Communities combine to combat drugs

by MARY MUSIC
STAFF WRITER

PIKEVILLE — Finding ways help children overcome the drug problem in the Big Sandy region is a challenging step for everyone involved.

That's why community members from Pike and Floyd counties came to the second organizational meeting for the development of a residential treatment facility in the Big Sandy region, and that's also why they are asking for your participation. Although the developmental plans are just beginning, there is no lack of support for the need of such a facility to come to this area, said Lester Collins, director of pupil personnel for Pike County Schools.

"When I began teaching some 20 years ago, juveniles used drugs but that was something we thought only happened in the big cities and the slums," said Collins. "Sadly, we now know that drug abuse is present in our best schools and our finest families. Not only is it present, it's a major problem, and everybody is affected by it. We can no longer afford to sit back and pretend it will go away."

Collins said he receives calls frequently from parents and hears complaints on a regular basis from teachers about the existing drug problem in schools.

"For the sake of our children, we can do no less," said Collins. "We've got to have this center in Pike County. Our society is destroyed if we don't do something."

Although alcohol use is a little lower than some states, with 75 percent of 12th-grade students in Pike and Floyd Counties

What seems to be a harmless ball point pen can turn into a deadly canister for a young adult, says Karen Conn, assistant principal of Millard High School. Conn says students often "hollow out" similar pens and fill them with crushed prescription medications, such as Lortabs or Xanax, or a marijuana cigarette.

FRANKFORT — A Paintsville man will be the new head of Kentucky's Department of Mines and Minerals.

Gov. Paul Patton announced Thursday that Frank Delzer of Paintsville will be the next commissioner for mines and minerals, effective September 15.

Delzer, a native of North Dakota, first worked as an engineer in copper mines in the western United States and has since held administrative positions in copper and gold mine companies and coal research facilities throughout South and Central America, Kentucky, Minnesota, Texas and West Virginia.

His most recent work as been as a coal mining consultant with Elm Street Resources in Paintsville, where he currently resides with his wife, Eloise.

Delzer graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the University of North Dakota with degrees in mining engineering, geology and modern languages. He was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship for study in Germany.

Delzer, who will be completing requirements for receipt of a mine inspector's certificate prior to the effective date of his appointment, replaces former commissioner John Franklin,

JACKSON — For most people, participation in athletics ends when school does, while the very best go on to play professionally.

But middle-aged residents of Breathitt County have started a softball league called the "Feelin' Old Timers League," and they play a game in which practicing is against the rules.

This team was founded by Attorney Robert Cornett, who came up with the idea after talking with other Breathitt Countians.

"We'd been talking about getting together and doing something fun for about a year," said Cornett.

There are six teams with 16 people on them. Both men and women over age 35 can play. "This team has its own rules that we sort of make up as we go," said Cornett. "This game also gives everyone a chance to play. If you show up at the game, then you get to bat. Everyone gets a chance at doing something. They keep rotating the positions around."

Roy McClee is the pitcher for both sides. When he throws the ball, he makes sure that it goes over the plate so it can be hit, said Cornett.

This is also a game were one of their rules is that no practicing is allowed.

Terry Sewell is also one of the organizers of the new league.

"I think that it's great!" Sewell said. "It gives the kids a chance to come out and watch their parents play and have

EASTERN KENTUCKY — Instructions for future plans for Federal Emergency Management Agency efforts were more closely detailed Friday during a special meeting of the Floyd County Fiscal Court.

FEMA announced Thursday that President Bush had authorized individual assistance to flood victims in Floyd, Pike, Knott, Letcher and Perry counties, and now officials are faced with how to best utilize those efforts to meet the needs of flood victims who may qualify.

Family seeking missing man

MAYTOWN — The parents of 26 year-old Michael Keith Allen have been searching for their son since May 30 with no luck and no leads to the nature of his whereabouts.

Allen was last seen in the Maytown/Langley area, where he was supposed to be spending the night with a friend.

However, his mother and father explain that their son's friend said he did not spend the night, but rather used the phone at the residence and then left.

Counterfeiting up across region

EASTERN KENTUCKY — Police may have saved a counterfeiter's life.

The man printed over $200,000 in phony money and was probably going to use it to buy drugs. When the phony money bounced, the drug dealer probably would have murdered him.

The U.S. Secret Service and Kentucky State Police recently investigated such a case near Annville in Jackson County, Pat Sheehy, a spokesman for the Secret Service, confirmed.

"We see counterfeiting being used to buy drugs," Sheehy said. "They take it to Mexico to buy drugs."

Magoffin celebrates founding families

SALYERSVILLE — Did you ever wonder what life was like for settlers who came to Eastern Kentucky in the 1800s? Are you interested in learning about the obstacles they faced as they paved the roads through Appalachia, calling these mountains their home?

If so, then some of those answers might be found at this year's Magoffin County Founders Day Festival.

Founders Day began in Magoffin County 23 years ago when out-of-state visitors asked the Magoffin County Historical Society for information regarding their ancestor, "Uncle" Billy Adams.

Adams was the founder of Adamsville, the little city nestled in the area now known as Salyersville.

The search for information of the Adams family sparked interest with local historians and community members alike, which led to the publication of a Founders Book and, of course, the annual festival to celebrate the lives of those who plowed the fields of Appalachian heritage.

Each year, the Magoffin

Floyd Judge-Executive Paul Hunt Thompson, after sending words of appreciation to Congressman Hal Rogers and Gov. Paul Patton for their efforts in lobbying for the assistance, outlined a list of disaster assistance programs FEMA offers.

Of the 17 programs FEMA detailed in its fact sheet to the five affected counties, Thompson said it will most likely be two programs — the individual and family grant program and the home/personal property disaster loans — that will be the most utilized.

"These will be the ones that will come up the most," said Thompson on Friday. "And in some cases, these may be combined. It may be that some people will receive part of their help through a partial loan and the then the rest from a grant."

The individual and family grant, or IFG, program may be available to eligible flood victims to meet serious disaster-related needs or expenses not covered by other disaster assistance programs or insurance. The grant program is administered by the state, with 75 percent of the costs shared by FEMA and 25 percent by the state and/or local sources.

The maximum grant for an individual or family is $14,400, but the average grant is much less, with eligible disaster-related costs including medical, dental and funeral expenses, transportation expenses and costs for the repair or replacement of real and personal property.

Applicants for the IFG program must first make a disaster loan application to the Small Business Administration. When SBA determines the applicant to have no repayment ability, the application is then referred to the IFG program.

Once the application is in process, a FEMA contract inspector will visit the applicant's home for a damage inspection.

Disaster loans, with interest rates below the prevailing market, through the Small Business Administration are available to homeowners and renters for restoring or replacing uninsured disaster-damaged real and personal property.

The maximum loan amounts for homeowners are $200,000 for real estate, and $40,000 for personal property, and are limited to uninsured, SBA-verified losses.

The remaining programs offered include:

Disaster housing assistance program: FEMA may provide assistance for any individual for family whose residence has been made uninhabitable as a result of a natural disaster. Assistance may be in the form of funds to obtain alternate rental housing, or to make essential repairs required for a residence to be habitable. In certain instances, reimbursement for temporary lodging expenses is also available.

Aid for those facing foreclosure or eviction: FEMA's 408(b) program can help persons facing mortgage foreclosure or eviction resulting from financial hardship caused by a disaster. To be eligible, victims must be unable to pay their mortgage or rent because they lost income in a disaster. They must also have written notification that foreclosure or eviction is imminent.

Emergency assistance: Emergency food, clothing, shelter and medical assistance may be provided to those having such needs as a result of the disaster. The American Red Cross, the Salvation Army, church groups and other non-profit organizations provide such help.

Disaster unemployment assistance: This assistance provides weekly benefit payments to those who are out of work as a direct result of the disaster, including self-employed persons, farm workers, farm and ranch owners and others not covered by regular unemployment benefits. This is administered by the state and application may be made at any local office.

Business disaster loans: Disaster loans through the SBA are available to businesses to repair or replace destroyed or damaged facilities, inventory, machines or equipment. The maximum loan amount is $1.5 million.

Housing loans/grants for farmers: Farm Service Agency emergency loans for and loss or damage of physical property, production losses and essential family living expenses are available to qualifying farmers and ranchers. Disaster housing assistance may also be available to farmers and ranchers with disaster damage to their primary residence.

Insurance information: Assistance is available with insurance problems or questions. Such help may include obtaining copies of lost policies, help with filing claims and expediting settlements, etc.

Social Security benefits: Help is available from the Social Security Administration in filing for disability claims and survivor benefits. Social Security can also expedite the delivery of checks delayed by the disaster.

Veterans' affairs: The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs can expedite delivery of information about benefits, pensions, insurance settlements and VA mortgage loans.

Consumer affairs: In most states, the attorney general's office can give counseling and assistance with a variety of consumer problems including the non-availability or inadequate supply of building materials, price gouging, disreputable contractors, etc.

Area agency on aging: The local agency on aging may have services available to meet the needs of disaster-affected elderly persons such as transportation, meals, home care, etc.

Assistance from financial institutions: Early withdrawal of time deposits, without penalty, can be permitted by banks that are members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), Federal Reserve System or Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Crisis counseling: Referral services and short-term intervention counseling are available for mental health problems caused or aggravated by the disaster.

Tax assistance: The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) allows casualty losses that were suffered on an uninsured residence, personal property and/or household goods to be deducted from income tax returns.

Legal services: Free legal services, including advice, counseling and representation, may be provided to low-income disaster victims who have legal problems stemming from the disaster. Such services include replacing legal documents, transferring titles, arbitrating contracting problems and resolving insurance and landlord-tenant disputes.

The league has generated a lot of interest, resulting in nearly 100 people playing. There are lawyers, doctors and teachers on the teams. Even the mayor participates.

A MONTH IN THE MIDDLE

saying they have used alcohol at some point in their lives, narcotic use among children in the area is extremely higher than the rest of the state, with 43 percent of 12th-graders saying they have abused narcotics.

Dr. Stephen Payson, associate dean for Student Affairs at the School of Osteopathic Medicine at Pikeville College, who works with the drug court in Pike County, said narcotics use in this region is even greater than south side of Chicago, L.A. or New York.

Payson says much of the narcotics problem in schools, which has grown 15 percent in the last two years, resulted from the misuse of OxyContin or other prescription drugs, such as Tylox, Lortab, or Xanax.

"If you walked up to a kid on the street, he probably couldn't tell you where to buy heroin or cocaine," said Payson, "but he could score you some OxyContin or other opioids in just a matter of minutes."

According to Darlene Starnes, director of Mountain Comprehensive Care's Substance Abuse Treatment Services, those children who abuse drugs or alcohol are more likely to be victimized.

Survey results from a recent Kentucky Intervention Program survey show that kids who use high amounts of drugs or alcohol are three times more likely to be beaten up than those who don't, three times more likely to be robbed, and 10 times more likely to be hurt by some type of weapon. Rape or sexual abuse are also more likely to occur to individuals who use a lot of drugs, said Starnes, with 10 percent of males and 21 percent of females surveyed saying they had been sexually abused.

"What we're seeing here is that those children who use drugs are quite often becoming victims of certain situations," said Starnes. "It may be because they are just placing themselves in bad situations and don't realize what they are doing because their judgment is altered by these drugs."

Scott Walker, program director of the Layne House in Prestonsburg, approached the group with plans for developing the facility.

Walker said the four-phase process to establish the facility began with the pre implementation stage when teachers and school staff were trained in determining drug use indicators.

The program is unique to this area, said Walker, focusing on the needs of area children and their environment.

During their stay at the center, juveniles will not only participate in a full day of regular classroom activities, but they will also become an active part of their community and learn about their cultural history.

"What we're talking about is actual treatment," said Walker. "We'll not just get them off alcohol and drugs, we'll get them to choose to live their lives alcohol and drug free."

With extensive counseling and community projects, Walker explained that the program will focus on a variety of issues that will help the child gain self esteem and ownership of their own emotions.

The program will also take a spiritual approach, in which the children will learn to remember their core moral beliefs that they have possibly forgotten years ago.

"These kids aren't bad kids,"

said Walker. "Being a teenager stinks and they don't want to do it. They feel guilt. They feel shame. And with a handful of pills, they've found something that finally makes them feel good ... and it works."

Walker explained that the end of treatment at the facility would be the beginning of the teens' new lives.

In order to get the residential treatment facility up and running, committee members need help from community members who care about what their children are doing in school and can donate advice or time toward the effort.

Anyone who would like to volunteer in the process is urged to contact the Pike County Board of Education at (606) 432-7700.

Time and place for the next organizational meeting will be posted at a later date.

At the time of his disappearance, Allen was working and not living at the home of his parents, who say they last saw him approximately four days before his last contact on May 30.

Michael Allen is 6 feet, 8 inches tall and weighs 245 pounds. He has brown hair and a cleft chin. He has a tattoo of a wolf on his left shoulder.

Anyone with information about the possible location of Michael Keith Allen or information that could lead to his discovery should contact Kentucky State Police at 1-606-433-7711 or toll-free at 1-800-222-5555.

Detective Joey Howard is heading the investigative effort to find Allen.

Missing

No one has heard from Allen since.

For nearly three months, the Allens have been working closely with Kentucky State Police in an effort to locate their son. But nothing has paid off, even in light of a $1,000 reward offer.

The Allens have now decided to increase the amount of the award to $3,000, in hopes this will provide those who may have not known their son was missing with more incentive to stay alert.

Michael Keith Allen is a graduate of Allen Central High School and attended Prestonsburg Community College and Alice Lloyd College before entering the military.

Founders

County Historical Society focuses attention on one pioneer family, researching information about its heritage and bringing it to spotlight with a host of family-oriented fun and excitement.

"I think it's wonderful how everybody joins together during the Founders Day Festival," said Magoffin County Historical Society member Connie Wireman. "It takes so much work from a lot of people to make this festival a success. It's amazing how much effort people put forth to do something like this for the area."

This year's festival is dedicated to the Vanderpool family, whose descendants now live in Magoffin, Floyd and surrounding counties as well as all parts of the U.S.

According to Wireman, three sons of Hezekiah Vanderpool and Sophia Sexton, born from 1813-1816, settled in Eastern Kentucky from Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina.

Traveling makeshift roads through the thicks of pine and poplar, two of the settlers, John M. and Hezekiah Jr., found a home in Magoffin County, where they were later buried.

The other brother, James, drifted to Johnson County, where he married Sarah Margaret Beverly, who bore 10 children. James died after 1880 and was buried in Johnson County.

John M. and his wife, Nancy Hoskins, had 13 children while living in Magoffin County. John died in July 1892 and was buried in Magoffin County.

Hezekiah and his wife, Elizabeth Hamilton, raised 11 children. Hezekiah died between 1870 and 1880 and was also buried in Magoffin County.

"We do this to celebrate those families that contributed a lot to life here in the mountains, by just being a part of the community," said Wireman. "It's not just a celebration of one family. It's a celebration of a whole generation."

The 23rd annual Magoffin County Founders Day will last from August 29 through September 2. Everyone is invited to attend.

For information about obtaining this year's founder's book or events that will take place at this year's festival, contact the Magoffin County Historical Society at (606) 349-1607.

Town comes together to return stolen items

Phony

by MARY MUSIC
STAFF WRITER

MAYTOWN — What could have meant disappointment to one group of out-of-state visitors turned into thankfulness this week when some of their stolen belongings miraculously found their way back home.

Twenty-three volunteers from Boston were staying at the Maytown Lifetime Learning Center this week, pitching in to help flood victims and other members of the surrounding community.

Arriving at the community center at 6 a.m. on Sunday, members of the group set off to get started on a week-long list of tasks to be done.

While they were away that day, someone broke into the center and stole several items from two volunteers, Noel Almeida and Mike Mercuri, 22, who were staying there.

Among the items taken, according to Dan Chauncy, Maytown Lifetime Learning Center director, were an acoustic guitar, camera, an expensive pair of eyeglasses, cellular phone and equipment, and a few books.

Chauncy said the center's first response to the theft was to contact the Kentucky State Police. Trooper T.J. King spent several days in the area, questioning residents, but the items weren't recovered. With no new leads or information, the police, said Chauncy, couldn't do much more to recover the stolen items.

"This was a real bummer," said Chauncy. "These people came here to help the community, and then something like this happens."

But, luckily, a chain of concerned citizens in Maytown led toward the recovery of many of the items.

Chauncy said word about the burglary spread throughout the little community like "wild-fire" and many residents called or stopped by the center, sharing their sympathy for what happened.

Just as they were about to give up on ever recovering the stolen items, Maytown resident Bill Slone pulled up to the center on Thursday afternoon with many of the items in the back of his truck.

Slone said he discovered the guitar, the glasses and several other items piled in some bushes while walking his dog in a nearby bottom.

"I knew those things didn't belong to me, and when I found out they belonged to people at the community center, I had to take them back," said Slone. "I didn't want those people to leave with a negative outlook of Maytown. We have some bad people here, but there are also some who are good and who care about what happens here."

"I think what they are doing for the community out there is wonderful, and more people should get involved. I hated that it happened to these people, we have enough negative things said about this community. I'm just glad they were able to get most of it back."

Mercuri and Almeida, who will be returning to their Boston home today, both say that the experience has not deterred them from visiting the area again.

"Initially, we were upset," said Mercuri, "but we didn't want this to ruin the task we had to do this week. We came down here for a reason and we weren't going to let something like this change that."

According to Almeida, seeing how the community pitched in to help relocate their stolen possessions was a rewarding experience.

"Actually, this is the most positive thing that happened all week," said Almeida. "A lot of people in the community wanted to help us out, and I think because of that, a piece of his or her heart changed and they brought these things back to us — and what's really amazing is that the easily marketable items were returned."

"All this has really been more like a miracle," said Chauncy. "The way everyone seemed to work together to get these things back. It takes community effort, and that's really what we're all about."

A cellular phone and a few books are still missing from the Sunday burglary. Anyone with information can contact Kentucky State Police at (606) 433-7711 or the Maytown Lifetime Learning Center at (606) 285-0539.

who died on July 25 from complications following surgery.

"The selection of Frank Delzer as commissioner is the result of a thorough process which considered a number of candidates that were qualified for this position," said Patton. "In the end, we were convinced Mr. Delzer possessed the education, training and the administrative experience necessary to bring leadership and a proper balance to the oversight of this department. I look forward to working with Mr. Delzer to insure that the safety of Kentucky miners is the chief concern of this department in its administration of Kentucky's mine safety laws."

The decision to place an Eastern Kentucky resident at the position of mines and minerals commissioner has been a move with which many local residents agree. However, it may not be such a weighing factor during Delzer's term as he references a "fair and impartial" administration in his statement following the news of his appointment.

"I am honored to be asked by Gov. Patton to serve Kentucky as commissioner of the Department of Mines and Minerals," Delzer said. "The fair and impartial administration of the department and the proper implementation of recent reforms related to mine safety will be a priority of my service to the governor and the commonwealth. I look forward to this challenge and to working with all the employees of the department."

Father, son jailed on sex charge

by GRETA FIELDS

LOTHAIR — A father and son from Lothair were arrested by Hazard police on charges relating to the rape of a 13-year-old girl on August 20.

David Derrick Lewis, 21, was lodged in the Perry County Jail on a $5,000 cash bond for second-degree rape. His father, David Lewis, 45, was arrested for complicity to commit rape and jailed under a partially-secured $5,000 bond.

"It was consensual sex, but she was 13 and he was 21," alleged Patrolman Joe Engle, who is investigating along with Officer Russell Dishner. "The statement that the victim gave said that the daddy knew they were having sex. He lied when the mother came to the door."

Engle said he will present evidence to a grand jury for possible indictments.

If indicted, the Lewises are entitled to a trial. If found guilty, they could be sentenced to five or 10 years in prison for the Class C felony, according to Engle.

Derrick Lewis was given a conditional discharge and put on two years probation when he was sentenced last year for facilitating prescription fraud, according to court records. On July 5, he was arrested for receiving stolen property and placed on two years probation, fined $91 and ordered to pay restitution on an amended charge of theft. The next day, he was arrested for burglary, but that charge was dismissed.

"Scarecrow" was designed by employees of WYMT-TV. The employees worked together to arrive at a theme for the chair and suggested ideas for detail work. Knowing the chair would be auctioned in the fall, they chose an autumn theme. The team was at a loss as to how to incorporate WYMT and United Way into the scene until a staff member came up with the idea of using the scarecrow's overall buttons to convey the message. Ernestine Cornett, general manager of WYMT and an art major of Morehead State University, enjoyed applying some of the detail work to the rocker.

United Way 'rocks' to raise funds

Times Staff Report

United Way Rocks! is the theme of the United Way of Eastern Kentucky's newest project. Working with local artists, individuals and businesses, locally produced rocking chairs are being decorated and displayed at summer and fall events, eventually to be auctioned off in November.

United Way of Eastern Kentucky is a service and financial resource for 16 local charities, including the Red Cross, Salvation Army, HOPE, Boy Scouts, Big Sandy Family Abuse Center and more. Collectively, these agencies have been awarded more than $70,000 in grants for 2001. Funds raised in the current year will be used to provide grants in 2002.

In cooperation with the UK Cooperative Extension Service, the United Way Rocks! project has gotten off to a great start. Many local artists have already completed chairs and many others are still hard at work.

Some participating businesses include WYMT-TV, TMC Printing, The Paintsville Herald, Big Brothers Big Sisters of the Big Sandy, the City of Prestonsburg, Prestonsburg Tourism, AEP, Bigdawg Design, Christian Appalachian Project, God's Pantry, Harley Davidson, Vantage Point, Eye Site, Christ Central School, Paintsville Rotary Club, Floyd County 4-H, White Mobile Homes, the City of Paintsville and Johnson County Tourism.

Completed chairs are on currently on display in the window of the old G.C. Murphy building on Main Street in downtown Paintsville and the Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg.

Organizations or businesses interested in sponsoring a chair can still place orders for adult rockers at a cost of $150 and child rockers at a cost of $80. The chairs may be decorated in any way desired — feathers, beads, paint, paper, cloth, any medium the artist chooses. Sponsors can also have a chair and have it finished by adult day care or child day care agency participants.

All proceeds from the project will go to the United Way of Eastern Kentucky, serving the Big Sandy area of Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Martin and Magoffin counties.

For more information on the United Way Rocks! project, contact Pamela Compton, executive director, at 1-888-393-5632, or (606) 789-5632, or e-mail unit-edwa@foothills.net

Kentucky should take steps to control Oxycontin abuse

Oxycontin is the drug of choice, and the issue of the moment, in Eastern Kentucky and some other places, as reports on the resulting controversy regularly make the news.

Critics suggest that Oxycontin's maker, Purdue Pharma, failed to properly warn doctors of the potent pain-killer's high potential for addiction and abuse. Some also say that Purdue Pharma has dragged its feet in reformulating Oxycontin, to make it harder to use illegally. The drug company begs to differ.

While these competing claims are tested in court, health workers and law enforcement in Appalachia are being tested, too.

Ultimately the courts and the Federal Drug Administration will decide if Purdue Pharma is a bad guy, or a responsible drug company that's been victimized by bad press. But it doesn't take a ruling or a regulation to establish that, in Appalachia, this new medicine has been exploited by a pre-existing culture of abuse.

The abuse of prescription drugs is an old problem there, where decades of moonshining, marijuana growing and drug use have built up an infrastructure of support for such illegal activities.

The guilty range from docs who'll give Grandma what she demands when her "nerves go out" to sheriffs and judges who look the other way as they pass pot patches. All of which makes a public response to the problem far more difficult than blaming the manufacturer.

But Purdue Pharma's Dr. Sidney Schnall is right. There are no "simple fixes." So far, nothing has proven 100 percent effective against those bent on using legal drugs to illegal purposes: not padlocked medicine cabinets, not tamper-proof prescription pads, not pharmacy alerts, not threats of jail.

Still, it is possible to make abuse more difficult, and that's what state Rep. Jack L. Coleman Jr., D-Burgin, is trying to do. He proposes, for example, to require that Oxycontin prescriptions be accompanied by a diagnosis.

Rep. Coleman urges pharmacists to be skeptical of Oxycontin prescriptions signed by those, such as dentists and general practitioners, who would have many fewer patients in need of major pain medication than, say, cancer docs or pain specialists.

His bill to do that received no "no" votes in the House last winter. But, Rep. Coleman said, "We couldn't even get the Senate to hear it." That's too bad.

Five dozen, 40 mg Oxycontin tablets already cost $290.59 at a Louisville pharmacy, but the price could go up if the problems continue and Oxycontin's maker is forced to invest millions in reformulating it to prevent abuse. And there are other, more terrible costs. The illegal traffic in legal drugs not only destroys lives, but also destroys public confidence government's ability, and willingness, to cope.

What would you do?

At the time I am writing this, I have no way of knowing whether or not anyone won the big Powerball jackpot. I suspect that last night's drawing awarded the prize to somebody, maybe several somebodies, because the way it was being played you'd think all the different combinations were used up.

One other thing I know is that, if my numbers happened to be called last night, you're not going to see me for a long time. My name won't be above any more stories. My working days are through.

Don't get me wrong, I love the newspaper business. I honestly don't think I'd enjoy anything else nearly as much. But would I continue to work if I suddenly won a few million? Not a chance.

One reason, of course, is because I would enjoy the opportunity to be extremely lazy. But another reason is because you won't find me anywhere near here. I'll be off on at least a year long vacation.

You see, that's the key. I've heard before that lottery officials usually tell their big winners that the first thing they need to do is to get the heck out of town for a good long while.

Otherwise, they will be tormented by the endless ringing of the telephone. Winning the lottery becomes one of the best ways to increase a person's popularity. Long lost relatives, old high school buddies, people with can't-miss investment opportunities, folks with the sobbiest of sob stories — in short, anybody who thinks they stand a chance of getting a piece of the action will do everything they can to get it.

None of that for me. Nope, my temporary address will be, "on the road."

DisneyWorld would probably be a good place to escape the madness, and I've already done the math. Based on current admission prices, the after-tax, cash-option, lump sum would buy a family of four over 300 years at Disney — and that's with meals included.

Could a person spend the rest of his or her life in Disney? It certainly would be an interesting experiment.

Think about it — no house payment, no worrying about meals or utilities, endless amusements to keep your mind occupied. When you left for the day, a maid would clean your room. If you're really committed to the notion of staying, you could ditch any expenses related to automobiles by relying exclusively on the monorail.

Still, there's so much more to the world than limiting yourself to one place wouldn't be right. Even a place as big and gaudy as DisneyWorld could get old after awhile.

But, so what? You win the Powerball, you're a multi-millionaire, you can afford to change plans endlessly. Spend a year or two at Disney, cruise the world, visit every state, visit every country, follow your favorite sports team for a few seasons. It's okay. You can do all of those things and still have enough money to make the rest of us puke.

But that's the fun thing about these things. The Kentucky Lottery likes to say, "Somebody's going to win. Might as well be you." But really, it's fun without the winning.

Why? Put it this way: Ever since Powerball began climbing these heights, each of us has spent at least a little time wondering what we would do with the money.

If the price of dreaming is a $5 quick pick, then that's a bargain.

Farm tags a good idea

I am writing concerning the new farm tags for trucks in Kentucky and would like to say that those who came up with the idea should be highly commended.

Much of Kentucky's agricultural development can be traced back to those who had a background in 4-H and FFA.

The FFA and 4-H programs are just as important to the Kentucky as they ever were. These programs should be a permanent part of the Kentucky educational scene.

As a former 4-H member and leader and a former FFA member and American farmer, it is good to see these emblems spread across Kentucky.

Experts discuss causes of lung disease among miners

In Memory of Willie Holbrook

Twenty Years Ago

It's been twenty years since you departed this life on August 28, 1981.

You are sadly missed by family and friends, who will be thinking of you on this sad day.

Sadly missed by

and Family

FRANKFORT — Experts testifying on the causes of black lung gave cautionary testimony yesterday to lawmakers considering an increase in workers' compensation benefits.

Of the three physicians who testified before the Interim Joint Committee on Labor and Industry, two said the actual percentage of Kentucky miners with CWP, a lung disease, is in the single digits and one blamed lung problems in miners more on cigarette smoking than coal dust.

Dr. Peter Tuteur from Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis said probably only three percent of Kentucky coal miners have some clinical evidence of CWP. Dr. Paul Wheeler, a radiologist and "B" reader of X-rays taken of miners' lungs, estimated the percentage at no more than five percent. The highest instance of CWP - up to 15 percent — is found in northeast Pennsylvania where anthracite coal is mined, said Tuteur.

The third expert was physician Leon Cander, a national consultant with the U.S. Department of Labor. Cander was less specific about the numbers of miners he thinks are affected by CWP. Cander said that CWP can impede lung function even if there is no X-ray evidence of the disease, adding that an X-ray is not a good measure of the effects of CWP because an X-ray measures anatomical change, not lung function.

"In order to measure functional change, you must do either a pulmonary function test or measure arterial blood gases," said Cander, who said an X-ray "may tell you whether or not an individual has pneumoconiosis. It does not tell you if an individual has pulmonary deficiency, impairment or disability." Tuteur, on the other hand, said CWP does not necessarily cause abnormal lung function. He explained to the committee that a miner can have a normal x-ray and microscopic signs of CWP and "almost never" be sick from CWP. But he also said a physician should "never say never," what he called one of the first rules he learned in medicine.

However, Tuteur said miners who smoke cigarettes and have evidence of CWP can get "very sick."

Cigarette smoking, not coal dust, is the likely cause of lung impairment in miners who have a history of smoking, Tuteur said. But he said X-rays — used in Kentucky to detect CWP in miners with black lung claims — cannot accurately show if a miner is sick because of CWP or smoking. He said a miner's entire case history must be used to reach that conclusion.

Factors other than smoking can distort X-rays used to detect CWP, said Tuteur.

Silica from mines, for example, can cause opacities on an image, just like coal dust, he said.

"So the history is very important," he added.

Tuteur said studies do indicate, however, that there is a visual difference between lungs harmed by smoking vs. CWP. These studies show that lungs with emphysema or other diseases caused by cigarette smoke enlarge while lungs affected by CWP shrink.

Wheeler said that quality X-rays can "sometimes" detect physical evidence of CWP, which appears as a series of symmetrical dots on film. Wheeler said in his opinion, only black lung and silicosis create that pattern.

To properly diagnose CWP, Tuteur said all evidence — X-rays, breathing tests, history — must be considered. Both Tuteur and Wheeler said a CT

The "Word" for the Week

by DR. DENNIS J. PRUTOW
STERLING, KANSAS

Good words

After leading worship services in the church for many years, I love to pronounce the benediction. I do so slowly and deliberately. I look at people in the congregation. I often see faces aglow with wonder and amazement. What's this guy think he's doing?

Benediction means good talk. It is a compound word. Diction refers to speech. The prefix, "bene," means "good." A benediction is good speech. It is a blessing. Numbers 6:24-26 is a common benediction. "The Lord bless you, and keep you; the Lord make His face shine on you, and be gracious to you; the Lord lift up His countenance on you, and give you peace."

When I pronounce this blessing over the people gathered for worship, it is my conviction God actually works in and through this simple action and utterance to bless His people. When God instituted this specific benediction, He said of the priests, "So they shall invoke My name on the sons of Israel, and I then will bless them" (Numbers 6:28). You do this, said God, and I will bless the people.

This is a wonderful promise. It goes along with Isaiah 55:11, "So will My word be which goes forth from My mouth; it will not return to Me empty, without accomplishing what I desire, and without succeeding in the matter for which I sent it."

LPC COUNTY WIDE PUBLIC FORUM

The Floyd County Board of Education has scheduled a local Board public hearing on the proposed District Facility Plan for Thursday, September 6, at May Valley Elementary at 6:30 p.m. The District Facility Plan lists the pending capital construction and/or renovation projects that the school district may undertake, and the priority order, if applicable, that projects will be initiated. Copies of the proposed District Facility Plan are available for examination by interested individuals at the Board office, 106 North Front Avenue, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., through September 24.

Questions may be directed to Superintendent Paul Fanning at 606-886-2354. Those individuals who would like to comment on the proposed District Facility Plan may present oral or written comments at the local Board public hearing. The local Board of Education, after due process, will forward the approved District Facility Plan to the Kentucky Department of Education for ultimate approval by the State Board of Education.

The local Board public hearing is being scheduled in accordance with KRS 157.620, and regulated by 702 KAR 1:001.

KFTC lawsuit seeking to block valley fills

by SHELDON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — The community group Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, filed a lawsuit Tuesday, August 21, in U.S. District Court in Charleston, W.Va.

The suit challenges the validity of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Huntington district office in its decision to issue a permit to Martin County Coal, which they say will allow the company to bury a little over six miles of streams with mining waste.

The suit claims that the Corps does not have the authority to issue permits allowing the disposal of coal overburden in the waters of the United States, stating the Corps "routinely" issues such permits to coal companies that bury streams with mine waste in what are known as "valley fills."

"Our overall concern is the failure to enforce even the most rudimentary parts of the Clean Water Act," said KFTC member David Rouse.

The lawsuit came after the Corps recently granted a permit to Martin County Coal, which has been cited as holding responsibility for the release of 250 million gallons of coal sludge last October in Martin County.

The "nationwide" permit will allow, according to KFTC, the company to bury 33,000 feet of stream with waste from a 2,934-acre mining operation in Martin County.

KFTC has claimed that the Corps, in issuing the nationwide permit, has assumed the environmental impact with be minimal.

"It's ludicrous to say that destroying six miles of stream is not a significant environmental impact..." said KFTC member Patty Wallace of Louisville. "We can't just sit back and allow our mountains to be flattened and turned to rubble, and our streams buried with mine waste."

The company's operation would involve 27 different valley fills that encompass more than 300 acres, says KFTC, adding that more than six miles of streams would be eliminated.

The lawsuit further alleges that, if it is proven that the Corps did have the authority to allow the discharge of coal waste into waterways, the Martin County Coal's operation would entail a "significant" environmental impact and would require an "individual" permit rather than a general permit.

With an individual permit, the applicant must prove the project to be in the interest of the public, and also establish that the project could not be designed in any other way that would lessen environmental impact on public waterways.

As the permit stands, KFTC claims it violates the Clean Water Act, an act that sets up a system of water quality standards, discharge limitations and permits.

The Clean Water Acts forbids discharge of any materials into U.S. waters unless those materials are "dredged or filled" materials.

KFTC members say that the Corps defines filled materials as material placed in a body of water for the purposes of creating dry land, and state that waste is specifically listed as excluded from the that definition.

The suit explains that in January, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency agreed that the mining operation "would have more than minimal adverse environmental impacts" and objected to the general permit issued by the Corps.

However, the suit continues to say that the EPA has not exercised its power to veto the permit, and the Bush administration has indicated its desire to let valley fills continue unchecked.

KFTC disregarded a state-

Approval of ARC program to improve Appalachian telecommunications closer

WASHINGTON — Congress has moved a step closer to giving final approval of an enhanced telecommunications program for Appalachia's 13 states as part of a new reauthorization bill that would continue the Appalachian Regional Commission's community development programs through 2006.

On August 2, the House of Representatives approved legislation (H.R. 2501) to reauthorize ARC for five years. Similar legislation, introduced by Ohio Senator George Voinovich, has made progress in the Senate.

The new legislation would authorize ARC to receive an additional $10 million next year in federal funding to meet the growing telecommunications needs of the Appalachian Region. The legislation also authorizes additional funding for telecommunications in future years through 2006.

Under the House bill, ARC's other nonhighway activities would be authorized at $78 million in 2002; $80 million in 2003; $83 million in 2004; $85 million in 2005; and $87 million in 2006.

The legislation also directs the Commission to dedicate 50 percent of its nonhighway grant funds to the benefit of economically distressed Appalachian communities.

"The House vote on Thursday demonstrates that the Commission has strong bipartisan support in Congress for its efforts to ensure that the information highway does not bypass the mountains as the interstate highway system did in the 1950s and 1960s," said Kentucky Gov. Paul E. Patton, who is currently serving as ARC states' co-chairman.

"The digital gap appears to be widening in Appalachia," said ARC Federal Co-Chairman Jesse L. White Jr. "Under a new telecommunications program, ARC would work to provide greater access to broadband infrastructure, support education and training in new technologies, expand e-commerce in the Region, and stimulate development of high-tech-sector employment. Our goal is to help our rural communities compete and succeed in the new digital economy."

Anthem agrees to meet with eligible Kentucky members

Eligible Anthem members in Kentucky will have a chance to learn more about the Indiana-based company's plan to convert from a mutual insurance company owned by its members, to a public company owned by stockholders.

Kentucky Insurance Commissioner Janie A. Miller announced recently that Anthem has agreed to meet with eligible Kentucky members to answer questions and explain the company's demutualization proposal. The informational meeting is open to the public on Wednesday, September 19, at 10 a.m., at the Holiday Inn ballroom in Frankfort.

Gov. Paul E. Patton and Secretary Ronald McCloud of the Cabinet for Public Protection & Regulation asked the Department of Insurance to facilitate the public forum to assure that eligible Anthem members are informed about their options.

"My role as Kentucky commissioner is to assure that the September 19 meeting provides Anthem's eligible members in the Commonwealth with the information they need," Commissioner Miller said. "The final action and formal public hearings will be decided by the Indiana Department of Insurance, because the company is domiciled in that state."

Anthem is currently mailing details to 1 million statutory members, including about 270,000 members in Kentucky, if they are eligible. The notices will reach eligible Kentuckians as early as this week, and as late as the end of August. The notice does not apply to all 7.5 million Anthem customers, but only to specific members entitled to compensation in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Connecticut, and who are entitled to vote on the plan of conversion.

Anthem's mailing explains the member's options, how to vote, how to get more information, and formal notice of the public hearing planned by the Indiana Department of Insurance on October 2.

On June 18 of this year, the Board of Directors of Anthem Insurance Companies Inc., unanimously adopted a conversion plan and filed its proposal with the Indiana Department of Insurance, asking to convert the Indiana-based company from a mutual insurance company, currently owned by its members. In demutualization, the statutory members would be compensated for their membership interests through receipt of stock or cash, and the company would gain access to capital through the public markets.

The plan must be approved by two-thirds of those eligible members who vote. If Anthem receives approval from its eligible members and the Indiana Department of Insurance, the company currently expects to complete the demutualization process by the end of the year.

Additional details can be obtained by calling Anthem's toll-free information lines at 1-866-299-9628 or by logging on to Anthem's web site at www.Anthem.com.

Jackson discusses water line repairs

by RENEE M. SNOWDEN
BREATHITT COUNTY BUREAU

JACKSON — The Jackson City Council met August 16 to discuss several topics including water line repairs and the 24th annual Honey Festival.

Mayor Mike Miller informed the council of repairs that Jackson needed due to storm damage. Areas that need to be repaired include Lakeside Drive, Kings Ridge, Lick Branch, College Avenue and Armory Drive.

According to Miller, the water pipe that is at Lick Branch was installed about 13 years ago without the assistance of engineers or approval from the Division of Water.

"Repairing this will cost the city of Jackson a pretty penny," Miller said. "Every time the water department responds to a break, it costs $500 in repairs. That does not include the cost of the water, man laboring hours, equipment and time."

Miller, Jackson Water Superintendent Ralph Cundiff and Connie Allen have all accessed the repair damage, which totals to about $500,000. Miller has been seeking grants and other funding to help pay for the repairs.

Councilman Arch Sebastian suggested that the fire hydrants needed to be painted a color other than black.

Clara Gabbard, the Queen Bee of the Honey Festival, gave out Honey Festival T-shirts to all members.

Gabbard also announced that Lt. Gov. Steve Henry would be the grand marshal at this year's parade. His wife, Miss America Heather French Henry, may also be joining him.

ment they say was made by Bill Caylor of the Kentucky Coal Association that the lawsuit, if successful, would "literally shut down the coal mining industry" as more of the same contentions that have been made for years.

"The industry always says we're going to shut them down," said Rouse. "Since 1977 [when the federal surface mining law was passed] they've been saying that ... The law was debated and passed by Congress years ago, and the coal industry is well aware of what it requires. We just want the law enforced."

Patty Wallace pointed to the recent floods in Eastern Kentucky and West Virginia which many say were exacerbated by strip mining and flattened by mountaintops as only the most recent example of the long-term destructive potential that current mining practices leave behind.

"I feel that we don't have the right to ask future generations to pay for our costly use of our resources," said Wallace. "If I didn't take the stand I was taking, I couldn't look my grandchildren in the eye."

scan, which is more sensitive to abnormalities than an X-ray, is very helpful if, Wheeler said, quality images are taken and read properly. The problem is that CT scans are very expensive, costing 10 times that of an X-ray.

Wheeler, who has practiced radiography for decades and was one of the first B readers of X-rays for CWP in the country, said the B reader program has become dated with the development of CT scans.

He recommended that if there is a disagreement on whether an abnormal X-ray shows CWP, a second B reader should review the film. If, then, there is still disagreement, a CT scan should be ordered.

Rep. Brent Yonts, D-Greenville, a member of the committee, said "expert evidence" on black lung from other physicians at recent meetings of the committee refute the conclusions of Tuteur, Wheeler and Cander.

But member Rep. Steve Nunn, R-Glasgow, was more receptive to yesterday's testimony. Nunn told Tuteur that some people do not believe his findings because they represent "the destruction of a culture of Kentucky society: The fact we've been paying for decades for black lung benefits — CWP benefits for coal miners — maybe without justification."

Free elk viewing tours offered by KDFWR

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR) will offer free tours to see and hear rutting elk in Eastern Kentucky this fall.

Biologists with the KDFWR will be leading guided tours on the Addington Enterprises WMA near Hazard each Saturday and Sunday in September (excluding Labor Day weekend) to catch all the action of the newest addition to wildlife diversity in the Bluegrass State.

Kentucky's elk herd now numbers approximately 1,200 animals in 14 counties in Southeastern Kentucky.

Biologists expect that numerous older bulls will be sparring and bugling to gather cows into harems for the breeding season.

This activity makes for spectacular observation of wild animals displaying their natural tendencies — activities that until recently haven't been seen in Kentucky for more than 150 years.

The guided tours will be limited to 25 people a day, and will run on September 8, 9, 15, 16, 22, 23, 29 and 30.

To participate, observers must contact the KDFWR and pre-register for a specific date. Call (800) 858-1549 weekdays between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to register. There is no charge for the tour; however, participants will be required to provide their own transportation to the tour site.

Later this fall, the first elk hunt in Kentucky in 150 years will take place. Twelve people will participate.

WWII vets without high school diplomas could receive them under Rep. Bruce's bill FRANKFORT — After more than 55 years, Kentucky veterans who left high school to serve their country in World War II may receive their diploma under a bill filed today by State Rep. Jim Bruce.

Bruce, D-Hopkinsville, says the bill would show Kentucky's appreciation for those military veterans who left home and school to help restore world peace by awarding a high school diploma to them.

The bill would require Kentucky's commissioner of education to award a diploma to honorably-discharged World War II veterans who were enrolled in, but did not finish, high school before being inducted into the service.

"Other states have done this, and I intend to see Kentucky does, too," said Bruce. "This is one way we can express our gratitude for what has been called 'The Greatest Generation.'"

The state's estimated 82,000 living World War II veterans were among 306,362 Kentuckians who served in the war. Of those more than 306,000 veterans, 7,932 lost their lives in the war.

Tackett back to baseball without basketball

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

LEXINGTON — The last time Todd Tackett played organized baseball was his junior year of high school. He played for Paintsville High School. Tackett, a reserve guard on the University of Kentucky basketball team for the past two seasons, plans on getting back into baseball. He wants to play professional baseball.

The desire to play baseball has overwhelmed Tackett. The former Paintsville Tiger averaged just six minutes a game in his hoops career with the Wildcats. He was an all-state basketball player at Paintsville. Tackett was seemingly head to Clemson University before taking an offer from UK. The chance of actually holding a prominent role on the UK basketball team was something Tackett never saw in his two seasons.

The player's father also saw very little hope in his son playing much more this season. "With Keith Bogans and Rashaad Carruth back, there wasn't going to be much playing time," said Jerry Tackett said.

Todd Tackett was not present Wednesday when the UK basketball team took pictures. Lexington agent Dick Robinson has been enlisted to help Todd Tackett in his pursuit of a pro baseball career.

Todd Tackett will stay in school at UK while pursuing a degree in political science. While playing basketball for the Wildcats Todd Tackett averaged 0.9 points.

Oklahoma native John Goodner hopes to get the UK defense back on track.

Will the UK defense step up this season?

New defensive coordinator Goodner hopes so

by CLIFF SMITH

LEXINGTON — Under Hal Mumme's close confidants and defensive coordinator, the University of Kentucky football team consistently completed season after season as the Southeastern Conference's worst defense.

UK was at or near the bottom of the conference nearly every year in scoring defense, rushing defense, passing defense, first downs yielded and interceptions made.

Last year, UK ranked 12th out of 12 SEC teams in scoring defense, pass defense, pass efficiency defense and interceptions. It ranked 10th out of 12 in rushing defense.

UK last year gave up 49 touchdowns, an average of over 404 yards per game, and an average of 34 points per game. It registered for the entire season, only five interceptions. Six individual players in the SEC had that many or more.

Enter John Goodner, new defensive coordinator. A native of Snyder, Oklahoma, he was an all-state quarterback and linebacker. In his collegiate playing career, he was an All-Conference linebacker at Southwestern Oklahoma State.

After 15 years as a high school coach, he spent 11 years coaching on the defensive side of the ball at Baylor University. Baylor in those 11 years had eight winning seasons and played in five bowl

FIRST GAME...

HOME OPENER: PAINTSVILLE AT PRESTONSBURG

PRESTONSBURG — Just days away. Five days away. The Paintsville Tigers will pay a visit to Prestonsburg Friday night to take on the Blackcats. The Friday night game will be the first on Prestonsburg's new field.

Everyone with the field project continued working at a feverish pitch this week, hoping to have everything together in time for the home opener. The game will be the first head-to-head meeting between Prestonsburg Coach John DeRossett and Paintsville Coach David LeMaster. Both have impressive coaching resumes. Both were assistants under very good head coaches — DeRossett at Belfry under his high school coach Philip Haywood and LeMaster at Lawrence County under fellow Paintsville High alum Chuke Williams.

LeMaster was coached by legendary Tiger Coach Walter Brugh.

Kickoff for Friday's game is set for 7:30 p.m.

PRESTONSBURG FLAG FOOTBALL

Registration for Prestonsburg Flag Football will be held Tuesday from 6 to 8 p.m. at Archer Park at the shelter next to Wilcox Field. The league is open to children in grades K-2. The registration fee is $35. For more information, contact Jeff Sloan at 606/886-1201.

Billy Reed: Needlepointers needed

TIMES COLUMNIST

While reading The Courier-Journal earlier this week, I stumbled upon a phrase that I never dreamed I would ever see in print. The phrase is this: "Irate needlepointers." As humor columnist Dave Barry might put it, I am not making this up.

The outfit that turned the needlepointers into militants is the Louisville Slugger Museum at the corner of 8th and Main in downtown Louisville. In an effort to promote its huge collection of historic and valuable baseball bats, the museum put up a billboard on west-bound Interstate-64 that bore the message: "More old bats than a needlepoint convention." Pretty funny, right? Well, certain needlepointers didn't think so.

Taking up their cudgels — or needles, as the case may be — they let the museum know what they could do with its billboard, leading the museum to paint over all the words except "old bats." Yet you can still see the original message if you look hard enough.

At least the needlepointers didn't organize a commando group to attack the Hillerich & Bradsby headquarters. Otherwise, H & B president Jack Hillerich might have been punctured by so many needles that he would have resembled a human porcupine.

Who would have ever guessed that needlepointers could be so hos-

EASTERN — Coach Larry Maynard's Allen Central volleyball team hosted Pikeville in a match Thursday night. The Allen Central junior varsity took game one from the visiting Lady Panthers, 15-7. Pikeville managed just two scores in the second game of the JV match to fall 15-2.

Allen Central's varsity squad beat the Pikeville High varsity in two straight games by identical 15-11 scores to post a victory.

Allen Central was back in action yesterday at a tournament in Feds Creek. The tournament included host Feds Creek, Allen Central and Letcher County power Whitesburg.

Olinger scores on long touchdown play in UC's first scrimmage

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

WEST HARRISON, Ind. — Quarterback John Leonard threw a pair of touchdown passes and Jon Olinger, LaDaris Vann and DeMarco McCleskey each added long touchdown plays to lead a five-touchdown effort by the University of Cincinnati offense in its first preseason scrimmage on Saturday at the Higher Ground Retreat and Conference Center in West Harrison, Ind.

Leonard, who is one of six players competing for the open starting quarterback position, completed six-of-nine passes for 162 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

Herd's Yates strong contender for Butkus

TIMES STAFF REPORT

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. — There are apparently going to be a lot of eyes on Marshall's star linebacker Max Yates this season.

After having been named to the Watch List for the Rotary Lombardi Award, which goes to the outstanding lineman in the country, earlier this summer by the Rotary Club of Houston, Yates has now been named by the Downtown Athletic Club of Orlando to the watch list for the Butkus Award, presented annually to the top linebacker in the nation.

A total of 69 preliminary candidates for the award were named to the watch list. That list will be trimmed to 10 semifinalists on October 18 and then cut to three finalists

Michael, Hilltopper offense manage 3 scores in scrimmage

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

BOWLING GREEN — The Western Kentucky University football team's defense held the offense scoreless for just over 29 minutes Wednesday and allowed only three touchdowns in three quarters during the Hilltoppers' final pre-season scrimmage at L.T. Smith Stadium/Jimmy Feix Field. Back for the Hilltopper offense is a familiar face many area high school football fans will remember.

Former Lawrence County Bulldog Jason Michael, a transfer from Army, guided the Hilltopper offense from under center. Michael played his high school football for Chuke Williams.

Joseph Jefferson and Hayes Thomas each had nine tackles to lead the defense, with Jefferson collecting two tackles for loss including a sack. Tyreese Lawless, Karl Maslowski and Kris Mau added seven stops apiece. Brian Lowder had the only interception of the day and Mel Mitchell added a fumble on November 8. The winner will be announced on December 7 at the Butkus Award Gala at the Hard Rock Cafe at Universal Studios CityWalk in Orlando.

This year's Watch List includes 69 noteworthy candidates that represent schools and conferences from across the nation. The independent selection committee for the 2001 Butkus Award, comprised of 28 of the nation's foremost national media members, is solely responsible for all voting in the selection process. Selection Committee members have already started evaluating the candidates and will continue their review throughout the entire football season.

There are 14 candidates making their second appearance on the Butkus Award Watch List: Andra Davis (Florida), Ben Leber (Kansas State), Boss Bailey (Georgia), Bradie James (LSU), Eddie Strong (Mississippi), Eric Brackens (Michigan), Justin Smith (Indiana), Larry Foote (Michigan), Max Yates (Marshall), Pernell Griffin (East Carolina), Robert Thomas (UCLA), Saleem Rasheed (Alabama) Rocky Calmus

(Oklahoma) and Trev Faulk (LSU). Temple's Taylor Suman and Colorado's Jashon Sykes are both on their third consecutive Butkus Award Watch List.

The Butkus Award is regarded as one of the most elite individual honors in college football. Past recipients include such outstanding linebackers as Dan Morgan (2000, Miami, FL); LaVar Arrington (1999, Penn State); Chris Claiborne (1998, Southern California); Andy Katzenmoyer (1997, Ohio State); Matt Russell (1996, Colorado); Kevin Hardy (1995, Illinois); Dana Howard (1994, Illinois); Trev Alberts (1993, Florida State); Erick Anderson (1991, Michigan); Alfred Williams (1990, Colorado); Percy Snow (1989, Michigan State); Derrick Thomas (1988, Alabama); Paul McGowan (1997, Florida State); and Brian Bosworth (1985 and 1986, Oklahoma).

Created in 1985 by the Downtown Athletic Club of Orlando Inc., the Butkus Award carries the name and support of one of the greatest middle linebackers in football history, Dick Butkus.

Playing with mostly the first offensive unit, Leonard led the Bearcats on a three-play, 70-yard scoring drive to begin the scrimmage. He found McCleskey on a 51-yard pass on the second play of the scrimmage to set up a five-yard touchdown pass to Robert Drewery. On his second series, Leonard completed a 61-yard scoring toss to Vann, who made the catch near the line of scrimmage and broke several tackles on the way to the score. Olinger, who caught just three passes a year ago, sparked the receiving unity by catching a pair of touchdown passes totaling 60 yards. He hauled in a 14-yard score from freshman Gino Guidugli at the midway point of the session and then came back on the next series to add a 46-yard touchdown score from freshman George Murray.

Guidugli completed five-of-11 passes for 87 yards and a touchdown while Murray was two-for-five for 50 yards with one interception and a touchdown. Senior Adam Hoover was six-of-16 for 55 yards.

Ohio State transfer and former Wyoming High (Ohio) running back Richard Hall, who will not be eligible to play until the 2002 season, led the rushing unit with 92 yards on 14 carries while DeMarco McCleskey added 50 yards on six carries, including a 20-yard touchdown, and a pair of catches for 80 yards.

The defense got on the scoreboard when linebacker Willis Edwards forced Tedric Harwell to fumble and Blue Adams returned it 62-yards for a touchdown. Cornerback Zach Norton was responsible for the only other turnover when he intercepted a George Murray pass midway through the scrimmage.

The defensive line was responsible for six sacks with freshman Andre Frazier leading the way with two.

"This was your typical first scrimmage," head coach Rick Minter said. "I was happy with the effort that we showed on both sides of the ball and that shows that we are getting closer to being ready for the opener on Sept. 2. "There were some very strong efforts on both sides of the ball and the offense showed it has the ability to put some points on the board. I am concerned because there were too many offensive penalties and even though that is usually the case early in camp, we cannot have that happen when the season starts.

"The quarterbacks played well today and that shows that they are rising to the challenge. They threw almost 50 passes with just one interception and that came on a deflection. "After 11 practices we're on schedule. I think we saw good things on the field and we'll go back and take a look at the tapes and make adjustments to things we didn't do so well. Overall, I would say that we accomplished our mission. We were able to run a 120-play scrimmage, evaluate the 100 or so players that we have in camp and not suffer any serious injuries," Minter added.

The Bearcats will take today off from practice and resume practicing on Monday. They will hold their second preseason scrimmage on at 2 p.m. on Wednesday afternoon in Nippert Stadium. They will open the 2001 season on Sunday, Sept. 2 against defending Big Ten champion Purdue beginning at 2:30 p.m. in Nippert Stadium.

Paintsville takes first at UCA camp

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

MOREHEAD - Paintsville junior high cheerleaders won first-place in the cheer championship competition at UCA cheer camp at Morehead State University.

The PJH cheerleaders attended UCA cheer camp at the MSU July 24-27. PJH cheerleaders were taught new cheers, sidelines stunts and dances throughout the week.

Tiger cheerleaders Alicia Natarte and Mikka Ratliff entered the jump competition and were successful. Both received ribbons for making it to the top five in the competition. Natarte won Grand Champion Jumper and was awarded a crown and a ribbon.

Jessica Grimm, Brittany Slayer, Alicia Natarte and Mikka Ratliff were chosen as all-stars, and received medals for their feats. Both are now eligible to be in the Thanksgiving Day parade in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania with other UCA All-Stars. The girls participated in many fun activities throughout the week. Activities included a talent show and a Spirit Day. Sarah Cyrus sang a song she had written for the talent show, while Whitney Preston performed the amazing feat of breaking her jaw.

The PJH cheerleaders were evaluated each evening on their performance of the cheers and dances learned during the week. The girls received blue ribbons for their performances.

Paintsville Junior High cheerleaders stayed on campus the MSU campus in Nunn

Hall during the week of camp and enjoyed the experience of college living.

On Friday, the final day of the camp, an exhibition competition was held at MSU's Laughter Gym. Parents were invited to attend the exhibition. During the final evaluation, girls did three cheers, three sidelines, three stunts, and two dances. Gold superior ribbons were awarded.

Each squad was judged on a cheer and dance performed before parents and other cheerleaders. The PJH cheerleaders will cheer for the Paintsville Junior High football and basketball teams.

Go Herd Card available for fall sports

by STEVE LeMASTER SPORTS EDITOR

University of Marshall sports fans have yet another great opportunity in front of them. Marshall sports fans looking to get more bang for their buck this year have a new way to support the Thundering Herd and save money at the same time.

The Marshall Athletic Ticket Office is making this all possible with the Go Herd Card, a fall Olympic Sports Pass that will be your ticket to more than 25 home athletic events.

The new Go Herd card will be renewable each year with purchasers receiving one priority point from the Big Green each year. That is the same as for football and men's basketball tickets.

The card, with a regular price value of $135, is available for only $40 for adults and $25 for children.

In addition to gaining admission to ever home volleyball and men's and women's soccer match, the card is also good for a 10 percent discount off retail merchandise at the new Hall of Fame Cafe in Huntington.

For more information, or to purchase your Go Herd Card for the fall, contact the Marshall ticket office at 1-800-THE-HERD or contact Brian Citti, Assistant Director of Marketing and Promotions, at 304/696-7055.

recovery - both turnovers came in the first half.

Jason Johnson led all rushers with 106 yards and a touchdown, and Keith Brooks added 93 yards and two scores to highlight the offense. Johnson also hit Donte Pimpleton on a 45-yard touchdown pass with 12 seconds remaining in the first half for the only score through the air. Pimpleton finished with a team-high three receptions for 55 yards, 49 yards on 12 carries rushing, and he completed a 29-yard pass to Shannon Hayes on the opening drive.

"We ran the ball well especially early, but couldn't put it in the end zone," said head coach Jack Harbaugh. "The defense bent but didn't break, just like they did last year. They are notorious for not starting fast, but when they get a feel for the tempo of the game and the blocking schemes used against them, they adjust very well."

"Our special teams also performed very well. We got out of this scrimmage what we needed to."

The offense reached the end zone on its first two possessions, but couldn't convert on 3rd down and settled for field-goal attempts. The Topper defense then forced a pair of Brian Claybourn punts before setting up the offense with consecutive turnovers. Brooks got the offense on the board with 57 seconds left in the first half, scoring from 3 yards out to cap an eight-play, 40-yard drive. Michael kept the drive alive with a quarterback keeper for 4 yards on 3rd-and-4 in the red-zone and set up the score with a 6-yard pass to Pimpleton that put the ball on the 3-yard line. Western's offense then needed only four plays and 45 seconds to drive the ball 60 yards for another touchdown. Johnson began the possession with a 9-yard pass to Carlos Smith before throwing an incomplection. Brooks picked up a first down with a 6-yard carry, then Johnson stepped up in the pocket and hit Pimpleton at the 10-yard line, who continued untouched into the end zone - it was the longest pass play of the evening.

"We don't practice the two-minute offense much," Harbaugh said. "But, this is something we should build on."

The defense didn't allow another score until Brooks reached the end zone on 3rd-and-goal from the 9-yard line with 41 seconds to go in the third quarter, capping a seven-play, 38-yard drive - a key play in the possession was Brooks' 24-yard run down the left sideline on 4th down. "Keith's performance was most impressive tonight," said Harbaugh. "He came out late after class and took a little while to warm up. I was very pleased with the way he pounded the ball upfield, that's what Keith needs to do to be successful. We hadn't seen Keith play like this in a while."

Johnson added a 36-yard touchdown run and Curtis Hamilton scored on a 45-yard dash for the final points in the fourth quarter. Hamilton finished with 62 yards rushing, DeWayne Gallishaw 46 and Getty Cavitt 42. Hayes and Antonio Veals caught two passes each.

"After a scrimmage you're never where you want to be," Harbaugh said. "But we've worked hard all fall, had great leadership from our seniors and battled the heat in August. My concern now is that we heal some of the players who have been nicked up in the last few weeks as we head into the Western Illinois game."

games. As a linebackers' coach, he developed five All-Southwest Conference linebackers.

After Grant Teaff retired as Baylor head coach, Goodner went to Texas Tech, where he was initially linebackers coach and then defensive coordinator. During his tenure at Texas Tech, it never had a losing season and played in five bowl games.

In 1995, his first as defensive coordinator at Texas Tech, his defense ranked third in the nation in pass efficiency defense, 19th in turnover margin, and 24th in scoring defense.

In 1998, his defense ranked eighth in the nation in scoring defense, yielding a combined 285 yards per game.

Teaff, later Director of the American Football Coaches Association, said of Goodner:

"First, John is one of the finest men I've ever been around. He has impeccable integrity and is just a tremendous person. Second, John is one of the top two or three coaches I've been around in my lifetime of coaching."

tile? The billboard played on the stereotype that most needlepointers are probably old enough to have seen Babe Ruth or Ty Cobb swing their Louisville Slugger bats. Think about the needlepointers you know in your town. How many are old bats and how many are young bats?

My daughter, Susan, is a needlepointer. I have a very nice belt that she did for me years ago. She's hardly an old bat. But maybe she's the exception instead of the rule. Personally, I believe that needlepointing, like baseball, is an endeavor that has no generational boundaries.

So here are some slogans that the Louisville Slugger Museum might want to substitute for the one that turned needlepointers into angry, defiant protest marchers:

- More old bats than a haunted house.
- More old bats than an AARP convention.
- More old bats than lunchtime at the local cafeteria.
- More old bats than a gathering of widows at the local country club.
- More old bats than the audience at an Englebert Humperdinck concert.

If the Slugger Museum people have imagination and a sense of humor, they could turn this brouhaha into a positive. Announce a contest for best needlepoint about baseball. Bring in Pete Rose to be the judge. Give the winner two season tickets, behind home plate, to Louisville RiverBats' games in 2002.

Then all the entries could be auctioned off, with half the proceeds going to the needlepointer, and half to the Museum. Personally, I'd be interested in having a needlepoint pillow of Ted Kluszewski, my all-time favorite Reds' player. Other works could be dedicated to Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Jackie Robinson, Tony Gwynn, Cal Ripken, or Harry Carey. Heck, somebody may even want to buy a John Rucker needlepoint.

At least, there's a lesson here for all of us. Needles may have more clout than baseball bats, so respect your local needlepointers. Give them a wide berth. You can never be sure when an outwardly docile needlepointer will turn into Hillary Clinton or Rosie O'Donnell or a professional wrestler. The government might want to consider a needlepoint SWAT team to go after Saddam Hussein.

Consider yourself warned.

championships selection criteria and clarified the scoring average and strength-of-schedule criteria. The committee issued a reminder to coaches that selections are made based on the complete evaluation of all criteria. If the rankings cannot be determined once all the criteria are evaluated, then the selection criteria will be prioritized in the following order: head-to-head competition within the region; win/loss record both in the region and overall; comparison with common opponents; scoring average (adjusting scoring average and team and individual stroke average and score vs. par); strength of schedule (quality of the field, number of teams in tournaments and the number of rounds in tournaments); spring results compared to fall results; and eligibility and availability of student-athletes.

The committee also discussed options for bracket expansion. It expects to forward a recommendation to the Division III Championships Committee after the August chairs' meeting at which selection principles and automatic qualification will be discussed.

In other action, the committee discussed implementation of the weather guidelines to include professionally trained personnel on site during the championship. Currently a weather detection system is on site; however, there is a lack of trained professionals on site to assist in analyzing the weather data.

The group also reviewed plans for the 2002 championship at Mount Holyoke.

Finally, the committee acknowledged the contributions of longtime committee member and chair Michelle Morgan of Amherst College and recommended that Marilyn Mauer of Kalamazoo College serve as the new chair.

KCTCS receives national grant to enhance technology programs

LEXINGTON - A prestigious national grant will assist the Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS) in increasing the enrollment and success of students in technology programs.

The National Science Foundation (NSF) has awarded KCTCS a three-year grant totaling $462,276 to develop an Advanced Technology Education (ATE) program modeled after an NSF national center of excellence. With KCTCS contributions and matching funds, the project will total about $750,000.

Goals of the project include:

- Developing pre-technology curriculum to serve under-prepared students.
- Adapting freshman year courses to accommodate industrial and engineering technology programs.
- Increasing faculty expertise.
- Designing and implementing an integrated curriculum in math, communications, English and physics.

■ Involve employers to ensure that the curriculum meets workforce needs. Workers with technology skills are in high demand by business and industry.

"Adapting the national model to Kentucky has the potential to increase the quality, quantity, retention, diversity and graduation rates of engineering technology students enrolled in our 28 community and technical colleges," said Michael B. McCall, president of KCTCS.

"This project fits very appropriately with our mission to enhance access, increase enrollment and retention and ensure the rigor, relevance and effectiveness of our programs," McCall said. The KCTCS project is called "Adapting a Proven Pre-Engineering Technology Program in Kentucky."

KCTCS is matching the NSF grant with $180,000 of its own resources. Also, in the Ashland District of KCTCS, the funding is being matched with a $100,000 gift from Speedway and the Ashland Inc. Foundation to develop technology education. The Ashland District includes Ashland Community College and Ashland Technical College.

The Ashland District has announced that the project there will support the following technical programs: Industrial

College CALENDAR

Pianist David Syme performs in free concert Sept. 6

Concert pianist David Syme will be in concert Thursday, Sept. 6 at 7 p.m. in the Felner Center of Hazard Community College. Admission is free.

Syme's performance will kick off the Greater Hazard Area Performing Arts Series. During the evening, the series will dedicate its new grand piano to honor those who assisted in the purchase.

David Syme is returning to Hazard for a repeat performance. He could play anything he heard at the tender age of three, and was self-taught for the next 11 years, learning to read music. At the age of 13 he began formal training. The European press calls him a "Rubens of the piano, a performer of leaping fire, of sparkling temperament and dedication." Syme commands a vast repertoire and is as convincing in Bach, Mozart, and Beethoven as in Liszt and Rachmaninoff. He is perhaps best known for his stunning renditions of the 19th century Romantics, particularly Chopin.

Event sponsors are Citizens National Bank and First National Bank of Jackson. Call 436-5721 or 800-246-7521, ext. 8067 for more information.

Small business workshop

Morehead State University's Small Business Development Center will hold a workshop, "Home-Based Business, a Guide for Women," at the Action Place in Booneville, 6-8 p.m., on Tuesday. Admission is free.

Additional information can be obtained by calling (606) 666-2800, (800) 729-5225 or (606) 593-7296.

HTC offers night and Saturday classes

Hazard Technical College is now offering extended hour program offerings beginning September 4.

The following classes will meet in the evening hours: Welding, computer fundamentals, EMT (emergency medical technician), basic heating and air conditioning

General mechanics classes will meet on alternate Saturdays.

Registration for these classes will be held until September 5 with extended registration hours on Thursday, August 30, from 4 to 8 p.m.

These classes will be for college credit and qualifying participants will be eligible for financial aid.

For more information, please contact Hazard Technical College at (606) 435-6101, extension 8349 or (800) 246-5721.

Area students attend UK science camp

LEXINGTON — Douglas Scott Howard, the son of Doug and Priscilla Howard, of Topmost, and Tabatha E. Tackett, the daughter of James and Lisa Tackett, of Hi Hat, recently attended the University of Kentucky Science Camp for Rural and Appalachian Middle Students (SCRAMS). The two-week residential summer camp is for rising ninth grade students from rural and Appalachian Kentucky counties. Students selected for the camp attend science and health-related workshops and seminars as well as conduct experiments focusing on anatomy and physiology.

The pre-college initiative is funded by the Howard Hughes Medical Institute (HHMI) and was developed to provide students with the opportunity to gain appreciation for science and health. The program is under the direction of Donald Frazier, Ph.D., professor in the UK College of Medicine.

Health Career Program at EKU

Tara Ortega, of Floyd County, is among the 30 students enrolled in Eastern Kentucky University's Health Careers Opportunity Program. The program seeks to attract Appalachian students into health science disciplines and prepare them for productive careers in the region. The program includes a special effort to prepare the students in the sciences, mathematics and study skills. This summer, the HCOP students participated in a six-week, non-credit enrichment course designed to acclimate them to campus life, inform them about health career programs at EKU and prepare them for upcoming academic work. For more information about applying for the program, call 859-622-8207 or visit the program's website, www.hcop.eku.edu.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation to be the exclusive sponsor of the American Bald Eagle

MOREHEAD — Morehead State University has signed an agreement with the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation to be the exclusive sponsor of the American Bald Eagle exhibit at the Salato Wildlife Education Center in Frankfort.

A joint announcement is scheduled for Thursday, August 23, at 5 p.m., at the Center, located at the headquarters of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources on U.S. 60 west of Frankfort. The 132-acre recreational complex also is known as the Game Farm. The ceremony is free and open to the public.

"We are delighted to have this opportunity to support the wonderful work of the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation at the Salato Center," said MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin. "In addition to being our national symbol, the bald eagle has been the majestic mascot of our institution for nearly 80 years. We consider it a privilege to link the name of MSU with this living exhibit."

"We are pleased to add Morehead State to our list of supporters of this beautiful facility," said Andy Hills of Lexington, president of the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation. "More than 80,000

A new academic year is upon us and the excitement at Pikeville College is more evident than ever before. New programs of study have been added to the curriculum and student enrollment is up. These, along with the football program and the new Pikeville College Community Technology Center, all help to make the College an important part of Pike County's development.

In 1996, Pikeville College's technology department consisted of two small computer labs and one very slow computer connected to the Internet. I have been blessed to be a small part of the technology explosion at Pikeville College that has made us one of the most technologically advanced campuses in our part of the country.

Five years ago, the Office of Information Technology consisted of - well - just me. Currently, we have 14 full-time staff members and three students in our Student Technical Assistance (STA) Program. The needs of our undergraduate students, combined with those of the Pikeville College School of Osteopathic Medicine (PCSOM) and the community-at-large, have dictated our growth.

Pikeville College's primary commitment is to its students. Recent advances in technology have made being a student here more convenient, more educational, and more fun! We now offer Internet connections in all our residence halls and all students, faculty, and staff have the convenience of voice mail. Every semester, 15 to 20 students are employed in our campus computer labs as assistants, most of which are fulfilling their financial aid obligations.

Did you know that every new PCSOM student is issued a laptop computer? Students use laptops for research, to work with fellow students, and to maintain contact with the College community during their clinical rotations. The College's Osteopathic Telemedical Center enables students and faculty to use a distance-learning classroom to collaborate with hospitals and other medical schools via video networking. The Center also allows PCSOM personnel to provide telemedicine services to inmates for the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

A grant obtained last year made it possible for the College to put a computer on every full-time faculty member's desk. This has greatly enhanced the faculty's ability to use technology in the classroom and tailor lessons to the needs of today's students. Pikeville College has an educational technologist whose primary responsibility is to assist faculty in integrating technology into the classroom, and to train public school teachers to do the same. All education students are issued a laptop to use and keep upon graduation -making

Students from Hazard Community College for the first time ever had the opportunity to apply for the Ferguson Hanson Memorial Scholarship through the Lexington Clinic. The nursing students that were awarded this year were Charlene Lemaster of Magoffin County, Lees College campus, and Christie Mase of Leslie County, attending the Hazard campus. Charlene is shown above with HCC nursing faculty member Ludrenia Hagans.

Robinson participates in Appalachian science program

LEXINGTON — Kristie Robinson, the daughter of Jeffery and Kelly Robinson, of Martin, was a summer participant in the Kentucky Appalachian Science Enrichment Program (KASEP) that was conducted on the University of Kentucky campus.

KASEP is a five-week summer experience for students who represent underserved minority groups in health care professions from the eastern or central part of the United States. The program is structured to enhance each participant's scientific problem solving and critical thinking skills, according to Pamela Shaw, D.M.D., director of KASEP.

Participating students are rising high school sophomores. Those eligible include African-American, Native American and Appalachian students who have demonstrated an interest in pursuing a science or mathematics-related career and have technology an integral part of their teaching.

Pikeville College's primary commitment is to its students. Recent advances in technology have made being a student here more convenient, more educational, and more fun! We now offer Internet connections in all our residence halls and all students, faculty, and staff have the convenience of voice mail. Every semester, 15 to 20 students are employed in our campus computer labs as assistants, most of which are fulfilling their financial aid obligations.

KIOSK machines, located in four areas around the campus, are interactive information tools that allow users to access cam-pus activities, a campus map, local weather, sports schedules and other useful tools. The KIOSK machines also allow campus users to add monetary value to their SmartCard - a campus identification card that can be used to purchase meals, use vending machines, and check out books from Allara Library. Soon, the SmartCard will be used as a "key" to enter various locations on campus. The SmartCard system has many more features, which is being evaluated to make the card even more useful for our users.

Another exciting development is the College's Community Technology Center. Located on College Street, the center provides technological resources to both the Pikeville College community and the Pike County community-at-large. We have a video-conferencing facility, a large multi-purpose room, and a computer-training lab. The video-conferencing facility also serves as the CenterNet site for Pike County. For more information on this, visit <http://www.centertech.com>:

The multi-purpose room is adaptable to groups up to 60, and has state-of-the-art multi-media capabilities and 20 laptops with wireless connectivity to the College's network. Our computer-training lab has 15 computers and various peripherals. Business, education, and community groups in our region can use all of the facilities at the Community Technology Center. We encourage you to contact us for information on using these resources by calling the Pikeville College Information Technology Office at 218-5300 or e-mail at pcit@pc.edu. Information about Pikeville College can be obtained from our Web site <http://www.pc.edu>.

"We are grateful to have Speedway and the Ashland Foundation as partners in education," said Greg Adkins, ACC president and CEO of the Ashland District. "Our goal is to make it possible for more people in the area to enter college, learn technical careers and find good jobs."

The statewide project focuses on helping a more diverse population enroll in, and succeed in, technology courses. Project goals include reducing the time that students spend in remediation and improving students' preparation for the workforce and/or bachelor's degree programs at universities.

A core group of KCTCS colleges will serve as pilot sites. The project is expected to be operational in fall 2002 in the following KCTCS districts: Ashland, Jefferson, Maysville and Hopkinsville.

According to the grant application, the project will be implemented later in these KCTCS districts: West Kentucky, Bowling Green, Northern Kentucky, Bluegrass (Central Kentucky), Owensboro and Madisonville.

The KCTCS team members who worked on the project are Vince DiNoto, team leader, Jefferson Community College; Diane Calhoun-French, co-team leader, JCC; Paul Drake, co-team leader, JCC; Robbie Graves, Maysville Community College; Randy Wilson, Hopkinsville Community College; and Thomas Stanley, Ashland Technical College.

children have already visited the center this year. The visitors, guided by a trained biologist, will learn more about these animals, their habitats and where they are on the endangered list."

Under the agreement, MSU will pay $5,000 annually for the next five years to support the exhibit which currently includes two eagles. In exchange, the University will be identified as exhibit sponsor on official signage, and certain MSU-branded merchandise will be sold at the Center's gift shop.

The Salato Wildlife Education Center was established to educate Kentucky's children about native plants and animal species. The Center offers a variety of educational resources, such as interactive exhibits, touch-screen computers and aquariums. The wildlife exhibit features animals indigenous to the state, living in their natural habitat.

The Center is open year round, daily, except for Monday. Admission is free and open to the public.

Kentucky Career Choice Council donates classroom equipment to KCTCS

LEXINGTON — The Kentucky Construction Career Choice Council (KCCCC) is partnering with the Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS) to enhance instruction for students in carpentry programs in KCTCS colleges.

KCCCC, which comprises construction industry organizations, has donated Construction Master Pro calculators and TrimJoist stress analysis software kits to each of 13 KCTCS colleges.

The calculators, manufactured by Calculated Industries, simplify calculations such as dimensional math (roof and stair parts), metric system conversions, pitches and angles, and board-foot lumber estimates. They are used by builders, general contractors, construction foremen or superintendents, carpenters, framing contractors, concrete/foundation contractors and other construction professionals.

The stress analysis software, donated and manufactured by TrimJoist, helps determine the types of floor trusses and beams that need to be used in the home or other structure to support the load of the building and its occupants.

Robert Riggs of Riggs Sales Service, a member of the Home Builders Association of Kentucky (HBAK), worked in conjunction with Calculated Industries and TrimJoist to provide the donations, which are valued at $2,200.

The items will be donated to the following KCTCS technical colleges: Ashland, Bowling Green, Central Kentucky (Lexington), Elizabethtown, Hazard, Jefferson, Laurel, Madisonville, Mayo, Northern Kentucky, Owensboro, Rowan and West Kentucky (Paducah).

The carpentry programs in the colleges prepare students for employment in the construction of houses and commercial structures. This program includes blueprint reading, site layout, foundation work, rough framing, roofing, and finishing work skills. Cost estimation and preparation of materials lists, as well as practical experiences in the shop and on-site, are included.

"This generous donation will assist in ensuring the relevance of instruction in our carpentry programs," said Michael B. McCall, president of KCTCS. "Such partnerships with business and industry are a key to the success of KCTCS."

Murray Riffe, a member of HBAK and chairman of the KCCCC, said, "This is the first time that industry has made this type of donation, but it definitely won't be the last. KCCCC will continue to help KCTCS colleges and students succeed by providing the best tools and equipment possible."

Mike Strickland, associate professor of history at Hazard Community College, was named for investiture in The Legion of Honor of The Chapel of Four Chaplains by the National Board of Directors of the Vietnam Veterans of America Inc. He was honored during the Vietnam Veterans of America 10th national convention. He was honored for his many years of service to the veteran community of Kentucky, particularly the Vietnam generation and especially for his service to all veterans through his career as an educator. Strickland's steadfast and untiring work for veterans of all eras and wars has accounted for great strides in the provision of entitlements to the veterans of Kentucky needing them most through his work as an veterans' advocate and educator, noted a Veterans spokesperson.

Chair of the Department of Management, Marketing and Real Estate at Morehead State University

MOREHEAD — Dr. Robert Daniel Hatfield, associate professor of management, has been named chair of the Department of Management, Marketing and Real Estate at Morehead State University.

He succeeds Peggy Osborne, associate professor of marketing, who has returned to full-time teaching.

A faculty member in the College of Business since 1997, Dr. Hatfield received the college's 1999-2000 Deans Award for Teaching. Described as an innovator in using online technology in the classroom, he recently led a Human Resource Management class for a job evaluation and review project with the Fleming County Hospital. On the campus, he was highly involved in helping to create a local chapter for the Society for Human Resource Management, which now meets regularly.

Dr. Hatfield has co-authored six referred journal articles and three textbooks, including "Human Resource Management in South Africa" with Pearson Publishing. He has presented numerous papers at scholarly conferences and has led various seminars and training programs, including the preparation of the Human Resources staff from MSU, St. Claire Hospital, and other local employers in becoming certified Human Resources Professionals.

A participant on the University's Student Life, Academic Standards and Appeals committees, Dr. Hatfield is chair of the Faculty Development and Intellectual Contributions committee, and a member of the American Association of Colleges and Schools of Business Accreditation (AACSB) committee, both in the College of Business.

Before joining MSU's faculty, Dr. Hatfield was an associate professor at West Virginia State College and the University of Louisville, and was an instructor at Bellarmine College. While a doctoral student at Indiana University, he was an associate instructor in the management department.

A former manager of industrial relations/personnel for the Fortune-500 Marley Company, he has also been a management consultant for various firms and an arbitrator/mediator in union and labor relations. Some may say it is ironic that Dr. Hatfield serves as a mediator since he claims heritage to the "feuding" Hatfields of West Virginia.

Dr. Hatfield, earned a Ph.D. degree in management with a minor in the public policy from IU and a Juris Doctor (J.D.) degree from U of L School of Law, where he was the winner of the National Book Award in Administrative Law. An honors program graduate at Western Kentucky University, he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in speech communication with minors in government and mass communications.

He is a member of the Academy of Management, Midwest Academy of Management, Southwest Federation for Administrative Disciplines, Allied Academies and the Gateway Chapter of the Society for Human Resource Management.

Telecommunications Training Available For Information Age Jobs

Telecommunications is one of the fastest growing industries in the United States and Eastern Kentuckians are preparing themselves for the jobs in this dynamic marketplace. A new certificate program is being offered at the Pikeville Campus of Mayo Technical College/Prestonsburg Community College and at Hazard Technical College that will prepare students for jobs in the telecommunications field.

In cooperation with numerous telecommunications companies in Eastern Kentucky, the schools have prepared a curriculum that teaches basic electricity, workplace principles, safety in the workplace, industrial computer applications and basic installation and maintenance and mechanics of telephony. The mechanics of telephony includes 45 hours of pole climbing instruction.

Students will be able to obtain the certificate in one semester. In addition, students will receive test taking training to assist them in the job application process. Classes begin August 27 and end on December 14. If you want more information on this program, please contact Brian Staley in Pikeville at 606-218-2134, Harold Burton in Paintsville at 606-789-5321 or Danny Ingram in Hazard at 606-435-6101.

For general information about registration and requirements, please call 606-218-2060.

Morehead State University President Ronald G. Eaglin presented the Appalachian Treasure Award to Melvin Goins, of Catlettsburg, a performer of Appalachian mountain and bluegrass music for more than 50 years. Eaglin presented Goins with a handmade rocker, the tangible symbol of the award, which is given annually to recognize dedication in promoting and preserving the cultural heritage of Appalachia. Goins performs with the legendary Lonesome Pine Fiddlers and Windy Mountain. He is a member of MSU's Kentucky Center for Traditional Music board of directors.

MSU names Regional Honors Scholarship recipients

MOREHEAD — Three Floyd County students have been selected to receive a Regional Honors Scholarship for the 2001 fall semester program at Morehead State University.

Janet E. Austin, of Prestonsburg, the daughter of Bruce and NavaJo Austin, and a graduate of Prestonsburg High School is one recipient of the regional scholarship. Austin, a member of the National Honor Society, also won the zoology/botany and algebra I awards at her high school. She performed skits for elementary students in working with the Champions for Drugs organization, and also performed with the Mountain Harmony Handbell Choir at Highlands Regional Medical Center and in small wind ensemble for patients at McDowell ARH.

Amber D. Bilter, of Grethel, the daughter of John and Scarlett Bilter, is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School. She was listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students" for four consecutive years.

Maggie Cook, of Bevinville, the daughter of Quincy and Lorraine Cook, is a graduate of South Floyd High School. Listed in the top 10 percent of her graduating class, she was president of the senior class and Student Council. Cook also participated in a local food drive.

To be eligible for the Regional Honors Scholarship, applicants must be admitted to MSU as entering freshmen; be a high school graduate within MSU's Kentucky service region; be recommended by their high school; be the highest or second highest ranking academic achiever from that high school coming to MSU, and have a cumulative 3.50 high school grade point average based on seven semesters of work.

Applications and information on scholarships and grant programs at MSU are available from the Office of Admissions, MSU, Morehead, KY 40351-1689. The toll-free number is (800) 585-MSU1 (6781).

Monica Majmundar

Majmundar studies in Europe

FLORENCE, Italy — Piast School graduate and Transylvania University senior Monica Majmundar recently studied in Italy as part of the Kentucky Institute for International Studies (KIIS) summer program and in England as part of the University of Cambridge's International Summer School program.

The KIIS program took place in Florence, an artistically vibrant city, and Rome, the historic Italian capitol. In Florence, Majmundar and fellow students had the opportunity to visit the most famous museums and sites in this Renaissance capitol such as the Uffizi galleries, Dante's house, and Ponte Vecchio. Exposure to the city of Rome also gave students the chance observe firsthand the diverse layers of Italy's cultural and artistic history.

In England, Majmundar was afforded the unique opportunity to study art history under recognized experts from galleries and the world of art historical research. The city of Cambridge boasts buildings spanning more than seven centuries and the Fitzwilliam Museum houses one of the best collections of paintings and decorative art in Britain. London's internationally renowned art collections are also easily accessible.

Majmundar, a biology major, is the daughter of Drs. Gopal and Mina Majmundar, of Martin.

AND YOU

Q If I retire at age 62 will I be eligible for Medicare at this time?

A No. Medicare benefits do not begin until a person is age 65. The exception would be for those entitled to Medicare at a younger age due to a disability. If you retire at age 62, you may be able to continue to have medical insurance coverage through your employer or through the employment of another family member. If not, you can purchase health insurance from a private insurance company so you will have coverage until you turn age 65 and become eligible for Medicare. You may wish to contact your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) to discuss your options. The number is 1-877-293-7447.

Q I am a retired Federal employee with health insurance under the Federal Employees Health Benefit Plan (FEHBP). Do I need to enroll in Medicare Part B?

A In deciding whether you need to enroll in Medicare Part B when you also have Federal Employees Health Benefit Plan (FEHBP) retiree health insurance, you need to find out how your specific FEHBP plan will work with Medicare. You should contact your FEHBP health plan and ask them how the plan works when you become entitled to Medicare and Medicare is the primary payer. For example:

- Some plans do not require that you enroll in Part B. The plan may cover all services that are considered "Part B services". This coverage may or may not be at additional cost.

- Some plans may require enrollment in Part B.

- Some plans may not require enrollment in Part B, but may offer incentives such as waiver of coinsurance if you do enroll.

- Other plans may only pay the 20 percent that Medicare would not pay if you had enrolled in Part B.

In addition, it is important to keep in mind that the FEHBP plan contracts are renewed every year. What applies today may not apply during the next year. Plans may change coverage, costs, or benefits. They can also terminate their contract with the Office of Personnel Management. You should consider these things when deciding whether to enroll in Part B.

The Office of Personnel Management has a booklet, FEHB & Medicare, which provides useful information to retiring Federal employees.

Helping hand from Mikrotec gives schools extra reason to 'like Mike'

HAROLD — With over 75,000 users in Kentucky, Mikrotec, Kentucky's premier Internet service provider and a division of Gearheart Communications, is reaching out to schools across Kentucky and West Virginia.

Between now and October 15, when you sign up for new service with Mikrotec, the company will donate $10 to the school system of your choice in either Kentucky or West Virginia. With new subscribers currently running at several hundred each month, local school systems are in-line for donations of potentially several thousand dollars.

Since Mikrotec's parent company, Gearheart Communications, is a leader in cutting edge technology, it only makes sense that the company would want to help local school children prepare for the future.

A new advertising campaign featuring the "I Like Mike" theme is launching in multiple markets in order to optimize each school system's chances of benefiting from this promotion. The "I Like Mike" campaign helps bring Mikrotec's personality to life, by characterizing the benefits that have made the ISP so popular.

Tongue-in-cheek billboard and newspaper ad copy, along with zany television spots slated for cable, make for a fresh departure from the norm, while radio spots will feature cases of mistaken identity. Nine live radio remotes are scheduled throughout the year at various towns and cities throughout Eastern Kentucky, including Cynthia, Mt. Sterling, Danville, Winchester, Hazard and Stanford.

The "I Like Mike" campaign also features a quarterly drawing for $1,000 in web cash or one of six other web cash prizes.

According to Paul D. Gearheart, vice president of Mikrotec, "With $10.00 per new sign-up going to help schools, in the end, everyone's a winner."

Kentucky Medical Association

More than 2,000 physicians, guests and allied health professionals are expected to attend the 151st annual meeting of the Kentucky Medical Association to be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel and the Kentucky International Convention Center in Louisville, September 10-12. At the meeting, the Kentucky Medical Association will celebrate its 150th Anniversary.

On Monday night, September 10, the Annual KEMPAC dinner will feature a presentation by Congressman Eric L. Fletcher, M.D., who represents Kentucky's Sixth Congressional District. Kentucky's 138 General Assembly members are also invited to attend the KEMPAC dinner.

"Foundation for the Future" is the scientific theme of the Meeting. The scientific program begins Tuesday, September 11, and concludes Wednesday, September 12. Tuesday morning's program features a presentation by Addison K. May, M.D., FACS, from Nashville, Tennessee, entitled "Emergence of Antibacterial Resistance." Wednesday morning's session will include a presentation entitled "Colorectal Cancer Screening and Surveillance" conducted by Douglas Rex, M.D., FACP, FACG, from Indianapolis, Ind. Another presentation, Wednesday morning, will feature Sean Nolan, MD, Pittsburgh, Penn., and is entitled "Type II Diabetes: Epidemic and Scourge of our Time." Twenty medical specialty societies will also conduct scientific sessions on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

The President's Luncheon on Wednesday, September 12, will honor William P. VonderHarr, M.D., 2000-2001 president. Other highlights of the luncheon will include the installation of the 2001-2002 KMA President, Donald R. Neel, M.D. of Owensboro, and presentation of KMA's Distinguished Service Award to Preston P. Nunnally, M.D., Lexington, and Community Service Award to Chandra M. Varia, M.D., Martin.

IT'S YOUR MONEY

by JONATHAN MILLER,
KENTUCKY STATE TREASURER

With the official launch of Kentucky's Affordable Prepaid Tuition (KAPT) only weeks away, the program is buzzing with new developments and initiatives. KAPT will soon make it easier for Kentucky families to afford a college education, by guaranteeing the cost of tomorrow's tuition at today's lower prices—all through a completely tax-free investment.

I write to update you—and ask for your help in spreading the word in time for our October 15 launch.

New Web site: This week, we are launching KAPT's new web site: www.getKAPT.com. Check it out today to learn more details about how the program will work, and about the options for your children and grandchildren. Within a few weeks, the web site will contain detailed price information for our Value, Standard and Premium plans. If you do not have web access, you can always reach us at our toll-free number, 888-919-KAPT.

KAPT Foundation: As pre-paid tuition programs in other states have demonstrated, KAPT's affordable monthly payment plans will open up college to thousands of new lower to middle class Kentuckians. Still, there are children KAPT cannot reach—from those families who have no savings to put aside. That's why we are establishing the KAPT Foundation to fund pre-paid tuition scholarships for these Kentucky youth. The foundation will be funded entirely by private contributions. For more information on the foundation, or to contribute to the program, check out www.getKAPT.com or call us at 888-919-KAPT.

KAPT Logo: As part of our extensive grassroots marketing campaign, we are asking Kentucky businesses and organizations to prominently display the new KAPT logo—on their internal communications, their promotional materials and their places of business. Join us in our efforts. The logo—which directs viewers to our web site and toll-free number—can be downloaded at www.getKAPT.com

House Parties: Our grassroots marketing effort will also involve hundreds of small house parties across the state, during which I or a KAPT representative will make a presentation about the program and answer questions of those in attendance. If you are interested in hosting 10-20 couples in your home sometime at your convenience this fall, e-mail us at rebecca.comley@mail.state.ky.us, or call us at 888-919-KAPT.

ARH announces Director of Business and Fund Development

Stephen Hanson, president and chief executive officer of Appalachian Regional Healthcare (ARH) recently announced the promotion of Charles Housley to the role of Executive Director, Business and Fund Development for the system. Prior to this, Housley had been serving ARH as Community CEO of Hazard/Perry County. Starting September 4, he will provide executive leadership in a number of areas that are key to advancing the ARH mission.

Hanson noted that Housley's responsibilities will include:

- Working with the new System Development Council, a Board-level body dedicated to "raising friends and funds" for ARH within and outside the ARH service area;

- Working with Hanson and the leadership team to continue positive relationships with local, state and federal government bodies that affect ARH;

- Developing new and expanded business opportunities; and

- Serving as ARH's advocate for chemical dependency prevention and treatment.

This position will be based at the ARH System Center-Hazard, continuing ARH's commitment to develop leadership jobs in its service area. "We are excited about having someone with Charles Housley's background and energy to fill this role in develop-

Unemployment insurance/employment services seminars set for employers

FRANKFORT — Kentucky employers can get information on unemployment insurance and employment services at one of 17 seminars across the state sponsored by the Cabinet for Workforce Development's Department for Employment Services. The seminars are scheduled for September, October and November.

Commissioner Margaret Whittet of the Department for Employment Services, said that employers will benefit from the informational sessions in several ways.

"These seminars can show employers how to save money on unemployment insurance taxes, provide information on employment services available at local offices, and give employers a forum to ask questions," she said. "Employers also can find out about new time-saving Internet tools that will allow self-service online."

The department provides job placement and unemployment insurance services through a network of field offices located throughout Kentucky.

The seminar sites and dates are listed below. A continental breakfast will be served at 7:45 a.m. and the seminars will begin at 8:30

Cancer information service celebrates silver anniversary

For the past 25 years, the Cancer Information Service has provided the latest, most accurate information about cancer to patients, their families, and the public. A program of the National Cancer Institute, the CIS equips people with the reliable, science-based information they need to become active participants in their own health care, from prevention to early detection, to treatment and survivorship.

The CIS is marking this milestone anniversary with the theme, Celebrating Our Spirit of Caring and Commitment.

The CIS of the Mid-South, which serves Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas, is located at the University of Kentucky Lucille P. Markey Cancer Center. It is one of 14 regional offices located throughout the United States, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

"We congratulate the CIS on its 25th anniversary," said Stephen Wyatt, D.M.D., associate director for cancer control at UK. "The CIS delivers life-saving cancer information to the public in easy-to-understand language. We are pleased to have this valuable resource as part of the UK Cancer Control Program."

Through its toll-free information service (1-800-4-CANCER) the CIS nationwide has helped nearly nine million callers since its inception in 1976. Calls are answered in English and Spanish and from the deaf and hard-of-hearing through TTY (1-800-332-8615).

In addition to the toll-free 1-800-4-CANCER service, the CIS began providing one-on-one assistance through LiveHelp on various NCI web-sites, such as CancerNet (www.cancer.net), and CancerTrials (www.cancertrials.gov). LiveHelp uses chat technology to allow web site users to communicate with information specialists.

The CIS Partnership Program, established in 1990, helps other cancer and health-related organizations develop community cancer education

Dow Corning and International Chemical Workers/UCFW to receive award

FRANKFORT — Kentucky Labor Secretary Joe Norsworthy announced last week that Dow Corning Corporation and Local 970C received the Kentucky Governor's Safety and Health Award for achieving 1,048,756 hours of work without experiencing a lost-time injury or illness.
According to Secretary Norsworthy, "We are proud of the commitment demonstrated by this workgroup in achieving this prestigious award. Caring for our fellow workers, is what each of us should be about everyday we go to work."
Kentucky's 1999 Annual Survey of Injuries and Illnesses indicates that industries similar to Dow Corning experienced an average of 3.1 lost-time injuries or illnesses per 100 workers.
The Governor's Safety and Health Award was presented at a ceremony at the Dow Corning facility in Elizabethtown on Tuesday.
Secretary Norsworthy made the presentation on behalf Gov. Paul E. Patton.

Anthem to explain demutualization plans; public meeting scheduled for Sept. 19

FRANKFORT — Eligible Anthem members in Kentucky will have a chance to learn more about the Indiana-based company's plan to convert from a mutual insurance company owned by its members to a public company owned by stockholders.
Kentucky Insurance Commissioner Janie A. Miller announced recently that Anthem has agreed to meet with eligible Kentucky members to answer questions and explain the company's demutualization proposal. The informational meeting is open to the public on Wednesday, Sept. 19, at 10 a.m. at the Holiday Inn ballroom in Frankfort.

Gov. Paul E. Patton and Secretary Ronald McCloud of the Cabinet for Public Protection & Regulation asked the Department of Insurance to facilitate the public forum to assure that eligible Anthem members are informed about their options.
"My role as Kentucky commissioner is to assure that the Sept. 19 meeting provides Anthem's eligible members in the Commonwealth with the information they need," Commissioner Miller said. "The final action and formal public hearings will be decided by the Indiana Department of Insurance because the company is domiciled in that state."
Anthem is currently mailing details to 1 million statutory members, including about 270,000 members in Kentucky, if they are eligible. The notices will reach eligible Kentuckians as early as this week and as late as the end of August. The notice does not apply to all 7.5 million Anthem customers, but only to specific members entitled to compensation in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Connecticut and who are entitled to vote on the plan of conversion.
Anthem's mailing explains the member's options, how to vote, how to get more information and formal notice of the public hearing planned by the Indiana Department of Insurance on Oct. 2, 2001.

On June 18 of this year, the Board of Directors of Anthem Insurance Companies Inc. unanimously adopted a conversion plan and filed its proposal with the Indiana Department of Insurance, asking to convert the Indiana-based company from a mutual insurance company currently owned by its members. In demutualization, the statutory members would be compensated for their membership interests through receipt of stock or cash, and the company would gain access to capital through the public markets.
The plan must be approved by two-thirds of those eligible members who vote. If Anthem receives approval from its eligible members and the Indiana Department of Insurance, the company currently expects to complete the demutualization process by the end of the year.
Additional details can be obtained by calling Anthem's toll-free information lines at 1-866-299-9628 or by logging on to Anthem's website at www.Anthem.com.

Discovering America's Sweetest Pepper

Quick and Easy
Recipes With Pimientos.
Truly a Sweet Discovery!

Explorer Christopher Columbus brought the pimiento back from his voyage to the New World, yet American families are only now discovering that the heart-shaped pimiento is truly the sweetest pepper available.

Long a staple in Cuban, Hispanic and Mediterranean dishes, pimientos are quickly replacing bell peppers and even tomatoes as a sweet new ingredient in soups, salads, spreads, side dishes and entrees. Available sliced or diced in any supermarket, pimientos are a healthy way to make an ordinary dish extraordinary.

We've searched the world over for the best quick and easy recipes that will impress any guest. Find out what families around the world have known for centuries—pimientos truly are a sweet discovery for almost any dish.

Jamaican Jerk Chicken & Papaya Salsa

- 4 chicken breasts
- 2 tablespoons hot pepper sauce
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon allspice

Papaya Salsa

- 1 1/2 cups papaya, diced
- 1/4 cup red onion, minced
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 4-ounce jar diced pimientos, drained
- 2 tablespoons hot pepper jelly
- 3 tablespoons cilantro
- White rice, cooked

Chicken: Coat both sides of chicken breasts with hot pepper sauce and place in a shallow baking dish. Combine salt, cinnamon and allspice and sprinkle over the coated chicken. Bake the breasts at 400°F for 45 minutes, basting twice with pan juices. Papaya Salsa: Mix thoroughly the papaya, onion, sugar, pimientos, pepper jelly and cilantro. Arrange chicken on a bed of rice and spoon Papaya Salsa over chicken.

Two-Minute Pimiento Spread

- 2 cups cheddar cheese, grated
- 1 7-ounce jar diced pimientos, drained
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- Dash of Worcestershire sauce
- Salt to taste
- Milk as needed

Combine all ingredients except milk and mix well. Slowly add milk to achieve desired consistency. Cover and refrigerate for a great sandwich spread. Use as a topping for hamburgers or create a creamy chip and vegetable dip by adding more mayonnaise.

Gouda, Asparagus & Ham Melt

- 1 bunch asparagus, fresh or frozen, steamed
- 8 ounces cooked ham, chopped
- 1 can cream of asparagus soup
- 8 ounces smoked Gouda cheese, cubed
- 1 7-ounce jar pimientos, drained and finely chopped
- 4 green onions, sliced

Chop asparagus and combine all ingredients in a saucepan or crock pot. Simmer on low, stirring often. Once cheese is melted, serve drizzled over warm croissants or on top of an open-faced sandwich. Can also be served as a fondue if kept warm.

Mediterranean White Bean Toss

- 1 16-ounce can white beans, drained
- 1/4 cup red wine vinegar
- 1 4-ounce jar diced pimientos, drained
- 2 tablespoons capers
- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup pimiento-stuffed olives, drained
- 2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
- 3 tablespoons fresh basil, packed

In medium bowl, combine beans with red wine vinegar. Stir in diced pimientos, capers, garlic, salt and pepper. In a mini food processor, combine olives, olive oil and basil. Process until basil is finely chopped. Pour basil mixture over bean salad and toss gently to coat. Serve at room temperature or slightly chilled.

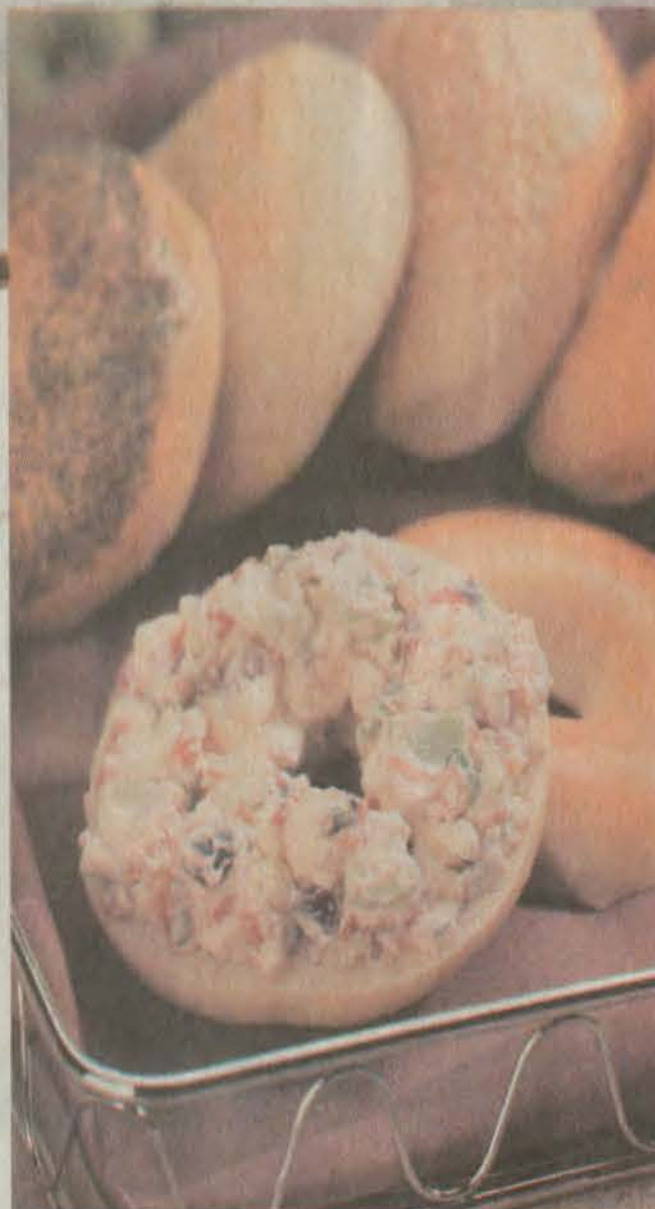

Jamaican Jerk Chicken & Papaya Salsa

Make Your Own Discoveries

The color and sweet flavor of pimientos are the natural ingredients to spark your own creativity in the kitchen. To get you started, here are some more fresh ideas:

- Experiment with a variety of noodles, your favorite vegetables, cheeses, pimientos and dressings to discover your very own signature pasta salad.
- Stir pimientos into stews, stir-fry, soups and bean dishes to boost aroma, color and natural sweetness.
- Add a splash of color at breakfast by sprinkling chopped pimientos into omelettes, scrambled eggs or hash browns.
- Pile on pimiento cheese spread to make an ordinary BLT or burger extraordinary.
- Add a 2-ounce jar of diced and drained pimientos and minced jalapeños to give your cornbread a South-of-the-Border taste.
- Top tortilla chips with cheese, pimientos, jalapeños and olives. Microwave until cheese melts for extra-special nachos.

For more sweet discoveries with exceptional recipe ideas, call 1-800-611-0423, ask for extension 10.

Feta, Apple & Pimiento Blend

Cream Cheese & Ham Tortilla Rolls

- 1 4-ounce tub cream cheese, onion and chive flavor
- 1/4 cup marinated artichoke hearts, drained and finely chopped
- 1 4-ounce jar pimientos, drained and finely chopped
- 2 10-inch flour tortillas
- 6 ounces cooked ham, sliced thin
- 4 ounces provolone cheese

Combine cream cheese, artichokes and pimientos in a mixing bowl. Layer each tortilla with the cream cheese mixture, ham and provolone. Roll the 2 tortillas tightly, wrapping in plastic to hold the form. Refrigerate at least 2 hours before serving. To serve, cut the rolls into 1-inch thick slices.

Texas Black Bean Caviar

- 3 16-ounce cans black beans
- 1 7-ounce jar diced pimientos, drained and finely chopped
- 1 bunch scallions, sliced
- 1 tablespoon fresh oregano
- 1 tablespoon hot pepper sauce
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1/2 bunch parsley, chopped
- 3 jalapeño peppers, chopped
- 1 tomato, chopped
- 2 cups vinaigrette dressing
- 1 green bell pepper, chopped
- 2 cloves fresh garlic, minced

Drain beans and discard liquid. Combine all ingredients in a large mixing bowl and stir well. Refrigerate and allow the mixture to marinate in a sealed container for at least 4-6 hours before serving. Serve with your choice of crackers or tortilla chips and sour cream.

Feta, Apple & Pimiento Blend

- 1 4-ounce jar diced pimientos
- 1 medium Granny Smith apple, diced
- 1 medium carrot, shredded
- 8 ounces feta, crumbled
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1/4 cup chopped kalamata or pitted ripe olives
- 1 tablespoon parsley, chopped

Drain pimientos and discard liquid. Peel apple and carrot before dicing and shredding if desired. Mix ingredients well. Chill if desired. Serve on bagels or quartered pita rounds for a healthy, appetizing snack.

FACE REALITY:

Cleese and TLC examine 'The Human Face'

by STEPHEN ENGLISH
TVDATA FEATURES SYNDICATE

When children draw stick figures, those giant faces aren't distortions.

They represent how important faces are to us. Your mug says a lot about who you are, how you feel and — as revealed in The Human Face With John Cleese — how the rest of your life might turn out. The four-part series airs Sunday and Monday, Aug. 26 and 27, on TLC.

Cleese is joined by Elizabeth Hurley, Pierce Brosnan, Candice Bergen, Joan Rivers and a host of sharp-eyed scientists who explore how the face advertises whether a person is healthy, what features people find attractive and why, and how the face can reflect a person's attitude to the point that it can predict happiness or trouble.

"I just never thought of all that stuff, but it's kind of obvious once you see it," Cleese says. The 60-something star of Monty Python's Flying Circus and Fawlty Towers says that making The Human Face changed the way he looks at people and, oddly enough, gave him a newfound appreciation for the United States Secret Service.

"I found what was happening was that I was looking more carefully at people's faces," he says. "I was fascinated by how bad almost everyone is at spotting lying. The fact is that these Secret Service agents seem to be able to do it

They really look at people's faces; if they're protecting the president, they don't care if it's rude to stare. Whereas most of us are inhibited from looking at people too analytically, too closely."

The Human Face is informative, lighthearted and even uplifting, qualities Cleese says he had to fight for after the BBC — co-producer of the program with TLC — brought in its science department to bring order to chaos.

"Two of the people working on the show were very, very bad and basically had to be removed," Cleese says. "(The science department) did arrive with the assumption that it was now going to become a science program, which was nothing like what I'd agreed (to).

"It was a bit of shoving and pulling — them saying things like 'The audience is not interested in insight,' or 'You can't do history on BBC1.' To which my only answer was, 'Well, why did you ask me to do the program?'"

The Human Face is broken into the episodes "Beauty," "Fame," "In Your Face" and "When You're Smiling." Cleese says that he had to thumb his nose at the executives to get one segment made his way.

"The 'Beauty' program they wanted to do, I thought was almost offensive," he says. "Because its final message was, 'If you're not beautiful, you're screwed,' which was completely the opposite of the script that I'd written. I had to refuse to do the commentary before I could get (my) stuff into the program."

Cleese's genius is in turning his mischievously twinkling eye toward a deceptively simple subject, creating a charming and interesting program that remains informative. Looks matter; that's no big revelation. But Cleese asks why. And he finds out that it's largely because our noses no longer know.

"David Attenborough explained to me that once we started to stand up, we couldn't rely on small anymore, so how did we recognize who people were?" Cleese says. "It had to be a visual means. And it was easier to recognize people through their faces — so that means that the face is nature's name tag."

That simple act of standing up meant a huge portion of the brain would eventually commit to recognizing and interpreting other people's facial expressions. In one wickedly funny scene, Cleese illustrates the expression of fear after finding out about Hurley's storied terror of squirrels.

Spotting your relatives at a crowded airport is a function of your brain's facial interpretation — but so is deciding whom to chat up in a bar. Which leads to the second big revelation of the program: We equate beauty with health.

"I realized that the slight feeling of taking a step back when you are with someone who is so unusual-looking that it feels strange and you feel a bit awkward, I realized that's a totally natural, hard-wired, evolutionary response," Cleese says. "Because when you're out on the African savanna without any antibiotics, you certainly don't want to bump into anyone who's diseased — and asymmetry is basically a sign of disease. And you certainly wouldn't want to mate with anyone who was diseased."

Thanks to Cleese's faceoff with the BBC, he was able to leave a shred of hope for those of us not as pretty as Hurley or Brosnan.

"Biology controls us when we're teenagers, but we develop different tastes as we mature," Cleese says. "I, for some reason, have always been attracted to women with somewhat longer faces than what would be considered classically beautiful."

The ultimate message is that our faces are a giant part of what makes us human. We have an emotional need to see faces. Perhaps appropriately, Cleese gleefully smashes a computer, that great isolator of humanity, near the end of the program.

Sunday and Monday, TLC's amusing and informative new four-part series The Human Face With John Cleese features the funnyman trying to figure out why one's countenance counts so much.

Arthur Ashe Kids' Day

Arthur Ashe's legacy lives on, celebrated today at the sixth annual Arthur Ashe Kids' Day at Flushing Meadows, N.Y. The festival features tennis clinics, skills competitions and exhibition matches, and usually includes appearances by a number of the pros who will be competing in the U.S. Open beginning Monday. Also, rap artist Lil' Bow Wow and pop group O-Town are this year's concert headliners. CBS' Mark McEwen co-hosts the charity event, which has raised more than $2 million over the last five

College Football

Though it is considered a neutral site game, plenty of Syracuse fans will be present today at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., when the Orangemen battle Georgia Tech in the Kick-off Classic. It's the start of a brutal 12-game season for Syracuse, in which it will face nine teams that went to bowl games last year. Coming off a 6-5 campaign, coach Paul Pasqualoni is under pressure to guide his team back to national prominence, a standing Georgia Tech currently holds. The Rambling Wreck are a top-25 team, led by the explosive duo of quarterback George Godsey and receiver Kelly Campbell.

The E! True Hollywood Story

Interviews with its stars and creators flesh out a portrait of the raunchy hit series Married... With Children. Conceived in the mid-1980s as an irreverent antidote to Cosby-mania (in fact, its original title was Not the Cosbys), Married paved the way for other sitcoms about less-than-perfect families, from Roseanne to The Simpsons. You'll learn whom the producers originally wanted for the roles of Al and Peg Bundy (which, of course, ultimately went to Ed O'Neill and Katey Sagal); which Seinfeld star auditioned for one of the leads; and where the name Bundy came from (contrary to popular belief, it had nothing to do with Ted). Along with O'Neill, Sagal, Amanda Bearse and other stars, the program includes an interview with Terry Rakolta, the offended mom whose boycott of Married helped make it a hit.

8 p.m. SHOWTIME

Sydney 2000 Olympics: Bud Greenspan's Gold From Down Under

Veteran sports documentarian Bud Greenspan shares some of his favorite moments from last year's Olympic Games, with the emphasis on inspirational and comeback-kid stories. Tommy Lasorda, coach of the U.S. baseball team, is caught on camera as his guys beat Cuba to take the gold, an accomplishment that's been compared to the U.S. hockey team's legendary victory in the 1980 Winter Games. You'll also meet Dutch cyclist Leontien Zijlaard, who bounced back from depression and anorexia to take three golds and a silver, and Australian swimmer Ian Thorpe, whose victories in the 400-meter freestyle and the 4x100 relay thrilled the home crowd. Greenspan also captures the most dramatic moments from an area awash in them: track and field.

the U.S. Open. Three Grand Slams are in the books, and three different men have won the singles title. If Marat Safin — who beat Pete Sampras in last year's final — successfully defends his crown, he'll be the fourth different Slam winner this season. The more popular women's side has two Americans — Australian and French Open winner Jennifer Capriati and Wimbledon champ Venus Williams — looking to unseat top-ranked Martina Hingis at season's end. Asingles title for either come Sept. 8 should accomplish that goal.

NFL Preseason Football

The football-crazed fans in Mexico get their NFL preseason fix when the Dallas Cowboys clash with the Oakland Raiders. Although the team is in decline, they're still considered "America's Team" south of the border. This appearance marks the fourth time Emmitt Smith and Co. venture into Mexico to play in what the NFL bills as the American Bowl; the first, in 1994, attracted an NFL-record crowd of more than 112,000. And who better to line up against than the silver and black of the Raiders, universally despised in NFL circles mainly because of the anti-league antics of owner Al Davis.

9 p.m. FOX FAMILY

State of Grace

David (Michael Mantell) is one of those old-fashioned dads who's too busy winning the bread to attend his children's functions. But Hannah (Alia Shawkat) desperately wants him to make an exception for the father-daughter pancake breakfast at school. The good news is, he says yes. The bad: He has this tendency to go off on these workaholic binges periodically, and here comes one now. The event isn't an issue for Grace (Mae Whitman), who doesn't have a dad, but that may change; Tattie (Faye Grant), who's been torn between two lovers, finally picks one ... and announces her engagement. Dinah Manoff also stars in "This Diamond Ring."

Third Watch

Doc (Michael Beach) should be thrilled; after all, Morales (Lisa Vidal) has said yes to his marriage proposal, and she's just been offered a great job in Philadelphia, where they can both make more money. But he's having all kinds of doubts and wonders if what's behind them is a simple male ego issue. His nickname may be Doc, but he's a paramedic; she'll be the doctor in the house. While he's pondering all this, though, work can't wait. A troubled youngster (Joshua Harto) is desperately in need of care and medicine, which his ailing mother (Karen Young) is in no position to give him. Anthony Ruivivar also stars in "Man Enough."

Movie: 42 Up

Director Michael Apted (Coal Miner's Daughter) has been checking in with the same group of ordinary British citizens every seven years since they were 7 years old. Those who have been following this documentary series since its first installment, 1964's Seven Up, may get more out of this 1999 edition — which catches up with the group at age 42 — but Apted includes lots of footage from the previous five films to give newcomers the requisite background. The story of Neil, poor and directionless at the end of 35 Up, is the most compelling, while that of free-spirited Jackie is the most heartbreaking. And those who have grown up with the film's subjects will be pleased to know that although three are no longer participating in the series, all are still alive.

Yes, Dear

In "Worst in Show," Kim (Jean Louisa Kelly) agrees to take in Jimmy's (Mike O'Malley) old dog despite Greg's (Anthony Clark) aversion to all things canine. Jimmy has fond memories of playing with his pup as a boy, but just as little Jimmy has grown up, so has little doggy — into a big, bad beast who terrorizes the fam-

The Sandra Bernhard Experience

From its title, you'd expect Bernhard's new project to be a showcase for her trademark caustic comic commentary. You'd be wrong. It's actually a talk show patterned after the intelligent chaffests Bernhard watched as a youngster, such as The Dick Cavett Show. A&E Network is giving it a five-night tryout, with the possibility of picking it up as a weekly series. Among the guests chatting with Bernhard in the premiere are actress Edie Falco and musician Chrissie Hynde.

TUESDAY AUGUST 28, 2001

8 p.m. UPN

The Source Hip-Hop Music Awards

In addition to the usual presentations you expect at a music awards show — artist, album, single and video of the year, to name a few — this one has a couple of extra goodies. He's not a hip-hop artist, but Ray Lewis of the Baltimore Ravens is slated to be honored with a special athlete of the year award for his "tenacity, his unshakable spirit and his triumphant season" — meaning the last one, in which the Ravens won the Super Bowl. LL Cool J is getting a lifetime achievement award for his contributions to hip hop and the world at large, including his efforts on behalf of underprivileged youngsters. The performer roster includes Mary J. Blige, P. Diddy & the Family, Nelly and more.

9 p.m. A&E

Investigative Reports

"Cold Case Files: Silent Witness/Innocence Lost" includes a tale of true poetic justice. In 1985, scientist working in the then-infant field of DNA profiling was murdered. The man accused of sexually assaulting her a year earlier — in whose trial she was about to testify — was the prime suspect, but there wasn't enough evidence for a murder charge. In 1997, the technology on which she had worked all those years ago had advanced and was now sophisticated enough to catch her killer and put him away. The hour also relates how DNA technology helped solve a series of rapes in Southern California. Bill Kurtis hosts.

9 p.m. ABC

Dharma & Greg

Ed Asner (Lou Grant) guest stars in "How This Happened" as a former employee of Montgomery Enterprises who paid the price for losing a sack of money years earlier. After all this time, Dharma (Jenna Elfman) actually finds the missing money and attempts to help put the fall guy back on his feet. But she's about to learn the meaning of the expression, "No good deed goes unpunished." Thomas Gibson and Mitchell Ryan also star.

9 p.m. NBC

Frasier

In "The Wizard and Roz," Frasier (Kelsey Grammer) takes advantage of his mentor's (Fene Auberjonois) presence in Seattle to talk out some issues with him. But their therapeutic relationship is shaken when Frasier calls on Roz (Peri Gilpin) at home and finds the professor there — in Roz's robe. Now every time he looks at the man, he pictures him in satin. It looks like your basic case of discovering an idol's feet of clay — or is this really more about Frasier's feelings for Roz? Daphne and Niles (Jane Leeves, David Hyde Pierce) clash over her belief that she is psychic, and Niles agrees to accept the verdict of an expert (Fisher Stevens).

John Mahoney also stars.

10 p.m. CBS

Judging Amy

In "Red-Headed Stepchild," Maxine (Tyne Daly) and her team work with a 5-year-old rape victim who identifies her 12-year-old brother as the perpetrator. Whenshe learns more about the boy's M.O., she suspects he's been abused, too — but by whom? She initially thinks his stepfather is the culprit, but the truth turns out to be far more shocking. Speaking of abuse, Amy (Amy Brenneman) is on the receiving end of some — the verbal kind — during an appearance on a talk show. Dan Futterman and Richard T. Jones also star.

P.O.V.

Kudos to PBS for making room for Frederick Wiseman's classic late-1960s documentary High School in the P.O.V. lineup. Like Wise-man's other slices of institutional life (Titicut Follies, Basic Training), this peek inside a Philadelphia high school has no narration, no formal interviews and no subtitles identifying the people on the screen, letting the action speak for itself. Especially difficult to watch are several students' confrontations with administrators who want no excuses — not even good ones, such as a doctor's note or total ignorance of the rule being broken. And that's a scenario most of us have experienced at least once, whether we attended high school before, during or since the era captured in the film.

Movie: Love and Death

Woody Allen's 1975s end up of Russian epics is one of the best from his goofy, slapsticky comedy days — which many consider his best period, period. He plays Boris, a mild-mannered sort who prefers sonnets to Stolicznaya and secretly adores his cousin (Diane Keaton). He is drafted into the army to fight Napoleon's forces and accidentally becomes a hero. That distinction lands him in the bed of a beautiful noblewoman (Olga Georges-Picot) with a jealous ex-lover — who happens to be an excellent marksman. But a tougher assignment awaits our hero: rubbing out Napoleon himself. Jessica Harper and Harold Gould also star.

Malcolm in the Middle

In "Lois' Birthday," Malcolm (Frankie Muniz) and his brothers have money to spend, thanks to their mom (Jane Kaczmarek), who's supplied them with cash to buy her a birthday present. Alas, the candy displays prove too tempting, and they spend most of the money on themselves, leaving only enough for an eyeglass repair kit. That's painful enough for Lois, but when she finds out Hal (Bryan Cranston) has totally forgot-ten the occasion, she runs away. The family tracks her down at the local batting cages, which are serving as birthday party central for an assortment of local youths. Next thing you know, a fight has broken out between Malcolm's family and all the birthday clowns in attendance. Erik Per Sullivan and Justin Berfield also star.

Star Trek: Voyager

En route to a conference, the delta flyer crash-lands on a remote planet, stranding Seven of Nine and Chakotay (Jeri Ryan, Robert Beltran) with no craft and no way to communicate with Voyager. They're not alone, though; the planet is populated by a primitive tribe of forest-dwelling hunter-gatherers, who, needless to say, are quite curious about this odd couple in their midst. Kate Mulgrew and Roxann Dawson also star in "Natural Law."

9 p.m. NBC

The West Wing

In "18th and Potomac," the staff wrestles with how to break the news about President Bartlet's (Martin Sheen) multiple sclerosis to the public after Joey Lucas (Marlee Matlin) reports the discouraging results of a test-the-waters poll on the issue. A bigger crisis is looming in Haiti, where the newly elected president has taken refuge from a coup attempt inside the U.S. Embassy, and Haitian troops have attempted to keep a planeload of fleeing embassy personnel from leaving — with deadly results. Josh (Bradley Whitford) realizes how unde funded the government's suit against big tobacco is, but getting more money is in the hands of certain members of Congress — hands that are in the industry/spockets. Rob Lowe and John Spencer also star.

Movie: The Way She Moves

Annabeth Gish (The X-Files) stars in this new drama as Amie, an aspiring photographer engaged to a stockbroker. One of the couple's wedding gifts is salsa dance lessons, but the groom-to-be is too busy to take them. So Amie goes alone and soon finds herself wanting to be more than dance partners with her hunky in-structor (Kamar De Los Reyes, One Life to Live). Duane Adler (Save the Last Dance) wrote the script for the TV movie, which is directed by Ron Lagomarsino (Blue Moon).

Family Guy

In "The Kiss Seen 'Round the World," Meg (voice of Mila Kunis) becomes an intern at the local TV station, where she is partnered with one of her least favorite people from school: nerdy Neil. Out on a dangerous assignment, she confides to him that she's never been kissed — and if they don't get out of this situation alive, she never will be. Neil offers to remedy the situation, and she agrees, only to find out that he's captured their smooch on tape and it's going out over the air. Back home, Stewie learns about bullies — and the neighborhood bully learns this is one baby he doesn't want to mess with. Hugh Downs, Abe Vigoda and Adam West pro-

City Confidential

"Malibu: The Murder of Good Time Charlie" remembers record producer Charlie Minor, a high-powered record promoter who worked with Janet Jackson and Sting, among others, and was right at home in the rich and famous party scene of Malibu, Calif. For female companionship, however, he liked women who weren't necessarily rich or famous, such as aerospace worker-turned-stripper Suzette McClure. Minor was a bit too free with the love talk, and McClure believed him. So when she discovered him with another lady, she became a walking advertisement for the saying "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." She was convicted of fatally shooting Minor, but many in Malibu say he brought his death on himself.

Movie: Sweet Liberty

Alan Alda is writer, director and star of this disjointed but amusing 1986 comedy. He plays a professor whose book on the American Revolution is being made into a movie. He isn't happy about the steamy soap-opera spin that's been put on his work, but that's nothing compared to the real-life soap that's unfolding in his college town when the film crew arrives. The professor is soon carrying on with the movie's leading lady (Michelle Pfeiffer), while his girlfriend and colleague (Lise Hillboldt) enjoys some extracurricular activity with the male star (Michael Caine). Bob Hoskins, Saul Rubinek and the great Lillian Gish also star.

Biography

Words and Music by Lieber & Stoller profiles the songwriting duo responsible for some of rock's greatest hits, including "Hound Dog," "Jailhouse Rock" and "Yakety Yak," to name a few. As white Jewish guys from the East, Jerry Lieber and Mike Stoller weren't exactly present at the birth of the blues, but they loved the sound and served as midwives at its rebirth in rock 'n' roll. In addition to writing songs, they built up an impressive resume as producers, label executives and publishers. Interviewees include the two men themselves, fellow songwriters Carole King and Burt Bacharach, and more.

Charmed

The Halliwells face their most formidable opponent yet in "Blinded by the Whitelighter": a magic-sucking warlock with the power — and the desire — to wipe out the world's witches. Fortunately, they also have a powerful ally in a new Whitelighter, but their helper's insistence on doing everything by the rules causes trouble for Piper and Leo (Holly Marie Combs, Brian Krause). Shannen Doherty and Alyssa Milano also star.

Juni Shoot Me

Maya (Laura San Giacomo) isn't the one-night stand type, but she can't resist Chris (guest star Dean Cain), a hunky doctor. He's about to move overseas, so what's the harm in a little fling? She'll never have to see him again. But wait! Not only is he not a doctor, and not only is he not leaving the country, but he's just been hired as the magazine's new creative consultant.

Bank One Lonesome Pine season opens with M-pact

Considered by many music insiders to be one of the most talented a cappella singing groups on the scene today, Seattle-based quartet M-pact will kick off the Fall 2001 season of Bank One Lonesome Pine Specials, Friday, October 19, at 8:00 p.m., in Bomhard Theater at the Kentucky Center for the Arts, Louisville.

Hailing from Seattle, where they recently won Artist of the Year at the city's Sammie awards, M-pact is praised by the San Francisco Chronicle as "one of the best pop-jazz vocal ensembles in the world." In 1999, they also won Billboard magazine's Best Unsigned Band award, a distinction that M-pact can no longer claim.

Among their long list of enthusiastic fans are vocal innovator Bobby McFerrin, filmmaker Spike Lee, blues legend Ray Charles and entrepreneur Bill Gates. In addition, M-pact has shared the stage with Natalie Cole, Liza Minnelli, Boz Scaggs, Sandra Bernhard, the Woody Herman Orchestra, the Nylons, and recent Bank One Lonesome Pine standouts, Rockapella.

Tickets for the concert are $22 and $27. Tickets can be purchased at the Kentucky Center for the Arts Box Office, or charge by phone at (502) 584-7777 or 1-800-775-7777, or visit the web at www.kentuckycenter.org. Tickets are also available by calling Ticketmaster at (502) 361-3100, at www.ticketmaster.com or at any Ticketmaster outlet. In addition, group discounts and series subscriptions are available by calling Kristen Hughes at (502) 562-0152. Sponsored by Bank One.

Montgomery County Council for the Arts

The Montgomery County Council for the Arts presents a gallery opening of an exhibit of paintings by Boris Zakic.

The Montgomery County Council for the Arts will sponsor a gallery opening of paintings by Boris Zakic. Zakic was born in Yugoslavia, studied at the Gimnazija Koca Kolarov, completed his MFA at the University of New Orleans, and is currently professor of painting at Georgetown College.

The opening will be held on Friday, September 7, from 4:30-7 p.m. at the Gallery for the Arts. The reception is free and open to the public. The exhibit will be on display until Saturday, September 29. The Gallery for the Arts is located at 44 East Main Street in Mount Sterling.

Complimentary refreshments will be served. For more information, contact the Gallery for the Arts at 859-498-6264.

The world famous New River Trains

The World Famous New River Trains will roll again this October. In co-operation with Amtrak and CSX, The Collis P. Huntington Railroad Historical Society Inc., will operate four, 300-mile round trips this October 13, 14, 20, and 21. The trips originate in Huntington, West Virginia, and will consist of Amtrak equipment and privately owned coaches, lounge cars, lounge/sleepers, and an open platform private car. The non-profit Historical Society has operated these trips almost every year since 1966.

Passengers on these four, one-day round trips will traverse all of the 65 mile long New River Gorge, the Grand Canyon of the east, where the only indication of modern civilization is the track of the old C&O Railway (now CSX) and the white water rafters.

The trains will leave Huntington's old C&O depot, and now office building complex on 7th Avenue and 9th Street at 8 a.m., making stops in St. Albans near Charleston, West Virginia to pick up passengers before going on to Thurmond, West Virginia, where it will make an approximately one-hour stop at the restored historic C&O depot and now National Park Service Visitors Centre. Then it's on to Hinton, West Virginia, where arrival is scheduled for about 1 p.m.

In Hinton, passengers can enjoy a street fair with arts, crafts, food, and entertainment during the scheduled three-hour layover. Following the layover, the special train departs for the return trip home, where arrival is about 8 p.m.

The round trip fares are as follows: Adult coach is $109.00, children in coach $79.00; and Premium service $189.00. The Premium service includes seating in a lounge, lounge sleeper made up for day use as available. This service also includes a continental breakfast served at your seat, and a sit-down dinner served in a diner or diner/lounge. Finally, there is Private Car Service for $299.00 per person. Here you will be seated in an old fashion railroad businesscar, which has a formal dining room, lounge area, and rear observation platform. There, the cars own chef and host will prepare on board, three meals.

Coach passengers will receive a continental breakfast as part of their ticket price, served at their seats.

There will be a snack/souvenir car where food and souvenirs will be available.

Tickets, free New River Train trip flyers, and information are available by calling 304-453-1641, Monday thru Friday, days, or e-mailing newrivertain@aol.com, or by visiting the web site at www.newrivertrain.com

Horoscopes...

ARIES

(March 21 to April 19)

A troubling situation takes a positive turn and moves toward a resolution that should please you and your supporters. Meanwhile, make time to deal with new domestic issues.

TAURUS

(April 20 to May 20)

It's a good time to reassess your goals and consider shifting directions. Remember to keep an open mind, and be prepared to make changes as new opportunities arise.

GEMINI

(May 21 to June 20)

Rely on your strong Mercury aspect to help you close that communication gap before it becomes too wide to cross. A sibling or other family member has news.

CANCER

(June 21 to July 22)

You're about to get off that emotional roller coaster and start experiencing more stability than you've been used to. This is a good time to let someone new into your life.

LEO

(July 23 to August 22)

Good news: A trusted friend comes through for you. But you still need to shed that last scrap of self-doubt and once more become the cool, confident Cat we all know and love.

VIRGO

(August 23 to September 22)

Things should be getting back to a less hectic pace. Enjoy the more peaceful atmosphere. You earned it. But don't forget about those still-unresolved issues.

LIBRA

(September 23 to October 22)

A more positive family relationship develops as misunderstandings are explained away. A job situation appears promising, but check it out before you act on it.

SCORPIO

(October 23 to November 21)

Congratulations. That on-the-job situation is working out as you'd hoped. Now's a good time to relax and to enjoy the company of family and close friends.

SAGITTARIUS

(November 22 to December 21)

You might feel as if you're caught in an emotional tug-of-war. But don't be rushed into a decision on either side. Wait for more facts before you act.

CAPRICORN

(December 22 to January 19)

The Goat's usually high level of self-confidence is brimming over these days. This should help you deal with a situation that you've avoided far too long. Go for it.

AQUARIUS

(January 20 to February 18)

Relationships become more intense. But be careful not to be pushed into decisions you're not comfortable with. Remember: You're the one in charge of your life.

PISCES

(February 19 to March 20)

You need to show more confidence in your ability to reach your goals. Make that long-delayed decision, and avoid floundering around in a sea of self-doubt.

BORN THIS WEEK:

You appear to be strongly opinionated, but you can also be open to other ideas — so long as they are presented with logic and clarity.

Ingo Rademacher is "Jax" on General Hospital

ALL MY CHILDREN

Shannon arrived at the boathouse to see Marcus' lifeless body and Gabriel holding a bloody oar. Later, Rosa admitted that Marcus tried to rape her, but Gabriel stopped her from confessing to killing him. JR told Dixie and Tad of David's threats against Adam. Laura confided in Bianca about Leo's apparent unhappiness. Chris found a mysterious white powder in a shipment to Enchantment. Marian gave Liza shocking news about Liza's connection to Mia. Wait to see: Edmund tries to learn who really killed Marcus. Gillian struggles for answers.

AS THE WORLD TURNS

Chaos erupted in Craig's trial when photographic evidence was produced. Meanwhile, Hal and Emily found a reason to celebrate. Molly learned that her harasser is closer than she thought. Julia mustered her strength and took control. Wait to see: Hal and Emily take their friendship a step further.

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Kristen followed Taylor's advice and confronted Tony about their relationship, and reeled in reaction to his news that he's HIV positive. He then told her he's ending their relationship. Later Sally fired Tony when he said something discouraging about Macy's memory. Taylor went to bed angry and alone, when Ridge railed at her for not warning Kristen about Tony's HIV status. Brooke called Ridge and was delighted to learn about his argument with Taylor. Wait to see: Tony makes a decision that will affect many lives.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Unaware that an increasingly suspicious John had seen the "DiMera" look in her eyes, Lexie assured Rolf that Hope would be no problem. Chloe confided in Brady about her sad childhood and the tragic death of her adoptive parents. On the island, Shawn told the other teens that to reach the first clue would require them to stay underwater for a long time. Wait to See: Belle and Shawn give in to temptation.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Alexis refused to tell Ned why the stolen necklace was so important to her. Stefan was put on the alert when Chloe mentioned Karikos, Stavros' fictitious business partner and childhood name for Stefan. Tony discovered Sorel dead in his hospital bed. Angel was revealed as Sorel's daughter. Helena put Nikolas to the test when she asked Lucky if Nikolas had, indeed, instigated his abduction. Wait to See: Jax and Angel reconnect.

GUIDING LIGHT

Michelle and Carmen began to relive events from the past. Beth tried to make her journey on her own. Tony interrupted an intimate moment between Sam and Marah. Noah was desperate to rescue Reva, but feared he might fail. Wait to See: Blake asks a friend a favor on Ross' behalf. Dax holds the key to the monarchy.

Critter Corner...

by DR. CAROL COMBS-MORRIS, DVM

I am a fanatic about not throwing garbage out the car window. There is always a pile of paper cups, tissues, junk mail and dog biscuits in the floorboard of my Blazer. I know it's a mess, and contrary to appearances, I do scoop it all out eventually. Pat has complained about it for years to no avail. (He has succeeded in getting me to stop laying on the horn whenever I see someone else littering - he says I'm going to get us both shot someday).

On a more serious note, we live in a disposable society. As bad as the cans, bottles and plastic bags are along our highways, there is an even worse litter problem out there - the living garbage of unwanted animals that most of us have had contact with in one way or another.

The Floyd County Times ran a story last week about a litter of newborn kittens found in a plastic bag set out with the garbage for pick-up in a well-to-do neighborhood in Prestonsburg. An alert sanitation worker discovered them and transported them to the animal shelter for care. Another litter was found in a Floyd County dumpster only a few weeks earlier. How many more have gone undetected in the garbage is anyone's guess. My own Sassie is the only surviving member of a litter of pups tied in a plastic bag and thrown on a dump ten years ago. I wish I could believe these are isolated incidents, but I can't.

I know there are people who think this is an insignificant problem in a world filled with human poverty, violence and suffering. I contend that society's attitudes toward animals and people are directly related. Does anyone honestly think there is no connection to the human babies found periodically in the trash? Again, I feel sure that landfills across the country are the burial grounds for many infants who were never discovered. And it's not just newborns - elderly persons also may become the victims of "Granny dumping", where someone simply walks away from their responsibilities. It appalls me that someone could toss living creatures into the garbage with apparently no more concern than if they were disposing of a sandwich wrapper.

It seems that I am not alone; several respected humanitarians have commented on this very situation: Saint Francis of Assisi is quoted as having said, "If you have men who will exclude any of God's creatures from the shelter of compassion and pity, you will have men who will deal likewise with their fellow men." Albert Schweitzer wrote, "Anyone who has accustomed himself to regard the life of any living creature as worthless is in danger of arriving also at the idea of worthless human lives," and Mahatma Gandhi summed up the situation by saying that "The greatness of a nation and its moral progress can be judged by the way its animals are treated."

There is lots of discussion about our need to "do something" about the moral decline of society, and often an overwhelming sense of hopelessness. While it's true that we can't cure all of society's ills, there are things that people can do as individuals to make things better in their own little circle of influence.

The most basic approach to reducing the number of animals abandoned and discarded is to reduce the numbers of unwanted animals in the first place. Spaying/neutering of pets is the single most important thing that we can do to accomplish this. The sheer size of the pet overpopulation problem is overwhelming. Approximately 70,000 puppies and kittens are born EACH DAY in the United States, compared to 11,000 human babies. If you think that sterilizing one animal won't have any impact on figures like these, consider that within a seven-year period, a single pair of dogs could potentially be responsible for 67,000 descendants! The numbers for cats are even more staggering. It does make a difference.

Once your own animals are no longer potential contributors to the pet population explosion, there are other things you can do to help, ranging from talking to friends and relatives to volunteering to help your elderly neighbor get her cat spayed.

The Spay/Neuter Organization of Prestonsburg (S.N.O.O.P.) is my pet project. This organization works with veterinarians in Floyd County to make spay/neuter services available to those who need assistance. It is helping to attack the problem at its root, one animal at a time. This program is taking off faster than our fundraising can keep up! Call (606) 889-9982 anytime (24-hour voice mail is available) to ask what you can do to help. Similar programs could easily be developed in surrounding counties, and we would be happy to advise other groups interested in starting one up.

There is a connection between those fast-food wrappers on the floor of my Blazer and the Spay/Neuter sticker in the back window! In their own ways, they both say PLEASE DON'T LITTER!

ONE LIFE TO LIVE

Sam asked that Troy submit to a fingerprint test to make sure he wasn't really Colin trying to return with a new identity. Viki surprised Rae when she refused to help Allison deal with her guilt for causing Viki so much pain in the past. Later, as Viki relived her past trauma, she got an unexpected visit from Niki Smith. Wait to See: Nora learns something curious about Troy and Colin's relationship.

PASSIONS

Tabitha desperately tried to find an unconscious Timmy as the flames from the blazing boat came closer. Theresa hid from Luis in Julian's Bermuda hotel suite. David provided more evidence that he and Grace are married. Theresa awoke from her strange dream to confront a stunning realization. Luis and Sheridan set sail for the open sea unaware that Julian's thugs had planted a bomb on their boat. Ethan and Theresa found each other. Wait to See: Charity has another upsetting premonition.

PORT CHARLES

Lucy and Kevin found an address for her family in Transylvania. Later, someone tried to kill Lucy while a stranger kept Kevin from going to her. Back in Port Charles, Jamal and Alison realized Jack was trying to kill himself through starvation and rushed to find him. Eve felt sure Caleb was no longer a threat and removed the amulet Michael had given her. Wait to See: Eve's action has a disturbing reaction.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Nikki told Sharon not to worry about any drugs Matt may have given her when she didn't know she was pregnant. But Sharon privately recalled that Matt told her he had laced her margarita with "roofs." Sean wondered if Brittany was flirting with him just to upset Jill. Paul asked Isabella not to leave Genoa City while he tries to work out his situation with Chris. Nikki left on a business trip to Brazil. After the divorce hearing, Victoria rejected Victor's advice not to rush things for Tricia's sake, and prepared to move in with Ryan. Wait to See: Matt's ghost has dangerous advice for Tricia.

Travel adventure theater takes patrons to the islands

The Kentucky Center for the Arts invites travelogue lovers to experience the wonders of the watery side of the world with filmmaker Richard Kern, when he presents his film, "Amazing Life of the Islands," Sunday, October 21, at 2 p.m. in Bomhard Theater. Kern will carry his audience across the globe, hopping from the lush wildlife of tropical Asia to the windswept, icy outcroppings of the south Atlantic.

In Borneo, a rehabilitation center reintroduces orangutans into the wild. On the island of Sulawesi, the Toraja people bury their dead in cliff caves guarded by galleries of hand-carved effigies. And on Komodo, the world's largest lizard thrives by thinning the herds of the island's deer population.

On the other side of the world, the hardy inhabitants of the Falklands sub-Antarctic slopes celebrate Boxing Day with games and sports. And on some of the most remote landscapes on the planet, enormous colonies of penguins and rockhoppers scratch out a precarious existence.

Tickets for this travelogue film are $8, and include Travel Chat, a free reception before the film with refreshments and john conti coffee. Tickets can be purchased at the Kentucky Center for the Arts Box Office, or charge by phone at (502) 584-7777 or 1-800-775-7777, or visit the web at www.kentucky-center.org. Tickets are also available by calling Ticketmaster at (502) 361-3100, at www.ticketmaster.com or at any Ticketmaster outlet. In addition, group discounts of 20 percent and series subscriptions for $33 are available by calling Kristen Hughes at (502) 562-0152.

News of the Weird...

by CHUCK SHEPHERD

Overreactions

■ A ruling last year by the Oregon Supreme Court is finally having a major negative impact on police, according to a July Los Angeles Times dispatch. The court had ruled that all lawyers, including prosecutors, must obey the state bar association's nearly absolute prohibitions against deceit, meaning that law enforcement cannot engage in "undercover" and "sting" operations (which involve tricking suspects). Already, one child-pornography investigation has been shut down because prosecutors could not administer a case in which police caught pedophiles by pretending online that they were underage.

■ Film turned up in July of tourist boat operations near Cape Jervis (near Adelaide), Australia, which ferried visitors so they could stand on a dead whale and watch great white sharks munch off the carcass; some tourists even posed for vacation photos petting the preoccupied sharks on the head (briefly). The local environmental minister said he was appalled and would ask for legislation "to protect people too stupid to protect themselves." (Obviously, News of the Weird is opposed to this type of legislation.)

■ The San Francisco Chronicle reported in July that the new dog catcher for San Mateo County will be paid $250,000 a year, more than twice what San Francisco's dog catcher receives and much more than Gov. Gray Davis or San Francisco mayor Willie Brown are paid. Said a county executive, "I hope we have the happiest and healthiest animals in the world because that's an awfully heavy price to pay."

■ In July, a man who has served time for fatal bombings was convicted of attempting to firebomb three Montreal coffee shops because the owner refused to give them French names. Protestors broke windows at the Tennessee capitol in Nashville in July, furious that legislators might adopt a state income tax. Three New Mexico regulators reported receiving death threats in May during the Public Regulation Commission's deliberations over whether to change the telephone area codes in Albuquerque and Santa Fe.

Chutzpah!

■ The then-executive director of the Tampa, Fla., Make-a-Wish Foundation pleaded no contest in March to grand theft charges for misappropriating almost $20,000 that had been donated for dying children; she served three months in jail, and is now on house arrest, and with an order to repay $6,500. In June, she filed a lawsuit against the foundation demanding back pay and unused vacation and sick pay dating from the date of her firing in June 1999 and demanded a court order restoring her as the foundation's executive director. Her first name is Delores, and she uses the surname of her husband, the lawyer who filed her lawsuit, Jack W. Crooks.

■ Sherman P. Hawkins' impressive application for the vacant position of director of the Montana Department of Corrections was turned down in July by the governor, despite Hawkins' 28 years' experience in the department and his master's degree in administration. As the governor noted, however, Hawkins' 28 years were as "inmate," in that he is serving a life sentence for murdering his wife.

Latest Rights

■ Virginia Green, a patient in the August (Maine) Mental Health Institute who was convicted of bludgeoning her 75-year-old mother to death in 1996, had filed a lawsuit alleging that the facility's 8 a.m. wakeup policy violated her rights and ordering that the institute be instructed to permit her to sleep until 11 a.m. (In June, the Maine Supreme Court turned her down.)

■ In June, the Ontario Court of Appeal reinstated DUI charges against Christopher Dominski, finding that his right to be notified that he can have an attorney present under the Charter of Rights and Freedoms was not violated. According to court records, when a police officer asked if he would like to call an attorney, Dominski responded, "Yeah, whatever," which a trial court thought indicated ambiguity but which the appeals court said was a sufficiently serious question and answer.

■ In June, the city education commissioner of Berlin, Germany, publicly suggested that the pro soccer league bar players from spitting on the field and especially their increasingly popular habit of clearing a nostril by pressing a finger against the opposite nostril and blowing, saying such behavior sends the wrong message to kids. Several players immediately defended the right to blow: Said one, "We can't carry a packet of hankies on the pitch."

People With Issues

■ Strongsville, Ohio, lawyer Daniel Todt killed his wife and two children in June as the government closed in on him for what prosecutors described as a series of outlandish attempted frauds. The Todts (both lawyers) were a traditional, middle-class, community-involved family except for one thing: Todt believed that in the 1940s, Mr. Thor De Allah Kahn from the planet Atlantis met top Earth officials and left with them securities (to improve the planet's welfare, in one instance for reconstruction in the Philippines) in staggering amounts (e.g., $33 billion, $13 billion), which Todt very earnestly and naively tried to present to many banks in several countries for payment, even after U.S. Treasury officials warned him they were worthless. Todt had also painstakingly explained his theory in various venues (e.g., local bar association, the Securities and Exchange Commission), usually to open-mouthed silence.

Least Competent Criminals

■ Detroit police arrested five suspects in connection with the robbery of a McDonald's restaurant in June, shortly after they made their alleged getaway; they appeared to have rehearsed the robbery, but inside the car, one of the men discarded his bandana by tossing it out the window, where it inadvertently snagged on the radio antenna and acted as an identifying flag for police chasing the car. And Elizabeth McDonald, 24, pleaded no contest in June to robbing the VFW hall in Medina County, Ohio, where she used to work; she was wearing a mask, but it did not disguise her waist-length red hair, which was instantly recognizable by at least one former co-worker.

Recurring Themes

■ News of the Weird loves stories about haggis, the Scottish meal that some people believe is the world's most disturbing formal dish (aesthetically, because of its gray color, and flavorfully, in that it typically is a pudding of sheep organs, suet and oatmeal, boiled in the animal's stomach). In May, police in Manchester, England, reported they were investigating an attack against the house of a Scottish woman, age 45 (and who has been living in England for 35 years), as a "hate crime," in that a haggis was thrown through her window. A police spokeswoman said the haggis had been "taken away for examination."

Also, in the Last Month ...

After an emergency airlift for treatment, a man survived his "attack" by an already-dead (but venom-retaining) timber rattlesnake that "bit" him while the clumsy man was mounting the carcass on a board (Quincy, Ill.). Iranian officials found a smuggler with 3.5 pounds of opium in his belly, said to beat the old world's record of 2.4 pounds (Kenarak, Iran).

Nurses and doctors were among the 400 attending the unauthorized, drug-drenched, deafening rave party at Paris' Sainte Anne psychiatric hospital, whose patients were said to be oblivious of the commotion in that most had been heavily sedated for the night. A water heater at a shopping center video store exploded, rocketing itself through the roof, over a Taco Bell, and landing in a Pizza Hut parking lot in the next block (Burien, Wash.).

Roots & Heritage Festival

The date for the Roots & Heritage Festival's Creative Writing Workshop for Young People has been changed to Tuesday, September 18, from 5-8 p.m., at the Carnegie Center for Literacy and Learning, 251 W. Second Street, Lexington.

"We changed the date of the workshop, because many teachers needed more time for their students to submit their writing pieces," said Crystal Wilkinson, organizer.

The workshop, Writing with the Appalachian Poets, will teach young people, 3rd grade to high school, how to write and recite poetry and fiction. The workshop focuses on poetry and fiction in relation to the themes and cultural offerings of the Roots & Heritage Festival. Admission to the workshop is based on submission of writing samples only.

The workshop is sponsored by The Governor's School for the Arts and The Carnegie Center for Literacy and Learning, in conjunction with the Roots & Heritage Festival.

For more information, about the workshop, call Crystal Wilkinson at 859-254-4175.
