Fiscal court approves pay raises

Topping yesterday's fiscal court meeting was a pay increase for five county officials.

Perhaps expecting a backlash, County Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson explained that the court no longer sets its own salaries, but that instead the legislature had enacted a law setting salaries for county officials and that the fiscal court now merely adopts those mandates.

Under the increases, Thompson will now receive $2,610.55 every two weeks, up from $2,443.92 a year ago. That now makes the judge's salary $67,874.30 a year.

Commissioners will receive $1,422.62 biweekly, bringing their annual salaries up to $36,988.12. The new salary is up from last year's $1,376.22 every two weeks.

The final salary affected by Thursday's changes was that of Jailer Roger Webb. His salary now increases from $2,606.85 every two weeks to $2,694.76, bringing the jailer's annual wages to $70,063.76.

The pay raises are retroactive to January 1.

Academic team puts Betsy Layne on the map

With "winner's fever" already coursing through the veins of Floyd County residents due to South Floyd High School's journey to Rupp Arena and the return of the Prestonsburg High School Dance Cats brandishing a national championship trophy from San Diego, yet another Floyd County school has returned a winning team to add yet a few degrees more to the already raging fever.

The academic team of Betsy Layne High School, coached by teacher John Kidd, returned home earlier this week from the Governor's Cup state academic competition with a third-place win in the quick recall category.

In addition, senior Billy Newsome returned home holding the first-place winning seat in the category of language arts.

The competitions were held as part of the 16th annual Ashland Inc. Governor's Cup Academic Competition held this Monday at the Executive Inn West in Louisville.

The Governor's Cup Academic Competition is the highest level of academic competition in the state. Betsy Layne High School was one of only 32 teams statewide to make it to this level in the competition.

Betsy Layne defeated Louisville's Apollo High School to claim third-place status in the state meet. With this being only Betsy Layne's second time to attend the state meet, their placement in the final four set a Kentucky Association for Academic Competition (KAAC) state record.

Senior Billy Newsome defeated another Eastern Kentucky student, Laura Wells, who represented Johnson Central High School, to take home the winning language arts trophy.

The language arts competition was handled by means of written assessment, whereby the top students in the state were tested on their knowledge of the language arts. The individual scores were then tabulated and the students learned of their placement level at an awards ceremony that followed at a later time.

According to Newsome, as the names of the students who had placed in the top 10 were repeatedly called out, with his name not being announced, he began to feel as though he had not even placed in the top 10 level.

Then it was down to the second-

Floodway restrictions anger some

by MARY MUSIC

Residents of Emma and surrounding communities who live along the "floodway" have replaced dreams of building or remodeling their homes with frustration and anger.

"Everyone in Floyd County needs to know that their property is worthless if it is in the floodway," said Wilma Leslie, a resident of Emma.

Leslie said she wanted to sell her house, and rebuild onto adjacent property, but that it is now impossible. "My property is basically condemned," she said.

Anywhere there is a major stream, there is a floodway. Development along the floodway is restricted to open space uses that do not interrupt the natural flow of water. Building structures designed for human habitation, storage of buoyant

Wheelwright council okays police contract

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

One of three pressing issues was settled Thursday morning as the Wheelwright City Council met to discuss the status and further plans of city police officer Charles Johnson, as well as current gas rates and the urgent need to find a sewer plant operator.

The council retired to closed session to discuss Johnson and recent contract disagreements for nearly 30 minutes before returning to announce that the contract had been signed and plans were now underway, once again, to send Johnson for training as intended last month.

The issue came before the council when Johnson refused to sign a three-year contract that would ensure, once he had received training, that he would continue to work as city police officer for Wheelwright rather than seeking work elsewhere.

Council awards bid for senior center construction

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

The hesitant approach toward accepting Johnson Commercial Builders' bid for construction of the senior citizens building project came to an end Wednesday evening as the Prestonsburg city council met and agreed to accept the Finance and Revenue Committee's recommendation.

The bid was accepted during the 5 p.m. city council meeting, but the details were smoothed out Wednesday afternoon.

Prior to the council meeting, Prestonsburg's Finance and Revenue Committee met with Lloyd Johnson, owner and operator of Johnson Commercial Builders, to discuss concerns about the quality of work to be done for the new center.

Estill Carter, chairman of the committee, after a straightforward question-and-answer session with Johnson, motioned for the committee to accept the bid and recommend the matter to the council for approval.

Johnson's bid of $375,000 is, after alternates are included, $126,000 lower than that of the next lowest bidder, Royalty Construction Company. This was a difference, along with an incident at Middle Hensley Elementary where two children were injured due to a wall falling during construction, that sent up red flags for Carter and other mem-

Floodway

or dangerous materials, water wells for human consumption, septic tanks, solid waste disposals, and fills that will increase flood heights are generally not permitted along the floodway.

While many residents are familiar the concept of floodplains, which are areas with a history of flooding, floodways are a different matter. The floodway is land adjacent to waterways on which many types of construction cannot take place. This is done so that the waterways will be able to flow unimpeded during periods of high water.

Jack K. Howard, another resident of Emma, applied in June for a permit through the Floyd County Floodplain Management office to construct a home. To date, Howard is still waiting for a reply.

Before beginning construction along the floodway, individuals must obtain two permits, one from the Division of Water in Frankfort, and one from Floyd County Floodplain Management in Prestonsburg.

"It's a safety issue," said Randy Holbrook of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. "You should always check with the Floyd County Floodplain administration before planning to remodel or build a home. It protects you, and it protects the people of Floyd County."

Marilyn Coffee, of the Division of Water, notified Lon May, administrator of Floyd County Floodplain Management, that the Division of Water would not run the necessary analysis required to see if construction on Howard's property would be approved.

In January, May sent a letter to the Division of Water on behalf of Howard and other residents who live along the floodway.

"We have talked to residents of Emma that have lived there through all the major flood events, and they have indicated that no water has ever been on the property considered to be in the floodway," May wrote. "There must be a way that we can resolve this problem; whether through map revisions or updates."

The letter continues by saying that the Floyd County Floodplain Management office has requested the need for revised maps on numerous occasions, but that there has been no response from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) with the matter.

The most recent maps were last revised in 1990, and some date back to 1984.

"I don't always agree with these maps," said May. "A lot of changes have occurred since then. Revisions of U.S. 23 and Rt. 80 aren't even on these maps."

May continued by saying that individuals who don't agree with the maps are welcome to apply for a "Letter of Map Amendment" through FEMA. To do this, one must hire an engineer to prove the map is wrong. The cost to the individual varies.

Floyd County requires a two-foot freeboard, meaning that structures must be raised two feet above the base flood elevation. According to May, every foot that is raised up to three feet offers up to a 60 percent savings in flood insurance. In the case of undue hardship, however, individuals can seek help through the Floodplain Appeals Board.

Residents of Emma say that it is unfair that they have to hire an engineer to revise the maps.

May said he would "like to see it be more economical for people to be in compliance with these laws. You're talking about people's homes, probably the biggest investment they'll ever make. It isn't something to take lightly."

According to Rich Hungsinger, Division of Water, map updates are generally initiated by the local community, and the response has been slow because of lack of funding for map revision.

"They're basically on a first-come, first-serve basis. I wish we could do more, but we are committed until the maps are revised."

We are required, by law, to use them, basically, as gospel."

In June, 1994, Floyd County adopted the "Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance."

"Without doing what we're doing here — if we do not follow the rules and regulations of this ordinance — no one in Floyd County will be eligible for flood insurance," explained May. "Insurance companies require that we follow these guidelines."

May urges that all isn't lost to the residents of Emma and other communities in the floodway.

"If you locate property in the 100-year floodplain, don't panic," he said. "A lot of the city is in the floodplain, but it isn't useless because it doesn't have a history of repetitive flooding."

May further said he is willing to work with individuals and explore ideas on how to resolve the situation.

Citizens of Emma, who have become frustrated about not being able to build on their property, have voiced concern to the Floyd County Property Valuation Administrator Connie Hancock about having to pay taxes on land that seems to be useless.

In response, Connie Holbrook, PVA, says she fully understands their concerns, but, "this does not mean we can eliminate these taxes. We must determine a fair market value for this property."

"Property Tax Commissioner Vince Lang and Tom Crawford, Division of Local Valuation, have informed me that they will have their field staff look at the property in question."

She continues, "As citizens of Floyd County know, our county is very mountainous, and construction sites are limited without some development. As taxpayers, you do have the right to be concerned, and to have your questions answered. If you have suggestions on how we can work together to solve this growing problem, please contact my office at any time. My obligation is to the people of Floyd County and I want them to know I will try to be fair to all."

Roger Whittfield, FEMA, will be conducting a class at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg on March 21 and 22. The class is focused for insurance companies and lending institutions, but anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Anyone who would like more information on the class or has questions regarding the floodway can contact Lon May at (606) 886-0489.

bers of the council, considering $400,000 was allotted to spent on the project.

Johnson, equipped with blueprints and a book of specifics for project plans, was accompanied by members of the Prestonsburg Building Committee, Brad Hughes, Darrel Patton and Mayor Jerry Fannin to present at least brief explanations as to why Johnson's bid of $340,000, which, after alternate expenses are added, totals for a complete bid of $375,000, was considerably lower than that of other bids offered.

Johnson began explaining by stating that many factors often play key roles in a bid coming across much lower than that of other offers.

"You have to remember, I only live two miles from here," Johnson told the committee.

Johnson being closer geographically would cut down on expenses that other companies would need to include in their bids. He further mentioned that many bidders often had other motives for putting in bids which had nothing to do with actually wanting the work.

"Some guys who put in bids don't really want the work," Johnson explained, "They just want to keep their names in."

A stipulation was made, with no mention made of Hensley Elementary, that Johnson and his crew would be penalized $150 for each day spent working past the completion date, which council member Harry Adams, with support from Carter, found to be little more than a "slap on the wrist," according to Carter.

Darrel Patton, who has been intimately involved with the project since its beginning, showed full support for accepting the bid from Johnson.

"I'm obviously in agreement with this proposal, but my bottom line is I want the center to be high quality," Patton said. "I don't want it to be rushed. We've waited 25 years for this."

Carter continued the discussion by stating that if the bid went through with success Johnson would have many senior citizens on site watching to see that things went well.

"A lot of us have given a lot of time and money to have the senior citizens where it is, including this council, every year," Carter said as the meeting neared a close. "I lot of business people in this town have given them money to keep them open. So it's a very personal thing to me that the project be done well."

"Woe unto you and woe unto us if this isn't the best-built building you've ever built. None of us could stand the heat if this thing isn't done with the best quality in mind. If you do this job with the type of quality that we will demand, I'll be the biggest booster you've got and if something were to happen in there so that didn't happen, I'll be your worst nightmare."

State has scholarships for osteopathic medicine students

Kentuckians interested in becoming doctors of osteopathic medicine can take advantage of a scholarship program administered by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA). KHEAA is the state agency that administers grants, scholarships, work-study, savings, and Federal Family Education Loans to help Kentucky students pay for college or technical training.

Scholarship Program provides scholarships for Kentucky residents who want to study osteopathic medicine at Pikeville College. The award amount is equal to the difference between the tuition charged at the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine and the average of the in-state tuition charged at the medical schools at the University of Kentucky and University of Louisville.

Students who do not fulfill this obligation, the scholarship becomes a loan that must be repaid with interest.

KHEAA also provides free information about other sources of financial aid to students and parents. For more information, visit KHEAA's Web site www.kheaa.com; write to KHEAA, 1050 US Highway 127 S., Frankfort, KY 40601-4323; call (800) 928-8926, extension 7392; or e-mail ppolly@kheaa.com.

Wheelwright

which has been a problem in the past for Wheelwright.

The closed session conference, with city attorney Tim Parker in attendance, settled problems surrounding the dispute.

The smooth order of business would soon come to a halt however.

Since the recent rise in gas prices nationwide, the city of Wheelwright has fallen in line with other utilities, buying gas for a higher price. However, resident gas prices within the city have not been adjusted to reflect the increase.

This has resulted in Wheelwright citizens paying a lower rate for gas than the rate the city has been buying it.

A rough estimate reveals the city has been buying the gas provided for city residents at nearly twice the cost they have been selling.

Audrey Yates, with the city utilities commission, fears that if something isn't done, the city could lose out to a private company.

"We're subsidizing. We're losing money," Yates said after Thursday's meeting. "I'm going to have to pay the higher gas rate just like everybody else, but I'd rather do that than see a private company come in and take it over and probably still be stuck with higher rates."

During the meeting,

Wheelwright Mayor Marlee Sammons offered a motion that the gas rates be raised in hopes this would mend the consistent loss of money. The motion, disputed by council members and attending citizens alike, fell dead without support.

There was, however, continued support from all council members to keep up the search for a sewer plant operator, a persistent problem for Wheelwright, which remains out of compliance according to David Pigman with the Division of Water.

"I talked with Pigman last week and he told me that all of us could end up with three days in jail if something wasn't done to get the plant back into compliance soon," Sammons told fellow council members.

Tim Parker, city attorney, assured Sammons and other council members to simply continue searching for an operator and things should go well. He added, after recommendation from council members Andy Akers and Booty Hall, that he would talk with Rick McCoy, an operator who was quoted as saying he may show interest in taking the job if circumstances surrounding the plant operations remain civil.

"We are doing all we can do," Parker said on Thursday. "These operators are in high demand and hard to come by. I'll talk to Rick and see what I can do."

Former Miss America, Heather French Henry, to donate dress to KHS collections

Heather French Henry, former Miss America, and the wife of Lt. Gov. Steve Henry, will donate a dazzling new collectible to the Kentucky Historical Society, Friday evening, March 23, at the Farnham Dudgeon Civic Center.

Appearing with her husband before nearly 500 students assembled for the 39th annual convention of the Kentucky Junior Historical Society, an outreach program of the Kentucky Historical Society, Mrs. Henry will present to KHS one of her Miss America competition dresses. Lt. Gov. and Mrs. Henry are scheduled to talk about the value of preserving the past, and the donation of the dress will serve as an example of protecting the past to ensure that stories are available to be told in the future.

Society staff members are excited and enthusiastic about the donation of the dress, marking a special event, not only for Mrs. Henry, but the state as well, and about having Lt. Gov. and Mrs. Henry as practitioners and advocates of preservation.

The Kentucky Historical Society is an agency of the Education, Arts and Humanities Cabinet. The Kentucky History Center is the headquarters of the Kentucky Historical Society, and is located in downtown Frankfort.

"The quick recall trophy is most coveted in the event," said Newsome. "We feel really good about what we accomplished at the meet."

The students all good-naturedly relayed stories of overhearing conversations of students from other area teams as they milled about in the hallways and elevators of the hotel complex.

"We heard comments like, 'Are those Betsy Layne kids still here? Where is Betsy Layne, anyway?'" said Brandon Newsome. "Well, we hope that people know where Betsy Layne is now."

Coach Kidd said that he had really enjoyed working with the students and had gotten quite close to them.

"I was amazed that they were not more nervous than they were," the coach said. "They were all very calm throughout the event, as I sat on the sidelines, very tense and excited."

"I am very proud of our team," he went on to say. "They showed perseverance and leadership when it counted most."

Betsy Layne principal Margaret Vaughn echoed Kidd's sentiments, saying that

With the General Assembly in session, there's a reception for legislators nearly every day in Frankfort. In fact, during the current legislative session, nearly 30 receptions, dinners, open houses and other events were scheduled, according to a report in the Courier-Journal of Louisville.

Those at these affairs get a chance to meet, greet and converse with our elected representatives over drinks and hors d'oeuvres.

The receptions, hosted by the powerful interests of the state, provide a social occasion — a good way to meet people — and that's really about it, say defenders of the practice.

But it's an occasion most of Kentuckians aren't afforded; it's access to decision makers when they are making the decisions that most folks don't get.

The receptions are hosted by such groups as the Kentucky Association of Realtors, the Kentucky Association of Counties, American Electric Power, BellSouth — in other words the powerful and the insiders.

Such wining and dining is legal. In fact, while lobbyists are prohibited from spending more than $100 a year on meals for individual legislators, there are no spending restrictions on the receptions and other events that lobbyists and lobbying groups might want to throw.

Richard Beliles, state chairman of the government watchdog group Common Cause of Kentucky, says the concern is that in serving up a little bourbon, wine and chicken wings, the hosts gain an opportunity — gain a legislator's ear — that the average citizens either will never have or at least not in the same way.

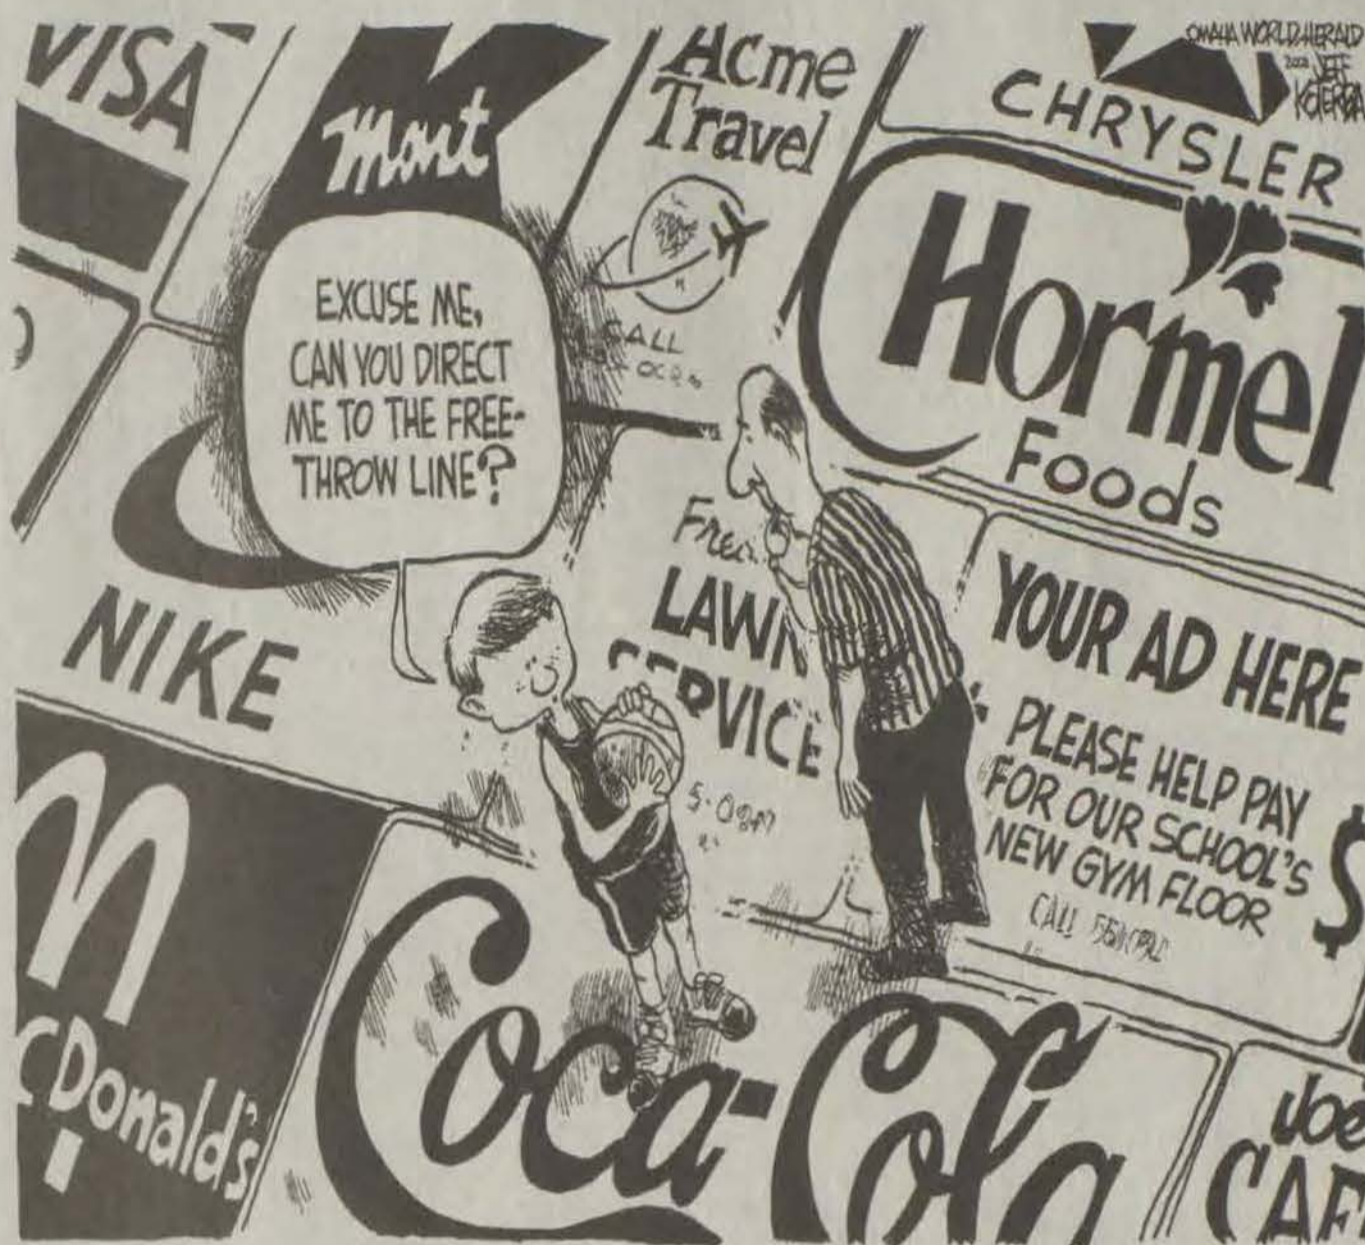

"I'm not saying there's a direct absolute link between these functions and legislative actions, but it does tilt the process toward the people who are giving these receptions," Beliles told the Louisville newspaper.

So what's it worth to "tilt the process?"

More all the time, apparently. Last year, lobbyists and lobbying groups spent $137,952 on legislative receptions — $50,000 more than in 1998 and $100,000 more than in 1994, according to expense records filed with the Legislative Ethics Commission.

The legislature needs to bring the free feeds under control before it finds itself in the middle of another political scandal.

Think About It

Irish Pride

I have prided myself on not falling victim to writing holiday columns since I started doing this nearly eight years ago and now, after this column reaches print, I will have covered the last two.

I'm not sure of my motivation for avoiding this often utilized subject reference in my work. Perhaps it is part of an ongoing, futile quest for originality in a helplessly unoriginal world.

In any case, to neglect writing about this holiday would almost certainly bring me under close scrutiny from my family, who claim very firm Irish roots. I, too, pay tribute to the home country. On my left shoulder is a tattoo of a four leaf clover along with my son Tyler Lee's name.

But this is not always a noble heritage to claim. Many connect images of drinking and rowdy, troublemaking behavior with Irish ancestry. References to men abandoning their families for "the drink" have only been further planted within the consciousness of America with such recent books as Angela's Ashes.

However, McCourt's Pulitzer prize-winning memoir also offers a more subtle look into a young Irishman's fight to gain footing from deep within a cavern of social opposition. The legendary thirst and primitive need to do battle, typical within my ancestors, and still present today, can, and should, be seen as a trait of nobility comparable to that of the American Indian's love for their land, but the harsh details may not be as fairy tale as some.

The Irish, and those with Irish blood, will fight for what they believe like no other nationality on the planet. Their passion and loyalty for family and honor are as innate as their accents.

How can this go unnoticed when we can still look to Northern Ireland and find Irish men and women fighting for what they believe in with just as much vigor as when the first shot was fired over a century ago?

These traits of loyalty, family closeness, perseverance and endurance in the face of much adversity should be remembered along with the fighting and drinking.

Yes, the drinking and fighting and those seemingly huge smears on the Irish people, should be remembered and acknowledged as well as the rest.

I am not ashamed that I have Irish ancestry, just the opposite, I am extremely proud. And if that means taking the bad stigma with the good, then so be it.

Tomorrow claim your Irish ancestry "across the rooftops of the world" as Whitman would say and hold that privilege close to your heart. For you should know that you are here and able to celebrate only because those who came before you didn't give up.

Politics of dissent

by REP. GREG STUMBO
HOUSE MAJORITY FLOOR LEADER

The voices of those great Kentucky statesmen John Sherman Cooper and Carl Perkins were sadly silent during the 2001 session. Rather, the voices of dissent and partisan bickering took center stage, sidetracking some important legislation that was key to continued economic development and the improvement of living conditions for Kentuckians.

Two issues that were earmarked as priorities at the beginning of the session were derailed. House Bill 132, the workers compensation bill that would have made significant improvements to the black lung portion of the law, was stalled in a Senate committee. Republican Senate leadership said they needed more time to examine the issue, but the governor has targeted this particular issue for reform for at least a year. It is an unfortunate turn of events and will leave our miners whom have contracted black lung in a very uncertain position.

Three solid waste bills, including the governor's and mine, were sidetracked in various fatal detours in their progress through the legislative process. I simply do not understand why not one piece of the environmental legislation did not go through. When I talk to Kentuckians across the state, I repeatedly hear that solid waste issues and the environment are vitally important to them.

House Bill 26, my legislation that would have allowed teachers to instruct classes about various religious creeds and backgrounds, also was lost in the Senate. This, if passed, would have encouraged the posting of the Ten Commandments, as well as the religious creeds of Islam, Mohammed and other major religions. The Senate adjourned abruptly last Friday, leaving a compromise hanging on telemarketing legislation which would have controlled undesirable phone marketing techniques. House Bill 54 would have protected the most vulnerable of our citizens, Kentucky's seniors, from these kinds of phone calls. I was offended by the actions of the Senate leadership and consider their unexpected adjournment a personal affront to our seniors.

House Bill 1 was approved by the General Assembly. It creates the felony crime of "use of weapons of mass destruction" to prevent school violence and penalize those who commit it. Anyone who makes intentional false statements that they or someone else has put a bomb or other weapon of mass destruction on school grounds or government property will be guilty of felony terroristic threatening under the bill. It would also make it a felony to threaten to kill or injure someone at school.

The General Assembly will recess for 10 days to allow the governor time to consider the bills passed by both chambers. He can sign the bill, veto the bill or allow the bill to become law without his signature. We return after that time to consider any vetoes made by the governor and decide if the legislature should vote to override.

To contact me regarding any of the issues I discussed here, call my Prestonsburg law office at 886-1515 or my Frankfort legislative office at (502) 564-7460.

Well, my stay in Lexington, Ky., and my trip to Rupp Arena, was somewhat short. The South Floyd Raiders got off to a slow-start in their game with Clay County and could never recover. Nevertheless, it was a good trip for myself and the Raiders. Hey Raiders, you made it! You guys did what every high school basketball team in the state sets out to do at the start of every basketball season. You made it to the state tournament. You were one of the top 16 teams in the state when the regional tournaments concluded. Congratulations on a very successful season!

The Lexington Center announced Thursday its plans to sell the Rupp Arena basketball floor that has been in use since the building opened in 1976. Partial proceeds will go to the UK Basketball Museum and the Kentucky High School Athletic Association.

"Basketball in Kentucky is something you can't understand until you experience it," said Bill Owen, President and CEO of the Lexington Center Corporation. "The original Rupp floor represents 25 years of rich tradition of both UK Wildcat basketball and Kentucky High School Sweet 16. We're excited about making it available to basketball fans everywhere."

In 25 years, the Rupp Arena basketball floor has been used for 364 regular-season Kentucky basketball games, including 328 Wildcat victo-

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

The Johnson Central Lady Eagles downed the Sheldon Clark Lady Cardinals for a third time in the 2000-01 season on Saturday. Johnson Central's third triumph over Sheldon Clark came at a very good time as it happened in the finals of the 15th Region girls basketball tournament. The Lady Eagles claimed this year's regional title with a 55-51 victory over Robin Newsome's squad.

Seniors Selena Williams and Emma Burke led the way for region champ Johnson Central. Both players shared team-high scoring honors with 17 points apiece. Williams also pulled down a game-high 11 rebounds. Another pair of Johnson Central seniors, Goldie Wells and Becky Williams, chipped in 12 and 11 points respectively. Emily Salyer added two points in the Johnson Central win.

The Lady Eagles, slim two-point winners over the South Floyd Lady Raiders in the opening round of the regional tournament, trailed Sheldon Clark 13-12 at the end of the first quarter. The Lady Eagles also lagged behind in the second quarter. Sheldon Clark won the second quarter 14-12 to go into the half leading 27-24.

Sheldon Clark began the 15th Region girls basketball tournament with a narrow three-point win over the Belfry Lady Pirates. The Lady Cards next opponent, Prestonsburg, gave them a close game in the semifinals of the tourney, before falling 69-59.

Johnson Central came out in the third period and mustered just eight points of offense. Sheldon Clark, the home team on the scoreboard, netted 14 for the second quarter in a row, giving them a 41-32 advantage heading into the final quarter.

Johnson Central, the visiting team on the scoreboard, saved their best play for the final period. The Lady Eagles came in the fourth quarter after being outscored in all three quarters and erupted for 23 points. The Johnson Central defense held Sheldon Clark to just 10 points in a very pivotal fourth quarter.

Mandy Harmon paced Sheldon Clark with a game-high 20 points. Desiree Cassidy added 17 points and Kelli Jo Moore finished with 10.

Johnson Central committed just eight turnovers and shot 11-of-19 from the free-throw line. Sheldon Clark committed 21 turnovers and shot just 5-of-14 from the charity stripe.

The floor was first used for the KHSAA Boys Sweet 16 in 1979 when Lafayette won the state title. This week's Sweet 16 will mark the 18th time the event will be played on the floor.

"We are excited to be involved and feel like the players and coaches who have played on the floor will be excited about the project," said Julian Tackett, Assistant Commissioner of the KHSAA. "We think this is a grass-roots project and we believe this is more of a grass-roots audience."

The Rupp Arena floor has been used for some historic NCAA championship action as well. Villanova shocked Georgetown in the 1985 Final Four to win the national championship and Texas completed a 34-0 season by defeating Southern Cal in the 1986 women's national championship game. Other postseason play held on the floor of Rupp Arena include: Six NCAA Men's Regionals; Two NCAA First- and Second-Rounds; Three Southeastern Conference Tournaments; Two Ohio Valley Conference Tournaments.

"This floor has been very significant to the history of UK basketball," said Van Florence, Director of the UK Basketball Museum. "It has given us a lot of victories. The Museum would like to thank the Lexington Center Corporation for allowing us to share in the proceeds. We hope the new floor is as good to the University of Kentucky as the old floor was."

The floor will be available through the marketing efforts of Host Communications and is available through a 24-hour toll free number...1-877-861-6039 or by mail at Rupp Arena Floor, 546 E. Main St., Lexington, KY 40508 or register online at www.rupparena.com. Three items ranging from $35.00 to $125.00 are available. A select number of dominant pieces like the Wildcat logos and the free throw lanes will be sold intact.

South Floyd trailed Clay County 20-14 with 6:15 left to play in the second quarter. The Tigers finished strong and led 39-24 at the half.

Mathis put South Floyd on the scoreboard first in the third quarter with a field goal. Clay County then led 41-24. Michael Hall hit a three-pointer and Tackett added a field goal as the Raiders went on a 5-0 run to cut the Clay County lead down to a 10-point advantage. The Tigers built their lead up to 18 points at 49-31 with 4:07 left in the third period.

Clay County led 55-45 when the third quarter came to a close.

Clay County began the fourth quarter with the basketball. The Tigers failed to score on their opening possession and South Floyd's Tackett took advantage of it by hitting on a field goal Tackett's field goal made it a 55-47 contest. The Raiders looked to have the momentum of the game back in their favor when they trailed 62-55 at the 5:17 mark of the final period. From the 5:17 mark of the fourth period on, South Floyd stumbled and Clay County thrived. Both benches emptied in the final minute and change as nearly every player on both teams saw playing time.

Clay County hit 43.3 percent from the field. They were 0-6 from three-point land. The Tigers shot 63.3 percent from the free-throw line.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

IF YOU WANTED BREAD, YOU HAD TO MAKE IT - FROM START TO FINISH!

IN MEDICAL TIMES, THE MISTRESS OF HOUSEHOLD FIRST THINGS ON ARRIVING, WOULD ATTEND HER FAMILY'S DAILY NEED FOR BREAD. FIRST, THE BRAN (USUALLY BARLEY OR RYE) HAD TO BE GROUND INTO MEAL, GIFTED TO FLOUR, THEN MIXED INTO A PASTE WITH WATER... NOW IT WAS KNOWN INTO DOUGH AND LEAVEN... ADDED, LEFT STANDING LONG ENOUGH FOR IT TO RISE, THEN THE DOUGH WAS DIVIDED AND SHAPED INTO CAKES FOR BAKING. A FAMILY HAD ITS OWN PORTABLE OVEN OF STONE WHICH STOOD ABOUT THREE FEET HIGH AND WAS HEATED ON THE INSIDE BY WOOD OR DRY GRASS FIBRE. THE CAKES OF DOUGH BEING PASTERED ON THE OUTSIDE TO BE BAKED...

...USUALLY, IT WAS ONE OF THE YOUNGER DAUGHTERS OF THE HOUSEHOLD WHO SUPERVISED THE BAKING OF THE CAKES. FOR THEY HAD TO BE CAREFULLY TURNED DURING THE PROCESS LEFT ONE SIDE BE BURNT.

BREAD OVER 3,500 YEARS OLD EGYPTIAN CAKES LIKE THIS ARE ON DISPLAY AT THE METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART, NEW YORK CITY. HAVING BEEN FOUND IN ANCIENT TOMBS AT THESES EXACTLY AS THEY WERE BAKED!

MARCH 17 THRU MARCH 23, 2001

Art in bloom, March 21-25

Just in time for spring, the Friends of the University of Kentucky Art Museum present "Art in Bloom." Join us for five flower-filled days of receptions, lectures, and beautiful arrangements inspired by works currently on exhibit in "A Silver Celebration: The Collection at 25." "Art in Bloom" will feature area floral designers and members of local garden clubs who will display arrangements in the museum, from Wednesday, March 21, through Sunday, March 25. Each floral creation will be placed on a pedestal next to a painting or sculpture, and will echo themes, colors, and shapes found in the work of art. Isabel McHenry Clay, a museum docent and member of the Friends of the Art Museum, is serving as the honorary chairperson for this event.

"Art in Bloom" will open on Wednesday, March 21, with an exhibition preview from 5:30 to 7:00 p.m., at the museum, followed by a reception at the King Alumni House on Rose Street, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tickets for this event are available at $50 per person. Docent-led tours of the floral arrangements and the works of art that inspired them will be available on Thursday evening at 5:00, 6:00, and 7:00 p.m., before the Artists Series concert at the Singletary Center for the Arts. More tours will be available on Friday afternoon at 1 and 5:30 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday at noon.

On Saturday, March 24 at 1 p.m., Jane Boswell, gallery coordinator at the museum, will present "Flowers Speak," a gallery talk on floral symbolism. Using examples from works of art on exhibit, she will discuss the use of flowers to represent ideas and emotions throughout art and history. A reception will be held from 1:45 to 2:15. At 2:30, Dr. Robert Geneve, professor of horticulture at U.K., will give a slide lecture, "Gardens Around the World," in the Richard B. Freeman gallery in the museum. Afterwards, Dr. Geneve will sign his new book, "Blue Flowers."

On Sunday, March 25, at 1 p.m., Sheldon Tapley, professor of art at Centre College in Danville, will present a lecture, "Flowers and Fun." Professor Tapley's "House of Cards" is the signature work of art for "Art in Bloom." At 2:30 there will be a demonstration of "ikebana," the Japanese flower arranging technique.

There is a $10 fee per lecture. Tickets for all four lectures may be purchased for $30. For more information on "Art in Bloom," contact Deborah Borrowdale-Cox at 859/257-6199, or the museum at 859/257-5716.

The University of Kentucky Art Museum is open noon to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday, and noon to 8 p.m. on Fridays; closed Mondays and University holidays. For general information, contact Jane Boswell at (859) 257-5716. Visit web site

PAC The Troubadour Concert Series

presents 'An Evening with Country Star, Terri Clark'

Mention the name Terri Clark and most country music fans see an image of a statuesque dark-haired woman in tight jeans and a cowboy hat dashing around the stage belting out fast-paced love songs. High energy are key words when speaking of a Terri Clark concert performance.

Clark is coming to the Paramount Arts Center, in Ashland, on Friday, April 6, at 8 p.m. The award-winning country music songstress is sure to set the stage afire and hearts ablaze with her emotion-laden delivery of past hits and new releases.

In 1996, Terri Clark received the Academy of Country Music's best new female artist award. Her 1997 album hit gold with her remake of Linda Ronstadt's "Poor, Poor, Pitiful Me."

Clark's latest CD release, "Fearless," shows a new side of her personality. "'Fearless' is the most personal album I've ever made, and the most honest thing my fans have ever heard from me," said Clark. "I feel like I'm writing with my heart now more than my head. It's coming from a different place. A more grownup place...the songs I'm writing now are coming from a woman's standpoint instead of a little girl."

"An Evening with Terri Clark" is an event that the tri-state will not want to miss. Come out and experience an evening of "fearless" fun with Terri Clark. You'll be glad you did.

Tickets for this event are on sale now at the Paramount Arts Center, located at 1300 Winchester Avenue. Seats are available for $14.50/$19.50 and $24.50 (gold circle seating).

The number to call is (606) 324-3175.

Gospel Sing at MAC

The Mountain Christian Academy, in conjunction with the Mountain Arts Center, will present their Seventh Annual Gospel Sing event on March 17 at the Mountain Arts Center at 7 p.m.

The evening promises to be one of spiritually enriched entertainment with performances by some of the area's finest gospel musicians.

Scheduled to perform are the Sammons Family, a third generation of gospel musicians hailing from the Prestonsburg area. They have been performing for over thirty years. The Sammons Family was awarded the Goodwill Ambassador of Gospel Music award in 1994 by then governor Brereton Jones. Their offering of "music with a message" is sure to send your spirit soaring.

Also scheduled to appear are the Mann Family, from Masontown, West Virginia. The Mann's have been singing for more than fifteen years and see their music ministry as a call from God to spread His word and His message to all. Their latest recording project is entitled "Fightin' the Fight," written together in a joint effort by the family. They hope that you will experience the presence of God's power through their music.

The King's Messengers, from the mountains of southwest Virginia, will also perform at the gospel sing. The group has recorded sixteen albums in the past twenty-five years. They attribute their longevity and success to their dedication to the Lord, Jesus Christ. They expect to continue to minister in music as long as God wills it, and as long as there are people who desire to hear them.

LEAD STORIES

In a dispatch from a Chicago convention of "furies" (people, mostly men, obsessed with animals or animal characters), Vanity Fair magazine (March issue) profiled several people as typical of the 400 attendees: some who dress as animals (so passionately as to "become" the animal), or are sexually attracted to those who dress as animals, or are sexually attracted to stuffed animals ("plushies"), or who otherwise identify intensely, though nonsexually, with animals.

When Brian O'Dea, 52, touted his high-level marijuana-smuggling experience in his newspaper ad seeking a legitimate executive job, his phone "started ringing off the hook," according to a February report in Toronto's National Post (which ran O'Dea's ad on Feb. 19).

People Different From Us

Gary A. Wysong, 39, was arrested on an obscenity charge at the electronics department of a Meijer store in Middleton, Ohio, in January. According to police, Wysong popped his own hard-core pornography tape into one of the VCRs on sale and watched it for about five minutes before security officers, seeing that it was making other customers nervous, asked him to stop.

Least Competent People

Emery S. Pluff, 59, of South St. Paul, Minn., was arrested in February for allegedly robbing and molesting his wife (which he did, police said, pretending he was a stranger). For reasons not yet apparent, Pluff allegedly faked going to work on the morning of Jan. 30 and instead donned a black cape and a Halloween mask the family kept in the garage and entered the house, where he surprised his wife and dragged her into a back room. She apparently was not the least bit puzzled by her perpetrator's identity and asked Emery repeatedly why he was doing this.

by DR. CAROL COMBS-MORRIS, DVM

This past weekend I was busy with the Eastern Kentucky Kennel Club dog show, (Saturday and Sunday, March 10 & 11). I was sitting in Morehead, holding down a trophy, literature and catalog table the entire weekend. We had around 600 dogs entered each day in the Conformation competition and about 70 in the Obedience trial. Anyhow, time was scarce this entire week for me to get out a column. Once again, I turned to one of my doggie e-mails from a friend. This one is from Barbara Dunn, who hails from Great Britain, by way of Auxier (I still haven't figured that out). If you attended the dog show, you saw her holding down yet another catalog/trophy table or stewarding the Obedience Trial. Anyway, thanks Barb, you've saved my neck this week! Also, thanks to the unknown author.

Once again, I mean absolutely no disrespect or sacrilege here.

DOGS' LETTERS TO GOD

Dear God,

*How come people love to smell flowers, but seldom, if ever, smell one another? Where are their priorities? *When we get to Heaven, can we sit on Your couch? Or is it the same old story? *Excuse me, but why are there cars named after the jaguar, the cougar, the mustang, the colt, the stangray, and the rabbit, but not one named for a dog? How often do you see a cougar riding around? We dogs love a nice ride! I know every breed cannot have its own model, but it would be easy to rename the Chrysler Eagle the Chrysler Beagle!

*If a dog barks his head off in the forest and no human hears him, is he still a bad dog? *When my foster mom's friend comes over to our house, he smells like musk! What's he been rolling around in? *Is it true that in Heaven, dining room tables have on-ramps? *If we come back as humans, is that good or bad? *More meatballs, less spaghetti, please. (Personal note: I believe this one was written by our clinic mascot, Deputy!)

*When we get to the Pearly Gates, do we have to shake hands to get in? *We dogs can understand human verbal instructions, hand signals, whistles, horns, clickers, beepers, scent ID's, electromagnetic energy fields, and Frisbee flight paths. What do humans understand? *Are there dogs on other planets, or are we alone? I have been howling at the moon and stars for a long time, but all I ever hear back is the Beagle across the street.

*Are there mailmen in Heaven? If there are, will I have to apologize? *Is it true that dogs are not allowed in restaurants because we can't make up our minds what NOT to order? Or is the carpets again? *I live at the shelter. Many of the animals here have names and I don't. Could You give me a name, please? It would be good for my self-esteem.

*The new terrier I live with just peed on the Oriental rug and I have a feeling my family might blame me 'cuz they think I'm jealous of this stupid dog. Since they have no sense of smell, how can I convince them I'm innocent? Does PetsMart sell lie detectors? *Until next week, enjoy your pet!

Until next week, enjoy your pet!

KFW announces "Hopscotch House" retreat opportunities

The Kentucky Foundation for Women (KFW) is currently accepting applications for retreat opportunities at Hopscotch House for feminist artists, arts groups and grassroots organizations who are working toward positive social change for women. Hopscotch House, Kentucky Foundation for Women's Residency and Retreat Center, is located on 10 acres of farmland in eastern Jefferson County.

Retreats will last from one night to one week, and focus on the arts, feminism, social change, or environmental advocacy. Retreats are available from March 15 through June 15. KFW is committed to making the Hopscotch House programs accessible to a wide range of women from every ethnic background and income level. This includes rural and urban women, women who did not complete high school or college, and women with disabilities. The Foundation is offering limited stipends on an as needed basis to help cover travel, childcare, and other related expenses.

During this time, Hopscotch House will also serve as a residency center for adults who have received grants from KFW. All participants will be asked to join in discussion forums and fill out written evaluations about their retreat experience.
