Laid-off firemen ask to volunteer

by KATHY J. PRATER
STAFF WRITER

In comparison to a few past meetings held within recent weeks, a fairly low-key meeting of the Prestonsburg personnel committee was held at noon on November 15.

Fire Chief Mike Wells was present to inform the committee that the fire department is adequately staffed on all shifts, but that they were lacking in volunteers. Wells estimated that he would be fortunate to have a turnout of six volunteers on a fire call.

Making application to be considered for placement on volunteer status, were former firefighters Michael Mays, Kenny Crisp and William Calliban. All three were laid off from paid positions in the department last

The cleanup of a train derailment which occurred last week continues. Nine cars jumped the tracks, but seven remained upright, allowing them to be taken away. The other two, shown above, overturned, dumping their cargo of soybean meal. The two cars have been hauled away from the accident scene and will be cut apart and taken away by a scrap metal company. CSX has spent the past week cleaning up the spill and representatives from the Environmental Protection Cabinet are monitoring the situation. The derailment occurred last Friday night across the river from Branham Village in Prestonsburg and was caused by a broken rail. Ironically, that section of track was slated to have its rails replaced on Tuesday, and the new rail was lying next to the tracks at the time the accident occurred.

Recanvass results in minor change in Martin council race

by RALPH B. DAVIS
MANAGING EDITOR

Members of the Floyd County Board of Elections met Thursday to conduct a recanvass of balloting in the Martin City Council race.

While the recanvass caused one minor change in the final figures for the race, it did not affect the outcome.

The recanvass had been requested by Samuel Howell, who finished just out of the running by eight votes. Howell placed seventh in the six-office race, finishing behind Michael Robinson, 171 votes to 163.

Thursday's recanvass — which, in contrast to a recount, compares machine counts to ensure against a mathematical or transcription error — did not change the order of finish for any of the candidates. However, one candidate did pick up a couple of votes.

Charles Edward Justice finished with 182 votes, two more than had been reported on election night. The error was made during a tally of paper absentee ballots. Justice remained in fifth place.

The top six finishers for the city council race in Martin are as follows:

- Dr. Mahendra Varia, 235.
- Eulene Railiff, 220.
- Bruce D. Salisbury, 198.
- Joe E. Howard Jr., 191.
- Charles Edward Justice, 182.
- Michael Robinson, 171.

Others who did not make the cut include Howell, with 163 votes; Hazel Robinson, 140; and April Maddox Gayheart, 131.

Thursday's recanvass was a light-hearted affair, with members of the board jokingly comparing it to the presidential recount in Florida.

Fifth-graders urged to prepare for new immunization law now

by KATHY J. PRATER
STAFF WRITER

A new state law has gone into effect that now requires that all students entering the sixth grade in the 2001-2002 school year must complete a series of three hepatitis B vaccines prior to enrollment.

In order to make the completion of this series of shots as convenient as possible for parents and students, the Floyd County Health Department is working closely with the Floyd County Board of Education and area schools.

Resource center directors have made arrangements to have health department nurses visit each county elementary school in order to administer the series of shots on site to each fifth-grade student that needs to complete the series.

Letters informing parents and guardians of the new law are sent home in advance of scheduling with each fifth-grade student. In addition, follow-up telephone calls are also being made.

Appointments should be made in advance and a parent or guardian must be present with the student at the time the shot is administered.

The hepatitis B vaccine is given in a series of three shots. The first shot is administered, and then a 30-day waiting period must pass before the administration of the second shot. The third, and final, shot is given five months later. In all, a period of six months is required to complete the series.

Because of the length of time required for the completion of the vaccination series, Jennifer Martin, health coordinator for the Floyd County Board of Education, urges parents to take advantage of the service being provided by the elementary school resource centers.

She estimates that it will take about 15 minutes to administer the shot at school as opposed to a much lengthier wait in a doctor's office. Also, the student is not counted absent if the shot is administered at school.

Students receiving the shot at school are charged no fee.

Students up to age 18 who receive the shot at the health department will be charged a nominal fee according to a sliding scale basis.

Carol Stumbo. "I'm not asking that you work harder, just that you examine what you need to do... We've said that in some schools people are working very hard, but not with results."
 May Valley representatives said they strive to get students motivated and to involve all students. They also stressed the teamwork among teachers. Principal Carole Combs said teachers meet together as a team to develop lesson plans.
 Combs said a particular tool used for learning and communication is the "Friday Folder," which is sent home with students every Friday with a newsletter. Parents are asked to review the student's work, sign and return the folder.
 Combs listed computers as among the school's "critical shortages." She said that of 24 computers in the computer lab, only 11 work. She also said the school needs an additional custodian and a program for talented and gifted students.
 Board members teased Combs over her contagious enthusiasm and praised the atmosphere at the Martin school. District 1 board member Ross did, however, request that Combs make the school's mission statement "gender neutral," rather than using exclusively the masculine gender in referring to students.
 Principal Coy Sammons said that at 688, Prestonsburg High School has its smallest enrollment ever. The school, he indicated, has been dogged by problems going back several years before his tenure, but, he added, attendance and retention rates do appear to be improving.

 "Our past problems with attendance and discipline are being corrected," he said.
 Teacher John Patton criticized the state system in which schools are funded based on average daily attendance. "In Kentucky, if we have attendance problems, they take away funding," he said, adding that the funds are needed to find ways to improve attendance.
 "We have people who make laws who don't know anything about education," commented board chairman Terry Dotson.
 Sammons emphasized that the school is determined to help teachers improve instruction. He said he sets aside professional development funds for teachers to get more "content-specific training."
 Among the school's concerns, the principal said, are the improvement of test scores and attendance rates, as well as communication with parents and the community.

He added that the school needs furniture. Recent renovations, he said, left new, attractive rooms but no furniture. The need is particularly keen for teachers' desks, he said.
 Dotson said that he might be able to help. "Let me remind that some companies can help," he said. "Sometimes the board can't help, but someone in the area might."
 Ross suggested that PHS explore working with Prestonsburg Community College on a program to provide dual credit, and Sammons said he and principals at the other county high schools are "in agreement" and plan to work with college administrators.
 Sammons said his staff also recognizes the need to align the high school curriculum with the middle school. "Finding the time" is difficult, he said.
 He added that the school needs to address the problems of transition of students from eighth to ninth grade. Dotson suggested that the high schools "may be able to use aides to ease the transition."
 Jack Goodman, principal of Adams Middle School, made the final presentation of the evening. He reported on the progress of the consolidated plan, the implementation of reading across the curriculum, work on the equity plan and the success of the school's Homework Hot Line.

 He said the staff is working on strategies to bring up test scores, which fell last spring. One strategy is the "advisor-advisee" program and new scheduling, which includes splitting the instruction of math and science, which had been taught in the same time block.
 Another plan includes working more with feeder schools to align the curriculum.
 Goodman drew expressions of concern when he said the school is abolishing the math and writing portfolios. "We were having students retained for not having polished portfolios," he said, adding that the students will still have a "working portfolio."
 "I am concerned about the backward trend you seem to be on," said Carol Stumbo. "Have you had a chance to look at scores and revise your plan?"

Vaccinations

As always with any required immunization, the vaccine can also be obtained and administered from the family's private physician.
 Forty-five fifth-grade students were scheduled to receive their first shot in the series at the Prestonsburg Elementary Family Resource Center on Wednesday and Thursday. The school has 92 fifth-grade students.
 Hepatitis B is a serious disease that can cause acute illness leading to loss of appetite, tiredness, diarrhea and vomiting, jaundice, and pain in muscles, joints, and stomach. It can also cause chronic illness that leads to liver damage (cirrhosis), liver cancer and death.
 Hepatitis B vaccine can prevent Goodman responded that writing is not being de-emphasized. "Writing is going to be across the curriculum... with more writing on demand," he said.

 The principal added that the SBDM has overseen "a lot of positive changes. I don't see how we can't see improvement in scores."
 As to needs, Goodman said he would like to have more teachers in specific areas, such as art and physical education. He also said he would like for teachers to have more paid days at the beginning of the school year, in which they can "meet together to plan" before classes start.
 The Tuesday night meeting was part of an ongoing effort by the board to hear reports from all the schools in the system. The next report meeting will be Monday, November 20, at 6 p.m., at Adams Middle School.

Chief Wells also made a request to the committee to authorize hiring a part-time employee. Wells recommended volunteer Zethaniel Shepherd for the position. Shepherd has received past training in his work as a volunteer at the David Area Fire Department.

hepatitis B. It is the first anti-cancer vaccine because it can prevent a form of liver cancer.
 Martin stresses that "this is a preventable disease" and further stresses the importance of vaccination.
 The hepatitis B vaccine is of a limited supply and distribution will be on a first-come, first-serve basis; therefore early scheduling is recommended.
 For further information concerning the scheduling of a hepatitis B vaccination for your fifth-grader, contact the family resource center at your child's school.

Time to exhale — basketball has returned

There was a lack of the pageantry one would expect last week with the return of the second most popular religion in Kentucky. The first is whichever one guides your spirit each day; the second is college basketball.

More writers than probably should have strained the use of a thesaurus to write about the majesty and mystique of baseball. Greats like Grantland Rice are still known for their depictions of football games as epic crusades rivaling the Battle of Yorktown.

The thrill of college basketball tends not to lend itself easily to the written word. Perhaps it is because baseball and football seem more calculating, a bit slower to build the pressure. Basketball is action — sometimes thunderous, sometimes artistic, but always a source of conversation in the bluegrass state.

When the University of Kentucky lost its first two games Thursday and Friday, the sound of desperate souls crashing to the earth could be heard across the state. UK fans take that sort of thing personally.

It is pointless to make a fuss that a school's basketball team gets too much attention. The University of Louisville football team recently pulled off a major upset of Southern Mississippi, while its basketball team has fallen in recent years from its lofty status as perennial national champion contender. But when the basketball team begins play this week, excitement in the state's largest city will be high.

Kentucky Wesleyan College and Brescia University have several fine athletic teams, but basketball is different. If you do not understand why, it is difficult to explain.

It just is. There is a reason that driveways from Pikeville to Paducah have basketball goals in the vicinity. Sports writer Dave Kindred once tabbed basketball the "dream game in Kentucky," one in which every boy — and now many girls — pictures himself or herself hitting the winning basket as time expires, then leaping into a hysterical crowd.

There are more than a few adults who still have that dream as well.

Perhaps it is because so many Kentucky colleges have been so good at basketball for so long. Kentucky and Kentucky Wesleyan are upper echelon in championships at their level, while Murray State and Western Kentucky universities continue to be forces in their conferences.

But the appeal of college basketball in the bluegrass is more than just cheering for a winner. There is something within a native Kentuckian that needs basketball like he needs oxygen.

Thank goodness it's time to breathe again.

Ratliff didn't use Young's death

Editor:

Recently you published a letter from Rita Young complaining that her husband's death was being used for political purposes in the state Senate campaign between Ray S. Jones II and Chris Ratliff, the inference being that both candidates used the death for campaign purposes.

I served as the campaign manager for my brother, Chris Ratliff, and I want Rita Young and your readers to know that at no time did Chris Ratliff ever use the mysterious circumstances of the death of Mrs. Young's husband in any way in the campaign. In fact, I wholeheartedly agree with Rita Young's statement that "it is in ill taste to use a dead man in your campaign battle."

Ray S. Jones II used the death of Rita Young's husband as the excuse to run phony, false and fictitious TV attack ads to help defeat Chris Ratliff. Jones also aired false and phony TV ads using Linzey Young's mother and Jones' grandfather to falsely accuse Chris in order to harm Chris' reputation and take votes away from him.

Chris Ratliff has filed a lawsuit against Jones for using false and slanderous TV attack ads, such as the deceitfully false TV ads concerning Linzey Young's death. These slanderous TV ads were used to defeat Chris Ratliff and to destroy his political, personal and professional reputation.

Rita Young should examine the Pikeville State Police files and a reconstruction of the accident to determine how fast Jones was driving and how many hours passed before his blood and urine were tested for drugs and alcohol content. She will also find that the vehicle driven by Jones was owned by his employer, state Sen. Gary C. Johnson, who is a self-described expert in automobile death cases. In this case, Sen. Johnson would have been interested in protecting himself from liability claims by Rita Young and her children.

I am willing to share any information I may have if requested by Rita Young or her lawyer.

Election has been unusually interesting

Editor:

Boy, what a week it's been!

As a longtime devotee of history and political science, I find this week's election exciting. No, all my favorites did not win, but what transpired and is still going on is a first for America.

I can't recall a situation where no matter who wins the presidency, we have a House and Senate that are divided almost 50-50. It seems like when you look at the nation as a whole, no clear mandate was given by the American people. Sixty-five percent of the populace considers themselves as moderates or conservatives, while only 20 percent consider themselves liberal. However, Al Gore got 50 percent of the vote, meaning a number of folks more conservative than Al didn't feel secure in voting for George W. Bush.

The sheer turnout at the polls Tuesday by the people kept Bush from winning. Gore did a good job in mobilizing and energizing the "base," which in the end offset the normally more interested conservative bloc. No matter what happens in Florida, a lot of people now realize that their vote is important and that just a few people can make a difference.

I hope all the brouhaha in Florida dies down soon. I grew up there and started my voting life there. I'm proud to say I've never missed an election, no matter how insignificant it might have seemed. I was raised in Palm Beach County, where the debate over miscast ballots threatens to taint the election.

The machines and methods used to vote are the same as I used 20 years ago. You get a sheet with choices on it. You slide it into the rack and punch holes in the card next to whom you wish to vote for. You put your finished ballot in an envelope and stuff it in the ballot box. As in any state, if you make a mistake, you can get a new card and start over. Florida's ballot this year had four cards and if you needed to change any one or all of them, you could very easily. The crying after the fact leads me to believe that something is rotten.

First, let's examine those who claim they were "disenfranchised." The retired and largely Jewish population in South Florida is extremely active and knowledgeable regarding issues and politicians. Usually, 90 percent or more vote in every election. Their condo associations, voter groups, PACs and other organizations have tremendous clout in South Florida politics and they are extremely well informed.

The supervisor of elections sent out sample ballots to all voters before the election. These other political groups and associations also mailed out ballots and checked who they supported. My dad, who is 85, got one. There is no way that many, if any, of these folks did not know what the ballot looked like or what number to select before they got into the voting booth.

I don't buy the fact that after 25-plus years of astute political activism, they suddenly got "dumb" when it came to the 2000 race, and even the political novice knows one cannot vote twice for the same position. This group is very well acquainted with voting, with absentee ballots and how to request a vote be invalidated so it can be changed. The ballot was set up by a bipartisan group of elected officials, so the charges of purposeful confusion don't hold water, either.

While the world watches Florida and Palm Beach County, what about irregularities in other areas? What about offering cigarettes, meals, etc. to homeless people to vote for your man? What about the sale of votes offered on the internet? What about polls being kept open two hours longer in heavily Democratic St. Louis so more people could vote? Sure, everyone has a right to vote, but the law states you must be in line when the polls close to do so. Bussing in folks after hours is not quite kosher in my book.

Anyway, it's been interesting and fun. One thing for sure, the new leader will have to be just that — a leader. He must be able to forge cooperation and foster communication between parties. He must put the good of the people over party goals and build a spirit of teamwork. I don't know if either Gore or Bush can do that, but God bless them as they try.

Here's a few ideas to settle the stalemate:

1. Do like Europe does and have a coalition government with both Bush and Gore sharing the nation.
2. Let Clinton stay in a few months and set up a whole new election nationwide with no TV or radio ads, just one TV debate (so no more money will be wasted).
3. Throw out the top two vote-getters and let Nader, Buchanan and Browne vie for the Oval Office.
4. A military coup? Might be great on crime, gangs and the war on drugs!

Through My Eyes

Food for thought

Well, another holiday season is upon us — seems like I just packed away all the Christmas clutter a short while ago! Oh well, as we all know, the seasons rush past much too quickly.

Personally, I just can't seem to get too excited about Thanksgiving or Christmas until after Halloween comes and goes, although the Christmas ornaments hang alongside the plastic pumpkins and costumes at most any store nowadays.

It's just really hard for me to begin purchasing Christmas gifts during October. That month, for me, is about being outside as much as possible, and seeing to the carving of jack-o-lanterns, assembling of costumes and the filling of the oversized candy dish that comes out of storage once a year.

Once all of this is over, though, my mind moves ahead.

The hustle and bustle associated with the preparation of the Thanksgiving meal, along with watching the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade does a lot to whet my holiday appetite.

All the Christmas theme commercials they begin to play this time of year also play a contributing factor, I'm sure.

But, we're talking about Thanksgiving, aren't we?

I love to cook, and really enjoy doing holiday cooking the old way, for instance, toasting bread and chopping onions for dressing, peeling real potatoes and baking my own fresh breads.

But, in light of having a new, and rather demanding, job, along with the possibility of having only the one day off, I'm not making plans to do it the way my mother and grandmother taught me. There are just too many conveniences available today to not take advantage of them.

Now, say, if I were married to a really generous and fabulously rich man who afforded me the luxury of being a stay-at-home wife, I would, undoubtedly, stir and cook and bake to my little heart's content. But, sadly so, this isn't the state in which I live, therefore, I will prepare homemade dressing and real mashed potatoes and quite possibly homemade broccoli casserole (a family favorite), but will most likely purchase my breads and desserts.

Or! I may even decide to take my family out to a local buffet. I am seriously entertaining this notion, because a day of cooking accompanied with the subsequent cleaning of pots and pans, only to go to bed exhausted and then have to rise early the next day to embark on another day of adventurous newspaper reporting sounds like an awful lot, doesn't it? Sorta takes the "holiday" out of holiday, you know?

At any rate, I plan to enjoy the day. Turkey and dressing and pumpkin pie loaded with whipped cream — a holiday designated for "pigging out" — what a great country!

But, let's not forget what the day is really set aside for — giving thanks for the blessings in our lives. Most of us are truly blessed. We have warm beds to sleep in and adequate amounts of food in our pantries. We also have families, children and friends. Maybe we don't have all the amenities and luxuries that we would like, but on the whole, our needs are met. We hopefully are pausing each day to give thanks for life's little blessings, but it really is nice to have a specific day set aside especially for offering thanks.

And, let's not forget those who are not doing so well in this country; we still have a homeless population, and a large percentage of women and children are sustaining themselves on poverty level incomes. So, pause for a moment and ponder on situations such as these.

How about a little history? Here's a little fact I dug out for this column: The first Thanksgiving observance in America was entirely religious in nature and did not involve feasting at all.

On December 4, 1619, a group of 38 English settlers arrived at Berkeley Plantation, on the James River near what is now Charles City, Va. The group's charter required that the day of arrival be observed yearly as a day of thanksgiving to God.

The first "harvest festival" in this country occurred in the autumn of 1621 in Plymouth, Mass. After the colonists had suffered a devastating winter, Gov. William Bradford arranged a harvest festival to give thanks to God for the bountiful crops of corn that were bestowed upon the settlers that season.

History records that the festival lasted for three days. Can you imagine three days of Thanksgiving feasting as we know it today? It would prove to be the ruination of the country! But, I would imagine that to those early settlers it was a well-deserved time of rest and celebration.

Come to think of it, the way we have to rush and hurry throughout our busy days today, we deserve a time of rest and celebration also, don't we? So, on Thanksgiving Day, I hope each of you will enjoy your meal and the parade and ... the football games!

Now, I don't want to do anything to ruin your holiday spirit but, I just can't close without touching briefly on a few points that have been on my mind of late.

First of all, in a previous column

I wrote that I felt that sports tend to dominate a lot of attention in our schools as opposed to other activities. I still believe this to be true. But, more importantly, what I wish to touch on here is to say that in no way did I intend for my words to be taken as a personal attack against the Adams Middle School site-based council or any of its members.

I freely admit that I have not attended any site-based council meetings. Perhaps this is due in part to the fact that I am a single parent with a full-time job, three school-age children and the added responsibility of caring for an elderly parent.

I have, however, attended open house and prior to that had talked with several members of the school staff and administration concerning the band instructor situation.

I did what I knew to do, and the answers I received were unsatisfactory to me. I walked away feeling that the matter was not of high level priority.

Now, had one of the persons I encountered proposed to me that I contact Patricia Dye or another member of the site-based council, perhaps I would have been afforded the opportunity to feel a little less frustrated by the situation.

Perhaps, also, teachers, school staff and administrators could shift their focus from viewing the presence of parents as another delay in the completion of their daily tasks and take the time to freely offer information to those who are in need of it.

But, far be it from me to suggest that in the busy arena of daily school life, parents could be made to feel as though their presence, along with their inquiries, could be an unwelcome intrusion into an already hectic and harried day.

I shudder to think of the repercussions such a suggestion would have.

At any rate, I am pleased to report that band instruction began again this past week at Adams Middle School. Hooray! I am very pleased, albeit, according to my understanding, the students will receive two hours of instruction per week, as opposed to the five hours per week that they previously received. But, hey, some is better than none, and I think it's great that the kids are again playing their instruments.

Also, another comment I would like to make before I close for this week, is to say that I felt that Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin and the city council members who were present at Monday's meeting conducted themselves with admirable self-restraint in light of the verbal attacks that were being thrown their way. This situation with the firefighters has been a tough one, as well as the situation concerning the Big Branch annexation.

Contention abounds and a pause for a deep, cleansing breath could prove to be beneficial to all involved.

Anyway, HAPPY THANKSGIVING! (And thanks for listening!)

Ky unemployment increases slightly

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's unemployment rose to 3.6 percent in September from 3.5 percent in August, according to the Department for Employment Services, a Cabinet for Workforce Development agency.

Kentucky's September 2000 jobless rate was below the 4.1 percent recorded for September 1999. The U.S. jobless rate declined from 4.1 percent in August to 3.8 percent in September.

"The slight increase in Kentucky's September unemployment rate goes along with the normal trend for this time of year," said Carlos Cracraft, the department's chief labor market analyst. "Kentucky's unemployment rate has either increased slightly or remained the same from August to September for last 17 years."

Four of the nine major job sectors had employment increases in September, while five reported employment losses, Cracraft said.

The government sector led with an increase of 9,100 jobs in August. Local education added 10,400 positions and state education jobs rose by 3,800 in September. Those gains were somewhat offset by a 2,900-job loss in federal jobs and a decrease of 1,700 jobs in local government.

"Returning or new teachers and hourly workers such as bus drivers, cafeteria personnel, custodians and maintenance workers returned or were added to school payrolls during the first full month of the school year. Also, college and university faculty and students started or returned to jobs in September," Cracraft said.

Increased farm work from harvesting led to a jump of 5,900 jobs in the agriculture sector in September. The transportation, communications and public utilities sector had 300 more jobs in September with a majority being in the transportation section.

The mining and quarrying sector had 100 more jobs in September. The manufacturing sector recorded the largest decrease in jobs in September with 1,700.

"September's losses were widespread with employment down in both durable and nondurable goods," said Cracraft.

Job losses of 500 occurred in transportation equipment, 400 in electronic equipment, 300 in stone, clay and glass products, 200 in lumber and furniture, among other categories. The losses were partly offset by gains in fabricated metal products and industry machinery.

"Manufacturing employment has declined in Kentucky over the past year, primarily because of job losses in the textiles and apparel, tobacco products, and electronic equipment industries," Cracraft said.

The trade sector recorded 1,300 fewer jobs in September mainly in retail trade categories such as food stores (-1,500), eating and drinking establishments (-300), and building materials and garden supply stores (-200). Gains in the trade sector occurred in miscellaneous retail stores (700), and department stores (400).

The construction sector had 1,100 fewer positions in September than in August. Contractors in special trade categories such as concrete, electrical work and roofing had 1,000 less jobs, while general building contractors had 200 fewer positions in September. Heavy construction contractors, such as those in commercial building had 100 more jobs in September.

Kentucky's services sector reported a decline of 900 jobs in September. Even though there were increases in education services (900), health services (500), and business services (400) positions, amusement and recreation services (-1,300), agricultural services (-500), jobs in hotels and other lodging places (-500), and jobs in membership organizations (-500) fell.

"The services sector still had the most job growth of any of Kentucky's job sectors over the past year," said Cracraft. "It had 17,400 more jobs in September 2000 than in September 1999."

Finance, insurance and real estate had 300 fewer jobs in September.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics monthly estimate of the number of employed Kentuckians for September 2000 was 1,916,229. This figure is down 17,825 from the 1,934,054 employed in August 2000, but up 26,150 from the 1,890,079 Kentuckians employed in September 1999.

The monthly estimate of the number of unemployed Kentuckians for September was 72,427. This figure is up 2,009 from the 70,418 unemployed in August 2000 and down 9,407 from the 81,834 Kentuckians unemployed in September 1999.

The monthly estimate of the number of Kentuckians in the civilian labor force for September was 1,988,656. This figure is down 15,816 from the 2,004,472 recorded in August 2000, but up 16,743 from the 1,971,913 recorded for September 1999.

The civilian labor force includes non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who are actively seeking work. It does not include unemployed Kentuckians who have not looked for employment within the past four weeks.

Employment and unemployment statistics are based on estimates. They are compiled to indicate employment trends rather than actually to count numbers of people who are or are not working.

Regional Championships are at stake!

Oh, What a season it has been so far!

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS WRITER

The high school football playoffs enter their third week Friday night with teams taking to the gridiron for a regional championship in their respective regions.

Oh, what a season it has been so far. The Johnson Central Golden Eagles had their dream season ended last week when they fell to the Tates Creek Commodores in what was a rematch of a week three game that saw the Johnson Central go into Lexington and upset the Commodores. Senior running back/linebacker Scott Salyer went down in last week's contest with the score deadlocked at zero. With their leading offensive rusher and their leading tackler on defense out of the game, the Golden Eagles fell prey to a rough and tumble Tates Creek team that was focused on avenging a regular season loss.

What a season Bill Musick and his team had! Johnson Central reeled off ten straight wins and captured a district championship with a come from behind win over Boyd County. The Golden Eagles went on to win their first playoff game with Clark County before tumbling to the Creekees last week.

The Johnson Central football program had won just 44 games over 10 seasons coming into this year. What Johnson Central accomplished this season was nothing short of remarkable. Hopefully, the program can enjoy some of the same success next season. Replacing senior do-it-all players like Salyer and quarterback/strong safety will be hard, but the feeder system at the middle school should replenish the ranks.

The Paintsville Tigers (9-3) travel to the W. C. Hambley Athletic Complex tonight to do battle with the Pikeville Panthers. The Panthers defeated the Tigers 21-8 in the last game of the regular season. Senior quarterback Matt Branham went down in the Paintsville game and has yet to see any action in the playoffs. Freshman signal-caller Paul Howard took over in the second quarter of the Paintsville game and the Panthers have yet to miss a beat. Pikeville's only sign of faltering came in the first half of the opening round playoff game with Evarts. Pikeville could only manage one touchdown in the first half and went into the intermission leading 7-0. It got better for the Panthers in the second half and worse for the Wildcats. The panthers went on to shutout the Wildcats 42-0. Last week the Panthers continued on a roll and defeated the Fleming-Neon Pirates 42-21. Seniors Chase Gibson and Nick King lead the Panthers air attack, while Junior Barrett Rogers leads the Pikeville ground game.

Paintsville has something to prove in tonight's game. The Tigers want to avenge a regular season, district championship game loss to the Panthers. Senior Matt Brown (6-2, 220) has carried the proverbial load for the Tigers this season. Junior quarterback Chas Harmon can air it out or tuck it and run. Brad Turner, Ben Hale, Brian Hale, Brad Austin and Tate Harmon all contribute to the Paintsville offense. The defense is led by the Brown brothers Matt and sophomore Ryan.

It should be a good one when the two foes take to the gridiron tonight.

The Rockcastle Rockets make the long trip to Inez tonight to do battle with the Sheldon Clark Cardinals. The Cardinals posted a 14-0 win over Whitley County last Friday night and are eyeing a regional championship. Sheldon Clark's multi-faceted offense of quarterback Kendrick Damron and a great cast of athletes including Ben Delong, Mo Spradlin and Chad Howell.

The Rockets are a strong team a shown by their performances in the regular season and so far in the playoffs.

Things could get interesting tonight in Inez.

Prestonsburg Regional IV Champions!

Blackcats drive past Russell 21-0 behind Garza and Hyden

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS EDITOR

(This Friday night the Prestonsburg Blackcats will host the Breathitt County Bobcats in the championship game of Region IV, a game they have not played in since the 1993 season).

I remember the game so well. It was to be a match up between the state's top defensive ballclub of the year 1993 and one of the high profile teams of the same era.

Prestonsburg would host the Russell Red Devils in the championship game of Region IV. Coach Bill Letton's ballclub was the states leading defensive team and Russell was known for their running game behind a player known as Robert Brown. Brown came into the game as one of the state's top rusher with over 1,400 yard to his credit. But he, like runners from Lawrence County the game before, found that it was hard to find any room for running against the stingy Blackcats defense.

Russell coach Ivan McGlone told me following the game that he expected better things against Prestonsburg.

"I thought we could play against Prestonsburg defensively," said the veteran Russell coach.

"But we could not get anything going against them offensively."

Prestonsburg had stopped the Red Devils in the second half as they threatened to take a lead to the locker room at the half. Neither team could score in the first two quarters in a 0-0 stand-off.

Coach Letton's half time

"A Blackcat Fan!"

speech got things done in the second half as Hyden, Dwayne Garza and Jody Cornette was outstanding in the final two quarters. Larry Morris (who would go on and play at the University of Kentucky) was the defensive standout for the Cats. He remembered the words of Coach Letton.

"He told us at half time to just stay in there and open some holes," said Morris.

There were other defensive standouts for Prestonsburg this night. Players like Kevin Vaughn, Brad Wells, Kyle Fitzpatrick, Ryan Elliott and Paul Collins. The Prestonsburg defense held Russell to just 52 yards on the ground. Brown had to settle for just a 10-yard night against the Blackcats defense. For the game, Russell had 72 yards on offense.

In fact, the Cats scored all the points they would need in the third period when the Blackcats took the opening kickoff of the second half and five plays later struck pay dirt on a 49-yard touchdown run by Seth Hyden. John Stout added the PAT and the Cats led 7-0.

Outside of the one drive that moved the football in the Prestonsburg red zone, the Red Devils never did threaten again as they could not scratch out anything against the state's best defensive team.

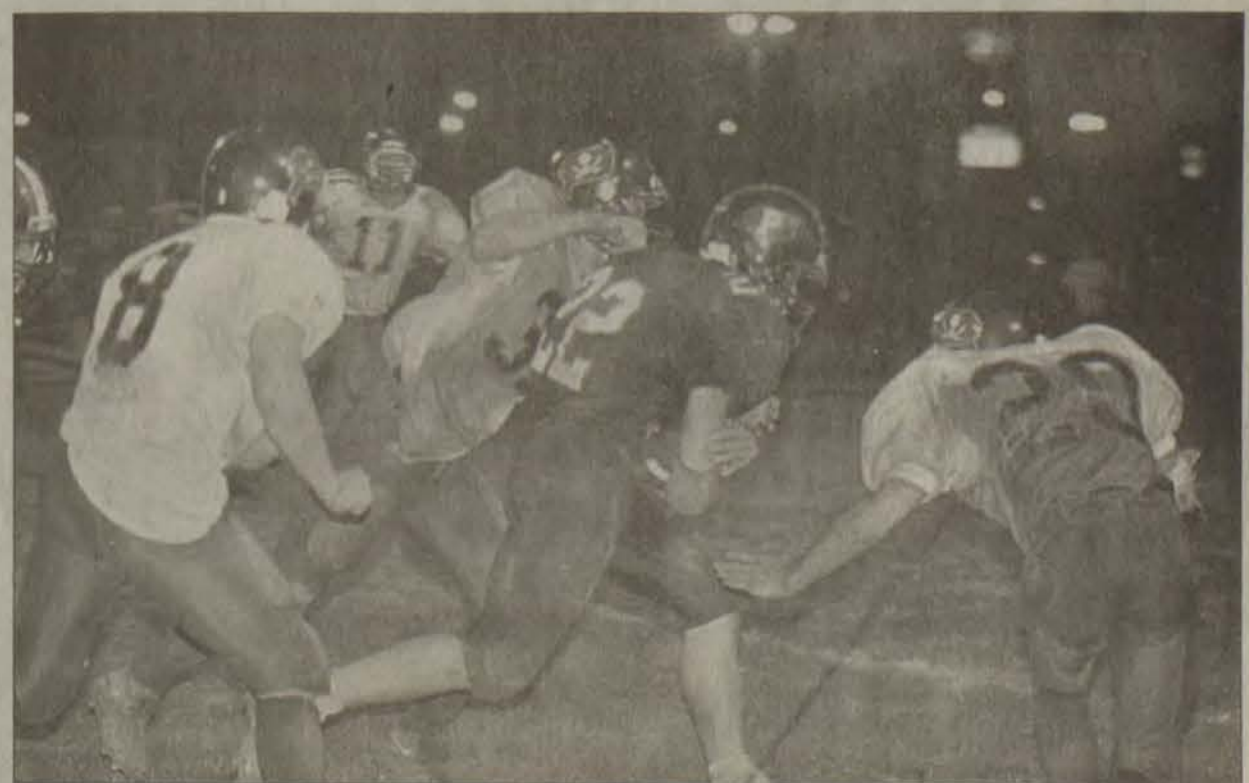

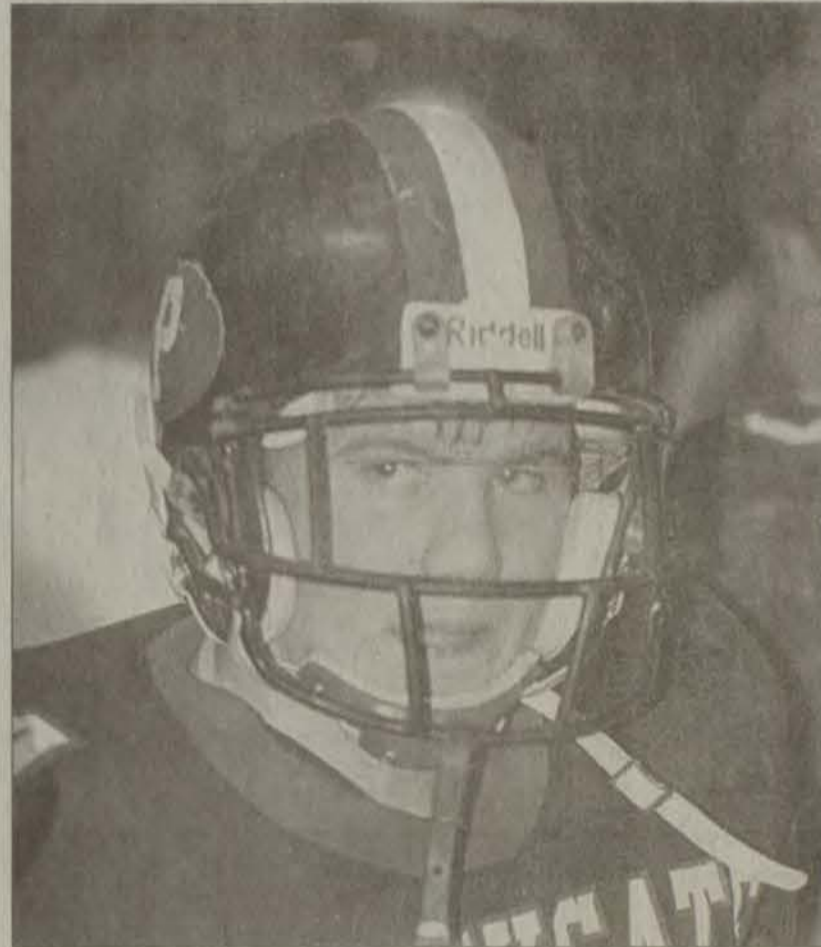

It was the Dwayne Garza Show in the fourth quarter when Garza piled up most of his yards. He scored both of his touchdowns in the final period as Prestonsburg put away the Red Devils.

Hyden finished the game with 135 yards rushing while Garza carried for 127 yards.

HOPES FOR A REPEAT

It has been seven seasons since the Blackcats have found themselves in a regional championship game. The 2000 edition of Blackcat football would love to duplicate what those before them did.

Ask a Blackcat today about the '93 team and they cannot even remember too much about them. Thus the reason for this rerun. Good luck Blackcats!

November 18 thru November 24, 2000

Arts at the MAC

You have the chance to take in two kinds of art at the Mountain Arts Center over the coming weeks.

The Kentucky Opry Christmas Show opens on Friday, November 24 — always a good reason to give thanks.

Although it's all new, the show still has the comfortable feeling of being around old friends, including Munroe, Keith and all the kids.

There's no finer.

The show begins at 7:30 p.m.

If you miss this opener, you can still see the show on December 1, 8, 10, 16 and 17. A ticket to see the Opry will also be a welcome, early holiday gift for family members, friends, or employees.

For specifics, call toll free, 1-800-MAC-ARTS or locally 886-2623.

The other art available at the MAC is purely visual — and somewhat spiritual because of the good feeling you get from viewing it.

Art works by Prestonsburg artist Pamela Montgomery are now on display at the MAC Gallery. Mostly pen and ink drawings, the works depict animals, including some irresistible barnyard chickens, as well as people. Many of the people fancifully pose in another era, our ancestors, perhaps, from the early eastern coast or even from the old countries.

You may see something you'd like to take home, and that can be arranged in most cases.

At any rate, check it out.

Old Fort Harrod hosts Holiday Gala

FRANKFORT — Old Fort Harrod State Park in Harrodsburg will host its annual Holiday Gala on November 17-18.

More than 1,000 luminaries will line the historic site, which commemorates Kentucky's first permanent settlement, being founded in 1774.

Park visitors can step back in time as they stroll through the candlelit 18th century fort replica. The Mansion Museum of Kentucky, a restored Greek Revival home, features a Christmas Tree Festival, which includes 20 trees decorated in various holiday themes, with the most unique and popular tree being "Evergreen," the Talking Tree.

Museum guests can also visit with Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, enjoy the sounds of live holiday music being performed on the harp and dulcimer, and sample delicious refreshments in the formal dining room. The two-story museum will also be open for self-guided tours during the gala.

The outside of the mansion museum will provide the luminous setting for carolers who will perform the beloved songs of the holiday season. For more information or to make reservations, call the park at 859/734-3314 or 734-9614. Gala hours are 6 - 9 each evening.

Tickets can be purchased at the fort and the mansion museum. The adult admission price is $3. Admission for students grades 1-12 is $1.50. Children under 6 are admitted free.

Farm offers craft show

This holiday season create a storybook Christmas with gifts and home accents found at the Bob Evans Farm's 13th annual Country Christmas Craft Show on Friday, November 24, and Saturday, November 25, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

More than 70 crafters will offer hand-crafted items at the farm's historic Homestead Adamsville Log Cabin Village and the Craft Barn. Shoppers will find everything from wreaths, baskets and old-world Santas to pottery, woven rugs and stained glass.

Visitors can enjoy a scenic view of the farm in a horse-drawn carriage, watch artisans demonstrate old-fashioned toys, scroll saw fret work, make decorations with dough and make lampshades at the Craft Barn. Visitors can also join a scavenger hunt for hand-crafted door prizes.

Santa Claus will be in the Craft Barn on Friday and at the Adamsville Village on Saturday, from 1 to 5 p.m.

For information, call 1-800-994-3276 or 740/245-5305. The farm is located in southeastern Ohio about a mile off US 35, on Ohio 588.

'Front page fifties' exhibit opens at KHC

"Front Page Fifties," the Kentucky Historical Society's new temporary exhibit, will open December 9 at the Kentucky History Center in historic downtown Frankfort.

The exhibit will be a look at the sights, sounds and experiences that made the 1950s so memorable, from the birth of the Baby Boom generation to the Cold War to the decade's zany designs. "Front Page Fifties" will bring the era to life and help today's Kentuckians understand it through the front pages and headlines of the state's newspapers.

Artifacts, photographs, audio and video will bring this nostalgic era to life, a time when Kentuckians not only marched off to Korea, but participated in the birth of rock 'n' roll music, the suburban explosion and the growing civil rights movement.

Often recalled as a quiet period, 1950s Kentucky was a time and place of conflicting images, trends and realities. The post-war boom brought the growing middle class to the suburbs, while thousands of rural Kentuckians migrated to northern cities to find employment.

Rock 'n' roll displaced big band music as the choice of the young, while pioneers of bluegrass music such as Bill Monroe and the Osborne Brothers preserved the state's old-time acoustic traditions.

Spectator sports reached a popularity and success rarely seen since. The fabulous Derby winner Citation became the first thoroughbred to win $1 million.

The University of Kentucky was in the midst of unprecedented success in football and basketball, a time checkered by the resignation of football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant and the basketball team's point-shaving scandal. The basketball programs of the University of Louisville and Western Kentucky University were gaining prominence.

Kentucky was an interesting place in the 1950s. "Front Page Fifties" will bring to life the following themes of the decade: "How Hot Can a Cold War Get? Kentucky, Korea and the Red Menace," "The Move to Suburbia," "All Shook Up: Youth Culture Ascending," and "Cracks in the Wall: The Beginning of the End for Legal Segregation," and "King Cagers and Gridiron Giants: The Sports Section."

The exhibit runs from December 9, 2000-September 1, 2001.

The Kentucky Historical Society is an agency of the Education, Arts and Humanities Cabinet. The Kentucky History Center is the headquarters of the Kentucky Historical Society and is located in downtown Frankfort.

KY Life visits High Bridge, talks with historian Tom Owen

Kentucky is home to what was once the highest bridge in North America and the highest railroad bridge in the world. The next "Kentucky Life," airing Saturday, November 18 at 8:30 p.m. on KEI, delves into the history of High Bridge and relives the days when the park there was an entertainment mecca.

Also in this episode, host Dave Shuffett visits Louisville historian Tom Owen.

When it was completed in 1877, High Bridge was hailed internationally as a marvel of modern engineering. Crossing the Kentucky River near the Dix River, the bridge connected Jessamine and Mercer counties. Soon after the bridge was completed, a park was constructed and special excursion trains were chartered to take turn-of-the-century revelers to the events held there.

In this segment, Shuffett talks with a local historian as well as local residents who remember High Bridge's heyday.

Next, "Kentucky Life" delves into Louisville history and the personal philosophy of a library sciences professor at the University of Louisville. Tom Owen was born in the River City, and his affection for his home is apparent. In this segment, highlighted by old footage and photographs, viewers see how the city has grown and changed, and learn about some of the key issues that have shaped it.

"Kentucky Life" is produced and directed by Joy Flynn. Series writer is Ellen Ballard. Segment producers for this program are Charlee Heaton Pagoulatos and Gary Pahler. Craig Cornwell is executive producer.

Light show at the Breaks

The Breaks Interstate Park presents "Mountain Top Lights" through January 1.

More than one million lights represent the magic of the holiday season in the display, which is put on by sponsors from both Kentucky and Virginia.

Admission is $5 per car and $10 for other vehicles. For information, contact Carl Mullins, 1-800-982-5122.

Hurrah for Hollywood

My family has always been great movie buffs, avid advocates of any cinema production. If we weren't watching television, we were on our way to a movie or talking about one we had just seen. My mother said my grandmother used to take her to a movie practically every day of her life until she started school, and amazingly enough, I can remember my grandmother referring to the stars by their first names, such as Liz and Dick, Debbie and Eddie, Laurence and Vivian, etc.

So when I got an e-mail from my friend Susan, in San Francisco, that talked about the idyllic world of movies and how our everyday lives failed to mimic theirs, I couldn't resist sharing them with you. What follows is an easily recognizable list (at least to regular movie goers) of cliché situations and circumstances that can only happen in the movies.

• Large loft apartments in New York City are plentiful and affordable, even if the tenants are unemployed.

• One of a pair of identical twins is always evil.

• Should you decide to defuse a bomb, don't worry about which wire to cut. You will always choose the right one.

• It doesn't matter if you are greatly outnumbered in a fight involving martial arts. Your enemies will wait patiently to attack you one by one dancing around in a threatening manner until you have dispatched their predecessors.

• When you turn out the light to go to bed, everything in your bedroom will still be clearly visible but slightly blue.

• If you are blonde and pretty, it is possible to be a world-famous expert on nuclear fission, dinosaurs, hieroglyphics, or anything else, at the age of 22.

• Honest and hard-working policemen are usually gunned down a day or two before retirement.

• Rather than wasting bullets, megalomaniacs prefer to kill their enemies using complex machinery involving fuses, deadly gases, lasers, buzz saws, and hungry sharks, all of which will give their captives at least 20 minutes to escape.

• During all crime investigations, it is necessary to visit a strip club at least once.

• All beds have special L-shaped covers that reach up to the armpits of a woman but only to the waist of the man lying beside her.

• All grocery shopping bags contain at least one baguette and one bunch of carrots with leafy tops.

• It's easy to land a plane, providing there is someone in the control tower to talk you down.

• If you're beautiful, your makeup never rubs off, even while scuba-diving or fighting aliens. However, if you are overweight, your mascara will run and your lipstick will smear.

• The ventilation system of any building is the perfect hiding place. No one will ever think of looking for you in there, and you can travel to any other part of the building without difficulty.

• You're very likely to survive any battle in any war unless you make the mistake of showing someone a picture of your sweetheart back home.

• Should you wish to pass yourself off as a German officer, it is not necessary to speak the language. A German accent will do.

• A man will show no pain while taking the most horrific beating, but will wince when a woman tries to clean his wounds.

• If staying in a haunted house, women must investigate any strange noises while dressed in their most diaphanous underwear, which is what they happened to be wearing when the car broke down.

• If someone says, "I'll be right back," they won't.

• Even when driving down a perfectly straight road, it is necessary to turn the steering wheel from time to time.

• All bombs are fitted with electronic timing devices with large red readouts so you know exactly when they're going to go off.

• A police detective can only solve a case after he has been suspended from duty.

• If you decide to start dancing in the street, everyone around you will be able to mirror all the steps you come up with, and hear the music in your head.

• Police departments give their officers personality tests to make sure each is assigned a partner who is their total opposite.

• When they are alone, all foreigners prefer to speak English to each other.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

by CHUCK SHEPHERD

Officials at the Paralympic Games, held in Sydney two weeks after the Olympics, said performance-enhancing drugs were a concern, certainly, but that some athletes with spinal-cord injuries presented yet another problem in their quest to get an edge: Some jabbed pins into their legs, or sat on tacks, or blocked their catheters to overfill their bladders, which research shows improves athletic performance (by raising blood pressure) by an average 10 percent. Even though such abuse is pain-free, it is dangerous, a Canadian team doctor told the Globe and Mail newspaper. "(B)ut," he said, "like every other athlete, (these abusers) feel invincible."

The New England Journal of Medicine reported in October on apparently the first-ever transfer of a food-poisoning virus during a football game. Florida State beat Duke, 62-13, in the 1998 game, but 43 nauseous Duke players and assistants got some measure of revenge by inadvertently making 11 FSU players violently ill during and after the game by passing the virus via their unwashed hands and the fresh vomit on their own uniforms. The cause was contaminated turkey sandwiches.

LATEST EXORCISM DEVELOPMENTS

Re-release of the 1973 movie "The Exorcist" in September is but one event fueling a recent flurry of Satan-dispatching attempts. The Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago revealed in September 2000 that it had, for the first time, appointed a full-time exorcist. And the Vatican revealed in September that Pope John Paul II had failed in his own exorcism of a 19-year-old woman after the church's chief exorcist had also failed. And in a July investigative piece, the New York Post reported that the $1 billion annual donations worldwide to the Universal Church of the Kingdom of God (Brazil-based, but with 15,000 members in the United States) are made largely under the church-created fear that such giving is the only way to obtain exorcisms.

CREME DE LA WEIRD

Bismarck, North Dakota, police reported in October that a man recently telephoned two fast food restaurants posing as a police officer and instructed the manager to strip-search employees for contraband. The caller's persuasiveness caused an adult male to strip for a female manager and an adult female to strip for a male manager.

An unidentified man was finally caught by police in August, in Stafford County, Virginia, after two years of sightings in which he would lie on mountain-bike trails camouflaged with dirt and leaves in hopes (sometimes successful) of getting run over by an all-terrain vehicle. (Last October, according to one sighting, he staggered away from such an incident, bloodied.) The man, who lives in Burke, Virginia, was not arrested but was ordered to stay off bike trails.

GOVERNMENT IN ACTION

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is now formally considering (following a public comment period that ended in September) new regulations that would reduce the minimum size of Swiss cheese holes in Grade A cheese from 11/16ths of an inch in diameter to 3/8th of an inch. The dairy industry said it could provide the cheese more efficiently if the holes were smaller.

Heavy-Handed Regulatory Reform: A sausage factory owner grew tired of repeated visits by federal food-safety inspectors and, according to police, shot three of them dead (San Leandro, California, June). A man angry at his treatment at a Social Security office opened fire, killing a guard (Sacramento, California, September). Two city officials were shot dead by a homeowner when they tried to cross his property to attend to a sewer problem (Bunker, Missouri, September). Five Miami-area homeowners, fearful they will lose their trees, have been charged in 2000 with brandishing guns at state inspectors looking for an infectious citrus disease.

In October, the large psychic-hotline company, Access Resource Services of

Park puts on Frontier Night

Whoopee-ti! Get out your coonskin cap and your leather britches. Saturday, November 18, is Frontier Night at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

Nobody will go away hungry from the 'vittles' in the May Lodge dining room. The menu entrees include top round buffalo carved on the line, Dry Gulch buffalo stew with vegetables, chuck-wagon meatloaf with bunkhouse sauce, fried chicken, catfish with hushpuppies, and Big Sky buffalo chili.

Leave room for the other menu items: country-style fried potatoes, crowder peas with bacon, seasoned steamed cabbage, corn on the cob, turnip greens with ham hocks, Sante Fe green beans, fruit and cream pies, banana pudding, fruit cobblers, Mexican and Kentucky-style cornbread and rolls.

Cost of the buffet, served from 4 to 8 p.m., is $15.95 for adults and $7.95 for children 12 and under.

Stick around after dinner and you'll be entertained — for free — by cowboy singer Rob McNurlin at 7 p.m., and by Cherokee storyteller Jeff Hatmaker at 8 p.m.

Dancing — square, folk and line — begins at 9 p.m.

News of the Weird

Fort Lauderdale, Florida, promised in a settlement with the state attorney general not to engage in fraudulent practices. One provision of the settlement absolutely forbids the company to hire bogus counselors, but contains the exception allowing telephone psychics to be hired if they swear in writing that they can read people's minds.

RECURRING THEMES

Among the latest Muslim "fatwas" (religious rulings): Men and women must use separate checkout counters in supermarkets (Malaysia, April). Husbands may hit their wives "gently," "as a warning," but must take care not to hit them in the face (Turkey, July). Having a spouse who smokes is a legitimate ground for divorce (Egypt, July). No shopping at a discount store (Egypt, June). Women caught working for British-funded aid organizations will be kidnapped and forcibly married, in order to keep them at home (Pakistan, August). And an October fatwa by the Egyptian Islamic Group instructed disciples to "kill Jews wherever they are found."

CREATIVE LAWSUITS, EXPLAINED

New York University instructor (and accused shoplifter) Elizabeth Ayres filed a lawsuit in August against Lord & Taylor in New York City, claiming that when security guards found an unpaid-for bra in her bag, it must have been because they planted it there so that they could accuse her of theft and "torture" her until she confessed to stealing it. At NYU, Professor Ayres teaches creative writing.

THINNING THE HERD

In September, a 34-year-old man drowned in his car after he drove through well-marked barricades and plunged into a 15-foot-deep sinkhole in Eau Claire, Wisconsin. In August, a 42-year-old man drowned in Lake Erie near Painesville, Ohio, diving in to retrieve his favorite fishing lure. A 54-year-old man drowned in September after diving into Joe Pool Lake near Dallas after his hat.

ALSO, IN THE LAST MONTH ...

A 36-year-old hunter shot and killed a state-protected mountain lion, but according to witnesses had no choice because the lion attacked him while he was squatting with his pants down, answering nature's call (Siskiyou County, California). In a study, 43 percent of doctors said they would have no problem being the one to kill a death-row inmate by lethal injection (Chicago). Angered by his country's soccer loss in the Asian Cup games, Saddam Hussein's son, Uday, imprisoned the team's three most disappointing players and had them whipped on the soles of their feet (Baghdad, Iraq). The mother of a girls' high school softball player sued a teammate's father because his daughter hit a foul ball into a parking lot, damaging the roof of the woman's convertible (Bristol Township, Pennsylvania).

CRITTERS CORNER

by CAROL COMBS MORRIS, DVM

After last week I've probably got everyone wondering how it could be bad for a breed of dog to be labeled positively. "Popular," "smart," "friendly," "elegant," "good with children"—these are all labels placed on certain breeds that have resulted not only in negative consequences for individual dogs, but have sometimes nearly destroyed entire breeds.

One of the best examples of this occurred within the past few years with Dalmatians. Of course, those pups were so cute and so smart in the movie; everyone wanted one. Well, Dalmatians are cute, and they are smart; they are also active to the point of being hyper, extremely strong, easily distracted, can be a little difficult to train, and some are aggressive. Several health problems plague the breed, most notably deafness and kidney trouble.

Responsible breeders know all these things, and they work hard to produce healthy and even-tempered dogs. This takes lots of work, years of study, and a thorough knowledge of their chosen breed. Unfortunately, there were unscrupulous dog breeders and inexperienced people who saw dollar signs in the public's clamor for Dalmatians. Instead of taking time to educate would-be owners, these people basically bred and sold anything with spots.

The incidence of health problems increased, because the breeders were not removing affected and carrier dogs from their breeding programs; temperaments also deteriorated. This, coupled with the fact that many of the new owners were not being prepared for some of the special needs of this breed, led to mass disappointment with these dogs.

Dalmatians started showing up in shelters in droves; every newspaper carried "free to good homes" ads for adult Dalmatians. Ethical Dalmatian breeders grilled prospective owners with the fervor of the Spanish Inquisition. The entire breed is still reeling from the episode.

This is why St. Bernard breeders were less than enchanted with Beethoven, and why Chichauhua people shuddered every time they heard "¡Yo quiero Taco Bell." I suspect Border Collie, Golden Retriever and Shetland Sheepdog people have mixed emotions about how well their breeds are doing in the televised Agility Trials on Animal Planet.

Once again, I am not breed-bashing. All of these dogs can be wonderful companions in the right setting, and if their owner knows ahead of time what they are getting into.

The best advice I know to give people when they are interested in a certain breed is to find out all they can about it. The first question you need to ask is "what was this dog originally bred to do?" The characteristics that helped the dog perform that task are the ones that would have been emphasized in the breeding.

For instance, most people are totally unaware that Dalmatians were originally bred as bird dogs. For bird hunting, a dog needs to be strong, energetic, very prey-oriented, able to focus quickly on anything that moves, and somewhat independent, so he can make decisions in the field. Dals got away from these roots as they became companions to horse-drawn carriages and fire trucks; eventually they became best known as firehouse mascots.

Knowing the background, however, better prepares you for a puppy who is going to need lots of exercise, training and patience.

I often get calls about "behavior problems" in dogs that are nothing more than an owner who was not aware of what their pet was bred for. People who want their Labrador Retrievers to stop carrying off and chewing on their possessions, and those who are upset because her Terrier is digging holes, have to first be helped to understand that those behaviors are genetically "hard-wired" in those breeds. Chances are, they can't be eliminated, just channeled into more acceptable outlets. Then there was the distraught lady who had bought a Border Collie, because she wanted a lap dog.

Dog shows are another good place to find out about different breeds. Exhibitors are often happy to discuss their breed if you are considerate and find out when they might have time to ask. Just looking at the dogs will help, too.

Which group (Sporting, Non-sporting, Hound, Terrier, Working, Herding or Toy) is your chosen breed shown in? That will give you a clue about the breed's basic personality. Remember, though, that every dog is an individual, and there's going to be some variation.

Check out also how much maintenance is going to be required for your breed. My friend Anita had fallen in love with Bearded Collies—until she saw one "in the fur." She knew they had a lot of hair, but not that much!

This works even if you have a mixed breed dog or are considering one at the shelter. By identifying the predominant breed or breeds present, you can make an educated guess about the dog's temperament.

In summary, don't impulsively choose a breed, because it's cute or the most popular, or shy away from one because you've heard something negative about it. Do your homework, know what you're getting into, and honestly ask yourself, like Anita did, whether you are prepared to deal with the challenges of that breed. Both you and your dog will be happier if you do this.

Gingerbread Pudding Cake

(Old-fashioned pudding cake makes a comeback as gingerbread)
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking soda
1 1/4 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground all spice
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/2 cup butter, softened
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup molasses
1 cup water
3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 1/2 cups hot water
1/3 cup butter, melted
Heat oven to 350°.

Combine flour, baking soda, ginger, cinnamon, salt, all-spice and nutmeg in medium bowl. Set aside.

Combine 1/2 cup butter and sugar in large mixer bowl. Beat at medium speed, scraping bowl often, until creamy (1 to 2 minutes). Add egg; continue beating until well mixed. Reduce speed to low. Gradually add flour mixture alternately with molasses and 1 cup water, beating well after each addition (1 to 2 minutes).

Pour batter into 13 x 9-inch ungreased baking pan. Sprinkle with brown sugar.

Combine 1 1/2 cups hot water and 1/3 cup melted butter in medium bowl. Carefully pour over top of batter (do not mix). Bake for 40 to 55 minutes or until gingerbread is cracked on top and toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm with ice cream, if desired.

Pumpkin ice cream is wonderful served with this cake. It is easily made by stirring 1/3 cup brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg and 1 cup cooked pumpkin into 1 quart softened vanilla ice cream. Free until firm.

Spinach Casserole

(I came up with this recipe a few years ago, now its a favorite at all of our family dinners. Be sure to use the grated parmesan in the bag, or grate your own. I have tried the powdery parmesan in the can, it doesn't turn out half as good)

1/3 cup heavy cream
1/3 cup grated parmesan cheese
1/3 cup melted butter

Cook spinach in very small amount of water and drain well.

Combine spinach with onion, cream, cheese and 4 tablespoons of the melted butter. Place in greased casserole. Cover with bread crumbs that have been tossed with remaining butter. Top with more cheese. Bake at 400° for 15-20 minutes.

Easy Potato Rolls

2/3 cup sugar
2/3 cup shortening
1 cup mashed potatoes (cold)
2 1/2 tsp. salt
2 eggs
2 pkgs. (1/4 oz. each) active dry yeast
1 1/3 cups warm water (divided)
6-6 1/2 cups all purpose flour

Note: If using self-rising flour, omit the salt.

In a large mixing bowl, cream sugar and shortening. Add potatoes, salt and eggs. In a small bowl, dissolve yeast in 2/3 cups of warm water, add to creamed mixture. Beat in 2 cups flour and remaining water. Add enough remaining flour to form a soft dough. Shape into a ball—do not knead. Place in a greased bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double about 1 hour. Punch dough down; divide into thirds. Shape each portion into 15 balls and arrange in three greased 9" round baking pans. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 30 minutes. Bake at 375° for 20-25 minutes. Remove from pans to cool on wire racks or serve warm from pans. Yield: 45 rolls.

Gravy

A new way with old-fashioned gravy

by Dana Jacobi from the American Institute for Cancer Research

For beginning cooks, gravy making is one of the more challenging parts of preparing a traditional holiday meal. Even experienced cooks find the last-minute steps stressful trying to drain off and separate the fat and pan juices, and make enough of a lump-free gravy—all the while juggling to get the dinner to the table.

Today, along with these concerns, we face the nutritional nightmare of the fat content of a classic gravy made with pan drippings and flour. Using pan juices alone, without added fat and flour, is always a possibility, but I would hardly call it gravy.

To keep all three traditional ingredients—because nothing beats the flavor and silken texture they create—here is a recipe for a healthier version, in abundant amount. You can make it one or two days ahead, or assign its preparation to someone else and reduce your stress level.

There are two keys to this simple, good gravy. The first is using a really rich stock. The second is thickening it by pureeing some of the vegetables used to make the stock.

If you are roasting a very big bird, you can use the parts normally reserved for gravy—the neck, giblets and wing tips—plus extra wings. But this means cooking the broth while the bird is in the oven—essentially, at the last minute. Instead, I prefer buying about four extra wings and using them to make the stock a day or more ahead.

Another reason I like this gravy is that you end up with extra stock. This comes in handy for making more gravy, if necessary, for the leftovers. It also gives you the base for a lovely turkey and rice soup.

Rich Turkey Gravy
Turkey Broth

2 pounds turkey parts, including neck, wings, thighs and giblets
1 medium carrot, peeled and sliced
1 celery stalk, halved crosswise
1 medium leek, chopped
1 large onion, quartered
1 small parsnip, peeled and sliced
3-4 sprigs flat-leaf parsley sprigs
2 large garlic cloves
Gravy
2 cups turkey broth
1 Tbsp. turkey fat
2 Tbsp. all-purpose flour salt and freshly ground pepper

For the broth, combine turkey parts, carrot, celery, leek, onion, parsnip, parsley and garlic in a large pot. Add 12 cups water. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer gently for 2 hours. During the first 30 minutes, skim off any foam that rises to the surface.

Strain broth into a bowl. Reserve carrot, onion, parsnip and garlic. Discard other vegetables and turkey. Cool broth to room temperature. Refrigerate, overnight if necessary, until fat congeals. Lift off fat, using a spoon, and reserve it in a small bowl.

Puree reserved carrot, onion and parsnip in blender or food processor, along with 1/2 cup of turkey broth. Blend in remaining broth.

Heat the tablespoon of turkey fat in a saucepan. Using a wooden spoon, mix in flour, which will gather into a soft ball with the fat. Cook, stirring constantly, over medium heat until mixture is fluffy and looks moist, about 2 minutes. Slowly whisk in 1/4 cup broth/puree until mixture is smooth. Add remaining puree. Bring gravy to a boil, then immediately remove from heat. Season gravy with salt and pepper to taste. Pour gravy into a gravy boat.

Makes a total of 2 3/4 cups, or 11 individual servings, each containing 43 calories and 1 gram of fat.

Kentucky
cook wins prize

Joan Jacobs of Frankfort is the winner of a $100 Cook Book Library awarded by Gold West Publishers, whose recently released Kentucky Cook Book is the newest addition to the Cooking Across America Cook Book Series.

Jacobs was selected in a drawing from all contributors who had recipes published in the Kentucky Cook Book.

Her winning recipe, Grandma's Sorghum Molasses Raisin Bread, was given to her by an aunt 35 years ago. Another Jacobs' family favorite, Blue Ribbon Orange-Nut Bread, has been a winner at county fairs and was also selected for publication in the Kentucky Cook Book.

The book, which retails for $6.95 ($9.95 postpaid), is available at bookstores, kitchen and specialty food shops, souvenir and gift shops or directly from the publisher. Contact Golden West Publishers at 800-658-5830, or write 4113 N. Longview, Phoenix, AZ 85014, or e-mail www.goldenwestpublishers.com.

Grandma's Sorghum
Molasses Raisin Bread

2 cups hot scalded milk
2 Tbsp. melted shortening
1/4 cup molasses
1 pkg. active dry yeast
3/4 cup raisins
1 tsp. cinnamon
1-1/2 tsp. salt
6 cups flour

In a large mixing bowl, combine milk, shortening and molasses; allow to cool until lukewarm. Add yeast and let stand 5 minutes. Stir in raisins, cinnamon and salt. Add flour, a small amount at a time, mixing well after each addition until a stiff dough forms. Knead on a lightly floured board until smooth and elastic. Cover with a warm, damp cloth and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk. Punch down; let rise again until doubled in bulk. Form dough into three loaves and place in well-greased loaf pans. Cover and let rise again until doubled in bulk. Bake at 400 degrees for 45 minutes or until golden brown.
