Court meets to pay bills

The Floyd County Fiscal Court held a special meeting Wednesday to authorize payments on various county projects.

The fiscal court has been awarded a Community Development Block Grant for the Auxier Sewer Project for the purpose of acquiring easements, installing sewage lines, and installing a pumping station.

The court ordered payment to PEH Engineers in the amount of $107,180.24, and to the Big Sandy Area Development District in the amount of $9,500 for the Auxier Sewer Project.

The fiscal court also ordered payment to Johnson's Commercial Contracting in the amount of $58,860 for the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse Project.

Bills were authorized for payment in the combined amount of $1443.93 for the Wheelwright Emergency Shelter from project grant funds administered by the fiscal court.

The court also resolved that payments of the semi-annual bond interest be made to Citizens National Bank in the amount of $31,718.37 for solid waste, $10,604.38 for the gas system, and $123,541.25 for the Floyd County Detention Center.

Three fired HRMC workers indicted

by LORETTA BLACKBURN
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — Three of eight employees who were fired from Highlands Regional Medical Center after a two-month investigation last October for drug misuse issues were indicted by a Floyd County grand jury this week.

As reported in October 2001, an investigation was conducted by Confidential

Business Resources as a result of concerns and evidence that certain Highlands employees were involved in conduct or behavior in violation of the medical center's policies. At that time, Highlands said in a statement, "The hospital found that there had been multiple incidents involving many employees," and said if the behavior had been allowed to continue, it could have "jeopardized patient care and other employees."

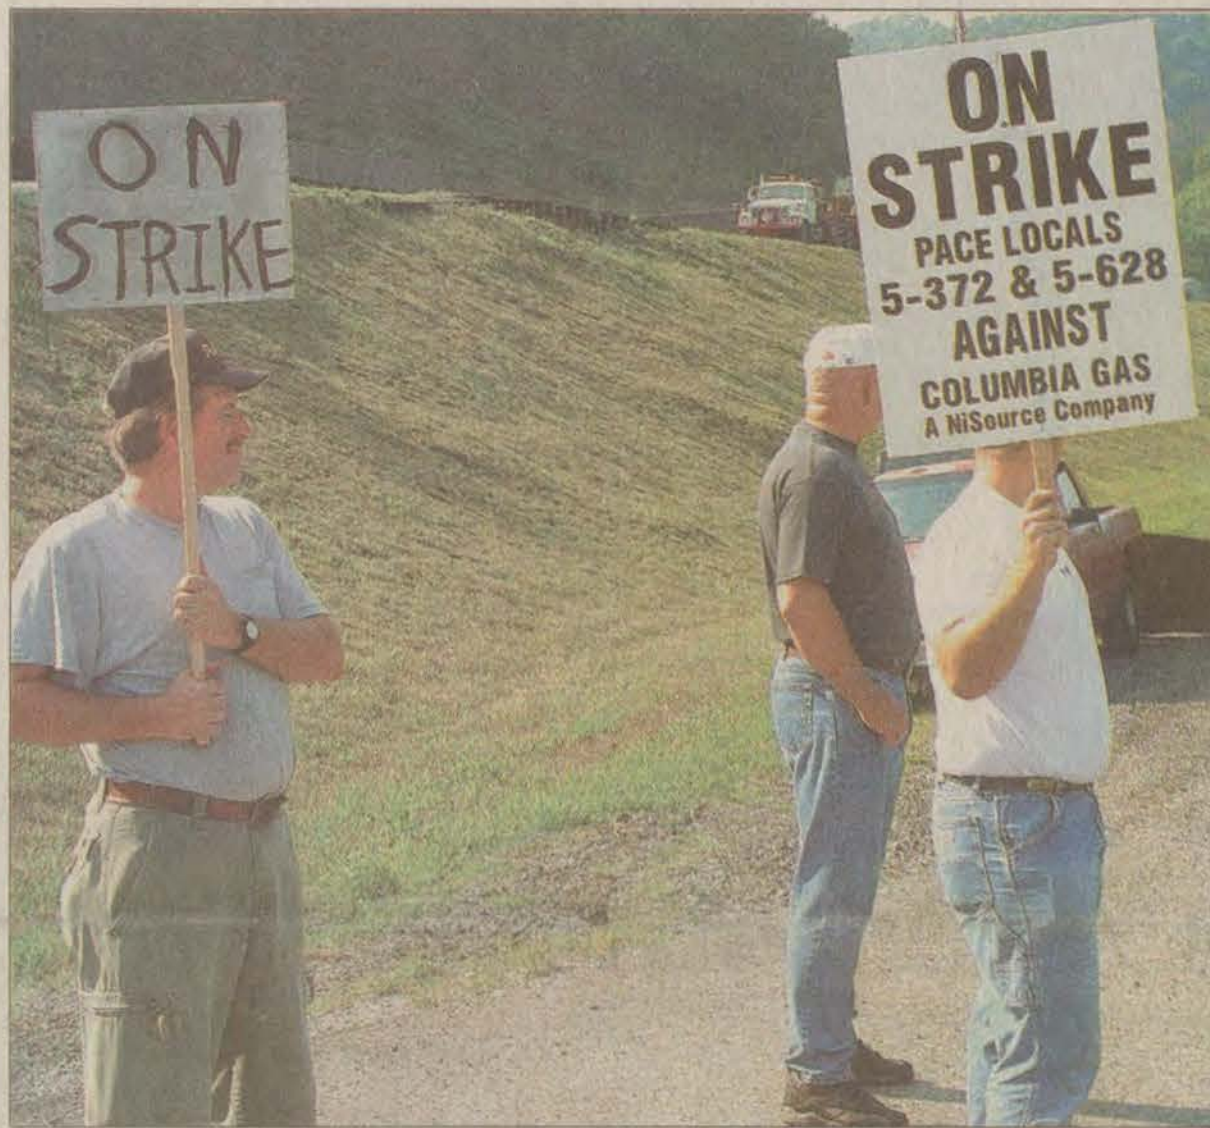

Of the eight employees who were dismissed, three were indicted Wednesday on five class D felonies.

Cathy Evans, 29, of Hager Hill, who worked in nursing, was indicted for first-degree theft of a controlled substance for allegedly taking or exercising control over a controlled substance belonging to Highlands, and a second class D felony of fraud or false statement in obtaining controlled substances for allegedly procuring the administration of controlled substances by knowingly misrepresenting or withholding information from a practitioner.

Rodney Holbrook, 30, of Prestonsburg, who worked in the laboratory, was indicted for first-degree theft of a controlled substance for allegedly taking or exercising control over a controlled substance belonging to Highlands.

WATERGAP — Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., Columbia Natural Resources and Columbia Gas of Kentucky are experiencing a work stoppage that affects about 27 percent of the companies' total workforce, including about 530 hourly employees in Kentucky and West Virginia, according to a press release by the company.

Workers were on strike on Watergap Road in Prestonsburg at the Columbia Natural Resources building.

"This is not about money, it's about our benefits," said Randy Davis, a striking worker.

According to the striking workers, the company would not agree to a proposal by the Paper, Allied-Industrial, Chemical and Energy Worker's union involving discussion about health care and retirement benefits.

"We worked for six months without a contract. This was as far as we could go," Davis said.

The contract with the PACE unions expired at midnight on Feb. 28.

The companies and the union continued discussion for six months before union leaders informed Columbia late Tuesday that they were terminating negotiations and that members would strike.

Lawyer claims 'frightening' tactics used

PRESTONSBURG — The Floyd Circuit Court has dismissed trafficking charges, with the substance being OxyContin, against a Langley woman, Christie Brown Stroebel, 28, for lack of evidence.

However, Stroebel's current attorney, Gary Johnson, alleges that prosecutors attempted to get her to plead guilty even when "they knew they didn't have a case against her" and that the public defender who formerly represented her, Harolyn Howard, tried to get her to take it.

Stroebel was arrested on Oct. 1 and charged with first-degree trafficking by Ricky Thornsberry, formerly of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department, pursuant to a warrant that stated she had sold one pill containing 80 milligrams of oxycodone, OxyContin, to an undercover deputy sheriff, William B. Layne. The case was referred to the grand jury on Oct. 5, but Stroebel was not indicted until June.

In the meantime, Thornsberry pleaded guilty to federal fraud charges on April 17 for his role in helping concealed weapons permit applicants bypass training requirements. On August 2 he was sentenced to one year probation and a $100 fine in U.S. District Court.

According to court documents, during a pretrial conference on July 24, the commonwealth attorney's office offered Stroebel five years imprisonment, to be suspended after serving three, for the class C felony charge in exchange for a guilty plea. Stroebel would not accept the deal and, according to PRESTONSBURG — A Harold woman, Angela Johnson, 38, was indicted by a Floyd County grand jury this week on charges of sex abuse and complicity to commit rape.

Johnson's husband, Darvin Johnson, pleaded guilty July 26 to the 1991 rape.

As previously reported,

Johnson had been a fugitive since 1991 and when he was eventually found living in Florida, he was extradited to Floyd County.

According to Commonwealth's Attorney Brent Turner, Angela Johnson, was charged for allegedly participating in the crime by holding the 13-year-old down while she was assaulted.

PHS drug search turns up nothing

by JARRID DEATON
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — One day after a canine unit discovered approximately 80 prescription pills at Adams Middle School, Deputy Robert Caudill drug sniffing dog "Nitro" paid a visit to Prestonsburg High School.

According to assistant principal

Jerry Butcher, the search was a routine operation and did not have anything to do with the Adams incident.

"It's a service that they [the sheriff's department] provide to the school," Butcher said.

Floyd County Deputy Sheriff Stan Farler also discounted any notion that the search was related to the discovery of the pills at Adams.

"It was just a routine check," Farler said.

Prestonsburg Police officers conducted the search that turned up the pills at Adams Middle School, while the Prestonsburg High School search was conducted by the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

The search at PHS turned up no illegal drugs.

Floyd County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Caudill and drug dog "Nitro" searched the campus of Prestonsburg High School, turning up nothing unusual.

■ AUSTIN — Gov. Rick Perry may be facing a tough reelection battle, but he was a clear No. 1 in court — at least for a while.

Perry showed up for jury duty in municipal court Tuesday and was designated "Juror No. 1" on a panel for a woman challenging a speeding ticket.

Perry was quickly dismissed from service, however, after the prosecutor and defendant got to "strike" whomever they didn't want on the six-person jury. It wasn't revealed which side chose to eliminate Perry.

Judge Kenneth Vitucci thanked all potential jurors and said: "I understand the number of man-hours involved. I also understand, quite frankly, the number of governor-hours involved."

Perry attended the court session along with his general counsel and aides from his state office. Afterward he said he had been prepared to serve.

"It's part of the system that makes this country great," he said.

■ KIRKLAND, Wash. — This time it was the doctor over-seeing a root canal that had the jitters, and for good reason.

The patient, Bengo, was a 400-pound pet tiger, a Siberian-Bengal mix, with two broken teeth. Even with his front paws declawed, one swipe could break a man's neck in the six minutes it would take for a sedative administered by injection to take effect.

"I've had second thoughts," said Dr. Skip Nelson, 62, a veterinarian who once worked at a zoo. "Tigers don't necessarily like having a needle stuck in their butt."

As it turned out, the 18-month-old tiger was about as much trouble as a pussycat.

Wearing a tie with tigers on it, Nelson greeted Bengo, stroked the animal's head and gingerly used a syringe mounted on a long pole to administer two shots.

Once the animal fell asleep, he was wheeled into a small office at Nelson's business, The Exotic Pet & Bird Clinic, for the root canal performed by Dr. Gregg DuPont, 47, an animal dentist.

"He's a delightful tiger," Nelson said. "He's the kind of tiger that makes you all think you can get away with this."

■ MACHIAS, Wash. — Stumpy, a squirrel with half a tail, no left hind foot and just one toe on the right, is missing, and his owners are going nuts.

"There's a big chunk of me that feels like it's got a hole in it," said Steve Parker, 52. "He's quite the little buddy."

Parker and his wife Marcia took the Eastern gray squirrel to their home about 30 miles north of Seattle last September after he fell out of his nest as a baby and was taken to Deer Creek Wild Animal Rescue.

The squirrel could not be returned to the wild because of his birth defects, said Susan Rahn, the wildlife rehabilitation center's assistant director. Squirrels rarely make good pets, but Stumpy "was a big, fat, sweet squirrel," she said, "and he stayed that way."

Stumpy took to riding on the dashboard of Parker's truck and wore a bell on a collar around his neck. Sometimes Parker walked the squirrel on a rope leash. At other times, Stumpy rode on his shoulder. Frequently petted, Stumpy never bit anyone and chirped constantly.

"I sure can't tell you what he was talking about, but he sure talked," Marcia Parker said.

On Friday, he vanished from the couple's front yard.

The Parkers have posted signs and gone door-to-door to check on reported sightings as far as two miles away.

Rahn said Stumpy was probably trying to find a mate but might be looking for a way home after living most of his life as a pet.

"He's probably going to walk up to someone and scamper up their leg," Parker said. "That's the kind of squirrel he is."

■ NEW ORLEANS — It's a small world after all.

Working off-duty security at a bus station, homicide detective Bernard Crowden was catching up on paperwork for a murder case when the suspect walked up and asked where he could catch a cab.

Days earlier, Crowden had issued an arrest warrant for Tron Hughes, 22.

"Out of all the police officers on the job, probably the only officer who would have recognized his face or known he was wanted for murder was me,"

Crowden said Tuesday. "That's a bit of bad luck."

Crowden immediately arrested Hughes, who had just stepped off a bus from Houston.

Hughes was booked for first-degree murder and was being held in Orleans Parish Prison without bond.

■ NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Vanderbilt's Bobby Johnson is a football coach a mom could be proud of.

He wants to mold gentlemen — not just winning football players. So he's issued a no-cussing order.

When left guard Jim May makes a mistake in practice, he works at saying "jit" instead of that common four-letter word that rhymes with it. Sometimes he says "frappin'."

"Coach Johnson's philosophy is to do all the little things right," senior wide receiver Dan Stricker said.

The policy is not new for Johnson, who spent nearly a quarter-century at Furman, the last eight as head coach.

"We've always done that everywhere I've coached," said Johnson, who also requires players to keep their hair neatly cropped.

Those who break the rule pay the price. For each foul word, a player must perform 10 "up-downs" — a drill in which someone runs in place, drops flat to the ground, then jumps up and starts the series again.

Senior cornerback Rushen Jones said many players had sore arms in the beginning, but not now. May added that players also watch their language off the field. "Everything is habit forming," May said.

Power said the ban could mean more victories, since it involves the "psychological and sociological aspects of developing a team." Players welcome any strategy that will help them avoid a 20th consecutive losing season.

■ ELKHART, Ind. — Bayer Corp. is selling a former Alka-Seltzer factory for less than you would pay for a box of the fizzing tablets — $1.

But whoever buys the building may need to stock up on the tablets, since its $6 million to $7 million a year in maintenance costs could give anyone a case of indigestion.

For Elkhart Mayor Dave Miller, though, the news helped ease any concerns he had about the site.

"Bayer's willingness to essentially give the building to a qualified operator is probably the best news for the city of Elkhart," Miller said.

The building has 933,000 square feet of space and includes space for manufacturing, laboratories, offices. It also includes large refrigeration units that could be used for a company working with foods, said Joe Martin, senior vice president and general manager for Bayer Diagnostics.

"The benefit for the city is that they'd be able to get someone to come in and occupy that space and bring in employment and taxes at a low cost to them," Martin said.

Bayer would save the cost of War at home should be waged with care

America's courts are telling Congress and the public to begin paying attention to the Justice Department, the war on terrorism and the challenge to civil liberties that clearly has emerged since Sept. 11.

In five separate rulings — including the super-secret Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court's recent opinion — federal courts checked what they saw as the executive branch's curtailing of First, Fourth, Sixth and Eighth Amendment rights of both American citizens and foreigners detained in the war on terrorism.

The most recent ruling, by a three-judge panel of the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal, rejected the Justice Department's arguments that the government could close deportation hearings for those arrested in connection with the war on terrorism. The government had further argued it could keep the very existence of these hearings secret on national security grounds. But the court rightly disagreed.

In earlier rulings, trial courts in Newark, N.J., and Washington, D.C., objected to executive branch actions in which the government was attempting to keep secret information on arrests and investigations related to the war on terrorism.

"Democracies die behind closed doors," Judge Damon J. Keith wrote in his unanimous appellate decision this week in Cincinnati. "The First Amendment, through a free press, protects the people's right to know that their government acts fairly, lawfully and accurately ..." he continued. That decision is binding only in federal courts in the Sixth Circuit (Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio and Tennessee), but it likely will be cited in other cases as the government deals with those held in secret detention since Sept. 11.

Indeed, the nearly 12 months since Sept. 11 have been unusual times. The executive branch, through the White House, Pentagon and Justice Department, bears the major responsibility for protecting Americans from terrorist attacks, and Americans expect the executive branch to do its best toward that end.

All the courts that have ruled on civil liberties issues have prominently acknowledged this executive branch responsibility. Further, a poll released earlier this week by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation as part of a first anniversary look at events after Sept. 11 shows that 49 percent of Americans are willing to curtail their basic freedoms to protect the country.

Also, 53 percent of Americans think the FBI should be given additional monitoring powers.

But a look around the world should tell all Americans that once freedoms are surrendered to governments, they are not always returned. Many of the safeguards put in place to establish a wall between information gathered in government surveillance activities and criminal prosecutions resulted from Nixon-era government excesses.

The U.S.A. Patriot Act gave the government more power to watch foreigners and Americans. But we would be wise to closely monitor how the executive branch uses this power. That is exactly what the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court was doing in its rare release of its findings concerning FBI excesses.

— The San Diego Union-Tribune

In the moment

A place to play

When to bring an old building up to code would be more expensive than to build a new one, schools consolidate and the unlucky one is no longer needed, or for some other reason, the structures are sometimes abandoned, the county or other title owners often donate these facilities back to the community to do with them what they will.

I was covering a story in which a small community was attempting to repair one of these old buildings and when I walked inside of the place, I was reminded of the old smokehouses that we used to play in when I was a child. The musky smell that arises from rotting wood and damp earth, the antique look of boards with cracks, and there in the corner of "this building" was a shelf with books and stuffed toys.

I was momentarily whisked back to my childhood days, when the abandoned outbuilding became a playhouse where an imaginary world could be created. You could be anyone you wanted to be, work at any profession, or any combination of professions. I was often the doctor, teacher and the mommy all in one day.

I thought about how in a sense, these creative folks were attempting to create that place of retreat that the human spirit doesn't seem to outgrow. A place where people can go to get away from the responsibilities of life and the reminders of them, and for a time, relax in a place that is not necessary for physical survival, but is certainly a necessity for spiritual health. A place where a person doesn't have to be anything, and can be whatever he or she wants to be.

I suppose it is the same scenario with the man who has a garage or outbuilding, which he designates as his domain. It is refuge from the "everything must be in place" house if he is married, and if he is single it tends to be a "hangout for the guys." Regardless, it is a sanctuary that allows time for play and experimentation.

It seems that from the time a parent buys a child a playhouse or the child invents one for himself, the child pretends that this is his very own house. The child grows up and eventually, hopefully, gets his own home, which he will basically structure in the usual ways that his parents did. Yet he still searches once again for a place like the playhouse, where he can be free to be himself.

The KCMA is an association that was formed to help promote country, bluegrass and gospel music not only in the state, but also to the world through our affiliation with the North American Country Music Association, International.

The NACMAI each year holds an awards week when entertainers and song writers compete for national awards, such as male and female vocalist of the year, song writer of the year, entertainer of the year and album of the year, just to name a few.

KCMA will also hold a contest each year and the top two places in each category will then go on to compete on the national level.

This association is not only for entertainers looking for that big break, but also for fans of country, bluegrass and gospel music.

The KCMA publishes a newsletter that will keep its members up to date not only on the Kentucky artist scene, but also national acts. The newsletter will let you know who is performing in Kentucky, where and when.

Hollywood's fall casting call: Harry, Frodo, Hannibal, Jean-Luc and 007

by DAVID GERMAIN
AP MOVIE WRITER

LOS ANGELES — Harry Potter at Hogwarts, Frodo Baggins bound for Mordor, Hannibal Lecter in his nuthouse cell, Jean-Luc Picard on the bridge of the Enterprise, and James Bond in bed with Halle Berry.

Who says there are no sure bets in Hollywood?

Most fall films are uncertain commodities, but a handful have such built-in appeal, they can pretty much count their tickets before they're sold:

■ "Red Dragon": Anthony Hopkins does diabolical killer Lecter in his early asylum days in a prequel to "Silence of the Lambs" and "Hannibal." Edward Norton stars as the FBI agent who captured Lecter and years later needs his help on a new case.

Though it's set years before the action of "Silence" and "Hannibal" and Hopkins is a decade older than when he first played the role, "he's one of the greatest actors ever. If you're looking at the wrinkles on his face, I'm not doing a very good job," said "Red Dragon" director Brett Ratner. "In the first five minutes, you may say, 'Yeah, he looks older,' but then you get into the story. Anthony Hopkins is Hannibal. Whether he looks younger or older, he's Hannibal Lecter."

■ "Die Another Day": Agent

007 (Pierce Brosnan) beats up on villains as he pursues a mega-weapon. Brosnan said he and Berry share one of the steamiest Bond love scenes ever and that the movie is ripe with fond allusions to earlier 007 flicks.

"This particular film for any Bond aficionado will be a connoisseur's delight in terms of picking out lines used in other movies and paying certain homages to past films," Brosnan said. "I don't think it will disappoint when you have the beautiful Halle Berry coming out of the water" in a take on Ursula Andress in the first Bond movie, "Dr. No."

■ "Star Trek: Nemesis": Patrick Stewart and the Enterprise crew find a nasty new enemy on a peace mission to the Romulans. For those subscribing to the theory that even-numbered "Trek" films are the best, this is No. 10.

"In two or three years (when an 11th "Trek" film is likely), I will pooh-pooh that theory, but for now, I'll hold on to it dearly," said producer Rick Berman. "This is probably the most action-packed and exciting, edgy and dark of the movies we have made. There's startling and shocking elements to it, and I would say we've probably got the best 'Star Trek' villain we've ever had (British actor Tom Hardy)."

As for the season's main events, need we say more than

"Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets" and "The Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers"?

Blessed with lead-in films last year that each took in more than $300 million domestically, "Chamber of Secrets" and "Two Towers" are set to disprove the old Hollywood notion that audiences need a two- or three-year breather between blockbuster sequels.

"Conventional wisdom would be that 12 months is too close together to have a sequel," said Mark Ordesky, an executive producer of the three "Lord of the Rings" films. "But what's become evident with ours is that people are perceiving the films as what they are. Not sequels, but one giant, epic story told in three installments."

Since director Peter Jackson shot all three "Lord of the Rings" films simultaneously, fans can expect another dose of class and quality.

It doesn't hurt that J.R.R. Tolkien's saga of Middle-earth and a hobbit named Frodo has almost 50 years of built-in fandom, and that Jackson left audiences salivating for part two with last year's opening chapter, "The Fellowship of the Ring."

Likewise, 2001's top money-maker, "Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone," has fans itching for the next big-screen adaptation from J.K. Rowling's fantasy series about the boy wizard.

"Chamber of Secrets" director Chris Columbus, who also made "Sorcerer's Stone," said audiences can expect another two-and-a-half-hour adventure as Harry (Daniel Radcliffe) fights fresh evil at Hogwarts school.

Columbus found two big advantages this time. He could jump right in on the action, without the character set-up and scene-setting necessary in the first film. And he said "Chamber of Secrets" makes for a more visual tale — "I found it to be the most cinematic of all the books, except maybe 'Goblet of Fire.'"

The action is buoyed by improved special effects, Columbus said, including a bigger and better round of quidditch, a game played on flying broomsticks, crafted by George Lucas' Industrial Light & Magic effects house.

Inevitable blockbusters, the only question about "Chamber of Secrets" and "Two Towers" is where they will stack up on a 2002 box-office chart that already has produced a $400 million sensation in "Spider-Man" and a $300 million smash in "Star Wars: Episode II - Attack of the Clones."

Beyond this fall's A-list, big new releases include Tim Allen's return as Kris Kringle in "The Santa Clause 2"; singer Eminem in the hip-hop drama "8 Mile"; "The Banger Sisters," a reunion tale between ex-rock groupie siblings (Susan Sarandon and Goldie Hawn); Sarandon, Dustin Hoffman, Holly Hunter and Jake Gyllenhaal in "Moonlight Mile," a comic drama about the aftermath of a bride-to-be's death; and Reese Witherspoon as a fashion designer coming to grips with her redneck roots in

Alan Jackson gets record 10 country award nominations

by JIM PATTERSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Alan Jackson was nominated for 10 Country Music Association awards on Thursday, a CMA record.

Nominations were announced by the groups Rascal Flatts and SheDAISY at The Coliseum football stadium. Winners will be revealed Nov. 6 at the Grand Ole Opry House, during a live ceremony broadcast on CBS and hosted by Vince Gill.

Jackson's 10 nominations beat the previous record of nine, set by Merle Haggard in 1970.

Jackson was nominated for the top award of best entertainer, an honor he won in 1995. The other nominees were Kenny Chesney, Toby Keith, George Strait and the duo Brooks & Dunn. The 2001 winner, Tim McGraw, was not nominated.

Jackson also was nominated for best male vocalist, album ("Drive"), and vocal event ("Designated Drinker" with Strait). He'll be competing against himself in three categories — best single, song and music video — where "Drive (For Daddy Gene)" and "Where Were You (When the World Stopped Turning)" each were nominated.

Toby Keith trailed Jackson with eight nominations in six categories: best entertainer, male vocalist, video ("I Wanna Talk About Me"), single and song for "Courtesy of the Red, White & Blue (The Angry American)," and best album for "Pull My Chain." Should he win the best album and single categories, he would get two awards for his work as producer and artist on both.

Jackson and Keith are joined in the best male vocalist category by Chesney, Strait and Brad Paisley. Best female vocalist nominees are Sara Evans, Alison Krauss, Martina McBride, Lee Ann Womack and Trisha Yearwood.

Willie Nelson got two nominations. "The Great Divide" is up for best album, and "Mendocino County Line" with Womack was nominated for best vocal event.

Young bluegrass-based trio Nickel Creek got two nominations, for best vocal group and The Horizon Award for career potential.

About 5,000 industry workers who are members of the CMA nominate and select the winners for the awards. The CMA is a trade organization founded in 1958 to promote country music.

CBS plans 'Beverly Hillbillies' reality show

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Up from CBS comes a-bubblin' crude, with the network developing a reality series based on the old "The Beverly Hillbillies" sitcom.

CBS is planning to cast a weekly half-hour series that will chronicle the lives of a rural, lower-middle class family as they move into a luxurious Beverly Hills mansion.

The project is tentatively titled, "Real Beverly Hillbillies," the trade newspaper Variety reported Wednesday.

A maid and personal assistants will be among the indulgences afforded to the family during a one-year stay in California. Participants also will be able to earn money each week as part of the contest.

"The intent is to be respectful but at the same time enjoy the humor that comes from the fish-out-of-water scenario of the show," said Ghen Maynard, a CBS alternative programming executive. "We want a family who has a sense of humor about themselves."

Maynard said the show will have a loose structure, similar to MTV's "The Osbournes," about rocker Ozzy Osbourne and his family, or E! Entertainment Television's "The Anna Nicole Show," about the former Playboy model.

"The Beverly Hillbillies" show was about a poor mountaineer named Jed who strikes oil while "shootin' at some food, and up through the ground came a-bubblin' crude," according to the classic theme song.

It aired from 1962 until 1971, producing 274 episodes. At one time it was television's No. 1 program, attracting up to 60 million viewers weekly. Buddy Ebsen starred as Jed Clampett, while Irene Ryan played shotgun-toting Granny.

'Seabiscuit' casting for extras

The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE — A Hollywood casting agency will be casting for extras next week in Lexington for a movie chronicling the life of the thoroughbred Seabiscuit.

Tobey Maguire of "Spider-Man" fame will star in the movie, which will be partially filmed in Kentucky.

Adults can attend 10 sessions Friday and Saturday. For children, photos are to be dropped off only, from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Sept. 7. The agency, Bill Dance Casting, is looking for all types of people to play "various horse racing fans, upscale horse owners, trainers, jockeys, etc." The setting is 1930s America.

The sessions for adults are at 8 a.m., 10 a.m., noon, 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. Sept. 6, and 8 a.m., 10 a.m., noon, 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Sept. 7. All sessions are at Marriott Griffin Gate Resort. Adults are asked to bring along a small photo.

Filming will begin in October, and some will be at Keeneland in Lexington, producer Frank Marshall said.

The film, produced by Universal Pictures and Dream Works, is based on Laura Hillenbrand's best-selling book, "Seabiscuit: An American Legend."

Maguire, whose film credits include "Wonder Boys" and "The Cider House Rules," will play Red Pollard, Seabiscuit's jockey.

Fall

"Sweet Home Alabama."
There's Madonna as a rich snob marooned with a sexy sailor in "Swept Away," directed by her husband, Guy Ritchie; "Treasure Planet," Disney's animated sci-fi update of "Treasure Island"; Heath Ledger as a British officer out to prove his valor in "The Four Feathers"; Roberto Benigni's live-action version of "Pinocchio"; "Maid in Manhattan," a romance starring Jennifer Lopez and Ralph Fiennes; and an update of the 1960s TV show "I Spy," with Eddie Murphy and Owen Wilson as mismatched agents.
"Eddie plays more his '48 Hours' and 'Beverly Hills Cop' Eddie. He's much rawer and looser and funnier than he's been in years," said "I Spy" director Betty Thomas. "Owen's more intellectual and subtle, and Eddie's so out there dangling ... We've got two scenes in the movie, I would challenge you to find two funnier scenes in any movie, ever."
Also upcoming are Leonardo DiCaprio and Tom Hanks in Steven Spielberg's "Catch Me If

You Can," a cat-and-mouse tale of a con man and a G-man; DiCaprio, Daniel Day-Lewis and Cameron Diaz in Martin Scorsese's 1860s mob tale "Gangs of New York"; Renee Zellweger, Catherine Zeta-Jones and Richard Gere in the musical "Chicago"; Zellweger, Michelle Pfeiffer, Robin Wright Penn and newcomer Alison Lohman in the mother-daughter drama "White Oleander"; Samuel L. Jackson in the misadventures of a drug designer in "Formula 51"; and Jackie Chan as a chauffeur-turned-spy in "The Tuxedo."
There's Jack Nicholson as a widower on a road trip of self-discovery in "About Schmidt"; George Clooney in Steven Soderbergh's sci-fi psychological drama "Solaris"; Denzel Washington's directing debut "Antwone Fisher," about a troubled sailor and his psychiatrist; Nicolas Cage and Meryl Streep in the Hollywood tale "Adaptation," from the creators of "Being John Malkovich"; "The 25th Hour," Spike Lee's story of a prison-bound dope peddler (Edward Norton); the animated comedy "Adam Sandler's 8 Crazy Nights," with the "Mr. Deeds" star providing the three main voices; Robert De Niro as a homicide detective whose son is a murder suspect in "City By the Sea"; and De Niro and Billy Crystal with another mob couch trip in the sequel "Analyze That," as crime lord De Niro tries to go straight.

"I tend to never think sequel," said Harold Ramis, director of "Analyze This" and the new sequel. "I stayed out till I thought we really had a sound psychological notion to hang the story on. That's this notion of sociopathy. Can the criminal mind be changed?"

"Ironically, one of the straight jobs he gets is as a movie consultant to a TV show like 'The Sopranos,'" the HBO series about a mob boss in therapy.

Besides "8 Crazy Nights," Sandler has his own change in mind, branching out from teen-oriented humor in Paul Thomas Anderson's "Punch-Drunk Love," a comic romance co-starring Emily Watson. Sandler plays a man incapable of falling in love because of the emotional neutering he suffered growing up among seven cruel sisters.

"You might think, Adam Sandler and Emily Watson in the same movie?" said Watson, who also co-stars in "Red Dragon."

"I've sort of been in all these angst-ridden independent movies. I've died horribly a lot of times. And Adam's been a very different slice of the pie. He's still very charming and funny, all those things people love about him. But he's also gone quite daring. He's very layered. It feels very real, and Adam's incredibly romantic in this film."

■ ASPEN, Colo. — For now, children in Aspen can't do yoga.

The yoga program at Aspen Elementary school has been put on hold while administrators and parents determine whether the meditation would bring religion into the classroom.

Some families said the chanting that accompanies a selection of yoga techniques creates a challenge for separation of church and state.

Principal Barb Pitchford said the program was proposed as a way to help kids cope with the return to classes. Rowdy students could be calmed and readied for classwork after recess using a series of relaxing breathing and stretching techniques.

"In this day and age, children, I think, are overstimulated visually and auditorally," Pitchford said.

In response to parents' concerns school officials will hold a meeting Sept. 4 to answer questions about the yoga pilot program, called Yoga Ed.

The idea of introducing yoga to Aspen students grew out of an expert's presentation at the Aspen Youth Center in February.

■ CARSON CITY, Nev. — When some Nevada prison inmates who wanted to work on their golf game started to build a driving range, the state prison director got a bit teed off.

Now it's a baseball field. Prisons Director Jackie Crawford said convicts at the prison system's 100-inmate Tonopah Conservation Camp got the idea for their own driving range after volunteering time to build one for the city of Tonopah.

"Our inmates made a beautiful driving range for the city," Crawford said when asked Friday about the convicts' activity. "Then they said, 'Why not make our own?'" Crawford quickly stopped such talk.

"I can assure you that there are no golf courses at our prisons," Crawford added. "Not under this director."

Softball's another matter, she said, adding, "That's something all the prisons should have. It helps expend energy."

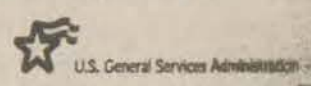

■ LOS ANGELES — Some 10,000 Navy submariners are skateboarding, racing cars and playing hockey — all thanks to a donation from the video game industry.

Each of the Navy's 72 subs has been given a video game console and about 20 top-selling games as part of the industry's post-Sept. 11 effort to boost morale of soldiers fighting terrorism.

The donation comes from members of the Interactive Digital Software Association, a trade group for the video game industry. Consoles donated include Microsoft's X-Box

Fire burns downtown furniture store in Whitesburg

The Associated Press

WHITESBURG — A fire destroyed a downtown furniture store early Thursday, authorities said.

Kentucky State Police said the fire started shortly after 4 a.m., burning the J.C. Reynolds Furniture Store on Webb Street, about a block from the Letcher County Courthouse. The flames also burned through utility lines near the store building, knocking out electricity in a portion of the county and cutting off communication with government agencies.

No injuries were reported, said state police dispatcher Danny Stacy.

Andrew Melnykovich, a spokesman for the state Public Service Commission, said BellSouth telephone reported that 911 emergency dispatching services were cut off with at least 1,800 other phone lines.

The phone company is working to restore phone service to emergency and other critical services first, as required by PSC rules, Melnykovich said.

Initial reports were that all service could be restored by Friday, but Melnykovich said that may be optimistic. "The residential service comes last, frankly," he said.

Melissa McHenry, spokeswoman for American Electric Power, said about 900 customers lost electricity. By noon, service had been restored to all but about 60 customers. McHenry said she expected full electric service to be restored by Thursday evening.

The furniture store is next to The Mountain Eagle newspaper building, which did not burn. The fire, however, was so hot that it melted portions of the exterior of a bank across the street and broke some windows.

Jim Webb, program director at WMMT radio station in Whitesburg, said a power outage apparently related to the fire knocked the station off the air for several hours.

The Kentucky Arts Council, a state agency in the Education, Arts and Humanities Cabinet, was established by the Kentucky General Assembly in 1965 to develop and promote support for the arts in Kentucky. The Arts Council creates opportunities for Kentuckians to value the arts and participate in the arts, offering grants and awards for organizational support, community arts development, individual artist recognition and arts education. In a continued partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts, the Kentucky Arts Council plays a critical role in promoting cultural tourism, enhancing economic development and securing a strong foothold for the arts in education.

For over a decade, the Wallace-Reader's Digest Funds have invested in leading cultural groups across the country that are working to make the arts an active part of people's everyday lives. START is part of a multifaceted strategy that seeks to help interested arts groups and their funding partners find successful ways to encourage greater participation in the arts and to bring greater vitality to their communities.

Louisville favored again

LOUISVILLE — At the beginning of every August, I'll bet that most fans have a definite opinion about the outcome of the Kentucky-Louisville football game. But then, after days and weeks of relentless hype from the two camps through the media, confusion and doubt set in.

Experiencing Bristol

Last weekend while Eastern Kentucky was getting bowled over, I headed out of town to enjoy my last free weekend until school gets out next May.

I spent the time with former News-Express Sports Editor Brad Lockard, who from here on will simply be called Lockard, and his wife Kristy, who will be known as The Wife. That's what Brad calls her, so I'm assuming she won't get too mad. I've even gotten an email or two from her with that signature, and it makes me laugh every time.

So last Saturday night, we sat down to watch Bristol's Sharpie 500. It should be noted that

It's part of the game

I think football, more so than any other sport, prepares young boys to become men. Please, don't get me wrong, basketball, baseball, soccer, track, swimming — are all good sports, and all sports help to build character and other key things into our youth, but football is built on hard work and dedication.

Although I wasn't around to watch legendary Coach Vince Lombardi coach, I've read enough of his quotes to know that he knew football, and he knew life.

Some South Floyd High football faithful will likely get somewhat teary-eyed tonight when the Raiders host the Raceland Rams in a first-ever game on the new field at Raider Stadium. South Floyd played Raceland last season in a first

The Prestonsburg Blackcats get a second chance for a first win Saturday night, one week after their season-opener, when they travel to Hazard to take on Whitley County in the Pride of the Mountains Gridiron Classic. Prestonsburg's only regular-season loss in 2001 came to Whitley County on the road.

With Whitley County, Prestonsburg head coach John DeRossett sees an even bigger and more physical squad than the Lawrence County team he and his Blackcats faced in the first game of the season in the Recreation Bowl.

DeRossett takes over baseball program, Butcher new AD

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

If John DeRossett can convert the good fortunes of the Prestonsburg High School football program over to the baseball diamond, it should make for an interesting spring 2003.

DeRossett will take the reigns of the PHS baseball program and begin his first season as manager in 2003. Already, the coach is somewhat excited about the possibilities of leading a baseball program, even though football season has just gotten started. He takes over guidance duties from longtime manager Russell Shepherd who is stepping away after a lengthy tenure. Shepherd has also stepped away from the sport of volleyball. Boys' basketball coach Jackie Day Crisp is the new volleyball coach. Both new coaches are excited about the new possibilities.

"Coaching high school baseball something I've always wanted to do," said DeRossett. "Right now, we're still working on getting a competitive varsity schedule together along with a full JV schedule. After football season, we'll really get down to business with the baseball thing."

The Blackcat coach also mentioned that the P'burg High baseball team will begin the 2003 season with a spring trip to play some teams down south.

TENNIS

NEW YORK — On a day that past champions Pete Sampras and Serena Williams won at the U.S. Open and one-hit wonders Jelena Dokic and David Nalbandian lost — all in straight sets — Tommy Haas and his foil, David Sanchez, produced enough theater for a round's worth of matches.

Haas pulled out a 7-6 (1), 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5 victory that was a struggle for a player usually most comfortable on hard courts. If he can deal with right arm pain that's been hounding him, Haas could be a title threat.

Haas showed up for the first-round match wearing a white muscle shirt, which was ruled out by tournament referee Brian Earley.

NEW YORK — Lleyton Hewitt's $103,000 fine for refusing to do a required TV interview probably will be reduced on appeal.

Calling that amount unreasonable, ATP Tour chief Mark Miles said at the U.S. Open that he expects the panel of former players that considers such appeals to reduce Hewitt's penalty, perhaps to as low as $10,000-$20,000.

Hewitt was docked half his prize money at the Tennis Masters Series event in Cincinnati this month because he didn't do an interview with ESPN, which televised the tournament. He reached the final there.

MIAMI — Mark Philippoussis, forced to retire from his first round match at the U.S. Open, is expected to miss two months because of a hyper-extended left knee and bone bruise.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

WHITE PINE, Tenn. — Which was hotter, NASCAR in Bristol or The Rocky Mountains Horses in White Pine, Tennessee?

Bristol was not the only town in East Tennessee that was packed with excitement and competition this past weekend.

Morristown and the White Pine Expo Center hosted the Tennessee State Rocky Mountain Horse Show. The show was a tremendous success with lots of spectators and entries despite the lack of hotel and motel accommodations due to the NASCAR race being held in Bristol.

The White Pine Expo Center is a modern facility being recently built by and managed by Wright State College of Morristown. The facility is modern, well kept and used all the year round for various activities from horse show and sales to the modern rodeos.

This type of facility is desperately needed in Eastern Kentucky to support tourism and host activities that would draw business to the beautiful part of the state.

Although this being the last of the state shows before the grand International Show held at the Horse Park in Lexington, the Tennessee State show boasted of over two hundred entries and horses and riders from all over the Southeast U.S..

Floyd County's Prince Albert Stables made the journey to compete. Prince Albert Stables had over 50 entries bring home 11 championships and three grand championships.

Drivers say practice key to Darlington success

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DARLINGTON, S.C. — It's a fact of life in Winston Cup: If you want success at Darlington Raceway, you practice, practice, practice.

"It only comes with time," said Kurt Busch, among several racers turning laps last week on NASCAR's oldest superspeedway to prepare for Sunday's Southern 500.

A year ago, Busch became the first rookie since the late Davey Allison in 1987 to win a Darlington pole. But like so many young 'uns at "The Track Too Tough To Tame," he scraped the wall in turn 4 on race day and was not a factor.

Busch feels the more seat time, the better his chances of joining current Darlington masters such as Jeff Gordon, Bill Elliott, and the Burton brothers of Ward and Jeff.

Busch says the 53-year-old track reminds him of his younger days growing up running at 3-8s of a mile Las Vegas Speedway.

There, you had to right up against the wall to stay in the high groove — the same as Darlington.

"This is a fun racetrack, and there are not a lot of them out there you can say that about," Busch said.

His teammate at Roush Racing, Matt Kenseth, also spent a couple of days working on his Darlington technique and liked how he felt.

"I'm pretty comfortable here. This has always been one of our better tracks," Kenseth said. "We've haven't ran as good the last couple of times and that's why we wanted to come and make ourselves better."

It's a lesson that's not lost on veterans.

Terry Labonte will suit up for his 25th Southern 500 this weekend. He has typically run well at Darlington, but his only victory there came in 1980. That's why he was back with his crew last week.

"You've got to get experience here if you want to succeed, particularly these days,"

Labonte said.

Jeremy Mayfield has come as close as you can to taming Darlington without actually taking the checkered flag. Mayfield, tutored here in 1994 by five-time Darlington winner Cale Yarborough, had five top-five finishes in the past nine Darlington races.

"There's a lot of reasons why we needed to come here," said Mayfield, running a Dodge for Ray Evernham. "It's a good race-track for me and we need to do this to win races."

To some, Darlington is a dilapidated relic with its rough, gravelly surface and misshapen corners that give it its famous egg shape. To the drivers, though, it's a link to history and greats such as Yarborough, David Pearson and the late Dale Earnhardt. You don't get that at Texas Motor Speedway and Chicagoland.

"Whether you have had a lot of success at Darlington or not, its hard to ignore the tradition and heritage of the place," said Busch Grand National driver Stanton Barrett, who also tested here two days last week. "They might have redone some grandstands and moved the start-finish line, built a new garage and all of that, but its still the same place David Pearson and Junior Johnson and Darrell Waltrip raced."

The tamers of Darlington are a short list, track president Andrew Gurtis said. To add your name, "you've got to win here. It's that simple," he said.

The most recent crop of acknowledged masters — none of who came out for practice the past two weeks: Jeff Gordon, who won four consecutive Southern 500s from 1995-98; a hot Elliott, who has won five times at Darlington; and the Burton boys, who have won four of the past seven races run here.

Terry Labonte, whose brother Bobby also has won the Southern 500, says you can never rest easy at Darlington no matter your experience. A year ago, the elder Labonte was running strong when he crashed into the wall and bent his Chevy's rear-end housing. "It ruined the rest of our day," he said.

"If you can run 500 miles here and not hit the wall," he said, smiling, "you might have a good finish."

season was also an obstacle for Tiger head coach David LeMaster.

"It was hard for us to go on the road for the first game of the season," said LeMaster. "We've got a lot of young kids and having just one scrimmage to prepare for the season also hurt us."

Justin Arms and Tate Harmon missed last week's opener for the Tigers. Arms is expected back in the lineup. At press time, Harmon remained somewhat doubtful for the contest.

Shane Simpkins will quarterback the Tigers. Other top offensive players include seniors Kyle Murphy and Kyle Arms, junior Jeremy Runyon and sophomore first-year player Steven Jones.

The Paintsville offensive and defensive lines are anchored by senior Ryan Brown.

Allen Central packed a punch last Friday night in its opener against Betsy Layne, while spreading field and will look to do so again this week. Dustin Hammonds, Alex Patton and a host of other talented Rebel contributors from one week ago will again look to put a contest in the win column. The early district game is highly pivotal for both ball clubs.

Ask any Johnson Central High football player what the highlight of last season's 2-8 season and he'd probably tell you it was a victory on the road over the Bourbon County Colonels in Week Two of the season. Former Johnson Central assistant coach Chuke Williams is the head coach of the Colonels. Bourbon County lost last week in a season-opener to Somerset, 59-12.

Johnson Central, after scrimmaging well against Belfry and Covington Holmes, lost to Ashland Saturday night in head coach Bill Tom Ross' first game at the helm of the program, 43-0. The loss set the Golden Eagles back in the district with an 0-1 record.

Johnson Central's ground game was nonexistent last week. Running backs Chet Griffith, Phillip Webb and Chet Yates failed to get anything going thanks to a stingy Ashland defense which kept the Golden Eagle ball carriers pinned in for the entire night. Junior Matt Fannin is the Golden Eagle quarterback. Ross knows his team must do better tonight if it expects to beat Bourbon County.

"I was real disappointed with our line play," said Ross. "Ashland had players back there a couple of times in which they almost took the handoff. We've got to play better than that, if we expect to win."

The Allen Central-Paintsville game is set to kickoff at 6 p.m. Johnson Central-Bourbon County will follow.

Lewis County in an opener last week.

"We're playing two real good football teams right off the bat," said Daniels. Raceland's got some good skill-people and will throw the ball around alot. That's something we've got to be ready to defend against."

Raceland runs much the same offense as Pike County Central, a team South Floyd faced in the pre-season. What's South Floyd's best chance at shaking up the Raceland offense?

"We've got to try and mix it up alot and get some pressure on their quarterback," said Daniels. "There's just some thing we have to do to win the football game."

The South Floyd coach vows to stretch the field more this week than last.

signing of a New York Giants assistant as head coach and general manager. He was Vince Lombardi.

In his first season, Lombardi lifted the Packers to a 7-5 record and unanimously was voted Coach of the Year. Then in 1960, the Packers captured the Western Division title and went on to win World Championships in 1961, 1962, 1965, 1966 and 1967. Never finishing lower than second since 1960, his teams became the standard of football excellence and the Packer franchise one of the most successful.

Over a nine-year span as head coach, Lombardi's teams racked up 98 victories against 30 losses and 4 ties for a remarkable .758 winning percentage. Even more noteworthy, however, is the record of Lombardi coached teams in postseason play. In 10 division playoffs and World Championship games, the Packers emerged victorious nine times.

As the second week of the football season is now here, and several of our area teams continue to search for their first win of the season, I thought I'd share some great Lombardi quotes. Many of these quotes have become such a motivational tool for not only football coaches of today, but also basketball and baseball coaches. I once heard one area baseball coach spout off four different Lombardi quotes before his team played in a sectional game.

Some of my favorite Lombardi quotes follow.

If you aren't fired with enthusiasm, you'll be fired with enthusiasm.

Mental toughness is essential to success.

You never win a game unless you beat the guy in front of you. The score on the board doesn't mean a thing. That's for the fans. You've got to win the war with the man in front of you. You've got to get your man.

To achieve success, whatever the job we have, we must pay a price.

Success is like anything worthwhile. It has a price. You have to pay the price to win and you have to pay the price to get to the point where success is possible. Most important, you must pay the price to stay there.

Football is a great deal like life in that it teaches that work, sacrifice, perseverance, competitive drive, selflessness and respect for authority is the price each and every one of us must pay to achieve any goal that is worthwhile.

If you believe in yourself and have the courage, the determination, the dedication, the competitive drive and if you are willing to sacrifice the little things in life and pay the price for the things that are worthwhile, it can be done.

The quality of a person's life is in direct proportion to their commitment to excellence, regardless of their chosen field of endeavor.

Once a man has made a commitment to a way of life, he puts the greatest strength in the world behind him. It's something we call heart power. Once a man has made this commitment, nothing will stop him short of success.

Unless a man believes in himself and makes a total commitment to his career and puts everything he has into it-his mind, his body, his heart-what's life worth to him.

It is essential to understand that battles are primarily won in the hearts of men.

In great attempts, it is glorious even to fail.

They may not love you at the time, but they will later.

Leaders are made, they are not born. They are made by hard effort, which is the price which all of us must pay to achieve any goal that is worthwhile.

The harder you work, the harder it is to surrender.

The difference between a successful person and others is not a lack of strength, not a lack of knowledge, but rather in a lack of will.

— Vince Lombardi

And, I could list more, but those are just a few for area players to think about as they head out to the battlefield, and that's what it is, this week. And finally, last but not least, here's my personal favorite Vince Lombardi quote:

Winning is not a sometime thing: it's an all the time thing. You don't win once in a while; you don't do the right thing once in a while; you do them right all the time. Winning is a habit. Unfortunately, so is losing.

season. Betsy Layne quarterback Michael Rogers may emerge as a standout for the Bobcats. Kickoff for tonight's game is set for 7:30 p.m.

Johnson apologetic following Bristol incident

by JENNA FRYER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Jimmie Johnson stood on the apron of the Bristol racetrack, angrily waiting for Robby Gordon to drive by.

Upset because Gordon had just knocked him out of Saturday night's race, Johnson waved his middle finger at him as he passed.

The gesture was so out of character for Johnson, it was almost funny. For the first time in his spotless, sparkling rookie season, Johnson showed signs of not being calm, cool and collected all the time.

For that, he's now sorry. "If I could take it back, I would," Johnson said. "I don't need to be out there acting the way I did and I'm ashamed it happened. I was very animated, and I'm disappointed in myself for handling things the way I did."

"But with so much on the line, contending for the championship, my emotions got the best of me. It's something I won't do again in the future — I'm a professional and need to be acting like a professional, and not out there making obscene gestures."

There's no doubt that Johnson is beating himself up over his actions.

Certainly he wasn't alone in losing his temper Saturday night and Johnson's gesture was actually tame compared to some of the other confrontations.

Ward Burton, upset with Dale Earnhardt Jr., pulled the heat shields off of his shoes and whipped them at Earnhardt's car as he drove on by. Still fuming during his TV interview a few moments later, Burton told a national audience he wished he had something to shoot at Earnhardt.

But Johnson, a polite and charming 26-year-old, has taken pains to be California-cool this season. When he lost the Coca-Cola 600 in May because he was penalized for overshooting his pit stall during the final stops, he went to his hauler and collected himself before calmly addressing his error.

Johnson figures that's the way everyone wants the drivers to behave, including NASCAR.

"I don't think they like drivers running out on the race-track and throwing things and being in the situation of being injured, hit by a vehicle," Johnson said. "In some ways, it makes for good TV, seeing some

For Crisp, its his first time sitting on the bench in a volleyball game. His first chance for a win came Monday on the road at Johnson Central High School. His team suffered a setback there, before hosting Phelps later in the week and also falling. Bobby Hamilton, also a relative newcomer to the sport of volleyball, assists Crisp. Both are former girls' basketball coaches. Hamilton also coaches tennis at Prestonsburg.

PHS assistant principal Jerry Butcher has yet another hat to wear. Butcher, an assistant football coach and head wrestling coach, is the new athletic director. He takes over for Harold Tackett who held the position last year. Tackett, the head girls' basketball coach at Prestonsburg, is now teaching at Betsy Layne High School.

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — An IOC panel has recommended dropping baseball and softball from the Summer Olympics.

The panel also proposed adding golf and rugby to the 2008 Beijing Games.

If the panel's changes are adopted, there would be 27 sports if baseball, softball and modern pentathlon were dropped, and rugby and golf were added. Officials said an unspecified third new sport was also under consideration.

while I watch a little racin' from time to time, I wouldn't call myself a fan. However, Lockard and The Wife are huge supporters of Jeff Gordon, who apparently hadn't won a race since 1947.

With a wink and a nod toward espn.com's The Sports Guy, we kept ourselves a diary to let you know how things turned out.

8:00: Welcome to Casa de Lockard, located in luxurious Flatwoods, Ky., just a couple of minutes outside the big city of Ashland. Lockard, The Wife and I are joined by Allen Bestwick, Wally Dallenbach and Benny Parsons for tonight's big event, which has attracted roughly 19 million people to the small town of Bristol, Tenn.

Seriously, the event is known simply as "The Night Race," and saw around 148,000 people surround the .533 mile track. It is one amazing site.

You should know that our day has already involved Lockard and I going out for a dozen doughnuts (not nearly that many survived to see the Casa), roughly our 30th viewing of (ital) O Brother, Where Art Thou? (ital), and, just before race time, the consumption of an enormous amount of dumplings. Now that's a good day.

8:01: As the cars circle the track before the race begins, Parsons tries to interview driver Kevin Harvick. The prerace in-the-car interviews never work initially, and Lockard is no fan of BP. "He may be the worst interviewer ever."

8:08: We're racin', baby!

8:10: A three-car pileup nets the night's first caution, only six laps in. We'll get used to the yellow flag before the night ends.

8:22: As Robby Gordon causes a wreck for our third caution in 14 minutes, it's ice cream time at the Casa.

8:28: Our trio won't be mistaken for the Rainbow Warriors anytime soon. Our first pit stop of the night was too long, but netted us a slice of chocolate cake with our choice of frostings and ice cream with a selection of toppings.

For the record, yours truly went with sour cream icing and vanilla ice cream with butter-scotch. Oh, I hope my doctor doesn't read this.

8:29: FUMBLE!!

8:30: The Wife comes to the rescue, scooping up my cake crumbs from a sizable bite tumbling off the fork and landing in the carpet. She has a cool little vacuum that makes it all disappear, and all sides agree it should stay beside me for the time being. I gotta get me one of them. No, not the vacuum; I need a The Wife.

Oh, sorry. At this point, Dale Earnhardt Jr. leads Rusty Wallace and Jeff Gordon in our event of choice.

8:43: After another accident, Elliott Sadler - a "cutie", according to The Wife - waits on Joe Nemachek to come back around, runs out on the track and points to his head. I think Sadler was telling Nemachek to use his head. Or maybe it was that he was going to beat Nemachek to the postrace spread.

Regardless, it's our sixth caution in 72 laps, and won't be the first time drivers take umbrage with their friends.

8:44: Word comes from the pits that Sterling Marlin's jack man - hey, that's what they called him - is ok after a brush and will be able to finish the night. Then we learn this guy's the "backup" jack man, and is in because the first-teamer is out with a pulled hamstring!

Jonesborough, Tenn. in only his second performance rode his entry Rocky Topper in the five year old and older class to the blue in an outstanding performance.

Don Bryson of Oil Springs, in only his second appearance, delivered Sweet Georgia Brown to the winner's circle in the Novice class. Georgia continued her winning ways by brining the blue ribbon in the Four year old trail pleasure and continuing on to claim the Tennessee State Grand Champion Trail Pleasure Horse. Quite a night for Sweet Georgia Brown.

The Tennessee State Show marked the first appearance for the young black stallion Sullivan Ballou, proudly owned by Pat and Robyn Brandenburg Monroe, Georgia.

Sully's error-free performance earned him the blue in the two year old Trail Pleasure Class. Sully topped the evening off with his triumphant ride to the Two Year Old Grand Championship with Josh Murdock in the irons.

Myranda Elliott of Prestonsburg claimed wins in the Youth 12-17 class. Jesse Rainer on Ellie's Eli conquered the men amateur division with his blue ribbon ride. Dr. Andy Elliott claimed the reserve trophy in men's amateur division.

Murdock, riding the top filly Miss Kitts Amazing Grace, a Jane Whitson entry of Jonesborough, Tenn., claimed the blue in the three year old division. Murdock continued with back to back wins on the popular stallion Chocolot in the men's open division.

The evening was topped off with the Sue Wells aboard the Jean Stanley entry Ellie's Eli winning the Tennessee State Grand Championship.

of the emotions of the drivers. But I think NASCAR will get involved if someone is getting in the position of getting hit and injured."

NASCAR did step in during Johnson and Gordon's confrontation, which began under yellow midway through the race.

Gordon, one lap down, said that Johnson, two laps down, should have given him the courtesy of letting him around for the restart. So Gordon, under the yellow, popped Johnson several times to tell him to move over.

Johnson refused. On the restart, Gordon hit him and raised Johnson's rear wheels off the ground. Johnson spun into Mark Martin, damaging both cars of the two title contenders.

"I haven't been any madder in my whole life," Johnson said. "Racing for the Winston Cup championship in your rookie season, and to have something like that happen, that was uncalled for, and was not even at speed in the race."

NASCAR penalized Gordon two laps for rough driving after the wreck. Gordon complained he was being unfairly punished and that he hit Johnson only because Johnson was slow on the restart and possibly missed a shift in gears.

Johnson's lapse in control of his emotions was a surprise, but car owner Rick Hendrick didn't mind.

"I thought he did a pretty good job, I was ready to tell him to go finish him off," Hendrick said. "When you start drilling a guy in the back going down the straightaway, or before you hit the green you start hitting and then you finish it, that's about the most blatant thing I've ever seen for a car that's in the championship race."

And Jeff Gordon, his teammate and part co-owner, thought Johnson's reaction showed the fiery side the young driver usually keeps on the race track.

"I know Jimmie, he's calm, cool, but he takes this stuff seriously and he's intense," Gordon said. "And that's what I love about him. You want a guy with that intensity. You gotta know when to grab hold."

Part of his anger came from the damage the wreck caused in his race for the championship.

Johnson, who had worked hard all weekend to have a strong race after damaging his car in a practice accident, finished 34th in the race and dropped to fifth in the standings — 145 points behind leader Sterling Marlin.

It was a huge falloff, he had started the race only 60 points back from Marlin and in third place in the standings.

He's still angry about it as he heads into Darlington Raceway for the Southern 500, but he's doing his best to let it go and swears there won't be any retaliation in Sunday's race.

"It's behind me, it's done, there's nothing I can do about it, and the points are gone," Johnson said. "We don't need to be out there tearing up race cars, making our sponsors look bad, making our teams look bad, and making the crews work any harder than they already do."

"You've just got to get over it and be a professional about it."

Besides, Johnson said Darlington is no place to exact revenge.

With its rough, gravelly surface and odd corners that give the 53-year-old track an egg shape, the track is tough enough to master without worrying about grudges.

Johnson showed he had a grasp for the track this spring, when he qualified fifth and finished sixth during his first Winston Cup race. But that was early and Johnson is now in the thick of the championship hunt.

"At Darlington you really have to race the racetrack, if you're caught up in battling with someone, or charging too hard, that track will bite you and destroy your race car," Johnson said. "It's one of those few places where you try to block out who's around you, who's coming in your mirror, and who's racing in front of you."

"It can be a vicious track. So you try to put your emotions away and run your own independent race."

Sports

ond World Series in major league history.

I am searching to see whose side I am on: the owners or the players. My decision is that I blame both sides for the mess that baseball is in today. I really do not like what the present day owners and present day players have done to the game that has been so good to all of them.

I have watched the "cry babies," who are millionaires over and over again, sing a sad song of what the owners might do come spring with the threat they will lock the players out and hold the edge at the bargaining table. But at the same time they are saying they are doing to protect the integrity of the game. Give me a break!

The owners, on the other hand, keep telling the world the game is in trouble and in danger of becoming extinct if something is not done about the salary farce that is happening in the game today. Sorry! No sympathy here. The owners are the ones who caved in to the players to start with back in the 1970s when "Catfish" Hunter took the Yankees for several million (nothing like today) and Yankee owner George Steinbrenner set the tone for what is happening today.

I am sorry, but not one is worth the millions that players are being paid today. I am sorry. That is the way I feel and I would say the majority of fans feel the same way.

Let them strike!

I promise you this, here is one old boy of summer who will not help turn the turnstiles next season or any after that. Let them "go hungry" if that be the case.

Blackcats, Raiders look for first win

The Prestonsburg Blackcats and South Floyd Raiders will look to get on the winning side of the still young football season tonight. The Raiders will be at home to open their new stadium while hosting 16th Region power Raceland.

It has to be an exciting time for the Raiders as they take the field tonight but according to Raider Coach Donnie Daniels, the playing surface is not that great.

"We worked until 11:30 Wednesday night getting some things done on it," said the veteran Raider coach. "Tonight (Thursday) we will stripe it and it looks like a 1 a.m. quitting time tonight to get that done."

Coach Daniels said he wanted to get the plugs down so it will be so hard to make off the field in the future but he said the playing surface is not going to be that great.

"They may have to come back in here and grade it again," he said. "I have about 10 water spots on the field. I am not too pleased with the grade level. The grass on the field will get better but my issue is the playing surface."

Daniels said Raceland will be strong opponent for his team, which is coming off a 33-0 loss to powerful Harlan last Friday night.

"They are a very versatile team, Raceland is," he said. "They are more a finesse team. Unlike Harlan, who just smacks you in the mouth and goes around you."

Raceland finished even in the district last year at 5-5, finishing third in their district last season.

"They are a versatile football team. They will throw the ball a lot. They like to use that Hal Mumme philosophy and throw the ball," explained Daniels.

The fans should pack the new stadium bleachers and I look for the Raiders to get even at 1-1 with a win over Raceland.

At Hazard, Coach John

Derossett's ball club will face a very familiar opponent in Whitley County, a 4A school. If you recall the great season the Blackcats enjoyed last year, Whitley County is the lone team who inflicted a regular season loss on Prestonsburg, 14-13.

"This team is as good as last year's team," said long time Blackcat supporter Kelly Moore. "I believe they can go just as far in the playoffs this year."

Moore based his prediction on the throwing arm of quarterback Joey Willis, who is throwing arm is stronger and more accurately.

Prestonsburg and Whitley County will face off in the Pride of the Mountain Classic at Hazard tonight. Should be a good one.

Keep those emails coming at edtaylor@gtcom.net. Until Sunday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Reed

Most of the coaches' and players' utterances, even the ridiculous ones, are published unfiltered by the truth machine. Everything is viewed through rose-colored glasses. Nary is heard a discouraging word.

Everybody on both teams is bigger, faster, better. Flaws have been corrected, holes plugged, disbelief suspended. There's much angry growling over being disrespected by (a) the opponent's fans, (b) the evil media, and (c) any other fool who can't see that the program is on the brink of turning the corner, getting over the hump, and moving to the next level.

The UK players want to win to prove who's still No. 1 in the state and to earn Coach Guy Morriss some job security. The U of L players want to win because Big Blue fans consider their three consecutive wins as only a fluke and they're tired of being reminded that they best they can hope for, as long as U of L is in Conference USA, is a trip to Memphis in late December.

At the same time that UK Coach Morriss has talked about the Cards as if they're the second coming of the 1972 Miami Dolphins but subtly encouraged the belief that his Wildcats might be better than the pundits expect, U of L Coach John L. Smith has downplayed the Cards' No. 16 preseason national ranking and talked about how far U of L must go to be a good team.

What to make of it all?

Only that history proves that talk is cheap, especially in August.

In Decembers past, many UK and U of L players would feel silly and embarrassed if asked to review their August quotes. The history of both schools is one of promises unkept, dreams unfulfilled, and vows unfulfilled.

Asked to put their money where their mouths are, both programs usually gag on their own words as they descend to their usual level of mediocrity.

Of course, that has changed since Smith came to U of L five years ago. His teams have produced far more than hot air.

At UK, however, the pie-in-the-sky dreaming is aided and abetted by a supportive media who would rather eat a Dave Ragone Bobblehead instead of saying anything unflattering about the Cats. Despite consecutive 2-9 seasons, the consensus seems to be that five victories are virtually assured and at least six likely.

These Big Blue optimists are counting on four definite wins (UTEP, Indiana, Middle Tennessee, and Vanderbilt), and two definite losses (Florida and Tennessee). That means UK has to carve two wins out of U of L, Georgia, LSU, Mississippi State, Arkansas, and South Carolina to become bowl eligible.

I think 4-8 is more reasonable than 5-7 or 6-6.

At U of L, however, it's probably just as unrealistic to expect a repeat of last season's 11-2 record. I see six wins (Duke, Army, Memphis, TCU, UAB and Houston) and two losses (Florida State and Colorado State). That leaves UK, East Carolina, Cincinnati and Southern Miss as the swing games.

So I'm thinking 8-4, maybe 9-3, for the Cards.

Rather than being swayed by any of the hype, I'm sticking to the way I felt on August 1: the Cards will beat the Cats by two or three touchdowns.

Make it something like U of L 35, UK 17.

The one predictable factor is that U of L's defense will be the game's dominant unit, meaning that UK should struggle more to put points on the board than U of L. In the quarterback battle, Ragone should pile up better stats than UK's Jared Lorenzon, who's still carrying around nearly 300 pounds.

Rather than insisting that Lorenzon lose weight and get in shape, UK's football staff appears to have thrown up its hands and said, "Whatever." Too bad that Morriss and Co. haven't been able to do with Lorenzon what U of L basketball coach Rick Pitino has done with Marvin Stone.

It says here the heat will get to Lorenzon as much as the U of L defense, leading to some game-breaking fumbles and interceptions.

And one more thing: The only way UK will get into a bowl this season is if the U of L players boycott another trip to Memphis and their little brothers at UK are drafted as a substitute.

Who knew? I could not possibly make this stuff up.

8:58: During a commercial, we discover that Valley Sports from Louisville leads Massachusetts 4-0 in the bottom of the fourth in the US title game of the Little League World Series. Good stuff.

9:00: On lap 131, Casa de Lockard explodes as Jeff Gordon passes Junior on lap 131. It's our first lead change of the night.

9:11: NASCAR just isn't the same without Dick Trickle.

9:20: After a story about nine couples getting married this morning at the start/finish line - with driver Jerry Nadeau serving as best man - Dallenbach sums it up for all of us: "Okie, dokie." Apparently of Wally is known for his "okie dokies."

9:36: After Kentucky holds on for the 4-0 win, the kids from Massachusetts stand in front of the dugout and cheer. Ah. Little League Baseball.

9:50: Strange laughter fills the Casa. It's from two odd looking, intellectually-challenged guys. It's Lockard and I, and we've found the Beavis and Butt-head movie on some channel during a break. The mere site of them playing with the automatic toilets sends both of us into hysterics.

The Wife isn't nearly as amused.

9:52: Apparently the Bristol Motor Speedway brought 10 people to the race, drew one name out of a hat and that person stood to win a cool million if driver Steve Park could win the event.

But it's looking doubtful now, as Park has just been involved in a wreck. His (ital) third (ital) of the night.

9:59: Somehow, a mangled rubber hammer has made its way onto the track, and we have another caution. At least one of our illustrious trio is pumped as TNT plays us to the break with Bob Seger's (ital) Night Moves, (ital) the best song ever penned.

10:23: "Hey Butt-head, Seattle's in Washington D.C., right?" I miss those guys.

10:27: Hut Stricklin (you gotta love these names) is re-entitled by Kentuckian Jeremy Mayfield, inspiring Dallenbach to share this one: "You tend to lose a lot of traction when your back tires are a foot off the ground."

10:28: Stricklin waits on Mayfield to pass, rushes the track and claps. Well, that was nice.

10:30: The Wife is in danger of a DNF, having fallen asleep on the couch. If Lockard and I weren't too stuffed, we'd be rolling in the floor laughing at Beavis and Butt-head.

10:37: Dave Blaney's No. 77 car is on fire ... literally.

10:47: After being eliminated from the race and suffering a sizable setback in the points championship, Jimmie Johnson flips the bird to the ever-popular Robby Gordon.

This stuff just doesn't happen enough in the rest of the sports

10:53: Hey, look at this! The Sharpie car leads the Sharpie 500! Now that's product placement. I woke up The Wife I was so excited about it.

10:58: Ward Burton is spun out by Junior, and, as the Budweiser Chevy passes again, throws his shoe shields in the driver's window. I think they should just stop the race, put up a big octagon in the middle of the track and let guys slug it out. To heck with all this gesturing, let's see some action here!

11:15: Zzzz ...

11:33: With five laps left, Rusty Wallace leads and holds off Jeff Gordon's attempt to pass. Our brilliant announcing team, this time BP himself, calls it this way: "Here it comes ... didn't work!" BP should announce all sporting events. OK, maybe not.

11:35: Using the bump-and-run, Gordon passes Wallace with three laps left and wins the Sharpie 500. Wallace has a few kind words to say for Gordon after the race, but we can't share them here with you. It's a family paper, I'm told. Meanwhile, Lockard has pulled so hard for his guy he's sweating like he just ran 500 laps at Bristol. A fine performance all around.

So there you go. We had 500 laps, only one spillage and Lockard and The Wife managed to get Gordon his first win in 31 races. All in all, an enjoyable night for us with some leftovers for the post-race spread and no three-hour traffic jam.

Through My Eyes

Then and now

As summer prepares to come to its "official end" this weekend, I have to admit that I am not truly sad to see it go. Although the first day of autumn is earmarked, according to my calendar, as occurring on September 23, Labor Day weekend generally is regarded, as they say, as summer's "last hurrah."

Kathy Prater
Lifestyles editor

As someone who does not very much enjoy enduring greasy, dripping makeup, humidity-flattened hair, summer's pesty houseflies, stinging insects and mosquitos, not to mention (ouch!) sunburns, I say, with fervor, "Hurrah! It's almost over!"

This Town That World

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request. The following column was written in 1961.

THE LIGHT THAT WAS

If, as we surely believe, one's love of God finds expression in love for others, Alice Lloyd must have loved her Creator much.

Use all the adjectives you can recall—devotion, concern, dedication, consecration, any and all of them—and you still fall far short of describing the great spirit of this woman whose life was a sacrifice for others, particularly for those who needed her most.

I, as has been the story so often in my experience, never met Mrs. Lloyd; I waited and postponed pilgrimages to her. Yet I knew her as a friend, because her life and work touched so many whom I know well.

Some say she buried herself in Caney Creek, this woman who sacrificed a brilliant journalistic career to come to the Mountains. But

As the "dog days" of summer drag wearily on, most folks are, at once, eager to see the stifling heat and humidity fade away, yet also more than a little sad to realize that the days of sun and fun, at least for this year, are almost over.

Today heralds in summer's "last hurrah." Labor Day weekend. Why not take the time to enjoy summer's last lengthy holiday with a leisurely afternoon spent underneath your favorite shade tree with those you love? To ensure a memorable farewell to summer, Delora Kraus, Floyd County's resident culinarian, has graciously supplied your "favorite" newspaper with another of her spectacularly creative menu plans - this time, put together with the express purpose of creating an easy, breezy, Labor Day picnic meal.

So, read on, and when you're finished, make a quick trip out to the garage to dust off that too oft forgotten picnic basket, shake out your favorite old "outside" blanket and prepare to say good-bye to summer in style. Delora notes that she has very much enjoyed this season's bounty of fresh vegetables and as harvest days come to an end, she has chosen for you recipes that will best utilize the summer's readily available and ample supply of bounty. Fresh corn, tomatoes, green beans, bell peppers, sweet onions, cabbage, eggplant and cucumbers are all fresh ingredients that may be found organically grown right here in our area by our very own local farmers. Check out the local farmer's markets and produce stands for some quality offerings.

Delora also especially recommends the "crispy chicken" fare, and the tomato and

Random thoughts

My neighbors, the Stukenbergs, have taken in an abandoned puppy. Sue found it alongside the highway.

She said she drove past, thinking much like many of us have numerous times, "I can't save them all."

But before she could finish the inner conversation, she found herself turning around to pick up the little brown and black hound with big, sad eyes and floppy ears.

The dog, she said, was lying beside the road as if she'd given up and had decided to die. The animal was covered with fleas and ticks, was emaciated and had scratches over its body.

Although she was wearing what she called "my Sunday clothes," Sue scooped up the puppy and took it home. It still has a bit of a limp from a sore on a back leg, but it's shiny clean, putting on weight and getting used to being pampered in an animal-loving family.

Sue, however, is concerned about its future. "We have to find a home for her," said the mother of four. "We just can't keep it."

Bill and Sue and their children already have two adopted dogs and an assortment of cats, and, like many of us, they're on a tight budget. Plus, a move out of the area is in the offing.

I write about this because the story is an oft-repeated one here. We frequently see animals on the road or beside it, generally far from houses where they might belong, abandoned and left to die.

It's safe to say that Maggie - the Stukenbergs have gone and named it - did not just wander to the stretch of road where she was Things to Ponder: I love my JOB!

Gee, it seems that the summer came and went so quickly. Suppose all of us tried hard to tolerate the extremely uncomfortable hot days. Everyone is probably looking forward to the last hurrah of summer, Labor Day weekend. Although it indicates an ending, it has the dual role of that of a beginning. This weekend also officially marks the beginning of our start into a season of routine activities, such as the children's school and extracurricular events like football, cheerleading, and academic meets. It's hard to believe that the next "big" weekend will be

"If I could speak, I would thank God for He made me. You see, what He made me and what I do, are the same. I am made of wood - not all polished, something you are afraid of scratching, nor rough, so that you are afraid that I'll scratch you. There is order and function to my form. I am thankful to be a porch swing."

Thanksgiving Day. In the meanwhile, let's enjoy Labor Day.

A guess is that most of us do not really know the history of Labor Day, how it came about, or what it means. Labor Day is devoted to no one person, living or dead, to no sect, race, or nation. Created by the labor movement, it was a time set aside to honor the economic achievements of American workers, a time for an annual national tribute to how workers have contributed to the strength, prosperity, and well-being of our country.

Although it is unclear as to who started it all, the first Labor Day observance was more than 100 years ago, when the Central Labor Union came up with the proposal and had a committee to arrange a demonstration and picnic. The very first one was on Tuesday, September 5, 1882, in New York City. Two years later, the day was switched to Monday. The first state bill to be passed proclaiming Labor Day was in Oregon on February 21, 1887, and by 1894, more than 23 states had adopted the holiday to pay attention to workers. The following about "loving a job" is written by someone who enjoys the "work" of writing and the pleasure of sharing. Her efforts are appreciated. Here's to hoping you realize the importance of what and why you do what you she was never buried till Tuesday; while she lived, life burst the bounds of a crippled body, and it shed a radiance in so many dark places. She came to Caney, almost without purse or scrip; she died, we are told, without ever having had a bank account of her own. Her wealth lay in a direction where so many scarcely deign to look.

Few of us worked with her as we should. Sometimes, out people may have thoughtlessly thrown barriers in her way. But, on the whole, we appreciated her within the limits of our ability to comprehend such a great soul. Of one thing we are not guilty: We did not entertain an angel unawares.

A ROUGH ROAD TO TRAVEL

A man's life is full of snags. He comes into the world without his consent and usually goes out against his will. When he is little, the big girls kiss him. If he remains poor, they say he is not energetic and if he gains riches, they say he inherited it. If he needs credit, nobody knows him, but if he is prosperous, everybody seeks favors.

If he is in politics, they say he is a grafter, and if he is out of politics, he is stupid. If he saves money, he is a miser. If he spends freely, he is a sucker. If he works hard, they call him crazy and if he doesn't work, he's a bum. If he pays all bills, he is a sap, and if he doesn't he's a deadbeat. If he rules his home, he is a tyrant and if he doesn't, they call him henpecked. If he is a doctor, some say he should have been an undertaker. If he is a dentist, he missed his calling and should have been a blacksmith. And if he splits kindling for widows, he's called a philanderer, but if he doesn't, he's a bad neighbor. And if he fishes—no, don't say it!

found. She was surely dropped there, perhaps with her mother and siblings.

What can we do to make people understand that this is simply wrong? It's wrong from a biblical standpoint; are we not instructed to be good caretakers of God's creations. It's wrong from a humanistic standpoint; how can we expect people to treat other people with compassion if they can't treat a creature of pure devotion and love with compassion?

I'm at a loss to solve this problem. All I know to do is keep harping on the matter.

Plus, I can urge you to support the local animal shelter and SNOOP, the Spay and Neuter Organization of Prestonsburg. SNOOP works with local veterinarians to help people who cannot otherwise afford to have their pets spayed and neutered. The goal is to reduce the number of unwanted animals.

To find out how you can help, contact SNOOP at PO Box 321, Prestonsburg, KY 41653 or call 606-889-9982.

Dr. Robert Perry is again offering his cemetery class through Prestonsburg Community College's Community Education Program.

As a continuing student, I can attest to the historical, social and physical value of the class. We visit cemeteries throughout the area, learning about our ancestors and sometimes finding long-lost kin.

Plus, we get much-needed exercise as we climb up, down and around hillside plots, and we have a lot of fun.

Join us Saturday at 9 a.m. at the Samuel May House, across from the Pizza Hut in Prestonsburg.

As far as I'm concerned summer is only worthwhile if I can stay home, forego the makeup routine, slather myself with sunscreen and spend the days in the refreshing, cool waters of the nearest swimming pool. Alas, "I owe, I owe, so it's off to work I go" each day, leaving the summer play periods to those more fortunate in the realm of leisure time.

This Labor Day, my mind hearkens back to a Labor Day fifteen years ago which actually was, for me, a true "labor" day as I found myself that holiday weekend trying desperately to give birth to my first child.

Emily, my firstborn, spent the first two days of that weekend stubbornly refusing to "come out" to greet the world, much as she does today at home as she spends hour after hour locked away behind her bedroom door. Just as the obstetrician resorted to using the tools of his trade, i.e., a scalpel, to pry her away from her cozy hideaway, i.e., my womb, I, myself, have more than once threatened to use whatever "tools" necessary to pry her away from the lair in which she spends the greatest portion of her time these days.

I've pondered, "Perhaps if I remove the television, the telephone, and the stereo maybe she'll come out." Considering these means to be a bit on the harsh side, I've wondered instead, "How about if I just remove the door to her bedroom? Then, at least, I can see her as I pass."

Oh well, I have finally determined, with the sigh of those truly surrendered to the state of resignation, what can I honestly say about my daughter's penchant for "alone time"? I think back to the year

Recognizing Job Burnout

by Audrey L. Canaff, Ph.D.

Job burnout — it's an increasingly common phenomenon in today's stressful workplace. But while some job stress is a normal occurrence at least some of the time in most jobs, how can you tell when you've lost the ability to manage the sources of that stress and when they're leading to a more serious reaction, the one we call job burnout?

Job burnout is a response to work stress that leaves you feeling powerless, hopeless, fatigued, drained and frustrated. But since job burnout is not an overnight occurrence, it's important to recognize its early signs and to act before the problem becomes truly serious:

1. Do you find yourself dreading going to work in the morning?
2. Are you regularly experiencing fatigue and low energy levels at your job?
3. Are you easily bored with your job?

4. Do work activities you once found enjoyable now feel like drudgery?
5. Are you depressed on Sunday afternoons thinking about Monday and the coming week?
6. Have you become more cynical or bitter about your job...your boss...the company? Do you find yourself easily annoyed or irritated by your co-workers?
7. Are non-work relationships (marital, family, friendships) affected by your work feelings?
8. Do you find yourself envious of individuals who are happy in their work?
9. Do you now care less than you used to about doing a "good job" at work? If you answer "yes" to any of these questions, you may be experiencing job burnout.

Q My doctor told me my knee pain is from a Baker's cyst. What is this and what can be done for it besides the "waiting and watching" he suggested?

A The knee joint is subjected to substantial forces. When standing still each one supports about one-half the body's weight. When running is the method of travel, the body weight is alternatively supported by one leg then by the other, but because of the forces involved in acceleration and deceleration while running, the knee can actually be stressed by several times the weight of the body. All this is to dramatize the typical robust nature of the knee joint.

Because of the forces it must endure, it is not surprising that knee problems are common, and many of these disorders cause pain. A Baker's cyst typically causes pain behind the knee in the area we doctors call the "popliteal space." In addition to pain, there is usually a bump or swelling that can be felt where none previously existed. Typically this is behind the knee on the medial side — the surface that's nearer to the other leg. The pain of a Baker's cyst can start suddenly, although most of my patients have had the discomfort for weeks before they finally come in to be examined.

The knee, like most joints, has a lining

Baker's cyst may heal itself or require surgery, time will tell that produces fluid to help nourish and lubricate the joint. This lining — the synovium or synovial membrane — produces lubricating fluid with the unimaginative name of "synovial fluid." Under some conditions the synovial membrane pushes through the tough supporting joint capsule and forms a balloon like sack. This sack is the Baker's cyst, and it is filled with synovial fluid.

A Baker's cyst usually occurs because of some other underlying knee problem. Determining the nature of that primary disorder requires a "hands on" examination of the knee. Your doctor will then ask you to carefully retell the saga of your knee problem. This will include answering such questions such as: How did your knee pain begin? What makes it better? What makes it worse? And, how it was the problem changed since it first began?

Often, some type of imaging technology is needed before a final diagnosis can be reached. This can include one or more of the following: an X-ray, ultrasound or MRI. The most common disorders that cause a Baker's cyst — osteoarthritis and rheumatoid disease — can often be discovered through this imaging process. A torn meniscus or other knee disorders can also produce a Baker's cyst.

Removing the fluid from a Baker's cyst with a syringe is often sufficient treatment. This deflates it and, thereby, reduces the pain. Unfortunately, more synovial fluid can be produced to refill the cyst, although this doesn't always happen. In fact, cysts sometimes rupture on their own and "go away" without any treatment. This is what your doctor is hoping will happen to you.

A Baker's cyst that is causing pain and refills after being drained may need to be surgically removed. The orthopedic surgeon, while roaming about inside your knee, will also use surgical techniques to address the underlying knee problems such as knee instability or a torn meniscus. This approach is often quite successful. Unfortunately, though, the majority of sufferers who have arthritis as the underlying problem don't get lasting improvement from surgical treatment because the underlying arthritis condition continues unabated.

Talk to your family doctor again if your cyst doesn't resolve itself in a reasonable period of time. At that point, I'd recommend asking for a consultation with an orthopedic surgeon to determine the best treatment for your Baker's cyst.

mozzarella sandwiches, as well as the grilled eggplant sandwiches, as "healthy alternatives to processed luncheon meats." The chicken recipe includes three optional "dipping sauces," and Delora says that this recipe is a "very nice pack-and-go item." And speaking of packing ease, our local culinary expert says that the recipes for "Pecan Pie Bars" and "Double Dark Decadent Brownies" are especially suited to picnic travel. Says Delora, "The pecan bars pack very nicely and the brownies, when made in a single-layer round cake pan, create a very nice presentation when done as a single layer and then cut into wedges when ready to serve. I like to make this and after it sets and the frosting stiffens, I put it in a larger, one-layer cake pan for travel." Delora also says that the brownies do nicely made in a square pan and cut individually, as well.

'Til next week, enjoy your Labor Day holiday!

GAZPACHO

2 medium cucumbers, peeled
1 medium yellow pepper
1/4 (one-fourth) small red onion
2 pounds ripe tomatoes (about 6 medium), peeled, seeded and cut into chunks
3 Tablespoons fresh lime juice
2 Tablespoons extravirgin olive oil
1/2 (one-half) teaspoon salt
1/4 (one-fourth) cup sour cream fresh parsley

Coarsely cut up half of one (1) cucumber, half of the yellow pepper and all the red onion. Set aside to stir into sour cream later. Cut remaining cucumbers and pepper into chunks.

In food processor, blend chunks of cucumber, pepper, tomatoes, lime juice, olive oil and salt until smooth. Pour into medium bowl, cover and refrigerate until well chilled, at least 6 hours or overnight.

Serve soup cold with a sprinkling of parsley and cut-up vegetables.

SWEET WHITE-CORN SOUP

7 cups of fresh white corn (about 8 or 9 ears)
2 cups heavy cream
4 scallions, white part only, washed well, and cut fine (leeks work well also) salt, to taste freshly ground white pepper.

to taste

1 cup mushrooms, quartered one-half (1/2) cup chicken broth or vegetable stock

1) In batches, puree the corn in a blender. Pass through a sieve to make 2 cups milk.

2) Heat the corn milk in a small saucepan over medium heat, whisking until thickened and bubbling, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat and slowly add the heavy cream while continuing to whisk. Pour the mixture into a stainless-steel bowl and place in a larger bowl filled with ice and water to stop the cooking.

3) Return to heat 2 to 3 minutes, but do not let the mixture boil. Pour into a blender and puree 30 seconds. Return to the stainless-steel bowl and place it back in the ice bath. Chill.

4) Bring a small pot of water to a boil. Add the onions and let boil 1 minute; scoop out and plunge the onions in a bowl of ice water. Drain and season with salt and pepper to taste.

5) Bring the mushrooms and stock to a boil in a medium saucepan. Continue to boil until the liquid is almost gone, about five minutes. Lower heat and cook 2 minutes, stirring once or twice. Season with salt and pepper. Combine with onions.

6) Gently combine the onion/mushroom mixture with the corn/cream mixture. Serve chilled do. Have a great time this Labor Day Weekend.

"If I could speak, I would thank God for He made me. You see, what He made me and what I do, are the same. I am made of wood - not all polished, something you are afraid of scratching, nor rough, so that you are afraid that I'll scratch you. There is order and function to my form. I am thankful to be a porch swing.

When the builder carried me home, I saw that this was just the right kind of house for me - country style. I have peeked in the windows when the blinds were open and they have beautifully decorated this house. More importantly, the house is furnished with a loving, kind-spirited family, and now, it is a home.

I am thankful to be a part of this home. I have watched the youngest daughter go through her high school years on me. She reads - sitting upright, long tan legs with ankles crossed, book in her lap - lounging on me, the porch swing. She courts with a young man beside her, who is trying not to stare at her beauty; she sits all prim and proper on me, the porch swing. She rocks and her feet are tucked up against her. Sometimes, her arms are filled with a bundle of joy, as her nephews sleep on me, the porch swing. Other times, she talks on the phone with her friends, hanging her legs over my back and keeping a pillow under her head.

Family, friends and neighbors come to visit and I always seem to be the preferred seat. Some are glad for my striped yellow and white cushion and beautiful pillows, while others have brought their own cushion with them, if you know what I mean. Oh, the strain on my chains! I want to say, "Did you see those two fine rocking chairs across the porch?" when they head my way. The disadvantage of being a porch swing is that I don't have a mouth.

The advantage of not having a mouth is people trust me with their conversations. I have yet to repeat a sacred word shared in confidence. I have heard words of faith and prayers to the God above, who knew I would be a porch swing, when I was still in when I, too, turned fifteen years old and I see the many, many similarities that exist between mother and daughter.

My daughter has a fondness for jeans, trendy t-shirts and pop music. So did I.

My daughter tends to unburden her soul and share her dreams with only the very closest of her friends, rather than turning to those who love her most - her family. Alas, so did I.

My daughter tends to not "pigeon hole" herself into one particular "clique," having friends who range anywhere from the overly-protected and "smothered-by-mother" types to the more "rebellious" types to the free-thinking, artsy types and even on to those who are more mainstream in their thinking and behaviors. Hmm, again, it sounds a lot like Mom's teenage years revisited.

My daughter tends, at times, to believe that she is more "up-to-date" on current trends and happenings than is her mother, who often, I fear, bores her to no end with constant pratter-the acorn. I have heard stories of tragedy, such as newlyweds turned to newly widowed and other long wedded partners, watching as cancer invades their bodies and lives. I have heard admissions of love. There are the father and mother to daughter and grandson and hopeful beau to the beautiful daughter. Being a porch swing does have its hazards - phew!

My job is sometimes hot, yet sometimes cold. I am glad that I can stay out all year and not get stored in the garage. I like to watch the comings and goings of the neighbors. I like to watch the leaves change colors - green to gold or plum or fiery orange. I love to watch the snowfall sometimes gently from a moonlit sky, but also sometimes in a fierce competition racing to the ground. I wonder if this is similar to the Boston Marathon or like soldiers marching in rank. I read the paper when it lays here, you know.

As a tree, I didn't have a choice in when I would be wood instead of a beautiful living creation. I didn't have a choice in how my physical being would be cut apart and reassembled. Parts of me were cut away and burned to warm other families. Parts of me were made into sawdust for bedding for horses, to collect the soiled oats and urine to be returned to the earth. Hopefully, to grow another fine oak tree. There are sacrifices when a tree becomes a porch swing, but the best part of me, my heart wood, was used to bring joy and comfort to a loving family. Thankfully, I have been shown that I can focus on the loss or the gain. I like to focus on good. I am thankful to be a porch swing. Are you happy with who you are and what you do?"

Blue Cheese sauce
Honey-Mustard sauce
Apricot-Balsamic sauce

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Spray two jellyroll pans with olive oil cooking spray.

In food processor, blend walnuts with 1/4 cup breadcrumbs until walnuts are finely ground. Place nut mixture, salt, pepper, and remaining breadcrumbs in medium bowl; mix well.

In pie plate, with fork, beat eggs. Cut each chicken breast half crosswise into two pieces. One at a time, dip chicken pieces into egg, then into walnut mixture to coat; place on prepared pans. Spray chicken pieces with olive oil cooking spray lightly. Bake chicken on 2 oven racks, 30 to 35 minutes, rotating pans between upper and lower racks halfway through the required time, until chicken is golden brown and juices run clear when pierced with a knife.

Blue-Cheese Sauce: Stir together 4 ounces blue cheese, crumbled (1 cup); 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 cup plain low-fat yogurt, 1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce, and 1/4 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Honey-Mustard Sauce: In a medium bowl, stir 2/3 cup Dijon mustard, 1/4 cup sour cream, 1/4 cup honey and 3/4 teaspoon Worcestershire. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

Apricot-Balsamic Sauce: Stir together in a medium bowl: one 12-ounce jar apricot preserves (1 cup), 2 Tablespoons balsamic vinegar, 1 Tablespoon soy sauce and 1/4 teaspoon grated orange peel. Makes approximately 1 1/4 cups.

GRILLED EGGPLANT SANDWICHES

2 small eggplants
Salt
1 garlic clove, peeled and sliced in half, crosswise
2 Tablespoons olive oil
1 loaf French bread (baguette)
3/4 cup soft goat cheese (about 6 ounces)
Caramelized Balsamic Vinegar (see recipe below)
Fresh basil leaves

Trim ends of eggplant; peel. Slice lengthwise into 1/2 inch slices and sprinkle with salt. Let drain on paper towels for a few minutes. Top with another paper towel and press out excess water. Rub slices with garlic clove halves and generously brush with olive oil.

Grill eggplant on rack of uncovered grill directly over medium-hot coals for 8 to 10 minutes, turning occasionally, until eggplant is tender.

Halve baguette lengthwise and spread each side with goat cheese. Top with eggplant slices and drizzle with Caramelized Balsamic Vinegar. Cut into 4 portions. Garnish with basil leaves.

Caramelized Balsamic Vinegar: In a small saucepan, heat 3/4 cup balsamic vinegar to boiling. Reduce heat and boil gently for about 10 minutes until reduced to 1/4 cup. Vinegar will be thickened and syrupy.

TOMATO and MOZZARELLA SANDWICHES

1 jar (6.5 ounces) oil-packed sun-dried tomatoes, drained (3/4 cup) and finely chopped (1 used dried tomatoes marinated in a lightly salted olive oil with herbs).
2 Tablespoons extravirgin olive oil
2 Tablespoons white wine vinegar
2 long loaves Italian bread (about 8 ounces each)
1 pound mozzarella cheese, sliced
Several very thin slices of a red onion
3 or 4 beautiful fresh-from-the-garden slicing tomatoes
Fresh basil leaves (to taste)
Fresh spinach (to taste)

Combine dried tomatoes, olive oil and vinegar.

Cut each Italian loaf horizontally in half. Evenly spread the dried tomato mixture on the cut sides of bread. Arrange the cheese slices on the bottom halves of both loaves; top with tomato slices, onion, then basil and spinach. Replace tops. If not serving right away, wrap each sandwich in plastic wrap and refrigerate.

Place tomato halves on an unheated rack of a broiler pan. Broil 4 to 5 inches from the heat for 3 minutes or until Parmesan is lightly browned and filling is heated through. Sprinkle with additional chives.

FRESH FARM GREEN BEAN SALAD

2 pounds fresh green beans
4 Tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 Tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon fresh ground pepper
1/3 cup olive oil
1/4 cup chopped green onions
1/2 cup crumbled feta cheese (2 ounces) or Gorgonzola cheese (2 ounces)
Fresh chives, snipped

Trim beans; cook until crisp-tender (about 10 minutes). Drain. Rinse under cool water to stop the cooking. Drain. Transfer to a bowl. Set aside. Cool to room temperature.

Combine vinegar, mustard, lemon juice, sugar, salt and pepper. Stir until sugar and salt are dissolved. Slowly whisk in olive oil. Pour vinaigrette over green beans; add onion and toss to coat. Sprinkle with cheese and snipped chives.

1 small sweet onion (about 4 ounces), finely chopped

Boil corn over high heat in a pot of water for 5 minutes. Drain. When cool enough to handle, cut off kernels.

Cook green beans just until tender-crisp (about 7 minutes); drain.

Dressing: In a large bowl, whisk vinegar, olive oil, parsley, salt and pepper until blended.

To dressing, add corn kernels, green beans, red pepper and onion; toss well. If not serving right away, refrigerate.

CABBAGE SLAW

Dressing:
Mix together 1 cup mayonnaise
2 Tablespoons sugar
2 Tablespoons cider vinegar
1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
1/2 teaspoon fresh dill (or dried if you do not have fresh)

Slaw:

8 cups shredded or coarsely cut cabbage (use both red and green)
8 ounces small cube cheese (mild cheddar, the cheddar/jack, cheddarella, or jack)
1 cup fresh cooked corn, well drained
1/4 cup each red and green peppers, cut into small dice
1/4 cup sliced ripe olives, drained

Mix all slaw ingredients; pour dressing over and toss to coat.

DOUBLE DARK DECADENT BROWNIE

1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup butter
5 squares semi-sweet chocolate

Burnout

Burned out individuals often feel as if there is no hope. The fatigue and despair associated with burnout makes it hard to explore solutions. Burnout often leads to isolation, leaving someone feeling alone in their predicament.

The difficulty of dealing with full blown job burnout is why it is important to recognize early signs and take action before things become too serious. One starting point is to recognize the stresses and factors that may be leading to job burnout. Theories about job burnout say tedious and boring jobs appear to be one source. Another is facing a job that's beyond your ability to do it well. Lack of recognition for the work you do can be another serious source of job stress.

In today's world of downsizing and mergers, feelings of hopelessness and anger often grow from the anxiety workers face about the future of their jobs. Changes in many corporations have left employees feeling powerless, frustrated and angry over their inability to control their careers.

If an individual is experiencing burnout, the first step is to address the causes of work dissatisfaction. These can be seen as the "what," "when" and "why" of burnout.

■ What? Have you faced changes in the organization, the demands of the job, your supervisor, or the industry?

■ When? Was there a pivotal occurrence that changed the way you viewed your job or a new boss, coworkers, or responsibilities?

■ Why? Have you changed? Are your interests or values pertaining to work now different than they were? Has the company's mission changed? Are your abilities and skills not being utilized?

1/4 cup sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
1 cup chopped walnuts

Chocolate glaze (recipe follows)

Grease and flour a 9-inch pan. Bring corn syrup and butter to boil, remove from heat. Add chocolate; stir until melted. Add and beat in with a wooden spoon, sugar, eggs, one at a time, vanilla, flour and nuts. Bake at 325 degrees for 20 minutes. Cool ten minutes and then turn out on a cooling rack. Cool completely.

Chocolate glaze: Melt 3 squares semi-sweet chocolate, 1 Tablespoon butter over low heat, stirring often. Add 2 Tablespoons white corn syrup and 1 teaspoon milk. Mix well.

Put the brownie cooling rack on a jellyroll pan to catch the glaze drips. Pour glaze over cooled brownie, making certain the top and sides are covered. Sprinkle with 1 Tablespoon finely ground walnuts.

PECAN PIE BARS

2 cups unsifted flour
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup butter
1 1/2 cups chopped pecans
1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk
3 eggs, beaten
2 Tablespoons fresh lemon juice

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine flour and brown sugar; cut in butter until crumbly. Press mixture on bottom of ungreased 13x9-inch baking pan. Bake 14 minutes.

Combine pecans, condensed milk, eggs and lemon juice. Pour over baked crust. Bake 25 minutes more until filling is set. Cool. Cut into bars.

Identifying the what, when and why of burnout can help start you on the process of exploring options to change the sources of your stress.

Sometimes simple things, such as talking to a supervisor about changing your job responsibilities, can make a difference. Sometimes more serious measures may be necessary, such as changing jobs or even changing your career field.

Most importantly, job burnout is a reaction to work stress. Methods of handling stress can be identified and encouraged. Career counselors specialize in helping people gain control over their work life. They can assist individuals in identifying their interests, values and skills in relation to work and can help in the career and life planning process.

You'll find career counselors listed in the yellow pages, or call your local mental health center for a recommendation. The National Career Development Association's online site, www.ncda.org, offers helpful consumer guidelines for selecting a career counselor.

It is important to recognize the early signs of job burnout and address the sources immediately. Job burnout is a common problem, but one from which you can recover and, in the end, learn more about your needs in relation to work.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHT

MELCHIZEDEK -- MAN OF MYSTERY!

IF EVER THERE WAS A MYSTERY A PUZZLE IN THE BIBLE, IT WOULD HAVE TO BE THE PRIEST-KING, MELCHIZEDEK, THE KING OF SALEM. IN THE ONE MEETING ABRAHAM HAD WITH MELCHIZEDEK, HE IMMEDIATELY RECOGNIZED HIM AS SUPERIOR TO HIMSELF IN THE EYES OF GOD! MELCHIZEDEK BROUGHT TO ABRAHAM BREAD AND WINE, AND BLESSED HIM, THROUGHOUT THE SCRIPTURES HE IS REFERRED TO AS THE HIGH PRIEST OF GOD COMING NOT FROM A FATHER OR A MOTHER, HAVING NO END TO HIS LIFE AND NO BEGINNING. STUDENTS AND AUTHORITIES ON THE BIBLE HAVE SPECULATED ENDLESSLY ON THE PRIEST-KING. SOME HAVE ASSUMED THAT HE WAS A SURVIVOR OF THE FLOOD. THE PATRIARCH THEM OTHERS MAY HE WAS AN ANGEL OF GOD. ONE JEWISH TRADITION IS THAT HE WAS THE MESSIAH. SOME SAY THAT SALEM WHERE HE RULED, LATER BECAME JERUSALEM -- BUT ONE THING IS CERTAIN, WHOEVER MELCHIZEDEK WAS HE CERTAINLY AROSE DOWN THE CURVE OF SCHOLARSHIP THROUGH THE AGES!
