HB 144 commission publishes findings

The 10-year plan to address the need and quality of services and supports for people with disabilities and their family, and friends has been released.

The Commission on Services and Supports for Persons with Mental Retardation and Other Developmental Disabilities has released "Kentucky's Plan: From Dreams to Realities for Quality and Choice for All Individuals with Mental Retardation and Other Developmental Disabilities.

"I would like to acknowledge the hard work of the commission members, who were instrumental in compiling this report which stresses fully-integrated community supports for individuals with mental retardation and other developmental disabilities," said Marcia Morgan, Interim Health Services Cabinet secre-

PCC students take part in domestic violence exercise

Prestonsburg Community College students take part in a convincing mock domestic violence staging at Pennington Trailer Court early Thursday morning. The event was coordinated by Sgt. Mike Dixon, criminalistics professor at Prestonsburg Community College, continued his "hands-on" teaching methods Thursday morning as Dixon, PCC students, Kentucky State Police, the Floyd County Sheriff's Department and Prestonsburg City Police gathered for another staged event to provide students with an illustrative example of police procedure.

This latest mock event centered around domestic violence, an area of law enforcement procedure that places officers at the highest level of danger, according to Dixon.

The event, which after some final preparations began at 9:30 a.m., was coordinated by Sgt. Shawn Roop of the Floyd County Sheriff's department who is also a part-time law enforcement instruc-

What may be a final chapter in the ongoing concern for events that occurred during a recent bus trip to Daytona Beach, Fla., involving 50 Prestonsburg High School students and two mothers accompanying the charter has been decided in Wise, Va., this week

According to a press release from Wise Police Department, the investigation into possible charges against the two mothers, Donna Collins, a first-grade teacher at Allen Elementary, and Susan Hicks, has been concluded.

The Wise police department has stated that there will be no charges filed against Collins and Hicks.

This decision came after that department's review of Virginia codes as well as consultations with Wise's two prosecutors found that there was "insufficient evidence to charge the adults.'

The incident, which occurred April 7, has been closely monitored by some parents of children who were on the trip, as well as the community of Prestonsburg itself.

The possible prosecution of Collins and Hicks had been largely anticipated since Wise Police Chief Tony Bates

Lawsuit filed over bus wreck

by MARY MUSIC STAFF WRITER

A lawsuit was filed against the Floyd County Board of Education on April 16, concerning a school bus accident that occurred the morning of September 21.

Amberus Brown filed the lawsuit on behalf of his daughter, Leigh Ann Brown, who was allegedly injured in the accident which occurred on Johns Branch Road.

Brown's attorney, Randy Campbell, of Weinberg, Campbell and Collins in Hindman, alleges in the lawsuit that negligence on behalf of the driver, Elinda Green of Hippo, caused injury to Leigh Ann Brown.

CAP held a joint news conference with the Johnson County Fiscal Court at the Ramada Inn in Paintsville to announce its decision to move its main offices from Lancaster in Garrard County to a location at Hager Hill, two miles outside of Floyd County along Route 321.

During the press conference, CAP President Michael Sanders told the reporters, local officials and other dignitaries that the move would be a gradual one.

'We don't like to think of ourselves as riding in on a white horse to save everybody," Sanders said, "We like to think of ourselves as coming slowly on a mule and asking, 'How can we help?"

The decision to relocate to Johnson County came as a response to the organization's decision last fall to move its headquarters to a more centralized location. Since that time, several Eastern Kentucky counties attempted

"The purpose for this is to prepare the students for reallife situations," Roop said. "When we roll up on a scene in real life, you are faced with all of these outside factors."

The staging area was the Pennington trailer court just behind the Combs Airport less than a mile past the Johnson county line. The scene prior to the actual event was electric with anticipation as Dixon huddled students just outside the the impact of Christian empty trailer where the largest portion of the event would take

The mock event began as Dixon and two of his students fell into character and started unloading boxes from a truck into the trailer.

Dixon posed as a father-inlaw helping his son-in-law move out from his wife after unspecified problems had destroyed the relationship.

Just as scheduled, another vehicle pulled up and out stepped another student posing as the wife. They entered the trailer and an argument ensued.

The portion of the staging involved an understanding of the restrictions of an emergency protection order, which had been placed on the husband, an important area for students to have a clear understanding of, according to Roop.

The staged argument eventually led to pushing and shoving until Dixon, playing a quality role as a believable father who is angry as well as confused, became argumentative and forced the situation to esca-

The events that followed tested the students in each of their roles. The students who were assigned to perform policing duties found that distractions can often make getting a situation under control difficult and took away a better sense of how an incident involving domestic violence can quickly become dangerous.

Students posing as law enforcement officers proceeded to arrest the shooter, detaining him within a nearby cruiser, and then, with a certain degree of precision, arrested and detained others who were impeding the progress of dealing with the wounded.

'They handled it well," Roop said. "They got on scene well had handled things accordingly. I hope they got some information without having to just learn it from a book.

Dixon added that there was much to be learned from the follow-up plans connected to the staged event.

As an instructive sequel to Thursday morning's events, Dixon and Roop will initiate a mock courtroom situation with the help of Family Court Judge

Julie Paxton. The mock hearing will be Thursday, April 26, at 10 a.m. and, according to Dixon, should provide students a valuable learning experience which will serve to further illustrate the many elements connected to domestic violence situations.

Water quality monitoring workshops to be offered

stream or river near you is safe for fishing, swimming and other enjoyment?

A series of free community workshops by the Kentucky Watershed Watch Project, in cooperation with the Kentucky Division of Water, will help people know how to answer that question.

These free, day-long workshops will train participants in water quality monitoring techniques and how to take samples for laboratory analysis. The project hopes to recruit volunteers to be part of a statewide monitoring network.

All you have to know to participate is how to count to 10, differentiate color and follow printed directions. There is a lot of stream science involved in the program, but instructors use non-technical terms to explain the techniques. Instructors include outstanding water quality scientists and agency staff who specialize in Kentucky's streams and rivers.

Topics include making visual assessments, testing water chemistry, conducting biological surveys, taking lab samples and understanding the results from the tests to determine if a stream has pollution problems or not.

Monitoring results performed by volunteers trained by this program will be shared with communities, resource management agencies, water quality researchers and other interested parties.

To find out more about the program, visit the website at kywater.org/watch/.

Food prices show little change

Food prices in Kentucky have remained relatively stable over the past six months, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau's quarterly marketbasket survey.

The April survey of prices for 40 popular food items showed an average cost of $85.45, 2.1 percent above the previous survey in January but

Of six major food groups surveyed, only grain-based foods showed any significant increase in the first quarter of this year, with the average total cost for seven items in that group climbing by 6.4 percent. The total average for the seven dairy products, as well as five pork products, was virtually unchanged. The categories of beef and fruits/vegetables both were up by 3.1 percent.

Poultry and eggs were the best bargains, with total average prices falling by 4.2 per-

Bread prices were on the rise following a dramatic decline over the last quarter of 2000. For the first three months of this year, the average cost for a loaf of wheat bread went from $1.35 to only 10 cents higher than last $1.70, while white bread rose from $1.15 to $1.32. Meanwhile, a 32-ounce bottle of corn oil was 19 cents higher, at an average of $2.08.

> Other significant price hikes over the quarter were for T-bone steak (up 58 cents a pound), pork chops (up 41 cents higher) and tomatoes (11 cents a pound). Items showing notable declines were eggs (down 18 cents for a dozen extra large), American cheese (down 22 cents for a 24-slice package) and flour (17 cents cheaper for a five-pound sack).

Farm Bureau conducts the informal survey to help track retail food price trends. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the consumer price index for food is expected to increase 2 to 2.5 percent this year, following a 2.3 percent hike last year.

The share of the average food dollar received by

Our View

An act of God, or an evasion of responsibility?

The list of horribles associated with Martin County Coal refuse ponds continues to grow. The latest addition is a memo from files of the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA), which hints that slurry spills in 1994 and 2000 may have had the same cause.

The memo was written by MSHA engineer Larry Wilson shortly after a 1994 breakout at the company's Big Branch impoundment. It said mine maps of the area "appear to be inaccurate." It also warned that seals intended to separate the pond's bottom from the old underground mineworks below were inadequate.

Wilson urged "a very conservative design" for such sites. "It is possible that the only way to prevent this from happening again would be to completely backfill the mined-out areas (of old underground works)," he concluded.

But that wasn't done at the Martin County Coal site where, last October, some 250 million gallons of sludge broke through into an abandoned mine, then fouled regional water supplies and miles of Appalcahian streams.

After first accepting responsibility for that incident, and beginning a costly cleanup effort, Martin County Coal went to court and claimed it was an act of God. But it wasn't God who decided not to backfill abandoned mineworks under the pond that gave way last year. It wasn't God who certified the adequacy of structural seals.

It would be wrong, of course, to impugn Martin County Coal on the basis of one 1994 memo from one MSHA engineer. All sorts of questions remain, including these: Who saw that memo? Was it the only one that offered conclusions about the 1994 incident? If there were others, what did they say? What did MSHA finally tell Martin County Coal about the 1994 problem, and when? What did the firm do with that advice?

What the memo does suggest is the need for a broad look at Martin County Coal, and at MSHA's effort to help the firm mine safely.

Already Kentucky regulators are at odds with Martin County Coal over just how much of a barrier really existed, to prevent last October's disastrous breakout.

Already a highly respected member of the MSHA team assigned to probe the 2000 slurry spill has asked to be removed, because he thinks its report is going to be a whitewash. He specifically fears MSHA is unwilling to investigate itself.

MSHA is an agency in which communication and coordination have left something to be desired. The fate of that 1994 memo, if traced, could tell the public just how

Commercialism with a conscience?

As I near the quarter-century mark (due this month actually), I have found my perspectives on many things related to the teenage "scene" have changed. I can't relate to much of the music. can't say that I ever really did, though. I've always preferred Chuck Berry or Jerry Lee Lewis or Eric Clapton (the old, hard stuff), and new clothing styles said bye-bye to me with the untimely death of the t-shirt and flannel button-up combination. But I feel I have remained, for the most part, fairly able to connect to the SHELDONCOMPTON now-younger generation.

I realized this only recently while watching a television commercial. Many of my reflections come as inspiration from barely thought-out commercials where advertising takes a huge plunge toward reaching the very age group I have been discussing.

This commercial was not doing that however, and I must hand it to the creators - it was original.

Strangely enough I can only guess that it was an insurance commercial. There was a balding, gray-haired man in a tightly fitting suit being spotlighted in a dimly lit, slow-motion, black and white sort of format while what I guessed to be his voice was being dubbed over his infinitely wise countenance.

His take on the situation was, briefly, that he would not sell car insurance to a teen who had a sports car, that is a sports car that can go really, really fast, as opposed to a sports car that can ... well, never mind. He admitted proudly that he could not in good faith contribute to the sure death that would result from this > sale. This statement continued as the man's serious features gave way to a dark street where a fast, sleek, undetermined car (looked like a Corvette to me) peeled out and fishtailed toward a red light. Of course, the driver was a cocky teen boy who had just received the death machine

The commercial gave me the impression that some folks think that teenagers should not own sports cars, and, at least before thinking about it for a moment, I would be inclined to agree. But, unlike the producers of this commercial, I usually do tend to think about it for a moment.

Let us ponder.

If a sports car isn't for a teenager, then who's it for?

If a middle-age man buys a sports car, he is then ridiculed for trying to regain his lost youth. He is very quickly labeled as having at last lost his mind. "Bob's done it this time," someone might say. "He's up and bought a sports car. Before you know it he'll be wearing those acidwashed jeans again."

An adult woman, for whatever reason, can get by with buying a sports car without many comments being made. I have no clue as to why.

So maybe we should just restrict sports car purchases to women ages 35 or

Or maybe we should just quit making them altogether (I just heard Detroit

Crazy you say?

Think about it. A sports car, and I understand I'm using the term loosely, but most everyone knows the difference: (Any year) Camaro - sports car; (Any year) Dodge Aspen - not a sports car, but any sports car is usually registered for well over 100-plus miles per hour.

This is 45 miles per hour or more over the speed limit in most places that an average purchaser is going to drive.

Why make cars that go this fast? Maybe we should just make cars that go 65 miles an hour and no more. We could then reserve the 100-plus cars for things like police cars, ambulances, fire trucks,

Or maybe we should just keep selling them to those who best fit the description. A fast car is for a young person. It is the decision of the parent to buy their kids these cars. They can either buy it or not - no one is making them.

Besides, I suppose I shouldn't really hold commercials at such a high level in terms of presenting issues. That same evening I watched a cereal commercial in which an actor uttered these insightful words: "You think we should tell him that's a boy cow?"

The Bible is the answer

A congressman responded to the question of gun violence and the radical, left-wing agenda to confiscate handguns. He was against gun registration and would fund a study of violence to come up with the answer. Respectfully, we already have the answer. It is the Bible and Ten Commandments.

Registration now, confiscation later. Handguns now, all guns later. Their leaders have said it. In a democracy, if you want to enact a program which would not, in full disclosure. gain public support, you must create the circumstances which support your agenda and then thoroughly propagandize, making sure that the opposing view receives no notice

Why disarm Americans? In 1993, Sara Brady of Handgun Control fame explained this when she said that we must disarm those who would oppose us if we are to create a socialist America.

Part of the program which has been created by the left wing to justify gun registration and other tyrannies has been to destabilize our society through the appointment of liberal judges who will enforce the law feebly or even act against justice. (The best definition of liberalism is to liberate us from the traditional values of our society, whereas conservatism is to at conserve traditional values.)

Another part of this leftwing program to destabilize society is to promote the spurious issue of the "separation of church and state," promoted in a ruling of Supreme Court Justice (and former KKK member) Hugo Black in the 1930s. It is not in the Constitution, which only says in the Bill of Rights that Congress shall not establish a state religion. Our Founding Fathers said that our Constitution was only for the government of a religious and moral people and was unsuitable for the governance of any

In the mid-1930s, Antonio Gramsi, the head of the Italian Communist Party, briefed Stalin that communism could not win in a head-on confrontation with capitalism. The strategy must be to demoralize capitalist societies by promoting immoral values. Hugo Black's anti-religion initiative was the first step. From the. American Communist Workers Party appropriated $8 million in 1958 to get pornography started in the U.S. From the 1960s. it has been a major communist initiative to get drugs going in this country. Included was a program to make them widely available to our forces in Vietnam.

In 1953, Rowan Gaither, president of the Ford Foundation, responding to the Reece Commission investigating the tax-free foundations, admitted the purpose of their donations was to change the values of the American people so that one day the U.S. could be merged with the Soviet

In 1969, Dr. Day, the medical director of Planned Parenthood, laid out the agenda to bring the U.S. into the New World Order, target date 2000. Among other things, he said that women's fashions and Hollywood and television entertainment would get more and more blatant and that laws would be passed against drugs, but not so much as to

Looking for fun? MAC volunteer program may be the answer!!

The smiling individuals dressed in maroon vests who greet you in the lobby, take your ticket, show you to your seat and provide you with assistance during the performance are all members of the Mountain Arts Center Volunteer Program.

Although volunteers are frequently seen during performances, ushering and working in our coat check room, in reality, volunteers are involved in all phases of the Center. Prior to a show, volunteers stuff playbills, and once the crowds are gone, they assist with cleaning the theater. On non-performance days, there is still work to be done at the MAC.

Quite simply, without the dedication and continuing support of our volunteer staff, the Center could not function.

If you are looking for something to do, or if you would like to be a part of this wonderful service opportunity, then we are interested in talking to you.

Call (606) 886-2623, and ask for Loretta.

On Earth Day, remember: If environmentalists succeed, they will make human life possible

by Michael S. Berliner

The approach of another Earth Day is the occasion for a lesson in cause and effect. It is no coincidence that an energy crisis is beleaguering California, where environmentalists have campaigned against the construction of much needed power plants and even now are continuing to sabotage new sources of energy. Also witness their current campaign against the drilling of oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, with one of its effects being higher prices at the gas pump.

But the lesson goes further. It is a lesson in the real motives of the environmentalists; not clean air and clean water, but the demolition of technological/industrial civilization. Their goal is not the advancement of human health, human happiness, and human life; It is a subhuman world where "nature" is worshipped like the totem of some primitive religion.

In a nation founded on the pioneer spirit, environmentalists have made "development" an evil word. They inhibit or prohibit the development of Alaskan oil, offshore drilling, nuclear power-and every other practical form of energy. Housing, commerce, and jobs are sacrificed to spotted owls and snail darters. Medical research is sacrificed to the "rights" of mice.

Logging is sacrificed to the "rights" of trees. No instance of the progress which brought man out of the cave is safe from the onslaught of those "protecting" the environment from man, whom they consider a rapist and despoiler by his

Nature, they insist, has "intrinsic value," to be revered for its own sake, irrespective of any benefit to man. As a consequence, man is to be prohibited from using nature for his own ends. Since nature supposedly has value and goodness in itself, any human action which changes the environment is necessarily immoral. Of course, environmentalists invoke the doctrine of intrinsic value not against wolves that eat sheep or beavers that gnaw trees; but only against man, only when man wants something.

The ideal world of environmentalists is not twenty-first century Western civilization; it is the Garden of Eden, a world with no human intervention in nature, a world without innovation or change, a world without effort, a world where survival is somehow guaranteed, a world where man has mystically merged with the "environment." Had the environmentalist mentality prevailed in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, we would have had no Industrial Revolution, a situation environmentalists would cheer-at least those few who might have managed to survive without the lifesaving benefits of modern science and technology.

The expressed goal of environmentalism is to prevent man from changing his environment, from intruding on nature. That is why environmentalism is the enemy of man, the enemy of human life. Intrusion is necessary for human survival. Only by intrusion can man avoid pestilence and famine. Only by intrusion can man control goals. Intrusion improves the environment, if by "environment" one means the surroundings of manthe external material conditions of human life. In the environmentalists' paean to "Nature," human nature is omitted. For the environmentalists, the "natural" world is a world without man. Man has no legitimate needs, but trees, ponds, and bacteria somehow do.

They don't mean it? Heed the words of the consistent environ-

"The ending of the human epoch on Earth," writes philosopher Paul Taylor in Respect for Theory of Nature: A Environmental Ethics, "would most likely be greeted with a hearty 'Good riddance!" In a glowing review of Bill McKibben's The End of Nature, biologist David M. Graber writes (Los Angeles Times, October 29, 1989): "Human happiness [is] not as important as a wild and healthy planet . . . Until such time as Homo sapiens should decide to rejoin nature, some of us can only hope for the right virus to

Such is the naked essence of environmentalism; it mourns the death of one whale or tree but actually welcomes the death of billions of people. A more malevolent, man-hating philosophy is unimag-

The guiding principle of environmentalism is self-sacrifice, the sacrifice of longer lives, healthier lives, more prosperous lives, more enjoyable lives, i.e., the sacrifice of human lives. But an individual is not born in servitude. He has a his own sake. He has no duty to sacrifice it to the needs of others and the "needs" of the environand certainly not to the "needs" of the non-human.

To save mankind from environmentalism, what's needed is not the compromising his life and project long-range moral right to live his own life for approach of those who urge a "balance" between the needs of man ment. To save mankind requires the wholesale rejection of environmentalism as hatred of science, technology, progress, and human life. To save mankind requires the return to a philosophy of reason and individualism, a philosophy which makes life on earth possible. Michael S. Berliner is the former executive director of the Ayn Rand Institute in Marina del Rey, Calif. The Institute promotes the philosophy of Ayn Rand, author of

were necessary to cull out the weak in our society.

The most serious nail in the coffin of America has been the near-complete control of the dominant media and much of public education by left-wing interests. You can teach any "lifestyle" or world religion in public school, including Wicca, but don't dare mention the Bible or the Ten Commandments. And teach evolution (evolution is necessary to atheism and atheism is necessary to communism). In this destabilized society, is it surprising that children kill children and that this is used as an excuse to disarm our people so that none might resist the movement into the New World Order? The United Nations world dictatorship? Did you forget the communist dictatorship of Russia, the fascist dictatorship of Italy and the Nazi dictatorship of Germany?

Sports in Kentucky...

by BOB WATKINS TIMES COLUMNIST

Guy Morriss's coming out party is Saturday when Kentucky plays its annual Blue-White spring football game.

UK's new coach with a one-year contract hopes his team shows enough promise to add a bounce to season ticket sales, while hiding enough newly installed offense to spring on Louisville in September.

Kentucky fans will be looking for

1. Has Jared Lorenzen gotten his weight under control? Can he move around? Improve reading defenses? How will understudy Shane Boyd fare in his first dress rehearsal?

2. Will a year-older offensive line be better in the red zone? Will Artose Pinner show break-out form?

3. Is JUCO receiver Aaron Boone the next Craig Yeast?

4. Will the defense be Jerry Claiborne fierce for a change? Is linebacker Jamal White a budding star? Will Dennis Johnson be bigger and better after a year off? Will defensive tackles DeWayne Robertson and Jeremy Caudill and swarming linebackers make UK better than last in SEC defense?

Answers start coming at Georgetown College at 4 p.m. Saturday.

Gem Gyms

KHSAA Hall of Famer and coach at Elizabethtown Catholic High School Hardin McLane: "During my 45 years I have been in many interesting gymnasiums. As a senior at WKU I refereed high school games — my officiating partners being mostly Jim Richards and Dero Downing. The gym at Clarkson comes to mind. The referees had to go through the men's rest room to get to the official's dressing room. (You always peeked

"The Kyrock gym (down the road from Sunfish (Edmonson County), had a pot-belly stove on each end of the floor and they did a great job of heating the gym, although there was no offense or defense played on those two sides of the basket. The heat was terrific, but the chance of running into one of the stoves kept all the players from that side of the basket - on each end."

he University of Kentucky football program will hold its annual Blue-White Spring Game on Saturday at 4 p.m. at Rawlings Stadium at Georgetown College. The game is being played in Georgetown because of the renovation of the playing surface at Commonwealth Stadium. For the fifth straight year, the Blue-White Spring Game will open with UK football alumni playing the first quarter. The first quarter score will remain on the board when the Wildcat varsity takes the field in the second quarter. The varsity will play the final three quarters.

Prestonsburg High School alumnus Jeremy laudill, a playe freshman at a defensive tackle position, and redshirt freshman Gerad Parker, a Lawrence County High alum, will be a part of the game.

Former Wildcats Marty Joyce and Joe Prince will be the coaches for the alumni that will play the first quarter of the game. Joyce was a twoyear letterman at defensive tackle in 1967-68 under Coach Charlie Bradshaw. Prince was a four-year letterman, 1983-86 under Coach Jerry Claiborne and was an offensive lineman on the 1983 and 1984 teams that played in the Hall of

AC Runnin' Rebs travel to Paintsville to take on Tigers

by STEVE LeMASTER SPORTS EDITOR

The Allen Central Runnin' Rebels, under first-year head man Larry Maynard, travel to Paintsville today to take on The Tigers. Paintsville, one of the best teams in the entire state, just recently returned from a successful trip to South Carolina. Paintsville's crosstown rival, Johnson Central, also made the trip to South Carolina to compete in the same tournament.

Allen Central kept busy last week by competing in the Queen City Classic at Perry County Central High. The Runnin' Rebs' performance in the tournament was less than what the team had hoped for going in.

Both squads have some strong capable arms. Allen Central has Jeremy Hayes, Brandon Sizemore, Henry Napier and Neil Allen at the top of their rotation. Paintsville counters with equally strong arms such as brothers Chas and Tate Harmon, Jeremy Slone, Boomer Blanton and eighth-grader Josh

College scholarships available for high school baseball players

The Powerhouse Baseball Academy is now seeking 13-19 year-old players to participate in an intensive five-day instructional showcase camp at Florida's Cocoa Expo Sports Complex, June 24-28. The camp offers high school athletes from Kentucky who would like to earn college scholarships, the opportunity to showcase their skills before 15 of the country's top college coaches.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for a serious baseball player to improve his skills dramatically and receive more exposure with college coaches in one week than most players receive in their whole careers," said Al Lopez, the event's director and former college coach at the University of The staff will include college coaches from baseball powerhouses like U. of Florida, Wake Forest U., Florida International U., U. of Alabama, Clemson U., U. of Louisville, The Citadel, U. of Georgia and Hofstra U.

On the Hill Will

Willie Stargell, the most celebrated Pittsburgh Pirate of the modern era after Roberto Clemente, died last week. Pops is high on my most unforgettables list. He allowed me time once in Cincinnati, at his office, outside the batting cage at Riverfront Stadium. Instead of a celebrity, Stargell made an interview more a conversation with a friend. Matter-of-fact and casual, he spoke softly, gripping his huge bat like a golf club, noting what a pretty day it was.

It was during batting practice and Pops handed me a BP baseball and winked. He reckoned how Dave Parker (standing within earshot), couldn't hit a watermelon if they rolled it up to the plate on a sunny mornin, in August.

Stargell cackled and Parker pushed him and they laughed.

I won't say Stargell was down to earth, because we all are and he knew it. Unforgettable? Yes. "On The Hill Will" Pirates broadcaster Bob Prince called him. Willie Stargell was 61.

And so it goes.

Through My Eyes

by KATHY J. PRATER FEATURES EDITOR

It's early Friday morning and I'm thinking that I'll get a jump on the week to come by writing next week's column now.

What's uppermost on my mind this moment is the feeling I had as I stepped out into what was, finally, after days of ninety-plus degrees weather, a fresh spring morning.

My senses were assaulted with cool air dampened from a pre-dawn shower of rain. The grass seemed greener (and taller), the flowers seemed brighter, and even my elderly, and often confused, mother took note of the blooms appearing on the old dogwood in our front yard.

Now this is the way it's supposed to be.

Also on my mind as the result of Pam's writings in connection with her weekend treks to local area cemeteries, are the annual pilgrimages I would make each spring throughout my childhood to my grandfather's gravesite on Alum Lick Creek of Caney Fork.

My grandfather died of a stroke in 1952, some years before my birth, so I came to know him only through stories told me by my father, grandmother, and other family members.

His name was Adam Prater, and he tended land and swine on a small farm located on Pyramid. He died as a result of a stroke he suffered as he carried mail by horseback through his community on a cold winter's day in February. I was told that his horse returned home without him, and that this was the signal to my grandmother that something had gone vastly awry in his, as well as her, day. She set out on foot to find him, and did; but sadly, my grandfather did not live to mount his horse another day, or to carry the mail or offer another sweet "goodnight" kiss to his wife.

As I mentioned, he is buried on a hillside, "in the very head of Alum Lick." My dad and I would travel to my grandmother's small mobile home on Pyramid, where she would be waiting, walking stick in hand, and perhaps with a lightweight kerchief tied across her head if it appeared that the day may turn out to be a bit breezy.

From there we would backtrack to Caney, drive as far as possible up Alum Lick's dirt road, and then park my father's car at the point where the dirt road ended and became, instead,

For me, this was where the fun began! We made this trek each year in early spring, so the creekwaters were always quite cold. I know this because I somehow, despite having "plenty good sense" and being adequately cautioned against it, nevertheless, always managed to get my shoes (i.e. "feet") wet.

My father would become perturbed and I would then beg to remove my shoes since they were now soggy and uncomfortable (which was what I was really after all along). It was, after all, springtime and after a long winter indoors, I wanted badly to wiggle my toes in some fresh running puddles.

Although my grandmother would intervene on my behalf, my father would never allow me to remove my shoes, so I walked the rest of the journey with my tennis shoes squishing

The search is on. The year 1966 produced the very first graduating class of Prestonsburg Community College. Dr. Robert Perry, English professor and local historian, wants to know where are they now?

Dr. Perry is in the process of conducting an Internet search for this esteemed class of graduates. He has thus far identified 31 of the 41 grad-sion surrounding pre-registration and registration

162 fledgling students had registered for enrollment as of Tuesday morning, September 1, 1964, according to a report from the Floyd County Times dated September 3 of the same year. Some confuprocedures was thought to have occurred at this time, as 300 students, according to pre-registration records were expected to have enrolled for the opening semester. Dr. Henry Campbell, Jr., the community college's then director, extended the college's registration deadline to September 29 in an attempt to allow the remaining 193, of the total pre-registered 355 applicants, to complete the reg-

Postscript: The long and the short of it

by PAM SHINGLER COCUMNIST

My uncle-by-marriage, the late Elmer Webb, loved John's Creek, Growing up in Auxier's heyday, he was familiar with the creek that runs into the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River at the far end of the coal camp.

He loved to fish and row a boat around the mouth of the creek, way before it was interrupted by the Army Corps of Engineers in the interest of flood control. He risked the wrath of his own father, a harsh, Northeast Coal Company painter, to marry my Aunt Erie, the sassy, domineering first-born of Daniel and Betsy Ann Castle Ward. Uncle Elmer's father, who had been born in Minnesota to eastern Kentucky migrants, objected to Aunt Erie because she was one of the so-called dark Wards.

In addition to the village of Auxier, Northeast Coal owned several old farm houses on John's Creek, When Uncle Elmer and Aunt Erie were married in the late 1920s, they set up housekeeping in one of these houses, just down the road from her parents. Here, they had ample room for a large garden and some chickens and hogs, and Elmer was close to his beloved creek, where he found many a meal of fish, mussels

Things to Ponder...

'Are you looking up or down'

by MABLE ROWE LINEBERGER, PH.D.

"Look up into the hills! Keep your hand upon the throttle and your eye upon the rail. Look for the silver lining. I saw the light. I saw the light. No more in darkness, no more in night. Now, I'm so happy...' Psychologically, these old songs and sayings encouraged everyone to stand tall and look forward to what was yet to come. Perhaps the point was to keep one's thoughts on working hard and following a pre-determined path to reach a future goal, similar to a train with a schedule to keep. Then, there is the thought that if we are not looking up and about, we are more likely to miss what is going on about us, such as not understandingseeing the light-what is needed and, so to speak, staying in the dark. The chants used for military marching are another way in which looking up and checking out your position is so important and emphasized as the thing to do; "Head and eyes up off the ground; Your dress is right and cover down (used to keep the group in a straight line)." Do you tend to walk looking downward? Are you slouchy and drooping? Does your body profile appear to be cousin to a "C"? You may be doing yourself in by your gait and, especially, your posture. When you stand with your arms down by your sides, are your palms facing back? Do you have your shoulders back and your eyes looking ahead or are you unaware of the state of your posture and what it may reflect about you to others?

There was a brief caution about the possibility that mentioning one's posture may not be a very exciting subject, but then on the other hand, a person's posture seems to tie in so tightly to one's mental health and physical well-being. Similar to "we are what we eat," others judge us according to how we present our "package" overall. No one can contradict the importance of that almighty "First Impression". Of course, we all acknowledge that posture certainly is a big time contributor to the total outcome, if we are not the one being assessed. But we are not likely to think of "standing straight as a poker" when the occasion requires, if we are feeling very insecure and anxious. There is also the importance of sitting properly in a chair. How lovely is it to see people on talk shows busy "selling themselves," but failing to notice and keep check on their

These and other types of body language announce to the outside world how our inner selves are feeling and how much we value ourselves; sloppy and slumped posture is prone to indicating a depressed, overwhelmed emotional state. # This Town That World

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request. The following column was written in 1961.

If news is the unusual, that gem about Castro receiving the Russian Peace Prize is the top news of the week, perhaps any week. Castro, winner of a peace prize... Russia, donor of a peace prize... My psychiatrist repeats those words to me, and I yelp back: "Rattlesnake tails and baby through your body language?

One cannot forget the importance of the interaction of physical and mental well being. An example is that, when we stand tall, we can breathe deeper and thus blood circulates better, muscles are able to do their job more effectively, whether they are to work or relax, and, we can more adequately cope, solve problems, and obtain goals. We have heard through various media sources, some longterm difficulties of the general drawbacks of poor posture, such as the negative impact of chronic back pain, respiratory problems, and skeleton-spine deformity. Also, we often become very tired from carrying around a mispositioned body when we are emotionally distressed and feel as though we do not have the energy nor the motivaton to care about how we look, much less what others think about us at the moment. It was very interesting that one researcher of pessimism and optimisim gave tips for becoming an optimist and one was, "Adopt the straight posture and brisk stride of the optimist, use upbeat language (don't say you're tired, say you're recharging) and let others see you acting optimistically." This would also be a manner in which one could have a great psychological "posture" no matter what one's height might be.

Remember that the world is likely to recognize us by our posture whether we be up close or at a distance. Can't you imagine what the flapper looked like in "Ain't she sweet. See her coming down the street."

Seniors travel to Frankfort

The Floyd County Senior citizens all met at the McDowell Senior Citizens Center to discuss the future of senior citizens with newly appointed state senator Johnny Ray Turner. Seniors from Martin, Prestonsburg, Mud Creek, Wheelwright, Betsy Layne, Wayland, and McDowell all attended.

Concerns surrounding money for programs and services such as home delivered meals and arrangements for trips to doctor's offices were discussed. All senior centers offer such services and a shortage of funds often makes it difficult to provide these needed services.

Sen. Tuner brought to the group's attention the fact that he and Rep. Greg Stumbo had already met to discuss these issues. Everyone felt better and enjoyed their day with the senator.

On February 21, a group of seniors traveled to Frankfort to meet with and spend the day with government officials. It was a pleasant day made possible by Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson and his wife, Donna. The seniors enjoyed a lunch with Sen. Turner and Rep. Stumbo. A fun time was had by all.

McDowell Senior Citizens encourages everyone 60 or older to visit the senior center in their community.

Class

istration process.

According to the Times article, Dr. Campbell is quoted as having said that the first day of classes would be conducted without fanfare. "We will have a brief assembly period, then to work," he said.

A formal dedication ceremony was held on September 29, 1964, at which then Governor Bert T. Combs appeared as an esteemed guest and featured speaker.

In an article that appeared in the Floyd County Times on July 8, 1965, Dr. Campbell wrote of his impressions of PCC's first year that "the institution so well lived up to the things expected of it" and, in addition, that it "is preparing for expansion to meet not only current needs but also the needs...of future years."

Records show that of the students who entered instruction in the fall of 1964, six graduated with associate degrees in science; 11 with associate degrees in the arts; 37 with certificates in college studies; and, two with one-year stenographic certificates.

From these ranks came one doctor, four lawyers, twenty teachers, six administrators, three small business owners, one bank examiner, one accountant, one mortician, one magazine editor, one inventor, one White House audio technician, one yachtbuilder, and one of the nation's leading electronic engineers.

Dr. Perry notes that in his interviews with the graduates that he has thus far been successful in contacting, that each feels strongly that the opportunity to attend a higher education facility in their own hometown was a strong factor in enabling them to become successful adults.

Prestonsburg Community College was, for many of these students, the only opportunity they could have been afforded to continue their post-high school educations. Then, as well as for today, students were allowed to remain at home and continue their studies, easing the financial burden of their families in having a child enrolled in college.

In this, the opening segment of a continuing series, we invite you to go back in time with us as we, with the help of Dr. Perry, trace the current day status of a group of these students, highlighting the success that their initial contact with Prestonsburg Community College eventually afforded them.

Dr. Perry writes:

"The Class of 1966 has success stories galore. Since I don't know where to begin, I will begin alphabetically, with Dr. Charles Arnett. When I interviewed him, Charles said that for him, Prestonsburg Community College was a lifesaver. If the college hadn't existed, he would have been forced to leave the county and find work elsewhere.

He also told me that spending two years at PCC before moving on to Lexington gave him time to adjust to the rigors of academic life and get used to living away from home.

Raised on Big Branch of Abbott Creek, Charles attended a one-room school for six years before transferring to Prestonsburg Elementary and graduating from Prestonsburg High School.

After earning his two-year degree from PCC in 1966, Charles moved on to the University of Kentucky, where he earned his B.S. in Zoology in 1968. From there he went to the University of Louisville, where he was awarded his M.D. in 1972.

Following his internship in Savannah, Georgia, Charles borrowed money from the Kentucky Rural Scholarship Program and established a practice in Inez, Kentucky, where doctors were much needed. In 1975, wishing to be closer to his beloved Abbott Creek, Charles joined the staff of the Archer Clinic in Prestonsburg, where he has practiced ever since.

During his years in Prestonsburg, Charles has been very active in the community, serving on the Floyd County Board of Health and the Foundation Board of Prestonsburg Community College.

Prestonsburg Community College salutes Dr. Charles Arnett, Class of 1966!"

arena Hayes Grigsby, our outstanding loving and wonderful Mother passed from this life Easter Sunday, April 15, 2001. She was 91.

She was born of Solomon Paradise and Elizabeth Ratliff, in the small coal mining town of Auxier, Kentucky on November 8, 1909.

Her genetic father was an Italian immigrant, a distinction she held in the highest regard throughout her life. She was later adopted by Paul Cecil Hayes, who came to be the only father she ever really knew and with whom she had a wonderful and loving relationship.

In her teen-age years, she played piano at a silent movie theatre. She was first in her graduating class at Martin High School and she went on to attend the Ashland Business College, Morehead State College, and to study voice at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. While studying on a music scholarship at Morehead, her beautiful soprano voice won her the Atwater Kent Foundation National Radio Audition, representing the state of Kentucky. She continued on to compete on a national level.

As he grew older, I was his listener, and he often referred to his love of the creek. He repeated, each time as if the first, that John's Creek lacked only a few tenths of a mile being a river, flowing from its origins near the Virginia border, through Pike County to the Floyd/Johnson county line.

I was reminded of this recently as I read the new book by David and Lalie Dick, "Rivers of Kentucky." It's a rich read, tracing the state's major waterways, not only by geography but also by the colorful people who make the water matter. It's a good book to add to your Kentucky collection.

The Dicks, from their farm in Bourbon County, point out early on in the book what I had already learned from Uncle Elmer — that to be designated a river a waterway should be at least 100 miles long. As Uncle told me many times, John's Creek barely falls short.

Yet, had it been in central or western Kentucky, it might well have been John's River. The Dicks review stream after stream in those regions that fall far short of the standard definition of river, yet have traditionally carried the name.

One, in fact, is less than two miles long, but is still designated Finns River on old maps. The authors search for it in Allen County and find only one person who remembers the waterway by that name. Most of the modern locals know it as Little Trammel Creek. One local man, in the blunt language you might hear around these parts, is quoted as saying, "It's not big enough to be a river."

Blame it on the map makers.

Others streams that we might be familiar with as rivers don't pass muster. The Gasper River in Logan County is only 25 miles long. The beautiful Rockcastle River in south central Kentucky is only three-fourths the length of a river. The Pond, Rough, Mud and Tradewater in western Kentucky are all called rivers, but they don't measure up.

Several rivers in the cave region of southern Kentucky are of indeterminate length. They flow along at ground level and then disappear into the limestone, reappearing later from who knows where.

It makes you wonder why our ancestors didn't name more of our streams rivers, whether they met the magic 100-mile marker or not. Why didn't we call our big creek John's River? By the same token, it's a cinch Beaver Creek is considerably longer than Finns and Gasper rivers. Why don't we have the Left and Right forks of Beaver River? Our Mud Creek is probably longer than the Mud River in western Kentucky. How did those folks get the title? Maybe it says something about our propensity to downplay everything, to be more humble than we should

This is not to say that we don't have many, many, honest-to-goodness rivers in these parts. Our pearl is, of course, the Big Sandy, whose forks start up in Virginia and meet in time to greet the Ohio a little piece north of

Our neighbor, the Licking River, forms just over the hill, around Gunlock in Magoffin County and meanders northwesterly for 320 miles where it pours our trash into the Ohio near Cincinnati.

Two that start in the vicinity of Letcher County are no slouches, either. The Kentucky River, gathering its various forks, measures more than 250 miles from around Whitesburg to Carrollton, a little north of Louisville.

The Cumberland, which feeds a couple of big lakes, wends its way from around Oven Fork some 700 miles to Smithland in far western Kentucky, where it gives itself to the Ohio, not far from where the Ohio joins the Mississippi. On its journey, the Cumberland travels into Tennessee and then, like so many of us, decides to come back home to Kentucky.

David and Lalie Dick's book is a good way to get the scoop on the state's fabulous waterways. I just wish Uncle Elmer could have read it. He would have loved the fact that John's Creek might just as well have been a river. Of course, I think it already was in his mind.

Question: For the past year I have been having days with symptoms that keep me from feeling well. My aches migrate from joint to joint - one time it will be my thighbones, and the next week it may be my elbow. I feel tired even when I've slept well. I also have my ears get hot for no apparent reason, and when this happens I frequently get a headache. What could be causing these problems?

Answer: The symptoms you describe can be caused by a of illnesses. Consequently, I can't tell you specifically what is causing you to feel this way. What I can do, however, is explain the approach your doctor will take to help you find out the nature of your mala-

The first step we physicians take in determining the nature of any illness is to listen to the patient. I know - some of us are better at this than others. As part of that listening process, we must ask a host of "doctor-type" questions to find out about your medical history. These might include the way your symptoms began, how they are now, what you do to feel better, what you do that makes you feel worse, and questions about medical problems you've had in the past. With this information your doctor is ready to do a physical examination. After combining information from your history and your physical examination, your doctor will compile a short list of ailments that could possibly produce your combination of normal and abnormal findings.

Tests are ordered to determine which of the ailments on the short list of possibilities is the actual cause of your symptoms. Many people don't understand that this is often a lengthy process requiring repeated trips to the lab, X-ray or hospital for additional studies. After a correct diagnosis has been established, the proper treatment can be started. I know that this entire process sounds complicated, and it is.

THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES

Now to address your symptoms: The fatigue you report can be produced from almost any ailment from allergies to cancer - with non-life threatening illnesses being far-and-away the most common. The "on againand joints is a less common complaint. There are several types of arthritis that can do this, but so can simple conditions such as fatigue, muscle overuse and depression.

Elephants have large ears to help cool their bodies. African elephants have larger ones than Indian elephants because of the hotter African climate. We humans have a rich blood supply to our ears, too, although it is insufficient to contribute substantially to body temperature regulation. Despite this, when we get hot (or when we blush) there is increased blood flow through our ears. Yours apparently "get hot" at times other

The headache you experience at the same time you have hot ears makes me suspicious that the blood vessels supplying your brain are also having some change from the normal pattern of blood flow. Both symptoms may actually be a form of migraine headache. An alternative explanation is that they both result from some more generalized circulatory condition that also has increased blood pressure. They could even be the consequence of eating MSG.

noisily and my socks feeling heavy inside my shoes.

We sidestepped large and small creek stones made dangerously slick with the overgrowth of green algae. We manuevered our way past spots where the creek was deeper and the water rushing. We pushed "barbwire" fences down low to the ground and held them there for one another so that we could cross at one point from the creekside into an open field where we were able to walk quite "a smart ways" on dry ground. Of course, now instead of dodging slickened stones, we were dodging large piles of waste left behind by the cows who grazed this field.

Eventually, we would come to the last farm on this creek. My father would herald an occupant of this house, inform them of our presence, and ask (each year without fail) for permission to continue our journey across their land. Each year, permission was amiably granted and we would continue along, striding lazily across the front yard, and on into the back, where my traveling companions would, without fail, stop and chat with a member of this family who was out feeding chickens, slopping hogs, or "scatting" cats.

As I found these conversations to be an inconvenience and a bore, I would pass the time by standing perched at an angle on a sloping hillside to peer into the family's hog barn through small, round knotholes scattered here and there among the aged, wooden boards. I could never see very much, but I often heard noises that left me as chilled and frightened as the "Scream"-type movies that mesmerize and chill the youth of today. After all, I had seen that scene in the "Wizard of Oz" many times. You know, the one in which Dorothy is balancing herself atop the fence hedging the hog lot against all the impassioned cautions of her uncle and his farm hands. I trust you remember what happened next.

As this scene replayed in my young mind, I could only imagine the horrors that existed inside that build-

After the chatting was finally done, the real work of the day would begin, for climbing the hill to my grandfather's grave was quite an exercise in physical endurance. The rocky path wound steeply upwards, and my father, by necessity, would go first, scythe in hand, which he used to cut away protruding briar branches and limbs.

Finally, we would reach the site of our destination, and each of us would immediately look for a suitable spot on which to collapse. My father and his mother would exchange memories and grow quiet, as I sat patiently, taking it all in.

My grandfather's headstone was small by comparison and resembled more a large rock than the ornate memorials we see around us today.

Still, my father would lovingly brush away the winter's dust and debris from its surface and clear the immediate area of the unwanted tangle of vegetation that had taken root in the year since our last visit.

My grandmother would remind my father each year that even though this spot was "lonely," it was where she wanted to be buried, "beside Adam."

Many years later this request was granted. I was a college student at the time, and I recall that I missed a few mid-term exams to return home to help my father with his mother's funeral arrangements. She had a small, quiet funeral and her body was carried by my brothers and several of my cousins to rest on this "lonely" hilltop in that April of her final springtime trek up Alum Lick.

As I finish this writing I realize that too many years have gone by since I visited this site.

I'm thinking I should try to go before too many more go by.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Dr. Richard D. and Mrs. Lurlie R. Howard, of Winchester, will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary on April 28 with a reception held in their home. Their daughter, Mrs. Martin Schwartz, of Erlanger, and granddaughter, Mrs. Edward Salazar, of Southgate, Michigan, will host the event.

The reception will begin at 12 noon and continue until the four o'clock hour. The Howard's home is located on 330 S. Main Street, Winchester.

Mr. Howard likes to relate the story of how he had a crush on Lurlie when he was fourteen years old. Lurlie, at this time, however, had her eye on Daniel Howard, Richard's

The trio would often sit together at the Saturday matinee at a theatre in Eackey which was owned by Lurlie's uncle, Mike Staley. Richard never disclosed his secret feelings to Sadly, Daniel was killed in 1945 in the battle of Iwo Jima while Richard served offshore aboard the U.S.S. Intrepid. Both men were members of the U.S. Marine Corps.

Richard's first marriage ended in divorce in 1949, and in 1950 he began teaching school at Wayland. Unbeknownst to him, Lurhe was also teaching at this same school, only now under the name of Lurhe Vanderpool, having been married and now divorced herself. She was the mother of a threeyear old daughter.

Upon this reuniting of the pair, the old flames that had stirred in Richard's heart were now fanned anew, and Lurlie, being convinced to settle now for "second best," fell in love and agreed to marry Richard.

They were married on the school grounds by Rev. Lawrence Price, the prinicipal of Wayland High School.

The pair continued their careers as educators, she for 37 years, and he for 27. Mrs. Howard is now retired from the Clark County School System, and Mr. Howard from a professorship at Eastern Kentucky University.

They cordially extend an invitation to all friends and family members to join them in their celebration of this very spe-

AN EX-WHISTLER ON WHIS'TLING

Burton Hillis, who does for BETTER HOMES & GARDENS one of the most wholesome columns you'll run across, has an idea men and boys don't whistle the way they used to, and he adds that in his day every boy who amounted to anything was a whistler. Hillis argues that you can't be conjuring up mean thoughts while a pretty tune is running through your head.

It may be, indeed, that this world is going to pot, after all. I am reminded that I hear few folks whistling, these days. And when they do, it's a wolf-whistle. Time was when a boy skipped rope, played marbles, hull-gull, and a number of innocent sports to the tune of a merry whistle. Men were known to miss the nail and make contact with another nail with the hammer, and then whistle instead of mouthing cuss-words. I've seen men whistle softly while in trouble, and I've seen them happy, bouncing along, whistling as carefree as man, ever since creation's first morn.

Time was when I would forget myself and trill a few bars, myself. I whistle seldom, if at all, these days, and it's not all because I'm afraid of losing my loose upper plate. The world has just become too dead-serious for

It has been said that the man or boy who low who whittles is working the old brain cells, overtime... I wouldn't know; I never whittle. But I will say it's a poor bird that will not whistle. Consider the buzzard, for example.

And I arise to remark that it's all right for the gals to whistle, too, if they're a mind to, even if the old adage does make a rather dire prediction for a whistling woman or a crowing hen: Just look who sat for that great painting of a Mother. She was a Whistler and she had a right remarkable son, too, it would turns out reams of good copy for The Lexington Leader and the Eastern Kentucky Resources Development Program, visited Prestonsburg and this office, the other day. Know what caught his eye above all else here? The wild phlox that grows on the mountainside. Had an idea this was a Garden Club project.

The very next day, an admirer of the phlox came here from Magoffin County. But he came for more than to admire. Got himself a shovel and began digging... The landowner would do well to get some "No Tresspassing" signs posted if he wants to keep the hillside from losing this one redeeming feature.

Grigsby

She sacrificed her aspiring career to marry Elhanan Pete Grigsby, although she did teach for a few years in Floyd County schools. She bore her husband eight children throughout the years of their marriage, and she is survived by all eight. These children are: Elhanan Pete Grigsby, Jr., of McDowell, (Phyllis); Charles Gary Grigsby, M.D., of Lexington, (Sparkle): David Lee Grigsby, of Georgetown; Jerry Roger Grigsby, of Nicholasville; Richard Van Grigsby, also of Lexington (Phyllis); Stephen Jan Grigsby, of Myrtle Beach, South Carolina; Marena Ann Evans, of Visalia, California (Gary); and Margaret Lynn Hamilton, also of Lexington (Frank)

She is remembered by many Floyd Countians for a radio show which she hosted for many years on WPRT in Prestonsburg. On this show, she sang, played piano, and reacted to call-in requests with music commentary and conventional wisdom.

In 1957, her family was selected to represent Kentucky in the All-American Family competition in Miami Beach, Florida where they won, from among 50 families, the Eddie Richenbacher, a most popular family award of the day.

Mrs. Grigsby spent countless hours as a fund-raiser for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, near Martin and was instrumental in a successful building program.

In later years, she owned and managed the Catalina Motel in Lexington. This she did for 25 years, retiring at the age of 85. She also authored numerous short stories, poems, and songs, many of which were published. She also wrote two books, one of which was an autobiography.

In addition to her eight children, she was given 41 grandchildren (one deceased), 39 great-grandchildren (two deceased), and one great-great grandchild.

Funeral services for Marena Hayes Grigsby were held on Wednesday, April 18 at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in Lexington, Kentucky

Keep frozen custard chilled

For many of us. Memorial Day weekend marks the beginning of a pleasant season of picnics, backyard barbecues, patio parties and ice cream socials. As we anticipate these happy occasions, though, it's easy to forget that temperatures above 40° and below 140° F can be a food-safety risk. When planning to dine outdoors during the summer, it's wise to keep in mind the Fight BAC* food-safety points of clean, cook, chill and separate.

If home-made ice cream is on the menu. be sure that both the canister and dasher of your ice-cream maker are spotless and that all helpers have washed their hands. No soap and hot water available at your picnic area? Then, bring along wet wipes or antibacterial waterless soap.

Use a cooked, stirred custard for eggbased ice creams. Eggs in the custard add richness for a gourmet quality and help prevent ice crystals, ensuring a smooth, creamy texture. The Plum Frozen Custard here starts with a cooked base and yields a refreshingly different flavor that takes advantage of freshly harvested fruit. Since the plums won't be cooked, be sure to keep them separate from other raw foods.

If you prefer to use another favorite recipe, adapt it by beating together the eggs, milk and sugar and cooking them as directed in this recipe. Whatever other ingredients you add, follow all the chilling and freezing instructions, too. If your resistance is extraordinarily strong and you don't eat all the custard ice cream right after making it, spoon it into freezer containers and chill it in your refrigerator's freezer until firm.

Plum Frozen Custard (makes about 2 quarts) cups skim milk cup sugar, divided 1/4 teaspoon salt

11/2 lbs. ripe plums, pitted

and coarsely chopped cups whipping cream teaspoon vanilla

In a medium saucepan, beat together eggs, milk, 1/2 cup of the sugar and the salt. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thick enough to coat a metal spoon with a thin film and reaches at least 160; F. Cool quickly by setting pan in bowl of ice or cold water and stirring for a few minutes. Cover. Refrigerate until thoroughly chilled, at least 1 hour.

Meanwhile, combine plums and remaining 1/2 cup sugar in 5-cup blender container. Cover and blend at high speed until plums are pureed, about 1 minute. OR mash plums or put through food mill to puree; then stir in sugar. Cover. Refrigerate plum mixture until cold and sugar is dissolved, at least 30 minutes.

When ready to freeze, pour chilled custard, cream and vanilla into 1-gallon ice cream freezer can. Freeze according to manufacturer's directions using 6 parts ice to I part rock salt, if needed. When partially frozen, add plum mixture. Complete freezing. Transfer to freezer containers, Freeze until firm.

The Mountain Arts Center is proud to present the

Mothers Day show on Sunday, May 13

What can you give a mother who seems to have everything? How about an afternoon of delightful entertainment with the Kentucky Opry!

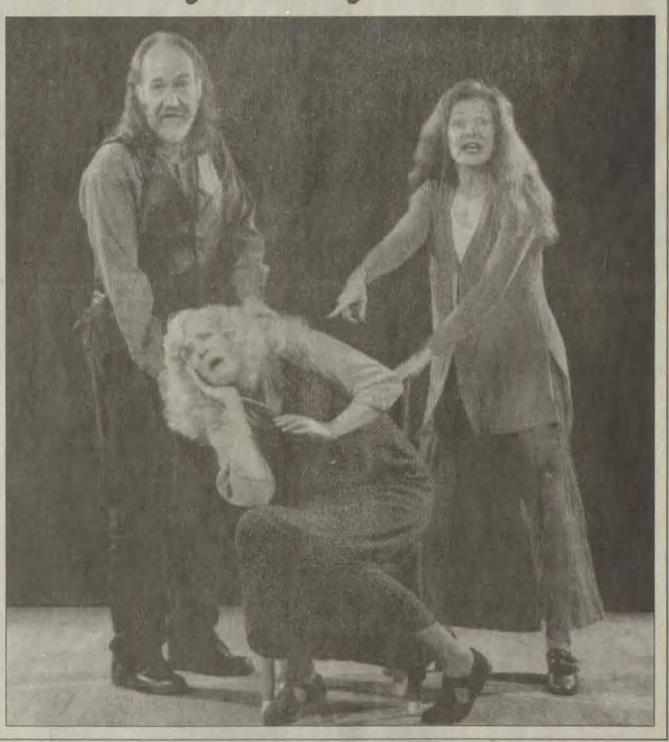

Even Munroe is hoping his own "Momma" will make an appearance on stage...he's been working hard "talking it up" with her. Of course, Munroe will also have many new stories to share about his life wonderful "Fairybelle" and episodes of love and understanding with HIS mother-in-law .... He'll no doubt get a rise out of his old buddy, Keith.

This is the perfect gift for all moms, as "one size fits all" and it comes in a nice package. There will be entertainment enough to please every member of the audi-

PLUS...you can also register Mom to win one of two great prizes to be given away at the show. One prize will be a pair of tickets to the summer show of Mom's choice; the other a pair of tickets to the Christmas show of her choice.

Make plans to join us for the Kentucky Opry Mother's Day Show, on Sunday, May 13, at 3 p.m. It'll be fun, and remember - if we keep Mom busy enjoying the show, you won't have to be as "on your toes" about what you've been up to lately.

LEAD STORIES

 The Cleveland Plain Dealer revealed in April that 12 Ohio government agencies have spent more than $50,000 in the last three years on humor consultants to help them do their work more effectively. The Department of Job and Family Services, recently criticized for misspending money on faulty computer programs, shelled out nearly $25,000 (for the purpose of "contribut(ing) to positive attitudinal perceptions of workplace transitions," according to its contract with Humor Consultants Inc.).

· Case Western Reserve (Cleveland, Ohio) medical school professor Robert White, interviewed on a British TV program in April, said his monkey-to-monkey head transplant was a partial success (in that the patient lived for a while) and that, with improvements, the procedure could one day be used on humans. However, a critic, Dr. Stephen Rose, disputed that the recipient monkey was functional, contending that the brain's only connection to the body it was serving was a shared blood supply: "All you're doing is keeping a severed head alive."

. In March, a federal judge in Alabama ruled in favor of the owners of the Eastwood Texaco station on Montclair Road in Birmingham in their lawsuit against the 11-nation oil cartel OPEC for price-fixing violations of U.S. antitrust law. The organization was forbidden by Judge Charles Weiner from reducing its oil production for one year, which is its favorite method of raising prices.

line. According to the police report, Webb three times confronted a woman ahead of him who had 11 items (limit is 10), finally bellowing that he had served his country in two wars and "did not have to serve any more time behind people who could not (expletive deleted in a Janesville Gazette story) count." After the two drove off, Webb allegedly deliberately swerved in front of her on the street.

The Classic Middle Name (All-New)

*Charged with murder: Rocky Wayne McGowan, 20 (Russell Springs, Ky., February): Mark Wayne Jennings, 30 (Charles County, Va., March): Derrick Wayne Kualapai Sr., 51 (Oakland, Calif., February): Michael Wayne Eggers, 33 (Walker County, Ala., January): David Wayne Smith, 39 (Virginia Beach, Va., April): Timothy Wayne Border, 38 (Fort Worth, Texas, April). Mistrial declared in murder trial: David Wayne Kunze, 50 (Vancouver, Wash., March). Held for questioning in the murder of his wife: John Wayne Boggs Jr., 35 (Cedar City, Utah, February).

Police Blotter

- Louisville, Ky., police, in the midst of a project to clear out backlogged cases, took Leanndra Taylor, 14, into custody in the middle of classes on March 26, according to a WLKY-TV report, and booked her on a 1995 warrant accusing her of shoplifting a 59-cent candy bar.
- An Alachua County (Fla.) sheriff's deputy and a law-enforcement intern were reprinted in March because they were not acting professionally during a drug bust in Gainesville in which 16 marijuana plants were recovered, along with 160 grams of dope and various drug paraphernalia. Superiors caught the two, in the middle of the raid, seated at a table in the apartment, playing Scrabble with the suspect's game.

The Laws of Irony Are Strictly Enforced

- In February, Robert Valle, 58, a Catholic parishioner at the St. Thomas the Apostle Church, filed a lawsuit against the Joliet (III.) Diocese because the namesake statue in front of the church fell over on him while he was doing volunteer repair work on it in 1999; St. Thomas the Apostle is the patron saint of builders and construction workers. And two weeks later, schoolteacher Anthony Farrell, 50, was charged with pointing a loaded 357 Magnum at another man in a case of road rage in St. Charles, Mo.; part of Farrell's course load for the last five years was teaching driver edu-
- The New Fire Crisis: Earlier this year, fire stations in Columbia, Tenn., and Tampa, Fla., were found in violation of local fire codes (lacking smoke detectors and other equipment). And in March, careless cigarette-smoking in a fire engine on the way to fight a fire in Kushima, Japan, set the vehicle's seats ablaze. And the Bethells Beach fire station in Auckland, New Zealand, burned to the ground in March, caused by defective wiring, as firefighters watched helplessly (in that all their equipment was inside).

Least Competent People in Albuquerque

• Jeffrey Thomas Anaya, 35, was arrested on March 4 for allegedly robbing a Chevron station; he was arrested in the parking lot, where he was soliciting help because he couldn't find the keys to his getaway car. Three days later, Timothy E. Beach, 23, a former manager of a Taco Bell, was arrested for allegedly robbing his store of about $2,000; according to police, Beach could not resist identifying himself during the heist to a former colleague and so briefly lifted his ski mask and said, "It's me, Tim."

Also, in the Last Month ...

* A 27-year-old woman received two speeding tickets (one for going about 100 mph) in 20 minutes in her quest to race to the Land Rover dealership because her lease was set to expire in just a few minutes (Windsor, Ontario). A judge OK d charging a 50-year-old man with rape even though the man had never met the victim (but merely tricked her on the phone into penetrating herself) (Passaic County, N.J.). Twenty-two poised skydivers had to stay with their troubled single-engine plane until it emergency-landed in an airfield (result: injuries but no fatalities) (Decatur, Texas). Police in Berkeley, Calif., arrested a man for running a parking-ticket scam, featuring his own authentic-looking, highly detailed citations placed on illegally parked cars, with envelopes for mailing fines to his post office box.

The Kentucky Derby kicks-off in Washington

The Greater Louisville Convention & Visitors Bureau hosted nearly 200 association executives at the Kentucky Derby D.C. Luncheon in Washington, D.C., on April 18.

This event, held at the National Press Club, was the official Kentucky Derby kick-off in the nation's capital where more than 80 percent of association offices are headquartered.

Bureau President and CEO Ron Scott said, "The eyes of the world are on Louisville during the first Saturday in May, and it gives the city the opportunity to reach new audiences." He continued, "This luncheon is our way of sharing the fun and excitement of the Derby, to thank our local customers and introduce Greater Louisville to new ones."

The luncheon, while designed to give association executives and meeting planners a taste of the Kentucky Derby, also showcases Louisville as a convention and travel destination throughout other times of the year. To add to the luncheon's excitement, one special Kentucky Derby Weekend for two was given away to one lucky association executive attending the luncheon.

Appalshop's roadside theatre to appear on KET

Appalshop's Roadside Theater will appear in the season premiere of KET's original series, "In Performance at the Governor's Mansion," on Wednesday, April 25th at 8 p.m., and on KET2 Monday, April 30th at 10 p.m. Also performing will be Native American flutist, Jason de la Rosa, and musical group, Raison D'Etre.

Powerful voices and beautiful harmony-style singing with fiddle and banjo accompaniment reflect the appeal of music in Appalachian culture. Veteran Roadside performers Ron Short, Kim Neal Cole and Nancy Smith will perform a lively traditional Scots-Irish song about the antics of an infamous rogue, and a bittersweet ballad about home and family.

Roadside will also perform Jack and the King, a traditional mountain tale. Jack Tales are imaginative stories about a young fellow who encounters some sort of difficulty winning a mate, subduing a tyrant, or slaying an ogre. In every story, through his wits, his courage, his ability to figure things out, or-sometimes-purely by luck. Jack always comes out on top. Jack Tales are found throughout the central and southern Appalachians, but the roots of these stories go back hundreds of years in the British Isles, particularly in Ireland and Scotland.

"Music and stories are an essential part of life in the coalfields of Appalachia," says Roadside's Ron Short. "We learned these songs and tales from our grandparents and parents, and they pass through us to our children and grandchildren. With this broadcast, we have an opportunity to share them with folks across the state."

Roadside Theater has spent more than 25 years developing original plays drawn from the history and culture of its coalfield home. The company tours to all parts of the United States, has been in residence a number of times off-Broadway and has performed at Lincoin Centers Out-of-Doors Festival in New York City and the Smithsonian Festival of American Folklife in Washington, D.C. Roadside has had the privilege to represent the United States in international theater festivals in the Czech Republic, Sweden, Denmark and the British Isles.

Roadside is one part of Appalshop, Inc., the Whitesburg, Kentuckybased arts and education organization that includes the Appalshop Center, Appalshop Film and Video, the Appalachian Media Institute, the Community Media Initiative, Headwaters Television, June Appal Recordings, WMMT Community Radio and the American Festival Project.

In Performance at the Governor's Mansion is an annual series showcasing the depth and breadth of outstanding Kentucky artists and arts groups. Governor Paul E. Patton and his wife Judi initiated the series and welcome artists and a statewide audience, via KET, to the Mansion two to three times each year.

CRITTERCORNER

by Dr. Carol Combs-Morris, DVM

Last week, I discussed some of the tricks of the trade that veterinarians use to help us manage our patients. This time I thought I'd pass along some of the things I've learned (or invented myself, out of desperation) that may be useful to the pet owner.

Cats make for particularly difficult patients. A treatment that takes less than a minute in a cooperative dog is apt to require ten in the aver-

I worked for several years for Dr. Maury Reeves in Lexington, who had a special interest in cats and was very skilled in their handling. Her rule was always "either restrain a cat completely, or don't restrain it at all." She felt that most cats are fighting the restraint as much or more than the treatment, so we always tried minimal restriction of movement

Giving liquid medication to cats can often be accomplished by grasping the scruff of the cat's neck, tipping his head back slightly, and placing the dropper in the corner of the mouth. It is not necessary to open the mouth. If the cat is fighting this, our next move is to lift the cat just a little by the scruff of the neck and proceed with the medicine. This can also work for giving pills, although it is not usually as easy. Ask your yet to show you how to give a cat a pill, and if you don't think this is going to work in your situation, ask him for a pill gun. This is a little plastic contraption with a plunger that lets you pop the pill into the back of the throat while keeping your fingers out of the cat's mouth. They are cheap, easy to clean, and can be worth their weight in Band-Aids if your cat hates pills:

I have covered the "jelly-roll" technique in previous columns; this involves rolling the cat up in a bath towel until you have a little cat mummy or "kitty burrito." With the claws under control, you have only the teeth to contend with. This doesn't exactly make medicating easy, but it sure helps even the odds. Even though we have commercial nylon "cat sacks", a big bath towel is still our favorite restraint method for most cats.

Sometimes the problem lies in getting the cat to the vet in the first place. Every cat owner should have a cat carrier. Even the calmest cat can lose it when confronted with a trip to the vet's office. The unfamiliar sights smells and noises are enough to panic any cat, especially one that is already feeling bad. When shopping for a carrier, spring for one of the better quality ones with the wire (not plastic) door and latch mechanism. Check to be sure the bolts holding the top and bottom halves together are tight each time you use the carrier.

Of course there will always be circumstances where someone is caught needing to transport a cat and a carrier is not available. A homemade cat carrier can be constructed easily, as long as it is strong, secure, ventilated and portable. Two clothes baskets of the same size or two milk crates work well. These need to be laced together instead of just tied here and there to avoid gaps that might offer an escape hatch. The average cat makes Houdini look like a rank amateur. Plastic clothes hampers also make good carriers, as long as the lid can be well secured. (I am a great fan of duct tape.)

Medicating dogs is generally easier than their feline counterparts. Liquids are given in the corner of the mouth in the same way, only I generally cup my hand under the chin to steady the head. Pills can be given by hand or with a pill gun, but a big advantage with dogs is that they are more easily duped than cats. Many dogs will swallow almost anything if it is disguised as food, and with some the disguise can be pretty thin. (Now, I know there are a lot of owners out there whose dogs won't fall for any of the standard tricks, but maybe I can throw in a few

My German Shepherd, Fritz, who is admittedly not the canine version of Einstein, will eat a pill out of your hand if you make a big fuss out of it and refer to it as a "treat." Teresa, my assistant, lines all of her dogs up every morning and gives each of them a little squirt of cheesein-a-can. When somebody requires a pill, she just slips it in the cheese. We have also discovered "Combos," which are snacks consisting of a cracker or pretzel outside with a cheese filling. These are great things to hide small pills in. They already have two different textures, so dogs don't seem to notice the presence of a pill so much.

Then there is my special "three wiener method" of dog medication. Use three pieces of anything the dog likes and is soft enough to hide the pill inside. The first piece has nothing inside it, and this suckers the dog in. Give him time to eat and swallow this one. The medicine is in the second piece, and this is quickly followed by the third piece. Usually, the dog will gulp down piece number two in order to get to number three. With any luck, he never notices anything different about the sec-

The last piece of advice that I have room for here is to ask your vet to show you how to safely and properly restrain a dog and how to apply an emergency muzzle. If anyone has any other tips or tricks you use at home to help medicate your animal, let me know. I'll try to share them with other readers here, and besides that, I need all the help I can get!

Mule Band on Americana Crossroads Live

The Mule Band may be the strangest assemblage of people who've ever played in a musical group, and their talents will be showcased April 27th at Morehead State University when WMKY and the Kentucky Center for Traditional Music present Americana Crossroads Live. The band consists of a lawyer, political columnist, a retired railroad worker, and a retired telephone company employee. Many of their tunes are about farm animals.

Pikeville attorney Larry Webster plays the old time claw hammer banjo, and writes political columns for the Lexington Herald-Leader. Bill Brooks no longer works for the railroad, but is fond of working his bass. Earl Holbrook doesn't punch a clock for the phone company, but enjoys plucking the strings of his guitar. Also in the band is Barry Bowersock, who plays fiddle, and Joe Brown, the mandolinist.

The Mule Band describes its music as "rough and moldy country music from around the early edges of it," including rural ocoustic string sounds recorded between World War I and World War II. The band thrives on nos-

Americana Crossroads Live is presented on the last Friday night of every month in the Duncan Recital Hall of the Baird Music Center. The free concert begins at 7:30 and is hosted by KCTM Director and WMKY personality Sandy Knipp. Bluegrass band Ernie Thacker, Route 23, and folk trio Good Enough, will also perform during the April 27th show.

Quick tips to minimize the effects of indoor air pollution

Indoor air pollution is irritating to everyone. Listed here are some tips from the American Association for Respiratory Care that will help you decrease or eliminate irritants from your home.

· Kitchens, bathrooms and any work area, like a garage, are good places to install exhaust fans. These areas tend to accumulate fumes which can aggravate allergies or other respiratory · Appliances have many parts that collect dust and other indoor irritants, so give them a thorough cleaning as often as necessary. Be sure to include these on your list; heat exchangers, dryer filters, refrigerator coils, water pans under the refrigerator, furnaces, air conditioner filters and air ducts.

· Aerosol products can be irritating for some people. If you notice sensitivity to them, try using pump or solid alternatives for air fresheners, hair sprays or deodorants.

 Poor air circulation can contribute to respiratory discomfort. Avoid this by keeping the doors of all rooms open. Open a window for a few minutes each day during the winter months and leave one slightly open all day during the summer. Ceiling fans also help increase air circulation, but don't forget to clean the

. Don't use your fireplace as the main source of heat in your home. When you do use the fireplace, make sure the damper is completely open and that the chimney has been cleaned periodically. Use only wood in your fireplace-not paper or charcoal.

• If you find you are sensitive to molds, avoid keeping plants in your house. The plant soil is usually damp and can be a major source of mold. If you want to have plants indoors, consider an enclosed terrarium.

. To prevent mold and mildew, wash the grout between bathroom and kitchen tiles frequently (replace when necessary). Check other areas of your home where moisture might accumulate like cellars, basements and garages. You can waterproof the concrete floors in those areas, and use sheet vinyl flooring in the kitchen and bathrooms, instead of vinyl squares.

. Don't allow smoking in your home. Politely ask guests who would like to smoke, to step outside onto the front porch or

• If you have a home built prior to 1971, and are concerned about the possibility of asbestos contamination, contact your local health department for assistance.

Jenny Wiley Theatre extends thanks to Dr. Robert Manning

Jenny Wiley Theatre acknowledges and thanks Dr. Robert D. Manning of Audiology Associates in Prestonsburg, KY for sponsoring the Assisted Listening Devices. Jenny Wiley Theatre is dedicated to providing accessible theatre to all people and Audiology Associates $1,000 gift allows for the purchase of new and up-todate technology. Without the support of friends like Dr. Manning, the theatre would be unable to continue the tradition of enriching our regional community through the performing

Making every day Earth Day

Little Mud makes a quiet habitat for wild game, with herds of white tail deer, wild turkey, squirrel and an occasional black bear. Because of its remoteness, it also makes a good target for illegal dumping and littering.

On April 3, wearing wading boots and rubber gloves, Travis Johns Hall, 12, of Mud Creek, began the awesome task of cleaning up his environment - just as he has done for the past three years.

Each spring and fall, Hall volunteers to help his family pick up garbage on the one-and-a-half mile stretch of dirt road on Little Mud Creek on which they live.

This year's clean-up was especially difficult. Throughout the winter months people have been illegally slinging bags of garbage into the widest part of little Mud Creek, which runs under the road through a large drain tile. The bags have many times broken open as a result of impact, leaving an unbelievable mess.

Because Hall is a very agile and athletic young man, he is able to get into areas that the adults can't. With his thick rubber boots, he waded into the middle of the stream, and immediately began to throw the offending trash onto the bank, where he later bagged it for

Although this year's spring cleaning loft Hall with a sore back and a headache at day's end, he is still enthusiastic about his love for our environment. Travis developed his environmental awareness at an early age. His mother recalls how one day, while traveling from a nearby state back into Kentucky, Travis commented to his mother, "Mom, people in Kentucky don't much like their state, do they?" Puzzled at this question, his mother asked, "Travis, why do you say that?" To which he answered, "Well, if they liked it, they wouldn't throw out so much trash all around.'

Travis works very hard to keep the environment clean, and not just on Earth Day, but on every day. Beau and Chase Lawson, grandsons of Bobby and Zelma Lawson, helped Hall while they were visiting their grandparents from Tennessee. All the boys worked very hard to help make Little Mud cleaner and more beautiful.

Hall has learned early in life to be a doer and that it takes hard work and patience to correct the things you don't like in our world.

With Hall's commitment, it's safe to say that he will one day be a real driving force for our county and all of eastern Kentucky.
