Sewer problems could cost city $25K a day

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

Given the agenda, one could hardly imagine that item regarding the utility commission could have been so emotionally charged at the Wheelwright City Commission meeting Wednesday morning. It took only a matter of seconds after Wheelwright Mayor Marlee Sammons called the meeting to order before recently-removed utilities commission member Burnette Little was brought to the board's attention. Council member Bruce

Johnson began the meeting by explaining that it had been brought to the commission's attention by the Wheelwright Ethics Board, consisting primarily of James Butler and Hubert Farmer, that Burnette Little was

Wayland meeting questioned, called off

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

Tuesday night, the Wayland City Commission held a special meeting that was, by nature, illegal to begin with, according to Wayland Mayor Tom Murphy.

The meeting was called to address several items, including the legal status of Commissioner Curt Tufts. The bulk of the meeting's agenda, however, was to provide the new commissioners, namely Carl Ray Martin, who some members of the commission say resides outside city limits, Betty Mulkey and Mike Gibson, with information that would better familiarize them with their new jobs.

Mayor Murphy, in an interview prior to the meeting, said, "Right now it looks like it's not going to be a legal meeting because Curt didn't get his notice. We can still meet but nothing can be voted on and no motions can be made. We can just go over what's on

More changes than the acquisition of a new football field are underfoot at Prestonsburg High School. With the announcement of the resignation of principal Coy Sammons, the search for a replacement will soon begin.

In an interview yesterday afternoon, Sammons confirmed that he will be leaving Prestonsburg High in mid-February due to his acceptance of the position of director with the "GEAR UP Project," a federally funded regional analysis and public policy branch program that will work in conjunction with a partnership between Morehead State University, Prestonsburg Community College and Pikeville College.

According to Sammons, "GEAR UP" will work to gain early awareness preparedness for undergraduate students by focusing on their needs beginning as early as the seventh and eighth grades.

The program will focus its attention on approximately 7,000 students over an initial five-year period.

Students in Floyd, Pike, Johnson and Martin counties will be targeted, with Floyd County serving as the program's center point with its headquarters being housed in the old Allen Elementary School building.

"GEAR UP" will provide students with tutoring in regular school sessions, as well as after-school sessions. Also, Saturday and summer school programs will be available.

In addition, some students will be offered "mentoring" services, pairing

Times announces staff changes

Times Staff Report

One newsroom staff member has left, one is being promoted and two more will be hired at The Floyd County Times.

Kathy J. Prater, who was hired as a reporter for The Times in September, has been promoted to the position of features editor.

As features editor, Prater will be responsible for many of the same duties as former Senior Editor Pam Shingler, who resigned Wednesday to take a position with the Eastern Kentucky Center for Science, Mathematics and Technology.

Prater will oversee The Times' Lifestyles and Leisure sections and will be responsible for human interest and feature stories, as well as school and business news.

Although she has enjoyed her duties as a reporter, Prater said she is looking forward to her new position.

"Actually, I'm quite thrilled, now," Prater said. "At first, I approached the change with some trepidation, mainly because I have enjoyed reporting so much. It's been a really good experience for me, seeing the inner workings of the courthouse firsthand and reporting on new developments in our community. Although I'm sure there will be aspects of reporting that I will miss, I am nonetheless excited about what is to come with this new position."

Prater lives in Prestonsburg and has three children, Emily, 13, Elliott, 12, and Elizabeth, 10.

In the wake of Prater's promotion, Sheldon Compton has joined The Times as a reporter.

Compton's name may be familiar to regular readers of the paper. Back in 1993, when he was 16 years old, Compton performed freelance work for The Times' sports department. He also began writing a general interest column under the heading "Think About It" for the paper that year, continuing until 1995.

In addition to his previous work at The Times, his writings have appeared in the Floyd County school system's defunct literary magazine, Mountain Magic, and in Forward in the Fifth Magazine. One of his short stories will also be published in an upcoming issue of Wind Magazine.

Compton said he is excited about his new position at The Times.

"I want to do a good job and serve the community ..." Compton said. "It's exciting. It's a different kind of job than what I've had before."

Compton is a 1994 graduate of South Floyd High School and completed requirements for an English degree at Pikeville College in December. He will participate in graduation exercises at Pikeville College in May.

Compton lives at Hi Hat and has one son, Tyler, 2. He is the son of Gary and Loretta Tackett of Hi Hat and Orville Compton of Virgie.

Another reporter will join Compton in the newsroom in coming weeks, the agenda." It was not clear as to where Tufts was or why he did not receive notice. Murphy went on to mention the ongoing problems Wayland City Policeman Aaron Kidd had been experiencing with Commissioner Mike Gibson.

"They're wanting to look at ordinances as far as if Aaron has to come to meetings," Murphy said. "I don't know if they want him there or they don't want him there, but even if he can't be there as a policeman then he can be there as a citizen." Kidd, who has arrested

Gibson and has filed a charge against him for terroristic threatening, which was later dismissed, showed concern for the volatile atmosphere surrounding the meeting. "I'm concerned something is going to be attempted that will result in my losing my job."

Kidd said. "This town backs me and they know that I've done a good job for them. I have a plaque down at the town hall the Dalton family here in Wayland gave to me in recognition of dedicated service. I just hope that nothing changes so I can continue to help the people of this community."

"If this is not a legal meeting, then why are we here?" Gibson asked. "If it's illegal, we should stop right now." Murphy attempted to persuade Gibson and Martin to continue with the other items on the agenda to "get them taken care of," but Gibson contended that if the meeting wasn't legal it should be rescheduled until a more suitable time.

The meeting came to an early close with very little being addressed and, to add to the confusion, an agreement could not be made about when another meeting could be scheduled. There was no mention of Officer Kidd, but after the meeting adjourned, Kidd took the opportunity to thank the Dalton family for the plaque of recognition that had been given him.

Murphy began the meeting by stating plainly that questions involving Tufts would not be discussed. Martin asked to see "in writing" where it stated that this item could not be discussed. Murphy failed to find the statement and then finally informed Martin that the meeting was, in fact, illegal due to Tufts' absence. Gibson responded by saying that if the meeting wasn't legal then the board should wait until a time when it was legal.

them with individuals who will be prepared to offer friendship and guidance to the students, preferably in a field in which the student has shown an interest. These individuals will come from area businesses, churches, high schools and colleges. According to Sammons, the Big Sandy area now sees under 40 percent of its students continuing their educations in college. "We plan to make at least a 20-percent improvement over that percentage," said Sammons. "We plan to do that by providing assistance to teens, and preteens as well, that are targeted as 'at risk.' One of our main goals is to try to improve parental involvement throughout the Floyd County area, by providing as much information as possible to families. Many families don't realize the amount of aid that is available to students. A college education can be a reality for any student regardless of family background and resources," he went on to say.

In response to how he feels about leaving his post at Prestonsburg High, Sammons said, "It was a tough decision. I feel that we have made a lot of progress here and that the progress will continue. I have had good experiences here at Prestonsburg and have been treated exceptionally well by the community, parents and staff; and though I am a little apprehensive about how it will feel to leave, I am excited about this new opportunity."

"I suppose the timing is really not the best it could have been, but I've learned that you have to take advantage of opportunities when they arise," said Sammons.

Sammons is a native Floyd Countian who earned his high school diploma at Betsy Layne High School and then went on to earn his Bachelor's Degree in social studies, secondary from Alice Lloyd College.

He then received a Master's Degree in education from Morehead State University and later earned his Rank I in Secondary Principalship from Union College in Barboursville.

According to Dr. Paul Fanning, superintendent of Floyd County Schools, the process of hiring a new principal for Prestonsburg High School began last night when he met with the school's site-based decision-making council.

"The hiring of a new principal is a very structured process," said Fanning. "The site-based council must first attend a formal training session before they can enter into the process. Then, I will submit the applications of qualified candidates to the council, and they will then go through the interviewing and selection process until they present their choice of candidates to me. It is a very structured and formal proceeding that takes great care."

The selection of an interim principal was not complete at the time of Fanning's comments.

Prater man accused of holding pair at gunpoint

Times Staff Report

Two Floyd County residents were allegedly threatened at gunpoint in a recent incident that will be heard by District Judge James R. Allen later this month.

Steven Hunter and Teresa Jones both filed charges on January 23, the day following the alleged incident, against Eric Kevin Akers, 29, of Prater.

Charged with wanton endangerment against both parties, Akers was said to have allegedly pointed a gun at both Hunter and Jones, saying that he would "blow off their heads."

Akers is not to have any contact with Hunter and Jones or any of their family members in the time remaining before the set court date.

Akers is to appear in Floyd District Court on February 21 to face the charges.

Store your canceled checks in an album, not a shoebox.

What do you do with your monthly checking account statements after you sort the checks and balance your check register? Most people have years of tattered monthly checking account statements stuffed into bulging shoeboxes stored in a dark closet, the attic or basement. Why? Because somebody told them they have to keep old checks - virtually forever, just in case the IRS or state audits your tax return.

Now, there's a better way to view all of your canceled checks at a glance, balance your checkbook and reduce the amount of space required to store checks. You can store years of monthly statements on a bookshelf, so if you ever need to find an old check, it's easy.

Through advanced banking technology, available exclusively at Citizens National Bank, you get ImageCheck™. All of the checks and deposit slips you write each month are digitally reduced like photos, so 12 images are displayed in check register numerical order on a standard 8 1/2" x 11" page. Each page is laser printed to deliver crisp easy to read images that are

- SEE 12 CANCELED CHECKS AT A GLANCE
- BALANCE YOUR CHECKBOOK FASTER AND EASIER
- USE LESS STORAGE SPACE

approved by the IRS, banking regulators and courts as acceptable and legitimate proof of payment. Each page is 3-hole punched so it can be placed in your ImageCheck™ Statement Organizer.

If you are ready to shed dusty shoeboxes full of old canceled checks and deposit slips, come to CNB. Now through February 2001, get a FREE three-ring ImageCheck™ Statement Organizer in which to store your monthly ImageCheck™ photos. Checking couldn't be any more convenient or easier. Just another reason CNB should be the bank for your life!

The checking statement with the quality guarantee.

To ensure that Citizens National Bank offers the best individual and business checking services in The Big Sandy region, you get a guarantee of quality with ImageCheck™. If you find a mistake on your ImageCheck™ monthly statement, CNB will pay you $10 once the error is verified. That's a statement of quality assurance that you won't find at other banks.

Science center reduces rates of geology programs

Students in Floyd County can gain some valuable hands-on learning experience and their teachers can add up the savings during a special rate reduction for selected programs at the East Kentucky Center for Science, Mathematics & Technology (EKCSMT).

EKCSMT is offering a special rate of $15 per classroom presentation, instead of the regular $25 per presentation for its geology programs. The special is in effect until February 28 and is available to primary and middle school teachers.

The programs include a collection of rocks, minerals and fossils that the students use during the activities. "East Kentucky is a geological wonderland. All of us who live here know about the coal, but the geology of Appalachia is fascinating. There is a lot to learn in our own back yard," says Cathy Neeley, EKCSMT's Outreach Program coordinator and a licensed geologist. Neeley is the program presenter.

The programs are aligned with the Core Content for Science and include The Identification of Rocks, the Identification of Minerals, Kentucky Geology and Soils & Weathering.

Teachers can schedule one of these programs for this time period by contacting the center at 606/889-0303; toll free at 877-889-0303; or email Neeley at neeley@se-tel.com.

Specials will be held throughout the year and teachers can be notified in advance through EKCSMT's free News & Notes email program.

The East Kentucky Center for Science, Mathematics & Technology is a non-profit organization devoted to bringing science, mathematics and technology experiences to students in eastern Kentucky. The center is based in Prestonsburg.

Council

brother to Ruby Johnson, another council member. Little was subsequently removed from the Utility Commission under a city ordinance passed in 2000 which states that "any member or members of the Utility Commission may be removed at any time, at the sole discretion of the members of the City Commission by a majority vote of the City Commission."

Council member Tim Sparks reviewed the ordinance during the meeting and stated, "I reviewed the ordinance setting up the Utility Commission and there's nothing in there that addresses this. There might be a conflict that people perceive, but legally there's no conflict. There's nothing in the ordinance creating the Utility Commission that says a relative can't be on the City Commission."

Council member Andy Akers maintained that his vote to remove Little was simply to "cure all arguments and problems." These comments did not seem to satisfy Little and council member Ruby Johnson, however, and so, along with strong support from council member Booty Hall, the decision to remove Little remained intact and Elaine Meyers was appointed to the Utility Commission.

Also discussed during Wednesday's meeting was the lack of an operator for Wheelwright's sewer plant. Former operator Kevin Potter resigned January 25 and the plant has been without a certified operator since that time.

Denver Lee Pigman of the state Division of Water spoke to the board and citizens of Wheelwright, stressing the importance of the actions taken so far on behalf of the Environmental Protection Agency and the possible actions to be taken in the near future.

"You have the same kind of problem that Martin had in that you don't have an operator," Pigman said. "You have to have a certified operator to keep the plant in compliance. A plant such as this can go out of compliance in two or three days without an operator. The plant is in violation now and if it doesn't get turned around I would have to issue another notice of violation."

If the plant in Wheelwright isn't brought to compliance, one of two things could happen. First, the issue could be taken to Hazard to be looked at and discussed. Second, the issue could go to Frankfort, in which case, Pigman explained, there could be further problems.

The maximum civil penalty for violating Kentucky Administrative regulations is $25,000 per day, per violation.

Add this to the already high cost of hiring a certified operator, considering these operators are in such high demand of late, and the financial burden could indeed become quite heavy for the city of Wheelwright.

Take a few minutes to save lives

A few minutes of your time may mean a lifetime to someone in need. Share your good health and donate blood. Central Kentucky Blood Center and Betsy Layne Elementary have scheduled a blood drive on Wednesday, February 7, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., in the auditorium.

In about an hour, you could donate blood to save the lives of local patients such as those who need transfusions in Central and Eastern Kentucky Hospitals. The actual blood donation process takes about 10 minutes, then you'll relax for a few minutes and enjoy refreshments, knowing you've given of yourself so someone else can live.

Make plans to give blood on Wednesday, February 7. For more information contact Dawn Wheeler at 432-4979.

Local agency receives funds

The Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, based in Prestonsburg, has been awarded a grant of $126,117 from the Kentucky IOLTA (Interest on Lawyers' Trust Accounts).

The allocation represents the largest share of IOLTA's current awards, totaling $625,125.

The local agency is one of six legal services organizations to be funded. The others are Central Kentucky Legal Services ($28,026), Cumberland Trace Legal Services ($24,523), Legal Aid Society of Louisville ($70,065), Northern Kentucky Legal Aid Society ($49,045) and Western Kentucky Legal Services ($52,549).

Other awards were made to agencies that work with victims of domestic violence, children, persons with disabilities, and families of the working poor.

IOLTA is a non-profit partnership of Kentucky attorneys and banks that awards grants annually to organizations across the state providing legal services to low-income persons, law-related education or improvement of access to justice.

IOLTA grant funds are generated from interest earned on eligible attorney escrow accounts at 129 participating banks in Kentucky. The fund has made more than $4.8 million in grants since 1988.

Correction

In a story concerning the arrest of Tony Tackett on a third-degree charge which ran in the January 21 edition of The Floyd County Times, it was incorrectly reported that the barn Tackett allegedly set on fire belonged to Edgar Tackett. The story should have said that the barn belonged to Dock Newsome.

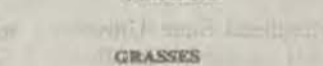

In addition, several people named as witnesses to the incident have stepped forward to dispute police claims that they made statements to the police. They include Tackett's cousin, Edgar Tackett, sister, Irene Rose, and nephew, Tom Tackett.

Worth Repeating ...

"We are all here for a spell, get all the good laughs you can."

Amendment 1

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people to peaceably assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Our View

Mix religion and politics carefully

The past few weeks have seen a renewal in the argument over precisely how religion and politics should intermingle. Unfortunately, there still seems to be as much inconsistency in the debate now as there has ever been.

Two actions by President George W. Bush have clouded the picture further. On Monday, Bush created a White House Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives, which, in part, is charged with the responsibility of helping religious charities compete for federal funding.

Some decried the move as an effort to sanction religion, but Bush has said that federal money would not be used for proselytizing. Instead, the president says that funding would be used by local organizations to provide secular help to the needy.

We find nothing wrong with Bush's reasoning and would welcome the development if not for one troubling fact — the president took the exact opposite viewpoint in terms of abortion just the week before.

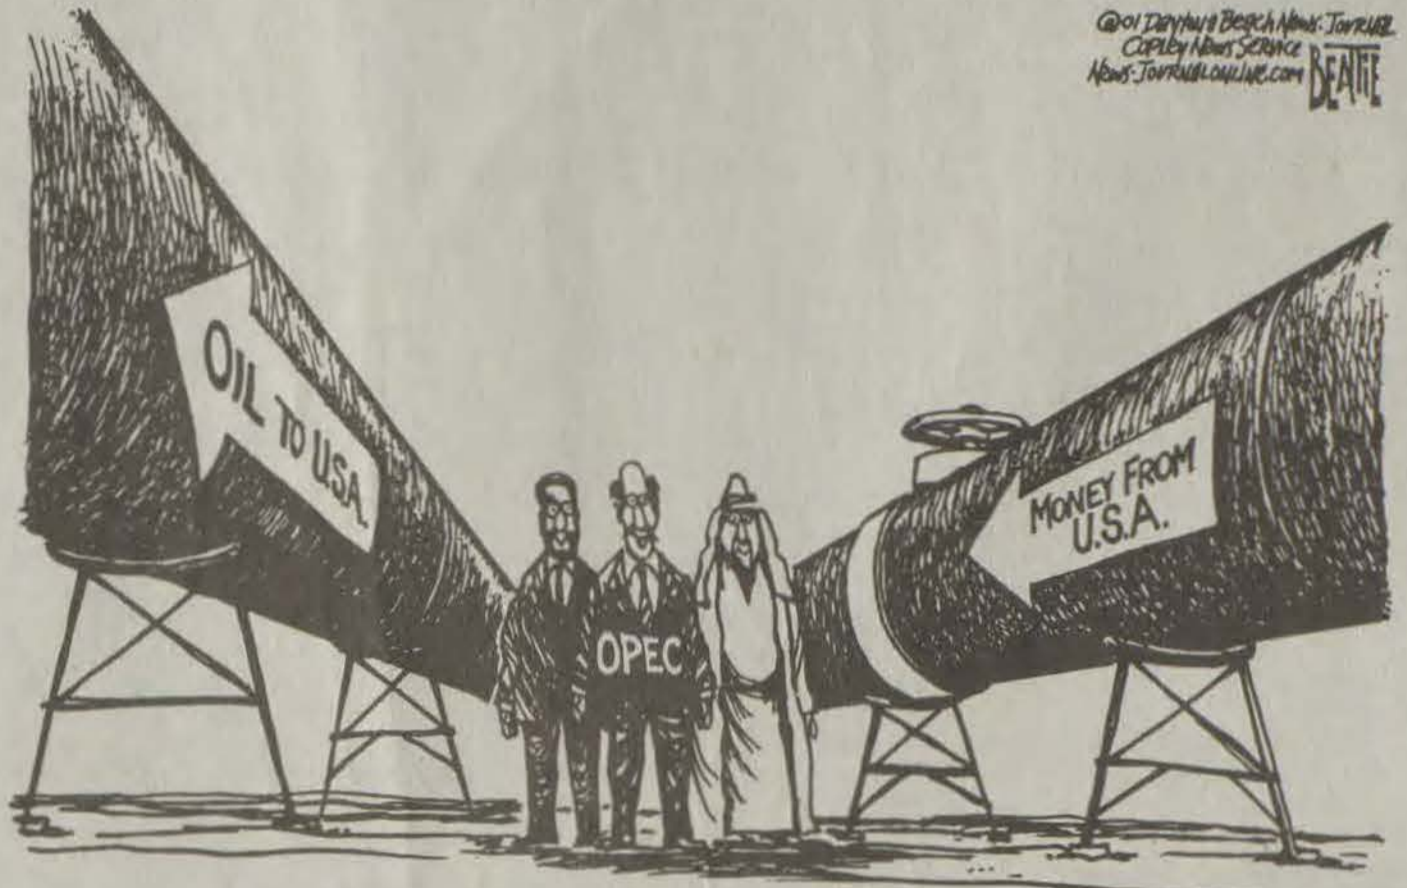

Bush signed an executive order his first week in office denying federal funding to overseas family planning groups who also advocate abortion. Never mind that federal money was never used to promote or provide abortions. If an agency counsels women that abortion is an option, through funding from other sources, then that agency is prohibited from receiving money for activities unrelated to abortion.

The president can't have it both ways. The simplest and fairest thing to do is to provide funding to both groups or to neither. To show favor to one or the other is illogical and is evidence of bias. That would be true if the roles between religious groups and family planning groups were reversed, as has been the case in the past.

If providing funding to abortion advocates for family planning activities unrelated to abortion somehow endorses abortion, then providing funding to religious groups for non-religious activities endorses religion. If providing money to religious groups for non-religious activities does not support religion, then providing money to abortion advocates for activities unrelated to abortion does not support abortion.

Of course, neither liberals nor conservatives would be happy with an attempt to provide funding for both or none. Bush's actions over the past two weeks are an effort to please conservatives. Taking the opposite approach would please liberals. But fairness is not about pleasing one group over another. Sometimes it's necessary to make everyone mad to do the right thing.

Through My Eyes

Change mania

"Ch-Ch-Changes," is the refrain that has played through my mind for the last week. Many are afoot here at the newspaper's office. Pam Shingler, our senior editor, will have left us by the time this column goes into print.

In addition, we have picked up two new reporters. Sheldon Compton will be replacing my presence at the courthouse and, as of this writing, I have yet to meet our part-timer, but I believe she is a local college student.

As for me? I will be moving into the "Lifestyles" section.

Now the big question is — will I move into this transition in a manner truly befitting a "lady" of southern origin or will the scene around here more likely resemble one of the more lively acts from Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew"?

I suppose that remains to be seen.

All kidding aside, I do leave my role as a "lowly reporter" with some hesitancy. It is, at times, a tough role to play — I've mentioned in the past how hectic and harried it can be. But, nonetheless, I found myself feeling, very often, like "Mikey". You know, "I liked it, I really liked it."

So, a change is occurring in my life — I've handled many, I'll handle one more.

I just hope that I can do the position justice and manage to not lose too awful many of Pam's loyal readers, for I know that she has many.

KATHY PRATER

Hey! How about all that Super Bowl mania? A concert from Tampa on Saturday night, along with a special devoted solely to Super Bowl commercials, and five, count 'em, five hours of pre-game shows.

This yearly event is beginning to make New Year's Eve look like a sleepers...

And, in keeping with the subject of the Super Bowl, I have to put in my two cents worth concerning the Levi's advertisement for their 569 jeans that was intended to be a takeoff on organ donations.

For those of you who may have missed it, the commercial opened with a scene in which the viewer looked in upon a young, rather sickly looking fellow lying in his bed feeling, apparently, despondent and forlorn.

In walks a man (his father, as I took it) carrying a box labeled "organ donation." The man ceremoniously presents the young man with this "gift of life."

As it turns out, the box contains a pair of "replacement" 569 jeans, which of course, is all the fellow needed to be healed and rejuvenated.

Smacks a little of poor taste, don't you agree?

I'm thinking that the many families awaiting organ donations for their loved ones probably failed to see the humor there.

So did I.

Too bad, for I have long been a fan of Levi's jeans, and will still continue to be regardless of the advertisement — just as long as they don't continue to run it.

I'm wondering just who it was that put that ad together for them, anyway, I'm making a guess that it must have been Alfred E. Neuman or one of the other "MAD" magazine "executives."

Well, guess that's it for this week, look for me next week somewhere in section C.

Letters

What's happened to the human race?

I know my writing this letter will do very little good or have little impact on the way things are, but I shall proceed anyway ...

I got to thinking on Martin Luther King Day about mankind and the world we live in. I thought about what Dr. King stood for and about his wish for conflicts to be settled peacefully. I thought about what has transpired since his death in 1968. I came to the conclusion that we as a people and as a country are no further along than we were back then.

Sure, we have made strides in race relations. Nearly everyone in America has the opportunity to get a good education and to prosper if they want to and are willing to work at it. But how we treat each other as human beings is truly sad. The world seems more full of hate and more populated by wicked people than ever before.

What is more shocking is the hatred and violence we see most often outside our nation's borders is due to religious differences. People hating and killing each other in the name of their gods.

They've been at it in the Middle East for years and it's no better than it was before the 1967 war. The Balkans were under Hitler's rule, then Russia's and as soon as they got their freedom, instead of celebrating they took to killing each other. The terrorism goes on in Northern Ireland and even a little island like Timor is not immune.

The United States, the United Nations and others have tried to bring peace to the world at the cost of billions plus many lives. The coat-and-tie diplomacy at a fancy table hasn't worked and doesn't work. It's time to get back to basics, not only abroad, but here in America.

It makes no difference whether you are white, black, yellow, red or any other color. Whether you are Christian, Muslim, Hindu, Jewish or Buddhist is immaterial. Don't we all want the same things? When you look at people from the ground up, you realize that we all want a decent home, food on our tables, a chance for our children to be educated, medical care and the chance to live without fear. All these groups and all these people who are at each other's throats want the same thing. Someone needs to get a stick and whack some of the hotheads up the side of the head and get them to wake up!

Who cares if your neighbor is of another race, another religion, another creed or another sexual orientation. You don't have to agree with anything they say or do, but don't they have the right to say and do it as long as they don't infringe on your rights?

We need to practice what we preach here in America. We need to follow the Constitution and Bill of Rights. Freedom is being able to speak, act and think for yourself without the fear of hatred and reprisal. If that person is not in your face or infringing on your rights, then live and let live.

We have become a very nosy and dissatisfied society. We are always looking over the fence to see what someone else is doing or coveting what they have. Some people worry so much about everyone else they have no time to take care of or improve their own lives. In this stressful, dog-eat-dog world we live in, people have forgotten what it is to be a neighbor, a friend, a parent or to care for anyone other than themselves.

I was at the blood bank the other day giving blood like I do every eight weeks and was told how short they are on blood. They had a big blood drive at a major business that employs hundreds and had 17 show up to give. This just illustrates in a simple way that

Community early childhood councils now forming

Governor Patton's KIDS NOW early childhood initiative, which was passed in the 2000 General Assembly, encourages communities to establish community early childhood councils. The purpose of the inclusive councils will be to work collaboratively with the many local public and private entities, to assure that every child in the community is healthy and safe, possess the foundation for school and personal success, and lives in a strong family that is supported and strengthened within the community.

The community early childhood councils can be established on a county level or multiple counties can join forces. In the legislation, the responsibility to establish these councils was given to the family resource youth services centers and the Child Care Resource and Referral Agencies. Governor Patton said, "While many of the pieces of the KIDS NOW initiative are being delivered on a state wide level, we recognize that local communities have unique early childhood needs. These community early childhood councils will enable communities to address those needs and make the most efficient use of local, state, and private dollars."

The Governor's Office of Early Childhood Development in cooperation with the Family Resource Youth Services Division and the Child Care Resource and Referral Agencies, will be sponsoring a videoconference about the Community Early Childhood Councils on February 5, from 10 to 11 a.m. Dr. Kim Townley, executive director of the Governor's Office of Early Childhood Development said, "The establishment of the Community Early Childhood Councils are a critical component piece to the success of the KIDS NOW initiative. The video conference will provide specific information to counties as they begin to establish their individual councils."

The video conference sites are: Paducah, Madisonville, Middlesboro, Bowling Green, Ashland, Owensboro, Alexandria, Monticello, Stanford, Irvine, Lexington, Louisville, Morehead, Hazard and Prestonsburg. If you are interested in attending, call your local Family Resource Youth Services Center or your local Child Care Resource and Referral Agency to register. Additional information can be received from Darlene Goodrich or Kurt Walker in the Governor's Office of Early Childhood Development 502-564-8099.

Natural gas hearings

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has issued an order on its findings from the public hearings on rising natural gas prices that were held around the state last fall.

The order issued in Administrative Case No. 384 requires the five major gas utilities doing business in Kentucky to immediately begin making monthly gas cost adjustment (GCA) filings. Monthly adjustments would allow utilities to pass anticipated decreases in wholesale natural gas prices on to their retail customers more quickly.

The order also requires Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Delta Natural Gas Company, Louisville Gas and Electric Company, The Union Light, Heat and Power Company and Western Kentucky Gas Company to submit reports to the commission 60 days from today outlining possible strategies for mitigating higher natural gas prices.

Wholesale natural gas prices are not regulated by the PSC, but are set by a competitive market. The recent national spike in price has been the result of market forces of supply and demand. Natural gas utilities recover the cost of the natural gas, but do not make any profit from the sale of the commodity. Instead, natural gas utilities make a profit on the delivery of the gas to the customer's home.

"In its investigation, the commission found the utilities have been reasonable in their gas purchasing," Chairman Martin J. Huelsmann said, "but the PSC wants to ensure that as the price of natural gas goes down, consumers see the timely reflection of that decrease in their monthly bill."

The PSC found that there is no expectation of a natural gas supply shortfall this winter. Although the commission found no short-term solution to address the gas cost increase, it believes that recent increases in national drilling may bring some decrease this year.

The recent spike in wholesale natural gas prices, coupled with this winter's unusually low temperatures, has drawn much public attention because of the impact on customer bills. The PSC began efforts in July 2000, to alert customers to the rising prices, and encouraged customers to prepare for the higher bills.

The order is available on the PSC web site at <http://www.psc.state.ky.us/>

Committee hears governor's garbage collection plan

Governor Paul Patton's proposal to require statewide mandatory garbage collection and penalize those who refuse to pay for garbage service received mixed reviews from a legislative committee yesterday.

The governor's proposal — one of three major solid waste proposals before the 2001 session of the Kentucky General Assembly — would require most every Kentuckian to pay for garbage collection by 2003. The proposal would let counties levy an increased property tax penalty on residents who consistently fail to pay their garbage bills. It would also allow the state to penalize counties that do not meet mandatory collection standards by withholding state funds.

Members of the state's Interim Joint Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources questioned whether the proposal would require property owners to pay the tax penalty for tenants whose garbage bills are in arrears. The proposal would allow counties to place those charges plus a 20-percent penalty on the property tax bills of residents who fail to pay six or more months of garbage bills. The current penalty allowed under state law is 10 cents per $100 of assessed property, according to the governor's Deputy Secretary Jack Conway.

The 20-percent tax penalty, fees and franchise options would make mandatory collection possible with no new state spending, say state Executive Branch officials.

Some committee members said the proposal should emphasize anti-litter education more, while others perceived the proposal as an unfunded mandate.

"The thing that has made me the most furious is having to vote on something because the federal government has said 'if you don't do this, then we're going to cut your funds,'" said House Natural Resources and Environment Chairman Rep. Jim Gooch, D-Providence. "It would be very difficult for me to pass that on to the customers."

A broader solid waste plan to eliminate roadside litter, increase recycling, regulate junkyard waste and create an anti-litter campaign in the schools will likely be presented by the governor during the 2002 legislative session, said Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Secretary James Bickford. The annual cost of the governor's entire plan is estimated at $30 million.

About 20 percent of Kentuckians do not pay for garbage collection, according to the Governor's Office. These residents are considered what Conway called "bad actors" of the law who may or may not contribute to the state's 3,400 illegal dumps.

Bickford said the increased tax penalty and other options in the proposal will pay for collection costs.

"It's like electricity, it's like water, it's like gas. If you generate trash, you're going to have to pay to have it taken away," he said.

Local school board member recognized for advances in professional development

Last year, 81 percent of Kentucky's school board members met or exceeded the hours of training required by state law. However, only one in 10 reached higher levels of professional development established by the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA), and a member of the Floyd County Board of Education has achieved that distinction.

Johnnie E. Ross of Prestonsburg, has achieved Level One certification in KSBA's Academy of Studies for completing 30 hours of approved training.

KSBA President Wilson Stone of the Allen County Board of Education said Ross' efforts go beyond what is required by law.

"School board members in Kentucky, depending on their years of service, are required to annually participate in between four and 12 hours of approved training," Stone said. "That means each level of the Academy of Studies represents a major commitment of time and work."

"Offerings through the Academy of Studies and related approved professional development classes are essential for a school board member trying to stay abreast of the changes in school laws and regulations," he said, "not to mention the innovations being achieved in other districts and other states that are available through many of those resources."

Training opportunities include approved individual instruction, self-study courses and local workshops, as well as participation in KSBA's state and regional meetings and attendance at national education conferences, such as those sponsored by the National School Boards Association.

KSBA's Academy of Studies workshops cover topics such as student learning and environment, finance, education law, superintendent selection and evaluation, construction, strategic planning, policy development, effective board meetings and community involvement.

Letters

too many people are too self-centered and too busy to perform a simple act of kindness that would help someone else. If it doesn't put money in their wallet or give them recognition, it's now no longer worth the trouble.

Look on our roadways. Everyone is in a big hurry — to get where? They race through school zones, pass on curves and double lines, yell and flash their lights if you are obeying the law, because they are in a hurry. Once again, I say to get where? We all need to slow down and think about the way our parents and grandparents lived, they did not have the money, the education, the toys and conveniences we do now, but somehow most made it and most were happier than we are today. We are spoiled by success and, boy, does it show!

The discussions of diversity have been good in many areas, showing people their history, heritage and contributions to society are uplifting. We cannot let our differences cloud the fact that we are all Americans. Our nation, what is best for it and best for the people as a whole should supersede our individuality. As a conservative, Christian Republican, I have difference with many people, but I do not let my disagreement with others degenerate into hatred or violence.

In America, we all have equal rights, and one would have thought by 2001 that we could learn to get along with each other. Sadly, we have not. We bicker like children over silly, small issues and fail to respect our fellow man.

'A big letter from home'

Renew my subscription to the best newspaper in the whole USA.

We have been readers of the Times for more than 49 years. It's like getting a big letter from home, although we have been gone from Floyd County for more than 25 years. A part of us will always remain, as the best days of our lives were in Floyd County.

We receive three other newspapers, but the Times is our favorite.

After reading the paper,

Delia has clipped out so many articles, and the paper is so full of holes that a fly could not hide behind it.

Delia has clipped and saved enough to make five large scrapbooks, consisting of "Poison Oak" by Clyde Paek, "Small World" by Aileen Hall, "Postscript" by Pam Shingler, "Smile Awhile" by Sara Wheeler Blair, and "Mountain Voices" by Willie Elliott.

I have a treasured book of Norman Allen's clips from way back.

I am in the process of making titles for my scrapbooks. — 1. Clyde's Clippings, 2. Aileen's Wonder World, 3. Sara's Grin and Bare It, and 4. Pam's Ponderings. I have not come up yet with a title for Willie Elliott's articles. I ask that some of the other readers may think of a title for Willie.

By the way, I have missed Willie's column lately. I hope he has not decided that he is no longer a good writer.

Thank you for keeping us informed of what is going on in Floyd County.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHT

SALOME: ONE OF THE BIBLE'S DRAMATIC CHARACTERS, HAS INSPIRED STORIES, PLAYS, BOOKS, OPERAS, AND MORE THAN ONE MOVIE! NUMBERS OF ARTISTS HAVE PAINTED THIS SEDUCTIVE, DESTRUCTIVE YOUNG WOMAN WHOSE DANCE SO ENRAGED KING HEROD THAT HE VOWED "ASK OF ME WHATSOEVER THOU WILT, AND I WILL GIVE IT THEE." THAT RASH PROMISE COST JOHN THE BAPTIST HIS HEAD WHICH SALOME DEMANDED—AND GOT—ON A PLATTER! BUT...

NO ONE KNOWS IF HER NAME WAS SALOME—IN FACT, SHE HAD NO NAME AT ALL! IN THE TWICE-TOLD TALE (MATT 14:6-11; MARK 6:22-28) SHE IS NEVER CALLED ANYTHING EXCEPT "THE GIRL" OR "THE DAUGHTER OF HERODIAS." THE NAME SALOME APPEARS BUT TWICE IN THE BIBLE (MARK 15:40, 16:1) AND DESCRIBES ONE OF THE WOMEN WHO, ALONG WITH MARY MAGDALENE AND MARY MOTHER OF JESUS, MET AT THE CRUCIFIXION—HARDLY THE KIND OF WOMAN WHO WOULD DO A SALACIOUS DANCE BEFORE HER STEP-FATHER!

Community Calendar

Calendar items will be printed as space permits

Editor's note: As a service to the many clubs and committees that meet in our community, The Floyd County Times' Community Calendar will post meeting and public service announcements. Articles for the Community Calendar must be submitted in writing to The Times no later than 5 p.m.

The reptiles are coming

Prestonsburg Community College's Division of Biological Sciences, Natural History Science Center, and Community Biology Club (CBC) will host another live reptile program on Friday, February 9, at 6 p.m., in Pike Auditorium.

It is open to the public, and admission is free, although donations to defray expenses for the event will be accepted.

Jim Harrison, of the Kentucky Reptile Zoo, at Slade, will present the program, which features live snakes (including a 12-foot python, an alligator, and other familiar reptiles. It will last about an hour, with a question-and-answer period afterward.

"Few of us realize just how important reptiles are to the health of the environment," says Dr. John Shiber, professor of human ecology and animal biology at PCC, and coordinator of the event. "Most of them are quite harmless to humans. I suspect that everyone who attends the program will leave with a little better feeling about reptiles and a stronger realization that they must be protected from extinction."

Light refreshments will be served following the program. For information, contact PCC's Division of Biological Sciences, at 606/886-3863.

Parent leadership institute seeks applicants

The Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership seeks 200 parents interested in improving academic achievement for public school students.

The institute, sponsored by the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence, is marking its fifth year of training. To date, 700 parents from across Kentucky have been trained.

"Parents must be reconnected to their schools, if we're going to reach our goals for Kentucky schools and children," said Robert Sexton, Prichard Committee executive director. "The institute reconnects parents to public schools and helps them form lasting and productive partnerships."

The 2001 Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership will be held in seven locations beginning this fall: University Plaza (Bowling Green), Cumberland Inn (Williamsburg), Lake Cumberland State Resort Park (Jamestown), Executive Inn (Paducah), Radisson (Louisville, two sessions), General Butler State Resort Park (Carrollton), and Jenny Wiley State Resort Park (Prestonsburg).

Participants will attend three two-day sessions at the regional institutes. During training, participants gain knowledge and skills, and build on experiences as volunteers. They also commit to design and carry out projects involving other parents that have a lasting impact on student achievement.

Participants are selected through an application process. The cost of their tuition, meals, and lodging is provided. Applicants for the institute should be parents or grandparents of students in Kentucky public schools or other citizens who have been involved with local schools and want to reach out to other parents.

"The ideal candidate is a leader in a local school who is willing to move his or her involvement to the next level," said Bev Raimondo, director of the institute. "He or she is someone who has a deep commitment to increasing academic achievement for all students, not just their own."

Primary support for the Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership comes from The Pew Charitable Trusts, The Edna McConnell Clark

Monday for Wednesday's publication, 5 p.m. Wednesday for Friday's publication, or 5 p.m. Thursday for Sunday's publication. These cannot be taken over the telephone.

Cold Weather, Higher Fuel Prices Cause Electric Bill Charges

Due to the record cold winter and skyrocketing natural gas prices, members of Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative will see additional charges on their bills in the upcoming months.

The exact amount of the charge for each bill will vary, depending upon usage, said David Estep, Manager of Finance and Administration. The average amount of the charge will be $2.07 for every 1,000 kWh used for December usage which will appear on your February bill.

"The main reason for these charges is that the cost of fuel to produce electricity increased substantially and because of the brutal cold winter," said David Estep. "Kentucky experienced its third coldest December on record, which boosted demand for natural gas at a time when supplies were short all across the nation."

In Kentucky, the average temperature across the Commonwealth dipped to 25 degrees in December—about 11 degrees below normal

David Estep stressed that none of the charges make a profit for the co-op. "The fuel adjustment is simply a pass-through of the fuel costs we incur during this high peak time," said David Estep. "If fuel costs less, the customers' bill will reflect a credit."

David Estep said that the cooperative has programs to help members improve the energy efficiency of their homes. Just contact Big Sandy RECC at (606)-789-4095 for more information.

"Big Sandy RECC was formed with the mission of providing its members with reliable electricity at the lowest price," David Estep said. "We will continue our efforts to hold down costs and provide top-notch service."

If anyone should have any questions or comments, contact Big Sandy RECC.

Knausz having great season at F-Neon

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS EDITOR

Hold the phone! Just a minute!
Daniel Knausz, didn't he play at Betsy Layne last year? Yes, he sure did, at least he was on the roster. But now the lefthander is playing for the Fleming-Neon Pirates and having a banner year.

He seems to feast on Floyd County teams as he scored 24 against his former team earlier in the season and scorched the nets for 27 points last week against South Floyd. Daniel buried four three point baskets in the loss to the Raiders.

"He loves it over at Fleming-Neon," said his father, John Knausz. "He is having a good year."

The elder Knausz's job transferred him to the Fleming-Neon area and the family moved to the area causing the transfer. Daniel is a junior this season.

We wish Daniel the best and hope he continues to score a lot of points, but be easy on the teams over here!

REDS NOTES

Reds manager Bob Boone is looking to keep Scott Williamson in the starting rotation when the 2001 season opens in April. Williamson, who was the National League Rookie of the Year two seasons ago, started his career in the Reds bullpen but when the Reds rotation struggled last season Williamson was moved into the starting rotation.

Williams finished the season 3-3 after overcoming some early problems in finding the strike zone.

Williamson, who was almost traded to Oakland during the off season, was at last weeks RedsFest in Cincinnati.

Jarrett looks forward to 2001 NASCAR Season

By GERALD HODGES
THE RACING REPORTER

Dale Jarrett, driver of Robert Yates No. 88 Ford was the 1999 Winston Cup champion. He is also a three-time Daytona 500 winner.

Q: With the start up of a new year, I'm sure you're looking forward to testing?

Dale: Yes, like everyone, I think we were all ready for a break probably the last couple weeks of the year. We've had that break and now we're excited about getting back to work. I think that it's going to be an exciting season for a lot of reasons. We've got a new car in the mix, we've got the new TV package and it seems that the racing is getting better and better and we've got two new racetracks to go to. So, we've got a lot to look forward to with 2001.

Q: Will you be starting where you left off at Talladega last year? Have they given you guys the same rules that you had at Talladega to start with down there?

Dale: My understanding is that the only difference is going to be the roof strip. They're going to become the same on all makes of cars. Ours with the Ford was a little bit higher especially on the ends and all of those are going to be evened up by the wind tunnel test. We knew that going into Talladega, but for some reason it didn't happen and we felt like we were at a disadvantage and I think it showed at Talladega. When the cars went to the wind tunnel after that, it showed exactly that and it seems to be the one thing that equids the cars up pretty much. I think that's the only change from Talladega.

Q: When a driver for Robert Yates Racing goes to Daytona it's almost like the Yankees playing in the Music pumps in 38 to lead Blackcats to 80-72 win

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS WRITER

The Prestonsburg Blackcats traveled to Johnson County Monday night for a hoops war with the Johnson Central Golden Eagles. Prestonsburg scored the first six points of the ball game and after four hard-fought quarters of play, posted an impressive 80-72 15th Region win.

Dustin Music led the way for the Blackcats with a game-high 37 points.

Anyway you look at it, the win over Johnson Central, defending 15th Region Champions, was definitely a big victory for the Blackcats.

"We really needed this win, this is a real good win for us," said Prestonsburg Coach Jackie Day Crisp. "We've been working hard on cutting down on turnovers. I think we had something like 19 tonight and we gave up a lot of points but we still came out on top."

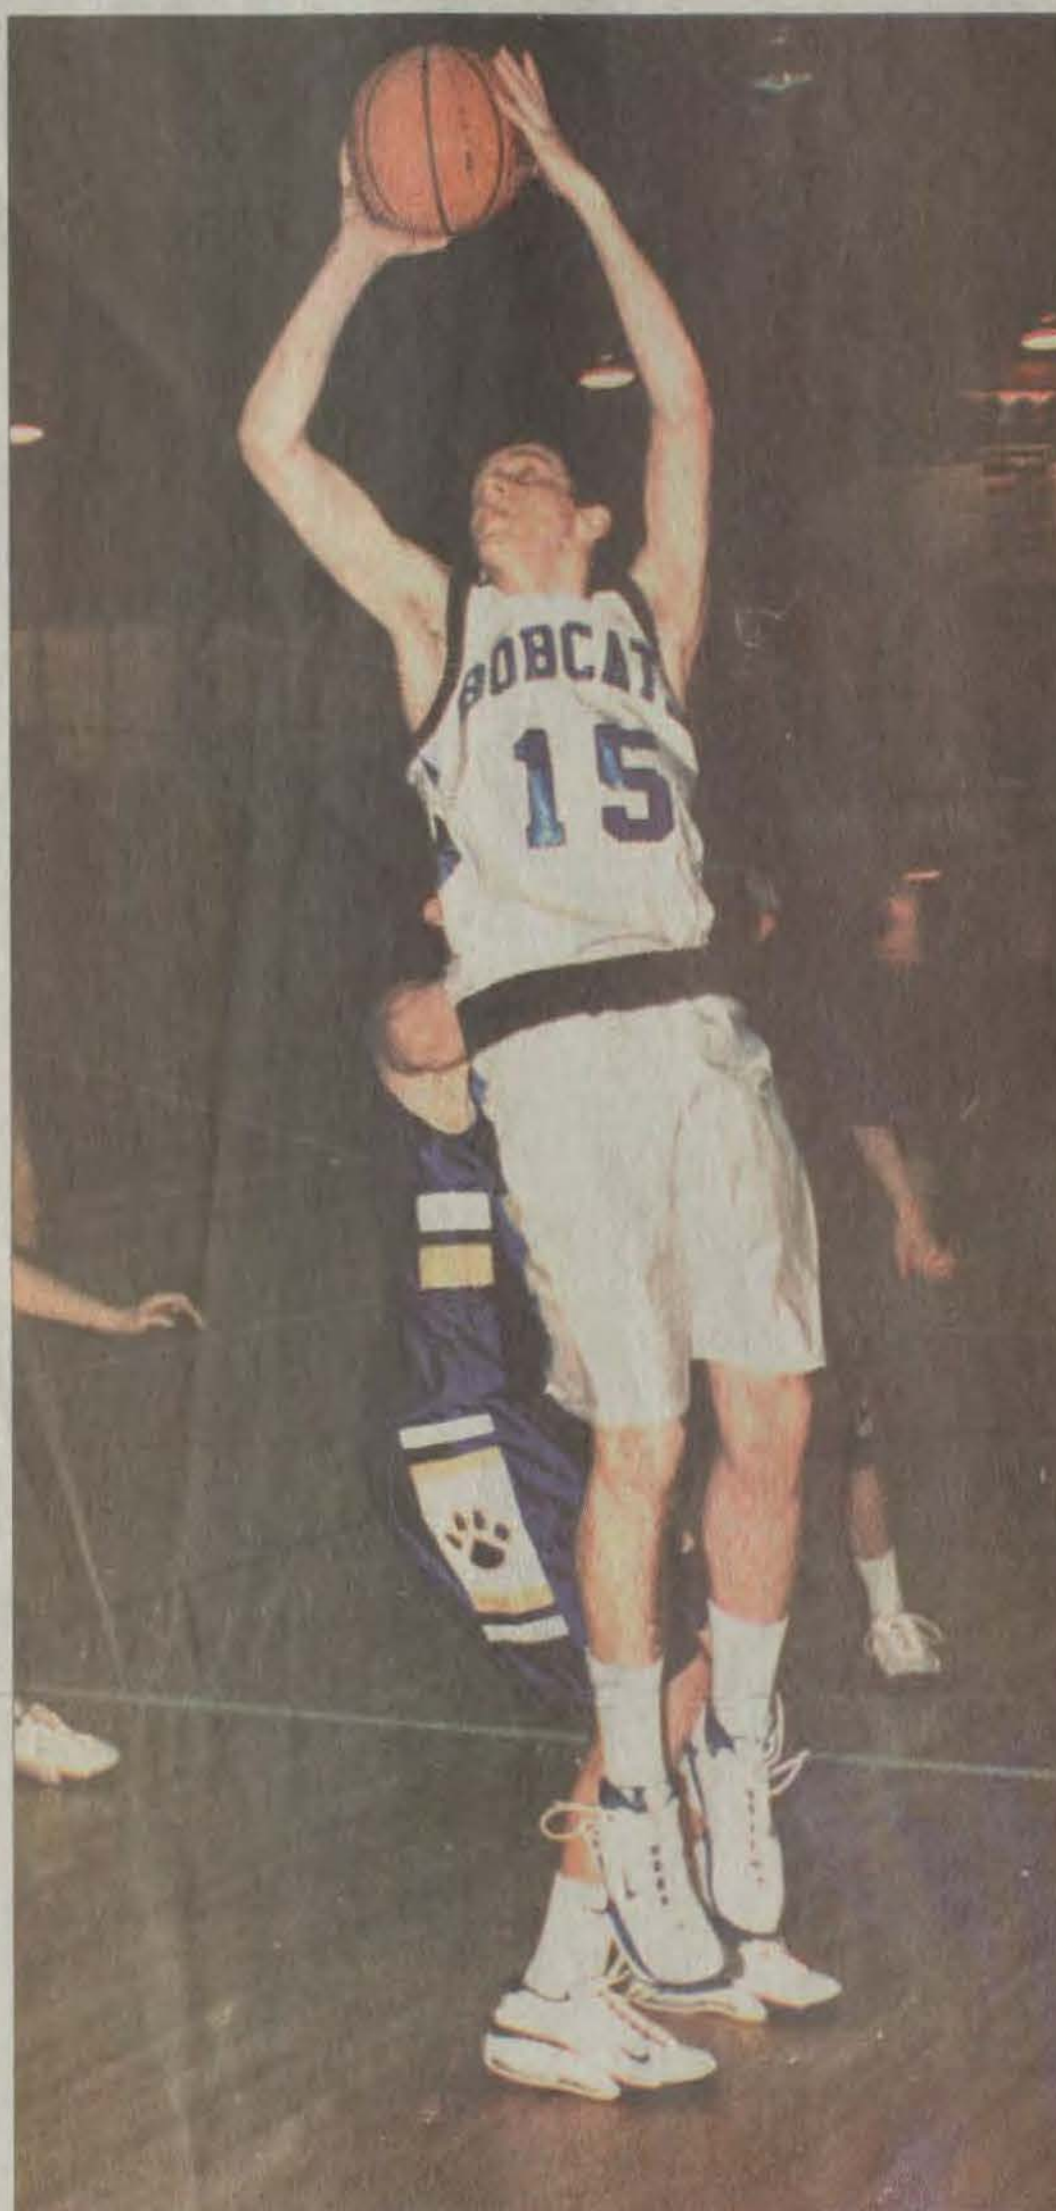

After falling behind 6-0, Johnson Central stormed back and took a 7-6 lead, just over two minutes into the contest. Music connected on consecutive baskets to put the Blackcats back on top 10-7.

Johnson Central junior Brenton Dials connected on a three-point field goal which tied the game at 10-10 with 4:29 of the opening quarter left to play. Prestonsburg went on a late first quarter run and held a 27-21 lead going into the second period.

Johnson Central senior Dock Johnson put the first two second quarter points in on a pair of free throws. Johnson's teammate, freshman Mike Walters, hit the first of his three three-pointers to cut the Blackcat lead down to just one point at 27-26. T.C. Hatfield put the Blackcats back up 29-26 on the following Prestonsburg possession. Ryan Martin pushed the Prestonsburg lead out to a 32-28 advantage with a three-point basket at the 5:12 mark of the second period. The Blackcats led by as many as six points on more than one occasion in the second period, before settling for a 45-41 halftime lead.

The first half saw Prestonsburg's Music dominate on both offensive and defensive.

Betsy Layne's pressure defense too much for EC Cougars

Pressure, pressure and more pressure!

That is what the visiting Elkhorn City Cougars faced when they traveled to Betsy Layne's D.W. Howard Fieldhouse Tuesday night in a regional match up that saw Betsy Layne coach Brent Rose play 14 players with 13 making the scoring column in an 86-57 victory.

In getting ready for the upcoming district tournament, Betsy Layne is looking to retain the up tempo play his team displayed earlier in the season. The win improved the Bobcats to 12-5 on the season.

"We have worked hard on our defense," said Coach Rose, "especially our man-to-man defense. Our press looked good tonight. They are young but with good ball handlers. I thought we did a good job closing out."

Jeremy Daniels led a balance attack with 12 points for the Bobcats. He had three block shots and pulled down seven rebounds. Brian Roberts hit a three-pointer and finished with 11 points while Brad Daugherty netted 10 with a three-point basket. Wes Meade, off the bench, tossed in nine, completing an old-fashioned three-point play. Brock Keathley, the team's leading scorer had eight points playing sparingly in the run away.

Adam Collins had five steals in the game and scored six points. David Johnson, Robbie Johnson, Wes Senters, who had five assists, and Jim Boyd scored six points each. Marcus Allen, Brent Hamilton and Brent Newsome netted two points each.

"The guys we are bringing off the bench are looking good and they are looking to score," said the Betsy Layne coach. "We also got good defensive players from them as well and if we keeping playing like that we will be all right."

From the tip off, Betsy Layne immediately applied the pressure as the team showed intensity of old in the first half. Coach Rose was pleased with his team's effort in putting the Cougars away and not allowing them back in the game.

"In the first half we had great intensity and in the second half it

Moore propels Lady Cards to win with fourth quarter putback at :03

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS WRITER

Sooner or later, odds have it, the basketball is going to bounce the Betsy Layne Ladycats' way. The Ladycats you see, have dropped some very close games this season.

Betsy Layne (13-6) entertained the Sheldon Clark Lady Cardinals Wednesday night at The Dome in Betsy Layne. The game was closer than close. Both squads fought hard and took the contest into halftime knotted up at 31.

Sheldon Clark sophomore Kelli Moore tossed in a putback with just three seconds remaining in the game to give the visiting Lady Cards a 60-58 win, their second close victory over the Ladycats this season.

The game was a very winnable one for the Ladycats. Therefore, Betsy Layne Coach Cassandra Akers doesn't see the Sheldon Clark game as a setback for her team.

"First of all, I am very pleased and very proud of the way our girls played," said

Coach Akers. "Pretty soon the rolls are going to go our way. We've played everybody real close. I told the girls we learn from games like this and pretty soon down the road, it's going to go our way. Losing a game like this will only help to make us better."

Jenny Parsons helped Betsy Layne jump out to a 2-0 lead with a field goal on the second Ladycat possession of the opening quarter. Betsy Layne held a 4-3 lead just under three minutes into the game when Sheldon Clark went on a 13-5 run to close out the first quarter with a 16-9 advantage.

Mandy Harmon put Sheldon Clark up 20-11 with a pair of buckets to open the second period. Betsy Layne went on a 4-0 run and made it a 20-15 game with 6:09 left to play before halftime.

The Ladycats trailed by six points with just under four minutes to go in the first half. They managed to tie the game up at 28 on a Kim Tackett putback at the 2:25 mark of the second frame. The Ladycats fell behind 31-29 but tied the game on a Natasha Stratton putback just before the end of the first half.

Just as before, two nights earlier, Prestonsburg and Sheldon Clark went into the half in a tight, tie game.

Both teams swapped baskets for the first couple of possessions in the third quarter. Betsy Layne had a 37-35 lead when Moore tied the game with a short lay in. It was the play of Moore that made a deciding difference in the outcome of the World Series. Do you feel a little bit of extra excitement and electricity with the Daytona 500 because of how well prepared Robert always is for that race?

Dale: I think definitely. We've always gotten excited ever since I went to Roberts in 1995. You can tell that the Daytona 500 was not only the biggest race from NASCAR's standpoint, but it was the biggest race from Robert Yates Racing standpoint. We realize there are 35 other races in 2001, but we get excited because we know we have an opportunity to go there and win. I can honestly say that since I've been driving at Robert Yates, there hasn't been a year truly that I didn't have a chance to win the race. We had cars good enough each and every time to win and we've either won the race or wrecked trying to do this. I think Ricky (Rudd) has seen that and he feels too that we have our chance to go there and get the season started off in the right way.

Q: When you look at this season, how many guys do you think are legitimately champi- onship contenders, because it seems to me that there's at least six or eight that would be hard to separate out. How many do think are legitimate guys that can go for the championship?

Dale: My number would be a little bit higher and I could probably get ridiculously high, but I honestly think there are nine or ten. I was just reading over some stuff the other day and I think I actually picked out ten guys that I thought could really win the championship. I don't think it would be a stretch for any of those. I looked at another seven or eight if everything came together early for them that they could really be a part of it too. I think the one unknown there is a little bit of the Dodge factor; I think their car is really a good car. Do they have their engine and things worked out? I don't know that, and I'm sure we'll all see. I do think there are ten drivers there that really have that good shot at winning the Winston Cup championship. It should be just an incredible year from that standpoint.

Q: You mentioned the new TV deal. Could you mention maybe a little bit more about FOX's first-time entry into

NASCAR?

Dale: I think it's exciting for us to know that the sport has come to this point and that FOX has taken the initiative to get into this and really in a big way. I've found it pretty cool to be sitting around over the holidays watching football and what you're seeing is them talking about the Daytona 500 coming up. That's something we've never had before. That's exciting for us to know that we're gathering those new fans. There are people there who have never been able to watch us because of the races being on cable or something and they haven't had that chance. So now, they're getting that chance to watch it and really doing it in a big way. We're seeing the sport being put in a different light that ever before. Now, we have to perform and make sure we do our job so the networks can reap the benefits.

Q: Obviously, you guys have to fight a constant battle to make sure that you cars are not at a disadvantage through the wind tunnels and stuff like that. Is there any concern that NASCAR might give Dodge a little leeway this year being their first year and maybe the car is not quite up to snuff and they might get enough help that they come out with an advantage?

Dale: I don't think it'll be something that NASCAR has done intentionally. I think the unknown is that they haven't been on the racetrack with other cars. They simply don't know. They're going into the season not knowing exactly what the Dodge car is going to do and how it's going to perform. I think that they don't want to be too hard on them; they've got to give them a chance coming out. If they end up having a slight advantage at the start, it's nothing intentional; I think it's just the unknown there. NASCAR will be quick to make a change if they need to. They're going to obviously pay their dues. They're not going to know either. They've been on the track with each other some, but they haven't been with other cars in racing conditions, so they really don't know what to expect. It's just simply an unknown and I'm sure if they come out with a bang and can win some races right up front then NASCAR will take a look at that.

Q: You talked about several championship contenders in the year, what do you think about Rusty Wallace next year?

Dale: I think he is certainly somebody I put in my list that could be right there. He had a tremendous season in 2000 and you have to think they're going to work through some of the problems that happened to them early in the year. He won a lot of races, ran up front and led a lot of laps, so I think he is someone we definitely have to watch. They seem to have really turned a corner. I think Jeremy (Mayfield) has helped that and they work very well together. I consider both of them a challenge for the championship.

Q: You and Dale Earnhardt have gone toe-to-toe every year for many 500s in the last decade. He also slipped by you this year in points. The guy is going to turn 50 in April. Can you assess what his chances are?

Dale: I think Dale's chances are very good. A number of years ago, when everyone was discussing should he be looking at retiring and he had slipped a little bit, I think most of us on the racetrack knew that this wasn't the case at all. He was taking equipment and doing things that most other people made races with and he was still running well. I think you have to consider him as a major factor in the Winston Cup championship battle. Knowing that he's going to turn 50 gives me a lot of hope that I've got six or seven more years at this. It's nice to see that, and it's great for our sport. At a time whenever the sport is still continuing to grow but at a level we've never been at before, it's great to have someone like Dale Earnhardt leading the charge, because he really gets the most support out here of all the drivers and all of it is well deserved. He's put in a lot of miles and he's given up pretty much his life to make all of this happen and make it work for all of us.

Q: Could you talk a little bit about your thoughts on the

was pretty good," he said. "Earlier in the season we would have slacked off and let them back in the game and battled around a little bit longer. But we did a good job."

The Cougars took their only lead of the game on the first two baskets for a 4-0 margin. But a rebound basket by Collins and Daugherty's lay up tied the game and the Bobcats forced Elkhorn City into four consecutive turnovers in moving out to a 25-7 first quarter lead. The Cougars turned the ball over eight times in the first period. David Johnson picked up two quick baskets and Senters scored on a lay-in to help to the 18 point cushion.

Daugherty completed a three-point play to open the second stanza and Robbie Johnson hit a three-pointer to set the tone for Betsy Layne as they raced out to a 47-24 half time lead. Roberts hit a trey and scored seven of his points in the period.

David Johnson's buzzer-beater gave the Bobcats their biggest lead of the game, 68-37 at the end of three quarters. Coach Rose substituted freely with the bench seeing a lot of playing time.

With the district tournament just over the horizon, Coach Rose said his team still needs some work.

"We still have a slim chance to get in there on that tie for the top spot," he said. "We are trying to get better defensively and offensively. We have less than a month to work on it but I think we will be all right."

Daniels was more aggressive around the basket area and seemed to have retained the old form he has shown for most of the season. He had not been involved in the offense that much for the Bobcats of late, although he has played excellent defense. "Some of the teams started keying more on Jeremy and also Brad," said Coach Rose. "We moved some people around a little bit to give them a little better shot. Against Pendleton County, Adam and Jeremy had big games."

Johnson Central started the fourth quarter with the basketball. The host Golden Eagles played within one or two points of the Prestonsburg lead for most of the third quarter, before taking a 54-53 on a Kyle Jennings jump shot.

Prestonsburg recaptured the lead on their following possession when Martin drained a three-point field goal to make it a 56-54 contest in Prestonsburg's favor. Prestonsburg held a 60-56 lead as fourth quarter play got started. The Blackcats held a slim 64-63 lead when Brad Bevins made good on a shot, making it a 66-63 lead. The play of Bevins, along with some other Blackcat players coming in off the bench, mixed well for Coach Crisp, much to his liking.

"Brad Bevins went out of the game early after coming in off the bench, and then came back in and played a real good game on both ends," said Crisp. "I thought Matt Slone also came in there and played real well for us. He gave us some real good minutes. T.C. Hatfield also had a good game as did Ryan Martin. It was just a real good team effort from the players who came in off the bench along with our starters."

Both Hatfield and Martin played solid games playing out of starting roles.

Prestonsburg held a 73-66 lead with 1:42 remaining in the final quarter. Despite two three-point field goals from Walters in the final 40 seconds, the Blackcats were able to hold on for the eight-point victory.

Senior Brandon Branham, a Prestonsburg starter, got into some early foul trouble before eventually fouling out in the fourth quarter.

"Brandon (Branham) got into some real early foul trouble," said Coach Crisp. "But I thought he and Dustin (Music) worked real well together."

Martin was the second-leading scorer for Prestonsburg with 14 points. Hatfield added nine while Bevins finished with seven.

Jennings paced Johnson Central with a team-high 22 points, while Justin Woods finished with 15. Walters added ten points and Johnson ended the game with eight.

contest.

"The Moore girl hurt us tonight," noted Coach Akers speaking of the Sheldon Clark sophomore. "Rebounding hurt us some, it was just a real physical game."

The Sheldon Clark lead grew to a five-point advantage twice in the third quarter. The host Ladycats trailed 47-45 in the final few seconds, when junior Devon Reynolds drained a shot just beyond the halfcourt line. Betsy Layne took a 48-47 lead into the final quarter.

The final quarter of play was collectively, the lowest scoring quarter of the game for both teams. The final quarter was also probably the most physical eight minutes of the contest as well.

Betsy Layne trailed 55-50 with 4:05 showing on a fourth quarter scoreclock. The Ladycats battled back to tie the game 56-56 at the 2:21 mark. The contest stood tied at 56, when Sheldon Clark's Harmon committed a foul on Betsy Layne's Parsons. Harmon is injured on the play with a cut to her nose and the game was halted for some twenty minutes. Once play resumed, Parsons hit one-of-two free throw attempts to give Betsy Layne a 57-56 lead. Jennifer Wellman put Sheldon Clark on top 58-57 when she hit on a pair of free throws at the opposite end one possession later.

Sheldon Clark regained possession of the basketball following a Betsy Layne miss. The Lady Cards had the ball out of bounds under their own basket with just 9.7 ticks remaining. The 9.7 ticks offered more than enough time for a score as Sheldon Clark's Moore put in the game-winner.

Reynolds led Betsy Layne with a team-best 18 points. Parsons and Stratton each netted 10 points. Amber Roberts chipped in with seven and Whitney Lykens added six. Tackett tossed in five markers and Tiffany Meade finished with two for Betsy Layne.

Harmon led Sheldon Clark in scoring with a game-high 23 points. Moore had 17 points, while Nikki Copeland netted 12.

The Betsy Layne Ladycats will be back in action tonight as they take on and play host to Coach Cindy Halbert's Allen Central Lady Rebels. The game is part of a boys-girls doubleheader between Betsy Layne and Allen Central.

new expanded schedule and also a little bit about what kind of changes that's going to require for you and your crew this year?

Dale: I think the biggest thing is as Todd and Robert and myself have sat and talked about our guys, what's going to be the biggest thing is making sure that we don't wear our people totally out. When you consider here in just a few weeks when we start with the Bud Shootout, that we only have three weekends that we don't race until November 18 is almost a little bit scary to think about. What we have to do and what we have discussed is those weeks that we do have off, that we're going to try to give our road guys that whole week off, not just a day or two. There are some guys that you have to literally tell them they can't come, because they'll show up anyway. We need for them to be away from there. We're trying to get them instead of a half-day or a day each week to get them at least a day and a half and possibly the first two days of each week to take that time off to spend with their families and just to keep their sanity. As we sat and discussed, I told Todd the same thing, you can't just tell your people to do this, you're going to have to do the same thing. That's important that he does that. We sat down and in those three weeks that we have off, we scheduled no testing whatsoever. I'm going to take the time to spend with my family during this time and we're going to make sure the guys take enough time to enjoy what they're doing. They're being paid well now for what they do, but it's not a lot of fun if they just send that paycheck home and they don't get time to enjoy it.

INSIDE THE PRO FISHING TOUR

Fritts Ends Long Drought

North Carolina pro David Fritts, once the most dominant tournament angler in the country, broke out of a three-year slump Saturday by winning the $500,000 Wal-Mart FLW Tour season-opening event on Florida's Lake Okeechobee.

The former BASS Masters Classic champion, FLW Tour Championship winner and BASS Angler of the Year had not won a tournament since 1997. And he has rarely even been in contention for a win during that time.

Tim Tucker's Tour Notebook

That dry spell became a distant memory on Saturday.

"I needed this. I didn't think I had enough to win," said Fritts, who pocketed $100,000. "You know, it's been since 1997 that I've had this feeling."

To get into the finals, Fritts boated 14 bass weighing 47 pounds, 4 ounces in three days. Under the FLW format, the final round's five finalists disregard their accumulated weight and start at zero. That didn't faze Fritts, though, as he got off to a fast start Saturday en route to fashioning a five-bass limit weighing 17 pounds.

"I tried everything, but had success with an old wooden crankbait that I was throwing," Fritts said. "I had my limit by 8:30 this morning."

Throughout the week, the expert crankbait fisherman managed to cull quality bass despite Lake Okeechobee's record-low water level and the appearance of a cold front.

For most of the week, Fritts used a Storm Wiggle Wart crankbait and the homemade diving bait on relatively light line. He targeted eight spots in the lake's rim canal between Clewiston and Pahokee. "I've been fishing anywhere there's deep water next to shallow water," Fritts said. "The pattern was shallow rocks close to deep water."

With his latest success, Fritts, 44, became the first pro to win four FLW tournaments (his first three victories came in 1997) and qualify for 10 FLW top-10 finals. With another big first-place check, he moves into second place in total FLW career earnings with $481,000 behind Missouri's Rick Clunn ($668,000).

Not bad for a former tire salesman who used to earn $12,000 a year.

Veteran Michigan pro Kevin VanDam finished second with a limit weighing 16-1, earning $35,000. Behind him, fellow Michigander Kim Stricker and Mark Hardin of Georgia were tied with 12-6, but Stricker took third place by virtue of a tie-breaker. Missouri's Kelly Williamson (4-3) finished fifth.

The next stop on the seven-event, $4.4 million FLW Tour is Feb. 14-17 on the Pascagoula River in Mississippi. The tournament will feature another $500,000 purse.

Reason to Brag Since the BASS record book was rewritten recently on Lake Tohopekaliga, Florida Fish and Wildlife Commission biologists have been taking bows for the incredible fishery that stunned the bass world during a BASS-MASTER Top 150 tournament.

"I've never seen anything like this," said Ed Moyer, the commission's director of freshwater fisheries, who spent 20 years on the Kissimmee Chain working as a biologist. "This is a tribute to lake management practices over the last decade."

Tips From the Pros

HAROLD KNIGHT, the co-founder of Knight & Hale Game Calls, is a nationally renowned hunter and calling expert. He lives in Cadiz, Ky.

Know When, How to Call Game

"Without a doubt, calling is the best thing that ever happened to hunting. Being able to carry on a conversation with whatever game you hunt adds a special element to the experience.

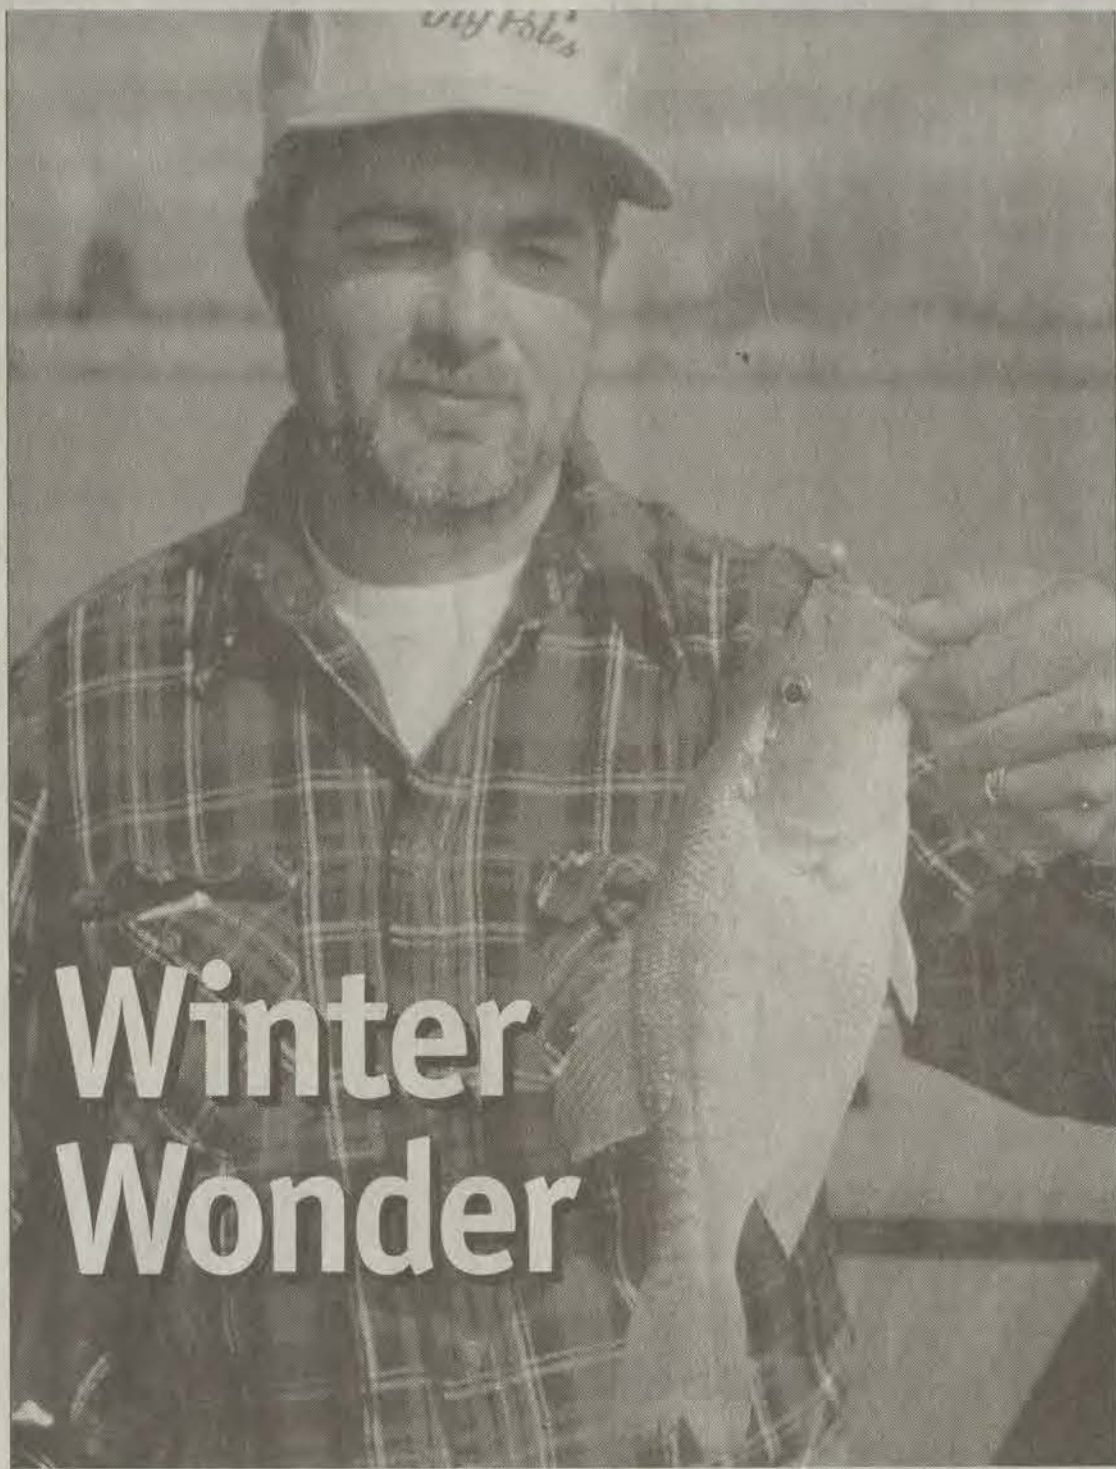

"One of the keys to communicating with any game is learning the language of that animal. Once you learn the language, practice so you will have confidence in your ability to call.

"It is very important for every hunter to have a strong mental attitude. You must have faith you can call that animal in. Then, I think it boils down to learning the routine of the animal you hunt. Once you do, you want to become part of his routine. For example, I want to make an old gobbler think I am one of his hens. If they are vocal, you can be, too. But when they are shy, then you need to tone it down. Calling can be fantastic if you learn when and how to apply it."

Mississippi guide Joe Wilson with a cold-weather crappie.

Don't Let the Cold Keep You From Crappie

By TIM TUCKER, Outdoors Writer

Crappie know no season. They can be caught 12 months of the year in 6 inches of water or 60 feet or more — and in any water clarity from gin-clear to muddy as a puddle. They will bite in temperatures from 40 to 90 degrees, under adverse conditions or calm, with a barometric pressure either high or low. And they can be caught in more ways than one would ever imagine.

They can even be caught during the coldest times of the year. But that means catching the tasty panfish when they are at their deepest.

The dreaded deep-water fishing, where marine electronics replace the naked eye for locating fish, is no more popular with crappie enthusiasts than it is with their counterparts in bass fishing. Deep-water fishing offers none of the comforts of shallow angling, where sight comes more into play and crappie are both easier to locate and, generally, simpler to catch.

Most crappie fishermen avoid deep water simply because they have never learned how to fish it. But during the 80 percent of the year when the popular panfish is not spawning, limits are rarely caught in shallow water. And fishing in the so-called off-season is so productive that it is worth the time and effort to learn the methods for going deep for crappie.

Tennessee crappie guide Steve McCadams most often finds winter crappie at depths of 18 to 22 feet. "Winter is when I fish the deepest for crappie," McCadams said. "Most people think they would be deepest in the summer because of the hot weather, but that's not the case.

"Depth becomes even more critical in the winter. The fish will school up real tight, and if you present a lure that misses their depth by 2 or 3 feet, they won't bite it. You can fish up on the ledges or on top of a shelf and miss them totally, even though they are right below."

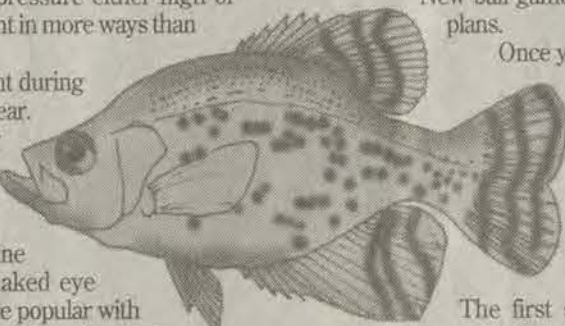

It may be a different game, but the experts all agree that deep-water crappie can be very dependable once you master the techniques involved. New ball games call for new game plans.

Once you locate deep-water winter crappie, the experts say, it is often the same easy-to-catch creature that makes its shallow-water appearance each spring.

The first step toward finding deep-water crappie is studying a topographic map. Since crappie will probably be around invisible structure and submerged cover, it is important to look for deep-water ledges, creek channels, roadbeds and submerged sloughs. The elevation markings on the map offer an indication of areas that might contain those types of structure or cover.

From there, it takes a little skill with electronics to eliminate potential cold-water crappie havens and then actually locate the fish. The consistent crappie angler has mastered the use of a depthfinder, which can read the bottom contour with amazing precision.

Many fishermen score consistently on deep-water crappie by trolling over potentially productive spots. It is common to see boats on reservoirs take on a spider-like appearance each winter as they troll across open water with poles sticking out in every direction.

Gunslingers Re-create Spirit Of Old West

By STEVE GUST

For lots of folks, "Gunsmoke" still fills the air as they keep alive the spirit of the Old West.

"Cowboy action shooting" is the trademarked name for the clubs that are popping up all over the United States, and Europe and Australia, too. The gunslingers dress in period costume and use authentic Old West weapons to engage in shooting contests.

Typical of these clubs is the Stateline Ridgerunners, a group of 30 or so Kansas folks who each month transport themselves back to the 19th century, when America was trying to tame a frontier. In those days it was done with single-shot Colt .45s and Winchester rifles.

On the second Saturday of each month, the group gathers in front of a mock saloon front near Pittsburg, Kan., where they take turns shooting at spring-loaded metal targets — the "bad guys" — that pop up at random. You have to be quick to hit the target before it drops back to the ground. Scoring is by elapsed time, with a five-second penalty for each missed target. Just as in the Old West, the shooter with the fastest draw and most accurate aim is going to be the winner.

One of the leaders of the group is Randy Davis, 46, who is also a member of the California-based Single Action Shooting Society, the national umbrella organization that oversees the sport of cowboy action shooting and its estimated 30,000 participants.

The SASS encourages participants to adopt an alter ego, either a traditional profession of the Old West or a Hollywood character, and to dress and act the part. The group will even register your alias for your exclusive use.

Some of the participants re-create scripts directly from television shows of yesteryear. For many, the costuming is as much of an attraction as the shooting. And it's not just for cowboys, either.

"We had a woman in the club out here the other day with her long skirt of the period, dragging it through the mud with the rest of us," Davis said.

Like most of his fellow shooters, Davis loves the Old West.

"When I was a kid, you couldn't go a night on television without at least three or four Westerns," he said. That appeal extends beyond America, too.

"It always amazes me that people in Sweden or New Zealand take this up as well," he said.

Davis' story is typical of many. He has long been a hunter and shooter. A few years back, his wife gave him a Colt .45. He took to the Internet to look up a hobby he had heard about: cowboy action shooting.

"I was shocked," he said. "I found one right in my own town."

Davis, a former competitive shooter, found that cowboy action shooting is a whole new game.

"I had done competitive shooting for a lot of years, and there is lots of stress," Davis said. That's not the case with the Stateline Ridgerunners and cowboy action shooting in general. The competition is spirited, but there are no purses. The people do it for fun — even though the costumes of the era are not always the most comfortable.

"There was no such thing as a short-sleeved shirt in the Old West," Davis said.

Indeed, despite the allure of playing a cowboy, it's nice to go back to the future at the end of the day.

"Hey, it's a great era to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there," Davis said. "There are too many things I can't live without. Those people back then were really tough. We have no idea."

Book Plots Path to Crankbait Success

Ever wonder just how deep your crankbaits actually dive upon retrieve? Most serious bass anglers have pondered that question.

Now you can stop wondering, thanks to the recent publication of a new guide to the running depths of crankbaits. "Precision Casting" is the most comprehensive and advanced casting book available. It presents an exhaustive study of the fundamental aspects of crankbait performance.

This excellently illustrated book provides detailed "dive curves" that depict the actual paths taken by every popular casting crankbait on the market. With "Precision Casting," you can select a lure to match your target depth and the contour of the bottom.

The book includes dive curves for more than 125 popular casting crankbaits — each studied by direct underwater observation and measurement.

The book enables you to quickly identify the maximum running depth of popular diving crankbaits. All the lures are illustrated with life-sized images for accurate lure identification.

The crankbaits that are rated are from all the popular manufacturers, including: Bagley's, Bass Pro Shops, Bandit, Bill Lewis, Bomber, Cabela's, Cotton Cordell, Excalibur, Luhr-Jensen, Mann's, Poe's, Rapala, Rebel, Storm, Strike King, Worden's and Yo-Zuri.

Cultural stage provides entertainment at Kentucky Crafted: the Market 2001

In addition to The Market's spectacular showing of the state's finest craftspeople, visual artists and authors, it also will provide an opportunity to see a sampling of the state's most outstanding talent on the Kentucky Cultural Stage, March 3-4 in Louisville.

Several state agencies—the Kentucky Folklife Program, the Kentucky Arts Council, the Kentucky Center for the Arts, the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, KET, and the Commission on the Deaf and Hard of Hearing—will combine musical performances of many different genres with food demonstrations, story telling, and an exhibit of Kentucky's folk heritage. An interpreter for the deaf and hard of hearing will be available at all performances.

The Kentucky Cultural Stage spotlights performing artists from the 2001 Kentucky Arts Council Performing Arts on Tour Directory and the Tour of Kentucky Folk Music, as well as talented high school participants in the Kentucky

Governor's School for the Arts Program.

Bluegrass music lovers will find several performers to match their taste. Homer Ledford of Winchester, plays bluegrass music using homemade instruments, including his renowned "musical saw" and Hog Operation, a Louisville band, accompany three-part harmony vocals with guitar, banjo, bass, fiddle, and mandolin.

Although the market features the best of the Bluegrass, the musical entertainment does not stop there. The music of award-winning songwriting duo of Mitch Barrett and Carla Gover spans all musical genres. This Berea pair, known as Zoe Speaks, specializes in everything from old-time gospel to contemporary acoustic tunes.

The folk music of Louisville group EarthHeart serves a two-fold purpose: it exposes the audience to an American musical tradition while also raising awareness of environmental concerns.

Kentucky singer and songwriter Beau Haddock is known for the variety he exhibits in his original music. Chuck Lawson specializes in variety, as well.

Other musical guests include Appalachian musician Jennifer-Rose, gospel musician John Edmonds, National Thumbpicking Champion Steve Rector, banjo artist and songwriter Tim Lake, Raison D'Etire, a trio of primarily a capella women's voices, and the Juggernaut Jug Band.

The stage will also feature two storytellers—great for kids and adults alike. Octavia Sexton of Orlando will weave her tales on Saturday and Rema Keen of Louisville on Sunday. Literature enthusiasts may enjoy conversation with several of Kentucky's best-selling authors, presented by the KET Book Club and host Bill Goodman.

As always, Market-goers will also enjoy a taste of Kentucky's finest foods. The Kentucky Department of Agriculture and Pride of Kentucky food exhibitors will offer samplings of some of the state's most delicious treats.

Kentucky Crafted: The Market 2001, features Kentucky contemporary and traditional crafts, musical recordings, two-dimensional visual art, books and food products for the wholesale and retail trade.

The Market opens to the public from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. on Saturday, March 3; and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday, March 4, at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, South Wing B, in Louisville.

Admission is $6 for adults and $2 for children (ages 6-12). Admission is free for children under 6. For a $1 off coupon on adult admission, visit the Kentucky Craft Marketing Program website: www.kycraft.org. Parking is

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

by Chuck Shepherd

Former pro football player Rae Carruth's elaborate defense to the charge of ordering his pregnant girlfriend's murder (semi-successful, in that he was convicted in January only of conspiracy) was financed by the state of North Carolina because the well-paid Carruth convinced Judge Charles Lamm that he was "indigent," according to court documents that Lamm had kept sealed for six months but which were discovered in January by the Charlotte Observer. Carruth earned about $38,000 a week during the 1999 season, and when the prosecutor suggested the motive for the killing was to spare Carruth child-support payments, Carruth countered by pointing out that he made enough money (net worth: $360,000) to easily support a child.

Latest British Research

British Antarctic Survey personnel (and helicopters) are now in the Falkland Islands specifically to learn whether penguins do, indeed, topple over when following the path of an aircraft overhead. And, commenting on a Bremen University (Germany) study on gambling as an addiction, British psychologist Mark Griffiths and British gardening expert Alan Titchmarsh said in November that the findings should apply, as well, to the addictive activity of gardening; said Titchmarsh, "Once you've discovered the thrill of making things grow, you can't stop."

I Don't Think So

Former police officer Edward Ludaescher and a partner were charged in November after allegedly attempting to rob an Oxnard, California, bank, but Ludaescher said it was all a misunderstanding, that he really was only studying up on the mind of the bank robber for a police training video he and the partner were planning to make. (However, prosecutors said that the two men badly needed money, having recently defaulted on a $200,000 loan for developing a pepper spray gun.)

John Bradley Park's defense at his drunk-driving trial in Llano, Texas, in October was that he was perfectly sober while driving on the night of July 4, 1999, even though his car might have been swerving on the road, but that while sitting in the driver's seat after police officer Jody Deatherage pulled him over, he quickly began drinking, and that by the time he reached the medical facility to test his blood-alcohol content, he was drunk. (He was nevertheless convicted.)

Twenty-six years after Mel Lastman (who is now mayor of Toronto) paid off a former long-time, married girlfriend, with whom he had had two sons, in a private settlement, the sons (now age 41 and 38) filed a lawsuit against Lastman, complaining of low self-esteem, anxiety, humiliation and delay in their personal development, for which they want Lastman to pay them $4 million (U.S.) more. Nevertheless, said the 19-year-old son of one of the plaintiffs, the lawsuit is "not about the money."

According to his campaign manager Jose A. Riesco, U.S. Rep. Lincoln Diaz-Balart of Florida did not retain illegal campaign contributions in the bank for eight months rather than issue immediate refunds as legally required and as he promised to do. Rather, Riesco told the Miami Business Review in December, all 45 refund checks (totaling nearly $30,000) were mailed out on time in February 2000. The reason none of the 45 recipients ever cashed their checks over the next eight months, said Riesco, was that somehow every single one of the 45 checks was lost in the mail, "poorly addressed, things like that," thus allowing Diaz-Balart full use of the illegal money for the recent campaign. Riesco denied any wrongdoing.

Not My Fault

In Edwardsville, Illinois, in November, Kwayera "Q" Jackson, 18, was sentenced to 40 years in prison in the death of his 5-month-old son, whom authorities determined was killed by a blow to his intestines.

Jackson (a recent high school football standout) said he might have gently thumped the boy's stomach, but only because he was trying to build up his abs so that he would be a better athlete when he grew up.

In November, a jury in W i l k e s - B a r r e l, Pennsylvania, awarded Harvard undergraduate student Patricia Ryan, 36, $363,000 from the Cabaret nightclub for a 1994 injury in her previous occupation as a stripper. In her act, Ryan was a fire-breather, but after accidentally dribbling out some of the 151-proof stage booze, her chest caught fire, causing second-degree burns. The Cabaret's attorney said, "We didn't cause the fire," but Ryan argued that the club's employees declined to help her during the emergency.

Shades of Yogi Berra

It should come as no surprise to anyone that I voted Republican in the presidential election. I admit, there were many times I doubted my choice, but in the end Granny Wheeler's spirit was standing behind me in the voting booth and I swear I could hear her say, "You'd better vote for Bush or I'll tan your hide." So, in the final analysis, the decision was mine and I pulled the lever for Dubya.

Unfortunately, I voted for Bush based on his political affiliation.

If I'd been smarter, I would have read more information and listened closer to what he had to say because if the following "Bush" quotes (sent to me by my former classmate Judy Preston Wallace) are indicative of his mental prowess, we might have been better off electing the aforementioned Yogi Berra.

1. The vast majority of our imports come from outside the country.
2. If we don't succeed, we run the risk of failure.
3. Republicans understand the importance of bondage between a mother and child.
4. Welcome to Mrs. Bush, and my fellow astronauts.
5. Mars is essentially in the same orbit...Mars is somewhat the same distance from the Sun, which is very important. We have seen pictures where there are canals, we believe, and water. If there is water, that means there is oxygen. If oxygen, that means we can breathe.

6. The Holocaust was an obscene period in our nation's history. I mean in this century's history, but we all lived in this century. I didn't live in this century.

7. I believe we are on an irreversible trend toward more freedom and democracy, but that could change.

8. One word sums up probably the responsibility of any governor, and that one word is "to be prepared."

9. Verbosity leads to unclear, inarticulate things.

10. I have made good judgments in the past. I have made good judgments in the future.

11. The future will be better tomorrow.

12. We're going to have the best educated American people in the world.

13. People that are really very weird can get into sensitive positions and have a tremendous impact on history.

14. I stand by all the misstatements that I've made.

15. We have a firm commitment to NATO, we are a part of NATO. We have a firm commitment to Europe. We are a part of Europe.

16. Public speaking is very easy.

17. I am not part of the problem. I am a Republican.

18. A low voter turnout is an indication of fewer people going to the polls.

19. When I have been asked who caused the riots and the killings in LA, my answer has been direct and simple: Who is to blame for the riots? The rioters are to blame. Who is to blame for the killings? The killers are to blame.

20. Illegitimacy is something we should talk about in terms of not having it.

21. We are ready for any unforeseen event that may or may not occur.

22. For NASA, space is still a high priority.

23. Quite frankly, teachers are the only profession that teach our children.

24. The American people would not want to know of any misquotes that George Bush may or may not make.

25. We're all capable of mistakes, but I do not care to enlighten you on the mistakes.

26. It isn't pollution that's harming the environment. It's the impurities in our air and water that are doing it.

27. [It's] time for the human race to enter the solar system.

The scary thing is I understood everything he said.

Critter Corner

by Carol Combs-Morris, DVM

A reader, Diane Johnson, e-mailed me recently concerning some questions she had about her aging cat. She would like to see some columns on older cats and dogs. Pet geriatrics can and do take up entire textbooks, so this week I will concentrate on one of her main concerns, which is tooth loss.

I am paraphrasing Diane's description of her cat's problem: The cat is now 12 years old. He had his teeth cleaned five years ago when he was neutered, and he already showed signs of dental problems then, having already lost some of his front incisors. Later one bottom and both top canine teeth loosened and fell out.

He still eats canned food well and seems otherwise healthy. He will not let her look in his mouth. She is concerned about the cat's quality of life and whether he will still be able to eat if the tooth loss continues.

Obviously, I cannot diagnose a problem like this without seeing the animal. There are several problems that can cause tooth loss, but I am going to concentrate here on one that appears to be unique to cats. This may or may not be this particular cat's problem—he is due a dental appointment to see what exactly is going on.

So here's our topic—ready for a mouthful (no pun intended)? Feline Odontoclastic Resorptive Lesions. No wonder they're abbreviated FORL's. Feline, of course, means cat. You knew that one. Odontoclasts are a type of cell that breaks down the structure of the tooth. Resorption is just what it sounds like, and a lesion refers to any sort of abnormality.

Therefore FORL's are an abnormal condition that involves breakdown of a cat's tooth by odontoclasts, causing re-absorption and weakening of the tooth.

They have also been called "neck lesions" (affecting the neck of the tooth, where the crown and root meet), "root resorptions," and "cervical line erosions." They are a type of cavity, but since they are a specific type affecting a particular species, it is best to give them their own name.

I discovered just how litle I knew about these things while I was researching the problem on the Internet. For one thing, they are tremendously widespread. One source estimates that more than half of all cats alive today have one or more FORL. In the population of cats five years old or older, the number climbs to 72 percent.

How likely a particular cat is to have an FORL does not seem to be directly related to how inflamed its gums are, or how much plaque or tartar is present. Unlike human cavities, the tooth loss in cats from FORLs is not the result of bacterial enzymes or acids eating away at the enamel. The odontoclasts found in the defective area appear to be solely responsible for the tooth destruction.

This leaves researchers knowing HOW the tooth is destroyed, but not WHY. Several theories have been suggested, but none have been proven. Some scientists think this may be an autoimmune disease (where the body's immune system attacks some of its own tissues); others are researching the possibility that a virus or metabolic disturbance may play a part. Others question whether the overall change in the way we keep cats as pets (indoor housing, commercial foods, etc.) might have some effect on the condition. No one really knows.

What do FORLs look like? They may appear as small defects or "punched-out" areas on the tooth, usually near the area where the tooth meets the gum; some occur beneath the gum line toward the root, and so are not visible. The best diagnosis is by x-ray, which can reveal root erosion.

Although the problem starts on the surface, the tooth is gradually eaten away until the sensitive dentin, and then the pulp chamber, is exposed. Obviously, this can result in a great deal of pain, but surprisingly, many cats do not show signs of discomfort. This is probably due to the stoic nature of cats.

As a solitary hunter in the wild, cats cannot afford to show signs of illness as easily as a pack-type hunter like a dog. Other tip-offs that a cat may have a problem are excessive salivation, oral bleeding, or difficulty getting food into the mouth and chewing. Once the tooth has been damaged to such an extent that it actually breaks off, the FORL is well-advanced — and there may have been absolutely no evidence above the gum line that there was a problem.

The progression of early lesions may be slowed by cleaning and polishing the teeth, followed by good at-home dental hygiene. The disease process continues, however, and the ultimate treatment is usually complete extraction of the tooth and any root fragments. Filling these "cavities" doesn't work well, because they continue to get larger anyway, and the filling eventually falls out.

Even with many missing teeth, a cat can generally eat soft foods well, and may even have an improved appetite once the oral pain is taken care of.

It might be a good idea to have a look in Kitty's mouth today. Now if they could only find a cure for "tuna breath."

People Different From Us

In January, Gainesville (Florida) police charged James Anthony Harmon, 39, with fraud after finding his house cluttered from floor to ceiling with as much as $200,000 worth of unopened cartons of merchandise ordered under various credit-card names from Home Shopping Network. It appeared that very few HSN-ordered items were actually in use in the home. Said Harmon, "I just shop a lot." According to the Gainesville Sun, Harmon's neighbors said he is "a loner who often kept to himself."

Recurring Themes

Accidentally shooting yourself in the head with a nail gun is rarely fatal, as readers of News of the Weird know from several stories in which construction workers have inadvertently plugged themselves and earned little more than a terrific souvenir X-ray. In January 2001, a 25-year-old construction worker in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, apparently tried to kill himself with a nail gun because of the intense pain from having just accidentally severed his hand in a mitre saw mishap. At press time, he was hospitalized in stable condition after surgery to reattach the hand (and to remove the 12 nails in his skull).

Least Competent Criminals

In November, Auburn Mason, 62, was sentenced to four years in prison in England for a 1999 British Airways hijacking. He had grabbed a flight attendant, held scissors to her neck, and threatened additionally to blow up the plane, yelling, "Take me to Gatwick (airport, London)!" At that point, the flight was 15 minutes away from its scheduled destination, which was Gatwick airport. Mason was disarmed after observers realized the "bomb" was a pocket dictating machine.

Also, in the Last Month ...

Vietnam vet Harry Hunt got his waist-length hair cut, ending his eight-year boycott of the clippers in protest of draft-dodging Bill Clinton's presidency (Mexico, Missouri). A circus-performing archer missed the apple on his wife/assistant's head for the first time in 14 years, sending her to the hospital with a catastrophic wound below the eye (Paris).
