away.) In September, a jury in Tacoma, Washington, ordered the state Department of Corrections to pay $22 million to the family of a woman killed when a convicted felon (domestic assault) on probation ran a red light and hit the woman's car, concluding that the department somehow ought to have supervised the man better. The governor's office said it would appeal the verdict, questioning the state's ability to monitor the driving behavior of its 55,000 probationers 24 hours a day.

NOT MY FAULT

Paralyzed inmate Torrence Johnson filed a lawsuit in July against the Spartanburg (South Carolina) County Jail because guards failed to stop him in 1998 when he was whimsically doing backflips off a desk in his cell, the last one of which resulted in a fall and his subsequent paralysis. Johnson claims guards should have been watching him carefully because he had been diagnosed as depressed, although they said he appeared to be vigorous until he landed on his neck.

RECURRING THEMES

Last year, News of the Weird reported that a Bombay, India, collection agency had hired six eunuchs to hang around the homes and offices of obstinate debtors to embarrass them into paying up. According to a July 2000 report in London's The Guardian, the Tsaisheng credit agency in Taiwan has begun hiring AIDS patients at about $100 (U.S.) a day for the same purpose. According to the agency owner, many people in Taiwan still believe that AIDS is transmitted through mere social contact.

LEAST COMPETENT CRIMINALS

Sherman Lee Parks, 50, escaped from the Dallas County Jail in Fordyce, Arkansas, in August, oblivious of the fact that a judge had just ordered his release because he had been locked up too long; he was rearrested the next day, charged with escaping, and jailed. And in September, according to police in Shawnee, Kansas, a 19-year-old clerk at a Texaco Starmart reported he had been robbed, but actually he had just looted his own cash register, and to conceal the crime, he had put tape over the store's surveillance cameras. However, he had used transparent tape; said a police lieutenant, "(I)t looks a little fuzzy, but I don't see any robbery in there."

ALSO, IN THE LAST MONTH ...

Water and health officials were mystified at the continued appearance of half-inch-long red worms in the tap of a Deltona, Florida, woman but after tests, declared the water safe. A mayoral candidate in Vlore, Albania, promised that, if elected, he would re-open the city's long-shuttered brothels. Officials in Cairo, Egypt, began implementing a 20-year program to relocate 21 cemeteries (with 109,000 graves) to the suburbs.

Four bands to perform live at Appalshop

WMMT 88.7FM in Whitesburg presents a brand new concert experience. Saturday, October 14, at 8 p.m. Rockin' Marvin's Atomic Fireball Hour will host four great bands for only $5.

Featured performers include Tapeworm Love, Little Brother, The Kudzu Wish, and Tha Ill Crackah. Each band boasts a different style, so there will definitely be something for everyone.

The performance will also be broadcast live on the WMMT 88.7 FM, both over the air and on the Internet. To listen to the Internet broadcast, go to the Appalshop website at www.appalshop.org and click the WMMT page link.

Tapeworm Love is an acoustic punk performer who is influenced as much by Buddy Holly as Black Flag, his off-the-wall humor and bizarre stage banter warrant comparisons to an unplugged Frank Zappa. Touring to promote the release of his new self-titled album, Tapeworm Love now brings his guitar to the Appalshop.

Little Brother's melodic pop incorporates elements of reggae, punk, and Pink Floyd-like ambiance. His new album, "Acquaintances Volume I," is a regional best-seller in North Carolina. He often performs duets with Tapeworm Love and features his own quirky stage show.

The Kudzu Wish is an emo-core band who have been playing together for three years. Their name was conceived in a conversation about kudzu, the violently aggressive plant, and it serves to evoke both the hardcore and melodic tendencies of the band. Touring extensively in the eastern U.S., they have opened for such up-and-coming bands as Hot Water Music, Twelve Hour Turn, and Engine Down. Their new, as yet untitled, album is in production.

Tha Ill Crackah is an electro-gabber-hardcore DJ who has performed at various raves from Winston-Salem to Atlanta. He recently added a straight-edge hardcore MC to his act, combating the drug-culture stereotypes associated with electronic music. He has influenced a number of young bands, including Bluefield, West Virginia's own Blitzkid, to incorporate electronics into punk rock, creating a new and progressive hybrid.

CRITTERS CORNER

by CAROL COMBS-MORRIS, DVM

What a weekend. I can remember when fall festivals conjured up nothing more than visions of caramel apples and hand-crafts. If you've ever helped with any displays, demonstrations or concessions, you have a whole different perspective on these things.

When the Eastern Kentucky Kennel Club assigned me to their Education Committee, one of the first things I wanted to do was increase the club's visibility in the community. A public information booth at the Apple Festival seemed to be a perfect opportunity.

Being the idiot that I am, I arranged for a spot for the club to set up one. This sounded so simple. We needed, I figured, a tent, a couple of tables, some displays and some pamphlets from the American Kennel Club.

The AKC promptly shipped a whole box of leaflets on different subjects, and I had some others left over from the last dog show stashed away. One problem solved.

Then there was the tent. Paul Ray informed me that there were a couple of canopies somewhere in his attic that had been used several years ago as grooming tents at an outdoor show.

The Apple Festival Committee told me that we could have a better location if we had a tent that did not have stakes that had to be driven into the ground. (Guess which type we had.) Of course, I wanted us to be as visible as possible, and so I asked for a location on a main street. We would deal with how to set the thing up later.

Displays shouldn't be that difficult, either. Paul and his wife, Rose, loaned me the professional photographs of winners at one of our recent shows. Another member, Barbara Dunn, found a three-paneled display frame from one of her daughter's high-school science projects.

I had a Canine Good Citizen poster that I could use, John and Bonnie Faulkner gave me permission to use their name and phone number with this, since they hold the club's CGC classes and testing. I also ran across a poster with all the AKC-recognized dog breeds that we had used for something earlier.

Armed with these, plus a roll of clear Contact paper, some computer-generated lettering, lots of poster board, and, of course, the most essential supply of all, duct tape, I had the raw materials. Three weeks later, I actually had a decent display.

The time was now drawing close enough for me to actually start to worry about the technical aspects of the tent. My husband, Pat, had been in the Boy Scouts, so I figured this should be a piece of cake. He popped that bubble by informing me that his Scouting experience leaned more toward the mischievous than the constructive.

He did know how to partially cut moistened tent ropes so they would snap as they dried, causing the leader's tent to collapse in the middle of the night. He had no idea how to pitch a tent. He also thought it was hilarious that I was going to try it. Being determined, but not completely stupid, I caught him gone and enlisted his mother's help.

I need to explain that the tent had been stored in a Weed Eater box, without instructions or pictures to give any sort of clue about how the thing was even supposed to look. In addition, there were supplies in the box for two tents, all mixed together.

My mother-in-law is in her 80s and recently had eye surgery. In the dark glasses she has to wear outdoors, she is functionally blind. We also had help from Punkin, her little Cocker Spaniel mix, and Punkin's adopted kitten.

Despite all this, we got it up in about 45 minutes, and it didn't look half-bad. By the time Pat returned, I had figured out how to substitute cement blocks for the tent stakes. He was skeptical, but agreed that it might work.

When the time came to set up the booth, we loaded all our supplies, including a table I swiped from my cousin's auction house, and some boards that were intended to be new shelves for our bathroom. And naively set off to set up our booth.

You know where this is going. Does anything ever work the way you think it will? The job that took 45 minutes at home turned into an hour-and-a-half of something that looked like a Tim Conway sketch. Cement blocks are NOT reasonable substitutes for tent stakes, although they sort of work once you get several poles set up. More than two poles when you only have two people is the trick.

We did eventually get the thing set up, although it looked as if it had been erected by Rube Goldberg himself. It was dark by the time we pushed the table and all the supplies under the listing canopy, covered them with a plastic drop cloth and left for home.

I will have to finish this tale next week. Although our misadventures with the tent continued, I think we had a productive weekend. Hopefully, we accomplished our goal. I'm certain we provided the church group in the booth across the street from us with all the entertainment they could stand.
