Kittens tossed with trash

by KATHY J. PRATER
 FEATURES EDITOR

PRESTONSBURG — Newborn mammals are generally very dependent on their mother's care for the first several weeks of their life, some even more than others.

Eyelids closed, senses not yet fully developed, they huddle together and search out mother's warm body, gentle touch and life-sustaining nutrition.

But what happens when mother cannot be found? Left defenseless and on their own, most newborn creatures are doomed to perish.

A small litter of days-old tiny kittens were fast moving toward such a fate early Friday morning, but luckily for them, the city maintenance worker on duty in their neighborhood was wide-awake and paying attention.

The worker picked up a box containing a plastic garbage bag and was about to add it to the load of refuse already collected that morning when he realized that the bag was different from others. Upon examination, he discovered five,

US 23 from Dorton High School in Pike County to the county line near Harold was listed as the deadliest stretch of highway in the Big Sandy area. Data compiled by the Big Sandy Highway Safety Committee found that 46 fatal accidents occurred on this section of highway in the last two years, making it the most deadly road examined in the five-county survey.

PRESTONSBURG — Investigators and safety organizations are working every day to learn more about the causes of fatal accidents and how they can be lessened, but the process requires extensive research, time and energy.

Members of the Big Sandy Highway Safety Committee hope to make those efforts easier and feel they may be making progress toward that goal, as well as the ultimate goal of reducing fatal accidents in the five-county Big Sandy area.

During a meeting held Thursday afternoon at the Big Sandy Area Development District office in Prestonsburg, committee members spent time

The Big Sandy Highway Safety Committee met Thursday afternoon to discuss fatal crash data compiled from accident reports filed in Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike counties since 1998. The committee hopes the data will help assist efforts to make roadways safer and will be presenting their findings during the 2001 Governor's Highway Safety Conference beginning November 1.

total of 136 fatal crashes from 1998 through 2000 within the five-county area.

In an effort to even further pinpoint areas of concern, the committee closely examined 12 segments of highway that had

Johnson sheriff raids marijuana operation

PAINTSVILLE — One week after participating in the arrests of Dr. Fredrick Cohn and his associate, Dr. Yakov Drabovskiy, who operated a pain clinic in Paintsville, Johnson County Sheriff William D. "Bill" Witten, once again gave an example of his department's commitment to stop illegal drug trafficking.

On Thursday, the Johnson County Sheriff's Department discovered an indoor marijuana growing operation at a Main Camp residence in Thealka, marking the first of such operations ever found by the sheriff's department.

Michael Coleman, 33, originally from Bristol, Tenn., was arrested following the search and charged with cultivating more than five plants of marijuana, use and/or possession of drug paraphernalia, endangering the welfare of a minor, trafficking over 8 ounces of marijuana and two counts of prescription drugs not in the proper container.

Coleman was living with a female at the residence also occupied by her two minor children.

According to Witten, the sheriff's department began making "drive-bys" of the residence for observation as a result of an investigation prompted by an anonymous informant.

Help is still on the way for victims of last weekend's flash floods which left several Eastern Kentucky counties, including Floyd and Pike counties, drenched and reeling from five inches of rainfall in less than six hours.

Reddick's latest movie premieres Tuesday on USA

by RENEE M. SNOWDEN
 BREATHITT COUNTY BUREAU

Jeffrey Reddick, 32, formerly of Breathitt County, has just written another movie, Return to Cabin by the Lake, which the USA Network will premiere on Tuesday.

Reddick is the son of Elizabeth Reddick of Lower Twin in Breathitt County. Reddick and his family moved to Breathitt County in 1976 from Florida.

After graduating from Breathitt High School in 1987, Reddick attended Berea College. According to his mother, Reddick then moved to New York after graduating from Berea College.

Tuesday's premiere is just the latest in a string of successes for Reddick.

The movie plot concerns a vengeful screenwriter, presumed dead for two years, who becomes the second-unit director for the production of one of his scripts. Cast members include Judd Nelson, Brian Krause, Dahlia Salem, J.R. Bourne and Andrew Moxham.

Reddick was one of the writers of the hit movie Final Destination, which debuted in March 2000 at Fugates Cinema in Hazard. Reddick has also done some work with "The X-Files" as well as some other television networks and shows.

Reddick's mother is proud of her son, although she wasn't too thrilled about him moving to New York at first.

"He may be coming home to visit this month, but I'm not sure exactly when," said Reddick's mother.

Jeffery Reddick poses with actress Kandys McLure on set of Return to Cabin by the Lake. Reddick wrote the screenplay for the movie, which premieres Tuesday on the USA Network.

Hotel complaint leads to pot, crack find

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

PIKEVILLE — Four Ohio natives were arrested Thursday morning at the Landmark Inn in Pikeville and charged with various drug possession charges, trafficking of a controlled substance and receiving stolen property.

At just after 7 a.m. Thursday morning, officers from the Pikeville Police Department received a complaint by phone regarding several guests at the Landmark.

The complaint stated that the individuals were believed to be possession of drugs, but did not reveal any further information. City police officers Aaron Thompson and Ricky Younce responded to the complaint and found four individuals when they arrived at the motel.

James Shepherd, 29, and Milton Ellis, 30, both of Portsmouth, Ohio, along with Crystal Bennett, 21, of Columbus, Ohio, as well as a 16-year-old juvenile were arrested shortly thereafter.

The arrests came after the officers found a substantial amount of crack cocaine and a small amount of marijuana along with a small amount of cash in the group's vehicle while apprehending the four Ohio residents.

In addition to the discovered drugs, the vehicle was found to be stolen.

Pikeville lead detective Bruce Anderson explained on Friday the juvenile arrested Thursday morning had initially been arrested as an adult, having provided the police with false identification and posing as her older sister.

Approximately an hour after her arrest, however, the juvenile spoke up and told the Pike County Detention Center staff she had used her sister's identification.

Additional charges have been brought against her for falsely reporting information to police.

Police reports did not detail the amount of crack cocaine that was discovered in the stolen vehicle, but Anderson said on Friday that the department knew "for a fact" the group had come to the Pikeville area to sell.

"We know for a fact they were coming here to sell, but we don't know if it was a drug ring or the first time," Anderson alleged. "During questioning while at the jail they said things like, 'You could come to Pikeville and double your money,' you know, jail talk."

"We have a lot of out-of-state traffic through here. We're just off US 23 and people could be just passing through and stopping over in Pikeville. That's where we're probably getting a lot of this from."

Anderson went on to say that there are plans to eliminate these kinds of out of state stopovers. The department, he said, has an undetermined amount of money for training officers to become more aware of certain situations, as well as a developed canine unit that is expected to greatly increase the chances of making a drug seizure that might have otherwise been overlooked.

"While I interviewed them, they made it clear they came to Pikeville to sell," continued Anderson. "They said they were on their way to Georgia, but that they wanted to stop by here in Pikeville on the way."

According to Anderson, the Pikeville Police Department averages a substantial number of out-of-state arrests, some drug related.

"We got a family about six months ago here in with nine rifles and cocaine," said Anderson. "They sent that case to federal, that's how much cocaine those cats had."

The three adults are being held in the Pike County Detention Center while the juvenile was transported and is being very tiny, newborn kittens — eyelids closed, umbilical cords still attached, all calling out in weak, muffled meows for mother.

The animals were quickly transported to the local animal shelter located on Sally Stephens Branch in West Prestonsburg. There, shelter director Rhonda Castle and her assistants immediately assessed the kittens' conditions, finding two with deformities — one with a "bobtail," the other with malformed hind legs known as "club legs." The remaining three appeared to be in good health.

The animal shelter staff initiated bottle-feeding sessions with all five of the kittens in an effort to spare their lives.

"They don't like this bottle very much," said Castle. "It's not mommy and mommy is what they need right now. But, they've escaped danger once today and we're going to do our best to save them."

Sadly, the two kittens with deformities will most likely have to be "put down" because their medical conditions usually result in an inability to thrive. The two kittens will remain in the care of the shelter, while the other three are scheduled to be transferred into the care of two tender-hearted local women, Rhonda Chaffin of Martin and Connie McGuire of Bull Creek. The women operate East Kentucky Occupational Health, a mobile company that deals in drug, urine and breath analysis testing.

"We have two animals with us already that we found abandoned, one in a box on the highway with a sign that read 'Take me home, please.' We both love animals and we want to help these kittens," said Chaffin.

After being reminded that helping the kittens to bottle-feed will be a 24-hour job, Chaffin remained undaunted. "We'll sure give it our best try," was her determined response. "Call us up in a month or so and see how we're doing," she challenged.

According to Laura Sakow, the director of the Spay and Neuter Organization of Prestonsburg (SNOOP), this sort of occurrence is a much more common than many people realize. "Just a short time ago, a litter of newborn kittens were discovered by an associate of Maggard's in the dumpster behind the store. The lady who found them crawled into the dumpster with an injured leg to rescue them. It's just awful what some people will do to animals."

Sakow went on to say that spaying and neutering is the first step in alleviating this sort of problem.

"We have entered into an agreement with each vet in Floyd county to participate in a program where we issue certificates through our organization that can be redeemed at the vet's office of the owner's choice for a significantly reduced surgery fee for animals who need to be spayed or neutered. The program is geared mainly toward fixed-income individuals, or those on low incomes, or those who frequently harbor and take stray animals into their care. The certificate can be presented at the vet's office and for $10 the animal can receive a spay or neuter surgery. We hope to improve the situation involving unwanted births of animals in this county through this program."

Dr. Carol Combs-Morris, who operates the Beaver Animal Clinic, in Wayland, recently participated in a traveling spay and neuter clinic — she agrees that this is the first step in solving the problem of animal overpopulation. She is also an avid proponent of locating persons who abandon animals and prosecuting them for their actions.

"According to KRS 525.130, a person is guilty of cruelty to animals in the second degree ... when they intentionally or wantonly cause any animal to be subject to injury or mistreatment through abandonment," Combs-

Morris said.

Morris went on to say that "cruelty to animals is a criminal offense, a class A misdemeanor. If convicted, a person may be sentenced for up to one year in the county jail and/or a fine of $500. If concerned citizens want to prosecute in cases regarding animal cruelty or abandonment, they need to call the Kentucky State Police for further information and investigation, or the county attorney. We live in a throw-away society and I guess people just think it's okay to throw away these animals. It's not okay. It is morally wrong and they should not get away with it."

If anyone has any information regarding the incident that occurred near the Maggard's furniture store in downtown Prestonsburg, or the incident that occurred early Friday morning in the Trimble Branch section of the city, they are asked to contact either the Kentucky State Police at (606) 433-7711 or the Floyd County Attorney's office at (606) 886-6863.

Those who would like to make a donation to SNOOP, or to volunteer their services or the services of their organization, is asked to contact Laura Sakow at (606) 889-9982. Although the organization's name includes the name "Prestonsburg," its services are offered and extended countywide.

For information on how to help the Floyd County Animal Shelter, contact Rhonda Castle at 886-3189.

As she viewed the tiny kittens in her office on Friday morning, Castle commented, "This is the direct result of what happens when people don't have their pets spayed and neutered — animals born needlessly into suffering."

A six pack of Anheuser-Busch ... drinking water. The company teamed with Hazard's Perry Distributors to donate 2,100 cases of the canned water to assist Floyd and Pike County flood victims after hearing of the devastating flash flooding last weekend.

Water

wholesaler, announced on Thursday a donation of approximately 2,100 cases of canned drinking water.

The donation will be given to Floyd and Pike counties, both of which have issued local disaster declarations.

The shipment was delivered at 8 a.m. Friday to the Perry Distributors branch operation at Watergap, as the company's general manager, Jeff Sandlin, unloaded the six packs of canned water.

The donations came in response to requests for water from the Salvation Army and the American Red Cross.

"Pike and Floyd counties were the hardest hit by the recent flooding," said Sandlin. "We felt this is one way we could help the community in its time of need."

In addition to delivering the water donations to the Watergap location, Perry Distributors will also assist the Salvation Army and the American Red Cross in the receiving and delivering of the water to their Floyd and Pike neighbors.

"We were told there was a nursing home that was totally out of water and that numerous residents were suffering," Sandlin said. "So, we're delivering this and taking it to them, but we'll let them decide where it goes from there."

Sandlin explained the donation was made possible through the efforts of the Salvation Army and the American Red Cross, who submitted requests to Anheuser-Busch who, in turn, worked through Perry Distributors owners Don and Jeanne Fields to make the effort successful.

"It's important for communities to pull together and lend a helping hand in times of need," said Mike Harding, vice-president of operations for Anheuser-Busch. "Anheuser-Busch is proud to provide fresh water to the people of Kentucky who have been affected by the flooding."

Earlier this summer, the company donated over 14,000 cases of canned drinking water to West Virginia flood victims, and has, in the last five years, donated more than 40 million cans of water to victims of natural disasters.

The cases of drinking water delivered to the Watergap location Friday were canned at the Anheuser-Busch brewery in Cartersville, Ga., while Metal Container Corporation in Rome, Ga., supplied the cans.

According to Sandlin, the cases of drinking water will be distributed from the Salvation Army's post in Minnie, just off Route 680 near McDowell.

Helping communities cope with natural disasters has become a tradition for the Anheuser-Busch company first beginning in 1906 when company owner Adolph Busch made the first donations to victims of the San Francisco earthquake.

Now, nearly a century later, victims of the deadly flooding in Floyd and Pike counties will also be offered a helping hand in their time of need.

three or more fatalities.

These 12 segments were found to be the site of 43 percent of the total fatal crashes in the Big Sandy area, or 59 of 136, with the largest number of crashes occurring in Pike County.

In Pike County alone, 46 fatal accidents occurred within the two-year period studied. Fourteen of those fatalities took place along US 23 from Dorton High School to the Floyd County line at Harold, making that stretch of road by far the most deadly.

Studies revealed 18 fatalities along Floyd County roadways, seven occurring from KY 1498 to KY 80 at Martin, with Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties finishing the study with comparatively low numbers of fatalities.

One section of Route 80 in Floyd County included in the segments studied runs adjacent to Duff Elementary at Eastern.

Parents say this area is at a high risk due to congestion during end of the day pickup routines.

A string of vehicles lined the shoulder of Route 80 outside Duff Elementary Friday as parents filed one behind another and started the long wait to pick their children up from school. The Big Sandy Highway Safety Committee recently found this section of Route 80, which does not have traffic lights to assist after-school congestion, to be one of the more likely locations for fatal accidents.

"Yesterday when we went to pick our son up, it was ridiculous," said Rick Bentley of Garrett. "People were backed out onto Route 80. They were lined up to pick their children up."

Bentley said Friday that he arrived at Duff Elementary at approximately 2:30 p.m. and waited for little over an hour before finally getting to pick his son up at the school.

"It's real hazardous," continued Bentley. "If they needed to get an ambulance in during that time or something it would be impossible. It's complete chaos. I feel there is going to be a major accident there, I really do."

The committee also compiled and selected five major categories as prime factors that caused the fatalities studied. These factors include collisions with fixed objects, alcohol and drug involvement, driver error (speed included), seat belt usage and then a fifth category reserved for other contributing factors not immediately able to be categorized.

According to Freddie Goble, transportation planner for Big Sandy ADD, most of the fatalities involving fixed objects such as trees or embankments occurred along two-lane, rural roads while approximately 50 percent involved alcohol or drugs. Goble also expanded on driver error to include simple driver inattention and cell phone usage as contributing factors.

Committee chairman Burl Spurlock also urged Goble to give a brief overview of a presentation the group has assembled for Gov. Paul Patton's Highway Safety Conference in early November.

In that presentation, the committee will offer to the governor and other attending members three safety programs for implementation.

The first will be a media marketing plan for the regional safety project which will include radio spots, television broadcasts, flyers and posters.

Secondly, the committee will present a plan for developing a fixed object removal program that would remove trees, concrete headways and other objects near highways to create a clear safety zone on rural, two-lane roads already owned by the state or respective county.

A third component the safety committee will present in November will revolve around the hope that now that target areas are developed for unsafe road locations and segments, these may be incorporated into the existing Kentucky Department of Highways' Hazard Elimination Program.

This elimination program already lists six projects on the six-year highway plan for correction or construction, including intersections, bad curves, additional turn lanes and rock fall locations.

In spite the committee's progress, just before Thursday's meeting came to a close Spurlock touched on an aspect of the committee's goals that he feels could become an opposing factor if not handled properly.

"Most of what we've talked about doing here is unfunded," said Spurlock. "I would ask that help be broadened to support some of these safety ideas. I feel a lack of leadership coming from Frankfort as if they've said, 'Go out and get this information and send it to us.' I think we should be more proactive, but we are limited by a lack of funding."

izens of Johnson County informing us of acts in their community that do not seem routine," said Witten. "Being a small department, we do not have an investigating unit. In this case, the citizens are the investigators."

After obtaining a search warrant for the residence, Witten said the department searched the home and found several different prescription medications improperly contained throughout the premises.

Witten said the indoor growing operation was located in an outbuilding on the premises, which was chained and locked. Officers inspected the building to find approximately 20 marijuana plants ranging in height from 4 to 7 feet tall growing in five-gallon buckets.

The plants were found in the upper level of the building, which was sealed off from the bottom floor. The room, complete with air conditioning, fluorescent lights, and aluminum foil and mirrors along the walls to reflect light, seemed well taken care of.

Further investigation also revealed one half pound of processed marijuana in Coleman's 1996 Chevrolet truck parked outside.

Coleman was arraigned on Friday and faces a preliminary hearing on August 15 by District Judge John Kevin Holbrook. He is currently being detained at the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center on a $25,000 cash bond.

Witten urges anyone with information about illegal drug trafficking to contact the sheriff's department at (606) 789-3411.

"We just need your information," said Witten, "not your name."

Shepherd is being held on a $40,000 full cash bond for possession of a controlled substance, possession of marijuana, trafficking a controlled substance, as well as an additional $5,000 full cash bond on the charges of custodial interference and unlawful transaction with a minor in connection to the apprehended juvenile.

Ellis was charged with possession of a controlled substance, possession of marijuana and is being held on a $20,000 full cash bond on those charges.

Along with Bennett and Shepherd, Ellis was also charged with custodial interference and unlawful transaction with a minor and has a separate full cash bond of $5,000 in connection to those charges.

All three adults were arraigned in Pike County District Court on Thursday and are currently awaiting a preliminary hearing set for August 17.

Breathitt store robbed second time

by RENEE M. SNOWDEN
BREATHITT COUNTY BUREAU

JACKSON — On Wednesday, July 25, two masked men robbed the Kahuna Mart at Haddix. The store was formerly known as Kimsway.

This has been the second time in the past four weeks that the Kahuna Mart has been robbed.

A male voice allegedly called the Kentucky State Police, at the Hazard Post, and told the them that he had found a woman tied up with a telephone cord.

The Breathitt County

Sheriff's Department and the Kentucky State Police both responded to the robbery.

The woman who was tied up with the telephone cord was the cashier. She told the officers that two white men had driven up and entered wearing ski masks. One of the men was allegedly armed and demanded the cash.

Once the cashier had given him the cash, which was approximately over $700, the armed man grabbed the cord out of the telephone and tied up her hands and feet.

The robbery is still under investigation by Kentucky State Police Detective, John Pratt.

Wolfe County man leads Breathitt police in a high speed chase

by RENEE M. SNOWDEN
BREATHITT COUNTY BUREAU

JACKSON — Jeremiah James Staab, 24, of Wolfe County led Breathitt County police on a high speed chase recently.

The chase began on Wednesday night, August 1, at approximately 9:30 p.m. when Breathitt County Deputy Sheriff Brian Haddix attempted to pull Staab over for a traffic violation on Route 15.

Once Haddix turned on his blue lights, police say Staab sped up to over 100 miles per hour and took off along Route 15 to Shell Mart, where he ditched the car and ran toward the river bank.

When officers got to the 1994 Pontiac, they found a 17-year-old female passenger inside. She told the officers that Staab had relatives on Route 30. A patrol was then sent to that area.

Around 11:22 p.m. a Jackson Police officer spotted Staab around the Juvenile Detention Center, but he fled again after spotting the officers. The relatives on Route 30 were contacted and told about the situation.

Staab was arrested the next day without incident and taken to the Breathitt County Jail on a $5,000 bond, which he posted.

Staab was charged with fleeing or evading arrest, speeding, reckless driving, improper passing, improper use of the left lane of the highway, two counts of wanton endangerment in the first degree, resisting arrest, having no auto insurance, attempting to elude, and no Kentucky registration plate.

Staab appeared before District Judge Kenny Profit on Monday, August 6 to answer the charges. Since some charges were felonies a preliminary hearing was scheduled for Monday, August 20.

The search for research

It is always disquieting to see public funds spent to lobby public officials for public funds.

That, after all, is why we have a representative democracy. Part of the job description for Kentucky's six U.S. House members and Sens. Mitch McConnell and Jim Bunning is to bring back a fair share of the taxes its citizens and businesses send to Washington.

But with that caveat, there's a lot to be said for Gov. Paul Patton's decision to step up Kentucky's effort to do a better job of attracting federal research dollars.

Equally laudable is the fact that the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville, rivals in so many respects, are jointly supporting this effort. In this arena, the question isn't whether UK or the U of L gets more research money, but rather whether Kentucky can nurture an intellectual and business environment that will produce jobs in the emerging high tech and medical fields.

Between them, the two universities now attract about $200 million a year in federal research grants. Bill Brundage, who holds the improbable title of Commissioner of the New Economy, wants to boost federal research spending in Kentucky to at least $500 million.

To that end, the state is preparing to open a permanent office in Washington. ("Reopen" might be a more apt verb, since Kentucky had a D.C. office until Patton closed it shortly after he was elected governor.)

The new office will be headed by Audrey Haynes, a former chief of staff for Tipper Gore who once worked briefly for Patton. Kentucky will also hire the services of a consulting firm reputed to have ties to the Bush administration.

It won't be cheap: estimated annual cost of the office is $700,000; UK and the U of L will each contribute $50,000, the state will pay the rest.

Kentucky isn't alone in trying to land federal research dollars; in fact, it's somewhat late in the game. Ever since Congress expanded funding for the National Institutes of Health and other research-sponsoring agencies, states, foundations and private institutions have been scrambling to get in on the action.

The folks in Frankfort are quick to note that the research initiative isn't limited to UK and the U of L. It has a statewide reach, ranging from workforce development to nurturing high tech business corridors in key areas.

The research push should also extend to Kentucky's regional campuses. Though they are mainly, and properly, undergraduate teaching institutions, Northern Kentucky University and the commonwealth's other regional universities do sustain selective, and significant, research efforts. These deserve more attention.

All this matters, because this is where the jobs of tomorrow will be generated. The revolutions now underway in genetics, computing, imaging and the basic sciences will eventually have commercial applications.

Kentucky needs to make sure it's in a position to support basic and applied research, and to prepare an environment that nurtures the development of commercial applications of that research.

The sham of political compromise

by SHELDON RICHMAN

Writing on the New York Times op-ed page recently, new Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle called for "a spirit of principled compromise." The top Democrat presumably means compromise with the Republicans. He's in luck. Compromise with the Senate Republicans is entirely possible — because they hold the same reactionary principles as the Democrats.

Compromise is mutual concession-making in search of agreement. Implied in the concept is that the two parties share common ground. When a buyer and seller of real estate bargain and settle on a price somewhere between the asking price and the offer, that is a compromise. They share some basic premises: that the seller, as the owner, is justified in asking to be paid for his property, and that the buyer does not have a right to the property except on terms agreeable to the owner.

Now imagine a "negotiating" session in which the party seeking the property does not share the premise that the other party is the owner with a right to demand payment for his property. Is any compromise possible? No. Is it not the case that one or the other must capitulate? If the landowner settles for the theft of only half his property, one would hardly be tempted to call that a compromise. It would be capitulation.

Now let's move to Congress. Mr. Daschle hopes for compromise with Republicans on education, energy, the environment, health care, and Social Security. He's proud of the bipartisan compromise on campaign-finance reform. In each of these cases, Mr. Daschle's party favors government use of physical force to accomplish ends they favor. Is that too an extreme a formulation — or simply too frank for polite company?

As George Washington reputedly said, "Government is not reason. It is not eloquence — it is force!" That has not changed in 200 years. Government brings one thing — and one thing only — to any project: the legal authority to use violence against people who themselves have committed no violence against anyone.

Take campaign-finance reform. It is a euphemism for government power to punish people who give their own money to candidates or political parties above an amount limited by the law, or who place television ads at the wrong time saying the wrong things as defined by the law. Note that offenders need not commit violence against anyone before they are subject to government violence. (Try not paying a fine and see what the government does.)

And so it is for all the issues Mr. Daschle fervently wishes to compromise on. Government would forcibly take money from the taxpayers (taxation equals fiscal force) and give it to government schools, energy-related projects, health-care providers, and retirees. It would also forbid certain peaceful activities, such as drilling for oil in Alaska on land the government has forcibly kept from becoming private property.

Notice that the Republicans accept the premises of every program on Daschle's list. They favor government activism in education (so much for these "free-enterprise" enthusiasts), in energy (read the Bush plan), in health care (why haven't they repealed the 1973 law that created and subsidized HMOs?), in the environment (there go the champions of private property), and in retirement pensions (they're all New Dealers now). They quibble over details, such as whether grants to the states should come with strings or not. But they do not question the premises that government may forbid certain peaceful conduct; compel other behavior, and spend other people's money.

That's why compromise is possible and even likely. Imagine a member of Congress who believed that government should not interfere with education or health care because interference necessarily violates individual rights and the Constitution. Could he strike a compromise with Mr. Daschle? Of course not. Any "compromise" would be a surrender of principle. What does it mean for Mr. Daschle to compromise? Only that perhaps he trims his demand for how much the lives of Americans should be directed by government. Big deal.

There can be no compromise on basic principles. There is no middle ground between freedom and government usurpation. To pretend there can be is an insult to all intelligent Americans.

No doubt Mr. Daschle will get his compromise. And the principles embodied in the concept "America" will be despoiled once more.

National debt goes up with tax rebates

As our national debt continues to increase, our government is paying out the tax rebates by selling bonds to the Social Security Administration. The same old song and dance of irresponsibility by Congress. We keep hearing from our political leaders about protecting the solvency of Social Security and Medicare and its just a plain lie.

When it comes time for the government to honor this debt and cash in the bonds, they won't. They will instead declare Social Security insolvent and will not tell the American people the truth. They bankrupted Social Security!

This will give the Wall Street owned and controlled puppets the perfect opportunity to make the false argument that to fix Social Security we need to invest its monies in the stock market. The real goal here is to tie in the American people's loyalty and interest directly into corporations and gain more influence and control over our government.

We all knew the problem with Social Security was that not enough funds were being paid into the system, but the borrowing of those funds to meet budget demands. We all know the solution is to cut the size of government and the cost of running government but we get the same solution of borrow and spend with no intent to repay.

The Social Security Trust Fund is our money they are stealing. They are stealing from all of us and selling out the old and disabled. There is no balanced budget and there never was any surplus. You can't claim a surplus with the national debt steadily rising.

To quote George Bush's father, "It's voodoo economics" his son and Congress are practicing.

A sight infrequently seen

I attended the funeral of my grandmother on August 8 in Grayson. As we traveled from Grayson to the cemetery in Carter City, every vehicle, from small cars to huge dump trucks pulled as far off the road as they could and sat while the whole funeral procession went through.

This behavior is something we didn't expect. Around here, people will speed by you and, if you are one of the peo-

Brain injury fund changes management

The Traumatic Brain Injury Trust Fund, which serves more than 300 Kentuckians and their families, has a new case management company for client services. Eckman-Freeman of Louisville, was awarded the contract, effective in August, according to vice president of operations, Cindy Funderburk.

"We're looking forward to serving the needs of individuals with brain injuries and their families," Funderburk said. "We have case managers and service providers strategically positioned throughout Kentucky and Tennessee, to respond to the needs of service recipients in a timely and efficient manner."

The concern right now during transition, according to Funderburk, is that some current recipients have not responded to consent forms authorizing the transfer of case management files. If the transfer is not made, there is a risk that the recipient's benefits could lapse—something Eckman-Freeman and the Kentucky Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, which oversees the benefit program, want to avoid.

"Our hands are tied right now in contacting some of the recipients because current information is not available," Funderburk said. "So, we're asking anyone who knows of a recipient, or who knows of someone who might benefit from the services available, to call our toll-free number and let us know."

The toll-free number from anywhere in Kentucky is 1-800-509-6277.

The Traumatic Brain Injury Trust Fund was established by the Kentucky Legislature in 1997. Fees assessed for driving infractions, including most moving violations, fund the program. Its purpose is to provide services, to victims of traumatic brain injuries, including respite care, speech and language services, occupational therapy and employment services to promote independence among individuals who have experienced a brain injury.

Those who meet the eligibility criteria have access to funds to help offset expenses of up to $15,000 annually.

"Each year, about 3,000 people in Kentucky experience a traumatic brain injury," Funderburk said. "We want to make sure that everyone currently receiving support services continues to do so. And, we'll be doing what we can in the near future to reach out to those who could benefit from services, but may not know about the program."

"Right now, the priority is identifying all of the current recipients, to make sure that their services don't lapse."

For more information about the benefit program, or to receive a brochure on the Traumatic Brain Injury Trust Fund, call 1-800-509-6277.

Abundant pardon

When Adam abandoned God, we did too. Is this fair? In athletics, when one player on a team commits an infraction, there is a penalty. The whole team suffers. Humanity is a team. When our forefather, Adam, did not play by the rules, the whole team suffered. We all lost.

We show our membership on the losing team in many ways. We promise fidelity in marriage and think nothing of cheating. We lie to the boss to cover mistakes. We pilfer pens, pencils, stamps, stationary, whatever, from the office. We are petty thieves and robbers. We tell "white" lies, only the "good" kind.

We need to return to the Lord. There is good reason to do so. Although we tend to be unforgiving and often vengeful, God is not like us. The way of God is the way of pardon and forgiveness. A teenage boy who pulls the trigger and kills his teacher suffers the penalty due for his crime. However, there is forgiveness in God. "Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return to the Lord, and He will have compassion on him, and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon" (Isaiah 55:7).

Jesus Christ died on a cross as a sacrifice for human sin. There is abundant pardon from God, based on this sacrifice.

One injured, one arrested following Pike shooting

by MARY MUSIC
STAFF WRITER

MAJESTIC — A Pike County couple received a rude awakening on Thursday morning when an argument led to a trip to the hospital for a female resident.

According to statements given by the Kentucky State Police, Clara Mae Hurley, 38, of Stopover, visited the residence of Jimmy and Inis Chafins in Majestic at 4:30 a.m. on that morning.

The early morning visit, however, wasn't a welcome one.

Shortly after her arrival, Hurley, armed with a small handgun, allegedly began an argument with the Chafinses.

As the argument progressed, Inis Chafins was shot in the lower abdomen.

According to the report, Hurley allegedly then left the scene.

Approximately three hours after the shooting occurred, Hurley was arrested without incident at her residence on Woodman Creek Road by Kentucky State Police Trooper Jimmy Nolte.

Nolte charged Hurley with first-degree assault, a class B felony. She was arraigned in Pike District Court on Friday and is currently being held under a $30,000 bond at the Pike County Detention Center.

According to investigating officer, KSP Det. Greg Roberts, information regarding the cause of the actual argument is unknown.

"We don't know what started the argument," said Roberts. "We haven't got that far in the investigation."

Inis Chafins was transported to Williamson Memorial Hospital shortly after the shooting occurred. She was later taken to Saint Mary's Hospital in Huntington, W.Va.

Roberts said Friday that Inis Chafins was in "serious" condition upon her departure for the hospital on Thursday, but additional information about her condition is currently unknown.

Spokesmen at both Williamson

Memorial and Saint Mary's Hospitals were reluctant to comment about Inis Chafins' condition. A spokesperson for St. Mary's Hospital, however, confirmed that Chafins visited the emergency room at that hospital, but was never admitted as a patient.

Roberts continues to investigate the incident.

McConnell to make stops in Eastern Kentucky

TIMES STAFF REPORT

Republican U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell, who faces a re-election bid next year, will be making several stops in Eastern Kentucky during a barnstorming tour of the state this week.

After attending a ribbon cutting at a container handling facility at the Bluegrass Army Depot in Richmond Monday morning, McConnell will travel to Floyd County.

There, he will first attend a meeting of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce at 12:30 p.m. at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. Afterwards, he will pay a visit to Prestonsburg Community College, where he will meet with students and new president Dr. George Edwards.

From there, McConnell will travel to Martin County, where he will tour the site where a new federal prison is being constructed near the Big Sandy Regional Airport. That night, he will attend a reception at the Ramada Inn in Paintsville.

After spending the next three days in the western and southern portions of the state, McConnell will return to Eastern Kentucky on Friday.

On that day, he will first attend a noon engagement with the Hazard/Perry Chamber of Commerce at Hazard Community College. At 2 p.m., he will travel to Hyden for a roundtable meeting with the Leslie County Chamber of Commerce.

McConnell's tour of Kentucky is taking place during a Congressional recess.

McConnell's seat is up for election again in 2002. Thus far, he is being challenged by Democrat Lois Combs Weinberg of Knott County. Weinberg is the founder of the Hindman Settlement School's Dyslexia Program and is the daughter of former Gov. Bert T. Combs.

Water testing lab helps to ensure safe drinking water

For more than 20 years, Morehead State University's Water Testing Laboratory has been striving to ensure that the citizens of East Kentucky have safe drinking water. Now, that mission has expanded to cover the commonwealth.

During the last year, the laboratory has been overseeing the Laboratory Certification Program for the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet.

"The cabinet is required by federal regulations to maintain a certification program for all public water systems or commercial laboratories performing microbiological analysis of drinking water," said Dr. Ted Pass, laboratory director.

Within the state, there are 38 laboratories in 23 counties with approximately 60 analysts that are certified, Dr. Pass noted. He, along with laboratory manager Rita Wright, act as certification program managers, completing annual audits and ensuring that all laboratories are adhering to Environmental Protection Agency regulations. Assisting them for the next year will be Peggy Ryker of Frankfort, a retiree of the Kentucky Division of Water who has 25 years experience as a certification officer.

Public water systems are required to submit monthly water samples for bacteriological analysis to a certified laboratory to ensure their customers are receiving safe drinking water.

"The number of samples has grown tremendously in the last 10 years," Wright said, "from approximately 10 samples per month in 1979 to more than 400 per month in 2001."

Samples come from public and private companies, federal agencies, health departments and well drillers.

"Under the certification program responsibilities, MSU must offer an annual workshop for laboratory analysts to keep them abreast of new methods and regulations that impact drinking water," Wright said.

Since assuming management of the certification program, the laboratory management team hosted 24 analysts from 29 state-certified laboratories for a one-day workshop in October. In May, 36 analysts from 26 laboratories attended a three-day session on the campus. Speakers from the state Division of Water and US EPA in Cincinnati were among those presenting talks on new regulations and waterborne pathogens. During the training, analysts were given the opportunity to perform hands-on activities involving the use of new methods developed to detect pathogens in drinking water.

Since it began operation in 1979, the MSU laboratory has performed microbiological analysis for those in the community and approximately 25 surrounding counties. Because of its extensive involvement in water quality within the state, the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Division of Water, Drinking Water Branch, contracted with MSU in 1991 to become the Commonwealth of Kentucky's Principle Microbiology Laboratory, a role that continues today.

The laboratory has assisted the state's Division of Water with environmental issues which have impacted source and drinking water, such as the fish kill in the Kentucky River in 1999.

Dr. Pass became involved in water testing while he was teaching at Miami University in Ohio. After coming to MSU in 1972, he continued his efforts after receiving a request from the local health department. The water testing operation on the campus began in a laboratory in Lappin Hall. It moved to its current facility in 1995 when Ashland Inc. financed the renovation of the former Energy Conservation Laboratory whose construction had originally been funded by Ashland.

To serve as certification program managers, the laboratory staff must receive continual training. Dr. Pass and Wright attend numerous programs each year, including the U.S. EPA workshop in Cincinnati. They recently received certification to perform audits of laboratories performing microbiological analysis of drinking water in Region IV, which is a six state division that includes Kentucky and Tennessee.

MSU is currently pursuing a four-year contract with the state's Division of Water to continue management of the Certification Program through 2006.

"We want to ensure that all citizens are receiving safe drinking water. After all 'safe drinking water is our business,'" Dr. Pass said.

Additional information is available from the Water Testing Laboratory, located at 150 Fourth Street and Ashland Avenue, by calling (606) 783-2961.

When the Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame holds its induction banquet on Monday, Sept. 10, it would be appropriate to have a couple of fiddlers playing at the reception. That's because the inductees will include Vernon Hatton of Lexington and Johnny Cox of Hazard, the stars of the University of Kentucky's "Fiddlin' Five" that won the 1958 NCAA championship for Coach Adolph Rupp.

Before the season, Rupp didn't hear any sweet string music as he watched the Wildcats practice. "We've got pretty good fiddlers, that's all," growled the Baron. "Be right entertaining at a barn dance. But I'll tell you, you need violinists to play at Carnegie Hall. We don't have any violinists."

As fate would have it, the '58 Final Four was scheduled to be played in college basketball's new Carnegie Hall — Freedom Hall in Louisville, just 80 miles from UK's campus. Yet the short journey seemed virtually impossible.

After all, it had been six seasons since Rupp had won the last of his three national championships, and nobody saw a player on this UK team even remotely resembling Wilt Chamberlain of Kansas, Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, Jerry West of West Virginia, or Elgin Baylor of Seattle.

Hatton was a bowlegged, 6-foot-3 senior guard from

Middle school grid scheduled August 25

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

Football season is here. And football teams are ready for some football.

Some area football squads will get started August 25 as the Big Sandy Valley Football Conference holds its pre-season grid. This year's pre-season grid will be held at Highland Elementary in Johnson County.

Paintsville Middle School opens the grid by doing battle with the Allen Eagles at 10 a.m. Five games follow the opener, Warfield vs. John M. Stumbo, 11 a.m.; Magoffin County vs. Betsy Layne, noon; Johnson County 7th vs. Allen Central, 1 p.m.; Inez vs. South Floyd, 2 p.m.; and Johnson County 8th vs. Adams Middle School, 3 p.m.

The Big Sandy Valley Football Conference's post-season grid will be held in Prestonsburg this year. Last season's post-season grid was held in Paintsville at Johnson Central High School. Coach James DeRossett and the Adams Middle School Blackcats are defending champs.

This year's grid will get started at 9 a.m. on October 20. Games in the post-season grid are determined by each team's records in regular season play.

The Paintsville Middle School football program will begin tomorrow with signups at the Paintsville Recreation Center. Both parents and payers are encouraged to attend.

A date for the Little Apple Bowl, a favorite of many Tiger players and fans alike, has not been set.

The Paintsville Recreation Department's third, fourth, fifth and sixth grade program will begin with registration

Wildcats hold first Media Day under Morriss

UK coach remarks on several subjects

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

The UK football team conducted Media Day Thursday at newly renovated Commonwealth Stadium. It was a chance for members of the media to take on new coach Guy Morriss as he enters his first season as a head football coach on any level. Coach Morriss has much to say about two quarterbacks. The UK mentor said ideally he would like to be settled on a starting quarterback before August 22 when classes start at UK.

Former UK Wildcats Jeremy Caudill was in town on Monday for the funeral of Prestonsburg High School football player Josh Francis. Caudill and fellow sophomore, Dewayne Robertson, return as starters for the new coach and his staff. Morriss sees his defensive being very solid if everyone stays healthy.

Coming out of spring practice, Morriss was fairly pleased with the Cats. Heading into the 2001 season, after a 2-9 2000, the Wildcats find themselves picked to finish last in the Southeastern Conference.

Faced with the task of choosing a starting quarterback, Morriss also must simply find a way to get the Cats out of the SEC's basement.

Coach Guy Morriss on..

Quarterbacks: "I think we're fortunate to have two guys competing for the position. As for the flow, I don't think it will interrupt anything. Many people make a big deal out of that but as an individual player, you go out and play as hard as you can and you don't worry about who's taking the snap, handing the ball off. You just have to get

Mtn. Angels probable top 20 in nation

by TONY McGUIRE
SPORTS WRITER

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The Mountain Angels, a 16 and under fast pitch softball team, finished their summer tour with an excellent showing at the softball World Series. The team, made up of young girls from Johnson, Letcher, and Perry Counties, finished their season with a 3-2 showing at the national tournament. The showing should be good enough to earn the team a top 20 finish in the national standings.

The softball World Series was held in Charlotte, North Carolina and was attended by nearly 400 teams from 42 states. There were 96 teams in the Mountain Angels' division, and a top 20 finish can be considered a tremendous accomplishment for the young ladies from Eastern Kentucky. Word on their actual placement will not be announced until next week.

In the first game, the Mountain Angels took on the Express of Maryland. The Express posted a run in each of the first two innings to take a 2-0 advantage. The Mountain Angels then settled down and began to put some runs EASTERN — Allen Central's Alex Patton is back under center this season after quarterbacking the Rebels the majority of last season.

Team goals and individual goals balance out in Patton's hopes as he eyes an upcoming season that has Allen Central back in district play.

"First of all, I want to have a good winning season," said Patton prior to a practice at the Allen Central football field

Thursday night. "Since we're back in the district now, I'd like to make the playoffs, making the playoffs is one of our big team goals."

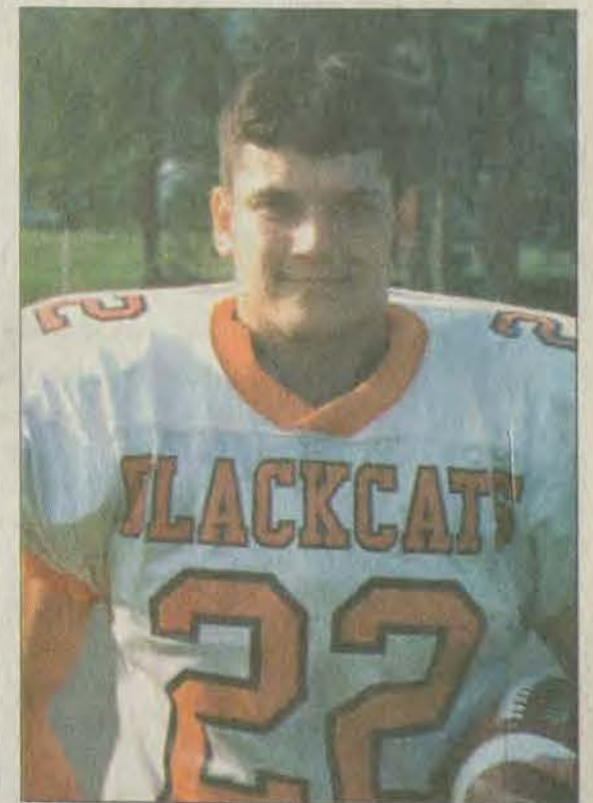

Patton has matured into a capable quarterback, one who knows what to do with the football.

Getting the ball to the open receiver and completing passes is something Patton wants to do this season, something he must do when called upon.

PRESTONSBURG — Senior Matt Slone carried the football over 200 times last season. The result? over 1,500 yards and 20 touchdowns. Slone, equally adept on the defensive side of the ball, playing in the Blackcat defensive secondary, is ready to get the 2001 season started.

year," Patton said. "I wanna make a good name for myself this season."

Last year's Alex Patton and this year's Alex Patton differ in that this year's version is stronger, faster and more knowledgeable of the game.

"I've grown up a lot and learned a lot from my cousin and I think I can fill his shoes," said Patton. The cousin Patton learned from was former Allen Central quarterback Brandon Sizemore.

Patton is also a member of the Allen Central High School baseball team. Offseason workouts are a big part of any athlete's training. Such is the case with the Allen Central signal-caller.

"I've worked out a lot in the off season, almost everyday, trying to get bigger," admitted Patton. "I feel pretty good about myself going into the season."

Playing defense allows the

Allen Central quarterback to gets his hits from a cornerback position.

According to Patton, new AC head coach Robert Mayton has the Rebel football team on the right track.

"Coach Mayton has stepped in here, taken over and done a real good job," said Patton.

Patton will look to junior Dustin Hammonds to haul in several passes this season.

"Dustin Hammonds is probably my favorite receiver along with Derek Kennedy and Oliver Kilgore," said Patton.

Early days under center on the high school level had Patton feeling uncomfortable at times. However, now he has settled in and feels quite comfortable.

"When I first come up here as a freshman I didn't know how to handle rolling out and getting hit but now I'm comfortable doing that."

on the board. By the end of the fourth inning the Angels had built a 6-2 lead, a score that would hold up until the end of the game.

Emily Brashear and Teasha Haynes were the only Angels to record multiple hits in the contest. Both Brashear and Haynes collected a pair of hits a piece. Jeannie Hamblin got the win on the mound.

bright point for the Mountain Angels came in the third inning when they were able to come across with 3 runs. The Angels from the south were able to score four more times in the game to end the contest with the 10-3 win. Emily Brashear and Briann Daniels collected the only two hits that the Mountain Angels would get in the game.

Mountain Angels	0	0	3	0	0	0	3
Carolina Angels	6	0	3	0	1	-	10

The Mountain Angels scored a dramatic come from behind victory in the third game against a scrappy team from Clark, Michigan. Jeannie Hamblin allowed the Riverdaws a couple of runs early (one in the second and one in the third), and then settled down to shutout the Dawgs for the rest of the game.

Things looked bad for the Mountain Angels as they were unable to plate a run through the first five innings. The Angels would get all the runs they needed in the sixth as Jeannie Hamblin and Briann Daniels were able to get on base and Emily Brashear came across with the game winning RBI.

Emily Brashear had three hits in the winning effort, while Jeannie Hamblin and Briann Daniels both collected a pair of hits a piece.

Clark Riverdaws	1	1	0	0	0	0	2

Game four saw the Mountain Angels take on another Carolina team. This time the Angels opponent would be the Carolina Lightning. The Lightning struck quickly with runs in the first, second, and third inning. At the end of three the Mountain Angels found themselves on the short end of a 3-0 score. Again, the Mountain Angels settled down and blanked their opponents in the later innings of the game while scoring just enough to pull out the win. The Angels plated a pair of runs in each of the fourth and fifth innings to take the 4-3 win.

The game ended in dramatic fashion as the Lightning had the bases loaded with one out in the top of the seventh inning. A Lightning player lined a long shot to the out field which looked to be well in the gap, but Teasha Haynes was able to flag down the line drive, forcing the player on third to return to the bag to tag-up. Haynes then relayed the ball to home. There was a terrific collision at homeplate, but Emily Brashear was able to hold on to record the double-play and preserve the 4-3 win for the Mountain Angels.

Mountain Angels	0	0	0	2	2	0	-	4

In their final game of the tournament, the Mountain Angels once again gave up runs in the early going, but this time the offense was not able to make up the difference. Again, a Carolina club caused the Mountain Angels problems. The Carolina Rush came out and scored single runs in the first, second, and third innings. The three runs would be enough to send the mountain squad packing as they were only able to muster a single run in the seventh inning. The game ended quietly with the Rush taking the 3-1 victory.

Brittany Slone and Teasha Haynes were the only Angels to record multiple hits. Emily Brashear came back from the collision of the earlier game to throw out three runners. Brashear was able to record the outs mainly due to the efforts of Debbie Roll who was able to take the throws and make several spectacular tags on the runners.

Carolina Rush	1	1	1	0	0	0	3

The Mountain Angels will find out their final standings in the softball World Series some times later this week. Using last year's result as a measurement, the squad should finish well in the top 20, with nothing lower than the top 25.

your job done no matter who lines up behind center."

QB situation: "Same as it has been all summer. The guys have had the competition going since spring. They will start tomorrow with it still going on but someone has to take the first snap and that will be Jared (Lorenzen) as he is the previous starter. Hopefully one of these guys will emerge and make it a clear-cut favorite and the decision will be made by the performance on the football field."

Strengths/weakness of QBs Jared Lorenzen and Shane Boyd: "Jared obviously has a stronger arm than Shane and his biggest plus is that he started 11 ball games last year. That experience is extremely valuable. The fact that Jared is getting his weight down very close to where we want it will make him more mobile and we'd like to put more of that in our offense."

Shane Boyd: "Shane is an intelligent young man, fiercely competitive and extremely mobile, which fits our offense and he may be the better guy at that. The thing that hurts Shane is that he hasn't played, he hasn't been on the field when the bullets are flying and that makes a huge difference. I've seen a lot of great practice players and we just don't know how he will react out there when it counts."

Boyd's chance of starting/lack of experience: "If he clearly wins the job he will start. I think we're trying to make this decision for what is the best for the future of this football team and at some point every player has to make his first start. I can't tell these guys that there is a competition to be won on the field and not award it to him if he plays better than the other. We'll lose credibility as coaches if we do that."

Assistant coaches: "I believe you have to lean on your assistants heavily. It doesn't matter if I'm a first-year head coach or been a head coach for 30 years, there's not anybody who knows everything and all the answers about running a football team. They're hired for their professional football opinions and if that's what you're paying them for, you have to give them the opportunity to give it to you. I tell them not to tell me what you think I want to hear."

New assistant staff: "Obviously when you put in a new staff there is a little period of coming together. Here that has been very minimal as our staff enjoys being together, everyone gets along and there are no cliques in this group. It's been nice the way we have come together and our kids will feed off of this positive chemistry of our staff."

Decision to move staff and players to dorm: "When I was playing I used to love to go to camp. It was an isolated type of environment. We want our kids to be concentrating on nothing but intense football. This way we have them all together and it forces them to be together. It forces them to get to know each other, we can have a watch on them, what they eat, when they go to bed, when they wake up. We took the cell phones and the car keys as well, they are willing to do what it takes to be a winning football team."

Tragedies in football this year: "We've had our medical staff at the health care center come over and talk to our training staff and so that they were on the same page and updated on the latest knowledge available on those areas. We're encouraging our kids to drink a lot of fluids. We've got to push them to get in shape and be game ready but at the same time you have to walk a line where you need to be sensitive to the player's health."

Overcoming attitude of 2-9 season in 2000: "We've overcome it, this is a new staff, what's happened in the past is history and we can't change it. My staff and I talk to our kids daily about this and the only thing we can control is our effort and our mental outlook on preparing ourselves for September 1. I think we as a staff have bridged that gap with our players. We are teaching them commitment and a passion for the game."

Strengths as a coach: "Probably the way I deal with players, they respect me, respect my honesty. I tell the players if you aren't ready for the answer you better not ask the question because I'm going to give you a straight answer. I'd rather be told the truth than to deal with the opposite."

Special teams: "Definitely an area we needed to improve and that's why coach (Mark) Nelson is here. He has free reigns over any position player on both sides of the ball and that's a different philosophy. It's important to have the best players on the field at all times especially when you're exchanging that much real estate on special teams."

Defense: "If we stay healthy and our corners hold up, we can be a good defensive ball club. I told them I don't only expect them to be good but they have to be good. It doesn't do us any good to put up 40 and give up 45, bottom line is winning and we can't win if we are not committed to the defensive side of the ball."

Offense: "We were a one-dimensional offense and you can't do that in this conference or any for that matter. We had one or two running plays and didn't even run them and that made us easy to prepare for. We'll get down in a three-point stance and step up the running game. We aren't going to be afraid to pound the ball, especially in the red zone where we struggled last year."

Schedule/playing Louisville: "It's a tough schedule but if you want to be the best you have to beat the best. I'm glad that the strength of schedule is figured into the BCS ratings, it's very important. As far as playing Louisville, as a coach, I'd rather play them at the end of the season, it would be a better matchup as both teams will have played the season as opposed to the first game of the year. Either way, I like playing them and it's good for the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

Slone

He knows just as much about playing defense as he does offense. What him play, and it is evident.

"I know every assignment on defense already, straight-up hitting contact on defense is what we play here at Prestonsburg," said Slone. "Our main goal this year is to score. We know our defense is good enough."

Boyle County is absent from Class AA. Lexington Catholic is in now in Class AAA along with Boyle. The Blackcats are ranked fourth in the state and already own a 27-26 preseason win over number two ranked Corbin.

Slone, like his teammates, is excited about working toward a state championship game.

Prestonsburg made it to the Class AA finals in 1993, eventually falling to Mayfield. This year's Blackcat team, under the direction of John DeRossett, has that same goal in mind.

"We've talked about going to state a whole lot," said Slone. "Our team, our senior players are some of the fastest and most athletic players on the team. Our number one goal is to go to state and win it all."

Josh Slone, one of the newest members of the Pikeville College football team, had the chance to play with younger brother Matt last season at Prestonsburg. Both Slones were keys to a very good Prestonsburg defense.

"It's tremendous that my brother is going to be playing college football," said Slone. "Hopefully, I'll get the chance to watch him and he'll get the chance to come and watch me and maybe one day be on the same team or one day play against each other."

In football, skill players such as backs and receivers often form strong friendships or bonds

Lexington Lafayette High who loved to have his hands on the ball when a game was on the line.

Rupp later called him one of the best clutch players he ever coached. Cox was a skinny 6-4 junior who seemed shy except when it came to firing a sweeping hook from the top of the key or a one-handed jumper from the corner.

The other starters were 6-7 senior center Ed Beck, an ordained Methodist minister who had lost his wife to illness the previous season; John Crigler, a 6-4 senior forward who specialized in rebounding and defense; and Adrian

"Odie" Smith, a 5-10 senior guard from Farmington who had transferred from the junior college ranks.

As the season unfolded, the "Fiddlers" looked more like candidates for the Grand Ol' Opry instead of Carnegie Hall. In December, when Temple and slick guard Guy Rodgers came to UK's Memorial Coliseum, Hatton showed his clutch ability by hitting a pair of free throws to send the game into overtime, hitting a 49-footer to send the game into a third overtime, and then scoring six of the Cats' final eight points in an 83-81 victory.

Alas for UK fans, however, that turned out to be one of the few memorable games in a 19-6 season — the Cats' worst record since 1940-'41. As usual, however, they managed to win the Southeastern Conference championship, giving them an automatic berth in the NCAA Midwest Regional that was, luckily for UK, held in Memorial Coliseum.

After dispatching Miami of Ohio and its massive center, Wayne Embry, UK faced Notre Dame for the right to advance to the Final Four in Freedom Hall.

The Irish had a graceful forward in 6-5 Tom Hawkins, but the Cats limited him to 15 points while racing to an 89-56 win that was, said Rupp, "as perfect as anything I've ever seen."

So the Fiddlers found themselves in Carnegie — ah, Freedom — Hall, but their task in the semifinals was daunting: A rematch against Coach Harry Litwack's Temple Owls, who had recovered from their triple-overtime loss in Lexington to compile a 26-2 record. Well, talk about deja vue! Before a wildly pro-UK Final Four record crowd of 18,586, Hatton again drove a dagger into Temple's heart, this time hitting a reverse layup with 16 seconds remaining to give the Cats a 61-60 victory.

That set up a championship game between UK and Seattle. In the other semifinal, the silky Baylor had scored 23 points and hauled in 22 rebounds to lead his team to a shocking 73-51 upset of a strong Kansas State team led by 6-9 Jack Parr and 6-8 Bob Boozer. After watching Baylor's magic, UK assistant Harry Lancaster told Rupp, "There's no way we can beat this team...they're just too good."

In those days, the semifinals were played on Friday night, the championship on Saturday. Late on Saturday noon, as Rupp and Lancaster were in a hotel room trying to figure what to do about Baylor, they were visited by John Grayson, an obscure coach from Idaho. He advised the UK coaches that Baylor tended to foul players who tried to drive on him. So when Seattle coach John Castellani assigned assigned Baylor to guard Crigler, Rupp ordered Crigler to drive every time he touched the ball. The result was three early fouls on Baylor, forcing Castellani to switch him to UK's low-scoring centers, Beck and backup Don Mills of Berea.

To counter, Rupp then ordered Hatton to drive off blocks set by Beck, forcing Baylor to either switch off and risk fouling out, or letting Hatton go. After the frustrated Baylor picked up his fourth foul trying to block a Mills hook, the game was essentially over, much to the delight of the crowd of 18,803, another Final Four record. At the end of UK's 84-72 win, Baylor had 25 points and 19 rebounds, but Hatton scored 30 and Cox added 24 as the Fiddlers finally became violinists.

"They weren't the greatest basketball players in the world," Rupp said proudly. "All they could do was win."

Hatton was named to the Helms Foundation All-American team, and, after a short career in the NBA, returned to Lexington, where he became a successful auctioneer. Cox, a consensus All-American as a senior in 1959, also had a short pro career. He's now a retired businessman in Hazard.

This year's other Hall of Fame inductees are Lee Rose of Irvine and Lexington, one of the few coaches to take two teams to the Final Four; nationally prominent sportscaster Tom Hammond of the NBC network; current WNBA star Lisa Harrison; longtime track official Charlie Ruter; Wes Cox, former basketball star at Louisville Male High and U of L; Bill Gatti, ex-U of L football star and pro softball slugger; and yours truly.

Tickets to the banquet cost $45 each and may be purchased by writing the Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame, P.O. Box 37370, Louisville, 40233, or by calling 502-637-7696.

with the linemen that protect them. Matt Slone's best friend was Josh Francis, the friend of so many Prestonsburg students.

"Everything this football team does this year will be for Josh Francis," said a soft-spoken Slone at Wednesday's Media Day. "That was my best friend and every touchdown or any yards I get I dedicate to Josh Francis because he meant a lot to me."

Coach DeRossett has a certain way of getting the most out of his players in a given practice. Slone said the team met after Francis' funeral to decide if they should resume practice.

"We had a team meeting to see if we could practice or not, and we all voted to practice to see how good we could do without Josh Francis. He was a great one."

Greatness seems to be a common thing with Prestonsburg football these days. Hopes are high and one Cat with a No. 22 on his chest and a goal in mind is ready to run!

Conference approved

The next regular meeting of the KHSAA Board of Control will be Thurs., Sept. 20, at the Association Office in Lexington. Board President Kathy Johnston has called a special meeting set for 8 a.m. Mon., Aug. 27, to review appeals. For an agenda to either meeting, contact the KHSAA.

At its July meeting, the KHSAA Board of Control unanimously approved a student leadership/sportsmanship conference — a first for the Association. The Conference, to be titled HYPE-2002 (Helping Young People Everywhere), will be held in conjunction with the KHSAA Annual Delegate Meeting.

This year's meeting and the student conference will held Wed., Jan. 9, at the Radisson Plaza Hotel in Lexington.

The student leadership/sportsmanship conference is a result of a charge from a group of Kentucky student athletes the Association sponsored that attended the National Federation 2001: Leading Together Student Conference in July in Indianapolis, Indiana.

The following is a listing of those students who represented Kentucky: Ashley Lindemann (St. Henry), Ashley Hyatt (Lyon County), Erica Adcock (Lyon County), Lee Hendrick (Russellville), Tom Masthay (Murray), Brian Inman (Mercer County), Meghan Bottom (Franklin County), Chelsey Thompson (Murray), Stephanie Jackson (Boyd County), Steph Galusha (Lyon County) and counselor Faye Thornton (Franklin County). The above will serve as advisors to the Kentucky conference in January.

NFHS Committee appointments

At the recent National Federation of High Schools Summer Convention (during which longtime high school official and supporter Charlie Ruter was inducted as Kentucky's seventh individual into the National High School Sports Hall of Fame), several committee appointments were approved that included members of the KHSAA staff and other representatives.

KHSAA Commissioner Louis Stout was elected to the NFHS Board of Directors, representing NFHS Section II, composed of the states of Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and Washington D.C. Executive Assistant Commissioner Brigid DeVries, the Chair of the NFHS Swimming and Diving Rules Committee, was appointed to serve as Section II's representative on the NFHS Track and Field Rules Committee. Assistant Commissioner Larry Boucher was appointed to serve as Chair of the NFHS Basketball Rules Committee.

Also, Suzie Stammer, former Olympic Field Hockey official and teacher at Henry Clay High School in Lexington was appointed to serve as Section II representative on the NFHS Field Hockey Rules Committee. Committee appointments are four-year terms.

State soccer site proposals

The KHSAA is requesting bids from host sites for the 2002-2004 State Championship Soccer Tournaments, to be presented to the Board of Control at its November meeting.

Anyone interested in presenting a proposal, should contact Asst. Commissioner Larry Boucher at the KHSAA office.

The 2001 state soccer tournaments were previously awarded to Georgetown College and are to be held at Rawlings Stadium. Rawlings Stadium has been site of the 1997, 1999 and 2000 events.

Following the success of participation in the boys' and girls' soccer postseason, the Association is adding an in-season statewide boys' and girls' soccer scoreboard to the Riherd's/KHSAA Scoreboards on the internet at www.khsaa.org. The scoreboard will mirror those conducted in football, boys' and girls' basketball, baseball and fast pitch softball.

A postseason scoreboard will again be utilized in girls' volleyball, with the hopes that participation will allow the expansion of an in-season scoreboard for the 2002 season.

Bentley's Comments: Notes for Herbst and Holly Pointer

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

Want to know why being a sports fan is so much fun? Find a tape of Chip Caray's call of the end of Tuesday night's win over Colorado. Chip has broadcasting in his blood, following in the sizable footsteps of dad Skip and grandpa Harry. He's been announcing for several years, but Tuesday night he put his considerable talents on display for everyone in describing the exploits of the Cubs stumbling around the bases and the Rockies bumbling a rundown attempt.

The play in and of itself was spectacular enough. For those who didn't catch it, the game was tied at four with one out in the bottom of the ninth. Catcher Joe Girardi singled to left, which started the merry-go-round. It stopped abruptly when Ricky Gutierrez fell as he rounded third, forcing him to return to the base.

Girardi, who for some reason continued running when he reached first even though his run didn't matter, was caught between first and second. As that rundown ensued, Rockies pitcher Gabe White, who was correctly backing up home, incorrectly left his post and sprinted to cover first. When he caught the ball and tagged Girardi for the second out, Gutierrez broke home.

Because White throws left-handed, he had to spin to throw to the plate. His throw beat the runner, but Gutierrez amazingly eluded the tag of Sal Fasano to score the winning run.

But the call made this an instant classic. First, Caray groaned as Gutierrez stumbled, then punctuated it with "the Cubs have runners all over the place. Girardi in a rundown, there's the tag out runner comin' home, he is ow safe! Safe! Safe! Safe! Cubs win! Cubs win! Cubs win!"

It brought to mind his father's call of Sid Bream lumbering home to beat the Pirates ("He is safe! Braves win! Braves win! Braves win! Braves win!"), or Jack Buck's call of Kirk Gibson's improbable home run in Game One of the 1988 World Series ("I don't believe what I just saw!").

These Cubs are maturing right before our eyes. And just as good for us, so is their young announcer.

For my money, the best call of any sporting event belongs to the legendary Al Michaels.

While others remember Howard Cosell's call of a Mohammed Ali fight ("Down goes Frazier! Down goes Frazier! Down goes Frazier!"), Russ Hodges, call of Bobby Thomson's 1951 "Shot Heard 'Round the World" ("The Giants win the pennant!") or Ned Jarrett bringing son Dale home to claim his first Daytona 500 in 1993, I'll never forget Michael's a pro's pro - giving in to fandom for perhaps the only time in his career with, "Do you believe in miracles? Yes!"

I get a lump in my throat just typing it.

I had the opportunity to do something this week I never dreamed would happen: I took in a Millard football practice.

The junior high will play its second season on the gridiron this fall. But the school will field a high school team for the first time in its last year. It will not play varsity football, however; a 10-game junior varsity schedule is set. This is another opportunity to help the guys get familiar with the sport as it heads into East Ridge. I have been very impressed with Robert Kiser, who left the junior high team to coach the junior varsity squad this year. He seems to know what he's doing, and he runs a tight, well-disciplined ship, from all accounts.

He told me that all but one player from last year's inaugural squad is back, and that young man transferred to Shelby Valley. Therefore, every one of them is playing the sport again. In fact, when I first talked to the coach a year ago, he told me that was one of his goals as he started the team. He wanted to instill a love of the game as he introduced it to them. Obviously, he has been successful.

That Cub game Tuesday night was full of noteworthy events. In addition to the wild finish, it featured what is apparently a Major League first: The initial ejection of the designated singer.

Home plate umpire Angel Hernandez ejected Steve "Mongo" McMichael after a derogatory remark just before leading the crowd in singing "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" during the seventh-inning stretch.

McMichael, who was a member of the Chicago Bears, only Super Bowl championship, took umbrage with a call Hernandez made in the sixth that went against the Cubs. He told the crowd, "Don't worry, I'll have some speaks with that home plate umpire after the game."

Is Chicago a little ashamed of the remarks made by "Mongo"? You be the judge. On the Cubs, Web site Wednesday, McMichael wasn't identified as a former football player. Instead, he was listed as a pro wrestler.

On behalf of wrestling fans everywhere, thanks a lot, Chicago.

If you missed it, please do yourself a favor and get a copy of this week's column by Bob Watkins. Watkins can write with the best of them, but his true strength is when he recalls the days of his youth, taking an insightful look back at what Bruce Springsteen calls "Glory Days". If you can't find it, email me at rbentley@pc.edu and I'll send you a copy.

It was tremendous.

Also, for those connected to the World Wide Web, head over to espn.go.com and find Jim Caple's series on minor league baseball. Caple spent a week with the Lehigh Valley Black Diamonds, a team in the independent Atlantic League. When the franchise went bankrupt last season, the league took over and kept it going on a shoestring budget just to have eight teams to make scheduling easier.

I've always been fascinated with the lower levels of professional baseball, and day one of the report certainly satisfied my appetite.

MSC officials endorse Character Initiative

TIMES STAFF REPORT

Taking a major role is, well, taking a major role.

The NAIA Character Initiative takes a major role in the highly competitive Mid-South Conference. At its annual meeting on the campus of Lambuth University August 2-3, in what may well be an unprecedented move, the coaches of all 15 sports committees went on record in support of the NAIA Character Initiative. The NAIA through its Character Initiative wishes to make character a foundational principal of all NAIA sporting events. The coaches agreed to embrace the five core values of the program which are: Respect, Responsibility, Integrity, Servant Leadership, Sportsmanship.

The following at the annual meeting of MSC football officials, this group also, went on record to embrace and endorse the NAIA program. In the words of one official, in stating his support for the program, "We can't expect the athletes to accept standards that we ourselves are not willing to accept."

"This action by our football officials, though not specifically addressed as a part of the initiative, indicates their support of the landmark program, and their desire to provide athletes with the ultimate atmosphere in which to compete," stated Tom Dowling, MSC commissioner. Dowling further commented, saying, "Other MSC officials" and "umpires" associations will be offered a similar opportunity to endorse the program." The MSC is unique among small college conferences in that it certifies, trains and supervises its own officials' associations.

The MSC is home to two reigning NAIA National Champions, Georgetown College, football and Lindsey Wilson College, men's soccer. Other members of the MSC are: Belhaven College, Cumberland College, Cumberland University, Lambuth University, Pikeville College, and Union College.

Lambuth football team goes to work

JACKSON, Tenn. - Lambuth University football is synonymous with a winning tradition, and the latest installment of that winning tradition started today. At 3:00pm, Head Coach Vic Wallace and his staff began the check-in process for this season's Lambuth University Eagles football team. passed for 2,290 yards and 20 touchdowns last season. Smith has also been a key outfielder for the LU baseball team.

Edwards, a career Eagle as well, is set to begin his senior season. The 5-9, 189-pound senior hales from Opelouses, La. and was offensive threat for Lambuth last season. During the 2000 season, Edwards rushed for 989 yards on 195 carries with 16 touchdowns. He also pulled in 17 receptions for 149 yards and 2 touchdowns. # NCAA Division I Board of Directors reaffirms commitments to ongoing reform

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

INDIANAPOLIS — The NCAA Division I Board of Directors has reaffirmed its commitment to addressing concerns and ongoing reform in intercollegiate athletics. As part of that commitment, the Board agreed at its August 9 meeting to appoint a task force that will focus on the Association's reform agenda.

"The Board had a very good discussion about issues of concern in intercollegiate athletics at the Division I level," said William "Brit" Kirwan, chair of the Board and president at Ohio State University. "Those concerns have come from a number of sources internally and externally, including the recent Knight Foundation Commission report. It is clear to us that the Board is the appropriate body to drive the reform efforts."

The task force, which will be appointed in the next few weeks, will focus on issues of academic and fiscal integrity. Kirwan noted that the group will consist largely of Board members, but it may be augmented by other individuals with particular expertise.

Kirwan said the task force will be asked to make its initial report at the Board's next meeting, November 1, 2001. At that time, it will provide a sense of priority for the major issues that the Board and Division I need to address.

Part of the task force's charge will include oversight of a proposed baseline study of economic and other forces that drive the behavior of member institutions and participating student-athletes. The study, which is expected to be completed by October 2003, is designed to help guide future reform initiatives.

Also on the Board's agenda was a discussion of the Association's event-certification process, especially as related to events with ties to sites where sports wagering on intercollegiate athletics competition is conducted. The Board discussed three basketball events certified by the NCAA and that initially were scheduled to be conducted in a casino in Las Vegas, Nevada, where sports wagering on intercollegiate events is conducted.

"Clearly, conducting these events in such a venue is inconsistent with the position the NCAA has taken regarding sports wagering," Kirwan said. "But there is no criteria in place at the moment that permits the Association to deny certification of such events."

The Board directed the NCAA staff to review certified-event criteria, including venue policies, and submit a report for the Board's consideration by November 2001. In addition, the Board requested that emergency legislation be developed for its review in November that would specifically prohibit certification of any event that is conducted in a venue where sports wagering on intercollegiate athletics is conducted or where there is signage for the venue.

The Board also received an educational presentation on the package of amateurism proposals that will be before the Division I Management Council at its October meeting and an update on research related to the ongoing review of current initial- and continuing-eligibility requirements.

Acting on a recommendation from the Division I Football Study Oversight Committee, the Board agreed to establish a moratorium on the acceptance of new applications for NCAA Division I-A membership until new membership criteria for that subdivision are adopted. (For proposed criteria see <http://www.ncaa.org/releases/makepage.cgi/divi/2001080301d1.htm>.)

The next meeting of the Board will be November 1, 2001, in Indianapolis.

Medicare AND YOU

Donna R. Morton
Medicare Beneficiary
Outreach Coordinator
AdminaStar Federal

Q What is the Medicare endorsed prescription drug discount card program that President Bush recently announced?

A The program is part of the president's larger Medicare reform efforts. It is an education program designed to help people with Medicare that don't have any prescription drug coverage. Discount cards are expected to save Medicare beneficiaries 10 to 25 percent on prescription drug prices. Under the Medicare endorsed prescription drug discount program, people with Medicare will be able to learn about and join existing prescription drug discount card organizations. With larger memberships, the discount card organizations will be able to secure discounts for beneficiaries, like the large insurance plans do.

Q If I enroll with one of the Medicare endorsed prescription drug cards will Medicare actually help pay for my medicine?

A No. This program is designed to help people with Medicare learn and understand about the discount card programs that are available now, while Congress and the President work to design and implement Medicare coverage for prescription drugs.

Q When is the program scheduled to begin?

A. The fall of 2001. As more information becomes available, I will be sure to include the questions and answers in this column!

HUD resumes sales of discounted homes to officers and teachers

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development announced recently that it is resuming its Officer Next Door and Teacher Next Door home sales program after taking a number of corrective measures to prevent homebuyer fraud.

HUD suspended the programs on April 1 following nine felony convictions and 15 indictments involving police officers who purchased homes. The HUD Inspector General also released a report criticizing the programs' man-

Otter Creek observes Correctional Employees' Week

WHEELWRIGHT — As the population in America's prisons and jails soars to nearly 2 million, so do the challenges of working the corrections industry. Rehabilitating criminal offenders and making a positive contribution to society are all in a day's work for the corrections professionals who work at Otter Creek Correctional Center operated by Corrections Corporation of America.

Each year, the contributions of this group of industry professionals are honored during National Correctional Employees' Week, sponsored by the American Correctional Association. This year's observance will take place beginning today and run through August 16.

"The corrections profession includes a variety of professional capacities, and each one is an essential part of our operating team," said Warden Randall J. Stovall. "However, because corrections industry employees aren't typically high profile, they sometimes don't get the recognition they deserve."

Otter Creek's staff includes area employees who perform a variety of roles, such as facility administration, counselors, academic and vocational education instructors, correctional officers, youth service workers, health care professionals, food service, maintenance and other support staff.

"This week provides us the opportunity to thank our dedicated corrections employees for the high quality service they provide to our industry and the contributions they make to our community," said Stovall. "Their commitment to their respective careers and to our industry lies at the heart of CCA's success."

Otter Creek will honor correctional employees during the weeklong observance with a variety of special events culminating with a facility picnic.

Perkins Job Corps Center hosts UPS open house

PRESTONSBURG — The Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center recently hosted an open house for United Parcel Service (UPS) on its Prestonsburg campus. Representatives from UPS and the center were present to promote the company's "Earn & Learn" program.

The "Earn & Learn" program provides individuals an opportunity to finance higher education through comprehensive education assistance to help pay for college expenses, textbooks, fees, and software. In addition, students receive all the benefits of a part-time job with UPS, while working at the company's facility in Louisville.

Schools participating in the "Earn & Learn" program include: Jefferson Community College, Jefferson Technical College, Metro College and the University of Louisville.

In addition to the Perkins center students who attended, the event attracted over 100 area residents looking for an affordable way to finance their education. During the past year, the Perkins Center and UPS have developed a unique partnership that has enabled many of the centers' students, as well as other area youth, the opportunity to pursue their college dreams by participating in the "Earn & Learn" program.

Census Bureau to update information

A nationwide survey conducted by the Commerce Department's Census Bureau in 1999, found that the country's households spent a median of $581 monthly on housing for mortgage or rent, taxes, utilities, fuels and home insurance; about one in five households spent over $1,000 per month and about the same ratio spent less than $300. Beginning July 23, Census Bureau field representatives will visit 55,000 randomly selected housing units, asking the residents questions about utility and other housing costs to determine how these costs have changed. The questions are part of the biennial American Housing Survey (AHS), the most comprehensive survey of U.S. housing between censuses. The Census Bureau has been conducting the AHS since 1973 for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The survey will be conducted through November.

"The AHS permits decision-makers across the nation to assess the extent to which families are financially burdened by housing costs, including utilities," said Susan B. Hardy, director of the Census Bureau's Charlotte regional office. "They use these data to identify where and for whom programs may be needed most to allevi-

Times writers receive awards

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PRESTONSBURG — Two employees of The Floyd County Times were announced as winners of two awards within CNHI, the corporate parent of The Times and 400 newspapers across the United States.

Mary Music, staff writer for The Times, was awarded the award for best news story for her investigation into the 1994 death of Knott County resident Hubert Draughn. Although the death was ruled a suicide, Music's story uncovering new evidence raised questions about that ruling.

Ralph B. Davis

In awarding Music the award, a contest judge's remarks concluded, "Well-rounded story; several sources quoted; the timeline is easy to follow; well-researched article."

Coincidentally, The Times learned the same day the award was announced that Music's story may prompt police to reopen their investigation into Draughn's death.

Ralph B. Davis, Times editor, also received an award for best opinion piece for his editorial conagement controls. The programs offer police officers and teachers a 50 percent discount on HUD-owned, single family homes in certain designated revitalization areas. The homes become available to HUD after homeowners default or their FHA-insured mortgages. "Both programs are proven winners for the communities. Officers and teachers get homeownership opportunities, young people living nearby get excellent role models, and communities grow stronger and healthier," said HUD Secretary Mel Martinez. "While most of the officers and teachers who purchase houses through these programs play by the rules, there is no doubt we needed to implement more aggressive monitoring and tighten controls in the program."

Martinez highlighted the following corrective actions taken during the three-month suspension:

- HUD staff involved in the OND/TND sales process have completed a "top-to-bottom" review of program procedures; HUD's contracts with closing agents across the country have been modified to require that the Department will hold a secured note on each property sold, helping to ensure that its occupancy requirements by program participants are fully enforceable; HUD will increase the number of periodic site visits to selected properties to ensure that program participants are residing in the properties; HUD's National Servicing Center in Oklahoma City, has been designated the coordinating office for OND/TND sales records, compliance monitoring, administrative actions, and Inspector General referrals. Outside contractors will assist in program compliance monitoring, using computerized checks of public and private databases and establishing a web-based system to screen program applicants; A training video outlining program requirements will be required viewing for all OND/TND purchasers; and, In addition to criminal convictions and indictments of program violators, HUD is taking administrative action, including demanding repayment of discounts, against 54 program participants. Martinez expects that heightened program controls will greatly reduce or eliminate future program abuse, and that ongoing investigations by HUD's Inspector General may result in additional charges being filed against some individuals who purchased homes before the stronger management controls were implemented. "By working together with our Office of Inspector General, we can ensure the integrity of these programs and preserve an important affordable housing tool for families living in vulnerable neighborhoods," Martinez said. "We are extremely gratified that Secretary Martinez has reinstated this important program," said Gilbert G. Gallegos, national president of the Grand Lodge, Fraternal Order of Police. "The Officer Next Door program has a positive impact on public safety, and strengthens the ties between America's law enforcement officers and the communities that they are sworn to protect and serve." "The escalating teacher shortage requires school systems to employ innovative approaches to attract and retain teachers, and this is especially true in low-income neighborhoods," said Sandra Feldman, president, American Federation of Teachers. "The Teacher Next Door program is a creative and practical way to entice teachers to the communities where they are needed most. Schools are cornerstones of the community, and this program will help deepen the bonds between neighborhood schools and communities throughout the country, while strengthening teacher recruitment efforts."

Students

Participating students had the opportunity to observe health professionals at work and to participate in "hands-on" activities. The health camp provided an excellent forum for students to see the kinds of career opportunities that exist in health care today and to become aware of job trends and to match their career interests to a particular occupation. Participating students were: Brandon Blackburn, Holly

Calhoun, Lou Anna Calhoun, and Josh Hall, Prestonsburg High School; Shauna Case, Brittany Flannery, Kizzie Halbert, Sarah Halbert, Leslie Martin, Kortney Osborne, Erica Sexton, and Samantha Stephens, Allen Central High School; and, Brandon Powell, Oakridge High School, Oregon.

The program was coordinated by the Southeast Kentucky Area Health Education Center, with offices located in Hazard.

Since HUD created the officer and teacher programs in 1997 and 2000, respectively, approximately 6,000 police officers and teachers in 41 states and the District of Columbia, have purchased the homes. To be eligible, law enforcement officers and teachers must be employed full-time and agree to make the homes their sole residence for three years following the purchase. In addition, teachers must work in the areas in which the homes are located.

BellSouth wins J.D. Power award

ATLANTA, Ga. — BellSouth customers have ranked the company the highest among large telecommunications providers for local residential telephone service in the 2001 J. D. in one phone call for the customer. Customer Contact of the Future pilot better aligns customer-care professionals with specific services they provide for customers. There are five service gates from which customer service representatives can choose to work. By providing the representatives a choice, they are more engaged in their job and more motivated to provide the highest level of customer satisfaction possible. E-commerce — Customers are able to more conveniently do business with BellSouth, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week through the Internet. The primary focus is to create initiatives that will effectively utilize the Internet as a predominant sales and customer service channel across consumer markets. The continued expansion of the functionality and capabilities of BellSouth.com help to support that goal. "We are encouraged that our customers are recognizing our continued focus on customer service and it is reflected in our improved standing with J. D. Power," said Scarborough. "BellSouth has always been and will continue to be committed to providing its 14.1 million residential customers with a consistently outstanding customer service experience."

The J.D. Power Study is just one of many ways the company continues to measure its success with customers in the country's fastest growing region. BellSouth has clearly been the industry benchmark for customer service as demonstrated by it being nationally recognized as the leader by J.D. Power for Local Telephone Customer Satisfaction for four consecutive years since 1996 and receiving top honors for eight consecutive years in the American Customer Satisfaction Index (ACSI). As an industry leader, BellSouth continues to raise the level of service customers receive with enhancements such as expanded e-commerce capabilities and DSL services. And, BellSouth looks forward to providing the same level of outstanding service to long distance customers in the near future. In addition, the 2001 J.D. Power Study showed that there was an increase in the practice and desire by customers to bundle their local and long distance services with one carrier. Of the households surveyed, 23 percent currently bundle services — up from 17 percent in 2000 — and nearly one-half of households are interested in bundling. The companies ahead of and tied with BellSouth in order were Cincinnati Bell, SNET, McLeod USA and AT & T local service. Collectively, these companies service about 5 million residential customers, compared to BellSouth's 14.1 million.

tions services to governmental agencies, with approximately 61,000 beds in 65 facilities under contract for management in the United States and Puerto Rico. The company's full range of services includes design, construction, ownership, renovation and management of new or existing jails and prisons, as well as long-distance inmate transportation services.

Some of the enhanced customer service initiatives include:

- The Customer Care Institute designs and conducts training and performance improvement programs for many customer-contact groups. The Institute instills in new employees the "spirit of service." Increased recognition of "Service Leaders," or frontline employees who do an outstanding job with customers day-in and day-out - as examples for the company to follow. Improving the training, tools and equipment employees use in serving customers in all areas of the business, including TechAccess and cellular phones for field technicians. Each field technician is equipped with TechAccess and a cellular phone to help them communicate with dispatch and the customers more effectively. A $180 million investment was made in technicians' computers and software. Best Camp, a training program that includes teaming new and experienced service technicians to work on real-life examples of job tasks, including customer relations, which results in more technically equipped technicians. ## Locating your college expense money

by MIKE PENNINGTON,
EASTERN/NORTHERN KENTUCKY
OUTREACH COORDINATOR

■ Mike Pennington

With college and technical school expenses continually on the rise, finding adequate resources to meet these costs is a challenge. There are many things families can do to increase their chances of receiving student aid to help pay higher education expenses. Here are some tips from the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA) to help you get started.

Encourage students to make good grades in high school. By doing so, they can earn money for college or technical training through the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). Students who make a 2.5 or higher grade point average can earn scholarships for higher education. The better students do in high school, the more they will earn to help pay their higher education expenses.

Speak with the financial aid administrator of the school your student is interested in attending. This official can inform you

Work progressing on new MSU center

WEST LIBERTY — Students in the Morgan County area who take classes at Morehead State University at West Liberty are getting closer to having a new place to attend classes.

"The contractors are on schedule and the new facility should be ready for occupancy in January," said Joe Planck, MSU director of physical plant. Pearson/Bender Associates PLC Architect and Biagi, Chance, Cummins, London, Titzer Inc. provided the design and engineering services for the $6,000,000 state-funded project. C B & S Construction Company Inc. of Somerset received the building contract.

"The educational opportunities will increase tremendously with the new facility," said Dr. Jonell Tobin, the center's director. "We are so excited that we will finally have all our classes taught under one roof and have access to the latest in technology."

Currently, classes are held at five sites in West Liberty, according to Dr. Tobin who has been the center's only director. There are more than 50 offerings on the fall schedule.

The new facility will have three distance learning technology classrooms and a well-equipped computer laboratory and two computer classrooms. The two-story building also will house administrative offices, an auditorium and multi-purpose room, equipped with a kitchen on the first floor. On the second floor will be classrooms and the distance learning laboratories.

Ground is broken for $3 million science center at HCC

HAZARD — A groundbreaking ceremony for the new $3 million Science Center, another new construction at Hazard Community College, was held Thursday.

The 24,912 square foot facility will be completed by June 2002.

The facility's second floor will consist of two general classrooms, two biology labs, a chemistry lab, a physics lab, a computer lab, 10 offices, seven storage and preparation rooms and a greenhouse. The first floor will remain unfinished for future development.

"As we look at the much needed buildings, let's not lose sight of why they are here. They're here so we can educate our young people of Eastern Kentucky," noted Bill Engle, chair of the college's board of directors. "We need to be especially diligent in educating our people here," Engle added, saying that he applauds the faculty and staff for the job they are doing to provide the needed education.

Hazard Independent College Foundation Vice Chair Danny Maggard joined others in thanking State Rep. Brandon Smith for his support in acquiring state funding for the project.

"It's important that the sciences are brought to the forefront for our young people," noted Maggard, who as chief engineer for Kentucky River Coal Corporation, said he especially understands the need to emphasize the sciences. "Before today, we've never had opportunity to stress the sciences. Now we can give our students a chance to learn in an environment that we've never been able to provide before in this region."

Representing the faculty at the groundbreaking ceremony was Deronda Mobelini, division chair for the science division. She noted that the architects worked with the science faculty in designing the space, which was important for creating a center that would meet the needs of the college.

"It involved a certain amount of compromise but they were guided by what was best for our students," Mobelini said. "We have much to celebrate today."

Other platform guests were Hazard Mayor William D. Gorman and State Rep. Brandon Smith, who each gave remarks. Other guests included representatives from Kentucky Community and Technical College System, CB and S contractor of Somerset, CMW architect of Lexington, Hazard City Commissioners Dr. Fitz Gilbert and Herman Maggard, Dr. C. Vernon Cooper, HCC Board of Directors representatives Ron Reed and Pam Banks, members of the science faculty and staff, and HCC maintenance and operations.

Students to learn the importance of service

PRESTONSBURG — Prestonsburg Community College is gearing up for the fall semester and reintroducing one of its most successful teaching and learning tools, service learning.

A service learning workshop is being hosted Tuesday at the Hager Hill campus of Mayo Technical College. The workshop will be held in room 100 beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Carol Jeandron, an American Association of Community Colleges consultant, will serve as facilitator for the workshop and will explore the impact service learning can continue to have in the Big Sandy region.

In her opening presentation, Dr. Jeandron will share the importance of service learning and its benefits to students and the community. The workshop will provide guidance for the colleges and community agencies in allowing students to be actively involved in community enhancement while practicing skills and knowledge gleaned from college classes.

The workshop is free and open to the public. A special invitation is extended to previous community partners, as well as those interested in forging a future relationship with the program.

For additional information, call (606) 886-3863, ext. 247.

Card gives MSU new opportunities

MOREHEAD — As Morehead State University students return to the campus this fall, they will have the opportunity to participate in a number of activities and use "smart card" technology with their new EagleCard.

"The new identification card also is a debit card, so you can make purchases without carrying cash in your pocket," said Bill Redwine, director of auxiliary services. It may be used in laundry and dining facilities, snack machines and to check-out books at Camden-Carroll Library.

Additional information on the EagleCard is available by calling the Access Card office at (606) 783-2701.

Students may have their textbooks in hand before the fall term starts. Purchases may be made online using the MSU Bookstore's e-commerce option

"The process has been streamlined to make buying textbooks as easy as completing the registration process via the Internet," Redwine said.

"The textbooks needed for each class are listed online, along with instructions for making purchases," said Jackie Griffey, bookstore manager. "Orders will be processed within 24 hours after payment is received at the MSU Bookstore."

To order online, visit the MSU Bookstore at www.moreheadstate.edu/units/bookstore/, click on CollegeStore.com, login with your name and password, and follow the directions. You will receive an e-mail confirmation once your order is received.

Additional information on making an online purchase is available from the MSU

Bookstore at (606) 783-2081, or toll-free at (888) 786-7305.

Residence halls will open for upperclassmen only at noon, Tuesday, August 14. New students may check into their residence halls beginning at 8 a.m., on Thursday, August 16.

The Office of Student Development will assist new students by introducing them to resources, philosophy and culture of the campus community at an orientation program before classes begin on Monday, August 20.

Students may enjoy a variety of activities to welcome them to the campus, from athletics to events sponsored by the Student Government Association and Student Activities Council. To meet fellow classmates, students may attend a street dance and ice cream social in the area between Lappin Hall and the Combs Building on Sunday, August 19, from 8 to 11 p.m.

Hypnotist Tom Deluca will perform on Wednesday, August 22, at 8 p.m., in Button Auditorium. Other SGA/SAC events scheduled for the fall semester include comedian Buzz Sutherland, September 12; a student talent show with comedian Rene Hicks as master of ceremonies, September 21; and Fridays at the University Cinema is "Free Movie Night" for all MSU students with a valid identification card.

Family Weekend is slated for Friday through Sunday, September 21-23, with various activities, including a golf scramble on Saturday, September 22, at the University's Sunnybrook Golf Course. The day's agenda also offers a tailgate party on the Academic-Athletic Center lawn at 4:30 p.m., prior to the football team taking on the University of Dayton.

The soccer team will kick off its season, Sunday, August 19, with an exhibition game against Cumberland College at Mahaney Recreational Complex. Eagle Volleyball begins its home season Tuesday, September 1, by playing Kentucky State University in Wetherby Gymnasium.

This year's Homecoming will be Friday through Sunday, October 26-28, on the campus. Highlights include the Athletic Hall of Fame banquet on October 26, the Eagle football team taking on Austin Peay State University as well as a parade, reunions and a post-game fish fry on October 27.

The Eagles basketball team begins its season on Thursday, November 8, with an exhibition game against Sports Reach in the AAC. The Lady Eagles play West Virginia University Tech in an exhibition game on Sunday, November 11.

For those students who enjoy participating in sports, MSU's Office of Intramurals is offering a variety of activities. Included are a two-hour horseback riding expedition on Sunday, September 23, and again on October 28; and an overnight riding trip on Friday and Saturday, October 19-20; and a ski trip to Winterplace, West Virginia, in January.

During the 2001-2002 season, Morehead State music majors will present student recitals on various instruments while theatre students will perform in four main stage plays. All recitals and theatre productions are free to the University's students with a valid identification card.

Among the theatre students' shows are "The Matchmaker," Thursday through Saturday, October 11-13; "Awake and Sing," November 13-18; "House of Blue Leaves," February 26-March 3; and "Man of La Mancha," April 4-6.

Also to be offered is the Second Stage Season, a series of student-directed plays, with the proceeds benefiting theatre scholarships. Those productions include "An Evening of One-Act Plays" in September, "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" in December and "Wit" in April.

If you would like to be a part of the fall semester of activities, details on how you may register for classes are available from MSU's Office of Admissions by calling (606) 783-2000, or toll-free at (800) 585-6781.

Work

The University established its presence in West Liberty in 1987 with the MSU-Morgan Center to make educational opportunities accessible to area students in Elliott, Menifee, Morgan, Magoffin, Breathitt and Wolfe counties. From the beginning, it was home for the Adult Learning Center that has grown to become a model program for the state. After serving 5,989 adults, with 638 receiving GED certificates, the name was changed to the Education and Career Center to better reflect its mission of assisting adults in job preparation.

The center was renamed Licking Valley Extended Campus Center in 1990 and other educational classes, both adult and college classes, and governmental services were initiated. MSU also began offering classes leading to a two-year degree in University Studies, focusing on basic skills and liberal arts studies needed for retraining workers, as well as some graduate courses.

The continual growth in student population prompted the University to look for a larger facility to meet the needs of those in the region. Work on the new 36,000-square foot building, approved for funding by the 1998 General Assembly, began in November. The new facility is located just outside West Liberty in the Industrial Park at Index, near the CMS Plant.

The MSU at West Liberty center is governed by a Board of Advisors that includes representatives from the counties it serves, students and legislators. Additional information is available by calling Dr. Tobin at (606) 783-5381, (606) 743-1500 or (800) 648-5371.

Census

ate these situations."

The survey collects data about the size, composition and condition of the housing inventory, financial and demographic characteristics of the people who live in the housing and the livability of their neighborhoods. In addition to housing costs, other subjects about which data are collected include: the unit's square footage, the year the structure was built, plumbing facilities, type of mortgage, source of water, the frequency of equipment failures and residents' overall opinion of their neighborhood.

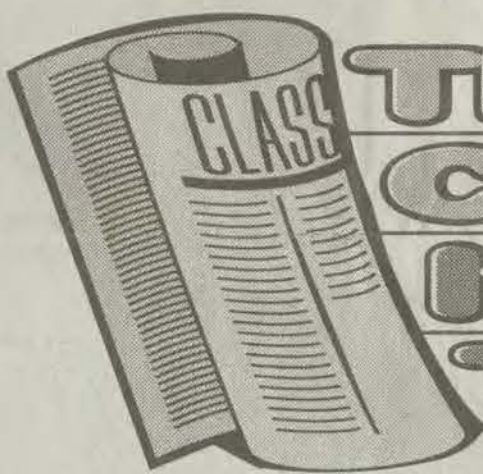

By law, the Census Bureau protects the confidentiality of all identifying information about survey respondents and their housing units. Local households selected in the nationwide sample receive a letter from Census Bureau Acting Director William G. Barron Jr. In the letter, they are told that they will be interviewed by a field representative who carries a photo identification card. Besides visiting occupied housing units, the interviewers obtain data on unoccupied units from landlords, rental agents or neighbors.

Joint HUD-Census Bureau reports on the survey's findings for the United States and regions are issued about 10 months after the interviews are completed.

Data in the reports answer such questions as:

- Why people move?
- How much time does it take people to travel to work and what means of transportation do they use?
- How well is rent control working?
- How many people find it difficult to afford to buy a home?
- What kinds of problems and situations do people have in their homes and neighborhoods that affect their living environment?
- What type of fuel do people use to heat their homes?

ART of Nibbling

Nacho Melba Snackers,
Shrimp & Radish Melba Spread,
Greek Melba Appetizers,
Goat Cheese & Tomato Melba Snacks

Today's casual entertaining calls for a bit of imagination and a lot of convenience. Whether it's an impromptu get-together or a meeting of the book club—appetizers, small bites and tasty morsels can be the simple, yet artful answer. At informal gatherings when host and guests all bring a contribution of food, the resulting buffet of flavors creates an interesting palette of tastes, colors and textures.

But busy lifestyles call for quick action and easy prep. The answer comes in make-ahead spreads, dips and toppings served on hearty Melba toast. The satisfying crunch of Melba will appease any die-hard nibbler, and at 60 calories or less per serving, Melba weighs in a lot lighter than high fat chips. Try Nacho Melba Snackers for a new take on a favorite. Slather a sesame Melba with a refreshing shrimp and chopped radish spread. For filling appetizers, mix cheeses with veggies in the Goat Cheese & Tomato Melba Snacks or hearty feta and cucumber for a topper inspired by the flavors of Greece. In fact, Melba complements just about any pairing you can spread, layer or bake on it.

To polish off the menu a little something sweet is welcome. Flavorful morsels found in gourmet jelly beans are the ultimate choice for nibbling. They come in a mind-boggling range of grown-up flavors like cappuccino, kiwi and juicy pear, to name a few. An intriguing new flavor from the makers of Jelly Belly jelly beans is sweet ginger made with fresh ginger juice. They suggest tossing some in an Asian-inspired snack mix for a super quick idea to take to the party. Since each bean has 4 calories and no fat, this is one sweet on the light side.

Once all the food is ready, don't forget the final presentation. A few artistic touches will make an appealing table. Edge a platter of appetizers with fresh basil and mint for the aroma and color. Accent the buffet with a pyramid made with lovely yellow lemons and fresh leaves tucked among the fruit. Simple, beautiful and delicious nibbling is an art everyone can enjoy.

GOAT CHEESE & TOMATO MELBA SNACKS

- 1/4 cup (1 oz.) crumbled goat cheese (chèvre)
- 1 small plum tomato, diced (about 1/4 cup)
- 1 Tbsp. finely chopped red onion
- 1 dash freshly ground black pepper
- 1 dash dried oregano
- 1 box Old London Melba Snacks or Toast

In small bowl, combine goat cheese, tomato, red onion, pepper and oregano. Cover and chill for 1 hour to blend flavors.

Spoon onto Melba Snacks or Toast. Makes about 1/2 cup topping or 10 snacks.

GREEK MELBA APPETIZERS

- 1 package (8 oz.) regular or light cream cheese, softened
- 1 cup (4 oz.) crumbled feta cheese
- 2 Tbsp. plain yogurt, regular or lowfat
- 2 Tbsp. milk, regular or lowfat
- 1/2 tsp. dried mint, crushed
- 1 small clove of garlic, minced
- 1 tomato, seeded and chopped
- 1 small cucumber, peeled, seeded and diced
- 1 green onion, sliced
- 1-2 boxes Old London Melba Snacks or Toast

In medium bowl, stir cream cheese, feta, yogurt, milk, mint and garlic until well blended. Stir in tomato, cucumber and onion. Cover and chill for 1 hour to blend flavors.

Serve on Melba Snacks or Toast. Makes about 3 cups topping or approximately 60 snacks.

SHRIMP & RADISH MELBA SPREAD

- 1/4 lb. cooked shrimp, shelled, deveined and finely chopped (about 2/3 cup)
- 1/3 cup finely chopped radishes (about 4)
- 2 Tbsp. finely chopped red onion
- 3 Tbsp. mayonnaise, regular or lowfat
- 1 Tbsp. lime juice
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1 box Old London Melba Snacks or Toast

In small bowl, combine shrimp, radishes, red onion, mayonnaise, lime juice and salt. Cover and chill for 1 hour to blend flavors.

Spread onto Melba Snacks or Toast. Makes about 3/4 cup spread or 12 snacks.

NACHO MELBA SNACKERS

- 1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese, regular or lowfat
- 1 small pickled jalapeño pepper, chopped (about 2 tsp.)
- 1 medium tomato, chopped (about 1/2 cup)
- 1 box Old London Melba Snacks or Toast

In small bowl, combine first three ingredients. Spoon 1 Tbsp. onto each Melba Snack or Toast. Microwave on High (100%) for 45 seconds or until heated through.

Makes about 1 cup topping or 14 snacks.

To heat in oven: Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Place prepared snackers on cookie sheet. Bake 5 minutes or until heated through.

Easy-Does-It Entertainment

Whip up spreads ahead of time to ease the last minute rush. Keep chilled spreads refrigerated until serving time to avoid contamination and assemble just before serving. Be sure to keep extra melba and jelly beans around for those unexpected guests!

If it's an icebreaker that's needed, or just a bit of tasty fun, gourmet jelly beans are a crowd-pleasing choice. A "tasting" of gourmet jelly beans is simply an arrangement of single flavors of jelly beans in custard cups or ramekins—a surefire conversation spark to keep the good times going. Use small garden stakes lettered with the name of each flavor and invite the guests to sample them. The flavors can also be combined into complementary combinations or "recipes." Here are a few recommendations from the makers of Jelly Belly jelly beans:

- (1) Juicy Pear + (1) Raspberry = Poached Pear in Raspberry Sauce
- (1) Sweet Ginger + (2) Cream Soda = Ginger Ale
- (1) Strawberry Jam + (1) French Vanilla = Strawberry Shortcake
- (2) Lemon Lime + (1) Toasted Marshmallow = Key Lime Pie
- (1) Champagne Punch + (1) Orange Juice = Mimosa

Craig Kilborn (pictured) says he counts Bill Murray and Ben Affleck among his favorite guests. "People have a great time on the show because I listen," he says. "I feel kind of fortunate that I have what I consider the greatest job."

Meet CBS' self-proclaimed arbiter of taste — and cheese

by JACQUELINE CUTLER
TV DATA FEATURES SYNDICATE

The host of CBS' The Late Late Show with Craig Kilborn is thrilled to experience a typical day for a new homeowner. He is awaiting delivery of rugs.

"I looked for 2 1/2 years to find my dream house," Kilborn says.

"It's a 1920s Spanish-style, and two gentlemen restored it, and they went crazy." Like many owners of older homes, he's curious about who once lived there. This being Los Angeles, his house was formerly owned by 1930s film actress Margaret Sullivan and actor Dennis Hopper.

Kilborn, who turns 39 on Aug. 24, wanders about on a cordless phone, describing a sunken living room, a three-level garden and a Jacuzzi. "I don't deserve this," he says.

During two conversations, Kilborn often refers to his family and his Midwestern roots, stressing how normal he is.

"I'm the youngest of three kids," Kilborn says. "I have an older brother and an older sister. I grew up in the Midwest, and my parents are still married after 44 years. The entertainment industry is a lot of neurotic, dysfunctional people. I am an outsider there. I am fairly normal."

Kilborn's background does indeed sound delightfully sane.

"A lot of my childhood was basketball," says the 6-foot-5 Kilborn.

"And that was a good thing because it just occupies you. A whole other part was comedy. I remember the first joke I wrote when we moved from New Jersey to Minnesota. I was 6 years old, and my dad was complaining to my mom about all the Jell-O that we were packing. And mom said, 'Well, it was on sale.' And I said, 'Yeah, just like the cat food, and we don't even have a cat.' My mom thought I was charming, and my dad thought I was obnoxious."

His father leveled with him early about a career in the NBA. "He let me know that my chances are minimal," Kilborn says. "And my mom said, 'You are so verbal. Maybe you should do something with your mouth.'"

He wound up graduating from Montana State University, Bozeman, with a degree in film and television. In college, Kilborn was on the basketball team but spent a fair amount of time on the bench. "I was an adept shooter, but defense was not something that got me excited," he says. "And I was very creative. I thought more about style at the time. Like, 'Give me the ball and get out of my way.' My give and go is 'Give me the ball and go to hell.'"

Kilborn spent a summer break working the mid-night-to-6 a.m. shift at a radio station. He learned to stay alert on-air after dozing off during one of Barry White's longer ballads. As luck would have it, the bosses were listening.

After jobs at a lumberyard and a now-defunct Santa Monica, Calif., restaurant, Kilborn put his basketball knowledge to work as an announcer for a short-lived league in Savannah, Ga. When he landed a late-night job on ESPN's SportsCenter, he says his father's reaction was "Great, now you will become a national embarrassment to the family."

Kilborn caught the eye of CBS executives while hosting Comedy Central's The Daily Show and slid into the late-late slot two years ago. Since then, he's closed the ratings gap with that other tall, thin, red-headed late-night host, Conan O'Brien.

Kilborn works in front of an 88-member audience, without a sidekick or band. The set is beautifully appointed, and he seems born to the spot. His trademark shtick is asking five questions of guests, and the first is geographical.

Kilborn laughs when confronted with five questions. He aces the first two — name the states bordering Minnesota (Wisconsin, Iowa, and South and North Dakota) and the state's nickname — Land of 10,000 Lakes. He handily reels off three of Madonna's phases: "boy toy, diva and now my favorite, mommy." And an avowed cheese lover, he knows the blue in bleu cheese is mold. He is stumped only when asked to name the three singing Chipmunks (Alvin, Simon and Theodore).

Kilborn is a bit harried. In addition to meeting with the decorator, he was trying to finish guest editing the September issue of Gear magazine, a glossy for young men. Kilborn assigned an article about cheese and told the sex columnist to avoid graphic content. "I want hand holding and neck kissing, very innocent and romantic," he says. "I'm from the Midwest, and I think our society is too detail-oriented."

Kilborn also pursues his mission to bring good taste to the masses through his show, which he says he could host "forever." "I don't know. It's fun. I want to do this job until I can get America back to where it should be," he says. "I am trying to heal this country. It's about helping and entertaining and improving the taste. There's a lack of good taste in America."

The host of CBS' The Late Late Show With Craig Kilborn, which airs in the one-hour slot following his hero, David Letterman, says his goal is "to bring good taste back to America — music, cheese, conversation."

1 p.m. NBC

Auto Racing

The NASCAR drivers hit the road, literally, on the 2.5-mile road course in Watkins Glen, N.Y., for the Global Crossing at the Glen. Steve Park, a native of East Northport, N.Y., felt right at home last year by outdueling Mark Martin for his first Winston Cup win. It would be no surprise if Martin again puts himself in contention today, since he built a reputation as a road course expert with three straight wins here in the mid-'90s. Jeff Gordon also won this 90-lap race three consecutive years, the last being 1999.

7 p.m. ABC

Movie: Free Willy 3: The Rescue

Willy the killer whale brings his family to meet his human pal Jesse (Jason James Richter), now a strapping teenager working aboard a search ship. Jesse is thrilled to see Willy, but unfortunately, so is Capt. Wesley (Patrick Kilpatrick), skipper of a whaling ship that happens to be in the same neck of the woods — er, water. As Jesse and his colleagues Randolph and Drew (August Schellenberg, Annie Corley) try to keep Willy and company one step ahead of the whalers, they find an unlikely ally — and new token cute kid for the Free Willy franchise — in Wesley's 10-year-old son (Vincent Berry). Tasha Simms and Ian Tracey also star in this 1997 adventure.

8 p.m. NBC

Movie: Dying to Dance

Kimberly McCullough (General Hospital) stars in this disease-of-the-week drama as a young ballerina stricken by a scourge of the dance world: the obsession with being thin. Her character's efforts to slim down to the so-called ideal weight escalate into full-blown anorexia nervosa. Mary-Margaret Humes (Dawson's Creek), Natalia Nogulich (Days of Our Lives) and fellow GH alum Rick Springfield also star.

8 p.m. SHOWTIME

Movie: Snow in August

An 11-year-old Catholic boy (Peter Tambakis) befriends a rabbi (Stephen Rea) in 1947 Brook-lyn, where anti-Semitism hangs heavy in the air. After local thugs attack them and the boy's mother (Lolita Davidovich), the youngster finds a way to put them in their place, invoking the folk tale of the golem — a mythical giant who arises from the soil to protect the Jewish people. Adam MacDonald also stars in this touching adaptation of a novel by Pete Hamill.

8 p.m. TBS

Movie: The Triangle

Several friends on a fishing trip in the Caribbean find themselves a little too close for comfort to the fabled Bermuda Triangle. Those disinclined to believe in a place where ships and planes vanish without a trace quickly change their minds after encountering an ocean liner missing since the 1930s. Soon the triangle is having its way with them, turning them against one another in the face of fear. Luke Perry, Olivia d'Abo, Dan Cortese and Dorian Harewood star in this new thriller directed by Lewis Teague (Cujo).

9 p.m. BRAVO

Popular Song: Soundtrack of the Century

This ambitious eight-part series of specials traces Americans' changing tastes in music from the days of Irving Berlin to the present. It starts by noting the influence of Jewish composers, such as Berlin and George Gershwin, on the popular tunes of their day before moving on to the years when jazz was king, and Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra and Billie Holiday were its subjects. The three-hour opening block concludes with an hour tracing the roots of rock 'n' roll. Subsequent installments air Monday thru Friday and family business. Her husband's close encounter with death gives the whole family a jolt of perspective. Jeffrey Nordling, Kim Hunter, Richard Kiley and Hallie Kate Eisenberg also star in this 1999 drama based on a novel by Luanne Rice.

9 p.m. FOX

The X-Files

In "Empedocles," as Reyes (Annabeth Gish) investigates a workplace shooting perpetrated by a just-fired employee (guest star Jay Underwood), she sees one of the victims' bodies turn to ashes right before her eyes. She has seen that before — with the body of Doggett's (Robert Patrick) slain son — and suspects the shooter had something to do with that long-unsolved case. She asks Mulder (David Duchovny) to help her investigate, incurring Doggett's wrath. Scully (Gillian Anderson) would help, but her pregnancy has hit another complication and she is in the hospital. Wendy Gazelle (The Net) also guest stars.

MONDAY AUGUST 13, 2001

7 p.m. LIFETIME

Intimate Portrait

Tammy Faye profiles the former first lady of the PTL Club, whose perky on-screen demeanor and fondness for lots of cosmetics made her a camp icon outside the evangelical Christian community. Since the well-publicized breakup of her marriage to televangelist Jim Bakker, she continues spreading her faith through preaching and singing, but has also had some fun with her icon status — guest starring as the mother of the cosmetically challenged Mimi (Kathy Kinney) on The Drew Carey Show, for example. In this hour, the woman now known as Tammy Faye Messner talks about life with Jim before, during and after the sex and money scandals that brought PTL down. She also discusses her battle with colon cancer and her thoughts on the recent documentary The Eyes of Tammy Faye.

8 p.m. CBS

Everybody Loves Raymond

Debra and Marie (Patricia Heaton, Doris Roberts) clash over a missing canister, which Debra borrowed from her mother-in-law and subsequently returned — or so she thinks. Marie insists the container, which has sentimental value, was never given back. After the two women argue the point, Debra discovers that Marie was right after all; she does still have the canister. But she's not about to give Marie the satisfaction of having been right all along, so she drafts Raymond (Ray Romano, Brad Garrett) to help her cover her tracks. Peter Boyle also stars in "The Canister," the opener of a four-episode Raymond miniseries.

8:30 p.m. UPN

The Hughleys

Conservative radio talk show host Larry Elder guest stars as himself in "Road Rage." He's in traffic school with Daryl (D.L. Hughley), who claims Larry's the reason he got the ticket that sent him there. He is not without friends in the class, though; Milsap (John Henton) is there, brown-nosing the teacher, and so is Dave (Eric Allan Kramer), who finds a kindred spirit in another student. Elise Neal also stars.

9 p.m. ABC

Movie: The Newton Boys

It's 1919, and ex-convict Willis Newton (Matthew McConaughey) is fired from his first post-prison job and goes back to crime, eventually bringing his three brothers (Skeet Ulrich, Ethan Hawke, Vincent D'Onofrio) into the fold. The Newtons become one of the most successful bank-robbing gangs ever, although never reaching the folk-hero status of Bonnie and Clyde, Pretty Boy Floyd and other glamorous criminals of the 1920s and '30s. Surprisingly light on action for a movie about bank robbers, this 1998 drama also stars Dwight Yoakam, Julianna Margulies and Chloe Webb. Stay tuned in through the final credits, which include interviews with two of the real Newton brothers.

9 p.m. DISCOVERY

10 Deadliest Sharks

Admit it, you don't watch Discovery's Shark Week to see the plankton munchers. If you're like most of us, you're more fascinated by the big, the bad and the carnivorous. This two-hour special sorts out the 10 most dangerous species of shark, from the great white of film fame to the turbocharged mako, whose cruising speed is more than 30 mph. Also spotlighted are the oceanic white-tip, which can smell a wreck from miles away; the tiger shark, which may be the ocean's nonpickiest eater; and the king of the uglies, the hammerhead. The special includes interviews with George Burgess, director of the International Shark Attack File, and shark researcher

Lake, screenwriter Stanley Caldwell (Judd Nelson) found inspiration for his serial-killer movie by practicing what he wrote about. In this sequel, Stan's been dead for a couple of years — or so everyone thought. He's back and stepping into the shoes of one of the guys directing the filming of his grisly screenplay. And he's giving new meaning to the term "director's cut," if you get our drift.

9 p.m. WB

Dead Last

It's hard enough trying to launch a career in music without having to see dead people. That's the plight of the three members of The Problem (Kett Turton, Sara Downing, Tyler Labine), a band that's on the verge of stardom when a magical amulet comes its way. It gives the three the power to see ghosts walking the Earth and the assignment to help their troubled souls crossover to Untroubled Soul Land. Wayne Pire also stars in this supernatural new series.

9:30 p.m. ABC

Spin City

"Minor League" will inspire a chuckle from those who remember star Charlie Sheen's turn as a pitcher for the Cleveland Indians in the movie Major League. Here, his character, Charlie Crawford, seeks to recapture a piece of the athletic glory he enjoyed in high school by going out for a minor-league baseball team. When the mayor (Barry Bostwick) gets a body guard in the wake of a death threat, Paul (Richard Kind) decides he needs one, too, because he spends so much time in proximity to his honor. Heather Locklear also stars.

10 p.m. ABC

NYPD Blue

Lt. Fancy (James McDaniel) is moving on up. He's being promoted to captain and leaving the 15th Precinct behind. But the biggest surprise isn't Fancy's announcement, it is Sipowicz's (Dennis Franz) odd reaction to it. Out in the field, Russell and McDowell (Kim Delaney, Charlotte Ross) try to locate a severed body part — not for evidence, but for reattachment. Rick Schroder also stars in "Thumb Enchanted Evening."

10 p.m. CBS

Judging Amy

Jared (Richard Crenna) has what he thinks is good news for Maxine (Tyne Daly): His son, Charles, is considering a move to Hartford, Conn. But Maxine, given her issues with Charles, is not so thrilled. In fact, she's seriously considering breaking off with Jared because of it. Speaking of issues, Amy (Amy Brenneman) hears the case of an ill man whose daughter is trying to punish him for her bad childhood by denying him access to his granddaughter. Dan Futterman also stars in "The Unforgiven."

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 15, 2001

8 p.m. DISCOVERY

Elvis Presley's Graceland

Elvis Presley died 24 years ago this week, and there's certain to be a crowd at Graceland observing the anniversary. For those who can't be there in person, this special provides an armchair tour of the famed Memphis, Tenn., estate where the King of Rock 'n' Roll reigned. The hour includes interviews with several visitors and with the employees who keep the place standing as a memorial not only to Elvis but to 1970s style in all its over-the-top glory.

Great Performances

Recording The Producers: A Musical Romp With Mel Brooks is no ordinary behind-the-scenes special. It's a high-energy event that comes by the word "romp" honestly. Brooks explains what went into turning his film comedy The Producers into a Broadway musical and the musical into a recording, not just by narrating but by singing, joking and otherwise upstaging the stars. Matthew Broderick and Nathan Lane. Susan Stroman also appears.

9 p.m. ABC

The Drew Carey Show

In "Christening," Mimi and Steve (Kathy Kinney, John Carroll Lynch)

appoint Drew (Drew Carey) the godfather of little Gus, but they can't agree on whether he should be the baby's guardian if something happens to them. Steve says yes, but Mimi wants Gus' wealthy god-mother, her cousin Vanessa (guest star Kathie Lee Gifford), to do the honors. And Drew loses major points in the competition when Lewis and Oswald (Ryan Stiles, Diedrich Bader) borrow Gus to get a family discount just hours before his christening. Marion Ross, Stanley Anderson and John Ingle also guest star.

9 p.m. CBS

Movie: Little Girl Fly Away

A mentally unbalanced housewife (Mare Winningham) receives threatening phone calls and letters from a shadowy figure who appears to want to kill her. The truth, however, is far more bizarre; the alleged stalker is close to her — very close. Bruce Davison, Clayton Rohner and CCH Pounder also star in this fact-based thriller from 1998.

9:30 p.m. ABC

The Job

Elizabeth Hurley guest stars as herself in "Elizabeth." The actress reports being harassed and, of course, everyone at the precinct — everyone male, at least — wants to take the case. McNeil (Denis Leary) is the lucky one, and he gets even luckier when Hurley takes a shine to him on a personal level. But that luck's about to run out; a paparazzo has caught them together, and now McNeil has some explaining to do — assuming his wife and girlfriend will let him. Donald Trump makes a cameo appearance.

 City Confidential

"Athens, Georgia" revisits a business rivalry that turned deadly in the summer of 1977. T.K. Hartly owned a successful bar — and held the lease on several others — in Athens' Station district, an area popular with the college crowd. Pizzeria owner John Mooney drew Hartly's wrath for daring to lower his beer prices, and Hartly had him evicted — on the day of his father's death, no less. A few weeks later, Hartly was found shot dead in his office, and guess where the fingers pointed. Paul Winfield narrates.

11 p.m. HBO
 Hard Knocks: Training Camp With the Baltimore Ravens

If putting together an NFL team were like preparing fine cuisine, that would make Baltimore Ravens coach Brian Billick pro football's version of chef Emeril Lagasse. The series' third installment follows the Ravens in preseason as they prepare to defend their title in the 2001 campaign. Rookies work for a spot on the squad, while veterans battle to keep their titles as starters.

1 p.m. TNT
 Golf

In the last golf major of the year, the sport's top players head to the lush greens of Atlanta Athletic Club in Atlanta for the PGA Championship. Tiger Woods, who won last year, hopes to cap his up-and-down 2001 season with his third straight PGA Championship. Of course, he'll have to fend off both David Duval, who's hot off his win at the British Open last month, and sentimental south-paw favorite Phil Mickelson.

6:30 p.m. CINEMAX
 Movie: Ghostbusters

This spirited comedy was the summer block-buster of 1984, and the years haven't diluted its dry wit. Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd, Harold Ramis and Ernie Hudson star as ghost exterminators who are quickly promoted from capturing the occasional poltergeist to saving the world when a powerful demon tries to take Manhattan. Sigourney Weaver plays the pretty musician who catches the eye of Murray's character, and whose building is ground zero for the demonic invasion. Rick Moranis, William Atherton and an enormous man made of marshmallow also star.

 Biography

Mary Tyler Moore: All American Girl profiles the actress who turned the world on with her smile in the 1970s. She also turned a lot of people on to feminism with her self-titled sitcom about a 30-something woman who enjoyed a full and happy life without a steady guy. Before that, of course, Moore charmed TV viewers with her portrayal of a more traditional character: Laura Petrie in The Dick Van Dyke Show. Following the profile of Moore, stay tuned for a two-hour Biography of her co-star in that hit '60s sitcom.

8 p.m. FOX
 Guinness World Records: Primetime

Records from head to toe are the order of the hour. You'll meet a man who makes sandwiches with his feet — as utensils, not ingredients — and see the heaviest load ever balanced on a human head. Also in the spotlight are two people doing what's normally a one-person task: blowing up a balloon. And in the weird world of sports, there's a segment on the longest power-assisted BMX bicycle jump. Mark Thompson hosts.

8 p.m. WB
 Gilmore Girls

In "Paris Is Burning," Lorelai (Lauren Graham) decides she'd better break up with Max (Scott Cohen) before Rory (Alexis Bledel), who's started to bond with him outside the classroom, gets hurt. Unfortunately, she picks Parents'

Night at school to do it. Max heads her off at the pass with a kiss, and Paris (Liza Weil) catches them. Now the fact that Rory's mom is hot for teacher is all over Chilton, and we don't have to tell you what that's doing to Rory's reputation. Kelly Bishop also stars.

9:30 p.m. NBC
 Just Shoot Me

His dad almost married Nina (Wendie Malick), but what Finch (David Spade) would like even better is to see his mom (guest star Joyce Bulifant) hook up with Jack (George Segal). Then he'd not just be an employee; he'd be family. When Ma Finch pays a visit, he tries to bring the two together, but it isn't happening. They have a past. In fact, she had something to do with the breakup of Jack's most recent romance. Elliott (Enrico Colantoni) tries to help one of his heroes (guest star Kenneth Mars), a former photographer who's fallen on hard times. Laura San Giacomo also stars in "Fanny Finch."

We may not share the same politics, but the United States and Cuba do share the same national pastime. This hour looks at the two nations' mutual love of baseball as both a unifying factor and a microcosm of their stormy

It focuses on two headline-grabbing events from the 1990s: the defection of pitcher Orlando Hernandez, now with the New York Yankees, and the Baltimore Orioles' groundbreaking visit to Havana to play the Cuban team (the O's won). The program includes newsreel footage never before seen outside Cuba.

Smile Awhile...

BON VOYAGE

by SARA HOPSON BLAIR

Our evening in Rome was one of the most memorable events of the entire trip. Earlier in the day, Rome had beaten Paloma for the Italian National Soccer Championship Title and the city was in a state of frenzy. Mopeds, driven by ecstatic, yelling fans, whizzed past our tour bus while the passengers in compact cars raised their flags and honked their horns in triumph.

Fortunately, the excitement was not lost on Dan, Cinder, and Devon. Since Dan is a soccer coach, Devon a player, and Cinder a soccer mom in charge of everything, they felt a kinship to the celebration being played out in the streets of Rome. And I have to admit, it was thrilling to be in the middle of the elated crowd.

When we finally arrived at the Hotel de Hades (as we came to call it), we all headed to our rooms for a quick change of clothes before dinner. At the end of the hallway, Devon and I turned right while Dan and Cinder made a left. Minutes later there was a knock at our door.

"Let us in," Cinder said loudly.

"What's wrong?" I asked as I opened the door.

"There's a man in our room!" Cinder yelled.

"I guess it's going to be a bit crowded in your room tonight," I laughed.

Obviously, Dan found no humor in my statement because he immediately picked up the phone and called the front desk to tell them about their mistake. Minutes later he and Cinder were on their way down another hallway to a room at the opposite end of the hotel.

"We'll meet you at the elevator at 6:30," Dan said as he shut the door behind him. "You all better hurry and get ready."

"OK, Devon," I said as I jumped on the bed. "Let's turn on the television and see if we can find an English speaking station. Where's the changer?"

After about a hundred attempts to turn on the TV, I asked Devon to turn on the light and check to see if the changer was working, but the lamp wasn't working either. On closer inspection we discovered that none of the lights worked.

"How do you say lightbulb in Italian?" Devon laughed.

A few minutes later we called Dan and Cinder's room and told them that we were in the dark.

"What's new, Sara," Dan chuckled. "Just slide your room key in the slot inside the door and the lights will automatically come on..."

Twenty minutes later, Devon and I were sitting on couches in front of the elevators. As we sat talking with people from the tour, we kept hearing loud voices down the hallway. Thinking that there was a domestic argument in progress, we all tried to ignore the yelling and banging that we kept hearing and continued on with our conversation. About ten minutes later, Dan and Cinder came walking briskly down the hall; Cinder had beads of perspiration on her forehead and Dan was visibly upset.

"Would either one of you have come looking for us?" Dan asked as he eyed Devon and me.

"I did sort of think that sounded like you, Mom, when you broke your back," Devon remarked.

"Well," I quickly interjected. "We heard a couple arguing down the hallway, and we didn't want to get in the middle of anything."

"That couple was us!" Cinder exclaimed. "We were locked in our room! The door-knob fell off in my hand! I didn't think anyone was going to help us."

All of us (with the exception of Dan and Cinder) finally quit laughing when we got to the restaurant where we anxiously anticipated a five course meal while being serenaded by opera singers. However, the meal could not begin until the last tour group arrived, but we all agreed that they must have chosen to swing by Portugal on their way over from the hotel.

When they finally arrived an hour and a half later, most of the other tourists had finished the bottles of table wine, and it was starting to take affect. And as our food was served, the music began.

"What is that?" Devon sneered as she covered her ears.

"Oh, that's Carmen!" Cinder swooned.

When I looked up from my plate, all I saw was a woman with breasts the size of Sicily sweeping seductively past all the men in the crowd.

"How'd you know her name?" I asked.

Cinder glared at me before she said, "Carmen is the name of the Opera, Sara. I just want Devon to experience some Italian culture while she's here. Would you just cooperate with me?"

"Of course I will, Cinder," I answered. "Devon, when she gets through singing, I'll ask her to sing a few bars of that old Italian classic 'La Viva Loca.'"

After dinner the guides wanted to forgo the tour of Trevi Fountain because they were afraid that the crowds from the soccer games would be too unruly, and they didn't want to be responsible for any mishaps. Undaunted by pressure, Cinder stood firm in her quest to visit Rome's most famous landmark.

"We'll watch out for everyone, won't you, Dan?" Cinder pleaded. "We have to go to Trevi Fountain. We're in Rome, and I've got lira I haven't spent yet. I should have the opportunity to throw it in the fountain!"

The crowd applauded as the tour guide succumbed to the vicious horde's wishes and told us to meet her back at the gelato stand in 20 minutes flat. (For me, that was no problem because I never left the gelato stand.)

As Dan stood guard over the masses, Devon and Cinder threw coins into the fountain and wished for a return trip to Rome. And from the pained expression on Dan's face, we all guessed that he wished he could just click his heels and be back in Paintsville.

Stay tuned next week when Devon says, "The rain in Spain stays mainly in Barcelona."

Horoscopes...

ARIES

(March 21 to April 19)

You don't like to be kept waiting. After all, yours is the first sign of the Zodiac. But trust me: Don't push for answers quite yet. A little patience now pays off handsomely later on.

TAURUS

(April 20 to May 20)

The Bull was an ancient Greek symbol for the sea. So, if you've been thinking about taking a cruise, now you know why. Seriously, now's the time to do it. Bon voyage.

GEMINI

(May 21 to June 20)

You might have mixed emotions about confronting someone you care for with those pointed questions. But, ultimately, you know you'll do what's necessary. Good luck.

CANCER

(June 21 to July 22)

Your efforts to roll with those emotional punches have begun to pay off, as friends rally around. Be careful not to allow yourself to be diverted until everything is neatly tied up.

LEO

(July 23 to August 22)

While you luxuriate in being lauded for all the wonderful things you are, be careful that all that praise doesn't cloud your judgment. That upcoming decision needs more facts before you act.

VIRGO

Explanations might not come easily to you. You tend to think that you're incapable of causing any misunderstandings. But it can happen. Act quickly to heal feelings all around.

LIBRA

(September 23 to October 22)

Family celebrations might take up more time than you expected. But enjoy them. You'll come away spiritually refreshed and ready to take on new challenges.

SCORPIO

Congratulations. Like the true Scorpio you are, you're back in control of the important situations in your life. Now's a good time to make that long-delayed move.

SAGITTARIUS

(November 22 to December 21)

Your love of adventure should help you as you set off on a journey of self-discovery that will lead to exciting, new and challenging opportunities.

Critter Corner...

by DR. CAROL COMBS-MORRIS, DVM

Though I have often written about the overpopulation problem as a major cause of unwanted animals, another cause is pet/owner mismatches. Many cases stem from an owner acquiring the animal because of its looks or the popularity of its breed, without consideration for how the animal was genetically programmed to behave.

Mismatches occur more often with dogs than with cats, for several reasons. For one, cat owners generally expect cats to have independent, and often quirky, personalities; these seem to be species-wide traits. Secondly, people have fewer expectations for a pet cat to perform a certain job - usually companionship and occasional mouse-catching duties are all that are expected. Finally, there is less variation among cat breeds than dog breeds. There are two major divisions in cats - the slim, wiry "Oriental" breeds like Siamese and Burmese, and the heavy-boned "Cobby" types, such as Manx and Persians. In general, Orientals tend to be active and vocal, and the Cobbies are more laid-back. Most domestic mix-breed cats fall somewhere in the spectrum between these two extremes, so predicting behavior is not always easy.

Dog breeds, however, offer more predictability. Most breeds of dogs were developed with a specific purpose in mind, and their behavior reflects this genetic selection. It is always important, when selecting a dog, to do a little research on his breed. In the case of mixed-breeds, getting a good educated guess from an experienced "dog person" about the breeds involved can help you prepare for the type of personality the dog is likely to have.

The American Kennel Club divides dogs into seven groups, depending on the purpose for which they were developed. Even if you are considering a breed not recognized by the AKC, you should be able to fit it into one of the seven categories, and this will help you understand the genetically programmed behavior of that breed. The seven groups are:

The Sporting Group. These dogs were primarily developed to hunt birds, both waterfowl and upland game birds. The group includes the retrievers, setters, spaniels and pointers. Dogs who fit in this group tend to be fascinated by anything that moves, from birds to tennis balls, and can spend hours pottering around in the hills, distracted by every blowing leaf. They are not necessarily concentrating on remembering the way back home or listening for their owner to call. Retrievers especially, are very mouth-oriented because they have been bred for this very trait. People call to ask me when their Labrador puppy is going to stop carrying off everything left lying on the back porch! You can't teach a retriever NOT to put things in his mouth, because every instinct he has tells him to do it. It's a matter of letting him know WHICH things are acceptable to carry around.

The Hound Group. Also hunting dogs, this group focuses on furry critters rather than birds. There are two broad divisions within this group, the Scenthounds and the Sighthounds, named for their method of hunting. We are more familiar with the Scenthounds, which include Beagles, Coonhounds, Bassets and Dachshunds. These are independent dogs, bred to make their own decisions and ignore distractions. This can make them a little difficult to train in a household setting, since they don't always agree with their owner's ideas. If they are to live with cats or other small pets, they should be introduced to them early, and some will always regard these other species as prey animals. The same principles apply to the other half of this group, the Sighthounds. This includes the Greyhound, Afghan Hound, and Whippet. In addition, the fact that these dogs can move extremely fast and don't depend on their noses as much means that they can become lost very easily and may not be able to find their way home. A fenced yard is a requirement for these dogs.

The Terrier Group. This group contains most of the remaining hunting breeds. The word "Terrier" comes from the Latin terra, meaning "earth". These dogs were bred to "go to ground" in search of burrowing animals, such as rats, foxes and other vermin. These dogs needed to be small enough to fit in a burrow, determined enough to dig down to their prey, and brave enough to confront it face-to-face in a dark confined space. This has resulted in tough, independent (read "stubborn"), tenacious dogs that can sometimes be fearless to the point of stupidity. They are alert to every movement, and I have heard it said that they "bark at dust settling". Unfortunately, most of them are also so darn cute that they are hard to resist. I love terriers, but they are not for everyone. The popularity of "Eddie" and "Wishbone" on television has resulted in a great many Jack Russell Terriers landing in homes that were not prepared for the activity, digging, and battles of will that come with owning a terrier.

Each breed presents its own unique qualities. We will continue the discussion next week with the four remaining groups - Working, Herding, Toy and Non-Sporting.

This week, we continue the discussion of dog breeds, and how they relate to the behavior of individual dogs. We are looking at the seven groups recognized by the American Kennel Club, which places each breed in a category based on the purpose for which it was developed. So far, we have covered the Sporting, Hound and Terrier Groups.

The Working Group. These dogs have a genetically programmed job to do. Breeds in this group include the Doberman, Rottweiler, and Siberian Husky. These dogs can make tremendous companions IF they are given lots of attention and training, and their minds are kept busy. They do not have to have their original assignments of guard duty or sled pulling, but lots of socialization and quality time with their owner, along with some degree of obedience training will help keep them alert and happy. On the other hand, these are large, powerful dogs with lots of energy. Boredom, isolation and confinement can have tragic consequences.

The Herding Group. A spin-off of the Working Group, these are the true workaholics of the dog world. Working Dogs need a job; Herding Dogs MUST have a job. Popular herding breeds include Border Collies, Australian Shepherds and Shetland Sheepdogs. My rescued stray German Shepherd, Britta, has the neurotic habit of running in circles whenever she is the least bit stressed. I suspect she was kept confined in a small pen when she was young, and became obsessed with following her own tail. My friend Trish recently adopted an Australian Shepherd, and Sheridan is only happy when she has the entire family together in one room. She regards someone going to the kitchen for a snack as a straying sheep that she is responsible for returning to the fold. She collapses with a sigh in the living room floor when everyone settles down to watch television, her job done for the time being. I received a call from a lady who was very distressed because she had purchased a Border Collie and was unhappy with her dog's behavior she had wanted a lap dog!

The Toy Group. These dogs were developed to be companions, so they generally excel at their jobs! There is so much variation among these dogs' individual personalities, that a prospective owner should take a close look at the particular breed. Chihuahuas, Pugs and Pomeranians are examples of Toy breeds that are very different both in appearance and personality. In general, the Toys are fragile little things that may not be suited to homes with young, active children.

The Non-Sporting Group. This is another group of very dissimilar breeds. These are the dogs that can't be easily pigeonholed anywhere else. Members of this group include the Dalmatian, The Bichon Frise, and the Chow Chow. Again, it's almost impossible to make generalized statements here, so individual breed characteristics need to be examined.

Breeds that are currently very popular include the Labrador Retriever, Border Collie, and Jack Russell Terrier. It is not difficult to see that these are dogs that could easily cause problems in homes that were not prepared for their particular characteristics. Evidence of this is seen in the growing numbers of these breeds showing up in animal shelters across the United States. Dog fanciers generally don't regard a rise in popularity of their favored breed as a good thing. Dalmatians, Rottweilers and Saint Bernards are recent examples of breeds that suffered from being the fad of the moment.

For your own best interest as an owner, and for the benefit of dogs in general, do some research on that beautiful breed you saw on television before you rush out and buy one. If you already have a dog, check out his roots; it may give you a lot of insight into why he behaves the way he does.

News of the Weird...

by CHUCK SHEPHERD

■ On July 21, police arrested a squatter couple who had boldly commandeered an unoccupied (but definitely not abandoned) house in isolated Tunbridge, Vt., and had begun elaborately remodeling it, in keeping with their professed beliefs that property should be shared rather than privately owned. Jeremiah Sturk, 38, and Rene Hunt, 26, had torn out some walls, ripped out some plumbing, and were starting to redo a bathroom (financed by selling some of the house's antiques) when the owners arrived from their principal home in Massachusetts. Said the arresting officer, of the couple: "(They're) definitely (people) with a different mindset."

■ IBM said its "artificial passenger" dashboard device might be on the market in three years, thus helping to make highways safe from dozing drivers by, among other things, shooting a stream of cold water into the driver's face. According to a July issue of New Scientist, when the device detects drowsiness, it launches into jokes and other conversation and automatically rolls down windows, sounds an alarm and changes radio stations, among other things.

■ The city of Cascavel, Brazil, recently enacted a law banning office gossip by municipal employees. Punishments include reprimand, mandatory sensitivity training and dismissal, in order to protect government workers whose reputations are degraded by rumor and innuendo, especially by newly hired workers who express contempt for incumbents.

The Great American Holiday, 2001

■ Three Pennsylvanians were killed in separate fireworks mishaps on July 4 (in Butler Township, Altoona and Wilkes-Barre). A 21-year-old soldier was shot to death in Huntsville, Ala., early on July 5, allegedly by the man the soldier asked not to launch fireworks nearby. A 46-year-old man was killed in Spanish Fork, Utah, on July 4 when a fireworks stand toppled over and crushed him. A mother and three children were killed in a fire in Houston on July 4 that a relative said was spread by fireworks. An off-duty police officer was beaten and sent to the hospital in critical condition on July 4, allegedly by two men who objected to the officer's request to stop launching fireworks near kids (Jersey City, N.J.).

Great Art!

■ Tatsumi Orimoto, according to an April report in London's Observer "a grand old man of Japanese contemporary art," said he will be working his signature piece of performance art off and on until the day he dies: "Bread Man" (in which he roams a city's streets with a half-dozen baguettes wrapped tightly around his head to pay homage to the Christian homily of "bread means body").

■ Several days after Moema Furtado's exhibit opened in March, municipal officials in Knoxville, Tenn., told her to remove her installation of thin-latex likenesses of large pieces of pulled human skin hanging from walls and ceiling, which she said were testaments to the horrors of the Holocaust. City official Mickey Foley said that the exhibits reminded her too much of huge, used condoms and that East Tennessee was not ready for that kind of art.

■ In June, playwright Bob Ernst suffered a setback at his final dress rehearsal for his work, "The John," which was being staged entirely inside a basement men's room at Maritime Hall (capacity: 20 seats) (story: a middle-aged theatergoer meets "Death" in a men's room during an intermission of "King Lear"). Ernst had rented the space, but the only Maritime supervisor with keys to the "theater" had taken the day off for his birthday, and when the room was finally opened, Ernst realized that it had not been cleaned in a while. Nonetheless, the show went on.

Bright Ideas

■ Among the Cold War

intelligence ideas of the mid-1970s was the British MI5 agency's proposal to station gerbils at airport terminal gates, in the hope that they would exercise their ability to detect passengers who were unusually sweaty, in that such passengers were disproportionately likely to be spies entering Britain. MI5's director-general during that time, Sir Stephen Lander, speaking at an intelligence agency conference in June, said the idea was abandoned when the agency realized that lots of people who go up in airplanes sweat.

■ Kevin Erwin was charged with rape, kidnapping and assault in Canton, Ohio, in June, based on his allegedly acting out on his female "sex slave" whom he had met over the Internet. Faced with imminent arrest, Erwin smugly showed police a signed contract, in which the woman had agreed "to freely give myself to Kevin L. Erwin as a personal slave and life mate" and "to make myself sexually available to Kevin at all times." (She also agreed to divorce her husband and marry Erwin and to pay Erwin $100,000 for "alienation of affection" if she ever broke the contract.) The prosecutor said the woman was coerced.

People With Issues

■ London's Steve Bennett continues his quest to become the world's most successful amateur rocket engineer, with all systems go for launching himself into space in a "test flight" (to an altitude of 10,000 feet) in 2003 on a venture that most professional engineers called foolhardy, according to a June story reported by the BBC. The more that is known about Bennett's mission (e.g., he recently said it would be a rocket capsule made from a cement mixer, with modest installation and a small computer), the more rocket scientists believe his launch will result in instant death. However, the louder the criticism, the more certain of himself Bennett professes to be. He still rejects conventional preparations such as wind-tunnel tests and g-force tests:

"That is what the test flight is for," he said.

Least Competent Criminals

■ According to the account of police in Shaker Heights, Ohio, in June, Darryl Owens, 33, may be the least intellectually equipped bank robber of 2001 so far. He walked into a Huntington bank as it was opening at 9 a.m. and approached a teller, demanding money in a threatening manner; the teller told him to go back and get in line with other early-arrivers. Owens threatened a second teller, who then pulled out a large wad of money and laid it on the counter for him, and Owens took about half and fled. Before police arrived, Owens walked back into the bank, laid the money on the counter, and asked for a $45 money order. The teller, thoroughly confused, told Owens to get out of the bank, which he did, leaving on the counter his entire stash. Police chased down Owens' car a few blocks from the bank and arrested him.

Recurring Themes

■ More Penile Clashes With Nature: In June, two fishermen bled to death in Papua New Guinea's Sepik River after pirhana-like fish, attracted by the men's urine streams, attacked the source with their razor-sharp teeth. And two weeks later, a 63-year-old peasant squatting to answer nature's call in a field near Loric, Colombia, was bitten on his penis by a poisonous Mapana-tigre snake and was rushed to a hospital (where he arrived with the snake still attached because he feared trying to dislodge it); he is recovering satisfactorily.

Also, in the Last Month

■ St. Louis Alderman Irene Smith, reluctant to yield the floor during a filibuster against a redistricting plan, took a restroom break at the podium, shielded by aides holding up a quilt. A man seated in a hillside cafe quietly playing dominoes was knocked unconscious by a wandering cow that fell through the roof (Nevsehir, Turkey). The Transport Minister in Abuja, Nigeria, Ojo Maduekwe, pedaling to the weekly Cabinet meeting to promote greater use of bicycles in the traffic-snarled city, was accidentally knocked into a ditch when hit nearly simultaneously by two passing buses. A 39-year-old man was arrested at a store in Plainville, Conn., after surveillance cameras caught him three times urinating, apparently deliberately and inexplicably, on the back of a man's trousers.

EYE OPENER

Author Unknown

I saw him in the church building for the first time on Wednesday. He was in his mid-70's, with thinning silver hair and a neat brown suit. Many times in the past I had invited him to come. Several other Christian friends had talked to him about the Lord and had tried to share the good news with him.

He was a well-respected, honest man with so many characteristics a Christian should have, but he had never put on Christ, nor entered the doors of the church.

"Have you ever been to a church service in your life?" I had asked him a few years ago. We had just finished a pleasant day of visiting and talking.

He hesitated. Then with a bitter smile he told me of his childhood experience some fifty years ago. He was one of many children in a large impoverished family. His parents had struggled to provide food, with little left for housing and clothing. When he was about ten, some neighbors invited him to worship with them.

The Sunday School class had been very exciting! He had never heard such songs and stories before! He had never heard anyone read from the Bible! After class was over, the teacher took him aside and said, "Son, please don't come again dressed as you are now. We want to look our best when we come into God's house."

He stood in his ragged, unpatched overalls. Then looking at his dirty bare feet, he answered softly, "No, ma'am. I won't ever."

"And I never did," he said, abruptly ending our conversation.

There must have been other factors to have hardened him so, but this experience formed a significant part of the bitterness in his heart. I'm sure that Sunday School teacher meant well. But did she really understand the love of Christ? Had she studied and accepted the teachings found in the second chapter of James?

What if she had put her arms around the dirty, ragged little boy and said, "Son, I am so glad you are here, and I hope you will come every chance you get to hear more about Jesus."

I reflected on the awesome responsibility a teacher or pastor or a parent has to welcome little ones in His name. How far reaching her influence was! I prayed that I might be ever open to the tenderness of a child's heart, and that I might never fail to see beyond the appearance and behavior of a child to the eternal possibilities within.

Yes, I saw him in the church house for the first time on Wednesday. As I looked at that immaculately dressed old gentleman lying in his casket, I thought of the little boy of long ago. I could almost hear him say, "No, ma'am. I won't ever."

And I wept.
