KSP Det. Byron Hansford collected evidence at the scene of a shooting Thursday at Bull Creek Trade Center. Harold Smith, of Manchester, died as a result of the incident. The shooter, Douglas Moore, 65, of Martin, was not charged afterwards because police said that all of the evidence gathered so far indicate that he was acting in self-defense.

Shooting at flea market leaves 1 dead, no charges

WATERGAP — A flea market vendor died after a shooting at the Bull Creek Trade Center Thursday morning.

The shooter has been released from custody. Trooper Scott Hazlette said the call came into the Kentucky State Police post at 8:42 a.m. Det. Byron Hansford was the first on the scene at 8:50 a.m.

Hansford said the shooter, Douglas Moore, 65, of Dinwood Road in Martin, was standing near the victim, Harold Smith, 56, of Manchester, with his hands in his front pocket and the gun in his back pocket when he arrived on the scene. Moore, who sells guns at the flea market, was taken into custody without incident and released before noon from the Floyd County Detention Center. Deputy jailers said he wasn't charged because the shooting was in self-defense.

KSP issued a report yesterday afternoon, saying that witness accounts of the incident all indicated that the shooting was in self-defense. Once the investigation is complete, all of the findings will be presented to Commonwealth's Attorney Brent Turner, who will make a determination on whether to present the case to a grand jury.

Smith was transported to Highlands Regional KSP Det. Mitchell Adkins interviewed Mary Neeley Adkins, who performed CPR on the shooting victim.

Moore would not discuss the shooting or the apparent verbal altercation that occurred between the two Thursday morning, but he referred to the victim as his "friend."

Jury finds Banks guilty of burglary

by TOM DOTY
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — It took Pike County Commonwealth's Attorney Rick Bartley only two-and-one-half hours to gain a conviction against a Dwale man for one charge of first-degree burglary Monday.

Bartley was brought in to prosecute Travis Banks, 25, of Dwale, after Floyd Commonwealth's Attorney Brent Turner recused himself from the case. Turner was unable to take on the matter because he was in the midst of preparing to prosecute a man for burning Banks' son with scalding bath water and could not call on Banks as a witness if he was also going to be prosecuting him.

Turner secured a guilty verdict in that case, against Brian DeLong, 26, of Town Branch, in May.

Bartley only called three witnesses in regard to the burglary which included state Trooper Justin Cornett and Danielle and Brenda Goble. The most damaging testimony came from Danielle Goble, who noted that she returned to her home the first week of February 2004 and found Banks, clad in a ski mask, going through her gun collection. She said Banks threatened her with one of the guns which Danielle knew wasn't loaded so she informed him of that fact and produced her own gun which she pointed out was ready to fire.

Banks fled the home and returned a short time later, minus the ski mask, and asked the Gobles what was going on. He was promptly arrested by officers at the scene.

No witnesses were called on behalf of Banks and the jury didn't need more than 45 minutes to return a guilty verdict. Bartley offered Banks a 10-year sentence before the jury was charged with making a sentencing

Turner asks judge to recuse herself

The Associated Press

PIKEVILLE — A state senator headed to trial on vote fraud charges is asking that a federal judge recuse herself from hearing the case.

An attorney for state Sen. Johnny Ray Turner, a Democrat from Drift, asked that U.S. District Judge Karen Caldwell step down to allow another judge to preside over the trial scheduled for October.

Caldwell is married to Lloyd R. Cress of Lexington, according to a motion filed Monday by Turner's attorney, Brent Caldwell of Lexington. Cress is a Republican lawyer appointed commissioner of the state Department of Environmental Protection by Gov. Ernie Fletcher.

Federal prosecutors plan to oppose the recusal motion,

New dealership to provide 75 new jobs

Times Staff Report

IVEL — Layne Bros. Ford will be bringing 75 new jobs to Floyd county with the construction of their new facility in Ivel.

The business was destroyed by a fire in November 2003 and temporarily relocated.

Construction of the new 34,000 sq. ft. facility, which includes a 10,000 sq. ft. service department, is expected to be completed within 12 months. Company president Malcolm Layne will work as a contractor along with Gene Prater with Fee Inc. and architect Randy Burchett.

The "state of the art" facility will be the largest dealership in Eastern Kentucky, Layne said.

The building is to be named in honor of Layne's parents, Chester Allen and Virginia Layne. It will be located on property that has been in the family for 300 years.

Layne thanked all the "new and loyal" customers and Layne Brothers employees for their continued support and dedication during a groundbreaking ceremony last Thursday.

Several local officials were present along with Jim Splendor of the Ford Motor Corporation and John Wiggins of the Honda Motor Corporation.

■ CANBERRA, Australia — Scaling Australia's highest mountain will soon become a more civilized climb after the construction of the country's highest toilet.

Dubbed the "Loo with a View," the all-weather toilet block is to be built into the wind-swept side of Mount Kosciuszko, 390 feet below its snowcapped peak in a New South Wales state national park.

"The engineering challenges are in trying to build something in such a remote location and at that elevation," National Parks and Wildlife Service alpine area manager Andrew Harrigan said Thursday.

He described the toilet as "a bunker" built to withstand 93 mph winds and carved 20 feet into the mountain.

It will comprise three urinals and three unisex stalls — one with wheelchair access, he said.

The septic tank would have enough capacity to ensure that the toilet can last more than six months without a service when it is snowed in during winter. The toilet will also catch its own water.

It's part of a campaign to prevent walkers and campers from digging latrines in the earth or snow.

■ OCALA, Fla. — Teddy Claire Akin apparently came up with a strange way to get his estranged wife's attention: He confessed to her that he'd killed a hitchhiker and buried the body in the woods.

Thankfully, it never happened.

Akin's wife, Felicia, called the Marion County Sheriff's Office on Monday to report that her husband had told her that he killed a man, authorities said.

Akin then told investigators that he picked up the hitchhiker and then hit the man when the two got into an argument over how far Akin would drive him, authorities said.

Akin said he dumped the body in a forest near a gun range and kept the man's wallet, which contained the driver's license of Utah resident Dennis Legrande Allen, authorities said.

Deputies searched the area with dogs and an air unit, Capt. Thomas Bibb said.

Akin eventually told investigators that the whole story was bogus. He was going through a divorce and had hoped the murder story would make his wife leave him, said Sue Livoti, a sheriff's office spokeswoman.

"It seems he wanted to get a little attention and sympathy from his wife," Bibb said.

Akin, 28, was charged Tuesday with making a false report and theft. The sheriff's office said it will probably bill Akin for the cost of their seven-hour search.

As for the alleged hitchhiker, he is alive and well. Akin confessed that he made up the story after finding the wallet on top of a newspaper stand. When investigators reached Allen, he said he didn't know Akin.

■ FRISCO, Texas — Victoria Carson-Barnes went to the local Ikea on July 25 for a bit of shopping. She finally got the chance nine days later.

The mother of five, who traveled more than 60 miles to sit outside the 310,000-square-foot home furnishings store, earned a $2,500 shopping spree when she became the store's first customer Wednesday.

The nine-day wait also made her one of the area's most celebrated shoppers.

Area retailers and restaurants surprised Carson-Barnes with gifts, survival kits with bottled water and meals daily.

The Frisco RoughRiders Double-A minor league baseball organization and the Texas Tornados Junior A hockey club supplied her with hats and jerseys.

Even strangers got in the act, bringing a fresh supply of Starbucks coffee and some Krispy Kreme doughnuts. Many were inspired by her mission to buy two day beds, a sofa and furnishings for her 6-year-old daughter Hannah.

"I understand there are kind and gentle people out there, but I had no idea so many people would keep bringing me things," she said. "Some people just stopped by to talk to see how I was doing."

■ VIENNA, Austria — It wasn't a big gun or knife that caught the eye of an armed thief's victim in Austria's capital. Instead, the bandit's protruding nose left its mark.

Police issued an alert Wednesday for Vienna's residents to be on the lookout for a man with a big nose in his mid-20s or early 30s after he held up a gas station. The cashier who was robbed told authorities the thief was rather nondescript with one notable exception: He had a giant nose.

They offered only one more clue — the man spoke heavily accented German.

No one was injured in Tuesday night's holdup.

said Assistant U.S. Attorney Kenneth Taylor, "because we don't think this is a political case."

Turner has been indicted on charges of vote buying, mail fraud and filing fraudulent campaign finance reports in his win over incumbent Benny Ray Bailey in 2000.

The motion filed Monday cited the need to "to avoid the appearance of impropriety."

Judge Caldwell and her husband contributed more than $20,000 to GOP candidates in the past decade, Turner's motion said.

Earlier this year, Judge Caldwell recused herself from hearing a lawsuit filed by former Republican gubernatorial nominee Larry Forgy. Forgy's suit asked the court to halt an ongoing state investigation into hiring practices in the Fletcher Administration.

Turner was indicted along with Pikeville political fundraiser Ross Harris and Loren Glenn Turner of Pikeville. Both Harris and Glenn Turner were convicted last year in a separate, unrelated vote-fraud trial in London.

In a telephone interview, Judge Caldwell said she had not seen the motion "and couldn't comment on it if I had."

Woman accused of bribing cop

by TOM DOTY

BETSY LAYNE — A Betsy Layne woman now faces felony charges of trying to bribe a police officer after allegedly offering $200 to a state trooper and asking him to forget that she had flunked several sobriety tests.

Tammy R. Boyd was stopped by Trooper Austin Hicks on July 28 when he observed her weaving between lanes across U.S. 23 in Betsy Layne. Hicks pulled Boyd over and had her perform three sobriety tests which she allegedly failed.

Hicks reported that Boyd admitted to ingesting Lorcet, methadone and Xanax tablets. Hicks took Boyd to Highlands Regional Medical Center, where she refused to give blood. Hicks wrote in his report that it was at Highlands that Boyd offered him $200 to report that she passed her tests. Hicks also noted that the conversation was recorded.

Boyd was charged with operating a vehicle under the influence, bribery of a public servant, speeding 25 miles over the limit, and failure to maintain proper insurance. The insurance charge was dropped at her arraignment when she was able to offer proof of insurance, but the other charges will be reviewed at a preliminary hearing scheduled for August 15.

Boyd pleaded guilty to a charge of driving under the influence in February and had only just regained her driving privileges after a mandatory suspension period. She has surrendered her license to the court and been released on a $2,000 cash bond. Her primary condition of bond is that she not operate a motor vehicle.

Shooting

talk about it. I was told not to discuss this with anybody."

When asked the name of the victim, whose name was not officially released immediately following the shooting, Moore said, "I can't tell you that, sissy. He was a friend of mine, though, I'll tell you that. I appreciate you calling, and everything, but I can't talk about it."

KSP Det. Rick Conn said officials don't know if the argument began at the flea market or if it was an ongoing argument between the two.

Vendors Sam Hamman and his wife, Ruth, had a table set up directly in front of the snack bar.

"[Smith] pulled his gun out and said, 'I'm going to shoot your brains out.' I heard him say that," Sam Hamman said, "and Doug pulled his gun out and shot him."

Hamman said he heard the shot and saw Smith fall against the snack shop building.

"He had a funny look in his eyes and he just slunked down and I saw the gun falling out of his hand," he said. "Then I saw the blood seeping out and I knew he'd been shot."

Hamman said he asked Moore what happened and Moore came and sat down beside him and said, "I guess I killed him."

Ruth Hamman witnessed the two men "talking loudly" as they were walking "side by side" down the center walkway.

"When Harold stopped and the only thing I heard was one of them say, 'Don't start with me,' and the other one said, 'I will start with you,'" she said. "Doug took his right hand and slapped him with his left hand. I thought they were going to fight, so I screamed at [Mary Neeley Elkins, the manager]. After he slapped him, I was going to go get Mary, when I got to the entrance of the building I heard a shot. Everybody including me thought it was a firecracker."

"I didn't know what to do exactly except for hollering at Mary," Hammond, tearful, continued. "I thought they were just going to fight. I thought they were going to fight."

One witness account, Hazelette said, confirmed that Smith physically assaulted Moore prior to the shooting.

The two men apparently began arguing about the war in Iraq on the opposite side of the flea market, where Smith was witnessed slapping Moore. Hazelette confirmed that one of the men "possibly" served previously in the military. He wasn't aware if either of the men had family fighting in Iraq.

"Harold was talking about the 14 people that were killed in Iraq the other day and Doug said that just as many people were killed on the highways here. The guy who was set up at the table next to Doug said that Harold slapped him up there," Sam Hamman said. "Doug came to my table and was looking at knives and Harold started on about it again."

"I guess that you don't know what you can do until you have to," he continued. "He had every intention on shooting Doug. His exact words to me was, 'If I hadn't shot him, he'd shot me,' and I believe what he said. I've known him a long time and Doug just is not the kind of person, in my estimation, who would go out and shoot somebody. You'd have to do something to scare him pretty bad."

Hamman said Moore always carries a gun and that the two men were, in fact, friends. "They bickered and argued about the kind of knife or the quality of a gun, but that was it," he said. "As far as I know they were pretty good friends."

The flea market manager, Mary Neeley Elkins, performed CPR on Harold. She would not comment publicly about the incident.

Norita Kidd, of Printer, helped Elkins administer CPR before paramedics arrived on the scene. She said Smith was lying on the ground with blood "all over him" and another man, Bob Bailey, was holding his head up off the ground.

"I ran down there to see if I could help," Kidd said. "Me and Mary were doing CPR. I asked the guy what happened, he said, 'I shot the son of a [expletive deleted],' and I asked him why and he said, 'Because he threatened to blow my head off.'"

Harold received a single gunshot in the left side of his chest.

"He gasped two or three times before he passed," Kidd said. "We kept trying but it didn't work."

Bailey did not want to comment publicly because he said he was friends with both Moore and the victim. "All I know was that it was self-defense," he said. "It was self defense, that's all I can say."

Sgt. Mitchell Adkins, who interviewed four witnesses, said he did not know the nature the verbal altercation between the two men.

Everyone Adkins interviewed said that the men had been down there together before and that they assumed that the two men were friends.

As officials interviewed witnesses and collected evidence, flea Market owner Floyd Skeans walked down the center walkway, several feet away from the crime scene, and said "Let's get it cleaned up, get things going." A few customers, apparently unaware of the shooting, were buying items. Regular visitors to the market were sitting on tables and talking to witnesses, many of whom would not comment publicly.

"We just came here to sell some junk," Kidd said.

Editorial roundup

Kokomo (Ind.) Tribune, on free trade agreement:

The razor-thin House vote in favor of the Central American Free Trade Agreement was at once a testimony to the effectiveness of Washington arm-twisting and the increasing dissatisfaction — even among Republicans — with U.S. trade policy in general.

The agreement will eliminate most trade restrictions between the United States and six countries — Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

Pro-trade forces claim most of our trade woes — and trade imbalances — come from countries we don't have trade agreements with. American companies are given incentives to move jobs to nations where workers lack any semblance of American worker protections.

The overall imbalance in U.S. trade continues to bleed this country of jobs, even as U.S. corporate profits skyrocket. The resulting concentration of wealth at the top end of the scale — and the stagnation of real wages for those at the other end of the scale — are threatening further support for trade agreements of any kind.

CAFTA isn't expected to make those problems worse, but it's not likely to solve them either.

Mansfield (Ohio) News Journal, on the effect of summer heat on football players:

High school football players and coaches are a tough breed. They also must be smart when it comes to summer conditioning.

With recent deaths from heat stroke, area football players, coaches and trainers need to exercise good judgment when working out in the heat and humidity. ...

Local coaches and athletic directors must prepare the student-athletes for the games in late August and September, but a cautious approach — such as the ones used in the past — is best. ...

The next four weeks are crucial to building a successful team on the field. But it must be done in a safe manner when dealing with the August heat.

Chicago Tribune, on the challenge for Muslims:

After every suicide bombing, there is a ritual. We search for meaning, the reasons that the bombers have left behind in their trail of human misery and destruction. ...

The answers are unsatisfying.

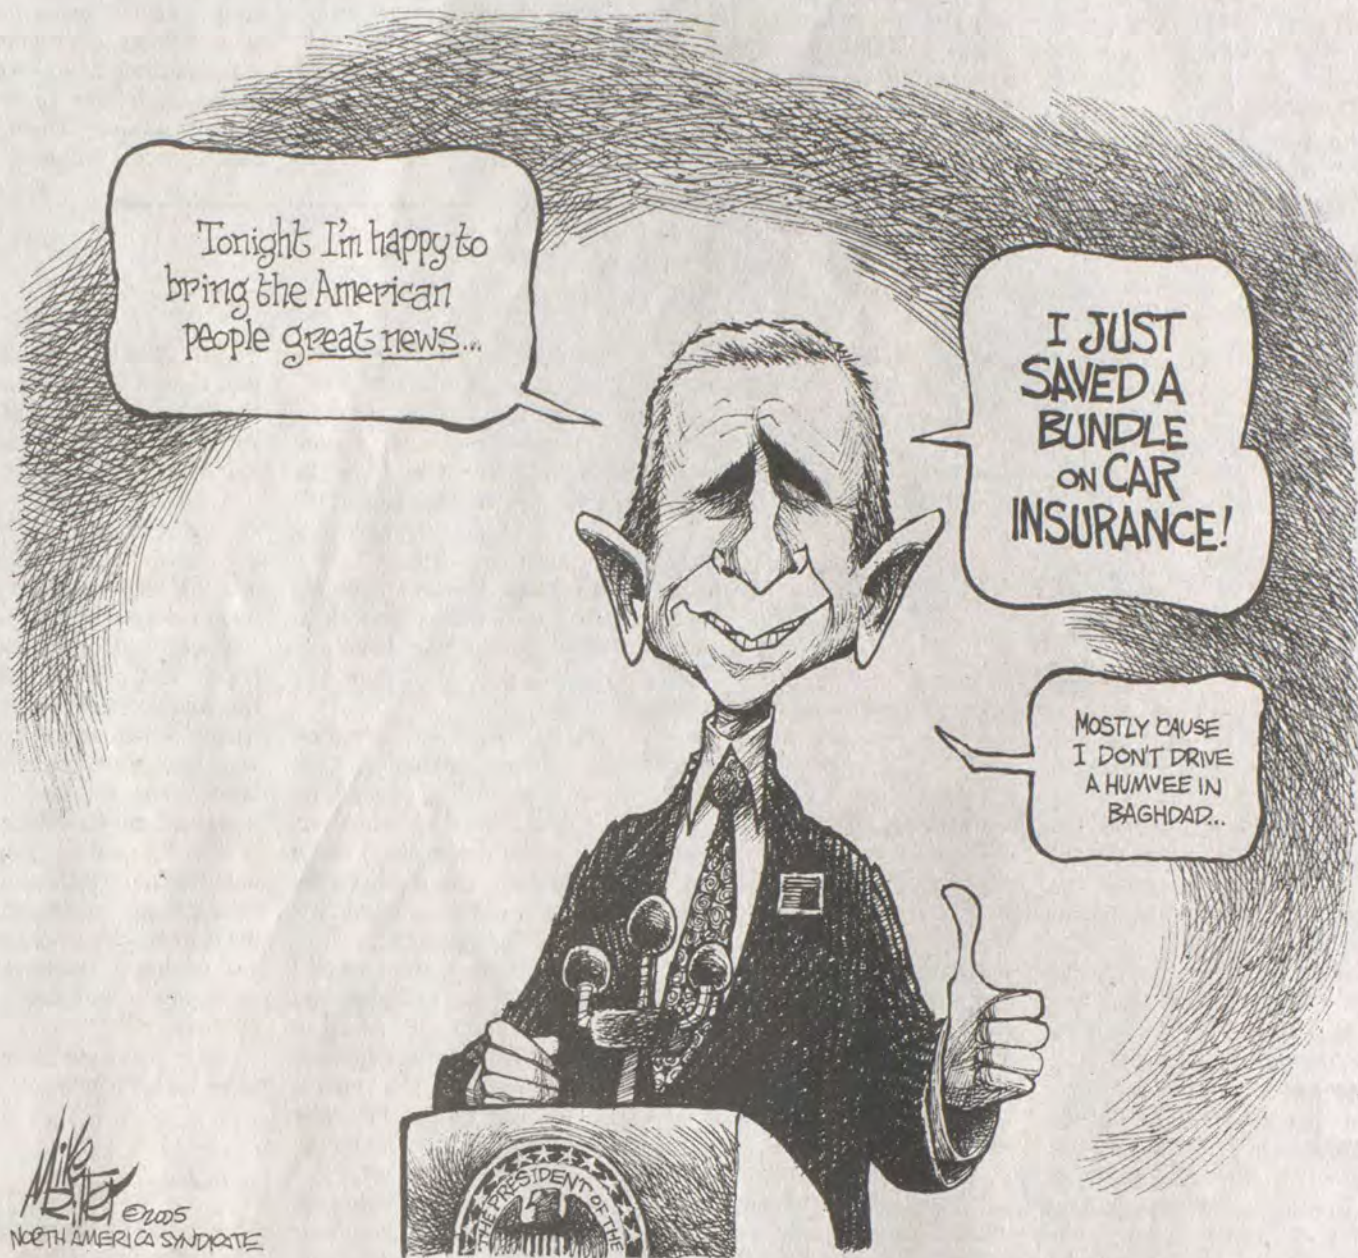

The same is true of the presumed suicide bombers who killed and wounded scores in London earlier this month. They, like many others, didn't fit the classic image of bombers as poor, uneducated religious fanatics. ...

These days, answers often are filtered through the political prism of Iraq. Those who consider the war unjust see the suicide bomber's rage as an understandable, if despicable, outgrowth of that invasion. ...

But the debate about whether U.S. policies in Iraq or elsewhere are to blame for suicide bombings or other terrorist acts is largely misguided and futile. It not only blames the victim for the crime, but allows the terrorists to dictate American foreign policy and specify the terms upon which they may be persuaded to stop the attacks. ...

But it's worth noting that suicide bombers attacked this nation on Sept. 11, 2001, long before Iraq or Afghanistan. And terrorists who decry the mistreatment of Muslims in one part of the world say nothing while Muslim insurgents slaughter Muslim civilians day after day in Iraq. ...

If in some Muslim hearts suicide bombers are heroes, that is not the case for the bewildered and grieving Muslim families of their victims. Still, this war of ideas won't be won until suicide bombers occupy a place of contempt in Islamic culture somewhere below child molesters. ...

Lottery money now solely for education

by ARCH GLEASON
PRESIDENT AND CEO
KENTUCKY LOTTERY CORPORATION

and DR. JOE McCORMICK
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
KHEAA

When Kentucky voters passed a constitutional amendment to create a state lottery nearly 17 years ago, many did so in an effort to support increased funding for education. Our state's General Assembly then decided Kentucky Lottery proceeds should be placed in the General Fund, with the exception of two years where proceeds went to KERA-related programs.

While a majority of General Fund proceeds go to pay for primary and secondary education in our state, many citizens felt all of our dividend payments should go to directly support education. In 1998, legislators proposed a radical change in how proceeds would be spent — our dividends would be slowly transferred from the General Fund to college grant and scholarship programs.

As of July 1, 100 percent of Kentucky Lottery proceeds are now going to support college scholarships and grants. Since the Lottery has been funding these scholarship and grant programs on a partial basis since 1999, more than $480 million has been used to make 475,000 grant and scholarship awards to our state's best and most deserving students. These funds are administered by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

How has this helped our state? Prior to 1999, KHEAA found the number of students attending college in Kentucky had remained flat for several years. However, since the start of the Kentucky Lottery-funded scholarship and grant programs, college attendance in the commonwealth has jumped 20 percent.

Floyd County has most certainly realized the benefits of these programs. In the last fiscal year alone, 1,467 grants and scholarships worth $1,842,299 were awarded to Floyd County students.

The economic well-being of our state is directly tied to increasing the educational level of our citizens. All of us are proud of the work the Kentucky Lottery and KHEAA have done — and will continue to do — to help make the dream of higher education a reality for thousands of Kentuckians.

This week's major releases were a sad lot though the smaller films that accompanied them make a strong argument that straight-to-video and limited-release films are a better bet for your video dollar.

"Guess Who" — This is a modern rehashing of the 1967 hit "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" which centered on what happens when a young coed brings home her medical school boyfriend and the resulting chaos when the parents discover he's black. This version turns that premise on its head, with the daughter being black and her boyfriend a caucasian. This one is handicapped from the outset with Bernie Mac and Ashton Kutcher stepping in for original stars Spencer Tracy and Sidney Poitier. To be fair this version doesn't even try to be socially relevant and mainly goes for laughs. Unfortunately the laughs are few and far between, though a dinner scene where awkward conversation abounds shows all of the potential that this film couldn't live up to.

"Alexander" — The other big budget release this week fails to ignite despite a promising cast and seasoned director. Oliver Stone ("JFK," "Platoon") can't get his hands around the tale of Alexander the Great and even employs a narrator to tell the audience what is going on. The best thing about this one is not the battle scenes, which are awkwardly staged, but the female costars, which include Rosario Dawson and Angelina Jolie. Their work easily outshines that of Colin Farrell, who seems woefully miscast as Alexander.

"Downfall" — Things definitely pick up with this release which was nominated for best foreign feature at last year's Oscars. Bruno Ganz stars here as Adolph Hitler who is hiding out in his bunker as his plans for world domination collapse while the Russian army draws near. Ganz delivers a multicolored portrait of Hitler as he spirals out of control and eventually takes his own life rather than face capture.

"Cypher" — Corporate espionage and paranoia reign in this release which has much more on its mind than last year's

"Paycheck." Jeremy Northam stars as an undercover operative who is given a false identity to join a multinational corporation. His identity however begins to unravel when he meets an alluring agent, played by Lucy Liu, who informs him that he has been brainwashed and is working for some very bad guys. Lots of twists, turns and betrayals ensue.

"After Image" — Once again a small-scale thriller delivers the goods in ways that recent efforts like "Taking Lives" blew it. John Mellencamp (the singer) stars here as a crime scene photographer who quits his job after taking one too many photos. He moves in with his aunt, Louise Fletcher, and falls for her hearing impaired attendant. Things get rough when the attendant develops a psychic link to a maniac who is responsible for a rash of grisly killings. This one delivers a few good shocks and includes characters that audiences will actually care about.

"When Billie Met Bobby" — This comedy examines the battle of the sexes and how it came to a head in 1973 when former tennis great Bobby Riggs claimed he could beat any woman on the circuit. The film follows the rivalry between Riggs and Billie Jean King, who took up the challenge. Their televised match remains the most watched tennis event in television history. If you don't know who won then I won't spoil it for you but this one delivers the goods with fine performances by Holly Hunter as King and Ron Silver as the outspoken Riggs.

"Belonging" — This one slipped through the cracks at Oscar time and features another fine performance by Brenda Blethyn ("Secrets and Lies"). Here she stars as a middle-aged housewife who cares for her aging parents. One day her husband goes out for a drink but never returns and she is left to struggle on while he begins another life with a younger woman. In the hands of a Bette Davis or Joan Crawford this would have been high melodrama but Blethyn anchors this film with a fierce yet quiet dignity.

Next week look for the family film "Because of Winn-Dixie" and the martial arts actionfest "Kung-Fu Hustle."

Rowling, Dylan among nominees for first Quills Awards

by HILLEL ITALIE
AP NATIONAL WRITER

NEW YORK — J.K. Rowling, Bob Dylan and Stephen King are among the nominees for the first annual Quills Awards, a glitzy literary affair for which the general public will cast the ballots.

Organized by Reed Business Information, which publishes Variety, Library Journal and Publishers Weekly, and NBC television, the Quills Awards consist of 19 categories, from sports to debut fiction, with five finalists for each.

Winners will be announced at an Oct. 11 ceremony hosted by NBC anchor Brian Williams, to be aired Oct. 22.

"This is the first consumer-driven awards program that acknowledges the power and importance of the written word and celebrates literacy," Jay Ireland, president of NBC Universal Television Stations, said Thursday in a statement.

From Aug. 15 to Sept. 15, the public can vote online at www.quillsvote.com. The prize will be promoted at bookstores and on NBC Universal stations.

Some of the proceeds from the ceremony, for which admission will range from $1,000 for a single ticket to $25,000 for a sponsorship table, will be donated to the Quills Literacy Foundation, launched earlier this year with funding from Reed.

The Quills themselves carry no cash prize, although the publishing industry hopes attention given to the awards will help increase sales.

The nominees range from Rowling's multimillion selling "Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince," a finalist for best children's narrative for middle graders, to a new translation of the ancient epic "Gilgamesh," nominated in poetry. Voters can choose a "book of the year" by selecting a finalist from any category.

Dylan was cited for biography/memoir for "Chronicles, Volume One," while King and Stewart O'Nan were nominated for best sports book for "Faithful," a chronicle of the Boston Red Sox in 2004, when the baseball team broke a decades-long jinx and won the World Series.

Philip Roth's "The Plot Against America" is among the fiction nominees, which also include Marilynne Robinson and her Pulitzer Prize-winning "Gilead." David McCullough is a history/current events/politics finalist for "1776."

Other categories include mystery, humor and science fiction/fantasy. The finalists were chosen by a panel of thousands of booksellers and librarians and were required to meet one of several possible criteria that included an appearance on the best seller lists of Publishers Weekly, Barnes & Noble or Book Sense, a list based on sales at independent stores.

Carol, Mahla, Brent, and Nellie Little

In Appreciation

Perhaps you sent a lovely card,
Or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent a funeral spray,
If so, we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words,
As any friend could say,
Perhaps you were not there at all,
Just thought of us that day.
Whatever you did to console our hearts,
We thank you so much, whatever the part.

Otter Creek salutes staff during Correctional Employees Week

WHEELWRIGHT — More than 2 million individuals are incarcerated in jails and prisons across the country, according to the National Bureau of Justice Statistics. Protecting public safety and providing rehabilitation opportunities for these individuals are all in a day's work for the corrections professionals who work at Otter Creek Correctional Center.

Each year, the contributions of this dedicated group of industry professionals are honored during National Correctional Employees' Week. This year's observance, sponsored by the American Correctional Association, will take place July 31 to August 7.

"The corrections profession includes a variety of professional capacities, and each one is an essential part of our operating team. However, because corrections industry employees aren't typically high profile, they sometimes don't get the recognition they deserve," said Warden Joyce Arnold. Otter Creek includes 160 area employees who work in a variety of capacities such as facility administrators, counselors, academic and vocational education instructors, correctional officers/youth service workers, health care professionals, food service, maintenance and other support staff.

"This week provides us the opportunity to thank our dedicated corrections employees for the high quality service they provide to our industry and the contributions they make to our community," said Arnold. "Their commitment to their respective careers and to our industry allows CCA to provide a meaningful service to society, as well as valuable corrections solutions to our governmental partners." Otter Creek Correctional Center will honor correctional employees during the week-long observance with a variety of special events including a cook out and prizes for staff.

CCA manages the 400-bed, Medium security facility for the Kentucky Department of Corrections.

Corrections Corporations of America is the nation's largest provider of detention and corrections services to governmental agencies, with approximately 70,000 beds in over 60 facilities under contract for management in the United States and the District of Columbia. The company's full range of services includes design, construction, ownership, renovation and management of new or existing jails and prisons, as well as long distance inmate transportation services.

WONDERFUL MOTHER

Memory of Our Mother Went to Heaven, August 4, 1997

God made a wonderful Mother, a Mother who never grows old,
He made her smile of the sunshine, and He moulded her heart of pure gold.
In her eyes He placed bright, shining stars, In her cheeks, fair roses you see,
God made a wonderful Mother, and He gave that dear Mother to me.

You can only have one Mother, patient, kind and true,
No other friend in all the world will be the same to you.
When other friends forsake you, to Mother, you will turn, For all her loving kindness, she asks nothing in return.
As we look upon her picture, sweet memories we recall, Of a face so full of sunshine, and a smile for one and all.
God, take this message, to our dear Mother up above, Tell her how we miss her and give her all our "love."

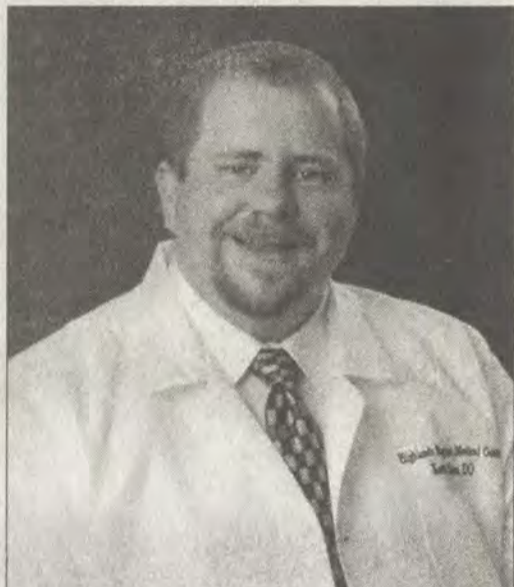

Sadly Missed by Her Children and our Dad

P'burg Elem. receives $1,280 PRIDE grant for environmental education

SOMERSET — Eastern Kentucky PRIDE announced today that Prestonsburg Elementary School has been awarded a grant in the amount of $1,280. The funds will be used to enhance the school's outdoor classroom and subscribe to several kids' nature magazines. 506 students will benefit from the project this year, according to the grant application.

This is the eighth year that Prestonsburg Elementary School received a PRIDE Environmental Education Grant. The school has developed an extensive environmental education program, which includes a wetland, garden, butterfly garden and school-wide recycling. The school was a finalist for the PRIDE Elementary School Campus of the Year Award this year.

local stream. If they learn now to appreciate and care for the environment, this region will be cleaner in the future."

The PRIDE Environmental Education Grant program awards up to $5,000 to schools and nonprofit organizations to pursue projects that help young people understand the importance of a clean environment. The projects promote personal responsibility and community pride. Grant recipients must match the grant with a monetary or in-kind contribution worth 10 percent of the grant amount.

PRIDE awarded 98 grants this year, totaling $439,733. Since 1997, PRIDE has invested $2,840,166 in environmental education, reaching more than 428,000 students across the region. PRIDE grants have been used to start 30 school-wide recycling projects and build 311 outdoor classrooms, 82 greenhouses and 47 nature trails.

Eastern Kentucky PRIDE — Personal Responsibility In a Desirable Environment — serves 38 counties in southern and eastern Kentucky. PRIDE is a nonprofit organization that promotes environmental education and encourages citizens to clean up the region's waterways and hillsides. Started in 1997 by Congressman Hal Rogers (KY-5) and the late James Bickford, former Secretary of the Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, PRIDE is funded by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

PRIDE grant recipients were recently trained to follow guidelines for administering the federal funds. In this photo, Karen Deaton, PRIDE's education director, presented certificates to Margo May, who teaches environmental education in all Floyd County schools as a representative of the nonprofit Saving Appalachian Resources, and Phyllis Allison of Prestonsburg Elementary.

Coming clean

by RICK BENTLEY
 TIMES COLUMNIST

It's been a trying month for me. First the test, then the appeal, and now that it's been denied, it's time to come clean.

I have tested positive for steroids. That's right. It's true. The newspaper industry hasn't announced my penalty just yet, but it has happened.

A couple of things you need to know. In addition to this fine paper, I also write for the News-Express in Pikeville. And about a month ago my friend Nancy Goss, the editor of what many call the "Lifestyles" section of that paper, emailed me. It seems that her Friday column needed some time off and asked if I cared to fill in. Well, it just so happens that I write a semi-regular column for her section of the paper - cleverly called "Fillin' In" - so I agreed.

But the pressure has just been too much. I mean, I have to write not one column a week, but now two!

I realize I'll take a beating for this in the talk shows and on the Internet, but you have no idea what that's like.

So in addition to the staggering pressure of writing my weekly sports column for two fine, upstanding newspapers, I was now facing the heat of the additional column for my friend Nancy and her section of the Pikeville paper.

In the end, it has been too much for me. And even though I never dreamed it was possible, a friend of mine - it was Charlie Pinson, that's who it was - offered me a lotion of some sort to rub on my hands, and apparently it has resulted in my positive test.

I never intentionally took steroids.

Well, wait a minute. That's not altogether true. There was the time they were prescribed to me by my doctor. I don't think that counted though.

That happened back in the one-column-per-week days.

As a result of all this, I got a little moody. Marty Backus, the former publisher of this paper, directed his GM Jeff Vanderbeck to commence trade negotiations with the Inez paper. Apparently, all they could offer, though, was a layout person and their

Betsy Layne looking to improve on 2004 season

by JAMIE HOWELL
 CONTRIBUTING WRITER

BETSY LAYNE — After putting together one of the most successful seasons in recent years during the 2004 campaign, Betsy Layne football coach Glen Ripkowski is hoping to see an encore performance in 2005.

The Bobcat football program had fallen upon hard times in the past several seasons but last season witnessed Betsy Layne ring up four wins. One of the most important factors in fielding a successful program would have to be the confidence of winning on any given night. Confidence was lacking in the Bobcat program. Then re-enter one Glen Ripkowski, who had a short stint as the head man 2003.

Even though the team was winless in that season, the kids started to feel as though they could compete with other teams and when Ripkowski returned last season the momentum started to build. Betsy Layne lost several key players from last season but several key players still return.

Bill Curtis Collins will anchor a solid defense that should be able to slow down opposing offenses this year. A key addition to the Bobcat roster is hoop standout Brandon Kidd.

The senior is expected to run the team from the quarterback position.

Ed Osborne, who transferred from Prestonsburg High School to Bobcat Country, will carry the ball for Betsy Layne. Any good coach will acknowledge good assistant coaches and Ripkowski is no different. When discussing the upcoming season, Ripkowski noted what good help is present on the Bobcat sidelines.

"We have Dwight Jarrell and John Parsons that both do a great job and will be a big plus for us this season," Ripkowski noted.

Jarrell will handle the offensive

EASTERN — Allen Central High School's Rebel volleyball team is set to host its annual high school referee clinic and preseason tournament. This year's referee clinic and preseason tournament will be held Saturday. ACHS Coach Larry Maynard has made the preseason volleyball event an annual thing, attracting numerous Eastern Kentucky high school volleyball teams.

Each match will include three periods, consisting of a 12-minute varsity game, a 10-minute junior varsity game and a 12-minute varsity game.

Should ACHS's two-court system be ready, each match will be three 14-minute periods consisting of varsity-junior, varsity-varsity. Each team will have one one-minute time out during a period and one one-minute

Slone signs with Alice Lloyd College

by STEVE LEMASTER
 SPORTS EDITOR

ROCK FORK — Ryan Slone will go down in history as being the first graduate of the Garrett Christian Academy. Slone became the first Garrett Christian boys' basketball player to sign to play collegiate basketball Thursday afternoon as he signed with nearby Alice Lloyd College. Slone rose up through the basketball ranks locally at Allen Central Middle School and later Allen Central High School before taking his game to Garrett Christian, where he played for Coach Jerry Manns. As a member of the Garrett Christian squad, Slone played several games in several states.

"It was just a great experience playing at Garrett Christian," said Slone. "I had a lot of fun and it was great playing for Coach Manns."

The Garrett Christian grad also had a scholarship offer from Bryan (Tenn.) College. He turned down the Tennessee school, choosing to stay closer to home.

The six-foot guard scored 1,044 points in less than two years with Garrett Christian. He averaged 20 points in his time with the Christian school and was named to the KCSAA All-State Team both in 2004 and 2005, helping lead the Garrett Christian Warriors to the state title each of the last two seasons.

Slone went and worked out with the ALC basketball team. But before even taking a basketball and pulling up for a jumper on the Grady Nutt Center hardwood, home to the ALC Eagle men's basketball team, Slone watched and followed the Alice Lloyd hoops program.

"I've watched Alice Lloyd play before and I've watched Coach (Gary) Gibson coach," Slone added. "I'm excited about signing with Alice Lloyd."

Slone, who plans to major in sports management, has already played against several of the current ALC men's basketball players.

He has the chance to work his way into the ALC men's basketball program's varsity team and contribute early on in his college career.

"We're looking forward to having Ryan join us at Alice Lloyd College," said Eagle head coach Gary Gibson. "He shoots real well and plays hard."

Garrett Christian Academy graduate Ryan Slone signed Thursday to play basketball at nearby Alice Lloyd College.

third-string sales executive, so the deadline passed and I'm still, as of today, with the paper.

However, it could be that this will change still. If the powers that be decide to suspend me for my positive test, I could be out on the street by the time this paper is.

We can only hope that doesn't happen.

I know I once said I would never use the juice, that it was the dirge of our industry and all like that, but look, times are hard. You have no idea the stress involved in coming up with two of these dazzling diatribes each week.

And on top of that, it's not really two (ital) per week (ital) as much as it is two (ital) in one day. (ital) You see, because both are due on Thursday morning, I have been writing them on Wednesday. One is usually written sometime in the afternoon, while the sports edition comes after church.

This, however, I could handle. I could do this with no problem. Until last Friday.

That's when Bruce Hopkins decided he'd rather write books than columns and announced that he was giving up his space on the op/ed page.

At some point whilst reading this, it dawned on me - it's just a matter of time before they ask me to fill that gap too!

Imagine that - soon, there's no doubt, they'll have me writing three columns for the same edition of my hometown paper. And you know it'll happen - what, you think they'll ask Jeff to move over? He writes about fat people running around half-naked and the letters roll in. Marty knows I won't do that, I'm pretty hefty myself.

Oh, I haven't received the call yet, but it's just a matter of time before it comes. Marty needs me now, more than he needed me when I was an actual employee of the paper. He'll be calling, I know.

And, like the good guy I am, I'll probably try to help him out. Then it'll be one about sports, one sort of light-hearted for Nancy, and one about something a little more serious but not about fat people for the op/ed page.

It's part of being a team player, you know. I do what I can to help, and if that means I have to use the juice to help me get by, then so be it.

There's a lot of pressure being a big-time columnist, you know. Wednesdays are busy days for me. I mean, the college still expects me to show up and earn my keep there, too.

Seriously, what's a guy to do? And they wonder why I'm on steroids ...

Louisville Slugger maker suing over its Bionic Golf Glove

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE - Whether a padded golf glove should be accepted by the sport's governing body is the subject of a lawsuit filed by the glove's maker, the company that also makes Louisville Slugger baseball bats.

Hillerich & Bradys Co. said in its lawsuit that the United States Golf Association rejected the Bionic Golf Glove because its padding doesn't conform to a rule allowing only "plain" gloves.

The Louisville company's lawsuit said the glove does play by the rules and that other similar gloves have received USGA approval.

Association approval is "a necessary prerequisite for a successful golf accessory product in the marketplace," the lawsuit contends, and without it, retailers won't stock the $25 glove, golfers won't buy it and professionals can't wear the glove in competition or endorse it.

The lawsuit over the glove - designed by hand surgeon Dr. Jim Kleinert of Louisville and promoted for its ergonomic, high-tech features - was filed last week in U.S. District Court.

H&B accuses the USGA of arbitrarily rejecting the Bionic Golf Glove, violating federal antitrust laws, prohibiting competition and innovation in the marketplace and damaging its business prospects and reputation. Its suit seeks unspecified damages.

H&B officials declined to be interviewed, but the company issued a statement saying it hopes for an "amicable resolution."

The Equipment Standards Committee of the USGA - golf's exclusive governing body in the United States and Mexico with 700,000 members - is considering an appeal from H&B on whether to approve the glove, said Marty Parkes, senior director of communications for the USGA in Far Hills, N.J. It is the company's fourth attempt to win association approval since June 2000, according to the lawsuit.

"We have not issued a final ruling through the appeal process," Parkes said, adding the USGA was a "little surprised and puzzled" by the timing of the suit.

Otherwise, Parkes said the association has not reviewed the suit and couldn't comment on its specifics.

H&B said in the suit that the USGA had in effect rejected the Bionic Golf Glove.

Parkes said USGA product-approval decisions are guided by a "joint statement of principles" with the Royal & Ancient Golf Club in St. Andrews, Scotland, which governs golf in other parts of the world. The principles emphasize skill rather than technological advances.

H&B began promoting its glove nearly a year ago, awaiting the USGA's ruling.

Company literature said the glove's "patented anatomical and ergonomic design equips golfers with comfort, control, confidence and durability" and can aid golfers with arthritis or diseased hands.

Kleinert was quoted in one promotional release as saying the pads "are a key feature because they fill in the valleys of the fingers to give the golfer better contact with the club grip."

New England's Seymour feels the love

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On his first day in New England's training camp, All-Pro defensive end Richard Seymour felt the love.

Seymour skipped the team's June minicamp and didn't report when training camp began last week. But he ended his holdout Tuesday after reportedly receiving a $1.2 million raise and a promise to talk about an extension.

His first practice session was Wednesday.

"It's a business and they understand it's a business. That's just the nature of the beast," Seymour said. "I definitely have the support of my teammates. ... I felt a genuine love from my teammates. That's what it's all about."

New England's leading tackler among linemen last season, he has helped the Patriots win three of the last four Super Bowls. He had two years left on the six-year, $14.3 million contract he signed after being taken with the sixth pick of the 2001 draft.

"We found some common ground," Seymour said. "I'm in pretty good shape right now. I still have to get in football shape. ... I definitely have some rust I have to knock off the old engine and get it going."

Seahawks - Another first-round draft pick was late to training camp, even though Chris Spencer was ready and raring to show up.

The center from Mississippi can settle in at the Seahawks' camp in Cheyney, Wash., now. He signed a five-year contract worth $7.4 million, with an additional $2.3 million available in incentives. A spokesman for Spencer's agent, Ken Kremer, said up to $5 million is guaranteed for the No. 26 overall selection, Seattle's last unsigned rookie.

"Every day, I woke up and had my bag sitting at the door," Spencer said. "All I had to do was grab it when my agent called."

The 6-foot-3, 305-pound lineman was a two-year starter at Ole Miss. He's expected to back up veteran center Robbie Tobeck, who couldn't resist teasing the rookie to welcome him.

"Hey, we've got pads on," Tobeck called. "Where are you? It's not a day off."

Bears - Defensive back Jerry Azumah, a Pro Bowl kick returner two years ago, had arthroscopic surgery on his right hip Wednesday and was expected to miss three to four weeks.

Coach Lovie Smith said he was expecting Azumah back for the Sept. 11 season opener at Washington.

"They went in and cleaned it out. That's basically about all they were able to do and needed to do," Smith said.

Azumah had surgery to repair a herniated disc in his neck a year ago, forcing him to miss the first four games of the regular season. Azumah marked his return on Oct. 17 by intercepting a deflected pass and taking it 70 yards for a touchdown. He ended up with four interceptions in 12 games, including eight starts. He also averaged 22 yards on kickoff returns.

Panthers - Wide receiver Keary Colbert missed practice with a strained right hamstring.

Colbert, listed as a starter so far in training camp, was injured on Tuesday during one-on-one drills. Colbert said it was stiff when he woke up Wednesday.

"It tightened up on me yesterday and luckily I felt it was smart enough to stop," he said.

Colbert set Panthers rookie records last season with 47 receptions, 754 yards receiving and five touchdowns.

Packers - Brett Favre has been protected by one of the league's elite offensive lines for the last four years, but there's been a changing of the guards in Green Bay and his superb pocket of protection has been shattered.

The Packers lost both starting guards in free agency. Three-time Pro Bowler Marco Rivera signed with Dallas and Mike Wahle, whose power and grace pulling to the strong side helped spring Ahman Green to four straight Pro Bowls, signed with Carolina. In the last four seasons, the durable duo helped keep Favre upright, Rivera allowing only four sacks and Wahle just 6 1/2.

Among the candidates to replace them are two free agents with a history of injuries: left guard Adrian Klemm and right guard Matt O'Dwyer, who strained a shoulder at practice Wednesday.

And a question mark has emerged at left tackle after Brad Bedell injured a hamstring, leaving the Packers scrambling to figure out who will back up Chad Clifton.

Bills - Buffalo quarterback J.P. Losman will never forget the first time he met his boyhood idol, Brett Favre.

It was the summer before Losman's senior season at Tulane when a mutual friend set up a golf outing involving them. Pulling up to Favre's home in Mississippi, Losman recalled meeting a shirtless Favre, who was covered in dirt after a morning out on his farm.

Things will be much different when the two meet in Green Bay on Friday for a scrimmage, Losman's debut in a competitive setting since being chosen the Bills' starter last February. It's a chance for the second-year pro to start showing how ready he'll be for the season, performing before a packed house at Lambeau Field and with Favre watching from the sideline.

"This is huge for me," Losman said. "I'm a big, big fan, just the way he handles himself."

And yet, Losman has one concern: "Hopefully, he'll remember me when I see him."

Giants - Wide receiver Plaxico Burress missed practice with a strained hip flexor, and coach Tom Coughlin said the injury is expected to keep the free-agent acquisition on the sidelines for a few more days.

Burress hurt his left hip during practice Tuesday. On Wednesday, he rode a stationary bike but did not take part in drills.

On Saturday, Burress hyper-extended his right knee during the morning workout, but returned in the afternoon. He said Wednesday that his knee felt fine, and downplayed the hip injury.

"The good thing is I didn't pull it or tear it," he said. "I'll just take it day-to-day and see what happens."

Titans have first real kicker competition in Tennessee

by TERESA M. WALKER ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. - Ola Kimrin has the nice locker with the big name plate. Rob Bironas isn't jealous and points to his own name on a small white card taped to his own locker.

"I got a sign on my locker too," Bironas said with a smile.

Whether either is still around and kicking when the season opens Sept. 11 at Pittsburgh remains to be seen. But Kimrin, from NFL Europe, and Bironas of the Arena Football League are part of the first kicker competition for the Titans since they relocated to Tennessee.

The Titans came to the state with Al Del Greco who lasted through the 2000 season. Then Joe Nedney took over until injuries knocked him out of both the 2003 and 2004 seasons, forcing Tennessee to lure veteran Gary Anderson out of retirement.

With punter Craig Hentrich going into his 12th season and coming off an emergency appendectomy, the Titans want their new kicker to handle kick-offs to allow Hentrich to concentrate on his punting.

"The last few seasons have been pretty tough," Hentrich said. "We've got two guys in now that are pretty strong. It'll be a fun battle to watch them. They've been in minicamps before and know about the competition, so I'm just rooting them both on."

Both Kimrin and Bironas have very strong legs and were drawn to the Titans because the top kicking job is open. For a change, each gets a chance to be more than a camp leg whose purpose is to keep the starting kicker from getting too tired.

This is the fourth NFL stop for both.

Kimrin, 33, of Malmo, Sweden, has a 65-yard field goal to his credit in an exhibition for Denver in 2002 that didn't help him win the job because the Broncos had veteran Jason Elam. The 6-foot-3, 230-pounder believed to be only the second Swede ever to play in the NFL spent three years in NFL Europe with stints in camp with Dallas in 2003 and Washington in 2004. He went 6-of-10 for the Redskins last season as an injury replacement for John Hall.

Bironas, 27, was in camp with Green Bay in 2002 and with Tampa Bay in 2003, and some felt he should have edged out Jeff Reed in Pittsburgh last season. He played one season in Af2 and two in the Arena Football League, including 17-of-40 field goals for the Carolina Cobras in 2004.

"You know they're going to keep one and not keep the other," said Bironas, whose family lives a three-hour drive away in Louisville, Ky. "No hard feelings. I don't think he has any for me. We both know what's going on here. It's a professional part of the job."

Kimrin agrees.

"Competition makes you better I think, so it's good. You have to be on top every day and try to be 100 percent," he said.

The Titans are trying to keep the competition as fair as possible. They split work with the first-team field goal unit, and both kick with Hentrich holding and Ken Amato snapping.

"Then the main reason comes down to how they kick under pressure in the games, who can kick the best and if they can handle the pressure," special teams coach Alan Lowry said.

They had their first chance at kicking off Monday morning in a special teams practice. Only Bironas reached the end zone with a low kick that had no hang time with the rest of the kicks getting close to the 10-yard line.

Kicking off is very important because the last time Nedney handled kickoff duties in 2002, the Titans led the NFL with the opponents' lowest average start to drives. Opponents started around the 30-yard line with Hentrich kicking off the past two seasons.

"Right now, (they're) are our best options," coach Jeff Fisher said.

HOF 2005: NFL's first black head coach headed for Hall posthumously

by JAY COHEN ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eleanor Pollard Towns was a freshman at West Virginia State in 1940 when another student rushed up to her to talk about her father, Fritz Pollard, the first black head coach in NFL history.

She has never forgotten the experience.

"He told me how well he (Pollard) was liked in New York, and how he had helped so many young people," said Towns, 83, of Chicago. "I was impressed with that because a lot of people don't do that."

She gets another reason to be impressed when her father is inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, on Sunday. Pollard and Benny Friedman, a prolific quarterback in the 1920s, will go into the Hall posthumously. Modern-day passers Dan Marino and Steve Young also will be inducted.

Pollard's induction will shine a light on the early history of the NFL, when Pollard was an elusive running back and coach in a league reluctant to employ black players.

"For me, I didn't know that much about him until I started reading and hearing some things and then doing the research on it," said Indianapolis Colts coach Tony Dungy, one of six black head coaches in the league today. "In the pre-integration of the game, I think it's interesting that he not only played the game but coached it."

Frederick Douglass Pollard, named for the famous black abolitionist, stood 5-foot-9 and 165 pounds, yet starred at Brown University before turning professional. The two-time All-American halfback became the first black player in the Rose Bowl in 1916.

The Chicago native served in World War I and in 1919 he joined the Akron Pros of the American Professional Football League, which was renamed the American Professional Football Association the next year. He led Akron to the championship in 1920 and became the first black coach in NFL history when he played and served as co-coach in 1921.

The APFA was renamed the NFL in 1922.

Pollard was fast and powerful, and one of the main draws in the league's infancy.

"He was a very rugged individual. ... He was excellent in track. He was a pretty good basketball (player), he was good at baseball. He was just almost a natural athlete," said John M. Carroll, a history professor at Lamar University and the author of the book "Fritz Pollard: Pioneer in Racial Advancement."

"Even though he was small, I think he had incredibly good talents of speed and also agility."

He needed all of his athletic ability to survive in the league's early days because of his race and size. To prevent pile-ons, Pollard would spin on his back and stick his knees and cleats in the air after he was tackled, said Fritz Pollard III, one of his grandsons who has lobbied for years for his induction into the Hall of Fame.

"In that era, just to play, you had to be tough," the grandson said. "These guys, they had a regular job. This wasn't their full-time job. They had a job and they would go out there and this was like a weekend thing to pick up extra money for something that they loved."

Pollard played and at times coached for four NFL teams until 1926. After his NFL career, he organized all-black teams that played all over the country into the mid-1930s in an effort to get the NFL to sign more black players. It is believed there were no black players in the league from 1934-46.

Pollard, who died in 1986 at age 92, also was a successful businessman. He owned a Harlem music studio where artists such as Duke Ellington rehearsed. He also served as an entertainment agent and ran a tabloid newspaper.

"There wasn't too many things he wasn't involved in," Carroll said. "He was usually pretty good at all of them."

To commemorate his efforts in football, the Black Coaches Association has named its award given to the college or professional coach of the year after him, and the Fritz Pollard Alliance was established in 2003 to promote minority hiring in the NFL. He was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1954.

Induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame was the one honor that eluded him, said Pollard III, 50, who will present his grandfather for induction on Sunday.

"I have great memories," he said. "He was very jovial and a character, to say the AP Sports Writer Mike Marot in Indianapolis contributed to this report.

Now Matt Jones must learn his new position

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Jacksonville Jaguars sure hope it doesn't take Matt Jones extra time to learn his new position.

After Jones missed the opening of training camp by holding out - he also missed most of minicamp and several summer workouts because of a sprained left hamstring - the former Arkansas quarterback signed a five-year, $8.45 million contract Tuesday with the Jaguars.

The deal could be worth up to $11.15 million with incentives and he will make $6.3 million his first year.

"I'm definitely excited," Jones said. "I'm glad that everything got worked out and that I haven't missed too much. I'm ready to get out there and start making plays and helping the team win."

The 21st overall pick, Jones is switching to tight end. He finished his Razorbacks career as the Southeastern Conference's top rushing quarterback, gaining 2,535 yards and scoring 24 touchdowns in 46 games.

"It's not that so much time has been missed that he's really behind," Jaguars coach Jack Del Rio said. "We'll get him caught up to speed, and it should be something that's in our rear view mirror very quickly."

Colts - Center Jeff Saturday

missed practice because of a strained right hamstring and most likely will not play this weekend in the exhibition opener in Japan against Atlanta.

Coach Tony Dungy said the team was awaiting results from an MRI to determine the severity of the injury.

Defensive lineman Raheem Brock, also a starter, could be out with a hip flexor.

At least five players, including two-time Pro Bowl defensive end Dwight Freeney, will not travel to Japan. Freeney has not yet practiced after having offseason shoulder surgery and is on the team's physically unable to perform list.

Bengals, LB Thurman agree to five-year deal

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

GEORGETOWN - Second-round draft pick Odell Thurman has agreed to a five-year contract with the Cincinnati Bengals, the linebacker's agent told the team's Web site Monday night.

The 6-foot, 235-pound Thurman was expected to report to training camp at Georgetown College on Tuesday and practice with the Bengals for the first time. He has missed seven practices during contract negotiations.

Cincinnati selected Thurman with the 48th overall pick in April's draft after taking his college teammate at Georgia, fellow linebacker David Pollack, at No. 17 in the first round.

Pollack is the only Bengals' draft pick yet to reach a deal with the team.

Sparks named to final World University Games roster

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

LEXINGTON — University of Kentucky senior Patrick Sparks has been named to final 12-man roster that will represent the United States at the World University Games in Izmir, Turkey, August 12-22.

Of the 12 players selected to vie for a World University Games gold medal Aug. 12-22, four have previous USA Basketball experience, including Greg Brunner (Iowa / Charles City, Iowa); Chris Hernandez (Stanford / Fresno, Calif.); Craig Smith (Boston College / Los Angeles, Calif.) and Shelden Williams (Duke / Forrest Park, Okla.).

Players who made the final USA roster which, in addition to Brunner, Hernandez, Smith and Williams, include: Randy Foye (Villanova / Newark, N.J.); Mike Gansy (West Virginia / Olmsted Falls, Ohio); Vincent Grier (Minnesota / Charlotte, N.C.); Matt Haryasz (Stanford / Page, Ariz.); Eric Hicks (Cincinnati / Greensboro, N.C.); Bobby Jones (Washington / Compton, Calif.); Gerry McNamara (Syracuse / Scranton, Pa.); and Patrick Sparks (Kentucky / Central City, Ky.).

"This was a very tough decision," said USA World University Games head coach Jay Wright (Villanova University). "We have an entire team that has a great attitude and they all are very committed to their teammates and coaches. Making the cuts was extremely difficult and it just came down to numbers at each position."

The U.S. team will continue to train in Colorado Springs for the remainder of the week and will travel to Turkey on Friday, Aug. 5. The USA squad will then continue its training Aug. 7-10 in Izmir, before competition begins on Aug. 12.

"We're very excited to finish trials and to have a team that can now focus on playing against somebody else and go to the World University Games and experience that," added Wright. "I can tell these guys are really looking forward to the trip and to the competition."

With 32 nations expected to field a men's basketball team at the 2005 World University Games, the competition has been divided into eight preliminary groups consisting of four teams in each group. The U.S. has been placed in preliminary round Group F, along with Iran, Slovakia and Germany. The USA's first game is slated for 3 p.m. (all times listed are local Izmir, Turkey times) against Iran on Aug. 12, followed by a 12:45 p.m. contest versus Slovakia on Aug. 13. Preliminary Group play comes to a close on Aug. 14 when the U.S. takes on Germany at 3 p.m. Second round games are scheduled to take place Aug. 16 and 17; the quarterfinal round is slated for Aug. 18, and the semifinals and finals are scheduled for Aug. 19 and 21, respectively.

Wright, who previously served as an assistant on the 2002 USA World Championship For Young Men Qualifying Team, is being assisted on the sidelines by collegiate head coaches Jeff Capel of Virginia Commonwealth University and Bobby Gonzalez of Manhattan College (N.Y.), including 2000 Youth Development Festival silver medalist and 2003 National Team Trials participant Craig Smith (Boston College / Los Angeles, Calif.) and Shelden Williams (Duke / Forrest Park, Okla.), who took home a bronze medal at the 2001 Youth Development Festival and participated in the 2003 U.S. Junior World Championships Team Trials.

Of the 12 U.S. Team members, three earned All-American honors during the 2004-05 season. Williams' All-American honors in 2005 include second-team selections by Sports Illustrated.com, Dick Vitale's All-Rolls Royce, and Rivals.com and an All-American third team award by the Associated Press (A.P.). Smith was named to the third team by both the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) and Sports Illustrated.com and earned fourth-team and honorable mention from Dick Vitale's All-Rolls Royce and the A.P., respectively, while McNamara received honorable mention recognition by Sports Illustrated.com.

Williams also earned multiple Atlantic Coast Conference honors in 2005, including all-conference first team, all-defensive team (as the only unanimous selection) and all-tournament team. From the Big East Conference, Smith and McNamara each received first team accolades, while Foye, who was named to the 2005 NCAA Tournament Syracuse Regional Team, received a third team selection. McNamara, Foye and Gansy were all selected to the Big East All-Tournament Team. Grier tops the Big Ten Conference list, after garnering all-conference first team and all-tournament honors in 2005 and Brunner earned all-conference second team. Hernandez took in All-Pacific-10 accolades, while teammate Haryasz received honorable mention and both made the all-tournament team. Sparks (Southeastern Conference) and Hicks (Conference USA) round out the all-conference awards with second and third team awards, respectively.

The USA World University Games Team players and coaches were selected by the USA Basketball Men's Collegiate Committee that is chaired by Syracuse University (N.Y.) head coach Jim Boeheim. Appointed to serve on the Committee on behalf of the NCAA were Fran Dunphy (head coach, University of Pennsylvania); Tom Izzo (head coach, Michigan State University); Ernie Kent (head coach, University of Oregon); and Tubby Smith (head coach, University of Kentucky). Appointed by the NAIA was Bob Burchard (head coach, Columbia College, Mo.); the NJCAA assigned Scott Schumacher (head coach, Kilgore College, Texas); and Bill Self (head coach, University of Kansas) was named by the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC). Serving on the committee as the athlete representatives are Steve Wojciechowski, currently an assistant coach at Duke University (N.C.) and a member of the 1995 USA Junior World Championship Team, and A.J. Wynder, the current head men's coach at Nassau Community College (N.Y.) and a member of the 1995 USA Pan American Games silver medalist squad.

The 2005 World University Games men's basketball competition will include 32 teams and the United States has been placed in preliminary round Group F with Germany, Iran and Slovakia. Also listed among this year's competitors are Brazil, Finland, Turkey and the United Arab Emirates in Group A; Group B consists of Haiti, Serbia & Montenegro, South Korea and Sweden; Group C includes Cyprus, Japan, Republic of South Africa and Russia; in Group D are Angola, Canada, Italy and Portugal; while China, Croatia, Czech Republic and Peru have been placed in Group

E; Group G consists of Australia, Great Britain, Lebanon and Lithuania; while Group H includes Estonia, Greece, Mexico and Spain.

The USA men in past WUG competitions have dominated, compiling a 119-17 overall record (.875 winning percentage) while medaling in all 17 Games in which they have participated, including 12 gold medals. In 2001, the most recent WUG's in which the U.S. men competed, the USA saw its streak of six consecutive golds and 46 consecutive wins come to a halt when host China, led by its 'Walking Wall' of Menk Batere, Yao Ming and ZhiZhi Wang, all of whom competed for China at the 2000 Olympic Games the previous summer, edged the U.S. collegians 83-82 in the semifinals. The USA squad finished 7-1 to claim the 2001 WUG bronze medal.

The United States has been sending teams to the World University Games since 1965, and since then the World University Games has served as an important developmental event for the U.S. Seventeen players have represented the USA in both the World University Games and the Olympic Games, including Ray Allen, Stacey Augmon, Charles Barkley, Larry Bird, Bill Bradley, Quinn Buckner, Tom Burleson, Ken Davis, Tim Duncan, Phil Hubbard, Allen Iverson, Mitch Kupchak, Karl Malone, Mitch Richmond, Michael Silliman, Steve Smith and Jo Jo White.

Kentucky's Big Blue Madness moving to Rupp Arena

by MURRAY EVANS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — A Kentucky basketball tradition will receive a makeover this year.

Big Blue Madness, the annual opening practice for the Wildcats, will move to Rupp Arena, university officials said.

The Oct. 14 event will be relocated from its longtime home in Memorial Coliseum, where it has been held each year since its inception in 1982. The move coincides with the 30th anniversary of Rupp Arena.

Rupp Arena seats about 23,000 fans, while on-campus

Memorial Coliseum has about 8,700 seats. Memorial's capacity now is limited to 5,600 because of ongoing construction of an adjacent practice facility, athletic department spokesman Scott Stricklin said.

Another change will be a 9 p.m. EDT starting time. Previously, because of NCAA rules, teams had to wait until 12:01 a.m. to begin the initial practice.

"We've always treated this event as an opportunity for the fans who do not have season tickets to watch their Wildcats," Kentucky coach Tubby Smith said in a statement. "That will continue this year. Kentucky basketball is so special to so many people. Moving the event to Rupp and the earlier start time allows for a larger group of people to participate and join us in the 30-year celebration."

The event will remain free. Tickets for 8,000 lower-level seats at Rupp Arena can be picked up at the Memorial Coliseum ticket windows at 7 a.m. on Oct. 1. Upper-level seats will be distributed via TicketMaster starting Oct. 6.

Stricklin said moving the event to Rupp Arena is a one-year experiment, "to give us an opportunity to see how it goes," and said there is no guarantee the event will remain there.

Proposal would mandate UK, U of L football play each season

by JOE BIESK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT — A Kentucky lawmaker wants the gridiron rivalry between Louisville and Kentucky to stay right where it is — as each school's annual season opener.

State Rep. Denver Butler, D-Louisville, has prefiled a bill in the General Assembly that would make it a state law for the schools to play each other the first game of every season. It would be up to the schools to decide where they play.

"I think the majority of the people would like to see it the first game of the season," Butler said. "It's a good rivalry and I'd like to see it continue."

The two schools renewed their football rivalry in 1994 after decades of not facing each other. Since then, Louisville has won seven of 11 meetings, including five of the last six.

This year's contest on Sept. 4 at Commonwealth Stadium is the last one scheduled before the current contract expires.

UofL vice president of athletics Tom Jurich has said he wants to continue scheduling the game for the first week of each season. Meanwhile, UK football coach Rich Brooks has wavered, saying he'd like to postpone it until later in the season.

Butler, who prefiled the bill last month, said he wanted to nudge the schools toward an agreement that would keep the schools playing football each year. Of course, that agreement would also have to include maintaining it as the opener, Butler said.

Jurich said he hadn't paid attention to Butler's proposal. However, he would like to see the contest remain the first week of every season. Jurich said he was planning to see UK athletics director Mitch Barnhart on Thursday.

"I think it's just such a wonderful event," Jurich said in a telephone interview. "It's got so much natural hype that goes with it, so many built-in promotions that go with it. And the game's been a true success."

Tony Neely, UK's media relations director, declined comment because the proposal was currently only a prefiled bill.

Commerce Secretary Jim Host said he thought state government should stay out of it. Neither the legislature, nor the executive branch should do anything that would force teams to play each other, or play on specific dates, Host said.

"I just don't think that makes sense. There is enough public demand," Host said. "I'm convinced the two of them are going to get together and they are going to play."

Keeping the game where it is would also likely help both schools with recruiting, Butler said. The game has been nationally televised. That could be attractive to prospective recruits and keep the state in the national spotlight, he said.

Still, Butler said if the two schools worked out a lengthy deal to keep the ritual intact, he would likely back down.

Not only that, but the game is important to fans, he said.

"I don't want to make out their football schedule for them," Butler said "Just help them out on the first game."

Champion filly Ashado to be sold at Keeneland

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — Ashado, the reigning Breeders' Cup Distaff champion and winner of six Grade 1 races, will be sold at Keeneland's November Breeding Stock Sale, according to the horse's owners.

Starlight Stable owners Jack and Laurie Wolf and their partners, Paul Saylor and Johns Martin, said Taylor Made Sales Agency of Nicholasville will consign the horse.

Ashado won last year's Eclipse

Award as champion 3-year-old filly after becoming the first horse ever to win the Kentucky Oaks and Breeders' Cup Distaff in the same year. She's won two Grade 1 races as a 4-year-old — the Ogden Phipps Handicap at Belmont Park and the Go for Wand Stakes at Saratoga.

Trained by Todd Pletcher, Ashado is a member of an elite club of only 12 females to have won Grade 1 events at ages 2, 3 and 4. That group includes Personal Ensign, Serena's Song, Miesque and Heavenly Prize.

Before the sale, the owners plan to run Ashado in either of two Grade 1 races, the Personal Ensign at Saratoga on Aug. 26 or the Ruffian at Belmont on Sept. 11. They also plan to allow her to defend her Breeders' Cup Distaff title in October at Belmont.

The Keeneland November sale has featured top broodmare prospects like Cash Run, Spain, Unbridled Elaine, Stellar Jayne and Take Charge Lady in recent years. In 2003, Cash Run sold for $7.1 million, a record price for a broodmare.

National League: Reds 8, Braves 5

Adam
Dunn

by TERRY KINNEY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Adam Dunn is batting sixth in the Cincinnati Reds' lineup. It doesn't seem to matter where he hits.

"Right now, he'll hit anywhere you put him," said Reds manager Jerry Narron, after Dunn's five-RBI night led the Reds to an 8-5 win over the Atlanta Braves.

"The main thing is we wanted to get Wily Mo (Pena) in the middle to get him some protection and see some pitches to hit."

Dunn had a three-run homer and a two-run double for the sixth five-RBI game of his career, the third this year.

He homered off Braves starter Horacio Ramirez, a left-hander, in the fourth to give the Reds a 4-2 lead. He then doubled against Ramirez with the bases loaded in the sixth, driving in two more runs.

"Ramirez has been pitching well," Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said. "But he kept walking Pena with Dunn behind him. Dunn hasn't hit left-handers for a high average this year, but he's dangerous. He hit two rockets off (Ramirez)."

Dunn was named NL player of the month for July earlier in the day. He had an NL-leading 11 homers and major league-best 31 RBIs last month.

"I've been seeing lefthanders good all year," Dunn said. "I know my numbers stink. I think I've been overly aggressive, trying to pull everything. I'm not doing anything different — just hitting it more."

Cox said it's a mystery how Dunn set a major league record by striking out 195 times last season.

"He's got a great eye, a great swing. He's one of the guys you've got to fear," Cox said. "I never did understand why he strikes out so much."

After Dunn's double, Jim

Brower replaced Ramirez and gave up a run-scoring wild pitch and an RBI single by Edwin Encarnacion to make it 8-2.

Ramirez was charged with all eight runs and six hits, with four walks and one strikeout in five-plus innings.

Brandon Claussen (6-8) gave up seven hits, five runs and struck out five in 6 2-3 innings for the Reds. Kent Mercker pitched two innings for his third save.

Ryan Freel singled in a run in the third for Cincinnati, but the Braves took a 2-1 lead in the fourth on a two-run homer by Julio Franco, his eighth.

"The park is short to right-center field, and that's my power," said Franco, who homered twice against the Reds on June 18 in Great American Ball Park.

Atlanta made it 8-5 in the seventh on consecutive RBI singles by Marcus Giles, Jeff Francoeur and Andruw Jones.

The Reds played small ball to perfection in the third when Jason LaRue walked, moved up on Claussen's sacrifice bunt and scored on Freel's sharp single to left, his first RBI since May 30 at Houston.

Freel missed 21 games with a sore toe during that stretch.

Reds shortstop Felipe Lopez kept the Braves out of a big first inning, going deep into the hole for Franco's sharply hit grounder, then throwing him out with two outs and two runners on base.

Notes: The game was interrupted in the seventh when Atlanta's Rafael Furcal broke his bat on a foul ball and the barrell struck home place umpire Chuck Meriwether in the hand. Second base umpire Tim Timmons took over behind the plate when play resumed after a 12-minute delay. ... Braves 3B Chipper Jones was out with a strained rotator cuff suffered in Tuesday night's game. He is day-to-day, manager Bobby Cox said, but no special treatment is necessary. ... Ramirez has allowed a team-high 21 home runs this season. ... Braves 2B Giles extended his hitting streak to a season-high eight games with a first-inning single. ... Reds 1B Sean Casey singled in the fourth to extend his hitting streak to eight games.

Who You Gonna Believe? Players or the results?

by TIM DAHLBERG
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The year was 1973 and drugs in baseball had an entirely different meaning when the late Tug McGraw rallied both a team and a city by telling them "You Gotta Believe."

The New York Mets and their fans believed enough to get to the World Series that year.

Times change, of course, and since baseball is always in the market for a catchy new slogan, here's one for 2005:

"Who You Gonna Believe?"

Let's begin by checking names off a list that's dwindling faster than this season's major league home run totals.

At the top is Rafael Palmeiro, who may have been juiced up even as he poked his finger in the air for emphasis while telling Congress that he never took steroids. Palmeiro seemed convincing then, but he wasn't on Monday when he proclaimed his innocence, then danced around the ugly details.

Stop here if you haven't seen this before. The player's defense is always the same: I didn't know.

Palmeiro left us guessing as to what sent up the flag, but it's a safe bet it wasn't the Jell-O salad on the buffet line at the neighborhood Golden Corral or a bad box of Juicy Fruits.

Turns out he may have had a good reason. The New York Times cited unidentified sources Wednesday as saying Palmeiro tested positive for stanozolol, a powerful anabolic steroid you're not going to find in the corner nutrition store.

If the drug sounds familiar, it should. It's the same type Ben Johnson used when he was stripped of his gold medal in the 100 meters in the 1988 Olympic scandal.

So, who you gonna believe? How about Jason Giambi, who admits to being sorry — but won't say what he's sorry for. Maybe if he didn't have a memory lapse when it comes to the most important stuff, his whole act would be easier to believe.

Then again, after Giambi hit 14 homers in July — the most by a Yankee in a single month since Mickey Mantle in July of 1961 — maybe it's time to do a few more unannounced tests in the New York clubhouse.

Let's move along to the National League, where Barry Bonds plays for the San Francisco Giants. At least he used to play for the Giants, who had to log onto the league's Web site this week to find out their star player isn't likely to return this season.

Bonds is making $20 million this year, but in an apparent effort to keep his cell phone bill down didn't bother to phone the Giants and let them know he wasn't going to be around.

Like Palmeiro, Bonds swears he doesn't use steroids. Surely it's a coincidence that his personal trainer and longtime friend faces prison time after pleading guilty to distributing steroids, and that Bonds is taking the season off just as baseball starts its first meaningful testing program.

So, who you gonna believe? How about Mark McGwire? No, wait, he won't answer questions because the past is the past and, well — that's in the past.

How's that campaign to keep kids away from performance enhancing drugs going anyway, Mark?

Sammy Sosa? Of course he wouldn't dream of bulking up with something illegal, just like he wouldn't dream of corking his bat. Never mind that this is the same Sammy Sosa who stopped hitting home runs about the same time baseball started testing for performance enhancing drugs.

So, who you gonna believe? Bud Selig and Donald Fehr? Selig, you might remember, is the guy who tried to tell Congress that baseball didn't have a steroids problem, only to later pull a grandstand play and propose a 50-game ban instead of the current 10-days penalty. Fehr is the guy who said he would take that proposal to the players and hasn't been heard from since.

You have to be slightly suspicious that both might have been involved in the interesting timing surrounding the announcement Monday that Palmeiro tested positive for steroids.

Given the way baseball's ponderous grievance process works, there's no doubt those in the know have known for weeks, if not months, about the positive test. The only question is whether it goes all the way back to spring training, when tests were going on about the same time Congress was holding hearings.

There's no reason to ruin a celebration, though. So Palmeiro was allowed his last untainted moment in the sun a couple of weeks ago when he stroked his 3,000th career hit in Seattle, knowing what was coming all the while.

So, who you gonna believe? The way things are now, it's hard to believe anyone at all.

Reds pitcher Bong charged with domestic battery in Sarasota

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRADENTON, Fla. — Cincinnati Reds pitcher Jung Keun Bong was arrested and charged with misdemeanor domestic battery after a fight with his wife, according to the Manatee County Sheriff's Office.

Bong, 24, who's been on a rehab assignment with the Single-A Sarasota Reds, was arrested Friday night at a hotel after deputies showed up in response to a scream coming from his room, a sheriff's report said.

Bong and his wife said they had been fighting, and deputies observed a red choke mark on his wife's neck, the report said. Bong told deputies he grabbed his wife to calm her down, but he couldn't explain the mark on her neck.

Bong was released from jail Saturday and will appear in court later. A sheriff's spokesman didn't know Bong's court date.

The left-hander from Seoul, South Korea, had surgery on his left shoulder in September and is listed on the Reds' 60-day disabled list.

Acquired by the Reds in a trade with Atlanta in 2004, Bong has a career record of 7-4 with a 5.71 ERA, according to the team's Web site.

A message was left at the hotel seeking comment from Bong. Reds spokesman Rob Butcher said the team was aware of Bong's arrest and had no comment.

Dunn named NL player of month for July

by TERRY KINNEY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Reds left fielder Adam Dunn knew he was having a pretty good July. He just didn't know how good.

He was named National League player of the month on Wednesday for leading the league in home runs (11) and the majors in RBI (31).

The big month was defined by "little things," Dunn said.

"There's nothing I'm doing that's totally different," he said. "I'm just making contact."

Manager Jerry Narron said that Dunn, 25, is beginning to show maturity, as well as raw talent.

"He's at a point in his career where you can keep getting better, level off or go backwards," Narron said. "He's continuing to get better, which is what everyone wants to see."

"As good as he's been, I think he'll be even better."

Dunn said he didn't know that the last Reds player to be named player of a month was Greg Vaughn in September 1999, the same month Denny Neagle was pitcher of the month.

"It's a special thing, but now it's August and it's time to turn the page," Dunn said. "Hopefully, this month will be something I can build on for the next two."

HOMER HAPPY: With Dunn leading the way, the Reds are on pace to break the club record for home runs — 221 in 1956.

If Dunn (31 home runs) and Ken Griffey Jr. (23 homers) keep hitting at that rate, they would challenge for the club record for a two-player combo.

Ted Kluszewski (47) and Wally Post (40) combined for 87 in 1955.

Johnny Bench (45) and Tony Perez (40) had 85 in 1970.

George Foster (52) and Bench (31) had 83 in 1977.

Narron likes the way Dunn and Griffey have been taking extra, early battle practice.

"I think Griff is probably a good influence on that part of it, doing the early work," Narron said.

Dunn said he's been taking early BP most of the season. The results just became more evident recently.

GOLD GLOVE CASEY: No Reds first baseman has ever won a Gold Glove for fielding. But Sean Casey has had a nearly perfect season so far.

Casey committed just one error in 107 games while handling 883 total chances. He took a 73-game errorless streak into Wednesday night's game with the Atlanta Braves.

Red Sox overcome Ramirez-Renteria collision, stretch AL East lead

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Damon could see that left fielder Manny Ramirez and shortstop Edgar Renteria might run into each other when both players went for a shallow fly ball. They did, with Ramirez catching the ball as they collided.

Both players were on the ground for a few minutes before getting up and walking to the dugout without any apparent serious injuries, and the Red Sox went on to beat the visiting Kansas City Royals 8-5 Wednesday night to open a 4 1/2-game lead — their biggest of the season — over the New York Yankees in the AL East.

"I knew when it was hit they were definitely going to be in trouble unless somebody called the ball," said Damon, who watched from center field.

"We hit hard," Renteria said. "I thought Manny was going to be all right because he's a big man. I'm so skinny."

Ramirez, who hit his AL-leading 30th homer in the first inning, left the game after the second-inning collision and was listed as day-to-day with bruises on the right side of his face and chest. He also had a bloody nose and was replaced by Gabe Kapler in the third.

"I think everything's fine (with Ramirez), but we'll need to check on him in the morning." Boston manager Terry Francona said.

In other games, it was: Cleveland 7, New York 4; Detroit 10, Seattle 7; Tampa Bay 8, Texas 5; Toronto 4, Chicago 3; Minnesota 4, Oakland 3; and Los Angeles 8, Baltimore 4.

Renteria stayed in the game until he left with sore ribs for pinch hitter Doug Mirabelli in the seventh.

"Those guys are so important to our team, we need them to get healthy as quick as possible," Damon said.

Ramirez also increased his major league-leading RBI total to 100, and the Red Sox matched their season high with their seventh straight win.

The Yankees squandered a four-run lead in the fifth inning at Cleveland as the Indians scored six runs against Mike Mussina (10-7). Mussina was dominating in the first four innings after coming in 4-0 in his previous six starts against the Indians but lost to them for the first time since April 3, 2000.

"He was putting on a clinic," said Ben Broussard, who homered to open the rally and capped it with an RBI single. "He was up, down, using both sides of the plate. And then we got it going. For us to be able to do that against him is pretty cool."

Jorge Posada hit a two-run homer for the Yankees, who are just a half-game ahead of the Indians in the multi-team wildcard scramble. It was the second straight win over New York for the Indians, whose $42 million payroll is roughly one-fifth of what Yankees owner George Steinbrenner has invested in his star-studded squad.

Cliff Lee (12-4) gutted his way through some early problems to win for the sixth time in seven decisions since June 12. The left-hander allowed four runs and eight hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Bob Howry and Scott Sauerbeck got the Indians to the ninth before Bob Wickman induced three quick outs for his AL-leading 29th save in his 700th career appearance.

Tigers 10, Mariners 7: At Detroit, Chris Shelton homered and drove in three runs and Placido Polanco added two RBIs as the Tigers snapped a five-game losing streak. Mike Maroth (9-11) allowed five runs and seven hits over six-plus innings for the win.

Adrian Beltre homered and drove in four runs for Seattle.

Twins 4, Athletics 3: At Minneapolis, Lew Ford's triple scored Justin Morneau in the bottom of the ninth, ending Minnesota's six-game losing streak and Oakland's six-game winning streak.

Joe Nathan (3-3) pitched a perfect ninth for the victory.

Devil Rays 8, Rangers 5: At Arlington, Texas, Jorge Cantu drove in the tiebreaking run with an eighth-inning single and Tampa Bay won its season-high sixth straight. The Devil Rays are 14-5 since the All-Star break and own their longest winning streak since a 12-game run in June 2004.

Travis Harper (2-6) pitched 2 2-3 innings for the win. He allowed consecutive solo homers to Rod Barajas and Gary Matthews Jr. with two outs in the ninth before Dany Baez got one out for his 22nd save.

Blue Jays 4, White Sox 3: At Chicago, Gregg Zaun hit a three-run double in the first inning for Toronto and David Bush won for the second time in three starts since being recalled from the minors.

Legends blank Kannapolis again

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

LEXINGTON — The Legends celebrated their fifth anniversary in grand fashion on Wednesday night. The team introduced a brand new mascot, "Elle" to the crowd before the game. The team made her coming out party a huge success with a 3-0 shutout win over Kannapolis. The Legends recorded their second straight shutout and their 13th of the season.

Ronnie Martinez authored seven innings in route to his eighth win of the season and his fifth straight winning decision. Martinez (8-3) struck out five. Paul Estrada and Ryan Thompson worked the final two innings with Thompson earning his seventh save of the year.

Ole Sheldon led the Legends offensively. The Legends first baseman had two hits including an RBI single in the first scoring Edwin Maysonet. Sheldon doubled and scored in the sixth inning on Kevin Vital's single to right. Later in the sixth, Luke Barganier's sacrifice fly to centerfield plated Beau Torbert.

Vital had two hits along with Maysonet. J.R. Towles extended his hit streak to eight games with third inning single.

Kentucky Speedway preparing for potentially huge IRL race

by MURRAY EVANS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPARTA — Kentucky Speedway general manager Mark Cassis doesn't deny it: He wants Danica Patrick to win the track's Indy Racing League event later this month.

"From a promoter's standpoint, that would be a dream," Cassis said Wednesday.

But the popular Patrick's presence is only part of the equation for track officials as they prepare for the Amber Alert Portal Indy 300, which will be run Aug. 14.

From the unique title sponsor to the presence of Kentucky's governor, country-music group SheDaisy and ESPN's marketing machine, it would seem a perfect promotional storm is brewing for track officials hoping to sell out the 66,089-seat venue.

"It's all about securing the entertainment dollar," Cassis said. "How much can we throw in? We put as much in the bowl as we possibly can."

As other tracks have done, Kentucky Speedway is using Patrick's name recognition to promote the race. Patrick shot to prominence with a fourth-place finish in the Indianapolis 500 in May — the highest finish in that race ever by a female driver — and made the cover of Sports Illustrated the next week.

Kentucky Speedway rented 15 billboards — more than usual — in the Cincinnati and Louisville metro areas to promote the race. The billboards feature pictures of Patrick, two-time IRL series champion Sam Hornish Jr. and current series points leader Dan Wheldon, with the slug, "Catch Her If You Can."

Never mind the fact that

Patrick, a rookie, has yet to win an IRL race. But most of the dozen drivers testing their cars Wednesday at the speedway didn't seem resentful.

"The way I see it, it's a benefit for everyone," Helio Castroneves said of the attention focused on Patrick. "I'm expecting more people here in Kentucky than they had last year. If it's for her, great. I'll benefit, because people will come to me and say, 'I'm a new fan.' I get a lot of e-mails from new fans of the IRL."

As excited as speedway officials are about Patrick's presence, they're equally as thrilled about the Amber Alert Portal system serving as the race's title sponsor. The system is used to notify the public about missing and abducted children, and the Amber Alert Portal Consortium is a public-private partnership that provides states new technology that expands the alert system to make it more effective.

It's thought to be the first time a major sporting event has had a cause-related title sponsor.

On the day of the race, Kentucky will become the seventh state to begin use of the Amber Alert Portal, which enables the quick communication of detailed data — including physical descriptions, photographs and biographical information — by law-enforcement agencies. The data can be delivered through cell phones, pagers, e-mail, fax machines or other personal communication devices.

At the track, parents will be able to create, for free, a digital identification for their children. The electronic child IDs will include a digital photograph of the child and list their name, age, height, weight and other data. In the event of a kidnapping, law-enforcement agencies can use the IDs to rapidly enter the child's information into the Amber Alert Portal.

Gov. Ernie Fletcher will officially activate the state's Amber Alert Portal before serving as the race's grand marshal. Kentucky will join Arizona, Idaho, Missouri, Montana, Oregon and Washington in using the new system.

"We really lucked out with this Amber Alert piece. It really took on a life of its own," Cassis said. "When you can take an event like this, not only regionally, but nationally, and promote the protection of children, it's really great. The cause is right on. There is no greater cause."

Actress Rebecca Buding, from the soap opera "All My Children," and members of SheDaisy, which will perform a concert before the race, will attend the race and both Buding and the group will do public-service announcements about the Amber Alert Portal system during the broadcast of the race on ABC, Cassis said. ESPN also will use the race as a backdrop for its SportsCenter Across America Tour.

Last year's race, won by Adrian Fernandez, drew 61,885 fans, the most for an IRL event in the track's five-year history. Last month, Cassis said the track was about 10,000 tickets ahead of last year's pace, although he said Wednesday the pace had slowed.

"The potential is there," Cassis said. "We have certainly mixed the ingredients up between the Danica-mania, the Amber Alert, the entertainment factor. People in our area enjoy motorsports, and when they see competitors going 220 mph side-by-side, it's a great show."

Hale survives lap one pileup to earn third LPR LM win

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

COEBURN, Va. — Late Model polesitter Wayne Hale tried to change his luck Saturday night by allowing his son Cody draw for the race start inversion in the 75-lap Lonesome Pine Raceway main feature. Cody pulled a six, which has been the Hale curse thus far this season. But, Cody may have brought good luck in the end because Hale's race didn't end badly the way others had earlier this year when his pole starting spot was inverted backwards the maximum six spots.

Following a lap one pileup which Hale barely missed it took him only six laps to find his way into the lead from the sixth starting position. From that point on he was long gone from the rest of the field as the Bluff City driver notched his third Late Model win of the season.

The first caution of the race occurred moments after the green flag fell when Brad Housewright starting outside the second row attempted to make a move in-between the two front row cars as they passed the finish line. Apparently there wasn't enough room to go three-wide at that point, and Housewright made contact with the rear quarter panel of Brian Blevins.

That set off a chain reaction accident that sent Housewright, Buddy Talbert who started third, and Surgoinville racer Chuck Crigger spinning before they'd even made it to the first turn.

Alan Sumner and Kirby Gobble also suffered front end damage in the melee. All cars continued in the race, but Housewright's trunk lid and right rear fender had to be duct-taped.

Housewright had worked his way from the back up to fifth when he suffered a duct-tape failure and the rear sheet metal came loose. He was black flagged to make repairs and eventually finished ninth.

In the first 25 laps Hale gained a half-straightaway advantage over second place Gobble, and a half lap advantage over third place Jeff Woodward who had a gaggle of cars on his tail trying to get by. A lap later the second of two caution flags flew when Paul Shull punted Woodward from behind in turn two, sending both cars spinning.

On the restart Hale and Gobble drove off to their earlier advantages while Blevins in his newly acquired third place position appeared to pick up a handling problem. He fought hard to maintain the third position but eventually lost his podium finish to Joey Owens with 10 laps to go.

Shull, who had worked his way from the back after the lap 26 caution using the high groove, gave Owens a good battle for third in the final five laps but was unable to complete the pass.

Gobble finished second behind Hale with Owens in third ahead of Shull in fourth and Zeke Shell in fifth. "I don't know what happened (in the initial accident) but somebody said Brad got into the back of Brian," Hale said from victory lane. "The only thing I know is everybody was checking up and everybody was spinning tires at the same time and wrecking. Luckily we weren't involved.

"The car was pretty good but we dropped off a little quicker than what we wanted to but at least we got a win tonight and weren't involved in the wreck."

The Street Stock race came down to a 35-lap, four car nose to tail battle led by Pound, Va. Chris Tunnell. One of the race-way's most prolific winners, Tunnell had been winless in 2005 before holding off a hard charge from Roger Neece to grab that first win of the year.

Neece finished second ahead of Jason McCaully who earned his first career pole, Tony Vance in fourth and Rob Austin in fifth.

Linton Perry started dead least in the 22-car Pure-4 field, but with the help of several cautions over the 25 lap race he worked his way back into the lead in the final five laps for his second consecutive victory.

Stacey Castle, whose son Hunter celebrated a win in his first career race in the Hornets division Saturday night, finished second ahead of Carl Lawson in third, Chris Neeley in fourth and Kevin Parker in fifth.

Mod 4 polesitter Freddie Taylor Jr. pulled a six for the race start inversion, and it was Kirby Gobble who snatched the lead from the start and held on flag to flag for the win. But, Taylor Jr. gave Gobble a good fight in the final three laps, making Gobble earn the win. Jody Bostic finished third ahead of Brad Ball and T.J. O'Quinn.

Travis Watson won his 11th Legends race in a row while Wanda Phillips grabbed the Ladies Pure 4 win driving a Linton Perry owned car.

Ren tabbed crew chief for BDR's No. 23 Toyota

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

Series season.

HIGH POINT, N.C. — Bill Davis Racing has named Rick Ren crew chief for the No. 23 Toyota in the Craftsman Truck Series, starting this weekend at Indianapolis Raceway Park.

Ren has been a staple in Toyota's success in the Truck Series, bringing the manufacturer its first win in a NASCAR national touring series at Michigan International Speedway in 2004. Ren most recently worked on Robert Yates Racing's Busch Series program.

Ren, a 31-year NASCAR veteran, will lead the team and driver Johnny Benson for the remainder of the 2005 Truck

Series season.

"I am pleased Ren has come on board as the crew chief of the TCUV team," said Bill Davis, owner and president of Bill Davis Racing. "He brings more than 30 years of experience to our program and has proven he knows how to win."

"We have the best equipment in the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series garage and Ren is a strong leader, hopefully this will be the combination we have been looking for to get our No. 23 team in Victory Lane."

Ren was a founding member of the Bang Racing Organization and takes over the duties of the No. 23 team's former crew chief, Greg Ely.

Paul Tracy to test Cup car at Michigan

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

Grand Prix of San Jose.

WELCOME, N.C. — Open wheel star Paul Tracy will test Aug. 8-9 at Michigan International Speedway in Richard Childress Racing's No. 33 Chevrolet in preparation for the Aug. 21 GFS Marketplace 400.

The Canadian is the 2003 Champ Car World Series champion and has 30 victories, ranking him first among the series' active drivers and third all-time. Tracy is currently second in the 2005 point standings with two victories, six top-five finishes and two pole positions after eight of 14 races. He finished second in the July 31 Taylor Woodrow

Grand Prix of San Jose.

"Paul and I have talked about an opportunity like this for the past couple years and it has finally come together for Michigan," said Richard Childress, president and CEO of RCR. "I'd like to thank Gerry Forsythe and Forsythe Championship Racing for allowing us the chance to give this a try."

"This will be Paul's first shot in a stock car but he obviously has a great deal of talent and knows how to win races and championships. We'll take a look at how things go after the test and, if all goes according to plan, get him ready for the Cup race the next week."

Musgrave eyeing truck race

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Ted Musgrave has had his share of battles at Bristol Motor Speedway in both a NEXTEL Cup car and a Craftsman Truck. He's had good times and bad and while he always looks forward to racing at Bristol, he has an interesting perspective on BMS.

"You know how in the old days where the gladiators were tossed into a stadium and they turned the lions loose on them?" Musgrave says. "Well, that's what it's like at Bristol when you get to racing. Whoever survives the lions is the winner."

Musgrave feels that being at Bristol is a very unique experience. "It's something you have to visualize for yourself just once," he said. "It's like I've seen pictures of Mount Rushmore, but it wasn't until last year I actually saw it with my own eyes. It's different than what you imagine. To see it in person, what it's like, Bristol is like that."

Musgrave spent the day testing his Craftsman Series truck at BMS on Tuesday, trying to find the right setup for the O'Reilly 200 presented by Valvoline, which takes place at BMS on Wednesday, Aug. 24. After the first few hours he was feeling rather pleased with the session.

"Things don't change a lot here at Bristol because of the concrete," he said. "And we don't do all that much testing but we felt like we needed to come here just because we're looking to gain any ground we can at this point. We're second in the points and we need to do all we can to move up."

Musgrave is currently 158 points behind leader Dennis Setzer in the Truck Series points race. He's recorded just one win. But his consistency, which includes eight top-10 showings and six top five showings in the first 14 races, has kept him in the chase for the points.

At Bristol, like most tracks, Musgrave says there's definitely a "love-hate" thing going on.

"Hey, when you do well at a track you love it and when you do bad you hate it," he said. "That's the nature of the beast. At Bristol, I've had lots of ups and downs. I sat on the pole here two years ago and then blew a tire and ended up finishing 15th. Last year we struggled again and finished down in the pack (27th)."

"But it's a great race track. It's the kind of place any real racer wants to race. And the atmosphere here during the races — even though we don't sell out the Truck race like they do with the Cup race — is something you have to be a part of to believe."

Qualifying for the O'Reilly 200 is set for 5:30 on Aug. 24 with the race taking the green flag at 9:15 p.m. The O'Reilly 200 will be preceded by the Hooter's ProCup Food City 150 at 7 p.m.

Bristol Motor Speedway, JFG Coffee announce partnership

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Bristol Motor Speedway officials announced today that JFG Coffee is now the official coffee of the "World's Fastest Half Mile."

"This is a good fit for us at Bristol Motor Speedway and for our new partners at JFG," said Logan McCabe, vice president for sales and marketing for BMS. "We're a national entity with deep roots in the mountains of this region and JFG has the same background. Beyond the similarities in the history of our companies that make this a natural partnership, there's the obvious connection in our products. There's always something brewing on the track at Bristol Motor Speedway and now there's something brewing off of it too — JFG Coffee."

For years Bristol Motor Speedway has been the home of a non-stop brand of NASCAR action bringing worldwide focus to East Tennessee. Consistently the toughest ticket to get in motorsports, the NASCAR Food City 500 NEXTEL Cup event at BMS last April drew guests from all 50 states and 12 foreign countries.

The JFG Coffee Company of Knoxville, Tenn., originated in 1882 as a wholesale grocery company, selling coffee to grocery stores. Soon after, the company's founder began purchasing roasted whole bean coffee from an old coffee company in New York for his own use. The blend was to become the basis for what is known today as JFG Special Blend.

"JFG is proud to be the official coffee of Bristol Motor Speedway," said George Murphy, vice president of marketing for Reilly Foods Company. "We believe JFG's partnership with BMS is a perfect fit because we both have been local traditions in the part of world JFG has called home since 1919. In the area surrounded by the Appalachian, Blue Ridge and Smoky Mountains, JFG has been blending and roasting coffees to local tastes since our founding just down the road in Morristown, Tenn., over 85 years ago. As the BMS fan base continues to grow we hope to introduce JFG to new generations who appreciate the way "racin' and coffee ought'a be."

THROUGH MY EYES Not much to say

Gas just went up, what?, twelve cents per gallon; the heat index is stifling; a new school year starts in less than a week...

Yep, summer's blazing ahead at full steam. I'm tellin' ya, if it weren't for bad luck, I'd have no luck at all.

So, with that thought, I'll prepare to meet the upcoming day with as much grace and good nature as I can muster...

POSTSCRIPT The spice of life

Working for a public community radio station is never dull. Invariably, after you tell them enough times, people begin to think that because WMMT is a public station and a community station, they can express their opinions any time.

And they're exactly right. We got an email last week from a guy who lives in Michigan, but with east Kentucky roots.

Of course we had to point out that we don't tell D.J.s - all of whom are volunteers - what they

Dispelling the myths about osteoporosis

Session notes also that condition is not for 'women only'

Osteoporosis is a disease that affects only "old ladies"; men can't get it, and once stricken, there's nothing you can do about it - true or false? False.

when they think of osteoporosis?," asked Honaker. "A bent over old lady? Well, guess what - even the young, athletic, and men, too, can all have osteoporosis."

According to Honaker, habits formed in childhood can have a direct result on whether a person may be susceptible to osteoporosis in later years.

Osteoporosis is a preventable and treatable disease characterized by decreasing bone mass, which can lead to multiple fractures and slumped posture in those affected. It is not, according to Honaker, an inevitable facet of advancing age.

"A lot of people just assume that when you get old, you automatically get osteoporosis," she said. "This isn't true. Osteoporosis can be prevented."

Ways in which to help prevent the onset of osteoporosis include: Adopting a regimented weight training program; making it a habit to consume calcium-fortified foods and beverages/calcium supplements are also good ways in which to ward off the development of osteoporosis.

According to Honaker, 28 million people nationwide have osteoporosis, with two million of those people being men. "Most people think of osteoporosis as being a women's disease," Honaker said, "but men can get osteoporosis, too. As a matter of fact, according to statistics, men are actually more likely to get

That same week we got notes from two other people saying they loved the station, but they thought we were too liberal.

A decade or so ago, so the long-timers here tell me, the station surveyed listeners to ascertain how they would change the programming if they could. Almost exactly half said WMMT should have more bluegrass shows, and, to a person, the other half said we should have less bluegrass.

And that hasn't changed. Using a grant, the University of Kentucky did a telephone survey for us last fall, and the results in that category were almost the same. About half wanted more bluegrass, and about half wanted less.

With one particular show, we regularly get comments that we should bump the show that follows it and expand this earlier show to five hours from its current three.

And, of course, fans of the later show call and write in asking us to expand that show.

Thursday is our big bluegrass day, although many other days feature bluegrass shows. On Thursday, we have predominantly bluegrass shows from 10 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. A long-time afternoon programmer, however, likes to sprinkle his show with classic country tunes, as well as bluegrass.

A listener in Harlan County has more than once called the office to complain that this DJ is playing something other than bluegrass.

We appreciate our loyal bluegrass fans, just as we appreciate those who love rock, rap, Americana and other musical genres.

But what pleases those of us who work at the station most are those listeners who don't limit themselves. It's gratifying to know that a lot of people like to hear Ralph Stanley and U2, Doc Watson and Norah Jones, B.B. King and Vassar Clements.

We love those letters, calls and emails that say essentially, "Keep doing what you're doing. Pardon me if this sounds like a commercial, but I am glad variety is still allowed and that it's accessible in these parts. What a dull world if there were only one choice!"

nessing violence in the home; and (9) the kind of pattern that exists - does the acting-out child display guilt, remorse, empathy, or anxiety about his deeds? Is it done for excitement or for control? Does he fail to take responsibility for his own actions?

In 1997, a major researcher indicated that there are five factors associated with a child's potential for dangerousness. Atmosphere - If there is discord in the family, the risk of dangerousness increases. Whereas, it has been repeatedly documented that "violence is not solely the domain of the impoverished, criminal, marginal, or inhuman. Bonding - "If a child did not bond with a parent the risk of dangerousness is greater. Is the child close to one or both parents ... birth complications combined with early maternal rejection predispose the child to violence." Criminality - If one or both parents have a history of legal problems, the child's risk for dangerousness is greater. Discipline - "If discipline is to harsh or abusive or not sufficient, and without control, the risk for dangerousness is greater." In these instances, the following examples come to mind; i.e., the parents are over controlling and the child does not have an opportunity to practice interacting with others; and a parent who is physically and verbally abusive to the child. Exclusive Parental Attention - "The less parental attention the greater the risk of dangerousness." Family size and spacing between births are likely to impact on this factor. An example is parents who do not provide consistent limits with predictability - the father may not pay attention to what the child does until "it has gone too far" or does not allow the mother to maintain boundaries, but does not do as he threatens the child. Thus, children often do not learn to develop inner control because their parents have always tried to keep them "happy", at any cost.

In addition, three other indicators have been recognized as increasing the child's risk of dangerousness: (1) absence of the father - this is when the father is not in the home; (2) gender - seems children are more prone to display violent behaviors, if he come from an all male family; and (3) running away - the child with a history of running away from home tends to have a greater risk of dangerousness.

Since we will continue to learn more about the risk of dangerousness in our students, we need to have a method for applying it so that our children and families will benefit. As with most knowledge, it becomes even more valuable, when it is applied. Society, especially our children, are the winners. Since our students may not always have a school counselor, this is one of those times that community members, such as family members, neighbors, fellow church-goers, ball team coaches, and etc, as in a village, can learn to step forward and do what needs to be done in appropriate fashion. This does not mean be cruel, uncaring, and insensitive in one's behaviors, but rather to gather basic information, examine closely the child's likelihood to act-out, and then speak to the child's parents and/or school staff in a supportive manner. Before doing so, considerations need to focus on the probability of acting-out behaviors. Although future behaviors cannot be guaranteed, "the more of the risk factors and indicators present, the higher the probability of dangerousness." What is the child's rate of dangerousness - how often does it happen? Is the child angry, talking of revenge, and/or made plans? How severe is the insult, the extent of assault and injury? Was the victim a random victim or a targeted victim? Do you know any children that tend to fit into these categories? What if "something" dangerous happened that you "knew" about and you had not spoken up?

osteoporosis than they are to get prostate cancer. Most people would be surprised to know that, wouldn't they?"

Honaker also informed that not only can osteoporosis be prevented, but once bone mass has decreased, one can also successfully gain back bone loss through regimented exercise and weight training. "So, if you've already been diagnosed, you don't have to just sit back and accept - you can do something about it. Weight training and daily exercise can do a lot, an awful lot, to build back lost bone mass," she said.

"Osteoporosis is a disease that everyone, young and old, active, athletic and sedentary, should be concerned about. One in every three persons develops osteoporosis, that's a pretty alarming statistic and a very good reason to learn all you can about prevention and treatment," she said.

To learn more about osteoporosis, contact your local county extension office for educational and resource materials. In Floyd County, you may contact Theresa Scott, Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Sciences, at 886-2668, or by email to: tmscott@uky.edu. ## family OHIO UNIVERSITY Medicine

Martha A. Simpson, D.O., M.B.A.
Associate Professor of Family Medicine

Question: I just got back from my annual visit to my family doctor. She did a pap smear, a physical exam and ordered my mammogram. Are there other tests I need to have done? When my husband gets his annual check up, the doctor orders blood tests.

Answer: The blood tests that your husband had were probably to check his PSA level as a screening test for prostate cancer and to determine if his blood cholesterol level put him at risk for heart disease. As a woman, you need annual blood tests too. Unfortunately, we women sometimes have health care that is too fragmented because we go to a family physician for general concerns, a gynecologist for reproductive disorders, and another doctor — perhaps an internist — for yet other problems. If we don't communicate to the family doctor that we've gone to these other doctors, our health care may be less than ideal. That's why I advocate that you make sure your family physician gets reports from the other physicians you see. That way she can be the captain of your health-care team and make sure you get the tests you need.

I'll give you a list of the kinds of things that you and your family physician will want to know about your blood chemistry. These tests might be requested by other doctors, but your family physician should have the results on the chart she keeps in your record folder.

Know the levels of your blood fats, or lipids. Specifically, you should know your total cholesterol, the breakdown into the good cholesterol known as HDL and the bad cholesterol known as LDL, as well as your triglycerides. Even if you are young and of normal weight, your lipid levels can be elevated. Your specific results determine how often these levels should be checked.

You should have your thyroid stimulating hormone, or TSH level checked. This is a good screening tool in healthy people to determine if your thyroid gland is working properly. You can have a full thyroid profile, but usually a TSH is adequate for screening purposes.

You should check your fasting blood sugar, or glucose, level, especially if you have relatives with diabetes.

Again, being of normal weight and feeling well is not an assurance that you don't have impaired glucose tolerance. Detecting any blood sugar problems early — before you have noticeable symptoms — will insure the best treatment with the fewest complications.

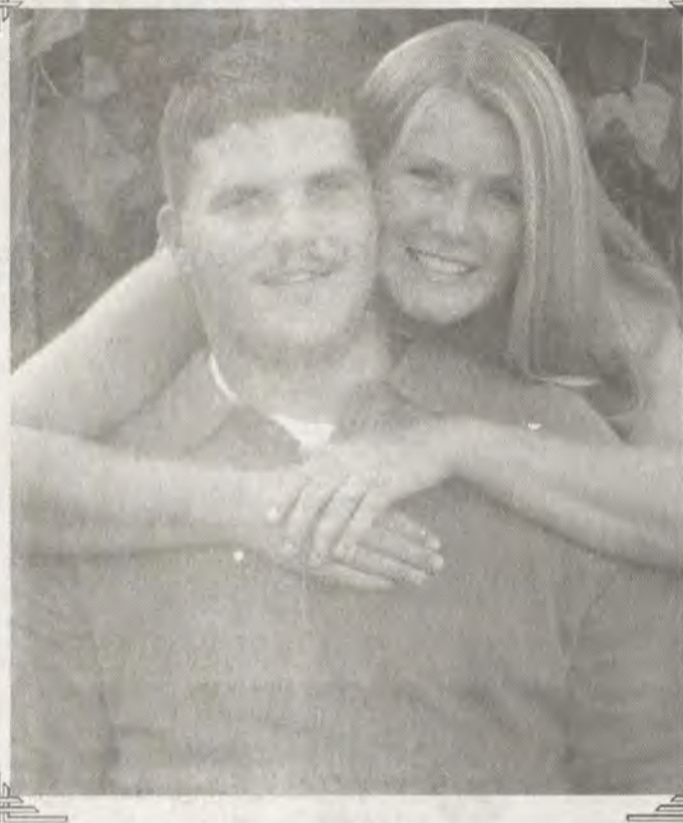

There are also some other tests I'd recommend you consider. Liver tests called ALT and AST can be helpful and can discover liver disease at an early stage. Kidney function can be checked by tests call BUN and Creatinine. As you get over 50, you should discuss having an EKG as well as a screening colonoscopy and screening bone density testing.

Now for the bad news. Your health insurance may not cover all of these tests, and they can be expensive. But that doesn't mean you don't need them. So here are a few tips to help you get the tests you need: Watch for health fairs in your community. Cholesterol, triglycerides and blood sugar are frequently checked at these community screening events. Also, sometimes hospitals or gyms have free or low cost mini-stress tests available. Get these done and keep copies of the results. Give a copy to your family physician and keep a copy for your records. Take responsibility for your own health care.
