Agency says landfill in violation, blocks grant

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — The fate of a grant sought by the Floyd County Fiscal Court is uncertain as of Friday, as one is balking at allowing the grant to proceed. The Kentucky Division of Waste Management, one of the agencies involved with the Kentucky State Clearinghouse's evaluation of the grant, replied by stating they could not endorse the grant.

The grant, which is known as the Safe Harbor Grant, would be put to use in building a homeless shelter in the now-defunct Wheelwright gymnasium.

The Department for Local Government informed members of the fiscal court through a letter of the Division of Waste Management's refusal to endorse the grant in a field that includes seven other agencies. The other agencies include the Department of Transportation, the Kentucky Heritage Council, the Governor's Office of Policy and Management, the Division of Water, Nature Preserve and Conservation and the Big Sandy Area Development District.

The Division of Waste Management explained in the letter they entered into an agreement on January 10, 1995, to "resolve outstanding violations" to close a landfill near Garth.

The Division of Waste Management further claims that Floyd County entered into a compliance schedule on July 13, 1998, to facilitate the closure of the landfill but has failed to comply with the conditions of both the agreement and the compliance schedule.

According to an attachment sent with the letter of non-endorsement was a list of the alleged landfill violations that have resulted in 10 notices of violation the county has been issued from 1995 through 2000

Wal-Mart keeping quiet on plans

PRESTONSBURG — If Wal-Mart is looking for a new home, company officials are not saying anything about it.

Employees at Prestonsburg Wal-Mart contacted by The Times noted rumors that the store has been trying to locate property to construct a Wal-Mart Super Center in the Prestonsburg area.

"They've been looking for land to build a new store for the past couple of years," said one Wal-Mart employee, who asked not to be identified. "Trying to find 25 to 30 acres of property in the city limits of Prestonsburg is a hard job. Rumors were going around that they tried to buy the property where Center Stage was located, but that deal fell through. All they tell us when we ask is that they're 'working on a deal.'"

Larry Burke, who owns a lot on the property where Center Stage was formerly located, said that he was approached by a Century 21 Realtor from Ashland who was representing Wal-Mart three months

Driver killed after truck flips in Hazard

by GRETA FIELDS
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

HAZARD — A truck driver from London, Christopher Scott, 28, was killed Wednesday when his tractor-trailer wrecked in a steep curve on a narrow road in the Combs section of Hazard.

The truck flipped on its side against a fence near some bulk fuel tanks. Scott was lying in front of the truck.

The truck was headed out of town on Route 550 (old Route 80), which is a narrow road that goes past a group of businesses clustered in a curve.

The truck passed the 84 Lumber Company, then went out of control at the curve and overturned on its passenger side, spilling its coal.

The accident occurred near Hazard Petroleum, TC Trucking and Airgas. An Input sought on prep plant, slurry pond

SASSAFRAS — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has issued a public notice to solicit public opinion concerning an application by Coastal Coal Company for a permit to construct a coal preparation plant and 159-acre slurry impoundment, to be located along Jake Campbell Branch near Dunraven in Perry County.

According to Jerry Sparks, project manager at the Corps' regional office, the public notice was sent to adjacent property owners and posted on a website to solicit written comments July 11 to August 13.

The notice reads:

"The decision whether to issue a permit will be based on an evaluation of the probable impact of the proposed activity on the public interest. That decision will reflect the national concern for both protection and utilization of important resources. The benefits which reasonably may be expected to accrue from the proposal must be balanced against its reasonably foreseeable detriments."

Sparks explained that the Corps evaluates the permit through two filters. The public interest aspect involves consideration of conservation, economics, aesthetic values, environmental concerns, historic values, fish and wildlife values, flood damage prevention, land use,

First lady to help open child abuse center

by MARY MUSIC

PIKEVILLE — Currently, when child sexual abuse is reported, the child and his or her family are required to go through a series of "revolving doors," seeking professional and medical help from several different agencies.

Following the disclosure of sexual abuse, the child will be interviewed and examined by people at the police department, social services department, the prosecutor's office, medical offices, hospitals, the health department, and will also seek counseling at a therapist's offices.

During a time when help is certainly needed in the life of a sexually abused child, the Big Sandy Area Child Advocacy Center hopes to make dealing with the problem of child sexual abuse easier for the child and the family.

WEST LIBERTY — With little more than a month to go before he is scheduled to face a jury for the murder of his estranged wife, Dwayne Bishop wants a new lawyer.

Against his attorney's advice, Bishop contacted The Times to publicize his beliefs that he is being inadequately represented by the public defender's office.

Bishop has asked for new representation but says no one will listen to him.

While incarcerated at the East Kentucky Correctional facility in West Liberty, Bishop said he's been doing some investigating of his own during the past several months, trying to find some proof to back up his navigation, recreation, water supply, water quality, energy needs, safety, food production and, in general, the needs and welfare of the people.

Sparks further explained that the second filter involves "the 404 B1 guidelines concerning alternatives analysis to see whether or not the projects can be designed to avoid impact to waterways, and then look at ways to minimize unavoidable adverse impacts by considering mitigation through practical methods."

Sparks noted that the Corps of Engineers is currently looking at alternative methods to dry the slurry, such as belt-filter press methods used in other regions of the U.S.

Due to the controversy surrounding slurry impoundments and their related risks, the project will be considered through an individual permitting process which involves larger projects and considers the impact to the environment and, particularly for the Corps, impact to the waterways under Section 404 of the Clean Water Act.

The proposed project has drawn environmental opposition from The Kentucky Resources Council, represented by Director Tom FitzGerald, and Kentuckians for the Commonwealth. On July 4, the groups wrote federal officials of their right to sue "without further notice" if the Corps of Engineers approves the permit.

In that letter, the Kentucky Resources Council stated:

"Under current regulations of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the placement of coal waste material in waters of the U.S. is not an activity that can lawfully approved under the Section 404 program, and thus would constitute an unauthorized discharge of a pollutant into waters of the U.S. unless authorized under Section 402 of the Clean Water Act."

Jerry Sparks, who received the letter, agrees with aspects of that statement. He said the Corps does not regulate the disposal of waste and the project would have to pass the Environmental Protection Agency's Section 402 requirements, which is administered by the Kentucky Division of Water.

Sparks noted that the Division of Water has the authority to deny permits after the Corps approves them. The permits must also pass several other government agency regulations before the process is complete.

Regarding the letter, Sparks said opponents are placing too much weight on the Section 404 regulations as the deciding program.

"We are not trying to regulate the disposal of waste; we are regulating based on discharge of fill. However, our environmental impact analysis must cover and consider every aspect of the project," said Sparks.

Sparks explained the Corps' jurisdiction includes the regulation of material used to fill in the land for the coal preparation plant and the construction of the dam using fill material.

According to Corps regulations, fill is defined as any material used for the primary purpose of replacing an aquatic area with dry land, or changing the bottom elevation of a water body and does not include any pollutant discharged into the water to dispose of waste.

The letter also stated that the Corps was ignoring its own regulations that prohibit placement of fill where the primary purpose is to dispose of waste. The letter contends that due to the current alternative methods available for drying coal waste or injecting the waste, the Corps should no longer approve impoundments that cover up streams or floodplains.

In the proposed plan, the construction of the coal preparation plant will require the long-term relocation of 1,730 linear feet of Jake Campbell Branch, which will then be filled with material tested by agencies before approval, said Sparks.

The slurry impoundment, which will dispose of waste resulting from the plant, will be located 2,700 feet upstream of the junction of Jake Campbell Branch with the North Fork of the Kentucky River.

Due to the close proximity of the proposed Class C High Hazard slurry impoundment to the river, the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Council recently passed a resolution "requesting the Kentucky Department For Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Division of Permits, to consider the issue of the effect DSRME permit # 897-9003 may have on the Lexington-Fayette County potable water supply in its decision to issue or deny that permit."

The Corps will also consider the water quality issue when preparing their impact assessment. The public notice says, "Any comments received will be considered by the Corps of Engineers to determine whether to issue, modify, condition or deny a permit for this proposal ... Comments are used in the preparation of an Environmental Impact Statement pursuant to the National Environmental Policy Act. Comments are also used to determine the need for a public hearing and to determine the overall public interest of the proposed activity."

Comments regarding this proposal should be addressed to Jerry Sparks, CELRL-OP-FS at 845 Sassafras Creek Road, Sassafras, Ky. 41759-8806 with regards to Notice Number 199901309. The notice says a request for a public hearing by August 13 must state the specific interest that may be damaged by issuance of the DA permit. The complete notice is located on the internet at www.lrl.usace.army.mil.

"They approached me and several other people who own lots up there, but they never did anything about it," said Burke. "It's my understanding that they're looking for something else. I spoke with him two or three times, but they never came back."

One Wal-Mart employee said that the store is now considering purchasing land at the mouth of Abbott Creek near US 23.

One anonymous source says that Wal-Mart was "looking into" purchasing the property of Stanley and Connie Haddix, who own a race car and parts business located behind Respond Ambulance Service in Abbott.

"They said this was their second choice," Connie Haddix said, "but Stanley already promised the land to someone else."

Prestonsburg Wal-Mart manager Greg Salyers refused to comment on future plans for the store.

However, Wal-Mart corporate officials refused to confirm or deny claims they are planning to construct a Super Center in the Prestonsburg area.

According to Daffney Davis with Wal-Mart Community Affairs, it "does not appear" as though Prestonsburg Wal-Mart is looking for a new location.

"We are always looking at land in all the communities we are affiliated with," said Davis. "That work is primarily done by people who are not directly affiliated with Wal-Mart. They are realtors."

"Specifically, I couldn't tell you if there is anyone looking in Prestonsburg right now," continued Davis. "It's a pretty lengthy process. Whether we will expand or relocate the store in Prestonsburg at this point, I can't speculate whether or not it has occurred. But that doesn't indicate that there aren't plans for a new store for that location in the future."

Center

the Big Sandy Area Child Advocacy Center in Pikeville at 11 a.m.

The center's new facility, located on Williamson Street in Pikeville, will serve Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties.

"We're opening a new era for services aimed to help those children who are sexually abused," said Troy Price, of the Big Sandy Child Advocacy Center.

Price said providing a single place to offer all the various services for sexually abused children, rather than forcing the child to visit a host of different professionals throughout the area, has been a dream of First Lady Judi Patton, one that will come true with Monday's grand opening.

The center not only houses various offices for professionals in the social services, law enforcement and mental health departments. It is also equipped with a child-friendly medical exam room.

According to Price, 30 percent of all adults who are diagnosed with a mental illness or are incarcerated for criminal behavior blame their shortcomings on long-lasting effects of child sexual abuse.

By "streamlining" these services, said Price, the center will also be streamlining the evidence collection process for the victims and increasing the chance of prosecution for the suspected abusers in child sexual abuse cases.

"By having more evidence to present in a case of child sexual abuse, it is more likely that the suspect will plead guilty to the charges and that's one more that's off the streets," said Price. "There's lots of benefits for society at large for every child that we touch."

For more information about the Big Sandy Child Advocacy Center, contact Troy Price at (606) 437-7447.

Dispute

during the bar's meeting early Friday morning.

Bar president John Callis began the meeting by addressing what he referred to as an odd group of visitors near the back of the courtroom.

"I notice the deputy clerks are present today," Callis said during his opening remarks. "There's not going to be anything brought up today, so they should probably go back to their jobs."

The clerks, who sat together in a huddled group near the back, filed from the courtroom after Hall, at the prompting of Callis.

The group, according to Hall, anticipated issues concerning the clerks' performances to arise during the meeting.

"The staff was concerned with all the talk," said Hall. "They want to work things out too and they wanted to know if there was going to be any problems brought up during the meeting."

The problems, which are as of yet unspecified, may not continue to remain unknown. Callis, after asking the association to authorize him to do so, called on members of the bar to think about some complaints they might have about the clerk's office so that he could compile and arrange them to present to Hall.

"We've got some problem and complaints coming from the bench and bar about the clerk's office," Callis said, referring to the county judges and attorneys. "I will accumulate a list of continuing problems and I'll go to Doug and try to figure out what to do."

After being granted authorization to compile the list, Callis then asked the association to provide two volunteers to help him in gathering the complaints to be looked at.

No one stepped forward, however, and Callis appointed Tom Moak and Tim Parker to assist him in the task.

According to Callis, the list should be ready for presentation by Wednesday.

"When he [Douglas Hall] found out we had put it on our agenda for the meeting that we'd had some complaints from bench and bar, he called," said Callis. "I told him we had some problems and he said it would be great if we could write them down so he could go over them with his staff. The only problem was he had all of them in there today."

Callis, at the prompting of various bar members, dictated a letter Friday evening asking for members who were not in attendance to submit suggestions.

"After I get this together, I'll take them to Doug and hopefully we'll all live happily ever after," Callis told The Times. "He's not given me any indication that there's a problem. But if it's not successful, the next stop will be you. I'll say, 'Here's the complaints. He told is to go fly a kite.'" employee at one business said the truck probably hit the curve too fast and dropped onto the shoulder.

Deputy Kenny Terry is investigating, according to the Perry County Sheriff's Department. Terry was not available to verify what happened.

Many people at the scene heard that Scott jumped out of the cab after jerking the wheel to the left to try to avoid hitting the fuel tanks and the business buildings.

Reportedly, there was at least one witness who saw the accident.

Scott was taken to Hazard ARH Regional Medical Center. He was pronounced dead at 5:45 p.m. by Deputy Coroner Jimmy Maggard Jr.

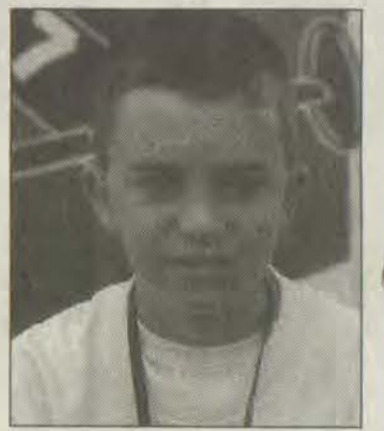

Maggard said that Scott suffered head injuries.

Scott had been a truck driver for about 10 years, according to another driver who knew him.

Scott was driving a yellow Peterbilt, which was towed to Walkertown Service Center. The truck was dented slightly on the passenger side and its trailer had some damage.

FDA issues new warning concerning OxyContin

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

The FDA (Food and Drug Administration), in an effort to educate health care providers about risks connected to the use of the nationally abused pain medication OxyContin, has issued a revision to the drug's labeling they hope will strengthen the warning about the drug's potential for addiction in addition to the lethal aspects that could arise from the abuse of the drug.

The change came in the warning and precautions sections in the labeling of the drug, a narcotic approved for the treatment of moderate to severe pain, also includes a "block box warning", the strongest type of warning for an FDA approved drug that calls attention to the potential "misuse, abuse and diversion" of the drug.

OxyContin contains oxycodone HCL, an opioid agonist with an additional possibility of addiction similar to that of morphine and, according to the FDA, an important factor that must be considered in prescribing OxyContin is the severity of the pain that is being treated, not simply the disease causing the painful symptoms.

When abused, the small tablet, which is designed to to supply a controlled release dosage intended to provide up to 12 hours of relief, is crushed and its contents are injected intravenously or snorted into the nostrils. When the drug is abused in this way, the controlled release mechanism is defeated and could result in an immediate and potentially lethal dose of oxycodone.

A new package insert has been added to the drug as well, which is the standing reference for healthcare professionals for information on prescription medications. This package insert includes the FDA's approved indications for the use of OxyContin, which was reworded to reinforce the appropriate patient population for whom the drug was intended.

The new wording explains that OxyContin tablets are a "controlled release oral formulation of oxycodone hydrochloride indicated for the management of moderate to severe pain when a continuous, around the clock analgesic is needed for an extended period of time".

"This warning is intended to clarify the use of the drug and provide physicians with information," said FDA spokesperson Susan Curzan. "The drug should only be prescribed to patients who have chronic pain versus someone who has temporary pain such as after surgery who could actually use something else."

In their own efforts to educate healthcare providers about the potential risks of OxyContin, the manufacturer of the product, Purdue Pharmaceuticals, issued a warning also in the form of a "Dear Healthcare Professional" letter last week.

The letter was sent to more than 800,000 healthcare professionals and outlines the revisions of the prescribing information.

Locally, there are some reservations about how effective the strengthened warning will be in terms of reducing the prescribing and consequent abuse of OxyContin.

"A lot of it depends on the doctor patient relationship," said Martin Rite-Aide pharmacists Brent Scott, who explained he has seen OxyContin prescribed for reasons other than terminal cases. "If the doctor is willing to write the prescription no matter what the manufacturer writes or what regulation they make, it boils down to being between the patient and physician. And if it's written or gets into the wrong hands or written for the wrong reason, it could possibly end up being misused."

The FDA maintains they will continue to monitor reports of OxyContin abuse and will continue to work with other federal agencies, such as the DEA (Drug Enforcement Agency) and others in an attempt to ensure this drug remains available to the appropriate patients who may actually be in need of the drug as a beneficial method of pain relief.

Grant

Those violations include:

- Shutting off a valve to a leachate tank, allowing leachate to enter the environment and creating an unpermitted point source discharge.

- Documentation that a leachate collection tank was overflowing on February 2, 2000.

- Creating an open dump at the landfill by piling waste from cleanup projects at the site.

- Open burning of the waste pile.

- Accumulating over 100 tires in an open trailer at the landfill.

Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson and Deputy Judge-Executive Brett Davis have expressed concerns that the Division of Waste Management will continue to refuse endorsement of county grant proposals based on the alleged landfill violations.

However, Ron Cook of the Department for Local Government said on Friday that the Safe Harbor Grant was likely rejected on the part of the Division of Waste Management as a measure to push the county to correct the landfill violations.

"It wasn't that it was the Safe Harbor Grant in particular that caused the non-endorsement," Cook said. "They would have went with a non-endorsement on whatever grant came through next from Floyd County. Once the corrections are made to the landfill, the grant will most likely be approved."

Linda Hunter of the Division of Waste Management, who Cook said was responsible for having cited the violations and thus stopping the grant, was not available for comment Friday.

Natalie Hutcheson with Kentucky Housing explained on Friday, however, that the grant money had been allocated and that agency was now waiting for the proposal to pass the Clearinghouse.

"We have $15,000 to put toward that project and an additional $25,000 for a total of $40,000 toward work on that shelter project through the Safe Harbor Grant," said Hutcheson.

The Division of Waste Management contends that until the landfill violations are rectified, they will not endorse funding for the project. In keeping with that non-endorsement, the Clearinghouse, which has been officially designated as the state's Single Point of Contact, continues to recommend the Wheelwright project not be approved until the changes and corrections are made.

A hearing is scheduled for August 30 on the matter.

beliefs.

Bishop believes that his attorney, Harold Howard of the Department of Public Advocacy, is working "against him," trying to help "set him up" on the murder of his wife.

Bishop's mistrust for his attorney refers to what he calls a conspiracy against him involving individuals from the Public Advocacy, Floyd County officials, and officers with Kentucky State Police.

"I've been set up on a crime that I have been accused of ... " said Bishop. "They're all working together to put me away. Nobody cares about this."

Bishop alleges that he has presented information to Howard on numerous occasions to help in his defense, but that she "refuses to cooperate" with him. He also said he has given her names of people who are "crucial" to his case, but that Howard has failed to attempt to contact them for further investigation.

Bishop alleges that he has evidence proving that specific documents used as evidence in the case have been "forged," and that evidence in the case has been seized illegally.

"I tell her (Howard) about these things and she acts on nothing of what I say," said Bishop. "What needs to be done in this case right now before they can act on anything is that everything needs to be sealed by the FBI, where nobody can touch anything. Professionals need to read this, not these county people that are corrupted like [profanity omitted] down there and this case be done right."

Debbie Garass, of the Department of Public Advocacy, said it is not uncommon for a defendant in Bishop's situation to act or feel similarly.

"What this defendant is saying is not really uncommon," said Garass. "It is not uncommon throughout the state because of the type of clients we represent."

According to Howard, Public Advocacy takes Bishop's concerns seriously and continue to investigate his case "thoroughly and zealously."

"I do not feel that's there any reason why we should not represent Dwayne," said Howard. "When we are appointed to represent an indigent person, our Freedom of the press is not an end in itself but a means to the end of [achieving] a free society.

our view

Too often, parents need to grow up

At first, the story sounds like someone is trying to pull your leg:

Parents of a 13-year-old girl not only do nothing to prevent their daughter from fighting another child, they actually encourage her to do it. The father even goes so far as to restrain the victim.

That can't be true, especially not in Eastern Kentucky. We're a little too civilized for that, right?

Apparently not. At least, that's the conclusion a Floyd County jury reached last week when they convicted such a father of first-degree wanton endangerment, third-degree unlawful transaction with a minor and terroristic threatening.

As a result, the father was sentenced to 10 years in prison, which should give him long enough to figure out that whatever quarrel the girls had was not worth it. His wife, meanwhile, will spend 30 days in jail for her role in the fight after being convicted of unlawful transaction with a minor.

Is this the end of the world? No, but it is yet another scrap to add to an already burgeoning pile of evidence that, throughout the country, parents are too often lowering themselves to the level of children, rather than raising their children to be responsible adults.

In Florida last year, the governing body of one Little League had to enact standards of behavior for parents — parents! — including a code of conduct each parent was required to sign before their children could play ball.

And the news often brings us stories of fathers who fight with umpires or parents who bicker with coaches.

Such stories often make us shake our heads or sometimes prompt an incredulous laugh. And it is easy for parents to look at these examples and feel a little superior, knowing that we would never do anything so foolish.

What we should be doing, however, is examining the lives we lead, the examples we set for our children, to make sure we are giving our sons and daughters the proper foundation to mature into responsible citizens.

Do we do that in our daily lives? Do we teach or merely pay lip-service to the notion that authority is to be respected, that rules are to be followed regardless of whether we disagree with them or not?

Or to put it in real-world terms:

■ When our child brings home bad grades, do we make them buckle down and study harder? Or do we dismiss it the teacher as unfair or a tyrant?

■ When our child is punished for misconduct, do we reinforce the lesson at home? Or are we personally affronted by any suggestion our child was wrong?

■ When our child doesn't make the cut on an athletic team, do we use the letdown as an opportunity to teach him or her the importance of striving for excellence and making a better attempt next time? Or do we write of the entire episode to the coach playing favorites?

Those are lapses just about every parent is guilty of from time to time, and maybe occasionally there is a grain of truth to those notions. But it is important that we not assign all of life's disappointments to the unfairness of others and that we teach our children to persevere through adversity.

After all, the path from criticizing a teacher, to loudly berating a coach, to holding down a child so our child can beat her up may be a lot shorter than any of us realizes.

'Meet my son, Pepto-Bismol'

Have you heard about Jason Black and Frances Schroeder? They're the expectant couple in New York who are auctioning off their unborn baby son's name.

Black and Schroeder already have two daughters, both named normally. Problem is, the family lives in a two-bedroom apartment and they're afraid their next bundle of joy will leave them a little cramped and, they say, they have no money to find more suitable arrangements.

So now, with Schroeder due any day, the couple is approaching their dilemma with a unique solution. For $500,000, which Black and Schroeder say they will use to buy a house, the couple will name their son after first company which puts up the money.

In other words, their brand-new baby boy could very well wind up with the name, "Steak-Umm Black."

Well, it was bound to happen. In an age when the most popular "sport" is NASCAR — an atrocity of non-stop commercialism with company logos nailed to anything which doesn't bleed — and when the names of public works are auctioned off to the highest bidder at la Papa John's Cardinal Stadium, who can really be surprised by this?

Heck, it's not much different than what everyone else is already doing. We all walk around with the logos, slogans and images of our favorite commodities on our shirts, hats, shoes and cars. We've gone from associating company logos with the quality of its product, to deriving some sort of personal identification with them.

Being named after a corporation is only one step further, and a very small one at that. Still, Black and Schroeder should have probably thought this through a little more. Their new son could wind up with a moniker that will scar him for life.

They did make one stipulation — they will not accept any names from cigarette or gun manufacturers. Thus, there will be no Smith & Wesson Black.

Still, I think I would have added a few more industries to the ban list. For instance, under the current rules, the child could very well be named Summer's Eve Black or Trojans Black. I certainly wouldn't want my son named Viagra or Fleet Enema.

And what if there is another surprise in store for the couple? Meet the twins, Tampax and Ex-Lax.

Oddly enough, alcoholic beverage bottlers weren't crossed off the list, but that's probably a good thing. That way, the kid still has a chance. He could be named Jim Beam or Jack Daniels and still have a shot at a normal life.

In fact, one distiller could use the kid's last name to its advantage — Johnnie Walker. Now if they could only find another kid with the last name Red.

Sadly, not all alcohol-related companies would be so ideal. There still is a chance for the kid to be named Lowenbrau or Mad Dog 20-20.

Some companies have names which would be entirely too cumbersome. Carter's Little Pills Black wouldn't fit on any report card. Neither would Lowe's Home Improvement Centers Black. But if the winner winds up to be Phillip's Milk of Magnesia, at least they could call the kid Phil for short.

Let's not forget the online retailers. In the next few days, we could very well be introduced to baby Yahoo! or Amazon.com. But you just know some porn site would get in the door first and the kid would go through life named Nekkidasajaybird.com Black. With a name like that, the kid could wind up to be president.

What happens if there's a merger later on? If the kid had been born a couple of years ago as America Online Black, would he have to change his name to AOL Time Warner Black?

Too bad the couple is up in New York instead of in Kentucky. You just know Mitch McConnell would be busting his butt to raise the money to name the baby after him. But, of course, he'd keep the names of the donors secret.

Still, all this conjecture is pretty pointless. After all, everyone already knows who's going to win the bidding war.

Ladies and gentlemen, meet Microsoft Black.

— letters to the editor —

'Number one economy' lets Americans down

When Tom Brokaw or Dan Rather, who are paid by General Electric and Westinghouse, talk about the economy, along with our elected leaders, they talk about the stock market. It is the beginning and end of this subject. They all brag how the U.S. is the number one economy in the world and what a great job they're doing.

Question is, how well off is the average American compared to the other industrialized nations?

To measure the quality of life in American and abroad, economists evaluate the Standard of Living. To come up with a measurement, they take in factors such as wages and buying power, opportunity for education, availability of quality health care, opportunities for recreation, water and air quality.

When these factors are weighed in, the United States, with its number one economy, comes in sixth in the world according to recently released study by the United Nations.

Canada has come in first in the last five years. France, Belgium and Norway have a better lifestyle than we have in the U.S. West Germany would be number one but since they united with East Germany they have fallen down in the standings, but I'm sure they will after a few more years pass us by in taking care of their citizens.

It's disgraceful in a nation as rich as ours there's homelessness, 40 million Americans without health care, senior citizens who can't afford medications. It's this way in this country because of how we fund and run elections. The U.S. Constitution should read for the corporations, by the corporations.

Vote Green to vote for democracy and return control of government to the people. To vote for either of the two major parties is to support tyranny.

It's just a ball game

I wish someone would tell me if it is true that unless you are a coach's son or friend, you can't play on the All-Star baseball team.

I saw an incident at a Floyd County park a few weeks ago that made my stomach turn. A child was kicked off the team because the leader came up with a cockamamie story to get rid of him. The child was crying and saying he didn't do it. Well, I believe the child.

The team consists of friends and sons of coaches (managers), so this child was not one of them.

This child was a good ballplayer until the guy started with him. When you browbeat a child and put him down, then you destroy the self-esteem of said child.

I am not a parent on any ball team. I was only a visitor to Floyd County and the park.

If this is how the so-called leaders of the ball teams act, then I'm glad I'm not a parent, because I would have had my say.

Kentucky State Police leaders stress improved ties with community, other police agencies

by GRETA FIELDS
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

HAZARD — "How do you be a sergeant?"

That question was on the mind of Robert Milligan after he got promoted in the Kentucky State Police. So he asked his supervisory officer.

The officer's answer was short:

"Milligan. I'll tell you one thing: You make the decisions. You don't call me at home."

That was Milligan's introduction to the police leadership hierarchy years ago. No training was given to sergeants.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING

Today, however, sergeants do get special training, as a result of a leadership development project started by Ishmon Burks, the new commissioner of KSP.

Milligan, who was formerly commander of Post 13 in Hazard, rose to the rank of Lt. colonel and now has an office across the hall from Commissioner Burks.

Lt. Col. Milligan returned to Hazard Wednesday to represent Burks at a meeting of the Kentucky River Area Development District (KRADD). Burks was in Washington D.C. working on projects to bring to Kentucky, according to Milligan.

INFORMATION SYSTEM

Kentucky is working on one five-year project, the Criminal Information Justice System, which will link police in the field to criminal records through laptop computers and personal digital assistants.

Burks wants state troopers to switch from being perfect "clipboard" police to computer savvy professionals, according to Milligan.

Police in southeastern Kentucky will acquire technology soon with $15 million which U.S. Rep. Hal Rogers obtained. The money will be distributed in grants by the Center for Rural Development in Somerset to police agencies in all 40 counties in Rogers' district.

COMMUNITY POLICING

Burks is particularly interested in developing better communications with the community, to serve people better, Milligan said.

"His legacy will be, the state police started connecting with people again... forming partnerships with all segments of society," Milligan said.

Burks has involved his commanders in attending community meetings, such as KRADD, to find out what people want.

"Where we do a bad job is asking you, what do you want us to do? What do you need?" Milligan said.

Burks is also getting state police to form partnerships with other law enforcement agencies to solve crime, and to involve citizens.

"It's like putting 4.0 million more people on the street," Milligan said.

HIGHWAY SAFETY

State troopers are also working with regional committees made up of highway officials and other police, fire and rescue personnel, to improve highway safety.

KRADD officials expressed concerns about better highway safety. State police recognize that injuries take a tremendous economic toll on the country, and that tremendous numbers are killed.

Milligan said 90,000 people are killed annually in wrecks in the United States. Yet, 232 deaths due to defective tires drew more public attention.

However, deaths can be greatly reduced if people just wear seat belts, Milligan said. Burks established the best seat belt campaign in the nation, "Click it or Ticket," Milligan said.

The campaign increased the use of seatbelts a "fantastic" 10 percent, Milligan said. In California, campaigns persuaded 90 percent of young drivers to comply with wearing seat belts.

Post 13 just ran a campaign to teach parents to use child restraints properly.

State police also plan to improve road safety by identifying danger spots with computerized accident records.

State troopers use new accident report forms which will feed into a state-wide computer system called CRASH, or Collision Reporting Analysis of Safety on Highways.

DRUGS

Commissioner Burks plans to reorganize drug enforcement to attach the program directly to his office through a lieutenant at Post 13 trains "green" federal agents, Milligan said.

The drug task force at Post 13 seized $100,000 in assets the past year, $150,000 in controlled substances, obtained 155 state indictments and 52 federal indictments.

Since 1991, Post 13 obtained 298 federal indictments; 68 were during the past year. "People in state police are tremendously dedicated to what they do. I'm tremendously proud of them," Milligan said.

OXYCONTIN

Post 13 already leads the entire state in attacking drugs, Milligan said. Perry County recognized the OxyContin problem and did something immediately. Post 13 can show everybody else how to do it, he said. In fact, Capt. Danny Webb colonel.

Lt. Col. Robert Milligan

"Hopefully, we can do more with less," Milligan said.

State police continue to investigate OxyContin abuse, and they plan to launch an organized offensive against the next expected drug epidemic in Eastern Kentucky — methamphetamines.

"It's coming this way, and it's a dangerous drug," Milligan said. "When they're cooking this stuff, the whole house can go up."

Police recently found five drug labs in the KRADD region, according to the Post 13 commander Capt. Danny Webb, who regularly attends KRADD meetings.

"It's just a matter of time before it becomes a full-time operation," Capt. Webb said.

Webb said that Post 13 found one drug lab at a trailer in Viper set up near six houses. Unsuspecting residents could have been blown up, Webb said. The drug dealers booby-trapped the trailer with bombs to blow up anybody who tried to get in. State troopers had to call a bomb squad to dismantle the booby-traps.

Governor names Public Service Commission vice-chair, appoints commissioner to fill PSC vacancy FRANKFORT — Gov. Paul Patton announced Friday the reappointment of PSC Commissioner Gary Gillis to a second four-year term. Gillis was also named vice-chair of the commission. Robert Spurlin, Frankfort, has been appointed to fill the remainder of the term of former commissioner Ed Holmes.

Gillis, a certified public accountant, was first appointed PSC commissioner on Nov. 11, 1997. He previously served as executive director of the Kentucky Workers' Compensation Funding Commission and is a former secretary of the Kentucky Revenue Cabinet.

As commissioner, Gillis has represented Kentucky on several national utility committees, including the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners (NARUC) Electricity Committee and has served as a representative of NARUC on the National Energy Regulatory Commission Security Committee. Gillis' appointment as vice chair is effective August 1.

Spurlin, a Frankfort attorney, returns to the commission after previously serving as a PSC commissioner from 1972-1976. He is a former director in the Kentucky Labor Cabinet and former assistant vice president for Kentucky Central Insurance Companies. Spurlin also served as counsel and legislative assistant to then Lieutenant Governor Wendell H. Ford from 1967-1969. His appointment is effective August 1, 2001.

The Kentucky Public Service Commission is a quasi-legislative and quasi-judicial body whose duties and powers involve the regulation of nearly 600 utilities. The commission is charged with providing a healthy regulatory environment in which jurisdictional utilities provide safe, reliable and quality service to Kentucky utility customers at fair and reasonable rates. It was created by the 1934 General Assembly and performs its regulatory functions through the holding of hearings and issuance of written orders.

The commission has exclusive jurisdiction over the regulation of rates and service of all regulated utilities in Kentucky.

Staff Report

DANVILLE — Several Kentucky communities were given "Renaissance" status Friday — and more than $21 million in funding that goes with it — thanks to a new round of funding announced Friday by Gov. Paul Patton.

Patton announced the awards for 72 Kentucky Renaissance Communities, giving those communities the chance to improve their downtown areas.

The announcement was held at Constitution Square in Danville, a gold-level Renaissance community.

Pikeville, the governor's hometown, received the most funding, with allocations slated at nearly $1.5 million.

$625,000 is appropriated for the Morehead Renaissance Community, home of Morehead State University. Ashland will receive $345,000 in funding awards.

Paintsville will receive $182,000 in state appropriated funds for the renaissance communities program. Lynch was slated for nearly $142,000. The renaissance communities of Harlan and Jackson will both receive funding of $70,000, and Benham received nearly $92,000.

The Renaissance Kentucky program, launched in 1997 by Patton, assists communities in revitalizing their downtowns.

"In 1997, I launched the Renaissance Kentucky program to encourage and help our communities revitalize their downtowns by developing businesses, housing and rental opportunities," said Patton. "All Kentucky communities should have downtown centers thriving with activity to pass on local traditions and treasures to future generations."

Renaissance is administered by an alliance of agencies including the Kentucky Heritage Council, Kentucky Housing Corporation, Kentucky League of Cities, Kentucky Department for Local Government, Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, Federal Home Loan Bank of Cincinnati and Fannie Mae. The program also brings together the full capacity of state government through representation of all executive branch cabinets.

The goal of the program is to recognize and honor communities that have maintained or restored their central downtown areas as safe, efficient and functional urban cores.

Additionally, the program provides support and technical assistance with the development of strategies for these communities that want to improve their downtowns.

For more information regarding the Renaissance Kentucky program, contact Penny Young at (502) 564-7630, extension 305 or by email at pyoung@kyhousing.org.

Blood donors needed to fight summer shortages

The need for blood is always critical during summer months. Vacations and factory shut downs cause many people to forget about donating, and the need for blood. Also, warm weather means more outdoor activities and traveling, which leads to a greater number of accidents. Therefore, less blood is available, while more blood is needed.

How can we fight this potentially dangerous situation? The solution begins with blood drives, like the one in Floyd County. St. Vincent Mission will sponsor the next county blood drive, Wednesday, August 1, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., in the Boone Clinic. Donors are needed at this drive to help fight summer shortages, and to help patients in Highlands Regional Medical Center, McDowell ARH, and Our Lady of the Way Hospital. Anyone who is in general good health, is 17 years of age or older, and weighs at least 100 pounds, is eligible to donate. Donating takes only a few minutes, and can mean a lifetime to someone in need.

Fight summer shortages before they start. Donate blood on Wednesday, August 1, at the St. Vincent Mission Community blood drive. For more information, call 886-2513, 886-1557, or contact Dawn Wheeler at (606) 432-4979.

State seeking bids on Town Branch Bridge

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

FRANKFORT — Sealed bids for all projects in connection to the replacement of Prestonsburg's historic Town Branch Bridge will be received for by the Department of Highways, according to a notice to contractors sent from that office this week.

Bids will be received for the project on the first floor of the State Office building in Frankfort on August 24 until 10 a.m.

Bids for the construction of a new, safer bridge to replace the landmark bridge will be opened at that time.

Proposals for bids on all projects will be available until 9 a.m. August 24 at the Division of Contract Procurement at a cost of $10 each and a remittance payable to the State Treasurer.

The bids must be accompanied with a non-refundable request for proposals. Bid proposals are issued only to pre-qualified contractors.

The proposal which is accepted will find that bidder facing a project that was looked at in April and will, according to early plans then, change the 68-year-old arched bridge.

The new features will include ornamental lights and brown metal railing but will not include the signature arch, a trait which has made the Town Branch monument unique from the moment it was first built in 1932.

When conceptual drawings were made of what the new bridge might look like earlier this year, the draft was complete with the added features, which Rev. Johnnie Ross, the project's environmental scientist, said were added in an attempt to preserve the "uniqueness of the area".

Project manager Charles Richenbach has estimated the cost of construction for the new bridge to be approximately $3.2 million.

OxyContin maker funds entrepreneurship grant

by RENEE M. SNOWDEN
BREATHITT COUNTY BUREAU

The National Foundation for Teaching Entrepreneurship (NFTE) has issued a $100,000 grant to four states, including Kentucky.

The grant is to help and provide five teachers from four states with graduate classes. It will provide curriculum for teachers as well as students.

Money for the grant is coming from pharmaceutical manufacturer Purdue Pharma, maker of the controversial painkiller OxyContin.

NFTE was founded in 1987 by Steve Mariotti. It is an international nonprofit organization that introduces low-income and at-risk young people to the world of business and entrepreneurship by teaching how to develop and operate their own legitimate small businesses.

When Mariotti founded NFTE, he was a New York City public high school teacher who worked with a dropout prevention and academic performance improvement program to students who were at risk of quitting or failing school. The intention of NFTE is to teach and impact the students academic and life skills through a hands on entrepreneurship and business curriculum.

Through this program, students will not only learn the basics of starting and operating a small business, but also learn math, reading and writing, as well as develop critical thinking, workplace readiness, teamwork, planning, organization, communication and decision making skills.

NFTE feels that these programs will have a direct impact on students and their academic performance, attendance rates and self-esteem, and that they also add enormous value to the lives of the thousands of youth they serve through the United States.

The mission of the NFTE is to impact positively on the lives of low-income youth by strengthening academic skills and teaching the basics of how to start a small business. NFTE achieves its goals by creating curriculum, training teachers and providing alumni services.

"Our goal is to help young people to develop leadership and entrepreneurship," said Pamela Bennett, Purdue Pharma director. The four states which will be benefiting from the grant are Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia and Maine.

Bentley's Comments

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

Many of you will be surprised to read the second paragraph of today's endeavor, so let's go ahead and get it out of the way.

We owe a debt of gratitude to Ralph Hacker. And not just for Wednesday's abrupt resignation.

For 39 years, we in the Bluegrass were spoiled by the single best broadcaster in the country. Cawood Ledford had the remarkable ability to not only tell you what was happening, but to allow you to feel what it was like to be sitting there. For those wonderful winters, through his raspy tone we felt as if we were sitting at center court as the Cats ran down LSU, Ole Miss and Florida.

Nine years ago, he stepped down, saying it was time to go back to the Harlan County town with which he shared a name, and spend time with his family.

The problem was, the same day he broke all our hearts, his sidekick of 20 years said that naturally, he was going to be Ledford's replacement. It would be unfair to say Hacker is the anti-Cawood, but many across the Commonwealth have felt that way for generations. He was never as popular as Cawood, never as beloved, and many fans felt he was a necessary evil to the almost guilty pleasure of listening to Cawood tell us the Cats were runnin'.

So when Hacker didn't even allow the proverbial body to get cold before he claimed the throne, the sports-happy state wasn't thrilled. For five years, he sat alongside Jeff Van Note in the football booth, and no one was

EKU's Ratcliffe promoted to Associate Athletics Director

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

RICHMOND - Derita Ratcliffe, former Assistant Athletics Director at Eastern Kentucky University, has been promoted to the position of Associate Athletics Director, it was recently announced.

Ratcliffe, whose career is anchored by her efforts to improve student-athlete welfare, is beginning her third year at ECU. As Associate Athletics Director, Ratcliffe's duties will include supervision responsibility for ten of Eastern's 16 sports, working with the athletic-academic support program and development of programs which enhance the student-athletes' involvement at ECU.

Ratcliffe, 34, was appointed as Assistant Athletics Director and Senior Woman Administrator on July 1, 1999. In her two years on the job, she placed emphasis on building relationships with other service providers on campus. She serves as the departmental liaison to Admissions and Academic Support Services for Student-Athletes, in addition to participating on a number of committees.

Prior to her appointment at ECU, Ratcliffe worked at Virginia Tech University (1994-99). During her time there, she held a number of positions including Director of Student Life (1995-97) and Assistant Athletics Director (1997-99). She counts her experience assisting with recruiting in football as one of the most valuable in her career to date. "Derita has done an excellent job as Senior Woman Administrator for the Athletics Department," said ECU Athletics Director

Mountain Angels split in tourney, revenge loss

by TONY MCGUIRE
SPORTS WRITER

The Mountain Angels, a regional softball team comprised of 15 to 17 year-old girls from the area, traveled to Louisville this past week for a warm-up tournament before traveling to the Softball World Series. The local youth went 2-2 in the event, but did however revenge a previous loss to the Berea Mustangs, the team that beat them twice in their last tournament.

In the opening game the Mountain Angels soundly defeated the Trimble County team 12-1. Jeannie Hamblin limited Trimble County to only 3 hits while getting 12-runs of support from her offense. Emily Brashear led the way for the Mountain Angels with 2 hits and 3 RBIs. Debbie Roll added two hits in the winning effort.

In the second game, the Mountain Angels met their nemises, the Berea Mustangs. Things looked rough in the early going as the Mustangs put 3 runs on the board in the first inning. The Angels slowly chipped away at the lead until they were able to gain control with a 2-run fourth that gave them the 4-3 lead. Berea scored 3 more in the sixth inning and 2 in the seventh to take the 8-4 lead. The Mountain Angels somehow were able to plate 5 runs in the both half of the seventh to steal the win at 9-8, and revenge the two losses to the Mustangs in an earlier tournament.

Kelley Neace got the win on the mound, and knocked in the game-winning run. Neace gave up 8 hits and struck out 3 in the win. Teasha Haynes had the big night at the plate as she went 3 for 4 with a double and 3 RBIs. Tasha Lowe had two hits on the night.

NASCAR Testing

Another hot day of testing at the Brickyard

CNHI NEWS SERVICE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. - Two hours into the afternoon session of NASCAR testing at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, the only thing speeding around the track was the museum tour bus. Rain cut the final day of testing for the Brickyard 400 short, allowing the teams to get an early start to their next destination, the raceway in Pocono, Penn.

Despite the rain and short amount of time many teams were able to spend on the track, Wednesday proved to be quite productive for many drivers. Track temperatures registered near 134 degrees, but eight cars were still able to break the 175 mph mark. Three more reached 174. Only three cars had accomplished the same feat during Tuesday's testing, where speeds were significantly affected by the high heat

"When I get out of the car, I have to take my helmet with me,"

Stewart said. "If I leave it in the car, it's too hot to put it back on."

and humidity. Home Depot driver Tony Stewart felt the weather conditions in Indy were probably the worst NASCAR had encountered so far this season.

"When I get out of the car, I have to take my helmet with me," Stewart said. "If I leave it in the car, it's too hot to put it back on."

Jeremy Mayfield, driver of the Mobil Ford, seemed unaffected by the heat and showed he had the car to beat in the morning session. Mayfield reached a speed of 177.312 mph, approaching but not surpassing the fast lap set by Jimmy Spencer during last week's testing. The No. 12 car gained almost four miles per hour on its previous best speed of 173.957 mph.

Two of the youngest faces in NASCAR set speeds just short of Mayfield's mark. Casey Atwood and

Yates seeing double at the top

by STEVE MICKY

Dale Jarrett

Ask any owner in the Winston Cup garage and he will tell you that right now Robert Yates is the envy of the garage. While most owners would love to have just one driver in the hunt for the championship, Yates enjoys watching both of his teams fight it out for the top spot.

The owner's envy goes deeper than just the fact that Yates' Dale Jarrett No. 88 team is tied with Jeff Gordon

Hazard's Olinger will look to lead UC

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

The University of Cincinnati football team will look to get another bowl bid in the 2001 season. Last year's Bearcat season ended with a loss to Marshall in the Motor City Bowl.

The returning 11 starters and 40 lettermen give Cincinnati a good nucleus to work from while a group of talented underclassmen will be called on to fill in the gaps and provide depth.

The challenge ahead for the

UC coaching staff will be to find the best way to utilize the blend of players to find replacements for the 11 starters and 28 lettermen who have departed.

The offense returns running backs Ray Jackson (808 yards) and DeMarco McCleskey (500 yards), who last season became the fourth UC running tandem in the last 23 years to each rush for more than 500 yards in a season.

The strength of the defense will be on the line and in the secondary. Three starters are back on the line, including ends Antwan Peek and Derrick Adams and tackle Kirk Thompson.

Boasting the return of the squad's top five cornerbacks from a year ago, Minter has shuffled the secondary a bit, moving several players around to offset the departure of the top three safeties.

The schedule should provide Cincinnati with a significant challenge.

After opening the season at home against defending Big Ten champion Purdue (Sept. 2), the Bearcats will have a short week to prepare for their Conference USA opener at Army (Sept. 8). The rest of the non-league slate includes home games against Connecticut (Nov. 3) and Louisiana-Monroe (Sept. 15) with a road game at Miami (O.) (Sept. 22), the 106th meeting in the series.

The Cincinnati offense returns six starters and 15 members from last year's team, but is still left with some offensive question marks heading into the upcoming season.

The biggest area of concern is at the skill positions where the Bearcats lost five players who combined to make 99 career starts. The most notable of the quintet is quarterback Deontey Kenner, who threw for 6,278 yards and 31 touchdowns in his career.

The receiving end of the passing game lost starters Jason Collins-Baker, Antonio Chatman, Tony Smikle and tight end Ashley Hunt, who combined to make 285 career catches for 3,321 yards.

The strength of the offense will be in the backfield where the duo of Jackson and McCleskey return, giving Cincinnati the top running tandem in Conference USA. A veteran offensive line, boasting four starters and six regulars returning, will continue to provide exemplary run blocking and pass protection.

With former San Jose State head coach Dave Baldwin taking over as offensive coordinator, the offense will continue to feature the one-back, multi-formation spread attack that the Bearcats effectively used over the last two seasons.

The position of starting quarterback could be another big question heading into the fall campaign.

Minter has a large cast to choose from, including three returnees, senior Adam Hoover, junior John Leonard and sophomore Luis Gonzalez. Add to the mix talented freshmen Gino Guidugli, Billy Faulkner, Kenwood Latimore and George Murray, who will join the team for preseason camp, and the Bearcats can boast the deepest, most talented but inexperienced quarterback unit in recent memory.

Leonard has the inside track on the starting nod after his performance in spring practice. He played one season at El Camino College and one year at Arizona State before joining the Bearcats in the fall of 2000. He played in 10 games as a sophomore at Arizona State, completing 29-of-74 passes for 340 yards and one touchdown.

Playing in a passing offense at El Camino that featured Bearcats Antonio Chatman and Robert Drewery, Leonard completed 62.5 percent of his passes, throwing for 2,765 yards and 31 touchdowns.

Hoover has the most experience in the UC offense after serving as Kenner's backup in 2000. With Kenner sidelined by injury during midseason, he started two games and saw considerable action in two others, completing 53-of-106 passes for 665 yards and three touchdowns.

Hoover showed his leadership in UC's 48-31 win over Houston when he completed 15-of-25 passes for 268 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

Prior to coming to Cincinnati, Hoover threw for 2,345 yards and 11 touchdowns in one season at Saddleback Junior College and played two years as a reserve at Brigham Young.

Gonzalez possesses the physical skills to compete for playing time while continuing to show improvement in the mental aspect of the game. He saw limited playing time in two games in 2000.

Although it is hard for any first-year freshman to play at the collegiate level, and even harder to play at quarterback, the trio of Guidugli, Faulkner and Murray have the skills to challenge for time this year.

Guidugli, the highest profile UC recruit during Minter's tenure, has the best chance to break into the lineup after playing the last two years in an offensive system similar to Cincinnati's. He threw for 7,397 yards and 90 touchdowns in leading Ft. Thomas Highlands High to a 27-2 record and two straight Kentucky state championships.

Cincinnati will boast a young group of receivers. Hazard native Jon Olinger, a junior, will look to help lead the Bearcats. Olinger was the leading receiver in the spring game.

The youth of the Bearcats is evident in the receiving unit where only five players return who caught passes in 2000, creating the opportunity for several newcomers to break into a rotation that uses as many as five receivers on the field at any given time.

The focus of the passing game should center on juniors LaDaris Vann and Tye Keith, the top two returning receivers from a year ago, while seniors Robert Drewery and Tim Walker, junior Jon Olinger and freshman Daven Holly have the ability to make an impact.

Vann, the 1999 Conference USA Freshman of the Year, has caught 60 passes for 837 yards and six touchdowns in his two seasons and provides Cincinnati with a receiver capable of making the big play. He combines the athleticism needed to make the catch in heavy traffic with good speed and a great understanding of the game.

Keith emerged over the second half of the 2000 season, making three or more catches in seven of the last eight games. He is an elusive performer who features reliable hands and good instincts. He finished second on the team with 32 catches for 456 yards.

Drewery, who caught nine passes for 149 yards in limited action in 2000, boasts the best combination of size, speed and experience. He has the quickness to be a deep threat while also running his routes with great precision.

Walker, a reserve in each of the last two years, will get his chance to break into the lineup full time for the first time since fracturing his leg early in the 1999 season. He boasts 4.45 speed in the 40, making him one of the top deep threats on the squad.

At 6-3, Olinger is the biggest target among the receivers but he also has the speed to be a deep threat. He should get the opportunity to increase his playing time after playing in a reserve capacity the past two years.

Holly showed during spring practice that he was ready to move into the rotation, capping the workouts by catching a 38-yard touchdown pass during the spring game.

First-year freshmen Carl Jones, Justin LaForgia and Derick Ross will join the competition for positions in the playing rotation.

Senior Ray Jackson and junior DeMarco McCleskey are expected to split the playing time with Charles Spencer and Nathan Wize also seeing ample action in the UC backfield.

Jackson earned first team All-Conference USA honors in 2000 after finishing third in the league in rushing with 808 yards. He recorded four 100-yard rushing games, leading the team with eight touchdowns.

Jackson's size and strength allows him to be effective running between the tackles while his quickness and hands make him a reliable receiving target out of the backfield.

McCleskey combines the strength to run inside with the quickness and field awareness needed to get around the edge to become an explosive offensive performer. He started four games in 2000, finishing second on the team with 500 yards and four touchdowns. He begins his junior campaign ranked 17th in career rushing with 1,362 yards.

Spencer joined the Bearcats from Missouri Western, where he rushed for 1,530 yards and 12 touchdowns in his first two years. He gained 130 yards on 48 carries in a reserve role in 2000, playing in eight games.

Wize has been a regular in the lineup for the last three years. He has proven to be effective as a third down back, capable of being used as a receiver out of the backfield or a blocker in passing situations.

Tight end duties will be shared among three players. The Bearcats will most likely use different tight ends in different situations. Seniors JR Deatherage and Joe Hamilton, freshman A.J. Lucius and junior transfer Dennis Hart will each vie for time.

Deatherage, the best all-around athlete of the group, is the leading candidate to see the majority of action. He played in every game in 2000, proving to be a solid blocker while emerging late in the year as a receiving target.

Lucius used his redshirt season in 2000 to add almost 25 pounds and show considerable advances in the weight room. Hamilton moves to tight end after playing the last three seasons at defensive tackle.

Hart is the best receiver among the group, catching 74 passes for 1,495 yards and 13 touchdowns in two seasons at Compton (CA) Community College.

A veteran group of offensive linemen will try to put the Bearcats to the top of the C-USA rankings this season.

The anticipated starting lineup averages 6-3, 295 pounds and features a combined 66 career starts.

The returning starters include tackles Shawn Murphy (6-4, 290, Sr.) and Josh Gardner (6-4, 282, Jr.) and guards Kirt Doolin (6-4, 306, Jr.) and DeWayne Johnston (6-1, 304, Sr.). Josh Shneyderov (6-2, 295, So.) steps into the starting unit at center.

Murphy and Gardner serve as the backbone of the line, starting at left and right tackle, respectively, giving the Bearcats a pair of durable tackles with excellent fundamental skills.

Murphy, a preseason All-Conference USA choice, made his Bearcat debut in 2000 after transferring from Michigan State and quickly moved into the lineup, starting every game, while Gardner has been in the starting lineup for all 23 career games.

Doolin played tackle in his first two seasons at Cincinnati before moving to guard last fall. He started at right guard in six games but will move to left guard this fall.

Johnston may be the most underrated performer on the line. He was slated to see only reserve duty in each of the last two years, but injuries opened the door and he ended up starting 17 games. He will start at right guard.

Jones, Baker highlight men's basketball recruiting class

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

Georgetown College men's basketball has signed five players, including Antwan Jones (6-7, 215, Sr., G, University of Cincinnati), Marco Morgan (6-8, 240, Sr., C, University of Akron), Enelio Moreno (6-7, 250, Jr., F, Union (Tenn.) University), Kyle Schueller (6-5, 190, Jr., G, St. Petersburg Community College) and Jermaine Taylor (5-10, 190, Jr., G, Southwestern Illinois Community College), to play for the Tigers next season, head coach Happy Osborne announced today. The five join seven returners and previously announced George Baker (6-3, 190, So., G, DePaul University) and Quintin Bailey (6-4, 190, Jr., G, University of Louisville) on the 2001-02 squad.

"We're very pleased with our recruiting class," said Osborne. "We're still looking to sign one or two more, but we like what we have so far. Hopefully we'll be competitive in the tough Mid-South Conference."

Jones, a 6-7 transfer from the University of Cincinnati, averaged 5.3 ppg and 2.4 rpg as a junior with the Bearcats. Prior to UC, Jones was named a National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) All-American after posting 18.7 ppg and 5.3 rpg at Tallahassee Community College. He was named First Team All-State in the Florida Junior College League and was the Panhandle Conference Player of the Year in 2000.

Morgan comes to GC from the University of Akron where he averaged 3.7 ppg and 2.9 rpg in his junior season. Morgan was one of three players to start all 28 games as a sophomore. He averaged 10 ppg and 7 rpg for one year at Moberly (Mo.) Junior College.

Moreno, a native of Cali, Columbia, South America, played for the Columbia National Team for two years (1995-97) prior to his time at Union (Tenn.) University. The 28-year-old junior-to-be was named the 1997 Columbia National Player of the Year before playing at Union (Tenn.) University. Moreno averaged a double-double with 13 ppg and 10 rpg as a sophomore at Union.

Schueller, a transfer from St. Petersburg Community College, joins GC's already potent three-point threat. Schueller knocked down 45 percent from beyond the arc as a sophomore, averaging 16 ppg at shooting guard.

Taylor comes to Georgetown from Southwestern Illinois Community College. Taylor, a Louisville native, played his high school basketball at Eastern High School and was a member of the 1997 Kentucky State championship team.

UC Athletic Hall of Fame gets four new members

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Four Bearcat greats, three of whom distinguished themselves in football, have been selected for induction into the University of Cincinnati Jim Kelly Athletic Hall of Fame.

The new inductees are Danny Barrett, who quarterbacked the UC football teams of the early 1980's before embarking on a pro career in the Canadian Football League; Steve Cowan, who was the Bearcats' all-time leading rusher when he concluded his career in 1970; Bob Hynes, who set two records which stand today in his only season of football in 1923; and Deb McKinney, UC's first women's soccer All-American and leader on the school's first three varsity teams in the early 1980's.

The four will be formally enshrined at a dinner on Friday, Oct. 5 at the UC Alumni Center. Reservations for the dinner may be made by calling the UC Athletic Department (513-556-4884).

The new inductees will also be honored at halftime of the Bearcats' football game with Tulane on Oct. 6.

Barrett, whose outstanding athletic ability led to a stint in the Bearcat secondary his sophomore season, returned to quarterback to pass for 4,407 yards and 27 touchdowns during his career. He threw for 2,222 yards and 17 TD's as a senior, before embarking on a 13-year career in the CFL. Barrett set numerous passing records in the CFL—he has the second-highest single game passing yardage total (601) and holds marks for most passes attempted (56) and completed (34) in a Grey Cup game. He doubled as a player/assistant coach during the latter part of his career and in 2000 became head coach of the Saskatchewan Rough Riders.

Cowan became UC's first running back to top the 1000-yard mark in a season when he amassed 1,197 yards as a junior in 1969. With the arrival of future pro Reggie Harrison, Cowan was moved to flanker for his senior season and was the team's second-leading receiver. He also managed to top the 2,000-yard mark in career rushing yardage and his total of 2,033 yards stood as a school record for a decade. Cowan completed his master's and doctorate degrees in education administration at UC and serves as an administrator in the Paterson, N.J. school system.

Hynes didn't play football until his senior year at UC—co-op work as part of his engineering studies presented conflicts—but made a lasting impact when he did take up the sport. He made a seemingly contention for the title. In the first game, the Mountain Angels lost to the Indiana Storm in a defensive struggle. The game went the full seven innings with the only score coming in the sixth inning. Unfortunately the score was on the Storm's side of the scoreboard.

In their final game the Mountain Angels lost to the Louisville Sting 6 to 2 in a game that was called due to time. The difference in the game was the first inning in which the Sting scored four. The Mountain Angels were able to get base runners on during the game, but were unable to execute and get them across the plate. Jeannie Hamblin was the only Angel to have multiple hits in the contest as she went 2 for 2 with a double and 2 RBIs.

impressed. However, compared to the nine years he spent as the voice of the nation's top collegiate basketball program, he was practically Al Michaels in the football booth.

As a play-by-play man, Ralph proved he was a good color commentator. It is a different ball game, and his was not a smooth transition.

Fans were upset because many dreamt of Marty Brennaman spending time off from the Cincinnati Reds in Kentucky. That couldn't be. Ralph and Marty do not get along, and again, Ralph was viewed as the bad guy.

He had a poor selection of phrases. He referred to mid-court as the "mid-stripe line", which really means the middle of the line, not the court. Many didn't like that he seemed to always give the Kentucky score first, even when they were behind. Also, as my cousin

Brian pointed out to me, rarely in his tenure did an opponent get credit for a dunk in Hacker's call. Those listening to him would only hear that they laid the ball in.

Still, he provided us a service. With the exception of the amazingly gifted Brennaman, no one was going to successfully follow Cawood into the booth. It was simply not going to happen.

But someone had to, and Hacker had the clout, the pride and the desire to try, and so he did. He lasted five seasons in football, and stepped aside.

He was replaced on those autumn Saturday afternoons by Tom Leach, who had become popular in Lexington as the sports director of the Hacker-owned WVLK radio stations, and throughout the rest of the state on the pre-game and post game shows on the UK network.

Leach is not perfect, but the criticisms have been more whispers than the outright taunts of Hacker. Sure, Leach is excitable. Every play seems like it could send Kentucky straight to the Sugar Bowl. "By the second quarter, I'm all worn out," one friend said.

Still, nearly everyone was happy with the choice. Then came Wednesday, when Hacker stepped down again. Since giving up his football chores, he had sold his broadcasting conglomerate and reportedly pocketed more than $15-million. He had moved to Florida, and was commuting from there to do games and the Big Blue Line.

His friend Jim Host tried to talk him out of it, but he may have been the only one. Quickly, the deal was struck with Leach. There would be no cries for Brennaman this time around; Tom Leach was clearly the man.

All will not be perfect this time for Leach. Host has a month to find him a suitable partner for football broadcasts, as they try to fill the vacancy caused by last week's departure of Van Note.

Then, he will settle into the most important seat on press row in Rupp Arena, and it will not be easy again. He will be nervous, again knowing while he isn't following a legend, he still sits clearly in the shadow of one. Also, he will be saddled with partner Sam Bowie, who is the polar opposite of his smooth, easy days as a player in the copilot position.

Still, Leach will prove to be up to the task. He is a likeable sort with a working man's personality, as opposed to Hacker, who seemed too corporate, too structured.

Kentuckians will never be over Ledford, and would have never grown to like Hacker. In Leach, they get a solid compromise. He's a proven talent who has plenty of room to grow and at 40 all the time he needs to do it. He probably won't be around for his 39th season, but his will be time well spent.

ESPN, CBS and Jefferson Pilot will have a few less listeners this winter, and Kentucky fans won't have the appropriately named Hacker to kick around. Suddenly, winter just got a little warmer.

Yates

for the lead and Ricky Rudd his No. 28 driver is third just 28 points from the top spot. Other owners have to wonder how Yates' two teams are so willing to co-exist as equals.

The business of Winston Cup racing now dictates that if you want to have any chances of having a successful operation in the sport you must field more than one race team. Hendrick Motorsports and Jack Roush Racing proved in the 90s that the multi-car approach to the sport was the best way to experience success in such a competitive series.

This is not to say that a multi-team approach will ensure success for an owner. The multi-team approach only works when the people involved within the organization are willing to work together and not care which team grabs the headlines on a particular weekend.

In Jarrett and Rudd, Yates has two drivers that have so much in common that the two teams mirror each other in many ways. Both drivers are 44 years old and between them have raced more than 36 full seasons in Winston Cup. Jarrett has won 28 races in his career and one Winston Cup title. Rudd also knows his way into victory lane as he has 21 wins to his credit. Rudd hasn't won a championship, but he did finish second once and has finished in the top-10 points on 14 other occasions.

It hasn't always been easy for Yates' two teams in the past. Yates followed the lead of several other owners by housing both teams in his Charlotte shops, but soon found out that many times one of his teams was penalized by the demands that the other team was putting on the shop personnel.

Before Rudd joined the operation in 2000 when the 88 team wanted to fine tune their car's bodies, they found that the joint body shop they shared was too busy fixing cars wrecked by the 28 team. This caused the overall morale of the entire shop to suffer because neither team really felt free to celebrate a good run if the other car had struggled.

When Yates was looking for a new driver for his 28 team near the end of the 1999 season, Rudd not only offered Yates the chance to get the 28 car back in victory lane, he also could provide him with a new shop for the team. Rudd owned a modern shop in Mooreville, N.C. that he was wanting to sale and it turned out that Yates wanted both Rudd and his shop for his 28 team.

Both teams were now separated from each other, but when the two were at the track on the weekends they were as united as ever with a contact dialogue going on between the two operations. Neither driver has an ego, so when one driver has a handle on a setup he has no problem making sure that his teammate benefits from his knowledge.

Jarrett and Rudd know that in order for Robert Yates Racing to claim a second Winston Cup Championship trophy that they will have to be able to beat Jeff Gordon. This can best be accomplished if the two drivers don't let their won championship dreams interfere with what has made them so strong at this point of the season.

New Hampshire's finish with Jarrett overtaking Rudd in the closing laps could have been the beginning of a division between the two teams, but post race interviews with both drivers assured everyone that it was just racing and that it was another great day for Robert Yates Racing.

Yates doesn't see having both of his teams so close in the championship hunt as a problem. He said, "That's a wonderful problem to have and that he hopes both teams will be there at the end of the season when it really counts."

Maybe when we get to Atlanta in November, the most nervous person in the garage area will be Yates. After all, he might just have a tough decision in deciding which pit he is going to be in.

Testing

Indiana native Ryan Newman took advantage of a cooler morning track to post speeds of 176 mph that put them well-ahead of some of the seasoned veterans.

Daytona 500 winner Michael Waltrip lurked close behind Atwood and Newman. The NAPA AutoParts car was the third fastest during Tuesday's afternoon session and consistently ran speeds above 175 before the heat of the afternoon slowed speeds by two to three miles per hour. Waltrip seemed pleased with how his car was performing.

"It's good. It's been good consistently," Waltrip said. "We kind of had some trouble, but we're working on it. But it's doing a nice job."

A hot track and small breeze slowed times in the short afternoon session. Kevin Harvick turned the fastest lap after the lunch break, but fell way short of Mayfield's morning speed. Harvick could only muster a speed of 173.581 mph.

The most significant move during the afternoon testing belonged to Shawna Robinson. Robinson ran well enough to break into the top 25, but still was not up to speed with the rest of the field.

FROM LAST WEEK

WINSTON CUP

LOUDON, N.H. - Dale Jarrett won for the fourth time this year, bumping past teammate Ricky Rudd to win the New England 300 but failing to break the tie in the Winston Cup points standings with Jeff Gordon.

Gordon remained deadlocked with Jarrett by finishing second and leading the most laps. Jarrett technically took first place in points because the tie-breaker is victories and he has four to Gordon's three. Rudd held on to finish third, followed by Jimmy Spencer and Tony Stewart.

BUSCH GRAND NATIONAL

MADISON, Ill. - Kevin Harvick, whistle-stopping between the Winston Cup and Busch Grand National circuits, held off Jason Keller to claim the annual BGN race at Gateway.

Harvick, in a Chevrolet, and Keller, in a Ford, swapped the lead four times in the final 12 laps, but Harvick took the lead for good with four to go. Kevin Grubb finished third, and pole winner Greg Biffle rallied late to finish fourth.

Harvick hiked his points lead to 158 over Biffle. Keller is third, 20 points behind Biffle.

CRAFTSMAN TRUCKS

LOUDON, N.H. - Chevrolet driver Jack Sprague dominated the truck race at New Hampshire International Speedway, pulling away from rookie Travis Kvapil on the final restart with seven laps to go.

Sprague, who also won his fifth straight pole, had been beset by bad luck on race days. Dennis Setzer finished third, followed by Sprague's teammate, Ricky Hendrick. The first four finishers all drove Chevys. Ted Musgrave brought a Dodge home in fifth.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Jimmy Spencer vs. Jerry Nadeau

Jerry Nadeau took exception to Spencer's roughhousing late in the race. "He said he was sorry," Nadeau said. "What the hell does that mean?"

"All day long, I kept giving, giving, giving," said Spencer. "You get down to those last five laps, and they start hammering your back bumper to get you out of the way, and then they expect you to give. Well, I'm not a guy who likes to give a lot. Once in a while, I got to take something back."

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his opinion: "Like him or not, this is Jimmy Spencer's style. Did anyone really expect anything different? He's a tough racer from the old school, and the sport needs some of that."

PROFILE

Dave Marcis

Winston Cup Series

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

Pretty soon, Dave Marcis' career as a Winston Cup driver will be over. The 60-year-old driver announced recently that his final race will be the 2002 Daytona 500, and he will also attempt to make the starting field for events later this year in Indianapolis; Dover, Del.; Darlington, S.C.; and Hampton, Ga.

Marcis, always a fierce competitor, has found it harder and harder to remain competitive as the costs of participating in the Winston Cup Series have grown ever higher.

In five different decades, Marcis has competed in Winston Cup events. He became a Wisconsin short track champion in 1965 and went on to make his first Daytona 500 start in 1968.

Age: 60

Wife: Helen

Children: Shawn Marie (31), Richard (29)

Hometown: Wausau, Wis., now lives in Skyland, N.C.

Crew chief: Bob Marcis

Car: No. 71 RealTree Chevrolet Monte Carlo, owned officially by Helen Marcis

Career statistics: 880 starts, five wins, 75 top-5 finishes, 180 top-10 finishes, 12 poles, almost $7.2 million in money earnings

Firsts: Start (Feb. 25, 1968, at Daytona Beach, Fla.), pole (March 7, 1971, at Richmond, Va.), win (Sept. 28, 1975, at Martinsville, Va.)

As you look back on your career, what do you see?

"The years I've had in NASCAR have been great. I have mixed emotions about this deal. Is it time or isn't it (time to retire)? I don't know how you know that. Racing has not just been a job. It's been fun, too. I've really enjoyed it ever since the first day that I came down here to Daytona Beach and drove through that tunnel coming up into this racetrack. I was used to running those little third-mile and quarter-mile tracks in Wisconsin. I just couldn't believe what I saw when I drove through that tunnel."

What has kept you going for all these years? "The race fans come to see a race. And even though maybe you don't have the best equipment or the amount of money that others do, it's all about racing. Even though you get a lap down, you're still out there to try to win a race. That's what the fans come to see."

What brought you to this point, to this decision?

"Well, it's becoming very difficult for a single-car team to compete. You need the additional people and the engineering people that two- or three-car teams can afford to hire. I've been really, really fortunate that Richard Childress Racing has helped us with everything that they have like some of the aerodynamics things, the engines, the changes that go on, the shocks - I don't have engineers employed at my place. That I can't do because of the costs of everything. We want to continue to be involved in the business. But it continues to be tougher and tougher as a one-car team."

Trackside Trivia

1. What driver had the most career poles?
2. Who was the first car owner to win three straight championships?
3. How many drivers have won back-to-back Busch Grand National championships?

ANSWERS
1. Richard Petty, with 127. 2. Junior Johnson, 1976-78. 3. Four: Sam Ard, Larry Pearson, Randy LaJoie and Dale Earnhardt Jr.

Benson cheers decision to drop plates at Loudon, N.H.

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

LOUDON, N.H. - Johnny Benson spoke for most all the drivers when he said he was glad restrictor plates would not be used at New Hampshire International Speedway this year.

"I'm glad there is no plate this weekend," said Benson. "I think all of you know how drivers feel about restrictor plates. We don't need restrictor plate racing on short tracks. It's good to go back there in a normal atmosphere and let us deal with all the horsepower."

NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS: Tommy Baldwin Jr., who is Winston Cup crew chief for Ward Burton, and Eddie D'Hondt, a longtime friend, have announced the formation of a new Busch Grand National team.

Baldwin, while continuing to work with Burton, will begin his BGN team at Daytona in February. D'Hondt has worked in the past at Bill Elliott Racing and Evernham Motorsports.

Tommy Baldwin Racing is expected to set up shop in the new Talbert Point Motorsports Complex in Mooresville, N.C.

ANOTHER RATINGS WINNER: The Tropicana 400's 4.8 rating (in Nielsen ratings) topped all sports programming over the weekend of July 13-15, followed by major league baseball on Fox on Saturday (3.9) and the Senior Players Championship final round on ABC on Sunday (2.5).

For every half-hour from 3:30 to 6 p.m. (EDT), the NBC telecast of the Chicagoland Speedway inaugural beat the combined network sports competition on ABC (PGA/Senior PGA) and CBS (Tennis/NFL Quarterback Challenge/Tour de France).

SKINNER UPDATE: Mike Skinner, injured during the Tropicana 400 race at Chicagoland Speedway on July 15, will be replaced by Robby Gordon for the next few races.

Dr. Craig M. Hankins, of Hankins Orthopedic Center in Daytona Beach, Fla., performed surgery on Skinner.

"I reset Mike's left ankle and inserted two titanium screws, each 4 millimeters in diameter," Hankins said. "I expect Mike to make a full and complete recovery."

Letters From Our Readers

Dear NASCAR This Week,
I've notice there are two cars on the track that basically have the same number. Rusty Wallace's No. 2 and Ryan Newman's No. 02. How can two cars on the same circuit run the same race with the same numbers?
Eric N. Daw
Petal, Miss.

NASCAR counts those as different numbers. Try to think of Newman as "zero 2." There are also Nos. 1 (Steve Park) and 01 (Jason Leffler).

Dear NASCAR This Week,
I am writing in response to the letter saying Jeff Gordon needs to start using his fists instead of his mouth. I think he is showing how a true man handles a situation. Violence does not deserve respect. He is being a true gentleman handling the situations in this manner. He is also a very good role model for his young fans.
Diane Wheeler
Elwood, Ind.

Thanks for taking up the cause of gentlemanly behavior.

Dear NASCAR This Week,
Why doesn't NASCAR take a special week off for the fans where they make the cars make all right turns by going the opposite direction?
Jarod Wince
Freetown, Ind.

That's the first time we've heard that suggested. The best answer is probably "because they've never done it before" and the oval tracks are designed with counterclockwise racing in mind.

Fan Tips

■ This is not, repeat not, suitable for kids, but the late Henry "Smokey" Yunick's three-volume book of memoirs is out, collectively titled "Best Damn Garage in Townend" for Yunick's famous Daytona Beach, Fla. business. In both NASCAR and at Indy, Yunick saw it all, and while you have heard of other books, that "pulled no punches," you have never seen anything that takes it to this extreme. Yunick's memories are uncensored and, as profane and vulgar as they are, this work is important to the history of motorsports in this country.

CREW OF THE WEEK

■ Pit work proved crucial in Dale Jarrett's victory in the New England 300. At an important point in the race, Jarrett's Ford took the lead from Jeff Gordon's Chevy on pit road, and the two points leaders ended up finishing 1-2. As usual, the chemistry between Jarrett and crew chief Todd Parrott was exceptional.

FROM THE ARCHIVES

■ Pocono Raceway gave NASCAR a window to both the Philadelphia and New York markets when it joined the Winston Cup Series in 1974. The tough, 2.5-mile triangular track is the "oval" where drivers shift gears on each lap. In 1988, a serious crash at Pocono ended the career of legendary driver Bobby Allison, who had won the Daytona 500 earlier that year. Dale Earnhardt was also injured there during his 1979 rookie season.

Ohio University administrative staff to see changes

The Ohio University athletics administrative staff will see some changes for the 2001-2002 academic year, announced Director of Athletics Thomas Boeh. The changes come as a result of the June 30 departures of Associate Athletics Directors Dr. Peggy Pruitt (retirement) and Dr. Tim Alstine (athletics director at Western Illinois). Pruitt also served as the department's senior woman administrator.

Earning promotions at the senior staff level are Amy Dean and Mark Wilson. Dean moves from an Assistant Athletics Director to Associate Athletics Director for Business and Administration. Dean will continue to oversee business and personnel matters for the department and will also serve as Ohio's SWA. She will also oversee eight of the Bobcats' sports programs.

Wilson, Assistant Athletics Director for Development, was also elevated to Associate Athletics Director for External Affairs. He will continue with his development duties and also oversee eight of the Bobcats' sports programs. Director of Compliance Jennifer Stiles has been elevated to Assistant Athletics Director for Compliance and Student Services, adding oversight of the academic services department, strength and conditioning staff and scholarship responsibilities to her duties.

The media services, marketing and promotions offices are also changing this summer. Derek Scott, "voice of the Bobcats" since 1997, has assumed the role of Director of Broadcasting and Media Relations. He will continue to coordinate the Ohio Sports Radio and Television Networks, and will add the department's public relations efforts to his duties. Assistant Director of Media Services Jim Stephan moves to Sports Information Coordinator, handling day-to-day publicity chores for Bobcat athletics, while Women's Golf Coach Ann Slater adds the title of Promotions Coordinator to her coaching assign-Shneyderov is ready for playing time after serving as the apprentice to two-time All-Conference USA center Doug Rosfeld the last two years.

The one big difference in the offensive line from 2000 is experience as guard Ted Forrest (6-3, 294, Sr.) is the only reserve with any significant previous playing time. Forrest, who is coming back from a torn ACL, will be counted on to play at both guard spots.

The rest of the offensive line reserves will come primarily from the class of freshmen that redshirted last year, including tackles Clint Stickdorn (6-6, 279) and Jeremy Schlicher (6-6, 293), guards Kyle Takavitz (6-4, 299) and Adam Shorter (6-6, 285) and center Matt Mercer (6-3, 303).

The Bearcat defense was the driving force behind Cincinnati's 2000 Motor Bowl bid.

The UC defense ranked fourth in the country with 34 takeaways. Cincinnati was the only team in the top 10 nationally in both fumbles recovered (ninth with 15) and interceptions made (eighth with 19), allowing UC to rank sixth in turnover margin (+12).

The success of the Bearcat defense in 2000 led to all four defensive coaches moving on to other opportunities. To counter the loss, Minter tabbed former Colorado and Southern Cal assistant A.J. Christoff as defensive coordinator.

Christoff's challenge is to continue the development that the defense has shown over the last two years when it improved over 50 places in every NCAA statistical category.

Five starters and 19 lettermen return from 2000, including eight linemen, five cornerbacks, four linebackers and two safeties.

Linebacker To Feature Three New Starters

The Bearcats will boast three new starting linebackers as four players who combined to make 283 tackles and account for 33 of the 36 starts in 2000 have departed.

The most experienced of the returnees, senior Lewis Carter and junior Willis Edwards, will be counted on to help overcome the losses.

Carter, a three-year backup at outside linebacker, moves to middle linebacker this fall. He made 28 tackles in the first eight games before being sidelined for the final three regular season games with a dislocated hip. He returned to play in the Motor City Bowl.

Edwards, who started a pair of games at middle linebacker in 2000, is the third leading returning tackler with 38 stops. He has been moved to outside linebacker to take advantage of his quickness and open-field instincts.

Filling out the linebacker rotation will be senior Ken Wynne, junior Mark Masterson and freshmen Jermaine Wilson, Akanni Turner, Jamey Murphy and Jamar Enzor. Junior Jason Hunt, a second team All-

America choice at Sacramento City College in 2000, will join the program in August and challenge for playing time.

With five experienced cornerbacks returning, the secondary lineup has been shuffled to help offset the loss of the three players who accounted for most of the snaps at safety in 2000.

Senior LaVar Glover returns at cornerback with senior Anthony Thomas, junior Blue Adams and sophomore Zach Norton slated for backup duty.

Glover is the quickest of the defensive backs, sporting 4.42 speed in the 40. He started every game in 2000, making 38 tackles with one interception.

Norton was the only first-year freshman to play in 2000, being used mostly in nickel situations and gradually seeing increased playing time as the season progressed. He capped off the season by making an interception and a pair of pass breakups in the Motor City Bowl.

Thomas saw extensive playing time as a reserve a year ago, making 28 tackles and sharing the team lead with three interceptions.

After missing the entire 1999 season with a knee injury, Adams returned to make 28 tackles last year. He was named to the Conference USA All-Freshman team and a third team Freshman All-America choice by The Sporting News in 1998 after setting a UC freshman record with four interceptions.

Junior Ivan Fields, who was a starter at cornerback a year ago, moves to free safety while senior Aaron Butler, junior Frank Lang and sophomore John Hinson will compete for the strong safety spot.

A starter in 12 games over the last two seasons, Fields leads all Bearcat returnees with 43 tackles in 2000 and 105 career stops. Lang made 25 tackles in limited playing time, including a career-high eight vs. UAB in his most extensive action of the season.

Junior ends Antwan Peek and Derrick Adams and senior tackle Kirk Thompson return as starters on the Cincinnati defensive line.

Playing his fourth position in three years, Peek had a breakout season in 2000, leading the team with 13 tackles for loss and 8.5 sacks, ending the year one half sack short of the school record. He also led the team in fumbles caused (4), quarterback hurries (9) and quarterback hits (17).

A two-year starter, Adams has earned a reputation as a steady and consistent player capable of making big plays. He totalled 37 tackles with 2.5 sacks and six tackles for loss a year ago.

Playing in the shadow of Peek and Mario Monds, Thompson quietly turned in an all-league caliber performance a year ago, leading all UC linemen with 40 tackles while adding seven tackles for loss and a team-best three fumble recoveries.

Matt Tupuola, a transfer from El Camino Community College who has been compared favorably to the departed Monds, will join the team in August and should challenge for the final starting spot.

The line will again feature considerable depth as ends Darryll Ransom and Ben Piening and tackles Dan Wortman, DeMarcus Billings and Andre Frazier should all see playing time.

Ransom, the brother of former Bearcat and current Kansas City Chiefs standout Derrick, has played in 20 games over his first two seasons, showing steady progress.

Piening, a Conference USA All-Freshman team choice in 1998, redshirted a year ago, using the season to make significant gains in the weight room.

Frazier, the team's defensive scout team player of the year in 2000, had a breakout spring practice and could challenge for a starting assignment after adding almost 20 pounds to his frame since fall.

Jonthan Ruffin, who made just five-of-12 field goals and was twice replaced as the regular kicker as a freshman in 1999, rebounded to lead the nation in field goals in 2000. He earned all the national kicking honors, including the prestigious Lou Groza Award — signifying the nation's top kicker.

Ruffin made 26-of-29 field goal attempts, setting school and Conference USA records for field goals made and attempted, ending the year with the sixth-highest single-season field goal total in NCAA history. He was honored for his play by becoming the first player in school history to earn consensus All-America honors, being named to the All-America teams by the Walter Camp Football Foundation, the Associated Press, The Sporting News, Football Writers Association of America, collegefootballnews.com and BCSFootball.com.

Ruffin will find himself with expanded duties this season, taking over responsibility for long field goal attempts and kickoffs for the first time in his career.

The punting unit is also in good hands with the return of senior Adam Wulfeck, who earned second team All-Conference USA recognition in each of the last two years.

Wulfeck, who ranks third in UC history with a 41.4 career punting average, punted 51 times for a 41.8 average in 2000 to rank 22nd in the nation in the final NCAA stats.

A strong-legged punter with good accuracy and consistency, Wulfeck has had 47 of his 150 career punts downed inside the 20.

Charles Spencer, Ray Jackson and DeMarco McCleskey are the leading candidates to return kickoffs with either Tye Keith or LaDaris Vann most likely to return punts. Keith and Vann could also platoon as punt returners.

Spencer took over as the primary kick returner midway through the 2000 season, returning seven kickoffs for a 26.3 average while Keith brought back four kickoffs for a 15.8 average.

Q When will Medicare cover care in a skilled nursing facility?

A Medicare will cover skilled care only if all of the following are true:

1. You have Medicare Part A and have days left in your benefit period available to use.
2. You have a qualifying hospital stay. This means an inpatient hospital stay of 3 or more days in a row, not including the day you leave the hospital. You must enter the skilled nursing facility within 30 days of leaving the hospital. After you leave the skilled nursing facility, if you re-enter the same or another skilled nursing facility within 30 days, you don't need another 3-day qualifying hospital stay to get additional skilled nursing facility benefits. This is also true if you stop getting skilled care while in the facility and then start getting skilled care again within 30 days.
3. Your doctor has decided that you need daily skilled care. It must be given by, or under the direct supervision of, skilled nursing or rehabilitation staff. If you are in the skilled nursing facility for skilled rehab services only, your care is considered daily care even if these therapy services are offered just 5 or 6 days a week.
4. You get these skilled services in a skilled nursing facility that has been certified by Medicare.
5. You need these skilled services for a medical condition that:
 - Was treated during a qualifying 3-day hospital stay, or
 - Started while you were getting Medicare-covered skilled nursing facility care. For example, if you are in the facility because you had a stroke and you fall and sprain your wrist.

Enhancements to local one-stop career centers planned

FRANKFORT — Gov. Paul Patton announced Tuesday that the Cabinet for Workforce Development has received $1.4 million in federal incentive funding for exceeding performance standards in employment and adult education programs.

The funding, appropriated by the U.S. Department of Labor through the Workforce Investment Act (WIA), will be used to enhance the state's system of local one-stop career centers. Kentucky's 27 comprehensive one-stop career centers provide information about and access to a wide range of job training, education and employment services.

"These performance incentives will help make Kentucky's employment and training programs more accessible and more accountable to taxpayers," said Patton.

The top priority for the incentive funding is to place in each comprehensive center computers and workstations that are fully accessible to people with disabilities. "This funding will help eliminate barriers to accessing employment and training information that people who are disabled often encounter," the governor said.

Other priority areas are to develop more accountability measures for the one-stop career centers, provide enhanced professional development training for employment and training specialists, and enhance the comprehensive centers' level of computer technology.

The incentive dollars will also provide an opportunity for local areas to request funding for innovative projects that enhance their individual centers.

Federal WIA funds in Kentucky are administered by the cabinet's Department for Training and ReEmployment. The WIA incentive funding is based on performance of adult education programs overseen by the cabinet's Department for Adult Education and Literacy and of employment programs administered through local workforce investment areas. The funding is based on performance during program year 1999.

A Flea Market Documentary on KET hunts for bargains along Kentucky's Highway 127

Every August, bargain hunters flock to Highway 127, which runs through Kentucky from Covington through Danville to Albany. They come to seek roadside treasures in Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama as part of the annual, collective yard sale along the highway's 450-mile corridor in an event billed as the world's longest outdoor sale.

A Flea Market Documentary captures the fun along Kentucky's Highway 127 as part of a cross-country journey to some of America's greatest outdoor treasure troves. Airing Monday at 9 p.m. and Saturday, August 4, at 2 p.m. on KET, the documentary is an unabashed celebration of the unusual people and enticing things that can be found in parking lots, fairgrounds, sidewalks and wherever else someone has a sign saying "Flea Market."

In addition to the stop along Highway 127, A Flea Market Documentary takes viewers to the gigantic Rose Bowl Market in Pasadena, Calif., the busy Eastern Market in Washington, D.C., the country's oldest flea market in Canton, Tex., and many other bustling marketplaces as it spotlights the eclectic mix of wares that make a trip to the flea market unlike any other shopping experience.

With the light-hearted premise that there may be no better place to find out what makes America great than the flea market, the documentary is a story of capitalism mixed with craziness—a tale that captures the lively spirit of the folks who make flea markets so fun.

"We wanted to celebrate the people and the places and show how all of us can appreciate the desire to find a bargain, to make a buck or simply to walk and talk among old lunch boxes, spinning wheels and outrageously expensive cookie jars," said filmmaker Rick Sebak, who has won accolades for his previous films, including A Hot Dog Program, Great Old Amusement Parks and An Ice Cream Show.

A Flea Market Documentary, produced by WQED/Pittsburgh, is closed-captioned for the deaf and hard-of-hearing. Viewers can find out more about programming on KET by visiting the KET website at www.ket.org, a Kentucky.com affiliate.

Kentucky unemployment at lowest June rate in 24 years

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's unemployment rate remained at 4.2 percent from May to June making it the lowest June jobless rate in Kentucky since 1977, according to the Department for Employment Services, a Cabinet for Workforce Development agency.

Kentucky's June 2001 jobless rate was slightly below June 2000's rate of 4.3 percent. The U.S. jobless rate rose from 4.1 percent in May to 4.7 percent in June.

"It is very unusual for the unemployment rate in Kentucky not to increase from May to June," said Carlos Cracraft, the department's chief labor market analyst. "June is a month when thousands of students and others are looking for jobs and that usually causes both the employment and unemployment figures to rise. This year there was a smaller than normal increase in the number of unemployed along with a large increase in the number of employed, and that caused the rate to stay at 4.2 percent in June."

Six of the nine major job sectors had employment increases in June, Cracraft said.

Agriculture led all other sectors in June with 9,500 new jobs, a 23 percent increase in positions over May 2001.

"Farmers stayed busy with hay harvesting; tobacco, corn and soybean planting; and other farm work," said Cracraft.

The services sector was the second largest growth area in June with 3,900 new jobs.

"As the summer vacation time got into full swing, amusement and recreation places added 1,400 new positions, hotels and other lodging places added 400 new jobs, and membership organizations such as YMCAs increased by 600 new jobs," said Cracraft.

"Many hospitals and health facilities hired newly graduated physicians, nurses, therapists and technicians in June causing the health services area to jump by 700 positions. In addition, business services added 800 jobs."

The trade sector gained 2,200 jobs in June. While retail establishments made up 2,000 of the new jobs, another 200 were in wholesale trade. Within retail trade, food stores and department stores each rose by 500 jobs, eating and drinking establishments increased by 400 positions, and building materials and garden supply establishments rose by 200 jobs, and miscellaneous retail stores increased by 200 positions.

The construction sector had the next largest increase in June with 1,700 new jobs. The special trade category accounted for 1,200 of those new jobs, while 300 were in general building contractors, and 200 were in heavy construction.

The finance, insurance and real estate sector added 300 jobs in June.

The mining and quarrying sector had 100 more jobs in June than in May.

The government sector had the largest drop of any sector in June with 4,700 fewer positions. State and local education had 7,100 fewer positions in June because many school and college hourly employees are seasonal, but those positions will be filled again when the schools reopen, said Cracraft.

The transportation, communications and utilities sector recorded 800 fewer positions in June. "A strike that resulted in layoffs in the transportation portion of this sector has caused declines in this area," said Cracraft. Jobs in manufacturing continued to drop in June for the sixth straight month. Manufacturing had 400 fewer jobs in June as durable goods fell by 200 positions and nondurable goods declined by 200 jobs.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics monthly estimate of the number of employed Kentuckians for June 2001 was 1,940,153. This figure is up 20,061 from the 1,920,092 employed in May 2001, and up 9,126 from the 1,931,027 Kentuckians employed in June 2000.

The monthly estimate of the number of unemployed Kentuckians for June 2001 was 84,522. This figure is up 1,320 from the 83,202 unemployed in May 2001, but down 1,798 from the 86,320 Kentuckians unemployed in June 2000.

Lawmakers consider proposal to resolve tax conflicts

FRANKFORT — A new tax-sharing proposal before a legislative committee could help counties and cities resolve conflicts over their local tax base.

The legislative Advisory Committee on City and County Relations reviewed a bill draft Wednesday in Frankfort that would allow a county and the city or cities within the county to enter into an interlocal agreement to share insurance premium tax and occupational tax revenue. Because their tax systems are already consolidated, Fayette and Jefferson counties would not be affected by the proposal.

The proposal would not prevent those who form an agreement from levying their own taxes "subject to the terms of the tax-base sharing agreement," a draft of the proposal states.

Local governments would have some incentives to enter into a tax-sharing agreement. The one-percent cap on county occupational taxes will be eliminated for counties over 30,000 in population who approve an agreement. The committee is also exploring other possible incentives such as making it easier for cities to annex in counties where the tax systems are combined.

The proposal, which may be introduced during the 2002 session of the General Assembly, is in response to a 2000 state law which created a 2-year moratorium on the creation of new or increased local occupational license fees and insurance premium taxes. According to the 2000 law, if a local government creates a new tax or increases their rates during this period, taxpayers will be unable to credit their city taxes against the taxes of the county in which they live. This has been an option that has been available to taxpayers in some counties and cities that had enacted occupational taxes on or after 1986 and insurance premium taxes since 1990.

The 2000 law (Senate Bill 163) was necessary, lawmakers say, because according to the 2000 census, the population of seven counties has exceeded 30,000 — the statutory population cap on counties that limits them to a 1 percent occupational tax rate. Lawmakers and officials in the seven counties were concerned that those counties which have tax rates in excess of the 1 percent cap would have to roll back their rates, which could result in a significant loss of funds to some of the state's fastest growing county governments. Scott County officials estimated a potential loss in the millions of dollars to an already strained county budget.

Lawmakers were not made aware of the situation until late in the 2000 legislative session making it impossible to thoroughly review the issue at that time. SB 163 was enacted to head off the potential local government financial disaster and to give lawmakers and local officials time to develop a more permanent solution to the problem. The "moratorium" expires July 15, 2002. Another part of that legislation created the advisory committee and charged them with resolving this and other issues affecting local government finance.

"The problem between cities and counties right now - a significant part of the problem with annexation - is when cities annex, they eat up counties' revenue base," said Bill Thielen of the Kentucky League of Cities, one of the groups which wants local governments to be able to share their occupational and insurance premium tax base.

"The insurance premium tax and the occupational tax base then goes into the city, and because of the credits, the counties lose that," said Thielen. "In the proposed process, we will be dealing with that problem. Cities and counties will agree on sharing that tax base."

Under the proposal, revenue sharing and crediting of both occupational and insurance premium tax revenue would be optional for counties and cities. The process of creating an interlocal agreement for tax sharing may begin with the county fiscal court, which could enact a resolution or with one or more cities within that county.

In those counties having multiple small cities, it will take the action of a number of city legislative bodies whose combined population totals 75 percent of the county population to enact a resolution to begin the process for such tax sharing proposals.

Once the process has begun, the county and city would create an agreement that addresses how services should be delivered and how the governments' combined insurance premium tax and occupational tax revenues should be allocated. The agreement, which would be effective for at least 10 years, must be approved by ordinance of all participating governments before it can take effect.

The agreement can be terminated "by a vote of the fiscal court and the participating cities in the same manner and numbers as required to approve the agreement," the proposal says.

Counties and cities who begin negotiations but fail to come to an agreement would be penalized under the proposal, which says those governments

"shall become ineligible to receive any state funds, with the exception of county and municipal road aid money until an agreement is successfully negotiated and approved by the respective legislative bodies."

Those funds would be held in escrow until an agreement is reached, says the proposal. Some committee members believe that sanctioning local governments for failing to reach an agreement was a bad idea.

"We saw that sanctions did not work well in connection to the recent solid waste proposal," said Department for Local Government Commissioner Jody Lassiter, a member of the committee. "That's what I heard from county judges across this state."

The advisory committee will continue their work on this and other topics at their next meeting August 22.

Perkins Center director named

THELMA — Cabinet for Workforce Development Secretary Allen Rose has announced the appointment of Barry H. Newill as director of the Carl D. Perkins Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center, in Thelma.

Newill has a 30-year background in vocational rehabilitation and working with people with disabilities. He comes to the center with a background of service of chief of staff at the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center in Fishersville, Va.

The Perkins Center and the Wilson Center are two of only nine public, non-profit comprehensive rehabilitation facilities nationwide.

Newill replaces Bill Duke, who is retiring as center director. He will resume his new duties August 1.

Newill holds a bachelor's degree in mental retardation. He holds a master's degree in mental retardation from Millersville State University in Pennsylvania.

The Perkins Center, which is part of the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, offers training programs, rehabilitation services and state-of-the-art equipment to help people with disabilities obtain or maintain a job and live independently. The facility is accredited by the national Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities.

Kirkland named Director of Support Services

Stephen Kirkland has been named Director of Support Services for Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation. His appointment was announced by David S. Beck, executive vice president for Kentucky Farm Bureau. Kirkland's new duties began July 9.

Kirkland comes to Farm Bureau following 11 years with 84WHAS Radio in Louisville. There he served as assistant director of operations for the station, as well as executive producer and announcer.

In his new position, Kirkland will provide computer and technical support for Farm Bureau state office and field employees, and will assist with building and grounds maintenance for the organization's facility on Bunsen Parkway in Louisville.

His responsibilities will also include Internet and Intranet maintenance, support for audio and projection equipment and software training for employees.

Kirkland's background in computer and electronics support will provide an important new asset for Farm Bureau, according to Beck.

"As new and emerging technology becomes a more integral part of our organization's routine operation, it is critical that we have a higher level of staff expertise to help us stay abreast of those changes," noted Beck.

"Steve has worked with these leading-edge technology products for more than a decade and that experience will help us be a more effective advocate for Kentucky's agriculture industry

Money Management Tips for Students

(NUE) - With college comes the anticipation of adulthood, new horizons and, for many, the realities of debt.

Personal finance experts estimate that about 30 percent of college graduates will enter the work force saddled with $10,000 to $25,000 in credit card debt and other loans.

It's easier than you think for a 23-year-old to rack up so much debt. From 1993 to 1999, the average annual student loan increased 57 percent, from $3,186 to $4,994.

It has also become increasingly simple for young people to support impractical lifestyles by using credit. In 1999, the average undergraduate owed $2,748 on credit cards, up a whopping 46 percent from $1,879 just one year before.

These twenty-somethings are struggling to pay on old debts while meeting basic living costs. To prepare for this, MSN MoneyCentral columnist and personal finance expert Terry Savage suggests today's young adults follow these tips to avoid drowning in a sea of debt.

■ Understand your finances. Make a list of all the money you owe, your expenses and the income you expect. Tools like MSN MoneyCentral's Debt Evaluation Calculator, located online at www.moneycentral.msn.com/give you an easy way to do this. Then, use this information to make a budget that will help you manage your finances. Software like Quicken or Microsoft Money can help you set up a budget and keep track of your spending.

■ Be careful with credit cards. Use cards minimally as credit card debt can bury you in interest charges. It's rare when a card doesn't charge 18 percent interest. Plus, the way some companies calculate the minimum monthly payments, you could be repaying today's purchases over the next 30 years - and paying four times the amount you originally charged in interest. By doubling the required minimum monthly payment, you could pay off that credit card in less than three years.

■ Set up a strategy to pay off student loans. Find out your total loan amount and then determine how much you can afford to pay back each month. Consolidating your loans can help decrease the monthly payment amount. Sites like Wired Scholar, <http://wiredscholar.com/>, and MSN MoneyCentral, www.moneycentral.msn.com/, have easy-to-use tools to help you explore your options.

■ Start saving today. If you can't afford to put away much, start small. Even a very small monthly contribution to your company's 401(k) plan can make a difference, and you won't miss what you don't see in your paycheck. The secret of true wealth-building is to spend less than you earn and invest your savings wisely.

For more tips from Savage on how to plan your financial future and manage your finances successfully, visit MSN MoneyCentral at www.moneycentral.com/.

Robinson Scholars attend academic camp at UK

LEXINGTON — The University of Kentucky sponsored an academic camp for the Robinson Scholars at Lexington from June 10-29.

The scholars successfully completed the Appalachian Explorers program conducted by the College of Education at UK. The curriculum consisted of classroom instruction, scientific workshops, field trips, and laboratory experiences that help to prepare the students for advanced coursework.

The Robinson Scholars Program provides for a full expense paid scholarship to selected students throughout the East Kentucky region. Students are recruited from the eighth grade and are provided the necessary academic support, student services, and enrichment activities to assure a successful transition from high school into college.

The E.O. Robinson Trust provides the program funding. The coal and timber revenues obtained from the natural resources within the Robinson Forest are being utilized to promote this region's most important natural resource — our young people.

Mindy Tackett, a Floyd County student who attended the camp in Lexington.

A view from the hill

by NICOLE STANLEY

When I graduated from high school I realized I had to make a decision on where I wanted to go to college. My first thought was to ask my twin sister, Michelle, where she wanted to go. I guess that has been my life's story. My sister and I do everything together and I wanted to go to the same college she did.

Michelle and I both decided to attend Pikeville College and play Lady Bears basketball. I still wasn't really sure if Pikeville was where I wanted to go, but together we decided it would be the best school for both of us. I could not imagine going to college without Michelle. After all, we share everything, clothes, shoes, makeup, and our closest secrets. I have also been fortunate to have Michelle as my college roommate. As a matter of fact, we've shared a room since we were born. I guess I've been pretty lucky since I have a roommate that is also my best friend.

Michelle and I have always tried to take the same classes together. We just find that it is hard to be apart from each other. Michelle has always been the smarter of the two of us, so she's really helped me with my classes when I needed it.

At the beginning of our first college basketball season I got really nervous. I didn't know anyone on the team other than Michelle, which made us bond even more. I don't think I would have stuck with basketball, or even college, if it weren't for her.

There are not a lot of brothers and sisters that get a chance to go to college together. I just happened to be one of the lucky ones. A lot of people might say that I missed out on making new friends since my sister and I are so close. I don't look at it that way at all. I just think of it as having my best friend with me all the time, and if I make new friends along the way, it is just a bonus.

Nicole Stanley, of Haysi, Va., is a senior majoring in business. Both she and her twin sister Michelle are members of Pikeville College's women's basketball team.

STOP!

You've cleaned out your attic, your basement, your garage and now you're ready to host a garage sale. Before you proceed, follow these signs for placing the type of classified ad that will help turn your event into a best-seller.

Be sure to include in your Garage or Yard Sale ad...

- WHAT. Describe the type of sale you're hosting. Is it mostly household goods? Nursery furniture? Apparel?
- WHEN. Give dates and time of sale, and rain date information.
- WHERE. Where the sale will be held, with directions or phone number for directions.
- WHY. Reason for sale, especially if it is a "moving" sale, since these tend to attract more customers.

Let one of our "ad-visors" help you with your ad.

Cookies!

Cookie connoisseurs across the country always agree on one thing. North, south, east or west—from Alaska to Florida and back—Chocolate Chip Cookies win first prize in the cookie popularity contest. An American invention dating to 1930, the famous cookie with its blissful combination of chocolate (and sometimes nuts) in a "crisp on the outside, soft on the inside" buttery dough is everyone's favorite.

First baked in the 1930s for travelers stopping at the Toll House Inn near Boston, the original chocolate chip cookie was the creation of its proprietor, Ruth Wakefield, an excellent cook. While making cookies one day, Mrs. Wakefield added pieces of a Nestlé semi-sweet chocolate bar to the cookie dough. The crisp, buttery cookies studded with chocolate nuggets were a hit with her customers. So popular, in fact, that Nestlé printed the recipe on the chocolate bar wrapper. In 1940, the company introduced Toll House Semi-Sweet Chocolate Morsels in a convenient, ready-to-use form and the cookie-baking world has never been the same.

Today, semi-sweet chocolate morsels are an American staple. They come in flavors like peanut butter and milk chocolate, butterscotch and premier white morsels, as well as mini morsels and chunks—all ready to inspire delicious cookies. There are even Toll House Cookie Kits for home cookie bakers who are short on time. Look for Cookie Kits this fall and during the holiday season in the baking section of your favorite grocery store, or make any of the scrumptious varieties here for the very best homemade cookies ever.

MOB T.V.

The offer they can't refuse: TV marries itself to the mob

By JACQUELINE CUTLER
TVDATA FEATURES SYNDICATE

Over the past few years, getting "whacked" has joined the national lexicon, and more people associate the word "sopranos" with the hit HBO series than with opera singers who can reach the upper octaves.

The Mafia, always big business in the underworld, is undeniably big business on television. In addition to a steady stream of recent mob-related programming — including last month's TV movies Boss of Bosses and The Big Heist — some cable station always seems to be running The Godfather marathons. And CBS recently reran Bella Mafia, a 1997 miniseries. The mob fascinates people. And TV, which never met a trend it didn't like, is cashing in. This week, ABC's Politically Incorrect is airing a week of mob-related shows from the Brooklyn waterfront.

Host Bill Maher plans to talk with Henry Hill, the lone survivor from the $8 million robbery that was the subject of the aforementioned Heist; Cindy DiBernardo, whose father was killed by mob snitch Salvatore "Sammy the Bull" Gravano; author and former consigliere Bill Bonanno; actor Vincent Pastore, who played Salvatore

"Big Pussy" Bonpensiero on The Sopranos; and John Cavelli of the National Italian American Foundation. Maher grew up in New Jersey, where a fascination with the mob is not unusual. "I know very few people who can quote from the Bible," Maher says. "But we can always find words of wisdom in The Godfather. There's always a parable to Don Corleone and Michael Corleone."

Maher considers devotion to

Dark Angel

In "Pollo Loco," Max (Jessica Alba) discovers an old friend from Mantecore (guest star Jensen Ackles) is behind a series of murders with a weird religious twist. To stop him, she is forced to confront her participation in a brutal Mantecore training ritual that turned freakish, which appears to be his motivation. Michael Weatherly and John Savage also star.

Movie: On Deadly Ground

Steven Seagal made his directing debut with this 1994 adventure film in which he stars as a troubleshooter and firefighter for an oil company. Michael Caine plays the oil company's ruthless owner.

Movie: The Murder of Mary Phagan
Georgia Gov. John M. Slaton (Jack

Lammon) risks his political career by reopening the case against a factory manager sentenced to hang in 1913 for the murder of a young female employee. The condemned man is Jewish, and Slaton strongly suspects he was framed for the crime mainly for that reason. Peter Gallagher and Robert

Paul (Richard Kind) invents a new relationship to fool his mother in Spin City Tuesday on ABC.

Proske also star in this 1988 drama based on a true story that also inspired the Broadway musical Parade.

Biography

Raquel Welch: Beyond the Fantasy profiles the Illinois-born beauty whose name was a synonym for "sexy" in the 1960s and early '70s. While her filmography contains considerable cheese and camp (One Million Years B.C., Myra Breckinridge, 1973's The Three Musketeers) she's shown her classier side on Broadway, with star turns in Woman of the Year and Victor, Victoria. Stunning as ever at 60, she's even been spotted engaging in self-parody, as in a memorable Seinfeld episode from 1997. And yes, she does know how to swing her arms.

8 p.m. ABC

Movie: Carpool

What's so funny about carjacking? Director Arthur Hiller (Silver Streak, The Babe) manages to see the lighter side in this terminally silly 1996 comedy. David Paymer (Mighty Joe Young, State and Main) stars as a Type A advertising executive forced to drive a vanload of neighbor-hood kids — including his own — to school when his wife is ill. Along the way, he gets caught in a stickup, then he and his van are commandeered by another bad guy (Tom Arnold) who's robbed the robbers and needs a getaway car. As the van tries to stay one step ahead of the cops, the kids discover their captor is way more fun than staid old Dad, which leads to a change in Papa's priorities once the crisis has passed. Rod Steiger and Rhea Perlman also star.

8 p.m. TCM

Movie: Gone With the Wind

Vivien Leigh won an Oscar for her unforgettable portrayal of the feisty Scarlett O'Hara, who takes looking out for No. 1 to a new level in the post-Civil War South. Hattie McDaniel also won for her performance as Mammy, while Clark Gable as roguish Rhett Butler and Olivia de Havilland as sweet Melanie Wilkes were nominated. Leslie Howard also stars in the 1939 drama.

8:30 p.m. CINEMAX

Movie: Lake Placid

Most critics panned this 1999 horror tale from David E. Kelley (Aliy McBeal, Chicago Hope), but those who like their movie monsters served up with a seasoning of camp will appreciate it. Bridget Fonda stars in the fish-out-of-water role of a big-city paleontologist investigating a mysterious death in a remote Maine lake — the work of a 30-foot man-eating crocodile. Bill Pullman plays a laconic game warden with whom she clashes and later bonds. But the film's real stars are the giant croc himself and Betty White as his best human friend, an eccentric widow who keeps him well-supplied with steak tartare. Brendan Gleeson and Oliver Platt also star.

Charlie Brown is a Winner at Jenny Wiley Theatre!

Linus, Lucy, Snoopy, Peppermint Patty, and Schroeder (played by Wade McGowan, Elizabeth Brandel, David Macaluso, Stephanie Seales, and Chris Reynolds) give energetic performances at Jenny Wiley Theatre's "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

by RICKY KENDDAL

Jenny Wiley Theatre's production of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown is more fun than the Sunday comics! This wonderful musical version of the late Charles Schulz's comic strip "Peanuts" is full of many different levels of comedy that delight both children and adults, and would have made Schulz himself proud. Combine quick humor with sparkling song and you have this terrific romp through the world of Charlie Brown, a dose of something new and different at JWT.

The first signal that this is a very family friendly show occurs when Lucy invites the children in the audience to come and watch the show up on stage. Charlie Brown, who announces his age as 7 and three quarters, and his gang of friends perform their show as their "peers," the children, look on from only a few feet away, on an astro-turf covered area at the front of the stage. Obviously, keeping the children entertained and behaving well for the entire length of the show is no easy task, and the cast should be congratulated for their impressive concentration and professionalism. They managed to delight everyone in the audience, including people older than 7 and three quarters! This show involves the audience by moving beyond the stage—such as when Charlie Brown flies his kite out above the seats, and when Snoopy joyfully carries his valentines down through the amphitheatre.

You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown has only 6 speaking parts, so the quality of every member of the cast is incredibly important for this show. The talented people involved in JWT's production are what made it such a fantastic success. Wes Nelson portrays the lovable loser Charlie Brown with remarkable sensitivity and comic skill, making everyone in the audience sympathize with his daily struggles and rare triumphs. Elizabeth Brandel plays the bossy Lucy to perfection—she owns the stage with the vitality of her voice and the characteristic power of her movements. David Macaluso makes an adorable Snoopy, delivering a delectable combination of sweet vocals, tap dancing talent and hilarious hi-jinks. Wade McGowan plays Lucy's long-suffering little brother Linus superbly, a highlight being his graceful and humorous dance duet with—his blanket. Stephanie Seales as Peppermint Patty and Chris Reynolds as Schroeder round out the fabulous cast. Reynolds portrays the perpetual pianist Schroeder with humorous maturity and skillful singing, while Seales gets the audience laughing uncontrollably at the tone-deaf tomboy Peppermint Patty's sexy rendition of "Take Me Out to the Ballgame." Every character is well-developed, and the various strengths of each actor multiply when they come together as a true ensemble.

All the artistic and technical aspects come together beautifully to make this show shine. The colorful, childish sets designed by Steve Hirsch bring to mind the "Peanuts" comic strip, creating the ideal backdrop for this show. The orchestra led by Evert Windland fills the amphitheatre with pleasant song from the rollicking opening number, "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown," to the upbeat ending, "Happiness." The simple, bright costumes designed by Leslie Malitz are perfectly suited to this comic strip world. The lighting by Joe Mohamed is also commendable, intensifying the audience's experience with turns of dramatic darkness and colorful light.

Your family shouldn't miss this chance to see the characters of "Peanuts" come to life at JWT! You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown can be seen on July 11, 12, 22, and 27 and August 5, 7, 8, 17, 22, and 24. The show will then tour area schools with JWT's Theatre on Wheels program on August 27 through 31.

Horoscopes...

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)

Don't assume that what you're being told is accurate. You need proof that things are working before you can move forward. A private situation also needs closer attention.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)

That troubling incident in the workplace begins to sort itself out as more facts emerge. You might be eager to resolve the issue, but it's best to wait until the time is right to take action.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)

There's some distance developing between you and that special person. But that can be for the best. Sometimes you need to step back to get a better perspective of where you are.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)

When things don't work out as planned, don't beat yourself up about it. Take responsibility where it applies, and make the necessary apologies and adjustments. Then, move on.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)

Go ahead and let that triumphant roar just pour out. You made the right choice, and you're to be congratulated. You now have to reassess and redirect your former plans and goals.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)

Deal with that problem in the workplace rather than risk having it spill over into your personal life. The sooner you confront the issue, the sooner it can be resolved.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)

You might still find it difficult to stay with your goals. But giving up would be a mistake. Your determination wins the admiration of a potentially important supporter.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)

Your strong Scorpion instincts are put to good use as you sift through information that might be only partially reliable. You'll recognize the truth when you see it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)

Some facts emerge that will help you deal with what you thought was an act of betrayal. Use what you've learned to get the full story from another source.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)

Opening up to new possibilities helps you come to terms with some unexpected changes. Remember: Others will look to you for guidance. Give them your best.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)

You are tireless in your support of good causes. But don't forget that you, too, are worthy of care and attention. Get out and enjoy some long-overdue fun time.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)

This is a good time to pick up on that artistic project you've been putting off. Apply yourself to it with new fervor, and you'll find some happy surprises coming through.

BORN THIS WEEK: Being the center of attention comes naturally to you. People look to you for leadership, and you don't let them down. You would make a fine politician.

Critter Corner...

by DR. CAROL COMBS-MORRIS, DVM

This article concludes the series on housebreaking puppies. We've discussed how to set the puppy up for success, and the reasoning behind the game plan, so we'll get right down to putting it all into action.

You should consider feeding the pup several meals a day, rather than leaving food out constantly; this will help put his system on a schedule, and takes advantage of a reflex in young pups that signals the need to eliminate soon after a meal.

You may have to carry the puppy to his potty area if he's really small, but he should be on leash so you can keep him in the general vicinity once you get there. He won't understand the purpose of the trip outside at first. With his short attention span he will be distracted by every new sight, sound and smell, so give him time. Use a phrase - "go potty", "get busy", etc., which he will eventually learn to associate with the act of elimination.

If he does not eliminate within a reasonable amount of time (5-10 minutes), he should go back into his crate for a little while and then taken back out to try again. Praise the pup as he eliminates. You are praising for the location of elimination; the act of elimination is self-rewarding; it relieves pressure and makes the puppy feel better.

Don't punish the pup for accidents. It is extremely unfair to punish a puppy for something he doesn't understand. It will only confuse and scare the puppy, and it doesn't do anything for his concept of you as a good leader, either. So how should you handle the inevitable accidents in the house? If you didn't actually catch the puppy in the act, about the only thing you can do is to roll a newspaper up tight, hit yourself over the head with it, and resolve to be more observant next time! If you do see him eliminating in an inappropriate place, DON'T yell, run at, or hit the puppy. This obviously will scare him, and fear says to the body, "drop this load and get out of here" - so it will be counterproductive. If you can distract him with a sharp handclap or by tossing something like an empty pop can or a beanbag near him (not AT him), it may buy you a few seconds. Just say, "No, no, not here", or something similar in a normal tone of voice, scoop the pup up gently and take him out to his "spot". If you're lucky, he will finish his business in the proper place and you can praise him. I have read in several books that you should not let the puppy see you clean up his accidents, but I honestly can't understand the logic behind this. As far as I know, the mother wolf doesn't take any pains to be secretive, so I don't see why we should.

As puppy grows, and gets a little more control over his body, you should start to see him looking for a way to get out to his bathroom spot when he needs to go. You need to watch for these signs, because while some pups will make a racket if their "doorman" is not there to take them out, others will stand quietly near the door until they just can't wait any longer. Continue to take him out on a leash at least a few more weeks to confirm that he's not just chasing butterflies while he's out there.

What about those less-than-ideal situations I mentioned earlier? Maybe no one can get home several times a day, or for some other reason you prefer to paper train the pup. It's actually easier to teach a pup to use paper; it just makes for an extra step to make the transition to outdoors later. I've potty-trained entire litters of stray puppies with this method. By keeping them in a small tile-floored room (about the size of an average bathroom) their choices were limited. In half the room they had their food and water, their beds and their toys; the other half was covered with newspaper. Yes, they shredded paper, had accidents in the wrong spots, and in general made a huge mess. But soon the mess was more often on the paper than not, and gradually I reduced the area covered by the papers until they were located in one corner of the room away from the sleeping and eating areas. The mess moved with the papers. When they finally went to their new homes, at least they knew the basics.

A note about those commercial "housebreaking pads": they have the advantage of a plastic backing that keeps moisture from leaking through, and if this is what you're looking for, they certainly serve their purpose. If you're buying them because the package claims they have this magic scent that attracts puppies, don't waste your money. You have ample supply of the most potent chemical available, in the form of his own urine, to tell your puppy "this is your spot".

This method works for older dogs also. You will need to start from scratch, and make sure the carpets are very well deodorized. Remember that it takes longer to relearn something than to learn it correctly the first time. It's also a good idea to have an older dog checked by your vet if he's suddenly had a lapse in his bathroom routine. Many disorders, including bladder infections, diabetes, colitis, and "senility" (canine cognitive dysfunction) can cause this.

I hope this series has helped clear up some misunderstanding about housebreaking - Good Luck!

Slow me down, Lord - An old Southern pastor's prayer

Slow me down, Lord! Ease the pounding of my heart by the quieting of my mind. Steady my hurried pace with a vision of the eternal reach of time. Give me, amidst the confusion of my day, the calmness of the everlasting hills. Break the tension of my nerves and muscles with the soothing music of the singing streams that live in my memory. Help me to know the magical restorative power of sleep. Teach me the art of taking minute vacations...of slowing down to look at a flower, to chat with a friend, to pet a dog, to read a few lines from a good book.

Remind me each day of the fable of the hare and the tortoise, that I may know that the race is not always to the swift; that there is more to life than increasing its speed. Let me look upward into the branches of the towering trees, and know that they grow tall, because they grow slowly and well.

Slow me down, Lord, and inspire me to send my roots deep into the soil of life's enduring values, that I may grow toward the stars of my greater destiny.

Amen.

criminal and obviously violent, and it's the ability or inability to deal with it. How do women in these dramas find their way out or maintain a facade or get destroyed or maintain power in the process?"

If nothing else, these programs just provide fuel for Alfano's next presentation of the Pasta-Tute Award, given annually to Italian-Americans "who sell out" he says. Past recipients include Sopranos creator David Chase and New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani, who has unremittingly cheered the show. As far as Alfano is concerned, the last positive Italian-American portrayal on television was police captain Francis Furillo on Hill Street Blues. That went off the air in May 1987. Bill Maher examines the mob in ABC's Politically Incorrect this week. The program will broadcast from Brooklyn's waterfront, and as usual, Maher hopes for bare-knuckle exchanges.

Godfather movies a male rite and says he searched for mob themes that would appeal to women. "Like how guilty are Mafia wives?" he asks. "When the wife of a CEO says, 'Well, I made the home that allowed him to go out and work.' But if the other half is murder, shouldn't the wife get half the punishment, if the work is whacking?"

Watching GoodFellas recently, Maher says he was struck by the Mafia's rules of chivalry. "That's one of the reasons we like the Mafia," Maher says. "At least in their noble heyday, they protected the innocent rather than prey on the innocent. There was a code — even if you didn't agree with it. In a society that seems to be completely chaotic, they had a code."

Some of the Mafia's principles, or at least what the rest of the world perceives of as its beliefs, attract people, Maher says. "The idea that there is swift retribution and it is not going to take forever and wind its way through the liberal courts."

Then, Maher, clearly feeling a bit reckless, offers his take on Italian men. "I'll probably get killed for this one," he says. "They purport to be the toughest, most macho people," Maher says. "And they are the thinnest-skinned people in the world." To ensure someone will rail against such statements, Maher invited a spokesman from one of the Italian-American organizations. With all the advertising, television and movies that they believe denigrate Italian-Americans, these groups have been keeping busy. Emanuele Alfano, national chairman of the AntiBias Committee of UNICO, a national service group of Italian-Americans and their spouses, finds much these days that upsets him.

"The main problem is the perception of Italian-Americans not only as mobsters, but as buffoons, bimbos, bigots and bums," he says. "And there is no balance. That's our biggest complaint. ... Of course we are not going to deny there's a mob, but it's a very, very small percentage."

What galls Alfano is that he believes the other mobs, such as the Russian, Colombian and Japanese, are ignored while the Italian have been the subject of movies since the silent films. Even today, slurs against Italians air on network TV, while racial epithets about other groups such as blacks and Jews would never be tolerated, he says.

Even Alfano admits that when he first saw The Godfather, he enjoyed it. "I didn't realize it was going to set us back 100 years," he says. "If there was a balance, I could deal with that."

And therein is the rub — people love watching movies about the mob. And TV programmers know it. Next Sunday, Aug. 5, Lifetime will run a Women and the Mob marathon. It kicks off with the 1995 TV movie Between Love and Honor, starring Grant Show, Robert Loggia and Maria Pitillo. Mafia Princess, a 1986 TV movie with Tony Curtis and Susan Lucci, follows. Next up is the 1987 TV movie Blood Vows: The Story of a Mafia Wife with and Melissa Gilbert, Joe Penny and Eileen Brennan. And all this leads up to the 1990 feature film GoodFellas, starring Robert De Niro, Ray Liotta and Joe Pesci. Paul Noble, Lifetime's vice president for feature film acquisitions and scheduling, arranged this lineup because he believes women will tune in.

"It's the same thing that attracts women to something like The Sopranos," Noble says. "It's realistic drama. ... The situation is probably

Auto Racing

Some say it was luck. Rusty Wallace preferred to think of it as just one of those things. Wallace begins today's Pennsylvania 500 as defending champion mainly because of Jeremy Mayfield's misfortune here last year. Mayfield, leading at the time, blew a tire on the last lap, allowing Wallace to sail around him for the win. Wallace also won this race in 1991 and 1996, making Pocono Raceway's triangular oval one of his favorite stops on the NASCAR schedule. And watch for abig day from Ricky Rudd, who on the Pocono 500 at this track in June, Rudd has quietly crept up toward the top of the points standings.

Great Outdoor Games

Lake Placid in upstate New York, an area with a rich tradition of hosting some of the world's great outdoorsmen, is again the site for the Great Outdoor Games, an ESPN original production that debuted last year. Although the tiny town is known more for its Olympic history, Lake Placid and the surrounding Adirondack Mountains offer great venues for the Outdoor Games competitors, who number more than 300 (more than 400 if the canines are included) in events such as fishing, timber sports and target shooting. Mark Malone serves as host for the games, which continue through next Sunday on ESPN and ESPN2.

Golf

Though local hero and two-time defending champion Christy O'Connor Jr. may not be present, the Senior British Open final round shapes up to be a classic battle among some of golf's all-time greats. For the second straight year, Royal County Down Golf Club in Northern Ireland is the host course, and legends such as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and three-time champ Gary Player make this tourney the place to be in golf this weekend. O'Connor, from Galway, Ireland, finished seven-under par and two shots ahead of South African John Bland last year. Injuries would be to blame for O'Connor's possible nonparticipation this time around.

Movie: Casper

The friendly ghost of comic-book fame helps a sympathetic psychiatrist guide his fellow spirits to a better afterlife in this 1995 family fantasy. Dr. Harvey (Bill Pullman) is hired by an old mansion's new owner (Cathy Moriarty) to get rid of its ghostly inhabitants so she can claim the treasure reportedly hidden within. Along the way, Casper befriends Harvey's daughter (Christina Ricci) and a professional exorcist (Don Novello as Father Guido Sarducci). Eric Idle also stars.

Major League Baseball

Only four times in history have the Chicago Cubs led their division at the All-Star break, this season being the fourth. Each time, though, they have bucked the usual outcome and failed to make the playoffs, including in 1977 when they went from first to fourth in the National League East. Can the Cubs finally hold on? Most observers think so, mainly because of their quality pitching. Tonight, Mark McGwire and the St. Louis Cardinals, one of the Cubs' division challengers, are in town. Prior to this four-game series, the Cubs and Cards split 10 games this season.

The Simpsons

Homer (voice of Dan Castellaneta) wrecks his knee playing basketball, then messes up his back during the knee surgery. Stuck at home, he eases his post-op boredom by starting a daycare center at Chez Simpson. The children love it, and soon all of Springfield is singing the praises of "Uncle Homer." All that is, except Bart and Lisa (voices of Nancy Cartwright, Yeardley Smith), who are feeling neglected while their dad lavishes all his attention on his daycare charges. When Homer is honored with a humanitarian award, they come up with a way to get even, splicing some unflattering home video clips into his

Frasier
Frasier (Kelsey Grammer) seeks guidance from his mentor, Dr. Tewksbury (guest star Rene Auberjonois), when the impending receipt of a lifetime achievement award from the Seattle broadcasting community propels him into a mid-life crisis. At home, Martin (John Mahoney) lavishes an embarrassing amount of praise on Niles (David Hyde Pierce) so he won't feel left out on Frasier's big night. Daphne's (Jane Leeves) weight continues to balloon, but she and Niles remain oblivious. Peri Gilpin also stars in "Frasier's Edge."

Nova

One of the deadliest psychiatric disorders — anorexia nervosa — is also one of the most misunderstood. How can a full-grown woman who weighs 60 pounds look in a mirror and see a fat woman staring back? "Dying to Be Thin" explores all aspects of this devastating disorder and its sister condition, bulimia, from their causes to promising new treatments. Particularly poignant are the segments devoted to ballerinas, for whom "normal" weight is almost 15 percent below what's recommended for their height. The program visits two New York ballet companies; remembers dancer Heidi Guenther, whose death at 22 was believed to be eating disorder-related; and interviews a retired ballerina, now 54, whose anorexia left her with crippling osteoporosis. You'll also follow a 14-year-old anorexic as she gets help.

9:30 p.m. ABC

Spin City
Paul and Caitlin, sitting in a tree, K-I-S-S-I-N-G? Don't get excited; it's just an act. Paul (Richard Kind) fears his visiting mother (guest star Raquel Welch) will be upset over his breakup with Claudia, so he tells her he's found someone better. Caitlin (Heather Locklear), Charlie (Charlie Sheen) takes some grief from his blond colleague for his tendency to base dating decisions on looks alone. And the mayor (Barry Bostwick) is under fire from American Indians who want a presence in the Thanksgiving parade. Michael Boatman also stars in "Balcones Over Broadway."

Judging Amy
In "Everybody Falls Down," Amy (Amy Brenneman) must decide whether to terminate the parental rights of a couple accused of abusing their adopted daughter, whose siblings — the pair's biological children — insist she made the whole thing up. Speaking of daughters, a frustrated Amy lashes out at Lauren's (Katie Warran) baby sitter (Jessica Wesson) out of jealousy over Lauren's growing feelings for the girl. Maxine (Tyne Daly) considers a drastic measure to get city approval for Sanctuary House, and Bruce (Richard T. Jones) mulls drastic action of his own when his mom indicates she wants to move to Las Vegas. Dan Futterman also stars.

State of the Planet With David Attenborough
This three-part miniseries has a lot of information for you to digest, but it's made palatable by the stunning visuals which represent nature photography at its best, from awesome blue ocean waves to close-ups of insects and time-lapse footage of flowers blooming. Host David Attenborough takes viewers to North and South America, Africa, the British Isles, the North Sea and the South Pacific in search of answers to three questions: Is the planet in crisis? Why? And what can we do about it? As a recent documentary on the same subject by Bill Moyers pointed out, it'll take more than individual efforts to turn things around.

MTV's 20th Anniversary: 20 for 20
It all began in 1981. A brand-new cable channel called MTV debuted with a video of the Buggles' "Video Killed the Radio Star," and neither music nor television has been the same since. MTV celebrates its 20th birthday with a 12-hour marathon of videos, promos and other goodies from its vault, culminating in this three-hour party from New York's Hammerstein Ballroom. Carson Daly hosts the celebration, which includes live performances; more clips from the vault; and appearances by the channel's five original VJs: Martha Quinn, J.J. Jackson, Nina Blackwood, Alan Hunter and Mark Goodman. Beavis and Butt-head are also expected to pay a visit.

Carol, meanwhile, isn't looking to get information but to give it — specifically, to get the word out on saving the high school's music program from budget cuts. Anne Meara guest stars as a beloved music teacher who's facing the ax.

Battle for Korea

Recently declassified documents and rare film footage offer a new look at what's been called the "forgotten war," which claimed more than 1.5 million lives, including 37,000 Americans. Some of those documents shed new light on the role of China and the Soviet Union in the conflict; neither Communist superpower wanted to get involved, but North Korean leader Kim Il Sung manipulated them into supporting his effort to invade the South. And Soviet leader Josef Stalin did some maneuvering of his own to ensure that American aggression would be directed at China. The never-before-seen film includes footage of North Korea's Korean People's Army and its Chinese allies in action.

The Drew Carey Show

What's worse than having Mimi (Kathy Kinney) as a co-worker? Having her as a full-fledged business partner. And the worst is yet to come when the Cosmetics Kid wins Kate's (Christa Miller) share of the Buzz brewery in a poker game. Talk about mixed emotions; Mimi's innovations are great for the brewery's business, but the fact that they came from her is a bitter pill for Drew (Drew Carey) to swallow. Then she adds injury to insult by fingering him, Lewis and Oswald (Ryan Stiles, Diedrich Bader) when there's money missing. John Carroll Lynch also stars in "Mimi's a Partner."

9 p.m. CBS

Movie: The Rockford Files: If It Bleeds... It Leads

Ernie (Hal Linden), a respected teacher, asks his private-eye friend, Jim Rockford (James Garner), for help when his name is dragged through the media mud because of his resemblance to a suspected serial rapist. Jim finds the real culprit, but the hard part of the job will be rebuilding Ernie's shattered reputation. Stuart Margolin, Joe Santos and Rita Moreno also star in this 1999 drama.

11 p.m. HBO

Hard Knocks: Training Camp With the Baltimore Ravens

HBO tackles the marriage of reality TV and sports with an all-access look at what it takes to make it in the National Football League. In conjunction with the award-winning production team at NFL Films, this six-part series gives fans an unprecedented view of the Super Bowl champions from the day when players — from veterans Shannon Sharpe and Ray Lewis to rookie hopefuls Todd Heap and Dwayne Missouri — leave their families for camp to the time coach Brian Billick decides their fate. The series continues each Wednesday throughout the preseason.

Biography

Helenia Bonham Carter is the story of an actress's battle to show the world she's not just another pretty face — a battle she won. Born in England, Carter made her screen debut in a BBC television production as a teen-ager and followed that with the title role in the movie Lady Jane. A string of roles in period pieces, from Howards End and Hamlet to Mary Shelley's Frankenstein, threatened to typecast her, but her performance in Woody Allen's Mighty Aphrodite proved she could handle contemporary characters. She proved it again in 1999's Fight Club. And in the current Planet of the Apes, she proves once and for all that she's not just a pretty face; she plays an ape, albeit not a bad-looking one by simian standards.

PBS Evening at Pops

"Edgar Meyer, Bela Fleck and Mike Marshall" makes a big blur of the line dividing classical from other music styles. Meyer, a bass fiddle virtuoso, plays a little Verdi, some bluegrass and a concerto he composed. Then banjo wizard Fleck and mandolinist Marshall get into the act, performing a few more numbers that merge the classical, bluegrass and other traditions. Also on the program is the Boston Pops' performance of Bach's Tocatta and Fugue in D Minor.

8 p.m. TCM

Private Screenings

James Garner sits down with TCM host Robert Osborne for a frank chat about his celebrated acting career — which almost wouldn't have come to pass if not for a fortuitously empty parking space in front of a producer friend's building. Before that, Garner says, he considered actors "a bunch of phony people" and had no desire to become one. That was just one happy twist of fate in Garner's career; he notes that he almost lost the lead in Murphy's Romance to Marlon Brando and the role of Zane Cooper in Maverick to Paul Newman. The inter-view kicks off a monthlong Garner tribute, with screenings of his films each Thursday in August starting tonight with 1959's Up Periscope.

9 p.m. FOX

Night Visions

"Rest Stop/Afterlife" opens with the story of four college students who pick up a hitchhiker (Jery O'Connell). He looks harmless enough, but during a stop at a deserted rest area, the little group starts shrinking as its members go missing one by one. In the second story, a dead man (Randy Quaid) gets a chance to live again — but it isn't pretty. Amy Jo Johnson and Susan Gibney also star.

9 p.m. WB

Charmed

Sisterhood is powerful, and the lack of it means powerlessness for Prue, Piper and Phoebe (Shannen Doherty, Holly Marie Combs, Alyssa Milano). Cole (Julian McMahon) uses that fact to his advantage by stirring up some petty squabbles among the three, which breaks their sisterly bond and scuttles their powers, leaving them vulnerable to all manner of evil. Brian Krause also stars in "Power Outage."

9:30 p.m. NBC

Just Shoot Me

Oh, what a tangled genetic web we weave when first we fool around with another man's wife. Maya (Laura San Giacomo) is developing the hots for a young man whose father was a close friend of Jack's (George Segal). The problem is that his mom (guest star Valerie Perrine) was an even closer friend of Jack's; they had a fling years ago. That means there's a chance that Maya and her new love interest could be half brother and sister. David Spade also stars in "Where's Poppa?"

10 p.m. NBC

ER

In "Witch Hunt," Dr. Legaspi's (Elizabeth Mitchell) attempt to counsel a suicidal, sexually confused patient comes back to haunt her — and Dr. Weaver (Laura Innes). All she did was reveal her own sexual orientation to the young woman to show there's no shame in being gay. Now the patient is accusing Legaspi of sexual harassment, and Weaver is terrified the incident will bring out the truth about their relationship. Dr. Corday (Alex Kingston) cuts her medical leave short to return to work and can't understand why Romano (Paul McCrane) doesn't want her back in surgery. Abby (Maura Tierney) loses a patient — literally. It's a baby girl who is stolen while Abby is busy talking to Dr. Carter (Noah Wyle), who just found out his new girlfriend is barely legal. Anthony Edwards also stars.

FRIDAY AUGUST 3, 2001

8 p.m. CBS

Diagnosis Murder

Victoria Rowell, aka Dr. Amanda Bentley, co-wrote "The Red's Shoes" and gave herself an nice meaty story line. Amanda befriends a Chinese ballet dancer (guest star Roger Fan, Rush Hour), who's only visiting the United States but wants to stay for good — defect, that is. She becomes his partner for a benefit show at Community General and, despite the heavy security, they both vanish. Can you say "international incident"? Dick Van Dyke and Barry Van Dyke also star.

8 p.m. NBC

Mysterious Ways

Suppose they gave an execution, and nobody died? A convicted killer (guest star William Forsythe) is taken to the death chamber and administered a lethal injection — but it doesn't kill him. Then he survives several more attempts to execute him, is this guy Superman, or does he have a guardian angel working overtime? Declan and Peggy (Adrian Pasdar, Rae Dawn Chong) attempt to find out in

"Condemned." Susan Hogan (Disturbing Behavior) guest stars.

8 p.m. SCI-FI

The Invisible Man

And you thought Darien (Vincent Ventresca) was the only one who got to disappear. That's the plan, but someone has released a mysterious germ on the I-Man team that has the power to make everyone invisible. The entire Agency is placed under quarantine in an effort to contain the bug, but it won't be that easy to stop. Paul Ben-Victor and Eddie Jones also star in "Germ Theory."

8 p.m. TNT

Movie: Lethal Weapon

Danny Glover and Mel Gibson are pure magic as mismatched police partners in this 1987 action drama, which was followed by three (so far) sequels. Glover's Murtaugh is 50 and ready to slow down; Gibson's Riggs is all wound up and not afraid to die. A prostitute's death leads them to a drug ring with ties to Vietnam — the site of the war that's one of the few things our heroes have in common. Gary Busy also stars.

9 p.m. A&E

Movie: The Silence of the Lambs

This Academy Award-winning 1991 suspense film is sure to put even the bravest viewers on the edges of their seats. Anthony Hopkins and Jodie Foster
