Teacher pleads not guilty to abuse

by TOM DOTY
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — A John M. Stumbo Elementary school teacher who was charged with one count of fourth-degree assault in August for allegedly snapping rubber bands on a student's arm pleaded not guilty to the charge at her arraignment Wednesday in district court.

Stephanie Tackett, 36, of Harold, appeared without a defense attorney for the arraignment but noted that she could afford a lawyer. Tackett, who has drug trafficking charges pending a trial date in circuit court, said that her last name is now Hall and that she resides in Stanville.

Judge Eric Hall asked Tackett and the child's mother, Myshellia Mullins, if there was an amicable way to work out the complaint but was told by Mullins that she was willing to see the case through.

A pretrial conference was ordered in the case for Nov. 14. Hall asked Mullins to make sure that all of the witnesses involved contact the county attorney for interviews prior to that date.

Woman jailed on 21-year-old charge

by MARY MUSIC
STAFF WRITER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — A Floyd County woman was arrested in Boone County and is being detained in Indiana on a 21-year-old warrant.

Diane (Boyce) Farris, 44, of Martin, was arrested by Florence Police Department Sgt. Joe Meyer on August 6 after a routine traffic stop.

Meyer said he pulled Farris over for speeding and, after entering her information in his mobile data terminal, realized that the state of Indiana had an arrest warrant issued against her.

"When I saw it was from 1984, I said, 'Wow,'" Meyer said, "and I said, 'Wow' again when they [the Indiana Department of Corrections] said, 'Yeah, we want her back.'"

Boone County District Court workers said Farris was held in Boone County from Aug. 8 to Aug. 26, when she was extradited to Indiana.

Farris' fiancée, Shalious Hall, said the couple was driving from Indiana after attending a funeral for Farris' grandmother, Evelyn Holmes on the day of the arrest.

Hall said Farris, at age 23, finished her shift on a work release program and the company in charge of her transport did not return to the work site to pick her up. "She went home. She wasn't trying to hide," he said. "She was almost complete with the program. They never charged her with anything."

Jim Wynn, director of classification with the Indiana Department of Corrections, said Farris escaped on Nov. 9, 1984. She had 10 days left to serve on

Stumbo says charges part of custody fight

by TOM DOTY
STAFF WRITER

PRESTONSBURG — A charge of sexual abuse filed against former Floyd County Republican Party chairman Robert "Bobby" Stumbo was passed on to a grand jury following a preliminary hearing in district court Wednesday.

Kentucky State Police Det. Byron Hansford testified that the investigation into Stumbo began after a complaint was filed with social services by the mother of the alleged victim. The report came from the mother of a 5-year-old child whose husband lived with Stumbo.

Hansford noted that the couple had a visitation agreement which saw the child staying with his father three weekends out of every month and that the alleged abuse occurred during such a visit in August. The mother reported to social services that her child displayed sexual behavior after a visit where the child was left alone with Stumbo. When questioned about the behavior, the child reported that it was allegedly learned from Stumbo, who is accused of forcibly putting his tongue on the child's mouth, according to the criminal complaint filed by the county attorney's office.

Stumbo, who maintains his innocence, has indicated that he is caught in the middle of a custody battle.

Stumbo has been released on a $4,000 cash bond and will remain on a monitoring device, akin to that used in home incarceration sentences, until the matter is resolved.

Hall first to file for fiscal court

by MARY MUSIC
STAFF WRITER

DRIFT — A Floyd County man who lost the District 3 magisterial race five years ago is putting his hat back into the ring.

Clinis Hall, 45, of Drift, says the 2001 magistrate race, in which he and 10 other candidates lost to current Magistrate Larry Foster Stumbo, was "unfair" because candidate Kyle Johnson, at 21 years of age, was not old enough to run.

"I don't have anything against him [Johnson] and I don't want to say anything bad about him," Hall said, "but he souped up enough votes to beat me. I felt it was unfair and I hope you print that. It was an unfair race." Hall filed his intention to run in the 2006 race with the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance.

If elected, Hall said he aims to "reunite the Democratic Party" by getting people interested in becoming more actively involved in their local government.

"That's the real reason I want to run," Hall said. "What I want to do, I want to get communities, go to each community and hold community meetings, find out what people need so that way when I go to fiscal court meeting, I'll know what the people need, and I'm getting the people involved."

Clinis Hall

Hall said he will also raise incentives to bring businesses to the county, blacktop every road in his district, work to provide city water to every resident there, and work toward bringing a public swimming pool to the McDowell-Drift area.

"I'm green at that sort of thing, you know," he said, "but if I don't know how to do something, I'll find out how to do it. I'm the type of person who hates the words, 'I can't.' If I did that, I'd been back

West P'burg forest fire blamed on burning trash

by MARY MUSIC
STAFF WRITER

WEST PRESTONSBURG — The Kentucky Division of Forestry spent several hours Wednesday extinguishing a hillside blaze that officials say started when a residential trash fire got out of hand.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department responded to the scene at approximately 2:43 p.m., according to Chief Gary Dotson. Dotson said firefighters sprayed areas outlying residential structures, two homes situated at the end of a hillside driveway on Sally Stevens Branch.

The fire department called the forestry for assistance at approximately 3 p.m.

Two seven-man crews, many of whom "just got out the door" having finished training Wednesday, fought the blaze.

on the hill with my head stuck in a tree. There was 15 in my family. My whole life has been a battle."

Hall, who volunteered as a Little League coach for 17 years at Minnie Park, said his hardest battle has been dealing with the death of his son, Elijah Jay Hall, 19, who died in 2003 from a drug overdose.

"I'm living proof of what effect drugs have on people," Hall said. "I talked to my son about it. He educated me about drugs when I talked to him. He was the best kid in the world until he got on those drugs ... It's still difficult. It's put more of a drive in me to do everything I can possibly do to herd drugs off. I'm going to try to give everything it takes to help keep the county drug-free."

Hall owns Josh's Auto Sales in Drift, named after his other son, and is also employed at the RV mines.

He calls himself a "squeaker."

Editorial roundup

The Blade, Toledo, Ohio, on the new Supreme Court chief justice:

The Supreme Court has a new chief justice, John G. Roberts, Jr., whose tenure may well change the philosophical direction of the court. But his first order of business ought to be about breaking with the past in a practical way: He ought to urge his fellow justices to accept televising the court's proceedings.

Chief Justice Roberts was asked about this in his confirmation hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee. ... He indicated that he had an open mind about allowing cameras but would need to consult with his colleagues. ...

In the wake of controversial decisions, the whole federal judiciary - and no part more so than the Supreme Court - has been under attack and scrutiny, some of it directed by unconscionable politicians. ... The least helpful thing to do in these times is to keep out a modern means of communication that could provide the American public with a much-needed civics lesson. ...

The U.S. Judicial Conference already allows cameras in appeals courts, but each federal circuit must decide for itself. A couple of jurisdictions have taken advantage of this opportunity. Others might take their lead from the Supreme Court if it were to allow cameras. ...

The Leaf-Chronicle, Clarksville, Tenn., on Bush's new Supreme Court nomination:

President Bush demonstrated Monday that he still has some tricks up his sleeve. He went with a Supreme Court pick that virtually no one was expecting.

White House Counsel Harriet Miers has no judicial experience, and which Bush mentioned in his appointment announcement. He reflected on something the late Chief Justice William Rehnquist had written about drawing from a wide diversity of professional backgrounds.

In Miers, 60, Bush is going with an old friend from Texas. She was the first woman to serve as president of the Texas State Bar and the Dallas Bar Association. She also was Bush's personal lawyer in Texas and served a six-year term on the Texas Lottery Commission.

Because she has no judicial record to endlessly pick apart, Democrats will have trouble in trying to block her nomination. They will, undoubtedly, attempt to get copies of opinions she's written for the president, and the White House will cite executive privilege. And so the nomination dance will go.

On the conservative side, some were hoping for a nominee with a clearer record on the social issues - such as abortion - that are their primary concerns. Still, their reaction to the nomination was positive.

Assuming the nomination is approved, Miers and new Chief Justice John Roberts could swing the court to the right. That, of course, remains speculation for now. But one thing is certain, with these two crucial picks, the influence of George W. Bush will be felt for years, long after he has left office.

The Miami Herald, on saving the Endangered Species Act:

The revisions to the 32-year-old Endangered Species Act approved by the House of Representatives by a 229 to 193 vote last week were a sell-out of the very creatures the law is supposed to protect.

If the Senate were to go along with this bill, it would reverse three decades of progressive actions that have restored American bald eagles and condors; and Florida panthers, manatees and Key deer, to name just a few.

The most successful tool for rescuing and restoring healthy populations of endangered species is to preserve their habitat. Yet the House bill would eliminate the current system of designating critical habitat that is determined to be crucial to an animal species' survival.

The House bill also takes aim at science. Currently, the Act's rules call for using "the best available science" and relying on scientists to determine these criteria when deciding if a species is endangered and how to protect it. The House voted instead to give the secretary of the Interior Department, a political appointee, the power to define what scientific evidence can or can't be used to determine species protection.

Fortunately, there is precedent for the Senate to follow if it is to save the Act from this irresponsible revision. In 1978, in reaction to a Supreme Court decision that stopped construction of a dam to protect the snail darter, an endangered fish, the House passed a bill that virtually crippled the Endangered Species Act. The Senate, acknowledging that some complaints were valid, made wise revisions to the law but spurned the House's extreme measures. The Senate must again come to the rescue of the Act, and the many creatures that the law can save.

The great settler removal drama

by ELAINE WASHBURN SHIBER

For those who got teary-eyed over the drama of Israeli settlers being removed from Gaza (luring some 900 reporters!), I'd like to offer some perspective.

The settlers were illegally there, and most knew it. If not, the Israeli government surely did. It violates international law for an occupier (in this case Israel) to allow its own population to settle in land it occupies (Palestine).

The Israeli settlers will be well-compensated, with families receiving an average of two hundred fifty thousand dollars for leaving, plus living quarters until permanent homes are built. US taxpayer dollars are footing the bill.

In shocking contrast, Palestinians get absolutely nothing when fully armed Israeli soldiers throw them out of their homes and land where their families had lived (legally) for generations...centuries before Israel's 1948 creation. Collective evictions and transferring that smacks of ethnic cleansing and the bulldozing of homes, buildings, farmland, & olive/citrus groves are routine tragedies for average Palestinians, and they don't have to be related to suicide bombers, either. Rarely, if ever, do detailed reports of such events appear in our mainstream media.

Take, for example, the April 2002 Israeli destruction of the Palestinian town of Jenin. For two whole weeks after the offensive, Prime Minister Sharon wouldn't let anyone in, not even medical workers or UN officials. When reports finally did emerge, how many of us shed tears for those poor families who were left with nothing but the clothes on their backs, mourning their dead?

Or, how about the May 2004 Israel Defense Force attack on Rafah, when Palestinians lost their homes (again) in a single night's raid, allowed to retrieve nothing of what they owned? Of this incident, Jennifer Lowenstein, a visiting Fellow at Oxford University's Refugee Studies Center, writes "Where were the cameramen... when bulldozers and tanks tore up paved streets with steel blades, wrecked the sewage and water pipes, cut electricity lines, and demolished a park and a zoo? Where were they when Israeli snipers shot two children, a brother and sister, feeding their pigeons on the roof of their home? Where were they when the occupying army fired a tank shell into a group of peaceful demonstrators killing 14, including two children?"

No temporary living quarters ... no new homes ... not one 'red cent' have Palestinians ever received in compensation for their devastating losses at the hands of underground Zionist terrorists of the past, of which Sharon was one, and now the Israeli Defense Forces.

The 'great settler removal drama' in Gaza was orchestrated to make us believe peace is at hand. Don't be fooled. Israeli forces are still entrenched along the Gaza/Egypt border and their own borders with Gaza, ready to re-occupy at the drop of a hat. The Gazan Palestinians are in a virtual prison. We don't realize that those illegal Israeli settlers comprise a tiny percentage of the approximate 400,000 illegal squatters on Palestinian land. Most are in the West Bank, occupying the choicest properties and monopolizing most of Palestine's underground potable water. At least 35 percent of West Bank settlers were born & bred in the U.S. According to Barron's financial magazine, married American Jewish couples receive $30,000 become Israeli citizens. (Ironically, native Palestinians who fled for their lives at the hands of Zionist terrorism are not allowed back.)

More importantly, the theatrical settlement withdrawal distracted us from what's happening in the West Bank. Palestinian East Jerusalem and nearby areas are being quietly annexed through various constructions and settlements. Israel may be removing four very small West Bank settlements, but do we hear about the hundreds of remaining settlements and the creation of new ones? The Israeli 'wall/fence' — flatly condemned by international law — continues to be built, cutting deeply into Palestinian territory and separating families from each other, their land, and their livelihoods.

There can never be a viable Palestinian State with all those unlawful settlements. Since the 1967 occupation, Israel has either confiscated or declared as closed areas over 55 percent of the West Bank. We can blame suicide bombers all we want, but they wouldn't have emerged were it not for this incredibly inhumane, illegal Israeli occupation that wrecks havoc on Palestinians' daily lives.

If Israel truly wants peace, therefore, it must discontinue this provocative path of expansionism, set about removing all existing settlements from the West Bank, and militarily withdraw to the 1967 borders in a timely fashion.

Has anyone seen the Democratic Party?

by JIM HIGHTOWER
MINUTEMAN MEDIA

An outrageous war of lies rages in Iraq, nearly 2,000 American troops have died there, Iraq itself is spiraling down into civil war and theocracy, a growing majority of Americans now see Bush's policy for the disastrous deceit that it is, and grassroots America is alive with a burgeoning peace movement. But where are the congressional Democrats?

AWOL, that's where — covering in indecision and fear. Rather than standing up to the ideological extremism of the Bushites and giving the public a rallying point for anti-war action, the Beltway Democrats are just sitting there, quiet and motionless. They say they fear that opposition to Bush might make them appear to be "weak on war."

Great galloping gutlessness! What about weak on peace? What about weak on principle, on integrity, on leadership, on political backbone? The majority of Americans are now against Bush's war and believes that it has made America less secure. Whatever happened to the notion that at least one party in Congress should represent the will of the people, especially when the other party is so dead wrong?

Luckily, many Democrats are not waiting on their weak-kneed "leaders." Senator Russ Feingold (D-Wisc.), for example, is out front for bringing the troops home. Rep. Lynn Woosley (D-Calif.) has also stepped up — her amendment in May calling for an exit strategy drew 123 Democratic votes (and five Republicans), and she is holding unofficial hearings on Capitol Hill this month to debate withdrawal from Bush's deadly quagmire. Also, state Democratic parties are taking action — Arizona recently became the seventh state party to call both for bringing our troops home and fully funding veterans benefits.

A new group called Progressive Democrats of America is organizing at the grassroots to put the kick back in the Democratic donkey. About time.

Jim Hightower is the best-selling author of "Thieves In High Places: They've Stolen Our Country And It's Time To Take It Back," on sale now from Viking Press.

At the Movies: 'Two for the Money'

by DAVID GERMAIN
AP MOVIE WRITER

The makers of "Two for the Money" are gambling that people will lay their moola down to see Al Pacino starring yet again as Al Pacino.

This time out, he's practically a caricature of the Pacino persona, that agglomeration of Michael Corleone menace and Frank Serpico compulsiveness — laced with varying degrees of "Scarface" and "Dog Day Afternoon" psychosis — the actor has been embodying most of his career.

Matthew McConaughey benefits enormously from this latest over-the-top performance from Pacino, whose scene-devouring grandiosity makes his bland and blah co-star seem almost like a real and reasonable human being.

The sports-gambling flick from director D.J. Caruso ("Taking Lives," "The Salton Sea") opens briskly and strongly before plunging into a silly, predictable variation of the nice-boy-corrupted-by-money tale you've seen a thousand times.

"Two for the Money," a Universal release, is rated R for pervasive language, a scene of sexuality and a violent act. Running time: 122 minutes.

One and a half stars out of four.

Brandon Lang (McConaughey) is a star college quarterback whose promise of a pro football career ends when his leg is mangled in a pileup at the end zone. Six years later, Brandon's recording audio sales pitches for 900 numbers when he's recruited to fill in for a colleague who make picks for a sports-gambling hot line.

Turns out Brandon's a natural — his 80 percent success rate predicting football winners lands him a job with Walter Abrams (Pacino), an obsessive gambling addict who runs a brokerage-like empire dispensing advice to sports bettors.

With a few quick makeover tips, Walter turns Brandon into a sleazy copy of himself, a vain windbag selling his infallibility to clients with a carnival barker's stridency.

For half a football season, Brandon is a star, making millions for gamblers and bringing a fortune into Walter's business, which receives a cut of every winning bet clients place.

Brandon gets all the trappings, of a star, the flashy clothes, the sports car, the gorgeous women, the head figuratively swollen to Great Pumpkin proportions. And he becomes a surrogate son to Walter and his no-nonsense wife, Toni (Rene Russo, stuck in a dour role in which she spends most of her time chastising her husband for his excess).

Of course, the cockier Brandon gets, the more out of touch he becomes with the talent that got him there. His football picks start stinking up the joint, losing fortunes for clients and prompting a ridiculous encounter with a rich and unsatisfied customer (Armand Assante) who waylays Brandon with dire threats then vanishes from the movie after this pointless bit of melodrama.

It becomes inexplicable why Walter, who's earlier depicted as mercilessly firing a former golden boy (Jeremy Piven), main-

Several special edition DVDs focusing on classic television suspense shows and old movies helped salvage a release week rife with big budget bore fests which didn't exactly connect with audiences.

"The Amityville Horror" — Lackluster remake of the 1979 film about a couple who move into a haunted Long Island home and stay around despite numerous hints that they are unwanted in their dream house. This was supposedly based on a true story but the film ignores the book that the couple penned and was later sued by them for stating that the film was based on their book and then totally fabricating most every set piece. Folks who rent this will rightfully feel entitled to a part of that settlement.

"The Interpreter" — The week's other new release is this thriller which offers few thrills and fails to make use of its unique setting, which places most of the action at the United Nations building in Manhattan. Nicole Kidman stars as a foreign language interpreter who overhears a plot to assassinate an African leader and create an international incident. Sean Penn is totally wasted as the cop assigned to investigate and the whole thing is a major disappointment considering the pedigree of director Sydney Pollack whose previous thrillers, "The Yakuza" and "The Firm," were much better efforts.

"The Warriors" — Things pick up with this special edition release of the 1979 Walter Hill flick which posits that New York is overrun with costumed street gangs who are planning to sack the city. The film follows the titular gang, which is wrongly accused of killing the charismatic leader who was planning to unite all of the groups into a crime wave. The plot gets set up in the opening scenes which give birth to an 80-minute chase sequence as the Warriors must high tail it back to Coney Island and avoid all of the other gangs which are set on stopping them. Four documentaries and a deleted scene fill out a second disc for this action favorite which lives on having inspired a video game and comic series in the last year.

"Cinderella" — A special edition of Walt Disney's 1950 animated classic hit the racks this week with a second disc of extras which include deleted scenes, deleted songs and a documentary on making the film.

"The Val Lewton Horror Collection" — Five discs encompass this collection of 10 films from a producer who specialized in creating horror films that managed to overcome budget limitations by effective use of mood and music. Several of

Feds want to sideline drunk and drugged miners

by ROGER ALFORD
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PIKEVILLE — The U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration, reacting to complaints from mine operators, will try to determine the prevalence of miners showing up for work high on alcohol and drugs.

"Alcohol and drug abuse by miners threatens the safety of their colleagues and that cannot be tolerated," agency director David G. Dye said in announcing plans to study the extent of such abuse in mines and possible strategies for dealing with it.

The problem surfaced in eastern Kentucky two years ago when state and federal inspectors, investigating the death of a coal miner killed by an explosion outside Prestonsburg, found a bag of marijuana inside the mine. The inspectors also took a statement from a co-worker who said he saw two miners snorting crushed painkillers.

Since then, coal operators in Kentucky have been pushing state and federal regulatory agencies for help.

Already, a task force is at work in Kentucky to develop strategies to deal with the issue. The task force is looking at several recommendations, including requiring drug screenings for all miners involved in injury accidents and keeping a registry of names of miners who have failed drug tests.

"It's important that we monitor these miners with problems," said Bill Caylor, president of the Kentucky Coal Association. "The intent is good. It needs to be thought through very carefully."

In a notice published in the Federal Register this week, MSHA managers announced that they will be gathering information to determine whether additional regulations are needed to deal with the issue. They want to determine what kinds of safeguards mining companies already have in place and what the costs of any proposed federal action would be to the industry.

MSHA will be gathering information for all types of mining, not just coal.

Public meetings have been scheduled in mining states to try to determine the scope of the problem, possible remedies, and the potential cost to mining companies. Meetings will be held in Salt Lake City on Oct. 24; St. Louis on Oct. 26; Birmingham, Ala., on Oct. 28; Lexington, Ky., on Oct. 31; Charleston, W.Va., on Nov. 2; Pittsburgh on Nov. 4; and Arlington, Va., on Nov. 8. All will begin at 9 a.m. local time.

Mike Dalpiaz, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America district office in Price, Utah, said he doesn't believe MSHA will find widespread evidence of substance abuse among miners nationally.

"Nobody wants drugs or alcohol in the workplace, period," he said. "But I've been in the industry for 30 years. I don't see it as a problem."

Dalpiaz, who spent a decade underground, said he believes MSHA would better serve coal miners by addressing the dangers of rock falls, methane gas explosions and dust that causes black lung disease, not by trying to identify miners on drugs.

"I don't understand why MSHA wants to get involved," he said. "I would hope they would have more important things to worry about."

In the notice, MSHA said a preliminary review of records turned up "a number of instances" in which alcohol and drugs were found or were detected in blood tests after fatal and nonfatal mining accidents.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services found in a 2000 survey on substance abuse that the construction and mining industries have the largest percentage of workers who abuse illicit drugs and alcohol. According to the results, 15.7 percent of construction workers and miners reported heavy alcohol consumption in the month before the survey. Another 12.3 percent reported illicit drug use over the same period.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, after analyzing 1998 data from its Census of Fatal Occupational Injuries, estimated that 19 percent of the nation's workers who die on the job test positive for alcohol and other drugs.

Caylor said he expects new federal and state regulations to be developed to deal with impaired miners.

"It's a problem in our industry just like it's a problem in any business environment," he said. "The only reason we should be treated differently is because our workplace has more potential for accidents, if you're not careful."

Caylor said MSHA would have to consider peripheral issues if it does develop regulations to deal with the problem. For example, what happens with miners who have legitimate prescriptions to medications?

"We need to be careful," he said. "The issue gets real complicated real fast."

Rental

the films here have a supernatural angle ("The Cat People") but some of the best scares come from films with their feet firmly in the real world such as "Isle of the Dead" which focuses on the breakdown of order that corrupts a military unit detailed to an island which houses a leper colony. The other films here are "Curse of the Cat People," "The Body Snatcher," "Bedlam," "The Leopard Man," "Ghost Ship," "Seventh Victim," "Shadows in the Dark" and "I Walked with a Zombie."

"Night of the Lepus" — Absolutely the best film about a small western community under attack by giant killer rabbits ever made. Never before available on home video despite a stellar cast which got roped into making this which includes Janet ("Psycho") Leigh, Rory Calhoun and DeForrest Kelley.

"Alfred Hitchcock Presents" — The first season of Hitchcock's suspense-filled television series finally hits DVD. Thirty-nine stories by authors such as Ray Bradbury, John Cheever and Robert Bloch ("Psycho") are featured with actors such as Charles Bronson, Claude Reins and Joseph Cotton among the cast. Each episode features an amusing opening segment featuring Hitchcock, who acted as host, and several episodes are directed by the master himself.

"Kolchak: The Night Stalker" — The entire run of this classic 1970s horror series finally hit DVD this week. The show was created out of viewer response to two television films which featured Darren McGavin as a cynical reporter constantly running into supernatural beasts in modern day Los Angeles. The series was short lived and didn't last a season, though the character has remained popular in a series of novels and comics and was the main inspiration for Chris Carter when he created the "X-Files."

Next week look for the Jet Li thriller "Unleashed" and the summer horror hit "High Tension."

tains undying faith in Brandon despite his colossal losing streak — more so, given that Dan Gilroy's screenplay tosses in a romantic song-and-dance between Brandon and Toni, with Walter convinced his protege and his wife are sleeping together.

Under Caruso's leisurely direction, the movie grows monotonous, then ponderous. The characters are so unlikable and their dilemmas so uninvolved, it's impossible to care which way the chips fall in the all-or-nothing climax involving Brandon's pick on a Super Bowl-like championship game (clearly, the National Football League wasn't going to lend its trademarks to a movie glorifying gambling).

While McConaughey is an utter bore, Pacino's a hoot. The disarming, pie-in-the-sky paternalism, the giddy ranting and raving, the quiet rage that erupts without warning — all the quirks and ticks of a Pacino performance are present in over-abundance.

Loosely inspired by a true story of an ex-college basketball player drawn into high-stakes sports handicapping, "Two for the Money" could become a cult video favorite for fans who want to watch Pacino.

Fire

"This was training," one man said.
Ranger Mike Charles Akers said the fire started accidentally when an area resident was burning trash on their property. The blame lies between residents in two homes, Akers said, but neither resident would take responsibility.
"Most of the time, neighbors won't tell on neighbors," Akers said. "If we don't catch them burning, or if we don't see it there, we can't prove it."

When approached by The Times, both residents said they didn't know what started the fire.
Fire season officially began Saturday, which means that outside burning is prohibited prior to 6 p.m. When Akers responded to the scene in West Prestonsburg Wednesday, he stopped and warned one local resident who was burning trash in her yard not far from the blazing hillside. Akers, who could have written her a citation, said he didn't because it was nearly 6 p.m. when he spotted her. He asked the resident to stay with the fire until it burned out.

People who start fires accidentally by burning trash in their yard are required to pay suppression fees, which include paying the hourly wages for every worker on the firefighting crew, gas for every vehicle used, dinner for every firefighter and other fees associated with the use of water pumps or leaf blowers.

Officials said approximately 5 acres of land burned on Sally Stevens Branch Wednesday.
"It's nonsense," said crewman Robert Blankenship. "I don't see no point in it."
Crew Leader Shawn Stephens, a four-year veteran with the Division of Forestry, said the blaze didn't cause substantial damage to the existing trees on the "scrub" property, a site that had previously burned and that had been reclaimed by the power company when they ran electrical lines.
The biggest difficulty for the crew, Stephens said, was working under the existing power line and battling the heat of the blaze in the heat of the afternoon.
"Boy, it gets hot up there, especially when it's about 89 degrees, like it was today," he said.
Forestry workers on both teams "cut" fire lines (removing flammable debris) around the hillside and back set the fire to extinguish the blaze. Throughout the evening, crew members kept a check on the line to ensure that the blaze didn't jump it.
If a fire "jumps" a line, Akers said, crews must go back above the blaze and start over.

Akers said fires like this one can be dangerous to firefighting crews if landowners, unaware that crews are working on their property, try to set a back fire themselves, which is illegal.
"Please, don't get excited," he said, addressing residential home owners facing hillside fires near their property. "If you see our trucks riding up and down the road, you're all right. We've got you covered."

The Division of Forestry is accepting applications for emergency firefighting crew members for Floyd County. Interested individuals can pick up applications at the department's Betsy Layne office.
Area residents can find tips on how to protect their home from woodland fires at www.firewise.org.

Charge

her 90-day work release program.
Farris' pre-sentence investigative report does not indicate why she was charged with criminal recklessness, a Class D felony, in 1984.
The charge, Wynn said, could have come about after a motor vehicle accident or an assault in which a weapon was used.
The Wayne County Superior Court sentenced Farris on Aug. 29, 1984, to two years, with all but 180 days suspended. She immediately began the work release program, Wynn said.
Department of Corrections Commissioner David Donahue authorized Farris' extradition. She is currently being held at the Indiana Women's Prison in Indianapolis. Her expected release date is Nov. 28, officials said.
According to Bob Bugher, Legal Services representative with the Indiana Department of Corrections, Farris is not currently facing any additional criminal charges. She was ordered to serve the remainder of her time — the 10 days she had left in the work release program — but that time has been extended because she was cited for violating the discipline code for offenders. Farris lost credit for time served prior to her escape, Bugher said, pointing out that her time could "theoretically change" if she violates any additional disciplinary rules.
Hall, a night shift coal miner, believes Farris' incarceration is unfair. She called him from the prison Tuesday.

"She's trying to run the household from there," Hall said. "She tells me what kind of bills I need to pay and we talk about the children ... Why do they give a drug dealer leniency and give someone like her jail time? They're holding her on a 20-something-year-old warrant? She doesn't do drugs. She never does anything wrong. She was young then and she's lived a good life and not been in any trouble, that I know of, for the past 15 years."
No criminal charges showed up when Farris had background checks run through the state to become a child care worker or when she had other background checks done when she volunteered at May Valley Elementary School, Hall said.
"I've talked to a lawyer," Hall continued. "He said there was nothing he could do because it's inside the prison system. I've talked to several people inside the prison. They don't care. I don't know if it's political, or what. They've got somebody from so many years ago, they want to make an example out of her. Why, I don't know. So many things didn't make sense. I've been through so many channels. Why are they treating her like this over a 20-some-year warrant when jails are crowded? They told us all it would take would be for a judge to sign a release. They're telling her in the prison system that they're going to make her live 1984 all over again. It's a bad situation for my family and hers."

Bugher said Farris could be transferred to Kentucky if a reciprocal agreement is reached between both states.
Hall says the family cannot afford a lawyer to negotiate the transfer.

Attention, Auxier residents:

I am looking for anyone who has or knows who has pictures of the people on the following list. They were members of the Auxier Freewill Baptist Church. We need their pictures for our Wall of Memories. You can call, mail, or I'll be happy to pick them up. I am the daughter of the late Estill and Cella J. Taylor of Auxier, Ky.

Thank you,
Kathy (Taylor) Holbrook

O'Reilly NARA BoB DirtCar Series Season in Review

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON – The most talked about racing season in the four-year history of the O'Reilly NARA Battle of the Bluegrass DirtCar Series presented by Arizona Sport Shirts is in the books. Odds are, fans, drivers, and media members will be talking about the 2005 season for many years to come.

The season started with a bang at Florence Speedway's Spring 50 Tune-Up as Rick Combs bested a field of 50 cars in nabbing his biggest career win on March 25. The following night, the 29th Annual Spring 50 boasted 69 entries as Wisconsin native Dan Schlieper cashed the $5,000 first-place paycheck. Car counts of 48, 51 and 38 at the next three events at Paducah, Bluegrass, and 201 respectively helped bring the O'Reilly NARA Battle of the Bluegrass DirtCar Series to the national spotlight with Scott James, Shannon Babb, and Whitney McQueary victorious in those races.

The series first stop of the 2005 season to the Soggy Bottom Speedway on May 14 found Dennis Erb in winner's circle while 2004 Series Champion Aaron Hatton notched his first gold medal of the season on June 2 at the Richmond Raceway. The following night at Ponderosa, Bryan Barber claimed his biggest career win giving the series eight different winners in the first 8 races.

Mike Jewell would make it nine winners in nine races on June 18 at Richmond and Steve Barnett helped make it 10-for-10 one week later besting a 40-car field in Brownstown's 7th Annual Lee Fleetwood Memorial. Then on June 2, Whitney McQueary would break the streak, as he picked up his second win of the season at the 201 Speedway, giving him the distinction of being the only repeat winner thus far in 2005.

A new streak soon began with different winners and competitive racing keeping the series in Paul Harris and crew members triumphed in September during a BoB series stop at 201 Speedway.

Making out the playoff picture

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

We've finally gotten to the point in the season where things are beginning to shake out, and we can tell a little about what's what with what, if you will.

The playoff picture, while still muddy, has a few clear spots. At this point if you're 3-0, you're in pretty fair shape; 0-3 and it's time to get on the ball. This week, let's look at what our local Double-A teams have ahead of them as we begin the stretch run of the 2005 football season:

■ Belfry: Do it alphabetically, by overall record, by district standings, but regardless of how you look at Double-A, it begins with Belfry.

The Bucs are 5-1 and on a roll after their season-opening loss to still-unbeaten Henry Clay. They're 3-0 on the season, and despite the fact that they can't play themselves, fact the second-toughest schedule (8-10) in district play. The only thing remaining at this point is to see if they can knock off long-time rival – and seemingly up-and-down – Ironton in this, perhaps the final meeting between the schools.

■ Outlook: The Pirates are in the playoffs, and while they still have to play the three teams listed directly below them (Sheldon Clark, Shelby Valley and Prestonsburg), you've got to figure they're looking at playing their first few playoff games in that fabulous new facility on Pond Creek.

■ Shelby Valley: This is where things get very unpredictable, already. Tied with Sheldon Clark at 2-0, we'll know a lot more about the Wildcats after the teams finish their game tonight. The Cards, under the helm of former Belfry Pirate Shawn Hager, are 4-2 overall, one game better than the Cats. Both face four opponents that have posted 11-14 records to close out the season.

Prestonsburg High players celebrated a score during last week's win over Magoffin County. The Blackcats head into tonight's district game against rival Belfry fresh off their first win of the season.

OLD RIVALS: Prestonsburg-Belfry

Weather could play role in deciding winner

by JAMIE HOWELL
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

PRESTONSBURG – Looking at the schedule for the 2005 high school football season, one could not keep from pointing to tonight's Prestonsburg-Belfry matchup as maybe the game of the year. After seven weeks into the season, however, the two squads have taken quite different roads as far as wins and losses are concerned. Prestonsburg comes into tonight's game at 1-5 while Belfry enters with a 5-1 record. The Blackcats opened the season with five straight losses before turning the corner last week with an 83-12 win over Magoffin County. Belfry opened the season with a blowout loss to Lexington Henry Clay before reeling off five straight wins. ## Raiders hit road to face undefeated Hazard

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

HI HAT – South Floyd has a tough road test in front of it tonight. The Raiders (3-4), now in the second half of their district schedule, face Class A, District 8 frontrunner Hazard, tonight. The Bulldogs (6-0) have recorded shutout wins in three of their last four games and enter this week's game against South-Floyd following a 59-0 win over Allen Central.

Hazard has outscored its previous six opponents a combined 281-46.

South Floyd is fresh off of a 52-16 blowout victory over Jenkins. Earlier this season, South Floyd stumbled in district play, dropping a key district game to Phelps and later losing to Pikeville, both the defending region and district champion. Phelps edged South Floyd 48-46.

Dome to host ALC scrimmage

BETSY LAYNE – Home to the Betsy Layne High School boys' and girls' basketball teams, the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse, better known as the Dome, will welcome another team clad in blue and white Wednesday when the Alice Lloyd College men's basketball team holds an open practice and intra-squad scrimmage in Floyd County.

Start time for the session at D.W. Howard Fieldhouse is set for 6 p.m. The ALC men's basketball team features former Betsy Layne players Jeremy Daniels, Jordan Kidd and Preston Simon. Daniels is heading into his senior season with the ALC men's team. Kidd, now a sophomore, saw playing time last season as a freshman. Simon is heading into his first season with the Eagles.

Former Allen Central standout Shawn Newsome and Johnson Central grad Chris Hurt also play for the Eagles.

Alice Lloyd finished last season with a 14-19 overall record. The Eagles play in the Appalachian Athletic Conference (AAC).

Hopes are high for the 2005-06 ALC men's basketball team. ALC head coach Gary Gibson has called the latest recruiting class his best-ever. Playing in the AAC, Alice Lloyd faces tough competition.

Admission to the Dome-hosted open session is free.

REBEL ROYALTY:

Ryann Thornsberry was crowned Allen Central High School's 2005 Football Homecoming Queen Friday night.

Bentley

Outlook: Tonight's winner is playoff bound and in the driver's seat for a home game in the first round. The team that comes up short still has a battle on its hands.

■ Prestonsburg: A lot can be said here about a team that started 0-5 and then embarrassed an undermanned Magoffin County team by posting 83 points last week. But we'll stick to the analysis today and say if you think the Blackcats are out of this, you don't pay close enough attention to high school football.

Outlook: The remaining opponents, all district teams, are only one-game under .500 (11-12). They need to get out of tonight healthy and turn it on the final three weeks.

■ Pike Central: Chris McNamee has a district win already, and his remaining district schedule stacks up with only six wins and 11 losses. But Pike Central isn't exactly rich in football tradition, so the collars could get tight around the necks of the Hawks over the next three weeks. If they can take on their coach's personality, they'll be fine.

Outlook: A win tonight makes it a five-team race for the four playoff spots. A loss and there'll be four teams battling for the two left after Belfry and the Shelby Valley/Sheldon Clark winner.

■ East Ridge: Eric Ratliff's Warriors are 0-3 in the district, but have already finished with the top half of the league. Their remaining three opponents have only a 4-15 worksheet, easily the worst of any team in the district.

Outlook: Did I mention 4-15? They have a chance at the final playoff spot with a win tonight. The problem for the Warriors right now is that all four of their remaining games look winnable - for both teams.

Coming up: In the coming weeks, we'll give the Single-A district the once-over.

Raiders

After the close loss to Phelps, South Floyd head coach Donny Daniels assured his team and everyone else that there was a lot of football left to be played.

Daniels feels upbeat about his team's chances versus Hazard. "There's no doubt - Hazard is a good football team," Daniels admitted. "We feel good heading into the game - it's a big football game for us. We've had a good week of practice." South Floyd, which endured a four-game losing streak, enters play this week riding a two-game winning streak.

South Floyd has been without a key player or two several times out this season. The injuries, however, seem to have subsided and most everyone is healthy for the Raiders.

Mark Dixon is in his third season as head coach of the Bulldogs. Hazard has favored the pass more than the run in its first six games. Hazard senior quarterback Durrell Olinger has completed 73-of-93 passes for 1,732 yards and 21 touchdowns. Chuckie O'Steen leads the Bulldogs in receiving with 694 yards and nine touchdowns on 22 receptions. O'Steen also leads Hazard in the scoring department.

As a team, Hazard has passed for 1,821 yards and rushed for 1,248. Sheldon Francis leads Hazard in rushing with 315 yards and three touchdowns on 25 carries.

If the Raiders take to the air, they'll have to air it out against a Hazard defense that has given up just passing yards over six games.

The Raiders found quick success in last season's regular-season game against the Bulldogs. South Floyd took last year's game between the two teams, 50-22.

Kickoff for tonight's pivotal District 8 contest is 7:30 p.m.

the national spotlight. 2003 Series Champion Mike Marlar's win at Bluegrass was his first of the season as Jimmy Owens picked up his first ever BoB win at Scenic on July 22. The following night, Richmond Raceway's Paul "Butterball" Wooldridge Memorial saw Tim Tungate get his only series victory of 2005 making him the 13th different winner in 14 races.

In a return trip to Soggy Bottom, Randle Sweeney pulled off the double, nabbing wins in both the Late Model and Modified features for the Battle of the Bluegrass Series. Inaugural series Champion Eddie Carrier Jr. collected his first win of the season on September 2nd at the Mountain Motor Speedway with Paul Harris making it 16 winners in 17 races the following night at 201 Speedway.

Eddie Carrier Jr. became just second driver all year to visit winner's circle more than once as he was the winner of the John Bradshaw Memorial on September 16th at Ponderosa. The following night, John Gill raced his way to victory lane in Bluegrass Speedway's 7th Annual Bluegrass 50, besting a stout field of 50 cars. Florence Speedway's season-ending showdown for the O'Reilly NARA Battle of the Bluegrass DirtCar Series saw 59 drivers sign into the pits with Darrell Lanigan notching the win, making him the 18th different winner in the 20 races held during the 2005 racing season.

Overall, 230 different drivers competed with the O'Reilly NARA Battle of the Bluegrass DirtCar Series presented by Arizona Sport Shorts in 2005. The 18 different winners in 20 races is a record that will not soon be forgotten. The highest car count of the season was 65 at Florence Speedway's Spring 50 held March 26. The O'Reilly NARA Battle of the Bluegrass DirtCar Series averaged 39 cars per event in 2005.

If the storied, record-breaking season wasn't enough, the icing on the cake would be the battle for the points championship which saw Mike Jewell and Tim Tungate finish the season at a deadlock atop the series standings with 3495 points race team, based out of Floyd County, was present for both feature events.

The unsanctioned event held on Friday utilized the SAS format in which the top-16 qualifiers get locked into the feature. Forty-five racecars took time during qualifying and Kinzer posted sixth-fastest time, locking himself into the feature. Unable to make up any track position, Kinzer and crew finished in seventh-place.

The next evening, the SAS invaded the TST and in a second feature event, paid $5,000 to the race winner. During the second lap of qualifying the camshaft broke on Kinzer's Barry Wright car, forcing a scramble in the pits. With the aid of Chris Madden's raceteam along with Shane Clanton's crew, a new motor was in place within 32 minutes of the old one being removed. After the engine change, Kinzer went on state champs and they are looking to make it three straight," said DeRossett. "I think we can win this game but we will have to play well. We hope to be a bump in the road for them and we have improved greatly.

Belfry is without the services of Doug Howard and David Jones. Both Howard and Jones were lost to graduation, but according to DeRossett, the Pirate stable is far from empty. "You would think with the loss of Jones and Howard that maybe the backfield would be a bit down, but they have not missed a beat," DeRossett added.

Prestonsburg needed a game that could give it a much-needed confidence boost and the cats got just that last week as 10 different players scored in the rout of Magoffin County. But Belfry is not Magoffin County. The Blackcats have switched to sophomore Bobby Hughes at quarterback and senior David Shaffer has moved to tight end. Senior fullback Brenton Hamilton has returned from an injury and seems to be back to 100 percent.

Brandon Peters and Lincoln Stone give Prestonsburg a solid 1-2 punch at tailback. Prestonsburg needs a win in order to keep any hopes of a district title alive while Belfry could get a leg up on another district title with a win tonight. The two teams met twice in 2004 with both being worthy of instant classic status.

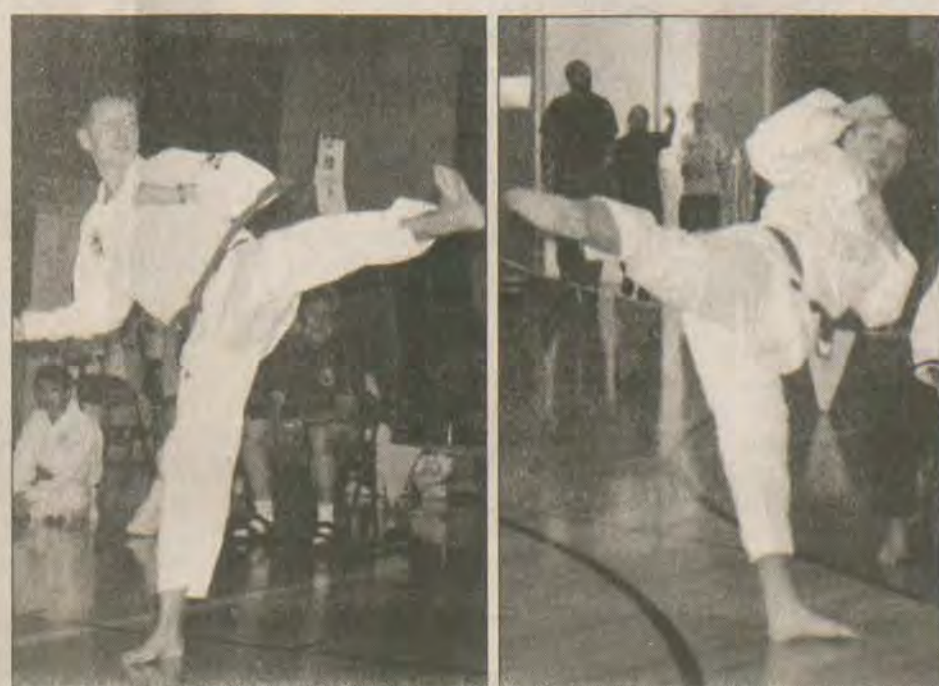

Prestonsburg has switched to more of a power running attack in recent weeks while Belfry is expected to once again run out of the wishbone set. Matt Maynard leads the Pirate rushing attack and DeRossett expects the Pirates to throw the football more that they have in past meetings. Prestonsburg has, in some ways, switched to somewhat of a youth movement on the defensive side of the ball with freshmen Blake Meade and Seth Setser getting the start on defense. Belfry likes to spread the offense between three players in Matt Maynard, Corey Chapman and Dustin May. The three have rushed for 490, 521 and 473 yards, respectively.

Tonight's game falls during the annual Jenny Wiley Pioneer Festival in Prestonsburg and is expected to draw a large crowd even with heavy rain in the forecast. Belfry comes into tonight's game outscoring opponents 174-28 over the last four games and Prestonsburg has put 103 points on the board in its last two outings.

Kickoff for tonight's game at Blackcat Stadium is set for 7:30.

Five football fatalities reported in annual survey

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

INDIANAPOLIS — In 1976, the NFHS initiated a rule change in football that made initial contact with the head while blocking or tackling illegal. This rule change was a direct result of the research done to compile the Annual Survey of Football Injury Research the previous year.

Since 1978, fatalities in football have followed a single-digit trend that is in large part due to the annual data collection and recommendations made in the report to help reduce the incidence of serious injury.

This year's survey reported five fatalities directly related to football during the 2004 season. Of the fatalities this year, four were associated with high school football and one with youth football. Four of the fatalities occurred during regularly scheduled games and one occurred during practice.

The purpose of this survey is to assist in reducing risks in the game of football. Jerry Diehl, NFHS assistant director and staff liaison to the NFHS Football Rules Committee, said with this annual report, rules committees are able to see injury trends, and then use those trends as tools to promote changes in helping promote risk minimization. The 1976 rule is just one of the many benefits the game of football has realized in the 73 years the research has been compiled.

Since 1980, the Annual Survey of Football Injury Research, as it is known today, has been compiled by Frederick O. Mueller, Ph.D., University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and chairman of the American Football Coaches Committee on Football Injuries.

The rate of direct fatal injuries is very low on a 100,000 player exposure basis. For the approximately 1,800,000 participants in 2004, the rate of direct fatalities was 0.28 per 100,000 participants. In high school and junior high school football, the rate of direct fatalities was 0.27 per 100,000 participants, and the rate of direct fatalities was 0.00 per 100,000 participants.

In the report, football fatalities are classified as either direct or indirect. Direct fatalities are those that result directly from participation in the fundamental skills of football. Indirect fatalities are those that were caused by systemic failure as a result of exertion while participating in football activity, or by a complication that was secondary to a non-fatal injury.

During the 2004 football season, there were 10 indirect fatalities; seven in high school football and three in college football.

These indirect fatalities are often heart-related or caused by heat stroke. Of the high school indirect fatalities, three were from heat stroke, one was due to lightning and three were unknown. Two of the college indirect fatalities were heart-related and one was related to sickle cell.

Of the five direct fatalities, four resulted from an injury to the brain and one was unknown. Diehl said the fatalities due to brain injuries are especially significant because of the nature of the sport. "It is a constant fact in a sport like football, where high-speed, heavyweight bodies are in contact with each other, that the risk to suffer severe injury will be present," Diehl said.

According to Diehl, brain injuries often result from what is called, "Second-Impact Syndrome," in which a player can have an initial concussion, yet not show any symptoms. If that same player were to receive a second concussion, the body would react differently. It is this concussion that appears to precipitate brain damage, although the real cause may have been from the original concussion despite the lack of warning signs.

Because this syndrome can be a reality, it's important that coaches be aware of players who have taken hits to the head and neck.

athletes will not exhibit signs of a concussion. "Even if a doctor is seen, running tests and scans may not always detect a problem," Diehl said. "So erring on the side of conservatism is always best."

In addition to effective monitoring of athlete injuries, the 2004 report makes several more suggestions for reducing head and neck injuries. The single-digit trend of direct fatalities in football since 1978 was compromised only once in 1986, when the number of fatalities increased from four to 11 in high school football.

Past efforts, including the 1976 tackling and blocking rule change, have been successful in maintaining this trend, but fatalities still occur, and since 1960, most direct fatalities have been caused by injuries specific to the head and neck.

Among the suggestions to reduce these injuries are conditioning exercises to strengthen the neck, practice drills which emulate proper execution of fundamental football skills — particularly blocking and tackling — and assurance that all equipment is properly fitted. Also, coaches and officials need to discourage players from leading with their head while tackling and blocking, and spearing should be strictly enforced as illegal.

"Administrators and coaches have to be diligent in the practice of not permitting any activities where the possibility of injury would be greater than it already is in a sport like football," Diehl said. "That is why these recommendations are so important and should be taken seriously."

Since a number of players who died from causes associated with brain trauma complained of headaches or had a previous concussion, it is important to make sure athletes receive immediate medical attention, and are not allowed to return to practice or a game until they have received permission from the proper medical authorities.

There were three indirect fatalities associated with heat stroke in 2004, bringing the total to 109 heat stroke fatalities since the study began in 1931. It is essential to keep in mind suggestions regarding ways to prevent these deaths.

"Most heat illnesses are preventable, if proper procedures are observed," Diehl said.

When football activity is carried on in hot weather, it is important that personnel help athletes acclimate to the temperatures by providing graduated practice sessions for the first seven to 10 days with frequent rest periods, allowing players to remove equipment and access to cold drinking water. Salt in the body should be replaced daily, and athletes should weigh in each day before and after practice.

All athletic personnel should be aware of the differences between temperature and humidity, since it is more difficult for the body to cool itself in high humidity, and every athlete should have previously completed a physical examination. Athletic personnel should also receive a copy of each athlete's annual health history update.

It is important to keep a careful watch on athletes for signs of heat illness. Some trouble signs are nausea, incoherence, fatigue, vomiting, cramps, visual disturbances and unsteadiness. Contrary to popular belief, heat stroke victims can, and often will, sweat profusely.

"Signs are not always present," Diehl said. "Coaches need to be more aware that hydration needs to occur before, during and at the end of any activity."

In addition to the recommendations made to prevent head and neck direct injuries, and indirect heat stroke deaths specifically, some general suggestions were also given as a result of the 2004 survey data.

A physician should be present at all games and practice sessions if feasible, all personnel associated with football participation should be cognizant of any potential problems and subsequent safety measures, and each institution should have the services of a certified athletic trainer where possible.

In addition, there should be strict enforcement of game rules, and administrative regulations should be enforced. Coaches should continue to teach and emphasize proper fundamentals of blocking and tackling to help keep the head out of football.

All of these recommendations to reduce both head and neck injuries, and heat stroke, should be taken seriously by all involved, Diehl said. If in fact there were a potential emergency, it is important to have a detailed set of guidelines instructing athletic personnel as to proper procedures in an emergency situation.

According to the second edition of the NFHS Sports Medicine Handbook (page 10), an emergency plan should identify appropriate personnel to render care, specify and maintain the quality of emergency equipment, and establish a mode of transportation to remove the injured person from the site of injury. Also, location and access of telephones should be clearly defined, and emergency phones should be available.

"Time is of the essence in emergency situations," Diehl said. "Athletic personnel need to be kept constantly aware of emergency procedures so that if needed, professional medical assistance can be rendered as quickly as possible."

These emergency procedures should be designed for each sport and practice venue, and there should be a written documentation outlining the implementation and evaluation of the emergency plan available for all personnel.

A combination of education, precautionary measures and pre-emptive emergency guidelines, will help maintain the single-digit trend of football fatalities and ultimately reduce risks.

More information about football fatalities and a copy of the full 2004 report can be found on the NFHS Web site at www.nfhs.org. From the home page, click on the "Sports Medicine" link and then "Sports Injuries — All Sports."

Blackcat freshmen roll past Lawrence Co.

Craynon's 218 yards leads Prestonsburg

PRESTONSBURG — What else could be better than a Wednesday afternoon high school football matchup? With both school systems out on the annual fall break period, Prestonsburg and Lawrence County got together on Wednesday afternoon for a freshman game at Josh Francis Field. Prestonsburg came into the game with an overall record of 4-3 and the young Blackcats were looking to put another "W" in the win column. Prestonsburg did just that, winning 28-16.

Allen Craynon led the Prestonsburg ground attack, rushing for 218 yards and three touchdowns on only nine carries. Prestonsburg took a quick opening kickoff 72 yards for a Blackcat touchdown. The two-point conversion run gave the Blackcats an 8-0 lead after just 13 seconds had ticked off the first quarter clock. Lawrence County would even the game late in the first quarter on a 3-yard run. Prestonsburg took the lead late in the first half as Craynon raced 65 yards for a touchdown to give Prestonsburg a 14-8 lead at the half.

Lawrence County would retake the lead early in the second half on a 12 yard touchdown run as the Dawgs took a 16-14 lead.

Prestonsburg would go back on top late in the third quarter as Craynon raced 70 yards as the Blackcats took the lead for good at 20-16. Prestonsburg would add another score on a Craynon touchdown midway through the fourth quarter to give the Blackcats the final

Peters emerges as lead running back for Blackcats

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

PRESTONSBURG — Needing to get its offense going heading into district competition, Prestonsburg High has found a go-to running back. As early as the season-opener at Hazard, Prestonsburg High senior Brandon Peter showed signs of being the running back who would gain the most yards for the Blackcats. Now, through six games, Peters has rushed for 598 yards and eight touchdowns on 81 carries. Peters, a two-way starter that also excels in the defensive secondary and whom Prestonsburg High head coach John DeRossett calls, "one of the state's best cover corners," leads Prestonsburg in rushing, receiving and scoring.

"(Brandon) Peters is one of those kids who has continued to work hard," said DeRossett. "We are going to run the football and he's is a big part of our offense."

Peters has hauled in a team-high 11 receptions for 135 yards. Despite leading the Blackcat football team in receiving, Peters has yet to haul in a scoring pass. Heading into tonight's district showdown at home versus Belfry, Peters brings with him a team-high 54 points he's posted in six previous outings.

Combined, opponents have outscored the Blackcats 179-154. Junior kicker Seth Moore, who has connected on 19 extra-point kicks and one field goal, ranks second in scoring.

Senior Brenton Hamilton, a player that has already missed one game due to an injury, has 304 yards and two touchdowns rushing on 49 carries.

As a team, Prestonsburg has rushed for 1,313 yards and passed for an additional 412 yards.

Juniors Lincoln Slone and Wes Wood have each hauled in four passes apiece for the Blackcats. Both also have one touchdown reception apiece. Slone's four catches have netted him 86 yards — second-best on the team. Splitting time under center for the Blackcats through most of the season, senior Dave Shaffer and sophomore Bobby Hughes have called signals for the Blackcats over the first six regular-season games. Each of the fast two games, however, Hughes has taken on a more prominent role in the Blackcat offense.

Defensively, following some personnel changes, Prestonsburg looks to have put together a closer, more cohesive group.

Shaffer has recovered a team-high three fumbles. Hughes has intercepted one pass for the Blackcats.

Bears hold steady in football polls

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE — A week where the nation's top programs took care of business led to a stagnant poll, released today by the NAIA.

The closest thing to a move in the Top 10 came just ahead of Pikeville, where MidAmerican Nazarene (Kan.) picked up the point it needed to tie St. Ambrose (Iowa) for seventh. They each have 294 this week; St. Ambrose had 281 to be one point in front last week.

Carroll (Mont.) got 13 of the nation's 17 first-place votes and remains atop the poll with a 5-0 record. St. Francis (Ind.) is second at 4-0 and got the other four top nods. Sioux Falls (S.D.), Morningside (Iowa) and McKendree (Ill.) round out the top five.

St. Francis is followed by the tie, Pikeville and Montana Tech in the Top 10.

The University of the Cumberland is still 11th after last weekend's 48-21 win over Campbellsville. Georgetown, the other Mid-South Conference entry, didn't fare as well. After a game-winning field goal with six seconds left gave the Tigers a 30-29 win over surprising Bethel, they slipped one spot to 14th as Graceland (Iowa) made the leap two places to 13th.

No other MSC team picked up votes this week. Cumberland (Tenn.) University, Pikeville's host this Saturday, got a mention last week but lost 40-20 at Shorter.

Bears still fifth online; No losses also meant no movement in Dannelly Media's naiafootball.net poll, released by the Web site on Sunday. Pikeville is still fifth, trailing Carroll. St. Francis, Sioux Falls and Morningside. Cumberland is seventh again, while Georgetown remains 10th.

Allen Central beats East Ridge, Pikeville

TIMES STAFF REPORT

EASTERN — The Allen Central volleyball team posted its 22nd and 23rd win of the season by knocking off East Ridge (2-0, 25-10, 25-13) Monday and Pikeville on Senior Night, Tuesday (2-0, 25-9, 25-10).

Elizabeth Mosley slammed in six kills on .500 hitting in the win over East Ridge. Yumekia Hunter and Christina Blevins also hit for .500 with three kills each and two aces apiece.

Amanda Mills showcased her serving prowess getting six aces in 20 service attempts without an error. She also ran the Rebel offense 18 times without error while earning six assists. Brittany Hodge tallied three assists and one ace on the night.

Allen Central's defense was strong and stopped East Ridge's first serve and got a kill from Mosley on a Hodge set. Mills took the serve and immediately sank two aces on the Warriors. Allen Central pushed to a 10-1 lead due to the excellent defensive net play of Mosley and Hunter and the superb digging of Alesia Hall. However, the Rebels allowed missteps to let East Ridge nudge closer. A 6-2 run put the Rebels on top 22-10. A kill by Blevins and an ace by Mills allowed the AC girls to close the 25-10 win in game one.

The Rebels ran up a 6-0 lead to open game two and did not look back. After gaining an 18-9 lead, AC caused a Warrior time out. However, Allen Central continued to dominate with a strong defense and serves that included an ace by Hodge, Hunter, Courtney Martin, and Tiffany Owens. The AC girls pulled away on the strong play of Hall, Hodge, Mills, and Hunter. The Rebels put the score at 24-13 and Brandi Meade landed an ace sealing a 25-13 win.

During Senior Night activities Tuesday, Allen Central recognized Hunter, Meade, Mills and Mosley. The Rebels owned the court in the victory over Pikeville, defeating the visiting Panthers 25-9 in the first game and 25-10 in the final set.

At 23-6, his year's Allen Central volleyball team now owns the best record in school history. Next up for the Rebels is next week's 55th District Tournament at Prestonsburg.

The South Floyd Middle School A-team improved to 12-0 Monday, defeating county rival Allen Central 54-32. Allen Central won in the B-team game. South Floyd's Kayla Hall is pictured lofting a shot over the Allen Central defense.

EASTERN — Playing at home on its own court didn't help the Allen Central Middle School girls' basketball team down the stretch Monday night. Allen Central led visiting South Floyd 18-11 at halftime, but couldn't make the lead stick. South Floyd outscored the Lady Rebels 30-1 in the third quarter and went on to win 54-32.

South Floyd (12-0) got a game-high 17 points from Kayla Hall. Britney Little added 11 points for the Lady Raiders and Ericka Moore netted 10, giving South Floyd three players in double figures. Breanna Jackson added five points for the Lady Raiders. Chelsie Tuttle and Heather Little each scored four points apiece for the winning team. Andrea Conn scored two points and Laken Hall got into the scoring column when she connected on a successful free throw.

Brandi Brown led Allen Central (5-6) in scoring with eight points. Bridget Slone added seven points for the Lady Rebels. Jamie Mullins and Cynthia Meade both tossed in five points for the host team.

In other scoring for Allen Central, Cassandra Stewart tallied two points and Latasha Bragg and Sarah Kinney scored one each.

B-TEAM: Allen Central 28, South Floyd 16 — Latasha

Bragg fired in a game-high 12 points and Megan Jones tossed in nine to lead Allen Central past South Floyd in the B-team contest. Sarah Kinney added five points for Allen Central and Amber Shepherd netted two.

South Floyd jumped out to an early advantage and led 13-3 at the end of the first quarter. The Lady Rebels outscored South Floyd in each of the first three quarters.

Chelsie Tuttle paced the Lady Raider B-team with five points. Ashley Castle added four points for South Floyd. Whitney Hall tossed in three points for the Lady Raiders while two other players finished with two apiece.

Raiders beat Shelby Valley on Senior Night

TIMES STAFF REPORT

HI HAT — South Floyd posted a huge victory on Senior Night Tuesday, defeating Shelby Valley 2-0. The Raiders took the first game 25-2. In the second game, South Floyd won 25-8.

Leslie Holbrook made good on 20-of-21 serves and added 10 assists, eight digs, seven aces and one kill. Megan Castle finished with six kills, nine digs, three aces and connected on eight-of-nine serves. Katie Cook finished with five kills, six digs, two aces and made good on four-of-six serves.

Amber Tackett finished with nine digs and Tiffany Tackett added 13.

Natasha Osborne and Kasey Elkins each had two kills apiece. Osborne added three aces and two digs while Elkins chipped in four digs.

The South Floyd High volleyball team finished the regular-season with an 18-6 record. The Raider junior varsity volleyball squad posted a 13-5 record while the Raider freshmen finished with a 10-4 worksheet.

Lady Bulldogs set record in win over Pikeville

TIMES STAFF REPORT

BARBOURVILLE — Union College set a program record for most goals in a game as the Lady Bulldogs posted an 18-0 decision over visiting Pikeville College Wednesday.

The 18-goal outburst surpasses the previous mark of 17 goals, which the Lady Bulldogs recorded on Sept. 29, 1998, versus Berea College.

UC raced to an comfortable lead, scoring 14 first-half goals. The Lady Bulldogs tacked on four more in the second half to seal the lopsided win.

Senior Alessandra Tavoloni (Limeria, Brazil) netted six goals, giving her 20 tallies for the season and 98 for her career. She also had two assists, making her the all-time assist leader in program history. Tavoloni now has 52 career assists, surpassing Ana Bruni's mark of 51.

Anne Castro (Sao Paulo, Brazil) and Tanja Harju (Lovi-isa, Finland) each had three goals, while Kelly Jarvis (Crittenden) and Tanja Meski (Loviisa, Finland) each netted a pair. Meski also had an assist.

Karin Moore (Owingsville) had one goal and four assists, and Amanda Harden (Hopkinsville) chipped in a goal.

Union (6-4 overall) returns to action on Saturday when it will host Milligan (Tenn.) College in Appalachian Athletic Conference action. Game time is set for 2 p.m.

Spurrier respected, but not feared, by Kentucky

by MURRAY EVANS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — As a youngster, Kentucky defensive end B. Jay Parsons remembers watching Steve Spurrier-coached Florida teams pound opponents into submission using the so-called Fun-n-Gun offense.

Spurrier's offense in his first season as South Carolina's football coach won't be mistaken for any of his vintage Florida units. Still, Parsons and other Kentucky defenders said Monday that they have a healthy respect for the coach's offensive mind and expressed excitement about the challenge of trying to stop his squad when the Wildcats (1-3, 0-1 Southeastern Conference) visit South Carolina (2-3, 0-3) on Saturday.

"He shows a lot of different looks and motions and things you don't see very often," Parsons said. "It's going to be a good opportunity to focus, because we're really going to need to focus on the field on the different formations."

"I know his offense works. I know it's going to work. It's just a matter of time until things start clicking. We just hope it's not this week."

Spurrier has enjoyed much success against Kentucky, going 12-0 against the Wildcats during his tenure at Florida, from 1990 to 2001, and winning those games by scores like 47-15, 73-7, 42-7, 65-0, 59-31 and 44-10.

"It was crazy," sophomore strong safety Roger Williams said. "They could score any time they wanted to. But as a defense, you can't allow that. You have to go out there and be prepared for what's going to be ahead."

Kentucky coach Rich Brooks played down the Kentucky vs. Spurrier scenario, saying, "I've coached against a lot of legends." But Brooks did acknowledge the game has important implications for both Kentucky and South Carolina.

"We're both oh-fer in the conference," Brooks said. "We're both struggling a little bit. We would both like to get an SEC win. The task for us to go on the road and get it is maybe a little more difficult than (it would be for them). But this is a huge game for us to show what we're made of."

Kentucky, with a November that includes games against Auburn, surprising Vanderbilt, Georgia and Tennessee, likely has its best chance for success against an October schedule that features three non-heavyweight SEC opponents — South Carolina, Mississippi and Mississippi State.

South Carolina, meanwhile, already has lost to SEC foes Georgia, Alabama and Auburn, the latter two by lopsided margins. Spurrier has lost three straight SEC games for the first time in his coaching career, and the Gamecocks have scored more than 24 points in a game this season only once, a 45-20 win over Troy on Sept. 24.

"They're more productive than we are, except in points scored," Brooks said. "More yards, better passing, better efficiency. I think had they not been shut down last week, I'd say his offense would still be very productive and his scoring average would be pretty good. Steve has never been without a productive offense."

Spurrier remained noncommittal Monday about the availability of quarterback Blake Mitchell, who suffered a high ankle sprain when he was sacked late in the third quarter against Troy. If Mitchell can't go, redshirt freshman Antonio Heffner would start. Against Auburn, in his first career start, Heffner struggled, finished 15-of-23 passing for 133 yards and a touchdown in a 48-7 loss.

Kentucky has its own well-chronicled injury issues, particularly at wide receiver, a position to which reserve tailback Draak Davis has been moved, at least temporarily. Six of the Wildcats' seven scholarship players at the position are out or limited by injuries.

Kentucky quarterback Andre

Woodson should be close to 100 percent for the game after suffering a pulled oblique muscle in his chest during the Wildcats' last game, a 49-28 loss to Florida on Sept. 24. Brooks said that Woodson would have been questionable had Kentucky, which is coming off a bye week, had to play last Saturday.

Samoan finds home on Kentucky offensive line

by MURRAY EVANS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — When he first visited Kentucky, it didn't take long for Fatu Turituri to notice the trees.

"I was looking around at the environment," said the Kentucky offensive lineman, a native of American Samoa. "I kind of felt like I was at Samoa. It's just the same out here. There are a lot of trees. In Samoa, you see a lot of trees around the schools. Trees around the school make you feel like you're at home."

After spending two years at a Los Angeles-area junior college, that's exactly what Turituri wanted. The 6-foot-3, 290-pound junior has adjusted well to life in Kentucky, especially as a player. He'll start at left tackle Saturday when the Wildcats (1-3, 0-1 Southeastern Conference) visit South Carolina (2-3, 0-3).

Turituri is one of a growing number of football players coming to the U.S. from American Samoa, a group of six islands in the south Pacific Ocean more than 4,100 miles southwest of San Francisco. At least two of his former high school teammates also play major-college football — Southern California defensive tackle Travis Tofi and Michigan State defensive tackle Domata Peko.

The islands have a population of about 64,000. "Samoans are built to be linemen," said Turituri, the first Polynesian player ever to start for Kentucky. "Football out there is the biggest sport in high school, but people never know about Samoa (football) until they find out there are Samoans in the NFL."

Most Samoan players who reach the major-college level usually have played either high school or junior-college football in the U.S., said Kentucky offensive line coach Jimmy Heggins, who until this season had never coached a Samoan player in more than two decades as a college coach.

Turituri led his Samoan high school to championships as a sophomore and junior. He started his college career at Utah, to which he was recruited by then-head coach Ron McBride, who later spent two seasons as a Kentucky assistant coach before taking the head-coaching job at Weber State. But Turituri briefly soured on football while at Utah and left the team, transferring to Los Angeles Harbor College in Wilmington, Calif.

"Then I had the feeling I wanted to play football again," he said.

He played two seasons for

Los Angeles Harbor and helped the Seahawks lead a 16-team league in rushing as a sophomore. He received scholarship offers from Utah, California and New Mexico before deciding to sign with Kentucky.

He enrolled in January and participated in spring practice with the Wildcats. Turituri immediately impressed coaches with his sound mechanics and quickness and head coach Rich Brooks mentioned him by name several times when discussing the positive developments of the spring.

"We thought it would be a year or so before he would play, but he came in and had pretty good feet," Heggins said of Turituri. "He's really playing out of position right now, but he's handling it and he doesn't care."

Mitchell, Kelley, D. Davis named game captains for South Carolina contest

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON — Kentucky wide receiver Scott Mitchell, linebacker Braxton Kelley, and special teams standout Draak Davis are the game captains for Saturday's contest at South Carolina, Coach Rich Brooks has announced.

Game captains are chosen on the basis of performance in the previous game. Mitchell caught five passes for 41 yards against Florida on Sept. 24. Kelley had a career-high 11 tackles, including a quarterback sack, and caused a fumble that was recovered by the Wildcats. Davis returned two kickoffs for 47 yards and also made a tackle on kick coverage.

Mitchell (League City, Tex.), Kelley (LaGrange, Ga.), and Davis (Vallejo, Calif.) will join permanent captain Muhammad Abdullah for the coin flip at the start of the game, which is slated for a 1 p.m. kickoff in Columbia's Williams-Brice Stadium.

Brown, Duncan, and Buckvar are Scout Team Players of the Week: Redshirt freshman quarterback/wide receiver Joe Joe Brown, freshman defensive end Zipp Duncan and sophomore special teams performer Nick Buckvar are the Scout Team Players of the Week, Coach Rich Brooks has announced.

Brown (Cordele, Ga.), Duncan (Magnolia), and Buckvar (St. Louis, Mo.) were chosen for their work on the scout teams in helping the Wildcats prepare for the game against Florida.

Yeast is CFL Offensive Player of the Week: Former UK wide receiver Craig Yeast, who helped the Hamilton Tiger-Cats upset the Edmonton Eskimos 40-14 last weekend, was named the Canadian Football League's offensive player of the week Tuesday.

Yeast finished the game with six catches for 166 yards. This season, Yeast has 58 catches for 930 yards and three touchdowns.

A player at Kentucky from 1995-98, Yeast was an All-American and still remains the leading receiver in Southeastern Conference history. He was an all-state performer at Harrodsburg High School.

Football Eagles open PFL South Division play at Jacksonville

TIMES STAFF REPORT

MOREHEAD — The Morehead State Football Eagles open Pioneer Football League South Division play at Jacksonville Saturday. Kickoff at D. B. Milne Field is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. EDT.

The game can be heard on the Eagle Sports Network (WIVY-FM, 96.3 and WMST-AM, 1150) and on www.msueagles.com.

MSU, three-time defending PFL South Champion, is 4-1 on the season. Jacksonville, the only other team to ever win the South Division crown, is 1-2 and has had two games called off, including its Sept. 1 season-opener at Southeastern Louisiana due to Hurricane Katrina.

The Eagles lead the all-time series 3-1 and have won the last three meetings. MSU won 28-14 last season at Jayne Stadium.

Freshman wide receiver/kick returner Nick Feldman is this week's PFL Special Teams Player of the Week. In last week's 58-10 win at Butler, Feldman returned eight punts for 181 yards and a touchdown.

Morehead State's Nick Feldman, a freshman wide receiver and return specialist from Oconto, Wis., has been named the Pioneer Football League Special Teams Player of the Week.

In the Eagles' 58-10 win at Butler, Feldman returned eight punts for 181 yards and a touchdown. He averaged 22.6 yards per punt return.

Feldman now leads the conference with an average of 18.3 yards per return.

Petrino: Cardinals need to relax

by CHRIS DUNCAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — The Louisville Cardinals expected an angry tirade from coach Bobby Petrino at halftime of Saturday's 61-10 win over Florida Atlantic.

The No. 23 Cardinals (3-1) led only 20-10 after their third straight sluggish start.

Once the Cardinals got into the locker room, instead of sharp criticism, they heard a wise, calming voice from Petrino.

"I really felt like in the first half that our players were thinking, 'Oh, we should be beating these guys by whatever,'" Petrino said. "It's not that way. It takes a full day's work to win a game. You can't expect to go out and win it in the first quarter."

The Cardinals have been outscored 27-17 in first quarters this season, the only quarter they're losing.

Petrino senses his team is impatient, trying to do too much too early.

"Our guys are pressing a little bit, thinking they should be scoring right away and stopping everyone right away," he said. "Everybody wants to see a blowout in the first quarter. That's not how football is played."

Sophomore quarterback Brian Brohm said the Cardinals' early struggles, at least against the Owls, were all in their heads.

"We were playing a little tight, and when Coach told us, we all realized it," said Brohm, who completed 15 of 23 passes for 282 yards last Saturday. "We went out there in the second half, relaxed and had fun and you saw the results."

The Cardinals ran over the Owls after the break, scoring 41 points in only 17 plays. But the slow start wasn't the only recurring issue Petrino wants corrected before Saturday's game against North Carolina (2-2).

He's been frustrated all season by Louisville's special teams, and on Saturday, Art Carmody got an extra-point kick blocked, snapping a school record of 97 straight. Petrino was also disappointed, at times, in Louisville's red-zone offense, which failed to score on a fourth down from the Owls' 3 and settled for field goals on two other first-half possessions.

"We didn't do everything right. We still have things we need to improve on," Petrino said. "We've got to make sure we get touchdowns, and then getting an extra point blocked is something we can't have happen."

The Cardinals were also penalized nine times, many of them for pass interference or personal fouls on late hits. Louisville drew 15 flags in its 45-14 loss at South Florida on Sept. 24 and leads the Big East with 72 penalty yards per game. Louisville has committed 36 penalties this season after having only 67 in 12 games last year.

"It's a concern," Petrino said. "We had some dumb penalties. The pass interference penalties are really hurting us. We have got to improve on the pass interference. Two of those were just kind of not having enough poise to play the ball. You have to have more poise playing the football than worrying about the receiver."

Petrino said senior defensive tackle Amobi Okoye will return to action on Saturday after sitting out the Florida Atlantic game with a foot sprain. Less certain is the status of senior linebacker Brandon Johnson, who was benched against the Owls. Johnson had 10 tackles in the South Florida loss.

"I'll have to see how he practices," Petrino said. "We'll give him an opportunity in practice to earn playing time, and that's going to be up to him."

After Petrino's news conference, Louisville announced that the school's football and men's basketball games — the ones not on national television — will be broadcast on a new statewide network. The feed from Louisville-based WHAS will reach cable systems in Lexington, northern Kentucky, Bowling Green, Henderson and much of eastern Kentucky.

U of L, WHAS-TV announce statewide TV network

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LOUISVILLE — For the first time in school history, University of Louisville football and men's basketball games, as well as the Cardinal coaches' shows, will air on a television network that reaches areas across the state of Kentucky which include Lexington, Northern Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky and Bowling Green.

WHAS-TV in Louisville and its network consultant, Game Seven Sports Marketing in Lexington, Ky., announced Monday that the new Cardinal Sports Television Network will feature live telecasts of both sports as well as the respective coaches' shows — Inside the Huddle with Bobby Petrino and Courtside with Rick Pitino.

The network will reach over 750,000 homes through cable providers across the state, with over a half-million homes outside the Louisville television market. The first WHAS-TV telecast will be the Cardinals' Oct. 8 football game against North Carolina.

"We're very pleased to extend the viewing reach of our games and coaches' shows on WHAS-TV to fans across the state of Kentucky," said U of L

Vice President for Athletics Tom Jurich. "We took a great step in increasing radio coverage of our events this year, and this venture will greatly increase the opportunity for Cardinal fans across the state to watch our games."

Inside the Huddle with Bobby Petrino began airing on the network in late August. Any remaining Cardinal football games not selected by a national or regional network will be aired live on WHAS-TV and the new network, as well as 15 men's basketball games and 38 coaches' shows.

"We are extremely proud to have established such a strong network in the first year of our partnership with the University of Louisville," said Robert Klinge, President and General Manager of WHAS-TV. "The statewide interest in Cardinal sports is a testament to the success the University of Louisville is experiencing under Tom Jurich."

The following cable systems are currently participating:

■ Insight Communications — Northern Kentucky, Lexington, Louisville, Bowling Green and Henderson

■ Mediacom — Marshall, Calloway, Christian, Monroe, Trigg and Crittenden counties

■ Inter Mountain Cable — Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Knott counties

■ Glasgow Electric Plant Board — Barren and Hart counties

■ TV Service Inc. — Wolfe, Breathitt, Perry, and Letcher counties

Additional systems may be added at a future date. The games and coaches' shows will be shown on a local origination channel on each system. Fans can contact their local cable provider to request that the games be carried in their area.

"This network allows us to reach into new markets with U of L sports," Klinge said. "To have nine eastern Kentucky counties on board, all the Insight systems and a strong presence in southern and western Kentucky shows the growing interest in Cardinal Sports throughout the region. Fans love to follow a successful program like U of L."

WHAS-TV is in its first year as the television rights holder for UofL Sports. Ari Wolfe will handle the play-by-play of the all of the broadcasts. Doug James and Will Wolford will assist on the football telecasts while Bob Valvano and Robbie Valentine will provide analysis for basketball.

Wallace down to seven races in his remarkable career

by MIKE HARRIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are seven races remaining in the driving career of Rusty Wallace, and the long-time NASCAR star would like to make them memorable. Wallace, the 1989 champion of NASCAR's top stock car series, is focused on winning another title in his final season, dubbed "Rusty's Last Call."

Heading into Kansas Speedway this week for what will be the 700th start of his career, Wallace is one of the 10 drivers racing for the title in the second Chase for the Nextel Cup championship, and he trails only series leader Tony Stewart and second-place Ryan Newman, his Penske Racing South teammate.

It's somewhat surprising that two of the top three in the standings, separated by just 76 points, are driving Dodges, since the new Chargers have won only three of 29 races this season and have not been competitive in many more.

So what does the Penske team have to do to have a shot over the final seven races of the 10-race Chase?

"We've got to put a major importance on handling," Wallace said. "I honestly can't say the problem we have is the Dodge, though. And I know it's not the engines. I think it's just the individual teams not getting the setups right."

"The other teams have done a little bit better job, but I tell you, I think we held our own if not exceeded some of these guys at the last 10 or 15 races at some of these tracks. I've had a lot of top fives and top 10s, which got me to second in the points."

"The weird crash at Talladega has got me back to third now, so I'm confident going into the rest of them, that's for sure. But the big thing right now is to get these cars handling well."

Wallace got caught up in a multicar wreck at Talladega, but was able to get back on track and finish 25th. What upset the veteran racer more than being in one of the several wrecks in the race at the big Alabama track was what he views as the reason the crashes happened.

"I just couldn't believe the bump drafting I was seeing," said Wallace, referring to the tactic used by drivers at Talladega and Daytona, the two tracks where NASCAR requires horsepower-sapping carburetor restrictor plates to slow the cars. With all the cars so even, drivers bump the guy ahead of them to make both cars go faster.

"The guys were really causing a lot of wrecks by extreme bump drafting," Wallace said. "That's one thing that come Daytona (in February) NASCAR is going to have to crack down on with some severe penalties," Wallace said. "It could have killed some people. It was just the wrong way to race."

NASCAR president Mike Helton repeatedly has said that the sanctioning organization would love to find a way to get rid of the plates, but that no safe alternative has been found. Wallace, who never has been afraid to tell NASCAR what he is thinking, has an idea.

Wallace noted that drivers already are penalized with a pit road drive-through or being sent to the rear of the longest line on a restart if they drive below the yellow line at the edge of the tracks at Talladega and Daytona.

"My solution is a safe solution," he said. "If you go below the yellow line, we're going to black flag you. If we catch you bump drafting, we're going to black flag you."

"It's no harder to police than it is to police the yellow line rule, so I consider the bump drafting and yellow line rule the same. They should receive the same penalty. I believe that will stop (it)."

But that's old news for Wallace now.

"The big picture is, I don't have to worry about it anymore because that was my last (plate race)," he said.

Instead, he will concentrate on the remaining races.

"I feel like we're prepared for Kansas," Wallace said. "We've just got to get back up in the points. Losing 70 points was a blow."

Five of the remaining tracks, including Kansas, are 1 1/2-mile ovals.

"I'm glad it's coming down to these style tracks," Wallace said. "I'm not real fond of having a restrictor-plate race in the Chase for the championship because it gets right down to the caliber of the teams and the way you drive these cars with 10 (races) to go, and that's not the case with restrictor plates."

"Restrictor plates you've got to rely on all the other drivers around you to make it happen, and that's hard to do. ... But I think the mile and a half tracks are perfect for this Chase."

"I think Rusty could have an advantage on some of these tracks with his experience and the way he's been running," Carter said. "Talladega was last week. We've got to put that behind us and go to Kansas and get the job done."

"That's been a good track for this team, and I think we can make up some ground this week."

With so much intense racing to focus on, Wallace insists he isn't thinking much about his upcoming retirement.

"I'm testing everywhere in the world," he said. "Homestead is going to be over and I'm still going to be wound up, running wide open, and somebody is going to come up to me and say, 'It's all over. You're not racing anymore, you're done.' Then it's going to be a shock."

"I'm trying to find a couple of days to get home and work on a couple of things for next year. I can't seem to get off the road. I'm still trying to win a championship, so, when it's over, they're just going to have to pull me out of the car and say it's done."

Spotlight will be on Edwards this weekend at Kansas

by JENNA FRYER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Carl Edwards has managed to stay under the radar through the first three Chase for the Nextel Cup championship races. That should change for him this weekend when he heads to Kansas Speedway — the closest thing to a hometown track for the Missouri native.

Edwards is expecting a ton of friends and family to make the two-hour trip from Columbia, Mo., to Kansas for Sunday's race. He went home earlier this week to do as much catching up as he can in an effort to free his schedule at the track and allow him to concentrate on racing.

It's a little surreal for the 26-year-old Edwards, who was scraping by just a few years ago as a substitute teacher while trying to pursue a racing career.

"It's crazy, so many awesome things have happened," Edwards said. "Winning a couple of races, being in the Chase, going for this championship — all of that is just a dream come true and it's really neat to be able to come back home to Missouri and hang out with my friends."

"I guess it reminds me of what things were like just a few years ago and how grateful I am to be in this position."

Edwards is the surprise of the Chase for the championship, a driver few expected to make the 10-race title hunt. But he worked his way in by winning two races this year — his first full season of Cup racing — and heads into Kansas sixth in the standings and only 100 points out of the lead.

It's a far cry from where he was just three or so years ago, when Edwards resorted to placing a personal ad in a trade magazine in hopes of landing a job.

He got picked up by Roush Racing and put in the truck series, where he probably still would be if Jeff Burton had not vacated his Cup seat late last year. With no driver to replace him, Roush surprisingly gave the job to Edwards, who finished 10th in his Cup debut.

Edwards drove the final 13 races of last season, getting acclimated to a Cup car and the No. 99 crew. They opened this year hoping to be competitive, and exceeded their goals by winning at Atlanta in the fourth race of the season.

Edwards celebrated by doing his trademark back flip off his window ledge and became an instant star.

A victory at Pocono in June made the Chase a real possibility for Edwards, who gave Roush Racing five of the 10 spots in the Chase when he qualified.

"My performance this year was not at all what we expected — it's what we hoped for," Edwards said. "After that first win at Atlanta everything kind of changed. It went from, 'Wow, we would just be super happy to run in the top five,' to 'Man, winning felt awfully good. We'd like to do it again every week.'"

"So our perspective has changed and our expectations have changed. We hoped for this and now we've kind of raised the bar for ourselves."

But Edwards still is considered a long shot to win the title and has done little to change that through the first three Chase races. He was a sub-par 19th in the Chase opener at New Hampshire, then bounced back with an uneventful ninth place the next week at Dover.

Edwards was most surprising last week in Talladega, capitalizing when other Chase drivers were caught in accidents by quietly sneaking away with a fifth-place finish. It pushed him up two spots in the standings and gave him confidence heading into Kansas.

Crew chief Bob Osborne believes Edwards still can take off in the Chase and make a run at the title because he's been patient through the first three rounds.

"For the little experience that he has, he doesn't put the car in a situation where he's going to have a bad outcome," Osborne said. "He does do it occasionally, but with a little bit of prodding and reminding him about the bigger picture and how easy it is to get in an accident, he keeps his nose clean and stays out of trouble."

If Edwards is to make up any ground this week in the Chase, he'll need bad races from points leader Tony Stewart and second-place Ryan Newman.

Stewart has a four-point lead over Newman and both drivers have been successful at Kansas. Stewart never has finished lower than 14th in his four Kansas starts, while Newman has one victory and a pair of second places.

So Edwards knows he needs to strike soon.

"Ryan and Tony, and especially Tony, has been awesome and excelled at every type of race track on the schedule through the second half of the season," Edwards said. "I look at our team as a team that can do that."

"I think that making it through these first few races, I can only speak for myself, but I feel like making it through New Hampshire, Dover and Talladega and only being 100 points behind the leader is a home run for me."

A glance at drivers in NASCAR's championship chase

by JENNA FRYER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 10 drivers competing in NASCAR's Chase for the Nextel Cup championship, in order of points standings:

DRIVER: Tony Stewart; CAR: No. 14 Home Depot Chevrolet; CHASE POINTS: First, 5,519; POSITION CHANGE: Plus 5.

WHAT HAPPENED: Stewart regained the points lead with a second-place finish at Talladega. He nearly won the race, leading 65 laps before losing a last-lap battle with Dale Jarrett. But it was as good as a victory for the Joe Gibbs Racing team because they successfully battled an overheating engine to salvage the day. He takes a four-point lead over Ryan Newman into Kansas, where Stewart never has finished lower than 14th.

SPEAKING: "At Kansas, we're back in control. There are still things out there that can screw up your day, but they're minimal when compared to what we dealt with at Talladega," Stewart said.

DRIVER: Ryan Newman; CAR: No. 12 ALLTEL Dodge; CHASE POINTS: Second, 5,515; POSITION CHANGE: Plus 1.

WHAT HAPPENED: Newman finished a career-best fourth at Talladega and was briefly awarded the points lead until a NASCAR scoring change bumped him into second behind Stewart. His race was not without incident — he was blamed for causing an eight-car accident that collected teammate Rusty Wallace and Chase driver Greg Biffle. Now he heads to Kansas, where he has one victory and a pair of runner-up finishes in four previous starts.

SPEAKING: "We're not feeling any pressure and we're not putting any pressure on ourselves. We said in the beginning of the Chase, 'Let's have some fun.' That's what we've been doing and it's working so far," Newman said.

DRIVER: Rusty Wallace; CAR: No. 2 Miller Lite Dodge; CHASE POINTS: Third, 5,443; POSITION CHANGE: Minus 1.

WHAT HAPPENED: Wallace had a difficult race at Talladega after his car was damaged in an accident that Newman started. He finished 25th and will close his NASCAR career without ever winning a restrictor-plate race. But Wallace still has a chance at the Nextel Cup title and is spending all of his time trying to do so.

SPEAKING: "We're in the Chase for the championship and I'm just focused. I'm working hard to get myself content (so) after the last race at Homestead, I can walk away going 'I can feel perfect.' I'm still trying to win a championship, so when it's over they're just going to have to pull me out of the car and say 'It's done,'" Wallace said.

DRIVER: Jimmie Johnson; CAR: No. 48 Lowe's Chevrolet; CHASE POINTS: Fourth, 5,437; POSITION CHANGE: Minus 4.

WHAT HAPPENED: Johnson lost the points lead by finishing 31st at Talladega. He drew the ire of his fellow competitors, who accused him of causing the first big accident just 20 laps into the race. After initially shirking responsibility for the accident, Johnson watched the replays and now takes responsibility for causing it. But he knows the issue will follow him to Kansas, and will try hard not to let it bother him.

SPEAKING: "I feel bad, I don't know what else I can say. I started a wreck and took out a lot of good cars. I'm taking the responsibility. It's not going to just disappear over the course of a week. I've just got to get in there and do my job and do the best that I can and try to get a couple weeks behind us and move on," Johnson said.

DRIVER: Greg Biffle; CAR: No. 16 National Guard/Subway Ford; CHASE POINTS: Fifth, 5,421; POSITION CHANGE: None.

WHAT HAPPENED: Biffle's car was damaged at Talladega in an accident he accused Ryan Newman of causing. His team made enough repairs for him to return to the track and run for points, and he ended up finishing 27th. He can make up ground this weekend in Kansas, where he led 64 laps last season and finished third.

SPEAKING: "I like racing at Kansas, it's a nice facility and the track suits my driving style. We had some rough luck at Talladega and Kansas could be the race that gets us back on track," Biffle said.

DRIVER: Carl Edwards; CAR: No. 99 Office Depot Ford; CHASE POINTS: Sixth, 5,419; POSITION CHANGE: Plus 2.

WHAT HAPPENED: Edwards had a quiet day at Talladega, avoiding the many wrecks and popping up in the lead pack late in the race. He finished fifth to gain two spots in the standings. Edwards, a Missouri native, is looking forward to racing at Kansas, where he has just one career start.

SPEAKING: "It's my hometown track so it will be neat having so many family and friends there. I think we have a really good car for this weekend. We made it through what I think have been three of our biggest hurdles in the Chase so far, so the entire team is looking forward to going racing at the kind of track where we've been successful in the past," Edwards said.

DRIVER: Matt Kenseth; CAR: No. 17 DeWalt Tools Ford; CHASE POINTS: Seventh, 5,408; POSITION CHANGE: Plus 2.

WHAT HAPPENED: Kenseth was in contention to win at Talladega before settling for third after losing the battle with Dale Jarrett and Tony Stewart on the final laps. He was originally awarded fifth place, but a post-race review of the final lap bumped him up two spots in the finishing order — and two spots in the points standings.

SPEAKING: "We are relieved to be finished with Talladega. It was disappointing, though, to lose the lead on the last lap and not end up in Victory Lane. Our momentum is good right now going into Kansas — our cars have been strong, the pit stops have been fast and this whole team is just focused every week on getting the best finish possible," Kenseth said.

DRIVER: Jeremy Mayfield; CAR: No. 19 Dodge Dealers/UAW Dodge; CHASE POINTS: Eighth, 5,407; POSITION CHANGE: Minus 1.

WHAT HAPPENED: Mayfield had a quiet day, never really challenged and wound up an uneventful 14th. He dropped one place in the points. Mayfield has three top-10 finishes in four previous starts at Kansas.

SPEAKING: "We feel our two bad days are over with a 16th at New Hampshire and a 14th at Talladega. We got out of those with clean finishes so we need to move on. We just need to stay quiet and run our race," Mayfield said.

DRIVER: Mark Martin; CAR: No. 6 Viagra Ford; CHASE POINTS: Ninth, 5,381; POSITION CHANGE: Minus 5.

WHAT HAPPENED: Martin's day at Talladega ended just 20 laps into the race when he was involved in the accident Johnson started. He'll try to make up ground in Kansas, but it might be difficult: He has finished in the top 10 just once — in the track's 2001 debut.

SPEAKING: "We are looking forward to getting back out on the track and getting to race some. We didn't get a lot of laps last week at Talladega — I don't think I even broke a sweat," Martin said.

DRIVER: Kurt Busch; CAR: No. 97 Irwin Industrial Tools/Sharpie Ford; CHASE POINTS: Tenth, 5,339; POSITION CHANGE: None.

WHAT HAPPENED: Despite being involved in a single-car crash at Talladega, Busch's crew managed to repair his car and help him to an eighth-place finish. He'll need to do better at Kansas, and his team had a successful test there in preparation for it.

SPEAKING: "We tested at Kansas a few weeks ago with a new car and one that we've run a few times this year, and Kurt liked the one that we've run a lot this year. We worked a lot on our setups during the test because we know this racetrack will get tight as the day goes on," said crew chief Jimmy Fennig.

THROUGH MY EYES

Happy Friday! Hope you're all enjoying the ongoing Jenny Wiley Festival. I had a nice little column all written out, but then, decided, at the second look over, that maybe it needed a tad bit more work. So, I pulled it and now, since I'm under the wire and holding things up, am using something that I cannot take credit for. I don't remember who sent it to me, but whoever you are out there, thanks!

God's Children

To those of us who have children in our lives, whether they are our own, grandchildren, nieces, nephews, or students, we know all too well the many frustrations, and smiles, that can come from having them around.

Just remember, whenever your own children are out of control, you can take comfort from the thought that even God's omnipotence did not extend to His own children:

The magic of family

Sometimes magic happens, even though your expectations are uncertain to low.

Last weekend saw a modest family reunion. It centered on a cousin I had not seen since my Uncle Walter died in 1986 and his sister whom I had not seen since our grandmother's funeral in 1963. They came to visit, with their spouses.

Our cousin Lorraine Prater had made the original contact with Roger Ward last winter. I had once had his address in St. Albans, WV, but had lost it. Lorraine, not one to be stymied on anything, hatched a plan to call all Roger Wards in West Virginia, if need be. She got our Roger's wife, Gale, on the first call.

Important announcement from Freddie James, Prestonsburg Tourism:

Some corrections need to be addressed in regard to this weekend's Jenny Wiley Festival of events. Among them: The Levisa Cup River Run will be held Saturday, October 8, at 12:30 p.m., NOT Sunday as previously announced.

Will depart from parking lot behind Billy Ray's Restaurant. Transportation back from Paintsville responsibility of each participant. T-shirts will be given out at registration. Registration will be held at Pro-Fitness. Trophies may be picked up Saturday afternoon or the following week, or arrangements may be made to have your trophy mailed to your address. All participants will receive goody bag.

Also: 5K Run to begin at 8:30 a.m. (Sat., Oct. 8); Bike Ride, (Sat., Oct. 8). Groups will leave from different starting points; but all will meet for breakfast from 9:30 to 11 a.m., at Johns Creek Station, so if no one is at the convention center, just hop on your bike and head to the spillway for breakfast. New riders welcome.

And: Bench Press Contest will be held at 11:30 a.m., (Fri., Oct. 7). Special events will include triathlon, duathlon, pump and run, and a climbing wall - all at Pro-Fitness. Register from 7:30 to 8 a.m.

For more information about these events, contact Don Fields at 886-8604, or email to: profitnessctr@bellsouth.net, or contact Fred James at 886-1341.

"Bluegrass for Education" benefit featuring Charlie Sizemore to be held Oct. 22 at Mountain Arts Center

Proceeds to benefit Big Sandy Community and Technical College.

"How do you repay an institution that made it possible for you to be the person you are today?" That is the question Charlie Sizemore asked himself three years ago. He decided to return to the college that "turned him around" and perform a bluegrass benefit, raising money for scholarships and other student needs that could give someone else the academic opportunity he himself enjoyed. "Nothing is too much to do for the college that made such a difference in my life," Sizemore said.

Once again, Charlie Sizemore will return to the area of his youth to play a bluegrass benefit concert. "5 Miles From Nowhere" will open the show and the Big Sandy Singers will also perform. The college will auction off two finely crafted dulcimers, donated by Southeast Community and Technical College. For the price of one $10 ticket you can enjoy all three musical sets and have a chance to bid on a dulcimer. If you purchase a VIP ticket for $25 you can attend the reception before the concert, meet the artists, and then enjoy the show. While you are having a pleasant evening of music and fun, you also will have the pleasure of knowing you are contributing toward a scholarship for a student who may otherwise be unable to attain a college education.

Charlie Sizemore has been called "the real deal." Raised on Puncheon Creek, in Magoffin County, the son and grandson of banjo players, he became fascinated by the sounds of bluegrass and mountain music as a child. His first instrument was the fiddle, which he began playing when he was six years old. A few years later, Charlie played lead guitar in a local bootlegger's bluegrass band before touring the eastern United States with the Goins Brothers band. He also managed to find time to focus on school and graduated early and near the top of his high school class. At the age of sixteen, Charlie joined Ralph Stanley's band as lead singer, replacing Keith Whitley. Nine years and more than a dozen Stanley albums later, Charlie formed his own band and entered Prestonsburg Community College (now Big Sandy Community and Technical College).

While a student at Prestonsburg Community College (PCC), Charlie was mentored by professors like Tom Whitaker. He was encouraged to choose a direction and pursue success. He learned to achieve and to like it. After graduating from PCC he continued his education at the University of Kentucky, graduating with honors from the University of Kentucky with a degree in political science and a minor in history. While an undergraduate, he made the Dean's List every semester and was a finalist for the Amry Vandembosh Award, given annually to an outstanding, graduating, political science major at UK.

The Charlie Sizemore Band toured for a dozen years and made seven critically acclaimed albums. Over the years, he built a large following among fans and performers alike. His high esteem within the music industry is demonstrated by the numerous artists who have appeared on his records. These guests include the Oak Ridge Boys, Vern Gosdin, Alison Krauss, Kathy Mattea, Tom T. Hall, J.D. Crowe, and Ralph Stanley.

After college, Charlie moved to Nashville and wrote songs for Paul Craft Music. Artists who have recorded his songs include Ralph Stanley, Jimmy Martin, Doyle Lawson, and Del Reeves. During this time he also attended graduate school before going to law school, all the while continuing to tour and working for a Nashville law firm. After graduating from law school with honors, Charlie turned down numerous job offers in favor of starting a solo trial and appellate law practice in Nashville.

Currently, Charlie maintains a demanding and highly successful law practice, writes short stories and songs in his spare time, makes selected personal appearances, and continues to record for Rebel Records, his record company for the past ten years. His latest recording, released earlier this year, is a tribute to his long-time friend and fellow Eastern Kentuckian, Tom T. Hall. "The Story Is...The Songs of Tom T. Hall" has received rave reviews from Bluegrass Unlimited to Billboard and is rapidly moving up the bluegrass and American charts.

Charlie lives in Goodlettsville, Tennessee with his wife Robin, and his children Patrick and Audrey.

THINGS TO PONDER

Domestic Violence: Please, Daddy, STOP!

by Dr. Mable Rowe Lineberger, Ph.D.

Again, we have decided to offer some discussion on the prevention of child abuse. So many times, the impact of domestic violence on women is discussed, but the recognition of the child's needs after witnessing domestic violence has lagged behind. Along with the harm the child experiences directly to her body, if she has been abused, there has been more research that demonstrates that exposure to domestic violence has a venomous impact on the child's social, emotional, and cognitive development. It has been further suggested that witnessing domestic violence has long-term consequences for the child's well-being, ultimately affecting her adult functioning.

Children's responses to witnessing domestic violence vary greatly, from showing a wide range of adjustment problems and emotional problems to apparently escaping without an obvious scratch. Possible contributing factors to the children's responses are: (1) their proximity to the violence, such as what they actually saw or heard; (2) the children's temperament; (3) their ages at the time of witnessing the event(s); (4) the severity and long-term endurance of the violence; and, (5) whether or not adults are available who can emotionally protect or sustain the children.

Various symptoms have been identified, as characteristic of children who witness domestic violence, such as aggressive behavior, problems socializing, depression, fears, anxiety, sleep disturbances, and learning problems. Underneath all of these are the children's emotional responses to the violence - intense terror, fear of death, and fear of loss of a parent. Besides, children might harbor rage, guilt, and a sense of responsibility for the violence. Other research suggests that children, who are witnessing traumatic events - episodes of domestic violence, are likely to feel helpless and see the world as unpredictable, hostile and threatening. As expected, children who live in households with domestic violence may suffer extensively and are likely to develop a host of short-and long-term problems. Would you believe that more than three million children annually witness acts of domestic violence? So, a big dilemma is to identify the children who actually witness violence in their home, because only a few are with mothers in battered women's shelters or have mothers seeking legal or community-based services in coping with family violence. The greatest difficulty in identifying these children is the "veil of secrecy" that is likely to surround these traumatized families. Often these child-witnesses will not tell other adults about what is happening due to having feelings of shame, guilt, divided loyalties to parents, and fear of repercussions. Battered mothers might also add to the situation by

Postscript

After a few pieces of correspondence with Gale, Roger called me to say he would like to come to Auxier and renew acquaintance.

Roger is the son of my Uncle Adrian. The family, consisting of Uncle Adrian and Aunt Elsie, Adrian Jr., Roger and Donna, lived in Auxier years ago, but left in the early 1950s when Northeast Coal shut down its mines here. They moved to Oceana, WV, where Uncle Adrian went to work for another mining company.

They had never been around the rest of us cousins very much anyway, but when Adrian and Elsie divorced in the mid-'50s, contact was all but over. We all gathered uncomfortably at funerals, including their father's in 1958.

Roger came to see Mammaw about a year after Uncle Adrian's death. One of Mammaw's treasured pictures was one of her holding Roger's baby Natalie, with Roger standing beside her.

One of Roger's treasured memories is of walking on the railroad tracks from Auxier to Paintsville to visit Mammaw, when he was a little boy. He said that, knowing how much he loved pickled beets, she'd always pull out a quart jar and set it in front of him. While he caught her up on family doings, he ate every beet in the jar.

Besides the couple of letters exchanged between Gale and me, Roger and I talked on the phone a few times before we finally got together last weekend.

Adrian Jr., the oldest of the three, died a few years ago, so that tie is lost forever.

But I feel I have new friends, as well as kin, in Roger and Gale and in Donna and her husband Butch DeBarr, who came down from Buckhannon, WV.

Saturday afternoon, we sat on my front porch and got to know each other better. Our Uncle Terry and Aunt Gwen came from Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

Roger could hardly hold back tears when he saw Uncle

Terry, who he said looked like a clone of his late older brother. Terry was actually only a year or two older than his nephew, Adrian Jr. Roger marveled at the looks, the gestures and the laugh that made his brother live again.

Our cousins Lena Butcher and Helen Malta Williams were there, as were Eddie and Dolores Ward.

We had more than enough to eat - and still ate it.

The stories flowed, eliciting laughs, smiles and nods. We exchanged addresses, phone numbers, email addresses and hints of who we are.

We took pictures and fought off bugs as the light darkened.

We all parted feeling a little more whole.

It was magical.

Eyes

After creating heaven and earth, God created Adam and Eve. And the first thing he said to them was, "DON'T!"

"Don't what?" Adam replied.

"Don't eat the forbidden fruit," God said.

"Forbidden fruit? We have forbidden fruit? Hey Eve, we have forbidden fruit!"

"No way!"

"Yes way!"

"Do NOT eat the fruit!" God said again.

"But, why," his children whined.

"Because I am your Father and I said so!" God replied, in the back of his mind wondering why He hadn't stopped creation after making the elephants.

A few minutes later, God looked down, and what did he see? His children doing exactly what he had specifically told them not to do - having an apple break! He was angry! "Didn't I tell you not to eat the forbidden fruit?," God asked.

"Uh huh," Adam replied.

"Then why did you?," said the Father.

"I don't know," Eve said.

"Well, she started it!," Adam said.

"Did not!"

"Did too!"

"DID NOT!"

Having had it with the two of them, God's very just punishment was that Adam and Eve should have children of their own. Thus, the pattern was set and it has never changed.

But, there is reassurance in this story! If you have persistently and lovingly tried to give your children wisdom and they haven't taken it, don't be so hard on yourself. After all, if God had trouble raising children, what makes you think it would be a piece of cake for you?

Advice for the day: In spite of it all, be nice to your kids. They will choose your nursing home one day.

And, finally:

If you have a lot of tension and you get a headache, do exactly what it says on the aspirin bottle:

"Take two aspirin" and

"Keep away from children!"

keeping quiet because of realistic fears that telling others may further jeopardize their safety and that of their children. Although professionals, teachers and physicians, working routinely with children are legally obligated to report physical and sexual abuse, they might be unsure how to interpret problematic symptoms that children display, may be unable to elicit or respond to disclosures about the child's home situation, and/or might not be trained to screen for domestic violence.

As with the identification of children who have witnessed violence in the home, the assessment and treatment by mental health professionals will also depend upon the children's age and stage of development, the nature and duration of the children's symptoms and the impact on their functioning, the children's perceptions of and experiences with the violence, the children's ability to speak about the violence, the amount of safety the children have in their environment, the adults present who can be supportive and protective of the children, and the influence of the children's culture on defining the domestic violence and seeking help.

Other complicating factors for providing psychological support to children who have witnessed violence in the home has to do with their complex emotional needs. Usually children have their parents for protection in times of stress or fear. Studies have shown that children having access to a parent are more able to bounce back emotionally or cope more effectively with the trauma. However, children who witness domestic violence often do not have such emotional refuge, since the perpetrating parent is unsafe and the battered parent may be emotionally "not there" for the children due to her own emotional trauma. Then, even more losses are added up, when the children must leave their home to find safety, so that typically they are uprooted from familiar schools, away from friends, and generally out in an unfamiliar world because an adult did not go by the rules. Further difficulties are apt to be created when the victimized moms find it painful to tolerate their children's expression of sadness and loss for the abusive parent. It is helpful when therapy can be a safe place for children to express their emotions, whatever they are. It is also important that therapists realize that there is a higher incidence of child abuse and neglect in families characterized by domestic violence than in the general population.

Needless to say, the emotional and financial costs of children's exposure to domestic violence are enormous. Often a previous client, say her name is Eve, reminds me by the bubbling-up of her severe emotional turmoil. One of the major bases of her significant problems during her 40's is her witnessing the apparently very brutal physical abuse of her mother by her alcoholic father for years during her childhood. An impression was that the acts of violence were likely to happen when he came home drunk. Eve was the oldest child of three. Over the years I have known her, she has frequently described, with intense sobbing, how she would run between her parents when her father was coming toward her mother. Eve's reoccurring memories typically pertain to a night when she, at about 9 years of age, bolted out of bed when she heard them fighting. She ran into the family kitchen to witness her father going for her mother's breast with a butcher knife. She was even more upset that her mother was nude and pregnant, being close to delivery with her younger sister. Someway, this school-aged child Eve was able to divert her father's attention from her mother. During the time I have known Eve, she has shown the same pattern of significant dysfunctioning, such as momentous problems in relationships, periods of binge drinking with extreme aggressive behaviors so that she has been arrested and in jail at times, has been hospitalized at least three times for detox of alcoholism and significant psychiatric problems, and difficulties maintaining employment at times, even though she has high work ethics, when she is not drinking.

Of course, Eve and her family's significant problems occurred years ago when domestic violence did not receive the attention that it does now. However, in my opinion, society still does not seem to do an adequate job as it might with such an important social problem. Is it because it is difficult to believe that our family members and neighbors would act in such a way? Are we so uncomfortable when we know that children might be in danger that it is easier to look the other way than to speak up? Speak up! Speak up!

Flu shot timing depends on risk group

Question: Last year I wasn't able to get a flu shot because of the vaccine shortage. As it turned out, it didn't matter because I didn't get the flu. How important do you think it is for me to get a flu shot this year?

Answer: I'll start by explaining a bit about influenza, commonly referred to as, simply, "flu," before I answer your question. Flu is a viral illness that occurs year-round but can become epidemic during the winter months. While there is no scientific proof, it is widely accepted that the incidence of flu peaks in the winter because we huddle together in buildings during the cold months and cough on one another. In the United States, flu is most common from October through April.

Flu is usually spread from person to person by inhaling fine droplets of moisture that contain the unwanted virus. The infected moisture droplets that spread the flu to you and me get into the air every time a flu sufferer coughs or sneezes.

The virus invades the body by attacking cells in the mucus lining of the nose, throat, and respiratory track. Once into these cells, it alters their metabolic machinery so that new virus particles are manufactured. Our body's attempts to fight these invading germs produce the typical flu symptoms of fever, runny nose, sore throat, cough and muscle aches.

This year, in order to increase supply, the government approved several new vaccine manufacturers. However, the delivery dates for vaccines and the total supply volume is still a bit uncertain. To be on the safe side, in case there is another shortage, the Centers for Disease Control is recommending that priority be given to certain high risk groups early in the flu season. These include those 65 and older, children between 6 months and 2 years of age, pregnant woman, people in long-term care facilities, physicians and other health-care workers with direct-patient contact, and those providing care to infants 6 months and younger.

Also, people between 2 and 65 years of age who have what doctors call "comorbid conditions" should receive flu vaccine now. A comorbid condition is a chronic illness, such as diabetes, asthma, emphysema, COPD and coronary artery disease, to name a few.

So whether you should get a flu shot in this "first wave" will depend on whether you fall into one of these high-risk groups. If you're not sure, ask your family physician.

By the end of October, the government officials feel they will have a better handle on the actual supply of flu vaccine for the 2005-2006 season. Where you live determines when influenza vaccinations are given. The farther north you live, the earlier the flu shots start.

After October 24, 2005, flu shots should be made available to everyone, unless there is an unanticipated supply disruption. Unless your physician tells you otherwise, I would recommend that you get a flu shot this year. You were lucky last year. Why press your luck again?

These recommendations do not apply to the nasal spray flu vaccine — the live, attenuated influenza vaccine (LAIV). This may be administered at any time to non-pregnant, healthy people aged 5 to 49 years. You might want to ask your doctor about this option, too.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION
The Project consists of installation of chain link fencing for 6 athletic fields as indicated on the plan documents prepared by REED Engineering Company, Inc., dated September 27, 2005. The project work will consist of one (1) bid package.

Bidding Documents may be examined at the following place: REED Engineering Co., Inc., 259 North Arnold Avenue, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, Phone 606-886-7884.

Bidding Documents may be obtained upon a non-refundable deposit of $60.00 per set, cash, or check, made payable to REED Engineering Co., Inc. There will be an on site pre-bid meeting at 11:00 a.m., Local Time, October 13, 2005.

All bids shall be accompanied by a Bid Bond of not less than five (5) percent of the total amount of the bid. A one hundred (100) percent Performance Bond and Payment Bond shall be required of the successful Bidder. All bonding and insurance requirements are contained in the instructions to Bidders and/or the General and Supplementary Conditions of the Contract. All prospective bidders must also provide references of your last 3 projects of comparable size with this bid proposal.

Bids must be submitted, in duplicate originals, on the Bid Form included in the Project Manual.

Submission of a bid shall be construed as confirmation that the bidder has visited the site and satisfied themselves as to the extent of the work required. No changes to the contract will be considered based on misunderstandings of the scope of the work, if such misunderstandings could have been addressed by a site visit.

Any bid received later than the time specified for receipt of bids, or any bid which is not submitted in the proper form, shall not be considered. The Owner reserves the right to reject any and all bids, or to waive any formalities in the bidding process. Bids received after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids will be returned unopened to the bidders. No bid may be withdrawn for a period of thirty (30) days subsequent to the opening of bids, without consent of the Owner.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE PURSUANT TO APPLICATION NO. 858-5064, AMENDMENT NO. 2

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Czar Coal Corporation, HC 64, Box 915, Debord, Ky, 41214, has applied for a permit for an underground coal mining operation, located approximately 2.5 miles south-east of Odds, in Martin and Floyd Counties. The proposed amendment will underlie an additional 589.43 acres, making a total area of 6462.59 acres.

The proposed amendment is approximately 2.5 miles south of Kentucky Route 3's junction with Big Sandy Regional Airport Road, and located at the mouth of Bear Water Branch on Daniels Creek.

The proposed operation is located on the Thomas and Lancer U.S.G.S. 7.5 minute quadrangle maps. The operation will underlie land owned by Jerry Howell and Jefferson Coal Company.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 3140 South Lake Drive, Suite 6, Prestonsburg, Ky, 41653-1410. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, No. 2 Hudson Hollow, US 127 South, Frankfort, Ky, 40601.
